Arts Sutton teachers demonstrate skills for students

By Merritt Clifton

SUTTON — Trying to decide whether to shell out $40 to $135 to take one of Arts Sutton's summer courses? Trying to figure out which of the six teachers best know their subjects?

You can always study the lists of credentials and past exhibits in the Arts Sutton brochure. But as anyone who ever went to school should know, credentials don't make a teacher, and anyone familiar with gallery politics knows exhibitions don't make an artist, either.

Best to drop by the Arts Sutton gallery during the next few days, where all six instructors have had the guts to hang themselves. The idea is to demonstrate their skills for potential students. A very good idea — but four of the six of them aren't demonstrating much of what they're teaching. One gets the impression that even if these four do know their subject matter, they don't care very much about it.

Of the six, Ghitta Caiserman Roth most directly addresses her course titles: 'Line and Shape', 'Analysis, Abstraction, Synthesis', and 'The Found Object.' Her painting 'Window Wintertime' could be basis for a lecture on each topic. SKILL WITH BASICS

Eve Gossage teaches 'The Basic Palette.' Her paintings in this show are old familiars — 'The Apple Pickers', 'Cornucopia', and 'Cradles' — all of them underrated and each demonstrating her skill with simple, basic colors.

Roslyn Swartzman presents the most ambitious work in this exhibit, her multi-media series 'Northern Prairies.' Each of the six 'Northern Prairies' portrayals appeals strongly to imagination; each seems to show the whole history of the site, from grassland to metropolis, in overlays, as if one could simply blink back and forth from 1800 to 2000. Obviously Swartzman began with what she's teaching, 'Outdoor Sketching' — but her 'Northern Prairies' pieces are so far advanced beyond simple sketching that potential students don't get much idea what they'll be doing.

Bernice Sorge is supposed to teach 'Drawing For Teenagers' and collaborate on 'The Found Object.' She doesn't offer any 'found objects', unless people count. Known for drawing, Sorge does show a little of that, but stresses color instead in 'Woman Reading', whose head runs off the top of the paper; 'Woman Knitting'; and 'Child And Woman', one of the more hideously grotesque items at Arts Sutton in at least three weeks.

SEEMS PREOCCUPIED

'Landscape Painting' teacher Rita Briarsky presents a couple of vague, impressionistic landscapes, all right; but most would-be landscape artists do that well before taking any courses. Her strongest painting here is 'The Jade Plant', an extremely unusual portrait of a woman with a plant that depends upon color, composition, and close focus. Otherwise, Briarsky seems preoccupied with people playing musical instruments.

But 'Watercolor' instructor Gerry Tondino offers the most irrelevant selection of all — with the most works of any show participant. Tondino may have used water in her paintings. She sure as hell didn't use any color. They're huge, gloomy works in the hues of a sooty stovepipe or a shadowy outhouse; representational, but what they represent isn't easy to tell. Watercolor is a medium of light. Tondino excludes light as if her personal anthem were 'Painted Black.'

The show runs through July 13. Classes begin July 14. For registration details, call either Anne Wilson, (514) 539-2275, or Eve Gossage, (514) 538-3809.

The real Team Canada

With all of the sporting events taking place lately, it's hard to tell who to cheer for. Soccer's version of 'Team Canada' did all right in the World Cup and the Canadian men's basketball team is undefeated (as I write) in the world basketball championships. Even Canadian cyclists in Europe have been doing well.

All this aside, and if the truth be known, the real Team Canada has only recently been chosen.

Robert F. Davie, James Murray Crawford, Nico A. Van Duyvenbode and Rolf Simon are hardly household names but with a little luck, a deep breath and a lick of the lips, they could become as familiar to Canadians as Jorge Burruchaga. These four men, you see, make up Canada's official entry into the International German Wine Tasting Competition.

The four were selected following a 'taste-off' held before a capacity crowd at Toronto's prestigious Albany Club — the Wembly of Canadian wine tasting. Each contestant was required to take an extensive written exam as well as a tasting test in order to reduce the number of aspiring tasters to a team of four and to ascertain whether or not they would be suitable standard bearers for the nation.

The team will now proceed to Germany in September where they will compete against amateur tasters from the United States, Japan, Grape Britain, Denmark, Sweden, the Netherlands, Finland and

Wine Bits
By TIMOTHY BELFORD

Norway. Following a week-long jaunt around the various vineyards of Germany — a necessary training session — the blind tasting will be held in the 18th century palace of the Prince Bishop in Wurzburg.

As befits any international 'sporting event', fans at home in Canada can follow the play by play action by tuning into the CKO radio network in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax. Well-known wine writer Andrew Sharp will be on special assignment in Germany to bring twice-daily live coverage of the tastings.

Since the German government is picking up the tab for all this, it won't cost Canadian tax payers a penny. As a matter of fact, with all the practising the members of the team have done, not to mention the unsuccessful contestants across the country, the provincial liquor boards have all probably turned a tidy profit.

As for me, it's back to the practice glass. Cheers!

Highland Games planned in Sutton

By Laurel Sherrer

SUTTON — Scottish blood runs in the veins of many a family in the Townships, but some Scottish Canadians are more fiercely proud of their heritage than others.

One such person is Sutton resident Robin Lawrence.

Lawrence is president of the three-year-old Scottish Society of Quebec and organizer of the first Sutton Highland Games, to be held Saturday, July 19, in the municipal ball-park in Sutton.

Highland games have been held in Montreal, New Hampshire, Vermont and the Maritimes, but this may be a first for this region.

The backbone of this ethnic celebration are the athletic events such as the caber-toss, shot-put throw, hammer throw, stone-throw and tug-of-war. But the day will also include a parade of bag-pipe bands starting at 9:30 a.m., followed by Highland dancing and piping and drumming demonstrations. Official ceremonies will begin the athletic events at 12:30.

FOOD TOO

There will be food booths in the park, allowing visitors to sample traditional Scottish food such as haggis (a sort of sausage made from lamb and goat kidneys with lots of spices). Lawrence warns you may need a good shot of Scotch whiskey to enjoy this cultural treat.

There have been Scottish festivals in Sutton a couple of times, but they're nothing to compare with the games, says Lawrence. Competitors from all over North America are expected, he says. Already there are 371 athletes registered, including some from New Brunswick, Maine, Massachusetts and Texas. Nine official clan representatives will be attending, including the president of the American St. Andrews Society.

"We sent out 210 letters and only got two 'no's,'" said Lawrence. Work on the games began last August, immediately after the Montreal Highland Games.

144 MEMBERS

In its three-year existence, the Scottish Society of Quebec has recruited 144 members, close to 30 of them from the Sutton area. Almost all of the local members are working on the games, said Lawrence.

Lawrence's pride in his heritage is evident in the Main St. office where he runs a photocopy service. Adorned with the yellow and red Rapid Lion flag of Scotland, one inside and one out, the office is cluttered with papers and notices about the upcoming games, and some literature about Scotland, including a tongue-in-cheek recounting of a myth about The Haggis, answering such crucial questions as, "What does it eat? How does it breed?" and "Where does it live?"

Local members of the Scottish Society participate in Highland Games and other cultural events in nearby cities and states. Lawrence says he has the occasion to wear one of his two kilts about 18 times a year.

The gates open at the park at 9 a.m. Admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 17.

The Highland Games conclude with the "Kilting of the Tartan" at the United Church at 11 a.m. Sunday, July 20. This is a special blessing on the Highland Games participants.

Just for Laughs festival to feature 80 performers

By Nelson Wyatt

MONTREAL (CP) — What do Chicken McNuggets and rock singer Madonna's underarms have in common?

They are a main source of gags for professional funny-men these days, says an organizer of one of the few humor festivals in the world.

"Do you know how many comedians right now are doing Chicken McNugget jokes?" asks Andy Nulman of the 10-day Just for Laughs festival, which opened Thursday.

"It's incredible. Chicken McNuggets and Madonna's underarm hair are themes that permeate the continent."

Just for Laughs was the brainchild of Gilbert Rozon, a Montreal lawyer by trade and a prankster by choice, who spends much of his time travelling the world lining up acts for the festival.

In four years, the festival has grown from a tiny show with only a handful of Quebec and French acts to this year's extravaganza of 80 performers from nine countries.

Star attractions include Jerry Lewis and Andrea Martin of Second City TV fame.

"We have feminist comics, we have comics who are dirty, we have comics who are clean, comics who are cerebral, comics who are simple," says Nulman.

More than 50,000 people attended the 1985 festival and Nulman is optimistic 75,000 will attend this year.

A secret to Just for Laughs' success is its broad appeal, Nulman says.

"It doesn't matter how old you are — 14 to 84 — you can appreciate a good laugh."

Besides Lewis, top acts include: Canada's Monty Pythonesque group The Frantics; Anthony Gatto, an ace U.S. juggler who is only 12 years old; Australia's Sue Ingleton; blind Canadian comic Gord Paynter; and Sandra Bernhard, who starred with Lewis in The King of Comedy.

Offbeat funny-men Marty Putz of Canada and American Emo Philips will also appear.

"Marty's really weird," Nulman explained. "He wears this inflatable suit and literally blows himself up."

"He has all these weird props. He turns into a human baseball glove and catches marshmallows thrown at him from the audience."

Just for Laughs has been an invaluable springboard for some performers, such as impressionist Andre-Philippe Gagnon of Quebec.

Scottish Society president, Robin Lawrence, says the Highland Games planned for Sutton July 19 go far beyond the Scottish festivals held there in past years.

Danville artist returned to painting after children grew up

By Janet Element

DANVILLE — The Caisse Populaire in Danville will exhibit paintings by local resident Joan Blair-Pye throughout the month of July. Paintings by Blair-Pye were featured in an exhibition at the Danville Community Centre in April along with 47 painters who took classes in September and January with Irene Champagne.

Blair-Pye comes from Dalhousie Jet, New Brunswick but has been living in Danville for the past 27 years. She came to Danville as a school teacher at the Asbestos-Danville-Shipton High School. She continues to teach at A.D.S. Elementary and a supply teacher at R.R. High School.

Now that her two sons have grown up, she has returned to one of her life-long loves — painting.

She gives credit to her grade school teacher for helping her find her artistic talents. Blair-Pye remembers some of the hints that he gave her and her two sisters who are also interested in painting. WILL CHANGE

This is Blair-Pye's first year to exhibit her paintings at the Caisse Populaire in Danville. She has fourteen paintings on display, for the entire month of July. Each Wednesday, when she is at home, she will change a few scenes.

Over the years, Blair-Pye has studied with many different teachers. One of the reasons she gives for taking so many classes in painting is that she doesn't paint unless she is in a class. It gives her the incentive she needs to bring out her artistic talents.

Blair-Pye also sometimes finds it hard to get an idea for these classes. This is because for her to paint something, she must want to paint it. She isn't sure when she started to paint seriously, but she prefers to paint from life. She likes to sit in a hay field and paint, for example, instead of copying. She is disturbed when she copies now, as there is nothing like nature and the open spaces.

Ideas often come from the newspapers such as the Record or the Gazette. Occasionally she will cut out a picture that has caught her eye. At the moment she has one propped up in her home and after several glances at it when passing by, she decided to sketch it. Being satisfied with the work, she now plans to put in on a large canvas and then on a small plaque. "I really have to feel that I want to paint it."

RETURNS LATER

Blair-Pye doesn't generally finish a painting in one sitting. Instead she will often leave the painting and come back to it later on, possibly starting another. Often she will change the background and content of her paintings.

When asked about equipment, she says she started out with a good set with the help of a painter to advise her what to buy. Blair-Pye is still using her original set and she says she uses a lot of white, but not much black as dark colors are mixed with other colors. "One thing that I am always running out of is brushes and when I need a new color, I buy it," she says.

"I still have a long way to go," she concludes. "I am beginning to enjoy more of what I am doing as more of my productions I like. Will I continue to paint alot? I really do not know, it depends on if my eyesight will allow me to and also on my outside employment in the future. I would like to go more into painting plaques as they are more reasonable."

Danville artist Joan Blair-Pye prefers to work from life rather than copying.

Taking art classes is mainly what gives Blair-Pye the incentive to go on painting and exploring her talent.

Maxwell's hero is interesting, original investigator

The Frog and the Scorpion by A.E. Maxwell (DOUBLEDAY): $24.95, 258 pp.

With a hero who insists that the 'Mr.' be dropped from his name whenever he is addressed, A.E. Maxwell's novel The Frog and the Scorpion obviously sets up a few comparisons with Robert Parker's Spenser, even if a lot of this private investigator's trappings are strictly L.A. chic in their mode.

His name is simply Fiddler, and he's independently wealthy, thanks to some wise investments his ex-wife made with a steamer trunk full of money left to him by his Uncle Jake. Driving a Carroll Shelby Cobra automobile, Fiddler often finds it difficult to conduct a tall job on crooks due to the distinguished detail of his luxury wheels, but when he's relaxing in his ocean-side retreat at Crystal Cove, halfway between Newport Beach and Laguna, watching his hummingbirds feed on sugared water, Fiddler begins to take on the guise of an interesting and original investigator.

The exotic tropical fish in his backyard and his easy way of fitting in with the Rodeo Drive set are only part of the exterior of Fiddler, whose first person narration in this novel helps propel the story along quite efficiently. It begins when a family of Iranian Jews is being harassed by some deadly earnest Palestinians who demand $5,000 per month in exchange for their not reporting the Iranian immigrants to the United States Immigration Service, which would lead to sure deportation and death at the hands of the fanatical new regime in Iran led by Khomeini.

The extortionists are commanded by Salameh, about whom the reader learns much when Fiddler makes contact with an Israeli Mossad agent named Rafi, and his beautiful daughter Sharai. The Israeli father/daughter team has been on the trail of the Muslim Salameh since the slaughter of the Israeli Olympic Team in 1972, but he has been elusive until this strongarming tactic against Los Angeles Jews.

Maxwell is adept in sketching this array of characters and Fiddler keeps himself in the background of the narration, content to just let this better than average plot develop itself. There is not a lot of macho posturing by this hero, and the battle between Fiddler and the Muslim bad-guy Salameh becomes complicated when it is learned that an American international construction magnate named F. Robert Jarvis is involved with a billion dollar project in the Middle East and some corporate hi-jinks that keep both the Israelis and the Muslims off balance.

Kaleidoscope

By RICHARD LONEY

The Frog and the Scorpion (the title derives from a clever folk tale about the endlessly warring factions in the Holy Lands) is a novel which features a genuinely suspenseful and exciting climax, when Fiddler and his Israeli allies enter into a pitched battle on the deserts near Palm Springs, California.

The believability factor, matched with the topical nature of Maxwell's subject matter, guarantees that Fiddler, who made his debut in Just Another Day In Paradise, will be back on the scene for a further adventure in a series that appears destined to make Fiddler as popular as Parker's Spenser.

RECORD REVIEWS

Kim Carnes LIGHTHOUSE (EMI-AMERICA)

She appears to have come by her grainy, gritty vocal quality honestly, without the lifetime of hard living that formed Marianne Faithfull's, but Kim Carnes brings the same scorching, abrasive singing style to her rock songs.

On LIGHTHOUSE, Carnes teams up with a pretty fair to middlin' band, having Waddy Wachtel doing the honours on lead guitar, Craig Krampf on percussion, and Steve Goldstein, Craig Hull, Erik Scott and Jerry Peterson aiding on other instruments. After getting a pair of big beat numbers out of the way to kick off the record, with 'Divided Hearts', and 'I'd Lie To You For Your Love', Carnes sings one of her own songs, 'Black and White', and then does a Jackie de Shannon/Donna Weiss tune, 'Piece Of The Sky'. The song that lends its title to the album, 'Dancin' At The Lighthouse' is a driving, toe-tapper that is representative of the solid songs on the album from the blond lady with the Rod Stewart pipes.

Roaring Boys ROARING BOYS (COLUMBIA)

When producer Glyn Johns — who has worked with the Stones, the Eagles, the Who and other rock institutions — puts his name on a project, you can almost be assured that quality is aboard. Roaring Boys began as a quartet in Cambridge, England that has known by the name The Models, then expanded into a sextet, including among its number Neill MacColl, a second generation musician, son of folksingers Ewan MacColl ('The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face') and Peggy Seeger, who introduced the boy to classical guitar at age 10.

Roaring Boys have the alive quality of new British bands — influenced by the Jam, the Police and the Pretenders, but knowledgeable of all that came before — with the added asset of Johns's studio expertise to sort out the sounds. The result is a marriage of eerily precise vocal arrangements and experimental instrumentation — a departure from the usually muddled vocals and wasted pyrotechnics that emanate from many fresh, young groups.

With such an impressive debut and the obvious respect the record company has for Roaring Boys, we can look for more fine recordings from a band that crosses the bold vocal quality of early Who with Fifties sax fillers and incredibly tight vocal harmonies.

The Glen Miller Orchestra IN THE DIGITAL MOOD (POLYGRAM)

Imagine the timeless Glenn Miller music being accorded the digital technology of the 3M 32 track digital audio system, with the original charts being played by some of today's finest musicians, and you get close to the idea of how Miller's music would be enhanced by the amazing studio processes available today.

Sure, purists will say that the original old 78's by Miller should never be tampered with in any way, but what producers Dave Grusin and Larry Rosen have done with Miller's music is a revelation. Never have the saxophone solos rang as clearly as they do on 'In The Mood', and the alto, tenor and trumpet solos on 'A String Of Pearls' are breathtaking in their dynamic quality.

Five saxes, four trombones, four trumpets, plus guitar, bass, drums and piano, and the recruiting of vocalists such as Mel Torme and drums and piano, and the recruiting of vocalists such as Mel Torme and Julius LaRosa, all playing the exact Glenn Miller charts results in what the album liner notes identify as 'an aural pleasure created by the melding of yesterday's music with tomorrow's technology'.

Hearing wonderful favourites such as 'Moonlight Serenade', 'Little Brown Jug', 'Tuxedo Junction' and 'Chattanooga Choo-Choo' reproduced with such stunning clarity and quality merely enhances the value of the Glenn Miller heritage to the music world.

VIDEO SCREENINGS

White Nights (RCA-COLUMBIA)

The combination of Mikhail Baryshnikov's classical dance and the superb hoofing and tap-dancing of Gregory Hines are merely a visual bonus in a superb movie about the current contretemps between the Soviet Union and the United States. Even the world of classical ballet seems to provide a forum for yet another dig at the repression and brutality that keep Soviet society in control, as Baryshnikov plays a Russian who has defected to the U.S. some eight years before the film opens. In this type casting the former Russian dance virtuoso turns in a fine acting performance, playing essentially himself.

When a British Orient jetliner goes down in Siberia the defector is on a world tour, and the Russians seize this misfortune to take him back into custody and offer him an ultimatum — if he will train again for the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad and allow the Russkies to pull off a PR coup, then all will be forgiven and he can remain a privileged Soviet citizen.

Gregory Hines, playing a New York City black who had likewise defected to Russia, is utilized by the authorities to bring Baryshnikov back into the communist fold. Hines and Baryshnikov become buddies, and their casual dance routines during the long movie (135 mins) are delightful. Isabella Rossellini, as Hines's Russian wife Darya, bears a haunting resemblance to a young Ingrid Bergman, circa 'For Whom The Bell Tolls', while Helen Mirren, as Baryshnikov's former love Galina, fulfills the second love interest role.

The movie features some marvellous set pieces: Baryshnikov's dancing of 'Le Jeune Homme et la Mort', which opens the film; views of Leningrad and the Kirov Ballet theatre; and a stunning climactic chase sequence when the two dancers decide to foil the Russian schemes. Mention must be made of the musical direction from Phil Ramone (producer of Billy Joel, and many others), and the inclusion of several hit songs such as 'Say You, Say Me', by Lionel Richie, and Phil Collins's love duet with Marilyn Martin, 'Separate Lives', which contribute greatly to the overall mood of this fine movie.

St-Benoit abbey founder drowned in boating accident

An article in an 1914 issue of the Canadian Motor Boat magazine described the beginning of boats equipped with a gasoline powered engine on Lake Memphremagog. The same year, one of these boats was implicated in an accident on the lake. The name of the boat was the "St-Benoit", a motor boat which belonged to the Benedictine monks.

During the summer of 1982, I met some people who had witnessed the two drownings reported in this story which took place in 1914. The victims were Dom Vannier, founder of the St-Benoit du Lac Benedictine monastery, and brother Charles Collot who accompanied him on their fatal trip. Dom Vannier had come from St-Wandrille's abbey in France to establish a Benedictine monastery in Quebec. Monsignor Larocque, Bishop of the diocese of Sherbrooke, had strongly recommended that he establish his monastery in this region. Dom Vannier met Father F.X. Brassard, the Vicar of St-Patrick's parish in Magog, who pointed out to him what he considered an ideal location not far from Gibraltar Point, during a boat trip along the shores of Lake Memphremagog. This was the site of a farm owned by a Mr. Lachapelle and it was decided to buy the farm on Oct. 18, 1912.

STILL STANDING

The first mass was celebrated at this location on November the 6th of the same year. Some of the original buildings are still standing today.

During the next two years new members of the order arrived from France. Among these were Dom Lajat, Dom Boitard and Brother Fraudeau. In October 1914 work was started on an expansion program.

On Nov. 30 Dom Vannier accompanied by Brother Collot, decided to attend a special service in Sherbrooke, commemorating the elevation of Monsignor Larocque to Episcopat. They decided to come to Magog by motor boat and then go on to Sherbrooke by train or by car. There was a thin sheet of ice on the lake, but they had no idea how dangerous this was. They started out in their boat and got to within a few hundred feet south of the Three Sister Islands (about 6½ miles from the monastery). At this point, because of the very sharp thin ice, the bottom of their boat was literally sliced off; the boat sank and both occupants were drowned. The temperature of the water was about 34 degrees Fahrenheit.

CUT HANDS

In the fall of 1982 I had a bad experience with the same type of ice. I cut both my hands and damaged my neoprene diving suit.

A witness to the tragedy, by the name of Laurent Lanahan said he saw and heard the monks crying for help, but he was on the Georgeville road about a mile away, and it was impossible for him to do anything.

Another witness was a member of the party which went to the scene of the tragedy the next day to look for the bodies and salvage the boat. (The ice had disappeared the same day due to the wind).

The body of Dom Vannier was found first and then the boat was brought to the surface. The body of Brother Collot was not found until the following spring.

I asked another witness, Wallace Sheldon, who is now 98 years of age, what he remembered of the accident. He said: "When we got the boat to the surface we noticed a little door about a foot square in the front section of the boat, and when we opened the door we found a sum of money inside." This confirms what a monk had mentioned to me. He said Dom Vannier must have put the money there before he drowned. Dom Vannier did not have a cassock on when his body was found. I figured he must have taken it off when he realized the boat was sinking. Father Rochon, in a letter written on the 16th of May 1983 gave me his opinion as follows: "I believe he probably took off his cassock when he got in the boat and put it away so it would be kept clean for the reception at the Bishop's palace in Sherbrooke".

The 30th of November 1914 was a bleak day for the Benedictine Order, but these two valiant monks left us an abbey which is unique in the world today. Unique in its charm, its beauty and the cordial reception one receives when paying a visit.

We are extremely proud and consider the monastery a peaceful haven of contemplation on the shores of our sometimes cruel lake.

Granby youth choir to perform at Expo 86 next week

By Laurel Sherrer

GRANBY — While most people their age are at home watching TV or out with their friends, 120 Granby kids are gathering twice a week for choir practice.

For an hour and a half Monday and Wednesday evenings, Les Petits Chanteurs de Granby painstakingly work out the soprano, alto, tenor and bass parts of music ranging from classical to current hits. As concerts approach, they bring the whole choir together for rehearsals under director Normand Cloutier.

Their efforts have paid off, as the group has been selected to present five concerts at Expo 86 in Vancouver. About half the group is going, and they leave next week.

The choir has been widely recognized for its talent in recent years. Over the past winter, they performed with the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra and taped three shows for a Montreal TV station. In recent years, the choir has toured in Ontario, Louisiana and in 1969 visited 10 countries in Europe.

WAS BOYS' CHOIR

The choir was formed in 1955 as a boys' choir, becoming mixed when the Roman Catholic schools became mixed, sometime around '67, said choir organizer André Dansereau. Members are mostly between the ages of 10 and 17, but naturally there have to be adults to form a bass section.

For many of the present members, who hadn't joined when the choir went to Louisiana or Europe, this will be the longest trip they've ever taken. And they're pretty excited.

Not only do they have five concerts to present at Expo over a two-day period, but they will also visit towns whose choirs have paid them a visit in Granby, including Nanaimo and Powell River.

In all, they'll be away 10 days, July 15 to 25.

For 11-year-old Nancy Langlois the most exciting parts will be "visiting Expo, seeing things, learning about how they live, because it's different out there." Patrick Henault, 10, says, "It will be a good experience for the future, because it can help me to get used to being away from my parents."

The choir has a vast repertoire of music of all styles, but they've chosen to present those with a more folk character for the Vancouver concerts. "We want to keep it the Québécois style," said Dansereau. Mixed in with the familiar French Canadian folk songs, however, there will be some Negro spirituals and some choral versions of recent Top-40 music.

They will be taking along only one of their three sets of costumes. The girls will be dressed in colorful peasant dresses while the boys wear plain shirts and slacks with the traditional Québécois red sashes.

Their singing is occasionally accompanied by dances or mime, and often some of the older members do solo parts.

The cost of the trip, about $75,000, has been largely paid by the members and their parents.

The city of Granby has provided a $5000 grant and Agropur $3000. The rest has come from the parents' pockets and fund-raising activities the young people themselves have conducted, such as selling apples and organizing bingo games.

Efforts like these go on every time the choir plans to go on a trip or an exchange with other choirs, but the very existence of the choir depends on volunteer efforts that go on year-round.

Musical director Normand Cloutier lives in Montreal and commutes to Granby for practices and concerts with only the price of gas paid by the choir. Pianist Hélène Carrière is always with the group, while various other musicians give their time, depending on the type of back-up music required.

BIGGER PLANS

For now Les Petits Chanteurs de Granby, incorporated as a non-profit organization, depends on grants and fund-raising, along with receipts for television appearances and concerts. But there are bigger long-term plans for the group.

"Our goal is to become a school of voice like the Petits Chanteurs de Montreal," said Dansereau. This would require co-operation from the school boards to enable the students to come together from their various schools for music instruction, voice training and choir practices for part of the school day. It would also require a permanent source of funding, in order to hire part-time teachers.

Now the young people have only 15 minutes of music instruction before every practice. But for many this has been the start of a career in music, said Dansereau. Many Petits Chanteurs alumni are studying music and voice in conservatories throughout the province, he said.

For others it just means a chance to gain confidence and put their talents to use. "A child alone before the public is very shy," said Dansereau, "but singing with a group they lose their shyness and eventually many have the confidence to become soloists."

"It gives them a basic background in music," said choir president Françoise Lacroix, "and it gives them self-discipline." In her own daughter, Lacroix noticed an increased self-respect and respect for others after she'd been with the choir for awhile.

Working with musical director Normand Cloutier Monday, the Petits Chanteurs de Granby were putting the finishing touches on their performance for Expo 86 this year. They will present three concerts July 16 and two July 17.

'Special Beach Constables' would seize and dress violators

We get letters:

Dear Mr. Letarte,

Since we, the members of the Society for Normal Beaches, SNOB, can apparently expect no help from the proper agencies of law enforcement, we would like to enlist your support in our campaign to preserve Whitcomb's Beach in North Hatley for the general, and decently clad, population.

The abomination of nude bathing, under the guise of a health cult, has no place in a decent God-fearing society — not, at least, since God granted fig leaves to Adam and Eve. One has only to consider the sordid history of nudity throughout the ages to envisage exactly where this flaunting of public morals will lead us.

Take, for example, the Venus de

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

Milo which so outraged decent Romans that the naked arms were broken off the statue. Admittedly, the uncovered breasts remained but, as you are probably aware, it is difficult to get a good grip. And what about the infamous Lady Godiva, the inventor of bare-back riding? If not for the invention of jodpurs, knee-high riding boots, hunting jackets and helmets, today's Olympic 'dressage' events would probably be called the 'undressage'. (One shudders at the thought of Princess Anne riding naked through Bromont.)

No, nudity is not what we in North Hatley want. Nor will we put up with it. At this very moment a petition is being circulated to all local residents asking for support of the following motions:

1. That no one in North Hatley be allowed to remove their clothing outside the confines of their own home (specific room restrictions to be at the option of the home owner).
2. That revealing shorts, halter tops, and bikinis consisting of less than one full yard of material be banned from public swimming areas.

3. That the town appoint 'Special Beach Constables' and empower them to seize and dress violators of these regulations.

4. That the Honorable John Crosbie be asked to serve as the Honorary Chairman of SNOB.

5. That repeated violators be deported to St. Tropez, in France where this sort of deviant behaviour, as we all know, is not only tolerated but encouraged.

I trust that you will print this letter and help us to enlist the support of like-minded individuals wherever they may be found.

Yours sincerely,

Brig. General Farquar W. Ramsbottom, DSM. OBS. Ret'd.
"The Willows", RR 3, North Hatley

John Crosbie would be asked to serve as SNOB head.

WHAT'S ON

Music

The Orford Arts Centre continues its summer concert series with a recital this evening at 8 p.m. by pianist François-René Duchâble. Duchâble will perform music by Chopin and Liszt. Admission to this concert is $12, and tickets can be reserved by calling 843-3981 if you live in the 819 area, or 1-800-567-6155 toll-free if you live where long distance rates would normally apply.

Saturday night at the Orford Arts Centre there's a concert by Robert M. Leroux and the percussion workshop from the University of Montreal's faculty of music. They'll be performing works by Piché, Thibault, Xenakis, Spivack, Nishimura and Reich starting at 8 p.m. Tickets for this concert are $12 and can also be reserved by calling one of the numbers above.

But wait, there's still more at the Orford Arts Centre in the coming week. At 10 a.m. Sunday there's a concert by students taking courses at the arts centre and at 5 p.m. there's a concert with a group called Gospel Heirs. The student concert is $5, and you can enjoy the later concert as well as a supper on the lawn afterwards for $12, or the concert alone for $6.

Tuesday the Jeunes Interprètes series, dedicated to spotlighting the talents of young musicians just embarking on their professional career, continues with the Durand, Prévost, Aubut trio (piano, violin and cello) interpreting music by Mozart, Chostakovitch and Brahms. This concert is at 8 p.m. At the same time, students from the arts centre will be playing at the Domaine Howard in Sherbrooke. There's no charge at the Domaine Howard, but tickets to the concert in Orford are $6. Wednesday at 8 p.m. there's another student concert at the arts centre, and Thursday a concert will be given by violinist Michelle Seto and pianist Viktoria Kasuto at 8 p.m.

Enough of the Orford Arts Centre — on to the Festival Lake Massawippi. For the Sunday Concert this week, at 3 p.m. in the Unitarian Church in North Hatley, oboist Etienne de Medicis will give a recital accompanied by France Dupuis on piano. Coffee, lemonade and cookies will be served after the concert. A $4 donation is requested at the door.

There's even more good stuff coming up at La Ronde. Toronto singer-songwriter-keyboardist Gowan will perform at the open-air theatre at La Ronde at 9 p.m., July 17. You might want to reserve your tickets now at a Ticketron outlet. For $15 you can have reserved seats and access to all rides at La Ronde, or pay $8 the day of the show for standing-room access to the concert.

A local fiddler will be honored at a hootenanny this Saturday at the Owl's Nest Inn in South Bolton. Wally Bowbrick learned to play the fiddle on his own, but has passed on his knowledge to a lot of other fiddlers in the area over the years. Some of the people who have played music with him will be on hand for this salute, which starts around 5 p.m. The tribute corresponds with Bowbrick's 73rd birthday.

There's a new gathering place in Knowlton offering live music every Friday and Saturday night. Del's Bar Harbour, downstairs at 305 Knowlton Rd., will feature John Horrocks singing a wide range of music tonight and Saturday, and next week blues musician Harmonica Zeke will make an appearance.

Just Us will continue to play rock and roll and variations thereof at the Bar Salon Chez Ralph in Mansonville this weekend. You can hear them tonight and tomorrow night after 9:30 p.m.

Country Plus will be featured through the month of July at Station 88 in South Stukely. They play Friday and Saturday nights.

Bigfoot is still playing at Magog's Hee Haw Country (470 Main West) every Friday and Saturday night, and they'll be there most of the summer.

Across the border in Derby Line, a New York band called Panache will play rock and roll music, including some 'golden oldies' tonight through Sunday night at Jimmy's. Coming up next week at Jimmy's is the Rick Pinette Show.

The Del Monty in Rock Island has a rock band called China playing tonight and tomorrow night starting around 10, while over at the Maples in Stanstead, there's country music with The Backroad Band tonight and Saturday night from 9:30 to 2:30.

All month the Bar Salon Burrough's Falls will feature good dance music by Mike Goodsell every Friday and Saturday night, while over at the Shady Crest, Moonshine plays country-rock tunes Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 9:30 on and Sundays starting at 3:30 p.m.

Central Park continues to play country-rock to Top-40 music Fridays and Saturdays at the F.L. Hideaway in Lennoxville. Down the road at the Georgian, Mick Hall plays a bit of rock and a bit of blues every Friday and Saturday night until the end of the month.

The Good Ole Boys have settled in at the Bretagne Bar Salon in Waterville for the month of July. They play their country music from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays and after 4 p.m. Sundays.

The Motel des Cantons in Sawyerville has Country Fever with Steve Aulis Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays all month long. They'll start playing around 9:30 each night.

And finally, a group called Trampled Underfoot plays Top-40 style music from 6 to 8:30 p.m. tonight at the Amadée Stadium in Sherbrooke (just across Terrill St. from the Sherbrooke fairgrounds). The occasion for this is the Tournoi Provincial Moustique (which is a little league baseball tournament) and there will also be country-western music by Bernard and Susan Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m., and possibly another band Saturday night.

Theatre

Rave reviews by Quebec's other English daily and myself (I hope) must be part of the reason the final two performances of Michael Frayn's Noises Off at the Piggery Theatre have sold out. It's a real shame if you've missed it. However, after this, who knows what height of quality drama and entertainment the Piggery might rise to with its next production, Stage Struck, by Simon Gray. Billed as a "whodunit with more twists than a country road", this starts next Thursday. Call (819) 842-2191 to reserve tickets.

The Green Mountain Guild will present the Broadway hit Funny Girl this Sunday at 8 p.m. at the North Country Union High School in Newport, Vt. The tickets are $6 and are available at the Haskell Free Library in Derby Line, Vt. or Seguin's Music Store in Newport.

There's another option in French summer theatre starting next Wednesday. Le Théâtre du Sang Neuf is presenting Michel Garneau's Les Célébrations in Lac Mégantic Wednesday through Sunday nights at 8:30 p.m. until August 3. The exact location is a day-park (called an O.T.J., Organisation de terrain de jeu) on the edge of the lake, and anyone in town should be able to direct you. In a press release the author explains that (among other things) he's trying to say something about the way all ideas, opinions, obsessions, weaknesses and strengths are transferred from one person to the other when two people live as a couple. Tickets are $12 and you can reserve by calling (819) 583-4662.

The Théâtre Entre Chien et Loup continues to present Loto-Clip by Patrick Quintal and Normand Lessard at the Théâtre Entre Chien et Loup in Deauville until August 23. This is a humorous look at the lottery mania that pervades the western world, starring Denys Caron. Caron plays a young man who buys his first lottery ticket and finds he's one of three people with a chance at winning $1 million in a televised gala. Hervé Philippe, Martine Dostie, Jacques Routhier and Andrée Soucy, all Townships actors, also star. You can reserve tickets for $10 Wednesdays through Fridays, or $12 for Saturday performances, by calling (819) 864-9569. You can also have dinner before the play at L'Auberge le Beau Site in Deauville, for an additional $10.

Oboist Etienne de Medicis will be accompanied by pianist France Dupuis in a concert this Sunday in North Hatley, as part of the Festival Lake Massawippi. See Music column.

Movies

Comedy seems to be the norm on the Townships' movie

Musicians and dancers from 15 different countries are represented at the International Folklore Festival in Drummondville, going on at this very moment. See Exhibitions/Events column.

Sculptor Léo Perreault has work on display at the gallery of the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est until July 25. The gallery is accessible during banking hours.

screens this week, as it is across North America this summer. And quite a few of these movies seem to be getting favorable reviews.

The Capitol Theatre in Sherbrooke has Back to School with Rodney Dangerfield this week, showing nightly at 7 and 9 p.m. Dangerfield plays a middle-aged businessman who decides to get a college education. Word has it this is not top-rate fare, but fairly well stocked with laughs if you don't expect too much from it.

Over at the Cinemas Carrefour, a new comedy with Robin Williams, Peter O'Toole and Rick Moranis begins tonight. Club Paradise tells of an ex-Chicago fireman suffering a burnout who tries to turn a run-down cottage colony on a Caribbean Island into a tropical paradise for vacationers. This plays nightly at 7:15 and 9:15 and on Sunday at 1:15, 3:15, 5:15, 7:15 and 9:15.

The Cinema Princess in Cowansville has two shows you might have missed when they first came out a couple of months ago. At 7:15 nightly you can see the Ron Howard production, Gung Ho. Michael Keaton and Gedde Watanabe star in this comedy based on the clash of cultures and work ethics that results when a Japanese car company moves in to take over an automobile plant in a small Pennsylvania town. Considering how blatantly ethnocentric so many American movies are (Rocky IV is a notorious example), this one manages to take a fairly good look at both lifestyles represented, getting laughs at the expense of both the Japanese and the Americans. Well, maybe the Americans come out a little better, but it's a step in the right direction. And it's pretty funny too, so a little pro-U.S. propaganda can be forgiven.

This is followed at 9:15 by Pretty in Pink. Molly Ringwald plays a young woman from the poor side of town who falls for a rich kid, and has to decide whether she's going to stick with her old friends of her own 'class' or step into a more glamorous world. Critics seemed to see this as a more mature, thoughtful movie than most of the teen-age genre had been, until a few months ago when it was released.

The Merrill's Showplace Cinemas in Newport, Vt. has Back to School, playing nightly at 7:20 and 9:30 with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 2:10 p.m. Karate Kid II also plays there at 7 and 9:20 nightly with matinees at 1:50 Saturday and Sunday, and About Last Night, a comedy with Rob Lowe, Demi Moore, and James Belushi shows nightly at 9:25 with no weekend matinees.

Labyrinth is the fourth movie at Merrill's, and I've heard a little more about this one. It's a fantasy film about a girl who wishes her little brother would be carried away by goblins — and the goblins promptly comply. Then she has to go on a rescue quest into a maze with strange and wonderful creatures (the work of Muppet creator Jim Henson) around every corner. The Christian Science Monitor's critic, David Sterritt gives this one a good rating for its humor and lack of pretension. Jennifer Connelly is the heroine and David Bowie is her nemesis, the chief goblin. Labyrinth shows nightly at 7:10 at Merrill's with weekend matinees at 2 p.m.

'Ca-na-da'... 'Ah, Gretzky!' the Russians reply

By Dennis Bueckert

The Canadian Press

Travel in the Soviet Union is not for those who insist on a culinary masterpiece at every meal, but there is plenty to feast on for lovers of history, ballet, architecture and classical music.

From the ornate catacombs of Kiev to the Turkish baths of Tashkent, the Soviet Union has all the raw materials of a great tourist industry, even if they are poorly promoted.

Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow rank with the world's most interesting cities. Most of what's worth seeing was built before the Revolution, but the Soviets have made efforts to protect and restore the greatest monuments of Czarist times.

Last year about 10,000 Canadians visited the Soviet Union, says Intourist, the state tourism agency. Until the Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster in April, which led to mass cancellations, the number of western tourists had been increasing steadily each year.

SAFE VISIT

Apart from the radiation hazard, which is declining, the Soviet Union is probably one of the world's safest countries to visit. The vast security apparatus may be oppressive for residents, but it does keep terrorism under control.

Tourists must apply for a visa, but these are readily granted. Tourism brought in roughly $1 billion in precious hard currency last year, and Soviet authorities do try, albeit rather clumsily, to make tourists feel welcome.

The Intourist hotels are designed along western lines and were in many cases built by firms from the Russian folk dancers.

West. Tourists are immediately brought to the head of lineups at airports and museums.

During a recent three-week tour of the Soviet Union, I never encountered any hostility, despite the fact that Soviets can easily recognize westerners.

I found that almost any awkward situation could be resolved by saying "Ca-na-da." The response was usually a comprehending grin followed by the words, "Ah... Gretzky."

NO EXPLANATION

But the attention only goes so far: while dining at Moscow's Cosmos Hotel shortly after our arrival, a member of our party asked if he could please have some cream for his coffee. The answer was "nyet," with no supplementary explanation.

After repeated experiences of the same kind, we learned to drink our coffee black.

The absence of milk may have been due to fallout from the Chernobyl disaster, but we were never told so.

Most western tourists visit the Soviet Union on group tours sponsored by Intourist and marketed by travel agencies in Canada. It is possible to visit the country individually, but this requires detailed planning and would be difficult unless you speak Russian.

The tour prices generally include all accommodation, lodging, transportation within the Soviet Union, admissions to museums and concerts, and the services of a guide who will travel with your group.

NEED NO MONEY

You won't need spending money except to cover souvenirs and extras like dinner wine.

If you want to opt out of the group itinerary to go exploring on your own, you are allowed to do so. This is a change from policies of even a few years ago when independent sightseeing was strongly discouraged.

Wandering in a large centre like Moscow or Leningrad can be intimidating at first, especially since city maps are not for sale.

The best strategy is to carry a piece of paper with the name and address of the place you want to visit written down in Russian. If you lose your way you can show it to someone on the street.

Don't be astonished if the person you ask for directions insists on walking with you all the way to your destination — this is considered the courteous thing to do.

COSTS A DIME

Public transportation costs five kopeks (about 10 cents) and offers an opportunity to glimpse the real life of the people. The subways are worth seeing in their own right — marble, stained glass, chandeliers and paintings abound.

Those who enjoy ballet and classical music will never be at a loss in the Soviet Union. The state lavishly subsidizes these arts and the tickets are cheap — never more than three rubles ($6).

The performances are of the highest calibre and compare well with anything that can be seen in Paris or Vienna.

Don't believe the personnel at the hotel's theatre ticket desk when they tell you no tickets are available. Go directly to the concert hall and you may well find there are plenty of seats.

Soviet concert-goers take their recreation seriously. They will sit through the most difficult and inaccessible works without the least sign of impatience. Most would rather asphyxiate than cough at the wrong time.

Jazz and rock are alive in the Soviet Union, but they are not easily accessible to tourists. There are no western-style night clubs or discos. The big Intourist hotels have western-style bars, but local drinking spots are hidden from view in various clubs and "cultural organizations."

The San Francisco nobody else sees...

The Frank Sinatra screen showing was cancelled

By Dean Lokken

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — What do you do after you've ridden San Francisco's famed cable cars, bought out the shops in Chinatown and are tired of watching the sun slip beneath Golden Gate Bridge?

Kay Grant thinks you might be ready for a cemetery stroll, an afternoon at a cookie factory, a high-speed spin in a Grand Prix race car or a picnic in a sewer.

Grant organizes these and other behind-the-scenes tours for small groups through her one-woman travel agency, Near Escapes.

She arranges trips to the biggest airplane maintenance shop in the western world, and to a blood bank where visitors watch blood drawn, classified and prepared for storage.

The sewer picnic — a meal of croissants, pasta salad, bananas and cookies — takes place in a dry sewer following a tour of a treatment plant and a pump-overflow station.

"I always want to know what makes things tick," said Grant.

ARRANGES TOURS

After working for a decade as a meeting planner for large corporations and for political fundraisers, Grant began arranging offbeat tours last September. She started with a mailing list of 50 people.

She launched Near Escapes with a low advertising budget. "I was putting up notices in laundromats," she said.

Her brochures, offering some two dozen trips every month, now are mailed to more than 1,200 people.

Her trips — all in the San Francisco Bay area and ranging in price from $5 to $85 U.S. — have become so popular that some sell out before Near Escape brochures hit the mails.

Barbara Perkins, a machinist who grew up in the Bay area and took her first Grant escape in January, has gone on seven others since then and signed up for four more.

"There're a lot of things I haven't seen," Perkins said. "The first thing I heard about Kay Grant was her cemetery tour."

That excursion, which Grant lists among her favorites and affectionately calls "Graveyard Shift," covers a half dozen cemetries in nearby Colma, a frequent burial place for residents of San Francisco. Legendary U.S. marshal Wyatt Earp and Levi Strauss, who founded blue jeans manufacturer Levi Strauss & Co., are buried there.

Also on the itinerary is a pet cemetery where a horse, an ocelot and countless gold fish, cats and dogs are interred.

Not every Grant idea is a winner. She had to cancel a five-course dinner that was to be followed by a two-hour, giant-screen showing of Frank Sinatra videotapes from a private collection.

"Not enough people signed up," she said. "I don't know why not. I like Frank Sinatra."
