

Israeli jets shot down an Egyptian MIG-21 near the Suez Canal today, an Israeli spokesman said, after an all-day Israeli-Egyptian battle of big guns along the canal killed at least 31 persons and wounded 66.

The United Nations starts sending observers to the canal today to try to halt fighting along the ceasefire line.

The spokesman in Tel Aviv said four MIGs crossed the canal near Ismailia and flew over Israeli-held soil on the east bank. He said two Israeli Mirage jets fought them.

Negro riots

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A third successive night of Negro rioting left Newark all but prostrate today as law enforcement patrols extended at gunpoint their area of control.

The medical examiner's office set the death toll at 11, including eight persons killed Friday night. The victims, not all identified, were Negroes, except for one white policeman.

There were more than 500 injuries estimated by hospital officials. The toll of arrests near the 1,000 mark.

To games

HALIFAX (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth, accompanied by Prime Minister Pearson and his wife, is to attend the highland games at Antigonish, N.S., today.

The Queen Mother, who had a hectic round of engagements here Friday, wound up the day by waving goodbye to a crowd of about 2,000 gathered at the Halifax Dockyard to watch the royal yacht Britannia sail for the Strait of Canso.

Gave serum

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Albert Grenier, 39, told a coroner's inquest Friday he injected two women with a "rejuvenation" serum which he said was prepared from unborn lambs.

Dr. Ilona Kerner of the medical institute in Montreal testified that both women died several days later—the cause of death being "infection with the formation of gas gangrene."

Rockets hit

DA NANG, South Vietnam (Reuters) — Viet Cong rockets poured into the huge U.S. air base here early today, killing at least 13 Americans, wounding 150 and damaging $23,000,000 worth of planes.

The 33-minute barrage shortly after midnight wrecked barracks full of sleeping servicemen.

It was the third raid on the base in five months.

Coins tossed

MONTREAL (CP) — A favorite occupation among visitors at Expo 67 is chucking their spare cash into the nearest pool.

This habit has been turned to good account by at least one pavilion, where coins worth almost $2,000 piled up in a two-month period. But other pavilions find it more a menace than a boon.

Good shot

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists said today the flight of Surveyor IV, hurtling toward a Sunday night landing on the moon, appeared to be the most accurate launch to date.

If an in-flight correction is successful, a spokesman at the jet propulsion laboratory said the 2,200-pound craft probably will land 80 miles southwest of its intended target.

The Congo being strangled by own wealth, anguished history

By SEAN BROWNE

The outbreak of fighting in the eastern and northern regions of the former Belgian Congo came as no surprise to those who know this country's anguished history.

The fighting, including the reported landing of mercenary soldiers from outside the country, has been linked to the alleged kidnapping of former Congo premier Moise Tshombe, now in Algiers awaiting possible extradition to face a death sentence for treason.

But Tshombe, the West's front man in a years-long struggle to keep Communist influence out of Africa, is little more than a pawn in a chess game where the stakes run into billions of dollars.

The Congo, it seems, is its own worst enemy. Carved hodge-podge out of west-central Africa by early colonialists, this huge chunk of the original Dark Continent is being strangled by its own wealth.

It was conceived in colonial greed, matured in sweat and suffering and, unprepared, was catapulted into independence and turmoil in 1960.

That was when Patrice Lumumba, a left-leaning tribesman-politician, was elected first premier after guiding the nation out of colonial bondage.

It was, however, a short-lived respite. The big, sun-splashed nation spun dizzily out of control as foreign financial interests intervened to set up a puppet breakaway government in the mineral-rich province of Katanga.

The man chosen to head this puppet regime was Moise Tshombe and he did it with the full backing of the giant Union Miniere mining corporation, a Belgian-U.S.-British conglomerate which accounts for 60 percent of the nation's revenue.

Lumumba sought United Nations help. And it was given. But the operations of U.N. troops only helped heighten the confusion in an already badly confused land.

Somewhere along the line, Premier Lumumba was taken prisoner and handed over to the Tshombe forces. His fate and that of the newly-independent country—was sealed. Tshombe's story was that Lumumba was shot while trying to escape custody. But it is an open secret that he was savagely beaten to death by the Tshombe gendarmes.

And so the Congo plunged into more chaos—tribal warfare, famine, rape, pillage and murder. Elements loyal to Lumumba fought back against the growing inroads of the puppet Tshombe army, backed now by black-hating mercenaries recruited in South Africa and Rhodesia.

The world soon became tired of hearing about Congo strife. It faded from the front pages.

Expo's big soft-sell

Business there, but quietly

MONTREAL (TNS) — Hundreds of Canadian companies are sponsoring exhibits at Expo 67, but in most cases they wouldn't know it.

In fact, one of Expo's biggest successes is that it is non-commercial.

Companies aren't pushing products as they do in most trade fairs. The emphasis is on soft-sell ... showing visitors that you're so gosh-darn nice that they just might return their appreciation by using your product or services.

The non-commercial exhibiting is so indelible that Japan withdrew a display of its cars and bikes from its pavilion when other exhibitors protested.

While there are easily identifiable industry pavilions at Expo, most Canadian companies have made more concealed contributions.

For instance, Imperial Oil and International Business Machines joined with Expo to try and solve the problem of long line-ups for the more popular exhibits.

They installed computers and hired blue-beamed girls to process reservations.

Their contribution was such that people who made advanced bookings through the computer service filled exhibition halls before the regular line-up moved forward at all.

Now the system has been modified so that only groups can jump the queue through advanced bookings.

British Petroleum Corp. has taken another tack. It is sponsoring two Hovercraft brought over from Britain.

This is the first commercial operation of Hovercrafts in North America and their builders are hoping to sell them to some ferry service in Canada.

Some discussions have taken place with Toronto harbor officials regarding their use as ferries to Toronto Island.

Westinghouse is on the scene with an exhibit that could do more for the sale of valves than light bulbs.

The company sponsors the Dancing Waters display where jets of water spurt and sway in time to a musical program ranging from Souza marches to excerpts from Can Can.

Then, there are the big industry pavilions sponsored by industry associations. Here the message is slanted more to the use of a particular type of product rather than the product of a single manufacturer.

The $2.2 million Steel Pavilion, for instance, is sponsored by Canada's four major steel-makers: Stelco, Algoma, Dofasco and Inco. Yet, except for the plaque at the entrance, there is no further mention of these companies.

The Telephone Association of Canada is not out to sell anything. "Just fun and entertainment and a little education," says Gordon Perry, public relations manager for the Pavilion.

Centennial, Trotskyite-style, celebrating robber barons' work

WHO SAYS Centennial is a time for pride and patriotism?

Not the Canadian Trotskyites. They think the Centennial is nothing but a fraud "designed to cover over the real Canada, of both yesterday and today."

The Trotskyite magazine, Young Socialist Forum, has put out a special issue "honoring" Canada's birthday. Its title: Centennial — 100 Years of Injustice.

A quote from the current Canadian icon, Sir John A. Macdonald, is used to depict the "real" Canadian spirit: "We must protect the rights of the minorities, and the rich are always fewer in number than the poor."

NO BACK-PATting HERE

Well, that's a switch from the current euphoria of breast-beating and back-patting most of Canada is indulging in these days.

If you can keep your temper, it's an interesting publication to read. It only costs 25 cents and is packed with information.

The cover lists Canada's achievements of the past 100 years: Racism, Pollution, Prejudice, Inequality, Insecurity, No housing, Miseducation.

The publication also blames Confederation, at least in part, for such wars as: Vietnam, Korea, World War II, World War I, the Boer War, as well as for the Depression, union busting and theft of natural resources.

Quite an indictment. There's apparently little of the so-called Canadian penchant for indecision among Trotskyites!

The Trotskyites are an offshoot of the Communist Party (the ordinary Communist is considered too tame for a Trotskyite). Curiously Trotskyites are increasing Canada, perhaps because they attract the more militant-minded of the far-left leaguers. Exact numbers are unknown, but estimates run to "almost 1,000."

REDS ARE TOO TAME

Trotsky, of course, was Lenin's right hand in the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution and was the heir apparent to Lenin until Comrade Stalin went after him. Trotsky was bannished from the party and ban-

INFLUENCED

"We're influenced by the U.S. to a tremendous extent, by what we read, what we see, where we live. So these kids demonstrate for U.S. Negroes or against Vietnam policy."

"But they don't demonstrate or protest our problems. They don't march for Indians or court injustices, or censorship, or the fact that some guys get six months in jail for printing certain books."

To find out the real story, Toronto Telegram News Service commissioned the Research House of Daniel Starch (Canada) Ltd. to question more than 800 parents and young people about the much-publicized Committed Generation.

Of the parents polled, some 70 per cent said they believed that the rights of the individual are more important than the rights of the government.

Of the young people aged 13-22 polled, an even greater number, some 82 per cent said they felt the same way. And when 90 per cent of the parents said they had never actually taken part in a protest demonstration, 87 per cent of the young people admitted they had never demonstrated either.

The survey revealed that not only are parents and young people split on the merits of such demonstrations, but the young people themselves are split on the question.

A majority of parents — 61 per cent — said they did not approve of protest demonstrations.

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

Early farmers supplemented their meagre incomes by manufacturing and selling potash.

Both World Wars did much to industrialize Canada, especially in munitions, ships and aircraft, spurring the growth of the iron and steel industries as well, and aluminum and electronics especially in the last war.

Today Canada can boast being among the top four exporting nations of the world, and consequently enjoys a standard of living second only to the United States. Some of our leading manufacturing industries are in clothing and textile, electrical equipment, motor cars, aircraft and airplane parts, chemicals, rubber, and petroleum products.

But manufacturing has still a long way to go. To this day, most of our exports leave the country in raw form. This is draining our natural resources, and is robbing the industrial segment of our economy of its chance to fully mature. This will be partially corrected in the future when the United States, our best customer, finds its own natural resources depleted. The U.S. will be more dependent on our materials, and we can then insist on selling processed goods, not just raw materials.

Foreign ownership — especially American — is another critical problem facing Canada. However, Canada in recent years has been growing less dependent on external capital for domestic expansion, and Canadians have shown far more eagerness in investing in their own nation's future.

It will be necessary, however, to find a way to spread our industrial growth more evenly across the nation. Presently almost half of Canada's manufactured goods are produced in Ontario, and another one-third in Quebec.

A Delayed Industrial Revolution

(Thirteenth Of A Series)
By WALT McDAYTER

The Industrial Revolution began in England as early as 1760, but did not really spread to this country until the year that Canada became a nation, in 1867.

Prior to Confederation, there was very little manufacturing in Canada, apart from a few simple products such as flour or wood-ash potash. The economy depended more on the exports of commodities in their raw states, such as furs, fish and timber.

After 1867, however, Prime Minister John A. Macdonald framed a protectionist trade policy to encourage the development of manufacturing, raising a high tariff wall around Canada, to protect fledgling industries from foreign competition.

The National Policy, as Macdonald named his tariff program in 1879, paid big dividends. Following Confederation, Canada doubled its exports to Britain, and increased it by one-third to the United States. By the turn of the century, manufacturing had more than doubled.

And it was at about the time of Confederation that pulp and paper... destined to become Canada's leading industry... got its start. It was in 1866 that Alexander Buntin built the first wood-grinder in North America, at Valleyfield, Que., to make wood pulp. At about the same time, John Thomson established Canada's first chemical wood-pulp mill near Sherbrooke, Que.

The substitution of wood pulp for rags in the processing of paper opened an entire new economic vista in Canada. This nation houses the largest soft wood reserve in the world (chiefly in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec), and it was not surprising that newsprint production soon became one of our most lucrative industries. Canada today is the largest newsprint producer in the world.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the day of decision for Warner Brothers and Toronto-based Seven Arts.

BULWER
Mrs. Don Roberge and children, Port Perry, Ont., spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kerr.
Mr. L. L. Low is progressing favorably, following surgery in the Sherbrooke Hospital.
Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McElrea accompanied Mr. William McElrea of Lennoxville to Burlington, Ont., where they were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Garth McElrea. They were the guests at the 25th wedding anniversary party of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Watt held at Clarkson, Ont.

Months of negotiations are over and stockholders of each corporation meet today to approve formation of a new show business giant. The merger is expected to have little opposition.
The name of Warner Brothers will continue, but today's move represents a takeover by the newer Seven Arts. Combined assets of the two companies have been estimated at $254,442,000.
At the Warner Brothers Studio in Burbank, Calif., the new setup is viewed with both apprehension and hope. There is the natural concern of long employees over their future. Since 1923 the studio has been under the control of the Warner family. Now a new crew is taking over, and jobs may be in jeopardy.

The new management of Warner Brothers-Seven Arts will bring another father-son team to the film business. Eliot Hyman, founder of Seven Arts, is expected to be board chairman. His son, Kenneth Hyman, 38, will take over as studio head. This corresponds to the 20th Century-Fox team of Darryl and Richard Zanuck.

Studio workers hope the infusion of new talent at the top will restore Warner Brothers to a top position in the industry. Seven Arts is a post-war creation geared to the changed economics of the entertainment business.

Mrs. George Neil, a long-time resident here, now of Halifax, N.S., is presently the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Delfosse.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Clementson, Windsor, Ont., are occupying their cottage for the summer.

DEFENSE SLIP HELPS SOUTH

West's double of four spades is not recommended. He knows that South is in for some bad news in trumps but North and South have reached game with no strain at all and the double may give away the trump situation in time for declarer to guard against it.

West rose with his ace of diamonds and led a second heart. South trumped in dummy, cashed dummy's ace of trumps just in case East might be holding one. Then he started to play more diamonds. He discarded a club on the third diamond lead.

West ruffed and led a club. South went right up with dummy's ace and discarded his last club on another diamond lead.

West ruffed and led a second club but South was able to ruff in his own hand; draw trumps stopping in dummy and make the rest of the tricks with what was left of the diamond suit.

How could West have beaten the contract?

When he took his ace of diamonds he should have led a club rather than the second heart. Then when he ruffed for the first time he could have given his partner a club trick.

It is a cardinal principal of bidding that you don't double when you may be jeopardizing the setting trick.

The double didn't hurt this time. West was sure of his two trump tricks anyway, but he slipped in the defense later on.

About television

Bob Baker, host of two daily games shows on television, Truth or Consequences and Family Game, writes this column for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

By BOB BAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A few years ago, on a televised game show, I asked the contestants to tell me their favorite jokes. As one man began an apparently innocent story, some sixth sense alerted me to danger.

I stopped the story-teller in mid-sentence.

"I wish we had time to hear the rest of your joke," I told him. "But I'll be backstage after the show, and you can finish it then."

My premonition proved correct. The joke, had it gone over the air, would have slandered a national ally and prompted an avalanche of angry phone calls and letters.

This is the sort of tightrope, a television emcee walks every day. On a quiz show, a beauty pageant, or any other informal program, there is no script and little preparation. Most of the contestants are enjoying their first taste of TV exposure. Anything can happen.

Digging oneself out of a difficult situation isn't always easy. But the real trick is not getting into deep water in the first place. It helps to keep in mind a few simple rules.

First, pay attention to what the other person is saying. All of us have suffered with the TV host who's so busy thinking of his next witty remarks that he doesn't listen to his guest.

"What is your favorite sport?" he may ask.

"Swimming," answers the contestant. "In fact, just last week I set a new world's record by swimming the length of the Mississippi."

"That's nice," says the nonchalant emcee. "And do you have any children?"

Another rule is to obey the Boy Scout motto: Be prepared. In the case of Truth or Consequences, I select the contestants from the studio audience about 10 minutes before each show. When I spot someone who's too anxious to go on—the sort of fellow who shows up at every party, wearing a lampshade, and tells off-color stories—I pass him by. I know that on the air, he'll probably embarrass both of us.

JUST A CHECKUP
Once, while wandering through the audience, I encountered a young man with a pair of six-guns strapped around his waist.

"Bub, I've come here to investigate this show," he said. "I want to find out if it's rigged."

Obviously, we didn't choose him as a contestant. But he was invited backstage where he could see for himself that the game was spontaneous. Afterward, I looked for the young man.

"The police took him away," the producer told me. "He's wanted for murder in Palm Springs."

"And, incidentally, his guns were loaded."

ONE HUNDRED YEARS
Through these past one hundred years, There have been many careers. For people both young and old Who have pin-pointed their goal

Though many changes have been made There are still many debts to be paid By people who cannot afford But have to fix it to their accord.

Culture and education have been changed, And from year to year, fashions rearranged. And if it is a successful 1967 We can thank fathers of confederation.

And today we have Expo 67. Which can be a second heaven For those who want it to stand, On their very proudest land.

And for the Hundredth Anniversary of Confederation, Which started in eighteen sixty-seven We can be proud of our nation Because of its strong foundation.

And because of this great event, we hear tell That for one hundred years Canada has played her part well . . .

BACK FROM ENGLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Alain Daigneault have just returned from a two year stay in England. Mr. Daigneault, along with 45 other Canadian engineers took an engineering course at the University of Birmingham under the sponsorship of the British Board of Trade. He graduated this year with a B.Sc. in thermo dynamics. Mrs. Daigneault, who received her B.Ed. from the University of Sherbrooke in 1961, taught French while the couple were in England. Above, Mr. and Mrs. Daigneault sit with their four-month-old daughter Barbara in the home of Mrs. Daigneault's father, Mr. H. Therrien, 1380 Cherbouge Street.

French-Canadian couple returns from two-year stay in England

How would you like to climb into bed with a pan of hot water to keep you warm?

Well, this is just one of the problems that confronted Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Alain Daigneault when they arrived in Birmingham, England in September, 1965.

Mr. Daigneault, who graduated from the University of Sherbrooke with a B. Eng. in 1965, was one of 45 Canadian engineers who won an Athol Fellowship sponsored by the British Board of Trade, to take a two year engineering course at the University of Birmingham. "After graduation we were expected to return to Canada and buy as many English products as possible," said Mr. Daigneault with a grin.

When the Daigneaults arrived in Birmingham, the British Council already had a flat reserved for them. But, Mr. and Mrs. Daigneault began to notice moisture was seeping through the wall plaster. One night, they were awakened by water dripping on them from the ceiling.

so in Birmingham where flats are hard to find due to the university and two technical schools located there," he explained.

Mr. Daigneault found that English students work much harder than do Canadians. "We went to school six days a week and worked 16 to 18 hours a day. Of course these long hours also included the hours we put in studying at night," he said.

"In England most of the examinations are closed book, whereas when I went to the University of Sherbrooke, I was allowed to take books into the examination room with me. Also, English students are not as rich as Canadian students and therefore can't afford to buy books," Mr. Daigneault continued.

In his first year he had 22 classmates. There were 11 foreign and 11 British students. But, out on the football field things were different.

"Three Scottish students decided to join the foreign group and so in our football games we were 14 foreigners against eight British players," Mr. Daigneault laughed.

As part of his course, Mr. Daigneault worked for the Bristol Siddle Engine Limited in Bristol from October to July, 1966. He graduated this year from the University of Birmingham with a M.Sc. in thermo dynamics. His class at graduation had dwindled from 22 to eight students.

Yesterday, we received word from the Department of Education that the final plans for the regional school at Richmond have been approved.

We are greatly encouraged by the speed with which this action was taken by the Department once the plans were presented on or about June 20th.

This will make it possible to have the school ready for September, 1968.

Designed for an eventual school population of 1000 pupils the Richmond School will cost an estimated $2,090,000. In our opinion this school will be one of the most interesting schools in the Province.

One interesting feature is that instead of having a vocational wing, these facilities are integrated with the other facilities of the school.

This is in keeping with our philosophy that no part of a school should be looked up to — or down on for that matter — because of the kind of instruction, which is given in it.

(Director - general, ET regional school board)

Facilities in the new school include 20 regular classrooms; 4 commercial rooms, a music room equipped with individual practice and audition booths, a library to seat one hundred pupils, an auditorium for 200 pupils, a double gymnasium and an athletic room equipped with showers and dressing rooms and related facilities to handle 90 pupils.

Facilities are provided for teaching auto mechanics, woodwork and construction, machine shop, electricity, cooking, sewing, homemaking, art and drafting. In addition, labs, with storage areas will be provided for the teaching of French, physics and general science, chemistry, biology, geography and history.

The next stage will be calling for tenders with the hope that construction will start in September.

Final plans for the Lennoxville school will be ready in approximately two weeks time with construction scheduled to begin in October.

Any inquiries or comments may be addressed to the writer at P.O. Box 560, Lennoxville, Quebec.

Youths guilty of thefts

Two East Angus youths pleaded guilty in Sherbrooke Court yesterday to a spree of breaking and entering and thefts which netted them a total of about $2,600 in jewelry, televisions, rifles, Expo passes, alcohol and cash.

Francois Beaudoin, 18, pleaded guilty to five charges of stealing a total of $2000 worth. Luc Latulippe, 19, pleaded guilty to the same five charges plus four others. Latulippe stole a total of $2600 worth.

On March 23 both youths broke into the house of Paul Archambault in Sherbrooke and stole $125 in cash; on April 9 they stole $200 in goods from Antonio Banhard of Sherbrooke; on April 10, they took $800 from the home of Mrs. Alphonse Dion of Sherbrooke; on April 12 they took a $200 rifle from the home of Leonard Dorey of Sherbrooke; and on May 12 they took goods valued at $600 from the home of J. P. Gerard.

Latulippe admitted four other charges of theft. He admitted stealing $100 worth of goods and liquor from the home of Gilles Aubain and to stealing $350 worth of camera and Expo passports J. Adrien Auvaiss on May 4. He also pleaded guilty to two smaller thefts which netted him $150.

In a plea for clemency, Defence Lawyer Laurent Dube said that neither boys had any record previous to the rash of thefts.

He said that Beaudoin has been regularly employed by the Department of Highways for two years and that neither boy was a true criminal.

He blamed their offences on poor company and said that the boys had fallen in with a gang of East Angus toughs.

Both Beaudoin and Latulippe, Mr. Dube continued, have shown that they can be rehabilitated and their rehabilitation has already begun.

The defence lawyer said that both boys had cooperated with the police and that Beaudoin had already taken steps to pay back some of the loot to the theft victims.

Crown Prosecutor Andre Langlais asked Judge Benoit Turmel to sentence the accused to six months in prison each, a sentence which equals the crime.

He pointed out that the crimes were all serious and happened over a three month period. Beaudoin, he continued, was not content to only steal, but also caused much damage to property.

Judge Turmel postponed sentencing until August 11.

EXPO CITY — This could well be the most modern in the world. Mini-rail trains take you where you wish even through buildings and waterways that circulate the area. Future planning of cities becomes a reality. Shown here is the French pavilion with mini-rail and cars. A well-built bridge crosses a channel below. The photo was taken with a Rollicord camera, a tri-X film, ASA 400, shutter speed, 1/250 sec., and lens opening of F.11. Yellow filter with polarizing filter used.

Observe at Expo, then take pictures

Have you been to Expo yet? With your camera, that is?

Actually, you should visit Expo before taking any pictures for you will probably discover that, in your first trip there, just observing will be all you can handle.

Then plan a photo trip and you will realize that it will be a little less difficult.

The only problem with photographing at Expo is where to start. Masterpieces of design confront you everywhere you turn. Whole buildings or even portions of them make interesting shots.

With an unlimited scope of design, engineers have brought you a world of almost unbelievable modern and old-world beauty and spread it all over the thousand or so acres.

If your photographic interests lie in taking pictures of old western saloons, Hudson Bay docks, or replicas of an old western town, you'll find them all at Expo.

On the other hand, if the best of modern-day design is your favorite way of burning up film, it's all there for the taking.

Then again, if you prefer to aim your camera at people, there are hundreds of thousands of eager subjects.

At the Anchorage, there are millions of dollars worth of yachts and pleasure boats with which the wealthier of the visitors use to reach the site. Many fine pictures are to be had here.

The film can be either black and white or color. There is so much design and interest that any medium is equally effective, as many of the pavilions are grey and white while others are decked with brilliant colors.

Composition is made easy for the photographer by the excellent layout of the fair with its canals, trees, shrubs, and stairways leading to paths through grassy lawns. Various elevations also prevent any chance of monotony in lines of direction of your pictures.

The well-lit interiors of the pavilions make it simple to take interesting and effective shots inside.

With a little thought and planning, your pictures of Expo 67 can serve as the best reminders of Canada's greatest exposition in years to come.

If a picture is worth taking, it is worth taking it well — this should be your photographic motto.

NEXT WEEK—Some specific suggestions for Expo color slides.

Defence in charge of drunken driving a claims car was inoperative at the time

Without denying he was in- of ed Faucher's car to be re- had smelled of liquor, and that ebrated, Adelbert Faucher, of paired after the accused drove his eyes were red and bleary. Magog, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of impaired driving.

Faucher's defence lawyer Yvon Roberge based his defence on the testimony of one witness, a Magog garage mechanic named Real Gilbert who told the Court that Faucher's car was inoperative when he was arrested.

The differential was gone, said Mr. Gilbert who had towed the car.

Magog Constable Raymond Poulin told the Court that he had been called out on April 10 to investigate an accident. Faucher, who had driven his car off the road, the policeman said, was the only person involved.

Cst. Poulin testified that the accused looked drunk, didn't answer questions, and had to be helped to the Police patrol car.

Constable Pierre Goyette, who drove the patrol car, corroborated the evidence. He said that he had helped the accused up the stairs of the Magog Police Headquarters, that his breath spread it all over the thousand or so acres.

Jailed for theft try

Adrien Chauvette of Magog was sentenced yesterday to two months in prison after he was convicted of attempting to rob a collection box in the rear of a Magog church.

The verdict followed a short trial before Judge Benoit Turmel in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday. The prosecution called two witnesses, the defence none, and Chauvette did not take the stand.

The prosecution's star witness was Hector Potier of Magog, the sacristan of St. Margaret Marie Church in Magog, who was hidden behind the altar at the time of the crime.

The sacristan told the Court that he was working behind the altar at about 1:30 p.m. on July 4. He said he saw the accused enter the Church, look around to see if anyone was there and then pull out a piece of wire and start to poke around the collection box.

Chauvette also pulled out a file and set to work. Mr. Potier called the parish priest and the priest called the police who arrived a few minutes later and took Chauvette into custody.

Under cross examination from Defence Lawyer Leonce Cote, Mr. Potier said the church was about 125 feet long.

"It's dark, isn't it?" asked the defence lawyer.

"No, St. Margaret Marie, it's very bright," replied the witness.

Magog Detective Donald Lizotte was the next to take the stand. He testified that he had arrested Chauvette and displayed to the Court a number of tools that had been found on the accused.

They included pliers, tweezers, a tiny flashlight, and a lot of odd pieces of strangely twisted wire.

The defence based its defence on the difficulty of identifying the accused at such a distance.

Asking the Court to go easy on his client, Mr. Cote pointed out that he was the father of three children and that the crime was a very minor one.

He didn't get the money, he said, and the amount he was trying to steal was very small.

Israel and its Old City proposals

Arab and Communist delegates to the United Nations have been asked to consider a resolution advanced by Pakistan deploring Israel's refusal to rescind measures taken to put Jerusalem's Old City under its control.

The Syrian delegate has told the assembly that Jewish control over the holy places of Jerusalem is "unacceptable" to Moslems.

We don't know why it should be, in the light of what Israel plans to do with Jerusalem. For the first time in many centuries, there is the guaranteed access to the holy places of at least three basic world religions; a guarantee which even now Israel is taking steps to develop.

For one thing, official Israeli sources in Jerusalem said yesterday that Israel and the Vatican were near agreement that special status should be given to the holy places.

For another, the Israeli ambassador to the United Nations has given repeated assurances that freedom of access to the Old City will be assured pilgrims of all faiths.

If Israel can achieve what it says it is attempting to do, it will remove probably the most sacred spot in the Western world from the inappropriate area of political and religious animosity in which it has been involved almost since the early days of Christianity.

In view of this possibility, and in the absence of any other concrete proposals to regulate the Old City question on an equitable basis, Israel should be praised, and not condemned for its present efforts.

The alternative would be a return to the former Arab rule which only kept open old religious wounds. And that, whatever some Moslems may feel, is unacceptable to the rest of the Western world.

Marriage is what often turns love's young dream into a nightmare.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR:

Soft melody in a meadow sings life

In an age of harsh cacophony, it is good to go to a peaceful meadow and to escape from the loud noises that accompany man's activities. Choose a day of comfortable temperature when flocks of white clouds are sailing the sky. Find a spot among the grasses and flowers and sit patiently until the ears are tuned to quiet melodies.

Meadow music on a brooding July day is filled with the meaning of life. Myriads of small insects live their life span in a brief period. One can hear the soft, steady humming as they go about their instinctive pattern of life. A man sitting quietly in the warmth of the sun thinks the music he hears is played on cello - haunting, low-key, strains that strike a responsive chord in the heart.

There are accent notes in the quiet movement of Year's Symphony. A big bumblebee goes droning by; a frog plunges into the quiet water of the meadow pool; an ovenbird calls from the nearby woodland. Perhaps the nasal calls of young crows trying their voices will sound from a nearby woodland.

But the dominant theme is the soft music of the small forms of life among the grasses and flowers. Man's ears become accustomed to the roar of engines in the streets and to the clanking machines of the factories. That is part of life today. But it is good therapy for the heart to get away from the noises of the marketplace and to listen for a time to the soft melody in a meadow.

Alberta bids for wealthy citizens

A recent bulletin of a Canadian financial institution is entitled "Lively Alberta." It notes that the Estate Tax Rebate Act is now in effect in that province. This legislation reduced taxes on Alberta estates to a quarter of what would be paid elsewhere in Canada on the same estate. This is due because under the tax sharing arrangement between Alberta and the federal government, 75 per cent of the estate tax levied by Ottawa on an Alberta estate is returned to the province. It is this payment which the province will refund to an estate which qualifies.

To qualify an individual must be domiciled in Alberta - which means that he has lived in the province for at least 183 days in each of the three years before his death. Where the rules of the Federal Estate Tax Act do not bring assets into Alberta, a holding company incorporated in the province and to which such assets can be transferred will accomplish this.

The purpose of the tax reduction is to attract to the province industries and the

MEETING PLACE

Adventures with God

The bible holds hidden riches, but of course it must be read

Humor and pathos are often revealed in passing incidents.

In June, 1967, a respected friend and his wife joined a conducted tour. When the party stopped over in a certain city, some of the group went down for a swim in the pool. At the next stopover, a lady approached the guide with a worried look on her face and asked: "Could you help me about my money?"

The guide eyed her impatiently and asked: "Why?" "Yesterday," she said, "when I went to swim in the pool I didn't know what to do with my money and I hid the bills in the Gideon Bible, thinking it would be safe. I forgot to put it back in my purse."

"Don't worry," exclaimed the guide. "It will be safe, nobody ever reads a Bible." He telephoned back stating the room number and the bills were recovered and forwarded to the forgetful traveler.

What interested me in my friend's story was the statement: Nobody reads the Bible. Many disinterested people really are convinced that nobody reads or believes the Bible anymore. Such unenlightened souls have never attended a Bible Society or a Gideon Convention. They just haven't been around. Birds of a feather flock together, and each species has its own habitat. If you want to see water birds you will find them near streams and lakes. There you will find loons, gulls, kingfishers, sandpipers and many other water birds. Look to the mountains for eagles and to the forests for land birds. For starlings and sparrows look into the back yard.

Bible readers, like birds and boozers, frequent certain places. If you want to meet the people who do read the Bible go to a Gideon Convention and attend one of their tea parties. If you want to meet the people who like the beverage from the bottle more than the Bible, then go where the drinking is. Beverages and Bibles are here to stay until the judgment day, and both are doing big business and have many devotees. Some of us are Bible lovers. We must drink at the fountain of life before we begin the day, and we need a nightcap before we can enter into rest at night. I am a Bible holic. I have Bibles all over the place. It is the fountain of life. I live on it, and hide it in my heart. It is the factor that gets into my blood stream and makes me walk circumspectly. The riches of wisdom and honor are hidden in it. And those who refuse to read the Bible will never find the riches hidden in it. Riches they will need when they come to the City whose builder and maker is God.

The story is told of a wealthy old man who loved his Bible and his children. After his death his many Bibles were passed on to his sons and heirs. One of the sons was so indignant that he sold the Bible with a box full of second-hand books. Later he learned the Bible was literally lined with bank notes which the saintly parent had hoped the boy would discover as he searched the scriptures. Too late, the young man tried to locate the Bible from the second-hand dealer, but someone who was searching for the intangible hidden riches had bought the Bible for a few pennies and found the riches of both heaven and earth.

For years I have searched for certain facts to complete the family history. My maternal grandmother died the day my mother was born. We were not sure of mother's birthday until I discovered it on an old stone in the cemetery north of Oro. Nor were we sure of grandmother's real name. Recently thumbing through the family Bibles I found the marriage certificate with all the needed information. I could have saved a lot of footwork and eye strain if I had searched that book many years ago.

The riches of eternal knowledge are hidden in the Bible. It holds the key to the history of the world family. It has been miraculously preserved for those who want to know where they came from and where they are going. It tells of our heavenly Father's care and plans for our future, and of His provision for our present. It presents the code of morals which will bring honor to the family name. It tells us how we may distinguish ourselves and glorify God.

The Bible says (and I believe it): "Thus saith the Lord...I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight...and I will give thee the treasures of darkness and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I, the Lord, which call thee by thy name, am the god of Israel." Isaiah 45: 1-6.

Many people do read and believe the Bible, and attest that they have found the hidden riches. And I am one of them.

Another Centennial project

Pair of locomotives preserved

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—Canada's birthday enthusiasm for centennial projects is providing the country's oldest steam locomotives with new glass "roundhouses" where they can be seen and photographed by tourists.

The pair are the wood-burners Samson and Albion. Both hauled coal down the East River to salt water in Nova Scotia's Pictou County over the first all-metal railway in Canada. The rails were cast here—one of the many firsts in this birthplace of heavy industry in the pre-confederation era.

The Samson bears a plate stating she was made in New Shelton, Durham, England, in August, 1838, by Timothy Hackworth, who competed unsuccessfully with George Stephenson for the honor of producing the world's first steam locomotive.

He did stay in the locomotive business, so the Samson came out to Albion Mines, now the town of Stellarton. There she hauled coal, the revenues from which helped pay off bills of the outdoors.

then Duke of York, a prince of the royal blood who had a weakness for horses and women; he always seemed to pick slow horses.

HOUSED IN CABIN

The Samson now stands in a log cabin beside the New Glasgow station on a portion of the CNR officially opened as a railroad 100 years ago May 31. But ground has been broken for New Glasgow's centennial project, a glass-and-steel home for "Sammy" in the business district beside a new civic building. She'll be readily available to tourists and railway buffs who come miles to wonder at her vertical cylinders, the cab-less chairs in which the driver sat and her fire box up front—she pushed her tender.

The Albion was built 18 years later. She has been housed for years in a wooden Miners' Museum in the adjacent town of Stellarton.

When as a centennial project Stellarton erected a new brick Miners' Museum in the town's town of Stellarton. There she hauled coal, the revenues from which helped pay off bills of the outdoors.

She was built to work through Canadian winters and summers. But citizens objected to her being in the open, fearing rust and vandalism. So did visitors. So plans have been drawn for a suitable glass-and-steel roundhouse for her also.

She will stay beside the museum which displays wheeled pit tubs of coal actually filled back in 1880 and abandoned underground following an explosion. They were recovered during the Second World War push for coal when Stellarton miners broke into the old sealed-off workings.

USED FOR SHUNTING

This area, which still produces all Canada's railway axles as well as freight cars of all types, also has three other steam locomotive antiques. But they are only about 30 years old.

Paint manufacturer Robert C. Tibbitts is a railway buff who has collected them for display at his plant in Trenton, also adjacent to New Glasgow.

Bygone days

TEN YEARS AGO

Roger Smith was installed as president of the Waterville Optimist Club at a dinner held at Pleasant View Hotel here last evening.

In the absence of the district governor, Hugh Croche-tiere, of Montreal, Fred Bean immediately past president of the Sherbrooke Club, accepted the oath of office from the incoming president and the other officers: Harry Krichew, vice-president; William Hitchcock, secretary; David Halchek, and Thomas Bush, directors. The third director, Edward Stils, was unable to be present at the meeting.

Before handing over the gavel, the outgoing president, Meredith Barter made a brief reply on the past year's activities and congratulated four of the club members: Garry Milimara, Harold Robinson, Henri Mailhot, and J. T. Galt; for having a perfect attendance record since the club obtained its Charter in November, 1952.

In his brief address to the club, Mr. Bean emphasized the idea of "service" to fellow members, to the community, to youth.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The annual picnic of the Oasis Club of the Blind was held on Saturday, July 13, at St. Patrick's Old Boys Camp at Stoke Lake. Forty blind persons from Magog, Sherbrooke, East Angus and Lennoxville availed themselves of an opportunity of a day at the lake and enjoyed the fine summer weather, boating, swimming, music and dancing.

Each one brought his own lunch and the club provided beverages. One of the outstanding features of the day was the presence of several St. John Ambulance Cadets under the direction of Miss Helen Slattery who greatly facilitated the activities of the blind persons.

During the afternoon the assembly was honored by the visit of M.A. McClintock, Superintendent of Field Service Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Montreal. N. L. Amrault, honorary president of the club and a member of the Sherbrooke Lions Club which sponsors the work of the Oasis Club in Sherbrooke.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mayor Guy Bryant told a Record reporter today that the city council would get going at once for the plans of the visit of the Governor-General's visit to Sherbrooke in September.

His worship said that he has not yet had time since his return from Winnipeg, where he attended the Conference of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities of Canada, to discuss plans with other members of the council but he said that he believed that a special committee would probably be formed to draw up details of the program.

The Lennoxville Calf Club members held their fifth meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Pearson, Spring Road, Angus McElrea, vice-president, was in the chair. Sixteen members and several parents were present.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — This is a difficult and dangerous time for the North Atlantic alliance. With less than two years in run, the treaty created NATO in 1949 is far from certain of automatic renewal by all its signatories, and in practically all the ranking member-countries there is growing clamor for scrapping the collective defence concept altogether if the Soviet bloc were willing to disband its Warsaw Pact simultaneously.

Reliable information from governmental circles behind the Iron Curtain indicates that the Communist regimes are not only willing but indeed eager to formally dissolve the Warsaw Pact in exchange for dissolution of NATO.

I have it on good authority that they were in fact working hard on such a proposal to the Western powers right up to last month's outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

The Arab-Israeli war temporarily halted progress of the "disengagement" scheme by forcing the Soviet Union and its satellites to take a hard anti-Western propaganda line, but the project which was the main subject of the Karlov Vary conference last April has not been abandoned.

Only its timetable has been tentatively revised but every effort will be made in the next few weeks to return to the original schedule.

The plan, as conceived by the Kremlin strategists during the Khrushchev era, envisaged a steadily mounting Soviet bloc "peace offensive" which was to culminate this fall during the celebrations of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution by Moscow's offer to disband the Warsaw Pact in exchange for dissolution of NATO.

Work on this stratagem of a spectacular East-West "detente" in Europe began in earnest soon after Charles de Gaulle returned to power in France in 1958 and started steering his nationalistic, anti-Atlantic course.

It was this crack in the cohesion of the Western alliance which gave the Soviet bloc the diplomatic opening for advancing along the post-Stalin path of "peaceful co-existence" toward Stalin's goal of disruption and destruction of NATO.

In 1962 Khrushchev's impetuousness and misjudgment of the late President Kennedy upset the patient tactic of erosion by the attempted show-out of the abortive Cuban missile adventure, but the mistake was soon corrected and actually exploited by Khrushchev's successors for a semblance of swiftly lessening East-West tensions.

'Soft line's' first big success

De Gaulle's withdrawal of French forces from the integrated command and his evicting of NATO troops from France marked the first big success of the Soviet "soft line" which was designed to convince Western Europe that all the reasons that had led to the creation and maintenance of NATO forces ceased to have the last vestige of validity.

Acting in concert with Moscow, and at the same time prompted by the dire need to secure assistance for their ruined economies from the affluent democracies, the Communist regimes of Eastern and Central Europe have been doing their utmost to help create the impression of rapidly vanishing tensions in the core area of the East-West conflict.

This synchronized campaign of seemingly persuasive transition from the uneasy necessity of armed co-existence to relaxed co-operation, though belied by Communist reiterations of ideological hostility and struggle to the finish, eventually created doubts about the necessity of maintaining the costly NATO shield along the dividing line.

In due course these doubts, subtly encouraged by camouflage Communist propaganda and reinforced by foreign exchange difficulties, led first Britain and then the U.S. to contemplating sizable reductions in the strength of their NATO contingents.

This example is now emulated by Western Germany (which supplies half of NATO's troops in Europe), and our Government has just started a basic reappraisal of Canada's contribution to the allegedly obsolete concept of forward collective defence.

Taken together, these doubts about the necessity to maintain a joint conventional army in Europe constitute Moscow's second big success in its persistent drive to remove the formidable obstacle of NATO from the path of future Communist expansion west of the postwar dividing line.

Getting ready to grab

The first objective of this policy is the withdrawal of American troops from Europe, for the Communists seem to be convinced that once gone, the Americans would not risk a nuclear conflict by rushing back across the Atlantic to cope with some seemingly local and ostensibly internal coups in, for example, post-de Gaulle France and neighboring Italy where strong Communist parties are getting ready to grab power at the earliest opportunity.

When that time comes, NATO must be out of the way while the huge conventional forces of the allegedly disbanded Warsaw Pact will be intact and within easy striking distance to discourage any resistance to a piecemeal (and preferably "peaceful") communication of Western Europe.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM THE UPPER ROOM

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord...that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them!" (Revelations 14:13, RSV).

PRAYER: Our Father, we love Thee and rest in Thy love. Grant that we may walk with Thee today and do the work Thou hast given us to do. Help us to so live in Thy presence that we may be glad to hear Thy call some day to come to Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Hitsville happenings

By JACK CORNETT
of CKTS Radio

WELL, HI. AGAIN pop fans, another Saturday has rolled around, so let's get down to business and see what happened during the past seven days with regard to the CKTS Top Ten. This week's upper crust looks like this: 1. Can't Take My Eyes Off You: Frankie Valli; 2. Windy: Association; 3. A Little Bit Of Soul: Music Explosion; 4. San Francisco — Flowers in Your Hair: Scott McKenzie; 5. Let's Live For Today: Grass Roots; 6. Don't Sleep In The Subway: Petula Clark; 7. Come On Down To My Boat — Every Mothers Son; 8. Up Up And Away — Fifth Dimension; 9. C'Mon Marianne: Four Seasons; 10. Tracks Of My Tears: Johnny Rivers. There it all is pop people and a pretty good collection of top platters it is too. The only change over last week is that "Groovin'" by the Young Rascals has been replaced in the top ten by the great waxing by the Four Seasons "C'Mon Marianne."

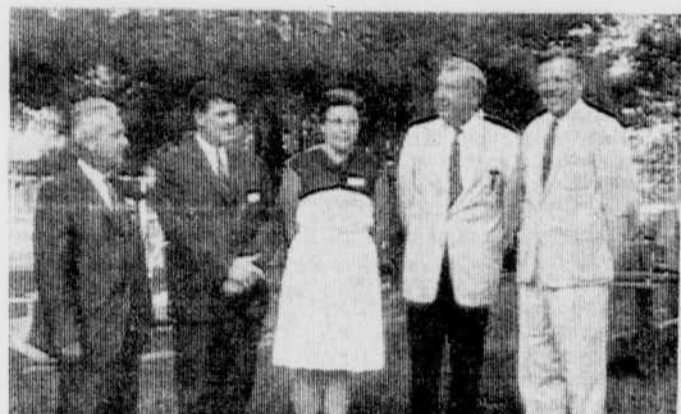

UP CLOSE WITH THE MOVERS this week are a number of sure shots that just might set the pace for the next little while at the success end of the big survey. Among these must be included: Stevie Wonder's hot summer sound titled "I Was Made To Love Her." "White Rabbit" by The Jefferson Airplane has taken over from the song that was their leader only last week and should surely equal the success of that great "Somebody To Love." The same sort of thing seems to be happening to another group, the Hollies. Taking over from their "You Must Have Been A Beautiful Baby" as the front-runner is their latest set of grooves "Carrie Anne." "Silence Is Golden" by the Tremeloes is also hot stuff as is the recent spindle by The Happenings, "Mammy." Last week's PICK OF THE WEEK by the Procol

Harum is still moving upwards on the list of the current greats, and the two weeks from that great group of sound movers Tommy James and The Shondells called "I Like The Way" is much more than a surely sure bet to room toward success.

PICK OF THE WEEK AT CKTS is the song by the Young Rascals that follows their former number one hit "Groovin'" onto the chart. This latest ditty is titled "With A Girl Like You" and is getting rave reviews from many areas after only two weeks as a hit.

NEW GOOD LOOKERS AND POSSIBLE HIT PROSPECTS around at the moment that deserve a serious listen are as follows: The Beatles, that's right, the Beatles and a sure super survey stinger called "Baby You're A Rich Man." The new one by the Monkees, "Pleasant Valley Sunday" fits in well with the summertime fling of things. Otis Redding follows through with another probable in the soul searching searing blues style called "Glory Of Love." He's given the oldie a brand new look. Last but not least is a new record by Aretha Franklin crossing the blues with a taste of gospel and plenty of soul called "Baby I Love You."

THAT'S THE WAY IT IS for another week and as we fade our just a short word to the wise. For the best in the land of the hits both big and small always keep that Radio Dial set at 900 where good things happen hit-wise with you in mind. Until next Saturday then so long and swing easy.

ROCK ISLAND — (Special) — Dr. A. Morrison, Department of Geography, Glasgow University, spoke on The World from Space, at the second in the Wednesday night series of lectures to be held at the Haskell Opera House here. Dr. Morrison illustrated his talk by some films taken from space vehicles at various heights. The heights were from 45 to 100 to 450 miles up, the latter taken from the Gemini space ship.

The types of crafts included small planes, jets, Mercury satellites and space ships. Dr. Morrison described types of cameras and films used. All of the pictures provided geographical study. Dr. Morrison pointed out the advantages of these and also the disadvantages as from the highest point details are lost.

There were pictures taken over the Sahara desert, and even of Stanstead. There are three main groups, explained Mr. Morrison, the sound rocket, unmanned satellite and radio.

In the latter, the pictures are taken without film. From these pictures clouds are studied, and the earth's terrain. There was a hurricane in the formation, pictures of ice and snow caps. Dr. Morrison said that as he stood in the International Haskell Opera House, partly in U.S.A. and partly in Canada, he realized that in space boundaries mean little and for this reason it is most important to have good international relationships.

1964, taught French while they were in England. She taught for the first three or four months in private homes but found this atmosphere wasn't conducive to learning French.

Later she taught six to eight-year-old children at Goodwin Primary school in Small Heath, a low-income district of Birmingham. "This area was mainly comprised of people from India, the West Indies, and some Negroes," Mrs. Daigneault said. She thought many of the people here, including the English residents, had little motivation to better themselves and didn't seem to care.

At another school in the Bordesley Green area of Birmingham, Mrs. Daigneault taught eight to 13-year-old children of higher income families, and they appeared to show more interest in their studies.

Fall election for Quebec?

QUEBEC (CP) — Speculation in the corridors of the Quebec legislature is that the Johnson government is considering calling a fall election after slightly more than a year in power.

The legislature resumed this week after a 13-day holiday.

The date most frequently mentioned for the election is Dec. 6, a Wednesday, the day Maurice Duplessis, founder of the Union Nationale party, always picked to go to the polls.

The last election was June 5, 1966, a Sunday, when the Union Nationale gained 56 seats and defeated the Liberals, led by Jean Lesage, who got 50. There are two independents.

If a December election is to be held, the legislature must be dissolved about the end of October since, under electoral law, 46 days' notice must be given.

Although the Union Nationale has a mandate to govern until 1971, it is said party strategists would welcome the opportunity to put up a number of prestigious candidates who could take over some of the important portfolios.

ELECTION COINCIDENCE

An election early in December would coincide with a scheduled mailing of about 725,000 family allowance cheques under legislation passed recently by the Union Nationale.

Some sources say Premier Johnson wants to seek a stronger mandate to pursue his demands with the federal government on such topics as Quebec's place in international affairs and the bringing to the province of fiscal resources. Some opposition Liberals have been predicting an early election since last winter.

Opposition Leader Lesage has visited 37 Quebec ridings in recent months, speaking to party supporters. At almost every opportunity, he called on them to prepare for an election towards the end of 1967.

He is planning to visit all 108 ridings for the same purpose.

Both Mr. Lesage and Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, have predicted on many occasions that the Union Nationale will call a fall election before a possible economic recession after Expo 67 closes.

Alcide Courcy, chief organizer for the Liberals, said recently in an interview that if Mr. Johnson makes the legislature sit during August, "we can be certain he will call an election in the fall."

ATTENDING FUNERAL SERVICE — Prime Minister Pearson and his wife enter Montreal's Notre Dame de Grace Church yesterday to attend the funeral service of Mr. Fayreau, former president of the Privy Council. Mr. Fayreau died Tuesday in a Montreal hospital of uremia, a kidney ailment.

Claims Quebec surrendered to Ottawa over de Gaulle visit

QUEBEC (CP) — The Union Nationale government was accused Friday of becoming involved in "a little war" with the federal government, then surrendering over details of the five-day state visit of President de Gaulle of France.

Pierre Laporte, Liberal house leader, asked Premier Daniel Johnson whether he had authorized a surrender over the disputed first stop in the general's schedule. De Gaulle arrives July 23.

The French president will make his first call at the Citadel, summer residence of the governor-general, as announced here the first stop would be at city hall but this was later changed to the Citadel.

Mr. Johnson told the legislature: "There is no question of surrender, nor of war, even if the general is arriving at Wolfe's Cove and not at Bytown."

He noted that chiefs of state whose countries have pavilions at Expo 67 in Montreal have been invited by the Canadian government as part of Canada's centennial celebrations.

The Quebec government asked Ottawa to pass along Quebec invitations to these visitors, asking them to come here. But in de Gaulle's case the Quebecers informed the federal government Quebec would send an invitation directly.

The question of the first stop was resolved by protocol officials here and in Ottawa as part of a series of protocol problems the premier described as normal.

Mr. Johnson said he hopes there will be "unanimity among the whole population, even the English-speaking, in order to greet with dignity the general, president of France."

Opposition leader Jean Lesage said he was sure of this.

Tourist industry is investigated

MAGOG — (Special) — A region, discussed mutual problems, and tried to offer suggestions of value to both districts Wednesday at Ayer's Cliff, engaged in this international when officials of the White Mountains Tourist Association and the Massawippi Chamber of Commerce met at the Ripplecove Inn at Ayer's Cliff.

This summer the groups are jointly sponsoring an information centre at Burrough's Falls, which is proving of benefit to the tourist trade. Most of the traffic encountered by those directing visitors is travelling routes 5 and 50.

Expo like Hitchcock with Princess Grace

MONTREAL (CP) — Expo 67 could have been the exotic setting for an Alfred Hitchcock thriller Friday.

One of the movie director's favorite former stars, Grace Kelly, moved through the crowds on the arm of a suave-looking man in dark glasses.

But it's more than a decade since Grace faced a Hitchcock camera and the former Philadelphia society girl was at the big fair in her capacity as Princess Grace of Monaco.

The gentleman in dark glasses was her husband, Prince Rainier, of the tiny Mediterranean principality.

They were on a private visit to Expo with their children Caroline, Albert and Stephanie. The family arrived Wednesday aboard an ocean liner and is enjoying a few days of private visits before going to Ottawa Sunday for an official welcome to Canada.

Tuesday, they will preside over Monaco's national day at Expo.

Another face for Expo VIP-spotters Friday was Earl Mountbatten of Burma, winding up a three-day visit.

VISITS BRITISH-STYLE PUB — Lord Mountbatten started off his day with an hour-long visit to a genuine bit of transplanted Britain—the Bulldog Pub in the La Ronde amusement section of St. Helen's Island.

As he sipped a pint of British draught beer, he was introduced to the pub's barmaids, most of whom are English girls who immigrated to Canada before Expo and now live here.

In the late evening, he was to take off by jet for London with his daughter, Lady Patricia Clabourne, who accompanied him on his visit.

Free entertainment which attracted crowds in the sunny, 74-degree heat included a colorful concert in the Soviet pavilion of singers, musicians and dancers from Uzbekistan, a jazz concert by the Yvan Landry quintet in the Canadian pavilion theatre, and a tattoo in Place des Nations staged by the historic Compagnie Franche de la Marine and the Fraser Highlanders. At the youth pavilion there was a standing-room-only crowd in the 260-seat pavilion theatre where a puppet festival is being staged all this week.

Four canoeists arrived from British Columbia after a grueling trans-continental trip from New Westminster, B.C. They duplicated the route taken by Simon Fraser.

Canadian researchers announce major cigarette filter discovery

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Canadian university researcher says the chamber helps force the some relief to emphysema and the tars through the diaphragm. He says other sufferers who are under-going hardship in trying to stop smoking, the German-born biologist said.

They have refused to identify the device further, pending patents in Canada and the United States.

The three men claim their researches indicate they are "somewhat farther ahead of developments on filter systems as acquired by Columbia as if we judge correctly the information in reports from New York."

He said that in spite of emphasis placed on seeking a possible link between cigarette smoking and some forms of cancer, this had not been the orientation of the Windsor team.

"We feel that a whole series of respiratory ailments could be involved in our work here. The percolator, said a spiral motion of air waves set up within searches may aid in offering 145,000,000 visitors this year.

Persons

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sayers, Rocky and Dana and Mrs. A. Stronach, of Lennoxville, are spending a week in Bathurst, N.B., visiting Mr. Chester Stronach.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Brown-Adams, the former Myrna Greenlay, and little son, Jo, of Dorval, who are holidaying at the trailer camp in Abbotsford, were here Thursday en route to Bury, where they were guests of Mrs. Earl Goodenough, at Mountain View Farm.

Polly Dollar Award winner

A winner of the Polly's Point POLLY DOLLAR AWARD, is Mrs. Elwin A. Ames, of 64-7th Avenue, Richmond, Que.

Mrs. Ames, who has submitted many homemaking ideas over the years to Polly's Pointers, has never before received the award. She lived on a farm until about seven years ago; now a Richmond housewife, Mrs. Ames' hobby is gardening, both flower and vegetable.

Mrs. Ames is employed by a Richmond industry and they have one daughter, who is married and lives in Montreal.

The following is the home-making idea submitted by Mrs. Ames:

DEAR POLLY — My husband and I found a way to lengthen our paint roller handle when we wanted to paint the hall ceiling and stairway walls. We attached the steel rods from our vacuum cleaner to the roller handle. To do this, place a strip of electric tape near the handle's end (one thickness), then apply one thickness lengthwise. Push on the steel rod and apply one strip (double thickness) at the end to prevent it from pushing up further. Next wrap more electric tape on both steel rod and roller handle, covering well. Press firmly at the upper end until the rod is secure. Add the other rod if more length is necessary. — MRS. E. A.

Fletcher — Fisher

The marriage of Doreen Vivian, second daughter of Mrs. Vivian Fisher, Lennoxville, to Mr. David Henry A. Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fletcher, Montreal, took place at 3 p.m., Saturday, July 8, at St. Martin's Chapel, Bishop's College School, Lennoxville.

Rev. J. D. R. Franklin of St. Peter's Church, Sherbrooke, officiated for the double ring ceremony. The organist played the wedding music and for the hymn, The Lord's My Shepherd. Standards of white and yellow feign mums were used to decorate.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Frederick Cann, wore a floor length gown of white nylon sheer over peau de soie, featuring a flowing skirt and cathedral length train. The yoked bodice was fashioned with long sleeves in sheer with peau de soie stripes, caught at the wrist with a band. Her veil of tulle was held by a jewelled crown and she carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Douglas MacAulay, as matron of honor for her sister, in buttercup yellow; the Misses Frederica Fisher, sister of the bride, Helena Fletcher, sister of the groom, Edith Davis and Penny Doherty, in heaven blue, as bridesmaids, all wore floor length identically styled sleeveless gowns of nylon sheer over peau de soie, the skirts draping from rounded neckline yokes. Their headresses were matching bows and they carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. Michael Perry was best man and the ushers were Messrs. David Fisher, brother of the bride, Douglas MacAulay, brother-in-law of the bride, Michael Gallavitch and Peter Stib.

Mrs. Fisher, the bride's mother, wore a two piece dress of mint green and beige figured nylon knit, a beige nylon straw hat and accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Fletcher, was in a champagne lace dress over matching taffeta, she wore champagne accessories and a gardenia corsage.

The reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Doherty where summer garden flowers were used to decorate. The dining table was arranged with flowers and the two tier wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Melmore LePitre, of Beebe, in white with touches of yellow and topped with a cathedral dome under which were the miniature bride and groom.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left by motor to spend a honeymoon at Cape Cod, Mass., and points of interest in the New England States. The bride travelled in a navy blue waffle linen shift dress topped with a matching three quarter length coat, a navy blue picture hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink Sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside in Montreal.

Mr. Gordon Brebner was in charge of the guest book.

Guests were from Montreal, Sherbrooke, Clarenceville, Beebe, Rock Island, Stanstead, Lennoxville, Fredrickton, N.B., Thornhill, and Kirkland Lake, Ont., Australia, Massachusetts.

The bride, a graduate of Sunnyside School, Rock Island, and Macdonald College, took post graduate study at Sir George Williams College, Montreal. She is on the teaching staff at Ogilvie School, St. Michel. The groom is a graduate of West Hill High and of Sir George Williams College, Montreal and is on the teaching staff of Beachwood School, Dollard des Ormeaux.

Snacks

STRAWBERRY JAM AND

Many simply delicious desserts start with some homemade strawberry jam. Here are a few quick-and-easies that we have enjoyed.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE:

Put a spoonful of strawberry jam in a meringue shell, top with a scoop of lime sherbet. Garnish with chopped nuts.

COUNTRY TREAT: Split

and butter hot biscuits then spread with strawberry jam. Pass a bowl of sour cream.

STRAWBERRY PERFECT:

Fill glasses with alternate spoonfuls of Jell-O vanilla pudding and strawberry jam. Top with whipped topping.

STRAWBERRY PUFFS:

Fill cream puff shells with whipped topping or vanilla pudding. Spoon over strawberry sauce made by heating strawberry jam over hot water.

STRAWBERRY MELBA:

Bake or buy a layer cake and cut into cubes. Place in a shallow dish and sprinkle with orange juice or sherry. Cover with sliced peaches, add a spoonful of strawberry jam here and there. Top with whipped topping, garnish with nuts.

STRAWBERRY ROLLUPS:

Make small griddlecakes and while still warm fill with homemade strawberry jam. Serve with whipped cream.

Silvester — Murray wedding

HUNTINGDON, Que. — The marriage of Marilyn Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Murray, of Huntingdon, Que. to Mr. John George Silvester, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Silvester of Beebe, Que., took place at 3 p.m., June 17, in Huntingdon United Church.

Rev. A. Laree officiated at the ceremony and the wedding music was played by Miss Vicki Marchant. The soloist, Mr. Vernon Quimet, sang The Lord's Prayer and Because. White and pink peonies were used in decorating the church, and the guest-pews were marked by white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length empire-style gown of white organza. The bodice featured bell sleeves and scooped neckline with applied lace. The organza sleeveless coat, trimmed with matching lace, fell from a capuchon. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and white stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Beverly Murray, as maid-of-honor for her sister, was in a floor length gown of blue silk chiffon, accented with a bow at the empire waistline, the bodice having bell sleeves and a scoop neckline. Her headress was a matching chapel veil centered with a rose. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

The bridesmaids, Miss Norma Murray, sister of the bride, and Mrs. William Alderman, sister of the groom, wore dresses and headresses identical to that of the maid-of-honor, and carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations.

The flower girl, Miss Lynn Alderman, niece of the groom, wore a floor length gown, of blue organza, featuring a lace bodice and three-quarter length sleeves. Her headress was of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Rod and Gun Club, where a three tier wedding cake and spring flowers were used in decorating the bridal table.

Later the couple left on a wedding trip to Cape Cod and vicinity. The bride travelling in an ivory dress under a matching blue flowered coat and blue accessories. Her corsage was of light pink Sweetheart roses.

Out of town guests were from Montreal, Valleyfield, Ormstown, Beebe and Stanstead, Que., Massena, N.Y., Quincy, Mass., Burlington, Kitchener and Hamilton, Ont., and Bathurst, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. Silvester will reside at 405 Crepeau Street, Ville St. Laurent, Que.

Betty Canary

I sat next to the nicest young man on the plane from New York and we started talking and I discovered he was a baseball player. I haven't been a mother of boys all these years without learning something, so naturally I got his autograph. Autographs, rather, because Stu and Rick get along pretty well, but they aren't going to share an autograph.

At home, after we had gone through the usual ritual (where the three little kids tear the suitcase from my hands amidst warm, welcoming cries of "What did you BRING me?"), I remembered the notes.

"Oh, I have something else for you big boys," I said. "George Scott sent you his autograph."

"GEORGE SCOTT?" "Boston RED SOX?" I edged away a little bit. (I'm not used to their dropping to their knees that way.)

"That's what he said," I said. "Now wait 'til I tell you about this TV studio I saw."

"What did he say?" Stu asked, pulling on me and putting a rather nasty tear in my sleeve. "How'd YOU meet him?"

"Well, I gave him some salt off my tray and he gave me the cigarettes the airlines hand out because he doesn't smoke."

"I'm NEVER going to smoke."

"That's the right idea, Stu. Now get up — you're making me nervous."

"And," I said (I never miss an opportunity to teach), "he didn't have coffee or a drink — he had a soda."

"What did he SAY?" "Well, mainly we talked about his mother."

"His MOTHER?" "Listen," I hissed. "He likes HIS mother. He said so!"

Sophia Loren returns to work after convalescent holiday

ROME (Reuters) — Volturno-day advised by doctors after she had her second miscarriage in 1965, the Italian film star Sophia Loren has returned to work after losing a baby, the only child she has. She is now working on a new film, The Best House in Naples, being produced by her husband, Carlo Ponti.

Behind her glamor and mirth, friends said they noticed a sadness in the big green eyes which have gazed from magazine covers and cinema screens throughout the world for the last 12 years.

Stardom has brought Miss Loren, 32, fame and riches. The only prize which has escaped her, and the one which she wants most, is a baby.

She cancelled all work in November, 1966, and retired to her 18th century villa at Marino outside Rome, where she became pregnant. But she lost the baby two months later, despite efforts by a team of doctors to save it.

Miss Loren won the sympathy of men and women all over Italy, despite a scandal of her 1967 Mexican proxy wedding to Ponti who was married before.

Ponti, short, bald and old enough to be Miss Loren's father, was accused of bigamy, and she of complicity, in a complicated court case which started in 1963.

They hoped to gain an acquittal soon, after a recent civil court ruling annulling the Mexican wedding on technical grounds. The couple went through another secret wedding in Paris in 1966.

Miss Loren's life has been full of contrasts. As a child she was, in her own words, an ugly, skinny tomboy. Now she is one of the shapeliest sirens on the screen, dimensions 38-24-38.

She grew up in the slums of Pozzuoli near Naples and learned to beg food from U.S. soldiers. Now she wears Dior gowns and lives in a 50-room country villa with a swimming pool.

Miss Loren took her first step towards a film career when she placed second in a beauty contest in Naples at 16. Her mother, Mrs. Romilda Villani, took her to Rome where she was hired as an extra in the film Quo Vadis.

CINDY LEE, 5½-year-old, CHERYL ANN, 3½-year-old, and KAREN LYNN, 2-month-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Chester McComb, Sherbrooke; and of Mr. and Mrs. G. Gilbert, North Hatley. They are the great-granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. F. Evans, of Brompton, Que.

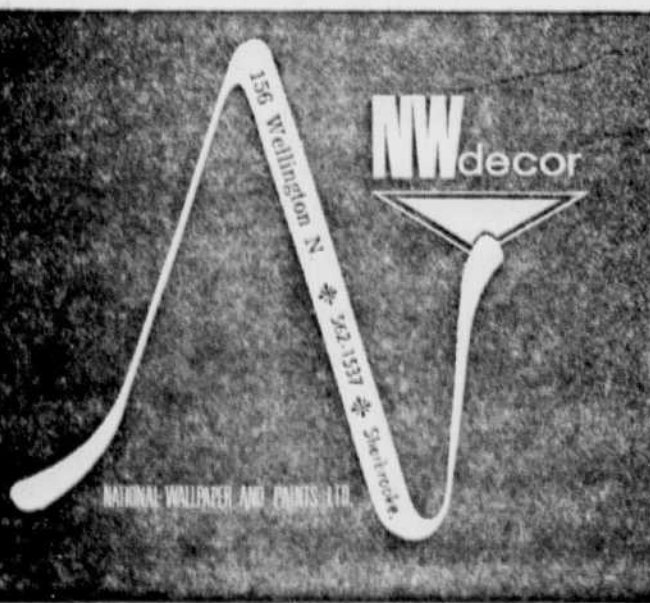

'Minidose pill' is effective enough

NEW YORK (CP) — "It may very well turn out that in conception control we've been shooting at a mouse with an elephant gun," says Dr. Martin L. Stone.

The doctor was discussing a "minidose" birth control pill which can be taken 365 days a year. In a survey of 306 women taking the pill since February, 1965, there were only 12 pregnancies, all in the first three months and in five cases owing to failure to take the drug regularly.

The pill thus works out at more than 99 per cent effective. Yet it contains only a fraction of one kind of the two hormones used in all other birth-control pills on the market today.

Its main advantage is that a woman need not worry about stopping and starting the dosage, the most common source of confusion and mistakes. The only significant side effect was headaches in 10 per cent of the women tested, but "we just don't know the significance of

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By JOSEPH and SUSAN WEARING

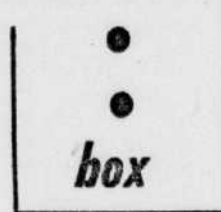

VERDI — Un Ballo in Maschera; Leontyne Price, soprano; Carlo Bergonzi, tenor; Robert Merrill, baritone; Shirley Verrett, mezzo-soprano; Reri Grist, soprano; RCA Italiana Opera Orchestra and Chorus, Erich Leinsdorf, cond. (RCA VICTOR Stereo LSC-6179) — The Masked Ball has long been one of my favorite Verdi operas. It shows Verdi's melodic gift in super-abundance. In spite of the tragic ending, it 'swings' with good tunes. This is a very fine recording. Reri Grist has a brilliant, sparkling coloratura voice in her rather unimportant, but musically rewarding part of Oscar the page. Robert Merrill, as Renato, is as usual superb and Carlo Bergonzi, as Riccardo, has a beautiful tenor voice—pure, but ringing. My only reservation is with Leontyne Price whom I usually like. At times she is gloriously dramatic, but her voice is heavy and not precisely focused in the lower notes of this widely ranging part. The orchestra and chorus under Leinsdorf are extremely well disciplined and the pace is exciting. The second side of the set which I received appears to have been badly pressed in a couple of places.

BARTOK — Violin Concerto No. 2; Yehudi Menuhin, violin; New Philharmonia Orchestra, Antal Dorati, cond. Six Duos for Two Violins with Nell Gotkovsky. (ANGEL Stereo 36360) — I much prefer Menuhin's recording to that by Joseph Silverstein reviewed some months ago in this column. Silverstein tends to be restrained, whereas Menuhin plays with broad romanticism. He makes the violin part more dominant and stamps his own highly sensitive personality decisively on the performance. On the Silverstein recording, the record has to be turned in the middle of the third movement. This allowed time for another concerto (the Stravinsky), but I prefer to have no breaks and the interesting six duos. A great recording of a great concerto.

SCHUBERT — Sonata in E-Flat, D. 568; SCHUMANN — Waldscenen, Op. 82; Peter Serkin, piano. (RCA VICTOR Mono IM-2855) — Peter Serkin's playing is sensitive and intelligent and he gives good standard performances of both works. The Schubert sonata I do not find particularly interesting and Serkin cannot make it into a great work. I was a bit disappointed with the Schumann Forest Scenes. These nine miniatures could be completely captivating, but the playing must be exquisite and warmed through with poetry. Serkin is most successful on the more technically demanding pieces, whereas the simpler ones need that extra artistry to make them effective. J.W.

IN 1951 THE Festival of Britain, a great exhibition, was held in London and small exhibitions were staged in other centres throughout the country. It was the centenary of the Great Exhibition of 1851 and likewise intended to be in the nature of a "shop window" for Britain. King George VI opened the Festival of Britain from the steps of St. Paul's on May 3.

A special commemorative crown of cupro-nickel was issued featuring a fine portrait of the King on the obverse and the familiar St. George slaying the dragon on the reverse, while on the edge in incuse lettering is the inscription MDCCLXIV CIVIVM INDVSTRIA FLORET CIVITAS MCMLXI (1851) — By the industry of its people the State flourishes — 1951).

Of added interest to coin collectors is the fact that 1951 was the four hundredth anniversary of the first English silver crown of Edward VI issued in 1551.

In addition to the large quantity of the Festival crowns struck at the Mint, an additional coining press was installed at the London site of the Exhibition where visitors were able to purchase the crowns, issued in cardboard boxes at five shillings and six pence each.

The American Numismatic Association's 76th Annual Convention will be held at the Americana Hotel, Miami Beach, August 8 to 12. This will be the year's largest coin show and a highlight of the Convention will be the sale by auction of an American 1913 Liberty Head nickel with a value of $50,000.

Standard sex-and-dagger interesting but skipable c-o AMERICAN EMBASSY by David C. Cooke; Dodd, Mead; $5.50; 272 pages.

c-o AMERICAN EMBASSY is another in the present trend of novels dealing with intrigue and espionage.

This one is laid in India. The story is fairly routine and the characters all behave as we have come to expect such people to behave.

The hero, a secret agent from Washington, working under the guise of a newsman, arrives in New Delhi to search for clues leading to a counter-espionage operation in that area. These counter-espionage have a diabolical plan to destroy the entire economy of the country by flooding the market with bogus bills.

Moving briskly through this tolerable plot is the fast-thinking, fast-acting agent and his associates. There is his friend in American Intelligence, clever and alcoholic, torturing himself over his sexy and traitorous wife. There is the beautiful and aloof Indian girl, who overcomes her deep and complex terror of men sufficiently to hop into our hero's bed at their second meeting. There are the sinister figures that follow in the shadows and, of course, the villain, a man of incredible cruelty and ruthlessness.

Mr. Cooke seems to be on almost intimate terms with India. Certainly he shows deep concern and compassion for her people. The vivid picture that he draws of the filth, the famine and the disease prevalent in that great, mysterious country is, by far, the most memorable feature of his novel.

Almost without exception the rank and file of Canadian writers — except those who write in French — were ignored at this Congress. Not only were they ignored, they were virtually muzzled, since so little time was given for the rebuttal of what all too often were outrageous statements made from the platform. But in spite of this — or perhaps because of it — every writer left the Congress refreshed, invigorated and determined to write better. Perhaps it was the international flavor. Perhaps it was Expo itself — fascinating, fantastic, futuristic, fabulous Expo. Whatever the reason, Canadian writing was undoubtedly reflected, for years to come, the intangible results of the Universal Congress of Writers.

Jottings

GLADYS

The week-long Universal Congress of Writers sponsored by the Canadian Authors Association ended June 30. It was held in the Du Pont Auditorium on the Expo site.

Before making any assessment of the success or failure of this congress which replaced the usual annual CAA convention, one must ask oneself which is better: a king-size dream ending in a mini-size success or a mini-size dream leading to, by comparison with the dream, a king-size success.

There is little doubt that the organizers of the Universal Congress of Writers dreamed big. There is equally little doubt that their efforts met with something less than marked success.

It is not easy to define why this Congress didn't quite come off.

My own feeling is that the affair was the victim of manipulation.

For example, the Soviet visitors were completely charming. Socially they stole the show and wordage-wise, they scored on almost every panel or in every speech-post-mortem. They spoke well, plausibly and seemingly innocuously. But in one form or another, they were such adept manipulators that, the propaganda was always there.

By the same token the speak-French syndrome rampant in Quebec just now, hung smotheringly over every session. By the time the last social function, the Awards dinner in Le Chateau Champlain, had been reached, every one who spoke English had developed such a guilty-complex over his Anglo-Saxon tongue, that he or she either resorted to such atrocious French as Albertan John Patrick Gilless displayed or confined their audible remarks to oui, merci or whatever other half dozen words comprised their French vocabulary.

But perhaps the most flagrant example of take-them-for-a-ride manipulation was displayed by ex-Montrealer Mordecai Richler. Apparently wanting a free trip back to Canada, he accepted the CAA invitation to speak and showed his appreciation by as studied an insult to his benefactors as I have ever witnessed.

Almost without exception the rank and file of Canadian writers — except those who write in French — were ignored at this Congress. Not only were they ignored, they were virtually muzzled, since so little time was given for the rebuttal of what all too often were outrageous statements made from the platform. But in spite of this — or perhaps because of it — every writer left the Congress refreshed, invigorated and determined to write better. Perhaps it was the international flavor. Perhaps it was Expo itself — fascinating, fantastic, futuristic, fabulous Expo. Whatever the reason, Canadian writing was undoubtedly reflected, for years to come, the intangible results of the Universal Congress of Writers.

Edited by GLADYS TAYLOR

THE CRYSTAL SPIRIT by George Woodcock; Clarke, Irwin; 287 pages; $10.

This is a critical study of the life and writings of Eric Blair, perhaps better known to countless readers as George Orwell. This book is not a biography, although the author has, in the first part of the study, given his readers a glimpse of the subject as he knew him, a necessary step if the reader is to successfully plumb the brooding undercurrents of the Orwellian Essays or later novels, principally Animal Farm (1945) and Nineteen Eighty-four completed a year prior to Orwell's death in 1950.

George Woodcock presents Orwell as an astute political thinker, a social commentator with an acid pen proclaiming the virtues or vices on any subject that happened to interest him at any particular time. Wisely, the author has not overly roman-tized his subject, and only briefly is Orwell pictured as the craggy faced prophet of eternal political damnation.

Subsequent to the introductory section devoted largely to Orwell the man, are three sections dealing respectively with Orwellian fictional themes, Orwellian political thought, and Orwell as critic and literary stylist. All in all an excellent appraisal of a most worthy subject.

Gurd's fabulous tales of fantastic folk fall slightly flat but facts stand up

JOHNNY CHINOOK by Robert E. Gurd; M. G. Hurlig Ltd., Edmonton; 360 pages; $5.50.

Twenty years ago Robert E. Gurd of the USA and presently the author of many books, was sent to "conduct folklore of Alberta and Local History Project under the sponsorship of the Rockefeller Foundation." The result was JOHNNY CHINOOK, a fascinating title for a collection of tales about that fabulous, mountainous, oil-filled territory that drew and still draws the adventurous, the unique, the bombastic, the rebel as well as the man who is industrious, stable, far-seeing.

It is easy to recognize the value of Mr. Gurd's collection of anecdotes to the researcher or to the writer looking for Canadian. Alberta, all Canada, is rich with exciting figures both past and present but perhaps it requires some one whose roots are deep in the soil to see them fourth-dimensional rather than flat as I feel they are in JOHNNY CHINOOK.

It may be that as a Canadian I want too much and if I were impersonal rather than passionate in my attitude the book would have "got me in the old pump" as the saying goes or perhaps Mr. Blair

Fraser put his finger on the problem in his very pertinent remarks at a recent meeting of the Canadian Authors Association. In terms of his definition, Mr. Gurd is a non-writer; that is he is a fact gatherer and presenter as opposed to a creative author for his characters are objectively interesting but subjectively they scarcely exist.

This has nothing to do with the value of his contribution or to the number of volumes he has written but only to the quality of feeling in the work, the lack of drama in personality and incident as he presents them.

You can't call that other Hungarian stodgy, either

THE FASTEST SUBMARINE by Josef Papp, with photographs of the submarine; A Ballantine Book, N.Y.; 189 pages; 95 cents.

Josef built himself the fastest submarine, A one-man submarine, a wondrous submarine; Josef built himself a little submarine To go from Canada to France.

At any rate, Josef Papp claimed and claims he did build a submarine and that he did go from Canada to France in it; he has written a book to prove it. That this young Hungarian immigrant did build a craft is something that no one seems to deny: the question in most people's minds is, was it really a submarine, did he actually use it to speed through the stormy Atlantic to Brest, or was it all a grand hoax, a mad jest perpetrated on a too bum-drum world by an overgrown boy or was it a confabulation that became reality to the confabulator. Certainly, Mr. Papp and the gregarious author of In Praise of Older Women, a compatriot of Mr. Papp, are capable either of feats that make the rest of us look limp or have imaginations they could share with half a dozen others and still have some to spare.

"Please please don't judge all Hungarian immigrants by these two," beg my Hungarian friends, and to do so would be folly, but they have removed "stodgy" from the Canadian dictionary and, as Mr. Papp says in his book THE FASTEST SUBMARINE, "Even if it was only a joke, it didn't hurt anybody."

I think he does not think it a joke. In his foreword he writes: "You may or may not believe what I say. It is your privilege." and "I (want) to tell the story of how I built my submarine, hoping you will find it interesting."

Interesting? It is fantastic. I phoned Josef Papp after I read his book and he asked, as excitedly as a child, "Did you believe me? Did you like my book?"

I side-stepped the first question; I can't honestly say I believe his story, but either he did it or he is a magnificent liar. It would take a more knowledgeable person that I to discover flaws in his description of how he built the craft. I don't know the topography — or would it be bottomography? — of the ocean floor so anybody could fool me on that, but Mr. Papp's description of his fear, anger, impatience and occasional impotence, during the voyage are very graphic and touched raw, responsive spots. So did his passages dealing with how his wife had to do without things, had to work hard, as he did; all their money going into the submarine often made

Collecting

Townships

THE ANNUAL barbecue and outing held by the St. Francis Collectors Club was once again a success and while the attendance was not up to other years it was the opinion of those present that it was more enjoyable. There were collectors from many parts of the Townships and from Montreal. The cooks for the day did a good job and the food was not burned too much. The attendance prizes were won by Mr. Cook of Lennoxville and Mrs. Saunders of Sherbrooke.

It was with pleasure that the writer viewed several outstanding collections of covers and stamps which were brought by their owners. The cover collection which Mr. S. M. Paige of Windsor has gathered is indeed one which reflects the history of the Townships and one could spend many hours looking at it and learning about our part of Canada. The officers of the club are to be congratulated on a job well done.

The St. Francis Club will have a stamp exhibition this fall in Lennoxville. This club has tried to fulfill its obligations to its members by offering a varied schedule of events and also shared in the coin and stamp show which was held in Sherbrooke this past spring. There have been several very interesting lectures about stamp collecting including some on Canadian stamps.

Claude Willard of Sherbrooke has shown examples of the Small Queens and explained the Montreal and Ottawa printings of this issue. Fred Smith, president, has lectured on the stamps of France. J. N. White has shown his collections of Japan and the United States.

It is educational to have these special speakers. It is hoped that all the clubs in the Townships will be making plans for the fall and that interest in philately will remain at a high level in all of them.

CUBA HAS ISSUED a very attractive set of stamps for EXPO and this will be a problem for collectors in the United States. They will not be able to legally complete their collections of EXPO stamps as this set will be a prohibited import. There have been some beautiful stamps in honor of EXPO and a collection should be very attractive.

There are problems in disposing of the stamps issued for previous world's fairs, in fact for almost any topic that has merely a passing interest. In the case of the EXPO stamps the case could be a bit different as this is a Canadian event and so will always appeal to collectors in years to come. It was recently noted in a foreign stamp magazine that while the Brussels stamps are not selling well in Canada or the United States they are still wanted in Belgium. The addition of covers to your collection of EXPO stamps could add a great deal of color as foreign postal administration supply envelopes which are in several colors and well designed.

STAMP COLLECTORS in Sherbrooke now have a full time stamp dealer operating in the City. Mr. Raymond has a store on Wellington Street where collectors will find a line of supplies and stamps. It has been a number of years since a full time dealer operated in Sherbrooke and with the large population it would seem that such a store would be a success. Mr. Raymond has had quite a bit of experience in stamps and should be an asset to the hobby in Sherbrooke.

Gloomy spectre looms in brothers' book

FAMINE — 1975 — AMERICA'S DECISION — WHO WILL SURVIVE? by William and Paul Paddock; Little, Brown; 276 pages.

The co-authors are brothers who are experts, respectively, in foreign affairs and agronomy. As their title indicates, they are extremely pessimistic about the accelerating food shortages. To quote:

"Catastrophe is foredoomed... Years ago, the mud-soaked hill could have been shored up to forestall the land slide. Now it is too late. The locomotive roaring straight at us is the population explosion. The unmovable landslide is the stagnant production of food in undeveloped nations; the nations where populations are greatest. The collision is inevitable. Famine is inevitable."

The reasons for this inevitability are many and include physical deficiencies of soil and climate, adverse social and religious systems which cause population explosion and hinder education, productivity and the proper management of resources, and the failure of panaceas such as "new foods" and "birth control" to overcome the prejudices of the poor.

Outside of North America, few countries are able to raise food for export. Although the United States at one time had an actual surplus, this is now more apparent than real, and is achieved at the expense of sacrificing production of feed for livestock. The resulting meat shortages and high prices are quite noticeable to housewives, let alone agronomists.

America has undertaken to feed the hungry world from ever-depleting granaries. Soon a choice must be made. Which countries should receive food?

The authors believe that countries capable of improvement and progress toward self-sufficiency should be helped. Those which are hopeless, should not. Revolution, as it seems to refuse food to a nation beyond recovery, it may be the kindest choice. It is impossible to feed all, and the United States, through its aid to some "hopeless" nations, has actually made their social and population plight more acute. By postponing the day of reckoning, it has ensured that the "moment of truth" will be all the more dreadful when it arrives.

Without such aid, these countries might have analyzed their problems objectively and been forced into drastic counteraction.

As an unemotional and reasoned presentation of the facts about food shortages, this book is unparalleled. The Bible advises that we "increase and multiply and fill the earth". Still, it neglected to mention what we should do when the earth becomes overfilled. Even if modern man rises vigorously to the occasion, it is already too late for many.

The most that can be expected is a long period of famines and crises, with, hopefully, a gradual return to sufficiency if and when the measures begin to take effect.

Nowlan, Richmond; chairman of finance, C. N. Stevens, Richmond.

No changes were made in the various committees, except where some of the members on them had died during the past year. McDonald, Currie and Co. were re-appointed as auditors.

Elected as members of the corporation were G. E. Connor, Drummondville and H. E. Grundy, Sherbrooke. The following members were elected governors to replace those deceased: G. E. Connor, H. E. Grundy, G. F. J. Glass, J. H. Coles, L. E. Fuller, L. R. Boast and W. L. Gee.

The members were welcomed to the meeting by president George W. Ewing, who presented the report of the executive committee. This showed that another successful year for the Home had been accomplished by the co-operation of the various committees and staff, completing half a century in the life of the Home.

The president noted with regret the deaths of the following friends of the Home during the past year: A. E. Dyson, A. J. Philip, past presidents, governors and members of the corporation; G. D. Wadsworth, T. L. Tanner, Dr. C. R. Boast, F. G. Le Baron, governors and members of the corporation; Mrs. A. Sangster and Mrs. J. D. Parmelee, members of the corporation.

In his report Mr. Ewing made general reference to some of the highlights of the year's activities, most of which were covered in more detail by specific committee reports.

Mention was made of the improvements to the Taylor farm. Land has been made more productive, and the house has been remodelled into two modern flats for the use of employees, or for rent to others.

In closing, he made special mention of the work of Dr. C. E. Manning, Mr. R. S. Butler, and Mrs. M. Armstrong, for their efficient management. Grateful thanks was extended to all members of standing committees, the clergy, members of ladies' auxiliaries and all those who help in any way to make the Home a better and happier place to work and live in.

The report of the finance committee given by C. N. Stevens, showed the finances to be in a healthy condition, with an operating surplus of $26,810 for the year. The auditor's report was given by H. H. Nowlan.

The matron, Mrs. M. Armstrong, reported that there had been 41 admissions during the year, 35 deaths and 5 discharges. At the end of May there were 141 women residents and 55 men residents in the Home. Twelve patients had been admitted directly to the infirmary.

Although there had been some periods of shortages, it had been possible to keep to the 8 hour, 5 1/2 day schedule for the nursing staff. Turnover in domestic staff is high, but comparable with other homes, and also partly due to the location. Salaries for both nursing and domestic staff are constantly under review, and increased as necessary.

Her assistant, Miss Cutler, had the misfortune to fracture her hip, and is only now able to return to partial duty. During her absence, Mrs. Armstrong acted as assistant. The cooperation of all the staff, Miss Vera Miller acted as assistant, while Mr. E. Crook helped with the stores and supplies. Two staff members, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wallace, retired after 12 years of faithful service. Cooking duties are now being carried on very satisfactorily by two young men with experience in basic cooking.

The members of the Richmond Auxiliary were very active this past year. Two volunteers visit the infirmary with the hospital car. A non-profit shop in the lobby is open two afternoons a week. There are weekly afternoon teas, monthly birthday parties, opportunities for drives through the countryside in July and August. Members also assist in wrapping gifts at Christmas and act as hostesses for the annual reception. Besides the Richmond ladies, others from Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Asbestos, Danville, Windsor, Ulverton and Granby take part in these activities. Other auxiliaries donate money, clothing and good reading material.

Regular church services have been held, with communion services, the little chapel is in use for private devotions and worship daily. The plaque in memory of Rev. H. Apps was solemnly dedicated at a ministerial meeting in December. A communion service was given by Sangster Memorial Church, Mrs. Armstrong stressed that the clergy, both local and from other points, are always welcome and their visits appreciated.

Entertainment has been varied and plentiful, and has consisted of choral singing, pageants, candlelight services at Christmas, choir from Sherbrooke Snowshoe Club, variety show by Grade 8 of Notre Dame High School, concert by Granby High School Band, modern folk songs from Drummondville, three-act play by the Theatians, ballet by a church group, also of Drummondville and choirs from several churches.

Four over-bed tables have been received as gifts, two from the Belvedere W. I., and the other two from the Alexander family.

New drapes were purchased for all the infirmary rooms and many of the rooms redecorated to give the whole area a more cheerful aspect.

All equipment is in good working order, with additional help for bedridden patients purchased as required.

After some delay, they were able to get Miss Ardye Parker of the Occupational Therapy Department of McGill University, to visit the Home to evaluate the needs of the residents. She has made a report suggesting an activities or recreational director, which will be dealt with by the executive.

The house committee report given by B. W. Armata for J. W. Barrington, stated that work done through the year was mainly for general maintenance, including outside painting, interior decorating. A new walk had been constructed for the use of the residents, and it had been necessary to replace the fuel tanks for the furnaces, also the electrical controls.

The admissions committee report prepared by W. L. Pope was given by Dr. C. E. Manning. Of 95 applications sent out, 59 forms had been received back. From these 36 women and 11 men had been admitted during the year.

In the absence of A. A. Carson, the farm committee report was given by W. L. Gee. The past year had been a very active one. The harvest had been an excellent one, but there was a low maple sugar yield. Milk had been supplied to the Home to the value of $10,601.

Many improvements had been made. Buildings have been modernized so that livestock is now all under one roof, equipment purchased, and land made more productive. The expenses incurred are already paying off, as the deficit of operations has materially decreased. More repairs to the buildings and improvements to the land are planned and the milk quota has been increased, thanks to the efficient management of Mr. E. Crack, farm manager.

In reporting for the Religious Committee, Rev. R. A. Cameron stated that work of the clergy at the Home was a very rewarding one, as it is of real religious value, and seems to fill a definite need on the part of the residents. Mr. Cameron expressed appreciation to the staff for their co-operation and thoughtfulness.

Before closing the meeting, tentative plans were made for the annual reception for the residents and friends of the Home. The date was set for Wednesday, August 9.

Hunting and fishing

By NORM NICHOLL

GABRIEL LOUBIER, Minister of Tourism F & G recently announced changes in his department. Guy Lemieux has replaced Louis Lemieux as director of Parks. While Claude Minguy has replaced J. Armand Brassard as director of the Zoological Gardens at Quebec City. Of the two changes perhaps Mr. Minguy's transfer to the Gardens will have more meaning to deer hunters. Since Mr. Minguy has for the past few years been more or less in charge of large game in the Province he had been studying and recommending policies on the preservation and control of such game. While on this subject since the 67-68 hunting season dates have been released there has been considerable talk regarding the dates for hunting this year (deer). Some feel that the dates are too early; others that the zones should have been made so as to use physical features of the land to define these while others feel that the buck law should have been reinstated. Therefore, I would like to get some type of reaction and run each or every second week a tabulated table with views from you the hunters and see where the trend lies. Take a minute and drop a card with your view. No names will be used. Even if you are satisfied just say that. Address your cards or letters to Hunting and Fishing in the E.T. c/o Sherbrooke Record, Sherbrooke.

LAST WEDNESDAY evening Stanstead County F & G Club held its annual night with some thirty members and guests attending. The attendance, while not overwhelming, was over the previous year and shows signs of catching on. President Poops after a short business meeting directed some thoughts towards the juniors. He traced the work of maintaining both fish and rearing ponds so that anglers could enjoy better fishing in Stanstead County and said this year his Club was maintaining fish in eight rearing ponds in the county. Secondly, he hoped that they would control themselves while fishing and hunting and respect the bag limits set down in the summaries. Films on waterfowl were shown courtesy of CIL and were at least to me very interesting and I believe to all who attended. Thanks for a fine evening.

BROMPTON LAKE F & G Club will be holding its second fishing derby of the year on Sunday, August 16 with various awards for outstanding catches of all species taken by members and their families during the hours of 5 a.m. to 5 p.m. on this date. During the season so far some fine fish have been weighed with bass, Grey Trout, Rainbow and Dore predominating. A 5 lb. 1 oz. salmon taken by a Rosemere resident last Saturday is the heaviest salmon registered this year. Increased numbers of dore being caught this year is evidence of successful seeding a few years back with 3 to 5 pounders being taken this season.

SUGAR LOAF POND yielded a fine speckled trout to 7-year-old Rene Maroux, of Mansonville the son of Bruno Maroux, President of the Bromo Co. F & G Club. The trout weighed 2 1/2 lbs and was 20" in length.

CORRECTION: Last week in listing the winners of the Lake Memphremagog Centennial Derby winners the salmon caught by Gilles Larouche grew in type from 2 lbs. 3 ozs to 21 lbs 3 oz. Sorry, but you know how fish will grow when you tell of the one which got away.

CHARLIE BREWER, chairman of the Stanstead County F & G Molen Fishing Derby is still firing up members to get those entries in. He'd like to make it three in a row.

EARLIER IN THE YEAR East Branch Pond was readied for restocking. This has now been completed according to Louis Auger of the Wildlife Service. Rainbow and speckled trout were placed in the pond which is located about four miles from Cherry River. Fishing is now open and the access road is in good condition.

City initiates program to aid local tennis enthusiasts

The Department of Parks and Recreation of the City of Sherbrooke has initiated a program which offers free tennis lessons to all local enthusiasts of the sport.

A special instructor hired by the city will be made available to all youngsters from six to 15 who are participating in the activities of the O.T.J., a local youth organization. To take advantage of the free lessons, an interested youngster must first make arrangements with his group leader, who will then work out a schedule with the instructor.

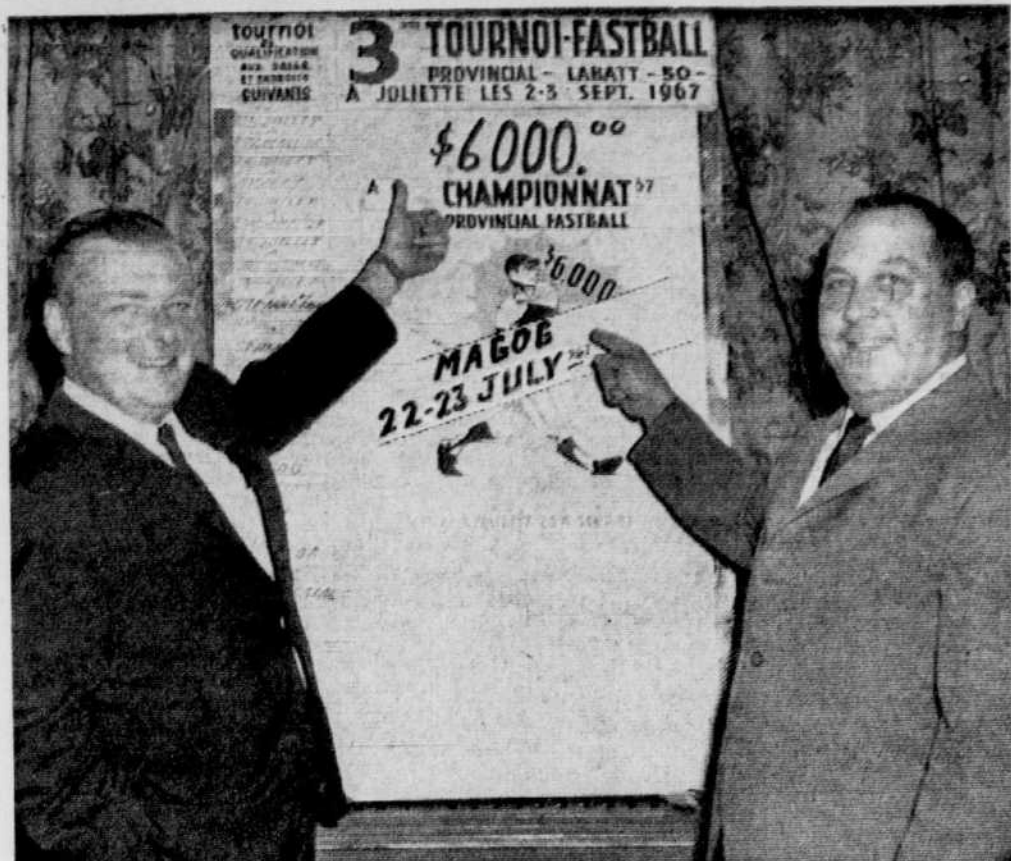

Every Wednesday night, special courses will be given at the Mont Bellevue courts to all those between the ages of 15 and 18.

A special program has also been set up for the adults. The special instructor will visit every tennis court in the city at least once so that all adults interested in the invaluable tips can avail themselves of his service. The dates when the instructor will appear at each court will be announced over the radio and in the local newspapers.

Mathews scores 500th homer, wishes it were against Braves

If Ed Mathews could call his shots, the Atlanta Braves would be a lot more embarrassed than Juan Marichal today. "I wish it would have come against the Braves," Mathews said Friday night after smashing the 500th home run of his major league career—a three-run shot off Marichal that carried Houston Astros to an 8-6 victory over San Francisco Giants.

It was the seventh homer of the season for Mathews, who hit 493 in 15 years with the Braves in Boston, Milwaukee and Atlanta before being dispatched to the Astros in a winter trade. The 35-year-old third baseman thus became the seventh member of the elite 500 club, joining the Giants' Willie Mays and New York Yankees' Mickey Mantle as the only active players who have reached the magic figure.

Babe Ruth heads the all-time list with 714 lifetime homers. Mays has 555, Jimmy Fox, 534, Ted Williams, 521, Mantle, 512, single drove in the tying run in the seventh inning and Julian Javier scored one out later on a throwing error by left fielder Jose Pagan, sending the Cardinals past Pittsburgh.

Rico Carty pounded a three-run homer in the first inning and Hank Aaron provided an insurance run with his 23rd homer off the Phillies. Winner Tony Cloninger gave up a first-inning homer to Tony Gonzalez and needed relief help in the seventh.

The Dodgers snapped a four-game losing string behind rookie Bill Singer, who blanked Chicago on four hits until the eighth, when he came up with a tender elbow and gave way to Ron Perranoski. Lou Johnson cracked a two-run double and Al Ferrara homered to pace the La attack.

Portland, Me.—Larry Carney, 170, Lowell, Mass., outpointed Pete Riccielli, 169, Portland, won New England light heavyweight title.

Yankees show their old power and sweep first double header

Shades of yesteryear. If you didn't know better, you might even think it was the Yankees of old. They got the pitching, some power, the old Yankee luck and swept two from Cleveland Indians.

But there's one important difference between this crew and the outfit that terrorized the American League for decades. New York's 2-1 and 2-0 sweep Friday night was the Yanks' first doubleheader victory of the season—they've lost two and split nine—and left them still floundering in ninth place.

The only one they're terrorizing now is Washington, the team they're fighting for eighth place. The Senators stayed on top by one percentage point with a 3-1 victory over Detroit Tigers, Washington's fifth straight victory and Detroit's fourth straight loss.

Boston Red Sox bombed Baltimore Orioles 11-5, Kansas City Athletics took Minnesota Twins 3-2 and California Angels and Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader—the Angels winning the first 3-2 before the White Sox romped 8-0.

PITCHING PROTEGES Fritz Peterson and Al Downing, a pair of young lefties, provided the pitching for the Yankees. Peterson hurled a four-hit shutout in the nightcap after Downing had hit record to 10-5 with a five-hit effort in the first game.

Elston Howard's home run broke a 1-1 tie and won the opener, while the fabled Yankee luck helped in the nightcap. In the fourth, Joe Pepitone led off with a single. Mickey Mantle then hit a towering pop fly that fell for a single when Indian second baseman Chico Stevens lost it in the lights.

Salvo Whitaker followed with a looping pop fly that grazed Salmons' frantically reaching glove before falling in short right for another single, driving in Pepitone.

John Donaldson drove in two runs with a pair of singles and rookie relief pitcher Tony Pierce choked off a bases-loaded threat as the keys to Kansas City's decision over Minnesota. The victory snapped a six-game Kansas City losing string.

CRACKS NO. 13 Paul Casanova looped a two-out, two-run single to right in the eighth inning, securing Washington's victory over Detroit. The Tigers' only run came on Bill Freehan's 13th homer.

Boston unleashed a 12-hit attack, spiced by home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Carl Yastrzemski in the Red Sox' romp over Baltimore. Yastrzemski's drive was hit 20th of the season and he added a single and a double.

Jimmie Hall drove in the tie-breaking run that won the first game for California with a pinch-hit single in the sixth, scoring Bobby Knop.

Joe Horlen blanked the Angels on six hits in the second game and the White Sox wasted no time wrapping it up, rushing in five runs in the second inning. Pete Ward's two-run homer was the big hit.

Remember when... Walter Hagen won his first Canadian open golf championship 36 years ago today—in 1931—at Toronto, after a 36-hole playoff with Britain's long-driving Perce Allis, with whom he had tied with 282 for the regular 72 holes. Hagen competed in the Canadian Open 13 times.

YESTERDAY'S STARS Battling—Mike Epstein, Senators, doubled, tripled and homered twice, driving in six runs in Washington's 8-3, 6-1 doubleheader sweep over Detroit Tigers.

Pitching—Dave McNally, Orioles, scattered six singles for his first shutout of the season as Baltimore bombed Boston 10-0 to gain a doubleheader split with the Red Sox.

Five points is the margin between the first four teams in the Sher-Lenn Little League.

Tigers are leading the pack with White Sox in second spot.

Red Sox, who lost two close games in the last week, are now resting in third place. Senators are chasing the first three and in the games slated for next week there could be more changes in the league standing.

Two big games which were the best played so far this season were witnessed during the week. Rex Sox and Tigers gave the spectators plenty to rave about, although Tigers took this one the result could have gone either way.

Thursday's game with the White Sox and Red Sox, a game that took only fifty-five minutes to play, was the highlight.

Red Sox lost this one too by a 2-0 score but it was only the last of hitting that was their downfall. Both pitchers in this one were great and Roberge though losing was a standout.

Senators are beginning to climb and they will have to be considered in the final standings. They will, though, have to watch out for the Orioles, a team that is also beginning to show improving ball and could be a threat.

A well-balanced league is what is now operating in the Sher-Lenn league and all games in the next two weeks will determine who finishes where.

Within the next few days the draw for the Regional Playoffs should be announced and all Star teams will be getting set to take part. The Sher-Lenn Little League prospects for the All Star team should be no problem.

Salvo Whitaker followed with a looping pop fly that grazed Salmons' frantically reaching glove before falling in short right for another single, driving in Pepitone.

It was a pleasure to notice among the spectators the other night Ed Bryant and Mrs. Bryant and friends. Ed has always been a close fan of Little League and his interest is full appreciated by the league.

To name stars for the past week would be quite a task for many players are showing improvement and little league is living up to its standard teaching the youngsters.

Coaches who are doing such a good job.

Two games on this Sunday in Massawippi loop

Two games are on tap this Sunday in the Massawippi Baseball loop. Sherbrooke Indians, who slipped into first place last Wednesday when they overpowered Magog 7-5, will try to extend their lead over the rest of the pack as they travel to Ascut Corner.

Second-place Ayer's Cliff plays host to Magog in the afternoon with the Cliffers facing young Maurice Girard, a junior pitcher who shows great promise.

The win marks Sherbrooke's ninth victory against four setbacks putting them two points ahead of the Cliffers who two weeks ago were jolted by back-to-back upsets at the hands of a surprising Ascut Corner squad.

Real Benoit sparked on the mound for Sherbrooke, allowing only six Magog hits while the Indians took full advantage of the eight hits they belted off Magog starter Tremblay.

Richard Doyon was the big gun for Sherbrooke with a double and a single while teammate Andre Gagnon pounded out a triple. The Indians played without the excellent services of Denis Aury who participated in the game only in a spectators capacity.

The league standings now see Ayer's Cliff in second place with eight wins and four losses while Ascut follows with four victories. The lowly Magog squad trails the pack with only two wins tallied to date.

St. Francis Stake headlines local weekend racing card

Two sections of the St. Francis Pace Stake will headline the weekend card at the Sherbrooke Race Track. Both are scheduled on Sunday evening's Card.

A total of 159 horses are listed for the weekend. This evening every class is filled while tomorrow night only one dash has seven starters and that is the second section of the St. Francis Stake. This is the first time that such a field of horses are entered.

The sum of $5,225 will be at stake for the drivers with the sum of $600 going to each section of the St. Francis Stake. This evening $2,225 is in play while tomorrow the sum of $3,000 will be up for grabs.

The second section of the Stake this week will bring together all the top horses and should be a close battle the whole way. Positions for the dash have been assigned by Paul Brunelle, racing secretary, and is based on the money won since the Stake started.

Lou Adios has the pole and along side will be Bobinette Ibafe Pomier, Bill, Ride's Scamp, Shawnee Wann with Tom Lucy in seventh and the trailer is Colonel Drummond. This should be a real battle for the top spots going to the quarter.

In the first half of the event nine horses will go to the wire with Coorva and Widower Adios as an entry. They are trained by Normand Lachance. Sym Bing has been assigned the pole with Coorva, Abe Alain, Tom Angus, Sep Majesty, Widower Adios and Pole Dinger completing the front row. Henry B. Ibafe and Sep Express will get away from the second line in the field.

Last Sunday Amedee Beaudoin teamed Follow Abe home the winner beating Angelo Fabi's Bobinette Ibafe to the wire. Tomorrow they will meet again but the Fabi entry has the edge in the front row but will have Shawnee Wann to contend with. Alain Veilleux will be out seeking amends with Colonel Drummond and will be going all out to pick up the win. He won two weeks ago but was set back for interference with Bobinette Ibafe. Last Sunday he walked off with the honors without any effort.

Tonight a Preferred Trot will bring together eight of the top steppers at the track. This should be a close battle the whole way as all could pull through with the decision. Sue's Girl, Red Top, Lynn Ibafe, Premium, Markab Pick, Pine Acres Scott, Lash Hanover and Kadri comprise the class. It is the only class for Preferred horses on the weekend program.

Tonight two trots are on the card in the second and eighth dashes while Sunday evening Secretary Brunelle has the same going in the first half of the double and in the fifth dash on the card.

Roberto de Vincenzo heads Open field with record round of 67

HOYLAKE, England (CP)—Roberto de Vincenzo, a genial 44-year-old Argentine making his 10th bid since 1948 to win the British open golf championship, fired a record-equaling 67 Friday for a two-stroke lead over South African Gary Player going into today's final round.

De Vincenzo held a three-stroke lead over defending champion Jack Nicklaus of the United States, who fired a 71.

Australian Bruce Devlin, with whom Nicklaus had shared the second-round lead, and Clive Clark of England followed at 212. Clark shot a three-under-par 69 and Devlin a 72.

Kel Nagel, 1960 champion, and Lionel Platts, the Englishman who broke the course record with a 68 to take opening-round lead, both stood at 213. Nagel had a 69 and Platts a 72.

BALDING FIRES 69 Al Balding, 43-year-old pro from Toronto, was one of three players in the field of 58 at 214 after 54 holes. The only Canadian in the tournament, his rounds were 74, 71 and Friday's 69. Sebastian Miguel of Spain shot a 68 and Jimmy Hume of Scotland a 73.

De Vincenzo had only 31 putts in his five-under-par 67 over the 6,995-yard Royal Liverpool for 70-71-67-208, eight-under par.

Less than an hour before de Vincenzo's finish, Player fired the record-cracking 67 for 72-71-67-210 over the course which had dried out in the hot sun after a heavy overnight rain. Player has won all of golf's major crowns.

Tony Jacklin of England, Christy O'Connor of Ireland, Harold Henning of South Africa, Fred Boobyer of England and Peter Thomson of Australia were bracketed at 215.

Doug Sanders and Deane Beman of the U.S. and Dennis Hutchinson and Barry Franklin of South Africa were bracketed at 216. Beman also fired a 68.

Balding is playing here for the first time in 11 years. He finished 12th in the U.S. open won by Nicklaus.

Before the big-wheel par-busters came flooding home, Balding and Miguel shared the early third-round lead.

FLOCK OF BIRDS Balding birdied the third with an eight-foot putt, the sixth from Ayer's Cliff in second place with eight wins and four losses while Ascut follows with four victories. The lowly Magog squad trails the pack with only two wins tallied to date.

Pitching—Gary Nolan, Reds, fired a 10-inning five-hitter and struck out eight in Cincinnati's 1-0 victory over New York Mets.
