Proclamation Issued for Celebration of V-Day

—o—

W. C. Schwartz Esq, Mayor, has proclaimed a Civic Holiday on the day that hostilities in Europe cease, and also the following day. When the great day dawns and word is received in Shawville that the war is over in Europe there will be great rejoicing.

Business will come to a sudden stop, factories and mills will close and employees will pour into the streets to take part in the celebration which has been prepared by the committee.

Everyone will drop what they are doing and join in thanksgiving in their own way. It will be the day when the mantle of gloom will fall from the shoulders of the world and all will emerge into the sunshine of peace and tranquility.

Everyone is asked to have flags, bunting and decorations ready for the occasion.

At a meeting of the Council held Monday night final arrangements were made for the order of program to be followed, which appears in this issue of The Equity. Clip out the program and keep it so you will know just what is about to take place on that momentous event.

See proclamation for full details.

British Produce New Headlamps

A new headlamp which goes far toward solving the problems of night-motoring has been produced by an English firm. The beam has a flat top with a very definite cut-off level. Direct dazzle is completely eliminated at ordinary eye level, and the beam itself is in perfect focus, giving not only a distant view of the roadway ahead, but a sharply defined picture of the roadsides.

The range of the lamp is stated to be well over 1,000 feet, and it is further claimed that the special lens employed makes falling rain or snow invisible to the driver.

Canada's First Winner Of V.C.

It has been recalled in England that the first man of color ever to win the Victoria Cross was the Canadian Negro born in Nova Scotia, Seaman William Hall, R.N. Seaman Hall won his cross for valor at Lucknow in the Indian Mutiny. The date was 1857, the year the decoration was instituted. So that makes him also the earliest Canadian V.C.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

Penicillin Lipstick

It may not be long before women will be able to get penicillin in their lipstick and toothpaste — where it can get at the microbes.

Professor Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, recently addressed civilian and service doctors on the uses of the wonder drug.

Stressing its contribution to medicine as well as surgery, he gave details of its benefit in septicaemia, osteomyelitis inflammation of the marrow of bones, infected burns, and abscesses.

Describing the use of penicillin mixed with gelatine to form a lozenge, Professor Fleming stated that he expected it to be used in toothpaste and shaving creams, and even in lipstick. "For minor infections of the nose and throat we can expect snuff and sprays," he said.

Specifying rheumatoid arthritis and tuberculosis as diseases that penicillin would not cure, Professor Fleming stated that penicillin is not a "cure-all." It will be years before knowledge of its powers is complete.

Great Mines From Little Nuggets Grow

Within four years of discovery of gold in the Klonlike in 1896, annual production of gold from all sources in Canada had increased to more than 1.3 million fine ounces valued at $28 million. Last year estimated output was nearly 2.9 million ounces valued at over $111 millions.

This expansion, it may be noted, was accomplished entirely by private enterprise, without the intervention of a state trust and without aid—often, indeed, despite state discouragement in the form of restrictive taxes and curbs on investment.

Fire Bombs Set Jap Cities Aflame

The U. S. Army recently approved disclosure of details of the new M-69 incendiary bombs dropped by American Superfortresses on Tokyo and other Japanese cities.

The new bombs are about 19 inches long, as big around as a baseball bat, and weigh six pounds. The interior contains a cheesecloth sack filled with "gasoline jell", which burns for 8 to 10 minutes at temperatures above 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The bombs are made up in 500-pound clusters. At about 5,000 feet the cluster breaks open by means of a time fuse and an explosive charge.

Upon impact, a delayed fuse starts a mechanism which detonates after about five seconds and spews the oil-filled cheesecloth about 25 yards in all directions.

PONTOON BRIDGE ACROSS HISTORIC RHINE

Trucks cross on an Allied military pontoon bridge spanning the famous, Rhine, somewhere in Germany. Army censors have cropped out shore line on opposite bank, to prevent possible recognition of the site, and pointedly refrained from saying just where on the Rhine this bridge is located.

Do It Now!

Hoping to inspire his workers with promptness and energy, a business man hung a number of signs reading "DO IT NOW" around his factory and office. When he was asked some weeks later how his staff had reacted, he shook his head sadly.

"I don't even like to talk about it," he said. "The cashier skipped with a $1,000; the head bookkeeper eloped with the best secretary I ever had; three typists asked for an increase; the factory hands decided to go on strike, and the office boy joined the Navy."

TABLE TALKS

Smooth, Glossy Brown Gravy

Gravy can make or mar a cook's reputation, just as it can make or mar a meal. Actually, too, the achievement of a rich, velvety product is quite a simple feat. For gravy makers, however, who aren't up to all the tricks of the trade, the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture offers two rules, which, if followed will result in glossy gravy, free-from-lumps, the pride of any housewife.

Two Rules

Rule number one deals with the proper blending of the flour and fat. They should be well blended, and the flour browned before the liquid is added. Remember . . . the gravy won't brown after the liquid is added.

Rule number two is concerned with adding and blending the liquid. It may be water, meat or chicken stock, liquor from canned or cooked vegetables, milk or tomato juice. Whatever it is, the liquid should be cold when added to the fat-flour mixture. Also, it should be added gradually and the mixture stirred constantly during the operation.

Gravy should not be made too far in advance of serving, otherwise it will dry out, become thick and pasty and form a scum on top which is difficult to blend back smoothly into the gravy. For late-to-dinner members of the family, keep the gravy hot in the top of a double boiler, closely covered.

Pan Gravy

Add 2 or 3 tablespoons boiling water to frying or broiler pan used in cooking steak. Stir well to loosen particles adhering to pan. Season as desired and serve on steak.

Brown Gravy

¼ cup fat (drippings from roast)
¼ cup flour
2 cups cold liquid (water or meat or vegetable stock)
Salt and pepper to taste

Always make gravy in the pan in which the meat was cooked. When meat is done, remove from pan to a hot platter and keep warm in oven with heat off or in warming oven. Pour off excess fat leaving ¼ cup in pan. Add flour and cook, stirring constantly, until flour becomes brown but not burned. Remove pan from direct heat and add cold liquid. Return to low heat and cook, stirring constantly, until gravy boils and thickens. Season to taste. Makes 2 cups gravy.

The Jade God

By MARY IMLAY TAYLOR

CHAPTER XVI

He took her in his arms again and kissed her solemnly.

"It's goodby," he said firmly. "I won't take you. At least, I'm man enough not to ruin your life—because I love you. It's goodby, Pam!"

She could not speak; she let him go, but she stood still, tears blinding her. He would not take her to fight his battle, there was a tumult in her heart, she wanted to run after him to tell him she would face anything for him, but he didn't want her to go! The hot blood rushed to her face; then she remembered the anguish in his eyes—and he was going! She stood holding her breath, listening to his footsteps going away down the long hall and, at last, the closing of the door.

If there was something that she could do; wasn't there something? Suddenly her heart leaped—the jade god! She would make Burleson tell her everything he knew.

* * * *

She went softly across the hall. She wanted to be sure that Landon had gone before she went back to the library. There was a stir in the rooms beyond and then Aunt Lynn's voice, cold and crisp, freezing someone out. Pam hid herself from them, trying to slip by, but she could not shut her ears.

"I'm sorry. I knew your mother, Archie," Mrs. Lynn said icily; "but I can't pardon this."

She was freezing Landon out!

He mumbled something about Teddy Banks, and not being himself.

"If you mean you'd been drinking—that only makes it worse," she replied sharply. "As for Banks—you know what I think! I told the servants long ago not to admit him again."

"And now I'm in for that, too, I suppose!" Landon cried. "When I tried to undo it, too."

"You'll have to pardon a woman who knew your mother, for speaking the truth, Archie," she retorted suavely. "You see, I'm not sure that your way of undoing it was—much better!"

He stammered more apologies and her icy voice trickled back at him.

"He's done!" Pam thought. "And I'm glad of it—the coward!"

Then Pam slipped past that curtain arch and found the little door in the corner; it opened into the library beside the fireplace. It was still in there; her first thought was that there was no one in the room; the shades had not been drawn; a street-lamp garished outside, the fire on the hearth was low. Then, beyond the shaded lamp, she saw the outline of her uncle's gray head. She thought he was asleep, his eyes were closed, the red streak had faded into ashen gray, he looked ill. It seemed impossible that he could be asleep after all that violence! She saw the scattered bits of polished jade on the floor, shattered like poor Mark's hope of freedom long ago.

She stooped softly and began to pick up the fragments. She found the head unhurt, green beard and all, and the distorted mouth grined up at her. She had it in her hand when she lifted her eyes again and found Burleson watching her.

"Throw that thing away, Pam!" he said sharply.

But she did not; she came nearer, holding out her pink palm with the green head in it.

"Uncle Herbert, Mark's uncle brought that when they were together for the last time; brought it for you, and he had it when Mark saw him last. He gave it to you afterwards," she paused, letting her words sink in, but he said nothing, only looked intently at her. "Don't you see?" she pleaded, "he gave it to you after Mark left him. He was killed after that. You can clear Mark, if you will!"

"Oh, can I?" his gray lined face was cruel when he twisted his lips like that!

The girl looked steadily at him with the eyes of youth. "Yes, you can! You must—" She came nearer. "Uncle Herbert, try to remember—you must! He can't be left like this—he didn't do it!"

Burleson returned her look steadily, his grayness seemed to increase, for the tempest of his anger had left him weak.

"Why are you so sure he didn't do it?" he asked raspingly. She broke at that, suddenly childish and forlorn. "I know—I love him!"

He was dumfounded. "Extraordinary!" he said, after a moment. "You young girls now—good Lord, what would your grandmothers have said."

"Who cares?" Pam stormed. "We're young—youth has a right to live!"

"And age has to clear out, eh?" his face twisted again into his mocking smile.

"If it stands in the way of life—yes!" she cried cruely. "Think of all Mark's lost—fifteen years of youth! It's cruel, it's wicked. Uncle Herbert, you must have known something; there was someone else; why didn't you say so?"

He considered her, his head sunk between his thin high shoulders. She was so splendidly young and so cruel in her youth.

"Suppose I suspected," he said slowly, "suppose I didn't know, but if I'd said a word it would have pulled down a family, a good wife, sons or daughters, and proved nothing—perhaps!"

"Then you did suspect!" she cried. "You did, and you let Mark go—for some old sinner in high place!"

"I didn't say that; I said, 'suppose'."

"You meant it! Was any old man worth Mark's splendid youth, Uncle? He couldn't be!"

"Perhaps his people were. Think of the disgrace."

"Think of it? Yes!" she cried, flinging the little green head down, "think of what he's got to face—Mark! He won't let me face it with him. He refuses to let me do it."

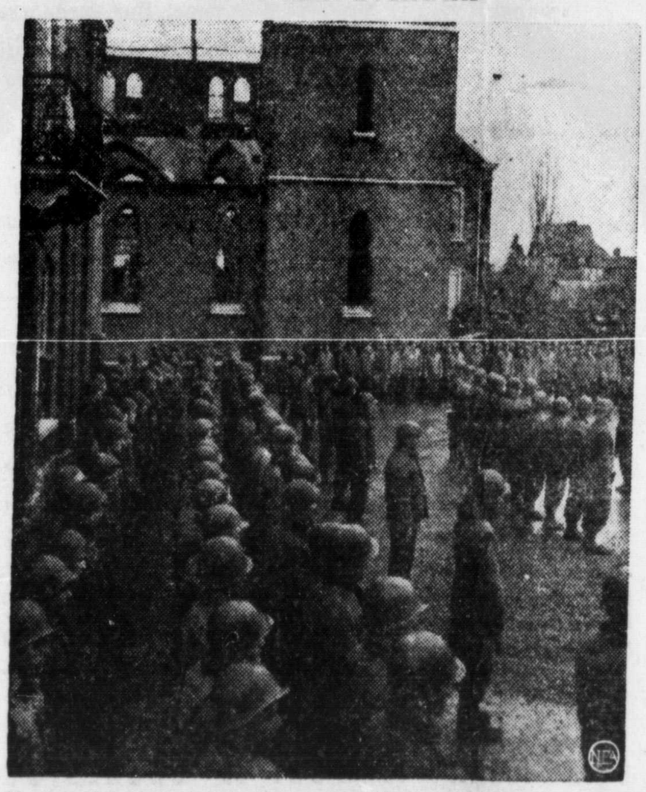

"You mean you asked this—this ex-convict to marry you, Pam?" he cried, sitting up in his chair.

NAVY MEN IN KHAKI

The Bells Of Peace

Some day the bells of peace will ring.
The wheels of war will cease to hum.
Free men will plough the fertile fields;
The thunder of the guns be dumb.

Once more will happy children play
And sleep, untroubled, safe in bed;
No terror fly by night or day!
No fear of bombers overhead!

Yet, grass will grow on countless graves,
Marked by plain crosses row on row —
On men who gave their very all,
That love and beauty we might know.

And, though the bells of peace may ring —
Still, mangled bodies, wracked with pain,
And sightless eyes, will dumbly plead —

"Let not our torment be in vain."
In unknown places, noisome, dark,
In swamps, in sands, in restless sea,
Lie men who sacrified life's chance —
That you and I might still be free.

* * *

What kind of world will we then make —
Full of ideals for which they died?
Or, will we grow stiff-necked again,
In hatred, greed and haughty pride?

Will trade and conquest be our God?
Will we still seek the highest seat?
Then surely war will scourge once more
And make destruction all complete.

Shall we not bravely see that they,
Our flesh and blood, strove not in vain,
And build a world on right, not might,
When bells of peace ring out again?

— T. B. Gleave.

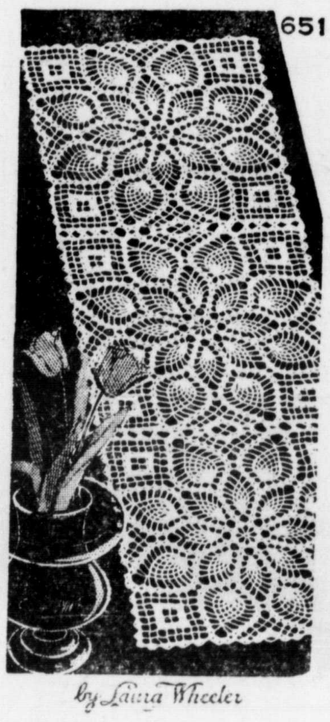

War Or No War Bride Wears White

he story of British opportunism never contained a more astonshing chapter of "recovered situations" than the one which British women have written in wartime clothing. Many a proud husband has gone off to work, prouder still, in a fine shirt made of the kitchen curtains. Most husbands wear Joseph's coats of may colors, the heroic last stand of five other shirts.

There was a wedding the other day at which the bride's family and all the wedding guests in the know beamed on the bride with more than customary interest, for she was radiantly beauitful in the family tablecloth—the best damask tablecloth unstarched and made over.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

* * * * *

Last Thursday my baby chicks were supposed to arrive on the morning train. I met the train and waited eargerly near the baggage car—but alas there were no little chicks. I could hardly believe it . . . I thought the trainman must have overlooked them. However the train moved on, and I, perforce, went home, minus the chicks. Naturaly I thought the shipper had missed the train and that he would either phone or deliver them in person. Noon came and there were no chickens and no telephone call. So then I called "long distance" myself. The hatchery-man would hardly believe me when I said the little biddies had not arrived. "But I took them to the station at six o'clock this morning," he said.

"Did you put them on the train yourself?" I inquired.

"Well, no, but I gave them to the shipping agent. If you will wait a minute I will make inquiries and ring you back."

In a short while that is what he did—and told me the chickens had been shipped all right but on the wrong train! They had gone to Toronto. In all probability they would be sent down on "the Peanut" that evening.

My poor little chicks—shut up in boxes and shunted around from one place to another. What will they be like when I get them, I wondered.

At 7.30 I was at the station again . . . and this time, so were the chickens. I opened the box with considerable trepidation and found not dead and dying chicks—but 150 lively, chipping little balls of black fluff, as warm and happy as you please. Joy riding must have agreed with them as I have since lost only two.

Now, of course, I spend quite a lot of time running back and forth to the brooder house—mainly to see that it doesn't get too hot.

The sun is so warm and bright these early spring days. It is no hardship looking after baby chicks. I love to sit on the feed bag and watch them grow. Yes, watch them! Honestly, they seem to sprout wings under my very eyes.

In between attending to chickens and collecting for the Red Cross, Partner and I have made two trips to Hamilton — it having become necessary for Partner to have a check-up at the clinic. These old soldiers.

On our first visit to the clinic we were very interested in the efficiency we found in every department. Partner's name was called five minutes ahead of time. A nurse took him to the doctor's own waiting room. From there to the consulting rom, the laboratory, consulting room, the laboratory, office, back to the first one, and finally out to the mair office where accounts were tabulated and paid. The complete round took exactly two hours with hardly a minute wasted. The chief doctor, as he questioned Partner, wrote down all the particulars, and as each page was filled it was pegged outside his office door. From there it was whisked away as if by magic, taken to some secret sanctum, where the rough copy later appeared in the form of typed cards for future reference.

The efficiency and quiet dignity which prevailed throughout the entire building was something to admire, and certainly gave Partner confidence in whatever pronouncement might result from his visit.

Canadian farmers do not have all the problems in the world, comments the Brandon Sun. There are some exclusive ones in Great Britain just now. Kent, is the most bombed county in England, Hell's Corner in fact. Here is a classified advertisement from a Kentish paper of recent date:

How You Can Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

Most people seem to think the only way to get relief from their sore, painful piles is by local treatment. Local treatment may give temporary relief from the itching but you can easily see why such treatment will not correct the cause of your piles.

No lasting freedom from pile can be had unless the cause of the trouble is corrected. Piles are due to intestinal causes so the best way to get lasting relief is to treat them internally with a medicine like Hem-Roid.

Hem-Roid is a formula that has been used for over 40 years by thousands of pile sufferers. It is a small, highly concentrated tablet, easy and pleasant to use. This cleverly compounded tablet formula directs its medical action to relief of the congestion that is the real cause of your piles. Hem-Roid promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements quickly relieves itching irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the lower bowel the painful pile tumors soon heal over leaving the sensitive rectal membranes clean and healthy.

We invite you to try Hem-Roid and let it prove itself. You can make your test, in the privacy of your own home. NO COST if you are not convinced that this is an amazingly easy and surprisingly effective method of treating your sore, painful piles.

What does YOUR FARM NEED?

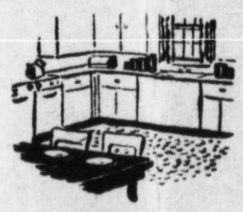

If you want to build a modern barn

or buy new equipment

or electrify your farm

or modernize your house

...then have a talk with your bank manager about his new powers under the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

How often have you said "If I could only raise the money!" Well, if you could, what would you do to improve your farm and increase your production?

Would you build a modern barn?
or buy new machinery?
or modernize your house?
or electrify your farm?

You can raise short term money from your bank; and long term money from other institutions by way of mortgage. But there are some things you would like to do which require loans that are neither long nor short...

That is where the banks, operating under the new Farm Improvement Loans Act, can help you. The gap has been filled. "Intermediate" loans at a specially low rate can now be obtained for periods of two or three years—or even longer, in cases up to ten years.

So, if you have a project in mind to improve your farm, drop in and talk it over with your local bank manager. Ask him what he is now empowered to do to help make your farm living more attractive and your work more profitable.

He will tell you—and show you—that your bank is just as eager to meet the sound credit needs of the farmer as of the merchant or manufacturer.

That lies within the heart concealed.

"INVEST IN THE BEST"

BUY VICTORY BONDS

THIS STORY IS BASED ON AN ACTUAL CASE

"Tough years those... but the B of M saw me through"

JOHN HALEY, retired farmer, was talking to his son who was now running the farm.

"Yes, Ronnie, they were tough years — but that was before you were born. Your mother and I came here back in 1900 . . . all we had was this square mile of land — with a shack, a ramshackle barn and a bit of fence . . . oh yes, and a mortgage. And we had to haul water two miles and drive twenty to market."

"Gosh, Dad, it must have been mighty hard sledding . . . guess I have a cinch today."

"Well," said the old man, "it would have been a sight harder sledding if that young manager of the Bank of Montreal hadn't stuck by me. There were some years when I had bad luck with my little herd and the crops were poor, when I'd have just gone under if he hadn't given me a hand.

"Funny, you know, he always used to say I was a good credit risk because I used to haggle with the people I bought cattle from and when I wanted a loan to buy feed I almost always asked the Bank to advance money for just part of the cost.

"Anyway, good risk or not, the Bank stuck by me, and if it weren't for that you wouldn't be running this 640-acre farm today and getting first prizes for your Ayrshires, and — what's more — doing a good war job."

THIS true experience is typical of thousands of customers' relations with the Bank of Montreal. The John Haleys get on in life because of their determination, enterprise and self-reliance. It is they who have made Canada what she is today . . . the third greatest trading nation of the world.

If you need a loan for the better operation of your farm, or for assistance in your personal affairs, we will be glad of the opportunity to discuss, in confidence, your plans and problems with you.

PALS REUNITED

Ten thousand miles can't separate a man from his best friend—so Sgt. Edgar C. Godard, of Huntington, Pa., and 'Blackie," nondescript dog he acquired in Abadan, Persia, six months ago, are reunited. Godard was returned to Bowman Field, Ky., on a rotation plan. Immigration officials frowned on his dog following. Appeal to his congressman, unidentified, resulted in "Blackie" taking a 10,000-mile ride on a Liberty ship. Here they are reunited.

EASTER SUNDAY ON ALL FRONTS

In the hot holes of the Pacific and muddy trenches of the European fronts, in the magnificence of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City, the spaciousness of Hollywood's famed Bowl, and the little clapboard country church, prayers for our fighting men went Heavenward to Him whose resurrection was celebrated on April 1—Jesus Christ, Prince of Peace.

Loaded, the plane weighs 30 tons. It has a speed of some 300 miles an hour, a range of 3,000 miles, and an eight ton bomb load. Its armament includes 10 machine guns mounted in revolving turrets. Its record as a bomber has not been equalled by any other aircraft.

PRISONERS of WAR PARCELS CONVOY

—o—

A few days ago twenty-one Red Cross trucks, each driven by a Canadian prisoner of war, crossed the Swiss-German border each loaded with emergency rations to Allied prisoners of war inside Germany.

The Canadian built trucks, painted white to avoid Allied air attacks on German territory, were the gifts of the Canadian Red Cross to the International Society. This was the third cargo of its kind to leave Switzerland since the mercy-system started several weeks ago.

Canadian prisoners of war were sent as drivers to the frontier under an agreement between Germany and the International Red Cross, by which, if any of the drivers attempted to escape the convoy would not be allowed entry.

Through the Canadian Press the story has now reached Canada.

"The cargo was made up of prisoner of war food parcels, medecine, clothes and cigarettes." the despatch reads, "needed to save Allied prisoners from starving in the destruction, panic and disorganization behind the German front lines today.

"A German policeman or a member of the Volkssturn was seated beside each prisoner of war driver as the trucks started their journey. As each truck took its position in the formation the driver took a last look at Switzerland, which to him, spelled freedom— internment, it is true, but safety and freedom nevertheless.

"It would probably have been very simple for those men to have made a dash for liberty, as it was only a few short yards from where they stood on German soil to the free land of Switzerland.

"But no one attempted to escape," continues the story, "because they knew that if the convoys were stopped probably hundreds of their comrades who were anxiously waiting their return with the supply of Red Cross parcels would starve,"

The Red Cross trucks will remain at various prisoner of war camps near Karlsbad and Luebach, for inter-camp service and for evecuating war prisoners from danger zones.

Eighty-five more Red Cross trucks have just arrived at Geneva and will be put into service carrying cargoes into Germany from the huge accumulated stocks of Red Cross supplies now on hand in Switzerland.

The Business Of Farming Requires RESERVES

"READY MONEY" is the common term for what businessmen call "Reserve Funds". In any language, "Ready Money" is a handy thing to have.

None realize this need more than a farmer : : : for in the business of farming there are so many times that extra money is needed . . . for bills that must be met . : : to take advantage of opportunities . . . "to turn a dollar" with profit.

There are many times when a farmer needs "extra money". Without a reserve fund he must either sell something "for what he can get for it" or borrow, if he can get a loan.

Victory Bonds provide a safe and convenient form in which to keep savings until needed. Victory Bonds earn double bank interest. When you have Victory Bonds you can get a loan from any bank at any time without any formality, and the interest the bonds earn pays a large part of the interest on the loan.

Victory Bonds can be bought for cash which you have saved or bought on convenient deferred payments with money as you get it.

Buy Victory Bonds to provide a reserve of working capital for your farm. Buy them, too, to help maintain your country's war effort. They pay interest these two ways.

Farmers always need "extra money" at seed time . . .

"Extra money" is needed to pay harvest hands . . .

You can often make a profit if you have cash to buy young animals . . .
