28,000 NORTH KOREANS ARE TRAPPED

None Injured In QCR Derailment

What is believed to have been a childish prank resulted in the partial derailment of a Quebec Central Railway passenger train last night between Ascot and East Angus. The train was travelling from Sherbrooke to Levis.

"Only the leading pony truck wheels of the engine were derailed and although the train was held up an hour there was no damage. But it could have been a serious accident," stated A. M. Hand, general manager of the Q.C.R. here this morning.

Track spikes were apparently laid along the rails as two of them were found after the accident.

Usually an engine will knock off the spikes from the rail without a derailment but if the spikes are placed in the proper manner the wheels run right up the sloping piece of steel and then comes the derailment.

"The majority of the passengers on the 5 p.m. train figured it was just a quick stop south of East Angus and never knew the train was derailed," Mr. Hand said. "Our own police are working on the case and although we suspect children, a thorough investigation will be made."

Parents knowing their children are near railway stations are asked to warn them of the serious offence and drastic results which can occur as the result of placing anything on the tracks.

Big Hydro Project Is Authorized

Quebec, Oct. 21.—A $30,000,000 hydro-electric development on the Peribonka River has been authorized by the government, Premier Duplessis told his weekly press conference here yesterday.

Mr. Duplessis also announced working plans for the Legislature session called for Nov. 8, two months sooner than usual. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sittings, but the provincial Houses will be adjourned for December to permit attendance of government officers at the federal constitutional conference in Ottawa. The Legislature will resume in January.

The Premier said many government measures are ready.

Mr. Duplessis said the first stage of the Aluminum Company of Canada power development on the Peribonka, in the Lake St. John district, will be at Chute au Diable and further development at Chute Savanne will cost further millions.

The international situation has given impetus to the projects, since an increasing demand for aluminum has developed in world markets, especially in the United States.

"As a matter of fact, it is a strong possibility that the United States may buy Quebec-manufactured aluminum products to the extent of more than $75,000,000," he said.

This would contribute to the stabilization of Canadian currency. It would increase the value of Canadian money to the advantage of the national and provincial resources, he said.

The green light for the project was an order-in-council putting into effect legislation adopted at the last session. The law provides that Quebec workmen and technicians will be given preference.

The company's original request for diversion of the waters of the Bersimis river to its existing dynamo was refused because the government insists that hydro resources first of all be developed to the advantage of the population in their immediate vicinity.

Mr. Duplessis said he would attend installation in Lennoxville of John Bassett as Chancellor of the University of Bishop's College.

Hong Kong, Oct. 21.—A new crown colony law went into effect yesterday making illegal use of arms punishable by death. Before midnight, three armed robberies were reported.

World News In Brief

Pyongyang, Korea, Oct. 21.—(Reuters)—The first flight surgeon to arrive here today to evacuate wounded Americans was a Canadian, Sgt. Ldr. R. H. Lowry of Toronto.

Lowry tended to three seriously wounded Americans who then left by air for Seoul for urgent base hospital surgery. "It's a long story how I got here," Lowry said. "But the Americans were short of flight surgeons, and while the push is on I'll stay here."

London, Ont., Oct. 21.—The war in Korea "is an object lesson which may well deter future aggressive adventures," Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, 1950 Nobel Peace prize winner, said yesterday. Addressing the fall convocation of the University of Western Ontario after receiving an honorary degree of doctor of laws, Dr. Bunche said the successful conclusion of the United Nations campaign in Korea raises a still greater challenge — that of unifying Korea.

Russian Bloc Is Discussing Rearming Of West Germany

By WILLIAM OATIS
Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 21.—Following her sharp warning that she would not tolerate remilitarization of western Germany, Russia met with her European allies today to discuss that explosive subject.

The meeting was called by the Soviet Union, which sent deputy prime minister V. M. Molotov as its spokesman. Molotov is a former Russian foreign minister.

Moscow radio and the official Czechoslovak news agency reported the eight-country meeting started yesterday. Deputy premier Zdenek Fierlinger, representing Czechoslovakia, was elected chairman.

Molotov flew in from Moscow by special plane. Other foreign delegates met him at Prague's flag-decorated Ruzyně airport.

They were foreign minister Mincho Noyche of Bulgaria; Zygmunt Modzelewski of Poland; Gyula Kallai of Hungary; Ana Pauker of Romania; George Derfingier of eastern Germany and V. Natanajli, Albanian minister to Moscow.

An official announcement in Prague said the ministers would "discuss questions which arose in connection with the decision of the New York conference of the three powers — France, Britain and the United States — Sept. 19 which discussed the remilitarization of Germany."

(The Big Three foreign ministers announced Sept. 19 they had agreed to strengthen Germany economically and defensively and allow a "mobile police force," but there would be no resurrection of a German national army.

Only a few hours before the Prague conference, Russia made public the contents of identical notes sent to the United States, France and Britain.

The notes rejected a western charge that the people's police of communist-ruled east Germany actually is a military organization, and warned the Soviet Union would not tolerate revival of "the German regular army in west Germany."

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Acheson told a press conference yesterday the United States will reject the Russian protest. He insisted creation of legitimate police forces in western Germany does not represent a back-door attempt to restore the German army.

The United States is favoring rearment of western Germany as part of the European defence framework. Britain accepted the idea, but wants the other North Atlantic pact countries to reararm first. France alone among the major western powers has held out against the proposal.

Molotov's name seldom has been in the news for months. Last August there were reports he was visiting Peiping, capital of communist China, for talks on Asian affairs.

Andreï V. Vishinsky succeeded Molotov as foreign minister March 15, 1949.

Mopping-Up Operations Continue — No Further North Korean Defence Line Has Been Sighted.

Seoul, Oct. 21.—Quick moving United States parachute troops today sealed off 28,000 North Koreans. This was nearly half of the estimated organized enemy fighting force left north of parallel 38.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said all main roads in the Suncheon-Sukchon area, where the 4,100 Americans dropped out of the sky Friday, were blocked against the communists.

An estimated 63,000 communist fighting men left in North Korea thus will not be able to mass for any big future stand against allied troops racing to bring the savage four-month war to an end, an intelligence officer said.

Headquarters said the communists may be able to move some of the trapped 28,000 men over hill roads but that their heavy equipment was lost.

What little opposition the North Koreans tried to put up against the paratroops was speedily overcome.

The Commonwealth brigade is mopping up in the western sector.

A MacArthur spokesman said there is still no evidence of an organized defence line north of the present battle zones nor of an "auxiliary" capital.

Resistance in Pyongyang, the captured Red capital, is flickering out, the intelligence officer said. American tanks have crossed the Taedong and are in the city. Small pockets of Reds and snipers pecked away at United Nations troops.

The intelligence officer said the two North Korean army corps headquarters organizations have been written off. Local guerrilla bands apparently were operating on their own.

MacArthur, who supervised the big parachute drop Friday, said he is confident that triumph for United Nations forces is near.

Five South Korean divisions are preparing to rush to the Manchurian border to cut off escape routes from remaining Red forces.

More and more the communists appeared to be losing their zest for battle. They surrendered in droves and small groups. More than 82,000 war prisoners are held by the allies.

U.S. 1st Cavalrymen and the parachute troops linked forces over the 30-mile stretch between fallen Pyongyang and Suncheon to the north.

An army war summary said the paratroops had secured their objectives in the Suncheon and Sukchon areas.

The South Korean 6th division joined the paratroopers a few hours after the Americans landed.

The air drop was one of the largest in the history of warfare and the only one in this war that has claimed an estimated 200,000 lives since it started June 25.

Afterward, MacArthur landed in Pyongyang and ordered the South Koreans to rush to Red China's Manchurian border as fast as possible.

There was no indication the General planned to send American or other foreign United Nations troops to the border where an incident might involve Russia or Red China.

The border is 80 miles north of Suncheon. Three South Korean divisions are moving up from there.

The U.S. 24th Infantry Division was expected to take Chinnampo, port for Pyongyang.

Red brutality to war prisoners spurred allied troops in their efforts to free the thousands of South Korean and United Nations prisoners seized when the Reds almost overrun the whole peninsula.

They particularly wanted to find the remnants of 289 Americans who participated in a death march from Seoul to Pyongyang.

Three Americans who escaped from that group said the men "died like flies" on the march. Many were beaten or shot to death when they faltered on the long hike.

Some former prisoners have warned the Reds plan to take some of the American prisoners into Manchuria.

Low, Hansell Lead Social Crediters

Regina, Oct. 21.—The Social Credit Association of Canada ended its three-day national convention yesterday by electing four top officers—three to newly-created positions—by acclamation.

E. G. Hansell, Member of Parliament for Macleod, was chosen national president. He will become one of two titular heads of the Social Credit party and will be the association's authority on administration and organization.

Solon Low, Federal Member for Peace River, was re-elected national leader, a position he has held since 1947.

End Of Feed Grain Subsidy Is Forecast

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Farmers today expressed fear that the nine-year, $145,000,000 freight subsidy on western feed grains may become a victim of the government's economy drive.

H. H. Hannam, president of the 400,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said reports that the subsidy plan may be discontinued have persisted for the last 10 days.

In Toronto, D. E. Stauffer of Bright, Ont., president of the United Co-operatives of Ontario, said it has been learned "on good authority" in Ottawa that the Federal Government plans to discontinue the subsidy.

He predicted its removal will mean increases in the price of pork, milk, eggs and other household staples.

The agriculture department, which administers the plan said, however, it had no orders to discontinue payments. Whether there would be changes in the future was for the Cabinet to decide.

One official said the assistance scheme was a war-born measure to stimulate shipments of feed grain to eastern livestock producers.

The subsidy is paid to dealers on the basis of $6 a ton on feed grain moved from the Prairies to British Columbia and to Ontario points. The payments are higher on ship-

Ship Fire Probe Has Concluded

Quebec, Oct. 21.—Sabotage was suggested yesterday as the cause of the cruise ship Quebec fire disaster, when lawyers concluded their final arguments before a court of inquiry into the blaze which cost seven lives last Aug. 14.

The Quebec burned in the St. Lawrence river near Tadoussac, Que.

Gerard Lacroix, K.C., department of transport lawyer, said evidence heard since Sept. 18 when the inquiry opened before Mr. Justice Fernand Choquette, created "strong presumption" of sabotage.

R. C. Holden, K.C., counsel for Canada Steamships Lines, owners of the vessel, said evidence indicated deliberate setting of the fire and interference with the ship's electrical alarm systems was the cause of the loss of life.

Mr. Justice Choquette remarked there was no evidence of a motive for sabotage or of persons interested in destruction of the Quebec.

Mr. Holden said it was a matter for the attorney-general's department. He noted that in the fire of the Noronic at Toronto last year flames had also originated in a linen room, but added there was no evidence of a motive.

Mr. Lacroix agreed that without tampering of the alarm systems there probably would have been no loss of life.

Mr. Lacroix asked if the fact that the Quebec raced to Tadoussac was a reason why too many crew members were away from fire duty. He said no one seemed

Eight Establishments Carry Out Secret Defence Work

Winnipeg, Oct. 21.—Secret research for the armed forces — from chemical and germ warfare to defence against insects — is being done at eight government establishments between Halifax and Esquimaut, B. C.

Their story was outlined last night by Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the defence research board. He said national safety kept him from giving details. He did not mention in his speech to the Manitoba chamber of mines the atomic research known to be under way in the Dominion.

This was his description of work at the boards' eight research projects:

Halifax — the naval research establishment is working on anti-submarine warfare, including "possible new types of naval craft which would have greater speed and other special characteristics."

Valcartier, Que. — The armament research and development establishment is experimenting with guided missiles and other new weapons. It recently perfected a "greatly improved anti-tank round (shell) for the 17-pounder anti-tank gun which will be used by Canada's special force."

Ottawa — the chemical laboratory dealing with "the defensive aspects of chemical and biological warfare," with special attention to chemical warfare in the Arctic.

Ottawa — the radio propagation laboratory, doing radio research in the far north which is of "most importance since 'no count' by Russia is in a position to make the observations that can be made in Canada."

Ottawa — the electronics laboratory which is studying military signals problems and the electrical

French Give Up Another Post

Saigon, Indo-China, Oct. 21.—(AP)—French troops today evacuated their frontier headquarters fortress of Langson, which guarded the main invasion gateway into Indo-China from communist China.

The pivotal French post for the defence of north Indo-China yielded to communist-led nationalist troops after a French occupation of 78 years.

Control of Langson swings wide the frontier door for Ho Chi Minh's Soviet-backed regime to supply sources and training bases in Red China.

The French army communique said the evacuation was effected to permit the regrouping of French forces into new strategic mobile reserves. It said the French would take the offensive as soon as the reorganization and disposition is accomplished.

Former U.S. War Secretary Henry L. Stimson Is Dead

Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, 83, first American to hold Cabinet office under four Presidents, died yesterday of a heart attack.

Stimson was Secretary of War under President William Howard Taft, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman, and was Herbert Hoover's only Secretary of State.

Three months ago Stimson fell and broke his hip, but was making a good recovery and getting about with wheelchair and crutches. Yesterday he and Mrs. Stimson set out on a drive around the estate. He was stricken in the car.

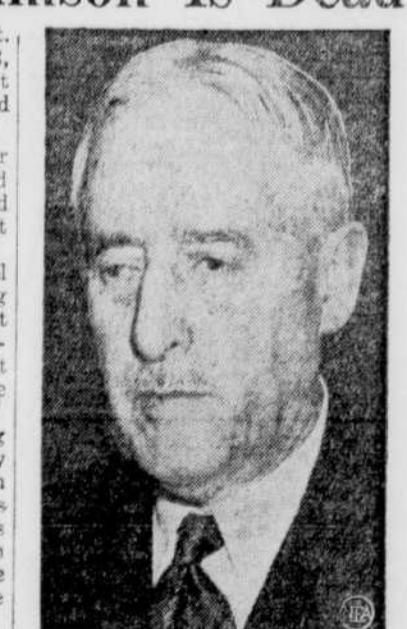

Stimson was the first leading statesman in any western country to demand a tough crackdown on the aggressors of the 1930s. His policy failed at the time, but as American Secretary of War from Pearl Harbor to Hiroshima, he directed the army and air force that helped redeem it.

While Stimson's four years as Secretary of State, 1929 to 1933, were distinguished, military men and historians have ranked him below Lincoln's Edwin M. Stanton as one of the two greatest Secretaries of War in American history.

His association with the war department was unique.

He was first called to the office in 1911 by President Taft. At that time the American army had only 75,000 men and had just taken over the German general staff system that had been adopted by every big army in the world.

He left the post in 1913 and did not take it up again until 1940—

Henry L. Stimson

27 years later—when Franklin D. Roosevelt called him back to duty during the Second World War at the age of 73.

A life-long Republican, Stimson was asked to serve in a move to gain bi-partisan support in the war emergency. As a result of his acceptance, he was read out of the Republican party.

When he left the office for the last time in September, 1946, he had directed the mobilization and use of an 8,000,000-man army that

AGA KHAN MAKES SCREEN DEBUT THROUGH DUSTY HUNTING TROPHY

Hollywood — Movies Without Popcorn: Hollywood may have jumped the camera crank and plucked the hidden mike of the early talkies out of the bowl of roses, but the machinery designed to transform a foreign dishing into a Garbo or Dietrich is working on all six.

This time it's Italian movie queen Valentina Cortese who is being pressed into the five-pointed American mould in "The House on Telegraph Hill."

Valentina's first stint at the studio was as a coarse lady of the evening with a taste for digging her fingernails into the bare chests of helpless males. But now she's getting a double-strength glamour varnish in a movie that gives her a chance to wear revealing gowns and to sprint down the obstacle course of emotion.

As Bill Lundigan pretends to do an Oscar Levant at a piano, Valentina faces him in the scene. Nobody's going to look at Lundigan in this scene and he knows it. Valentina's bare back is certain to steal the show from him the way that Corinne Griffith's shoulder blades once filched scenes in silent films from Lewis Stone.

There's a huge elephant tusk in camera range. I blink at the inscription on the plaque. It reads: "Shot—German East Africa—By the Aga Khan—1899."

Now Rita Hayworth's pap-in-law has crashed the movies! Mitchum Makes Like Marx Jane Russell and Bob Mitchum are playing a scene set against the background of an oriental gambling den in "Macao" at RKO.

It's the second co-starring picture for Jane and Bob, who swings from off-stage horseplay to torrid love scenes without any effort. Director Joseph von Sternberg is worried over the action and asks his stars to run through the scene for camera angles. Jane plays it straight, but Mitchum goes into a Groucho Marx lope.

The suspense in this particular scene, I am told, will be centered in the dress than Jane is wearing. It's supposed to make moviegoers wonder how in the heck the dress stays on Jane's chassis.

A trained chimpanzee who stops acting when Director Frederick de Cordova yells "Cut" is the big attraction on U.I.'s "Bedtime for Bonzo" set. Diana Lynn and Ronald Reagan are the stars of the comedy, but the animal actor is drawing attention away from them.

In the sequence being rehearsed, Reagan tip-toes down a hallway and peers into the nursery occupied by the chimp. He flubs his lines and when de Cordova orders another take, Reagan says:

"I don't know why you're worrying about me when everybody's going to be looking at that blankety-blank-blank monkey."

Gig Young, Mark Stevens, Don Taylor and Robert Douglas, are working in "Prisoner of War" on the same lot. Young and Douglas are Nazi interrogating officers who have picked up a group of American flyers shot down in France. The set is a lavish reproduction of a French chateau, complete with nude statues.

Director George Sherman tells me about the time Charlie Einfield sought Joseph Breen's permission to use unclothed female statues in a picture. Einfield, according to Sherman, brought along sketches and explained that the figures were to represent tangles.

"Angels, my eye." Censor Breen is reported to have thundered. "They're naked women with wings on."

Reel Lawn Unreal "Lights Out," an film about blind war veterans, is being shot on the back lot. Equipment has been set up in the middle of the studio's permanent village street and extras are taking it easy on porch swings while Art Kennedy and newcomer Betty Adams play a highly dramatic scene. Kennedy, as a blinded top those old joy-bells into music so sweet that the angels will stoop to listen?

Ring on, ye Bells, inviting God's children to assemble and meet together to render thanks for the great benefits we have received at His hands, to set forth His most worthy praise, to hear His most holy Word and to ask those things which are requisite and necessary, as well for the body as the soul.

Ring on, "ye deare church bells," calling sinners to humbly acknowledge their sins before God and then assured that God pardoneth and absolveth sin, sing, love, pray.

Permit these bells to help you banish strife and variance to kindling all together in love to "Jesus only," who saves us from our sins and ever liveth to make intercession for us. (Heb. 7:25).

Won't you, here and now, resolve to accept the accept the invitation of those dear old Church Bells and grow in grace, loving Christ daily better until we see His face?

This is the challenge of Bells, and, to me, in particular—the Bells of St. Luke's!

Hollywood is the only place in the world where a lush, green lawn will go up in smoke.

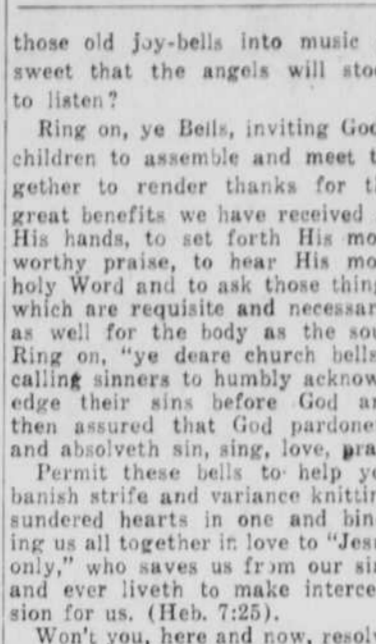

"Best of the Bad Men," an outdoor opera dealing with Jessie James and the Younger brothers at the close of the Civil War, is shooting at RKO. I look on while Claire Trevor plays a scene with Robert Preston. Later, while the camera is being reloaded, I comment on Claire's blowing pink period dress.

"It's got hoops in it," shurgs Claire, and that means that Bob Mitchum will be over at any minute to ask me if I'm wearing anything underneath it. He always does."

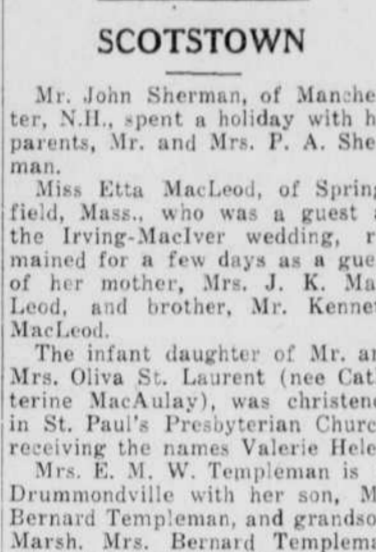

Mr. R. C. Dickson accompanied his son, William, of Montreal, to Grimby, Ont., where they spent the week-end at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Wallace Dickson, who is seriously ill.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

MINNIE LOSES 1000 POINTS In our last installment Minnie the Melder had just completed a canasta in nines and discarded an ace. Left in her hand were two kings, two eights and a deuce.

Minnie's partner, Hold-up Harry, held ten cards and her side had also melded three fours and three queens.

The pack was frozen and the opponents still needed 120 for an initial meld. Minnie's ace discard got by, and her next draw was another ace. She discarded this one also, whereupon the roof finally fell in. Her opponent on the left had finally acquired his count and had always held two aces. He took the discard pile and made several melds.

Harry drew and as usual melded nothing at all. George drew and completed two canastas and added cards to some of his partner's other melds. Minnie drew and failed to go out. The next player drew and completed two more canastas for his side. Then Harry drew and finally came to life and made a couple of melds. On her next play Minnie drew a third eight and went out.

The final result was that Minnie's side lost about a thousand points net on the hand.

Now for some fun. If Minnie had been willing to follow Harry's hold-up play from the start we can't tell what would have happened. The worst that could have happened would be that George's side would be very lucky and go out before Minnie and Harry made much of a score. The best that could happen would be that Minnie and Harry would control the discard pile right through a long successful hand and would score enough points to win the game

Entertainment, Education Combined As Sherbrooke So-Ed Is Ushered In

Adults of Sherbrooke and district will soon have the opportunity of belonging to something new. The body is called SO-ED (Social-Educational) and is open to anyone from the age of 18 years up.

SO-ED started some years ago in the Y.M.C.A. of Vancouver, and has since swept the country. So successful has SO-ED proven in Canada that it was copied in the United States, the reverse of so many other organizations.

Until this autumn, no such program had been offered to Sherbrooke, but the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. are working together to institute this outstanding adult event here.

I've found the best place to stay in Sherbrooke... the New Sherbrooke Hotel! It's right downtown; good parking; good food; good service!

Polish Pianist Maryla Jonas Coming Here

The story of Maryla Jonas, Polish pianist who will be heard here on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Community Concerts Association, is a true fairy tale, a tale of somber shades, lightning and thunder magnificent laughter and colossal heights.

Before coming to America Miss Jonas worked with the famous pianist Emil Sauer. She later won one of the International Chopin prizes of 1932 and the International Beethoven prize of Vienna in 1933. This was the beginning of a series of European tours which earned her ever increasing success. In 1937 and 38 she gave a series of Mozart festival recitals in Salzburg, which were also enthusiastically acclaimed.

When the Nazis invaded Poland in 1939, Miss Jonas and her family were in Warsaw. She, her husband and the rest of her family were all separated, wandering from cellar to cellar seeking refuge from the areas smacked by bombs. Her home was gone, her father's house requisitioned by the Germans and herself caught in the periodic Gestapo roundup.

After being locked up for seven months because she would not play the piano in Berlin at the request of the Gestapo, her escape was made possible by a high German officer. Miss Jonas started on foot from Warsaw. It took weeks. She walked from Warsaw to Cracow, from Cracow to Katowice, scarcely ever eating. Most of her family perished at the hands of the Germans.

When she finally managed to get to America, it was Arthur Rubinstein who saved her life and her career. He visited her, and asked her to play, reminding her that it was the duty of surviving Poles to show that their people had given much to the world. Still, she could not play.

Finally Rubinstein persuaded her to go over to the theatre to hear him rehearse a program. He played then asked her to try out the piano so he might hear how it sounded for acoustics. She pleaded that her fingers were stiff. Finally, she felt that she could not refuse him the favor, she sat down. It was around 2:30 p.m., when she put her fingers to the keyboard, and 7:30 before she rose from the piano. In the meantime the hall had filled up with many people, from management to stage hands, and she received a rousing ovation.

From then on her career was assured and following her Carnegie Hall recital New York critics hailed her as one of the top pianists in the world.

Olin Downes in the New York Times said, "She is a poet and master of her instrument. On the basis of this recital, she has few equals as an interpreter among the leading pianists of the day."

Community Chest Returns Reach 18 Per Cent Of $45,996 Objective

Donations to the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Red Feather campaign now total $8,500, or 18 per cent of the $45,996 objective, co-chairman Forest Keene announced last night.

The three-week Community Chest drive is scheduled to end in 10 days' time and Mr. Keene appealed to canvassers to bring in their returns as quickly as possible and to complete their calls so there will be no undue delay in closing the campaign.

A wider response by the people of the district is needed if the objective, highest in local Community Chest history, is to be met.

Seven organizations will share in the receipts and the $45,996 objective is the minimum amount with which they can function efficiently.

The organizations are the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, St. John Ambulance Association, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Sherbrooke Library and Art Union and Lennoxville Library.

Ballet Is Entertainment Not "Culture," Canadian Expert Tells Women's Club

"We will view the ballet with new eyes, when we have the opportunity to see one here in Sherbrooke," said Mrs. A. W. Preston, president of the Women's Canadian Clubs of the Eastern Townships in her speech of thanks to managers of the Winnipeg Ballet, David Yeddeau, who was guest speaker last night at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

To use his own words, Mr. Yeddeau gave an informal talk on a formal subject, to the women's group. He wished to instill in people a general appreciation of ballet and, in so doing, he cleared up several common misconceptions about the art.

"Ballet is fun, it is entertaining," Mr. Yeddeau stated. "It is not culture."

"A dance recital is not a ballet," he added.

"We are doing Canadian ballets," he said, "and these need not include fine trees and Mounted Police. We must have something better than a fashed up version of Rose Marie."

Mr. Yeddeau said there were four types of ballet and what was particularly confusing to the occasional ballet-goer and novice (the opposite of which is Balletomanie or ardent ballet fan) is the first type — the romantic and classical ballet.

"The appreciation here," the ballet expert told his listeners, "is for the dancers' technique. Don't try to understand it. Let us seep into you and don't try to read things into the ballet that are not there." The speaker stated that this type of ballet was the one in which the dancers were invariably dressed in the "queen" clothes, long gowns or very short dresses — tutus as the balletomanes would say.

"In ballet," Mr. Yeddeau said, "every step has a name but not necessarily a meaning."

The second type of ballet is the abstract or interpretative ballet and this he illustrated by referring to Liszt's "Les Preludes" in which there are two lines of eight ballet girls each on the stage. The first eight represent different degrees of strength and the second line symbolizes different conflicts. Also on the scene, is a male dancer and he has "love" and "courage" with him. As the music changes his emotions change and so deep meaning and feeling are expressed in ballets of this type.

The third form is the character ballet and this one tells a story. The Beau Danube by Strauss is in this category. The fourth type is the national ballet which can be many peasant dances of different lands, with no thread to link them together, all on the same program.

"Ballet," Mr. Yeddeau said, "is composed of three things, dancing, music and painting, which includes the stage and costume designs. One's first experience with ballet is like the first sight of a painting. The first view is that of the color surrounding the stage, then the composition of the picture and finally the technique of the artist."

Mr. Yeddeau stated that a ballerina must have brains, not necessarily beauty. He told of the many things a dancer must have on her mind for even the shortest of movements and of the years of experience and practice necessary before one is a finished performer. He told of the difficulties experienced by the Winnipeg Ballet which, with Gwenth Lloyd, he helped to found — of the financial failure and disasters, Red River flood threats and British Columbia landslides, before the company were hosts to the First Canadian Festival a few years ago.

The Winnipeg Ballet Company now boasts 4,000 members, the speaker stated. Mr. Yeddeau said that his ballet company was doing Canadian ballet, with original music, choreography (choreography is to ballet what the dramatist is to drama), costumes and settings.

The week of November 20th, Montreal will be host to the Dominion Ballet Festival of this year and Mr. Yeddeau's troupe will put on "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," based on that verse by Canadian writer Robert W. Service.

Mr. Yeddeau paid tribute to the Women's Canadian Clubs and said that it was thanks to the women of Canada that art in our country was forging ahead. He is being sponsored by the Canadian Clubs across the country and Sherbrooke was his 14th stop. Of these, 12 speeches were to women's groups.

Mrs. C. H. Niles, club president, introduced the speaker. A short business session was held following Mr. Yeddeau's address. Mrs. J. A. Hezard read the audited treasurer's report and it was announced that the ladies would soon have the opportunity of hearing the Hon. T.C.A. Hislop, New Zealand's High Commissioner to Canada. Seated at the head table were Mr. Yeddeau, Mrs. Niles, Mrs. Hogg, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. J. A. Stewart, Mrs. Reginald Turpin and Mrs. Newman Hunt.

The meeting was attended by 138 members and guests.

Lecture On Christian Science Given

Will B. Davis, C.S.B., of Chicago, a member of the board of lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, spoke last night at a lecture on Christian Science in First Church of Christ, Scientist, here.

Mr. Davis, remarks, in part, follow:

Almost everyone is seeking a way out of some situation that is becoming unsatisfactory. To gain and maintain a sense of harmony and freedom requires much more than a lax acceptance of the unlimited bestowals of God's boundless goodness.

Freedom must be earned, and if it is to continue, it must be accepted, utilized, and maintained. Paul in his epistle to the Galatians emphasized this point when he wrote: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Gal. 5:1).

There is ample evidence in Paul's writings that he had learned that the true followers of our great Master can express the Christ and thereby heal as Jesus did. It was this discovery that the Christ may be entertained in human consciousness that enabled Mary Baker Eddy to bring to this age the way of freedom from human disorders and limitations.

When we learn how to keep our human thinking in close communion with the one supreme intelligence, the one Mind or Principle called God, we are letting in the healing Christ. Mrs. Eddy not only discovered how this may be done, but she proved the accuracy of her discovery by bringing freedom from all manner of sickness and in harmony to thousands who were in need.

It was in 1866 that she rose from that was considered to be hopelessly dead as she contemplated the Bible account of one of the healings of Jesus. It was thus that Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science; but not until nine years later, in 1875, did she publish the first edition of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (The Christian Science text-book explains fully just how healings were accomplished by Jesus and his early followers, and how the same method may be successfully utilized today).

In the Preface of Science and Health you will find an interesting exposition of some of the steps which were taken by Mrs. Eddy before she was ready to publish a complete statement of Christian Science. On page ix she makes this significant observation: "She had learned that this Science must be demonstrated by healing, before a work on the subject could be profitably studied." On the next page she declares: "By thousands of well-authenticated cases have proved the worth of her teachings. These cases for the most part have been abandoned as hopeless by regular medical attendants. Few invalids will turn to God till all physical supports have failed, because there is so little faith in His disposition and power to heal disease."

While serving as a Christian Science Wartime Worker, a Navy Chaplain asked me one morning, "How does it happen that a Christian Scientist has the mumps?" I replied that Christian Scientists seem to have difficulties along with the rest of mankind, but they overcome them in a different way. The scriptures contain many accounts of the troubles of the early Christians and how they were corrected through the teachings and practice of our Way-shower. The Psalmist wrote, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all" (Ps. 34:19). Jesus overcame the crucifixion, and we are profoundly grateful that we are learning through Christian Science to heal as he did, through spiritual means alone.

Visiting Bank Official Foresees Even Greater Rise In Canadian Industry

Bank of Montreal managers in Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships held a conference on Friday at the bank's main office, 59 Wellington street north.

The parity, which discussed important changes in the economic picture, as well as business operation in the Eastern Townships, was under the leadership of A. J. L. Hassell, deputy general manager of the bank's head office in Montreal. He was assisted by Thomas C. Bowen, assistant general manager in charge of Eastern Canadian branches, and Fred W. Quabe, superintendent of branches in this district.

Also present at the conference were: V. R. Purser, superintendent of staff, R. L. Curphy, manager of the main branch of Sherbrooke, Armand Laberge, manager of the bank's upper town branch, and a number of other managers of the Eastern Townships.

Dealing with the business situation, Mr. Hassell spoke of the recent quickened pace of Canadian industry which he said had risen to new records which were clearly apparent in the Eastern Townships.

"I am profoundly impressed with the industrial growth of this city and the surrounding area," he said, "and the important contribution which is being made towards a prosperous and attractive community life."

Mr. Hassell said that Canadian exports to the U.S. have risen spectacularly with the increase of business activity in that country.

Originally the 110-foot cross was to have been blessed last Sunday but the ceremony was postponed because of the muddy condition of the road leading to the cross. Tomorrow's event will be put off for another week if conditions are not suitable.

Installation of the lighting has not been completed but otherwise the cross, a symbol of Holy Year, is almost in its finished state.

WORTHY OF STUDY

The suggestion placed before the Union of Proprietors League of the Province of Quebec, advanced by Senator Jacob Nicol, M.L.C., and endorsed by Premier Maurice Duplessis, that greater use be made of existing government facilities rather than by increasing the number of these services is one that merits close study by those organizations charged with the handling of public monies. The growth of the population and the inauguration of new government agencies, many of which are on a limited hour basis, has brought demands for new buildings to house scholars, civil servants, etc., all of which mean an increasing burden upon the taxpayers.

The construction of new schools is a case in point. Great new edifices are being erected constantly in the larger cities to meet the growing demands for educational facilities. But unfortunately, these new schools and the older existing establishments are in use for only five or six hours daily. It would seem that some system could be evolved, especially in the thickly populated areas, whereby the useful time of these structures could be doubled without any substantial increase in capital investment.

This does not mean that new school construction would be halted entirely, as in many newly-developing areas there are no adequate school facilities at the present and it is not reasonable that young pupils be compelled to travel long distances to receive their basic education. But in many areas there is a demand for the extension of already modern and well-equipped buildings.

Similar conditions exist in other branches of the government service. Almost every day, the governments are being called upon to provide some new service to some particular locality. Very often this involves the rental of premises for a part-time staff when a study in co-ordination would show many other services with offices which are idle for considerable periods each day. The interlinking of these services would result in a substantial reduction in operating costs for the taxpayers.

The Canadian taxpayer faces a heavy increase in his burden in the near future for defence and social services, but a comprehensive study of potential economies would reveal large savings that could partially meet these other needs.

SENATE REFORM ESSENTIAL

The death of Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, which reduces the Opposition representation in the Canadian Senate to eleven, only serves to strengthen the demand which has been voiced frequently in many quarters that some means be taken to alter the method of selecting the members of the Red Chamber. The overwhelming Liberal majority in the Upper Chamber is a direct contradiction to the ideas of the Fathers of Confederation held when they insisted upon the creation of a second chamber for the purpose of reviewing and revising the legislation which might be rushed through the elective Lower House. Outnumbering the Opposition by approximately eight to one, it is obvious that the appointive chamber, with very few exceptions, will provide nothing more than a rubber stamp for the decisions of the Commons.

To expect the government of the day to appoint strong supporters of the official opposition to the attractive Senate positions would be to overlook the very basis of practical politics—that of using such plums as are available to award faithful partisans. The only alternative to an ultimate one party chamber is to find a new basis for selecting the Senators, or at least a substantial portion of them.

One favored suggestion is to change the character of the Senate to make it something of an advisory council, the members to be selected by the federal and provincial governments and various established public bodies. Another is to limit the term for which Senators are appointed, either by establishing a definite period of years or by setting a retirement age. The latter system would mean, at least, that any change in the party in power in the Commons would be followed within a reasonable time by a change in the complexion of the Senate—something now unlikely for the better part of a generation.

MARY'S LAMB SHOULD BE TWINS TO LICK WORLD WOOL SHORTAGE
 By PETER EDSON

Washington—(NFA)—The prospect is that a $10 pair of pants—men's pants, that is—will now cost $18 of pants cost up to $30. Translating this into suits of clothes, a pre-war suit which used to cost $45 now costs near $75 and may go to $90 next year.

This whole business is due to sharp increases in the price of raw wool. Last January, the best grade of secured wool sold on the Boston market for $1.58 a pound. At a recent open market wool auction in London, the price soared to nearly $3 a pound on some of the finer lots.

All this is having its effect not only on the cost of living, but on the cost of the war. If increasing large armies have to be winter-uniformed in $3 a pound wool, its runs into money. There are about five pounds of raw wool in a uniform and another five pounds in an overcoat, to say nothing of the blankets.

At the end of the last year there were about three billion pounds of wool in stockpile reserve. The wool trade figured that at normal rates of consumption, it would take 12 years to get rid of this surplus. Wool growers cut down on production and sheep herds were reduced.

RESERVE MELTED QUICKLY

So great was the pent-up demand for wool clothing, however, that this big surplus was used up in less than five years. With production at low levels, along came new war scares, increasing the demand. That's what shot up the price.

The $17 billion supplemental defense appropriation bill just passed by Congress contained one provision ordering the government to stockpile 100 million pounds of the three best grades of raw wool. If somebody had been far-sighted enough to have ordered that a year ago, a mint of money might have been saved.

So acute is the world wool supply situation, an international wool study group met in London early in October. The 20 principal wool-using and producing countries were represented. An effort was made to allocate available supplies at prices agreed on by the allocators. But all price-fixing moves were fought by the Australians, who are the principal wool producers. They are more than raking in the dough in the present free market auctions.

As for increasing production, that takes time, and Mother Nature can't be hurried. Or maybe she can. Experiments are now being made by Armour and Company to increase lamb production. Using hormones, the aim is to make ewes produce two lambs a year, in place of the usual one. But this experiment is not far enough along to tell how successful it will be.

Main reliance on making available wool supplies cover as many backs as possible is being placed on still greater use of synthetic fibers for blending with wool to make suitings. Use of these blends—principally rayon, with some nylon—has been the principal factor in keeping down the price of clothing in the past year.

About half of the summer suitings—tropical worsteds and the like—were made of these blends. Wool content of these suits was reduced from five pounds to three. For next summer, worsted nylon blends may contain only two pounds of wool.

SYNTHETIC FIBER IS NOT FULLY DEVELOPED

The DuPont company's new "orlon" thread is not far enough along to offer any great hope to alleviate the shortage. Hailed originally as a synthetic wool, the orlon filament does not have many of the properties of a wool. But it is being produced now only as a monofilament, and not as a short staple for spinning into a woolly thread.

DuPont's first orlon plant, at Camden, S. C., was opened in July but is just now getting into full production (about 6 1/2 million pounds a year), employing 500 people. It represents a $7 million research program plus $15 million in plant construction costs.

A second orlon unit now being built at Camden will employ 1,000 people and produce an estimated three or four times as much fiber, but won't be in production until 1952. It will produce staple fibers. Research for the staple production was done in a pilot plant at Waynesboro, Va.

Orlon's greatest asset is its resistance to sunlight and ultraviolet rays. It is at present undegrading and produced only as an off-white. But it can be bleached and it could be pigmented as the filament is drawn. Most of the orlon now being produced is going into industrial uses, principally for cordage and tenting. It will be some years before it may find use as an extender in fabrics, to relieve the wool shortage. Its price now is between rayon and nylon. Eventually, it may be cheaper than nylon.

THE MUTE RETURNS

From the Peterborough Examiner
 The National Industrial Conference Board of the U. S. A., recently received a report from the Professional Funeralers' Association, a union which wants every funeral to be a union funeral, at which relatives and friends of the P. P. A. insist that all its members be six feet tall, weigh 180 pounds and wear a size 40 suit. They appear at funerals wearing morning dress ($4 an hour), grey flannel ($3.50) or plain blue suits ($3).

We find the demand of the P. P. A. amusing but not outlandish. Anyone who has read Evelyn Waugh's novel The Loved One knows how far the nonsense associated with some modern funerals can be carried. What really interests us is that, from the dark backward and abyss of time, the mutes have spoken. They have insisted that once again they have their place at every well-conducted funeral.

Some of our older readers may remember mutes. They were hired mourners who attended Victorian funerals; it was part of the undertaker's task to hire as many as were wanted. If we may believe the testimony of Charles Dickens (and who would be better qualified to speak?) the mutes were generally recruited from public-houses and taverns, and their presence added a strong smell of gin to the proceedings.

There were "walking mutes", who strode beside the hearse itself; they carried tall staves, to which decorative knots of crape had been fixed. The lesser mutes simply followed the mourners, looking as sad as they could manage, and—if they hoped to rise in their profession—weeping a little, but not so copiously as to appear to claim relationship with the corpse.

Mutes were of both sexes, and readers of Dickens will also recall that Oliver Twist, when apprenticed to Mr. Sowerberry, had to serve as a child mute, for those Victorian funerals of children which were so pathetically frequent.

Now it appears, the mutes have a union. The streamlined, Americanized, atomic modern mute wants to put the finger on every funeral, drawing his pay according to the suit he wears. And why not? The gravediggers are organized, and every now and again they strike. Why not the mutes?

The Bells Of St. Luke

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

Are you interested in Bells—Church Bells? With some of them I have many dear associations. The bells of the Church of Boothed days I shall never forget. Then the bells of the Chapel of St. Luke's, attached to the Diocesan Theological College, 3475 University Street, Montreal, are still dear to me. Across the years I still hear them. Their music and message are exceedingly dear. Dear, too, are the bells of St. Mark's Chapel, Lennoxville, to the hearts of those who own "Bishop's" as their fond mother.

But this is October and on the 18th the Church recalled the life and work of Luke the Gospelist, whose praise is in the Cantic according to Saint Luke—to many the most beautiful of all gospels with its soothing, healing, inspiring music. If we would heed and apply their wholesome medicine of doctrine which the Church of God offers, our souls would be healed and we would live abundantly, victoriously, happily ever afterward. And thanksgiving would issue in thanksgiving!

For does not the sweet Church Bell, as it peals o'er hill and dale, sing, as joyously it peals and challenges us to praise Jesus Christ. "In everything give thanks." (1 Thess. 5:18).

In the countryside, Bells are loved. I know of nothing lovelier to hear on a calm night than these "dear dear bells." I once heard Canon Shattford say he loved the quiet of the Sabbath in his home by the sea in Nova Scotia, and the music of the bells calling people to worship God on Sunday morning was the sweetest music this side of heaven.

Often as I go about the Townships, I hear the "Angelus" ringing, and looking across the fields, see people make the sign of the Cross and pray!

What a story these Bells would tell could they speak! Remember the story of Dick Whittington who on his way to London town became so tired and despondent that he threatened to return back home but for the bells which rang out—"Try again Whittington, Lord Mayor of London" and, inspired, he travelled on to London and fame. And what of the millions who have heard the hymns of yesterday recall those far-off days when they were pure and good and true and, challenging them, begin again living a new life walking in the Ruler's appointed way. Are not these Bells then ambassadors from on High, warning and leading souls to God? They stir our souls to their very depths and cause us to pause and have a think about things eternal.

"COME AND WORSHIP"
 As I turn back the Pages of Time I recall that day our beloved Rector Canon Noel, of blessed memory, hallowed the bells of dear old St. Paul's. These bells, he assured us, were the voice of life, "I call you to come to prayer," they say; "From St. Paul's steeple—I call the people on Holy days—To prayer praise." Their motto? My mouth shall show forth thy praise. (Ps. 51:15). So the Church bells issue friendly invitation to all to come and worship God. (Rev. 22:9). For are not those who are members of Christ's mystical Body, the Church, brothers, friends in Christ? Into God's House we come in—all of us—as miserable sinners—but may we not also go out—all of us—as redeemed sinners, as potential saints? As Evelyn Underhill says: "Many a congregation, when I assemble in Church must look to the angels like a muddy, puddly shod at low-tide, littered with every kind of rubbish, and odds and ends—a distressing spectacle. And then, the great tide of worship comes in, and it is all gone: the dead searuchs and jelly-fish, the paper, and the empty tins and nameless bits of rubbish. The cleansing sea flows over the whole lot. So we are released from a narrow, selfish outlook on the universe by a common act of worship. Our little human affairs are reduced to their proper proportions, when set over against the spaceless majesty and beauty of God."

Worship then Christ the King! Doctor Luke, with both poetic and prophetic insight, proclaims Jesus

So, after worship, go forth, aflame for Christ and His Cause, as an evangelist, showing by the quality of your life those you are and whom you serve.

SING! LOVE! WHISP!

Surely then these "prayers of love, echoes of mercy" which ring across our countryside from the steeples of St. Luke's, Waterloo and St. George's, Arterloo, the attention of listening people, enriching their lives and bidding them be filled with Divine Goodness, lost in Divine Love? In tones, so rich and clear, they remind us of heavenly music; our radios are never lacking with popular music!

I am responsibly grateful to those who are increasing the hearing of Bells daily perform their Ministry of music in an era when the accent is on "busyness" with people so keen on making a living that they neglect to develop the spiritual life of an heir of salvation, purchase of God, born of His spirit, washed in His Blood. And I am praying that their joyous bells resounding on every common day may stir our hearts to gladness, to sing, to love, to pray! And when our spirits waver, or trials harsh assail, then "Christ shall never fail!" Thus shall our joys and sorrows be mingled with their sound, "till we in heaven's mansions God's holy throne surround, with many thousand voices, to glorify our Lord, Whose Name by men and angels is worshipped and adored."

"ONE LORD"

Of Bells as a uniting factor I think when I recall that evening in Atlantic City, N.J., in January, 1931, when I heard five hymns pealed from a nearby Methodist Church. Of other days, and other choirs, village and city, small and large, I muse.

The hymns? "Abide With Me," by Rev. H. F. Lytle, an Anglican; "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," written by Sir John Browning, a Baptist; "Nearer My God To Thee," by Sarah Adams, a Unitarian; "Jesus Lover of My Soul," by John Wesley; and "Lead Kindly Light," by John Henry Newman, an English Anglican, who later became a Roman Catholic Cardinal.

Here there were these five hymns written by members of different faiths and yet people listened, hummed, and sang them without asking the church membership of the authors. Music, you see, is a universal and uniting language. And in this instance pointed to One Lord, Jesus, who prayed

The Record Short Story
Mother's Footsteps
 By BELLE BRUCK

In the kitchen, Mrs. Driscoll, the housekeeper who came by the day, was preparing dinner. A company dinner, Carla knew. She knew who the company was to be, too. Her name was Peg Newton and she was going to be Carla's new mother, and tonight Carla would be seeing her for the first time.

Dad had spoken to her about it the evening before, and it was all so strange and exciting, Carla, lying stomach down on the rug in her room, concentrating on the new story book before her.

She looked around the familiar room, remembering what Cousin Della had said to Cousin Phillip last week while she was sitting over in the green armchair. "The place has gone to seed terribly since Jean died, hasn't it? And really Howard should send Carla away to school. Be the best Carla for both of them. I'm going to keep after him until he gives in."

Jean, of course, was her mother, the mother she barely remembered from life, but whose every feature she knew so painfully well from the large framed photograph on the living room table. How often she had stood in front of it filled with despairing determination, especially after a visit from her mother's relatives.

Her mother had been beautiful. "Your mother was a great beauty," the female cousins and aunts and sometimes even uncles would say to Carla every time they came. Then invariably one of them would look more like their beautiful adored Jean. It had got so that she hated mirrors and the only she had looked in them at all was to see if maybe her brown hair was beginning to turn gold like her mother's and whether her eyes were changing from hazel to deep blue. Sometimes she did think that her freckles were getting lighter.

She didn't really care so much about not following in her mother's footsteps because of the relatives. It was Dad. For surely if she were a disappointment to her mother's family, then she must also be failing her father. How she hated that thought! If her mother's relatives expected her to take her mother's place, then surely her father did, too, maybe even more so. But how could she, what with the freckles and all?

It was for his sake that she prayed every night that she'd get the contrary, she always looked a terrible fuss over her, but how could she be sure he wasn't deep down wishing she was like her mother, the way the relatives were?

Then last night he'd patted the seat next to him on the sofa and when she'd sat down beside him, he'd said "Carla, remember me talking to you about a Miss Newton—Peg—who works in the office with me?"

"You mean the one who sent me that wooden puzzle and the story books?"

Dad had nodded. "Well, you know the funniest thing happened. I asked her to marry me and she said yes. I don't mean that's funny, but I never expected it to happen so soon and suddenlike and that we "All may be here." He (John 7:21). To His church He gave the key—Love! Neither hatred nor unkind criticism, neither sweeping assumptions nor unfounded claims. If you find these manifestations of Christ, Love only dwells where Christ is! So we must make Christ—Love—central and, dropping all agitating, blood-raising questions, think thoughts, speak words, and do deeds that make the world friendly to Jesus Whose blameless character, self-denying death and heavenly home melt our hearts, immediately and unconditionally demanding loving, friendly Christianity.

If you have allowed the world to steal the joy-bells of your blood Jesus, why not forthwith surrender to Him Who is able to touch and

Carla considered this brand new idea. "You mean nobody has to try and take my mother's place?"

Miss Newton drew Carla over to her and Carla liked having Miss Newton's arm around her. Before she knew what she was about she'd told her all about the reproachful way her mother's relatives looked at her and even about the clothes.

"Why, you poor little!" Miss Newton began, her eyes flashing. "Now you listen, Carla. If your father really wanted anybody to follow exactly in your mother's footsteps, he'd have picked someone who looked like her, wouldn't he? That makes sense, doesn't it?"

Carla nodded. "Well, he picked me. So you see, no matter what Cousin Della and the rest of them say, he just wants you to make your own place and you've done that from the minute you were born."

Carla's eyes went to the photograph again, but they weren't worried now. For inside she felt light and free.

Ascot Metals Sell 500,000 Treasury Shares

Ascot Metals Corporation Limited has sold 500,000 treasury shares firm at $2 per share, with $500,000 immediately receivable and the balance spread over a six months period. The new capital will cover all outstanding indebtedness of the company, at the same time providing operating funds for the Sufield mine development. Delayed returns from concentrate shipments, together with supplies and available cash under the new deal, will give Ascot working capital of approximately $800,000, leaving only current liabilities.

At the Sufield property the shaft has reached a depth of 50 feet, the collar has been poured and sinking is being resumed. Necessary mining equipment has been bought and partially delivered; a new head frame has been secured and is en route to the property.

Plans are being prepared for mill structures and equipment to handle 1,000 tons of ore at the Sufield, with a starting rate of 500 tons daily. Permanent mining equipment will be installed when the initial development is completed.

At the original Moulton Hill mine, now producing at the rate of 350 tons daily and working up to 400 tons, development is being continued. The shaft has reached 1,000 ft., with 7 levels opened. The sixth level has opened 473 ft. of ore, still continuing, and the 7th level has entered ore. Regular shipments of concentrates are being made and profits, in the third month of milling, are mounting. Production in September had a value, after freight and smelting charges, of approximately $81,094 and October output will be higher. Capitalized at 3,500,000 shares of $1 par, 2,000,000 shares were issued for the various properties and structures. The 1,500,000 remaining treasury shares were sold for $1,454,995, or an average of 97 cents per share.

W. I. Asked To Observe United Nations Day

A call has gone out to the 3,000 members of the Women's Institutes of this province to make a special observance in their branches this year of United Nations Day, which falls on Oct. 24. Rural women have been urged by Mrs. E. S. Reed, Gaspé, Provincial Citizen-Servant, to use the day to get up-to-date on the work of the United Nations. During the past few months, mothers have asked themselves pointed questions as to whether the Korean war would spread into a world conflagration and how soon it would be before their husbands or sons would be called again to serve in the armed forces.

The W.I. through its members in hundreds of communities, seeks to encourage boys and girls to study the aims and operations of the U.N. and Mrs. Reed concludes her message by saying, "The Quebec Women's Institutes believe that women have a special part to play in enlightening the intelligent interest and support of their fellow-citizens in the United Nations as an instrument for peace."

Pancho Segura Is Sure He Can Beat J. Kramer

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Pancho Segura is sure he'll knock over Jack Kramer in their professional tennis opener next Thursday, said Segura's manager in a dither—she doesn't know what in the world she'll wear.

"I think I take this Kramer," Pancho, the 29-year-old pride of Ecuador said Thursday night as Bobby Riggs' troupe gathered to launch another swing.

"I beat Jack two of the last two times we played—in Nationals and at Paris. I think I got his number."

"In this you win quick or get beat quick. The man in condition wins. I'm in 'est condition. This is my big opportunity. I work for it. I look forward to it."

"Jack hits a hard serve but I hit a better and harder forehand. If I can get the jump, I take him."

The 1950-51 tour opens at Madison Square Garden with Kramer, the touring champion, facing Segura, who whipped him for the pro title, an 'most everybody more interested in the preliminary.

The preliminary principals—Gorgeous Gussy Moran, under a $75,000 contract, and Pauline Betz Addie—wondered what they'd wear.

"I can't wear those leopard skin things," said Gussy. "They're kind old now."

"I wouldn't think of it either," put in Pauline, her blonde hair in ribbons. Pauline says she's going to show the customers a thing or two also in tennis attire.

Gussy disclosed she would have about 20 different costumes for the U.S. tour.

Big League Broadcasts To Kill Minor Baseball

Dallas, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Charles Dewitt, vice-president of St. Louis Browns, says minor league baseball will be killed if major league broadcasts continue.

He told some 80 baseball leaders from nine minor leagues, meeting here Thursday to discuss realignment in the southwest, that "major league game broadcasts are making big league fans—not fans of your home-town clubs."

Dewitt said all baseball could do was to compile statistics to show how the broadcasts and television were hurting the game and actually were in restraint of trade as regards baseball instead of baseball being in restraint of trade in attempting to control radio and television broadcasts.

to have taken charge of the fire. He did not wish to blame the crew, but it would have been different had the ship not been close to a port.

The transport department counsel suggested that drills should be more rigorously carried out.

Mr. Holden said that if the electrical alarm systems has worked, hoses would have been brought into play in the "B" deck linen room in two minutes.

"The crux of this case is sabotage of the alarm system that prevented getting at the fire in time," he said.

ments east of Montreal. The dealers, in turn, reduce the price charged to buyers accordingly.

Started in 1941, the payments have averaged between $16,000,000 and $17,000,000 a year. To date, they total about $145,000,000.

Mr. Hannam said that under current conditions it was possible removal of the assistance scheme would have more injurious effect on western growers than in past years.

He believed the scheme should be incorporated in the government's permanent legislation, not on a year-to-year basis.

Western growers this year would face great hardship if the subsidy was removed. They had larger crops of coarse grains and feed wheat to sell to eastern Canada and this year. These larger holdings made the western grower more dependent on eastern Canada than in many years.

"It is therefore in the interests of the western grower and the livestock feeder to have the policy continued," Mr. Hannam said.

MANY SEVERE INFECTIONS ARE OFTEN FOLLOWED BY SHINGLES.
Shingles, or as the condition is known medically, "herpes zoster," is an acute inflammation causing the appearance of characteristic blisters on the skin. It is not however, strictly speaking, a skin disease, as it affects only that part of the skin which is reached by certain nerves.
It is almost always found on one side of the body only and is especially common around the chest, just over and parallel to the ribs. It appears also on the forehead, face, lower back, and abdomen.
Before the blisters come out on the skin, the patient usually has some pain in the area where the blisters are about to appear. These generally become visible on about the third or fourth day. Fever may be present and pain or neuralgia is frequently severe.
The blisters, after a period of several days, begin to open and dry up, finally disappearing altogether. In young and middle-aged people, this is about all there is to it, but in older people there may be neuralgic pains for quite a long time.
Herpes may develop with or immediately after acute infections like pneumonia or meningitis. It can come in epidemics or without any cause which can be identified. It is caused by a tiny living substance called a virus.
Related To Chickenpox
One other interesting point about shingles worth noticing is its connection with chickenpox which is also a disease caused by a virus. Small epidemics of herpes have developed at the same time as epidemics of chickenpox, and there seems good reason to believe that an occasional person can develop chickenpox from contact with a patient with shingles and vice versa.
A great many different kinds of treatment have been used for shingles with some success. Among the more recent methods is the use of X-rays. It seems quite possible that some of the newer anti-biotic relatives of penicillin may turn out to be of real value as a treatment—especially if given early in the course of the disease.

LETTER FROM BRITAIN -

The Pigeons Fly Home

By A. K. ASTBURY

A system by which Braille may be adapted to any of the 800 tribal languages of Africa has been evolved by linguists and blind Braille readers in London and given official approval by a committee representing Unesco, the British Empire Society for the Blind, and the School of Oriental and African Studies of London University.

You will know that in Braille raised dots on the surface of the paper represent letters such as N, or P, or A, and that the blind person reads by feeling these letters with his finger tips. Now this system can be applied to other written languages easily enough provided the letters are the same as ours and are pronounced in much the same way. The difficulty comes (as is often the case in Africa) when there is no written language, and the sounds of the spoken language, such as "clicks" and tone variations, do not correspond with our letters at all.

In the past there were attempts to adapt Braille to African languages. But the results were not uniform because the written form of the language was not always dependable. So it was realized that if Braille were to be applied to 800 African tribal languages there must be no dependence on written languages. The sponsors therefore set themselves to find Braille signs for all the letters "clicks," and tone variations used in the languages of Africa; the result is almost a phonetic language which will be unaffected by spelling changes in whatever African language they occur. Street Guides in Braille.

Nor are the blind at home being forgotten. Braille street guides given to blind delegates to an Oxford conference last year were found so useful that maps of the London underground in Braille are now on sale in the capital. They have, to my own knowledge, been of great help to blind visitors from France and Holland. The three principal political parties, too, recently prepared a synopsis of their programs in Braille for free distribution to blind folk in Britain. Nor are the 200,000 Braille books of our National Library for the Blind a blessing only to those without sight; I can remember a long correspondence in a London paper on the most comfortable way to read in bed being ended by a sighted official of an association for the blind who said that those who read Braille in bed need never put their arms outside in the cold!

We have never had anything like 800 languages in Britain. But the fact that the minutes of a conference held in Cornwall recently were read in Cornish is a reminder that not long ago there were certainly half-a-dozen tongues over here: English, Welsh, Irish, Gaelic, Cornish and Manx, the last of which is not now in use.

You will not be surprised to hear that the conference was the annual Celtic Congress meeting at Truro in Cornwall, England's most south-westerly county. Cornwall, with Wales, the Isle of Man, and parts of Scotland, is largely inhabited by descendants of the Celts, the original inhabitants of Britain. In Wales, which has been most successful of all in guarding her ancient culture, Welsh is still spoken by a third of the population and the numbers of Welsh speakers are increasing. Gaelic, original language of Scotland, I am afraid, little more than a survival, mostly in the western islands, although it is being taught at many of the schools there (and at night school in London, too, incidentally.)

Cornish Place-Names

Attempts are being made to revive Manx, language of the Isle of Man, but Cornish has been a dead language since Dolly Pentreath, reputed to be the last person to speak Cornish, died in 1777. And yet it lives on hauntingly in the foreign-sounding place names of Cornwall—Ferranzabulo, Ruan Laminhorne, Lostwithiel, Boscastle, Un, Prazze an Booble and Pillark; and enough Cornish scholars could be found at the Celtic Congress to produce a play in Cornish. Through the initiative of a number of Cornishmen a Celtic correspondence circle has been set up under the name Kelgh Ketek, and those anxious to maintain the old languages of Britain write to each other in Welsh, Gaelic and Irish—and doubtless Cornish too.

The Celts were here when the Romans came to Britain, and after four centuries of being under the Roman Empire were driven westwards into Cornwall, Wales, and the north-west of England by the invading Anglo-Saxons. Those four hundred years of Roman colonization were a long time, but they seem to have left little obvious impression on the face of Britain. The present boundary between the London boroughs of Paddington and Marylebone was decided by the Romans (without knowing it) for they were the builders of Edgware Road, which separates the boroughs now; the limits of the Roman city of London are still very obviously the boundaries at Ludgate and Aldgate, of London's present financial centre, "the City." But such legacies apart, one must dig to find Roman Britain. And that is just what 12 enthusiastic schoolboys from Hursley, near Brighton on the south coast of England at this moment. With orthodox tools of trowel and brush, they are sifting every particle of earth dug from this Romano-British site. They

AROUND the ARMOURIES

Had a walk around the Armouries this week to see how the boys were getting things lined up for the coming winter season. The 12th Armoured are in the midst of Ordnance inspection and the training staff were too busy to talk about training syllabus, but promise something next week for the column. The 35th L.A.A. Bty R.C.A. training season will commence November 7, so there should be news from that quarter soon.

The Air Cadet Squadron parades are now in full swing on Friday nights at William Street Army and you young fellows who are "air-minded" should drop up and have a talk with S/L Forrest G. Lord, D.F.C., who is commanding Officer of the Cadets.

The Sergeant Major.

Remembrance Day Parades

Remembrance Day parades this year will be bigger and more impressive than ever with an estimated 65,000 Active and Reserve force soldiers to be drawn upon for parades at various centres across the country. Army authorities said this week.

This figure does not include the 9,500 members of the Special Force who may or may not still be in the field on October 11.

Although attendance on Remembrance Day parades is voluntary for all Reserve Force troops and most Active Force soldiers, commanding officers all agree that the turnout for November 11 is "the biggest one of the year."

This year, of the Special Force battalions parade, the ceremonies will have an added touch of color: the bright red battle patch of the first Canadian troops to be recruited for action in the Korean war. Canadian soldiers have not worn formation badges since shortly after the end of the Second World War.

They thanked everyone for their very kind co-operation in giving generous donations towards the gift, and they wished Father Dupuis a bon voyage and a safe return to his parish. Rev. Activities of Legion Branches in the Eastern Townships

SHERBROOKE BRANCH NO. 10

Last week's Log turned out to be something like a Haggis—everything was in it, but it was all mixed up. We'll see how it turns out this week.

The postponed business meeting of the Branch was held last Monday night, under the chairmanship of second vice-president Frank Edwards (incidentally Frank made a darned good chairman, and was the recipient of many compliments after the session closed.) Comrade Harold Saunders led in the dual capacity of recording secretary as well as secretary, owing to the unavoidable absence of Comrade Annette Tremblay. I cannot truthfully report that the attendance was large; as the minister said when he was referring to his parishioners away on holidays, "We miss a lot of vacant faces."

Ernie Marshall reported that all plans have been made for the Poppy Day campaign and asked for and got a number of volunteers to sell poppies at the Rotary Fair. Ernie also said that everything is laid on for the Remembrance Day services and parades; the details will appear later in the press.

Arthur Taylor reported on his hospital visiting activities, which he carries on most faithfully, along with Comrade Shea. These two members are much to be commended for the good job they do for the Branch.

Reports were heard from the chairman of various other committees, who's activities are not much publicized. Joe Morrison has two teams bowling with the big pins and five pins; the softball team is still in action; and Joe had decided to run a cribbage competition. If interested in the latter, please put your name down on the card in the downstairs lounge.

George Irving reported on the progress made by the committee of six veterans on the proposed Armistice Day banquet to be held in the New Sherbrooke Hotel on November the 11th, at 7 p.m. Tickets will be on sale in a day or two, and will cost $2.00. In case you think the price a little steep, I can assure you that no profit is being made, the price charged will just cover the expenses and no more. At the time of writing I am

Waterville United Church Held Its Annual Rally Day S. S. Service

Waterville, Oct. 21.—The Waterville United Church held its annual Rally Day service one Sunday, with the Sunday School attending in a body and taking part in the service. This being Thanksgiving Sunday, the church was beautifully decorated with fruit, flowers and vegetables.

The service was called to worship by Rev. J. Butler, followed by the singing of "All People That on Earth Do Dwell." The scripture reading was given by Misses Eleant or Hopper and Elizabeth Wattie. The Sunday School then sang, "Jesus Loves The Little Children."

Six children from the Primary Sunday School were then promoted to the Junior Sunday School, each receiving a diploma and a Bible. They were Margaret Fowler, Muriel Danforth, William Smith, Richard Gale, Irving Danforth and David Pearson. A duo of welcome to these six new Juniors, "Open The Gates" was then sung by Eleanor Hooper and Sheila Robinson.

The lesson story was told by Elaine Smith, Wright Burnell and Peter Daine, and was "The Story of Lionza." A story of a little Korean boy, who was outcast by his parents and friends, because he was suffering from leprosy. How he was cured by the missionary doctors and then sent to a Mission School and later attended a Theological College, where he graduated as a minister, later to go to his home town, where he preached the Word of God, and among the first to become Christians were his own parents.

The closing hymn was "Where Cross The Crowded Ways of Life". This was followed by the observance of the Lord's Supper.

Waterville Ladies' Aid

Mrs. R. L. Gale was hostess to the Waterville Ladies' Aid, when they met in the United Church Hall for the regular meeting, which was called to order by the president, Miss Berna Parkinson.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. Elton Parkinson, who took as her subject "Harvest Home". The hymn, "We Plough The Fields", was sung, accompanied by Mrs. Olaf Knutson at the piano.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Davison, and approved as read.

Mrs. F. Bell gave a report on the rummage sale, stating that $3.70 had been realized from the sale. A vote of thanks was given to all who donated and helped in any way with this sale.

Mrs. H. S. Ball offered to donate already found 21 coins, including one of Constantine the Great (306-337) minted in London, and a good deal of Roman pottery. The boys' ages vary between 14 and 17; and it is the belief of the master who leads them that the discovery of history in this fashion is more enjoyable and instructive than learning it all out of books in a classroom. And who will disagree with them?

FLASHBACK

Six years ago, on November 5, 1944, all dry land on the River Scheldt in the Scheidt Estuary, with the exception of two places, Veers and Middleburg, was reported in allied hands. This brought to an end the Canadian operation to clear the port of Antwerp.

These operations began the first week in October when the Canadians began their drive to secure the west bank of the River Scheldt and the advance to the general line Roosendaal—Bergen Op Zoom. After securing the west bank and sealing off the isthmus connecting Zuid Beveland with the mainland to the east, the difficult assaults to capture Zuid Beveland and Walcheren began.

In preparation for the assault of Walcheren Island, the dyke at Westkapelle was bombed, allowing the sea to flow in and flood the enemy defences. By the end of October it could be said that for the first time in history an island had been sunk by air power.

As a result of this flooding, the enemy garrison had only stomachs enough for a week's fighting after the amphibious assaults went in on November 1.

Minesweepers were already at work and some three weeks later, November 28, a convoy entered the Port of Antwerp. The first ship to tie up at the quayside was the Canadian-built "Fort Cataraque."

of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." (Revelation 20:6 and 22:14).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Death will occur on the next plane of existence as on this, until the spiritual understanding of Life is reached. Then, and not until then, will it be demonstrated that the second death hath no power." If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is effaced or rectified. If at present satisfied with wrongdoing, we must learn to loathe it. Remember that mankind must sooner or later, either by suffering or by Science, be convinced of the error that is to be overcome." E. H. Gray officiating. Baskets of mixed flowers and ferns adorned the front of the church. The pews reserved for guests were marked with white satin bows with streamers. Mrs. L. KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better.

FERN GAUTHIER SIGNS WITH SAINTS
The Gauthier controversy is over. Despite the fast attempt by Punch Imlach, pilot of the Quebec Aces, Fern Gauthier, 29-year-old right winger and former N.H.L. performer, will be in Sherbrooke uniform tonight.

Gauthier could not have picked a better time to make his debut with the Saints as they will be hosts to their old rivals from the Capital City this evening.
Mr. Keene informed us that it was now just a matter for Frank Dillo, Q.S.H.A. registrar, to give the locals the green light. This will be done after he receives the O.K. from the C.A.H.A. and he should be in action this evening.

President Campbell, of the N.H.L., gave Gauthier his release in Montreal Thursday afternoon when the husky winger paid him a visit regarding his case. At the same time he told Gauthier he could play where he wanted and nobody could force him to play for any particular team.
This seems a little different from the story which appeared in the Quebec paper. Mr. Imlach told Lou Fusk, Sports Editor of the Chronicle, and I quote: "Punch was happy after the coup he pulled off in purchasing the contract of Fern Gauthier, even though he's having trouble locating him. 'We'll get him all right,' he commented. 'I have the signature of Johnny Mitchell, of St. Louis Flyers, acknowledging receipt of payment. Sherbrooke accuses us of tampering with their players. He never belonged to Sherbrooke. He belongs to us. We bought him and he'll play for no one but us. He's a real hockey player, too, and he'll help us plenty,' end of quote.

As stated Wednesday in my column it seems that Punch Imlach can't forget that an amateur club just purchased a professional's contract. And this seems to be just what Mr. Campbell told Fern in their meeting. The money goes to the N.H.L. and they in turn arrange things as all matters are handled through Mr. Campbell's office.

Anyway it was a good paper duel while it lasted and it goes to show that the Aces are after players just as much as we are. They acquired young Ted Hodgson in a deal with Ottawa for Riopelle and

THE ROSENBLUM REPORTER
Slaves of Fashion
It seems only natural for humans to want to follow the style. We know children who are more concerned with what their friends are wearing than they are with their own comfort when they decide upon what to wear to school in bad weather. We've seen boys suffer with sinus conditions rather than wear a hat, and only because some of their friends went hatless. Some men think that they are keeping up with the style when they wear clothing fads which are unsuited to their wearers.
WE CONSIDER a man well dressed if he wears what is best suited to his own particular physique, his personal coloring, and his own needs. He can get a lot of pleasure out of the new ideas which are practical for him, and he can also enjoy clothes which are different to those worn by every Tom, Dick and Harry at the moment. We at Rosenblum's like new ideas. We study the leading trade journals of Britain, U. S. and Canada so that we will know the newest styles and thus maintain our reputation for having the new things first. That's why we're popular with the young chaps who are looking for these things. But we also cater to those men of distinction who look for apparel that is different, and to those who place the emphasis on comfort. These are the people who appreciate our exclusive imported luxury garments, such as Burberry coats, Christy hats, and Welch Margotson neckties.
AND, SPEAKING OF COMFORT, have you ever tried one of our suits with a centre vent (the opening in the back)? We carry this distinctive style in stock, and we suggest that you try one on before you buy your next suit.

Don Campbell To Try For Speedboat Mark
Coniston, England, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Donald Campbell yesterday abandoned his efforts to try to set a speedboat record this year.

Campbell ordered his boat, the Bluebird II, prepared for the journey home at the end of a day of unsuccessful attempts to break the record of 160.325 M.P.H. set this summer by Stanley Sayres in "Sio-Mo-Shun IV" on Lake Washington.

The said the powerful craft built by his late father, Sir Malcolm Campbell, went "faster than ever" but he did not announce its speed.

company got their start in the old intermediate loop.
It is a good opportunity for the younger players of the city, who are too old for junior and not good enough yet for senior. The coach hasn't been named as yet but no doubt will be in the near future.

Punch Imlach comes to the fore once again we understand, and has contacted Bobby Fillion, who is holding forth with the Saints, to play down in Quebec.
He has made him quite an offer, in fact he has told him to name his own price. Must be nice to have money to organize a hockey team. Fillion is still waiting to hear from New Haven and wants to come to Sherbrooke, but can't make a move until he gets cleared away with New Haven.

It looks like another good duel shaping up, but I think that money will play a big part in this one, and we all know that the locals can't compete with the Aces when it comes to that. Punch is after Bobby in the worst way and made him a wonderful offer which will be pretty hard to turn aside. His case should be straightened away in the near future and Bobby is anxious to get back in harness. He would no doubt help the Saints, in more ways than one, but the issue still remains in abeyance.

Tomorrow afternoon the Sherbrooke Athletics will be at home to the powerful Army team from Montreal at the Park Avenue Stadium in a regular fixture of the Q.R.F.U.

The soldiers present one of the strongest teams in the circuit and are considered strong contenders for the title. On the other hand the locals will be trying for their first win but have a strong outfit to run up against.

Fern Gauthier To Make His Debut Against Quebec; Phil Metcalfe Is Only Doubtful Starter For Locals

Sherbrooke Saints and Quebec Aces, finalists in last year's Senior Group playdowns, will meet tonight for the first time this season at the local Arena.

The locals will present a new player in this evening's tiff in the person of Fern Gauthier, husky right-winger. Gauthier had been reported at different times as going to Quebec, who claimed they had purchased his professional contract, but when he was reinstated Thursday by President Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L. he returned to Sherbrooke.

The Aces will present a revamped lineup compared to the one which carried them to the Q.S.H.L. finals against Sherbrooke last spring. Eight new players are with Imlach's squad and they should no doubt, give a good account of themselves. Herbie Carnegie, a former pivot man with the Saints, is still rolling along and can be counted on to give his usual steady performance.

Tomorrow afternoon the teams will clash for the second time, over the week-end, when they come together in the new Quebec Coliseum at the Capital City.

Phil Metcalfe is the only doubtful starter for the locals. Metcalfe received a severe cut in the face in the game at Ottawa Wednesday, which required five stitches to close the gap. This leaves the locals with only three defencemen. Dick Kotanen has not as yet obtained his release from Rollie Hebert, but if it should arrive he will make his debut against the Aces.

In the other games slated for tonight Valleyfield will travel to Ottawa and Shawinigan Falls will be at home to Chicoutimi. Tomorrow Tom Blake's Royals will meet Frank Carlin's Braves at Montreal and Bucky Buchanan will lead his Cataracts north to meet Herb Saguenays on their home freeze.

Tonight's game will be the only one here until next Saturday when the Cataracts will return. Thursday the Saints travel over to Shawinigan Falls to tangle with the Cats for their only tilt during the week.

Sherbrooke To Enter A Team In E. T. Intermediate "A" Hockey Loop; Young Players To Be Base Of Club

The Eastern Townships Intermediate "A" Hockey League, which has been in operation for close to twenty years, was on the verge of folding up this winter for lack of teams.

The circuit last year, enjoyed one of their best seasons, since the founding of the circuit, with six teams in operation. This year Drummondville and Victoriaville entered the Senior League while Granby has decided to join forces with the Bromfield-Missisquoi League and Richmond has retired from competition leaving only Granby and Magog.

A group of local sportsmen, with the aid of the Sherbrooke Saints, decided it was a good opportunity to run an intermediate club. Forest Keene, business manager of the Saints, was elected president of the new team and the club will commence operations in the near future.

The new team will be a farm club, of the senior aggregation, and it is the desire to use young players with a view of building future players for the senior club. A meeting of the league is scheduled for Wednesday at the Union Hotel in Magog and it is hoped that by then Windsor Mills will give a definite answer whether they will run a junior, or join the intermediate circle. It is the intention of all clubs to use younger players, fresh out of junior ranks, in order to build for the future.

Playoff Berths Still At Stake In Big Four As Teams Prepare For Final Drive As Schedule Nears End

The grim struggle for the two playoff berths in the Big Four Football League has turned into the final stage.
The race is still a toss-up and, unless Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats suddenly become hot and win all their remaining three games, the playoff winners are unlikely to be decided until the final week-end of the 12-game schedule.

They even may not be separated by then. The clubs are so closely bunched talk has been given to the possibility of a four-way tie at the end of the regular schedule with each club having six wins and six losses.
With so tight a battle, the feature football attractions of this week-end are the games between Ottawa Rough Riders and Argonauts in the Capital today and Montreal Alouettes' contest Tiger-Cats in Montreal Sunday.

Meanwhile in the Western Union, the four clubs wind up their 14-game schedule with only the order of the second and third place teams to be settled before the three-team playoffs get under way.
Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who have clinched first place, tangle with Saskatchewan Roughriders in Winnipeg while Edmonton Eskimos invade Calgary to play the Stampeders, who this year failed to make the playoffs. An Edmonton loss coupled with a Saskatchewan win will see these two clubs end in a tie for second place. The Eskimos enjoy a two-point edge at present.

In the Intercollegiate Union, McGill Redmen seek to make it three straight victories when they entertain the University of Western Ontario in Toronto. A major problem for the Red Wings is that they will probably see the standings shuffled.
Canadiens now have a three-point edge over Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit and Toronto Maple Leafs. The leaders have two victories and two ties for six points. New York Rangers have two points and Boston Bruins one.

Saturday's fixtures are Detroit playing in Montreal night game in Toronto. A major problem for the Red Wings will be stopping Maurice (Rocket) Richard, who has scored four goals already in the young season—two of them in Montreal's 4-0 blanketing of Rangers Thursday night.
Les Canadiens go to Detroit for another set to Sunday night while Toronto plays the Black Hawks in Chicago and Rangers travel to Boston where the Bruins will be seeking their first victory.
In a surprise move, Toronto Leafs announced Friday night they have requested permission from President Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L. to use defenceman Bobby Copp of Ottawa on a three-game lend-lease basis.
The 32-year-old former Leaf would replace Bill Barilko, regular Toronto rearguard who was injured in Wednesday night's game in Boston, won by Leafs 2-0. Copp has played amateur for Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior League since voluntarily retiring from Leafs after the 1943 season.
If the Leaf request is granted, he will play in Sunday night's game.

S.H.S. Juniors Down B.C.S. Squad 6-1
Sherbrooke High School Juniors downed Bishop's College School squad 6-1 in a closely contested match this week on the Lennoxville campus.

The local gridders were forced to go all out to down the Lennoxville team and at half time the score was stalemated 1-1. In the first quarter Warren Lynch hoisted a beautiful boot and the purple and white safety man was rouged for the first point of the game. Just previous to half time B.C.S. kicked the point. The locals failed to convert.

In the third quarter neither team could break the deadlock although they came close at different times. In the final frame the Sherbrooke squad took over and Warren Lynch came to the fore again when he tossed a T. D. pass to Quintin. The locals failed to convert.

Bishop's tried to stage a rally but the Sherbrooke squad played brilliantly to hold their lead and finished on the long end of the count for their first victory of the season.

Gery Tribble, Joe Cassar and Peter Wilcox played an important part in their team's victory while Marvin Smith was outstanding on the line with his deadly tackling and blocking.

Kids Should Finish School, Says Reardon

Fort William, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Kenny Reardon says one of the biggest mistakes a kid can make is to quit school at 16 to play hockey.
Reardon, roving goodwill ambassador for Montreal Canadiens, said yesterday in an interview that professional hockey can provide a profitable career for a boy with ability. But at 16, he said, no one can tell whether a boy has the making of a big-time player.

"Anybody who says he can watch a 16-year-old player in action and predict his future is plain crazy. Some kids may look like a million dollars at that age and turn out a flop.
"The same thing applies on the other side. Players nobody would look at when they were breaking into the game have wound up in the National League.

"Take me, for an example. Even today, Spud Russell (Canadian scout from Winnipeg) can't understand how I ever caught a place with an N.H.L. team. When I was 16 the only reason anybody let me play was because I was a brother of Terry Reardon, one of the best junior players ever produced in Winnipeg.

"When I told them I was Terry's brother, they'd give me a stick right away—and take it back just as fast after watching me a couple of minutes."
On the subject of education, Reardon said many university graduates have joined N.H.L. clubs in recent years, including Jack Gelineau, Ed Krzyzanowski, Clint Albright, Don Raleigh and Reg Sinclair.

"The smart thing to do," he said, "is to make hockey provide you with an education. Then you have something to fall back on when your playing days are over."

Bill Heindl And Larry Zeidel Awarded, To Saskatoon, C.A.H.A. Unreliable, Says Forest Keene

Midland, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has awarded defencemen Bill Heindl and Larry Zeidel to Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League, George Dudley, C.A.H.A. secretary, announced last night.

The C.A.H.A. had suspended Heindl and Zeidel for jumping the Quebec Senior League to play with the Saskatoon club. The players appealed their suspension and a vote of the C.A.H.A.'s Board of Governors awarded them to Saskatoon.

Forest Keene, business manager of the Sherbrooke Saints of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, said last night he would be in favor of having the league withdraw from the C.A.H.A. because of the Canadian body's handling of the Heindl-Zeidel case.
Keene was commenting on a C.A.H.A. governors' vote that defencemen Bill Heindl and Larry Zeidel may play with Saskatoon Quakers of the Western League. Heindl was with Sherbrooke last year and Zeidel with Quebec and neither player was released this season by the Q.S.H.L. teams.

"I was at the C.A.H.A. meeting in Toronto where it was decided that no player would be allowed to transfer to another team without first obtaining a release from the team with which he played the previous season," Keene said.
"By its action in this case the C.A.H.A. has shown that it is unreliable and that it will not keep its word. I would be in favor of having the Q.S.H.L. withdraw from the C.A.H.A."

Athletics Hosts To Army Tomorrow Afternoon At 2.15; Visitors Present Powerful All-Around Aggregation

Their hopes of finishing anywhere but in the cellar just about dashed, Sherbrooke Athletics will try again tomorrow to break into the winning column in the Quebec Senior "B" Rugby Football Union. Their opponents will be the Royal Montreal Regiment, the powerful Lakeshore, whipped Westmont 21-13, played a scoreless tie with Three Rivers and trounced Eastward last week 20-7.

Coached by Capt. Dave Penhies who led Eastward in 1946 and Rockland in 1947 and 1948 to championships, Army has a high-scoring team which plays wide-open football from start to finish.
Sandy Spence, a track star who makes every move as if he were sprinting the 100-yard dash, Norris Masterman, a big fellow who can plant, pass and punt, and Jack Patterson, a rangy, shifty halfback are the squad's big guns.

Army features quick-breaking plays with Morrow and Bill Dryden calling the signals. One of the team's best plays is a long forward pass off a double-wing formation which has accounted for several majors so far. It is a beautiful play if it works and most of the time it does.

Athletic Injuries Could Be Averted

Toronto, Oct. 21.—"Many athletic injuries could be avoided if coaches would pay more attention to physical conditioning," Archie Campbell, head trainer of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team, told the weekly radio session of "Sports College" Saturday.

Campbell, one of the continent's finest trainers, passed along some of his knowledge in a talk entitled "How to Treat and Avoid Athletic Injuries." The Sports College broadcast, part of a country-wide coaching and sports information service for Canadian youth, reaches more than half a million listeners through the C.B.C. Trans-Canada Network.

"The well-conditioned athlete not only is less likely to get injured, but when he does, the injury is usually less severe and he recovers quickly," Campbell said.
"In all my experience in sport, I have never seen a group of better trained athletes than the members of your testing group," the Maple Leaf trainer told Lloyd Percival, Director of Sports College. From the "testing groups," which Percival uses to test and compare various training methods, have come such athletes as Rich Ferguson, holder of the Dominion two and three mile records, and George Lynch, Illinois University cross country record holder.

"Athletes should do plenty of stretching, flexibility and relaxation work," Campbell continued, "because the bunched muscles, brittle type of boy is the most easily injured. Most injuries occur when the athlete is tired, or early in the game because he hasn't done sufficient warming up."

Bruises, abrasions, sprains and strains were the type of injuries most often encountered by the famous Leaf trainer.
duates have joined N.H.L. clubs in recent years, including Jack Gelineau, Ed Krzyzanowski, Clint Albright, Don Raleigh and Reg Sinclair.

"The smart thing to do," he said, "is to make hockey provide you with an education. Then you have something to fall back on when your playing days are over."
