Last minute talks hold little hope

Hydro workers to walk-off today

WINTER IS HERE — Thousands visited the 1972 version of the Salon D'Hiver held over the weekend at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace. Booths displaying all form of winter entertainment and clothing were at the Sports Palace even as winter struck for the first time in the region, dropping over an inch of snow. (Record photo: C. Cotton)

MONTREAL (CP) — Union officials representing Hydro-Quebec employees said early today they were waiting for Yvon Damsereau, government-appointed mediator, to call them to 11th-hour negotiations to try to avert a strike by the utility's 8,500 employees.

"We have had no word yet," said Claude Morrisseau, spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

"But we should hear. We'll wait all night for them," he said in an interview.

Mr. Morrisseau said there were no talks during the weekend, but the union received a telephone call Sunday afternoon from the Quebec department of labor saying a meeting would be called later in the day in an attempt to avoid a strike, called for 8 a.m. today.

"Negotiations have been going on for 11 months and ended Thursday night with the two sides three points further apart than when they started," Mr. Morrisseau said.

Employees who would go out this morning are linemen, maintenance workers, office personnel and engineers.

ADDMANPOWER
"The union has promised essential services will be continued and we are going to add to this all the manpower we can from our management ranks to ensure good service," a Hydro spokesman said.

Monetary clauses, seniority and the contracting out of jobs, which the union says should be done by its own employees, are among the major issues yet to be settled, Mr. Morrisseau said.

The union is seeking a three-year agreement while the company wants a four-year contract.

The employees are seeking a 31-per cent increase for technicians, 19 per cent for office workers and 24 per cent for manual workers. Average wages for the three groups are $188 per week, $129 per week, and $4 an hour, respectively.

Hydro-Quebec is offering a lump sum for 1972, rather than a percentage increase, plus increases of nine, 6.5 and six per cent in the next three years.

Jean Cournoyer, Quebec's labor minister, said Friday night his department would not intervene in the dispute.

Last campaign for public office, Nixon vows

WASHINGTON (CP) — Democrat George McGovern accused President Nixon Sunday of ruling the United States like "a Roman emperor" while Nixon, in his home state of California, said the campaign for Tuesday's presidential election would be his last for public office.

Meanwhile, two public-opinion experts began hedging a bit on earlier findings that Nixon holds an unprecedented lead, although neither predicted a McGovern victory.

McGovern, who upset a number of polls and surveys in the uphill battle for his party's presidential nomination, continued to insist that he will win the election Tuesday—that American public opinion will boomerang against Nixon for allegedly holding up the signing of a Vietnam peace agreement.

He returned to this theme at an airport rally in Moline, Ill., Sunday, saying that Dr. Henry Kissinger, the president's national security adviser, told the U.S. recently that peace was at hand but "he and Mr. Nixon knew it was a deliberate deception."

DENIES PEACE NEAR
"Peace is not at hand and not even in sight," he added, and recalled two phone calls he had received from fathers who had lost sons since Oct. 31, the date North Vietnam wanted to sign a cease-fire agreement.

In San Clemente, Calif., Nixon polished a national television speech he will deliver Monday night after his final campaign rally Saturday night at nearby Ontario.

"Tonight you should know that this not only is the last rally of this campaign, but the last rally I will speak to as a candidate in my life."

Asphyxiation believed cause of two deaths

FOSTER (CC) — Two Eastern Townships residents have apparently died of carbon monoxide asphyxiation bringing the total to three within the last two weeks.

The bodies of two Waterloo residents, a male and a female, were found slumped in a car parked on a gravel side-road near Waterloo by two local hunters Saturday afternoon.

The Quebec Police Force cannot say categorically that the young couple died from asphyxiation until an autopsy is performed but a Cowansville Quebec Police Force spokesman said "there isn't much doubt."

Maurice Thompson, 27, of Waterloo was found dead in the car alongside a 15-year-old Waterloo girl. Police would not release the young woman's name.

Last weekend Paul Corey, 35, of RR3, Stanbridge East, died of asphyxiation in his car near Frelighsburg.

"Winter has started and has brought with it three deaths," a QPF spokesman said. "People stop their car and leave the motor running with no ventilation—the windows are shut tight," he added.

"Everyone should remember to keep some sort of air ventilation," he said. "With all the problems of inefficient and broken exhaust systems everyone should be careful."

"They have the tendency to keep the car running and the heater on because it has begun to get cold outside," the police officer continued. "It could cost them their lives."

In another traffic accident over the weekend Jean Guy Laflamme, 41, of Campagna street in Disraeli, lost his life when his car went out of control and rolled over on Route No. 1 near Black Lake.

The accident, covered by the Thetford Mines detachment of the Quebec Police Force, occurred at 2:25 a.m. Sunday.

Bureau reviews first two years

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — I have not called this press conference to celebrate two years in office, nor to list the achievements of my administration," Marc Bureau told a sizeable gathering of local media representatives Friday morning.

"I have asked you here to reflect on what has been done, what there is left to accomplish and to make everyone think about the future of our fine city."

It was two years ago in November 1970 that Sherbrooke voters elected all 10 candidates of the Civic Action party to municipal office and Mayor Bureau to municipal office and Mayor Bureau to municipal office.

"When I compare the present administration with that which existed in 1970," the Mayor said, "I am satisfied with the state of affairs. But, if I compare our situation with perfection, our ultimate goal, I am less satisfied," he added.

Indeed, Mayor Bureau stressed that the most important aspect of his term to date has been the rationalization of administrative functions. In two years the Civic Action party has completely altered the face of the municipal administration, shifting the decision-making power to an autonomous team which is under the direct control of the elected councillors.

"We have seen the municipal administration pass from the stage of infancy at which we found it, through a period of adolescence which will bring it to maturity," which Mayor Bureau declared.

Reflecting on the evolution of the present structure, the Mayor said: "Looking back to 1970, I would have to say now that the changes could not have been initiated in a shorter period of time, but I am satisfied at the present pace."

"If the structure we have envisioned and are committed to does not bring results, then there is no place for it at city hall," he affirmed.

Following his opening remarks the Mayor was faced with pointed questioning from French-language media representatives and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce. Most of the questions alleged that the Civic Action party was slow in carrying out the programs which were promised in the party's election platform.

Mayor Bureau was optimistic that in the next two years the platform will be completed, saying that, in his opinion, 50 per cent of the work has been accomplished. He refused to enumerate the completed projects because, "People aren't interested in a list of accomplishments."

DOESN'T KNOW
One questioner asked Mayor Bureau if the people of Sherbrooke were satisfied with his administration. "I haven't done any polls so I really don't know," he replied, "but the important thing for me is that I am satisfied with our efforts and actions to date."

The Mayor was armed with a wide sample of statistics to compare industrial growth in Sherbrooke during the last three years but did not contend that the improvements were due solely to his administration.

"This achievement was favored by the election of Civic Action but I can't honestly say that it wouldn't have been accomplished by another group," he said.

The statistics quoted by Mayor Bureau showed that in the past two years investment has been higher in new and existing industries than in 1969.

SEVERAL DIFFICULTIES
During the press conference the Mayor emphasized several difficulties which the city administration had to face whenever a decision had to be made.

"We have a lot of priorities but our means are restricted," he noted. As an example Mayor Bureau cited a choice between water service and repaving streets. "Both are essential but which do you choose," he asked.

The other problem singled out by Mayor Bureau was the interaction of the various federal, provincial and municipal forces involved in any action.

Mayor Bureau was supported by councillors Raymond Bergeron, Bernard Matte, Romeo Bergeron, director-general Serge Racine and assistant director-general Frank Mascolo during the session.

Students union created amidst dissension

OTTAWA (CP) — A frail National Union of Students (NUS) was created on the weekend amid defections and dissension similar to those that hit its predecessor in 1968.

The university and college students, assembled from 48 institutions across the country, emerged from three days of discussion with their ranks greatly reduced and a national organization with only one member.

The steering committee which had been planning the founding conference for more than a year had hoped the 128 delegates would set up a strong, well-funded organization armed with specific national policies.

However, the delegates were unable to resolve the differences between the Maritime-Quebec and Western delegations over modes of representation.

When the dozen or so Maritime delegates were unable Saturday to obtain representation by region rather than by student population they left in a group. The several Quebec delegates, mainly from English-language institutions, followed shortly after.

WANTED EQUAL VOTE

The Maritimers argued that they would be "left out of the picture" in any scheme that granted representation according to student population. They wanted equal voting status with Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.

The Quebec delegates maintained that allowing individual institutions to join the NUS would undermine the existing provincial student organization, the Front d'Etudiants du Quebec (FEQ).

The remaining delegates agreed on a compromise: Any institution may join the NUS directly or through a provincial union. All member institutions will have one vote for up to every 5,000 students on their campus. Thus, a university with a student population of 500 would have one vote while another with 5,200 students would have two votes.

Representation at the conference was poor from the beginning. Of the 49 institutions which sent delegates, 17 were in Ontario, 12 in British Columbia, five in the Prairie provinces and six in the Maritimes.

The 20 Quebec delegates were mostly from community colleges. An observer was present from the FEQ but none of the large French-language institutions was represented.

Other notable non-participants were the University of Western Ontario, University of Toronto, and Queen's University.

Closing blamed on UIF

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — The closure of one of the oldest and largest industries here was blamed Sunday on the federal government's unemployment insurance scheme.

"We cannot compete with federal unemployment insurance benefits, which draw staff away from our company continually," said Cliff Baker, plant manager of Cosmos Imperial Mills Ltd., which announced Friday it would close Jan. 29.

The plant employs 165 workers and Mr. Baker said the staff turnover had been more than double that in the past year. The company produces knitting yarns.

"The turnover in staff this year has been absolutely fantastic," Mr. Baker said.

He said the workers are "subsidized by the government not to work... our labor turnover has been such that it's absolutely impossible to stay in business."

Mr. Baker said employees start at 10 cents an hour above the province's minimum pay scale of $1.65 and can increase to a maximum of $2.85 an hour, plus "incentive pay" for personal production.

Mr. Baker said the company's plants in Yarmouth, N.S., and Marysville, N.B., would not be affected, but Trenton employees will not be offered similar positions in the company's other plants because of "far distant locations."

The Trenton plant had been in business since 1925.

Low scoring husbands—make your wives always feel special

Dear Ann Landers: You've already printed several letters about that sex-maniac husband who kept score and tallied the excuses his wife gave him for not responding to his advances. I hope you will print one more.

Perhaps if that clown weren't so busy with his bookkeeping he might have time to open a car door for his wife, or help her bathe the kids at bedtime, or phone her to say he'll be a half an hour later for supper, or stop to buy a single flower for no particular reason — or take a shower before getting romantic.

My husband is a "scorekeeper" too, and he had the nerve to clip that column. When he handed it to me he said, "Here, read this and tell me if you recognize anybody you know." In all the years we've been married he never once clipped a beautiful poem, but that stinkin' column he found.

What I'm saying is that husbands would have better scores if they'd exert a little energy to make their wives feel special. Isn't that the technique they use to get OTHER women in bed? — Only Human

Dear O.: Here's one you can clip and hand to HIM. If he has an answer I'll print it.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the woman who said she and her second husband had a talk about how to divide their possessions in case of death so there would be no misunderstanding or hard feelings among their children, and how they went to a lawyer and put it in their wills.

It sounds neat and simple, but please, Ann, tell readers that if they want to make sure nothing goes wrong, to obtain a doctor's notarized statement declaring that the two parties are of sound mind at the time of the request.

My own dear mother had little notes all over the place — instructions on what she wanted done with certain pieces of furniture and paintings which were precious heirlooms. But the notes didn't mean a thing two years ago she became ill and was transferred from the home for the aged to a hospital. Mother is not insane but she does get confused. One of her children who had power of attorney decided to declare her incompetent and sell the family home and all her possessions. Believe me, Ann, I can afford to buy anything I want but I am heartbroken because I know this is not the way Mother wanted it — Billings, Montana Daughter

Dear Daughter: Thank you for the excellent bit of counsel. That brother of your sounds like a living doll. Time wounds all heels, and he'll get his — eventually.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom and Dad have been divorced for nine years. There is no chance that they will ever get back together again. My question is this: I have a small photograph of them together that I just love. I would like to have it enlarged and hang it in our living room. Should I or shouldn't I? My parents speak when they see each other but that's about all. This picture means a lot to me because it brings back memories of the days when we had a happy home. After all, they are my parents and I want to remember them that way. Mom has remarried but Dad has not. He comes over more than Mom. I don't think it would make any difference to him. What do you say, Ann? — Hung Up in Canton

Dear Canton: If you want to have the photograph enlarged and keep it in your bedroom, go ahead. But I wouldn't post it in the living room. It might be embarrassing for your mother and her present husband — and possibly a little unsettling for your dad.

+++ Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to this newspaper.

Tuesday, November 7
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES [April 19] An uneventful day for the most part. You'll enjoy a lazy, take-it-easy change of pace.

TAURUS [April 20 to May 20] Do your best to avoid antagonizing friends and relatives. But don't let them "walk" on you.

GEMINI [May 21 to June 21] An emotional appeal may strain your patience with person who has used this tactic before.

CANCER [June 22 to July 22] Try a compromise if you find it difficult to reach a working agreement under present rays.

LEO [July 23 to Aug. 23] Indecision, paired with overcaution, may be hampering your progress. Overcome timidity.

VIRGO [Aug. 24 to Sept. 23] Contradictory aspects in Virgo charts denote that you may feel at sixes and sevens most of the day.

LIBRA [Sept. 24 to Oct. 23] A "snow job" won't impress a realistic Libra, although someone may try to fool you late today.

SCORPIO [Oct. 24 to Nov. 21] Whatever you say will be noted by others and your remarks may be misinterpreted in the telling.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 22 to Dec. 21] Diversification is the keyword for Sagittarians today. Be daring; try new course of action.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22 to Jan. 19] Early morning vibrations denote favorable part of day. Don't waste them by getting a late start.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 20 to Feb. 18] Don't quarrel over protocol. Put first things first. Appearances really aren't that important.

PISCES [Feb. 19 to March 20] Before committing yourself to something that will tie you down, do some careful evaluation.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB They Don't Cause Cancer

Hiatal Hernia Is Fairly Common

Dear Dr. Lamb—First, I want you to know I read your column every day and wouldn't miss it unless I had to. So I'm giving you roses while you live. I am a woman 65 years old and have all the old age pains but try to understand that we are trying to have them too. My trouble is a hiatus hernia which I have had for many years. The doctor says there is nothing he can do (no surgery), that I'll just have to live with it.

I take antacids all the time and hurt an awful lot. My doctor says "watch what you eat and take antacids." I sleep with my bed on blocks and elevated high in order to sleep. Can you tell me what causes these hernias and am I doing all I can do for comfort. I have to leave off so many things that I would love to eat. If I could have surgery I'd be willing to go through that if it would hold and do any good. I wish you'd tell me what to do if you have any other answers.

Do most of these hernias become cancerous?

Dear Reader—Hiatal hernias are fairly common, particularly as a person grows older. Basically, what happens is that the hole in the diaphragm where the esophagus passes through to join the stomach is too large, and it allows a portion of the stomach to slip through the diaphragm into the chest. The normal closure mechanism that closes the stomach opening is faulty, and the acid contents are squirted back into the lower part of the esophagus causing burning and pain.

Keeping your bed elevated is important. Lying flat at any time should be avoided to prevent the stomach contents from running back into the esophagus. You should avoid bending over to pull weeds, bending over to tie your shoes, pick up clothes, or any head down positions.

A second way to help prevent difficulties is not to overeat and preferably to have the stomach empty before you lie down. This means eating numerous small meals, perhaps five or six a day and avoiding any large meals. It takes at least an hour for the stomach to empty so you shouldn't eat anything for at least an hour and preferably two or three hours, before lying down.

Fatty foods are retained by the stomach longer. Thus if you have a fatty meal, it should be in the middle of the day to allow four or five hours to allow the stomach to completely empty before lying down. Cold foods, such as ice cream, tend to stay in the stomach longer and delay the stomach emptying.

In addition to antacids you should avoid coffee, colas, teas and any drinks or beverages which increase acid peptic juice by the stomach.

This includes avoiding alcohol. You should also avoid smoking cigarettes. Eliminating abdominal obesity will also help decrease the pressure in the abdomen that aggravates the hernia. Girdles and tight belts are not allowed! Operations are possible but they are only indicated in a small number of patients with these problems when there are important complications that need correction. And hiatal hernias don't cause cancer.

SHERBROOKE — Municipal and other government authorities hope the close outcome of last week's election will not have a negative influence on any decision to have Sherbrooke declared a "special zone" for industrial development.

For more than a year municipal authorities have been negotiating with provincial and federal governments to have the Sherbrooke area designated for special help. Such a move by government authorities would greatly aid in the industrial development of Sherbrooke.

Following Monday's election the future of Sherbrooke looked bright as Liberal winner Irene Pelletier during his campaign had promised that he would work towards having Sherbrooke declared a "special zone." However, doubts surfaced later last week. A weak Liberal government would not be willing to invest so much in Quebec thus leaving itself open to a charge of favoritism.

If Sherbrooke were declared a special zone, the federal government would inject $10-20 million into the area. "We need the help," Sherbrooke Mayor Mark Bureau said Sunday.

"It would only be a start but it would help us develop everything we need to insure the progress of the city and the area."

$68,000 DOCUMENT
"Everybody knows about it and Irene Pelletier and Jean Paul Pelletier worked on the document. They know what we want and are going to work towards it," Mayor Bureau summarized.

The document alluded to by Mr. Bureau was prepared more than a year ago at a cost of $68,000 and is an analysis of the city's economic position. It outlines why the city should be declared a Special Zone.

"I am in favor of it and will be working as hard as I can to have the city declared a special zone," Sherbrooke MNA Jean Paul Pepin said in an interview Saturday. Mr. Pepin did not think Monday's election should influence the decision.

"A priority is a priority and should not be influenced by political option," Mr. Pepin said. "Sherbrooke needs an injection of funds and I will be working as hard as I can to see that happen."

Mr. Pepin said that at the beginning of this week he will be trying to define the present position of the negotiations.

"The No. 1 priority for me is to see that Sherbrooke is declared a special zone," he declared.

WORLD DEVELOPMENT REGION
Under the terms of the special zone program the federal government first decides what area it would like to develop or which area needs aid most. Once this has been determined, the provincial government has to agree before Special Zone status is granted.

"I think we would be able to get between $10-20 million for Sherbrooke," the MNA said. "They need it to assure their future. If Sherbrooke is declared a special zone then it will have a great future," Mr. Pepin emphasized.

The Sherbrooke County MNA said a decision should be made soon. "A week is too early and a year is too late," he said.

"If the decision isn't made within six months then I am afraid the project might be put back in the cupboard."

Mr. Pepin said he thought the decision would be favorable.

CREATE INDUSTRIAL PARK
Envisioned under Special Zone status is large-scale development of a "roads network for the city" as well as grants to install services in the city's industrial park.

"We need a roads network so that we can connect industries which want to build with markets in Montreal, Quebec and the United States," Mr. Pepin explained.

If the city was to install services in the industrial park then more industries would be willing to build. During his election campaign Mr. Pelletier hinted that many industries had been willing and were still willing to construct in Sherbrooke but they did not because services were not as yet available in the industrial park.

Mayor Bureau admitted that services in the industrial park would attract industry but the city's poor finances at the moment did not allow for the installation.

WANT A STARTER?
"What we want is a starter," Mayor Bureau said Sunday. "Once we get that push then we can continue ourselves. A special Zone would give us that start."

Mr. Pepin agrees with him. "The city needs a boost to help it put its shoulder to the wheel," he said.

At the same time Mr. Pepin emphasized that authorities needed to work together if the goal is to be attained.

"Federal, provincial and municipal governments as well as organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce and the population as a whole should work to attain the realization of this project," he said.

Mr. Pepin is scheduled to meet with newly elected MP Irene Pelletier to discuss what can be done to work towards this goal.

Unique union boasts 25 years without strike

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter
SHERBROOKE — A look at the success of the labor union at the Combustion Engineering company in Sherbrooke, makes it hard to believe that Quebec was torn by labor strife during the past year.

More than 500 members of the International Association of Machinists, Local 1530, jammed into the new cafeteria of the University of Sherbrooke Saturday to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the union at Combustion Engineering.

Although it was a time for joy it was also a chance to look at the accomplishments and the viability of the union.

"I think the union has been very successful at Combustion Engineering," Gerald Lapointe, President of the Sherbrooke local, said Saturday. "There was a need for a somebody to protect the rights of the workers. We have seen equitable and just pay raises as well as development in such areas as job security, pension plans and other fringe benefits," he added.

The present union was created in October 1947. It was not the first union at the Sherbrooke plant. The first union was started in 1944 under the name Elesco. In 1947 the Elesco union joined with the International Association of Machinists to form Local 1530.

"We believe that a happy worker is a much more efficient worker," Steve Moldovan, a company general manager said Saturday. "The union has helped to make our workers happy," he noted.

"We feel just as good as union officials do and would like to congratulate them on their success," he continued. "There has always been excellent collaboration and cooperation between the union and management and that has worked in two ways. It has helped the workers and it has made the company progressive and a leader in its field."

Combustion Engineering is presently involved in the production of boilers. Some of them are built 40 stories high and shipped to all parts of the world.

"I think it is important to have a good dialogue between the union and management and that is what has happened here," union leader Lapointe said. "Our union has done a lot for the workers. It has attained certain goals that the workers would not have been able to reach by themselves."

Saturday's banquet and dance was financed totally by the union at a cost of nearly $8,500.

"It is a time for the workers to enjoy everything they have received. You might say it was a big birthday party," Gilles Sanson, an organizer commented.

Union members interviewed by The Record said they thought the union had been very good for them and for the company. They were all quite happy with the salaries and fringe benefits.

Most deplored the actions on the Quebec labor scene last spring and said that they were against violence. One union member expressed the thoughts of many members when he said, "You can't accomplish anything when one side asks for too much and neither side is willing to listen to the other."

This doesn't appear to be the case at Combustion Engineering. Since the union was formed 25 years ago the average salary has risen from 48 cents an hour to its present $3.61 an hour.

But the best indicator of the excellent work of the union can be measured in the fact that workers at Combustion Engineering have never gone on strike.

That is quite an accomplishment for the 25-year-old union taking into consideration the labor strife sometimes evident in Quebec.

Ancient landmark levelled in fire

By IVY HATCH
LAKE MASSAWIPPI — When fire levelled the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Joyce of Rock Island on the west shore of Lake Massawippi a landmark was destroyed.

More than a century ago Daniel Abbott built a log cabin on the site, North of Blueberry point about mid-way along the lake. He cut wood and hauled it down to the dock then he sold the wood to the owners of the steamer which plied the water between North Hatley and Ayer's Cliff — the water is very deep at this section of the lake. This cabin is believed to have been the first cottage on Lake Massawippi.

Mr. Abbott later sold the property to Taylor and Blossom who enlarged the cabin and made improvements. They sold it to Fred Rugg of Sherbrooke and about 26 years later it was sold to the Joyce's.

On a veranda post the Rugg family growth was recorded annually under the name of each member of the family.

The Joyces followed the same pattern on another post with their children, Donald and Sheila, then the Joyce's grandchildren. The cottage was a two storey ranch-style home filled with antiques. Each time the cottage was sold nothing was removed. Each family, however, added a few things.

Carlton Joyce, his son, Donald, and grandson, Ronnie, were spending the weekend at the cottage making winter preparations. They built a fire in the fire place and think the blaze started here.

Donald awoke early Sunday morning and called to the other two that there was a fire in the cottage. They quickly dressed and within seconds the place was filled with heavy smoke and soon flames.

Mr. Joyce Sr. said the fire had probably smoldered in the partitions for some time. There was no time to save anything and the cottage was not heavily insured, Mr. Joyce said.

The three Joyce's were joined by another two men who came up the lake and Mr. Joyce said they had to fight hard to keep the fire within the immediate area. The leaves were dry and heavy on the ground.

Mr. Joyce said he had no idea of the value of the loss. He said, however, he would not have sold the property for less than $35,000. He plans to build a new cottage.

Final figures indicate wide support

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Irene Pelletier won the federal election in Sherbrooke County last week with a plurality of 4,504 votes over his closest rival Maurice Couture of the Social Credit party.

The final totals for all candidates in the race were released by Sherbrooke County returning officer Rock Guertin following an official retabulation at the end of last week. Mr. Guertin also announced there were 1,832 rejected ballots.

Following the official second count, three candidates were able to merit increases while the other four including winner Pelletier saw their totals decrease. It now stands at 20,568.

Social Credit loser Maurice Couture ended up with 16,064 — eight votes less than he had been awarded election night. Progressive Conservative candidate Dr. Alexandre Kinky lost 43 ballots. The official PC vote was established at 6,696 compared to the first total of 6,739.

NDP candidate Rebecca Augenfeld picked up 143 votes. Her election night total of 1,707 has increased to an official 1,850. Independent Jean Simoneau increased his vote count from 839 to 906 but Jean Teasdale saw his final score decrease from 291 to 263. Gerald Gosselin increased his standing from 1,364 to 1,413.

According to the final recount the Liberal majority decreased from an election night total of 4,712 to 4,504. What is more interesting to note is the fact that the Liberal majority came from the combination of a strong English-language vote and a strong middle to upper class vote.

Voters in Sherbrooke's North ward, the city's middle and upper class area, voted overwhelmingly in favor of Irene Pelletier. In that ward alone the Liberal winner won by 3,191 votes over second place finisher Maurice Couture.

The total in the North ward was 5,752 in favor of Pelletier and 2,561 for Couture. That difference alone was enough to assure Pelletier's victory.

However Lennoxville, with one the highest concentrations of English-speaking persons in the county, also voted heavily in favor of Pelletier. Official statistics for Lennoxville show that 1,295 ballots were cast for the Liberals while only 288 were cast for Mr. Couture.

Voters in Sherbrooke's North ward and Lennoxville gave Pelletier a majority of 4,256 votes. Maurice Couture did not pick up a large majority in any of the different sectors of the riding.

Voters in Rock Forest cast 1,096 ballots for Couture compared to 706 for Pelletier.

The difference of 490 in Couture's favor was the largest difference he received anywhere.

The voters in Fleurimont gave Couture slight edge over Pelletier but it was not nearly enough to up-end the Liberal winner. In Fleurimont 803 voted for Couture while only 545 went Liberal.

In most of the other areas the two candidates were close. In most instances, however, the Liberal won by a few hundred votes.

Two new faces on council

NORTH HATLEY (CC) — Two new faces will be on hand when the North Hatley Town Council holds its next meeting following the outcome of Sunday's municipal election.

Doug Mills, a 40-year-old store owner, won election to seat No. 2 when he ousted six year veteran C.W. Ride, 60, in the election. Mills picked up 193 votes compared to Ride's 163.

Bernard Bergeron, 44, captured an overwhelming majority to seat No. 3 when he more than doubled the vote total of his nearest rival John Boland, 41, and left the only woman in the race, Mrs. Helen Droueloux, trailing way behind. Bergeron picked up 220 votes compared to Boland's 107 and Mrs. Droueloux's 21.

When the two new members join the council they have one major item on their minds — the development and installation of a sewage disposal system in the municipality.

"You might say that my pet project is a new sewage system. I want to clean up the lake," Mr. Bergeron said. "Still I can't really say right now. First of all I have to see what has been done and learn the procedures of the council."

Mr. Mills was pleased with the election results. "I am glad to have won," he said.

"I am sure that we lost a good man in Mr. Ride but our organization worked hard and I won. When I started I had two goals — to work on the sewage system and make the council more bilingual. We accomplished the first one with the election today."

Mr. Ride, although not happy with the results of the election, took his defeat in good faith.

"I lost but I am not going to cry about it. I worked as well as I could and maybe the council has found a better man," he said.

"Maybe it is a good thing. I really don't know."

Lest we forget, the poppy reminds

NORTH HATLEY (CC) — This municipality will be no different from others throughout this week as war Veterans and members of the Royal Canadian Legion begin their annual poppy campaign.

The campaign begins today in North Hatley and Waterville as the men and women of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 242 begin selling their poppies in the business areas.

"Our campaign starts Monday and will continue to next Saturday," Francis Stone, Chairman of the campaign, said Sunday.

During the course of the week poppies will be on sale throughout the region as branches of the Veteran's associations attempt to make the population aware of the efforts of World War 1 and 2 as well as raise money for veteran's welfare.

The slogan of this year's drive is, "If you can't remember think." In North Hatley the Legionnaires will congregate next Saturday morning for the annual march to the cenotaph.

Branch chaplains Rev. C.H. Buxton and Rev. G. Gagnon will officiate at the annual Remembrance Day ceremony. A supper at the Legion Hall is scheduled next Saturday at 6:30 p.m. with Quebec Command vice-president Henry Shaver acting as guest speaker.

No goal has been set by Legion members this year.

"We would like to raise $500 but we haven't established a goal at all," Mr. Stone said.

In recent years the joint Waterville and North Hatley branch has spent $500 - $1,000 annually in the region to promote Veteran's welfare.

Unified campaign begins

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Canvassing in the public sector to raise funds to attain this year's goal of Sherbrooke's Unified Campaign began in earnest over the weekend.

A goal of $150,000 has been established this year as 18 organizations and four social welfare groups have banded together to collect funds which will enable them to continue their work.

This year's campaign will be carried out in three stages. Over the weekend canvassers began their door-to-door visits, approaching residents individually.

In addition the organizers behind the campaign have instituted a system of direct deduction from pay cheques with business and industrial firms

Club's future clouded

SHERBROOKE (CC) — It is not yet known if the CPA Club will open again.

The private club, situated near the corner of King and Bowen streets, was not open over the weekend and the owners were not available for comment.

A squad of Quebec Police Force officers from the morality and alcohol control divisions raided the club early Thursday morning serving notice the liquor permit had been cancelled and that alcohol in the club would be confiscated. The club had been in operation for about five years.

Originally membership had been restricted and members needed a key to get in. However, the club had lately relaxed membership requirements and all that was needed to enter was a membership card.

The CPA club got its name from the French term "Club du Plaisir pour Adultes," which translated into English means "Adults Pleasure Club."

A well informed source in the local Quebec Police Force detachment disclosed "there had been a lot of funny things going on in the club" and "they weren't paying any attention to liquor laws."

Pleads guilty to robbery

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Alan Chevrier, 22, of Montreal, pleaded guilty to a charge of armed robbery before Session Court judge Benoit Turmel Friday. Chevrier admitted stealing $5,552 from the King and Windsor street branch of the Canadian National Bank on October 6, 1972.

He and his accomplice, Pierre Belanger, will be sentenced on Nov. 24.

In another case Wallace John Livingstone, 22, of Danville, was fined $25 for having burned a flag outside a local Caisse Populaire in Danville.

Lucien Beaugard, 22, of East Angus, pleaded innocent to a charge of possessing a 22 calibre rifle with a sawed-off barrel on August 7, 1972. The date of his trial has not yet been established.

Michel Charland, 20, of Notre Dame du Sacre-Coeur street, requested a trial by jury. He is charged with stealing a boat and motor valued at $2,500, belonging to Robert Patterson.

Crux of the issue

Reports that a Washington-Hanoi agreement will be signed this week will leave many puzzled: What does it mean? The explanations are as disparate as are the views of the analysts, but it is more than possible that by mid-November the situation in Vietnam will not be greatly different from what it is now, and that a real settlement, if it comes, will be reached only in the new year.

The White House bases its confidence on the clause in the draft agreement subscribed to by Hanoi, providing for the withdrawal from Laos and Cambodia of "all foreign forces, military advisers and military personnel, armaments, munitions and war material." If this were to apply to the North Vietnamese it would mean that the only supply line to their forces in South Vietnam would have dried out.

Moreover, as Joseph Alsop argues, Hanoi's insistence on American aid in reconstruction of the country is in itself a guarantee that the North Vietnamese do not intend to cheat. "You do not ask for large-scale aid, after all, if you meanwhile intend gross violations of a treaty with the aid giver," Mr. Alsop writes.

Henry Kissinger has thus obtained from Hanoi an agreement to negotiate a ceasefire in advance of a political settlement, the acceptance of President Thieu, or at least his friends, as partners in a three-sided coalition and an agreement to prompt elections.

But it is the crucial semantic issue, whether or not North Vietnam considers its own troops in Cambodia, Laos and indeed South Vietnam as "foreign," that will be decisive in the final negotiating stages. Hitherto Hanoi has always argued that the Indochina war was a civil war and the only foreigners there were the Americans. Will Hanoi now reverse itself and admit that its forces had invaded the non-Communist states of Indochina?

President Thieu has balked at the three-party coalition in advance of elections. Since the Communists do not represent more than one-fifth of the population at the most, they can hardly claim one-third of cabinet seats, whether this is to be a coalition government or a temporary administration organizing a general election. It will be equally difficult to find men representing the so-called third force.

The fate of "neutrals" in the Laos government, after they had entered a similar three-front coalition, is too recent and has not been forgotten. Mr. Thieu is aware that the Communists have remained opposed to an early free election that would expose the unpalatable fact that they are no more than a violent minority, and he fears that they will procrastinate to gain time within which to destroy the system from within.

In the words of The Economist, President Thieu "is not the world's most democratic, or popular, president," but he has stood up for what he considers his country's interests.

There can be no viable settlement negotiated over his head, or indeed over the heads of the South Vietnamese. In 1963, the Americans believed that by condoning the assassination of President Diem they would solve the Vietnamese problem.

Nine years later the problem is still there, and while the Kissinger peace plan might have extracted from Hanoi some tactical concessions, it has not frustrated, as the Korean ceasefire agreement had done in the case of North Korea, the Communists' determination to inflict their own regime upon the South.

This is the crux of the issue which any final settlement will have to take into account.

Says Hanoi accepted near-total defeat

WASHINGTON — If Hanoi does not mean to cheat flagrantly, Hanoi has accepted near-total defeat in the long war that has cost North Vietnam so cruelly. The plain fact is worth underlining for quite simple reasons.

To begin with, there is a lot of confusion about the terms of the draft agreement prepared by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. It is not unnatural confusion since Dr. Kissinger admirably followed one of the first rules of diplomacy. This is to get everything you want yourself without unnecessarily humiliating your enemy.

Thus Hanoi loudly and persistently demanded the destruction of the Saigon government, and its replacement by a coalition government. In the end, Hanoi was forced to settle for leaving President Nguyen Van Thieu both in place and in power. But a coalition fig leaf was also provided to make giving way on the main point less bitter for Hanoi.

The fig leaf takes the form of a tripartite commission charged with preparing a new election in South Vietnam, but without any governing powers. To make assurance doubly sure, it is also provided that this ghost of a coalition can make no decision of any kind except by a unanimous vote.

It should not take much foresight to foretell that unanimity is most unlikely to prevail in any commission comprising President Thieu's representatives, Communist representatives and neutralist representatives. Hence the commission has no real importance — except as a fig leaf.

Then, too, Hanoi stoutly refused throughout the negotiations to admit the presence of the numerous North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam. But in the end, Hanoi was forced to agree to total withdrawal of all "foreign troops" from both Laos and Cambodia.

But even a U.S. senator ought to be able to see that 100,000 soldiers, many hundreds of miles from home in a strange land, cannot sustain and supply themselves on air alone. And that will be the result if all North Vietnamese are to be withdrawn from Cambodia and Laos.

Cambodia provides essential bases for the North Vietnamese in South Vietnam. Their even more essential supply line runs through Laos, and requires tens of thousands of men to operate. Hence the absence of specific provisions concerning the North Vietnamese in South Vietnam is really inconsequential. It is another fig leaf for Hanoi, in fact.

Failure to destroy President Thieu's government, plus effective abandonment of the North Vietnamese military effort in the south — these are the essential features of the Kissinger - Le Duc Tho draft agreement. Anyone with practical common sense should be able to see that these two features, in and of themselves, add up to Hanoi's acceptance of near-total defeat.

Still a few oddballs

By Rod Currie

WASHINGTON (CP) — It's not the same somehow, this United States presidential campaign, without habitual candidate Harold Stassen around, or Alabama Governor George C. Wallace, who gave the big boys the fright of their lives in 1968.

But, although President Nixon and Democratic candidate George McGovern tend to hog the attention, there still is a raft of serious minor candidates and a few off-beat bidders for the White House. For instance — a curvy actress who once posed nude for Playboy magazine; Spriggy, the leader of the Skinny Liberation Movement; and the son of a medicine man who is running on the Apache ticket.

On the more serious, if not much more optimistic, level are the candidates of the Communist party, the American party and the People's party.

None has a chance. Many are not even on the ballot in a single state, relying instead on a "write-in" campaign to sweep them into the White House.

FARE POORLY

Under the tradition of the two-party system in the U.S., third-party candidates have fared poorly over the years. But Wallace, with his segregationist background, made a remarkable showing as the American party candidate four years ago and boasted that he would end up with the balance of power in a close race.

Wallace almost did, winning five states and nine million votes, but although Nixon defeated Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey by a hair he did not have to dicker with Wallace.

This time Wallace sought the Democratic nomination, and hinted he might revert to third-party status if he didn't get it, but he was shot and crippled in an attempted assassination in mid-May and that ended his challenge.

Stassen, a 65-year-old Philadelphia lawyer, hasn't held elective office since the end of his term as governor of Minnesota in 1943, but he has sought the Republican presidential nomination four times.

STILL HAS ZEST

It's not that he has lost the zest for battle, but rather because "I never run against a Republican incumbent—even if I disagree with him."

Among those who are running, Representative John G. Schmitz, who picked up the banner of Wallace's American party is apparently the strongest contender, with his name on the ballot in 34 states. A staunch right-winger who bills himself as "America's foremost anti-Communist," he was recently dumped in a primary race to retain his California congressional seat.

Schmitz sums up his platform in two lines: "Domestic policy: Those who work should live better than those who won't. Foreign policy: Don't go to war unless you intend to win."

The Communist party's candidate is Gus Hall, 62, longtime general secretary who the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover once described as "a powerful, deceitful, dangerous foe of Americanism."

But the party has fallen on bad times since its heyday of the 1930s, with membership down to 14,000.

DR. SPOCK RUNS

Others among the more sincere candidates, whose main objective is to gain publicity for their aims and beliefs, include:

Dr. Benjamin Spock, 69, eminent baby doctor and anti-war activist, who is the candidate of the People's party. He charges the rich and powerful control both major parties and concedes "it's going to take a long time" to build an independent movement in the U.S. He advocates an unspecified maximum income, free medical care and a minimum federal allowance of $6,500 annually for a family of four.

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers party, who advocates "taking control of society out of the hands of a minority of millionaires." A former secretary and schoolteacher, she supports women's liberation and says all laws against abortion should be invalidated.

Louis Fisher, 59, Socialist Labor party, who says socialism is inevitable in the U.S. A Chicago dry-cleaning plant worker, he urges a "new type of government, an industrial government."

TO BAN OFFICE

John Hospers, Libertarian party, is running for an office he feels should be abolished. Libertarians, says the 54-year-old chairman of the University of Southern California philosophy department, believe in the least government possible.

As for the other declared candidates, the most attractive is actress Stella Stevens, 32, the nude-photo girl who actually is holding herself in reserve for the next presidential election in 1976. She says "all sex is natural" and calls marijuana a gift from God, insisting that her candidacy isn't a publicity stunt although her Hollywood career hasn't been an outstanding success.

Spriggy, an ardent admirer of Twiggy, the skinny but famous British model, is really Barry Goldsmith, 20, a six-foot, 118-pound student at Columbia University in New York. Claiming 2,000 members in the Skinny Liberation Movement, he is mounting the campaign to draw attention to what he calls discrimination — by stores and clothing manufacturers — against skinny people.

Philip Cassadore, 29, of San Carlos Apache Reservation, Ariz., thinks the Apache way can solve America's problems.

A frequent lecturer at college and university campuses, he says: "The Apache learned long ago to live as part of the world instead of trying to change the world to suit him. 'Man must walk in harmony with nature or nature will destroy man.'"

Since the last report in this space, moreover, far more evidence has accumulated that for the next few years, at least, cheating by Hanoi is genuinely unlikely. In particular, it is now known that the theme of American aid for North Vietnam's reconstruction was struck very early in the Kissinger - Le Duc Tho talks.

The North Vietnamese representatives raised the issue of aid and, furthermore, they harped on it with great persistence. They actually wanted a detailed aid agreement to be drawn up in parallel with the cease-fire agreement. But Dr. Kissinger merely committed the United States in principle, as President Johnson had done, in reality, some years ago.

The aid agreement is instead to be negotiated after the return of the U.S. prisoners in North Vietnamese hands. On this point, again, the North Vietnamese yielded a position obstinately maintained for a long period. But it was also the North Vietnamese who spontaneously suggested a joint U.S.-North Vietnamese commission to administer the aid over a five-year term. This is hardly consistent with an intent to break the cease-fire agreement as soon as it is initiated.

There are two other dangers to this successful outcome of the war that also need mention, however. President Thieu, a deeply cautious and suspicious man, may not have the boldness and energy to seize the opportunity that has now been presented to him. In South Vietnam just about all the cards will be left in his hands. But he must play the cards with courage and skill.

There is also some danger of the successful outcome being sabotaged by the numerous American politicians and thinkers who endlessly said that we ought to surrender because we could never get an honorable settlement. These people look pretty silly now. It is sordid, too, that there should be any danger of sabotage on their part. But accuracy compels noting it.

Dear Sir:

As an English Canadian residing in Quebec, I greatly resent the efforts made to explain the Liberal majority vote in Quebec as a gesture of support of the Trudeau government, when I can plainly see the great gain of the Conservative party reflects a growing disenchantment throughout English Canada of the favoritism policies adopted by the present and hopefully soon to be overthrown administration.

It is just like many so-called learned observers to ascribe such a majority gain on the Tories' part to considerations which do not come into play in an election where the determining factors are not limited to one region and thereby cannot be reached by so-called regional applications of national policies but truly of the majority voice of the whole country.

In conclusion, I hope that the French in Quebec will gain from this lesson and see where their errors lie so that hopefully when another election comes around, and soon I should believe, they will at least this time have the knowledge of the wishes of the rest of Canada and thereby, giving the French-Canadians their due, vote accordingly.

Thank you.

Better preachers wanted

Dear Sir:

I think that it is a terrible crime the way the small churches in a small town are run. We know that there is a terrible shortage of ministers today, but why don't they check into the family life of these so-called licensed laymen?

Mr. X, we shall call him, and his family, donates in the hundreds of dollars to the church each year, and then stand back and brag about giving more than anyone else in the town. By giving such a large amount he was sworn in as layman.

On weekends he drinks till he can't see straight; turns up Sunday morning, white shirt etc., taking the service as a layman.

He chews his words so no one can understand what he is talking about and simply murders the whole hour while he is in the pulpit. Then they wonder why they are losing all their congregation.

They have no more large attendance, therefore no Sunday school.

Mr. Rev. Bishop of Quebec, look into these so-called laymen. I know some laymen who deserve the title, but there are some who can't live up to it.

Thank you,
Name Withheld

All Canadians

Dear Sir:

Allow me to differ in opinion with Mr. Jacques Beaudon, professor of philosophy at the CEGEP of St-Hyacinthe, P.Q., regarding the nationality of the Governor General.

In his article, published in Le Devoir, of Montreal, on September 30th, Mr. Beaudon declared that "it is not since a long time that the Governor General is a Canadian."

In this order of matters, the principle is that the personalities called to govern a country as a king, an emperor, a governor, etc., are losing automatically the nationality of their country of origin and are acquiring, also automatically, the nationality of the country of which they are assuming the political sovereignty, without the need of an act of naturalization.

There is an example in the case of Bernadotte, field-marshal of France, who became king of Sweden in 1818. As soon as he was in function, he ceased to be French and took the Swedish nationality.

Another example is Maximilian, archduke of Austria, named emperor of Mexico in 1864. In taking charge, he ceased to be Austrian and took automatically the Mexican nationality.

The Governors of Canada, from Samuel de Champlain (1608) to Viscount Alexander of Tumis (1945), as soon as they were holding their high appointment, were losing their quality of origin, be it French, English or other, and were becoming automatically and naturally Canadians.

This principle is admitted in the international world of diplomacy. According to it, contrary to the opinion of Mr. Jacques Beaudon, the 59 governors of Canada, starting from the founding of the birth of the country with Champlain in 1608, until today, were all Canadians.

Sincerely yours,
Georges Boulanger,
St-Augustin,

Green and Gold Hamilton bound following 7-3 win

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold jumped to a 3-0 first-period lead Saturday and went on to defeat Bishop's University Gaiters 7-3 in one of nine regional Hockey Canada-sponsored tournaments before 800 spectators.

In Montreal, Sir George Williams University Georgians gained a berth to the national tournament in Hamilton by defeating arch-rival Loyola College Warriors 7-5.

Bishop's reached the final by overcoming a 2-0 deficit at the hands of the Ottawa Gee Gees to win the semi-final 6-3. Earlier in the evening Sherbrooke defeated the cadets from College Militaire Royale 8-3 to set the stage for the battle everyone had hoped for.

Unfortunately for the Bishop's team the final did not prove to be as close as they had anticipated. Capitalizing on several Bishop's miscues the Green and Gold widened the margin to 4-0 early in the middle period before the Gaiters got untracked.

Two quick Bishop's goals by Kevin Brown and Rob McLernon narrowed the score to 4-2 for Sherbrooke but the Green and Gold converted two abortive Gaiter rushes to regain a four-goal bulge. When the Gaiters failed to score early in the final period, Sherbrooke was assured of a trip to Hamilton.

The Green and Gold upped the count to 7-2 before Don Campbell rounded out the scoring on a centering pass from Jay Hanson.

"We made too many fundamental errors early in the game," commented coach Al Grazys, "and our forwards didn't drive for the net when we had the puck in their zone."

Indeed the gaiters were very sloppy defensively, allowing Sherbrooke numerous three-on-one and two-on-one chances, especially in the first and second periods. When Bishop's narrowed the count to 4-2, goalie Alain Hebert was often left at the mercy of the Sherbrooke attackers.

Grazys added, "We can't expect our goalie to make miraculous saves continually." However, it was Hebert who won the game for the Gaiters against Ottawa Friday night. The Gee Gees jumped to a 2-0 first-period lead, beating a sluggish Bishop's team to the puck on every occasion. But in the second period the Gaiters found their skating legs and tied the score, only to have Ottawa take a 3-2 lead before the period ended.

Early in the third period Bishop's scored two quick goals to take the lead for the first time in the game. It was at this point that netminder Hebert made several superb saves to preserve the slim margin.

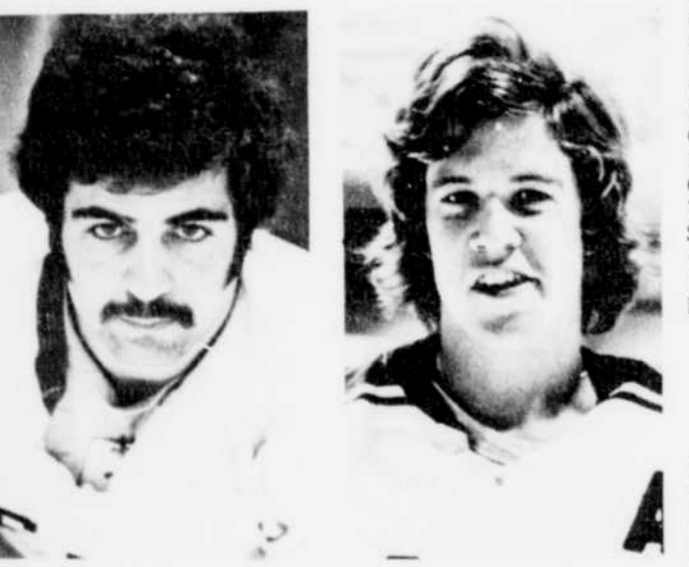

After being frustrated on numerous occasions by the Bishop's goalie the Ottawa team seemed to lose spirit and the Gaiters added two more goals before the period ended to win comfortably.

The game featured some solid bodychecking although most of the hard knocks were delivered by Bishop's. By the third period, the Ottawa forwards began to lose the puck in anticipation of hard blows from the Gaiter rearguards.

Mike Bookalam led the Gaiters with two goals while singles went to Rob McLernon, Paul Iggulden, Steve Connor and Wayne Rahm.

Following the championship game Saturday University of Sherbrooke received the Sherwood-Drolet trophy from Marty Zuchotzki, a representative of Hockey Canada. Outstanding defenceman Paul Dion, formerly of the Quebec Remparts, was voted Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Coach Al Grazys also announced that centre Eric Iversen has been chosen captain by the Bishop's players. Iversen is presently recovering from a fractured ankle and is expected to resume play in the first week of December. Mike Bookalam and Gary Chown were named assistant captains.

AGRHS juniors take 6th

By BRUCE PORTER
LENNOXVILLE — The Alexander Galt Regional High junior boys' football squad won their sixth game in seven starts to end the regular season at Bishop's University downing Stanstead College 42-20.

Elsewhere, 16 AGRHS students represented the Eastern Townships Regional School Board in the provincial cross-country meet held in Sherbrooke, placing fairly well. Dan Speck started the Pipers rolling with a touchdown early in the game followed later by a fieldgoal. George Baptist accounted for the next Galt TD converted by Speck.

Peter Bishop played well, catching two touchdowns passes from John Mills. Speck rounded off the AGRHS scoring with two converted touchdowns. Coach Brian Heath commented, "We were really up for the game and we never let up."

Everybody played a solid game and quarterback John Mills was the offensive player of the game," Heath added. "He made some real good calls."

The junior Pipers gave up their only loss to North Country Union High from Newport, Vt. Earlier in the year they defeated both Bishop's College School and Stanstead College three times.

The boys' and girls' cross-country teams entered the provincial meet as part of the ETRSB squad and, although they had some good placings, the team didn't place high enough to win any of the hardware.

Neil Raycraft captured first in the bantam boys' division with Patrick Fitzgerald and Robert Boushel taking ninth and 15th spots respectively.

Christine Fitzgerald placed fifth in the juvenile girls' class, while Karen Cooney, Kathy Bliss and Carmen Goulet were also in the top 15. Gary Guillette took 19th position in the juvenile boys' run.

Coach Heath of the Galt team noted, "Our kids worked hard and did well, but when you get 80 or 90 kids in a race and you place in the top 20 you're doing quite well."

On cross-country in the ET he said, "We had a good season, but if local schools had an interest in cross-country, it would be easier to have competitions."

The Lions put together a stonewall defense and a quick attack which featured touch downs by Jim Young and Johnny Musso and a 23-yard field goal by Ted Gerela in the first half to break the Roughriders' domination over the B.C. club dating back to Sept. 27, 1965.

Family reunion as 4 NHL teams tie

By IAN MACLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If, as they say in professional sport, a tie is like kissing your sister, then there was a curiously high number of family reunions Sunday night in the National Hockey League.

Four of the six scheduled games ended in stalemates.

Pitt Martin's goal with less than four minutes remaining salvaged a 3-3 tie for Chicago Black Hawks against California Golden Seals, Toronto Maple Leafs managed a 2-2 saw-off in Atlanta with the Flames and the Pittsburgh Penguins at Detroit Red Wings and St. Louis Blues at Buffalo Sabres games ended in 1-1 ties.

In games that decided a victor, Boston Bruins rode an early 3-0 lead to a 4-2 win over Vancouver Canucks and New York Rangers put two quick power-play scores to advantage en route to a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

Chicago, favored to repeat as West Division leaders, remained two points back of the surprising Los Angeles Kings who hung a 9-2 defeat Saturday on New York Islanders while the Hawks stretched their losing streak to three games in dropping a 5-3 score to Minnesota North Stars.

STREAK ENDS AT 13
Elsewhere Saturday, Montreal Canadiens' unbeaten string ended at 13 games when they lost 4-2 to Detroit, Toronto beat St. Louis 4-2, Pittsburgh defeated the Rangers 6-4 and Philadelphia turned back Buffalo Sabres 5-3.

The lone game Tuesday night finds Los Angeles at St. Louis. The Black Hawks, tied for second with Philadelphia, came from one-goal deficits three times to tie the game at Chicago. Martin's equalizer was a rising 40-footer that just cleared goaltender Gilles Meloche's shoulder.

Defenceman Ron Harris' first goal of the season midway through the third period offset Toronto's go-ahead score by Dave Keon—his eighth of the season—before 10,732 Atlanta fans who are getting their first taste of major league hockey.

The Red Wings whistled 37 shots at Pittsburgh goaltender Jim Rutherford in the Olympia but were still hard-pressed for the tie.

Mickey Redmond's goal at 15:03 of the third period evened the score after the Penguins had gone ahead on Syl Apps' scoreless tie-breaker 47 seconds into the final 20 minutes.

The stalemate at Buffalo was the second of the year between the Sabres and Blues and featured solid goaltending by St. Louis' Jacques Caron and Dave Dryden of the home club.

EAGER CONTESTANT
The game was twice delayed by brief skirmishes in the second period. St. Louis defenceman Steve Durban, who was involved in the initial disturbance with team-mate Mike Murphy and Buffalo's Larry Hillman and Tracy Pratt, drew a five-minute major for a later fight with Sabre rookie Rick Dudley.

The defending champion Bruins tallied three goals in the first period at Vancouver then were forced to hold on in the raggedly-played contest.

Boston directed 36 shots at Canucks' goaltender Ed Dycck, 17 in the last period when Phil Esposito produced the insurance score.

Power-play goals at Philadelphia by Brad Park and Rod Gilbert wiped out a 2-0 Philadelphia lead and Bobby Rousseau scored the winner unassisted with under two minutes remaining in the second period.

Sharks finally biting at home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
For a team that doesn't often win at home, Los Angeles Sharks are making the most of their road trips.

The Sharks produced only their second victory at home Sunday in the early World Hockey Association schedule, 4-0 over Houston Aeros, but it kept them atop the Western Division standings with Winnipeg Jets.

The Jets maintained a share of first with a 3-1 victory over New York Raiders while Ottawa Nationals turned back Alberta Oilers 5-3, Quebec Nordiques beat Chicago Cougars 3-2 and Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated the hapless Philadelphia Blazers 3-1.

Cleveland Crusaders continued to pace the Eastern Division race with a 5-3 victory Saturday over second-place Quebec as Los Angeles checked Chicago 3-2 and New England Whalers beat Philadelphia 8-4.

Als in playoffs; for Leo, the agony of defeat

By IAN MACLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The agony of defeat hung on Leo Cahill's shoulders Sunday as he trudged toward the Toronto Argonaut dressing room across Hamilton's Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Argos' 26-16 defeat may have cost him his job although he has just finished the second year of a four-year contract.

The Tiger-Cats subdued Toronto to nail down first place in the Eastern Football Conference while scuttling the Argos' playoff chances on the final game of the schedule.

Ottawa Rough Riders, whose 11-7 win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday gave them an 11-3 record for the season, identical to Hamilton's, had to settle for second place because of three losses to the Ticats in season meetings.

The Argos, counted out of the post-season picture early in the year, suddenly found themselves on the threshold of a playoff spot when Montreal Alouettes went into a tailspin that saw them win only one of their last seven starts.

But the Als, who finished their season a week ago, backed into the playoffs with a 4-10 mark, the worst-ever record by an Eastern Conference team to qualify for post-season play. Argos finished 31-1.

And Cahill, whose departure from Toronto has been rumored for most of the season, didn't want to discuss his future.

"I don't know, I don't want to talk about it now," he told reporters in the steamy Toronto shower room. It marked a complete turnaround for the Argos, last year's EFC winners and Grey Cup finalists.

It also marked a day of retribution for several ex-Agos, notably defensive ends Gary Inskip and George Wells and linebacker Mike Blum, who admitted before the game they'd enjoy nothing better than to see Cahill's Argos on the sidelines.

Least emotional of all in the Hamilton room was Al Brenner whose Canadian Football League record-shattering interceptions turned the game in Hamilton's favor.

His first of four interceptions off Argo quarterback Joe Theismann was his 12th of the season, breaking the CFL mark he shared with former Ticat Don Sutherland and John Wydareny of Edmonton Eskimos.

SET'S EARLY PATTERN
He returned that one 41 yards to set up Hamilton's first touchdown, by Dave Fleming, and snuffed out Toronto drives deep in the Hamilton end with his other three—two of them in the Ticat end zone.

"Theismann's just trying to keep me in the league," Brenner joked. "Last year he threw me five (interceptions) and because he didn't play in the first two games against us this year he
