Annual event raises money for firefighter toy drive

Le Salon du Vin attracts 500 wine-lovers

By Jessie Aulis

RECORD CORRESPONDENT

The 1998 edition of Le Salon du Vin was held on Oct. 28. The annual wine-tasting attracted more than 500 wine-lovers and raised awareness and funds for the firefighters toy drive. Once again firefighters and the SAQ joined forces to raise money to buy toys to be given to underprivileged children at Christmas.

Danielle Berthold, a well-known personality from Cité-FM, is the honorary president this year.

"This is the first time that I've been asked to fulfill such a role and I am very proud of it," Berthold said. "I am deeply satisfied with the way it all turned out. I've been told that there might be a little less people than last year but our visitors are the cream of the crop and down the line the results might be surprising. For me it is a huge success."

This is the fifth edition of "Le Salon du Vin" and once again it proved to be quite a success, largely due to the impeccable work of organizers Luc Rousseau, director of the SAQ for the Eastern Townships, Alain Morissette, a firefighter for the last 25 years and the numerous volunteers who gave their time for a good cause.

The formula this year is slightly different than for the past two years: Wine-tasters had to contribute $10 at the door and buy tickets to taste the wine of their choice. Depending on the quality or brand they wanted to taste, two tickets or more were required for every glass.

"It was a way for us to keep higher standards, meaning that we don't want this event to be an open bar where people over-drink and then drive," said Rousseau. "We had to make a decision which meant changing the formula - we did for last year's edition and it proved to be the right one as we can see again this year."

Rousseau says the new and improved version creates a win-win situation for everyone. "This way, the different companies can promote their products and serious tasters don't mind paying a little more to sample more expensive wine," he said.

Sherbrooke's firefighters will deliver the toys in mid-December to children who have been pre-selected by social services. Application forms to receive toys are available at any firefighting department in Sherbrooke.

Although used toys are always welcomed, the money will be used to supplement toy donations with purchased toys. "We have seven firemen who still work at repairing broken toys but often they're sent to us pretty damaged so it makes it more difficult to just rely on used goods" explained Morissette.

"We owe a lot to Luc Rousseau for putting us in contact with all these companies and to all the volunteers who generously donated their time, especially Nicole Beaudoin from the Pavillon en Alimentation & Tourisme and her students. They nicely prepared the cheese plates and bread which are served here," said Morissette.

Morissette said last year's drive was successful and he hopes they can match the effort this year. "We raised $7,000 last year and we are positive that we'll do as well this year, if you think about it this means toys for about 700 children."

Elaine Paige sings the show-stopper "Memory" in the Great Performances telecast of Monday on PBS.

By John Crook

TVDATA

Cats is a paradox. Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical adaptation of 14 poems in Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats by T.S. Eliot is the longest-running musical in Broadway history - and possibly the most derided show of the past two decades.

"Cats isn't an opera! I'm not even sure it's music!" snapped Joe Pinoni (Nathan Lane) in an episode of the NBC sitcom Encore! Encore! Several TV shows have used the Cats reference as a kind of hip comic shorthand for "a show only a tourist could love."

Whether it's treasure or trash, the Tony Award-winning musical arrives on PBS Monday, Nov. 2, in a Great Performances production sure to please most viewers. The cast includes Elaine Paige, who originated the role of the glamorous Grizabella, and Ken Page, Broadway's first Old Deuteronomy. Oscar winner John Mills, 90, takes the role of Gus the Theatre Cat.

Adapted by Lloyd Webber and original director Trevor Nunn from Eliot's poetry collection, the musical takes place on the night of the Jellicle Ball, when one lucky feline will be selected for a mystical rebirth into another life.

Essentially, Cats is plotless, a lively revue of "specialty acts" by its kitty corps. Some numbers are rousing, many are forgettable, and one - "Memory" - is truly haunting.

The Great Performances telecast is a bit of a mixed bag. The frequent close-ups allow viewers to appreciate designer John Napier's stunning makeup and costumes, although his misty moonlit set looks far more striking from a distance.

Start spreadin' the mews! Cats slinks its way to PBS

David Mallet, who directed the telecast, favors MTV-like editing, and his frequent cuts tend to disrupt the flow of Gillian Lynne's canny choreography.

Still, Paige's poignant Grizabella is more than ready for her close-up, and when she soars into the climax of "Memory," all of the evening's occasional dull patches are, well, forgotten. In short, it's the kind of moment Great Performances was created to capture.

HALLOWEEN Safety Tips

- Make sure you can see when wearing masks
- Have your parents check unwrapped treats
- Don't share your chocolate candy with dogs, it will make them sick
- Use reflective tape on your costumes so you are clearly visible to vehicles
- Trick-or-treat in well-known areas
- Carry a flashlight so you can see easily and can be seen, as well
- Drive slowly — many ghosts and goblins will be lurking in the streets.

Historic 33-year run at risk for W-Five

By Tony Atherton
TVDATA

One way or another, Tom Clark and the folks at W-Five are going to make history during the CTV series' 33rd season. Their goal is to produce a show good enough to be renewed as Canada's first year-round weekly news-magazine.

But if W-Five doesn't draw a crowd over the next dozen or so weeks, Clark will be remembered as part of the team that killed the country's longest-running public affairs show.

"This really is a make-or-break year," says Clark, who will co-anchor the upcoming season of W Five with Valerie Pringle (Canada AM). "We all entered the season at the beginning of July knowing that fact. It's in front of us 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Last spring, when CTV President Ivan Fecan announced details of the first fall schedule since Baton assumed full control of the network, he made it clear that W Five would have to recapture its million-plus audience this year if it expected to see a 34th season.

"When you get the sense that this is it, there are no second chances, the adrenaline pumps faster than ever before, you don't hold back, you don't take days off and it's a race to the finish line," says Clark, a former CTV China correspondent who has served as Baton's one-man national bureau for the past eight years.

CTV has taken pains to ensure there will be no excuse for failure. The network has increased W Five's budget by 50 percent for the season, and has promised not to plague the news-magazine with the kind of casual pre-emptions that confused regular viewers in years past.

For its part, the network is fine-tuning the show's format to give it a better chance of connecting with the audience. By sticking with two hosts instead of cycling half a dozen through the W Five anchor chairs, and by spotlighting three correspondents - Susan Ormiston, Jim O'Connell and Wei Chen - producers think they can brand the show with an increasingly fickle news audience.

"I think Canadian public affairs shows in the past have really suffered a little bit by a certain puritanical streak about how public affairs programming is supposed to look," Clark says. "This year, we sort of looked at (higher production values) and instead of asking why, asked why not."

But that doesn't mean the show will be fluff and filler, he says.

"Every show, by our own internal mandate, will have one big 'I' or one big 'J' story, 'I' being investigative, 'J' being journalism. It won't always be the lead, but it will be there."

For W Five, finding the just the right mix is more than merely preferable; it's a matter of life and death.

Fine furniture-making in Stanbridge East

Gary Bursey carries on Shaker tradition

CAROLINE KEHNE/CORRESPONDENT

Gary Bursey fashions traditional pieces such as the traditional Shaker slat-back chair or rocker topped with onion finials, buffets, slant-top desks and chests of drawers using cherry, basswood and poplar.

By Caroline Kehne
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
STANBRIDGE EAST

The tradition of fine furniture-making begun by the Shaker sect more than two centuries ago lives on at the outskirts of Stanbridge East. Ironically, it is native Newfoundlander Gary Bursey who is helping to keep alive the style - characterized by simplicity of lines and ruggedness of construction - long after the last Shaker craftsmen have disappeared.

The Shakers, or the United Society of Believers in the First and Second Appearance of Christ, were America's largest communal utopian society with communities stretching from Maine to Kentucky. Founded in 1774 by English woman Ann Lee, the dissident Anglican sect became known as the "Shaking Quakers" for their practice of dancing when possessed by the Holy Spirit.

Mother Ann taught the virtues of material and spiritual simplicity, values that echoed in all aspects of Shaker life - from architecture to the construction of everyday objects such as cheese boxes or rocking chairs.

Bursey said it was the simple elegance of the Shaker style that first caught his eye. A carpenter by trade, he polished his skills building and finishing houses. Later, he built furniture for J.J. Farmer, work which he summed up as "big production, low-quality."

About 10 years ago, he began making Shaker-inspired furniture. Working from the Stanbridge East workshop that also houses his showroom, Bursey fashions traditional pieces such as the traditional Shaker slat-back chair or rocker topped with onion finials, buffets, slant-top desks and chests of drawers using cherry, basswood and poplar. In a whimsical concession to the French style, he has also constructed a Shaker-style armoire with lines that are clean and crisp.

Bursey's raw materials are locally grown, kiln dried and custom milled. Cherry is his hardwood of choice.

"Ninety-nine per cent of customers choose cherry because of the richness and color," he said.

Basswood and white poplar are used as secondary woods, either for contrast or in less conspicuous places such as drawer sides or chest backs. Bucking the common practices of cutting cost by using veneered wood, Bursey uses only solid hardwood boards. Even the backs of pieces are finished so that they may be viewed from all sides. Bursey admits that he has made some concessions to modernity, such as giving up hand dove-tailing in favour of machine-made dove-tails.

Not all of Bursey's works are Shaker-inspired. In his showroom sits a chair reminiscent of the early 20th-century Mission style made on commission.

"I will make anything for anyone as long as it is of high quality," he said.

Bursey sells his pieces off the showroom floor or builds to order. His buyers are predominantly Canadian, though his works go to U.S. and European customers as well. Local interior design magazines such as Les Idées de Ma Maison have featured his works. Though he once worked with an assistant, Bursey prefers to work alone and the waiting time for a custom-built piece is now eight-to-10 weeks.

With the attention to quality materials and hand-finishing, Bursey's works are not inexpensive, with a slat-back straight chair starting at $325 and more elaborate pieces such as a buffet or sideboard ranging around $3,000. However, comparable prices for "authentic" Shaker furniture range from $500 U.S. to thousands for a straight chair in a market that is rife with fakery. In light of the perils that await the inexperienced antique buyer, a well-built modern piece with a known provenance is a reasonable compromise and an investment for the future.

With his reputation now established, the Stanbridge East craftsman said he wants the freedom to do "odder" pieces, unique works that are objets d'art rather than simple household objects. As with a work of art, each piece is now signed by its maker. Time will tell if Gary Bursey's creations become the next generation's treasures.

Gary Bursey's workshop is located at 140 Bunker Road on Route 237 south of Stanbridge East. For further information, call (450) 248-7624.

Hank Williams boxed set includes everything he ever recorded Danni Leigh's rookie album shows promise

New albums are piling up on my desk and I have a hard time deciding if I should review the new comers or the already-well-established. My best bet is most likely to try and mix them up so no one will be left out.

DANNI LEIGH: 29 Nights (Decca)

There's a new girl in town and does she ever deserve rave reviews for her first release! Her name is Danni Leigh and she sounds as if she was born singing and recording albums.

The Virginia native, co-wrote seven songs on this 10-song album and her writing proves to be promising. For the fans who have been complaining country music in the 90's is closer to rock and pop - here's a surprise for you.

Danni Leigh is a traditionalist performing 100 per cent pure country music built upon the classic country cornerstone of the 50's. Sometimes her voice reminds us of Tanya Tucker while on other numbers it showcases the retro undertones of the great Jean Shepard.

She's got Terri Clark's tantalizing swirl and Dwight Yoakam's swing with the lonesome, honey-drenched flow of her voice on tunes like the title track, "29 Nights".

"29 Nights" is a serene, up-tempo ballad that highlights the hope beyond the heartbreak, with lyrics like "a thousand miles, a month of emptiness, a million tears have been dried..."

The first single released "If The Jukebox Took Teardrops," is about love gone wrong and easily brings to mind the image of a busy dance floor somewhere in a roadhouse in Texas.

The song is already very popular with radio stations everywhere and people are calling in to find out who this great artist is. The young lady is very talented, swinging on honky-tonkers and weeping on the classic, heart-breaking ballads.

Most of the material in this new collection is up-tempo, which works well if you're gonna have a party or listen to it in your car. This is music you can crank-up and enjoy and it is sure to put you in an excellent mood.

Leigh chose to cover a Willie Nelson classic entitled "Touch Me," which she per-

COUNTRY CONNECTION

forms beautifully, her voice becoming a sultry instrument of ultimate heartbreak. The wailing of pedal steel sets the right mood as Leigh borrows Patsy Cline style.

If this debut album is any indication, Leigh is bound to become part of the roster of today's big-name female singers.

This is a big time, good time record for new comer Danni Leigh.

T. GRAHAM BROWN: Wine Into Water (Intersound)

The range of songs on this album is an exceptional effort from a talented singer with a tight band to the excellent guests and deep, soulful songs that reflect on life's joys and heartbreaks.

The guest list is impressive, including artists such as Delbert McClinton, Lee Roy Parnell, Marty Stuart, Delaney Bramlett, Steve Wariner and Beth Nielsen Chapman.

Some of them contribute vocals, others contribute sophisticated guitar licks and songwriter Gary Nicholson co-wrote seven of the 11 tracks. The material on this album showcases a lot of depth and maturity, especially on songs such as "A Better Word For Love," or "Good Days Bad Days."

T. Graham Brown himself refers to this new album as his "grown-up" album, of course the man has been around for a while so every bit of his life-experience counts.

The highlight of the album is the gospel-inspired title track, a very personal and deeply moving song inspired by his own battle with the bottle. Brown has been performing it live for years and always got a great response, but this is the first time he has recorded it.

It's a good album to add to your collection but it's not mainstream enough to make it on the radio. Don't let this stop you since you might be deeply inspired while listening to it.

HANK WILLIAMS: The Complete Hank Williams (Mercury)

I guess it would be pretty hard to find a more complete retrospective of Hank Williams career since this boxed-set includes 10 CDs and 225 songs. However, this collection will probably only appeal to collectors and diehard Hank Williams fans.

Of course, this collection is rather expensive to buy but it is in a nice package and the accompanying booklets include more than 140 photos, essays, a time-line and quotes from stars like Alan Jackson and Marty Stuart, pop-singer Tony Bennett and rock band R.E.M.'s Mike Mills.

The 10 CDs include every known studio recording, every unearthed publishing demo and all the available live tape the native of Mount Olive, Alabama ever recorded over 13 years.

This wonderful collection starts with the 68 songs the Country Music Hall of Fame officially issued on Sterling and MGM Records, from "Calling You" in December 1946 to "Please Don't Let Me Love You," released in 1953, more than two years after his death at age 29.

It includes 10 previously unreleased demos and radio performances Williams recorded while living in Montgomery, Alabama, way before his career took off.

The earliest, "Happy Rovin' Cowboy," dates back to 1939, when Hank, a young man of 17, appeared on a local radio station. He is a thin-voiced teenager, but he is already showing great confidence.

The discs take you through the great music he produced during his short, tortured life: his days on the Louisiana Hayride radio show, his debut on the Grand Ole Opry and most of all his performances on his own radio program, the Health and Happiness show. The title for his show was a little ironic since he found neither. There's also a spoken radio commercial where Hank hawks his book: How To Write Folk & Western Music To Sell.

This intimate look and listen at a man who changed the face of country music forever is complete with this collection and will make you realize how much of an impact his music still has on the music that floods the country market of today.

Ticats tussle with Alouettes in CFL season-closer

By Ted Shaw
TVDATA

The regular season of the CFL comes to a close with an interesting matchup between two powerhouse teams in the East as the Hamilton Tiger-Cats host the Montreal Alouettes Sunday, Nov. 1, at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

CBC Television carries the regular season finale. The CFL conference playoffs start Nov. 8.

Hamilton has the upper hand, having won the first two games against Montreal this season.

This has been a good year for the Ticats. The team came off one of the worst seasons in franchise history in 1997, when it won only two games, to become a league powerhouse this year.

Several strong moves turned the team around. The Ticats acquired free-agent quarterback Danny McManus, head coach Ron Lancaster and wide receiver Darren Flutie from the Edmonton Eskimos during the off-season.

Meanwhile, the Alouettes are led by running back Mike Pringle and quarterback Tracy Ham. Ham has been plagued by injury during the season, and whether he'll be healthy enough for the playoffs is questionable.

CBC's Mark Lee hosts the pregame show, The CFL on CBC, with play-by-play by Chris Cuthbert and analysis by former Winnipeg lineman Chris Walby.

CBC has exclusive coverage of the playoffs, beginning with the Eastern and Western Conference semifinals on Nov. 8.

The Conference finals are played on Nov. 15.

The annual Grey Cup championship is scheduled for Nov. 22 from Winnipeg Stadium.

• It's the final week of auto racing for both the CART and Formula One circuits.

TED SHAW

The CART season wraps up Sunday with the Marlboro 500 from Fontana, Calif. Coverage can be seen on TSN or later Sunday on a CBC tape-delay broadcast.

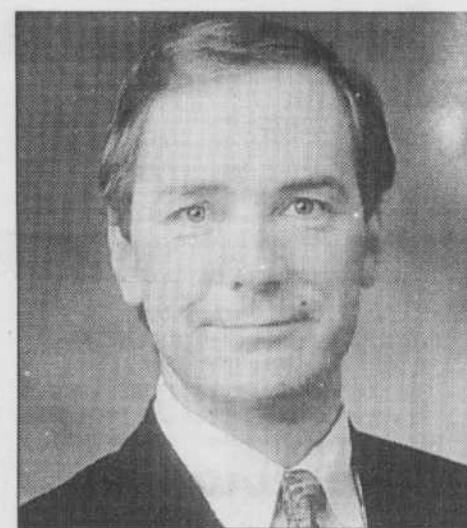

• The NHL's season begins its second month. On Tuesday, Nov. 3, CTV Sportnet airs the Calgary Flames' visit to Joe Louis Sports Arena in Detroit for a game against the Stanley Cup champion Red Wings.

Saturday, Nov. 7, features three games on CBC's Hockey Night in Canada.

Viewers in Ottawa, Quebec and the Maritimes will see the Washington Capitals at the Ottawa Senators in the first game.

The rest of Ontario and the western provinces will see the New York Rangers at the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the second game of the double-header, CBC provides national coverage of the Nashville Predators at the Van-

Quebec Permit Holder

• Librettist Oscar Hammerstein II was the namesake and grandson of a German-born tobacco merchant who founded theaters on two continents.

• "Howdy Doody for President" buttons were the rage of the 1948 campaign season. In six weeks, about 100,000 were handed out.

• Florence Bates (Rebecca, The Secret Life of Walter Mitty) made her first film at age 49. In 1914, at 26, she became the first female lawyer in Texas.

• The 1964 pilot for The Munsters was made in color. Every other episode of the series was filmed in black and white.

• Actor Tate Donovan (Trinity) plays fiddle in an Irish band named the McGuffins. He played the theme song for his previous series, Partners. TRIVIA

• Ben Kingsley (Crime and Punishment) decided to become an actor at age 19, after seeing Ian Holm (King Lear) in Shakespeare's Richard III.

• Danny DeVito and Rhea Perlman wed on the set of Taxi during a coffee break. They acted together in five episodes of the series.

• Camryn Manheim (The Practice) and Extreme Ghostbusters were the recipients of 1998's Disability Rights in Entertainment, Arts and Media awards.

• Musclemann-turned-actor Dolph Lundgren (Masters of the Universe, Blackjack) holds a master's degree in chemical engineering.

• Joan Lunden was co-host of ABC's Good Morning America for 17 years, beginning in 1980. She joined the show as a consumer reporter in 1977.

• William Daniels (Boy Meets World, St. Elsewhere) played a nebbish in saggy tights in 1967's Captain Nice. Alice Ghostley co-starred.

• When she first moved to New York to pursue an acting career, Linda Lavin (Conrad Bloom) shared an apartment with Olympia Dukakis.

• The 1987-91 drama thirtysomething featured Faith Ford (Murphy Brown, Maggie Winters) in the recurring role of a fumbling secretary.

• Stanley Tong, director-executive producer of CBS' Martial Law, started out as a martial arts stuntman. More recently, he directed Mr. Magoo.

• Jason Robards and Ron Howard both made their screen debuts in The Journey, set in 1956 Budapest. Robards was 38, Howard 4.

• As a juvenile actor, Tim Matheson made guest appearances on Leave It to Beaver, The Twilight Zone and My Three Sons.

HOMICIDE STEP BY STEP

TVDATA
Actor Andre Braugher is interviewed in the behind-the-scenes documentary Anatomy of a Homicide: Life on the Street, airing Wednesday, Nov. 4, on PBS. Director Ted Bogosian follows the creative team step by step through the process of making "Subway," a particularly edgy and complicated episode of the NBC series. The actual episode also is shown. Other interviewees include writer James Yoshimura and stars Vincent D'Onofrio and Clark Johnson.

HOW MUCH IS THAT DOGGIE...

TVDATA
Sadistic fur fan Cruella De Vil (Glenn Close) has devilish visions of divine fashions made from the coats of 101 Dalmatians. The Wonderful World of Disney film airs Sunday, Nov. 1, on ABC.
