GERMANS LOSE RACE TO BREAK BRIDGEHEAD RUSSIANS MOUNT EASTERN FRONT PRESSURE

Americans Continuing To Pour Fresh Units Over Rhine Bridgehead

Tank-Supported German Infantry Stopped Cold in Effort to Break Up Crossing of Rhine Effected by United States 1st Army.

Paris, March 10.—(AP)—Tank-supported German infantry struck at the fifty-square-mile U. S. 1st Army bridgehead over the Rhine at Remagen today, but were stopped cold as more thousands of infantrymen sped over the bridge in a race against enemy columns moving up for battle.

A front dispatch said several hundred Germans supported by armor were halted in a thrust on the Rhine bridgehead, five miles deep and ten or more wide.

Farther upstream the U. S. 3rd Army smashed forward to within two miles of Coblenz. Some 20,000 of the enemy were boxed in northwest of the city by the juncture of the 1st and 3rd Armies.

To the north the 1st Canadian Army compressed the Wesel pocket, containing the last German bridgehead between the Netherlands border and Cologne, to a scant twelve square miles.

Ontario infantry of the 4th Canadian Armored Division seized Veer, strongpoint three miles south of fallen Xanten, Canadian Press War Correspondent Ross Munro reported.

The build-up of the U. S. 1st Army's wedge over highlands across the river from Remagen continued overnight with hundreds of tons of supplies hurried across the shell-threatened Ludendorff bridge along with thousands more troops.

German convoys, desperately using headlights in night travel, converged on the bridgehead, and a major, perhaps decisive, battle impended.

But the initial German counterblows had failed, and so massive were forces rolling over the bridge that a front correspondent declared "the Germans already have lost the race."

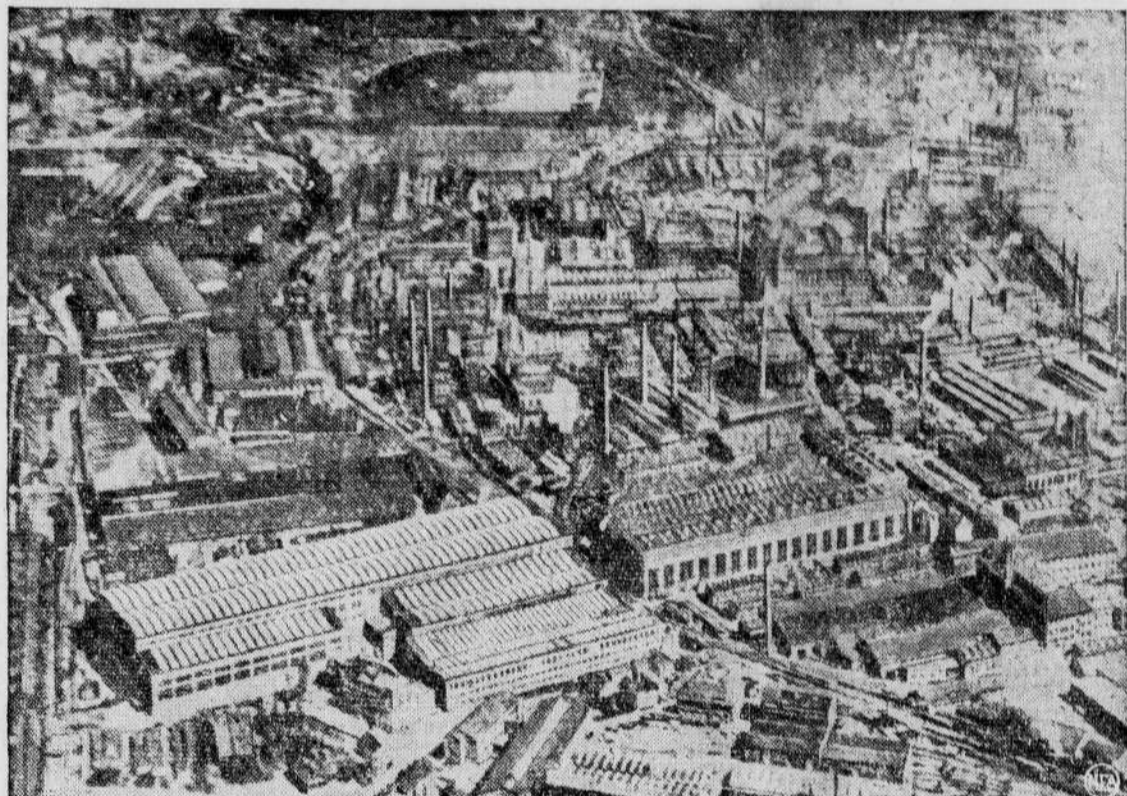

The 3rd Army's 4th Armored Division seized Ruchenach, on a main road two miles northwest of Coblenz, a city of 80,000 population.

Farther northwest the 3rd and 1st Armies had linked at the Rhine, and were tightening a trap on 20,000 or more German survivors of five or six divisions, holed up in the Eifel mountains northeast of Coblenz. Bonn, city of 101,000 on the Rhine, fourteen miles southeast of Cologne, was in 1st Army hands.

A front dispatch said the Germans were hurling heavy artillery shells and suicide air raids against the bridgehead's lifeline—the 1,200-foot Ludendorff railway span — but a steady stream of infantry and armor continued to pour across it.

To the north two divisions of fanatical German paratroopers — supported by the greatest artillery concentration ever turned against the 1st Canadian Army — fought viciously to protect the gateway to the North German plain against another

Krupp's At Essen: Rich Prize Of The Ruhr Valley

Looking down on the Krupp armament works at much-bombed Essen, rich war prize in the path of the Canadian 1st Army. Essen is the steel and coal hub of the Ruhr, heart of Hitler's arsenal. Founded as a nursery a thousand years ago, it lies on the Ruhr River and so is a crossroads of the river-canal-railroad network that helps Hitler's war machine to keep going. Krupp's, founded in 1810, reached an employment peak believed to be 200,000 in this war, more than a third of Essen's normally 650,000 population. With model

COMMUNISTS IN CHINA DECLARE CHIANG DESPOT

Seek Removal and Punishment of Chinese President — Move Disperses Any Hope of Settlement of China's Political Problems.

By SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer
Chungking, March 10.—(AP)—China's Communists today called President Chiang Kai-Shek a despot and dictator and declared he should be removed and punished.

A statement, issued from Communist headquarters here, apparently dispelled any lingering hopes of an early settlement of China's political problems. It was the most incisive attack on Chiang since the Central Government began fresh negotiations with the Communists last May.

Written as a reply to Chiang's March 1 announcement that a national assembly would be called in November to give China a constitutional government, the statement said such an assembly would be a "congress of slaves" and accused Chiang of plotting to swallow the Communist armies.

(Chiang, in his March 1 announcement, implied that the calling of the assembly would be contingent upon the Communists' willingness to place their armed forces at the disposal of the Central Government in the war against Japan.)

The Communist statement, written by an unidentified correspondent of the party's official news agency, charged that Chiang had given a false picture of his negotiations with the Communists and said he spoke "like a lunatic" when he suggested that an American officer be placed in command of Communist troops, under Chiang's overall command.

5 Separate Probes Into Ship Disaster

Vancouver, March 10.—(AP)—Inquiry ordered by the Federal Justice Department into the explosion of the S. S. Greenhill Park here last Tuesday will open in a week or two, it was announced today, as Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, Chairman, and Dugald Donaghy, Crown Counsel, conferred on arrangements. Five men are known to have died in the explosion and three are missing. Besides the Federal investigation there are four informal, fact-finding probes now proceeding.

Canada Shipping Co., Ltd., operators of the 10,900-ton freighter, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Vancouver Fire Department and Federal Transport Department are already conducting inquiries.

Thousands Of Jap Troops Are Suffocated In Manila Battle

Manila, March 10.—(AP)—Silent American successes east of Manila carried the invaders past the first line of a maze of caves and tunnels known as the Shimbun Line, the most heavily fortified defenses encountered on Luzon.

The communiques reported a second air attack with more than one hundred tons of bombs on Zamboanga, Mindanao's biggest city on the southwest coast, but offered no comment on enemy reports that troops landed there Friday under the guns of two bombarding task forces.

American successes east of Manila carried the invaders past the first line of a maze of caves and tunnels known as the Shimbun Line, the most heavily fortified defenses encountered on Luzon.

Estimates of "several thousand" dead Japanese there probably pushed the foe's casualties on Luzon, invaded January 9th, to around 100,000.

The forces of Lt.-Gen. Yamashita had laid careful plans to exact a fearful toll of Americans making a frontal assault on the Shimbun Line, stretching between Wawa and Antipolo, fourteen miles east of Manila.

KING DISCUSSES YALTA POLICIES WITH ROOSEVELT

Canadian Premier Receives Details of Talks Roosevelt Had With Stalin and Churchill at Crimea Conference.

By C. R. BLACKBURN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Washington, March 10.—(AP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King went to the White House yesterday afternoon as a guest of President Roosevelt with whom he is expected to discuss war and political developments of interest to Canada.

The Prime Minister reached Washington from Ottawa shortly after lunch, accompanied by Maj.-Gen. Maurice Pope and Norman Robertson, Under-Secretary of External Affairs.

These two officials are the Prime Minister's personal advisers on war and international affairs. Their presence was taken as an indication that he planned to discuss Canadian participation in the Pacific war theatre and political implications to Canada in the Yalta planning for liberated Europe.

At the White House last night the Prime Minister received from the President details of the talks Mr. Roosevelt had with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill at Yalta in the Crimea, and with Mr. Churchill at Malta and Alexandria.

Mr. King told reporters nothing of his reasons for coming to Washington before he left Ottawa but explained that he was accepting an invitation sent him by the President.

RESISTANCE IN WESEL POCKET MAY END SOON

FRED BACKHOUSE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, March 10.—(CP Cable)

The possibility of an early collapse of enemy resistance in the Wesel pocket where the German 1st Parachute Army is putting up a savage fight against Gen. Crear's Canadian and British forces appeared today as a result of the spectacular crossing of the Rhine by United States 1st Army forces.

The determination with which the Germans have held onto their bridgehead on the west side of the Rhine opposite Wesel is in marked contrast to their defence elsewhere along the river's west bank. In one of two other places where the enemy is holding out — except in the stretch from around Coblenz upstream to Karlsruhe — opposition is only light and is being overcome rapidly.

To the 1st Canadian Army has fallen the task of assaulting this hinge, vital to German defence plans at this crucial moment, just as it did last summer at Caen in Normandy, where the Canadians' bloody struggle made possible the American sweep across France and led to the smashing of the German 7th Army.

The most likely explanation of the Germans' desperate last-stand fight before Wesel has been that it is to gain time for the German Army to reorganize its defence on the Rhine's eastern bank. An Allied crossing of the Rhine in this area would provide a bridgehead leading into open country where Allied forces could outflank the densely built-up areas of the industrial Ruhr Valley.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
The U. S. 1st Army's sensational crossing of the Rhine has set homefront temperatures to fluctuating violently again and everybody wants to know how soon the war will be over.

Well, in these swiftly changing days the smart prophet hides his light under a bushel. So while cheerfully admitting that great optimism is warranted, I'm sticking to a statement I made in this column months ago. It was this:

I don't believe the Germans can maintain organized resistance very long, once the Western Allies and the Russians are across the Rhine and Oder Rivers respectively in great force.

Since these main defensive barriers already have been broken, that condition will be fulfilled speedily. The Russians are across the Oder in several places, and Eisenhower is pouring a veritable flood of men and material through his new bridgehead. The Germans are so vastly outnumbered on both fronts, and so inferior in air power and in equipment of all sorts, that they can't withstand the pressure which is about to be clamped upon them. Their organized resistance soon must collapse, and that will mean the virtual end of the war, for we can discount any guerrilla activities as of comparatively minor consequence.

However, there's another and serious aspect to this question of how soon the war will end. What do we mean by "the war"? I'm afraid too many are inclined to think of "the war" in terms of Europe.

That's a terrible mistake. The conflict there is only one section of the war. When the Allies have smashed Germany they still have the Japanese to beat.

We've come to look on Hitler as the arch-devil of our time — and he undoubtedly is entitled to that brand. However, Japan presents a danger potentially as great as the threat of enslavement held over Europe by Hitler.

The Japs are imbued with all the aggression and brutality of Prussianism, plus barbarism. They themselves have made it quite clear that their scheme is to bring all Asia under their domination and set it against the Western World — the horrible idea of east in conflict with the west.

We know from well-informed sources that already the Japanese — admitting to themselves the probability of their defeat in the present war — are planning another attack twenty-five years hence. They would profit by their military lessons in the present conflict.

So the Allies won't have freed the world from danger when they put a rope about Hitler's neck. The Japanese militarists must follow the Prussians out.

How long will the Pacific war last? Don't let anybody tell you he can answer that, because he can't.

"Bluebeard" Showing At New Premier Exciting Story Of Artist-Murderer

John Carradine, mad artist in PRC's "Bluebeard," in a romantic prelude to a murder, with Jean Parker who plays the feminine lead in the picture, opening tomorrow at the New Premier Theatre.

Showing for the first time in this city on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the New Premier Theatre, PRC's latest spine-chiller, "Bluebeard" features Jean Parker, and John Carradine as a mad artist who sadistically murders his beautiful models to satisfy his overwhelming psychopathic impulses.

Although "Bluebeard" follows the authentic type in the Bluebeard tradition, with many beautiful young girls being the victims of an artist with an uncontrollable desire to strangle his models after he has painted their portraits, there is nothing gruesome in the operations of this Bluebeard.

John Carradine, starring in the title role, is subtle, but sinister, magnetic, but repulsive. An idealist who kills because his ideals are frustrated. Here is a complex creature tailored to the unique talents of Carradine, who achieves a unique characterization comparable to anything this fine actor has done on the stage and out-ranking any of his previous screen portrayals. He is ably assisted by Jean Parker, Nils Asther, Ludwig Stossel and a notable cast of supporting players.

The locale of the story is Paris; the time, the latter part of the 19th Century when the Latin Quarter was in its heyday and La Vie de Boheme was something more than a legend for opera.

As Gaston Morel, an artist who uses a puppet show to attract young girls as models for his paintings, and whose bodies are later found floating in the Seine—strangler floats in the film—John Carradine portrays a complex prototype of the notorious Gilles de Retz more understandable to modern psychologists than was the infamous marshal of France to the specialists in human behavior of his day.

Jean Parker plays opposite Carradine in the role of Lucille, pretty

Concert Film, "Adventure In Music," Starting Sunday At Granada Theatre

Starting Sunday, for three days the Granada Theatre will present for the first time, "Adventure in Music," a delightful excursion in the concert hall with an on-stage cast reserved for every member of the audience. There has been no such music entertainment yet presented in any movie theatre, and it is a thrilling and memorable treat for both movie-goer and music-lover alike.

Featuring the renowned pianist Jose Iturbi along with Emanuel Feuermann, cellist; Mildred Dilling, harpist; Vronsky and Babin, duopianists, and the Coolidge String Quartet, Adventure in Music gives the theatre patron a perfect close-up of these artists in their respective renditions as intimately near, in fact, as though he or she were actually at their elbows. Every motion on key and string is clearly captured by the cameras.

Its makers have seen to it that no monotony exists and to accomplish this a group of four discriminating photographers were constantly changing cameras, angles through each sequence. Among the selections by Iturbi are Sevilla by Albeniz and Chopin's Fantasia Impromptu. The remarkably co-ordinated Vronski and Babin presiding in A Flat, Arensky's Waltz and the brilliant composition Flight of the Bumble Bee by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Rendered by Feuermann is a group highlighted by Dvorak's Ron-do Opus 94 and Popper's Spring Song, and by the Coolidge string quartet Andante of Von Dittersdorf and his Fugue from Quartet in C Major.

Relationship Of This Country To Pan-American Movement Described

John Humphries, well-known authority on Inter-American and Latin-American affairs, who appeared as a guest speaker at the first regular meeting of the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, held "in camera" last night at the Social Club, commented briefly today on Canada's relationship to the Pan-American Movement, in an interview with a Record representative.

Professor Humphries stated that Canada is now extremely interested in Pan-Americanism and Latin America although prior to 1940 few Canadians had given the Inter-American System a second thought.

"There are two good reasons for this," he pointed out. "First, Canada has had an unbroken record of international status, for up to the Great War Canada was, at least for international purposes, considered a colony, and depended on Great Britain to represent her interests abroad. It is quite conceivable to believe that the Inter-American Union was of the opinion that to admit Canada to its ranks, would be to admit Great Britain, and this would be a definite breach of the Monroe Doctrine, which states that the United States would consider it an unfriendly act if a non-American power interfered with an American state."

"The second reason is one involving economics. Prior to 1940 Canadian exports to Latin America were less than three per cent and imports from there were an even smaller percentage. It might also be suggested that at that time, Canada was too preoccupied with her own domestic problems and although she did not constitute an isolationist nation in the strictest sense of the word, her attentions were directed across the Atlantic rather than to the far south."

However, continued Professor Humphries, five years ago, this country began to take an ever-increasing interest in Latin America and started to encourage the sale of Canadian products to be paid for in American dollars, which were then quite scarce here, and required for payment for the United States' imports needed.

The Ogdensburg Agreement signed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King constituted Canada's underwriting of the Monroe Doctrine, since it dealt with a study of the defence of the Americas, he said. Professor Humphries asserted that the Ogdensburg Pact Canada recognized certain responsibilities for the defence of the Americas, so that if she joined the Pan American organization, she would have a right to reciprocal benefits that might result from formal participation in the developing system of hemisphere defence.

"It may be, indeed, Canadian participation in the regional system will be a logical and necessary corollary to membership in the new universal security organization proposed at Dumbarton Oaks," he said.

In addition to other reasons why Canada should join the Union of American States, that of "cultural interests" is quite important. In this respect, Professor Humphries noted that "Canada also has cultural interests in Latin America, and this is particularly true of French-speaking Canada. Many Canadians think that membership in the Union of American States would help cement existing cultural ties with the southern republics and foster new ones."

Finally, he concluded, there is the question of national prestige. "As long as we remain outside the Union, there will be people who will attribute this to lack of international status. Canadians are becoming accustomed to looking upon themselves as citizens of an independent state; but in other countries there is still some popular misconception regarding our status. If Canada were to become a member of the Union of American States, it might help dispel archaic notions regarding her constitutional and international status."

LOCAL CLINIC TOPPED BY ONE AT STANSTEAD

A disappointing total of thirty-one blood donors presented themselves at the Red Cross Blood Clinic on Wednesday night to bring the donations for the week, with the twenty-five on Monday, up to fifty-six, forty-four less than the Sherbrooke weekly minimum objective. It is discouraging to note that the local officials sent out fifty-two calls for the Wednesday evening session, and of these, but six were answered. If they had all been answered, and recipients had performed their committed duty, the quota for the week would have been reached. As it is, the Clinic once more falls below its requirement.

Stanstead made a good showing this week, with eighty turning out at the Mobile Clinic held there on Tuesday. Next week, the Mobile will go to Coaticook on Tuesday.

NEW SLATE OF OFFICERS FOR COMMERCE BODY

Romeo Duford, Secretary of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce, announced today that the Directors of the Chamber will appoint a non-instituting committee for the purpose of designing up a new slate of officers to be voted upon at the next annual meeting scheduled to be held in May.

According to a statement issued by the Directors, every effort is being made to have the final report of the Post-War Committee available to members for the annual meeting. Numerous requests for this report have been received from many points throughout Canada and the United States.

The Directors have also agreed to endorse the brief on "Equitable Taxation for All Businesses" to be submitted to the Royal Commission in Ottawa by the National Chamber of Commerce.

One member will be delegated by the Board to sit on the "Tree Planting Committee" of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the request of the latter organization, and will act in an advisory capacity. Present at a meeting held in the Quebec Central Building, was O.S. Mozart Vallee, R.C.N.V.R., who recently arrived in Sherbrooke on leave.

Real Unity Within Province Held Essential In Talk At Men's Own At Lennoxville By Rev. N. McLeod

"One of the great necessities for the success and happiness of any nation or country is a real unity within its province," declared the Reverend Mr. Norman McLeod, Pastor of the Lennoxville United Church, in an address on the "Complexity of Canadian Unity" given at the first annual Past-Presidents' Night under the sponsorship of the Men's Own Club at the Gertrude Scott Hall in Lennoxville.

Although confining his topic chiefly to the existing racial problems in the three Prairie Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, Mr. McLeod stated that there is presently evident in the Province of Quebec, wide racial complexities that have come about through the lack of understanding and neighborliness of the various nationalities that comprise Lower Canada. The speaker maintained that one of the dominant factors necessary to break down these barriers is mutual appreciation for the other man's views and his racial and national customs and characteristics.

"It would be a fine idea for some speakers from Quebec to talk to the people of Quebec about Quebec, instead of addressing residents of other provinces or states about 'French Canada,'" he asserted.

Drawing an analogy between this country and Great Britain, the speaker pointed out that "even in the Old Land they haven't got unity, for in those two British Isles, there are preserved four distinct types of people, namely the English, Welsh, Scotch and Irish, who have maintained their own languages, characteristics and customs throughout the years. Each of these things very little of the other, and does not hesitate to say so."

"Nearly all the people of Canada came to this country from all parts of the world," he said, "and these people of varied nationalities have tended to accentuate their racial characteristics, and in many cases they have been allowed to settle in groups thus emphasizing their individual traits" which have set up a wall between them and other people of the surrounding district.

Rev. Mr. McLeod illustrated his point of "racial complexities" with a little western village of some 500 inhabitants consisting of Ukrainians, Anglo Saxons, Poles and Germans, all of whom found difficulty in appreciating and understanding their neighbor's beliefs and ideals. Stressing the type of Canadianized German to be found in that community, he stated that "He has become a very progressive farmer and citizen, living there, doing his work peacefully, and building up a prosperous farming centre." However, the speaker noted, "The Germans there are not too German. They had migrated to Russia where they acquired a great deal of that country's background and then came to settle in Western Canada. The problem of a complex situation is certainly present when it is realized that these people are looked down upon by the Russians as well as the real Germans."

"Although the German element of that particular village were true and loyal Canadians, offering their sons in the service of our country," he continued, "at the outbreak of war they became the object of suspicion... and all kinds of wild stories spread like fire, leading many to question their loyalty."

On the other hand, he sketched the Ukrainian situation. "The Ukrainians have for some time now had a grudge against the Russians and took no particular satisfaction in the present situation which tabbed the Soviet Union as one of the United Nations. For many years, the Hitler regime has been advising them through propaganda media that under the German control of Europe, the Ukrainians would be set up as an independent state and their national home would be re-

HENRY R. KLEIN LEAVING CITY FOR BROOKLYN

Marking the completion of over a quarter century with Julius Kayser and Company, nineteen years of which have been served as office manager at the Sherbrooke plant, Henry R. Klein, assistant treasurer since 1935, leaves this week-end to return to the Brooklyn, N.Y., offices of the company.

Coming to Sherbrooke in May, 1926, Mr. Klein took over the duties of chief factory accountant and assistant manager. He was named assistant treasurer of the local plant in 1935. Despite his many factory duties, Mr. Klein has found time to mix both business and pleasure, devoting many of his leisure hours to the development of various sports

Outlining the highlights of the club's activities since its foundation on March 4, 1936, Past-President Parker stated that the group was first organized for the purpose of creating a better feeling among the adherents of the church and to support any worthy cause in church and community life. Since that time, he added, the club has broadened out so that it now has Anglicans, members of the United Church, Catholics and Presbyterians.

President Rowatt also made several remarks pertaining to the development of the organization and expressed his hope that the future will continue to bring outstanding success to the Men's Own.

LENNOXVILLE HAS 31% OF QUOTA
Red Cross officials at Lennoxville announced today that the society has obtained 31% of its quota in the current campaign. Lennoxville residents have already contributed a total of $8,000.

Interested in skiing, Mr. Klein also served as President of Hillcrest Ski Club for two years. Bowling has been one of his strong points, and due to his own interest in the game, he developed the Julius Kayser Bowling League, which has been an active group for the past ten years. Mr. Klein himself is one of the five players who is still participating in the game since the plant teams were organized ten years ago. He has been President of the Sherbrooke City Bowling League for the last seven years. Member of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Klein also found time for interest in many civic activities as well as in the more active social life. He is a member of the B.P.O.E., Lodge No. 863, and in

Much Splendid Work For Boys At Front Done By Women's Committee

The chief aim of the Women's Committee, 27th Canadian Armored Regiment, (Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment), as recorded in their fourth annual report, is to acquire as much material comforts as possible for the boys serving in the Unit Overseas.

This past year they were particularly successful, having commenced in May (1944) to triple the number of cigarettes being sent to the men in the Unit every month. This was due, it is explained, to the very generous and wholehearted response of individuals, large and small companies, organizations and private enterprises in this city and the surrounding districts to the appeal for funds carried on under the name of the "Cigarette Campaign."

"Through this drive, which began in February and continued until September, receiving much publicity through the Sherbrooke Daily Record, the organization realized a total subscription of $1,913.32." Together with this, $221.60 was collected from a money jar which was placed in the lobby of the Premier Theatre through the courtesy of the manager, R. L. Vallee.

Under the joint convenership of Mrs. E. Sims and Mrs. E. Arnold, $214.96 was raised for the War Services Fund through the "dressing of the cardboard soldier" venture. Two three years will be entitled to a Life Membership in the Elks.

Married to Mrs. Gertrude Mercereau, of this city, he has a stepson, Ft.-Sgt. Leonard Mercereau, R.C.A.F., Overseas.

Feted on the occasion of his departure, Mr. Klein was guest of honor at the New Chateau Frontenac on Thursday evening, when the Departmental heads of the Sherbrooke Julius Kayser & Co. Ltd. plant tendered him a dinner. Seated at the head table were E. G. Bascom, who acted as chairman; George H. Carr, Vice-President and General Manager of the local plant, who made the presentation to Mr. Klein; J. Thission, Miss K. Clark and Miss R. Stoddard, in addition to the guest of honor. Mr. Bascom and Mr. Carr both felicitated Mr. Klein on his efficiency during his twenty-six years with the company, particularly the past nineteen years when he has been associated with the local office.

Last evening, also at the New Chateau, the several sports clubs of the local plant gave a smoker in honor of Mr. Klein.

THE LAST STAGE NEARS

Military secrecy surrounds the exact place and the extent of the bridgehead that the United States troops have established in the vicinity of Cologne over the Rhine River, but the mere fact that the Allies have been able to establish, maintain and expand such crossing is likely to have an important bearing on the outcome of the war. In fact, so important is this operation viewed in many quarters that leading military observers declare that it means the beginning of the last stage of the war—that the early collapse of organized, full-scale military resistance on the part of Germany is now imminent.

The crossing of the Rhine will have two important results—one military and one psychological. From the latter viewpoint, the Rhine has long been regarded as the major defence line for the Reich. On its banks the German people have always believed that their famous armies would make their great stand. Previous retreats have been nothing, they have been told, for when the Allies reached the Rhine, they would find the combination of the mighty river and German war machine unbeatable. To date, they have claimed, the retreats were essentially of a strategic nature, designed to save as much as possible of the badly-mauled German army so that it could make the great stand. And there has been much to support this propaganda.

Few times in the history of warfare has the Rhine been crossed as the result of a military attack. The last time this was done was by Napoleon in the opening years of the Nineteenth Century when he led his Grand Army on the conquest of Europe. Thus the crossing of the river is a mighty set-back to the propaganda leaders and must be an added shock to the German people who are already suffering under the impact of the United Nations aerial bombardment and the Russian advance in the East.

But the crossing has its military implications. The Rhine river was admittedly an imposing barrier although many military observers were convinced that with the immense air superiority and artillery power available to the United Nations this crossing could be effected in face of whatever opposition the Germans might be prepared to offer. But the fear was often expressed that the cost of such a drive would be enormous and might materially weaken the forces available to press the campaign against Germany proper after the crossing has been made.

However, using the tactics which have featured their conduct of the campaign to date, General Eisenhower and his aides waited until they had massed overwhelming equipment and then struck with a surprise blow which caught the Nazis off-balance, reducing the cost of the crossing to a minor part of the possible loss.

One of the most satisfactory features of the whole affair seems to be the ability of the Allies to maintain their foothold, keeping open the vital bridgehead through which can pour the ever-increasing flow of men and supplies needed to open an Eastern Rhine campaign designed to sweep over Germany and link up with the Russians advancing from the other side of the Reich. And as they extend their bridgehead area they will clear the way for the creation of fresh crossings which will in turn facilitate the flow of men and supplies.

LIMITING SCORCHED EARTH

As the Allied armies advance deeper into Germany, one thing becomes more and more apparent. The German policy of scorched earth was excellent when applied to occupied territories which the Nazis were evacuating but it is not so desirable when the soil of the Fatherland is affected.

Allied forces advancing into Germany have found that in marked contrast to the former occupied territories where the Nazis destroyed the industries of the areas they had to evacuate, they have left valuable plants standing in good order both in the East and in the West. In the earlier stages of the advance, this was believed due to haste, but evidence gathered later indicates that it is the definite result of a new policy, which includes instructions to key employees that they continue to keep these plants going and act under the orders of anyone who may come—an obvious reference to the administrators to be named by the Allied occupation forces.

Many reasons are advanced for this change of heart among the Germans but the most plausible suggestion is that Germany, realizing that she has lost the war, and in hope of laying the groundwork for winning the next one is seeking to preserve as much of her industrial machine as possible. They base this hope on a clause in the Yalta Conference announcement which declared that post-war German industry would be eliminated or "controlled."

They are hopeful that somehow or other, the controls will be eased and that sooner or later the plants will be restored to their present owners or their successors. Supporting this theory is the report that in recent months the Swedish patent office has been deluged by the registration of patents on behalf of German individuals, industrial corporations and research organizations, an indication that by this registration German industrialists hope that they will have a bargaining force for the restoration of those cartels which gave them a commanding place in the armament industry of the world before the outbreak of the war.

This would apparently fit in with the whole picture as reported by Lord Vansittart and his associates who are demanding the complete elimination of Germany as a military and industrial power. According to Vansittart, the German general staff is already prepared to drop out of the war at any time once the arrangements have been completed for the preservation of this organization as the nucleus of the German army for the next attempt to conquer the world. In this they are said to have the co-operation and support of the industrialists and bankers who see the opportunity of restoring themselves to a position of supremacy in the not-too-distant future.

The very manner in which these military and economic leaders are going about their work of getting under cover should prove sufficient warning to the people of the United Nations that the Reich be given no opportunity of establishing itself as anything more than a fifth rate power, if the world is not to become involved in a war during the next generation.

RESPONSIBILITY AND LONGEVITY

From time to time arguments are advanced that responsibility and the cares of office tend to shorten the life of the occupants of high positions, but a close study of human history seems to indicate that there is no relation between responsibility and long life—except possibly that the greater the burdens of office a man bears, the greater are his chances of reaching old age.

For instance, Great Britain has had twenty-nine Prime Ministers since 1783 and only seven of these failed to reach the age of seventy, the point where Holy Writ says their days are done.

And the Canadian Prime Ministers have something of a remarkable record in this respect. Of those who are still living who have held this office, Prime Minister Mackenzie King is seventy years of age and still apparently in good health; Viscount Bennett is seventy-four and from all accounts by no means at the end of his active career, and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen is seventy and still going strong in fields other than political.

Of the eight Prime Ministers since Confederation who have completed their course in this world, only one, Sir John Thompson, who died suddenly in England at the age of fifty, failed to reach the Biblical three score years and ten.

Sir Charles Tupper lived to be ninety-four; Sir Mackenzie Bowell nearly ninety-four; Sir Robert Borden, who led the country through the First Great War, was eighty-two when he died; Sir Wilfrid Laurier was seventy-seven; Sir John A. Macdonald was seventy-six; Sir John J. Abbott was seventy-two, and Hon. Alexander Mackenzie was seventy.

And coming to smaller fields, one Louis Alexandre Taschereau, who led the Province for fifteen hectic years only this week celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday in Quebec City and according to word from the Ancient Capital is still as hopeful as ever of chasing the trout on the various streams of the Province when the Merry Month of May comes around.

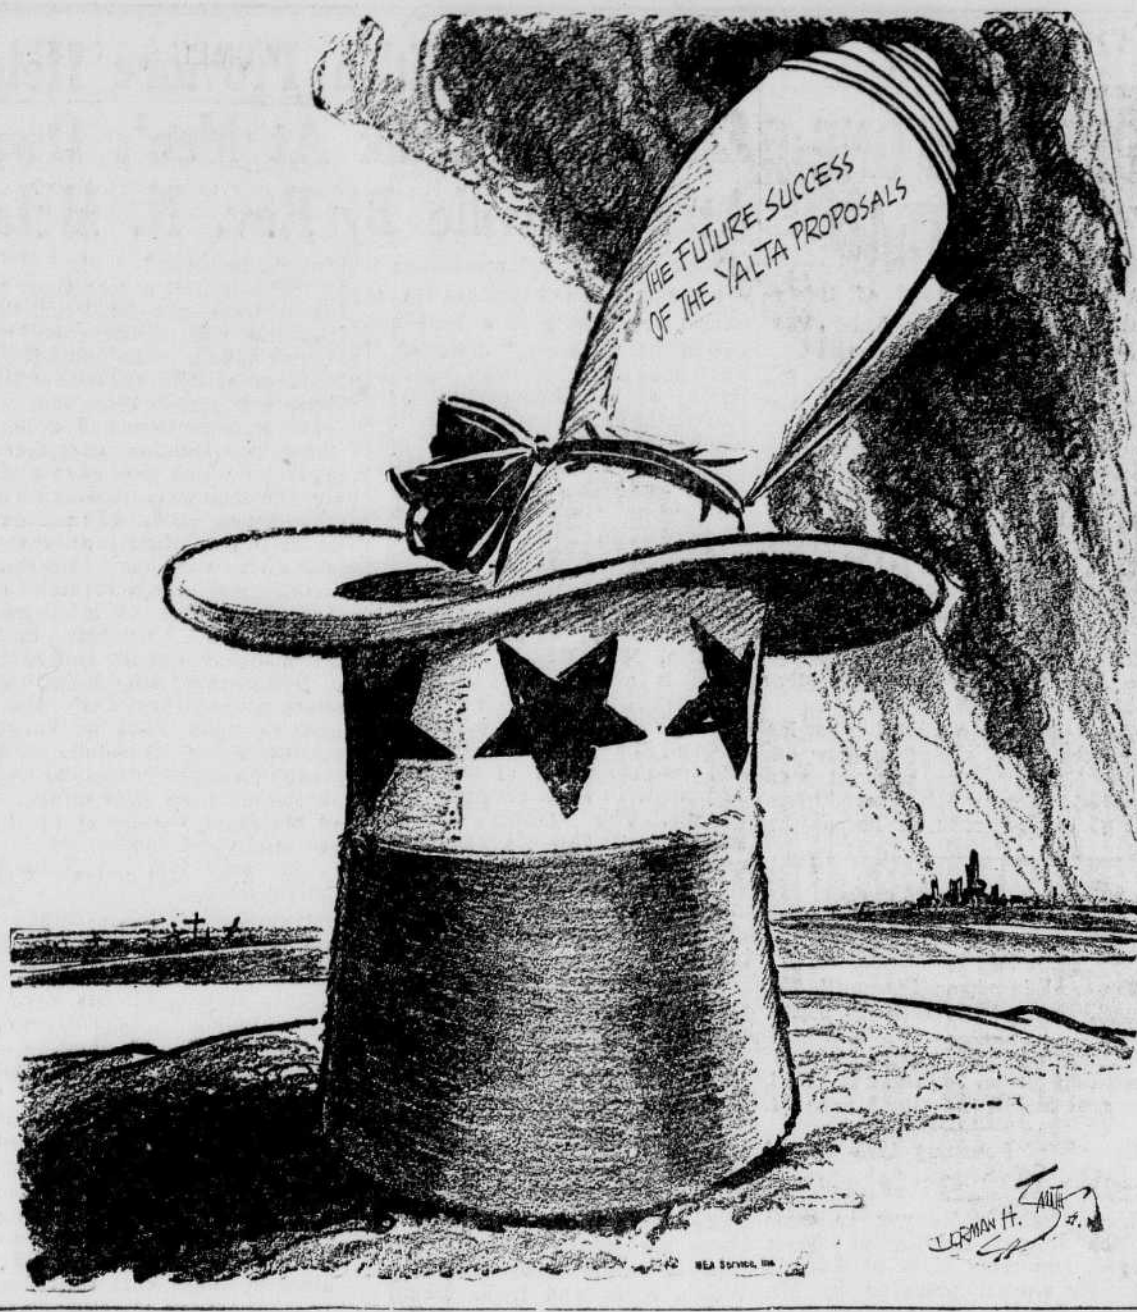

Thus, it is apparent that insofar as the average British or Canadian politician is concerned, the mere weight of responsibility need not prove fatal.

SEALED, SIGNED AND DELIVERED

Record's Forty-Eighth Anniversary Edition Lauded

The dictionary describes the word "modest" as being "diffident in regard to one's merits." We have no desire to appear boastful, but we have received so many fine letters and words of commendation regarding our Forty-Eighth Anniversary Edition that we feel a word of sincere thanks is due from us.

It is encouraging to every member of the Record staff to know that the hours of work, the planning, the getting together and the printing of this mammoth issue has not gone unnoticed or unappreciated by Record readers.

We have selected one of the many letters which we have received and one of the editorials which were printed for reproduction in this column.

The letter came from Robert C. Smith, of Toronto, head of the R. C. Smith and Son, Limited, advertising agency, and read as follows:

"After spending more than an hour on three consecutive days studying your splendid edition of February 24, I am very pleased to offer my hearty congratulations on your effort.

"Having had a very extensive experience along similar class of work while on the Globe and Mail, Toronto, I feel that I am qualified to pass judgment on the beneficial effect it will have on your circulation and prestige of 'The Record' in the Eastern Townships particularly, as well as with the general public throughout the Dominion.

"You had a much more prolific field to draw from than we had, inasmuch as you have many more industries to draw from than we had thirty-five or forty years ago.

"The stories are well written and informative and must impress your readers with the fact that your staff are above the average and well qualified.

"The Record has always had a warm place in my heart on account of the part it has played in the building up of Canada as having a sure place among the nations of the world.

"Again thanking you for giving me an opportunity to read it and learn more about one of Canada's most productive centres and the progress it has made during the last decade in spite of the war and all its horrors.

"Hoping your enjoyment and pleasure from such an achievement.

has brought with it a few days' rest and satisfaction.

"With kindest regards,
"I am as ever yours,
"ROBERT C. SMITH."

The editorial, which we are pleased to reproduce, appeared in our local confrere, La Tribune, which commented as follows:

A FINE SPECIAL NUMBER

"Our confrere, the Sherbrooke Daily Record, published a special number of a high standard on the occasion of their forty-eighth anniversary, in which the progress accomplished in Canada and the Province of Quebec during the past year in the principal spheres of human activity were outlined. It is with reason, however, that our confrere devoted the greater part of this excellent number to the City of Sherbrooke and the district of the Eastern Townships, so rich from an agricultural point of view, so attractive from a tourist's point of view, so well served by a number of railroads, well balanced from a commercial point of view, and very wealthy in industrial possibilities.

"We know by experience that such a large issue is the result of hours of extra work to our confreres at the Record, and we wish to congratulate them on their success. The many articles of this 'annual' are well written, well presented, and varied in scope. They provide much interesting reading to those who love the Eastern Townships, for those interested in the diverse aspects of urban and rural life, for all those who, in their respective spheres, work towards the progress of this section of the province, justly entitled the Garden of Quebec. Our English confrere reckons that it has done its part, in the course of its forty-eight years of publication, to make the Eastern Townships known throughout a wide territory, and to accent the progress of our agricultural regions and our industrial and commercial districts. We wish to point out that they have done a good job, and we invite them to persevere in this work and at the same time we commend them for the excellent services that they have rendered to the Sherbrooke community during the past years."

The Fellowship of the Good Samaritan

Prof. the Rev. H. C. Burt, M.A., D.C.L., Lennoxville.

St. Matthew V, 7: "Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy."

It has been said that "the first flower that grows on the tree of a righteous life is the grace of Mercy."

It is, in very truth, a God-like quality, as indeed Shakespeare represents it in Portia's speech in "The Merchant of Venice"—a quality "falling as the gentle dew from heaven upon the place beneath."

The word mercy, as employed by the Jews in our Lord's time, signified two things, the pardon of injuries, and the duty of giving out of one's abundance wherewithal to feed the hungry and care for the sick and the suffering. The Latin equivalent, "misericordia," implies a heart touched and joined at the "misericordia"; in other words, Mercy does not imply mere sentimental tenderness, a sort of vague pity for a world in pain, but a strong practical impulse that seizes every opportunity to succour and serve humanity.

Where in all literature can be found so wonderful an illustration of the "quality of mercy" as in the parable of the Good Samaritan?

A lawyer had come to Christ with a view to putting to a test our Lord's orthodoxy. So he asks: "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Christ replies by stating the ancient law of love to God and to one's neighbor. Then the question: "But who is my neighbor?"

In reply, our Lord presents three pictures—the poor victim of violence, the selfishly-absorbed passers-by, and the compassionate helper. It is an exaggerated picture of a type of conduct to which human nature is ever prone. We are all apt to ignore sorrow and suffering when they are out of our sight. How much less misery there would be in the world if we always refused to follow the example of the priest and the Levite in the parable! The failure of these two men is largely a failure in imagination. They dared not look at the wounded man lest they should be put to the inconvenience of coming to his aid and taking care of him.

Fortunately there comes that way a man of wider sympathies, who applies "first-aid" to the victim's wounds, takes him to an inn for further care, and pays in advance for any treatment that may be necessary—and then, and only then, goes on his way.

Here we have a picture of what love to our neighbor should be. It is prompt, thorough, generous and self-deciding, liberal but not lavish, thrifty and prudent. We see—as the lawyer saw—that this love of one's neighbor is not merely a noble sentiment, but active, self-sacrificing, guided by common sense, and full of resources.

Christ answers the question "Who?" by brushing away as irrelevant all national distinctions, all prejudices of race, all differences of creed, all enmities rooted in historic background. We have here in this simple story the first dawning of that great conception which through nineteen centuries we have been slow to learn—the Brotherhood of Man.

Our use of the term "Humanity" is Christian; the idea of "Philanthropy" is Christian; and the practical realization of the idea will only be consummated when the great fact on which it is based is universally received: "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren."

As an alternative title to the "Red Cross Society," one might be permitted to suggest "The Fellowship of the Good Samaritan"; for all that has been said in praise of that great-hearted traveller on the road between Jerusalem and Jericho is equally applicable to our splendid modern instrument of Mercy.

It were needless to dwell here upon the glorious self-sacrificing labors of the members of this society. Radio and Newspaper vie with one another in presenting its claims on public sympathy and support. What it has accomplished, especially since the signing of the Geneva Convention of 1864, is a matter of common knowledge. Its influence in ameliorating some of the worst evils of war is universally and thankfully recognized.

The devoted Red Cross worker not only has the reward of an approving conscience, but can hope for a share in that far more wonderful recompense: "Blessed are the merciful," says the Master, "for they shall obtain mercy."

The old saying: "Virtue is its own reward," certainly applies to Mercy. The exercise of this virtue will not merely confer a blessing upon its immediate object—the person to whom mercy is shown—but even more will it tend to elevate and refine the character and life of the giver. Every kind and merciful action that is prompted by right feeling and high motive is sure to bear fruit an hundredfold.

LONG SUIT SET UP TO WIN 4 DOUBLED

Last year saw six new Life Masters created, bringing the total to 42. They were Mrs. Margaret Wagner of Atlanta, Peter Leveritt of New York, Edson T. Wood of Indianapolis, Ralph Kempner of Chicago, Arthur S. Goldsmith of Cleveland, and Simon Becker of Philadelphia.

They are all worthy of honorable mention on the All-American Team-of-Four and any one of them would be pretty sure of getting maximum results out of today's hand.

After winning the opening lead, West shifts to a jack of clubs. The declarer wins with the ace and ruffs a diamond in dummy. The queen of clubs is then led. East covers and declarer trumps, dropping West's ten. Another diamond is ruffed and the good nine of clubs is played from dummy, declarer discarding a spade. West trumps but has to lead back either a spade or a heart. He elects to lead a heart which the declarer wins with the jack and now leads

IN THE WOMEN'S SPHERE

DOROTHY DIX

Would Tax Solomon's Wisdom

In-Law Problem is Most Serious Soldier And Bride Face After War

It is a pity Solomon lived in the simple days when he had no problem more difficult to solve than which of two women, both of whom claimed to be the mother of a baby, was the real one. If he had to settle some of the domestic brawls the war has brought about, he would have a riddle into which he could really get his teeth.

Anyway, it makes one, who has not even been bitten by Solomon's dog, regret his untimely death, when called upon to answer the question of whether a returned soldier and his wife should go to live with HIS people or HER people after the war, while the husband goes back to college to finish his education?

My reply is: NEITHER, unless all of the parties concerned possess angelic dispositions and are diplomats who can walk high, wide and handsome around each other's peculiarities and habits. And that is too much luck to expect in a world where things are as they are, instead of the way we would like them to be.

There is no other one thing, not even the war itself, over which more tears have been shed and has caused more misery than the inability of in-laws to get along together. When John's mother and John's wife hate each other and fight over him like dogs over a bone, it makes one of the most sordid and bitter tragedies in the world. And the same thing happens when John and Mamie's Papa don't hit it off together.

No words can describe the heartache of a mother who sees a monopolistic wife separating the son she adores from her. Nor can any words paint the jealousy of the wife whose husband's mother keeps him still tied to her apron strings. Nor does anyone but himself know the hopeless despair of the man who is torn between the two women he loves.

And the only absolutely sure way of preventing this catastrophe is for a young couple NEVER to try to live with their in-laws. More unhappiness is caused by that, more marriages wrecked, by it than by all the seven deadly sins. For the enforced companionship of people with different backgrounds, different habits, tastes and opinions, is bound to end in friction and getting on each other's nerves.

We can love even our enemies when they are a thousand miles away, and remain on the most delightful and affectionate terms with our in-laws if we are on a visiting schedule with them, but it is a different story if we have to live in their laps, so to speak, and they supervise and discuss and criticize everything we do, and say, and think.

It is the law of Nature for every young married couple to want to set up their own homes in which they can do as they please, and fight out their battles of adjustment without any outsider refereeing them. And so I earnestly advise all brides and bridegrooms not to go to live with their parents, but to start their own homes, even if they have to do it in one room and cook on a gas ring. It is good for their morals and their morals to be independent. And it saves so many heartaches and the cost of a divorce.

The in-law relationship can be such a happy and helpful one. Don't risk spoiling it by trying to live together. Absence makes our hearts grow fonder of our husbands' and wives' families.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

The Situation: You are commenting on a woman's new dress. Wrong Way: After admiring it, say, "Jean Smith has one that is almost like it."

Right Way: If you have seen another dress like the one you are admiring, don't mention it. A woman hates to be told that someone else has a dress almost or exactly like her own.

SOLID COLORS AND UPSWEPT HAIR-DO WILL ADD INCHES TO YOUR STATURE

BY ALICIA HART

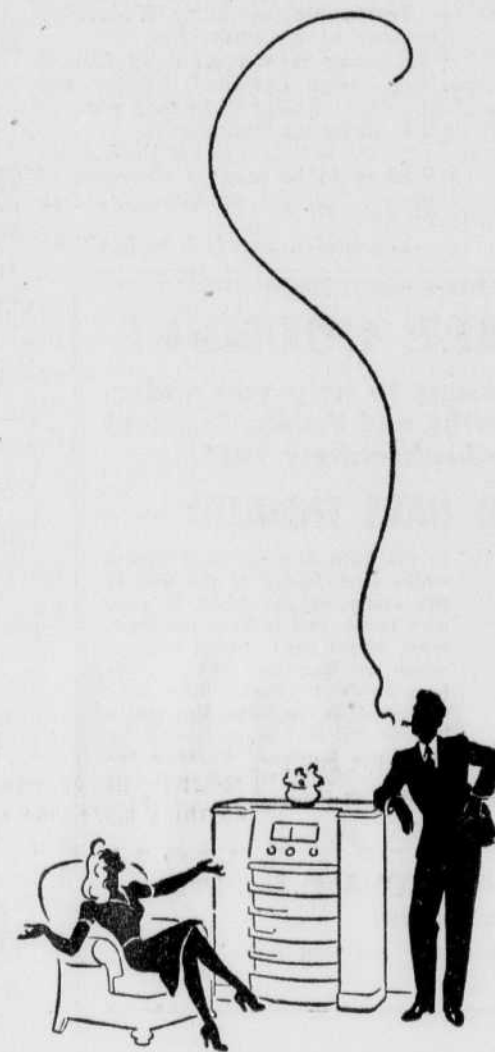

Tall-making devices—high hats and platform-mounted shoes—are so obvious that they defeat your purpose in adding a few cunningly contrived inches to your height. But upswept hair, because it adds a few inches and a lot more womanliness, which can't be measured, is a good trick.

So is color-scheming in a costume to lead the onlooker's eye with one unbroken line of color from head to foot. That seems to do the trick, even if shoes aren't built up and a hat is as flat as a pancake.

So will "thinking tall" increase your stature—which is the best trick of all, according to Rosemarie Brancato. Although this pint-sized coloratura soprano has to have the microphone lowered when she sings, she thinks and stands tall and thus makes her audience believe that she is.

New Knowlton High Will Serve Pupils From Ten School Boards

R. Eric Fisher, of Austin, Chairman of the Building Fund Committee of the new Knowlton High School, has announced that work will be started as early as possible this spring and it is expected that the school, which will replace the one totally destroyed by fire last May, will be completed by the end of 1945.

The new building, which will be situated behind the Memorial Park, in Knowlton, will, it is hoped, eventually serve pupils of ten other school boards in the area. It has been designed as a composite high school which can be used as a community centre. Ten classrooms, including a French room and a commercial room, will be provided; chemistry and physics rooms have been planned also, and these rooms will serve agriculture classes as well. Other rooms called for in the plans are a home economics room, a library, boys' and girls' playrooms, a lunchroom and a manual training room. The combined auditorium-gymnasium will seat more than 300, while additional seating space will be provided by a gallery.

Through the courtesy of P. S. Fisher and the Southern Press, 3,000 booklets outlining the proposed new building and containing pictures and a map of the district, were printed and mailed to all Protestant rate-payers in Brome County. Letters were also sent to the Protestant school children in an effort to interest them in an undertaking which so vitally concerned them.

Stressing the importance of this community project, the booklet points out that "The adequacy of the school facilities in a community is the strongest inducement to attract new residents. A modern school should certainly influence members of the armed forces to settle in an attractive and progressive rural community and should increase the school enrolment and property valuation."

History of the Knowlton School dates back to the 1820's when a school was built on a road leading to the cemetery. In 1854 money was subscribed, a building committee appointed, and the building known as the Paul Holland Memorial erected and used as a school for 43 years. It was not until 1889 that the business of operating the Knowlton school was carried on by elected school commissioners. In the middle 1890's Knowlton Academy was founded too small for the growing village, and in 1897 work on a new school was begun.

The contract for building the new Knowlton High School has been let to the John F. Wickenden Company, Limited, of Three Rivers, and architects are Lawson and Little, of Montreal.

An appeal for funds has resulted in donations of more than $46,000. Praising the generosity of those who had already contributed to the cause, Mr. Fisher has pointed out that "It is to be hoped that further sums from ratepayers, particularly from those living in the County itself, will be forthcoming, now that the construction of the school has been assured." The Government has authorized the issue of 30-year two per cent serial fund bonds up to $50,000. It is hoped, however, to start the school off with as low a debt as possible, hence, a large sum by direct contribution is sought. A Government grant and insurance money will help make up part of the building cost.

Tribute was paid by Mr. Fisher to the Provincial Government, the Provincial Committee, the Department of Education, and to the new building fund committee, which included the members of the Knowlton School Board, for their contributions towards the success of the undertaking. Committee members, he said, had kept cost with a view down to "a negligible amount."

"Without the whole-hearted co-operation of all committee members the success of this project would not have been made possible," he added.

Members of the committee are as follows: R. Eric Fisher, Austin, Chairman; J. W. Martin, Secretary-Treasurer; Honorary Vice-Chairman, Marshall Miller, Chairman School Municipality of Brome Township; Wm. Mills, Chairman School Municipality of East Bolton; S. Y. Cameron, Chairman School Municipality of East Farnham; E. S. Bradley, Chairman School Municipality of Potton; W. E. Dow, Chairman School Municipality of Sutton; H. H. crossing there by Gen. Crerar's troops.

The Canadian Army—regrouped to contain British and Canadian units in about equal proportions—was facing the dirtiest job along the western front in attempting to wipe out this enemy force still holding 9 1/2 vital miles of the Rhine, where it curves between Xanten and Wesel.

Associated Press War Correspondent Don Whitehead, at the Remagen bridgehead, said there was no doubt the Germans were making "a supreme effort" to marshal their strength for a counter-attack designed to drive the Americans back across the river.

He said it was a race between the Germans and Lt.-Gen. Hodges' army to get infantry and tanks up to the scene, but after seeing the flow of American men and fighting tools moving up to the bridgehead "there can be only one reaction—the Germans already have lost the race."

"The bridgehead is growing stronger by the hour and the Remagen bridge has become the most important stretch of highway on any fighting front," he added. "All roads seem to lead to Remagen and all those roads are literally jammed with convoys moving toward the bridgehead in an awesome display of power."

The enemy lobbed 155 and 220-mm. shells at the bridge itself, and shells whizzed over it viciously as troops passed across the 400 yards of concrete and steel. Three German planes dived in yesterday from low-hanging clouds and dumped their bombs, braving ack-ack fire that shot down four enemy aircraft making similar attempts Thursday night.

Hodges' troops were believed to have driven more than five miles east of the Rhine after smashing the first enemy armored counter-attack yesterday. South along the west bank of the Rhine the U.S. linked up yesterday with the 1st Army, trapping elements of five to six German divisions, possibly 20,000 troops. Allied Supreme Headquarters cloaked the full scope of the advance.

Another five to six German divisions were pinned against the Moselle River by Lt.-Gen. Patton's sweep to the Rhine. They have an escape route southward across that Rhine tributary into the German-held Saar region.

Arrival of additional Patton armor on the Rhine put the U.S. 3rd, 1st and 9th armies and the 1st Canadian Army on the river's west bank from the Netherlands frontier to the approaches of Coblenz—a stretch of more than 150 miles—broken only by the Wesel pocket.

The Rhineland city of Bonn north of the Remagen bridgehead was captured by the U.S. 1st Army. The 3rd Army battled within four miles of the communications centre of Coblenz to the south after sweeping the Germans from the Coblenz plain west of the Rhine.

The juncture between the 1st and 3rd armies was effected eight and twelve miles south of Remagen at Brohl and the Rhine ferry town of Andernach. A German general was captured at Andernach. The 3rd Army counted 4,000 prisoners in yesterday's bag and booty so large a front dispatch said it would take days to estimate it.

Three miles south of Bonn the 1st Army's 9th Infantry Division captured Bad Godesburg, where Hitler and the late Prime Minister Chamberlain held their second meeting in 1938 to arrange "peace in our time." The only bridge at Bonn was blown up by the Germans.

Allied Supreme Headquarters yesterday disclosed presence on the west front of the U.S. 15th Army.

This is the ninth Allied army under command of Gen. Eisenhower. Others are the 1st Canadian, the British 2nd, the French 1st, the U.S. 1st, 3rd, 7th and 9th and the Allied 1st Airborne.

Present location of the 15th was not made known. Also veiled under official secrecy as to its whereabouts is the British 2nd, which formerly held the section of the line between the 1st Canadian and the U.S. 9th before those two armies linked south of the Hochwald several days ago.

IRISH MIDGETS MOVE NEARER TO CITY TITLE

St. Pat's Trounces Racine By 6-3 Count To Advance To City Final; To Meet Seminary Next

The St. Pat's Irishmen, one step away from the city Midget championship, last night chalked up a 6-3 triumph over Racine School in a sudden-death semi-final of the city Midget playoffs at the Sherbrooke Arena to move into the final with St. Charles Seminary and also to keep their undefeated record for this season intact.

Paced to the win by Sonny Holtham, who performed the hat trick, the Academy lads opened up with a blistering attack in the second frame after a first period which saw the teams battle it out on even terms.

Encountering unexpected opposition, the Irishmen found themselves getting as good as they gave in the first period. Although notching the first goal, the St. Pat's men found themselves held to a one-all deadlock at the end of the frame.

In the second stanza, however, the Irishmen shook loose their shackles and pounded in three goals before the six-minute mark to lead by a 4-1 margin.

Both squads added a brace of markers to their totals in the final session and the game ended with the Academy lads on the long end of a 6-3 count.

Holtham, who has reaped the profits on the scoring during the season, was again high scorer last night as he netted one half of his team's total. Scoring once in the first and twice in the sandwich session, Holtham would nevertheless have been ineffective had it not been for the work of Austin Cook and George Beaulieu, who set him up for the markers.

George Beaulieu, a mite who turned in an outstanding game, notched one goal and drew two assists while Austin Cook, one of the biggest men in the game, entered a playmaker's role, grabbing off three assists.

Fortier and Gendron were also in the limelight for St. Pat's as they tallied once.

Turning in a spectacular performance for the Racine squad was Rene Pepin, who centered the School's first string. Up from Bantam ranks for the playoffs, Pepin played a spectacular game and was the only man on the Racine squad who outshone Holtham.

His performance of three goals for the hat trick marked him as future material for higher ranks. He also turned in a good backchecking game to stand out all around.

Ivan Vituik also grabbed off a share of the honors for the Racine men as he set Pepin up on two markers.

The game was clean with only three penalties being handed out by Dave O'Keefe, two going to St. Pat's and one to Racine.

Holtham opened the scoring in the first period at 5:43 when he converted

CORNWALL WINS 9-2 TO GO INTO PLAYOFFS LEAD

Cornwall, Ont., March 10.—(P)—Cornwall "Cookies" turned back Lachine Rapides 9-2 in a wide open game of hockey here last night to grab a 3-2 lead in the best of seven semi-finals of the Inter-Provincial Hockey League playoffs.

Andy Perron and Gravel packed the Cornwall attack with a hat-trick performance each while goalie Jean Lessard in the Cookies' nets, turned in a brilliant performance, stopping many a threatening Lachine attack in handy fashion.

Cornwall grabbed a 3-0 lead in the initial game with Bernie Lauzon, Perron and Frank Lauzon beating goalie Jean Paul Lemaire. Perron came back with another goal in the mid-session while Gerry Gravel added one more for Cookies after a spectacular solo dash from the blue-line to increase Cornwall's lead to 5-0.

Spurred to action, Lachine retaliated with a brace of goals at the beginning of the last frame but Rapids did not set the pace very long as Cornwall wound up the scoring parade with four successive tallies in the last half of the period. Dan Porteous and Rosaire Valliere fired the Lachine guns while Perron, Jos. Derocles and Gravel with two markers were the Cornwall snipers.

Third-Period Brawl Features Juvenile Fixture As Canucks Top Angus 7-2 To Take Crown

A wild, hard-punching brawl, which resulted in a match misconduct for Angus' Adrien Menard, a major to Bert Bourassa, and a minor to Yvon Ellyson, both of Canadiens, climaxed a bitter battle last night in the final of the Juvenile Hockey League playoffs which saw the Sherbrooke Canucks sweep to a 7-2 triumph over the Paper Town squad and move into the district playoffs for the championship of the Townships.

The Canadiens, who gained the league championship in three games, after having won the first game and tied the second, will now meet a team from Brompton in the Eastern Townships final. From there, the winning team will tangle with the winner of the Montreal district.

The battle royal came about halfway through the final session when Menard touched off the already red-hot tempers when he swung at Ellyson, standing in the Angus goal mouth. Fists then started flying but apparently Menard began to think of his own skin for he started to run away from the fight.

Edging away from the mass of struggling players, he made a beeline for the Angus bench but Guy Proteau of the Canadiens had other ideas about it and started after Menard's scalp.

What resulted then was better than a three-ring circus. Menard could be seen rounding the net three times while three or four Canadiens pursuers clutched in vain at his sweater or whatever part of his body they could get their hands on.

Finally, however, Menard escaped the angry Canucks and literally flew off the ice to the Angus bench. The Habitués followed and tried to pull him back onto the ice but the rest of the Angus players managed to protect their teammate.

Finally, things quieted down but Menard, when ordered to report to the cooler for a misconduct, refused, apparently unwilling to climb into the box with any Canadien.

When everything was again quiet, Menard had a match misconduct, Bourassa a major and Ellyson a minor, added to a major he received earlier in the game when he tangled with Gosselin of Angus. At that time, Gosselin was forced to retire from the ice with a cut head, suffered when Ellyson brought his stick down on his cranium.

As far as the game went, it was merely another display of Canadien power, which has been in evidence throughout the season. True, they were forced to come from behind to win, but it was still all Canadiens from the second frame on.

Rowland sent Angus into a 1-0 lead after eight seconds of play in the first frame when he converted Rowley's pass from the face-off into a goal.

From here till the halfway mark of the second, the Canadiens had a fight on their hands and though they carried a wide edge in territorial play, they were unable to score, mainly due to their own inaccuracy around the nets and because of the marvellous display of goalkeeping staged by Leo-Paul Savard in the Angus cage.

However, all heaven and earth broke loose in the second stanza and starting at 9:10, the Canucks scored three goals in 25 seconds, and add-

STANSTEAD AND RICHMOND WILL TANGLE TONIGHT

Errol Amarson's Stanstead College cagers travel to Richmond tonight for their second and last game of the season with Ian Hume's Richmond High School team in a regular fixture of the E.T. Basketball Association schedule.

The Stanstead cagers have a good chance of tying the league-leading Y's Men tonight for the leadership of the cage circuit. Now only two points behind the loop-leaders and with a game in hand, the Collegians are favored to create a first-place deadlock.

The Y's Men are idle tonight for a scheduled game with the Sherbrooke High School has been postponed and will be played at the High School Tuesday night. The game was cancelled because of the Sherbrooke travellers to Montreal for a couple of games there on the week-end.

In the first Stanstead-Richmond game played at the Border Town, the Richmond men went down to defeat by a 33-22 count and the Stanstead squad is expected to again triumph over their rivals.

The Richmond aggregation puts up a good brand of ball but the more experienced Stanstead men are seemingly destined to take the league championship, unless the Y's Men and the High School can stop them.

Richmond Phantoms And Angus Clash At Arena Sunday In 2nd Match Of Intermediate Series

Pat King's East Angus Pirates take on the Richmond Phantoms tomorrow at the Sherbrooke Arena in the second game of the Sherbrooke and District Intermediate Hockey League playoff final.

The Angus squad is favored to take the second fixture of the three out of five series. Now leading by a one-game margin over Pat McGee's Richmond squad, the Paper Town squad is given good odds of winning.

Thursday night the two squads clashed in Richmond and the Pirates scored a 5-4 win over the Phantoms in a hard-fought encounter, the winning goal coming with only six minutes left of the third period.

McGee, however, leads his Richmond aggregation into battle tomorrow confident of tying the series up at 1-1. Figuring that his team was a little off on Thursday night, he is of the opinion that they will be able to take their rivals.

Throughout the entire season, the Phantoms had as their closest rivals the East Angus aggregation, all games in which the two teams figured being of the hard-fought variety. However, the Phantoms came out on top and through the wins over Angus, finished the season in first place in the Sherbrooke Intermediate League standings.

When the series started it was expected that the Phantoms would take the final three straight games. Angus upset the Phantoms' apparent Thursday night though and now the Richmond squad is forced to fight an uphill battle if they intend gaining the league championship.

Pat King is counting on his key quartet of Duplin, Charest and Gendreau and goalie Olivier to give the Pirates their second straight win of the series tomorrow afternoon.

In the first game of the series, the Richmond men had particular trouble with Laurent Duplin who is in himself a character. The rotund winger certainly busted things up for the Phantoms.

In the second period the Phantoms were ahead 3-2 but Duplin tallied to tie the count at 3-all. He repeated the performance in the third frame when the Richmond squad was ahead 4-3 to knot the count again and leave the field open for Bourassa to come through with the game-winning marker.

Duplin has a habit of doing this and has given Angus a chance to win several games this season by providing equalizing goals.

Pat McGee will probably delegate a man to take care of the big forward tomorrow. If he does the Pirates' effectiveness will certainly be lessened to a certain degree.

The game is being played at the Sherbrooke Arena tomorrow due to the fact that Angus is without suitable ice at the Paper Town. Mild weather has wreaked havoc with outdoor rinks in the district and the Paper Makers are forced to play in Sherbrooke.

The next game of the series will most likely be played at the Richmond Coliseum on Tuesday night. A fourth game, if necessary, will have run off here next Thursday evening at the Arena.

The winners of the Sherbrooke and District Intermediate League are not to go any further than this district due to the fact that the champion has not been declared in time to enter the provincial play-offs.

Originally scheduled to meet the Victoriaville Tigers in a two-game, total-goal series, the league is now left out in the cold—and, incidentally, so are the Tigers, who were eliminated in two straight games by Three Rivers in the first game of the provincial play-offs.

Inscrutable man puts sugar in it to make it sweet, lemon to make it sour, gin to make it hot, ice to make it cold, then says "Here's to you" and drinks it himself. — Brandon Sun.

NICOL RINK TO REPRESENT CITY IN ELGIN PLAY

Slipping his rink to an 8-6 triumph over Hap Peabody, Everett Nicol last night won the right to represent the Sherbrooke Curling Club in the Elgin Trophy play at Montreal.

Winning all the way up the ladder, Nicol's quartet had little actual difficulty in disposing of the Peabody quartet and will carry the city banners to the metropolis.

Bishop's Spitfires Overwhelm St. Pat's 9-0 To Capture Loop Crown And Remain Undefeated

Blasting their way to a 9-0 whitewash over St. Pat's, Gordie Buchanan's Bishop's College School Spitfires yesterday qualified to meet St. Charles Seminary in the final for the Bantam championship of the city.

Paced by Stearns, Ballantyne II and Rider, who chalked up two goals apiece, the Spitfires, who established an amazing record in the Bantam Hockey League this season, had little trouble in disposing of the St. Pat's Irishmen, champions of the St. Pat's League.

The Spitfires, who out of eight games this season, scored seven shutouts and piled up 93 goals in the goals-for column against one in the goals-against bracket, are "an exceptional team," according to Brother Joseph, Sports Director at the Irish Academy.

"We figure we were lucky to hold them to nine goals," Brother Joseph stated. "They have a fine team and would go far in any league."

The Spitfires had it pretty much their own way throughout the game, scoring three goals in the first period, four in the second frame and winding up with another two in the final stanza.

Outstanding goalkeeping by John Lawrence aided the Spitfires in gaining their shutout while good backchecking by the forwards was also a big factor in the B.C.S. win.

Stearns, Ballantyne II and Dick Lawrence tallied in the first frame while Stearns, Rider, MacFarlane and Ballantyne II were the sandwich session scorers.

Rider and McCulloch added the two other Bishop's markers in the final frame.

GRAZIANO FLATTENS ARNOLD

New York, March 10.—(P)—Rocky Graziano, sensational New York 152-pounder, scored one of the most startling four reversals of the boxing season last night when he stopped Billy Arnold of Philadelphia, in 1:54 of the third round of a scheduled eight-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Flooding Arnold three times for counts of nine, six and seven in a riotous third heat, Graziano had the 19-year-old Negro in state of collapse when Referee Frank Fullam gathered him in his arms and stopped the bout. Arnold weighed 149 1/2.

WHEN you take your car to your Ford Dealer for service, please bear this fact in mind: there are many thousands of Ford vehicles engaged in essential war transport here in Canada. Ford dealers must stand ready to service and repair these vehicles with dispatch.

Your Ford dealer wants to service your car promptly, too. But when one of these essential trucks or transports comes in his door for urgently needed service, then your car must wait. This may inconvenience you and embarrass the dealer—but war priorities must come ahead of civilian service.

Since all cars on the road are old cars—and steadily getting older—the demands from car owners for service from Ford dealers are steadily multiplying. Though many skilled mechanics are today in the Armed Services, and the manpower shortage makes it difficult to keep mechanics, your Ford dealer is making a valiant effort to service your car, in addition to keeping essential transport rolling.

Your Ford dealer is grateful to you for your patience under today's trying conditions, and will do his utmost to serve you promptly.

LOUIS PLEYEL BRINGS NEWS
Jozef Elsner's new quarters were not as desirable as No. 27 Boulevard Poissoniere. In fact, they were not desirable in any way. Still it was not a question of desirability; it was a question merely of some place where Jozef Elsner might put his head at night and keep warm in the day, and his new room was furnished with a cot and also with a coal stove which, if he used it sparingly, he could afford to burn on the coldest days to take the chill away. The room was also equipped with a piano, an absolute necessity for a teacher of music. It was not exactly a new instrument, but a tuner had put it into such shape that you could stand the sounds without your nerves becoming too jangled.

Jozef Elsner let it be known that he was the teacher of Frederic Chopin, a man now of no little renown. People listened to him but few, if any, believed him. There was no doubt, however, that he was a teacher of music, and a few neighborhood families—"We cannot afford very much, Monsieur"—sent their children to him for their musical education.

The old master wobbled his head and worked his jaw as one of his young students labored over the simple scores. "—One and two, yes—three and four. Every note must dance and sing—"

"Tch, tch," he said. "No, no; it's very uneven, my dear. Let's try it again. Maybe you sit too low, Albert."

"I can't reach so high," Albert said.

"—We'll fix that," Jozef Elsner looked about for something for little Albert to sit on. He found some books. "There, 'How's that?'"

"Now I can reach—"
"—Certainly. No trouble at all. I should have thought of that before. Well, now, let's try it again. One and two, yes—"

There was a rap at the door.
"—Come, Albert! Play."
"—There's somebody at the door, Professor."
"—He?" He looked toward the door. "Well, come in!"

The door opened. Louis Pleyel stood on the threshold.

"Come in—come in, please! This does me great honor," Jozef Elsner grabbed the hand of Monsieur Pleyel. He pulled him into the room.

Louis Pleyel saw at a glance, as he could not help but see, the change in Jozef Elsner's condition. "I had difficulty in finding you, Elsner."

"—Eh?" Jozef Elsner removed his spectacles. He held them to the light, then put them back on his nose.

"I don't want to interrupt you," Louis Pleyel said, conscious of the boy at the piano. "I don't mean to interrupt—"

"—Humph. Albert is very glad you did. Aren't you, Albert?"
"—Yes, Professor."

"—Exactly. Do you think Elsner doesn't know? Well, that will be all, boy. Friday. Same hour."

"—Yes, Professor."
"—Umm. Practice! You hear?"
"—Yes, Professor."

Albert had his music under his arm. Jozef Elsner saw him to the door. He closed the door. "A nice talent, Louis. Maybe some day for you. Who knows. Sit down."

"—Only for a minute," Louis Pleyel sat down. "You might have told me you had moved."

"As a matter of fact, Louis—in another day or two. It's exactly what I was going to do. But there are so many little details when you are getting yourself established. Now, Louis, you will have a glass of wine, Eh?"

"No, thank you," Louis Pleyel eyed the cot, the bare floor, the cold stove. "Establish yourself—in a neighborhood like this?"

"—Neighborhood?" Tch, tch—who thinks of a neighborhood?"
"—Elsner, I could help. I could recommend important pupils."

"—Important?" Jozef Elsner rubbed his hands. "Neighborhoods? What has that to do with talent? Nothing! Absolutely nothing, Louis. Tch, tch—I am ashamed of you, Louis. I am glad to see you. A cup of tea?"

"No. Nothing. Thank you, Elsner. I came to tell you—Chopin is back."

"—Frederic!" Jozef Elsner's jaw shut out. "When? Where? Where is he?"

"He came back—two days ago. He is in Paris!"

"—Then he is not back? Eh?"
"—He is back. He is at Nohant." Jozef Elsner put his hand to his head. He rumbled his hair. "Umm. But why didn't he tell me?"

Suddenly: "Ah! Tch, tch—Elsner, you are getting more stupid every day. Where would he find me? Still, if he had gone to Madame Mercier—"

He was at a clothes closet. He pulled off his coat.
"—Elsner! What are you doing?"
"—What do you think I am doing? I'm going to Nohant—Yes, immediately—"

"—Maybe you ought to write a note first."

"—Notes! Tch, tch. Who has time for notes! Louis, there's no time to waste. So much to do! Now that he's back, you will see about the concerts, won't you? No time to waste—none! We've wasted too much already. It's time now for work. Louis, you agree?"
"—Yes, Elsner; I agree."
"—Louis, you're not drinking! Help yourself to wine. Don't be bashful. You'll find a jug—"

Jozef Elsner was now in his great coat. "There's a glass—look around. Louis—you'll find everything—"

At the door he paused. "Oh, yes! Good day, Louis! And thank you!"

Then he closed the door on a startled Monsieur Pleyel, who hurried down the stairs, and only his legs which were not so firm as they once were prevented him from taking two steps at a time.

Help the Young People To Health - Happiness

What a common sight to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidences of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anemic nature and require a preparation containing iron to improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system and helping to improve the blood content.
