What Chisholm Said May Now be Ruled Out

Mr. Quinn [illegible] That His Implication of McCullough be Con[illegible]ed Illegal Evidence—To-day's Testimony.

When Justice Hall had taken his seat this morning in the Court of Queen's Bench, Mr. Quinn at once made a motion that the statements of Chisholm to Mr. D. M. Stewart, inspector of the Merchants Bank of Halifax, included in the evidence of Mr. Stewart, should be struck out and instruction given to the jury not to consider these declarations as evidence against Mr. McCullough.

Mr. Quinn said that having been brought into the case suddenly, he had not been able to go over its points as fully as was needful for the evidence. But now he would consider that if he did not make this motion he would not only be neglecting his duty but would be guilty of a legal atrocity. He quoted "Russell on Crimes" and various other authorities and precedents in favor of his motion, that a confession of any one party to a conspiracy could not be considered as evidence against any one but the confessing party himself.

Mr. Cooke answered that Mr. Quinn had put Mr. Stewart through a rigorous cross-examination lasting half an hour on the very words that Chisholm had used on the 2nd of April. Counsel for the defence had not made any objection at the proper time, which was before the evidence was taken in full. Also, the statement was not made by Chisholm alone, but McGillis had confessed to benefiting by the frauds, and McCullough had admitted his implication.

Mr. Quinn said Mr. Brock and Mr. Pease were to be examined on the statements made by Chisholm and McGillis. Because illegal evidence was taken, and the cross-examination made, that was not a reason why it should be left in and go before the jury as evidence against McCullough. He quoted Roscoe to the effect that a verdict given on such evidence would not be just, and that although there might be sufficient legal evidence, apart from the evidence that was illegal, to cause a conviction, the inclusion of any illegal evidence should make the verdict void.

Mr. Cooke again objected that this evidence, having been taken, should be accepted. He said he would rather take the opinion of the Court than the authorities his learned friend had quoted.

WILL GIVE DECISION.

The Judge said he thought the manner of Mr. Cooke's objection was in bad taste. Answering the motion, he said he was not inclined to stop the case at this stage for a decision. Chisholm's statement was the first intimation of irregularity and the first clue. He did not see how the evidence could have been excluded. The evidence so far as Mr. Stewart was concerned, was given, but he would give a decision on the point before the calling of the other witnesses, and reserve the recourse of instructing the jury to treat the statements and charges made by Chisholm with great reservation. So far as Mr. Quinn's argument went that the jury, though they might not be able to remember Chisholm's words, would certainly be impressed by them if they were not instructed at once not to take them as evidence, Justice Hall thought the Court was still able to correct any impression that they might have made on the jury.

The jury and Mr. Stewart were then called.

THE RECEIPT SYSTEM.

Asked if it was not an everyday transaction for an owner of cheese which he might not have seen, or have in a warehouse, might be sold to another party upon a receipt, admitted that it was. The second party might get an advance on that receipt from the bank, and that class of security was considered excellent by the bank.

"Some years ago in Montreal there had been a craze for dealing in hay," Mr. Quinn said. "Even lawyers instructed agents to buy hay in their names. Afterwards advances were made by banks to the agents on warehouse receipts and the real speculators did not appear in the transaction." Mr. Stewart admitted that such a transaction would be legitimate.

The witness admitted that the warehouse receipts had been accepted by the bank on the endorsation and on the strength of a letter from the warehouse man acknowledging that the warehouse receipt had been transferred to the name of the bank. Regarding the system of issuing warehouse receipts and their value as certificates that the goods actually were in the warehouse, Mr. Stewart, answering Mr. Quinn, pointed out that although there was no means of identifying the particular quantity of grain in an elevator that might belong to a firm, a certificate was given by a Government or a grain inspector certifying to the number of bushels owned by the firm. With cheese or butter it was a different matter. They had a means of identification in the marks on the warehouse receipts and the boxes of cheese or butter themselves.

Mr. Quinn said what he wanted to know was not the difference in the systems concerning different kinds of produce, but whether the warehouse receipt itself was taken to actually represent the goods.

Mr. Quinn—"You became aware on March 23rd that something was wrong with receipts of the Cold Storage Co.?"

"Yes."

"You didn't take any steps until April 2?"

"No."

THE McCULLOUGH INTERVIEW.

"On April 3rd you went to the Cold Storage Co. The name of the Cron & McCullough Dairy Co. had been mentioned to you. Did you call on them that morning?"

"No."

"Did you telephone them that day?"

"I'm not certain about the day. It was not long after."

"Did you telephone more than once?"

"I telephoned every day until McCullough came up."

"And how many times did you telephone?"

"I am not prepared to swear that I telephoned on the 3rd. But I am prepared to swear that I telephoned on the 4th, and each day until he came to me, that was on the 6th."

"Did you take a memorandum that it was on the 6th?"

"I think the date was reckoned from my statement in one of the letters fixed below that I had seen him on a certain day of the week."

Asked if he spoke to McCullough over the wire before the 6th, Mr. Stewart said he did not know, but he believed Mr. McCullough himself did not speak until the 6th. On the 6th he said, "I will come up," or something of that kind, from which Mr. Stewart gathered it was McCullough who had spoken to him.

"What time of the day did he come to you?"

"I think it was in the forenoon."

"Do you remember his coming in the door?"

"I think a junior announced that McCullough was outside. I rose as he came in and asked him to sit at a table in another part of the room, I sat opposite him."

"And it was at that table you had your first interview with him?"

"Yes."

"I want you to remember what was the firts word of the interview."

"I can't remember."

"What is the first portion of the interview that you remember?"

"I think I asked McCullough to tell me all he knew about this matter of warehouse receipts. Of course I presumed he knew all about them.

"How long had he been there when you put that question to him?"

"Not more than a few seconds."

"What was you next question?"

"Mr. Stewart said he could not swear to the questions in this exact order, but he coud tell the substance. McCullough said he had allowed McGillis to make out these warehouse receipts and had not verified that the goods were there before negotiating them at the bank."

IMPORTANCE OF A WORD.

"Referring to the word 'allowed,' did he use that word?"

"I think he did."

"Will you swear he did?"

"I am speaking to the best of my recollection. I believe he did."

"Is is not a fact that under oath your first statement was that he had 'trusted' McGillis and didn't know much more about that?"

"Yes."

"Now, doesn't the word 'allowed' Mr. Stewart, imply more than 'trusted'?"

Mr. Cooke objected to the question.

Mr. Quinn—"I ask you if 'trusted' was not the expression and 'allow' was never used?"

"No. To the best of my recollection he used both."

Mr. Cooke objected to Mr. Quinn's questioning the witness as to his statements in the court below, and said the depositions should be read to the jury and the witness questioned on the contradictions. The witness retired while the matter was discussed. Mr. Quinn answered it was the right of the witness to demand the reading of the depositions. He simply wanted to help Mr. Stewart to refresh his memory. He was not trying to contradict Mr. Stewart. He thought Mr. Stewart was giving his evidence in a very fair manner. The judge said he did not see any discrepancy between the witness's first statements and his statements now. Mr. Stewart had stated with a great deal of frankness that he was not sure, but was giving his evidence on this matter to the best of his recollection.

Mr. Stewart went into the box again, and said he now thought McCullough used the word "allowed" as well as "trusted."

"Do you swear that he used the word 'allowed'?"

"To the best of my recollection."

"Do you remember distinctly that he used the words 'allowed' and 'trusted'?"

"To the best of my memory he used both words."

"What was the next question you used to McCullough that day?"

"I also asked him what he had done with the money. At first he wouldn't answer. Later on"—

"We will come to that."

"What I mean by later is this: It wasn't question and answer as it is here. McCullough didn't answer offhand. It was a case of putting a question and waiting an unduly long time for an answer."

"McCullough wouldn't say if Chisholm had benefited."

Mr. Stewart continued: "I asked him if McGillis had benefited. His answer surprised me. I don't know how you will interpret it."

"Well, give it in words?"

A NEGATIVE OR AFFIRMATIVE SHRUG?

"I can't give you the answer in words. I said: 'Well, did McGillis get it?' His answer was—(Here Mr. Stewart lifted his hands, palms upward, shrugged his shoulders, turned his head sideways and the corners of his mouth down. The interpreter imitated the action, after having read the question, for the French half of the jury.)

Whether the action was an affirmative or a negative answer will no doubt be the basis of some discussion.

Mr. Stewart said also that he didn't tell McCullough that Chisholm had implicated him or accused him of having removed the goods or committed the frauds.

Half an hour before the usual time Mr. Quinn asked that the court should be adjourned. Counsel for the defence had discovered some new evidence and wanted time to enquire into it during the luncheon interval. Adjournment was ordered.

NEW ELEVATOR ACT

BIG MILLING COMPANIES ARE HELPING THE FARMERS.

It's Said that the Millers Are Eager Buyers and Will Take 7-10ths of Manitoba's Wheat.

Winnipeg, Nov. 26.—Up to date Mr. C. C. Castle, the recently appointed warehouse commissioner, has issued 505 licenses for elevators and warehouses. Mr. Castle has already visited several points throughout the country, and found that in all cases the elevators were complying with the provisions of the act. In regard to complaints received, Mr. Castle said: "A number of complaints have reached me from sections chiefly operated by the Northern Pacific Railway that wheat was being drawn away from towns along the road and marketed at adjacent towns on the C.P.R., owing to the fact that better prices were paid there. The explanation of this is that the two large milling companies, Ogilvie's and the Lake of the Woods are not buying wheat along the Northern Pacific, and as this is a miller's year, owing to the lightness of the crop, the mills must necessarily be eager buyers, as the two large concerns will absorb about seven-tenths of the estimated crop this year. The farmers living in districts where these concerns operate are to-day selling wheat at a premium over its export value. This will account in a measure for the fact that farmers are marketing as much as they can at points which are operated by the large milling companies."

LONDON FOOTBALLERS' PRESEN-

At the Balmoral Hotel on Saturday evening Mr. Charles S. Proctor, on behalf of the London Club, presented "China" Hobbs with a gold-headed cane, and Captain Gibbons with a handsome match case, as a recognition of the services they had rendered the London team in the championship game and throughout the season.

SCAVENGERS WARNED.—It was intimated at the meeting of the Incineration Committee that several reports had been received about scavengers smashing boxes and barrels on the streets. Ald. Lavallee made a motion that the scavengers be instructed not to throw the barrels from the top of the waggons. If they were caught doing so they would be suspended.

THE HUNTER BOY SHOT.

WANT THEIR CANAL IMPROVED

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—The Merchants Exchange of Buffalo on Saturday adopted a resolution favoring the enlargement and modernization of the Erie Canal, and urging the Legislature to pass at the coming session such legislation as will enable the canal to become again the controlling factor in the prosperity of the state and the transportation system of the country.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The statute establishing the Royal Military College at Kingston provides that no one shall be admitted to the course whose parents have not resided in Canada for three years. Formerly Orders-in-Council have permitted exceptions, but at present there are more applicants than the college can accommodate, so that exceptions are not likely to be made until the establishment of the college can have been increased. A case under this regulation has just been noticed. Rev. Dr. Hackett, president of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College, has come to Canada within two years, and is now anxious to have his two sons admitted at Kingston, but this is impossible at present.

MR. M. HUTCHISON FOR ST. ANTOINE

Liberal Meeting on Saturday Unanimously Nominate Him

The Liberals of St. Antoine Division held a meeting at the Windsor Hotel on Saturday night, and nominated Mr. Mathew Hutchison as their candidate at the approaching provincial elections. Notices had been sent out by Mr. Peter Lyall, president of the St. Antoine election organization, and Mr. Fisher, president of the Liberal Club; but the two meetings were combined by unanimous consent. Mr. Lyall and Mr. Fisher acted as joint chairmen, and Mr. E. G. [illegible] as secretary. Among those present were: Messrs. Henry Hamilton, Robert [illegible], Robert Bickerdike, M.P., [illegible], L. Sauvageau, S. Coulson, [illegible], Dr. F. R. England, E. [illegible], George [illegible], Hon. G. W. Stephens, [illegible] Morgan, Charles Lamb, D. L. Lockerby, H. W. Raphael, O. Delages, Senator Casgrain, Senator Dandurand, L. [illegible] and others.

The names of Messrs. Peter Lyall, D. L. Lockerby, Archibald McGoun and Matthew Hutchison were proposed as candidates for the nomination, but all withdrew except the two last named. A ballot being called, Messrs. F. W. Hibbard and W. A. Weir were appointed scrutineers and reported [illegible] 6 in favor of Mr. Hutchison.

Mr. F. L. Beique, seconded by Hon. G. W. Stephens, moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and this was cordially agreed to.

MR. HUTCHISON'S REMARKS.

Mr. Hutchison then thanked the electors for the honor they had done him. He said St. Antoine Division was an important one, and should be worthily represented in the Legislature. Whether he was the best man or not was not for him to say, but if he were elected he would do his best to serve the electors worthily to the extent of his ability. As all before him knew he was a Liberal and believed in the principles of the Liberal party. He was prepared to give the Parent administration, which he understood was following the policy laid down by their lamented friend the late Mr. Marchand, his heartiest support. He believed in the plan of government by party, which was, in his opinion, the best form of government. It was followed strictly in Great Britain and where was there a better governed country? He believed it to be the duty of a representative to give a loyal support to the leaders of his party and when their policy was such that he could not consistently do so it was his duty to resign his seat and give his constituents an opportunity to express their views by a new election.

Mr. Hutchison also spoke briefly in French.

Mr. Robert Bickerdike, M. P., and Hon. W. Stephens also spoke, endorsing Mr. Hutchison's candidature, as did also Senator Dandurand in French.

Shanghai, Nov. 26.—(Special, by Hang Li)—When your acute correspondent saw Prince Tuan to-day he had just been sentenced by the Empress to shovel the sidewalk, rake the furnace, hie himself into a wash boiler filled with red hot lead, and afterwards stick himself onto one of the large hooks in the meat market. "This is the easiest yet," said Tuan at 4 p.m., after he had passed through the trying ordeal.

"I do," was his response, feeling that she was yielding; "on very particular personal business." And he turned proudly to go away.

Raising the Race Cry in British Columbia

Conservatives Base Their Whole Appeal on it—Clarke Wallace Tells French-Canadians to Remember They Are a Conquered Race.

Vancouver, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The Conservatives of Vancouver held a mass meeting in the City Hall on Saturday night in the interests of Mayor Garden, who is contesting Burrard constituency in opposition to Mr. G. R. Maxwell, the Liberal candidate, who represented it in the last Parliament. In addition to Mayor Garden, the speakers of the evening were Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and Hon. N. Clarke Wallace. Their whole appeal for support for the Conservative candidate was based on the race cry.

Mayor Garden, in opening, said that the Conservatives had been beaten by a race cry in the recent elections. The cry had been raised by the French-Canadians as far back as 1876, when a malefactor condemned to death happened to be a French-Canadian. Had the malefactor been an Anglo-Saxon no such cry would have been raised. The French-Canadians were not the loyal British subjects they would have people believe. Mr. Tarte said when in France that "remembrance of France our mother land still lives in Canada, but we are restrained to act with policy and discretion." This was a fair sample of French-Canadian loyalty.

A FRENCH DYNASTY.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper said the Dominion was now in the hands of a French dynasty composed of Laurier, Tarte, Bernier and the so-called Napoleon from Brandon. In the recent campaign Sir Wilfrid Laurier had gone out of his way in Quebec to show that he had not sent troops to fight the battles of the British Empire in South Africa; still Mr. Sifton had boasted that the 57 Grit votes from the Province of Quebec represented loyal feeling to the Crown. Mr. Sifton had attempted to befool the electors of Vancouver by concealing from them the fact that two French-Canadian traitors, Bourassa and Monet, worked to defeat the Conservatives because the Conservative Opposition had forced Premier Laurier to allow, not to send, Canadian troops to fight in Africa. The French-Canadians themselves had raised the race cry; they had said, "if you strike down the Prime Minister, if you hold the Government guilty, you throw away for ever the chance of a French-Canadian being Premier," and on that miserable appeal Quebec had voted Liberal.

A CONQUERED RACE.

Clarke Wallace asserted that Mr. Sifton's claim that French-Canadians were loyal was all balderdash. Everybody knew that in the Liberal camp were such traitors as Bourassa and Monet, and the Conservatives had proved that a member of the Government was also a traitor. Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself had positively refused to send a contingent until forced to do so. Mr. Tarte had said that not a man should be sent to fight British battles. He had stated at Laval University that one of the paramount duties of the French members was to show that they were Frenchmen. He had stated in his letters that the French-Canadians were longing for the day when they could throw off the thralldom of Great Britain. Their loyalty was only lip loyalty, but they should bear in mind that they were a conquered race, and that never had a conquered race been treated with so much liberality, generosity and fairness as they had been by the British.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. FRANK EDGAR

One of Montreal's Best Known Business Men.

PASSED AWAY LAST EVENING.

General Regret Throughout the City—Sketch of His Career.

Mr. Frank Edgar is dead. And with his death there passes from the scene of Montreal's business activities one who, for a great many years, was closely identified with many of its movements. Born at Quebec on March 31, 1841, he removed to Montreal when still quite a lad, and, in his twentieth year, entered the wholesale dry goods establishment of Messrs. Mackay Bros. Thirty years' service with the firm was followed by a decade of effort in the capacity of an active partner. Mr. Edgar was an exceptionally clear-sighted business man, and all his ventures were crowned with not a small measure of success. At the time of his death he was secretary of the Sissiboo Rubber Company, a director of the Boston Rubber Company, and a director of the Montreal Paper Company. One of his sons, Mr. Mackay Edgar, who has also been associated with Mackay Bros. for several years, will now administer his father's estate.

Mr. Edgar a few years ago was attacked by a serious ailment, but from this he gradually recovered, and none of his friends had any idea that the disease was so deeply rooted as it proved to be. During the past year he had taken his usual active part in business matters, but about two weeks ago a relapse occurred. A severe attack of jaundice developed, and the most strenuous efforts of his physician were directed to the abatement of the disease. Up to last Thursday he was able to attend his office daily, but on Thursday afternoon went home to leave it no more in life. On Saturday afternoon he took a decided turn for the worse, and early Sunday morning became unconscious. He remained in this condition Sunday, surrounded by his family and sorrowing friends, until about six o'clock in the evening, when he quietly passed away. Among those who were at his bedside during the whole of Sunday was his life-long friend and partner, Mr. Robert Mackay.

All forms of athletics found in Mr. Edgar an ardent supporter, and at all the outdoor matches his figure was a conspicuous one. He was an enthusiastic curler, and was at one time, honorary secretary of the Thistle Club. The Metropolitan Club had in him one of its charter members.

The late Mr. Edgar was prominent in Masonic circles. He was a charter member of Royal Albert Lodge when it was formed under the Grand Lodge of Canada, and when the Grand Lodge of Quebec was organized in 1869 he was elected its first D.D.G.M. for the District of Montreal. He was also Grand Treasurer in 1889-90, and the Most Worshipful Grand Master in 1891 and 1892. For many years he had been chairman of the committee on finance, and it is greatly owing to his services on that committee that the finances of Grand Lodge are in their present satisfactory condition. He was also noted for his executive work, and as chairman of the committee for the compilation and revision of the last constitution of the Grand Lodge, his services were invaluable. His brethren of the fraternity will remember him as a calm, caustic and fearless speaker, and opposed to all shams and unnecessary display in connection with the order. The late Mr. Edgar was also a charter member of Royal Albert Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, honorary first principal of Carnarvon Chapter, and was elected grand first principal of the Grand Chapter of Quebec in 1881, a position which he held for sixteen months, owing to the date of the annual convocation being changed from September to January. He was a member of the A. & A.S. Rite, having been for ten years most wise sovereign of the Hochelaga Rose Croix Chapter, controlling the fifteenth to the eighteenth degrees, and some three years ago was elected a member of the Supreme Council of the thirty-third degree for Canada. He was also a charter member of Karnak Temple of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Mr. Robert Mackay, with whom the late Mr. Edgar was associated for a period of forty years, speaks in the warmest terms of appreciation of the deceased gentleman's qualities of mind and heart. Mr. Edgar, Mr. Mackay says, was a man of far more than average ability, and possessed a wide grasp of various subjects. He was a keen financier, and had a happy faculty of going straight to the root of any question. Throughout a life-long acquaintance, Mr. Mackay found Mr. Edgar a man of sterling worth in every station in life, and he deeply feels the personal bereavement he has suffered by Mr. Edgar's untimely end.

The late Mr. Edgar leaves his widow, Mrs. Edgar; three sons—Messrs. E. Mackay, Albert and Lorne—and the Misses Frances, Charlotte and Ethel. The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 2.30, the cortege proceeding to the Church of St. James the Apostle, where services will be held.

BANK OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

Mr. James Manchester Will Probably Succeed the Late Mr. Schofield as Manager.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—During the past few weeks Mr. James Manchester, late of Manchester, Robertson & Allison, has been acting manager of the Bank of New Brunswick. Only a few days ago Mr. W. E. Stavert, at present manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, in Boston, Mass., was appointed assistant manager of the Bank of New Brunswick, to take effect January 1.

Now that Mr. Schofield is dead, Mr. Stavert will doubtless assume the position of manager. Mr. Stavert is well known in Canadian banking circles, and has a splendid reputation. He is in the prime of life and has been in the service of the Bank of Nova Scotia quite a long time. He opened for that institution the branches in St. John's, Newfoundland, Kingston, Ja., and Boston.

Mr. Stavert is a Lower Province man, being the son of Mr. Stavert, long cashier at Summerside, P. E. I., and married a daughter of the late Samuel Thomson, barrister, of Chatham.

NEW CHURCH FOR PT. ST. CHARLES

Opening of Recently Erected Building for the Baptist Church.

SERMON BY REV. DR. EATON.

Toronto Divine Delivers the Dedicatory Address to a Large Audience—Church Has No Mortgage.

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Ps. cxxii., 1.

Such was the feeling of everyone of the large congregation that attended the inaugural services of the new Point St. Charles Baptist Church yeseterday morning. The reason for it being so was explained by the preacher of the day when he said it was one of the most handsome, cosiest and most delightful auditoriums he had ever seen. There is a something about the new church that makes you feel at home right at once, and at the same time forces you to recognize the fact that you are in the house of the Lord.

In the interior decoration of the church the building committee had remained within the bounds of their somewhat limited means, and instead of seeking any great grandeur or elaborateness of style, had allowed themselves to be guided throughout by good taste and a desire to please Him for whom they were working. And in this they have succeeded most admirably. A large unpillared auditorium, the gentle monotony of which is pleasingly relieved in front by a neatly built pulpit upholstered in dark red velvet. Back of it is a nicely arranged choir loft, which is even improved upon by a highly decorated cabinet organ. On either side of the church are to be noticed two very handsome stained glass windows. The only wording to be noticed on either ceiling or walls is the appropriate verse written over the chair: "Holiness becometh Thine house, O Lord."

SERMON OF DEDICATION.

The sermon of dedication was preached by the Rev. Charles A. Eaton, D.D., of the Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto. His subject was: "This is the house of the living God. The church of the living God must be a living organization, and you are members of this living organization." The able and eloquent preacher then showed how the organization was divided into the church universal and the church local. "Brothers," he went on to say, "you are members of a new local church, and as such there is a triple duty for you to perform. You must be loyal to the truth in making Jesus known; secondly, you must be loyal to your pastor in assisting him to perform the duties of his high calling; and, lastly, you must be loyal to the prayer meetings and other events held in connection with your church.

"Now you have a handsome church, and you must be handsome Christians in order to live up to your church. You must be a little brotherhood working together for a common good. In the late disaster in Galveston we are told that representatives of the Freemasons, Oddfellows and Knights of Pythias went about the different hospitals asking if there were any of their brethren there in order that they might assist them. Such a union do I desire to see among you, and in order that it may be so you must so regulate your church life that others will recognize that this new church is the house of God, none other than the gate of heaven."

In the afternoon at three o'clock Rev. Melvin Taylor, of Centenary Methodist Church, addressed the congregation. At the evening service at seven o'clock Dr. Eaton again preached. Special offerings were made at all three services. Rev. J. R. Webb, the pastor of the church, assisted during the day.

A special and commendable feature to be noticed in connection with the new church, mentioned during morning service, is the fact that no mortgage has been placed on the church property, that there is no debt, and that while a small deficit exists at the present time, there is every prospect of it being possible to make it up in the near future.

This evening a lecture will be given in the church by the Rev. C. A. Eaton. His subject will be: "Reign of the Common People." Proceeds in aid of the building fund.

KARNAK TEMPLE, A.A.O.N.M.S.

At a distinguished gathering of Nobles of the Ancient and Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, held in the Masonic Temple last week, Illustrious Noble B. W. Rowell, grand imperial recorder, of Boston, Mass., performed the ceremony of constituting and presenting a charter to Karnak Temple, in this city, and then installed the following officers: T. A. Emmans, illustrious potentate; Will H. Whyte, chief rabban; J. B. Tresidder, assistant rabban; George Carson, high priest and prophet; D. A. Young, oriental guide; W. T. McLaurin, first ceremonial master; Wm. Campbell, second ceremonial master; A. H. Brown, marshal; J. I. Phillips director; Charles Manhire, captain of the guard; John Lawrance, outer guard; W. S. Scudder, alchemist; S. H. Ewing, musical director; W. H. Norkett, keeper of camels. The degree was then conferred on a class of twenty candidates, some of whom came from a considerable distance, including St. John, N.B., and Prince Edward Island. A banquet was subsequently held under the presidency of Illustrious Noble T. A. Emmans, to which one hundred sat down. Among the visitors were some twenty nobles from Montpelier, Vt., two from Rochester, N.Y., two from Troy, N.Y., four from Boston, three from Watertown, N.Y., and one each from Toronto, Pittsburg, Pa., and St. Joe, Mo. Karnak Temple, which now has a membership of about 75, and Rameses Temple, of Toronto, are the only two in Canada.

Mrs. E. May has returned from a visit to Winnipeg. She is accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Wallace, who in future will reside here.

Mr. J. Laid, of Congregation Street, successfully underwent a severe operation at the General Hospital last week, and is now convalescent.

The ladies of the Rebekah Lodge, of the I.O.O.F., are preparing a concert to be given at the beginning of December. It will be held in O'Brien Hall.

Mr. F. Scott, who for the last five weeks has been confined to the house with an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, is able to be out again.

Miss M. Leahy, of Morrisburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. O'Byrne, of Centre Street. She will spend the winter in the city.

At last evening's service at Grace Church the pulpit was occupied by Rev. Maurice D. Baldwin, of the Church of the Advent, Westmount.

Arrangements have been made to have the work on the new St. Charles Church pushed on at once. Quite a little damage was done during the recent storm.

On Friday evening Michael Rielly of Centre Street, got drunk and resisted the police who tried to arrest him on Wellington Street. On Saturday morning he was fined $10 or six months for his conduct.

Mr. C. Hudson, of Magdalen Street, lost two of his children by diphtheria at the Civic Hospital on Saturday. Two more of his children have been stricken with the dread disease.

The second meeting of the Cinderella Euchre Club will be held this evening. A new and good feature of this club is that it must live up to its name, and finish up the evening before midnight, or run the risk of losing the slipper.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of special interest to railroad men was held at the R.Y.M.C.A. The lecturer, Mr. D. Calhoun, assistant secretary of the Y.M.C.A., took as his subject, "The Happy Man." Some very telling points were touched upon, and the possibilities of all becoming one clearly shown.

The funeral of the late W. H. Bolton, of Congregation Street, took place on Saturday afternoon to Grace Church. Deceased had been a member of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Beaver Lodge, I.O.O.F., and Court Mount Royal, I.O.F., all of which were largely represented.

While playing on the street on Thursdya evening last, Ermie Johnstone, of Favard Street, saw a wire lying across the street and told his companions he was not afraid to pick it up. On trying to do so he received a severe electric shock, and before aid could reach him his right hand and arm had been badly burned. He will be confined to the house for some time.

Owing to the generous offerings of a large number of friends, the Victoria Presbyterian Church has been completely re-decorated. For some weeks past Messrs. Cassels, the well known painters, have been at work, and have succeeded in making an exceedingly pretty church. This morning work was begun on the exterior. The board of management desires to thank all those who have so generously assisted them.

The knock-out bowling competition which has been in progress at the P.A.A.A. for the last six weeks came to a close on Saturday evening. The three valuable watches offered as prizes were won by Messrs. Wm. Surgeon, John Cantwell and Ab. Surgeon. The original entry list numbered fifty-two.

On Saturday evening, November 17, Jas. Collins left his home, 177 Richardson Street, and has not been seen or heard of since. He is about sixty years of age, wore a black hat, black trousers and brown coat. Any information as to his whereabouts will be thankfully received at the above address.

The funeral of Mr. William Evans, one of the oldest residents and most prominent citizens of the Point, took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence on Wellington Street, to Grace Church. Deceased had been one of the leading horticulturists and was well known throughout the city, and in consequence the funeral was one of the largest seen in the Point for some years. The funeral service, which was most impressive, was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ker. In the course of a few well-chosen remarks, the reverend gentleman referred to the exemplary life led by the deceased, and the great loss that the church would sustain in his death. The floral offerings were both numerous and handsome.

From a musical and social point of view the concert given on Friday evening by the choir of Centenary Church was an unqualified success. Space alone prevented comment on it in Saturday's edition. Mr. J. T. Mattice, the musical director, is to congratulated on the success of his efforts, for not only was the singing of the choir thoroughly appreciated, but it is even doubtful whether a more evenly balanced one has ever been heard in the Point. The persistent manner in which the large audience insisted on encores being given must have proved most gratifying to those who had worked so hard to make the entertainment enjoyable. No effort had been spared to secure the best local talent possible, although even without going outside of the individual members of the choir very good talent might have been secured. It would almost be an injustice to select any particular artist for praise, without in some degree injuring the others. Among those who contributed to a most enjoyable evening's entertainment were Miss M. Stark, soloist of St. Andrew's Church, and perhaps the leading lady singer in the Point; Mr. C. N. Marshall, of Dominion Square Church, whose rendition of "The Two Grenadiers" was especially well received; Miss Robinson, Miss Noakes, Miss Smith, Mr. Clapp, Mr. Montignani, Miss Daisy and Edyth Powles and the Mountain Street Church Orchestra. The work of the last-named was of a very high standard, and it is to be hoped that the people of the Point may be given an opportunity of hearing them again in the near future. After the concert Rev. Melvin Taylor, in a few remarks, thanked all those who had assisted so generously to make the evening a success. A social was then given by the ladies of the choir.

LOOKS LIKE A SHOE LOCKOUT SHORTLY

Manufacturers Insist on Agreement With Bell Co.

THE LASTERS FEEL CONFIDENT

Of Their Ability to Hang Out as Long as the Masters Wish to Fight.

It is highly probable that the shoe manufacturers of Montreal will inaugurate a general lockout in a few days. At a meeting of the Boot & Shoe Manufacturers' Association Friday evening, it was decided to notify the Lasters' Union that unless the operatives came to an agreement with the Bell Company, the employers would lock out all the lasters in the city. As the factories could not continue operations without the lasters, the employers' ultimatum practically means that they are prepared to close down their establishments altogether for a time.

For some time there has been considerable friction over the fixing of price lists on new lasting machines, and both sides have evidently been preparing for a conflict. About three weeks ago the Bell factory closed down for a fortnight for the annual stocktaking, but last Monday the operatives were asked to return to work as usual. The lasters asked the company to sign an agreement governing price lists for the ensuing year. The management declined to do so, and consequently the men refused to return to work. The Manufacturers' Association have determined to support the position taken by the Bell Company, and threaten the lasters with a lockout. As the lasters are prepared to maintain their demands, a conflict seems inevitable. Secretary Vallierre, of the Lasters' Union, left for New England Saturday night to gather information in regard to the price lists for work done by the new machines in Boston, Lynn and other cities. On his return the union will decide by comparison with prices in other cities whether they are justified in adhering to their present scale.

The officers of the union expect trouble, but they say they are in a position to make a good fight. The lasters here are well organized, and affiliated with all the Canadian shoe-workers' unions. The lasters in Three Rivers have been on strike for ten weeks, and have been receiving $70 a week from the general strike fund. In St. Hyacinthe, too, the lasters are out, which means $40 more a week. In addition to general strike pay, the lasters here are contributing $500 a week to the shoe-workers in Quebec. But, notwithstanding all these drains on the exchequer, the unions here are confident that their finances will stand a lockout as long as the bosses desire. They believe that the Quebec shoe manufacturers will have to withdraw from their arbitrary position and give up the attempt to disrupt the union, although the employers' society here is affiliated with the Quebec Manufacturers' Association, the Montreal masters have heretofore readily recognized the operatives' unions, and though differences have been frequent, agreements have been arrived at through friendly conferences in most cases.

HON. MR. HALL WON'T

Contest St. Antoine Division—A Proposal to Elect Mr Hutchison by Acclamation.

The Hon. John S. Hall has no intention of contesting St. Antoine Division. Unfortunately, Mr. Hall's health is such as to necessitate his departure for his winter quarters in Colorado in a few days.

The candidature of Mr. Matthew Hutchinson meets with warm approval in all quarters. One prominent Conservative this morning expressed the hope that he would be allowed to go in by acclamation. "We ought," he said, "to show that we can appreciate a good man, whatever party he belongs to, and a representative like Mr. Hutchinson will do honor to the constituency.

DISEASES OF THE BRAIN

And Nerves Lead to Melancholy, Prostration, Insanity or Paralysis— Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (Pills) Prevents These Dreadful Results.

As the heart sends out the blood to nourish and sustain the body, so does the brain transmit through the nerve fibres the nerve force, or energy, which directly controls the of each and every organ. movements, the functions and the very life

The body of man can be influenced in health or disease only through the medium of two channels—the blood and the nerves; and it is through these channels that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills) has such a marvellous power in uprooting disease and revitalizing the wasted tissues.

The feeble cells are aroused to new vigor, and new life and energy is instilled into them by using this great blood builder and nerve restorative, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills).

Headache, loss of memory, tired brain, and inability to concentrate the mind are symptoms of diseased brain. Lack of nerve force to control the digestive system leads to indigestion, nervous dyspepsia and irregular action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, nervousness, sleeplessness, and irritability are other indications of a breaking down nervous system.

No diseases are so difficult to cure as are those of the nervous system, and through Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills) is the most successful treatment ever prescribed, it takes time and regular and persistent use to effect a thorough and and lasting cure. Be patient and the gradual upbuilding effect of this wonderful nerve restorative will make you strong and well.

Mr. Joseph Geroux, 22 Metcalf street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I was nervous, had headache and brain fag. I was restless at night and could not sleep. My appetite was poor, and I suffered from nervous dyspepsia Little business cares worried and irritated me. After having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for about two months, I can frankly say that I feel like a new man. "My appetite is good. I rest and sleep well, and this treatment has strengthened me wonderfully. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills) are certainly the best I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills) 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Imitators do not dare to reproduce the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, which are found on every box of the genuine.

JOHN L. JOHNSTON, PASSES AWAY

Mr. John Lawson Johnston, well known in Montreal as the inventor of Johnston's Fluid Beef, which he manufactured here for some years, died on Saturday on his yacht at Cannes, France, of syncope. He was also the inventor of Bovril.

The career of the late John Lawson Johnston is one of unremitting effort and steady success He received his education at Edinburgh, and devoted himself especially to the chemistry of food. Subsequently he journeyed through the principal countries of Europe and America, continually experimenting on foods. A year or two after the Franco-Prussian war, in 1874, Mr. Johnston came to Canada commissioned to prepare special rations for victualling the army and forts in France. He finally succeeded in doing much to solve the problem of a minimum bulk food with maximum muscle-forming power, and put on the market Johnston's fluid beef. He was first at Sherbrooke, and then moved to Montreal to a small factory along the canal. When, later, this factory was burned, he sold the Canadian and American patents, the former going to Mr. Wm. Clark. He returned to England and there organized a large company and called the beef extract, with some improvements, "Bovril." In 1896 this company was reorganized by Mr. Hooley with a capital of £2,000,000. Mr. Johnston was chairman of this the board of directors after Lord Playfair's death, and was so up to the itme of his own death. March 8, 1897, this company bought out the Johnston's Fluid Beef Company from Mr. Clarke, and now operate here under the name of Bovril Ltd.

Mr. Johnston devoted himself to the preparation of hygienic military rations specially adapted for emergencies, forced marches and hospital comforts, and supervised several modern expeditions in this connection, being consulted by various governments.

In November, 1897, Mr. Johnston purchased the Prince of Wales' racing yacht Britannia, which was afterward bought by Mr. Ernest Terah Hooley, the millionaire speculator, and subsequently sold to W. Jameson, and again sailed under the flag of the Prince. He was the owner of the setam yacht White Ladye, formerly the property of Mrs. Langtry, now Mrs. Hubert de Bathe and on board of that vessel visited the nited Sttaes last year, being present at the international yacht races for the America's Cup.

Mr Johnston recently rented Inverary Castle, which is owned by the Duke of Argyll.

JAPANESE AMBASSADOR

His Excellency Komura, Japanese ambassador at St. Petersburg, passed through to-day on his way home to Japan. He will reach Vancouver in time to sail by the Canadian Pacific Company's steamer Empress of China. His Excellency has spent several years at the court of the Czar, and in times when the relations between the two countries have not been of the most cordial character he has succeeded in earning the personal goodwill of the diplomatists with whom he was brought in contact.

Mr. W. J. Rankin, assistant general agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Kobe, will accompany His Excellency on the steamer.

MISSISQUOI RECOUNT

Mr. Justice Wurtele this morning, in the Court of Appeal, dismissed Mr. McCorkill's motion, made on behalf of Mr. Daniel Meigs, M.P.-elect for Missisquoi, to reject his opponent's Dr. Comeau, petition for a judicial recount. The petition, it will be remembered, was granted by Mr. Justice Lynch at Knowlton, and Mr. McCorkill contended that it should have been applied for and granted at the judicial headquarters, Bedford. Mr. Justice Wurtele this morning held that the proceedings were regular. Mr. Justic Lynch had a legal right to reside in Knowlton, and his granting of the recount was an executive and not a judicial act. It would not be recorded in the Superior Court; consequently no appeal lay. The recount will take place on the 28th inst.

THE WRECK OF THE ST. OLAF

Captain Lemaistre Lived in Westmount, and Leaves a Widow and Six Children.

Quebec, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Another good ship has been dashed to pieces on the iron coast of the Lower St. Lawrence, and it is practically certain that 26 persons, all on board the ill-fated St. Olaf, have perished. Since the burning of the steamer Montreal at Cap Rouge, almost half a century ago, the history of the St. Lawrence does not show a shipwreck with such fearful results. The disaster must have occurred on Wednesday night or early on Thursday morning. The Seven Islands, which give the name to the little settlement, are situated at the entrance to a large and well protected harbor, the only one on the coast. The entrance is very narrow and the water extremely deep, and it is practically certain that in attempting to run in for shelter the steamer struck on a rocky islet and sank, the unhappy passengers awaking to meet a fearful death in the wild and icy waters.

CAPTAIN LEMAISTRE.

As for the watch on deck, it is probable that some of them have succeeded in reaching the island alive, but if so they must have endured the most terrible suffering. With three feet of snow on the ground, a biting, frost-laden east wind, and no provisions, death would have been a most welcome relief to the unfortunates.

WHERE THE DISASTER OCCURRED.

Seven Islands is on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, some 400 miles below this city, and not far beyond where the shore takes a sharp sweep to the northward, allowing the river to widen out into the Gulf. The islands stand in front of a large bay, called by the same name, which is the best harbor on that wild and inhospitable coast. Thanks to the North Shore telegraph line, recently completed, telegraphic communication is possible with the settlement there.

THERE WILL BE NO SALVAGE.

On enquiry last night at Lloyd's agency and from Mr. John Davies, it was learned that as the vessel is at total loss, no wrecking steamer will go down to the scene.

One body only has yet been found. Considering that there is an east wind blowing directly into the bay, and that the disaster occurred on Wednesday night or Thursday morning, experienced shipping men are loath to believe that the passengers and crew are all lost. If one body has been cast ashore, why not the rest? They admit, however, that the terrible state of the weather, and the icy water would be almost fatal to men tossing about in open boats.

The friends of the unhappy sailors are prostrated with grief. The fact that the three boats are smashed destroys the hope that the crew had escaped to the south shore.

There was a rumor last night that the Government steamer Constance had received orders to go down for the mails, but an Ottawa despatch to the Chronicle denies this. No action has yet been taken in the matter.

CAPTAIN LEMAISTRE

Captain Lemaistre was, about 28 years ago, master of a Jersey brigantine. She was dismasted, and the captain was brought to Quebec, where he was introduced to Messrs. Fraser & Co. Being well recommended, he was placed in command of the Beaver, but later was placed in command of the St. Olaf.

Mr. P. M. Lemaistre, son of the unfortunate captain, went down to Quebec last night. He is anxious to secure the body of his father and bring it home for burial. Captain Lemaistre was 56 years of age, was a captain at 19, and has been navigating ever since. The last letter he wrote home was dated on his birthday in October, and in it he referred to the fact that he would soon be back in Montreal for the winter.

The family consists of the widow, two sons—Paul Milton and Fred—two unmarried daughters and two daughters married, one of them to Mr. Williams, secretary-treasurer of the Laurie Engine Co., and the other to Mr. A. E. Patterson, of the Mosely Leather Co., both of this city. The family formerly lived in Quebec, removing to Pictou in 1889, and from Pictou to Montreal in 1893. They reside at 66 Bruce Avenue, Westmount.

THE UNION JACK

which floats over Britain and all her colonies is emblematic of the adage, "In union there is strength." The patriotic ladies of Canada can exemplify that adage, and indulge a patriotic sentiment, by assisting their English, Scotch and Irish cousins who produce the pure machine-made GREEN teas of Ceylon and India. Tea drinkers will find the Blue Ribbon, Monsoon and Salada green teas a pleasant change from Japans.—Colonist.—adv.

ONLY TEN JURORS WERE PRESENT

Although Twenty-four Were Summoned to Attend.

SO COURT COULDN'T PROCEED.

Law Regarding Preparation of the Jury Lists Needs the Attention of Legislature.

This morning a fresh instance occurred illustrating the inadequacy of the present law as respects the preparation of the jury lists, and it is probable that the needed reform will be considered at the next session of the Provincial Legislature.

Twenty-four jurors were summoned to attend court this morning in order that twelve of their number might be selected to try the suit of A. W. Poole for $5,000 damages against Henry Hogan, proprietor of the St. Lawrence Hall, for a fall down the shaft of the Hall elevator.

When the court met it was found that of the twenty-four summoned only ten were present. Mr. Deputy Prothonotary Vallee read the list, with the following result:—

W. Kyle, present; G E. Cooke, present; W. A. Matley, present; John Murray, dead; W. J. Murray, "resides in Georgeville"; William Murray, dead; W. F. Ramsay, excused on account of being over age; Patrick Kenny, dead; R. Kingman, "service on wrong person"; R. Hersey, "alien"; B. McGarry, "over age"; W. Fraser, present; W. J. Clarke, "service on wrong person"; R. Gambly, present; Owen McGarvey, dead; William Thomas, "left the place"; James Roy, "no service"; James Davidson, present; T. A. Dawes, jr., John Mack, present; F. A. McKay, present; Alex. Drummond, "in Winnipeg"; J. W. Smith, present.

THE SHERIFF EXPLAINS.

It was thus impossible to proceed, and Mr. Justice Davidson referred the matter to the Practice Court, to fix a new date. His Honor then summoned the Sheriff and asked for an explanation of the fact that the list contained so many names of deceased jurors and jurors absent from the district.

The Hon. Mr. Thibaudeau, Sheriff, replied that, under the law as it stood, it was physically impossible to keep the list up to date.

Seen subsequently, Mr. Thibaudeau explained the defects in the present law, and the remedy which he has suggested. There are in the city 25,000 grand and petty jurors, and in the seventy-two municipalities in the district of Montreal 20,000 more, a total of 45,000 The Sheriff depends upon the municipal officers to furnish jury lists; but as these officers are under no legal obligation to perform the work, and as no remuneration is provided, they are not prompt in supplying the information. The City of Montreal takes a full year to furnish its list, and sometimes more, so that the returns come in any way from twelve to fifteen months behind time. As for the country lists, some municipalities, though pressed hard, never send in any, and there is no provision in the law to compel them. The result is that the Sheriff's clerk cannot proceed promptly, and when he has all the necessary information it is necessary that he must proceed to classify the names without assistance, as, owing to the peculiarity of the arrangements, the employment of more than one clerk would lead to confusion and further loss of time. The work of preparing the list in the Sheriff's office usually takes twelve months under such circumstances, so that, necessarily, whatever lists are used must be at least two years behind time.

She Sheriff has already written to the Government drawing attention to the difficulty. What he suggests is that the Sheriff be authorized to place, say, five thousand names, out of the forty-five thousand, on the list each year. He should be empowered to require each municipality to supply him with a certain number of jurors, in proportion to its population. Such jurors would be selected in alphabetical order, commencing for the first year with the letter A. The next year's list would contain five thousand more names similarly selected in alphabetical order, each municipality commencing where it left off the year before. As the alphabet was exhausted a fresh start could be made, and thus every juror would bear an equal share of the burdens of citizenship. At present the alphabet is commenced anew each year, with the result that names beginning with letters below M are rarely reached, and the less fortunate owners of names high up in the alphabet do double duty.

KITCHENER'S TRANSVAAL POLICY

New York, November 26.—(Special.)—I. N. Ford cables the Tribune from London:—

A proclamation has already been printed appointing Lord Kitchener to the Commandership in Chief of the British forces in South Africa in succession to Lord Roberts, but owing to the postponement of the departure of the Field Marshal for home, it has not yet been made public. The proclamation will be issued immediately Lord Roberts can fix a definite date for his return. It is expected that he will relinquish the command about December 20th, and in the event of Lord Methuen not coming back until the operations are finished, it is said that Lord Kitchener will receive the temporary rank of General, in addition to the substantive one of Lieut.-General.

If the statement that the treasury objects to the request by Lord Roberts for 20,000 fresh troops from England to relieve the same number in South Africa on the ground of expense, should be verified, there will be a howl of indignation from all parts of the country. The average Englishman has the utmost faith in Lord Roberts and would prefer to see his wishes carried out no matter what the cost might be.

SAY THE WAR IS OVER.

British veterans in the comfortable corners of military clubs in London, sum up the situation in South Africa in their own way. They consider that Lord Roberts should have proclaimed a state of peace and returned to England as soon as Komatipoort was occupied. They state that his policy will be abandoned as soon as Lord Kitchener succeeds to the command. That there will be a proclamation stating that the Dutch territories are completely occupied and at peace, and that there will be a suspension, in the daily bulletins from headquaratrs, recording petty skirmishes and insignificant acts of brigandage which cannot be classed as incidents of real warfare.

NEWS WILL BE WITHHELD.

These veterans, whose opinions I am quoting, predict that there will be an immediate shrinkage of news from South Africa when Lord Kitchener is in the saddle; that there will be unbroken silence from headquarters, and the closing operations of the campaign will not be recorded in the daily papers, such police work as remains will pass without observation, and the Boers themselves will be convinced that the war is at an end when they perceive that there is no longer any notice taken of what goes on. These comments and forecasts come to me from trustworthy military sources, and represent the growing feeling of impatience among the veterans over the continuance of a campaign of which the whole country is weary unto death.

NEW YEAR'S HONORS.

The New Year list of honors will be a long one, for it will include consolation prizes as well as deserved rewards for service in South Africa. General Buller is likely to get a peerage, and his Devonshire neighbors have already decided that his title will be Lord Buller of Ladysmith. The retiring Home Secretary, Sir Matthew White Ridley, will also have a peerage.

Lord Strathcona was welcomed yesterday by his London friends. on his return from Canada.

MAYOR SNOWED UP.

Mayor Prefontaine had two important engagements at the City Hall this afternoon, but was compelled to forego both. He was to meet a deputation from the Lord's Day Alliance at two o'clock and the committee on the Strathcona monument at four. About noon he telegraphed Mr. Reni Bauset to say that it would be impossible for him to be present, owing to the snowstorm, which detained him at Ste Agathe. City Clerk David, who spent Sunday in Ottawa, was also delayed for several hours for the same reason.

MRS. HARRISON FINDS HUSBAND DEAD.

On returning home from her night's work at seven o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. James Harrison, of 120a St. Antoine Street, found her husband lying dead on the floor. The last time she had seen him was at six o'clock Saturday evening, when he appeared in his usual health. Harrison drew a pension from the Government, having been wounded in the Riel Rebellion in the North-West, while a member of the Quebec Battery. An inquest will be held at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

THREE DEAD; ONE DYING.

Since Friday last scarlet fever has desolated the home of Mr. Fred. Riddell, America's greatest exponent of Scotch dancing, Marin Avenue, St. Henri. On Friday evening two of his little girls were carried off by the dread disease, and on Sunday the third daughter was taken. Later in the day Mr. Riddell's son Gordon was stricken down, and now lies at the point of death. The boy was a noted Scotch dancer, and at the last Caledonian games he won all the honors. Although only ten years of age he has travelled extensively giving exhibitions.

A LINEMAN KILLED.

Charles Marineau, of Pointe Claire, a lineman in the employ of the Royal Electric Company, was instantly killed at 5.30 o'clock last evening on Place d'Armes Square. At the time of his death he was at work on the top beam of a pole, when, losing his balance, or receiving an electric shock, he fell to the pavement. Death ensued before aid could reach the unfortunate man. On the arrival of the ambulance it was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the skull. The remains were removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held this afternoon.

Proclamation

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given, that after the closing of the Election for the office of Alderman No. 1, East Ward, held on Friday, the 23rd November instant, and after the examination and final addition of the votes, made this 26th day of November instant, I have ascertained that Mr. Louis A. Lapointe, gentleman, has obtained the majority of the votes, and I accordingly proclaim the said Mr. Louis A. Lapointe duly elected for the said office of Alderman No. 1, East Ward.

SOME NEW MUNICIPAL PROPOSALS.

The resolution passed at the last meeting of the City Council, by which it was tentatively decided to ask the assent of the ratepayers to certain proposed expenditures, opened a new chapter in municipal affairs. For two years with a minority in the Council, and for one year with a majority, the reform element have been hard at work improving the administration of the various departments, and have been successful in different degrees in one department and another. Much yet remains to be done, and will have to be done before the citizens are satisfied on this score, but the first steps have been taken deliberately and in such cases it is the first steps that are most difficult. Before the close of the present aldermanic term the whole municipal service should be, and doubtless will be, at work on a new and different basis. Things are rapidly coming to that pass now, as will be seen when the details of the appropriations for 1901 come up for discussion, as they will in a few days. With this good beginning made, the aldermen are now able to consider some projects of a quite different character, in which the interests of the citizens are, if anything, more directly concerned.

* * *

First in order of importance comes the question of improving the condition of the streets and pavements in the city. It is a standing wonder to all who know anything of municipal growth how the people of Montreal tolerate in their residential districts board walks of a kind seldom seen elsewhere except in sparsely settled townships or in small villages. They make an unpleasant impression upon the visitor, and are a never failing reminder to the resident of Montreal that he is living in a city where somehow, for all the accumulation of wealth there is conceded to be, things do not get done properly. The causes are, indeed, readily discerned. For years there has been justification for the feeling that money entrusted to the City Council would be squandered, or diverted to the personal profit of aldermen and their friends, or both. The property owners have thus been justified in resisting every suggestion to spend more money. The trouble is, however, that this resistance has been carried to a point where it ceases to be a virtue. Many of our taxpayers who ought to know better have gotten it into their heads that the less money there is available the better for the city. But the necessities of the situation have been too strong for them. The public services could not be starved absolutely and continuously, and the result has been that the Legislature of the Province has every year been called upon to sanction and has sanctioned the borrowing of money and increase of the funded debt. On this money, which should have been raised by taxation year by year as the need arose, interest will be payable during thirty or forty years or more. The debt, which ought to stand for at least its face value in permanent improvements, represents, in part, payment for work that has to be done year after year. The credit of the city is injured by the fact that the limit of borrowing power has been reached, or even passed, by resort to these unbusinesslike methods. Worse than all, the resulting starvation of important municipal services results in waste so great as to far more than offset the saving the proprietors flatter themselves they have made. A principle of economy is contained in the adage "a stitch in time saves nine." In Montreal municipal affairs there is never the money available for the one stitch, but we have always been allowed to borrow it for the nine. Anyone can see how the present procedure works out by glancing at the permanent pavements he passes. We have many miles of asphalt pavement in Montreal. If we had a cheap civic plant always working repairing breaks in these pavements as soon as they are noted we would have good pavements and small bills. Under the present system every break in the pavement is given six months or a year in which to reach its full natural development under heavy traffic. The result is bad roads and large bills. The same thing is going on everywhere. We keep down the pay of the policemen as low as possible, and get, for the most part, the kind of men who could not make even that small wage elsewhere. The net gain is what we see, an organization that gives less result for its numbers and cost than any other known police force. So in the Water Department; it is a tremendous concession to grant a few thousand dollars to secure the high level water supply, while there are miles of costly iron pipe rotting in the ground and filling with mud. Similar instances might easily be multiplied. False economy peeps out everywhere. It is easy to sympathize with the indisposition of the taxpayer to pay a higher rate of taxes, if only a little bit higher, when he has good reason to feel that it is only pouring more into the trough to feed the greedy. But it ought to be different where there is every indication that the men who control the municipal administration are anxious to do what is right and to insist, at the cost of great sacrifice of personal convenience, that right shall be done. That is the record of the majority at present in control of the City Council of Montreal, and the people should be prompt to recognize it.

* * *

It is proposed that the ratepayers shall be asked to authorize a loan of half a million dollars to be employed in putting the streets and sidewalks in a condition like that found in other and better managed cities. It is not proposed to fling this amount upon the table to be grabbed for by the representatives of different wards, the mischievous plan now unavoidably followed when the appropriations for wooden sidewalks and macadamized roads are up for division. If the proprietors authorize the proposed special loan for permanent pavements they will have the satisfaction of knowing that for every dollar of it that is spent the local proprietor will have to become responsible for an equal sum. It is believed that a million dollars judiciously spent in this way would transform Montreal, giving it the appearance a cosmopolitan city ought to have.

* * *

Another important improvement that has been under discussion lately concerns the approach of the Grand Trunk Railway to their Bonaventure station on a better plan than the present. An idea of the urgency of this reform may be inferred from the fact that there have been several fatal accidents on the level crossings during even the short time the project has been up for discussion between the railway and municipal authorities. This cannot be allowed to continue either in the interests of the citizens or the railway. On the one side there is the danger to life, on the other the payment of damages and the maintenance of a staff of guardians. The tracks should be elevated so as to permit of free and safe passage along all the thoroughfares from Windsor Street westward to the city limits. Few realize the extent to which these grade crossings interfere with the natural courses of city trade. An example may be cited. The Guy Street cars cross the tracks of the Grand Trunk. As a result, there is no counting upon a reasonable service on that line. Sometimes there are cars every minute or two, sometimes not for twenty minutes or more. Several of them will be stalled at one or both sides of the track, and the system on which they are supposed to run becomes irreparably disorganized. It was ascertained by actual count not long ago at one of these crossings that traffic was stopped 170 times during the daylight hours, and that for four and a half hours in twelve the bars were down. What is true of one crossing must be true of all, although the resulting check to urban commerce is not necessarily uniform. With all these streets open and the railway trains running freely overhead there ought to be a steady continuous business growth in the section of the city traversed by the railway. If, in addition, it could be arranged to continue Windsor Street straight through to Notre Dame Street by utilizing an archway, a most desirable public improvement would be provided.

* * *

It was to familiarize themselves with the bearings of this problem that a delegation of aldermen within the past few days visited the city of Philadelphia. They found that similar conditions had existed there, that in some cases means have been taken to deal with the difficulty, and that in other cases action is now pending. The Philadelphia and Reading Railway, for example, has its station right in the heart of the city, and until recently its tracks ran on the street level through many miles of a densely-populated district. The remedy adopted, after many suggestions had been considered, was for the city to construct a tunnel, at a cost of six million dollars, the railway company becoming responsible for the charges on one-half that sum. Beyond the point where the tunnel ends, the Reading road still runs through a thickly populated section. Negotiations are now afoot to have the tracks raised on this part of the line, a work which is estimated to cost four and a half millions, of which the Reading Railway people, whose affairs have not been in the most flourishing condition, offer to pay one million. The Pennsylvania Railway have already an overhead structure in the heart of the city, all built without municipal aid. They not only bought all the land between two parallel streets from the Schuykill River to their terminus, but also, rather than pay damages and law costs, an immense amount of real estate on the opposite side of one of the streets. Philadelphia did with the Pennsylvania corporation in this instance pretty much what Montreal did with the C.P.R., made them buy their way in and then provide a structure which would leave the cross streets open to traffic. In another part of the city, however, the case was otherwise. On the Kensington section the same danger and inconvenience from grade crossings experienced with the Reading line called for remedy, and the tracks had to be elevated. This work is now about completed and has cost altogether about two and a quarter millions. The city agreed to pay one million. An appropriation of $900,000 was made, with the stipulation that $750,000 was to be paid for construction work and $150,000 for damage claims. It is believed that further damage claims will bring the city's share up to a million and a quarter, or a full half of the total outlay. Still other sections of the railway in the city will, it is expected, have to undergo the same treatment. The extreme gravity of the case, as the people of Philadelphia see it, may be inferred from the fact that freight trains operating on the surface are not allowed to run at all in daylight hours. For the people of Montreal the present moral of all this is that delays are not only dangerous but are likely to prove expensive. There is no need at this time to discuss the share the city will be called upon to bear in paying for the proposed improvements. Considering the saving the railway company will be able to make by doing away with a large staff of guardians and in avoiding damage claims, it seems probable the move would be a good one for them. The city must expect to pay, however, for whatever advantages will accrue to it from the change. It is certain that the arrangements could not well be entrusted to better men than will be in charge of the city's side. And, thanks to the resolution of last Monday, which established the principle of home rule for Montreal, it will be not merely the City Council and the Legislature at Quebec who will be called upon to approve whatever arrangement may be made. The ratepayers of Montreal will have to directly endorse the bargain assented to by the Council before anything can be done. That being the case, and with the leaders of the Council in earnest for economy, there is a reasonable certainty that what is done will be for the best.

* * *

Propositions will also be submitted to the ratepayers for the provision of a suitable isolation hospital and for the enlargement of Bonsecours market. The need of an isolation hospital in whose equipment and management there may be the utmost confidence was abundantly demonstrated during the last smallpox scare, when, because people mistrusted the efficacy of the existing arrangements, there was an incipient panic lest there should prove to be cases of the disease of which the authorities had not been informed. As has repeatedly been pointed out, there are many diseases from which danger to life is more imminent than from smallpox, but the cost to the city from what may be a groundless panic ought not for a moment to be left out of the consideration. In the case of the proposed Bonsecours market enlargement, the danger to be feared is at least as well defined as the good to be accomplished. It is an open question which is the more pressing, the need for more space by the farmers who bring produce to the market, or the desire of real estate owners in the vicinity to sell to the city at high prices. Up to the present the latter have been more in evidence. They have only to continue insistent and the ratepayers will be sure to turn down whatever proposal may be made. The more deserving it is the better will be its chance of being accepted. At all events the Bonsecours market proposals and all the other proposals must be voted upon separately, each upon its merits. The day for taking a lot of bad for the sake of a little good is over with, for the present at any rate.

MR. HUTCHINSON FOR ST. ANTOINE DIVISION.

The Liberals of St. Antoine Division have secured an excellent candidate in the person of Mr. Matthew Hutchinson, Q.C. Mr. Hutchinson is in the front rank of his profession, well known to the business community, and highly esteemed by all with whom his professional and social relations have brought him into contact. Such a nomination should secure the seat formerly held by Mr. Bickerdike for the Liberals beyond all doubt. Mr. Hutchinson is precisely the stamp of man who should be sent to represent the interests of the city of Montreal at Quebec. Experience has demonstrated that Montreal suffers first and most when things go wrong in the provincial administration. The political need of the city in provincial matters is for men who will give a consistent and intelligent support to a continuation of the policy enunciated by Mr. Marchand, and which Mr. Parent says he desires and intends to continue.

THE PROVINCIAL TREASURER.

No better guarantee could be given of the intention of the Parent Government to continue the economical policy of the Marchand administration than the presence of the Hon. H. T. Duffy at the head of the Treasury Department. Mr. Duffy was first returned to the Legislative Assembly in 1897, and the late Mr. Marchand, who wanted a man in thorough sympathy with his own views and possessing at the same time the ability and the force of character to give them effect, offered the direction of the great spending department of Public Works to Mr. Duffy, who accepted. The choice proved a most fortunate one, and Mr. Duffy showed himself, as Mr. Stephens remarked recently, an ideal departmental chief. A careless or weak administrator might commit the country to large expenditures for works for which no immediate necessity existed, and whose utility was at least questionable. The Minister is continually beset by political friends who practically demand as a right, in return for service to the party, a contract of some kind. How feebly the instances of such advocates of extravagance have been resisted in the past, is testified by the figures given in the annual reports of the department, which tell with equal emphasis of Mr. Duffy's firmness in carrying out his intention of inaugurating an era of reform and enforcing the principle that the public money, of which he was the trustee, was not to be available for other than public needs.

During the five years of Conservative rule preceding the advent of the Marchand Government, the total expenditures of the Public Works Department were as follows:

1893	$342,792 98
1894	491,993 10
1895	262,756 33
1896	156,029 98
1897	342,616 04

Under the Liberal administration succeeding, the following were the figures:—

1898	$178,167 43
1899	95,028 09
1900	97,209 15

Thus the average Conservative expenditure from 1892 to 1897 was $319,237.68 annually, while under Mr Duffy's direction it was $123,468.

Mr. Duffy has now been promoted to the treasurership of the Province, and the electorate is assured that in his new position he will be able to render even more important services.

The death of Mr. Frank Edgar removes a well-known figure from the business life of Montreal. As a member of the firm of Mackay Brothers, the deceased gentleman was favorably known by those interested in the dry goods business throughout the Dominion. In Montreal he took an active part in many matters of public concern, and his genial manners contributed to making him a general favorite. In Masonic circles he was honored by his brethren by the highest offices in their gift. In every relation of life he was a good citizen, and wherever he was known there will be sincere regret at the news of his untimely death.

ELABORATE FUR NOVELTIES.

"MY PHYSICIANS TOLD ME I MUST DIE, but South American Kidney Cure cured me of that awful Bright's Disease." This is a sentence from a letter of a well-known business man in a western town, who through overwork and worry had contracted this kidney pestilence. It will relieve instantly and cure all kidney diseases.—103

Westmount and the Storm

It was shortly after 7 o'clock this morning when the Westmount man awoke with a sense of impending evil. This is no unusual thing in Westmount, and it consequently did not worry him over and above a moderate amount. Whenever a citizen of the snug little suburb is oppressed by the uneasy feeling that something has gone wrong, he knows that either the car service is blocked, the streets have become impassable, the furnace has gone out, the water pipes have burst or some other trifling occurrence has interfered with the day's routine. It was, therefore, with an air of cheerful resignation which is an infallible sign of a Westmount resident, that he hurried through his toilet and started for the business district.

As he opened his front door the same swirling snow beat into his face that made walking uncomfortable in the far-off streets inside the city limits, only there was more snow and more swirl than Montreal could boast. This is invariably the case: Westmounters take particular pride in their weather, and the day when it cannot beat out the city article in every department of the game will be a sorry one for the suburb. This morning the matter was not open to question. Montreal had a fairly constant wind, Westmount's blew from every quarter of the compass; in the city the snow fell with consistent regularity, in the suburb it paid particular attention to drifts and showed a preference for sidewalks over lawns and for front steps over sidewalks; in Montreal the storm occasionally showed signs of abating, in Westmount it began earlier and at no time felt the need of resting.

Accordingly when our Westmount friend started in search of a street car, he found a variety of difficulties to contend with. The opening of the storm door had cleared a space just large enough to stand in comfortably while planning the most efficacious way of ploughing a path through two feet of snow with no other weapons than those furnished by nature. Usually the milkman or the grocer attends to this, and the peculiar jerky walk of Westmount people is traceable to the constant effort to step exactly in the footprints of early-morning visitors, and thus partially avoid knee-deep plunges into snowbanks. This morning, however, something had evidently happened to the milkman and the grocer, for the even level over the front path was unbroken and unsullied. Were it not that Westmount society frowns upon the rubber boot, the problem would have been easily solved; as it is, bicycle slips, which hold the trousers firmly about the ankles and prevent quite a large amount of snow from working up from beneath are universally adopted. It is said that the rugged good health of the suburb is due largely to the hardening effect of this daily tramp through snowpiles. It is quite possible that this is so.

The street which runs in from of the particular residence with which we are dealing is mainly populated by vacant lots, a fact which discourages the other inhabitants and makes them loath to spend much time cleaning a path in front of their premises because it has been found that this emphasizes the disagreeable features of the rest of the street and has a tendency to discourage visitors. Therefore, except for the hard, beaten path a foot or so wide, the less defined branches running to the doors of houses and a fringe of odd footsteps alng both of these, the snow is generally allowed to lie where it pleases from the beginning of winter until the end. The use of these paths has resulted in a quaint and pretty custom peculiar to this section. Strangers have often noticed that the right leg of a Westmount man, as far as the knee, is usually either white with snow or damp where snow had melted. As it is impossible for two people to pass on one two-foot path, the Westmounter, when he meets a fellow-traveller, plunges his right foot into the snow, the traveller does the same, and, on these as axes, they swing safely past one another and resume their journey. This fact accounts for the fringe of footprints and the prevalence of rheumatism.

Once the suburbanite reaches a street car line his troubles are practically over. If he lives sufficiently near the terminus, it is occasionally possible to get a seat and keep it all the way to the city; if not, he has a fair chance of getting standing room either in the car, on the platform or on the bumper, which projects behind and which affords an uncertain but grateful foothold in cases of emergency. If six cars in succession ignore his signals to stop, it is safe to assume that the traffic is too congested for his purposes, but there are still the broad, alluring paths between the car rails to show him an excellent way of getting down town. As it is easier to avoid a car which is coming toward you than one following behind, the left-hand track is considered the more desirable, though on mornings like to-day's both are freely used. To watch the long line of pedestrians agilely leap from track to track on the approach of a car is sure to prove interesting to visitors from less athletic sections of the city. If the walk down town is long, it is also invigorating; if the cars are crowded, there is a pleasant feeling of companionship resulting from mutual discomfort; if a snowstorm inconveniences the individual, it improves the scenery: in a word, Westmount has few complaints to make and fewer improvements to suggest. Happy Westmount!

The Field of Politics.

TUESDAY, NOV. 27.
Ottawa County Liberal Convention.

Mr. Chicoyne in Wolfe.

Sherbrooke, Nov. 2.—Mr. J. A. Chicoyne has been offered and has accepted the Conservative candidature in Wolfe. He has issued an address in which he sets forth his views. He expresses the opinion that it is advisable to indulge in less party politics at Quebec, and that Federal issues should not be brought into the Provincial arena.

Mr. A. B. Hunt Chosen.

Bury, Nov. 2.—As a result of the Liberal convention here, Mr. A. B. Hunt, of Bury, was chosen as candidate for the coming elections. The balloting was between him and Dr. Gregoire, of Lake Megantic. Several other names were mentioned. Mr. A. B. Hunt is a son of Mr. Jas. Hunt, the present member.

Compton Conservatives.

Sherbrooke, Nov. 2.—Compton Conservatives in convention at Cookshire chose Mr. Allan W. Giards as their candidate.

Mr. Flynn's Lamentation.

Le Soleil, Quebec (Lib.):—It is not a manifesto; it is a lamentation of Jeremiah that Mr. Flynn has just addressed to the electorate. There is nothing in it. Not a word of criticism of the Ministerial policy. The sole grievance is that the Government has brought on the elections too soon.

Mr. Flynn will not make a great reputation as a jurist by his constitutional theories. The prerogative of dissolution is the least contestable of all; the Salisbury Government exercised it recently at its will, and the English Liberals did not even dream of contesting the constitutionality of that exercise. Mr. Flynn's own party has exercised this privilege as often and more often; the Conservatives have never hesitated to bring on elections whenever the opportunity seemed favorable.

La Patrie, Montreal (Lib.):—Mr. Bergeron says that it is La Patrie and Le Soleil who have provoked the ill-feeling, observed some time past, on the part of certain people of Ontario, against the Province of Quebec.

Always the same valet, this Mr. Bergeron.

We of La Patrie are easy in our minds. We have neither written nor published a single line calculated to excite prejudice, or to set one Province against the other.

But what we have done we will do again to-morrow and again every time there is occasion, and that is, reproduce the insults of the Tory press, directed at the people of this Province. We have unmasked the dishonesty and the duplicity of the Tory leaders; we have shown Sir Charles Tupper denouncing Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Province of Quebec as "too British," and in the Province of Ontario as "not British enough. We have exposed the attacks and the menaces of Mr. Clarke Wallace and Mr. Hetherington, and their fellows, against French-Canadians. In fine, we have placed our people on their guard against their worst enemies; against intolerant Toryism.

The Missisquoi Nominations.

Mr. J. J. B. Gosselin, of Notre Dame de Stanbridge, was unanimously chosen as the Liberal candidate for Missisquoi, at a thoroughly representative convention held in Bedford Friday afternoon. Hon. J. C. McCorkill occupied the chair. A telegram was read from Dr. Cotton, the member for the county in the last Legislature, who was detained at West Shefford on professional business, announcing that he would not allow his name to be put before the convention. Mr. Gosselin accepted the nomination in an excellent speech in both English and French. Hon. H. T. Duffy, Mr. D. B. Meigs, M.P., the chairman, and other gentlemen also addressed the meeting. The chances for Mr. Gosselin's success are splendid, both the English and French electors being agreed that he is the strongest candidate that could be put up, and a worthy representative of the people of the county without respect to race.

CHATEAUGUAY LIBERALS.

Mr. F. X. Dupuis, the Liberal candidate of Chateauguay, has called meetings in the different parishes of the county, as follows:

St. Urbain, November 27th, at 1 p.m.
Ste. Clotilde, November 28th, at 1 p.m.
Ste. Martine, November 30th, at 2 p.m.
St. Chrysostome, December 1st, at 10 a.m., and at St. Antoine Abbe, the same day at 3 p.m.
Ste. Philomene, December 3rd, at 1 p.m.
Ormstown, December 4th at 1 p.m.
Howick, December 5th, at 1 p.m.
Chateauguay, December 6th, at 1 p.m.

Mr. Dupuis invites the Conservative candidate that may be chosen, and his friends, to come and meet him at these different meetings.

Mr. Taschereau Chosen.

Quebec, ovember 26.—(Special.)—At a convention of Liberals of the County of Montmorency, Mr. L. A. Taschereau was nominated as the Liberal candidate for the Provincial Legislature. Mr. Taschereau is the law partner of the Premier, and will certainly gain the county.

Mr. Perrault for Arthabaska.

Arthabaskaville Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Mr. Perrault, advocate, editor of "L'Union des Cantons de l'Est," was chosen as Liberal candidate for the county of Arthabaska. Mr. Perrault was born at Malbaie in 1874. He studied law under the Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick and the late Mr. Nazaire Olivier, M.P.P., for Levis. He is son of Mr. J. S. Perrault, formerly member for Charlevoix, and nephew by marriage of the Hon. J. I. Tarte.

Will Support Government.

Mr. Robert Ellerton, who is running in Huntingdon as an Independent candidate, announces his intention to support Mr. Parent. In an address to the electors he says:—"My long connection with the various bodies, municipal, educational and agricultural, will fairly entitle me to claim an ability to forward your interests in these matters so important in a rural constituency. Believing that under the late Premier of this Province its affairs have been prudently and economically administered, I pledge the Government of the Hon. Mr. Parent a loyal support, while reserving the right to criticize and oppose any deviation from the strict economy which is so essential for the well-being of the Province."

Mrs. Eddy and Advertising.

Harper's Weekly.

The present paragrapher noticed with interest the other day in a great newspaper published in one of the larger cities of New York State an account in detail, half a column long, of the recent appearance of Mrs. Eddy, the Christian Science seeress, at the State fair in Concord, New Hampshire. The piece had a prominent place, and an extended heading in big type, such as is given to important telegraphic news, but from peculiarities of type and other marks it was suspected that it was a paid advertisement. So it was, as was ascertained by enquiry of the manager of the newspaper. This is the first instance the present writer has noticed of the employment by Eddyites of patent-medicine methods. It is a natural development. There is a great deal of money now invested in Eddyism, and a good many persons get their living by it. No doubt skillful advertisement of its founder's triumphs is worth to some one whatever it costs.

LOW PRICES AT CHAS. DESJARDINS' GREAT FUR STORES.

We are selling our furs at 30 to 40 per cent. cheaper than anywhere else. This fact is recognized by all buyers careful of their interests. It is likewise admitted by connoisseurs. As we buy in immense quantities, we can sell, and naturally are selling, at better rates than merchants who merely provide for the demand.—Adv.

FROM ONE POINT OF VIEW

The football season having been brought to a glorious if unsatisfactory conclusion by Saturday's games, it is but fitting that the experts should be given an opportunity of drawing deductions and summarizing the results of the campaign—beg pardon, season. Thanks to the introduction of long-range padding and scientific armor, the list of casualties has been greatly reduced and the integrity of the individual preserved to an admirable degree. Owing to the general use of aluminium shoulder guards and leather helmets, several of our best half-backs have come through the entire series of engagements without suffering more serious injury than a broken nose or a dislocated collar bone, a record which speaks volumes for the efficiency of modern defences. It has been suggested that, owing to the development of scragging on the wings, six-ounce boxing gloves might well be added to the equipment of the forces next year, but, while the plan has met with hearty support in some quarters, it is generally believed that it would detract from the utility of this branch of the service. The inability of detached bodies to successfully withstand the attack of heavily armored combinations is now accepted as proven, and weighted boots, it is believed, will shortly be introduced as a means of discouraging too agile backs. On the whole the year has shown a satisfactory improvement in tactics and the prospects of next season may be said to be unusually bright.

When the news of the illness of the late Max Muller reached Benares, the centre of Brahmanic learning and orthodoxy, priests and pundits united in offering prayers for his recovery at the sacred temple. It is immaterial whether this reflects more credit on Max Muller's memory or on the breadth of view of the Hindoo philosopher; it was unprecedented in the religious history of India, or of the civilized world for that matter. Nor was Benares alone in affectionate solicitude for the scholar whose learning had made him master of the mysteries of her religion. A dozen other temples, it is said, set aside a certain day for prayers that he might be spared to the world yet a little longer. If to be appreciated is the highest reward vouchsafed mortal man, Max Muller was honored almost in accord with his deserts.

Some day an able-bodied and energetic fireman is going to chance upon that individual who is commonly known as the "false alarm fiend," and there will be immediate need for either an ambulance or an undertaker. Every city is more or less pervaded by this species of imbecile; in the spring he rocks row-boats, in the summer he toys with didn't-know-it-was-loaded firearms, and in the fall signalizes his return to city life by starting panics in theatres. It is the long winter evenings, however, which afford the most golden and glorious opportunities for the display of his peculiar abilities. He finds a fire-alarm box situated in some quiet, retired neighborhood, with a tendency to hysteria is the dream of his life and, having found it, to ring in an alarm and gloat over the discomfiture of the department, the source of his keenest pleasure. The department, as a general thing, fails to see the humorous side of the affair. In fact the number of plans for taking summary vengeance on the false-alarm individual when he is caught, would put a Boxer to the blush. In the meantime the false-alarms continue to come in with fair regularity.

If by any chance you happen on the garbage man on the pursuit of his nocturnal occupation, it will be found both edifying and interesting to watch the careful manner in which he handles the boxes, cans and barrels in which the refuse of the city's cooking has been deposited. This is not because the garbage man is by nature gentle and disinclined to damage the taxpayer's property, but because the city has put its foot down hard on an ancient and mirth-provoking custom. Until last week the scavenger regarded garbage boxes as serving two purposes; they furnished him a living and they afforded him amusement. A variety of games were invented which were intended to test the endurance of the boxes and to fill the heart of the players with innocent glee. One of the most popular of these was played in the following manner: After a box was empty the driver would count three and the scavenger would toss it into the air. If it remained intact after striking the ground it counted five points for the driver, if it was so damaged as to be useless except for kindling and scrap iron, the scavenger scored the points, while if it was only disfigured it was considered a draw. The men frequently used to bet on the results, and, as the Star so eloquently has said, betting is gambling and gambling is a sin. So the city stopped it.

SWEET IDOLATRY.

Deep in a dreamy, ancient wood
Where once a mighty temple stood
In grandeur mid the fertile lands,
A ruin centuries old now stands,
Its crumbled walls 'neath mosses green
So thickly buried scarce 'tis seen,
Its columns fallen to decay;
Its grandeur long since passed away.

Amid this wreck, triumphant still
O'er Time, which thus hath worked its will
Upon this temple, carved in stone,
An ancient idol stands alone;
Sits pensive on its granite throne,
With lichens thickly overgrown.

On either side the forest dank,
With tangled brake and creepers rank
Bars any seeking to intrude
Upon the idol's solitude.
Above twines many a leafy limb
To form a covering for him
Below, e'en at its granite base,
A pool flings back the idol's face,
And from green pads upon it spread
The stately lotus rears its head.

There, in its dreamy solitude,
A thousand years the god hath stood.
A thousand years, each summer through,
Hath breathed the fragrance of its love
To please that stony face above.

While stands that image in the grove
That loyal flower will prove its love,
Though vain its effort to beguile,
It aye will strive to win the smile,
A fate true love hath often known—
To waste its sweetness on a stone.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

At the close of last night's recital at Her Majesty's Mr. Grose was fairly besieged by patrons who were anxious that he would reconsider his determination to discontinue the concerts. One well known musical enthusiast, in fact, offered to guarantee any losses which may occur in the future rather than have the series of recitals brought to an end.

Since M. Alford De Seve has been engaged there has been an amazing increase both in attendance and enthusiasm. At both yesterday's recitals the audiences were larger than on any previous occasions excepting the concerts at which Earl Gulick appeared and for all but two numbers an encore was insistently demanded. Mr. DeSeve's own composition for a string quartette, "Angel's Lullaby," was repeated by special request, and even more enthusiastically applauded than when first heard. The soloists were Miss Marie Terroux and Messrs. Saucier and LeBel. Miss Terroux, than whom no Montreal singer is more welcome to the patrons of these recitals, was not in her best voice, but sang nevertheless with the sweetness and ingenuousness which always characterizes her performances. Mr. LeBel's rendition of a Bach-Gounod Ave Maria and Mr. Saucier's singing of Gounod's "Le Vallon" were quite the best things either of the singers had previously accomplished at these recitals.

* * *

At Miss Hollinshead's recital Saturday afternoon Mr. Sydney Dugan, a young Montreal baritone, who has a sympathetic and beautiful voice, sang two solos and took part in a duet with Miss Hollinshead, all of which were received with flattering warmth. Mr. Dugan bids fair to develop into a great singer and it is to be hoped that more opportunities may be found of hearing him in the future than have occurred in the past. Mr. Blair, Miss Hollinshead and Mr. Larsen furnished the rest of Saturday's programme.

The new leading man of John A. Grose's Stock Company has arrived in town and will make his first appearance on the stage of Her Majesty's Theatre on Monday next in the production of "Nell Gwynn."

He is Mr. Willis Granger, but this will not be his introduction to a Montreal audience, for he was seen here four years ago in Augustus Pitou's production of "Madame Sans Gene," appearing in the role of de Neiperg, which was created by J. K. Hackett, and whom Mr. Granger followed in the part. Ever since that engagement Mr. Granger has been playing lead with stock companies, and to-day is classed at the head of the profession in this line of work. His stock engagements during the past four years have made him a great favorite in Cincinnati, Chicago, Kansas City and Milwaukee. He also appeared for a time last season with the Columbia Stock Company of Newark, N.J.

CHURCH NOTES.

THE CHURCH OF FRANKLIN.

Rural Dean Robinson, representing the Bishop has opened the new Episcopal Church of Franklin. After the service the Rural Dean gave an address. The Rev. James Beatt of Rockburn, Rev. Mr. Mills, Rector of Lacolle; Rev. Mr. Heeney, incumbent of St. Chrysostom and Havelock, and Rev. Mr. Lewis, rector of Huntingdon, also gave addresses. Rev. Mr. Strong, of Ormstown, who supplies the pulpit of the new church, said he expected the church would cost $2,160. $2,000 was subscribed and most of it collected. The church is built beside the parsonage. It is a neat and substantial building. One gable faces the road; the entrance is on the east side. It is of sandstone with a metal roof. The interior is plain and tasteful, and plastered with asbestos. Above the communion table are two richly colored windows, one commemorating the late Canon Fulton. The side windows are lancet-shaped. The north gable has a rose window. The pews are of ash; and the wainscoting and ceiling are ash, panelled. The church will comfortably seat 150 people.

EXCHANGE BUILDING SOLD.—Messrs. D. W. Ogilvie & Company, real estate agents, have purchased the Stock Exchange building for $55,000. It is probable that the entire building will be remodelled and two new storeys will be added to it.

MR. STEWART TELLS OF BANK ADVANCES

Made to T. J. Chisholm in Connection With Stanley Mine.

THE COLD STORAGE ARRESTS.

Merchants Bank of Halifax Inspector Tells Why They Were Not Made Sooner.

On Saturday morning, in the Court of Queen's Bench, the hearing of the Cold Storage case was resumed. Mr. Quinn went on with his cross-examination of Mr. D. M. Stewart, inspector of the Merchants' Bank of Halifax.

The court was crowded. Mr. Quinn's cross-examination was keen—so keen that the Crown Prosecutors were often on their feet appealing to the court to shut out his questions. These appeals led to several smart passages of argument and wit between the advocates.

Mr. Quinn—"As I understand it, you find from the books of the bank and your knowledge as inspector of the bank that the Croil & McCullough Dairy Co. opened their account some time in 1898 with the bank?"

"Either in '97 or '98."

"Can you fix the exact date from the books?"

"The first entry of the accounts appears April 18, 1898."

"What is that—discount?"

"Yes."

"I would ask you to get the papers in connection with that discount after the adjournment. I would like to have the names of the parties in connection with that discount."

Mr. Cooke objected that Mr. Quinn was going far beyond the date at which the conspiracy to defraud was alleged to have begun, and these questions would unnecessarily lengthen the case.

The Judge said he did not see that there was any need for stopping questions concerning the account just at present, but he hoped Mr. Quinn would shorten them as much as possible.

"Now, I would ask you to look at Exhibit A7, and tell us what that is?"

"A letter of guarantee addressed to the Merchants' Bank, signed by Chisholm, guaranteeing advances to Croil & McCullough made by or to be made by the bank."

"Subsequently, that guarantee was supplemented or replaced rather by Exhibit A8, was it not?"

"Yes."

"Which is another guarantee?"

"Yes. It is a guarantee signed in the same manner as the first and the terms of the guarantee are the same, the difference being in the distribution of the amount of the guarantee. In the first guarantee the amount was unlimited. In this case the amounts are specified."

"And there is unlimited credit on bills of exchange on merchants in England, supported or covered by warehouse receipts?"

"The amounts are not stated."

"There is $150,000 for promissory notes covered by warehouse receipts and $5,000 for customers' paper?"

Justice Hall—"Signed by both Chisholm and McGillis?"

Mr. Stewart—"Yes, your Honor."

Mr. Quinn—"And the date?"

"Dec. 6, '99."

HOW THE MONEY WAS OBTAINED.

"On the 2nd April, 1900, when you had the interview with Mr. Chisholm, what amount was due under this guarantee account to the bank?"

"I cannot state that positively without looking at the books. I think the amount was about the same, $220,000."

"That is close enough for the purpose? And Chisholm obtained $65,000 on his own account?"

"Yes."

"Now, I understand, outside of the warehouse receipts, Chisholm had also obtained on the 15th March—that would be eighteen days before the 2nd of April, the date of your interview—$25,000 to make the first payment on the Stanley mine?"

"Yes, that amount was advanced to him."

"And on the 23rd of March he obtained $30,000?"

"Yes."

"And that $30,000 was obtained from the Bank?"

"Yes."

"As I understand, on the representation by him that certain irregularities had come to his knowledge in connection with the Cold Storage Co., and that those irregularities all amounted to $30,000 and would be covered by the $30,000?"

"Yes."

"And on the 2nd April he obtained from the bank another sum of $100,000—to make a second payment on the Stanley mine?"

"He did not."

"Who did?"

Mr. Casgrain objected that Chisholm's actions were not closely connected enough with the case before the court to render evidence on them material to the hearing. Justice Hall limited the scope of the questions to advances made to Chisholm or one of the accused.

Mr. Quinn—"I will put another question—Was not the sum of $100,000 for the second payment made in consequence of and through representations made by Chisholm?"

Mr. Stewart (emphatically)—"No."

Mr. Quinn's application to obtain one of the bank's letter books was not granted.

Mr. Quinn—"Now you have proved that the bank had advanced to one account or another, in the neighborhood of $335,000 or $340,000 to Chisholm and Croil & McCullough. Is that correct?

The witness went over the amounts of the loans amounting to $295,000 and the manner in which they were made. He said he could not allow the imputation to go forth that he would discount a note in the name of D. J. McGillis. He took the name of A. D. McGillis in addition. The bank would have had the Mullins' names but for their illness.

THE STANLEY MINE SHARES.

"Well now, you tell us that the $30,000 was advanced on the notes of A. D. McGillis and D. J. McGillis, secured by 600,000 dollar shares, stock of the Stanley mine. That is it, is it not?"

"They were hypothecated as security, for what they might be worth. I understand they were selling for 77 cents a share then. It is not the custom of the bank to lend money on mining stocks."

"And of course you attached some value to this $600,000 of stock?"

"We took it for what it might be worth."

"But you attached the value to the representations made by Chisholm's agent. Now what were these representations?"

Question overruled.

Mr. Quinn—"Is it not a fact that the $30,000 advanced on 23rd March was advanced by the bank for the purpose, as alleged by Chisholm, of covering certain irregularities in the Cold Storage Company, to wit, to pay another bank the said sum of $30,000, in order to recoup the bank for money advanced by the said bank upon worthless warehouse receipts?"

"Not exactly in that way. The representation was that the warehouse receipt which the other bank held was perfectly good, but that the goods which it represented, or a portion of them, had been removed by an employe, and the Cold Storage Company wished to make the fact known to the bank. The bank had not discussed the shortage, but the Cold Storage Company had and wished to tell the bank and give them the money instead."

FALSE WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

"Without enquiring into what his object was, was not the necessity for obtaining this money declared by him to be to cover false warehouse receipts, or warehouse receipts which had turned out to be false, and which had been held by another bank?"

"The question of false or fictitious warehous receipts was never mentioned. The Warehouse Company was simply disclosing to the bank what the bank did not know themselves—that the receipts of the 23rd March did not represent the goods they were supposed to represent."

"Well, although the words 'false warehouse receipts' were not mentioned, is it not a fact that this money was advanced by the bank to Chisholm, on his statement that it was necessary for the purpose of repaying another bank monies which had been advanced on warehouse receipts of the Cold Storage Company for which there were no goods in the warehouse?"

"Certainly."

"And he represented to you that $30,000 would cover them all?"

"Yes."

AN APPALLING SWINDLE.

"Now we will go back to the original question. On the morning of the 3rd April when you went to the warehouse of the Cold Storage Company, the bank had advanced for the account of Chisholm a sum aggregating $340,000, the monies of that bank?"

"I will have to add that up—$345,000."

"Mr. Stewart, when you went down to the warehouse how many floors did you go through?"

"The whole of the ground floor."

"I understand there were about 19 or 20 store rooms in the place?"

"I didn't go down with the expectation of finding goods on every floor."

"You didn't expect to find any cheese except where you went?"

"As a matter of fact, I did not expect to find any cheese anywhere after what I had been told."

"I have no doubt that, having slept over the interview, you had thought it a serious position—as you said yesterday—'appalling?'"

"I did not sleep."

"And you realized the magnitude of the swindle?"

"Yes."

"And certainly realized it to the extent of $345,000?"

"That is what it totalled up to."

'As a matter of fact, didn't you the next day declare that the total amount with which Chisholm was connected would be $526,000?"

"These figures were made up for me."

"I know."

"And the figures which I quoted were prepared for me and written under great pressure, and beyond a statement of the facts as I was anxious to give them to each of the directors, I was not personally responsible for those figures. I afterwards pointed it out to our general manager and others that there was a mistake of $100,000 in them."

BUNCOED BY CHISHOLM.

"At any rate, whether you were misled or not by the other officers of the bank in exaggerating the amount, you fully realized it was an enormous amount?"

"Yes."

"Didn't it strike you that the bank had been buncoed by Chisholm?"

"It struck me when he was telling me the night before."

"Didn't it strike you something in this way when you stood alone in that large warehouse : This man obtained $25,000 from the bank on the 15th March, $30,000 on the 23rd March; he obtained $60,000 on warehouse receipts in his own name, $220,000 in the name of the Croil & McCullough Dairy Co., and $100,000 only yesterday. Can I have any confidence in his statements? Is he not a swindler?"

Mr. Cooke objected to the question, and said his learned friend was trying to trap the witness. Mr. Quinn answered that his reputation was not such as to lead the court to believe he would try to trap a witness.

Mr. Quinn—"Did you not realize that Chisholm had buncoed the bank to the extent of nearly half a million?"

"I realized that the bank had been swindled, and I made up my mind that the bank should get its money or security and the perpetrators of the fraud should go to gaol. I succeeded in the first."

"You didn't succeed in the second very well as regards Chisholm?"

"Someone else as well as the bank was to blame for that."

"You didn't arrest him?"

"We did—two hours after we had evidence. Neither I nor any other official of the bank lost sight of our duty to the bank and to society."

"Well, the claims of society came second at any rate?"

"They did."

"Another reason that he was not arrested on the 3rd of April was because the claims of the bank came first?"

"Not at all."

"What then?"

"On the 3rd April we had no evidence whatever that Chisholm was implicated in these schemes."

SUSPICION NOT EVIDENCE.

"You did not have the proof, you say—but didn't you have a very strong suspicion?"

"I did."

"Didn't you fear that he might run away?"

"I do not know that that thought occurred to me."

"You knew that a gross and outrageous fraud had been perpetrated, involving half a million?"

"I knew that it was a large amount."

"You had suspicion of Chisholm and others. Why didn't you arrest him?"

"I didn't think suspicion was good evidence."

Mr. Quinn (ironically) — "Suspicion! Suspicion doesn't mean immediate conviction under our humane law, you know."

"I am quite aware of that."

"Now, you say that you had negative proof of Chisholm's innocence. You didn't have that on the 3rd April?"

"No."

"On the 3rd April, so far as you were concerned and the bank was concerned, the only one from whom you had got responsible information was Chisholm?"

"Yes."

"The only person with whom you had had relations regarding the disclosures was T. J. Chisholm?"

"He was the only one at that time. I had been told about McGillis the night before."

"From Chisholm?"

"Yes."

"And you didn't have either of them arrested?"

"The reason we didn't have McGillis arrested was this—

Mr. Quinn asked the court to order Mr. Stewart to give a direct answer..

Justice Hall—"I think the witness might answer 'yes' or 'no.'"

Mr. Stewart—"No."

Mr. Quinn—"Nor you didn't have them arrested on the 4th?"

"No."

"Nor, as a matter of fact, to make it short, you didn't have anyone arrested until 28th September?"

"I am not sure of the date, but it was some time in September."

The information paper was produced and handed to Mr. Stewart.

REASONS FOR ARREST.

"Your first information against anyone for these frauds is dated 28th September, and is against McCullough and D. J. McGillis. Why did you not arrest A. D. McGillis?"

"We had nothing against him."

"Hadn't he signed drafts and endorsed warehouse receipts for which there were no goods in the Cold Storage warehouse?"

"Yes."

"Were not these drafts passed though the Merchants' Bank of Halifax?"

"Yes."

"Why did you arrest McCullough and McGillis ?"

"Because we had information that they were parties directly interested in the fraud."

"From whom did you get this information ?"

"Well, from themselves and Chisholm."

"Is that the only reason you arrested them—because you had information that they were the ones directly interested in the fraud ?"

"The reason we arrested them was in the interest of commerce and morality."

"It took a long time for your commercial morality to work—from 3rd April to the 28th of September !"

"I don't think so."

"Excluding the novel sentiment that actuated you—why did you arrest them in contradistinction to others whose names were connected ?"

Witness went over the reasons.

"Did you ever think of arresting them before September ?"

"Yes."

"When ?"

"On the night of the 2nd of April, and many times after."

"And why didn't you ?"

"I felt that it was his company's place to have McCullough arrested at that time."

"You mean the Cold Storage Company ?"

"Yes. He was a servant of the Cold Storage Company, and they had to make good all these shortages to the bank. I thought it was their place to arrest him."

"And when they didn't, you didn't think you were bound to do it—in the interest of society ? Was it because the company didn't arrest him that you arrested him ?"

Mr. Stewart said it was not the sole reason, and explained that he had the misfortune to be alone. The manager and solicitors of the bank happened to be away, and it was not for him to decide. They came home shortly afterwards and the matter was left in their hands."

"Is it not a fact that the reason why you did not arrest them on the 3rd of April was because Chisholm told you that he would have them arrested ?"

"I took what Chisholm said with a great deal of salt. He made a statement that he was the victim, and the statements of the two accused went to corroborate that statement, and he said all along he would have them arrested."

"Was it not because he told you that, that you didn't have them arrested ?"

"After the solicitors' return, the matter was entirely in their hands. I had nothing to do with it beyond swearing the evidence."

"You state 'when your solicitors were away.' Leave them until they come back to town ; and the general manager was away. It it not a fact that the reason you did not have McCullough and McGillis arrested was because Chisholm said he would have them arrested ?"

"No."

"Will you swear positively that it was not ?"

"I swear that it was not the reason."

Witness retired during an argument over his first depositions. He was called again.

CHISHOLM'S HANDWRITING.

"How long have you been a director of the Cold Storage Company ?"

"Since the 21st of May last."

"Until ?"

"Until the company went into liquidation, or an order was supplied for it, in August."

"And, as inspector of the bank, on the 3rd of April, I suppose you hunted up all the warehouse receipts ?"

"Yes."

"And did you examine them ?"

"Yes."

"At what time did you do the examination of the warehouse receipts ?"

"I have examined them a number of times—I think on the 3rd of April I had them all day and went through them."

"Did you not, then, after examining them, recognize Chisholm's handwriting on some of them ?"

"I did not."

"That was on the first examination on the 3rd of April ?"

"Yes."

"When did you recognize Chisholm's handwriting ?"

"I don't know that I ever recognized it. I swore below and in this court that I thought it was and might prove to be."

"When did you first think it was Chisholm's handwriting ?"

"The first time I thought so was the evening of the day on which Mr. McGillis got him to admit, in the civil examination, that it was his handwriting. That examination started about the end of August or early in September—I am not quite certain about the date."

Mr. Quinn, answering the Judge's question whether he was likely to finish his cross-examination of Mr. Stewart before Monday, said he thought he might finish by Monday at the midday adjournment—not before—and he thought he would do well to get through then.

The Judge decided to adjourn the court until this morning.

Department for Women Readers

As Seen by Her.

A snowstorm like to-day's makes one for the first time believe that Christmas is near. We seem to have jumped so suddenly into preparations for the holidays, when we have hardly decided upon plans for the winter, and the work we will take up. The papers have all begun advertising with those pictures of jolly old Santa Claus filling stockings with which we have been familiar from our cradles, and which we love so dearly. There is the usual rush to plan presents, the usual incompatibility between the purse and the kind wishes. The Christmas papers are all out with their attractive covers and beautiful supplements, and in just a month from to-day, December 26th, we'll be looking admiringly at our presents and hoping that all ours reached their destinations safely. The shops are beginning to look lovely with dolls and toys, as well as gifts for the big sisters and brothers. Montreal is a generous place and the poor are not forgotten in the general joy and happiness.

The papers for the next few weeks will be full of hints for making gifts, and fearful and wonderful things will be constructed and presented on 'Xmas day.

It is only to be hoped that this Christmas-y weather will last, and that we won't be walking to church in the ran as sometimes happens. A day like to-day produces a plentiful crop of colds, and for the next week there will be much sneezing and coughing.

The Editor of this Department will be pleased to receive for insertion all matter relating to women's organizations, meetings, personals, etc. Address Editor, Department for Women Readers, Herald Office, Craig Street.

WOMEN'S DOINGS.

The two ladies will be in attendance three times a week at the hospital, and will only take patients sent by the physicians in charge.

EDUCATION OF GIRLS.

On next Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, Mrs. Nellie Kendic will lecture in the hall of the Y.W.C.A. on the education of girls. The lecture is under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A. and is the third of the series of the Household Economic Association. The synopsis of this lecture is: "What we mean by education. Its motive. Its scope. The old ideas and the new. Origin of domestic economy in the schools. How it helps a woman's life. Sewing, knowledge of fabrics and their uses. Knowledge of the sciences. Teaching of cooking and its uses of food. Teaching hygiene. Value to health. Economic value."

ASTHMA CURED

There Were Only Four Cases of Asthma in Nanaimo, B.C., and Have All Been Cured by Clarke's Kola Compound.

THE FACTS AS GIVEN BY A LEADING DRUGGIST.

Mr. Watkinson, a bricklayer with Vancouver Coal Co., states:

Clarke's Kola Compound is the only preparation that ever gave him any permanent relief from asthma. Before taking this remedy he lost one month's work through asthma, and since he has not lost a day during the past year. He says, "I consider it a God-send to the asthmatic."

A well-known cigar maker, who used to be a great sufferer, and could not do any travelling outside this city, told me the other day he makes his trips to Union and other places regularly, and has not had a single attack of asthma for over a year, "Thanks to Clarke's Kola Compound." He said no amount of money could estimate its value to him.

Mr. J. C. Wilson, a carpenter here, was almost a hopeless case, and is now completely free from asthma. He took but four bottles.

Mr. Alex. Dixon, a well-known contractor here, who was the first case of asthma cured, says he has spent hundreds of dollars in ten years in search of a cure, but has at last found it in Clarke's Kola Compound. He took in all about six bottles, and is completely cured. He has sent several fellow-sufferers to my store for it. Signed, F. C. Stearman, Phm.B., Chemist, Nanaimo, B.C.

Clarke's Kola Compound will permanently cure any case of asthma or chronic bronchitis. Sold by chemists everywhere. Send for Dr. Clarke's Book on Asthma, free. Address The G. and M. Co., Limited, 121 Church Street, Toronto.

NAVIGATION VERY LATE THIS SEASON

Two Vessels to Sail on Thursday Next.

LATEST SAILING SINCE 1864.

Though Three Years Last Sailing Has Been on Same Date—Fine Vessels Are Yet to Sail for Sea.

Navigation for this year is almost at an end. There are two vessels in port, the Etolia and Lake Champlain, which are awaiting the clearing of the weather to cast off their moorings and sail seawards. The steamers J. Dano and Leafield, which are bringing steel from the lakes, are in Wellington basin. That completes the list of vessels now at Montreal.

There are still two to arrive, possibly three. The Bengore Head and Bray Head from Belfast and Dublin are due tomorrow, and will get away again on Thursday. The Palika, from the upper lakes, with steel, has also to pass down. That will complete the arrivals and sailings for the season. This means that ocean navigation will not close at this port till the 29th at least, which is the latest sailing since 1864, the last departure being on the same date in 1867, in 1871, and last year.

Contractor Boucher has received word from Ottawa to take up the buoys in the channel between Quebec and Montreal as soon as possible now, and he will begin immediately. Although all the vessels have not yet sailed, he will begin at Quebec and work up the river, taking up the less important buoys for ships going down.

LAKE CHAMPLAIN'S LIST.

HOMOEOPATHIC HOSPITAL.

A Brief Outline of the Work Carried on Last Year.

At the annual meeting of the Governors of the Homoeopathic Hospital, held on Thursday, the committee of management and the treasurer were congratulated upon the clear, comprehensive and satisfactory presentation of the finances of the institution the new system of bookkeeping and classification enabled them to make, and thanks were voted to the chairman, Mr. S. M. Baylis, the treasurer, Dr. Morgan, and the honorary auditor, Mr. A. H. Plimsoll, for their valued work in this connection. The revenue and expenditure on maintenance account were shown to approximately balance, and the small deficit carried to profit and loss account was, by the president's handsome special donation of $1,000, turned into a surplus applied to the reduction of debt. Intimation was given of other forthcoming large donations towards this object, and hopes were expressed that this year would see the debt largely, if not wholly, removed, and the subscription list materially increased.

The statistics of the medical superintendent's report were of much interest, and the advantages peculiar to this hospital of permitting any medical man to use the private wards and operating room for the treatment of his patients were shown to be increasingly appreciated by the profession generally. The lady superintendent reported 17 graduates of the training school for nurses, and ten nurses in training, and the results of their work in the hospital and private practice most satisfactory.

The event of the year was the presentation of a new nurses' home, maternity and laundry to the hospital by the ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary, completely furnished and ready for work, and the nurses are already enjoying the improved accommodation of their cosy quarters. The elegant private maternity wards are a novel and unique feature in hospital work in this city, and preparations are making to celebrate the advent of the first little occupant with fitting eclat. Regret was expressed that the popular and efficient lady superintendent, Miss Kent, who served the hospital so well and long, was, through ill-health, compelled to resign. Fortunately it was possible to fill her place immediately, by the appointment of Miss Baker, who comes from New York with the highest commendations of medical men and hospital authorities of that city, and much good is expected to result from the engagement.

These officers were elected: President, Samuel Bell; vice-president, Messrs. J. T. Hagar and E. G. O'Connor; honorary secretary, J. T. Dawson; honorary treasurer, Dr. E. M. Morgan; committee (and officers ex-officio)—Drs. H. M. Paton, A. R. Griffith, and A. D. Paton; Mesdames G. D. Phillips, T. Taylor, J. T. Hagar, and J. A. Sheffield, Misses A. Moodie and M. E. Baylis and A. R. Griffith. Medical board—Senior physician, Dr. Griffith; junior physician, Dr. Morgan; senior surgeon, Dr. H. M. Paton; junior surgeon, Dr. A. D. Paton; assistant physicians and surgeons, Drs. W. G. Nichol, A. J. Berwick, and Laura Muller; medical superintendent, Dr. Griffith; house officer, Dr. Thayer.

POLICE NEWS.

The two boys, James Hayes and Thomas Murphy, who were arrested on a charge of setting fire to St. Patrick's School, pleaded guilty before Commissioner Ritchie. The boys are younger than at first reported, being, the former, 9 years old and the latter 11. They were sent to the reformatory school pending their arraignment before the Court of Sessions. The trial before the fire commissioners cannot result in a conviction. The commissioners cannot pronounce sentence. If the proof is sufficient—and in this case the boys plead guilty—the accused is committed to the Court of Queen's Bench, when the regular trial takes place, before a judge of Special Sessions or a jury in the Court of Queen's Bench.

ADMITTED THE THEFT.—In the Police Court on Saturday morning William Dyer, of 23 St. Charles Borromee Street, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing money from Mr. James Stewart, of Craig Street. For some time past Mr. Stewart has noticed the disappearance of money from the till. Suspecting Dyer he marked a 25-cent piece and put it in the till. It soon vanished. Dyer was arrested and the marked 25 cents was found. He was remanded for sentence.

ABOUT HEART DISEASE.

Ninety Per Cent. of it Really Caused from Poor Digestion.

Real organic heart trouble is incurable, but scarcely one case in a hundred is organic.

The action of the heart and stomach are both controlled by the same great nerves, the sympathetic and pneumogastric, and when the stomach fails to properly digest the food and it lies in the stomach fermenting, gases are formed which distend the organ, causing pressure on the heart and lungs, causing palpitation, irregularity and shortness of breath.

The danger from this condition is that, the continued disturbance of the heart sooner or later may cause real organic heart trouble, and in fact frequently does so.

Furthermore, poor digestion makes the blood thin and watery and deficient in red corpuscles, and this further irritates and weakens teh heart.

The most sensible thing to do for heart trouble is to insure the digestion and assimilation of the food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain the necessary digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

Thousands of people keep well and vigorous by keeping their digestion perfect by observing the rule of taking one or two of these tablets after each meal, or at least after each hearty meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain U. S. P. pepsin diastase from malt and other natural digestives which act only on the food, digesting it perfectly and preventing acidity, gases, and the many diseased conditions which accompany a weak stomach.

When Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used you may know you are not taking into the system any strong medicine or powerful drug but simply the natural digestive elments which every weak stomach lacks.

So widely known and popular have these tablets become that they are now sold in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

No. 57.

THE PROPRIETY OF BIDING MAN'S PROPOSAL.

BY MISS ANNE DE LASHMUTT.

(Copyrighted, 1900, Wm. R. Miller.)

The Misses Norris sat down to consider. Four of them were in society, and the fifth sister, Miss Honora Norris, had arrived at the alarming age of 17 years. Someth'ng must be done to further their matrimonial ends. They had more pedigree than money, and more beauty than either. The supply of ball dresses, street dresses and house gowns could not equal the demand, hence the necessity of adopting active measures. Husbands there ought to be enough and to go around.

James Goodman, attorney-at-law, had called on Miss Teresa Norris since the day of her first maidenly conquests; but for all his morning and noon and nightly visits, he was never there on the eve of proposing.

Gordon Hunt sent Miss Mildred Norris candies and roses and violets and sweet peas galore; took her driving and boating, and escorted her to the opera and the dance, but never quite reached the point of declaring his intentions.

Dr. Ridgeley Brown had manifested his admiration for Miss Stella Norris by calling upon her with punctillious regularity for about a year, but he had not thought the time yet ripe perhaps to lay siege to her heart.

The eldest Miss Norris had occasionally fancied herself attracting a possible suitor, but her chances upon the whole were less promising than those of her younger sisters. All had suffered from an excess of "attention without intention," as Max O'Rell would say.

While the affairs of their hearts were in this unsettled state they came together in a sort of indignation meeting—that wooers had been so tardy.

"The only thing we can do," said Miss Teresa Norris, "is to follow Professor Howland's advice and dominate the situation ourselves. He says woman has just and equal rights with man to propose the question of marriage, and I don't see why we should not put his principles to the test."

"Nor I," assented Miss Mildred Norris, "and don't you remember Frances Willard thought both nature and custom robbed woman of a privilege that should have been hers, in not granting her the grace of seeking love till she should first be sought."

"Oh, yes," chimed in Miss Stella Norris, "and there is somebody, too, that holds marriage to be binding upon man, but not upon woman, inasmuch as man must be the moving spirit in all reforms of the heart, while woman must remain passive to the end."

"Well, well," observed the eldest Miss Norris, "neither one nor the other of these diverse opinions can adjust for us our present difficulty. With practical wisdom we must be pioneers in our own cause. The question now before us is one which has puzzled older heads than ours. Beaux may come and beaux may go without reaching the consummation devoutly to be wished for, unless we form ourselves into a committee to carry out that part of the programme. Of course, we shall aim to take no unfair advantage of the bashful sex—theirs it shall be to accept or decline equally with woman. And, since we are agreed that the initiative rests with us, our only further consideration is—who shall have the courage of her convictions first to triumph over the conventionalities and pop the question?"

"They won't all have to propose the same night, will they?" timidly enquired Miss Honora Norris, feeling herself, by reason of her tender years, released from the embarrassing exactions of the new law.

"Oh, no," replied her eldest sister, "by virtue of that maxim that one at a time lasts longer, I think we should be well content did victory declare for us after a five days' battle even. At this moment we are unable to foresee whom the fates shall elect to open the conflict; but, biding the time of Cupid's appointment, let it be understood among us, that she who receives the first caller shall know that the man and the hour have come—that the lot has fallen upon her."

"My bravest resolutions would forsake me at the last," said Miss Mildred Norris.

"Another bare possibility of wasting my sweetness on the desert air would appal me," urged Teresa Norris.

Miss Stella Norris took a more hopeful view of the matter and declared herself armed for the fight—ready to do or die. The absence of the eldest Miss Norris' opinion at this particular point caused no comment among the assembly of sisters, as she was regarded by them all in the light of a possible glorified spinster.

There was a ring at the doorbell that same evening, and Capt. Dorsey Allan's card was taken in to the eldest Miss Norris. Looking very sweet and bewitching for all she wore the garland of nine and twenty summers, she hurried in to welcome this old friend returning from the sea. When the other girls went in a little later they found both the Captain and their sister looking very conscious and happy and they knew that all was well with her. But they were never quite satisfied as to which had uttered those fateful words: "Wilt thou be mine?"

PROF. ROSS ON THE ERA OF DISHONESTY

Sounds a Note of Warning in His Sermon Yesterday.

SCOTSMEN ATTEND CHURCH.

The Annual Sermon Was Delivered at St. Pauls—The Heritage and Duty of Scots.

Rev. Professor James Ross delivered the annual sermon to the St. Andrew's Society, in St. Paul's Church, Dorchester Street, yesterday afternoon. The sermon was based on Psalm 61, chapter 5:—"Thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear Thy name." One object of the society was to perpetuate among its members the worthier traditions of the native land. On such an occasion it was fitting, therefore, to offer a tribute to the memory of those who had formed the national character and moulded the type of mental and religious life. From their ancestors most Scotchmen had inherited a good sound physique.

The frugal, regular habits of the Scottish ancestors, their attention to duty, their fear of God, had helped to form that rugged, Scottish frame whose powers of endurance had been tried in forced marches, protracted sieges, lives of unremitting toil, and in fiercely contested intellectual struggle. The speaker paid a tribute to the remarkable vigor shown by Lord Strathcona, a man of four score years, after a life of activity and immense responsibility, still administering the details of a vast business, keeping in touch with the public life of two nations, being himself the bond of connection between them.

A second heritage received from the Scottish ancestors was a heritage of mental vigor and moral stability of character. A craving for knowledge had been a pronounced characteristic of the Scotch people. The struggles and sacrifices of many a Scottish youth to obtain a university education was a commonplace of literature. From the men of old the Scotchman had inherited an ardent love of his country. The passionate enthusiasm with which the Scotchman regarded his native land was written across the pages of her history, in the wealth of her poetry, in the deeds of her sons which helped to win the Empire. What were the influences which had brought about a change in our relations to the Mother Land and which had caused that land to change cold indifference to Canadian interests into enthusiastic admiration and unstinted praise? There were many claimants for the honor. But he thought the impassioned affection of his fellow countrymen for their Fatherland would be found to have done not a little to bind this Dominion's heart to the land across the sea and to our beloved sovereign who reigns there. They had received, too, from the fathers a heritage of faith in the living God. Privilege everywhere imposed responsibility, and there were duties which the possession of this heritage imposed upon them.

One primary duty was to hand down the inheritance unimpaired. In this connection Professor Ross said:—

"And I believe there is at this time a special call upon us to remember our fathers' sterling business integrity and to reproduce it in our life. No man anxious to maintain the honor of the city in which he dwells can regard without serious alarm certain things which have taken place in the business world around us and which have been sifted in our courts of law during the past few years. I am well aware of the sudden turns which things may take in a great commercial centre, which, without any wrongdoing, may bring the strongest face to face with ruin. In a great, trying crisis, grave errors of judgment may be made with the best possible intention. And it is often extremely difficult for those outside to unravel the intricacy of modern business affairs; but when all due allowance is made for this (and let us rejoice that the final judgment rests with One who is able to weigh everything accurately) there must have been a most reprehensible disregard of the awful sanctions of right. We are sure that our fathers would have suffered themselves to be torn limb from limb rather than be guilty of anything false, dishonorable and mean; not to speak of transactions which, if discovered, would have branded them as criminals and held them up to the execration of many victims. Sympathy for those who are suffering for their own wrongdoing must not blind our eyes to the anguish of those who are suffering for the wrongdoing of others, or weaken our most vehement protest against tampering with the moral law on which alone the true prosperity of any community must be built.

"The business methods and commercial integrity of this financial capital of the Dominion must powerfully affect the whole land. And the too frequent discovery of reprehensible, and even criminal, methods here must sap the moral fibre of many a struggling merchant, and deaden the conscience of many an ill-paid clerk who is too ready to follow the evil example. Surely we, who are the descendants and representatives of those whose names have been a strong tower of righteousness in this and in many lands, ought to be careful not to sign any financial returns that we have not examined, or to put our hands to any transaction that will not bear the light of Judgment Day. 'I speak as to wise men, judge ye what I say.'"

EXTRA HAZARDOUS RISK.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 26.—Since the deer season opened in this section of the state ten hunters have been killed, twelve badly wounded, and two are missing.

Sick Headache For Sixteen Years

But Mrs. Michael Farough, of Essex Centre, Ont., Finds a Cure at Last in Laxa-Liver Pills.

Another sick headache sufferer freed from misery.

Another one who had tried all sorts of medicines and doctor's treatment without deriving much benefit, cured at last by Laxa-Liver Pills.

Here is Mrs. Farough's statement of her case in her own words:—"I was troubled with sick headache for over sixteen years. I doctored and took everything I could think of but it did me no good.

"Lately I commenced to use Laxa-Liver Pills and I find they do me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken. They are an excellent pill, and I would say to every one troubled with sick headache take Laxa-Liver Pills and you will be cured."

Laxa-Liver Pills are undoubtedly the best remedy for Constipation, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Price 25c, at all druggists.

THE CANADIAN FOOTBALL SEASON IS CLOSED

ROUGH RIDERS ARE NOW CHAMPIONS

Turned Brockville Down by 17 Points to 10.

BUT THEY HAD NO CINCH.

A Good Deal of Luck Fell to the Lot of the Capital Team—Timer Was Just 7½ Minutes Out.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—For the second time the Canadian championship goes to Ottawa. They won in '98 and again this year, when they defeated Brockville, the Quebec champions, at Rosedale on Saturday, by a score of 17 to 10.

The day was not an ideal one for football, as a strong wind was blowing from the east, which aided the scoring to a great extent. It was cold and raw, but some 2,000 spectators braved the cold and lustily cheered the two teams. Both teams had many supporters, but Ottawa rooters were in the majority. Considerable money changed hands on the result of the game. The prevailing odds were 2 to 1 on Ottawa.

Ottawa had all the luck, and though the Capital City certainly deserved to win, they were fortunate in securing the wind in the first half. The Rough Riders were ably managed and their victory is due no less to their playing qualities than to the head work displayed. The team as a whole are past-masters of the art of keeping possession of the ball and killing time.

In the first half Ottawa had the ball frequently and everybody kicked with the wind, little Pat Murphy, at quarter, frequently making long gains as the ball was heeled out to him. Brockville, on the other hand, showed a lack of team play and generalship. Their halves tried punting against the wind in the first half, instead of running, and lost many yards in consequence. In the second half they did not kick on every occasion offered, as Ottawa had done, but attempted short kicks. Twice with free kicks in Ottawa's quarter, they kicked directly to a Rough Rider instead of punting high behind the line.

Referee Dalton and Umpire Ballantyne handled the teams in a most commendable way. There was no kicking, and the players displayed little undue roughness. The match was a hard-fought one, and every point was earned and stubbornly contested. Kennedy and Sherriff decorated the side lines for five minutes for indulging in a little set-to, and Jory was given a rest for tripping. The only man injured was Fraser, who got his hip hurt. Off-sides were frequent, and many free kicks were given to both teams. There was something wrong about the timekeeper's watch, as it certainly was the fastest match played this year, though there were few delays. The match started at 2.25 and it was all over at 3.45, just an hour and twenty minutes. The watch must have run fast, although both teams suffered equally in this respect, and there would have been no difference in the result.

Ottawa scored enough points in the first half to win the game while kicking with the wind; with only thirteen points to make up, however, the Brockville contingent were fairly confident that they would win out, but when Ottawa scored against the wind there was no chance of winning.

The teams lined up as follows:—

Brockville.		Ottawa.
Stevens	Back	Beaulieu
Dier	Halfs	Powers
Fraser	"	E. Murphy
Bedford-Jones	"	Boyd
Wilkinson	Quarter	P. Murphy
Carr	Scrimmage	Buckham
Doran	"	Kennedy
Dobbie	"	Cameron
Sheriff	Wings	J. McGee
Graham	"	Austin
Ritchie	"	Lafleur
McLaren	"	Telford
Marquis	"	Pulford
Simpson	"	Rayside
Phillips	"	Jory

The officials were:—

Referee—"Bunty" Dalton.
Umpire—A. W. Ballantyne.
Touch-line Judges—A. B. Ford, Britton.
Goal Judges—R. Wylie, E. Dumoulin.
Timekeeper—J. McDonald Mowat.

Ottawa won the toss, and elected to kick west with the wind behind their backs. Wilkinson kicked off for Brockville, but the wind blew it back, and, Brockville securing it, a scrimmage followed in centre; from a scrimmage Ottawa stole the ball; and P. Murphy punted well down the field. The ball took a bad bound and rolled into touch-in-goal. Only a minute and a half had been played and the score was 1 to 0.

Wilkinson kicked off, but Ottawa kept the ball in Brockville's quarter. A series of scrimmages and mass plays followed, with neither side having much advantage. From a free kick, Ottawa punted behind the line. The ball was missed and McGee and Murphy fell on it for a try. Score, 5 to 0. Rayside converted the goal, and with only five minutes played the score stood 7 to 0 in favor of Ottawa.

Wilkinson kicked off from half-way, and Sherriff got possession of the ball. A series of mass plays and scrimmages followed by Fraser's punt put the ball in Ottawa's territory. Powers carried the ball into touch, but from the throw-in Ottawa secured the ball. A long punt put the ball well into Brockville's camp, and the Quebec champions got off-side in one of the scrimmages. Beaulieu punted high and Fraser rouged. Score, 8 to 0.

Ottawa kept pressing from the kick-off. A run by McLaren and a free kick relieved the danger for a time. Then Brockville got their mass plays working and made two good gains. McLaren attempted to kick, and the ball struck an opposing wing and bounced back, McGee falling on it for a try. Rayside missed the goal. Score, 12 to 0.

There was little time left in this half. Ottawa forced the play. Powers punted well down the field, and as McLaren went after it Jory tripped him and was given a rest. McLaren was presently forced to rouge, and the score stood 13 to 0 in favor of Ottawa.

THE SECOND HALF.

Brockville had the wind in the second half, which had slightly increased. Rayside kicked off, and Fraser returned and following up his kick got the ball. An off-side gave Brockville a free kick, but Boyd got the ball about fifteen yards out. In the scrimmage which followed, Sheriff and Kennedy were ruled off. Then came the most exciting play of the day. Powers got the ball and ran for about fifty yards down the touch line. He passed to the centre of field, and Murphy, getting the ball, was just downed before he crossed the goal line. Brockville got a free kick, but the ball came back, and from a scrimmage McGee went over for another try. Rayside made a magnificent attempt at the goal and the ball hit the post. Score, 17 to 0.

Ottawa now had the game cinched, and all their efforts were directed to keeping down Brockville's score. Brockville steadily worked the ball down to Ottawa's quarter. From a scrimmage Marquis broke through and was over like a flash for a try, which was not converted. Score, 17 to 4.

Fraser punted over the line shortly after the kick-off, and Boyd was forced to rouge. Score, 17 to 5.

Brockville scored again quickly. Fraser returned a punt, and Graham, following up, got a try, which McLaren missed. Score, 17 to 9.

There was about fifteen minutes to play, and Brockville's prospects looked exceedingly rosy. Brockville again became the aggressors and took the ball down the field. From a free kick Wilkinson punted behind the line, and Boyd rouged. Score, 17 to 10.

Ottawa kept possession of the ball, and Brockville never had another chance to score. As the referee's whistle blew for time the supporters of Rough Riders rushed on the field and carried the Canadian champions to their dressing rooms.

LONDON WON CHAMPIONSHIP.

Defeated McGill's Second Team in a Very Rough Match.

The Intermediate football season closed on Saturday when London defeated McGill II. at the M.A.A.A. grounds, in perhaps the dirtiest game ever seen from the M.A.A.A. grand stand. So London now holds the Intermediate championship of Canada. The score was 14 to 5.

The referee's whistle had hardly blown before London began to act dirty. "Mephistopheles," a player clad in red, used his fists to put a McGill man out of business. This sort of thing went on without any notice being taken by the referee till at last there was a free fight with a dozen wired up in it. Then two men went off. Then everybody was offside, but the umpire did not think it worth while to pay attention to such small matters. In fact he left the players to their own fancies.

But though London was the greatest sinner in both the fist work and the offside play, London put up the best article of football, and would undoubtedly have won under any conditions. Their wings were much too aggressive for the collegians, and behind the line Frank Hobbs proved a wonder. He is quick as a flash and strong enough for good line work. He was the star of the team and showed himself the equal or perhaps the superior of his brother Jack Hobbs, Varsity's former quarter. He had behind him a sure centre half in Yates, which materially assisted London. McGill's great fault was in endeavoring to make grand stand rushes when a long punt into touch would have gained them more ground. Possession of the ball is all right, but not with McGill against such a team as London.

The teams and officials were:

London.	Position.	McGill II.
Labatt	Full back	Hamilton
Taylor	Half Backs	Savage
Yates	"	Howitt
Screaton	"	McDougall
F. Hobbs	Quarter backs	Meindl (capt.)
S. Taylor	Scrimmage	McKay
Lucas	"	"Stewart"
George Bice	"	May
Gibbons (capt.)	Wings	Billings
Hennessy	"	Graham
A. Bice	"	Mowat
Kerrigan	"	Bolter
Carruthers	"	McConkey
Field	"	Martin
Wilson	"	Gaskill

Referee—Mr. N. Lash.
Umpire—Dr. Clifford Jack.

McGill had a bit the best of the game on the start, and hope was bright with the local Collegians. But it did not last long. Steady scrimmage work forced a rouge.

Then it was all off. From the kick out London went right up field, and Hobbs got a try on a nice end run.

London 4—McGill 1.

This was all the score in the first half. In the second, Hobbs again secured a try.

London 8—McGill 1.

Then came McGill's chance. A muff by Hobbs and McGill wings had him nailed.

The ball rolled out by itself and half a dozen McGill men chased it and dribbled frantically. After a good many muffs they got it over and Bolter secured a try.

London 8—McGill 5.

But London sent Hobbs over for another try after a brilliant run and Taylor kicked it, making the final score London 14, McGill 5.

A Technicality.

The Quebec Union objected to Savage playing as he had played one match senior in Intercollegiate series, and if McGill had won the Quebec Union would have reported the matter to the Canadian Union.

Notes of the Gridiron.

Hamilton played a rattling good game for McGill II at full back.

Big Alex. McKenzie, of 'Varsity, was in town and saw the game. Alex. wanted to get into the game himself to try conclusions with one of the westerners whose fists were very active.

Gaskill did excellent tackling.

The referee put Billings off for deliberate offside and delaying the game. Billings' idea was all right, but it was clumsily carried out.

McGill was not satisfied with the officials and said so.

YALE GAVE HARVARD A KNOCKOUT BLOW

Score Was 28 to 0 When Time Was Up.

FIRST TIME SINCE 1894

That Old Eli Has Lowered the Crimson Colors—22,000 People Saw the Game.

New Haven, Conn., November 24.—Victory long delayed perched upon the blue banner of Old Yale to-day, when the football team of the New Haven University smothered the Crimson of fair Harvard in the annual football contest played at Yale Field. For the first time since 1894 Yale scored a victory over Harvard and to-day she took sweet revenge for Harvard's merciless performance in New Haven some years ago when the crimson rejoiced over the blue by the score of 17 to 0. To-day Yale administered to Harvard a Waterloo to the tune of 28 to 0. It was Yale from the first kick-off and the mighty warriors of the blue seemed bent on punishing Harvard to the limit.

Looking at football history, Harvard in six years had won from Yale but once. In '95 and '96 no games were played and '97 witnessed a tie at Cambridge, at nothing to nothing. 1898 brought Harvard's great victory on Yale field and last year witnessed a tie with no scoring at Harvard's own gridiron. This year Yale began her season determined to regain her prestige and to-day's game furnished a satisfactory climax in that Yale and Harvard stood alone and the situation offered opportunity for an indisputable championship. This went to Yale after a contest that was truly wonderful. Yale presented a team which never hesitated an instant and which began with a rush that seemed impossible to check.

In the first fifteen minutes of the game by means of her stalwart rush line, the famous tackles, back formation, with confusing variations tore through the Harvard forwards for the first touch-down for Yale. An easy goal made the score 6 to 0. The first half ended with the score at 12 to 0 in Yale's favor.

The second half was a killing one for Captain Daly's men and it was not long before they began to give way before the unprecedented onslaughts of the Yale men. Shortly after the kick-off of the second period, the Crimson supporters were thrown into a panic when Daly who had been limping, went to the side lines and Harvard had lost her great captain.

In rapid succession Harvard's men surrendered and before the game was over the Crimson team had played twenty men. The only Yale man to leave was Olcott, the centre, who, with five minutes to play, had sustained a blow on the head.

As the great contest neared its close, Harvard, with a delicious never-say-die spirit, made her best gains, but it was all futile against the impregnability of the Yale line. The Yale ends and even the guards and tackles, smothered effectually the attempted flankings of the ends. The predicted speed of Harvard was met by Yale with a speedier alertness and activity, which, together with the towering strength of the Yale line, resulted in Harvard's temporary oblivion.

The gridiron was in fine shape and 22,000 spectators watched the struggle. The teams lined up as follows:—

Yale.	Positions.	Harvard
Gould	Left End	Campbell
Bloomer	Left tackle	Eaton
Brown (capt)	left guard	Lee
Olcott	Centre	Sargent
Sheldon	right guard	Barnard
Stillman	right tackle	Laurence
Coy	right end	Hallowell
Fincke	quarterback	Daly (capt)
Sharpe	left half	Sawer
Chadwick	right half	Kendall
Hale	full back	Ellis

Umpire—Paul Dashiel of Lehigh.
Referee—M. McClung, of Lehigh.

HOW THE RECORD STANDS.

Since 1886 Yale has a decided advantage in the number of games won, the record being as follows:—

Year.	Yale.	Harvard.
1886	29	4
1887	17	8
1889	6	0
1890	6	12
1891	10	0

1893	6	0
1894	12	4
1897	0	0
1898	0	17
1899	0	0
Total	92	45

In 1888 Harvard forfeited to Yale, and in 1895 and 1896 no games were played, in consequence of the discussions growing out of the game of 1894, which severed athletic relations between the two universities for a time.

ONTARIO UNION AMENDMENTS.

A Conference of the Four Senior Clubs Was Held on Saturday and Changes Proposed.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—A conference of representatives of four senior clubs of Ontario Rugby Football Union was held on Saturday night at the Rossin House. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing proposed amendments to the constitution, rules and regulations of O.R.F.U. The following representatives were present:—

Ottawa—"Rob" Shillington, D'Arcy McGee, and Mr. Godfrey.

Hamilton—D. Gillies, W. A. Leggatt, and "Jack" Counsell.

Granites, Kingston—J. McDonald Mowat.

Argonauts—C. H. Meek, Fred. Thompson, and D. F. Maguire.

After considerable discussion behind closed doors, the following amendments were proposed, and were handed to Secretary J. D. McMurrich, of the O. R. F. U., for submission at the annual meeting of that body on December 8:—Rule 5 of constitution was amended as follows: "At all general and annual meetings each club in the union that has not defaulted a match in the previous season shall be entitled to representation as follows:—Clubs having a senior or two teams shall be entitled to two delegates and clubs having only a junior or intermediate team shall be entitled to one delegate exclusive of members of executive. Each delegate and each member of executive shall have one vote. Delegates must be members of clubs they represent, and must be resident of town or city or a bona-fide student of college which he represents, but no delegate shall represent more than one club. Ex-officers of union shall be entitled to be present at all general meetings, and may submit and speak to motions, but shall have no vote."

Rule 7 of the constitution was amended as follows:—"The officers of the union shall consist of a president, vice-president and a secretary-treasurer, who, with a committee of four, shall form the executive of the union. Four of executive shall form a quorum. No senior club shall have more than one member on the committee or more than two on the executive." A new section was proposed to the regulations, that where a tie occurs in the senior societies in any year, the executive shall name the place and time where the tie shall be played off. The executive is to run the gate, and after deducting the union's expenses of game and the expenses of two competing clubs, the net gate shall be divided. A recommendation will also be submitted at the annual meeting that the O.R.F.U. shall join the C.A.A.U. Saturday was the last day for receiving proposed amendments, and with the exception of the above, no others have been handed in to Secretary McMurrich.

Pastor Attacks Football.

New York, Nov. 26.—Monsignor George H. Doane, pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, brother of Bishop Doane, of Albany, has taken a stand against the game of football in an open letter. He writes:—

"I have never seen a prize fight, a bull fight, or a Rugby football game, but from the accounts I have read of them I should think they were equally brutal. Why call the Rugby game a game? Why not call it a battle? Why call it playing when it is fighting? The places where it is played are, I am told, equipped like a battlefield, with surgeons and stretchers, if not ambulances. It seems vain to raise a voice against it when you read that at Princeton last Saturday some $70,000 was spent to see Yale and Princeton hammer each other.

"It seems that this time no vital injuries were inflicted, but the reporters say that many were battered and bruised, and the captain of the Princeton team had to go home for a week to recover from the strain. We have laws against bull fights, dog fights and prize fights. Why is there not a law against such contests as these in which violence and roughness carry the day?"

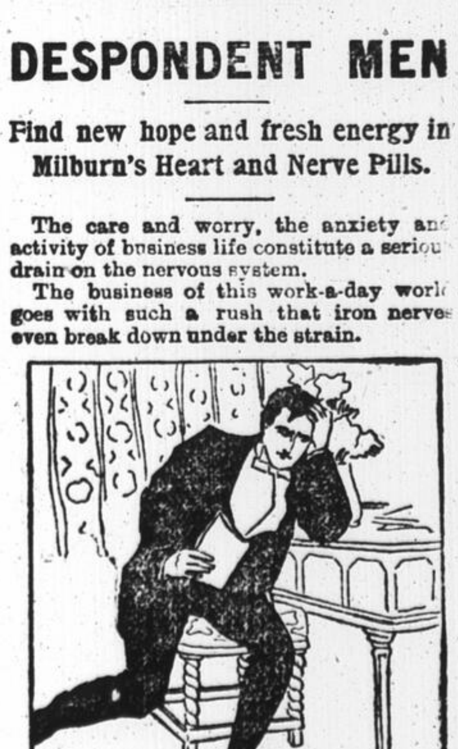
There were a very large number present, and the playing started shortly after eight o'clock, but at half-past ten, the time in which they decided to stop, the score was counted and each team had won 14 games. The boys did not want to go home with the score a tie, so they agreed to have the two captains, Mr. Law and Mr. Grannary, play the tie off, which, after a very exciting game, Mr. Grannary won by one point, and the score then stood: Stars, 14; Star Independents, 15.



DESPONDENT MEN

Find new hope and fresh energy in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

The care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-a-day world goes with such a rush that iron nerves even break down under the strain.

Men who want their brains bright and clear and all their energies alive should take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills on the first approach of a nerve break down. The reconstructive power of these pills on the nerve centres is simply marvellous. They induce sleep, restore vitality and vigor, and give new life to the mental and physical forces.

Middle aged men and men advanced in years are specially benefited by this remedy.

Mr. H. Hancock, of Hancock & Sadler, of the popular Iroquois Hotel, Galt, Ont., made the following statement: "I heartily recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to anyone needing a tonic for the nerves or requiring a medicine to build up the system when it becomes weakened and run down by too close application to business. I found the pills were just the medicine for my trouble. In fact after taking three boxes I felt so much better that now I would not be without them.

When I feel tired and worn out I take these valuable pills and find they recoup my nervous and physical strength. They seem to furnish just the elements required for reconstructing nerve tissue."

STOCKS ON THE DULL SIDE

Wall Street Opened Rather Firm for Some of the Leaders—The Local Market Tame.

There was nothing new or exciting born in the stock markets to-day, and on the whole things were exceedingly tame. The Wall Street market showed a smaller volume of trading than usual, and while the amount of business done locally of late has been particularly light it was even lighter this morning. The trading too did not develope [illegible] at 87, Street Railway at 274 1-2, North Star at 97, and War Eagle at 104.

The Wall Street market, having reached the point where it is merely a toss up which way it will go, is still believed in by a lareg number of bulls, and leading houses continue to send out any quantity of bullish literature. The majority of the stocks advanced at the opening, but there were some prominent exceptions, notably Steel and Wire, which dropped 1 1-4. American Ice, preferred, lost as much. There was a heavy absorption of the Southern Railway stocks, the preferred advancing 1 1-8. Northern Pacific, preferred, also rase over a point. The changes elsewhere were fractional. Business was not on as large a scale as it has been during the past week in the opening dealings.

Mr. C. D. Monk's messages said:—Good buying in Mo. P. for ten days past. Think it will go higher. Authorities in Copper look for prices to be maintained. Steel billets agreement between Carnegie and other interests very strong. Buy N.Y.C., Penna., and B.Q., especially N.Y.C. The London market generally firm and Americans showed in some cases an advance of 1-4 to 1-2 per cent. Southern R.R. common and pfd. have been accumulated by some large banking houses for several weeks, and on Saturday a sudden influx of buying orders gave uncommon strength to both stocks. The pfd. stock will go on a 4 per cent. basis early next year, and the common will share in the advance that is bound to come in the pfd. Common is slow to move, but a pool is formed in it now and it will sell much higher, frm 5 to 8 points advance. We look for the market to show more strength and believe it will do better.

A cable from London says: "The general settlement to begin on next Tuesday excites the greatest interest, and I could not better describe the uncertainty than by declaring that opinions as to the shortness or oversupply of American stock at the settlement are equally divided. The extent of the buying here suggests a greatly increased bull account, although many maintain that the purchases have been mainly against options to mature at the end of the month. But whatever position the settlement may disclose, opinion in the best-informed quarters is that the rise in the price of Americans is not over. The most sober of the press here are the first to incline to the opinion that the intrinsic merits of Americans have not been fully recognized."

MONTREAL MARKETS

IN A LOCAL WAY OATS ARE FIRM AND IN DEMAND.

Cheese Fails to Show Very Much Change—Butter Is Steady—Hog Market Firm.

There is a fair local demand for oats, exporters now of course being out of it owing to the close of navigation. In a local way 30c to 30¼c has been paid freely for car lots, ex store. Peas are firm at 68c ex store, and at points firm at 59c has been paid. Buckwheat is strong at 49c at points east.

Only a small business was done in flour, and the market is quiet at steady prices. Manitoba best spring patents, $4.35 to $4.40; winter wheat patents, $3.65 to $3.85; straight rollers, $3.15 to $3.40; in bags, $1.60 to $1.70; and Manitoba strong bakers, $4.05 to $4.10.

The demand for rolled oats was slow, but prices rule steady at $3.25 to $3.30 per barrel and at $1.57½ to $1.60 per bag.

The tone of the feed market is very firm under a good demand. Manitoba bran, in bags, $15; shorts, $17; mouillie, $20 to $24; Ontario bran, in bulk, $15.50 to $16; shorts, $17 to $18 per ton.

A fair trade was done in baled hay, and on account of the small receipts prices are firmly held. No. 1, $9.50 to $10.50; No. 2, $8.50 to $9; and clover, $7.75 to $8.25 per ton, in car lots, on track.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

The tone of the cheese market is just about the same, the demand centering chiefly on the later makes. Finest western Septembers, 11¼c to 11½c; finest western Octobers, 10½c to 10⅝c; finest late eastern, 10c to 10⅜c.

The butter market is fairly firm with a rather good local demand. Exporters have alone but little recently. Finest creamery, 20½c to 21c; seconds, 19½c to 20c; western dairy, 17c to 18c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

A fairly active trade was done in eggs to-day and the undertone to the market was firm. No. 1 candled stocks, 19c to 20c; No. 2, 15c to 16c; and culls, 12c to 14c per dozen.

The market for maple product was dull and featureless. Syrup, 70c to 75c per large tin, 50c to 60c per small tin and 6½c to 7c per lb. in wood; sugar, 9c to 10c.

There was no change in honey and the market was quiet. White clover comb, 13c to 14½c; white extracted, 8½c to 10c; buckwheat in comb, 10c to 12c; and extracted, 7c to 8c.

Only a small jobbing trade passed in beans and the tone of the market is easy. Canadian hand-picked, $1.35 to $1.45, and primes at $1.20 to $1.25.

POULTRY.

The market for paultry was quiet, but owing to the weather the tone of the market is firm. Turkeys sold at 9c to 10c, chieckens at 7c to 8c, fowls at 5½c to 6½c, geese at 6c to 7c, and ducks at 8c to 9c per lb.

DRESSED HOGS.

Receipts of dressed hogs so far this season have been small, for which the demand has been good; in consequence the tone of the market is firm at $6.50 to $7 for car lots, and at $7.12½ t o$7.25 per 100 lbs. in a jobbing way.

NO WHEAT QUOTATIONS

The storm interfered with the Chicago wheat quotations again to-day, and there was no news from that market up to one o'clock.

$ $ $

Speculatively, the big visible supply of wheat is the only consideration, while dealers and exporters are at a disadvantage in placing orders for cash wheat, which at principal receiving points is held for home milling or by elevator storage warehouses exclusively for the carrying charge profit. The latter is obtainable at price inducements, dependent on its replacement by farm deliveries. As the wheat movement from the farms lessens, elevator storage wheat may be expected to adopt a sliding scale of higher price premiums for the actual grain. November wheat at Chicago is already at a price premium over the December delivery, and this in the centre of a recent exceptionally heavy liquidation of speculative holdings. It is more than doubtful if 25,000,000 bushels of the apparent overburdensome 62,000,000 bushels visible wheat supply is obtainable without advancing cash wheat price materially.

CHEESE SHIPMENTS OVER 2,060,000

Montreal Sends Out a Record-Breaking Quantity to England This Year.

The cheese shipments from Montreal for the year are well over 2,000,000 boxes, an increase of over 160,000 boxes over the corresponding period last year. It has been one of the biggest years in the history of the Canadian produce trade, and the high prices that have ruled throughout the year mean that more money has been taken from England than ever before. The butter trade has been a little disappointing, the total shipments for the year being 256,196 packages, against 462,198 packages last year. The following table shows the shipments of cheese and butter from Montreal the past week, together with the comparative totals for the seasons:

THE GOLD MINES

Rossland, B.C., Nov. 24.—The diamond drill which began work in White Bear on Thursday last had bored a distance of 75 feet up to 6 o'clock this evening. This afternoon a seam of ore one and a half feet in width was passed through. It is a pyrrhotite and the characteristic ore of the camp, and is thought to be a stringer from the main vein. The output for the week is up to the average, but does not greatly exceed. The Centre Star is shipping a little less. The record for the camp for last year has already been beaten by 12 000 tons and the end of the week should place the total output beyond the 200,000 ton mark. Appended is a list of the shipments of the past week and the year to date:

PRODUCE IN LONDON

London, Nov. 24.—In last week's cable it should have been specified that the quotations were for summer goods, as later makes were nominal. However, demand for all sorts continued light this week, and with heavy stocks, prices on fall cheese have an easy tendency at 52s to 53s. With increasing stocks of butter and only moderate demand, values on it also are easier at 84s to 88s for ordinary, and 90s to 96s for creameries.

Stillwell's Increasing Business Is Troubling Some People.

A man was sent to Longue Pointe last week who had lost his reason trying to figure out how Stillwell can provide a complete three-course meal for 15 cents and still increase his patronage. It does seem strange, but we are proud to say it's true.

THE CHEESE BOARDS

London, Ont., Nov. 24.—At to-day's market five factories offered 1,510 boxes September and October cheese, colored. Sales, 210 at 10½c.

Cornwall, Nov. 25.—The last meeting of the Cornwall Cheese Board for the season of 1900 was held on Saturday, when 797 boxes of cheese were boarded, 526 of which were white and 271 colored. All sold at 9¾c. J. F. McGregor got 543 for Lovell & Christmas, J. A. McRae 50 for Hodgson Bros., and S. Wotherspoon 204 for A. A. Ayer & Co. The secretary's statement showed that 42,879 boxes had been boarded during the season, almost all of which had been sold on the board, bringing in about $250,000. The merchants of Cornwall are making arrangements to banquet the buyers, salesmen and cheese makers at an early date.

ENORMOUS DEPOSITS

CANADIAN BANKS SHOW PUBLIC HAVE LOTS OF MONEY.

Circulation Increases Largely, and the Loans Also Materially Expand.

The returns to the Government by the Canadian banks for October reflect a well sustained volume of business. Circulation has increased $2,000,000 odd on the preceding month, and is over $3,000,000 greater than it was in October last year. The accommodation given by the banks to the commercial community is another indication of a similar kind, as advances in the shape of loans and discounts have increased $4,000,000 over September, and are $16,000,000 more than they were in October, 1899. At the same time the accumulation of capital in the shape of deposits continues. Those on notice have increased over $1,000,000 during October, and are $12,000,000 greater than in October, 1899, and the gain in deposits on demand has also been marked. The banks have increased their loans on call to brokers, etc., in Canada a little over $1,000,000 during the month, and at the same time have also increased the sum loaned out abroad in the same way almost $1,000,000. Compared with last year this item shows an expansion of $26,500,000. The banks' holdings of Government, municipal and railway securities also show substantial increases as compared with the same period in 1899:

SHIPPING NEWS.

Cleared—November 24.

Steamship Etolia, Evans, Bristol, Elder, Dempster & Co., general.

Steamship Lake Champlain, Stewart, Liverpool, Elder, Dempster & Co., general.

Both leave to-morrow morning, and then the harbor will be clear, with only the Bengore Head and Bray Head to arrive.

MORE STEEL CARGOES.

The steamers Leafield and Theano arrived in port on Saturday from Conneaut, Ohio, with cargoes of steel for Liverpool. These two vessels are moored in the Wellington Basin, where they are completing loading. They will be probably joined today by the steamship Paliki, also from the upper lakes, with a cargo of steel.

HAD A ROUGH PASSAGE.

New York, Nov. 25.—The new French line steamship La Lorraine, which arrived this morning, experienced a hard time crossing. In addition to the weather, which was exceedingly rough, several accidents occurred to the machinery, which caused the vessel to slow down while repairs were being made. Her bridge rail was smashed in and there was a dent in the smoking room roof caused by the giant waves which broke over her forward.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Halifax, N.S., November 24.—During a snowstorm this afternoon residents of Ketch Harbor, 18 miles from here observed a large deep laden barque close in on the rocks in that vicinity. The vessel appeared to be in imminent danger of being dashed to pieces on the rocks, and the lifeboat at Duncan's Cove was quickly launched, manned, and put off, but before the life-savers could reach her she managed to wear ship and put out to sea again.

Those who saw the barque say that her escape from destruction was miraculous. What her nationality was could not be ascertained, as he was flying no colors. The vessel is thought to be an Italian barque, Venere, now 109 days out from Trapani, bound to Halifax, with a cargo of salt. Tugs are now out searching for her.

STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.

Halifax, November 24.—Steamship Dalton Hall put into Sydney this morning short of coal, 22 days from London.

Yokohama, Nov. 24.—The Canadian Pacific Railway steamship Empress of Japan arrived here from Vancouver at 8 a.m. yesterday.

New York, Nov. 25.—Arrived—La Lorraine, Havre; Minneapolis, London.

Liverpool, November 25.—Arrived—Ivernia, Boston,

Portland, November 25.—Arrived—Hibernian, Glasgow.

LAKE MEGANTIC PASSENGERS.

The first of the Elder-Dempster line boats running to Halifax during the winter months is the steamship Lake Megantic, Captain Taylor. She has on board the following saloon passengers:—J. W. T. Armytage, Mrs. Watts Etta, Mrs. N. Thenevy, Mr. P. Ball, Geo. Ringland, Rev. Mr. Howley, Mr. P. Morel, Nicholas D. Platuas, Clement B. Roswell, J. R. Beale, Miss Norton, Mr. C. Norton, Reginald Wife, Bertha Frankel, Wm. Hardy, Philippe Gachet, Wm. Taylor, Morris Rosenberg, Jacob Horn, John Rowe.

CHANGE IN I.C.R. SERVICE.

Some changes of the service of the Intercolonial Railway come into operation on Monday. The most important relates to the Maritime express, from Halifax and St. John, which will arrive here at 5.20 p.m. instead of 7.30. This will enable passengers from the Maritime Provinces to proceed to Ottawa by the Canada Atlantic train which leaves at 5.50, instead of having to remain over night in this city.

A Severe Case of Bad Blood and Run Down Health which was Completely Cured by the Blood-purifying Power of

BURDOCK
BLOOD
BITTERS

Mr. O. P. Stamer, Victoria, B. C., recently wrote the following letter:

"In the year 1887 I resided near Guelph, Ont., at Gourock. At that time my system was completely run down on account of my blood being impure and watery. I kept going from bad to worse and suffered a great deal from carbuncles on my neck. I tried the doctor at Hespeler, Ont., but finding his treatment and medicine very costly and very slow in their action I decided to give B.B.B. a fair trial. I purchased five dollars' worth and took it faithfully according to directions, and the result was that I was soon completely cured.

"Since then I have always kept B.B.B. on hand, and consider that one dollar's worth of it is equivalent to five dollars' worth of doctors' medicine.

SCENES OF GAIETY WELCOMED KRUGER

When He Reached Paris on Saturday Afternoon.

NO ANTI-BRITISH OUTBURST.

The Ex-President Called on the President of the Republic—Passed a Quiet Sunday.

Paris, November 25.—Paris, while giving full vent to her pent up feelings of sympathy with and admiration for the Boers in its reception to Mr. Kruger to-day, comported herself with wisdom and prudence. While a few isolated instances of anti-British vociferations were unavoidable, never once throughout the day was there any semblance of an organized demonstration against Great Britain to mar the unrestrainedly enthusiastic, but essentially reassuring character of the reception; and it was with a feeling of relief that the authorities went to bed after the gloomy forebodings inspired by the unfortunate incidents which had marked previous welcomes given to Mr. Kruger en route to the French capital. Mr. Kruger's secretary announces that his chief will remain in France only a short time, going thence to Holland, where he will make an equally brief stay. After which he will return to the Mediterranean for the benefit of his health.

The station hall had been especially arranged as a salon of honor, being profusely decorated with flowers, and there Mr. Kruger was to be formally received by the mayor and municipal councillors. But for some reason the mayor welcomed him on the platform instead, and Mr. Kruger, to the great disappointment of those waiting in the salon of honor, passed out through another door, where a landau was drawn up. He was at once driven to his hotel, amid a cyclone of enthusiastic cheering. A large escort of mounted municipal guards rode around Mr. Kruger's carriage.

PARIS WENT WILD.

Along the main boulevards the crowds increased in size, and as Mr. Kruger reached the central portion of the city the sidewalks were blocked, and every window was crowded with cheering sightseers. Many persons were in trees and on boxes, chairs and ladders. Within two blocks of the hotel the streets were so crowded that progress was impeded. A space extending half a block from the hotel was cordoned by rows of mounted Republican Guards, augmented by files of armed Municipal Guards. When the Boer president entered this area the demonstration became uproarious. Mr. Kruger, bareheaded, bowed on all sides, while the air was rent with cries of "Vive Kruger," "Vive les Boers." Mr. Kruger quickly alighted from his carriage, and entered the hotel, but the mass of spectators was not satisfied, and the people shouted, yelled and clapped their hands in chorus until a window on the balcony was opened and Mr. Kruger appeared. Then hats were again thrown into the air, and the shouting was resumed with renewed vigor. The scene before the hotel continued for over an hour. A sight which stirred the feelings of the crowd to the utmost was the appearance on the balcony of the great grandchildren of Mr. Kruger, waving a Boer flag. The little ones were cheered to the echo as, held aloft by a servant, they unfurled the Boer colors.

Mr. Kruger at his hotel received in rapid succession a number of deputations, including one from the Nationalist deputies, headed by MM. Millevoye and Lasies. He afterwards received the Prefect of Police, M. Lepine, and M. DeVillebois-Mareuil, a brother of the famous French colonel who was killed in South Africa while fighting for the Boers. Mr. Kruger then retired to his room, declaring he was fatigued and said he would see nobody.

INVITED TO THE ELYSEE.

M. Crozier, chief of the Protocole, called at 2.15 p.m., and Mr. Kruger, who was sleeping, arose to receive him. M. Crozier announced that President Loubet was prepared to receive Mr. Kruger at 4 o'clock, and the tired traveller prepared himself to visit the Elysee.

Just before four o'clock a gala landau from the Elysee Palace was driven to the Hotel Scribe and Mr. Kruger, his interpreter and M. Crozier, proceeded to the Elysee, escorted by a strong detachment of Cuirassiers. The scenes of enthusiasm of the morning were repeated, Mr. Kruger was received at the Elysee with semi-official ceremonies such as were accorded to the soverigns who visited the exhibition. A battalion of infantry, with its standard and band, drawn up in the court-yard rendered the honors.

President Loubet received Mr. Kruger in the Hall of the Ambassadors, where M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, was also awaiting him. The interview lasted five minutes. Mr. Kruger then returned to his hotel with the same ceremonial.

The Boer statesman wore across the breast of his frock coat a green scarf with a red border, the insignia of his office as president of the South African Republic. He also wore the cross of the Legion of Honor.

M. Loubet returned Mr. Kruger's visit at 4.30 p.m. The French President was warmly acclaimed during his drive to the Hotel Scribe, and during his stay at the hotel the crowds raised the shouts of "Vive Kruger" and "Vive Loubet." The Temps' semi-official this evening, laying stress on the dignified demonstration today, and the absence of Anglophobism, says:—

"Mr. Kruger's mission may prove to be practically unfruitful, but his protest will be heard by the civilized world, and his last duty, as chief of his nation, will be fulfilled. The spectacle he will present will not be useless."

After President Loubet's departure, Mr. Kruger withdrew to his own room and declined to see further visitors, even the officials of the Municipal Council, who were desirous of ascertaining the day on which he would accept a reception at the Hotel de Ville, being refused, and leaving in a very discontented frame of mind.

Mr. Kruger dined with members of his family at 6.30. He was very much fatigued and retired early. He will not leave the hotel to-morrow, even to attend Protestant services, nor will he receive any visitors.

A QUIET SABBATH.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Mr. Kruger passed Sunday with his family at the Hotel Scribe, observing the Sabbath in accordance with the customs of his fatherland. His apartments were closed to visitors, and he remained within the hotel for perfect rest. The boulevards were alive to a late hour last night with merrymakers, the Hotel Scribe was cordoned, and the revellers did not disturb his rest. This morning found him quite refreshed from the fatigue. After an early breakfast he conferred with Dr. Leyds. There being no church of his own denomination in Paris, he held a private service in his apartments surrounded by his entourage. Mr. Kruger read a portion of Scripture, and a member of his suite read a sermon prepared in advance. The Boer statesman expressed a desire to have an organ to assist the singing, but this could not be obtained.

At an early hour free circulation was resumed in the streets about the hotel, whose only guardians, two policemen, stood on either side of the principal entrance. The number of passers-by was not greater than the ordinary Sunday crowd. Toward three o'clock, however, pedestrians increased, and along the boulevard came one hundred shouting and singing boys. Their advent increased the enthusiasm, which was rapidly worked up, and the streets began to fill. Cheers for Mr. Kruger began and the police immediately established a cordon about the hotel. Several companies of the Republican Guards quickly arrived.

In half an hour the scene resembled that of yesterday. Responding to cries and plaudits, Mr. Kruger came for a moment upon the balcony, accompanied by his grand-daughter. Again at five o'clock the tumult was such that he reappeared, but only for a moment.

During the afternoon and early evening there was no falling off in number of spectators. It was ten o'clock before the people sufficiently disappeared to permit the circulation of carriages.

Some manifestations of an unimportant character occurred during the afternoon in front of the offices of the Libre Parole and the Intransigeant, but the police quickly dispersed the demonstrators, arresting some who had uttered anti-British cries.

Many cards were left at the Hotel Scribe during the day, among them those of M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, and other high officials of the foreign office.

Mr. Kruger will spend to-morrow morning in conversing with the Boer representatives. The afternoon will be devoted to receiving deputations and prominent people who have made appointments. No decision, it is understood, has been reached as to when Mr. Kruger will leave Paris. According to the best information obtainable this evening, he will remain here until Wednesday evening or Thursday morning. It is said he will go directly to Holland.

A GALLANT RESCUE

Made by a Volunteer Lifeboat Crew in a Blinding Snowstorm on Lake Ontario.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—In the snowstorm that raged Saturday night and yesterday the three-masted schooner Augusta, of this port, owned and commanded by Captain Ure, while on her way to this city from Charlotte, was driven out of her course and went ashore, just before dawn, about a mile west of Port Credit. She took the ground on a shingly beach with flat stones, and the sea broke over her badly. A volunteer lifeboat crew from Port Credit tried to rescue the six men on board, but failed owing to the roughness of the surf, and in answer to the request of the captain of the Augusta, sent ashore in a bottle, the Britannia lifeboat of this city went out. She is a big boat and made a number of attempts to reach the Augusta, but failed to do so, as the vessel was lying so close to shore that the lifeboat could not reach her lee side, and the boat would have been smashed on the weather bow. The crew were finally landed by the Port Credit volunteer crew, after a gallant fight with the storm. The Augusta is valued at $6,000 and is uninsured. Her cargo is worth between $3,000 and $4,000, and is uninsured.

The schooner Jessie Drummond, also bound from Charlotte to Toronto, coal laden, is lying anchored about a mile out from Port Credit, to-night with the Dominion Government lifeboat, commanded by William Ward, lying by. She also was blown out of her course, but as it was then daylight, her captain was able to avoid being driven ashore. The Drummond is leaking badly and may founder before morning. A tug has been dispatched from the city to bring her in if possible.

HURRIED TO CRUEL DEATH FROM SLEEP

Steamer St. Olaf, of Quebec, Went Down in a Snowstorm.

NOT A SOUL SURVIVED.

Captain Lemaistre, Her Commander, Belonged to Montreal—Only One Body Has Been Found.

Quebec, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—Some time during the blinding snowstorm of Wednesday night the coasting steamer St. Olaf, of this port, crashed upon the jagged rocks of Boule Island. When, exactly, or how the disaster occurred will never probably be known, for of all that good ship's company not a soul remains alive to tell the tale.

It was the discovery of a mail bag by a boy on the beach that first led the residents of one of the Seven Islands to suspect that a disaster had taken place. A party was organized at once and the beach searched. Suddenly the party was horrified to come upon the body of a girl almost buried in the snow that had fallen during the night. The girl was clad in her night robes, which would indicate that the St. Olaf had gone ashore in the night.

Up to a late hour Saturday afternoon that was the only body found.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS.

A dispatch from Seven Islands states:—Saturday morning, with the assistance of the steam schooner Marie Josephine, a party of thirty men started from here for the scene of the disaster. The party searched every nook and corner on the island for some trace of the unfortunate victims, but without success. The only body found so far is that of the girl, who has been identified as Miss Marie Page, of Thunder River.

Everything indicates, and the searching party has every reason to believe that the passengers and crew landed alive on the island but subsequently perished from cold and exposure, and the bodies now lie under the snow, of which several feet fell after the steamer was wrecked. What makes this story plausible is the fact of the finding by the searchers of a pail of lard some distance from the shore, no doubt carried there by some one from the wrecked steamer. The three lifeboats were found on the shore broken to pieces.

Another searching party will start early to-morrow and endeavor to find some trace of the victims. Two mail bags were found to-day. The inhabitants of Seven Islands are terribly agitated over the fearful catastrophe, and there is no scarcity of willing hands to join in the search; in fact, the party leaving to-morrow say they will follow the beach inch by inch in the hope of finding some of the bodies. The wreck of the St. Olaf is most complete. She is broken in four, and the beach is strewn with wreckage for a great distance. The people do not understand how such a fine and powerful steamer could go to pieces in so short a time. Further details will hardly be received from the scene of the wreck before to-morrow afternoon or evening.

The St. Olaf was an iron steamer built at Port Glasgow, on the Clyde, in 1882, and previous to coming to this port ran between Pictou, N.S., and the Magdalen Islands. She was then in command of Captain Lemaistre, who remained in command ever since. When the steamer Otter was wrecked on her last trip to Quebec, two years ago, her owners, Messrs. A. Fraser & Co., put the St. Olaf on the latter's route, and she has been running along the coast ever since, carrying passengers, mails and large quantities of cargo. The ill-fated steamer left here on her last downward trip on Sunday morning, November 18, and was on her way to this port to go into winter quarters when the disaster occurred.

The St. Olaf was in command of Captain Lemaistre, an old and most reliable seafaring man, who was well acquainted with every port of the North Shore. His crew, shipped last spring, were men from this city, Levis and parishes down east, and was composed of the following:—Louis Caron, first mate; Charles Boudreau, second mate; F. N. Veit, purser; Joseph Aremblay, steward; Joseph Roy, cook; Arthur Lawrence, alias Lamarre; James Gauthier, Sam Doyle, William Blainey, seamen; Amedee Mignault, lamp trimmer; Joseph Arseneau, cabin boy; Gust. Lafleur, messroom boy; Eugene Belanger, chief engineer; Joseph Brunelle, second engineer; Wilfrid Belanger, third engineer; Odilon Cormier, Johnny Gagne, Thomas Doyle, firemen.

Besides the above, Arthur Rousseau, a young man of this city, who has been engineer for the tug St. George for the last three years, was on board.

THE LIST OF DROWNED.

During the latter part of last week the signal stations reported rough weather and gales of wind and snowstorms, and it is supposed that during one of these gales the St. Olaf ran ashore on one of the rocks at the entrance of the Seven Islands. Captain Lemaistre, who was in command of the steamer, was a most experienced and able seaman and was a native of the island of Jersey. He leaves a widow and several children, who are residents of Montreal, one of the sons being an employe of Tooke Bros., in that city, and another is a medical student there.

Arthur Rousseau, one of the victims, has for the last three years been employed as engineer on Messrs. Jalbert's tug St. George.

The tug went into winter quarters a short time ago, and poor Rousseau, who was only 24 years of age, went down as an extra fireman on the illfated vessel. He leaves a wife and two children in this city, the former being only 22 years old. The scene to-day at the Rousseau residence, Breakneck Steps, was heartrending. The young wife was completely distracted with grief although a number of her relations and friends were trying to encourage her by stating that probably some of the crew and passengers had taken to the boats and would be picked up.

STILL CLING TO HOPE.

A number of persons who have relations and friends on board the St. Olaf still cling to the hope that a number of those on board have taken to the boats and gone towards the south shore, which is about eighty miles opposite Seven Islands. This seems to be an impossibility, as, judging from the fact that Miss Page, when found, was attired in her night robes, it is reasonable to suppose that the accident happened during the night and none had time to escape.

Mr. Louis Gagnon, who was a passenger on board, owned a lobster cannery at Pentecost, and is a brother of Mr. Antoine Gagnon, of this city, who also owns a mill at Pentecost. The latter's steam schooner, Marie Josephine, went from Pentecost to Seven Islands to search for the bodies of the victims.

Mr. Eugene Belanger, chief engineer, and Wilfrid Belanger, third engineer, are father and son, and were residents of Levis, where the former leaves a large family.

First Mate Louis Caron was a resident of Cap St. Ignace, where his wife is reported to be dangerously ill, while Second Engineer Joseph Brunelle also leaves a wife and family at Levis. Mrs. Brunelle, on learning of the disaster, fainted away and was reported seriously ill yesterday.

GRAVE ALARM FELT

REGARDING THE ISSUE OF THE CZAR'S ILLNESS.

It Is Asserted that His Physicians Are Holding Back the Facts—Special Prayers Ordered.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.—The following bulletin was issued yesterday at Lividia:—"The Czar passed a quiet day yesterday. His Majesty slept well during the night. This morning his general condition and strength are satisfactory. No complications whatever have been observed."

TRUTH BEING CONCEALED.

Berlin, Nov. 26.—The following special dispatch, dated St. Petersburg, November 25, 3.40 a.m., has been received here:—"It is persistently rumored in St. Petersburg that the condition of Emperor Nicholas is critical. Well-informed people here declare that the disease has made far greater progress than the Czar's physicians have published. A fatal issue is now gravely feared."

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.—From three sources of information, directly connected with as many Ministers of State, the correspondent of the Associated Press ascertained that Imperial officials are being extremely pessimistic regarding the condition of Emperor Nicholas and assert that the Lividia bulletins conceal the gravity of his illness.

PRAYERS ORDERED.

New York, Nov. 25.—Mr. Isaac N. Ford, in his special cable letter to the New York Tribune, this morning, says:—"The latest telegrams tend to increase rather than to diminish the apprehension respecting the Czar's condition, and there is apparently a deep feeling of uneasiness and alarm among the great dignitaries at St. Petersburg, although the rumor about a regency has not been fully confirmed. When special prayers are ordered throughout Russia by the Holy Synod for the Czar's restoration to health there may well be uncertainty in all European capitals respecting the maintenance of the strongest bulwark of peace in the Far East. While the Czar lives there is reason to expect a prudent and statesmanlike settlement of the China question.

TORONTO PRINTERS.

The Pressfeeders Threaten a Strike Which Might Involve the Whole Trade.

Toronto, November 26.—The assistant printing press feeders on Saturday night served formal notice on their employers that unless an advance in wages from $7 to $9 per week is made by Monday next they will go on strike. Negotiations are now in progress with the employers, and if they fail it is feared the strike will involve the whole printing trade.

WOULD TAX FURNITURE.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The taxation of household furniture was the startling prositon advanced before the assessment commission on Friday by Frank Mackelcan, on behalf of the municipal association. Mr. Mackelcan proposed that all furniture be assessed with an exemption from taxation of $700, as in the case of incomes. This would let the tax fall on the wealthy, who have large sums invested in costly furniture and bric-a-brac.

KITCHENER WILL MAKE A CHANGE

He is Expected to Stop the Brigandage.

WHICH THE WAR NOW IS.

General Buller Will Receive a Peerage, and Other Consolation Prizes Will Be Offered.

New York, Nov. 25.—In a special to the New York Tribune, dated London, 6 a.m., Mr. Isaac N. Ford says of military operations in South Africa:

"The resistance of the Boer guerillas continues unabated, but does not lead to any decisive results. Apparently there is only one commando with a strength of one thousand men, and that is one which has been fighting Smith-Dorrien's brigade. The other bands engaged in what the English leader writers describe as brigandage, do not exceed five hundred men, and the bulk of the fighting for the Boer cause is now done by bands of two hundred men, without artillery. These hostile forces are recruited wherever they go, and maintain their strength unimpaired, notwithstanding the constant capture of prisoners and slaughter of men by twos and threes. These operations cannot be properly dignified with the name of war, and even the ingenious and imaginative Dr. Leyds will find it difficult to make out a case for international intervention. Military journals here continue to complain of rosewater methods of suppressing these Boer outbreaks, and reluctantly admit that sentimental considerations will prevail until General Kitchener replaces Lord Roberts.

KITCHENER'S PROMOTION.

The promotion of Lord Kitchener to the rank of lieutenant-general, was the chief result yesterday of the Cabinet Council. He attains this dignity at the age of 50, and is now fully equipped to take Lord Roberts' place in South Africa without exciting jealousy over points of seniority and military etiquette. Lord Kitchener is almost the only general in the British army who is without a social clique in London. He detests society, and is no carpet-knight; he even has the reputation of being a woman-hater. He has, however, what is more valuable than society prestige, namely, the active support of the Prime Minister. Lord Salisbury has the greatest admiration for him, and is probably responsible for his succession to the chief command in South Africa, as he was for his appointment as chief of staff last December.

The Times is publishing an important series of articles on the weak points and general inefficiency of the present military system. Mr. Brodrick is making an exhaustive study of the subject of the War Office, but military experts are not looking for radical or far-reaching reforms.

A SCOURGE INEXORABLE.

London, November 25.—The forthcoming promotion of Major-General Lord Kitchener to a lieutenant-generalship elicits from poor old Charles Williams, one of the leaders of the war critics, but whose mental faculties are not regarded as intact, the bitterest indictment of that General ever published in England. He declares General Kitchener meditates a reckless and ruthless extermination of the Boers, hoping to execute his atrocities amid silence, like that of the Tomb of the Mahdi. He believes the British officers and men will not endure this and that Kitchener will stand revealed to the country as a scourge inexorable. Mr. Williams maintains that the return of several general officers and the removal of General Kelly-Kenny from Bloemfontein confirms the suspicion that they would "have nothing to do with Kitchener's dirty work." It is almost needless to say that this bitter attack by no means represents the average opinion.

A PEERAGE FOR BULLER.

London, November 24.—General Buller's home newspaper, the North Devon Herald, says it understands the general will be made a peer when the New Year honor list is issued, and that he will assume the title of Lord Buller of Ladysmith.

BANK MANAGER DEAD.

Mr. George A. Schofield, of the Bank of New Brunswick, Passes Away After Forty Years' Service.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Mr. George A. Schofield, manager of the Bank of New Brunswick since 1891, and for forty years in the bank's service, died yesterday from the effects of an attack of paralysis, a few weeks ago, aged 59. Under his regime the bank became one of the most successful monetary institutions in Canada.

He was a son of the late Rev. George Schofield, for some time rector of Simonds, N.B., and was born in England. He was for a short time with Mr. W. G. Lawton, a St. John dry goods merchant, before entering the Bank of New Brunswick. He was vice-president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, a prominent member of the Church of England, and an active figure in the Diocesan Synod, where his advice in matters affecting temporalities of the Church was highly estimated.

When 22 years of age he married the daughter of the late Mr. Thos. Allan, of St. John West, who, with five sons and three daughters, survives him. Two sons, Herbert B., and E. Allan, constitute the firm of Schofield Bros., agents here for the Eddy paper mills, of Ottawa. Another son is rector of Hampton, N.B., and still another is member of the St John commission house of Jones & Schofield.

The deceased was one of the directors of the Great West Life Insurance Company

THIRTY-SEVEN MILES AN HOUR

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Heavy cars, each holding sixty passengers, travelled easily thirty-seven miles in one hour over the Albany and Hudson Electric Railway at its formal opening. The road is interesting in that it is the longest "third rail" road in the world, and, although an experiment, it seems to be a perfect success.

The road runs through a hilly country, but the cars mount the grades without apparent trouble. The electricians present at the opening said that electricity would supplant steam on the railroads in the near future, and that the success of the new "third rail" road would go far toward hastening the change.

THE MONTICELLO ENQUIRY.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The enquiry into the Monticello disaster was closed on Friday. Mr. D. L. Hutchinson, of St. John Meteorological Observatory, testified to the fury of the storm, the sea at the breakwater being the worst he had ever seen. He thought it would have been prudent for the captain of the Monticello to have made enquiries of witness regarding the weather the day he sailed.
