(Associated Press Despatch)

MEN AND WOMEN RUSH TO FARMS TO TAKE POTATOES

(Associated Press Despatch)

BERLIN, August 17.—Greater Berlin is normal again, police headquarters report, work at all the big plants having been resumed with full shifts. There have been no further disorders within the city limits or at suburban points since the Communists called off their strikes. Serious food rioting, however, is continuing throughout the occupied zone, where the looting of shops and pillaging of adjacent farms have become daily occurrences. Rural points are the worst sufferers, as the shutting down of the city shops has brought about a rush of men and women to the rural sections, where potatoes are dug up and hauled away despite the protests of the farmers. In Berlin, according to the police, the gradual improvement in the food situation is contributing to the calming of the people.

BERLIN, August 17.—If Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the new Chancellor, is actually seeking to get into touch with the French, he very likely will find an "encouraging atmosphere," for pourparlers are awaiting him, in the opinion of the political leaders here.

PROSPECTS OF RUSSIAN CROP NOT SO BRIGHT

Probable Increase Over Last Year Is Calculated at Only 18 Per Cent.

(Associated Press Despatch)

MOSCOW, August 17.—The unfavorable weather of the last month has changed the coming harvest prospects for the worst and the estimates are now much below the previous figure of the three billion pounds, about 54,000,000 tons. The probable increase over last year is being calculated at only eighteen per cent.

In Russia proper, including the district of Saratov and Tambov, a great decline is probable, and the same holds true of Western Siberia.

It is expected, however that the Ukraine will give a good yield.

In spite of the probable falling off from the earlier estimates, official circles claim that the prospective exports will not be interfered with.

THE WEATHER

FAIR AND WARM, COOL AT NIGHT

Pressure continues high from the Western States across the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, while the southwestern loop of low is moving slowly eastward and filling up. Except for a few light scattered showers in Saskatchewan and the lower St. Lawrence Valley, the weather over the Dominion has been fine.

Forecast: Light winds, fair and moderately warm today and on Saturday; cool tonight.

Five Power Naval Treaty And The Pacific Treaty Became Effective At Noon Today

Formal Exchange of Ratifications at United States Department Marked by Simple Ceremony—Representatives of Governments Received from State Department Formal Acknowledgment of Deposit.

(Associated Press Despatch)

WASHINGTON, August 17.—Two treaties negotiated at the Washington Arms Conference—the five-power naval limitations agreement and the four-power Pacific pact—became effective today.

Arrangements of the deposit of ratifications called for diplomatic representatives of the powers concerned to meet at noon at the State Department with Secretary Hughes, Ambassador Manihari, of Japan, and the Charges d'Affaires of the British, French and Italian embassies participating in a simple ceremony.

Italy is a party to the treaty providing for the scrapping of warships, but not to the Pacific agreement, which automatically terminates the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The four-power treaty was concluded here on December 13, 1921, and the naval pact February 6, 1922. Deposit of ratifications was necessary before either could go into effect.

Secretary Hughes will act in behalf of the United States; H. G. Chilton, Charge d'Affaires, of the British embassy, for Great Britain; Andre de la Boulaye, Charge d'Affaires, of the French Embassy, for France; Senor Rosco, Charge d'Affaires of the Italian Embassy, for Italy, and Ambassador Manihari for Japan.

Each of the foreign government representatives deposited ratified treaties and received from the State Department a formal acknowledgment of the deposit. The meeting was held in the diplomatic room of the State Department at noon.

MAN WADED TO BRINK OF THE FALLS AT NIAGARA

William Sullivan, After Daring Escape, Arrested on Charge of Being Drunk.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., August 17.—As the result of an argument as to the possibility of a man wading to the brink of the falls in low water, William Sullivan, a sailor, yesterday afternoon waded out ten feet and then down stream until he could overlook the brink of the American Falls. His escapade caused the wildest excitement. Women screamed and men ran in all directions shouting for help.

Officer William Rhodes coaxed Sullivan to return to land, then, with the assistance of another officer, seized him by the neck and shoulders. Sullivan and a sailor pal objected, and a tussle followed, which resulted in the two sailors being arrested. Sullivan was charged with being drunk, and his companion with disorderly conduct.

C.P.R. PRESIDENT ISSUES A REPLY TO CRITICISMS

To End of June Company Has Disposed of 18,194,737 Acres of Land at Average Price of $7.87 Per Acre.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—In the course of a lengthy reply to an article printed in the Star yesterday under the caption "The Whisper of Death" in which it was claimed that the C.P.R. was holding farm lands at prohibitive prices which was acting as a deterrent to immigration and settlement, President Beatty wrote to the paper yesterday stating that up to the end of June this year the company had disposed of 18,194,737 acres of land and the average price was $7.87 an acre.

"Just Kicking Uncle Sam's Dog Around Again," Says Immigration Commissioner

Whenever Someone Wants Something to Kick at, Ellis Island Seems to Be the Target, Declares Mr. Curran in Replying to Suggestions Made by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador.

(Associated Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Commissioner of Immigration Henry H. Curran last night answered the suggestions of Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, for improvement of conditions on Ellis Island, by saying that they are just kicking Uncle Sam's dog around again.

"Whenever someone wants something to kick at," he said, "Ellis Island seems to be the target."

He charged that due to propaganda carried on in Great Britain against Ellis Island, the majority of the Englishmen seeking admission to the United States arrive panic-stricken at the mere thought of going through the examination, and at the so-called horrors which, according to the British press, they must face.

Mr. Curran stated that in spite of the propaganda issued in Great Britain thirty-one thousand British subjects have been admitted since July 1st, almost half the British allotment for the entire year.

The trouble and hardship caused by deportation, the commissioner said, was a direct result of the "regrettable" attitude of the foreign countries in not exercising closer control over their emigrants.

"If all countries exercised as rigid supervision as Norway, Sweden, Germany and Italy," he declared, "there would be less detention, less hardship and in fact there would not be deportations except in the case of people taken sick en route."

"That we conduct lectures on American citizenship for aliens who are later deported is entirely misleading and extremely stupid."

"The kosher food is prepared in a separate kitchen and causes no inconvenience to aliens who eat regular food," he said.

In speaking further of the charge of uncleanness made by the ambassador, Mr. Curran said it was absolutely unfounded, and that the only dirt in the station was caused by immigrants who throw the greater part of their rubbish on the floor. A staff of cleaners spend their entire time following the aliens around to pick up after them, he said.

Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis, former United States Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, commenting on the Geddes report, said the ambassador "is to be commended for his frankness and for his courteous presentation of the problem to his government."

Physical conditions at Ellis Island, he continued, are anything but desirable.

"If all countries exercised as rigid

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE INSISTS THAT THE IRISH-ANGLO TREATY MUST BE MAINTAINED INTACT

Election Campaign in Southern Ireland Is Proceeding Quietly—No Disorders Have Been Reported—Arrest of De Valera Has Infused Intensity in the Electioneering in County Clare, Where Orators Are Manifesting Their Talents in Abusive Language—In Ennis District Posters Are Vigorous in Tone.

(Associated Press Despatch)

DUBLIN, August 17.—The election campaign in Southern Ireland is proceeding quietly. There is a prodigious amount of speech-making. President Cosgrave and all the ministers are dashing about on speech-making tours. Everywhere they are being subjected to heckling, but no disorders have been reported.

Mr. Cosgrave insisted that the Anglo-Irish treaty must be maintained intact. If there are another people who think we intend to allow any clause in the treaty to become inoperative, they are making a grave mistake, he stated in all his speeches.

The boundary and other clauses are all vital and must be complied with in spirit and letter. The arrest of De Valera has infused intensity in the electioneering in County Clare, where orators are manifesting their talents in abusive language.

In the Ennis district, the posters are vigorous in tone. One carries the statement, "Birkenhead laughs at the gullible Irish, who destroy their country's independence."

Among the new women candidates for seats in the Dail, is Mrs. Powell, sister of the late Michael Collins. She is seeking election for Cork city.

A Government statement issued yesterday through the publicity department seeks as far as possible to dissuade De Valera by describing his methods in getting interviews published while he was a fugitive. This statement asserts that De Valera himself wrote down suitable questions and answers, and sometimes provided "unsuspecting journalists with a preface as romantic as it was fictitious, describing the circumstances of the meeting."

Sinn Fein, the Republican official organ, stoutly denies that the first shot was fired from the platform at Ennis, Wednesday, when De Valera was arrested, and also accuses the Free State Government of arresting Republican election agents and seizing Republican election literature.

RECENT COLD SPELL HAS RETARDED HARVESTING

Farmers in Edmonton District Have Been Reluctant to Employ Help Before It is Actually Needed.

EDMONTON, Aug. 17.—A surplus of harvest help is noticeable locally. Cold weather of the past two weeks has retarded harvesting and farmers have been reluctant to employ help before it was actually needed.

Employment officials are urging farmers to assimilate this extra labor now, stating that otherwise these men will go to other districts and will not be available when harvesting actually commences.

LAST BODY IS REMOVED FROM FRONTIER MINE

Disaster Caused Loss of Ninety-eight Lives—Coroner's Jury Held Inquest Today.

(Associated Press Despatch)

KEMMERER, Wyo., August 17.—With the removal yesterday of the last body from the Frontiers mine, No. 1, of the Kemmerer Coal Company, where an explosion occurred Tuesday, an announcement was made here last night that a coroner's inquest into the disaster, which cost ninety-eight lives, will be held today. The last body recovered was that of Fire Boss Thomas Roberts. The body was found by Robert's brother, James, Coroner Holmes was investigating an unverified rumor that a safety lamp which Roberts had been carrying, had been found open by his body.

If the report were true, it was pointed out, it would have an important bearing on the cause of the explosion, which the coroner's jury will attempt to ascertain today.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—"I have no comment to offer regarding the political situation, nothing to confirm, deny, accept or reject," said Sir Richard Squires, former Premier of Newfoundland, who arrived here yesterday.

Eamonn de Valera, whose dramatic career as leader of revolutionary forces in Ireland has come to a sudden halt by his arrest following an attempt to address a political meeting. He was at one time a teacher in the University of Dublin.

CONDITIONS ON ELLIS ISLAND CAUSE DISGUST

Geddes' Report Causes Lengthy Comment in Today's London Papers—Recognize Difficulties.

(Associated Press Despatch)

LONDON, August 17.—Ambassador Geddes' report on conditions at Ellis Island is the subject of lengthy comment in the morning newspapers today. The editorial writers express horror and disgust at the worst features of the ambassador's statement, and say they are convinced that public opinion in the United States would surely resent it if their own decent, clean-living and respectable nationals were obliged to seek entry into a foreign country under such conditions.

Difficulties confronting the New York immigration officials are recognized by some of the writers, but the unpleasant picture drawn by the statement overwhelms this consideration in most instances.

There is considerable unanimity in all the editorials that the selection of immigrants should be made on this side of the Atlantic rather than on United States shores.

Although in poor health for some years, Mrs. Gates was very active about the house, and was able to attend services of the Methodist Church in Cowansville, of which she was a devoted member, until only about three weeks previous to her demise. The deceased was born in McAlpine, Ont., in the year 1845, and was married to Mr. William Gates in 1868, he having predeceased her some years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters and three sons. Four of them were able to be with her when the final summons came. Deceased was of a very kind and generous disposition, and a most devoted wife and mother. Having resided in Ontario the greater part of her life, her remains were conveyed to Caledonia Flat on Tuesday, August 14, and were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Webster, also Mr. Fred Gates, of St. Andrews East, Que. The interment was made beside her late husband, Mr. Henry Gates, of Vermillion, Alta., was unable to be present at his mother's funeral on account of the distance. Mrs. F. T. Alnwick, of Montreal, younger daughter of the late Mrs. Gates, had spent several months in Sweetsburg with her mother at the home of Mrs. Webster.

The funeral service was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Webster on Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock and was largely attended by sympathizing relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Allenby, of Cowansville, officiated at the service and refer-

The Wings of the Morning A Great Story of Adventure and Romance BY LOUIS TRACY.

"A woman!" said Jenks scornfully. "That is idle talk! What woman is here?" This question nonplussed the native. "The woman whom the chief saw half a month back, sahib." "Taung S'Ali was bewitched. I slew his men so quickly that he saw spirits." The chief caught his name and broke in with a question. A volley of talk between the two was enlivened with expressive gestures by Taung S'Ali, who several times pointed at Iris, and Jenks now anathematized his thoughtless folly in permitting the Dyak to approach so near. The Mohammedan of course, had never seen her, and might have persuaded the other that in truth there were two men only on the rock.

His fears were only too well founded. The Mussulman salaamed respectfully and said—"Protector of the poor, I cannot gainsay your word, but Taung S'Ali says that the maid stands by your side, and is none the less the woman he seeks in that she wears a man's clothing." "He has sharp eyes, but his brain is addled," retorted the sailor. "Why does he come here to seek a woman who is not of his race? Not only has he brought death to his people and narrowly escaped it himself, but he must know that any violence offered to us will mean the extermination of his whole tribe by an English warship. Tell him to take away his boats and never visit this isle again. Perhaps I will then forget his treacherous attempt to murder us last night."

The chief glared back defiantly, whilst the Mohammedan said—"Sahib, it is best not to anger him too much. He says he means to have the girl. He saw her beauty that day and she inflamed his heart. She has cost him many lives, but he is worth a Sultan's ransom. He cares not for warships. They cannot reach his village in the hills. By the tomb of Nizam-ud-din, sahib, he will not harm you if you give her up, but if you refuse he will kill you both. And what is one woman worth more or less in the world that she should cause strife and blood-letting?"

The sailor knew the Eastern character too well not to understand the man's amazement that he should be so solicitous about the fate of one of the weaker sex. It was seemingly useless to offer terms, yet the native was clearly so anxious for an amicable settlement that he caught at a straw. "You come from Delhi?" he asked. "Honored one, you have great wisdom." "None but a Delhi man swears by the tomb on the road to the Kutub. You have escaped from the Odamans?" "Sahib, I did but slay a man in self-defence."

"Whatever the cause, you can never again see India. Nevertheless, you would give many years of your life to mix once more with the bazaar-folk in the Chandni Chowk, and sit at night on a charpoy near the Lahore Gate?" "The brown skin assumed a sallow tinge. "That is good speaking," he gurgled. "Then help me and my friend to escape. Compel your chief to leave the island. Kill him! Plot against him! I will promise you freedom and plenty of rupees. Do this, and I swear to you I will come in a ship and take you away. The miss-sahib's father is powerful. He has great influence with the Sirkar."

Taung S'Ali was evidently bewildered and annoyed by this passionate appeal which he did not understand. He demanded an explanation, and the ready-witted native was obliged to invent some plausible excuse. Yet when he raised his face to Jenks there was the look of a hunted animal in his eyes. "Sahib," he said, endeavoring to conceal his agitation. "I am one among many. A word from me and they would cut my throat. If I were with you there on the rock I would die with you, for I was in the Kumaon Rissala when the trouble befell me. It is of no avail to bargain with a tiger, sahib. I suppose you will not give up the miss-sahib. Pretend to argue with me. I will help in any way possible."

Jenks's heart bounded when this unlooked-for offer reached his ears. The unfortunate Mohammedan was evidently eager to get away from the piratical gang into whose power he had fallen. But the chief was impatient, if not suspicious of these long speeches. "Angriy holding forth a Lee-Metford the sailor shouted— (Continued in our next issue.)"

TOURISTS WERE DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

American Tourists Must Respect Traffic Regulations — Heavy Fines Handed Out.

American tourists violating the provincial traffic laws will find it a pretty expensive proposition, this applying particularly to those found driving cars while under the influence of liquor.

A couple of cases of this nature came up before District Magistrate J. H. Lemay yesterday, and in both instances the accused pled guilty, and were sentenced to pay fines of $100 and costs of ninety days. The fines were duly paid.

The charges were laid by Messrs. Bissonnet and Lovell, and Raymond Nourse, of Middleton, Mass., and F. H. Murphy, from the Boston district, were the two visiting tourists who imbibed too freely to justify their driving a car without detriment to the safety of the public at large.

American tourists found guilty of driving a car while under the influence of liquor are of necessity treated a little more leniently than Canadians, inasmuch as local officials have not the right to cancel a license issued by any of the American States. The Americans are subjected to the same fine and possibility of jail, but Canadians suffer the added punishment of having their license cancelled.

Another American visitor, Frank P. Blais, was fined $25 and costs for exceeding the speed limit. In view of the general opinion expressed last season that American tourists were allowed to do as they like on the provincial roads, the Government is endeavoring to eradicate this wrong impression, and a few convictions are expected to have a tendency to exercise greater precaution.

Edward Lafond was also found guilty of driving a car while under the influence of liquor. He was duly fined $100 and costs or three months, and his license was cancelled for a period of one year.

Interest was centred largely in the possibility of further evidence being presented in the Couture-Baillargeon automobile case, but same was adjourned until the 22nd instant.

Louis Charest was fined $50 and costs; J. T. Dumont and Adolphe Lemay were both fined $100 and costs for possession of liquor in violation of the Canada Temperance Act. In the cases of Dumont and Lemay, both had their supplies confiscated.

F. C. Bowen, customs department, made a trip out D'Israeli way, and on his return entered a charge against Zoticque Charbonneau of being in possession of a still. The accused was accordingly sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs or three months.

A REMARKABLE RECORD. The murder record for the city of London for the past year is one of the most interesting of recent crime statistics, for it gives a remarkable insight into the efficiency of the London police force.

"Either the London, England, police are a competent body, or London criminals are mostly amateurs. According to an annual report just issued, twenty-six murders were committed in the London area last year.

"The British people are slow in some ways; but they have acquired the secret of enforcing the law. In this respect they have an enviable reputation. There seems to be no better deterrent of crime for those who cannot be reached by moral suasion than prompt and certain justice."

Such a record is truly worthy of the highest praise and the London force has set a standard which the remaining 'bobbies' of the world may well gaze at with awe. It might be a wise act if some of the Canadian police would study the London system and see how efficiency is reached.

THE GASOLINE WAR.

The gasoline war, which is being waged in the United States, is creating extensive interest and consumer, producer and retailer are closing following developments, in some cases with no small degree of anxiety.

"The price war in gasoline inaugurated by the Governor of South Dakota and which has spread to neighboring states is presently serviceable as indicating that gasoline prices have been too high.

"There is a danger that the price cutting may have an unhappy result, however. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana states that it is now selling at far below the cost of production and distribution.

"It looks as if somebody has been making excessive profit out of gasoline. The federal investigation should determine the facts. But will there be anything to prevent the company holding a monopoly from reverting to high prices and even increasing profits?"

DE VALERA IS ARRESTED.

De Valera, the Irish storm centre, has at last been arrested and is now under the close guardianship of the Free State. For years past this leader of those desiring a republic has been the creator of strife and there is not much doubt but that De Valera has been one of the prime causes of bloodshed and war in the unfortunate island.

But such men as De Valera are not granted the award of eternal popularity and with the coming of the Free State and the detestable continued violence on the part of the Irregulars, his popularity partially fled so that he was hissed at and scorned even by Irish propagandists.

There is no need of the world preparing for, or enduring, another war. The dark pictures which have been, and are being, scattered broadcast concerning such a necessity, are unqualifiedly evil, without one aspect of usefulness or truth.

De Valera has caused lots of trouble, entailing the loss of life and the destruction of property. He has been a menace to the peace of Ireland, and even if he does not pay the death penalty, he should be put in a position from which he will never be able to resume his despicable activities.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS. (Ottawa Citizen.) There are still those who somewhat thoughtlessly find fault with the league. Some of the criticism is sound enough, but it is often based on the hasty assumption that the league has "failed." It would be nearer the truth to say that the league has not yet had an opportunity to demonstrate its worthiness because of the handicaps imposed upon it by the dictators of Europe.

CARE NEEDED IN CHOOSING FLOCK HEADER

Ram Selected Should Show All the Characteristics of an Outstanding Male of His Breed.

The season has again arrived when flock owners should be on the lookout for a strong, vigorous, typey ram to mate with the ewes this fall. It is some time yet before ewes will be bred, but if one wishes the pick of the rams it is advisable to purchase early.

The ram selected should show all the characteristics of an outstanding male animal of his breed. Professor Wade Toole in "The Book of Live Stock," gives the following points that should be taken into consideration when choosing a ram: "He should have a broad, short head, a strong muzzle, a bright full eye, a short thick neck with a well filled neck vein, a deep full chest, great spring of rib and large heart girth, a firm strong top showing width of loin and carried out straight and full to the tail head and should have a large, full leg of mutton. The fleece should be typical of his breed, showing plenty of lustre, quality and crimp for the breed, and the skin should be clear bright pink in color.

It is generally considered by sheepmen that better results follow the using of a shearing or older ram than from a lamb. For this reason one should not pass over a choice ram if he has left a choice crop of lambs in another flock. Very often an older ram can be purchased well worth the money. Especially with large flocks is a tried ram most satisfactory, of course many lambs are used with very satisfactory results on small flocks.

If a large crop of thrifty, strong lambs is expected then the ram must be kept in a vigorous condition previous to and during the breeding season. The overfat ram is not likely to have a large percentage of strong lambs any more than a thin ma. There is a happy medium which usually gives most satisfactory results. Many supplement the grass ration with a little grain during the breeding season. Rather than leave the ram continually with the flock during the breeding season some shepherds have had better results by keeping him in nights when he can be fed grain. A good deal of the success in the increase in the flock depends upon the care of the ram. Select a ram that is superior to the ewes. By following this plan a noticeable improvement will be made and each year it will be found more difficult to get the ram that suits.

PREPARATION OF ANIMALS FOR SHOWING

Care Needed in Making Entries Ready for Competition—Systematic Feeding Essential.

Go into the herd or flock of the professional exhibitor and all is astir in preparation for "coming out" at the first big show. Many of the things which the professional does in preparing his entries for the fray could be advisedly be practised by the amateur or beginner. Of course there are some tricks which are just as well not learned if the animals are to be shown in their natural form. Too much of the breeding stock is over fitted to be of most use as stock getters. However, high fitting of an animal seems to fill the eye of both spectators and judges. It is little use entering in some classes, where there is very keen competition unless the animal is the last word in finish and form. There is no place in the ring for the thin, scrawny entry, but it seems there should be a place in between which would improve the appearance; show the true animal form, but yet not injure its reproductive powers.

There is an art as well as science in fitting animals for strong competition. Having selected the entries for various classes, they must be fed and carried along so as to have the right degree of finish and bloom by show time. According to present standards the under-fitted animal has no chance. It is not always possible to feed so as to have the flesh evenly distributed over the body. Spatchiness or harshness is objectionable. Thus the feeder must be careful not to overdo the fitting. When feeding heavily there is always the danger of over-stepping the mark and putting the animal off its feed. When this occurs it takes weeks to get the animal back to normal. Those fitting animals for the big shows are not without their trouble and losses.

The amateur could bring out his entries in higher bloom and better fit than is usually done at the local shows. Whether competition is keen or not the animal should show that some work had been done on it in preparation for the show. Exhibiting unfitted cattle, in order to take up the prize money should not be countenanced by any show managers. The animal doesn't need to be rolling fat, but it should be in good, thrifty condition, well broken to lead and to stand. The skin should show evidence of considerable grooming and horns and hoofs should receive attention. A little work on the animal greatly improves its appearance and is good for the exhibitor as well as the animal. Grooming and polishing is being practised on the animals that are being prepared for the big shows. It is not too early to begin training the animals to be shown at the local fairs. Get the cattle and horses trained to stand and load. Have the hair and skin like velvet by proper feeding and grooming. Polish the hoofs and horns of the cattle. These things will make the entry appear to good advantage and the exhibitor will have the satisfaction of knowing that he did his best to win on his animals.

PROFITABLE TO GROW YOUR OWN TIMOTHY SEED Results of Tests Made at Experimental Farm at Lennoxville Are Announced. Tests made at the Experimental Station, Kenilworth, go to show that it is quite profitable for one to grow his own timothy seed. This may be done by seeding timothy at the rate of ten pounds per acre when seeding down. Or, if eight pounds of timothy, eight pounds of red clover and two pounds of alsike are seeded, a good even stand of clear timothy will be secured year after year. It is seldom that there is not a fairly clear stand of timothy somewhere on a farm—such an area should be reserved for seed purposes. It does not mean a great loss of hay as the straw after threshing is of fair quality and can be fed unless badly weathered. It was found that a seeding of timothy alone in 1920 gave in 1920 280 pounds of timothy seed and 2,220 pounds of straw per acre after threshing. The harvesting was done August 4, and as the season was dry the seed ripened rapidly. This same area produced 157 pounds of seed and 2,475 pounds of hay per acre in 1922. A considerable amount of other grasses, particularly red top, was noticeable in the 1922 cutting. An adjoining area seeded in 1920 with the clover and timothy mixture mentioned above yielded 188 pounds of timothy seed and 3,052 pounds of timothy straw per acre in 1922. This seed was of particularly good quality and much better than the seed from the area in timothy seed for two years. The practice here is to leave the timothy that is to be cut for seed standing until it is nicely filled and to cut with a binder. The sheaves are stacked neatly and allowed to stand for two or three weeks, or until the heads shell readily. It is then taken in and threshed in a threshing mill or with a flail. It sometimes happens that birds cause a great loss from shelling, in which case the sheaves

FRUIT PICKER'S BAG The metal casing here supports an inner cloth bag. Its special features are: first, that it is cut away at the lower front edge to prevent the fruit from resting on the ground; and second, that, since it is larger at the bottom than at the top, it discharges the fruit without rolling and bruising it. Daniel C. Whitenack, Selah, Wash.

FRUIT PICKER'S LADDER The bucket conveyor on this ladder carries the fruit without injury from the picker's hand to the receiving box below. Its speed is regulated by the thumb nut at the top and it drops the fruit a very short distance because the box is high when empty and sinks as it is filled. Newton D. Sergeant, Bellingham, Wash.

FRUIT GATHERER In using this device the picker spreads the net under the tree, places the boxes under the spouts and detaches the fruit with a padded hook at the end of a long pole. The fruit is harvested quickly and without injury except to the few that strike a limb as they fall. Mat. Blum, Chicago, Ill.

KNOCKDOWN BARREL The staves of this barrel are made of wood with staggered recesses along the sides to prevent endwise movement. They are tacked to flexible strips for ease in handling; they have grooves for the heads; and they are held erect by three hoops. Pax-flat Barrel and Crate Co., New York City.

BERRY BUSH COVERER In many parts of the country it is necessary to protect bushes and vines by covering them with earth in winter. This machine does the work quickly. It first turns the bushes or vines down and then covers them by means of the two plows at the rear. Ernest W. Kummer, Edgewater, Colorado.

RECORD KEEPER This device is convenient for keeping records out of doors, in the garden or orchard. It can be attached to a tree or a fence, or any convenient support; it protects the records from the weather, and the cover serves as a writing table as shown. Charles F. Mitchell, Torrance, Cal.

DISPOSE OF ALL HENS WHEN THEY STOP LAYING

If Plan Is Followed, Marketing Will Be Extended Over a Considerable Period.

Dispose of all hens that are not to be kept over for breeders just as soon as they stop laying. If this plan is followed the marketing will be extended over a considerable period. If you can get them all marketed before broilers become plentiful you are certain to obtain much better prices than if you market them later in the season. After hens have been laying heavily they are likely to be thin in flesh and should not be marketed until put into good condition again. Even hens that have been loafing and are consequently fat are not in as good condition for killing as they should be. Ten days feeding in the crates will make a great difference in these birds, as the crate feeding and the inactivity softens the muscles and makes the fowl much more tender and juicy.

Broilers Many poultry growers do not consider that special feeding of broilers is necessary. They think that because the chickens are young that they will be tender and consequently they take them from the range and market them as they are. Such methods tend to retard the demand for poultry meat. A consumer who gets a broiler that is hard and stringy is not inclined to order another, but if he gets a broiler that has been properly fed in confinement for from ten days to two weeks the quality will be such that he will want more. To properly finish either fowls or broilers they should be crate fed. Nothing but soft feed should be used and to get the finest quality it is necessary to mix the mash with sour milk, in the proportion of about three pounds of milk to two pounds of grain. A mixture of equal parts of finely ground oats and corn-meal is one of the best feeds but other grains may be used if lower in price or more easily obtained.

A little salt added to the feed will make it more palatable and the fowl will eat more. Do not over feed for the first day or two, as the birds will go off their feed and will lose weight instead of putting it on. Only by marketing poultry of the highest quality, will an increased demand be created.

Egg-Laying Contest Shows a Heavier Production for the Past Week.

The close of the 41st week of the Lennoxville egg-laying contest shows a heavier production during that week than has been experienced for the past six weeks. The total eggs laid by the contest birds now number 23,318, or over 1943 dozen. The highest score for the week was received from the White Wyandottes in Pen 6, owned by E. G. White, followed by the White Wyandottes owned by H. S. Beane. Among the highest pen totals to date, the White Wyandottes owned by Miss R. G. Knight still hold the highest place with a total to date of 1,555 eggs. The White Leghorns owned by H. S. Beane have, by a good week's production, brought their total nearer to the leaders, and now have a total of 1,484 eggs. The White Wyandottes owned by E. H. White have a total to date of 1,410 eggs. The individual scores to date have not shown as close competition during the past week as formerly. No. 189, W.W., owned by Miss R. G. Knight, by a good week's production brought her total to date up to 209 eggs. No. 67, W.W., owned by E. G. White, only added two eggs during the week, therefore her total to date reads 205 eggs. The next nearest competitor is a Barred Rock owned by the experimental station.

The prize-winners for the tenth period of four weeks, July 11 to August 7, are as follows: For the pen laying the largest number of marketable eggs in that period: 1st, Pen 6, W.W., owned by E. G. White, Lennoxville, 173 eggs; 2nd, Pen 16, B.R., owned by Experimental Station, Lennoxville, 163 eggs, not eligible for prizes; 2nd, Pen 2, W.L., owned by Jos. Williams, Sawyerville, 159 eggs, $1.

WONDERFUL MOTHER AT 98 SENDS DAILY NOTE TO SON

Mother of Lord Haldane Has Face That Is "a Love-Letter to All Mankind"

It seems incredible that in England to-day there is alive a person who remembers the passage of the first reform bill, the first balloon ascent, the first railroad, the time when bodies of executed criminals were hung on chains from gibbets at crossroads, and days when sedan chairs took the place of cabs and taxis.

This woman is Mrs. Haldane, mother of Lord Haldane, who, although in her ninety-ninth year, is able to contrast very strikingly present-day England with the country in the later Georgian and early Victorian eras.

She has visited prisons where treadmills were the favorite form of punishment, and survived attentions of doctors when bleeding was practically the only form of surgery. She followed the bounds when gentlemen wore corsets while hunting.

Lord Haldane

Although she remembers perfectly the times before the building of railroads in England, Mrs. Haldane recently has had the wireless telephone apparatus installed in her home, and is a keen listener-in on the latest scientific achievement.

"The education of children in those days was very strict," Mrs. Haldane recalls, "and children were threatened with 'Boney'—Napoleon Bonaparte—if they misbehaved, as there was still a strong feeling against the French. We children used to be taken from our cribs at 7 in the morning by a nurse, who plunged us in a bath of cold water.

So old, and yet so alert, is she that she still writes daily to a lord chancellor of our own time, her son, Viscount Haldane. Mrs. Haldane, indeed, is so vigorous that she can read without glasses her son's compactly-thought-out book on Relativity, which she is seen holding in this charming portrait.

Mrs. Haldane comes of two very clever families, the Scotts and the Burdon-Sandersons. Her granduncles, John and William Scott, were the great lawyers who were raised to the peerage as Lord Eldon and Lord Stowell.

Almost exactly sixty years ago Miss Mary Elizabeth Burdon-Sanderson crossed the border to marry as his second wife Robert Haldane, of Cloanden, near Glenside, which a sport-loving people now associate with golf. She was left a widow in 1877, bringing up with the most sympathetic care her brilliant family—the eldest, Lord Haldane; the second, Mr. John Burdon Sanderson Haldane, perhaps the greatest living authority on colliery explosions and the physiology of respiration; the third, Sir William Stowell Haldane, the Edinburgh lawyer. Her daughter Elizabeth, educated at home, is the distinguished Hegelian, the biographer of Descartes and Ferrer. The University of St. Andrews recognized her scholarship by conferring on her its LL.D., and she was the first woman J.P. in Scotland.

Interested in everything going on round her, not least in politics, both at home and abroad, she still reads and writes French with the greatest ease. Her character is so strong that someone once said she would have made a splendid judge. Indeed, people who come to her to be nice to her, end by telling her all their troubles and getting her advice. She is full of courage, not only for herself but for others. That is why her room has been most fittingly called the Chamber of Peace. She bore the war, which came home very poignantly to her circle in more ways than one, with a high heart. Of this beautiful old lady, with white hair and wonderful eyes, it has been finely said that "her face is a thanksgiving for a former life and a love-letter to all mankind."

RING OUT WILD BELLS

OXFORD is deafening with bells. Each college has its set of chimes, which it seems to use for drowning out those of every other college.

"Magnificent, aren't they!" exclaimed a native who was piloting a visitor, Dr. A. E. Ross, now member for Kingston, Ont.

"Eh?" inquired the doctor, leaning towards him.

"The bells, aren't they glorious?"

"What's that?"

"I say, don't you find the bells inspiring?"

Dr. Ross shook his head.

"Can't hear a word for the racket of those infernal bells," he shouted back.

WHEN M. Paderewski will answer no more questions," says a Daily News reporter, "he just shakes you warmly but firmly by the hand." Not by the neck, you will note.—Punch.

Record for Silence is Held by President Coolidge

The new president and Mrs. Coolidge snapped this year in walking attire.

IN 1919 Calvin Coolidge, who has so dramatically succeeded President Harding in the supreme office of the United States, was running for his second term as governor of Massachusetts. The campaign centred about the great Boston police strike. With Bolshevik activities everywhere, the guardians of the peace were threatening to quit their posts. A precedent might be established which would destroy the civilization of America. Coolidge's opponent had practically thrown the police commissioner to the dogs, and promised to reinstate the mutineers. In the face of organized labor Coolidge had declared that policemen who left their duties automatically resigned.

One day a labor deputation waited on him. He listened to them in silence. Then he changed his position, and listened some more. When the source of oratory seemed to be running low, he said, quietly:

"Now, gentlemen, have you said all that you have to say?"

The deputation, rather surprisingly, admitted that it had.

"Very well! All I have to say is this: law and order will be maintained in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Good day."

Law and order was maintained, and Governor Coolidge triumphantly won the election.

That incident is typical of his whole career, of which it was the turning point. The thing itself counts with him, not the talk, and not the accessories.

When he left his boyhood's home at Plymouth, Vt., and went to Amherst College, he intended, in his own words, "to exercise my head rather than my legs." This he did to such purpose that he carried off a gold medal for the best college essay in the United States. After he had graduated and was working in the law office of Judge Hammond, his chief learned of this, by accident. He called the youngster to him.

"Is this true?" he asked. "Did you really win a gold medal in competition with boys from all the colleges in the country?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, this is pretty important. Where is the medal?"

The medal was reluctantly produced.

The left side of this house in Northampton, Mass., is where President Coolidge has resided for a number of years, paying $32 a month rent. Below is a recent photograph of the new president and his wife.

The new president and Mrs. Coolidge snapped this year in walking attire.

"I suppose your folks were very proud of you?"

"Well—er—I don't think they know."

"What! Haven't you told them?"

"No; but I guess I'd better tell father."

This tactfulness is, perhaps, his most noticeable outer characteristic, although, as he once said: "I've usually been able to make noise enough to get what I wanted."

His room-mate at Amherst once remarked, in an after-dinner speech: "Calvin Coolidge came to Amherst in September, 1891. Wait a minute—I can't prove it; the first sound I heard from him was in the following May."

Another former classmate made a bet that he would engage the governor in five minutes' conversation. It ran something like this:

"Cal, I understand they're going to knock the tar out of you this election."

"Maybe."

"I hear that a spellbinder is up against you."

"Yes."

"Perhaps that may help you. You may shine by contrast."

"Perhaps so."

The classmate went away and paid that bet.

Another time Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were invited to spend a few days with one of Mrs. Coolidge's friends on Cape Cod. Mr. Coolidge appeared at seven meals and made three remarks—one. "May I have some butter, please?" and two. "No, thank you's."

Another instance of this "power of silence" occurred upon a far more important occasion. In 1905, he was practicing law in the city of Northampton, Mass., having retired from the city solicitorship. Miss Grace Goodhue, teacher of the school for the deaf and dumb in that city, went to Burlington, Vt., to visit her parents. Immediately after, Coolidge appeared on the scene. He industriously said nothing until, finally, Goodhue, pere, extracted the following: "I just came over to be married to Grace."

"Have you spoken to her yet?"

"No, but I think I will in a couple of days."

Coolidge had been going with his future wife for almost a year when he broke into this supreme burst of communicativeness. He had never once even hinted at sentimentality. Two afternoons afterwards, according to Mrs. Coolidge, he appeared at her house, and, without a word of greeting, remarked: "We are going to get married." They were married that afternoon, and they set about housekeeping in half a small two-family house, which remained their home during the governor's terms of office.

This little home, and the simple, happy life of the governor, his wife, and two sons, became quite celebrated, after a time. One day a friend, looking at the shabby exterior, asked him why on earth he did not ask the landlord at least to paint it.

"Might raise the rent on me," said the frugal Calvin.

The president's coldness has been almost as well advertised as his tactfulness, but among friends of his family say that when away from Plymouth, Mr. Coolidge has never failed to write to his father at least twice a week.

That he does not lack esthetic tastes, however, let Mrs. Coolidge testify. One day a particularly becoming dress of hers was much admired.

"He chooses every dress I wear," she said. "On his walks the governor sees something in a shop window that he likes; then, in the evening, I am advised, 'I saw something very fetching in the line of a gown in such a shop. Guess you'd better go and get it.'"

She added that they went hat-hunting together.

The source of this sort of domestic happiness is not hard to discover when we remember that Coolidge carries with him everywhere a thin gemstone case, containing an old-fashioned daguerreotype of his mother, taken when she was a girl. He once said:

"There can be no proper observation of a birthday that forgets the mother."

Like many silent men, he is an adept at the production of pithy epigrams.

"Men do not make laws. They do but discover them."

"The suspension of one man's dividends is the suspension of another man's pay envelope."

"The assertion of human rights is naught but a call to human sacrifice."

It is often said that the vice-presidency is a convenient shelf for inconvenient politicians. As with Roosevelt, that shelf has become, to Coolidge, a spring-board to supreme power. This much seems sure, that which he conceives to be his duty he will do, without fear or favor.

"When Calvin was a boy on the farm," says his father, "if I was going away and there was anything I wanted him to do, I would tell him, but, when I came back, I never thought of going to see if he had done it—I knew it was done."

Hamilton Astronomer Once Answer to Prayer

Starving Woman Sees Miracle in Two Lone Fish Wm. Bruce Left at Her Door

MR. WILLIAM BRUCE, of Hamilton, well-known astronomer, has not only made a life-long study of the heavens, but—as an ardent disciple of Isaac Walton—of the waters under the heavens and all that dwells therein.

Some years ago, on a hot summer's day, he threw himself down in a cool sequestered spot on Hamilton Bay, and with hook and line awaited a nibble. As his motto through life has been, "Prove all things and hold fast that which is good," he sat back reading the rhapsodies of that quaint and world-renowned angler, while in due time "that which was good" was held fast to a stout stake driven into the ground, from which dangled into the water a beautiful catch of shining black bass.

Sitting back dreamily watching his cork float, he was suddenly brought to earth by a tug at the stake, and a huge snapping turtle sailed serenely up-stream, holding fast that which he knew was good—a generous portion of Mr. Bruce's delectable catch, this being the only occasion on record when the astronomer had not strictly adhered to his motto by failure to hold it sufficiently fast.

Shortly thereafter, when the fishing was not so good, he was proceeding home with two lone fish, when an inspiration seized him to hang them on the door of a poor, needy woman who lived alone in a small cabin. The following morning the Bruce household was startled by the appearance of the over-wrought woman, who stated that a miracle had been wrought in the night. She told how she had not had a bite in the house, and had consequently kept the night's vigil by fasting and praying, and that in the morning upon opening the door, there was—ye gods and little fishes; an answer to her prayer.

Mr. Bruce, while a doubting Thomas as to the authenticity of the miracle performed, yet bore silent witness to the scriptural verse, "According to your faith be it unto you."

A Nova Scotia View

SOME think that a man who appears in court with a discolored optic should be fined on general principles, as having been butting in without an invitation.—Eastern Chronicle.

While his mother sat at the head of the table weeping, with her face buried in her hands, thirty men who bear lasting scars of their service for the allies in the world war a few nights ago in Minneapolis silently drank a toast to a man who went down on a German U-boat in 1918.

He was the son of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, in whose honor, as "the most distinguished delegate" to the convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, a dinner was given.

"I have two things to ask of you," Mme. Schumann-Heink said. "Will you promise me these two things?"

"First, that you will never believe any false stories you may hear about me, stories that I was a German spy, that I was untrue to this, my country, and to you."

"The second promise I ask of you is that when I am dead, and it won't be many more years now, you will see to it that I am buried in America, in my country. And, boys, maybe I could have, in a way, the burial of a soldier. Not any fuss. Have them play 'Taps' over my grave, as I have sung it to you. Will you promise?"

Every one of the thirty veterans silently stood up as she finished, raised his right hand and gave his solemn pledge.

"I had a son in the German army. He was mistaken, but he did what he believed was right. I will not apologize for him. I never have. Remember, boys, I was his mother, the same as I was the mother of four sons serving with my country's forces," said Mme. Schumann-Heink.

"And now," Col. George E. Leach, Mayor of Minneapolis, said, "I propose a toast to that man who went down on the German U-boat in 1918."

Silently the thirty men arose and raised their glasses. Mme. Schumann-Heink sank into her chair and covered her face with her hands. Her sobs could be heard by all.

And then those thirty men paid her perhaps the finest tribute she had ever received. Silently, with bowed heads, they stood and waited until she had left the room.

ANECDOTES are of three kinds. There is the story about no famous person, the story about a famous person, and the story about a famous person told by another famous person. The following belongs to the third category, being told by Sir Robert Horne about the Earl of Balfour.

It is a conversation which took place between Lord Balfour and an American on the other side of the Atlantic. Said the American, pointing grandly to the Metropolitan Tower:

"It is eight hundred feet high!"

Lord Balfour: "Really?"

The American: "And it could not possibly be burned down!"

Lord Balfour: "What a pity!"

Introducing Myself

Dear People:—
George Ketchem is my name, and I'm proud of it. Several prominent people have been called "George" before me, some of whom you have no doubt heard of. But about "Ketchem"—I must tell you of that. This name originated back in the days when a man's name was given as denoting some characteristic. Well, the first Ketchem lived in a thriving town on the west coast of England. He had a gift that was more remarkable in its power than that ever credited to a woman's intuition. He could find a needle in a hay-mow in a jiffy. If anybody wanted anything, no matter what, they always went to George. He seldom failed. He always got 'em, and so he became George Ketchem, and the habit of the town came to be "let George do it." Well, the name followed the line right down to me. That's why I am
Yours truly,
GEORGE KETCHEM.

Daring Rescue from S.S. Marburn

THOMAS BRUIN, Liverpool, boat-swain of the Canadian Pacific S.S. Marburn, made a heroic rescue at sea. While off Glasgow and engaged in boat drill in the manner ordained by Board of Trade regulations, George Davidson, an able seaman, lost his balance and fell overboard. Bruin jumped to the sea with his clothes and heavy boots reaching Davidson when he came up for the second time. This is Bruin's second jump overboard. Last summer at Montreal a companion had the same mishap, but unfortunately the seaman had struck his head on some floating object and did not rise immediately to the surface. Bruin fished unsuccessfully for his companion who was found some days later.

Members of the crew made a presentation to Bruin on his return voyage, and the Log of the S.S. Marburn will be a permanent memorial of the boatswain's bravery.

STATISTICS FOR YEAR OF METHODIST CHURCH

Increase in Membership for Dominion and Newfoundland Is 331 Over Preceding Year.

(Associated Press Despatch) TORONTO, August 17.—Statistics for the year ended April 30th, 1923, given out at the headquarters of the Methodist Church, show a membership of 407,264 for the Dominion and Newfoundland, an increase of 331 over the preceding year.

The report says: "Many reasons may be assigned for the apparent stability of numbers in membership. The multiplication of union churches, of which there are now about 3,000 in Canada, the loss of population from Newfoundland and other considerations of the moment have, no doubt, had influence."

"Money raised for all purposes totalled $9,209,276. This was $54,047 less than the total raised the year before."

MODERATE UPTURNS IN WHEAT VALUES AT CHICAGO

(Associated Press Despatch) CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Moderate upturns in the value of wheat took place today after a brief period of weakness at the start. Initial declines are ascribed to selling based on a setback in quotations at Liverpool. Elevator interests here, however, were persistent buyers from the September delivery and with the Canadian crop reports bullish the general market soon developed strength.

Opening prices which ranged from 3/4 cent decline to 1/2 cent advance, with September at $1.00 1/2 to $1.00 and December at $1.04 1/2 to $1.05, were followed by a slight general sag and then by gains all around.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening at 1/2 cent off to 1/4 cent advance, with December at 63 1/2 to 63 3/4 cents, the corn market scored fair general gains.

Oats started unchanged to 1/2 cent higher, with December at 38 1/2 to 39 cents. Later all the months were a little higher.

Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.

Abitibi at 68 1/2 and Dominion Cannery at 28 1/2 were unchanged.

Embedded in Cairn Are Two Round Shots Fired from American Cannon in Engagement.

Built of rough boulders drawn from beneath the waters of Lake Ontario and having embedded in its body two round shots fired from American cannon in the very engagement, the cairn stands on Missauga Common, a stone's throw from the lake front, over the bank of which came the invading force in May, 1812. The unveiling was performed by Miss Janet Carnochan, for twenty-six years president of the Niagara Historical Society.

This little fellow is not much on size or weight, but he is a record-holder, nevertheless. He was one of the most distinguished passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa on her last westward voyage, and he holds the record of being the youngest passenger to make the trans-Atlantic voyage unaccompanied. While he was travelling "unaccompanied," Georges was not for one moment un-cared for, and although he objected to the Minnedosa to the fullest possible extent for the first 24 hours, after this period he found that the ship was merely a huge playground with everyone his friend.

much better. Uhle did his stuff throughout, allowing ten hits. In Chicago, Cadore, formerly of the Robins, was driven off the mound in the third inning, and the Senators trimmed the White Sox 9 to 2. Russell, also hit twelve times, worked well in the pinches and received fine support.

BASEBALL

FORMER ST. CHARLES COLLEGE STUDENT PLAYS ON PROVIDENCE TEAM.

Bennett Conway, who attended St. Charles College in this city some years ago, plays second base for the Providence Steam Rollers. Conway has been playing with various teams in organized baseball, and this season is with the Providence team. He is said to be a wonderful base runner and good hitter. The Sherbrooke team will not practice today, as all the boys should be on edge after their game in Magog last night. It is expected that Thormahlen will do the twirling on Saturday, with Granai in the box on Sunday.

LOCALS AGAIN SWAMPED MAGOG BASEBALL NINE

Ubaldo Rose Twirled for Magog—Granai Pitched Well—Reed Had Perfect Day at Bat.

Even with Ubaldo Rose in the box, the Magog baseball nine were unable to record much improvement upon their showing here in Sherbrooke last week and the locals, playing in Magog last evening, registered a 10-2 victory, slamming out no fewer than sixteen hits within the course of seven innings. Connie Granai was in the box for the Sherbrooke boys and a masterful display enabled him to hold the Magog boys down to five scattered hits.

There was a fair sized crowd in attendance as Reed stepped up to the plate and opened the game with a stinging single to right. Landry forced Reed at second and successive singles by Kennison, Thormahlen, Andy Jenkins and Granai resulted in Landry, Thormahlen and Andy crossing the plate. The inning closed with men on second and on third.

The Magog boys also opened out in smart style. Codere and Kenney both singled and advanced on Crevier's bunt. However McKinnon flied to left and Rose grounded to short. The second and third innings were featureless.

In the fourth, Sherbrooke registered three hits but failed to score. With the bases filled, Kennison popped out to shortstop. Magog scored their first tally in the fifth. Turcotte was safe on an error in centre field and came home on Codere's timely threebagger.

The sixth inning placed the final issue beyond all doubt when Sherbrooke knocked out half a dozen runs. Ralph Jenkins opened with a single. Giboin flied to left field. Savage walked, Reid followed suit while Landry and Kennison followed with singles, scoring Andy and Thormahlen. Thormahlen cleaned the bases with a threebagger and came home shortly after on Andy Jenkins' fly to centre field. Magog got their second run in the sixth, Schwab being on Jay's twobagger.

Sherbrooke concluded their scoring in the seventh. Ralph Jenkins flied to right. Giboin singled. Savage fanned. Reed knocked out a twobagger and Giboin scored on Landry's single. Reed tried to come home but was thrown out at the plate.

TENNIS

CITY CHAMPIONSHIP FINALS TODAY AND TOMORROW

The finals in the majority of the events in the City Championships should be concluded by tomorrow night, if no unexpected developments occur during the next twenty-four hours. The final stages have been reached already in the ladies' doubles, the mixed doubles and the junior singles for girls and some of these events will be played today. In the men's singles and doubles the semi-final rounds are ready for play and should be decided this afternoon. In the ladies' singles there have been a few delays but one half of the semi-finals has been reached and it is hoped that the players will be ready for the finals tomorrow. Francis McCaw has won his way to the finals in the boy's singles and is waiting to play the winner of K. Bryce vs Lepage. This match is scheduled for this evening and the deciding sets will be played tomorrow morning.

Twelve matches were played yesterday and in most instances the victories were decisive. In the men's singles three events were contested. A. Hodson advanced to the semi-finals by defeating A. Bartlett in straight sets. Bartlett played a pretty game but could not find the back line and continually drove too far. Hodson, on the other hand, was exceptionally steady, his serve was in good working order and he took the victory, 6-0, 6-1. Hodson and A. W. Reid are bracketed together for this afternoon and the winner will go into the finals. It should be a good match as both players are on a fairly equal footing.

P. Skelton and E. St. Pierre met on the Fairbanks courts and the latter was forced to go three sets before he got the decision. In the last two sets St. Pierre allowed his opponent only two games, the final score being 3-6, 6-0, 6-2.

Ken. Jenckes and S. E. Read faced each other in the semi-finals, the latter winning two straight. The scores were 6-1, 6-2.

In the men's doubles Fuller and McCabe, playing on the Fairbanks courts, advanced one by defeating N. Baldwin and E. St. Pierre, 6-1, 6-2. Fuller and McCabe are slated to meet Reid and Read in the semi-finals today.

In the junior singles for boys, F. McCaw won twice during the course of the day, reaching the final round. His first match was against H. St. Pierre and McCaw won 6-1, 6-2. A. E. Tate was his next opponent and this player was also sent down to defeat to the tune of 6-3, 6-5.

Mrs. D. C. McRae and A. Tobin were paired against Miss A. Walsh and N. Baldwin and the latter pair were defeated in quick order. Tobin played a strong game at the net and caused his opponents no small amount of worry. The scores were 6-0, 6-2. Mrs. McRae and Tobin will now meet Miss C. Jenckes and S. Read in the deciding matches.

Only one match was played in the ladies' doubles and Mrs. B. Irwin and Miss Jenckes took straight sets from the Misses M. Trudeau and I. Wolfe. The scores being 6-2, 6-1. The winners play Miss Gilman and Miss St. Pierre in the finals.

Three contests were staged in the ladies' singles, with the result that this series is now nearing conclusion. Miss A. Walsh and Miss C. Jenckes came together, the latter winning 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Cynthia Adams, playing in the senior singles, won decisively from Miss I. Wolfe. The scores were 6-0, 6-0.

Although Miss St. Pierre put up a good game against Mrs. B. Irwin she was forced to acknowledge defeat, 6-0, 6-1.

By defeating Miss A. Wilkinson, 6-1, 6-1, in the junior singles for girls, Miss C. Adams goes into the finals and will meet Miss E. Salls. This game will probably be played today.
