

Says company dealings with Banks averted chaos on Lakes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The president of Canada Steamship Lines says there would have been chaos on the Great Lakes if his company, Canada's largest lake carrier, had refused to deal with Hal C. Banks and his Seafarers International Union of Canada.

The statement by T. R. McLagan in Montreal was the latest in a steady flow of comments about the recommendations of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris after his inquiry into shipping disruptions on the lakes. Much of the comment from those most affected was far from favorable.

And there was still nothing but silence from SIU president Banks, castigated by Mr. Justice Norris as a flagrant law-breaker.

Mr. McLagan, whose company was accused of helping to set Banks up on the Canadian waterfront and keep him in power, described the Norris report's conclusions about Canada Steamships as "unfounded, damaging . . . and most unfair."

He said the facts "completely negate" the propositions that CSI was instrumental in bringing Banks here, that it negotiated with him independently of other shippers, that it obtained preferential treatment from the SIU, and that it failed to stand up to the SIU chief and thereby obstructed law and order.

OTHERS INVOLVED
Mr. McLagan said other shipping companies and the Liberal government of the time were equally involved in the establishment of the SIU over the now-defunct Canadian Seaman's Union. The CSU had been regarded as Communist-dominated, and violence and unlawful practices had flourished under it, he said.

If Canada Steamships wanted to continue operation, it had to man its vessels and "Mr. Banks and his union (were) the organization which, so far as it knew, still represented its labor. . . . CSI's negotiations then were as vigorous as possible, and the terms negotiated were no more unfavorable to other carriers which later accepted them than they were to CSI.

If Canada Steamships was not harassed by SIU members, "we can only presume that we were not subjected to these because we as a company are at pains to maintain good labor relations with all the unions with which we deal, and I may say that there are some 14 of them."

ISSUES ULTIMATUM
The 500-member Canadian Maritime Union, created by the Canadian Labor Congress to fight the SIU for control of the lakes, gave its reaction to the Norris report in the form of an ultimatum.

Archbishop dies
LONDON (AP) — Archbishop Gerard Patrick O'Hara, 68, American-born Vatican diplomat who was expelled from Romania by the Communists for alleged espionage, died Tuesday. The archbishop, apostolic delegate to Britain since 1954, died four days after being felled by a heart attack.

Jobless decline slows

OTTAWA (CP)—The summer influx of students into the labor force slowed the seasonal decline in unemployment in Canada in June—leaving 304,000 workers in the ranks of the jobless, it was reported today.

A joint statement issued by the federal labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics placed the unemployment rate at 4.4 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.5 per cent in June, 1962, and 5.6 per cent in June, 1961.

The total was down 42,000 under the mid-May jobless count of 346,000, but up 3,000 over the 301,000 total for June last year.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	June 1963	May 1963	June 1962
Labor force	6,839	6,658	6,732
Employed	6,535	6,312	6,451
Unemployed	304	346	301

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada during the week ended June 22.

Reds not convinced of man on moon value

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — Russian scientists are not convinced of the value of putting a man on the moon and may seek an international agreement on the worth of such a project, a British space expert reports.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Radio Astronomy Observatory, told a press conference Tuesday that the president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences told him he felt scientists should reach an agreement on the desirability and value of a manned lunar landing before individual countries proceed with such projects. Lovell said he is relaying the suggestion to U.S. and British space officials.

Sir Bernard has just returned from a three-week visit to the Soviet Union. He was the first Western scientist allowed to inspect Soviet space-tracking stations. He said the Soviet Union is confident instruments can answer 90 per cent of man's questions about the moon. He conceded, however, that national prestige also was involved.

"There is a great deal of discussion in the Soviet academy as to whether it will ever be worthwhile getting a man on the moon," the British expert said. "There are two problems which greatly concern them—the question of radiation damage and the fact that there may be no solution to getting a man back to earth safely."

Asked about the space race between the United States and the Soviet Union, Lovell said: "I think, at the moment, the Americans are racing themselves concerning moon research."

American scientists, in recent testimony before the U.S. Senate space committee, also were divided on the value of manned moon flights and of trying to establish military bases on the moon. The United States is planning to make manned moon shots by 1970.

New trouble explodes on racial scene

CHARLESTON, S.C. (CP-AP) — Racial violence exploded on a new target—Charleston—Tuesday night and flared again briefly in two old trouble spots, Cambridge, Md., and Savannah, Ga.

On the quieter side of racial situation in the United States, a biracial committee was formed at Birmingham, Ala., scene of disorders this summer, and there were several developments in the courts and at Washington.

Five policemen and one fireman were injured in the first outbreak of violence during month-long Negro demonstration at Charleston. A total of 150 Negroes were arrested.

★ ★ ★ Segregated church is boosted

MONTREAL (CP)—A group of Negroes in the southern United States found freedom by forming their own segregated church, a delegate to the fourth world conference on faith and order claimed Tuesday.

The delegate was speaking at a sub-section of the conference, sponsored by the World Council of Churches, as it considered drawing up a statement on the effects of racial and cultural problems on Christian unity.

He said the Negroes had attended a white church but had been prevented from holding offices. They set up their own church and found freedom in segregation, he said.

He opposed the sub-section's putting out a statement that emphasized the problem of racial prejudice, on grounds that people would accuse the churches of trying to jump on the anti-discrimination bandwagon. By discussing the problem publicly, the churches would be admitting their sins in the area.

HAS RESPONSIBILITY
Another delegate objected to his stand, saying churches had a responsibility to speak out on principle and confess their guilt in not fighting against discrimination more vigorously.

The sub-section, one of 15 considering various problems of church unity, is to prepare a report for possible action later by all 300 delegates attending the conference, the first in 11 years.

Reporters are admitted to most of the sub-section meetings, but on condition they do not quote a delegate directly.

Test ban atmosphere said still friendly

(CP from Reuters-AP)

MOSCOW — The three-power nuclear test ban talks enter their third day of negotiations today in an atmosphere that continues to be friendly according to a joint communique. Secrecy still surrounded the daily meetings of U.S. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Lord Hailsham of Britain with top Soviet officials. Usually when sharp disagreement develops, secrecy breaks down.

A three-power announcement Tuesday night said the second conference session was conducted "in a friendly atmosphere." Once again all three delegations appeared in good humor as they left the conference.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev, who opened the conference Monday, was understood to be keeping in close touch with the talks and was expected to take a personal role again soon.

CONDITIONS ACCEPTABLE
It was understood that Khrushchev, in outlining the Soviet position Monday did not raise any conditions unacceptable to the United States and Britain.

In Washington, a close associate of President Kennedy said if agreement is reached on a test ban, Kennedy and Khrushchev might exchange pledges of non-aggression. These pledges, the source said, might include a statement from Khrushchev that he does not contemplate an ultimatum over Berlin and from Kennedy that the United States would refrain from military action to change borders in

About 500 demonstrators gathered opposite The News and Courier newspaper building in Charleston and chanted "freedom songs." Police began making arrests on trespassing charges. A brick hurled from the crowd and felled an officer, touching off more arrests and more flying bricks and stones.

CROWD DISPERSES
Two fire engines hurried to the scene. The crowd began dispersing and fire hoses were not used. Ninety-five Negroes were arrested on charges of creating a disturbance.

Later, city police and state highway patrolmen dispersed 750 Negroes who gathered in front of a Negro church. Officials feared the crowd might march on city police headquarters about four blocks away.

Negroes are demanding total desegregation of public facilities and improved job opportunities. National Guardsmen and state police combed an area between Negro and white sections of Cambridge, Md., after the wife of a National Guard officer said she heard a shot and something grazed her left hand.

The wife of Lt.-Col. George Horner said she was walking in her front yard when the incident occurred. Col. J. Maurice Tawes, the National Guard commander, said a projectile of some sort might have knocked off a piece of cinder block, a fragment of which could have grazed Mrs. Horner.

There has been an easing of tension in Cambridge before this development. Negro leaders decreed a 24-hour moratorium on marches, picketing and other demonstrations after a new biracial committee began sessions. Guardsmen relaxed curfew rules after a protest meeting by businessmen.

At Savannah, scene of race rioting two nights last week, a relative calm was broken by scattered gunfire and one Negro was wounded slightly.

FATAL CRASH — Onlookers observe the wreckage of the small rear-engine car in which a Coaticook woman and her daughter were killed near Milby yesterday afternoon. The bodies of Mrs. Albani Bouchard, 59, and her daughter Jeanette, 27, were trapped between the front seats and the twisted front of the car and could not be removed until the arrival of the wrecking truck. Their car was in collision with an oncoming light truck driven by Harold Munkittrick of Lennoxville. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

Blown tire is blamed

2 are killed in collision

MILBY — (Staff) — A blown tire has been blamed for the front-end collision near here yesterday afternoon in which two Coaticook women were killed and two children passengers in their small car were seriously injured.

Dead are Mrs. Albani Bouchard, 59, and her daughter Jeanette, 27, who were riding in the front seats of a small rear-engine car when it was in collision with an oncoming pick-up truck driven by Harold Munkittrick of Lennoxville.

Taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in serious condition were two rear-seat passengers in the car, Mrs. Bouchard's son Fernand, 14, and two-year-old Johanne Lacroix, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benoit Lacroix of Sherbrooke.

Mr. Munkittrick and his passenger, Miss Lynn Povey of Lennoxville, were only slightly injured.

The entire front of the car was flattened against the front seats, trapping the bodies of the two women until the car was pulled apart by a wrecking truck and men with crowbars.

Damage to the truck was confined to the left front fender, wheel and steering assembly, along with two cracks in the windshield.

Mr. Munkittrick said on the scene that he had been driving towards Sherbrooke when his truck suddenly swerved to the left, probably as the result of a blown tire.

He was fighting to turn back to the right hand side of the road when the collision occurred, he said.

Fernand Bouchard and Johanne Lacroix were taken by ambulance to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Sherbrooke where they were

50 hurt as police attack monks, nuns

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Swinging rifle butts and clubs, South Vietnamese riot police laid into a demonstration of Buddhist monks, nuns and women and children followers today, injuring at least 50.

Police, backed by steel-helmeted troops, arrested more than 200 demonstrators, flinging them bodily into army trucks.

Demonstrators sprawled in the dust as security forces kicked and clubbed them.

Smaller demonstrations, involving about 100 monks and nuns each, broke out around Saigon's central market and in Cholon, the Vietnamese capital's Chinatown. Riot police quelled them quickly and carried off several dozen more demonstrators.

Mood music for cows enters tariffs debate in Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—Radio mood music for cows, farm air conditioning and snow blowers waded through Commons debate Tuesday.

These items struck up the theme for Jack Horner, an Alberta rancher, in a spirited Conservative opposition bid to make Finance Minister Gordon change his mind.

Mr. Horner, member for Acadia and one of the four Horner clansmen in Parliament, stuck

COATICOOK — (Staff) — Stanstead Liberal MLA Georges Vaillancourt said today the provincial government should act speedily to link Interstate Highway 91 in Vermont with the Eastern Townships Autoroute in time for the 1967 Montreal World's Fair.

There was even a possibility, the member said, of persuading U.S. road authorities to speed up the construction of Interstate 91, now scheduled for completion in 1971.

The Quebec roads department was in constant consultation with U.S. authorities, he said and had discussed the proposed four-lane link from Rock Island to Omerville with them.

Surveys of the route by aerial photography are underway.

Asked by The Record if provision for the building of the link would be made in the next budget, Mr. Vaillancourt said, "I cannot speak for the government on that, but I would say that if it is to be built by 1967, they will have to act fast."

At present two roads department engineers were on the scene surveying the route, which would pass through Ayer's Cliff, he said. "The project is under study. When the studies are complete, they will go to the authorities for a decision."

The prime purpose of the stretch of expressway would be to facilitate the travel of tourists from the United States going to Montreal and through the Eastern Townships during the World's Fair year of 1967, Mr. Vaillancourt said.

The route would not be considered part of the autoroute, but would be a four-lane highway of the same type. The already-constructed section of Interstate 91 in Vermont has two lanes.

The linking road would join the autoroute, according to plans under study, between Omerville, eastern terminal point of the autoroute, and Magog.

The route now under consideration would pass just below the Magog electrical dam and cross the present property of Dominion Textile Company near Magog.

It would then swing to the west of Lake Massawippi, passing behind the Servite college near Ayer's Cliff.

The Canada-U.S. border point at Rock Island has recently had constructed new Canadian customs facilities to handle the flow of U.S. visitors. The customs house was opened June 1.

American customs men still operate out of a trailer.

Workers return

MONTREAL (CP) — Five-hundred workers returned to their jobs in nine factories Tuesday ending a one-day strike, the first in 30 years for Montreal's hardware industry. The strike ended with the signing of a three-year contract between the factories specializing in manufacturing hardware, and the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union (CLC).

Show Business

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—All of a sudden, it's unfashionable to drink in Hollywood.

Even Jackie Gleason is on the wagon. The other night producer Marty Rarkin tossed a cocktail party to introduce Broadway star Elizabeth Ashley to the town. She's making her movie debut in "The Carpetbaggers." Rarkin's home was filled with big names, but there was little drinking, compare with Hollywood cocktail parties of the past.

I ordered a scotch. "Thank heavens!" exclaimed the bartender. "Do you know that this is the first alcoholic drink I have fixed in the last 30 minutes? Everybody in town is either on the wagon—or a two-drink limit."

One male star, a boozier in his prime, said he hadn't had a drink in nine months. Asking that I not use his name, he went into detail about a clinic in Paris where he took a cure.

"I went to the clinic because it's a rule of the house that all patients can drink as much as they want. The only restriction is that they give you a shot of a new French drug after every drinking bout."

BULLETS UNHAPPY—"The drug, of course, makes you violently ill when combined with alcohol. It is so powerful that one day I got on the elevator with a man who had gin on his breath. It made me so ill that I had to rush off at the next floor."

There can be harmful side-effects to this trend away from booze.

Look what happened to little Bullets Durgom, the manager who guided Jackie Gleason to stardom. Says Bullets:

"Out of the blue, the new non-drinking Gleason called me up and said he wanted to talk to me."

"I come on the lot and he's waiting for me in his golf cart. "Then he took off around a corner like he was a hot rodder. Next thing I know the car has spilled. Gleason's 286 pounds is on top of me and I'm on my way to the hospital."

"I got two cracked vertebrae—and I never did find out what he wanted to talk to me about. He never drove like that when he was drinking."

Hudson Bay may disappear says professor

WINNIPEG (CP)—Hudson Bay will disappear in several thousand years, says a geology professor.

Dr. Bruce Wilson of the University of Manitoba says the earth surface of the area is rising as a result of the disappearance of a mile-deep sheet of ice that covered much of North America during the last ice age.

Hudson Bay was formed by a weakness in the earth's crust at the junction of two ancient mountain ranges. "During the glacial period this area was depressed more than the rest of the continent."

And now it's rising faster. Hudson Bay is a massive body of salt water touching the Northwest Territories and northern Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario.

Dr. Wilson said in an interview the Hudson Bay area has risen about 500 feet in 7,000 years.

He predicts it will rise 800 feet more in the next few thousand years, draining the water back into the Atlantic Ocean.

"This is a very short period of time, considering the magnitude of what is happening," he said.

He also said that the bay's water level is 60 feet below the Atlantic sea level.

"It's something like the way the moon attracts water in the oceans to cause tides," Dr. Wilson said. "Because the Atlantic has a greater mass of water, it attracts waters from Hudson Bay, making the sea level (in the bay) lower."

PLAY, NOT LUCK, LOSES CONTRACT

South felt that he was right conservative merely to bid four spades and then refrain from redoubling.

It was just as well that there was no redouble because South did not make his contract. He started all right by winning the heart opening and leading out his ace of trumps, but he continued with the jack of trumps. West took his queen and later on South had to lose two more trump tricks and a club.

South should have followed his ace of spades with a low one. West would still take his

Because South had nothing to gain by leading the jack of spades after taking his ace. Should trumps break 3-3, he was only going to lose two spade tricks on any play. Should either defender hold four to the king-queen South would have to lose three trump tricks, but if either opponent held queen-small or king-small then the low play would save that all-important contract.

Home for the aged is dedicated at Kinnear's Mills

By WM. H. LUNAN
(Special to The Record)

KINNEAR'S MILLS — A dedication service was held for the official opening of the Kinnear's Mills Home, a residence for the aged, in Kinnear's Mills on July 14 at 1.00 p.m., which was attended by about a hundred persons.

Officiating at the service was Robert L. Jamieson, Q.C. He welcomed those present, who had come from far and near to give a helping hand.

Mr. Jamieson said, "The success and progress of such a residence depends upon the support and generosity of all those people who are willing to give a helping hand or donate a contribution or material needs in the maintaining and up-keep of such a project. Help from local citizens can and is an asset towards the future development of the residence as well as those from outside localities."

During the ceremony, Rev. Olivier Carmichael was called upon to give a prayer and Harry Butler, who is treasurer of the Orange and Protestant Children's Home at Rosemere, Quebec, outlined the purpose of the home and offered a "helping hand" to the directors of the Kinnear's Mills home.

Rev. Peter Durette gave the benediction after which Mr. Jamieson declared the home "officially open," and invited those present to sign the guest book and to visit the premises and building.

FOUNDING OF THE HOME

The need for a home for the aged was first brought to light by the perseverance of a local citizen, Richard Allan, a long-time resident of the community.

A committee of interested persons was organized and now officers have been appointed and the home is registered and has a Quebec charter.

Mr. Allan was named president with Clarke McVetty, vice-president; Robert L. Jamieson, Q.C., secretary; John Cruickshank, treasurer; Miss Sheila Allan, assistant-secretary; Gordon Morrison, Russell Rotheby and Miss Ann Cruickshank are directors.

The building, built in 1906, was purchased by the group. Renovations are being made and accommodations are being suited for ten residents.

Eventually, the directors hope to build rooms to accommodate twenty additional persons.

The home, which is situated in the heart of the village of Kinnear's Mills, has pleasant surroundings and a beautiful scenic view of distant hills faces the residence.

Stores, churches and a post-office are a few minutes walking distance from the gates of the property.

Jobs shifting

MONTREAL (CP) — A survey of Canadian unemployment in the 1960's shows that job opportunities are shifting from the plant to the office. This has been caused by technological advances and by an increased demand for services, rather than goods, the National Industrial Conference Board said in a report on unemployment issued Tuesday.

Concert pianist anxious to see weekend eclipse

By DON ROSENBLUM
(Record staff reporter)

MOUNT ORFORD — Most concert pianists can be found hard at work the day before a concert.

But celebrated British pianist Denis Matthews who performs Sunday, at JMC Music Camp won't be found near his keyboard Saturday afternoon.

An amateur astronomer, Mr. Matthews said that he was most anxious to see the total eclipse of the sun.

"In fact, it was an eclipse I saw in London that first interested me in astronomy," the British pianist remarked.

Born in Coventry, Mr. Matthews now makes his home in London. As a student at the Royal Academy of Music, Mr. Matthews studied with Harold Craxton and the late William Alwyn.

Now on his fourth Canadian tour, the 44-year-old pianist is recording concerts for the CBC. His concert Sunday evening at the camp will also be taped for broadcast on that network.

Mr. Matthews is most at home in front of a microphone. He has done radio and television work for the BBC in Britain and for many foreign networks. The British pianist has made more than a dozen long playing records.

Mr. Matthews reluctantly admitted publishing five works, but said that none of these had been written lately.

"I found playing an instrument was a full-time job."

Mr. Matthews' favorite composers are Bach, Mozart, Beethoven and Wagner.

His interests include reading aloud, astronomy and filing systems.

"I've always had a passion for office furniture."

Mr. Matthews is constantly on tour. Just returned from the Far-East, the pianist is planning a trip to Australia early next year. Austria, South Africa, Poland and the United States are among the other countries he has toured.

During his recent stay in Montreal, the British pianist was very impressed with the Bach Choir and the Baroque Trio.

"I'm looking forward to my concert here on Sunday," the pianist remarked. "I find Canadian audiences very responsive."

But wasn't the rainy weather upsetting?

"I don't mind this weather," Mr. Matthews said. "It reminds me of home."

Canadian National Railways to continue its program to present new public image

Canadian National Railways new and highly competitive environment. It has boosted the morale of the employees to an appreciable degree and has played no small part in helping CNR combat the idea that a railway is an old-fashioned or inefficient means of transportation.

Seated at head table were Carb Christmas, John Daly, Gordon Shaw, Lorne Thomson, Frank Pearson, Mr. Etheridge, Harold Mooney, Cliff Bryant and Leopold Pinard.

It was also announced that Wright Gibson and Lorne Thomson have been appointed additional directors of the Club.

One of the methods the railway has adopted for the purpose of getting this message across is the "visual redesign" program, he said.

"The new look was a logical follow-up of the post-war modernization plan which included replacement of all our steam engines by diesels and many other improvements," he said.

Mr. Etheridge said the railway found it was not getting enough recognition for the advances it had made and was making because its external appearance was not keeping pace with technological developments and new management ideas.

"The railway was being modernized as fast as possible but it still looked much the way it always had," the speaker said. "The visual redesign program, he said, resulted in substantial economies for the company because of simplified signs and

Parking bans in the downtown area

It obviously took considerable soul-searching on the part of the Sherbrooke city council before it could make the decision Monday to ban parking in two particularly congested areas of the city during rush hours.

At its regular meeting this week, council decided to prohibit parking on Dufferin Street between Frontenac and Montreal Streets and on King East from the Aylmer bridge to Bowen Street from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The soul-searching must have concerned the merchants of stores bordering the areas under consideration. There has always been a great fear on the part of Sherbrooke retail businessmen that if parking is prohibited on the streets where their stores are located, trade will suffer. There are, of course, some grounds for these fears.

But it is also true that if an area of a city becomes hopelessly clogged with traffic, the driving problems become so great no one except those travelling through will buck the irritation. As a result, all retail business in the area suffers.

In Sherbrooke, this kind of a situation threatens the whole downtown area. Fortunately, council has taken constructive steps. The Webster parking lot has been built. Another one is in the process of being built between Wellington Street South and Depot Street. There are a number of municipal parking lots in various sections of the downtown area.

But it is rapidly becoming obvious that even more effort is going to have to be exerted to cut down on-street parking in the downtown areas.

The parking ban decided upon Monday is but one step in this direction. Before long, council may find it will be necessary to enforce similar parking bans in other downtown areas, even extending eventually to the Wellington Street shopping district.

This in turn, will require the setting aside of even more extensive off-street parking facilities.

These two developments, progressing together, are vital to the continued prosperity of the downtown area. The alternative is traffic paralysis leading to stagnation and eventually, the disease of midtown blight.

Other papers say:

Many modern parents too indulgent

We've all been through it again and again. The teenagers are bored. They have no challenges, no useful conflicts. They get into trouble because, whatever else it is, trouble is excitement. New studies are underscoring that this empty, aimless way of life is as much a fact among well-off youngsters with cars and money as it is with poor lads roaming the streets in the slums.

There has been enough fuss about the educationally underprivileged, the school drop-out, the product of the broken city home, to focus attention on this phase of the matter. Action is still meager.

But the problem at higher economic levels seems to be dismissed as so much fantasy. The overprivileged youngsters in suburban families resort to vandalism, thievery, drink and a variety of other passing excitement, parents pile on the kindly favors. Little that is wholesome, innocent fun has any appeal these days for the more energetic, aggressive young ones. Sports, dancing, you name it, these things are regarded as "tame."

In a New York Times survey of suburban youth, one boy said:

"Yes, some kids drink. Maybe they do it to forget about things."

At 16, what is there they have to forget? The memory of the emptiness of yesterday?

The time of growing up used to be thought of as filled with its own natural excitement, developing one's bodily skills, exploring the world of animals and trees, opening the book of knowledge wide for the first time.

Fortunately, millions of youngsters still find these wonders along the adolescent trail. But too many do not. They are proud of being more mature than their counterparts of a generation ago. But they have lost their innocence while finding nothing to replace it. There is nothing new in saying what is part of the painful truth, that overindulgent parents must bear heavy blame for this.

But the youngsters themselves cannot be absolved. If they are mature enough to be half-adults, half-children, they are mature enough to understand they need something better to tie into than tomorrow's "kicks."

Maybe some of the overprivileged, who can't find anything that appeals to them for more than a few hours at a stretch, ought to go and take a look. There are some challenges there that will be around a good while, worth the attention of even the most mature half-adult who ever spun his wheels in suburban idleness.

"SAY, MAYBE YOU WOULD LIKE TO DANCE...?"

Vimy Street business still going

Dear Sir:
Just how long does it take for the City Council to enforce a zoning law? The business at 422 Vimy St. N. is still operating in spite of the fact that they were expected to cease operations at that address some time ago.

All day today power tools have been screaming making the neighbors most uncomfortable as the present job is being done out of doors in the yard. It does seem a bit odd that one man is permitted to break the law in this fashion. Why?

A Vimy St. Resident

Quebec highways are public hazards

Dear Sir:
I returned to the Eastern Townships recently after an absence of one and a half years.

During this time I travelled, and lived for short periods, in towns and cities, from the east coast to the west, in Canada and the United States. My husband and I found traffic violations were negligible, leading us to conclude penalties were strictly enforced.

Since our return to this area for a brief visit, we have been shocked at the apparent disregard of traffic laws. Excessive speed, and passing in prohibited areas, seem to be seldom checked.

We are natives of the Eastern Townships, and hold them in high esteem. Therefore, I felt compelled to express my feelings on the subject of speed obsessed, traffic violating citizens, who cause the highways to become a public hazard.

Every day, Mopdad through Friday, two big yellow school buses pull up on the roadside, barely inside the yard of a small restaurant. Forty or fifty shouting, laughing children, ranging in age from 6 to 15 years, pile out, run in all directions. Some go up a side road, others along the edge of the highway to a lane leading to a farmhouse, and a few cross the busy road streaming with cars and trucks.

Every day, I sit in dread and fear as the hour approaches for school to be let out, waiting for the buses to appear with their load of girls and boys. I am roughly 300 feet from the road, working at my typewriter, near the window of our house-trailer, which is parked on the grounds of a small motel. I have a clear, unobstructed view of the road from this position.

A slight grade at this point in the road, prevents drivers of cars from seeing the highway ahead, but there is a fresh painted, double white line, for 1/4 mile along this pavement, which means, no passing at any time.

The cars come up this main highway from town, travelling at an excessive rate of speed; many ignore the double line, some pass without accident, others meet an oncoming car. There have been two serious accidents here during the past two weeks. Several people were injured, two were in critical condition. If the driver of a speeding car crosses the double line at this point; he can't see a car approaching from the opposite direction; he can't see the school buses parked on the roadside beside the restaurant, until, he tops the rise in the road, then he is a scant few feet from them.

How can he possibly avoid an accident, which will involve the oncoming car, the car he passed a moment ago, and perhaps, one, two, or even three of the running, shouting, laughing children? The girl or boy killed or worse, maimed for life, may be yours, — the husband who never returns from a business trip, may be yours, — all because one thoughtless, speed obsessed driver had his foot jammed to the floor on the gas pedal. His only goal to barge ahead of the car before him, without once thinking of the tragedy, grief and loss, he may be responsible for in less than half a minute.

One moment the man in the oncoming car is happy, thinking of his reunion with his wife and children, — the next, with a sickening, ear rending crash, the screech of tires on asphalt, he lies in a mass of twisted steel, crushed, bleeding, fatally injured or already dead. The car the speeding driver passed, is too close to avoid the pile-up, he too may never complete his errand or see his home and family again.

But what of the school children? Some will escape, running home in terror from the scene of horror behind them. The law of averages says, three will not escape, — your little blue eyed girl or boy, will lay twisted and broken, thrown aside like a rag doll by the 200 horsepower car, driven by the speed crazed maniac, we call a driver fit to hold a driver's license.

You may be called to the door of your home, to find the officer in charge, who must tell you the heartbreaking news, watch while your face turns white with shock, your eyes glaze with tears, and listen as you cry out with pain and grief.

Are you, as a parent and citizen of this province to tolerate the lack of strong, certain action on the part of your law enforcement officers? A few lines on the second page of your local newspaper, a death notice, a driver remanded in traffic court, fined a paltry few dollars, his license taken away for a short time, — then released, to start his pillage over again. Does this satisfy you for the loss of your child? Are you going to lapse back into stunned silence, make no verbal or written protest?

Let us suppose for arguments sake, this careless, crazy driver has learned a hard, sad lesson, and will try to mend his dangerous driving habits; but what of the others still speeding along on the roads, potential killers at any moment? If no stern, unbreakable law is enforced on these speeders, they will carry on this man's work of carnage on your highways. I ask you: the parents and citizens of the Eastern Townships, to demand, and get, a revision of the speed and traffic laws governing every driver on your provincial highways today. To see that every speed crazed, law breaking driver loses his license, — not for a week, a month, or a year, — but for the remainder of his life. Never again should he be allowed to hold a driver's license to operate a motor vehicle on any highway in your land.

Here lies the key to curbing needless waste of human life. Let these words be marked in clear, bold, black letters, at frequent intervals on your highways, — "Speeders Shall Lose Their Drivers' Licenses." And may they know and respect the meaning of these words; because they also know they are enforced to the letter, by your traffic authorities.

RCAF's last UK bases closes

By PETER WARD

The RCAF's last base in England is closing down at the end of this month.

Langar Field, on the edge of historic Sherwood Forest, near Nottingham, has been a supply dump for Canada's NATO aircraft in Europe since 1952.

With the air division in Europe converting to CF-104 fighter-bombers, and the advent of super cargo planes, the Air Force has decided it's not worth while to operate Langar.

During July the base's regular establishment of 48 officers and 192 men is being cut down to a skeleton staff of five officers and 53 men. They'll remain at Langar for perhaps six months until the last spare part has been taken from storage hangars.

EUROPEAN BASES

Supplies for the four wings in France and Germany are now being flown direct from Canada in Yukon and Hercules transport aircraft. The five Bristol freighters which operated a freight supply shuttle service between the continent and Langar are being moved to continental bases.

The last scheduled aircraft will leave Langar August 1. From then on flights will be made only to pick up needed parts and deplete the stock.

Langar Field began its career as an RAF bomber base. The USAF also flew bombers out of Langar, and many of the gliders which dropped troops into France June 6, 1944, came from Langar.

Towards the end of the war rambling barracks blocks housed prisoners of war. When the RCAF took over in 1952, they almost rebuilt the base.

The Fort Garry Horse, Canada's armored regiment in Germany, has just finished lidding the stuffing out of the 7th German Panzer Grenadier Division. The victory wasn't on a battlefield. It was on a skilled driving test course.

The Fort Garry's finished 1st, 2nd, 4th, 6th, 7th and 8th in the tourney, held at Soest, West Germany.

Princess Alice will present the Regimental Standard to the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards in Ottawa, September 21.

Press Comment

Bertrand Russell, professed admirer of peace, civil disobedience demonstrations, and Mr. Khrushchev, once more appears to be stirring up unrest in the United Kingdom.

The latest event to arouse Lord Russell's consternation is the visit of the Greek royal family to Britain.

His fellow countrymen do not need Lord Russell to tell them that King Paul is not popular with some sections of the British public. Nor do they need the aging philosopher to warn them and their government that the royal visit may result in a few "unfortunate incidents".

On the other hand, if Lord Russell is genuinely concerned about the possibility of such incidents, he should at least refrain from actions designed to promote them.

Yet, it is Lord Russell who plans to lead a march from Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace where a sit-down demonstration will take place if police attempt to halt the procession.

He has warned the British government that if it tries to restrain demonstrations of public sentiment against the royal visitors, it must assume full responsibility for "any unfortunate incidents".

Naturally, it doesn't occur to Lord Russell that these incidents are the undeniable outcome of the decision made by himself and others to carry of public demonstrations. In other words everyone is out of step but Lord Russell and his colleagues.

As usual, Bertrand Russell shows disturbing inconsistencies in his attitude. He claims his opposition to the Greek royal family stems from the continuing incarceration of political prisoners in Greece. Some of these people have been imprisoned for more than eighteen years. It may be that their captivity is unjust.

Why, however, does Lord Russell not set his sights on the Soviet Union or on Cuba, where the number of unjustly imprisoned political prisoners far exceeds that of Greece. Why, indeed? Perhaps, Lord Russell doesn't think he deserves to be asked such a question. After all—didn't he recently credit Mr. Khrushchev with solving the Cuban crisis and hail him as a guardian of world peace?

Lord Russell should be intelligent enough to realize that he can't have things both ways. The fact that he is a venerable ninety-one does not excuse the silliness and inconsistency of most of his recent public pronouncements.

Communism now becoming national Whatever happens at the Moscow meeting of Soviet and Chinese Communist parties, it is well-nigh certain that the monolithic nature of world communism has gone. The monolith was first shattered when Yugoslav national communism led to Marshal Tito's expulsion from the Cominform in 1948. Stalinism was still in its heyday, and Mao Tse-tung had not yet brought all mainland China under the Communist banner. But first Stalin and later Mao saw the implications of the Yugoslav heresy for the world Communist movement.

It was a pity that Washington was not equally alert to what was then happening in Yugoslavia. Admittedly there is an inbuilt incompatibility between communism and capitalism: wherever there is a government professing de-about breaking up the Soviet bloc, the result might well be the opposite of that hoped for. What is called for is discreet responsiveness to any feeling from a satellite for a strengthening of links with the West, whenever this would be to the net gain of the West in the world power struggle.

The emphasis here is on the word "national," not on "communism." A Communist Romania, for example, is unlikely by itself to weaken the position of the United States in the world; but a government in Romania determined to put Romanian national interests ahead of those of Moscow (or Peking) — even if a Communist government — automatically lessens the threat to the rest of the world from Soviet (or Chinese) imperialism.

This was not immediately appreciated in Washington when Marshall Tito first put Yugoslavia's interests ahead of those of the Soviet Union. The White House is now well aware of the subtle difference between Yugoslav and Soviet communism and of the value of adapting American policy to take account of the difference. It is to be hoped that Congress can be similarly persuaded and will reverse its decision of last year to withdraw "most favored nation" privileges from Yugoslavia (and Poland).

The Soviet-Chinese schism makes more likely the growth of other forms of national communism within the Communist Block. Peking might foster it initially in order to weaken Moscow's position. If Washington sought to get into the fray with scintillating war-cries about breaking up the Soviet bloc, the result might well be the opposite of that hoped for. What is called for is discreet responsiveness to any feeling from a satellite for a strengthening of links with the West, whenever this would be to the net gain of the West in the world power struggle.

In law among English-speaking peoples, as well as in Roman law, ignorance of the law is, in general, no excuse for avoiding consequence of an act. In Roman law, the harshness of this rule was mitigated in the cases of women, soldiers and persons under 25 unless they had access to good legal advice.

FIND ANCIENT PLAY

PARIS (Reuters)—Research in Paris on a 2,000-year-old Egyptian mummy has disclosed large extracts from a little-known comedy by the Greek poet Menander, who lived from 342 to 292 B.C. Prof. Andre able to continue living like Bataille of the Sorbonne says kings on little more than $1 an ancient Egyptian undertakers day.

But at least one spot hasn't been noticed

Tourism changes Spain's economy

MALAGA, Spain (CP)—There's a small fishing town up the coast from here that the tourist agencies apparently haven't discovered yet.

The town has everything; good drinking water, cheap apartments, six or seven sun-kissed beaches, a friendly local population and 89 bars. It's called Nerja; but keep it quiet.

So far Nerja has been missed by the estimated 8,000,000 tourists—half the country's population—sweeping up and down the Spanish Mediterranean coast this year.

And a small group of expatriate writers who live in the town all year round pray that things will remain this quiet. Otherwise they won't be able to continue living like Bataille of the Sorbonne says kings on little more than $1 an ancient Egyptian undertakers day.

One of the newest areas to be exploited is the Costa del Sol between Malaga and Gibraltar. Until recently it was rugged and difficult to reach—a string of villages nestling in the bays between rocky headlands.

All this has been changed by cheap air flights between London and Gibraltar backed up by a modern coastal coach service. The round trip can cost as little as $100.

New hotels, restaurants and resorts are beginning to litter the coastal highway like neon-lit billboards. Some are quiet and exclusive; others are cheap and spectacular, huge concrete pagodas bearing names like "Miami in Europe."

All have contributed a change to the Spanish way of life. Prices have tripled for the foreign visitor, unctuously welcomed but privately despised. Beaches are crowded with commercial stalls. Village streets abound with beggars and hawkers.

The traditionally proud and austere Spanish peasant now thinks nothing of demanding tips and adding a few unexpected extras to the bill. The 20th century is moving into Spain but perhaps at the expense of her soul.

Yet towns like Nerja remain isolated outposts of tranquil honesty. Tourists are rare and transient and when they come they are charged no more than the locals—about 50 cents for a good meal, 10 cents for a quart of wine.

The dozen or so English-speaking writers who have made the town their home lead an idyllic daily life, inevitably beginning with morning coffee on the central square overlooking the blue-green sea.

There's always a deserted cove within walking distance for a swim during siesta-time. And in the evening, when the smell of rosemary floats over the balconies from the bakery, some would-be Segovia strums at his guitar in a bar.

Stern orthodox minority learns that many Israelites prefer the modern

A stern minority of orthodox Jews is having difficulty persuading the children of Israel to live according to biblical precepts. Canadian Press reporter Ed Simon examines the problem of adapting the ancient laws to modern needs.

By ED SIMON
TEL AVIV, Israel (CP)—An ear-splitting blare of popular music emerges from the open apartment windows to contend with the roar of motorcycles and souped-up sports cars in the street below. Bikini-clad beauties draw admiring male glances on a beach packed solid with sun-bathers.

Somewhere in this cheerful, pagan city of 400,000, a relatively small number of its inhabitants are filling the front rows of the synagogues. The rest are spending the sabbath day in resolute defiance of the fourth commandment.

The pattern is not the same throughout Israel. Non-practising residents of Jerusalem spend Saturday quietly, in deference to the feelings of their orthodox neighbors. In some smaller towns, roads leading to the religious quarter are blocked on the sabbath to prevent the entry of vehicles.

Statistics give an inexact picture of the proportion of Israel's 2,400,000 citizens—2,000,000 of them Jews—who hew strictly to the beliefs of their forefathers. Given the choice of sending their children to secular or religious schools, 66 per cent vote for state institutions, although these, too, provide a measure of religious instruction.

But the three political parties specifically committed to furthering religious principles have commanded only 16 to 18 per cent of the popular vote in Israel's five parliamentary elections and currently occupy only 18 of the 120 seats in the Knesset.

Israel's unwritten constitution provides for encouragement of religious beliefs and non-interference with minority rights but makes no commitment toward recognition of an established church on the one hand or separation of church and state on the other.

But the complaint is often heard that the influence of the handful of religious deputies in Israel's precarious political situation is gradually moving it toward theocratic rule.

The Knesset has been a house of minorities, necessitating coalition government, since it was first convened in 1949. Seats are distributed proportionally and Mapai, the moderate socialist party that invariably heads the poll, has never won more than 38 per cent of the popular vote.

Its rivals are scattered across the political spectrum from the Communists (four per cent) to the Herut (17 per cent), a militant outgrowth of the Irgun Zvai Leumi terrorist organization. In between are the Liberals, a free enterprise party, and two left-wing labor groups whose differences with Mapai and with each other appear based as much on personalities as on doctrine.

ALLIED WITH MAPAI
Apart from Herut and the Communists, every party has been included at one time or another in the permutations that kept Mapai in power. But each reserved the right to oppose the government on specific issues and even some Mapai deputies occasionally break ranks.

Although strict adherence to biblical precepts is not a part of Mapai's platform, David Ben-Gurion found it easier as prime minister to ally himself with the religious factions than to count on the support of his secular adversaries.

In due time a pattern developed under which the religious parties would barter their votes on a closely fought issue in exchange for measures tightening sabbath observance, enforcement of the ancient dietary laws or the jurisdiction of rabbinical courts.

Under Israel's judicial system, these courts, together with their Moslem and Christian counterparts, exercise sole control over marriage and divorce and are empowered to hear civil cases involving members of their religious community by mutual consent of the parties.

The religious parties themselves are doctrinally divided. The four deputies of Agudath Israel have remained stubbornly aloof from the coalition, demanding nothing short of strict observance of biblical law in the administration of the state with jurisdiction entrusted to rabbinical authorities.

WON'T SPEAK HEBREW
On the extreme wing of orthodoxy is the Neturei Karta sect, a group of a few hundred residents of the Meah She'arim quarter in Jerusalem, bordering the Jordan-held Old City. It opposes the creation of the Jewish state as a blasphemous secular attempt to perform the ordained mission of the Messiah.

Members of the sect shun the use of the sacred tongue of Hebrew in everyday speech. They stone ambulances driving through their sector on the sabbath, citing biblical precedent for the prescribed punishment of those who labor on the seventh day.

Feelings among the less orthodox Israelis are rarely expressed with the same intensity. Many hold a grudging respect even for the extremist Neturei Karta, acknowledging that their dogmatic insistence on living up to the letter of the law preserved Judaism through centuries of persecution and exile.

But they feel the rabbinate, by incorporating orthodox doctrine in Israel's legal framework and discouraging the more moderate forms of worship practiced by many Jews abroad, are creating a gulf between the religious and the non-religious.

"Most of us believe in God and worship Him in our own way," explained a middle-aged cafe owner who had left Germany in the early years of Hitlerism. "But we don't like to be pushed into the synagogue."

Many non-practising Jews regularly attend services on the High Holidays, the New Year and the Day of Atonement. But they are repelled by some ancient customs which they consider at variance with 20th century living.

"How can I go to a house of worship with my wife," demanded a tourist guide from Tel Aviv, "when I sit on the ground floor while she and the other women are forced to sit behind a screen in the balcony?"

The rabbinate itself has taken some steps to reconcile scriptural edicts with contemporary life. During the Arab invasion that followed the proclamation of Israel's independence in 1948, members of orthodox collective settlements were granted dispensation to bear arms against the enemy on the sabbath.

In broader terms, sabbath-day work was authorized in defence, public utilities, government service and industry where an interruption would involve the risk of public harm.

But the law bans sabbath operation of public transport—a hardship for Israelis whose travel opportunities are limited by a six-day work week. A skeleton service operated by privately owned companies only partially fills the gap.

ARGUE OVER FOOD
Similarly, the government's ministry for religious affairs is assigned responsibility for enforcing kashrut, Jewish dietary law, in the armed forces, public and government institutions, hospitals, passenger ships and aircraft.

This law is currently the subject of a vigorous argument between orthodox spokesmen and officials of Zim, the Israeli steamship line, which has hopes of capturing a share of the transatlantic passenger trade with its new 25,000-ton luxury flagship, Shalom.

Zim, hoping to attract as wide a clientele as possible, installed two kitchens in the new vessel, hermetically sealed off from one another. The one was to serve kosher food to orthodox passengers, the other providing non-kosher fare.

The line ordered dishes and tablecloths of different colors and cutlery of different designs for the two kitchens—kashrut bars the use of tableware that has been in contact with non-kosher food—and applied for the rabbinate's certificate of approval. It was refused.

SHUNNED BY SOME
Zvi Herman, Zim's president, says the bulk of Shalom's prospective passengers are gentiles or non-orthodox Jews who would not be satisfied with kosher food. He adds that competing lines have been granted certificates to operate kosher kitchens, even though they have not taken similar precautions.

Herman Hollander, an executive member of the National Religious Party, replies that the crux of the rabbinical objection is that the Bible prohibits the use of non-kosher food to other Jews. The point does not arise on competing lines, where the food is presumed to be served by gentiles.

"Non-kosher food will not attract passengers," Hollander says. "Good food, good wines and good service are not dependent on breaking kashrut. If Zim will compete in its standards it will get the passengers."

Herman replies that Zim's experience with its smaller transatlantic vessels is that passengers cross the Atlantic on competing lines, transferring to its ships at Naples, because they prefer the non-kosher food. Americans like cream with their coffee after a steak dinner.

Traffic control being studied at Coaticook

COATICOOK — The town council is studying the proposal to improve traffic circulation on part of Main Street East.

The suggestion, made by council member Maurice Paquette, is to prohibit parking on Main Street from the bus terminal at the Hotel Maurice to the bridge, and on Chartier Street to the Park.

It is also proposed to install traffic lights at the Main and Wellington Streets intersection. This, it is expected, would greatly improve traffic flow in an area which most motorists have discovered to be pretty narrow for safe passing, especially with parking allowed on both sides of Main, as at present.

The Council is also studying the request from residents on Bourgeois Street for new sewers and water mains and study is being made on new dewaterers from Simard, May and Tucker Streets to the river.

Paving of the new parking lot on Court Street is expected to be done within the next few days, the acceptance of a bid for the work having been approved by the council.

Oriental Jews present new problems in Israel's assimilation of exiles

Despite liberation from the ghetto and the concentration camp, Israel has built-in minority problems of its own. Canadian Press reporter Ed Simon describes the efforts of the new state to absorb its polyglot flow of immigrants.

By ED SIMON

TEL AVIV, Israel (CP)—The man at the next table in the outdoor cafe was small, dark and intense. He spoke eloquently in rapid-fire French.

"We are second-class citizens. The better jobs are denied to us. The politicians don't care about us. They don't even speak our language. . . ."

A Canadian listener observed that he detected parallels with the political situation back home. But the speaker wasn't even remotely interested.

He was a part-time newspaper man, working for a new French-language publication representing Oriental Jews—immigrants from Syria, Lebanon and, more recently, Tunisia, Morocco and other north African territories where France had long held sway.

Government spokesmen, while they deny the charges of indifference and discrimination, concede that the Orientals present a real problem, currently the most pressing of the numerous complications created by 15 years of unrestricted immigration.

Since Israel became independent in 1948, its population has risen to 2,400,000—2,000,000 of them Jews—an increase of more than 100 per cent over the number of residents when Britain relinquished control over the newly partitioned Jewish half of Palestine.

FLED PERSECUTION

When the old League of Nations issued its mandate turning over the former Turkish territory to Britain at the end of the First World War, there were 56,000 Jews in Palestine. In the 30 years of British rule, spurred by the 1917 Balfour Declaration looking towards the establishment of a Jewish state, their numbers swelled to 650,000.

The newcomers of that period were predominantly Western, young and idealistic.

Some came because of post-war depression in their countries of origin, attracted by the challenge of building a land of their own. Others, increasingly with the rise of Hitlerism and communism in Europe, fled from racial persecution.

With their qualifications screened by the Zionist organizations of the West and their number limited by the mandatory power, they were absorbed with relative ease and became the core of the present state of Israel. They formed pioneer settlements on the land and urban communities among their Arab neighbors.

Independence brought sharp changes. The key lay in the proclamation that the infant state "will be open to Jewish immigration and the ingathering of the exiles."

The polyglot influx began at a time when Israel was at war with her Arab neighbors and the ships bearing survivors of Europe's concentration camps frequently ran a gauntlet of shell-fire and air attack as they neared their destination.

HELP FROM ABROAD

In addition to fighting off the Arabs, Israel faced astronomical physical problems in accommodating the newcomers, many of them old, destitute, weakened by years of torture and neglect and otherwise ill-equipped to begin a new life.

Makeshift housing, medical and social services dealt with their immediate needs. Under the guidance of the Jewish Agency, the world-wide Zionist organization which had functioned since 1929 as the co-ordinating authority, the work of absorbing them began.

Boostered by generous contributions from abroad, the agency was able to cope with food and housing requirements. As the flow diminished to an average of 33,000 a year, the huddled shacks gave way to prefabricated huts and, by 1954, to permanent accommodation in villages or towns where work was available.

But the newcomers faced other problems. The language of the new state was Hebrew, unused as a means of everyday speech since the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D., although it had survived in written and liturgical form.

Revived and modernized, Hebrew had become the principal language used in Jewish schools in Palestine before the turn of the century and was recognized as an official language in Palestine in 1921.

LEARN COMMON TONGUE

The new arrivals came with no common language. Some spoke Yiddish, a dialect based on medieval German and overlaid with traces of Polish, Russian and other tongues spoken by the Jews in exile. Others shared a knowledge of Ladino, similarly based on medieval Spanish. And many brought with them only the babel of tongues they had acquired in their countries of origin.

The government instituted a variety of methods to teach the newcomers their common language. Intensive courses known as ulpanim included a five-month cram course for professional workers, part-time instruction for farm workers and a variety of afternoon and evening classes for others who wished to learn on the job.

Beyond the language difficulty, there was the problem of instilling unity among people of widely differing backgrounds.

Originally, the Jewish Agency had been content to permit groups to form communities of their own, with Czechs, Romanians, Germans or Bulgarians colonizing separately. But the mass immigration of the early years of independence made this scheme impracticable.

The agency's hope during the flood-tide of settlement was to "pressure-cook" the newcomers into integration. But even the ordeal of the concentration camps had not banished ancient antagonisms and the difficulties of readjustment gave birth to new ones.

FRICION GREW

Some German Jews considered themselves superior to Poles and Russians who, in turn, blamed the Germans for over-eagerness to assimilate with their neighbors in the pre-Nazi years. Those who had suffered persecution resented those who had not. And there was mutual antipathy between the ultra-religious and the near-pagan, the virtual illiterate and the university graduate.

The melting-pot principle worked reasonably well in the urban centres, where newcomers were able to mingle with their own kind and keep their prejudices to themselves. But in smaller settlements, where people were thrown closer together, the friction inevitably grew worse.

A pilot project was launched with some success in the Lakhish area, on the upper fringes of the Negev desert which forms Israel's southern triangle pointing at the Red Sea.

Under the new plan, a ring of homogeneous dormitory settlements, each with its plot of land, is linked by a central community providing schools, shopping facilities, a shipping point for agricultural produce and movies and other entertainment.

At Kiryat Gat, a settlement located near the ancient Philistine city of Gath, the project was expanded to embrace a series of clusters embracing 16,000 settlers from 36 separate countries. The city, which also developed industrial facilities, grew from five isolated farming communities in 1948 and has the capacity to expand to 23,000.

MANY ILLITERATE

But the gradual swing from European to oriental predominance among the immigrants in the late '50s created new difficulties.

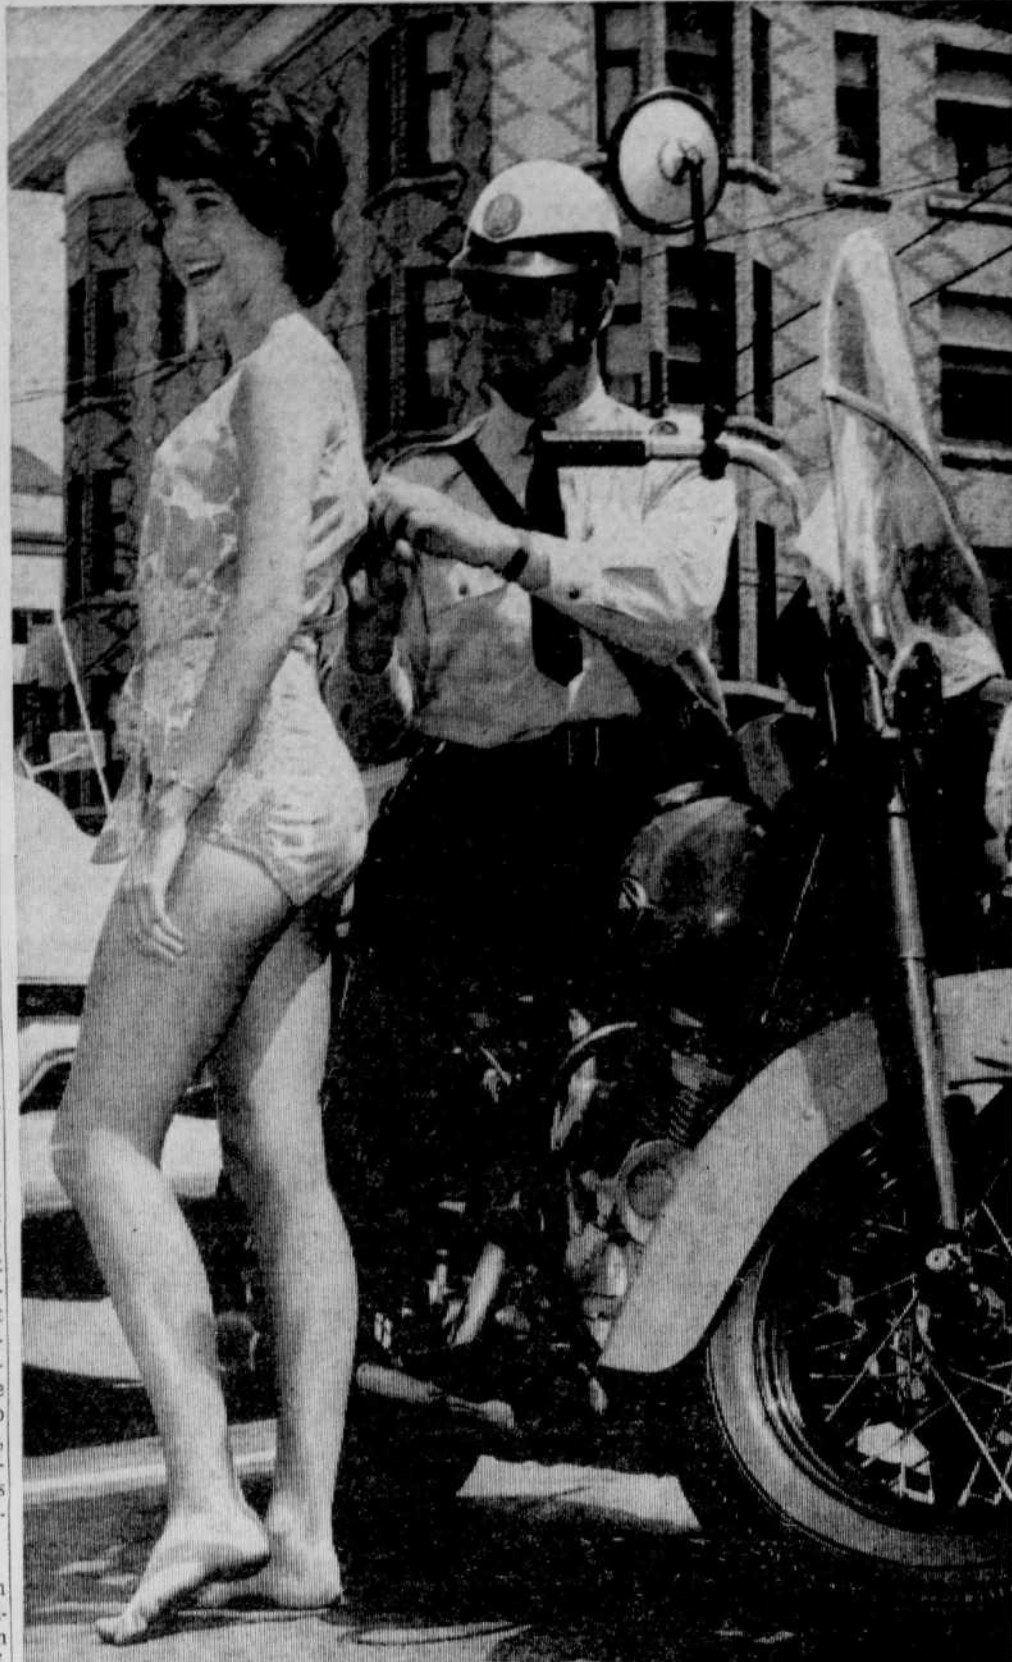

For all their physical limitations, the Westerners had generally been of an educational standard and background that fitted in readily with Israel's aim of becoming a modern, progressive state.

The immigrants from Asia and Africa, by contrast, came mainly from countries where illiteracy was common and living standards were low. If a one-time philosophy professor from Leipzig found himself at a loss behind a plow, the former inhabitant of a village in Yemen was equally unprepared for the sight of his first automobile.

Nevertheless, government authorities insist, no Oriental Jew is penalized as such. They point to Orientals who fought well in the 1948 war and the Sinai campaign of 1956 and have risen to high rank in the armed forces.

Others, possessing the necessary qualifications, hold responsible posts in industry and the civil service.

Some, already accustomed to a hot climate, have taken easily

EAST ANGUS — Mr. and Mrs. Murray Labonte, who were celebrating their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on July 9, were guests of honor at a party given on July 6, by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Heatherington. The party was held at the summer camp of Mr. and Mrs. Heatherington at Clear Lake.

Upon arrival, Mr. and Mrs. Labonte were greeted by some 30 friends and relatives in the tastefully decorated main room of the summer home. The decorations consisted of streamers, flowers, silver 25 plaques and a huge anniversary greeting card made especially for the occasion by Kenneth Fraser.

Seated at the table with the guests of honor were the following: Mrs. MacDearmid offered her home for the August meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Nancy Jardine, Mrs. Gordon Stewart and Mrs. Eric Bailey Dabid.

Tigers, Senators and Twins post victories in Little League last night, two games on tap tonight

Tigers' 11-2 win over Yankees last night in the Sher-Lenn Little League just about clinched the league championship for Moon Mullin's boys. Senators dumped Indians 8-0 and Twins took a close 13-11 win over White Sox in the other games played. Tonight the Red Sox travel to Lennoxville while Tigers and Indians clash at the Parade Grounds.

The Yankee-Tiger clash was close all the way though the score pointed to a easy win for the visitors. At the end of three it was 6-1 in Tigers' favor. They tallied three runs in the second and third with Gagnon, Letourneau and Wilcox the big hitters.

Yankees registered a single run in the second on a hit by Floyd Walker and three bases on balls. Tigers in the top of the fourth clicked for three more as Gagnon, getting his second hit, and this coupled with three walks accounting for the tallies.

Yankees went scoreless in the third and fourth being held to a single by Robin Langois. Top of the fifth Tigers, with Jacques Guay lashing out a double, tallied their final two runs bringing their total to eleven. Yankees pushed one run home in the fifth on hits from Guy Roy and Robin Langois.

The final score was 11-2 in Tigers' favour. Yankees played good ball but were weak on batting in this one. Robin Langois and Floyd Walker along with Guy Roy were their stars.

Tigers did not show their usual zip in this one but were worthy winners. Daniel Gagnon with three hits was their big star.

Senators with Danny Raban getting four-for-four and Marcel Morin duplicating for the Indians were the features of the clash. Indians did out hit the Senators although they were defeated 8-0. Hits in the clutch were missing which kept the Indians from getting in the run column. Senators got two runs in the first, three in the second and finished off with three more runs in the final innings.

Indians couldn't get a man beyond third base as each threat to score was stopped by Mario Polardy, the Senator hurler. Daniel Ratti and Alex Cook were the Senator stars along with Raban. Morin, Blais and Cordeau starred for the losers.

White Sox and Twins were on pretty even terms all the way in their game. White Sox trailing 13-10 going into the last of the sixth made a gallant try to tie or win. They did manage to get one run but a brilliant catch by rightfielder Daniel Dumas stopped the threat with Twins winning on the long end of a 13-11 score.

The two teams played good ball though there was some loose infield play that accounted for runs for each team. The outfielders of the teams all played well especially the men looking after the pasture for Twins.

Kirk Ross was the Twins' big gun with four hits along with young Ross Planché who had three hits. John McIver had three hits for the losers.

Frank Baise, full-blooded Mohawk, to drive Minors' Tie Silk in top $50,000 International Trot Saturday

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—The name of the race is the Roosevelt International. But from the atmosphere around Roosevelt Raceway Tuesday it could well be renamed the Sitting Bull Stake or in honor of some other famous Indian.

Indian dances with an occasional war whoop, beautiful Indian damsels appropriately attired, and an Indian luncheon—featuring venison and maize were the order of the day.

It was all because Frank Turkey Baise, a full-blooded Mohawk, will drive a Canadian-owned Tie Silk, the 1962 winner, in the 1 1/4 mile $50,000 top Saturday night. He will trot with three European horses—Martini II of France, Calcanete of Italy and The Messidor from The Netherlands—one from New Zealand and two U.S. representatives—Su Mac Lad and Sprite Rodney.

Su Mac Lad, a nine-year-old gelding owned by Irving Berkmeier of New Milford, N.J., is the outstanding favorite to win the race for the second time in three years.

NEW TO INTERNATIONAL

But Baise, a husky 30-year-old reinsman, is not ready to admit defeat even though he never has driven in the International, and Tie Silk had been in training only since March.

Tie Silk, a seven-year-old owned by Adrian and Gerard Miron of Montreal, was retired after his surprise victory in the 1962 International. He was bred to 40 mares and then put back into training with Saturday's race as his lone objective. In two starts within the last 10 days he won in 2:04.35 and 2:05.45 at Quebec City.

"His training has had to be rushed and he should have another month to be in top shape," said Baise, who took charge of the Canadian horse in March.

Trimble thinks Calgary is best

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes says Calgary Stampeders, coming here for an exhibition game tonight are probably "the best football team in the country at the present time."

"They are tough," he said. "But we're ready."

The Alouettes watched films Tuesday of the exhibition game Monday night at Ottawa between the Stampeders and Rough Riders, won 24-7 by Calgary. It was the first outing of the season for both teams.

The films were rushed to Joliette, Que., 50 miles northeast of here, where the Alouettes have been in training for the last three weeks.

Trimble, speaking by telephone from Joliette, said the Calgary game will probably be the stiffest pre-season test for the Alouettes. They play Edmonton here next Monday, and Hamilton Aug. 1, before opening their regular schedule Aug. 10 against the Tiger-Cats in Hamilton.

Halfback George Dixon, eastern conference scoring leader last season, will sit out the game with a minor rib bruise. His place will be taken by unsigned Bobby Lee Thompson, 24, of Arizona, who is playing out his option along with defensive end Don Paquette, now on suspension.

Beavers lose ground with loss to St. John

Patch On favorite in tonight's main event

Five horses will face Starter Alexis Loranger this evening in the $400 Invitation Handicap Pace at the Sherbrooke Race Track. Two new horses will be making their first appearance at the local oval.

Forbes Castle, Stormy Brown and Tony Clap have raced here but the newcomers are Patch On and John Sitzman. Elaine St. Michel of Sorel and holds a mark of 2:05 4/5 which was made at Trois-Rivieres.

John Sitzman is owned by Miss Jacqueline Beello of Ville D'Auteuil and has been racing at Rideau Carleton track at Ottawa. He placed second in 2:05 2/5 and is rated as one of the top pacers around these parts.

Patch On is a free-legged side-wheeler and packs plenty of punch. He can get away fast and can finish in the same manner with plenty to burn. The other horses in the class will have their hands full in keeping up with the rated favorite.

Gordon Adamson's little Tony Clap could surprise the field if he gets away in fine shape.

Another race is lined up in the First race with six starters entered. Brefon's Nifty Chief and Royal Match, with Florent St. Denis teaming, should battle it out but any of the field, Abbe Dean, Dale Ensign, Eaven, and Sonny Boy B could be at the wire with the others. It will be a race of drive with the best teamster getting home ahead of the field.

Koufax, McCovey setting pace in NL

A brilliant left-handed pitcher sparking a pennant drive and a rangy slugger on a club in the throes of a critical slump continue as the hottest items in the National League.

They are Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers and Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants.

Both starred again Tuesday night in doubleheader splits. Koufax fired his ninth straight victory and 16th of the season at Philadelphia, going six perfect innings and finishing with a six-hitter in a 5-2 victory. The Phils rebounded against the first-place Dodgers in the second game, romping 10-2 with a 12-hit attack led by Johnny Callison.

McCovey belted a homer in each game at Pittsburgh, extending his hitting streak to 21 games and his homer total to 28. He won the opener 3-2 with a two-out homer in the ninth inning. They the Giants dropped the second game, 3-2, falling into fourth place with the seventh loss in their last nine games.

Chicago's runner-up Cubs edged to within 5 1/2 lengths of the top, taking Milwaukee Braves 1-0 on a four-pitcher strategy and Ken Hubbs' homer. St. Louis Cardinals moved into sole possession of third, nipping Cincinnati Reds 5-4 on a 10th-inning squeeze bunt by Tim McCarver and Bobby Shantz's fine relief pitching. New York's last-place Mets clipped Houston Colts 4-3 with a ninth-inning run in the other NL game.

Koufax, gunning for his fourth straight shutout and 10th of the year, retired the first 18 Phils in order as the Dodgers built a 5-0 cushion. But Tony Taylor nicked Koufax for a leadoff double in the seventh and eventually scored on Tony Gonzalez's sacrifice fly for the first run off the star lefty in 34 innings. Doubles by Don Hoak and Earl Averill gave the Phils another run in the eighth.

The Dodgers got their five runs and 12 hits off loser Art Mahaffey and Chris Short, with Wally Moon socking a homer and Jim Gilliam two doubles.

Callison walloped two homers and two singles in the second game, which the Phillies wrapped up with three runs in the first off Nick Willithe and four more in the third against Ed Roebuck. Dallas Green went the distance for Philadelphia.

END WINNING STREAK

McCovey, who has totaled 14 homers during his 21-game hitting string, connected in the top of the ninth in the opener at Pittsburgh against Don Cardwell. Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda also homered for the Giants as they ended the Pirates' winning streak at five.

McCovey sent San Francisco off winging in the second game with a first-inning homer, and tied it at 2-2 with a run-scoring single in the third. But the Pirates got the clincher in the fifth on Bill Virdon's triple and Roberto Clemente's single. Don Schwall was the winning pitcher, with Al McBean again providing strong relief, and Jack Sanford lost his fifth in a row.

Bob Buhl of the Cubs checked the Braves without a hit until Hank Aaron doubled with two out in the seventh inning at Chicago. He gave way to the heat and 4-1 leads at Cincinnati, and the Reds drew even in the eighth at 4-4 and it stayed that way until St. Louis rallied wauke to one hit the rest of against Joey Jay.

Bo Belinsky's hold-out proves costly as prepares to report to Hawaii, his six-week holiday over

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Is a 6.39 earned-run average when Hawaii ready for Bo Belinsky? Los Angeles Angels tried to option the unpredictable pitcher to their Hawaii farm club in the Pacific Coast League May 25, but he is just now making arrangements to report.

Word reaching the mainland indicates Hawaiians found waiting for Belinsky endurable, but it was easy for him, it was expensive for Bo.

When the 26-year-old left hander refused to report to Hawaii, the American League Angels placed him on the disqualified list, cutting him off the payroll. Belinsky's $15,000 salary, paid over a 5 1/2-month season, works out to about $90 a day.

Since he won't get back on the payroll until he starts pitching again, and since it probably will take him at least 10 days to get in playing condition, his vacation is likely to cost him more than $5,000.

Belinsky had a 1-7 record and

Knockout is order today in Women's Open

OTTAWA (CP)—Swift knockout became the order today in the Canadian women's open golf championship as the tournament moved into first-round match play. It was generally conceded that the most telling punch rests with Mariene Stewart Striel, six times winner of the title.

After winning the women's close championship for the eighth time last Saturday, Mrs. Striel raided the Royal Ottawa course for a two-under-par 74 Tuesday to win medal honors in the qualifying round with ease.

Carolyn McLure, 20-year-old university student from Saskatoon, had a steady 79.

Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver, winner last year, finished with 80 in a four-player bracket that included 16-year-old Jocelyn Bourassa of Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Closest American was Mrs. Anne Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, who had 81. Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., shot 82 and Marianne Gable of Whittier, Calif., had 83. Six other Americans were left far behind.

The surprise casualty of the qualifying round was that of Betty Stanhope Cole of Edmonton, 1957 champion, who had an 88.

In today's draw Mrs. Striel faces young Lynne Chaplin of Montreal, whose 25-foot putt for a par squeezed her through a playoff spot and put her among the 32 who started today.

Miss Burns faces Mary Ellen Driscoll of Saint John, N.B., who shot a qualifying 82.

Judy Darling Evans of Montreal, winner in 1960 and 1961, is drawn against Mrs. Stranahan.

Jacques Gadbois takes lead in battle for sailing championship, opening snipe race called off

On Sunday afternoon at Lake Magog Jacques Gadbois took advantage of light shifty winds to defeat seven other boats, and jump from fourth to top position in the race for the Jean-Paul Perrault Trophy.

Peter Cross grabbed an early lead after the starting gun, but "the big three", Gadbois, Lothrop and Styan turned the windward mark well ahead of the rising wind and moved out front to stay.

When Gadbois elected to use his spinnaker, he lost the advantage of his handicap, and ended up beating Gray Styan by a mere second. Styan moved to sole second, Lothrop moved place while Lothrop, with a seventh, moved up the ladder to third, moved up the ladder to seventh place. Pete Cross finished only six (6) seconds behind his rival while Sunny Stewart crossed the line seven seconds later.

Granby moves to within 1 1/2 games of first place downing Royals, Coaticook here tomorrow night

Acton Vale Beavers lost one full game of their lead atop the Provincial League last night when they went down to defeat at the hands of the St. John's Pirates, 6-3.

The second place Granby Knights moved to within one and a half games of the lead by defeating Drummondville 8 to 5.

Sherbrooke at Coaticook game was cancelled because of the condition of the grounds. The Als will meet these same Coaticook Canadians on Thursday, however, at the local ballpark.

The St. John Pirates ran their winning streak to three games last night in their decision with the league leaders.

The victory was picked up by Kabat while the loss was charged to Claude Groulx.

Both teams collected only five hits, however the difference in the game was the weak fielding evidenced by Acton. In all the Beavers made six costly errors, four of which produced runs.

Guy St. Vincent and Sicard were the batting stars for St. John as each picked up a double while Oleschuck got two singles for the losers.

This was the third straight set-back for the Royals.

Summary

St. John 010 022 010 652
Acton Vale 100 020 000 356
Kabat and Valois; Groulx, Lapierre and Menard.
Granby capitalizing on Drummondville errors picked up five big runs in the sixth inning to beat the Royals 8-5.

Claude Prud'Homme picked up the victory, the first since he was traded to the Knights by Sherbrooke, although he needed relief help from Paquette.

East Angus course is quite adequate

By MYER SHIMELMAN (Record staff reporter)

Quite adequate for the needs imposed upon it is the best way to describe the East Angust Golf Club in East Angus.

The course is a nine hole layout stretching over 2375 yards with par being 35.

The tees are on a par with the other nine-hole layouts in the Eastern Townships as are the greens and fairways which are quite hilly and have brooks and gulleys running across and parallel to them on quite a few holes such as the fourth, sixth and seventh.

There is plenty of rough on the course but in general the fairways are wide enough so that only a big slice or hook will land in trouble; however, in most places, the rough is cut short enough to impose not too great a hazard, but a hazard nevertheless.

Although no hole on the course is extremely difficult probably the hardest, on first playing the course in any case, is the 140 yard par three seventh.

The drive to the green is virtually a blind shot as there is a hill in front of tee, followed by a gully and then another hill and finally to a sunken, bowl-shaped, green which has a brook to the left and behind.

Also, behind the brook is rough and a bunker.

In short, it takes a good drive to land on the green.

The easiest hole on the course is the 325 yard par four, fourth hole as the fairway slopes down to the green all the way and is wide. There are no traps around the green here and the only hardships that can be found on this hole is a brook well to the right and rough well to the left.

Analysis:—Quite adequate.

Doris Clark Successful living

DEAR DORIS:
I was interested in the letter from "Worrying". I was much for worrying when I was around 14 (about 73 years ago). I would read items about diseases and find I had all the symptoms. The doctor told me I thought I was worse than I was; that all persons had some symptoms at times, and I found the doctor was right.

Even the children have noticed the difference in me. I have more patience with things, and then, too, I have an adult I can talk to instead of just the children all the time. And she's wonderful with the kids.

DEAR BELLE:
Not all women are born homemakers; and everybody — and I MEAN everybody — needs variety. Perhaps your happy hobby will trigger someone else.

DEAR DORIS:
We live in a small town and my husband decided to build a ranch style house, which is large. But we feel it will serve our needs as we have four children. It is a struggle to get it made with only one way coming in. But in time we will get to finish it.

But it seems to bother everyone in town. They laugh that it's too big, too much money. One even said it is a hotel. This hurts me very much.

We both are trying so hard, but why do people act like this? Do they enjoy laughing at the big house right to our face?

DEAR HURT:
People are thoughtless when they make fun. Take it in good part; say when the hotel is ready you'll invite them in for a house-warming. Show them its features and ask opinions. They'll change their tune.

Confidential to O. T.: Not pen pals, but contact with real people, right where you are, is what you need. Next time you are in comp. y, forget completely about how you look. Ask the person on your right about his job or his hobby. Help the bashful lady nearby to a sandwich. Put a teenager at ease with a compliment. What have you got lost? Your self-consciousness, that's what!

MRS. A. V. WARNER, OF EAST ANGUS.

Mrs. Adeline Victoria Warner, the youngest daughter of the late Samuel Mills and Elizabeth Bush, died at her home here on June 20, in her hundredth year.

Well known to a host of friends and distant relations, she had spent her whole life within a short radius of the town of East Angus, the last 75 years of which she had spent at 7 Warner Avenue, where she came as a bride of Sylvanus B. Warner, who predeceased her in 1925.

They had been married at St. Thomas' Church, Westbury, by Rev. Thomas Chapman, who was a member of the first graduating class of Bishop's University before the University had received its charter.

Mrs. Warner was a charter member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church, having been a member of this church-wide institution since its founding, 1885. She was a charter citizen of the Town of East Angus, having lived here long before the town was incorporated.

During her long life she had witnessed the birth of this town and its industry, and with her death, many personal and tangible links with the historic past have been broken.

Endowed with good physical health and intellect, she kept in touch with most of the activities in her community the whole of her life, only being forced to semi-invalidism the last two years, due to an accident sustained in a fall in her 98th year. Despite this, her faculties of mind and intellect, sight and hearing remained little impaired until the day of her death.

Mrs. Warner was predeceased by her husband in 1925, also by an only child, a daughter, who died in infancy. She was the sole surviving member of a family of two brothers and four sisters, all of whom had

The boy had a broken jaw and the little girl suffered a broken leg.

Mrs. Bouchard was the mother of four other children all married. She had lived in Coaticook with her husband, Jeanette and Fernand.

The accident occurred on a straight stretch of Highway 22 between Huntingville and Milby about 3 p.m. yesterday.

Several ambulances and four constables of the Sherbrooke detachment of the Quebec Provincial Police rushed to the scene.

The investigation is under the direction of Corporal Robert Roy, officer in charge of the Sherbrooke detachment.

Sherbrooke coroner Dr. Louis Gagnon said this morning that the date of the inquest had not been set, pending the recovery of Fernand Bouchard.

For an hour or more after the crash, police had to keep traffic moving around the scene and several constables were kept busy telling parked carloads of onlookers to move on.

Sounds of music fill the air at JMC Mount Orford camp

By DON ROSENBLOOM
 (Record staff reporter)

MOUNT ORFORD — Situated at the eastern foot of Mount Orford is a colony of summer campers. A quick inspection of the premises tells the observer that there's something just a bit different about this place.

For as he strolls through the camp site, he hears strange musical sounds, perhaps a French horn echoing through the surrounding woods, or a flute being played beside a brook.

For here is the Jeunesses Musicales camp, a colony of young people who wish to further their musical education during the summer months.

The school is one of many projects of Jeunesses Musicales, an international organization the aim of which is to interest young people in good music.

The music camp, now in its 13th year, has already become renowned for its uniqueness.

For as the students will readily tell you, the camp emphasizes music study, not recreational amusement.

The campers spend over the world", says Parisian cellist Guy Fallot, a former teacher at the camp. "Here, everything helps to further the pupil's work — from the natural surroundings to the organization of the study course."

Sherbrooke camper Denise Dufresne said she liked the camp because she met young people with interests similar to her own.

Internationally famous Canadian contralto, Maureen Forrester, credits much of her early success to a Canadian and European tour she took for Jeunesses Musicales.

As an enthusiastic supporter of the organization, she visits and performs at the camp frequently.

"The camp's high standard is achieved as a result of the contact made by the campers with international artists who come to the camp to teach as well as to perform," said Miss Forrester.

The guiding light of both the national JMC movement and the camp is Gilles Lefebvre, a former violinist who decided to devote all his energy to the JMC organization.

"Above all, we want to teach the campers that success comes only with hard work, no matter what their field of endeavour, be it music or anything else," said the 40-year-old music camp director.

The campers' ages are between 13 and 29, although most are in their late teens.

The summer is split into three periods of three weeks. The first two are devoted to music, while the final term is for study of art and theater.

The tuition of each three week period is $180, which includes room, board, and many other things. Wilfred Sauve, public relations director for Jeunesses Musicales, points out that over half of the students at the camp are on scholarship provided by local branches of JMC.

The girls sleep in a dormitory that houses 50 students. The boys have the choice of sleeping in the men's dormitory (with 24 beds) or sleeping outside in tents. Many of them prefer the latter.

In 1960, the provincial government financed the erection of a 600-seat concert hall for the camp at a cost of $200,000. Considered to be almost acoustically perfect, the hall has made it possible for the camp to offer quality concerts to the public.

Other structures include an administrative building, and 26 huts scattered over the camp site for instrumental practice.

Campers eat their meals at the dining room of the Mount Orford Golf Club, a short distance from the camp.

But the administrators say they need more money to operate the camp well.

The Canada Council gives the camp nothing (although grants are made for other fields of Jeunesses Musicales work).

The provincial government has been however more generous. In addition to the $200,000 concert hall that Quebec financed, the government usually also gives an annual grant. The camp is still waiting for this year's money.

Mr. Sauve told The Record that the camp is now beginning to appeal to private business for financial assistance.

Mr. Sauve said that it was the aim of Mr. Lefebvre to increase the camp's seasonal enrollment to between 150 and 200 students by 1967. It is hoped that then the camp will be self-supporting.

They hope to have a new women's residence, a dining hall, any many more practice huts for that time.

These plans may sound overly optimistic, but Mr. Lefebvre's success in creating and expanding the Jeunesses Musicales organization across Canada has been remarkable.

Gilles Lefebvre's hopes and ambitions for the Mount Orford Camp will probably be realized — as have all his phenomenal past accomplishments.

Mrs. Beatrice Rodgers attended the funeral of her cousin, Mr. Roy Hatcher, in Sherbrooke on July 11. She was also a recent visitor of Mrs. E. L. McArthur, who is in the Vallee Nursing Home, not the McKeage Home as previously stated.

Miss Elizabeth Taylor, of Montreal, is spending a holiday at her apartment here. Miss Grace Golden of Montreal was her recent guest.

Each week the campers make an excursion by bus to one of the many interesting spots in the Townships. The summer camp has attracted young music enthusiasts from Canada and many foreign countries. "The school is the most wonderful opportunity for young instrumentalists to study with fine teachers and increase their general musical knowledge," said camper Alexandre Skeaping, of London, England. The teachers are just as enthusiastic about the opportunities the camp offers as the students. "This camp is unique in

Mexico hopes Canada will join the OAS

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Mexico keenly hopes that Canada will join the Organization of American States.

Mexican government officials, while emphasizing that the decision must be Canada's, give the impression of being quietly exasperated over Canadian reluctance thus far to join the hemispheric organization.

"It's like someone living in a house and refusing to join the same club as the other tenants," said a spokesman.

Mexico is an influential member of the OAS, which embraces the 20 Latin American republics and the United States, though the present government of Cuba has been excluded from its councils.

By population it is the third largest member of the group—after the United States and Brazil—with 38,000,000 people. By land area it is the fourth largest, after Brazil, the United States and Argentina.

It follows an independent course in foreign policy and has been a holdout against collective hemispheric action against Communist-controlled Cuba.

COULD MEDIATE

Asked why Mexico would like to see Canada join OAS, the spokesman replied: "Canada could act as a mediator in disputes between the United States and Latin America."

It is precisely this prospect that makes some Canadian policy-makers shudder when they contemplate OAS membership.

They argued that by accepting the role of go-between in the squabbles that frequently arise between the U.S. and its Latin American neighbors, Canada would be asking for endless trouble.

Sooner or later, they suggest, Canada would probably antagonize both sides with consequent damage to its own standing in the hemisphere.

The new Liberal government at Ottawa has not yet announced a policy with regard to Canadian OAS membership, beyond stating that the matter is under review.

While in opposition, however, both Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin strongly indicated they felt Canada should join.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—Tired of having the mattress pad wrinkle as you toss and turn in bed? At my husband's suggestion, I took two old garters from a discarded girdle, attached them to a suitable length of elastic, stretched the elastic across the underside of the mattress, and clipped one garter at each side of the pad. The result is a nice taut mattress pad at all times.—L.P.

GIRLS — Two garters used at the bottom and two more at the top would be ever better. Pads, quilted to the edge, that go over only the top of the mattress will have to have cloth tabs sewn to them so the garters fasten tightly.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I had quite a large picture frame and use for it. I thought of using it for a souvenir board. I used white corrugated paper for a backing, white paint on the frame, and trimmed it with gold. My daughter hung it in her room and pins all her keepsakes, news clippings about her friends, favors from parties, etc., on this pretty wall hanging.—MRS. D. G.

GIRLS — If white corrugated board is not easily available for the backing, the ordinary brown kind could be painted with latex paint.—POLLY

Ruth Millett
Takes two for the job
"I don't deny I'm impossible to live with," a husband whose wife was suing for divorce admitted to the judge. Many a husband would be impossible to live with if his wife didn't assume that making him possible to live with was her responsibility. Few mothers today train their sons in the thoughtful, responsible, considerate ways that help a man to become a husband who is easy to live with, just a few mothers today train their daughters in the homemaking skills that will help them to be good housekeepers and good managers. So the young husband has to be firm in letting his wife know what he expects of her as a homemaker—if he doesn't want to settle for a poorly run house, indifferent payments that he can meet on his salary. And the young wife just as often has to teach her husband to shoulder a man's responsibilities, to be considerate in small ways, to consider her welfare and happiness instead of selfishly thinking only of himself. It takes patience and firmness and self-respect on the part of each if a husband and wife are to help each other become the kind of partners in marriage that each wants and needs. The difference between a husband or wife being impossible to live with and being possible to live with happily is often the difference between one marriage partner's determination to help the other become possible instead of impossible. It usually takes some doing — but it's the difference between a lasting marriage and one that ends in the divorce courts.

Cross section of Israeli society easily observed in Jerusalem

By ED SIMON
 JERUSALEM (CP) — Sit in any downtown Jerusalem cafe and within five minutes you can see a cross-section of the new and old Israel.

At the next table a black-clad, bearded man wearing a skull-cap pores over a black-bound Hebrew text. Across the room sit a young, handsome couple in khaki, farm workers on leave from their collective settlement.

In a corner is a pile of newspapers in English, German, French, Yiddish and Polish, supplied by the management for the use of its multilingual customers. Two middle-aged men, their coffee long grown cold, stare fixedly at the chess board between them.

The busy street is thronged with women from Eastern Europe wearing head scarves, by the quiet knowledgeability of their custodians and by the absence of importunate beggars and souvenir hawkers from the vicinity. It is a city that has taken pains to preserve its past while building for its future.

The same coexistence of old and new can be observed at such places as Avdat, a hilltop fortress containing traces of half a dozen occupying armies down on a neat plot of cultivated land adjoining an experimental farm in the midst of the Negev Desert.

Elsewhere, accommodations are less easily made. In a country where every square foot of soil may hide traces of an ancient civilization, a department of antiquities has special powers to regulate the activities of countless amateur archeologists and, frequently, to restrain the impatient bulldozers of road-building and construction crews while an emergency team of scientists sifts the priceless evidence turned up by their blades.

PRESERVES PAST
 From the top of the imposing headquarters of the chief rabbinite or the tower of the YMCA building, the intermingling of modern office buildings and apartment blocks with Jewish, Moslem and Christian shrines is readily apparent.

Jerusalem guards its holy places and historical relics with quiet dignity. A visitor is struck

FIGHT MODERNIZATION
 Occasionally, the citizens of a community chafe against the confining bonds of the past.

Safed, a town of 15,000 in the northern hills of Galilee, teems with homes, places of worship and fortifications dating back to the time of Christ. Its Jewish graveyard, unfenced and neglected according to orthodox custom, houses revered medieval sages and according to legend, the prophet Hosea and the Maccabees, who died in a revolt against the Syrians in the second century BC.

Currently Safed is the home of a dwindling settlement of Cabbalists, orthodox scholars of mystic lore, and of a colony of artists attracted by the picturesque surroundings.

Municipal authorities, intent on building a modern, prosperous community, are attempting to flush out the last residents of the decaying old buildings in order to knock them down and replace them with factories, hotels and housing developments. Scholars, archeologists and artists are fighting the move.

Now you can judge a banana by its cover

Meet Chiquita Brand Bananas

This seal outside means the best inside!

Some bananas come from the tropics unprotected... get exposed to bumps and bruises. Now Chiquita Brand Bananas are shipped in heavy boxes, to protect them from bruises inside and out.

Remember how it used to be? You could never really tell, whenever you bought a banana, whether you might be getting a peach—or a lemon. It might be bruised on the inside. But you couldn't always tell from the outside. Now there's something brand new at your store: Chiquita Brand Bananas. Now you can judge a banana by its cover. Instead of coming up from the tropics in their birthday suits—on big stems—these bananas come in strong fiber boxes. To protect them from bruises, inside and out. So next time you shop, make sure you get Chiquita Brand Bananas. Look for the seal on the peel: It's the mark of a well-brought-up banana.
