World News In Brief

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—Raymond Boyer, former McGill University Professor, will go on trial March 10 for his alleged part in the Soviet spy ring. Boyer appeared in court briefly Saturday and said he wished a French-speaking jury to decide whether he violated the Official Secrets Act as charged.

Hamburg, Feb. 3.—(P)—A British military court today convicted as war criminals 15 Nazi attendants at Ravensbrück concentration camp for women, where thousands of inmates—mostly Poles—were reported to have died from brutal and inhuman treatment.

Rouyn, Queb., Feb. 3.—(P)—Geoffrey Aucoin, Jehovah's Witness whose case has been before the courts since September, spent seven hours in Rouyn jail Saturday due to his own tardiness and his attorney's forgetfulness.

Aucoin, a First World War veteran, had been appearing every eight days since fall, and each time was remanded due to illness of the Rouyn magistrate. The charge was selling literature without a town permit.

The sect members' appearances every eight days had become a formality and his lawyer had drifted into the habit of not attending the ritual whereby Aucoin's $50 bail was automatically renewed.

However, Saturday morning the routine went askew. F. A. McNally, protentary who usually handled the bail renewals, was home with a cold, and Bruno Denis, justice of the peace, was on the bench.

Aucoin showed up half an hour late, explained he had been detained elsewhere. Mr. Denis promptly informed him his bail was defaulted and he would be confined to jail.

To the cells Aucoin went while Rouyn Witnesses of Jehovah sought the missing lawyer. The latter, Max J. Garmise, later persuaded the justice of the peace to reverse the decision after Aucoin spent seven hours in jail.

Tokyo, Feb. 3.—(P)—The International War Crimes Tribunal refused today to dismiss charges against any of the 26 Japanese wartime leaders on trial.

Individual motions on behalf of each of the defendants had been presented after the court declined to hear any general challenge of General MacArthur's powers to set up such a tribunal, or any challenge of the court's own authority.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—A Force of 250 detectives combed Montreal drinking spots and pool rooms Saturday night for the killers of 74-year-old Leon Feigenbaum and more than 150 persons were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Feigenbaum, second-hand store proprietor, was slain a week ago in a holdup. One youth is held in connection with the case.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—Six war barges purchased from War Assets Corporation are being converted for excursion service on the St. Lawrence and Lake Memphrigoog in the Eastern Townships. George F. Foss, president of Chester Lines Limited which will operate the showboats, said yesterday.

The converted barges will accommodate 300 passengers each and will feature observation decks, dance floors and soft-drink bars.

N.S. Miners Will Return To Pits As Contract Extended In Effort To End Dispute

Plea Rejected For Stay Of Execution In Gruner Case

Jerusalem, Feb. 3.—(P)—The Jerusalem Supreme Court rejected today a plea for an order staying the execution of Dov Gruner, Irgun Zvai Leumi member for whose life the underground organization kidnapped and later released a British judge and banker.

The ruling, which all quarters believed shattered any hope that Gruner would escape the hangman's rope, came while British authorities hastened the evacuation of British civilians preliminary to the adoption of strong measures to restore order.

A Tel Aviv attorney asked the court for an order staying Gruner's execution for complicity in an attack on a Ramat Gan police station. The court rejected the plea, ruling the death sentence was passed by military court and confirmed by the highest military officer, Gen Sir Evelyn Barker.

Jewish and government officials all expressed belief that Gruner would be hanged. It was doubted, however, that the execution would take place before the evacuation was completed as scheduled by tomorrow.

It was expected that a 24-hour curfew would be clamped on all Palestine should Gruner die, and that a declaration would be made that statutory martial law would be invoked should Irgun Zvai Leumi attempt reprisals.

Military crews were stringing barbed wire and erecting "security zones" into which Palestine government officials and other remaining British civilians will be moved.

Haganah, armed forces of the Jewish agency, said it could stamp out violence of the Jewish underground if the British would adopt a hands off policy.

A spokesman for Haganah asserted in an interview that his group could halt the activities of Irgun Zvai Leumi, extremist underground organization, in a few weeks "if the government would not interfere," but he added:

"We will not co-operate with the government while it holds to its present policy."

Asked what he meant by "interference," the spokesman replied: "Martial law, or even threats of martial law, would interfere with any plans we have drafted to deal with the dissidents. We must have a free hand."

"We could stop Irgun's propaganda and its training," he declared. "We could find its arm dumps. We could bring in some of its leaders. But we must do it by ourselves without interference from the government. We will not be informers."

The first British civilians to leave the Holy Land under the evacuation program decreed by British authorities were 30 women and children, who took off yesterday by plane. It is expected that a total of about 2,000 will be evacuated.

Chief Rabbi Isaac Herzog meanwhile planned another visit to the jail cell of Dov Gruner, condemned member of Irgun Zvai Leumi, in the hope of getting him to sign an application for an appeal that would forestall his execution. Herzog visited Gruner yesterday without result.

Jewish leaders have expressed fear that Gruner's execution—which may take place tomorrow—would be the signal for widespread Irgun reprisals.

In general the situation throughout the Holy Land was reported quiet but tense. British military patrols blocked all the roads leading to Jerusalem and searched all motor vehicles as the military pushed measures for combatting violence.

Government - Appointed Conciliator Given Another Thirteen Days To Settle Differences Existing Between Union and Dominion Steel and Coal.

By JOHN TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Sydney, N.S., Feb. 3.—(P)—

Maritime miners, who walked out of the pits Friday night as their contract with coal operators expired, were prepared today to return after union officers told them the agreement was being extended until February 15.

Extension of the contract from midnight tonight would give a government-appointed conciliator another 13 days to resolve the dispute with Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, largest Maritime operator, from whom United Mine Workers (C. C. L.) district 26 is seeking wage increases of $1.40 a day over the current basic rate of $5.84.

The dispute with Dosco, whose best offer to the union so far has been $1 a day conditional upon increased production, prevented drafting of a new contract and precipitated the short-lived but general walkout when 13,000 miners followed the U.M.W.'s "no contract—no work policy."

Just what progress the conciliator, Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, has been able to make in resolving the dispute has not been disclosed. All the judge would say after calling company and union representatives together Friday was, "the situation doesn't seem too bad."

But a brief union announcement yesterday said the men were to resume work and the contract was to be extended "owing to recent developments in the present wage situation." A union source—optimistic about final settlement—said "the developments have not been completed but evidently the union officers are satisfied that a satisfactory conclusion of the present wage situation can be brought about."

The source refused to go farther than that and the company declined comment. When Mr. Justice Carroll arrived here Friday with instructions from Labor Minister Mitchell to report his recommendations within 14 days, failing success in bringing Dosco and the U.M.W. together, he called in Freeman Jenkins,

New Opposition Strength

Coaticook Police Chief Foils Express Office Robbery—Hurt In Chase After Three Bandits

Coaticook, Feb. 3.—Chief Roch Dandaneault, of Coaticook, who foiled single-handed an attempt to hold up the Canadian National Railway Express office here in the early hours of Saturday morning, is today co-operating with Sherbrooke and Montreal detachments of the Provincial Police in investigating the affair.

The Chief sustained several broken ribs and facial injuries as he attempted to apprehend the three men. He reported that while on a routine inspection of the town's lighting system late Friday night he observed three men in the alleyway beside the express office and the Royal Bank of Canada.

"I went to the alleyway and discovered that the three were about to enter the express office. I was struck over the head with what I think was a blackjack and fell to ground. As I was getting up I was struck again. Grappling with the men, I was struck in the stomach, my uniform was torn and I fell to the ground once again." I probably stayed there two or three minutes.

Because it was dark, the Chief said he was not able to get a good look at the men, though "they were short and stout."

All three fled across the street to a parking lot and sped off in an auto. The Coaticook police chief took up the chase in his car and caught up to the fleeing automobile about eight miles out of town. After signalling the men to stop with his spotlight, Chief Dandaneault said he opened fire when the bandits' auto failed to stop. A flurry of shots were exchanged as the two cars travelled along Highway No. 50 at top speed.

"... I was driving with one hand and shooting with the other." Two of the shots from the fleeing car pierced the police car's fender.

Going out of control when the windshield froze after striking an ice hole, the police car smashed through a wooden fence and careened into a field.

Chief Dandaneault lost consciousness from the impact but proceeded to Coaticook later in his car driven by Albert Bussiere.

"BLACK ANGEL" SENTENCED TO DEATH

Hamburg, Feb. 3.—(P)—Carmen Mory, known as "The Black Angel," four other women and six men were sentenced by a British war crimes court today to die by hanging for crimes against humanity in the Ravensbrück women's concentration camp where British girl parachutists were shot by firing squads and 5,000 women murdered in gas chambers.

Two men among the 15 accused former members of the camp staff were sentenced to 15 years imprisonment and two women to 10 years.

Royal Ship Moves Into Fine Weather

Aboard H.M.S. Vanguard, Feb. 3.—(P)—Still buffeted by a heavy sea and gale, this battleship carrying the Royal Family to South Africa headed for the Canary Islands today with the prospect of calm, clear weather ahead.

Ship's officers said the Vanguard was slowly moving out of the bad weather zone and the daily newspaper published aboard carried notices of forthcoming deck hockey, deck tennis, medicine ball, pigeon shooting and cricket practice.

The roughest weather was encountered before the Vanguard and her escorting vessels—including the aircraft carrier Implacable and two cruisers—left the Bay of Biscay during the night.

Firemen Prevent Blaze Spreading

Cowansville, Que., Feb. 3.—Fast work by firemen was credited today with keeping the damage toll from going higher in a fire that caused damage estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000 in the three-story Bonavista Block here. Of undetermined origin, the fire broke out Friday night in the offices of the Southern Canada Power Co., and actual fire damage was confined to the company office. However, apartments and rooms on the two top floors suffered from smoke and water.

Some fears were held that flames might spread to the adjoining New Ottawa Hotel and guests were awakened. However, firemen brought the fire under control in a half-hour despite a high wind.

81 Below Is Recorded In Yukon Area

Blizzard That Crippled Western Transportation Rapidly Moving Eastward.

A real old-fashioned blizzard that swept the west with 60-mile gales and temperatures down to 45 below zero was rapidly moving eastward today. The storm which crippled western transportation is expected to skirt the north shore of Lake Superior and enter Northern Quebec today. Mild air and some rain for Southern Ontario will be followed by colder weather again tonight.

The western storm coincided with official announcement of the lowest temperature ever recorded on the North American Continent—81 below zero at Snag Airport in the Yukon, which had 78 below only a few days ago.

That mercury reading brought wry smiles to western cities and towns struggling in the worst storm of the winter. At Prince George, B.C., it was 16 below at the worst, but the mercury sank to 27 below at Edmonton, 29 below at Calgary, 39 below at Lethbridge and 45 below at Prince Albert. Regina was 30 below, Winnipeg 21 below.

Temperatures of 7 to 10 below zero were common in Northern Ontario Sunday but London and Toronto were comparatively mild at 16 and 13 above zero at the coldest.

It was in southern Saskatchewan that the full fury of the blizzard was felt yesterday. Many church services and meetings were cancelled. Mainline rail services were hours late and service was stopped altogether on some branch lines. Farmers feared there would be heavy loss of livestock caught in the cold and snow.

In the Swan River valley north of Regina several towns were isolated and a railway official at Regina called it "the worst snow conditions ever experienced in Canadian railroad history."

No western storm casualties had been reported early today, however. William Forsythe, 59, of Regina, earlier reported missing, was found safe in a home where he had taken shelter. Saskatoon, like Prince Albert and many other Saskatchewan communities, was snowbound with only a few buses battling four-foot drifts.

Even the Maritimes shivered, after enjoying extremely mild weather for the past week. Temperatures of 15 to 30 above were registered at Halifax.

Cabinet To Deal With Power Plan

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—Premier Duplessis of Quebec said at a press conference Saturday that at his meeting here Thursday with Premier Drew of Ontario the two provincial heads had discussed "problems which concern the two provinces and the question of power development on the Ottawa River."

"It is the policy of the Union National Government to collaborate with all provincial governments and the federal government along the lines of the spirit of the federative pact," Mr. Duplessis said. "We always understood and still understand that collaboration is not a one-way wheel."

The Quebec premier did not make public any details concerning the discussion. Asked if he would elaborate on the proposed power development, he commented that Premier Drew already had said he would submit the matter to the Ontario cabinet. He (Mr. Duplessis) would submit it to the Quebec cabinet.

"If there is a declaration to be made it will be made at the proper time by the proper persons," he said.

Mrs. Anthony Orner (above), St. Louis, went out with her husband to celebrate her birthday and returned home to find this wreckage. A freak, 42-mile-an-hour gale swept across her home and tore off the roof.

Young Slayer U.K. Blocked Breaks Jail, Meets Death In Complaint On Mine Case

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 3.—(P)—Victor Lloyd Everhart made good his boast that he would never die in the electric chair for slaying two Tulsa policemen, but the 23-year-old desperado's body lay in a morgue today, riddled by buckshot and bullets.

Three Oklahoma highway patrolmen killed Everhart yesterday on a highway 40 miles east of here, less than two hours after he and five others overpowered two guards and escaped.

Everhart was being held here on murder charges arising from the slaying of two detectives in a gun fight in Tulsa Sept. 12. Police said the young gunman also admitted slaying a Seneca, Mo., officer last September, and was wanted on homicide, kidnapping and armed robbery charges in Indiana.

Everhart separated from his fellows after they left the jail. Brandishing a pistol, he commandeered a taxi driven by Lester Hughes, 29, in which the driver's wife, Lois, 22, also was riding.

He forced Hughes to swerve past a highway patrol road block but three patrolmen overtook them when a tire blowout halted the taxi.

Lake Success, Feb. 3.—(P)—Albania, with an assist from Russia, appeared today to be successfully blocking efforts by Britain to bring the Corfu Channel mining complaint before the United Nations Security Council.

It has been three weeks since Great Britain lodged a formal complaint with the council against Albania. At that time the London Government charged Albanian with responsibility for mining in the Corfu Channel, where two British warships were damaged last October with 44 casualties.

Great Britain tossed the case into the hopper with lengthy documents and photographs. Albania and the major powers previously were notified that charges were being filed and admiralty experts were rushed here to testify.

But the case is still untouched because Albania has ignored council requests to send a representative to defend itself. The official Albanian explanation has been that communications are difficult between here and Europe. Obviously nettled by the delays, British authorities have made several attempts within the bounds of diplomacy to get the council started. But every move to open

Four "Witnesses" Skip Court Date

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—Bail of four Jehovah's Witnesses was ordered forfeited and warrants for their arrest issued when they failed to appear in Court of King's Bench Saturday to have dates set for their trial on seditious libel charges.

The four, Mrs. Rene Ouellette, Mrs. C. Blackstead, A. S. Gaskin and Charles McElvay, are charged in connection with distribution of the pamphlet "Quebec's Burning Hate," which assails the Catholic clergy and the Quebec government.

BARREMORE WAS THERE
While Clark Gable was on a pre-war South American vacation, his plane made a forced landing in a little God-forsaken seaport town. He was met at the airport by the local theater manager, who insisted that Clark make a personal appearance on the stage for the benefit of the natives.

"But I'm on a vacation," protested Clark. "And besides, those natives don't give a darn about movie stars. They've probably never seen one."

"Oh, yes, they have," said the theater man. "All the stars who visit here make personal appearances for me." Then he blushed a little and said, "Well, one did. He was here for a day once, on his yacht."

"Who?" asked Clark, incredulously because of the remoteness of the place, far from the main ship, rail and plane routes.

The theater manager pulled a photograph from his pocket and said, "Look!"

Clark looked. He saw a picture of the theater manager standing beside a shirtless man in a pea jacket, dirty white shorts and a heavy beard.

"I don't recognize him in that beard," said Clark.

"My audience did," said the theater man, reverently. "His name was John Barrymore."

JIM DEMARET WINS TUCSON GOLF CROWN

By EDDIE LEE

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 3.—(P)—Crooner Jim Demaret was en route to San Antonio, Texas, today with the Tucson Open Golf Crown on his head, $2,000 in prize money in his pocket and the hearts of this city's golf fans in the palm of his hand.

The flashily-dressed pro from Ojai, Calif., yesterday won the $10,000 Tucson Open for the second straight year with a smooth five-under par 65 and a 72-hole total of 264, four strokes lower than the record for the par 35-70 El Rio Country Club course he established last year.

He won the hearts of the citizens when he sang the popular song "Surrender" during the presentation of prizes.

Surrender was just what Demaret had refused to do as he teed off on the final 18 holes with a one-stroke lead over P. G. A. champion Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., who captured second place with 267. Hogan carded a 67 around the 6,400-yard layout yesterday.

One stroke back of Hogan was Jim Ferrier, transplanted Australian who calls Chicago home. Hogan drew $1,400, Merrier $1,000.

Grouped behind Ferrier at 270 were Herman Keiser, Akron, O., who established a new competitive course record for the club here with a second-round 92; Jim Turnesa, White Plains, N.Y., and Jack Hardin, of El Paso, Texas.

Tied at 271 were Lawson Little, Cleveland, and Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N.C., followed by United States open champion Lloyd Mangrum, of Chicago, George Schoux, San Francisco, Dale Anderson, and Eric Monti, both of Los Angeles, all at 272.

To get in the money the pros had to be at least six strokes better than par 280 and in all 47 golfers finished the 72 holes in regulation figures or better.

SLOCUM AWARD PRESENTED TO F. SHAUGHNESSY

New York, Feb. 3.—(P)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, has called upon club owners, sportswriters and fans to help "keep baseball clean and healthy."

Injecting a serious note at last night's annual dinner of the New York baseball writers attended by virtually all of the game's top executives, Frick asserted:

"These are uncertain times when we must strengthen rather than let down. . . . past standards. It is unfortunate that any player has acquaintance with any gambler, anytime. . . . It is unfortunate that undesirable too often are permitted the run of our ball parks and unthinkable that they should be permitted access to our club-houses."

"It is doubly unfortunate that actions off the field, acquaintances and associations of leisure hours, too often uncover the feet of clay of these idols whose conduct on the field is above reproach."

"It is unfortunate, too—and I say this advisedly—that those of us who own clubs, who are officials of leagues, who represent management and operation, too often condone in our own actions the shortcomings for which we hold our players guilty."

"If our house is to be kept in order we too must abide by the rules we set for others. . . ."

Stan Musial, star of the St. Louis Cardinals, received the Sid Mercer Memorial award as the player of the year while Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, was presented the Bill Slocum Award for meritorious service to the game over a long period.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

This is a story about a henpecked artist and how he put one over on his wife.

Hector Fitch usually painted his pictures in an old sweater and corduroy pants. The morning this story starts, he went to a closet and dug out the blue smock an aunt had sent him for Christmas.

His wife, Dora, came bouncing out of the bedroom. "Aren't you the artist this morning?" she soursupped. "Add a black beret, and you could rent yourself out for atmosphere to a Greenwich Village restaurant."

Hector made the same comeback he had been making for ten years—nothing.

"If you want breakfast," said Dora, briskly, "there's some corn flakes in the kitchen. I'm late for a meeting."

Hector watched his chunky wife go out the door. As usual, she was wearing a Gertrude Stein suit and harlequin glasses. The getup was a little too much, even for a modern artist, who painted trees to look like women and women to look like Diesel engines.

He often wished his wife would spend less time changing the world and more changing the sheets. He wished she'd resign from some of the different committees devoted to Bettering the Lot of Man. In ten years of married life, she had only fixed him one home cooked meal.

And the time the chops caught fire, fell in the dessert, and she had to use the soup to put out the flames.

His mental fly-catching was interrupted by the bell. He opened the door and admitted the model he had been waiting for.

Peggy Mullen was one of the prettiest fillies in the John Powers stable. Though she had been in New York less than a year, her face was already familiar to the students of toothpaste ads. When she took her place before his easel, Hector noticed she had the shapeliest legs he had ever seen—and other accessories to match.

The artist was a little nervous as he rought out his sketch. To pay for the paint and canvas he couldn't sell, he had accepted a commercial assignment to Hector. The model was already familiar to the students of toothpaste ads. When she took her place before his easel, Hector noticed she had the shapeliest legs he had ever seen—and other accessories to match.

"Is it all right if I talk?" asked Peggy. "This is the first time I've posed for a real artist. I usually mug for the camera. It's nice to be out from under those hot lights."

"You're much prettier than my last model," said Hector, wryly, thinking of the stuffed fish which had been the subject of his last still life.

It took him three days to finish the picture of Peggy. To his amazement, he discovered she thought artists were wonderful. By the second sitting, she had narrowed down to Hector. The soft-eyed little man with his hair every which way was a nice change after the over-barbered executives of the advertising agencies. Hector blushed when she told him he had "the hands of a creative person."

He had never thought of his mitts except as things with which to button his shirt.

Loosened up by a little appreciation, Hector rambled on about his ideas. He was meeting with Matisses, the glistetta he painted in Marseilles, the chestnut vendor in the Luxembourg Gardens. By the third sitting, Peggy was seeing Hector as the spirit of Montparnasse, the Beaux Arts Ball, and La Vie Parisienne.

When the picture was finished, she told him frankly, "I'd like to see you again."

"Why don't you have lunch with me Saturday afternoon?" suggested Hector. Then he gulped. Was this the husband of Dora speaking?

"Will you take me where the artists go?" asked Peggy.

"Sure," said Hector. "Little Bohemia, on East 11th Street. Meet you there at one o'clock."

Friday night, when he got home, Hector found Dora waiting for him with a letter in her hand. Her face was redder than her politics.

"From your. . . your. . . other woman!" she shrieked.

It was from Peggy. "Dear Hector," it read, "The agency likes the picture fine. See you at Little Bohemia at one. Until Saturday, Yours, Peggy."

For the first time in 3,650 days, Hector stood up to his wife. "You might have the decency not to open my mail," he said, coldly.

This is a family paper, and I cannot give you Dora's reply. She finished by telling him that if he kept his date, she'd get up on a chair at Little Bohemia and tell the world what a miserable lecher he was. Then she stomped out as if she were marching four abreast across Union Square.

That night, Hector walked the streets wondering what to do. He knew Dora wouldn't stop at barging into the restaurant and screaming the place down. As he walked down 11th Street, he noticed a commotion in front of Little Bohemia. He smiled, went home, and slept fine that night.

The next day, Hector kept his date. The proprietor let him in the back way. Peggy was there waiting.

They lunched and talked. Had cocktails and talked. Then dinner and more talk. It was the nicest day that had ever happened to Hector. Somewhere around midnight, he asked for the check. The proprietor let them out the back way. He had never once worried about Dora.

Ever since, Hector has been a great believer in the rights of the working man. The commotion in front of the Bohemia the previous night had been over a labor dispute.

He had kept his date with Peggy, knowing darn well Dora would never cross a picket line.

Russell Wallace Acquitted At Trial On Manslaughter Charge

Following fifteen minutes' deliberation on Saturday afternoon, a twelve-man jury acquitted Russell Wallace, 28, of Stanstead, of a charge of manslaughter. The verdict was returned at 2:35 o'clock and after Defence Counsel Cesar Gervais was informed by the Crown that no further charges would be laid against his client, Wallace was ordered freed by the presiding judge, Mr. Justice C. D. White. The five-day-old trial was brought to a close on Saturday and leaves only one more case on the roster of the Criminal Assizes Court, which opened late last October. The case of Gordon Harvey, Capetown, will open tomorrow. Harvey is charged with the illegal wounding of Guy McElreavy, 16, of Lennoxville on the night of October 31.

Young McElreavy, who suffered a wound under his left arm on the Capetown Road on Halloween night, was taken to the Sherbrooke Hospital where X-ray revealed he suffered a punctured lung. He was confined to hospital for twelve days.

Trial of Wallace, who was charged with manslaughter following the death of two Drummondville motorcycleists, Roger Thibault, 18, and Guy Melancon, 19, opened last Tuesday. Highlight of the hearing was the presentation of a defence witness, Dr. Israel Rabinowitch, assistant professor of medicine at

ALD. FISETTE LED COUNCIL IN ATTENDANCE

To Alderman Armand Fiset goes the distinction of having the highest attendance average of all the city fathers at meetings of the Council as a committee of the whole during the year 1946 according to a statistical report released by City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers. Alderman Fiset, with a 98.7 average built up through attendance at all but one of the 77 committee-of-the-whole meetings called in the past year, not only showed the way to his confreres in this department, but boasted as well a total average of 96.5 per cent as a result of attending all but one of the 23 regular council meetings held in 1946.

Tied with Alderman Fiset for highest attendance honors in the council sessions are Aldermen Hector Lanctot and Albert Charpentier, while His Worship Mayor Guy Bryant and Aldermen Paul-Emile Hamel and Olivia Deslauriers had an average of 92.9 per cent through attendance at all but two of the meetings. Second place, with an average of 97.4, in the committee-of-the-whole statistics is held by Alderman Charpentier.

Average attendance at council meetings held in 1946 was shown to be 87.5 per cent, this figure being slightly below that of 89.6 per cent for 1945 and considerably less than the 96.8 per cent registered in 1944. Average for 1947 was 92.9 per cent and that for 1942 was given at 95.8. Attendance at meetings of committee-of-the-whole averaged 79.5 per cent in the past year.

"Militant Leadership" Urged In Holy Name Society Address

An appeal for "militant leadership" today with principles of the St. Patrick's Holy Name Society as a guide was made last evening by John W. Long, K.C., of Montreal, in an address delivered on the occasion of the society's annual banquet held in the New Chateau Frontenac Hotel.

Culminating event arranged in connection with the observance of Holy Name Sunday, the banquet last night marked the first instance in which an invitation had been extended to ladies of the St. Patrick's parish. Accordingly a large audience was officially welcomed in an opening address by the president, G. S. Sampson.

Mr. Long quoted historians and facts to show that many of this province's oldest and most respected families had their roots in Irish ancestry, although in many cases the names failed to indicate as much.

Using a noted historian as his source of information, the speaker began with the existence in France's eighteenth century army of a group of Irish volunteers known as the Irish Brigade. Prompted by a traditional hatred of the English, the brigade members offered their services to the struggle with the British. Numbering more than 400,000, these Irish volunteers were said to have played a prominent part in the Franco-British war.

In 1745, however, a treaty between the two nations saw the inclusion of a clause whereby the French monarch agreed not to use the services of the Irish brigade against the English, and as a result the Irishmen left France some years later.

Coming to Quebec, the brigade was split, two regiments being sent to the present site of Kingston and two kept for the strongholds of Montreal and Quebec, this information being supplied by de Vaudreuil.

On Canadian soil, the Irish again distinguished themselves against the English, highlights of their campaign being the capture of Oswego and Ticonderoga, the latter encounter resulting in the dispersion by 4,000 Irish troops of a much larger English force.

With the fall of Montreal, however, the Irish Brigade's star went into eclipse, for under the provisions of the Anglo-French treaty the Irishmen faced death for their part in the French war against the British. As might be imagined, through many years of association with their French comrades-at-arms, the Irish members had acquired a knowledge of the French language and, accordingly, to dodge the death penalty they intermingled with local French families, thus largely losing their identity.

At the beginning of the seventeenth century there were, according to an early historian, 2,500 families in Canada, Mr. Long said, and of these one hundred claimed Irish ancestry, while in thirty other instances one of the parents was of Irish descent. Thus, with the addition of the Irish Brigade members, it was obvious that a considerable percentage of the country's population was of Irish birth.

In this connection, however, names given by the families of that period were in many cases misleading, according to the speaker. Literacy was said to be prevalent at that time and names, in being spelled, often were Gallicized. Deeds made out in the course of property sales also showed the adoption of French names by Irish persons, these revelations accounting for the mysterious disappearance of the Irish population.

But from this fusion of Irish and French Mr. Long felt that Canada had subsequently reaped a harvest, these races having proved a strong foundation for the country's greatness. Greater emphasis on this phase of the Dominion's early history would not be amiss, the speaker felt.

Turning to the present day, Mr. Long stressed a need for strong leadership to combat among other things, the growth and spread of Communism. Asking, "Have we got the zeal—are we prepared to make sacrifices?" the speaker declared that a rallying force was embodied in the Holy Name Society and he urged the adoption and practice of its principles.

Mr. Long was introduced by B. N. Holtham, K.C., and thanked by Francis Hoyer.

Other speakers heard briefly during the evening were Rev. Father J. J. Stanford, rector of St. Dominic's Parish in Montreal, Father R. Moisan, parish priest of St. Patrick's Church, Canon J. C. McGee, Canon J. C. McGee, Rev. Father O'Keefe, Rev. Brother Whelan, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hoyer, Mr. and Mrs. George Woodgate, B. N. Holtham, K.C., D. J. McManamy, Maurice Parsons and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lenaghan.

11-Year-Old Sherbrooke Girl Is Killed When Sled Struck By Automobile On Bowen Ave.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a six-man jury at an inquest conducted this morning by Coroner Armand Nadeau into the death of Pauline Doyon, 11 years of age, of 372 Bowen Avenue South, who succumbed Saturday evening in Hotel Dieu Hospital, from injuries received when she was struck by a passing automobile.

The accident occurred Saturday afternoon about four o'clock opposite the residence at 386 Bowen South, when the young victim, who was sliding down the entrance to the driveway, guided her sled out into the street as a car driven by Dr. A. C. Hill was passing. Dr. Hill swerved sharply in an attempt to avoid striking the child but a collision was unavoidable and the victim struck the front part of the vehicle.

Unconscious and suffering from facial injuries, she was immediately removed by Dr. Hill to Hotel Dieu Hospital where treatment was administered by Dr. Emile Bruneau. At 7:05 o'clock last evening Dr. Bruneau advised local municipal police by telephone that the victim had passed away, death being described as due to a skull fracture and shock.

Witnesses who testified at the inquest this morning were Dr. Hill and Miss Dorothy Kenyon, the latter having been in the vehicle at the time of the accident. Both stated that the driver, Dr. Hill, had pulled sharply on his steering wheel in an attempt to prevent the collision.

The young victim is the only child of Alphonse-Marie Doyon and his wife, the former Jeanne Henry, and was a pupil at the Academie Ste. Therese. Mr. Doyon, who is employed by the Southern Canada Power Company, has been living in Sherbrooke five years and is a former resident of Lennoxville and Tring Junction.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow morning at nine o'clock at St. John Baptist Church.

Fires Responsible For 13 Of 22 Week-End Fatalities

By The Canadian Press
 Thirteen deaths by fire—seven in one orphanage fire in Prince Albert, Sask., and six in Ontario—topped a list of 22 week-end fatalities compiled by The Canadian Press across the Dominion.

Seven drownings were reported from Nova Scotia, four of them when a motor car crashed through the ice of the Mira River near Sydney. A scalding and a traffic accident claimed the other two victims.

With the mercury at 45 below zero in Prince Albert flames swept the St. Patrick's orphanage there early Saturday, and Sister Albert Marie of the Order of the Immaculate Conception and six children died. The child victims were Loretta Godin, eight; Margaret Rose Desormeaux, seven; Jeannette Parcy, eight; Adeline Wojcikowski, seven; Madeline Sahyes, 11, and Frances Chernich, seven. Another nun, Sister Becard, was burned. Three more children were burned to death when fire broke out in the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Casselman near Chesterville, Ont. The victims there were four-year-old James, three-year-old Dawn and five-month-old Ronald. The father returned to find the home in flames and was unable to reach the children.

Two women died in a rooming-house fire in Power Street near central Toronto. Mrs. Alice Wilson, 53, and Mrs. Freda Webb, 60, were victims of the blaze which destroyed only one room before it was extinguished by fire officials who blamed "careless smoking."

The 13th fire death of the week-end was that of Walter D. Stephenson, 35, believed to have fallen asleep in an easy chair before his small frame home at Hamilton was destroyed.

Another multiple fatality was reported from Sydney, N.S., when four persons were believed drowned as their motorcar crashed through the ice of the Mira River. Dragging operations are planned to recover the bodies of Daniel Francis Gillis, 29; Daniel Ronald Gillis, 13; Mrs. Agnes Gillis, 66, and Catherine Gillis, 70, the driver, Rev. Angus Bryden, managed to escape the plunge.

Skating on Sydney Harbor, two 10-year-old boys, Thomas O'Neill and Abraham Jessome, were lost when they broke through the ice Nova Scotia's other fatality was Harvey Grey, drowned in a brook at Falmouth.

Michel Roy, 57, died of injuries suffered when struck by a street car in Montreal Saturday night.

In hospital at Brandon Saturday two-year-old Carol Magee, succumbed to burns received after being scalded when a kettle overturned.

Labor Regime May Have To Quit In U.K. Of Six Dead In Drownings

Conservative Press Predicts Conditions That May Lead to Resignation of Attlee Government.

London, Feb. 3. — (P) — Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the British house last night they must work harder lest the British experiment in socialism end in still greater distress, and the Conservatives press speculated that conditions might arise in the next three months leading to the Attlee Government's resignation.

Speaking at Newcastle, hub of the newly-nationalized coal industry, Dalton said Britain is living on borrowed money and must produce more goods of life and more unemployment.

Dalton spoke at the great Austin Motor Works at Birmingham, employing 17,000, prepared to shut down for an indefinite period owing to lack of fuel. Other industrial plants in the Midlands went on short time. Steel output dropped 15 per cent below the planned level because of fuel cuts.

Lord Kemsley's Sunday Chronicle said member of parliament, including key Labor M.P.s, were discussing the possibility of the French conditions leading to the government's resignation "may well develop during the next three months." Other newspapers reflecting the Conservative Party viewpoint hinted that the government might fall, or be forced to form a coalition because of pressing economic conditions.

Dalton did not admit any possibility that economic conditions, aggravated by the recent cold, would lead to downfall of the government, however, saying: "Thank God we have a Labor Government in power... what a disastrous mess the Tories (Conservatives) would have made of these difficult years of transition!"

He predicted that Britain would have to reduce its financial commitments abroad in view of conditions at home.

He summed up Britain's economic difficulties in these words: "We are now able to import more than we export only because we are living on tick (credit) which we are getting from the American and Canadian lines of credit. This means that we must export more or import less—or both."

"If we have to reduce our imports it will simply mean that you will all have less to eat and less to

Seek Bodies Of Six Dead In Drownings

Automobile Plunges Through River Ice Near Sydney, N.S., to Take Toll of Four; Two Skaters Also Lose Lives.

Sydney, N.S., Feb. 3. — Grappling operations were in progress today at two separate points near this steel city for the bodies of six persons who met death by drowning yesterday.

At Grand Mira South, 30 miles from here, four persons lost their lives when the automobile in which they were riding plunged through the ice on the Mira River. The driver of the vehicle, Rev. Angus Bryden, was the sole survivor.

In Sydney Harbor, two 10-year-old boys, Thomas O'Neill and Abraham Jessome, disappeared beneath the freezing waters of the harbor after leaving their homes for an afternoon of skating. Mute testimony to the tragedy were the boys' caps and mittens, found near a gaping hole in the ice near the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation wharves at nearby Whitney Pier.

Police said the public had been warned to keep away from thin ice near the Dosco wharves as the ice-breaker Saurel had been operating there recently.

Near the scene of the drownings hundreds of other children skated safely and two small aircraft landed and took off from the ice surface throughout Sunday.

First reports of the drownings at Grand Mira were received by Royal Canadian Mounted Police here from a telegraph operator at Victoria Bridge. Constables equipped with grappling gear left immediately for the scene to try to recover the bodies of Mrs. Agnes Gillis, 66, Miss Catherine Gillis, 70, Daniel Francis Gillis, 29, and Daniel Ronald Gillis, 13. The relationship of the victims was not immediately known.

Details of the accident were lacking but it was believed the party had been crossing the river to visit friends when the accident occurred. Father Bryden escaped as the car slid beneath the ice, smoke, and fewer clothes and boots and shoes, and fewer houses and less furniture and less employment in many industries."

FRAME HOUSE AT COATICOOK IS DESTROYED

Coaticook, Feb. 3. — The two-story frame house of Antonio Fortier near Dixville was burned to the ground early Saturday.

Fortier, a service station proprietor here, led his wife and three children to safety after he was awakened by cries of the youngest child.

The fire in the frame home on Highway No. 50, 1-4 of mile from Dixville, started in the kitchen, and swept through the balance of the building rapidly. Firemen from Coaticook were able to prevent flames spreading to the adjacent barn and the nearby Canadian National Railway station.

The estimated damage of $8,000 is partially covered by insurance.

Strikes Snag South Africa Gold Mining

$4,000,000 Lost to Date by Shutdowns and Cost Is Mounting at Million Dollars Per Day.

By BRYAN YOUNG, Canadian Press Correspondent.
 Johannesburg, Feb. 3. — For seven days now the gold mining industry—bulwark of South Africa's lopsided economy—has been crippled by 7,000 striking gold miners representing 18 per cent of the total number of European workers employed in the mines.

The strike is in the Witwatersrand area of Southern Transvaal—outside of which gold production is negligible. Of the 47 mines there, 19 are at a standstill and 23 partially affected, leaving only five under normal operation. The cost of the strikes to the mines already is over $1,000,000 ($4,000,000 and at present the loss is mounting at a rate of $250,000 a day.

The critical situation has moved the chamber of mines of which all 47 mines are members, to say that if the strike continues it is "certain to have disastrous consequences."

In a country which is the world's greatest gold producer this is not an exaggeration when it is realized that the yearly revenue of the mines is about $109,000,000 whereas South Africa's national budget revenue is about $11,000,000.

The mines provide through direct taxation four-ninths of South Africa's revenue and they spend in the country nearly 90 per cent of their revenue. Thus it can be seen that if the strike continues, a deleterious chain reaction will spread to the tiniest agricultural village.

The mine owners are not in any way implicated in this dispute which is taking place within the ranks of the miners themselves.

A dissident group led by the United Mine Workers committee called the strike to force the union government to issue legislation depriving paid labor union officials of their vote at miners union meetings.

The United Mine Workers do not want the present officials and office bearers of the South African mine workers union, officially recognized trade union which is against the strike, to vote in the

It was announced this morning at the office of Col. the Hon. Johnny Bourque that the Minister of Lands and Forests would return to his home next week by ambulance from the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Quebec City.

Mr. Bourque, who will be confined to his home here for an indefinite time to undergo a complete rest, suffering a heart attack while attending a curling bonspiel banquet in Quebec City.

AYER'S CLIFF LANDMARK IS PREY TO FIRE

Ayer's Cliff, Feb. 3. — Century-old landmark, the original Ayer family home on Main Street, was completely destroyed by flames in a fire that raged for two hours here last night. Flames in the building now owned by Henry Moulton, who had modernized it into a three-apartment home, were combated by the local brigade supplemented by firemen from nearby North Hatley.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in John Dezan's apartment and spread to the two others occupied by Mrs. A. M. Goode and Mrs. F. O. Rand.

The loss, estimated at $10,000 is partly covered by insurance.

Discovered at eight o'clock by Mrs. Goode, whose son Michael called her when he noticed sparks on his bed, the fire flamed by a high wind, spent itself within two hours.

Firemen worked at preventing flames spreading to adjacent buildings.

Built between 1847 and 1850 by Carlton Ayer, the two-story frame building was the town's only hotel for many years when it was taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Ayer. Later owners were Fred Wilkinson, John Bailey and the present owner, Henry Moulton, who bought the property a year ago.

Homeless here today as a result of the fire are Mr. and Mrs. John Dezan, Lester Dezan, Mrs. A. M. Goode, Arnold Goode, Michael Goode, Mrs. F. O. Rand, Mrs. Frank Hibbard and Mrs. Ida Longway.

THE COAL STRIKE POSTPONED

The decision of the Nova Scotia coal miners to resume operations for a period of fifteen days while a new effort is made to reach a settlement of the current wage dispute will be welcomed, not only by the residents of the Maritime Provinces but by the Dominion as a whole. This victory of moderation over extremism, even if temporary, means that the production of coal, badly needed in the whole economic set-up of the country, will be continued for another two weeks at least. Thus the threat to an important section of industry has been delayed if not permanently removed, for in all probability some long-term agreement will be achieved during that period.

To the general industrial set-up of the Maritime provinces it means that operations will be maintained on their present basis, giving continued employment to thousands of workers not directly connected with coal mining. Furthermore, the commercial interests of the Far Eastern provinces will benefit by the continued employment of the men engaged in the largest single industry in that section of the Dominion.

A substantial portion of the Province of Quebec obtains its supply of soft coal from these sources and the decision to delay the walk-out assures the continuation of normal supplies of coal. Perhaps much of this could have been replaced from other sources but it would have caused considerable dislocation during the conversion period and would have placed added burdens upon the already overloaded transportation system.

It is to be hoped that any settlement achieved will be taken in connection with the report of the Royal Commission investigating the Canadian coal industry as a whole. This report made numerous suggestions for the reorganization of the unsettled industry, including an extensive program of modernization, designed to improve the position of both the operators and the employers. Important as these suggestions are, they can have no permanent results without the co-operation and good will of all parties concerned. The fact that even a temporary delay in the strike has been agreed upon is one sign that relations between the management and the workers has not reached too low a level to hope for some substantial agreement.

TO SPEED PARLIAMENTARY BUSINESS

Public support will be general for the agreement reached between the leaders of the major parties at Ottawa providing for the speeding up of the business of the session in an effort to permit the discussion of major legislation in the early months of the sitting. As the first step in this direction the leaders have agreed that should the debate on the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne last over one week, the discussion will be limited to certain days of the week, thus leaving the rest of the time free for government and private bills.

One of the chief complaints against parliamentary procedure in previous years has been that weeks and even months have been wasted in the early period of the session in discussing comparatively unimportant subjects. As a result the order paper was jammed in the later stages and many items of legislation which should have received close and detailed study were rushed through with the mere formality of a debate.

Of the items which should receive the earliest attention, the budget ranks first. This should be presented in the opening days of the fiscal year, if not in the closing days of the previous year, instead of late in June as happened at the 1946 session. The long delay in the presentation of the budget proposals seriously interferes with the normal operation of business generally. With taxation proving one of the major expenditures of any business concern, producers are unable to definitely determine their costs for the year ahead until such time as they know the contents of the budget. Thus contracts are delayed and very often a period of unemployment occurs for a brief period before the budget is presented.

Streamlining of parliamentary procedure should remove certain of these grievances and provide for the proper discussion of vital measures. But a responsibility rests upon the Government. This is to have its major legislation prepared in ample time for early presentation, something that has been noticeable for its lack in the past.

THE ST. JOHN AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION

The St. John Ambulance Association, through its local organizations throughout Canada, has long been in the lead of two important phases of the fight against death and permanent injury resulting from accidents. Its chief claim to recognition is through the teaching of First Aid, which is designed to give every individual the greatest possible knowledge of how to effect temporary remedies for fractures and serious cuts resulting from accidents, either at work, in the home, on the highways or in the field of sports.

Supplementing this is the Home Nursing instruction, whereby homekeepers are instructed in the basic care of the sick. This is especially important at the present time when the shortage of nurses for the care of even serious cases of illness is acute and when hospital beds are at a premium.

The original First Aid classes have been extended by the formation of brigades and divisions in industrial plants and other localities where the possibility of accidents is above normal. These groups are charged with applying such temporary aids as are necessary until the patient can be removed to a proper place of treatment.

To maintain their activities, these groups are making an appeal to Canadians as a whole for financial assistance, the citizens generally being called upon for one million dollars, a comparatively modest sum when the scope of the work is realized.

Washington Column

BY PETER EDSON

TAMING OF THE HOFFMAN

The way responsibility—like a cold wet towel—can be wrapped around the dome of a hot-head politician to sober him up, is sometimes amazing to behold.

A case in point is offered by the Hon. Clare E. Hoffman, Republican congressman from Allegan, Mich. By reputation, Clare Hoffman has been one of the most vituperative men in Congress. In the 12 years he has represented his six southwestern Michigan counties in Washington, he has ranted against Roosevelt, the New Dealers, and all their works in almost daily outbursts. In his frequent one-minute speeches, he has flailed labor leaders, spenders, bureaucrats, internationalists and Democrats—mercilessly and viciously. He never voted for one New Deal measure. He even voted against Social Security. He was an isolationist.

When the new 80th Congress Republican leadership announced that the Hon. Clare Hoffman of Michigan was to be chairman of the reorganized Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, everybody sat up and took notice. This would be worth watching.

The Committee on Expenditures has been given broad powers to investigate all budget and accounting measures, other than new appropriation bills. It will handle reorganization of executive agencies. It will receive reports from Comptroller General Lindsay Warren. It is to study all relations between the federal and foreign or state and local governments. It will handle Army-Navy unification.

In short, this committee now has power to look into almost everything, scattering hellfire and damnation wherever it finds anything wrong. Clare Hoffman seemed like just the man to do it, from breakfast to bedtime.

SADDER BUT WISER

But first calls on the honorable chairman revealed something was changed. Instead of finding him with fire in his eye, rarin' to go, he looked a little sad and bowed. "What can we do?" he asked almost pathetically. Under the Reorganization Bill, he explained, the work was so concentrated nobody could possibly do as expected.

Didn't he have a staff? he was asked. Hadn't the Reorganization Bill given every committee four experts and some clerks?

"What can four experts do?" he wanted to know. There were hundreds of departments and millions of government employees. How could four clerks keep up with them?

Oh, he admitted that his committee could hold some hearings, raise some hell and catch some headlines. But then that would be over and what good would it do?

What the committee should do, he said, was find where laws were being disobeyed by some administrator, then get him in and have him stop it. Or if new legislation was needed to correct some abuse, they could recommend that. But keeping track of the whole government looked like too much of a job.

WILL IT LAST?

On Hoffman's committee the Republican leadership has put a formidable array of smart, tough politicians. George H. Bender of Ohio is ranking Republican. With him are six members of the all-powerful House Rules Committee—Rich of Pennsylvania, Wadsworth of New York, Harness of Indiana, Brown of Ohio, Rile of Oklahoma, Chenoweth of Colorado.

Hoffman isn't saying anything, but he may have a sneaking suspicion the GOP leadership put all these hot-shots on his committee to keep the chairman in line. But if a new and reformed Clare Hoffman is going to preside, such supervision is unnecessary.

As one Republican big-wig said confidentially, "Clare Hoffman is now trying to be as unlike Clare Hoffman as anybody could be. We don't understand it, but we don't think it will last."

At the first meeting of his committee, Hoffman gave signs that it wouldn't. He had Rural Electrification Administration officials on the carpet for circularizing farmers in Michigan to write their congressmen and agitate expanding the service.

Hoffman also announced plans to go after the War Assets Administration, with Ross Riley of the old Slaughter Committee as sub-committee chairman. He will work with Senator Aiken's committee.

A little of the old fire was back in the Hoffman gray eyes.

Letters To The Editor

SHORTAGE OF NURSES

Editor,
Sir:—Will you kindly allow me a little space in your valuable paper to write briefly on the above subject?

Now that this Province, and in fact the whole of Canada, is facing an extremely acute and almost impossible position in regard to the nursing problem, might I respectfully suggest to the Government one means of meeting this situation? I would propose that the salaries of all nurses be either entirely freed of Income Tax or else a maximum tax on all salaries to not more than 25 per cent.

The nursing profession, as I see it, is one of the most important in the community; it is also one of the worst paid, considering the amount of strenuous work involved in training and after graduation has been accomplished. I believe that the training period occupies five years of intensive study and work and for this period or the greater part of it, nurses receive no remuneration at all.

Their hours are long and in their off-duty hours they have to attend lectures and have very little time left for rest. They are not allowed to sit down during duty hours and it may be said that their work is never done.

Considering these facts, I am of the opinion that greater facilities should be extended to them, thus making their profession more to be sought after.

I submit that the suggestions I have made, if acted upon, would be one sure way of getting rid of the appalling shortage which is now such a headache to those who have the care and responsibility of running our hospitals.

I sincerely hope that something along the lines I have suggested may be earnestly considered by those whose duty it is to alleviate by all means possible the present unsatisfactory position.

Thanking you,
Yours truly,

"PRO BONO PUBLICO."

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

FAILURE TO COUNT TRICKS IS COSTLY

Although some people insist that husbands and wives should not play bridge together, there are many famous married couples in bridge. In 1945 the national open pair championship was won by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Jaeger of New York. Last December at Hollywood, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. David Carter of Kansas City, Mo., came within 2½ match points of winning this title, finishing second to Sidney Slodoff of Philadelphia and B. Jay Becker of New York.

It was rather surprising that many pairs went down at four hearts on today's hand, and Mrs. Carter said they did so because they failed to count their tricks. The opening lead was won in dummy with the ace of clubs; three rounds of trumps were taken, then three rounds of spades, hoping for a spade break.

When spades did not break, declarer led the jack of diamonds, East won with the queen and returned a club. West won and played the fourth spade, which declarer ruffed with his last trump, and he still had to lose two tricks. Mrs. Carter made the diamond play before picking up the trumps.

Press Comment

"ONCE I WAS A REAL TURTLE"

The Gazette, Montreal

Through several pages of Maclean's Magazine Hon. C. G. Power mourns the change and decay which he sees all around him in the Liberal Party. As the Dean of the House of Commons, he looks through the retrospect of 30 years of Parliamentary life and sees how the might of Liberalism has fallen. To him the spirit of Liberalism now seems like that of a guttering candle. But he believes that there was once a day when it was a beacon shining on the hills.

Certainly few would dispute with Mr. Power about all the things he says are wrong with the Liberal Party. It is quite true that the party is trying to move simultaneously in almost every conceivable direction. It is true that it tries to offer something to everybody, even if Peter is habitually robbed to pay Paul. It is true that it lacks all coherent policy and moves along by patching the shreds of its principles. It is true that it is neither forthright nor virile, but has become a "middle of the road compromise with reaction and socialism."

Yet the questionable part of Mr. Power's vigorous mourning is whether the present defects of the Liberal Party may not be its traditional characteristics. Times change and issues change, and the things that are compromised today are not the things that were compromised yesterday. But was there ever a day when the Liberal Party was not "travelling in the ditches of expediency, first Right, then Left?" Did the thing that Mr. Power mourns ever have real existence?

Mr. Power believes that Canadian Liberalism has become too vote-catching in its methods. It is high time, he urges, that it cease to neglect principle for the sake of opportunism. It must recover from its office-holding mania. "In short," he says, "we must fight with all the fervor of inspired men, prepared to accept whatever verdict the electorate may pronounce."

Yet perhaps some may doubt whether it is really characteristic of Canadian Liberalism to cast aside all caution and compromise and to cling to principle alone. Certainly it has not been characteristic of the long régime of

Mr. Mackenzie King, whose period of leadership nearly coincides with that of Mr. Power's membership on the Commons.

Indeed, Mr. King seems to sit rather awkwardly upon Mr. Power's Liberal conscience. His article is sprinkled with praise for Mr. King's capacities, and at one point he declares that he should be induced to continue as Liberalism's leader. Yet he believes that Mr. King needs nothing so much as a stiff injection of principles. "No party in Canadian history," he says, "has had the benefit of such capable and adroit leadership which Mackenzie King has given his followers since 1919. That isn't our trouble. Our trouble is that we don't know where we are going."

Mr. Power declares that "Canadian Liberal leaders in the past"—and among these he still includes Mr. King—"have fought unrelentingly" (among other things) "for racial and religious freedom and harmony." Yet to this statement the facts of Canadian history hardly rush forward to lend their support. Racial and religious disharmony, astutely cultivated, have notably fed Liberalism's power.

Indeed, by such very methods did Liberalism detach Quebec from her Conservative allegiance and by such methods the detachment has been preserved. It was the issue of the execution of Louis Riel that was initially exploited in such a way as to stir to the depths every racial and religious prejudice.

In the face of the tactics of Liberalism in the 1880's, Adolphe Chapleau, the French Canadian leader in the Conservative Cabinet, uttered words of description and prophecy. "Mr. Laurier may do what he can," he declared, "you may by your disturbance of today and your abusive language try to prevent me from saying it, but Mr. Laurier . . . knows that in raising this cry of race and prejudice, he has made a mistake that nothing can repair."

It was a mistake of principle but not of expediency. The racial and religious prejudices appealed to in the Riel issue of the 1880's were nurtured through two world wars. The procedure has long been Canadian Liberalism's stock-in-trade. In principle the procedure was highly questionable. But politically it has paid well.

It may be that Mr. Power's long retrospect as the Dean of the House of Commons suffers in realism from the colorings of memory. "What's wrong with the Liberals?" he asks. Perhaps the answer is: "Just what has always been wrong with them." Mr. Power views his party in light that never was on land or sea.

The sorrows of Mr. Power for the glories that have faded may be like the sorrows of the Mock Turtle in Alice in Wonderland: "Once," said the Mock Turtle, at last, with a deep sigh, "I was a real turtle." . . . These words were followed by a very long silence, broken only by . . . the constant heavy sobbing of the Mock Turtle. Alice was very nearly getting up and saying, "Thank you, Sir, for your interesting story."

INCREASED PRODUCTION

New York Times
The compelling pressure of economic events has forced the British Government to place major emphasis upon increasing output. According to a dispatch recently from London, increasing productivity has replaced full employment as the "Number One objective" of British economic policy. The theme is that "without high production full employment itself is endangered." This shift in emphasis to high-level production is a healthy development. High-level production means high-level employment.

But, as is evident in many backward economies, the reverse is not necessarily true.

This theme has a direct application to our own economy, as well as to that of Britain. Our most urgent need is greater productivity. Unless this is achieved, wage-price relationships will remain distorted. The large wage increases of the past year, as well as those during the war years, have saddled industry with high unit costs and now make it difficult, if not impossible, to bring down prices to levels suitable for the "mass pocketbook" unless unit labor costs can be reduced.

In most industries productivity is no higher than it was before the war, although wages have increased considerably. Now labor is once more asking for substantial wage adjustments in the mass-production industries. In the absence of greater output per man-hour, such new wage increases will mean higher costs, and in many industries higher prices. Wage increases which do not increase the worker's command over goods and services do not improve his well-being. It is real wages—that is, what money can buy—that are important. If production is not increased, then wage-earners can only improve their position at the expense of other groups, particularly those with fixed incomes. As a result, these other groups find their command over goods and services reduced, and their living standards deteriorated. We have witnessed this development during the past year.

As a nation we can improve our living standards only by increasing the total volume of goods and services. Efforts to divide the existing pie frequently result in a smaller piece, because the incentive to produce is impaired and because some industries can no longer afford to hire workers at the relatively higher wages. We must learn to bake more pies before we can have more to consume.

Mrs. Whelan was presented with a bouquet of flowers. Seated at the head table aside from those already mentioned were: Miss L. A. Fuller, cashier; Mrs. Harry Walker, Philippe Hurteau, French director of public relations; Miss G. Doran, chief operator, and Mrs. Bruce.

Alberta Said Agreeable To New Proposal

Premier Manning to Recommend Legislature Accept Taxation Agreement to Run for Five Years.

Edmonton, Feb. 3.—(P)—Alberta will accept the taxation agreement terms offered by the Dominion Government.

Premier Manning, head of this province's Social Credit Government, announced Saturday his cabinet will recommend to the Legislature that it accept a proposed temporary agreement to run for five years.

The premier outlined the following terms of the latest proposal: 1. Alberta will receive $14,840,000 from Ottawa during 1947. 2. The amount to be paid annually to Alberta is based on an irreducible minimum of $12.75 per capita based on the 1942 population plus 30 per cent of what the province was collecting from the personal income and corporation income tax fields in 1940 and plus the statutory subsidy paid to all provinces under the British North America Act.

3. The province is assured of a minimum annual rental of $13,986,000 for income tax, corporation tax and succession duties fields without surrendering any constitutional rights.

4. The Alberta Government would not surrender any constitutional rights on its freedom to regulate the tax fields when the agreement expires.

5. The irreducible minimum is to be increased annually in proportion to the increase in the gross national production as compared with what it was in 1941. This formula will give Alberta $2,000,000 more annually than the province would have obtained under the Dominion's previous terms.

6. Under the new formula, the amount Alberta will receive from the Dominion Government in 1947 is more than $9,800,000 above what it would be possible for the province to raise by imposing personal and corporation taxes at the maximum rates which the taxpayers in non-agreeing provinces will be permitted to deduct from taxes they are required to pay the Dominion.

Mr. Manning said the Cabinet will recommend acceptance of the federal government terms to the Legislature when it convenes later this month and formal signing will await legislative endorsement.

The premier returned to Edmonton Thursday from Ottawa where he had conferred with federal Finance Minister Abbott. Although labelled a "temporary agreement" it will go into effect for five years. In accepting the agreement, the Alberta Government is recommending a continuation of the work of the co-ordinating committee, established at a Dominion-Provincial Conference last spring.

It asks that the committee undertake to reconvene the conferences within the next three years "to assure the preparation of a more satisfactory and a permanent Dominion-Provincial fiscal arrangement."

Under the agreement, the Federal Government will pay Alberta an estimated "rental" for its tax fields amounting to $14,840,000 during 1947. This amount to be paid annually to Alberta is based on an irreducible minimum of $12.75 per capita.

The new agreement would replace the wartime tax transfer scheme which expires March 31st. The premier said the new Dominion formula will assure the province a minimum annual "rental" of $13,986,000 for the fields of personal income tax and succession duties without the province surrendering any of its constitutional rights to these fields or its freedom to re-enter them on expiration of the temporary agreement.

Expect Thaw To Present New Problem

Flood Conditions Feared as England and Wales Emerge from Relentless Cold Spell.

By MICHAEL O'MARA

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 3.—(P)—The most relentless cold spell for many years in Great Britain was dying hard today. A 600-mile-wide snowbelt passing northward over the British Isles reached Scotland, where snow and sleet were falling, but in the south—which yesterday endured further heavy falls of snow, blocking railroads and highways in many areas—the long-awaited thaw was creeping over the country.

Most parts of England and Wales were expected to emerge from the grip of the frost but new grief was threatened in the form of flood conditions predicted for some areas within a few days. Meantime Ireland—hitherto fairly free of winter's worst storms—was digging out from under heavy drifts in the wake of a Sunday "blizzard."

In England, the heaviest snow fall blanketed parts of Derbyshire, Kent, Cambridgeshire and the Straits of Dover area.

The river Mersey in Kent already was reported threatening to burst its banks as 12-foot drifts melted into it.

Another menace of the thaw—burst pipes—already is plaguing the country severely. In London alone more than 2,000 breaks were reported in water mains while pipes burst by thousands in homes, shops, factories and warehouses.

Plumbers were working overtime but were hampered by shortage of manpower and materials.

The thaw will not necessarily mean resumption of water supply to some houses where it has been cut off for more than a week. In an estimated 80 per cent of cases, plumbers had to resort to stop-gap repairs, leaving pipes temporarily disconnected.

Other public facilities, such as gas and electricity, were reported recovering from the effects of the cold, however, and it was expected the supply of these would be made on a nearly-normal basis today.

As the bitter cold spell entered its 12th day, one highlight was that forty hungry, thirsty and shivering passengers were trapped for 18 hours when a London-to-Plymouth express train became stuck in a Devonshire snowdrift.

But, Falmouth, Cornwall, boasted a temperature of 54 degrees and vacationers picked wallflowers and anemones.

Turn Diplomatic Spotlight On Anglo-Soviet Relations

By SYLVAIN MANGEOT

London, Feb. 3.—(Reuters)—In a week of crowded diplomatic activity, the riddle of the real meaning of recent Soviet utterances on the future of Anglo-Soviet relations continues to hold the diplomatic limelight in London.

The crux of the riddle is whether the recent exchange of letters between Generalissimo Stalin and Foreign Secretary Bevin and the subsequent inspired articles in the Soviet press should be interpreted as an opening move towards a closer Anglo-Soviet military alliance or as a major strategic move in great power politics in preparation for the coming Moscow meeting of the Big Four.

The tone of current Soviet press articles suggests the possibility that one of the "reservations" which Russia is anxious to remove from the existing text of the Anglo-Soviet alliance may be that contained in article four.

This specifically limits the invocation of military aid to cases of renewed hostilities with Germany or any of those powers associated with her in acts of aggression during the war. Moreover, it provides for the military aid agreement being superseded by an international security organization such as the United Nations.

Removal of either of these limiting factors—the latter of which was dropped from the Franco-Soviet alliance, signed two and a half years after the Anglo-Soviet document—would be a revised version of the alliance with Russia, would widen the nature of the military alliance by binding Britain and Russia to mutual assistance in the event of a clash between either of them and any other power.

Another possible interpretation that has received some currency links Russia's initiative for a revision of the 1942 text of the Anglo-Soviet alliance with the impending conclusion of an Anglo-French alliance. Here Russia's well-known suspicions of a "western bloc" and the persistently anti-British tone of the French Communist press over the last year has led some observers to detect in the timing of the Soviet move a desire to play conclusion of any Anglo-Soviet pact has been revised in the sense desired by Moscow.

The fact that the discussion of Anglo-Soviet treaty revision and of the fundamental sincerity of Anglo-Russian relations has coincided in the Soviet press with sweeping criticism of Anglo-American Policy in Germany has been reported at a six-foot level.

new source of hope was a French note handed Saturday to the American, British and Russian ambassadors in Paris which suggested to some observers that France might be willing to scale down her demands for a political separation of the Ruhr and Rhineland from Germany—A delicate point in the negotiations.

The note called for establishment of a special economic regime for the Ruhr as a provision of the German treaty but did not reiterate France's previous separation demands.

Another source of encouragement over the German treaty, some diplomatic sources said, was the fact that smaller nations were scaling down their claims for reparations.

The results of the conference were placed before the union's district executive who held two meetings and authorized this announcement yesterday.

"Owing to recent developments in the present wage situation and after consultation with the representative of the international headquarters we are instructing our membership to resume work mid-night Monday Feb. 3 until midnight Feb. 15 during which time the present contract will be extended."

The announcement was read to the press shortly before Mr. Jenkins read it to a closed meeting of the officers of 20-odd Cape Breton locals.

The same statement was read to other union meetings throughout the district.

THE STORY: Cassie Fletcher is the main support of her family and feels such a burden of responsibility toward them that she turns down Mike Carrell's proposal of marriage, even though she is in love with him. When Leni, her spoiled 17-year-old sister, and wealthy Lon Cavendish try to elope, they are headed off by Cassie and Parker Hamilton, a friend of Leni's. Leni vows to get even. Some months later, Cassie meets Parker Hamilton and they start dating. When Parker first proposes, arguing that he could do a lot for her and her family, Cassie hesitates to marry a man she does not love. Later, carried away by his persistence, she accepts.

CHAPTER XII

Parker took Cassie the next day to the bank to meet his father. The elder Hamilton seemed cordial enough, there was no stiffness in his manner, just a sort of morose impatience.

Parker explained to her afterward, "Father's never had time for anything but work, especially since my mother died. It's only been three years, you know. He told me he was glad I was marrying you, if it would last. Imagine that! He doesn't know you like I do."

"You do have a lot of faith in me, Parker," she said as they drove away from the bank.

"I made a fizzle of my first marriage, you know," he reminded her. "Of course it was just a college crush. We were married just a couple of months and then it sort of fizzled and we got a divorce. She wasn't your sort, Cassie. Of course I will say one thing—she didn't expect anything from me—no alimony—nothing but a clean break. Her name was Elena."

"Elena," Cassie said the name to herself. Did Parker ever think of her? Maybe it had been like Mike was with her? A cold, reckless young passion. Maybe sometime she would be able to speak of Mike in that same casual way? "You do have a lot of faith in me, Parker," she said. "What makes you so positive we can make a success of being married?"

His brown eyes meeting hers were somber and earnest. "Because you're you," he said slowly. He parked the car in front of the Cavendish building. They had gone to the bank during Cassie's lunch hour. He took her hands in his and his jaw tightened ever so slightly. "You're the kind that will say all that stuff about for better or worse, in sickness and in health, till death do us part—and really mean it!"

Cassie looked away. She felt a queer sense of guilt. "I will mean it!" she thought fiercely.

It was that afternoon that she told them at the office that she was leaving.

Mr. Drummond patted her shoulder almost affectionately. "Sorry to see you go, Miss Fletcher. And if you ever want to come back—" his fat pleasant face flushed ever so slightly and he corrected himself hastily. "What I mean is—if you should get bored, or want for any reason to go back to work again, we'll be glad to have you back. Oh the dickens, Miss Fletcher, you know what I mean!"

"Yes," Cassie said. "And thank you very much, Mr. Drummond." Leni went to Indianapolis with her to buy some clothes. Parker drove them up, and they had dinner in a nice restaurant on the Circle and saw a show before they went home. Even Leni's sullenness was dispelled in the excitement of the trip.

There was, in fact, the faintest touch of melodrama about the whole thing, Cassie thought. So many books had been written about women who married men for other reasons than love. The only trouble was that in all the bustle, she was beginning to wonder if perhaps she wasn't really quite in love with Parker after all.

The wedding was set for April second, and it was the night before that the telegram came from Mike. Mama brought it into the bedroom where Cassie was pinning up the hem of the smart smoky blue suit Leni was to wear at the wedding. They weren't going to have anything pretentious—just the Fletchers and Mr. Hamilton in the small chapel-like parlor of the Methodist church.

"A telegram?" Cassie said. She put down the fat, red pin cushion and scrambled to her feet. "For me?" She slit the yellow envelope open.

SORRY I MISSED SEEING YOU STOP THE BEST OF EVERYTHING TO YOU BABY! It was signed "MIKE."

The deep black printing blurred, and the room swam, round and round for a moment or two.

"It's from—Mike," she said. Her voice was a funny, hushed whisper.

Mama looked embarrassed. "I forgot to tell you, Cassie. He was here—one day last week. Let me see? What day was it, now? On yes—the day you and Leni went up to Indianapolis. I meant to tell you. But with all the 'do I plumb forgot. He was real surprised when he found out you was gettin' married." Mama ran on and on.

But Cassie wasn't listening. The room was smotheringly hot, all at once.

She picked up the light gray coat, part of her "going away outfit" and flung it over her shoulders. "I'm going for a walk. Be back—"

"But Cassie," Mama cried, "you hadn't ought to wear that coat yet. Not until tomorrow. You—"

She fled from Mama's whining voice and Leni's curiously mocking stare, out the front door, down the steps.

She started up the street and her legs felt as though they weren't there.

It was chilly, so that after a moment she put her arms in the sleeves of the new gray coat. Her hands in the pockets were clenched.

"Mike," she whispered. "Oh Mike!"

SERVING CANADIANS THROUGH CHEMISTRY

"Chemistry IN MY HOME?"

YES, MADAME, it is a fact that practically everything you use, wear or consume is affected for the better by chemistry.

"Freon" puts the freeze into your electric refrigerator; chemical treatments mean better fabrics; chemical fertilizers help grow your food. Nylon hose and "Cellophane" both start in the chemist's laboratory.

The chemical industry is never satisfied. It forever seeks new ways to serve you in this chemical world of today.

For Instance . . .

NYLON BRISTLED HAIR BRUSHES

Hair brushes were once bristled chiefly with hog bristles. When war rendered these unobtainable, chemistry came quickly to the rescue with nylon bristles which perform and out-wear hog bristles. ## Forsaken Wives

Ex-G.I.'s Find Married Life
Disillusioning After Absence

An army chaplain thinks that the reason that so many of the returning G.I.'s have forsaken their wives is because during the time they were overseas they idealized the domestic life. They forgot all about their wives' tempers and fussy ways, and what hum cooks they were, and how the bill-collector was always hammering on the door, and how the children fought and the babies cried, and all the other unpleasantnesses of family life.

Viewed from the distance of a few thousand miles, home, sweet home seemed the most beautiful spot on earth; a place where, according to the old song, "never was heard a discouraging word," and where wives stayed young and beautiful and yessed their husbands and fed them on angel's food, and children were cherubs instead of little pees, and rent was free, and steaks descended like jakes from heaven and everything was perfectly janne.

So it is no wonder that when Joe gets his discharge and returns home and finds things as they are, instead of the Elysium he has been dreaming up about them, so often he is unable to take it, and goes over the hill. And before we call him a quitter, and remind him of the wedding vows and throw his duty in his face, we may well drop a tear of sympathy on his shoulder, for we have all been there.

We know from experience that there is no going back and taking up life where we laid it down. Everything is changed. The old home isn't what it used to be and even our nearest and dearest, from whom we have been separated for a long time, are strangers to us.

TEEN-AGE LOVE VANISHES

Of course, the teen-age war marriages are responsible for many of the soldiers going A.W.O.L., matrimonially speaking. That was inevitable because the youngsters grew up fast during the crucial experiences they had been through, and as men and women they no longer loved those who had ravished their youthful fancies. Absence has made their hearts grow fonder of somebody else and the old romance vanishes like mist in the sun.

But the disenchantment that the soldier so often finds on his return is not his grief alone. It is just as frequently the wife's tragedy as well, because if Joe has changed, so has she, and she finds it no easier to adjust herself to him than he does to her. And if she looks ever saw in him that made her want to marry him.

Many a returning serviceman finds that the wife he left behind him has developed an entirely different set of characteristics in his absence. She is no longer a clinging vine. She has turned into a sturdy oak. She is no timid little creature who asks her husband what he thinks she thinks. She tells him. Before the war she couldn't count change up to a dollar. Now she is a shrewd business woman and it doesn't take her husband long to find out that she is going to be the purse-toter in the future.

For the first time in her life she has had freedom and known the fun of bossing things, and no mere husband is going to order her around again. And many a man who, before the war, was the supreme dictator in his home now finds himself saying yes ma'am and jumping when his wife speaks.

Yes, the war has changed a great many things, especially marriage. The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Year's Reports Given At Annual Waterville United Church Meeting

Waterville, Feb. 3.—The parish supper and annual business meeting of the Waterville United Church was held in the United Church Hall, the supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, was most efficiently conducted by Mrs. D. W. Ayer, and served by the

C.G.I.T. to over sixty-five guests. Rev. W. A. Edwards, the minister, was the chairman of the annual meeting, which opened with the singing of the Doxology, followed by a prayer. The secretary, R. L. Gale, read the minutes of the preceding annual meeting. On the motion of J. H. Woodside, seconded by Mr. Fred Bell, these minutes were duly adopted. The annual reports of the organizations of the church were then submitted. From these reports, the following information is of interest:

John Johnson gave the secretary-treasurer's report for the Sunday School. During the year, all the regular Sunday School classes had been held. A Sunday School picnic had been given at Woodland Bay, the hostess being Mrs. M. G. B. Blier. In October, a Rally Day service had been held, and at the Christmas season, a delightful candle-light pageant was sponsored by the Sunday School. The Christmas tree entertainment, with Santa as the special guest, closed the activities of the year. All expenses for the work of religious education had been met by the Sunday School and several gifts had been given. J. H. Woodside expressed his appreciation to the staff and the pupils of the Sunday School for their loyalty, congratulating Gladys Johnson upon again receiving a certificate of perfect attendance. There had been during the past year, an increase in the enrolment in the Primary Department.

Joan Burke gave the report for the C.G.I.T. The members of this group had been very active during the year. Their regular weekly meetings had been held at the home of their leader, Mrs. W. A. Edwards. They had taken part in a re-affiliation service with the Women's Missionary Society had assisted in the service on the World's Day of Prayer. They gave a mother and daughter banquet. They entertained the W.M.S. with a Christmas pageant and on Christmas Eve, sang carols to friends. Many of their members attended camp at "Cedar Lodge." Appreciation was expressed to all the friends, who had in any way helped make their year's work successful. To the friends who had given them magazine orders, to those buying their Christmas cards, and to the hostesses giving parties for them. All bills had been paid and there was a balance of over one hundred dollars in their treasury.

Mrs. H. S. Ball commented upon the C.G.I.T. report. She congratulated

lated the girls, and their leader, Mrs. W. A. Edwards, upon their excellent work during the past year. Mrs. Ball reminded the girls that the Waterville C.G.I.T. was now twenty-one years old, that during each of those years, their reports given at the annual meetings had shown how faithfully and enthusiastically each group had followed the C.G.I.T. program. They had financed their affairs so well that some of their members had been sent each year to camp at "Cedar Lodge."

R. L. Gale, chairman of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee, reported that the allocation for the church had been met, and the amount had been forwarded to Toronto, Ont.

The report for the Women's Missionary Society was interestingly given by Miss Harriet Woodside, secretary. During 1946 the enrolment of the society had been seventeen active members and thirty associate members. Mrs. W. A. Edwards, president, led the discussions on the four study books for the year, "Angola Now," "Curtis of Chisamba," "India, the Threshold," and "Central India Now." Easter Sunday evening, an interesting lantern slide service was given. Rev. A. Edwards giving the address. In February, the World Day of Prayer was commemorated, the service being held in the Anglican Church Hall. The outstanding event of the year was the celebrating of the societies' twenty-fifth anniversary when two special meetings were held, one being a silver tea and handkerchief sale, the other an anniversary missionary meeting, when the charter members present gave memoirs of events. The proceeds of these meetings were sent to Korea, for the Medical Missions Fund. The treasurer of the Missionary Society reported that the societies' funds had been met and exceeded their allocation. Gladys Johnson reported for the Mission Band, paying tribute to Mrs. Dalton, who had led the Band so ably when here. Appreciation was expressed to the new leaders, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Davison. The financial report showed all bills paid, and a balance in the treasury.

Shirley Desruisseaux in reporting for the Baby Band, stated that the enrolment was most encouraging, there being thirty-four babies' names on the roll. During the Christmas holidays, a delightful party had been given to the mothers and babies. Mrs. Eric Swanson, secretary, reported the social activities of the Ladies' Aid. Under the splendid leadership of Mrs. R. L. Gale, the Aid had had an exceptionally successful year. Forty-two members were enrolled, and every project undertaken had the full support of all the members. The treasurer, Miss Bertha Parkinson, gave an excellent financial report. Besides paying all Aid bills, checks had been sent to the Sherbrooke Hospital Building Fund; to the convalescent for the Blind; and to the committee in charge of the reception that Waterville gave her returned men.

R. L. Gale, joint treasurer of the church, with J. H. Woodside, read the financial report of the year. This report showed that all the demands of a mounting budget had been fully met, with a modest balance. H. S. Ball, chairman of the convalescent committee, thanked the members of the church most heartily for the excellent support extended to the convalescents and the church. Mr. Ball, speaking as chairman of the property committee, viewed the work done. A new furnace had been installed and the church had been insulated. Planned for the future were needed repairs to the organ and the parsonage to be painted. The minister, Rev. W. A. Edwards, reported as follows: Membership, 134; received by profession of faith, 3; removed by death, 1; removed by certificate, 5; baptisms, 5; marriages, 1; burials, 3; pastoral oversight, 269 people. Rev. Mr. Edwards spoke of the loss sustained through the death of Mr. Alex Johnson, steward, and a minute's silence was observed in his memory.

The pastor extended a hearty welcome in the name of the church to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rose, Mrs. Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Davison. He called for improved attendance in church and asked that all bear in mind for the coming year this slogan "Fewer empty pews." Rev. Mr. Edwards thanked all who had contributed during the year to the welfare of the church, especially to the Senior and Junior choirs. Special tribute was paid to Miss Gladys Swanson, organizer for her devotion to her work during the past thirty years. Dr. Colquhoun, Senior Elder, was called upon to read an original poem, composed especially for this occasion. This most humorous poem, with many witty comments, was read by the doctor, who then presented Miss Swanson with a gift of money from the church in recognition of her never-failing, efficient services.

With sincere appreciation, Miss Swanson thanked the friends in the church who had so thoughtfully and so generously given this gift to her. Rev. Mr. Edwards commented upon the uniform excellence of all the reports that had been rendered, and upon the motion of Dr. Colquhoun, seconded by J. H. Woodside, all the foregoing reports were duly adopted. C. O. Swanson thanked the ladies for the delicious supper that they had served, and for all their work during the past year, work that was deeply appreciated by the men of the church.

H. S. Ball extended to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards the sincerest thanks of the congregation and church for their loyal, untiring and devoted service to the church, its members and adherents during

The Ladies' Guild held its annual business meeting at the "Parsonage," with Rev. A. E. Godwin presiding. The officers of last year were all re-elected as follows: President, Mrs. G. H. Hucks; vice-president, Mrs. H. C. Rollins; second vice-president, Mrs. Robert Adams; treasurer, Mrs. C. H. Alger; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Godwin. The various committees were re-appointed. Mrs. C. H. Alger presented the financial report, showing a very successful year. On April 1, the sum of $885.45, which had been left to the Guild from the estate of Mr. George Seymour, was turned over to the secretary-treasurer of the church, Robert Adams, where the books were again balanced as follows: Cash on hand April 1, 1946, $17.20; Receipts, $817.59; Expenditures, $642.33; leaving a balance on hand at January, 1947, of $222.46. ## Reports Heard At Annual Vestry Meeting Held By St. Anne's Church

Richmond, Feb. 3.—The annual vestry meeting of St. Anne's Church, Richmond, was held in the Parish Hall of St. Anne's Church, Richmond, when upwards of sixty-five adult members of that congregation enjoyed an excellent supper provided by the members of the Guild and W.A.

When the tables were cleared the business side was in evidence with the holding of the annual vestry meeting, which was opened with prayer by the rector, the Reverend George Harrington, who presided. Following the confirmation of the minutes of previous meetings, the rector read his report on the state of the parish. He began by thanking the officers and others for their work, mentioning especially the people's warden, E. J. Newell, and his wife, the envelope secretary. He went on to say that the number of families in the parish had increased by thirty, and after speaking of the success of the Anglican advance appeal financial campaign expressed the hope that there would be an advance in spiritual life and increased attendance at divine worship. The beauty of the church services and the importance of music as part of them due to the help of the choir and the valued work of Mrs. A. E. Fee at the organ were emphasized. In speaking of the church property, the rector congratulated the congregation on the greatly improved condition of the chapel and said that he hoped that the church would be completely renovated this year.

E. J. Newell presented the financial statements which showed that all expenses had been met and that small working balances remained in both general and cemetery accounts. The renovation fund, which is being collected to pay for the re-lighting and re-decorating of the church, now amounts to $761.55.

The newly-appointed superintendent of the Church School, L. F. Somerville, gave a satisfactory report of the work of that department.

Mrs. P. A. Carson, secretary of the combined Guild and W. A., reported a good year's work by these ladies. $145 were given for missionary work; $100 to the wardens; $25 to the Sherbrooke Hospital Building Campaign; $55.50 spent for the purchase of new chairs for the Parish Hall; in addition to providing choir supplies; outfitting a girl in an Indian residential school; sending toys to Saskatchewan, and food to England.

In her report, the superintendent of the J. A., Mrs. E. J. Newell, stated that the juniors were learning about missions and doing handicraft work. They had been able to contribute $50 for missionary work besides sending toys for Indians in Saskatchewan. Mrs. Newell stated that equal credit for the work of this group was due to Mrs. Walker, who is also superintendent of the Little Helpers Band, which she reported has a membership of forty-four, and the new president of the King's gave $10.50 to missions.

Daughters, Mrs. I. Fallon, told of the many activities of that organization, which undertakes the responsibility of caring for the altar and its furnishings; visits newcomers and sick parishioners; and supplies candles for the children's Christmas entertainment. During the past year they entertained the war brides at their Halloween tea and it raised the money to pay for the complete renovation of the chapel, which has made this a very

The Doctor Says

TREAT SPEECH DIFFICULTIES PROMPTLY

By William A. O'Brien, M.D.

One million school children do not speak properly, and the number of such unfortunates has been increasing in recent years. The trouble usually develops between the ages of 6 and 8, although it may start earlier.

Speech difficulties consist primarily of stammering or faulty articulation (inability to speak clearly and distinctly). Stammering and stuttering are essentially the same, as each presents a speech block which interferes with ease of expression. Six boys have trouble with stammering for every girl who does.

When a child develops difficulty in speaking or has never spoken distinctly, an examination should be made, to determine whether there is any organic basis for the condition. Factors underlying the development should be studied. Speech difficulties can follow shock, fear, anxiety, or embarrassment.

It is never wise to make a child speech-conscious, and the more quickly the problem is recognized, the more successful will be correction efforts. Too many parents believe their child will outgrow the difficulty, while in fact it may become worse from lack of proper attention.

Stammering or stuttering is more apt to be due to nervous or psychological factors than it is to physical conditions. Imitation, unstable emotions, and a poor environment are all contributory. Failure to pronounce words distinctly can be caused by lalling, which in a child of good mentality results from a large tongue. Speaking through the nose is the result of infection in the nose, adenoids, or a cleft in the palate.

Teaching Aid Needed
After a child's cleft lip or palate has been repaired, he should be placed in the hands of a good teacher who can improve his speech. A child who has had his teeth straightened may need help with his speech, too.

As some children with speech difficulties do not hear well, an audiometer test is advised in certain cases.

Question: Can kidney stones be prevented from forming in a patient who has a pelvic fracture?
Answer: Yes, to a large extent. Such a patient should drink extra fluids, eat special diets, have his position changed frequently, and be treated promptly for any urinary infection which develops. He should be examined for several months after his pelvic has healed, to prevent late stone formation.

St. Jovite, Que., Feb. 3.—(P)—Paul-Emile Albert of Sherbrooke racing under the colors of the Hillcrest Ski Club topped the hundred entrants in the senior class section when he posted 3:45.8 to win the senior class followed by H. Guppie Toronto.

Seventeen-year-old Jack Griffin, a junior skier from Montreal's Patrimoine Club, won for the third consecutive year the Taschereau Downhill Race, with the record time of three minutes 28.6 seconds.

The 1 1/2 mile race held on the slopes of Mont Tremblant was sponsored by the St. Jovite Ski Club.

Canadiens Drop 7-1 Verdict To Rangers After Winning At Home

The topsy-turvy results of a National Hockey League week-end which the mighty were smitten right and left today pounded home the Canadiens' fate, if obvious, pronouncement to the effect that "they're all tough to beat this year."

Some disagreement has been voiced from time to time whether the current "scramble-bag" brand of hockey brightens the game but most of the men on the firing line agree its stamina-demanding pace leaves none of the old "schedule soft-spots."

For sure, that's the way it's regarded by Toronto Maple Leafs, who capped a fortnight of waning vim and vigor by losing their hold on first place.

The indignity of double-disappointment—a 2-2 draw with the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings coupled with a 3-1 pasting by Chicago—convicted Boston Bruins, whose in-and-out showing in third position perhaps left them needing but little convincing.

Their twin triumphs no doubt lifted a little of the gloom surrounding the Chicago camp but Hawks know too well how a door-mat feels on a rainy day to forget how hard the victories come.

The Stanley Cup Champion Canadiens were sitting on top of the world after a hard-fought 2-1 triumph over Rangers Saturday night shot them one point ahead of Maple Leafs. Rangers wiped out of what pride the victory brought by taking a 7-1 fall out of Canucks the following night—Montreal's worst drubbing of the season.

Canadiens, riding a five-game winning streak, scored the opening counter before a crowd of 15,925 at New York—but Rangers bagged the next seven.

Defenceman Bouch Bouchard started Montreal off right. Tony Leswick got that goal back, then Edgar Laprade and Grant Warwick each tallied while Montreal's Maurice Richard was serving a

BISHOP'S DOWN CIRCO 32-29 AT BASKETBALL

Bishop's University eagles downed the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd. 32-29 Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. The match was the last half of an Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association doubleheader.

The game was actually an exhibition tilt because Circo automatically forfeited the two points, a league game is worth, when they entered the scrap bolstered by the addition of players who belong to the Y.M.C.A. and Independent teams.

The additional two points for Bishop's means the purple and white have bagged this season's two-game home-and-home league series with the Rand. Bishop's won the first game in Lennoxville.

The tussle Saturday night was so close that, after playing for about ten minutes on terms that were even as far as the score was concerned, Bishop's went two points up on Circo and stayed like that for a good part of the game.

In the first half, every time Bishop's was two points ahead of the Rand, the latter would tie the score continually. Then Bishop's would go ahead again. Bishop's led 20-19 at half-time.

The locals lagged a bit in the last half. The visitors' lead soared to six points in the third quarter. The purple and white were back-checking as they did all through the game. Circo was prominent in this respect, too, in the last half.

The Rand pressed in the final ten minutes of the last half but did not more than narrow Bishop's lead to three points. Bishop's won 32-29.

Blevins, of Bishop's took first place in the scoring with five field goals, all of them earned in the first half, and two foul markers. He was well ahead of his teammates.

The best for Circo were Fuller, with eight points, and Ross, with six.

The following are the names of the players on the teams, the points they scored, and the name of the referee:
Bishop's University: G. MacFarlane, 3-0; J. MacFarlane, 0-2; D. McVie, 0-2; H. Andrews; R. Stewart, 2-0; M. Porter; S. Johnson, 3-2; R. Bailey, 0-2; M. Stanley, 4-0; Blevins, 10-1.

WILL ENTER FEDERAL CHESS ORGANIZATION

The Windsor Chess Club of Windsor, Que., and the Circo Chess Club of Sherbrooke, Que., will join the Chess Federation of Canada through the Quebec Provincial Chess Association, it was decided at a recent joint meeting of the two clubs.

Club members hope that, as a result of this move, chess-minded people in other parts of the Eastern Townships will have opportunities to play matches with persons not living in their towns.

As an incentive both to those who belong to them and to non-members to join the Association, the two clubs have put up trophies. The Windsor club has donated a prize for inter-club matches played during the year. The Circo Club has provided the Charles A. Bousquet Memorial Trophy, which honors the memory of the body's late vice-president and chess enthusiast. This memento is for annual competition among the three best players from all clubs entered, and the finalists will emerge by means of elimination contests.

Since the season opened the two groups have played three matches for the Windsor Trophy. A fourth match is scheduled for Wednesday, February 26. At the moment, the Circo Club has a slight lead over Windsor. Results have been as follows:
October 26, at Circo—Windsor 6, Circo 6.
November 23, at Windsor—Windsor 4 1/2, Circo 6 1/2.
January 18, at Circo—Windsor 5, Circo 9.

Locals Still Maintain Top Position In P.H.L. Although Lead Is Reduced

Sherbrooke St. Francis Hockey Club tied Lachine Rapides, 3-3, Saturday evening and lost to Cornwall Cougars, 2-1, yesterday afternoon.

The local hockey squad had one point sliced off their lead over the week-end but still are setting the pace with an eleven point advantage. Gaulls of St. Hyacinthe, moved up into second place when they defeated Verdun, while Lachine were edging out the Tigers of Victoriaville, 5-4.

The locals were playing without Demers and Morehouse, which weakened the forward lines considerably but gave a helping hand and a breather to his hard working defencemen.

The brand of hockey displayed by the locals over the week-end was far below the standard usually played. The finish around the nets seemed to be missing and their passing plays were going astray and the club seemed to be completely off its stride.

Henry Hayes and Lynn McDougall were the lucky winners for the special prizes presented by A. J. Arnold and Irving Steinman.

SATURDAY
SUNDAY

Sherbrooke started from the faceoff to press and kept the puck inside Lachine's blue-line peppered Leclerc from all angles but could not score. The checking was very close during the complete frame, neither team were letting the other get too close, although both clubs had good scoring opportunities. McCurry and Goupille got the nod for high-sticking but there was no damage done during their absence. Adjutor Cote got in on top of Leclerc, and drove a shot that Leclerc did not see, but it hit and fell at his feet, he dropped on it before it could be shoved across the goal line. A few minutes later Len McDougall was in alone and missed an open net. Lachine returned the play to the other end and gave Harry Barefoot a few busy minutes. In the first period the locals had the majority of the play but could not capitalize on it.

At the start of the second frame Bastien missed a golden opportunity, he shot wide of the net after picking up Bill Heindl's rebound. Lachine returned immediately and Smiley Meronek picking up Hamel's pass coasted in on Barefoot and sank the rubber behind him to put the Rapides in the lead. The Colored Boys appeared on the scene and started to force the issue. Ossie Carnegie sank the equalizer, when at the half way mark of the stanza he accepted a pass from brother Herbie and walked to the net. But this was short-lived as the Rapides, not to be out done, came back to assume the lead once again. Hamel started the play, when he carried the puck up to the local's blue line and passed to Perron, who walked in close before driving his shot to beat Barefoot.

It was at this point that the time-keeper had his busiest time of the evening. Hamel received a penalty for tripping, then Costigan got the nod for looking to be followed by Herbie Carnegie for the same offense. They had no sooner got settled in the box when they were joined by McCurry, thus bringing the "Famous Delayed" penalty into force.

The locals had the man advantage during this scramble but could not beat Leclerc, who was putting on a good exhibition of head-butting, to help his side. His teammates returned before the locals could do anything.

In the final stanza the locals dented the twice twice to the visitor's once. Bastien got the first marker right from the opening faceoff, assisted by Hayes and Cote. A minute later Goupille missed the puck when trying to clear, and Meronek slipped around the goal to beat Leclerc. He over to Paulsen, who was standing alone in front of Barefoot and slapped the disc behind him to put the Rapides out in front once again.

The locals were trailing again for the third time in the fixture, and were forced to apply extra pressure to try and get the equalizer. Their efforts were rewarded when Billie Leclerc, Sherbrooke's hard-hitting defenceman, picked up a loose puck from Cote's rebound and drove it home for the locals third and equalizing tally.

Sherbrooke started to drive for the winning goal and kept peppering Leclerc, but before they could collect dividends Red Goupille got his second penalty for tripping and Dugre's boys were forced to change their tactics. The Rapides were contented with a split and layed back waiting for the time to run out. A few seconds later the final gong sounded with Goupille still in the box.

Sherbrooke — Goal, Barefoot; defence, Heindl, Goupille; centre, H. Carnegie; wings, O. Carnegie, McIntyre; subs, Cote, Bastien, Lazon, McDougall, Denaull, Dugre, Hayes, Dion.

Lachine — Goal, Leclerc; defence, McCurry, Hamel; centre, Meronek; wings, Fitzpatrick, Paulsen; subs, Morin, Perron, Costigan, Ramsay, Damsarais, Vinet, Laroche, Anderson.
Referees: Mullins and Prince.

BISHOP'S TRIM RAND WOMEN IN VERDUN 12-6 FOR EAST WIN

Bishop's University's women's team out-scored Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd., 19-17 in an Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association game at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night. It was the first half of a league double-header.

Bishop's put the ball through the basket twice as often as Circo in the first quarter, led 8-4 at the end of the first ten-minute period. But the Rand pressed in the second quarter, and thanks largely to field goals by Muriel Mandigo, was out in front by one point at the score at half-time was Rand 10, Bishop's 9, half-time.

Doreen Ross, Circo guard, scored the other field marker for the locals five. Lila Pharo was the Bishop's top notcher with two field goals in the first half. B. MacKenzie of Bishop's was right behind her with one field goal and one foul marker. B. Stevenson and Carol Legge each notched one foul goal for the visitors.

While the squads were on the defensive quiver in the last half, the visitors regained the lead. They were five points ahead of Circo when the game was three-quarters over. But the locals began to reduce Bishop's lead and went so well that it looked as though they would even matters up.

However, L. MacDonald, of Bishop's scored the last, and decisive field goal of the fixture, and the Rand volley fell short by one field marker. The score at the end of the game was Bishop's 19, Circo 17.

The tilt's biggest individual goal-getter was Muriel Mandigo, who scored five field goals and one foul marker. Doreen Ross earned two field markers and Margaret Wells one for her Rand.

The real star of the game was L. MacDonald, of Bishop's. Though she scored but one field goal, it was the marker that won the game for Bishop's. Lila Pharo got six points, Carol Legge and B. MacKenzie five each, and B. Stevenson one for Bishop's.

The names of the players on the teams and the name of the referee are as follows:
Bishop's University women: L. Pharo, B. Stevenson, C. Legge, M. Mitchell, B. MacKenzie, L. MacDonald, J. Baker.
Circo women: S. Wark, D. Ross, E. Komery, M. Wells, J. Beattie, M. Mandigo, P. MacMurray, M. Earnshaw.
Referee: Ken Jackson.

INDIANS HUNT FOR NEW BAT BOY FOR 1947

Cleveland, Feb. 3.—(P)—President Bill Vecek, of Cleveland Indians, could use a hard-hitting center fielder but he also is looking for a batboy.

Vecek has asked a Cleveland newspaper to conduct a contest to choose this year's Indian batboy. There's the job, of course, but beyond that Vecek is going to give a $1,000 cash prize to the boy who is chosen—to be set aside by him to be applied to the cost of his education.
