HILDRED;

—OR,—

THE MONEY-LENDER'S DAUGHTER.

CHAPTER V.—(Continued.)

He was shown into the pretty drawing-room where Hildred was reading Goethe. She looked up when he was announced, and placed her book on the table. She bowed coldly, not knowing what to say. She had wished him to call, but she felt, now that he was really there, uncertain how to entertain him. Had he been an ordinary friend of her father's, she would have sought for and found some topic of conversation that would interest him. She looked into the Earl's handsome face, and, remembering that in ten days she was to become his wife, she was silent. Looking at her, he remembered the same, and turned away with a sigh of despair.

"How dark her hair and eyes are!" he thought to himself. "If I purchase a picture, I can please myself about its coloring; in taking a wife I have not even that option."

"I have not interrupted you, I hope, Miss Ransome," he said. "You were reading—may I ask what?"

She held the book out for him to see.

"German!" he cried. "Do you read German?"

"Yes, and speak it. I like it," she replied: "I like German literature, after English, better than any."

"Better than French?" he asked.

"Yes, much better," she replied—"English first, German next."

"I thought all ladies preferred French to German," he said, "because it is lighter and more graceful."

"Do all ladies prefer the light and graceful?" she asked.

"Do they not, Miss Ransome?" he replied.

"Nay," said Hildred, "it seems to me that we ask each other questions without waiting for the replies."

"I have never learned German," he said absently.

"Then you will never make an ambassador or a diplomatist," she remarked quietly; "they require to know many languages."

He looked at her, wondering at her words.

"I have no particular wish to be either," he said.

"Have you not? I wonder at that. If I had been a man of position, I should like to be an ambassador. I like any occupation, any employment that exercises one's brains, and I always imagine diplomatists to be accomplished men."

"And you admire accomplished men, Miss Ransome? I think you must admit one thing—diplomatists are seldom sincere or truthful men."

"Insincerity and untruth are not confined to them," she replied; and Lord Caraven began to think that perhaps she was fond of argument.

He talked to her about Goethe, but not with her enthusiasm—he could not even understand it. He was fairly startled at last when, raising her dark, lovely eyes to his face, she said—

"You give me the impression of having been asleep the greater part of your life."

He was startled, but he answered—

"On the contrary, I have been remarkably wide-awake. I am past the age of enthusiasm."

"It is better to die at once than to outlive enthusiasm," she said calmly. "I call it the salt of life."

He remained talking to her for half an hour. They were to be married in ten days, yet he said no word of love. He did not mention their marriage or even allude to it ever so distantly. He might have been the merest stranger, the most unconcerned of guests. He took his leave, and even then he did not offer to touch the hand that she half held out to him.

It was very strange. When he was gone she took up her book, but she could not read. This man who had been talking to her with such indifference, who who had spent one solitary half-hour with her, and had evidently felt it to be a dull one—this man who had not paid her the least compliment, who had not even touched her hand—was in ten days' time to be her husband, the arbiter of her destiny, the master of her life.

How strange it was! He had asked her to marry him, yet he did not mention the word "love." Did he love her? Was this monchalant, indifferent style of wooing fashionable? Would he ever talk of love to her at all? Why were her thoughts always running on that one word "love"?

She was restless, anxious, not unhappy, but puzzled. In ten days' time she would be a wife—she would enter the realm that poets call fairyland. Oh, if this were all, love was a cheat, a delusion, a snare—there was nothing in it! It was supposed to confer such unbounded happiness, and she was not happier—not even so happy as when she studied German at St. Roche.

"But," she mused, "I am forgetting—I always forget. The love in my case is to come after marriage, not before."

She liked Lord Caraven's face—to her girlish fancy it was even beautiful. She wished to see it brighten. It seemed to her like a veiled picture. Then, half shyly, she wondered if he liked hers—though to be sure he must have liked it, she thought, or he would not have wished to marry her.

She went quietly to the glass and looked at her face. There was a promise of magnificent beauty in it, but the promise was not yet fulfilled. Nothing could have been lovelier than the dark, starry eyes and the dark, waving hair, but the face was of one who lingered where womanhood and childhood meet. Hildred felt no great elation as she looked upon it.

"I shall not be a beautiful Countess, after all," she said; "and beauty, they say, keeps the heart that it wins."

A book was lying on the drawing-room table, one amongst many others that Ariey Ransome had sent home. She opened it mechanically. The first line she read struck her. It was only a simple poem, written by a great master of poesy, but to her it seemed instinct with sorrow and love—

"Then I took a pencil and wrote
On the mossy stone as I lay—
'Here dies the lady of whom I sing,
And the heart of Edward Gray.'"

Over and over again she read the words, so sweet and simple and sad. Of course they were lovers, and they had quarrelled; his heart lay buried with her. That was love.

After all, there was some strange, sweet, mad witchery in this love. She was going to be a Countess; she was to have jewels and money, pleasure and fame; yet a conviction came upon her that it would have been better to be Ellen Adair, to sleep in a grave on the windy hill and be so dearly loved than to be a Countess. Who cared for her as this lover Edward Gray cared for his dead love?

"If I died to-morrow," she cried with sudden passion, "who would grieve except my father, whose heart would be buried in my grave? Not Lord Caraven. If he heard I was dead, he would look up calmly and say, 'Dead, is she? I thought her a strange kind of girl.' Then his life would go on as though I had never been. I should like—ah me, I hope it is not wicked, but I should have liked some one to love me like the lover in the song! Perhaps love will come, but I should like it best now."

"Papa," she said that evening, as she stood watching the sunset, "we have but one life—that seems to me a sad pity. If we could live once to gain experience, and live again to use it—I should like that."

"My dear Hildred," said the man of law, "it is simply incomprehensible to me how I came to have such an imaginative daughter. If I had cultivated my imagination, I do not know where we should be now. What were you going to say?"

She was standing watching the sunset; the great boughs of the cedar drooped near her; her young face, raised with its dreamy, wondering expression to the skies, might have touched a harder heart than his.

"We have but one life," she said, "and if it be all spoiled there is no remedy. Papa," she cried with sudden passion, "do not let me spoil mine—do not deceive me—do not let me marry without love, if love be needful for happiness. I should like to be loved, papa. Listen to me—I do not really care to be a Countess—I should be happy without that—I could be happy without much money or without jewels; but I begin to fear that I shall never be really happy without love. I think women value love more than men. Do you think I can be happy without it."

He never forgot the pleading expression of her face. It touched him so that he half hesitated as to whether he should sacrifice her to his ambition or save her—save her, and let her live her womanly life of love. But the hesitation passed as quickly as it came. What did it matter? Love-marriages, as they were called, often ended in disgust.

She went close up to him and laid her hand on his shoulder; her dark bright eyes seemed to look through his into the very depths of his soul.

"Now, papa," she said, "we are quite alone here, you and I—only the silent stars are our witnesses—how tell me, in the presence of Heaven, can I be happy without love?"

He was silent for one minute. It was hard to deceive her, but there was no help for it. He took her hand in his.

"I prophesy for you, Hildred," he said, "that you will be one of the happiest women in the world."

"Then I am content. You would not deceive me," she replied. And, turning away from him, she re-entered the house.

It must be right; her father would not deceive her—would not let her do that which would wreck her whole life. It was she herself who had been mistaken—she who had dreamed that life had more of sweetness and of poesy than it really possessed.

The ten days had come to an end. How time had passed so quickly Hildred Ransome could not tell. The preparations for her marriage were complete, she was told, and there was a dispute between the Earl and the lawyer. Lord Caraven wished to have the ceremony performed quietly and away from London—Arley Ransome insisted that the marriage should take place at St. George's, Hanover Square.

"And so, my lord," he said, "let us distinctly understand each other. My daughter is bringing you a fortune that might be the dower of a princess, and she must be treated with due respect. I will not have one detail omitted. The marriage must be conducted as though you were espousing a lady of your own rank."

Lord Caraven laughed; he knew that there was no opposing such a decree—it must be complied with. He made the best of it. He invited his halt-cousin, the Lady Frances Riche, a superannuated coquette, who still believed herself young and charming, to be bridesmaid. Lord St. Maure was "best man." A small but select party of guests were invited. Nothing was omitted.

How many days must the great world had been on the qui vive about the marriage. The wedding-dress had been shown at the Court milliner's, the jewels could be seen at Messrs. Burford's. All fashionable London discussed the union, and all fashionable London knew what the girl herself did not know—that she was being married for her money, that her marriage was as much a matter of sale and barter as though she had stood in a slave-market with an auctioneer by her side.

Yet no one thought it wrong; an impoverished Earl with a grand old title and a bankrupt estate—there was nothing for him but to marry money; and Hildred Ransome, the lawyer's daughter, had plenty. There was not one of all the men and women who read about the marriage, heard of it, or discussed it, who would have dreamed of interfering—no one to say, "Have pity on her youth and her ignorance; think before you sacrifice her young sweet life, her chance of happiness." There was no one to plead or to pray for her; on the contrary, the fair women of the world looked on her with envy. It was not every heiress who could purchase a coronet like that of Caraven. Her father thought her a most fortunate girl and did not scruple to tell her so.

She herself could not analyse her own feelings. She was living quietly with her father in a river-side villa; a little later on she would be Countess of Caraven, and one of the stars of the fashionable world. At present she was as it were, on the threshold of existence; in a little while a glowing, luxurious future would be before her.

"You must have a clever maid, Hildred," said Ariey Ransome. "Ask Lady Riche to find you one."

Lady Riche succeeded, and Hildred rejoiced in the attendance of a bright, quick Parisienne, who foretold that the day would come when her mistress would be acknowledged one of the most beautiful women in England.

"She wants a little training; she will have to travel and mix in society—then you will see," reported Amice. "I have never seen a face or figure of greater promise."

The day before Hildred's wedding-day the Hollies had been one scene of excitement and confusion; there had been so many visitors, the number of presents was so great. Late in the evening a magnificent bridal bouquet arrived from Lord Caraven. The wedding-breakfast was all prepared; the trunks containing all that was needed of the grand trousseau were packed and corded—the labels were already addressed, "Lady Caraven, passenger to Paris," for the Earl had decided on spending the so-called honeymoon there; every detail of the morrow's ceremony was arranged, and late at night Hildred Ransome stood with the Earl's bouquet in her hand.

They revealed nothing to her, those odorous flowers; they were of magical sweetness, but they brought her no message. There was something pathetic in the picture—the drawing-room full of strange shadows, the light of the lamp falling where she stood, a contrast to the darkness around. She wore a dressing-gown of white, soft, clinging material, fastened with crimson cords, her wealth of dark hair lay negligently over her shoulders, her eyes were bright with unshed tears.

It was a sweet, sad girlish face; a motherly woman looking at it would have drawn the girl's head down on her breast, and have soothed her with loving words. The morrow would be her wedding day; the tired servants were all sleeping, her attentive little maid had gone to rest, her father had retired quite early to his room. The morrow would be her wedding-day, and they had told her that she could live without love. Her wedding-day! No laughing young sisters came to talk over the great event with her; no gentle, loving mother folded her in her arms and prayed Heaven to bless her in her new life; no laughing, bright, fond school friends were there as companions; she was quite alone, her heart aching and burning with a new sense of desolation and loneliness. Her wedding-day! Her toilet-table was laden with jewels; her flance had been lavish in his presents; no duchess had more elegant or costly surroundings—yet she would have given all, she thought, for some one to love and comfort her. Her wedding-day! Yet he had not been; he had sent no note with the flowers, only his card with his compliments; there was no promise of the love that was to come after marriage, not one kindly word to allay her doubts or her fears. There could be no picture more touching than this of the lonely girl with the flowers in her hand. She had turned to them as she would have turned to a living creature; her lover, who on the morrow was to be her husband, had not been near, but he had sent the flowers, and in her forlorn fashion she had fancied she should get some comfort from them.

But they revealed nothing to her. The costly blossoms lay cold, fragrant, without meaning. As she stood holding them there came into her mind a story she had read of a young girl on her wedding-eve—a girl who had stolen out in the sweet, soft starlight to meet her lover by the garden gate. She remembered that the story told how the gallant young lover had kissed his bride—kissed her lips and her hands, calling her by every sweet name a lover could invent—how they had stood under the starlight amongst the trees and the flowers, how full of hope and happiness the young lover went away, and was never seen again.

She thought of this story now. Her face flushed; her heart beat. She dreamed how she would have liked to steal out under the stars and hear her handsome lover whisper sweet words to her.

She was desolate and lonely. The wind was whispering low—but no lover was near. She held the flowers to her face.

"Tell me, pretty blossoms," she said, "have you no message from him? None? Then, if in all this world one sentiment is more false than another, it must surely be this—

"'There's nothing half so sweet in life
As Love's young dream.'"

ETIQUETTE DEPARTMENT.

Editor Etiquette Department:

Being obliged to leave a place where we have lived for three or four years and kindness shown my family, in a hurried way, not able to make farewell calls, is it permissible to send P. K. cards after we leave from our next place of abode. QUESTIONER.

ANS.—Certainly, this is frequently done, when, as in your case, circumstances have prevented the usual form of leaving taking.

Editor Etiquette Department:

Should you not say that it was incorrect to say "make" tea or coffee when the intention was to serve it to visitors? A young lady was lately somewhat awkwardly placed by the hostess asking her to assist in the "making" cocoa for her guests. She understood her literally and had a decline, as she was afraid of not doing it the right way. This way of putting it made her think it had to be prepared, not merely helped. Had she not some reason for her conjecture? ALINE.

ANS.—The request so worded might easily have had a misleading effect; the hostess would have been more explicit as well as correct in asking the young lady to "pour" or, better still, to "help" the cocoa.

Editor Etiquette Department:

Kindly answer the following: 1. Is it out of the way to have salad sandwiches or ices at five o'clock tea? 2. For the decoration of the centre of a table which is best, a pretty square of some color or something more in the scarf line, and what kind of plant when only one is used? BEGINNER.

ANS.—1. Ices may be served with the usual refreshments of tea, coffee, chocolate, light cakes, thin bread and butter, but salad and sandwiches are never seen at afternoon tea. 2. The square style has had its day and is seldom, if ever, seen. Dainty scarfs of lace and satin are much used for the decoration of dinner tables, also some made of bolting cloth, with hand-painted vines and sprays. Ferns are always in favor, and nothing has a prettier or more pleasing effect than when they are seen really growing in a pretty jardiniere placed in the centre of the table.

Editor Etiquette Department:

When two ladies who have been in the habit of exchanging visits have from different circumstances (no ill feeling connected with them) discontinued doing so, if there is a mutual wish to recommence, whose place is it to call first? On this point there is a difference of opinion. CALUMET.

ANS.—When there is difference of age or position between the ladies, it is generally conceded that the first advance towards recommencing social acquaintance should be made by the younger. When there is no disparity of this kind an easy way of settling the matter is for the first visit to be paid by the lady who is the first to make calls in the neighborhood of the other lady in question. We know of an instance where this plan was adopted with satisfaction to both parties.

Editor Etiquette Department:

Can a lady send an invitation under the following circumstances: Being about to give a euchre party, she asks a young friend who cannot come. This young lady says, jockingly, to another, who is a mutual friend of hers and the hostess, "As I have declined you very probably will be asked in my place." The lady chancing to hear of this hesitates to ask the young lady, fearing that she may consider it an after-thought, when in reality she had intended to ask her to fill the first vacancy that offered. L. S. W.

ANS.—There is no reason why she should have the least hesitancy in sending this invitation. With euchre parties second invitations are almost inevitable and quite permissible. Though the required number are at first invited, it is quite improbable that all of this number will accept. Consequently others must be asked afterwards to fill the required places. The intended compliment is just the same to all who are invited.

PREMONITIONS.

In the winter wan and white,
When the days grow long and bright,
And the sun grows warm and hot
In each southward sheltered spot
Back of fences, under hills;
Then my brain with fancy fills,
Then my heart grows young again
Through the days that wax and wane.

In the morning when I wake,
Something all my heart doth take
Captive with a secret thrill
Toward the young year's waking will;
When I feel the sun behind
My closed, eastward window blind,
Something wells up in my heart
Most of joy and hope a part.

Burns the morning's warming glow
Over wastes of ice and snow,
Over spaces chill and bare;
Life and love are in the air.
With the year that is to be
Throbs my heart in sympathy;
Springward turns the whole world's mind;
Sleep and death are left behind.

In the hot, glad afternoons,
When the whole world melts and swoons
In a garment of thin haze
Over woods and rude roadways,
And the landscape, chill and wan,
Softer aspect taketh on,
Then my steps to southward turn
Where the sloping sun doth burn.

Then my heart within me sings
Lyrics of the world's dead strings;
Something mystic, magical,
Hovers, glamours over all;
Even the posters, red and yellow,
Prophesy each to its fellow;
Every voice and note I hear
Whispers of the pulsing year,
Cackling fowls in southward barns,
Wild notes over sheeted tarns.

Melted roadways, soiled snow,
Premature calling of a crow,
Fill my soul with reveries
As wells the upward sap in trees,
When my steps to southward turn
And the sloping sun doth burn.

Then at night, ere men have slept,
Across the stars a mist hath crept;
Then a dim bedews the skies,
And the night hath softer eyes;
Something in the heaven aglow,
Something in the earth below
Toward glad dreaming turns my brain,
And my heart grows young again.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY NAME PHOENIX.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp"—"There is No Death"—George Eliot—Florence Marryat—Several Questions Answered.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp."

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—In answer to "Elly's" request in Saturday's STAR, I send herewith a copy of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," which is the same as sung by the veterans of the U. S. Hoping that it is the song desired, I am yours G. A. R.

I have almost the same version sent to me by J. F. P. (University street); and a facetious letter on the subject from a Mr. Henry Wood, of Montreal.—Ed. N. and Q.

Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.

In the prison cell I sit, thinking, mother dear, of you,
And our bright and happy home so far away,
And the tears they fill my eyes, spite of all that I can do,
Tho' I try to cheer my comrades and be gay.

CHORUS.

Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the boys are marching,
Oh cheer up, comrades, they will come,
And beneath the starry flag we shall breathe the air again,
Of the free land in our own beloved home.

In the battle front we stood, when the fiercest charge was made,
And they swept us off a hundred men or more,
But before they reached our lines they were beaten back dismayed,
And we heard the cry of victory o'er and o'er.

CHORUS.

So within the prison cell we are waiting for the day
That shall come to open wide the iron door,
And the hollow eyes grow bright, and the poor heart almost gay,
As we think of seeing friends and home once more.

CHORUS.

Wanted, the Origin of the Family Name Phœnix."

To the Editor or Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—Can you or any of your numerous correspondents inform a constant reader of your valuable column the meaning of the word "Phœnix," when used as a family patronymic. I know from my wanderings through the south of Ireland many years since that there were then two or three families in the "Kingdom of Kerry" who bore this most singular name, but up to this date I have never been able to trace its origin. Twenty-five or six years since I remember to have seen the same question appear in the London Notes and Queries, signed, I believe, by one Riengerlassell, of Kerry. This question so stimulated me at the time that I consulted all the old histories in English and Irish I could lay hold of, but could find no trace of such a name in the annals of the country; nor did I fare any better by instituting enquiries among well-informed families of the county. The rarity of the name, and the circumscribed radius to which it is confined, have often excited the curiosity of the traveller. Some few years ago, some person asked through the columns of the Irish American, for the origin or derivation of the name. I have often wondered if there is any affinity between the mythological bird of the name and the patronymic; if you think so, I would esteem it a favor to have the connection traced through your exceedingly interesting column. "KERRY."

Montreal.

"There is no Death."

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—Florence Marryat's book "There is no Death," lies before me as I write. On re-perusal, I find my first impression confirmed, namely, that the authoress did not intend her work to be accepted as a "novel" or work of fiction, in the generally understood sense of the term. She freely uses family names, records family circumstances; also, personal experiences, or what purport to be such; in fine, gives the reader her confidence to a marked degree.

On first reading the book I was puzzled to reconcile its subject matter with the ideas I had long entertained of a favorite writer of mine; but, in spite of her genius, or, perhaps, because of it, she has known sorrows as she frankly tells; and if, as she claims, spiritism has been a comforter to her, I, for one, sceptic as I am, would not grudge her that consolation. Yours respectfully,

Montreal. M. J. WELLS.

Some Replies to Questions.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—1. Elvin, "Handbook of Mottoes," p. 208, says: Ut surgum desuper, means, "I swoop to soar again;" referring to the falcons in the coat of arms.

II. Who is Gathelus? Gathelus or Gadelus, is the eponymous ancestor of the Gaelic (Gadhlian) race, and is said to have been the son of Niul (son of the King of Scythia) by Scota, daughter of Pharaoh Cinchres, King of Egypt in the time of Moses.

III. Synonym, "for pitch into," in the sense of "scold" Webster, ed. of 1890, gives, "attack, assault, abuse (slang);" but in the slang dictionary, revised, and published by Chatto and Windus, London, 1874, the only meaning given to "pitch into" is "fight, give a thrashing to."

IV. According to Schaff and Herzog's religious encyclopedia, 1891, there have been no discoveries about Melchizidek in Egypt. GILLEMARUS.

Answers to Two Queries.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent "Pas," 1. Gathelus is a purely mythical person. As the school boy said, such person never existed and it is not certain when he died." The word is a Latin form of Gaidkel or Caid-hael, the same word as the better known Gael. The Irish races were supposed to have descended from a hero of that name, and to have been called after him. Gadhelus is the more usual spelling.

2. At Tel el Amarna, in Egypt, a number of tablets of baked clay bearing cuneiform inscriptions have been found. On being deciphered, they turned out to be reports from Egyptian viceroys and governors in Mesopotamia and Palestine. Among them were some showing that Jerusalem was ruled by a dynasty of kings, whose names were compounded with—Zedek (righteousness) and who claimed to be high priests of the God Il (Hebrew El) and to be in an especial degree under his direct protection. The bearing of this on the Biblical history of Melchizedech can easily be seen, and this is probably the information for which "Pas" asks. He will find full particulars in an article by Prof. Sayce, re-published in the Journal of Christian Literature. W. M.

George Eliot—Florence Marryat.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—I, referring to your column of March 26, I would say that George Eliot died at 4 Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, London, on 22nd Dec., 1880. 2. In reference to "There is no death," by Florence Marryat, it is not a novel at all, but professes to be a serious historical and truthful account of spiritualistic phenomena, which have come within the experience of the writer. How any or all of it can be credible passes my comprehension. The writer writes as if she fully believed it. She says her father, Captain Marryat, was a Ghost seer. T. A.

A Trifle.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—Is the following sentence correct?

"This woman's husband's property will be offered for sale shortly." Yours,

Montreal. REX.

The sentence as it stands is correct; but sounds awkward. "The property of this woman's husband," or "the property of the husband of this woman" is better.

ED. NOTES AND Q.

Small Questions Answered.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—A question has arisen between myself and a friend as to which is the correct rendering of the two following sentences: First, "Mr. L. is the late manager of the Company,"—should the verb is or was be used?

Also in the following: "I looked out of the window, saw a man passing, and asked my father whom he was." Which would be correct, whom or who?

You will confer a very great favor by kindly answering the above. Yours truly,

Montreal. ALICE M. H.

I. "Mr. L. is the late manager of the Company" is correct, or you can say "Mr. L. was lately the manager," but there seems to be no sense in "was the late manager." The late is redundant; but was formerly manager would be correct.

II. "Whom he was" is what is called bad grammar, since the objective case whom is wrongly used for the nominative who. The direct question of course is "Who is he?" ED. OF N. AND Q.

Information Wanted.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—Did you see the November number of the Canadian Shoe and Leather Journal, published by J. Acton, Toronto? If so, can you tell what the picture is of three female figures, one aged and two young; lithographed by New England Electric Lith. Co.? I am very anxious to find out.

ONE INTERESTED IN NOTES AND QUERIES.

Some Minor Points.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—Is there any good authority for leaving out the word "up" after the verb help? I see for instance the expression, "help make." Should not this be "help to make." Then they say here "received on" instead of "received from." Which is the more correct, and would you say "a quarter to three" or "a quarter of three" for 2.45 o'clock? The latter is invariably used in this city. Your usual clear and interesting opinion will be appreciated by Yours truly, JOHN GREATOREX.

Boston, Mass.

I. A week or so ago in answer to another correspondent I made some remarks on the omission of to after the verb help. Personally, I dislike the omission very much, and I do not find help among the best grammarians' list of verbs after which to is not required. Still, we often see "he helped make" history, though such a phrase is in my opinion inelegant, if not wrong.

II. Received from is the correct phrase; and III., a quarter to three is the only expression ever heard in England for 2.45 o'clock. The Scotch say a quarter from three, and justify the use of their phrase. The French write "Three hours less a quarter."

The Music of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—In reply to "Maud," I beg to quote the following from "The Franklin Square Song Collection, No. 1": "The music of the 'Star-Spangled Banner,' to which it was at once adapted, is an old French air, long known in England as 'Anacreon,' and afterwards in America as 'Adams and Liberty.'"

Captain Poitras.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—I read with much interest Mr. Perry's letter in the STAR of the 22nd inst., and as an eye-witness of the fire that consumed the Masonic Hall and threatened to destroy the Bonsecours Church, I have always understood that Captain Poitras was the man who saved the church by climbing up to the cross and cutting it down. I have no doubt but that the particulars of the affair, as given by Mr. Perry are correct. There is a mistake, however, in the date of the fire, which took place in the spring of 1853, and not in the autumn of 1852, as stated by an "Eye-witness," in the STAR of the 26th ult. Bosworth's "Hochelaga Depicta," published in 1839, gives the date of the fire as the 24th April, 1853, and this is no doubt correct, as Sir George Back, the Arctic explorer, left England on the 17th February, 1853, for the relief of Capt. Ross. He stayed en route here at the Masonic Hall, and lost valuable instruments in the fire. E. M.

Spanish Dynamite Outrages.

MADRID, April 22.—Several more outrages, attributed to anarchists, have been reported. As usual, dynamite was the agent employed in each instance. In the town of Herrera de Rio Pisuerga, in Old Castile, a band of anarchists exploded a quantity of dynamite at a bridge, and completely destroyed the structure. Soldiers were despatched to the scene for the purpose of capturing the band, but the latter, after a hot chase, succeeded in escaping. Another explosion occurred in Orense, in Galicia. In this case also the attack was made on public property. The police, however, were on the alert, and several suspected persons were arrested. Another explosion occurred in the town of Etxobia, a public fountain being blown to fragments by a charge of dynamite. The officials of the town at once instituted a vigorous investigation, but have not yet made any arrests.

Errors of Youth.

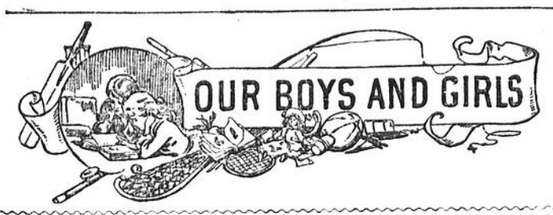

SUFFERERS FROM

Nervous Debility, Youthful Indiscretions, Lost Manhood, BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble never dreamed of. Even specialists are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure incredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.

CAPTAIN DUCK.

By Joaquin Miller in St. Nicholas.

Captain Duck was a Modoc Indian, with the shortest possible legs. His legs were so short that when he walked he waddled along like a very fat duck. And that is why he was called Captain Duck at the stage station, which was at the foot of the great white mountain in the heart of the Modoc country, Mount Shasta. Some said his legs had been shot off in a battle. And then some said his legs had been eaten off by a bear. But I do not very well see how they could be; for his feet were there, all right. And very big feet they were, too; wide and big and flat like ducks' feet. So I think he must have been born that way.

Poor Captain Duck could not hunt very well, or go on the war-path with the other Indians, and so he came to the stage station, to hire out, with the few rough men who kept the old log fort and took care of the stage horses there.

Those men did not like the old Indian, but as they were a lazy set, they were glad to have him at the fort to rub down and water the stage horses when the sun was hot or there was frost in the air. But they made all sorts of sport of the poor Indian. And, indeed, they laughed at him so much, and made so much fun of his short legs and big feet, that he often wished he was dead. For he was very sad and sensitive.

One day, Big Dan the stage driver left at the station a little boy whose father had died; for the boy had no money to pay fare further. The rough, lazy men there put him to work with the Indian, and they named him "Limber Tim," because he was so slim and limber. And then they did not know his name. But I suppose that would have made no difference, anyway; for, in the mountains of California they name folks just what they please. And if a boy looks as if his name ought to be "Limber Tim," or "Timber Slim," or anything of that sort, why, that must be his name and he can't help it.

The little orphan boy was sent out every day with the short-legged Indian, up on the side of the mountain, to herd the stage horses and keep guard over them. He had a belt, and a pistol in it, and a bowie-knife; and also a gun to carry on his shoulder.

Pretty soon he came to like this very much and began to grow like a weed and get fat. He and the Indian were the best friends in the world. But the men of the station, somehow, were harder and harsher than ever.

But Captain Duck and the boy did not mind it so very much now, for each had a friend,—a friend in the other.

They would buckle on their pistols as soon as it was daylight and they had had a little breakfast of crackers and broiled bear-meat or venison, and, each mounting a horse and driving the others, they would go up on a mountain-side, and there, by a little grove of thick wood, they would stop and let them graze all day. Sometimes Limber Tim would go to sleep on a warm rock, while he was supposed to stand guard and look away to the right and left for Indians on the war-path. But Captain Duck would never betray him.

Every time that Big Dan, the stage driver, came by, he would make all sort of fun of Captain Duck, as he hobbled about and hitched up the four stage horses, while the driver sat high up in the box and snapped his long whip.

The Indian did not like Big Dan, and Big Dan did not like the Indian. Dan said the Indian was a spy, and told the men at the stage station that some night Captain Duck would set fire to the place and run away by the light of the blaze.

One hot day, as he sat on the box with the four lines in his hands all ready to start off at a gallop down the great mountain, he told the Indian, with an oath, to "waddle in on his duck legs" and get him a drink.

The Indian did not move. Then Dan struck him with his whip. The men standing around roared with laughter. Still the sad-faced cripple did not move. Then Dan struck him another cut, across the face.

The Indian's brow grew dark and terrible, but he did not stir. Some one else brought the drink; and then, the driver snapping his whip, the stage dashed away down the mountain and left the Indian standing there, with the boy tenderly wiping his friend's bleeding face and speaking kind and pitiful words to him. The two friends went up on the mountain-side by the little pine grove, and watched the horses as before, and the Indian never spoke at all of what had happened.

A month or two went by, and everybody forgot about the trouble between Big Dan and the sad-faced savage. Everybody, did I say?

one day the stage came thundering in with Big Dan the driver leaning forward helpless on the box. There had been a shot fired from the thick wood back upon the mountain-side. The man was dying, and the four reins were slipping through his helpless hands.

Who could have fired that shot? When the stage driver was dead and buried, some of the men took Limber Tim aside and asked him whether he had been all the time with Captain Duck the day the shot was fired.

"All the time, every minute, every second," answered the lad, earnestly. For he had no suspicion at all that Captain Duck had shot the stage driver. Indeed, the boy believed what he said, and would have maintained it at any hazard. He forgot that he had fallen asleep on the warm flat rock that cool autumn day.

The next summer, signal-fires were seen one night on the mountain tops. The men at the stage station hastened to fasten the old log fort. For this, they knew, meant war. The Modocs were on the warpath.

The men made their guns ready, and gave Limber Tim an extra pistol to put in his belt, so that he might fight with all his might and help save their lives. But when they came to look for Captain Duck, next morning, he was gone. He had joined the Indians.

Then the men at the stage station were very much afraid; for they had been very cruel, not only to the cripple, but to all the Indians, and they men shut up in the little log fort and surrounded by the blazing forests.

The men looked one another in the face as the air grew dark and dense from the smoke, and shook their heads sadly—for they believed their time to die had come.

About ten o'clock one morning, the Indians appeared behind the stables and began to fire on the fort. They took the horses out, mounted them, and then set fire to the stables.

And now there was little hope, for the flames would spread to the fort, and then all must perish. The smoke was so dark and thick that the men were almost choked. They could not see to shoot the Indians, for it was like night.

"What can we do?" cried the men shut up in the fort, and hiding their eyes from the smoke. "The Indians will not come near enough for us to see them and fight. If we go out to find them we shall be shot down from behind the rocks and trees, and not one of us will live to tell the tale."

"Let me go out!" said little Limber Tim. "If I can find Captain Duck, I will save you all."

They hurried the boy through the great wooden gate of the fort, as he tied a white towel on a ramrod and held it high over his head in the thick smoke. Then the men bolted the great gate and left the brave little fellow to do his best with his white flag.

By and by, the boy with the white flag on the ramrod came pounding at the gate, and the men gathered around wild and eager as they opened it.

"What luck? What hope?"

"Well, if you will all leave your guns and go out one at a time down the stage road and never come back here any more, you can go."

"Never come back here any more?" cried one man, as he jumped toward the gate; "catch me comin' back here any more, if I ever get out of this!" and he leaped out through that gate like a newly sheared sheep leaping over the bars.

Then another followed and another, all feeling very much ashamed of the way they had treated the boy. But somehow they did not have the manhood to hold up their heads and say so.

When the men had gone, glad to go and never thinking of looking back or ever returning to the Modoc country, Captain Duck came hobbling in. The Indian helped Tim to put out the fire and then went away, taking all the stage horses and guns and blankets with them. So when the soldiers came, three days after, they found only these two in charge of the fort—little Limber Tim and Captain Duck.

The government left some soldiers there after that, and Limber Tim was made station master by the stage company!

He was the youngest station master, I suppose, that ever was on the border.

When I passed by there, last year, on a visit to my parents in Oregon, I saw him once more. But he is a man now. He has long hair, a small, black moustache, and wears two pistols in his belt; for the frontier ways prevail in that country still.

As for poor Captain Duck, he is shorter in the legs than ever, I think. His face is deeply wrinkled now, and his long black hair has turned as white as are the shining snows of mighty Mount Shasta when seen against the cold blue skys above. He never speaks to any one. But he loves Limber Tim with all his heart, and never is long away from his side, nor out of his sight if he can help it.

Captain Duck was sitting in the chimney-corner by the great log fire, smoking his pipe, when I saw him last. He was looking straight into the fire—thinking, thinking. And what was he thinking about? Maybe he was thinking about the dead stage driver who had struck him with a whip. It may be so. It may be so.

THE BRUSH BRIGADE.

Not long ago I heard a mother tell her boys that intimate and constant acquaintance with brushes went a great way towards making a gentleman. The remark struck me, and I asked how many brushes one needed to be familiar with.

"Tell her, boys," said their mother; and the merry fellows shouted:

"One to brush our hair we need,
And one to polish our boots,
One to clean our nails indeed,
And one to dust our suits,
And one to give our hats a switching;
To make us all look very bewitching;
And that's the song of the Brush Brigade.'

"Willie always twists everything they have to remember into a jingle, and then they don't forget it," said the mother, smiling as the brigade went off in a vivacious procession to practise on their brushes. "Tramps went out, but gentlemen came back," said the clever little mother when they came in again, presenting each of the brush-improved four with an apple turnover for his lunch box.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness, and dirt is an abomination," said grandmother from her corner.

"It runs in the family," I heard one of the boys say as they put on their coats. "I guess grandma brought up her boys to brushes just as grandma serves us. Never mind, all her boys are gentlemen clear through; and I s'pose we'll be the same if we stick to the brushes."

LOOK AND SEE.

How many school-boys in all the land, a thoughtful one enquires, can tell what kind of timber will bear the heaviest burden, or why you take white oak for one part of a waggon and ash for another, and what timber will last longer under water and what out of water? How many know sandstone from limestone, or iron from maganese? How many know how to cut a rafter or brace without a pattern? How many know which turns the faster, the top of a wheel or the bottom, as the waggon moves along the ground? How many know how steel is made, or how a snake can climb a tree? How many know that a horse gets up before and a cow behind, and that the cow eats grass from her and the horse to him? How many know that a surveyor's mark on a tree never gets any higher from the ground, or what tree bears fruit without bloom? There is a power of comfort in knowledge, but a boy is not going to get it unless he wants it badly. And that is the trouble with most school-boys. They do not want it; they are too busy, and have not time. There is no hope of a dull boy who wants knowledge than of a genius who thinks he knows it all without study. These close observers are the world's benefactors.—S. S. Visitor.

RULES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

1. Never call a person upstairs or in the next room; if you wish to speak to them go quietly where they are.

2. Always speak kindly and politely to the servants if you would have them do the same to you.

3. When told to do or not to do a thing by either parent, never ask why you should or should not do it.

4. Tell your own faults and misdoings, not those of your brothers and sisters.

5. Be prompt at every meal-hour.

6. Never interrupt any conversation, but wait patiently your turn to speak.

7. Never reserve your good manners for company, but be equally polite at home and abroad.

TOMMY'S RUN FOR LIFE.

A Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., despatch to the Chicago Daily Tribune of April 8 says: Tommy L. Dyer, a fourteen-year old boy of Hulburt, a lumbering town forty miles west of this city, had an exciting adventure on Wednesday, in which he narrowly escaped being devoured by a couple of big gray wolves.

Near the town is a lake of considerable extent. G. W. Dyer, father of the boy, is in charge of Hulburt's lumbering operations there. At the request of his son he caused a half-mile track to be cleared on the lake by a snow plough so his boy and others could enjoy skating. Wednesday afternoon Tommy was out alone at the end of the track furthest from camp. As it began to grow dark the boy was about to start for home when he was startled by the howl of a wolf not far off, followed instantly by another. At the same time two large and ferocious timber wolves made their appearance a short distance away.

The boy, aware that his life was in danger, at once sought safety in flight. The ugly brutes, half famished during the winter and intent on having a feast, immediately started in pursuit. Fear lent speed to the flying feet of the fugitive, and he raced along with all the strength he could command. For a time he distanced his pursuers, but he soon began to lose his strength, and the hungry animals were soon close behind, with their eyes gleaming like coals of fire and their red tongues hanging out between cruel, glistening teeth.

The lad continued his exertions, however, calling loudly for help. At last, feeling the hot breath of the panting brutes, he was about to give up in despair, when George Colvin and Alex Stewart, two brawny woodmen who were working near, heard the frightened cries of the boy and the fierce howls of the wolves and started to the rescue. They arrived just in time. Another minute would have been too late. The men attacked the brutes with their axes and drove them away after a struggle.

FAIR AND SQUARE.

The last time that Bert and Ray Temple staid at Wyngard's farm, the farmer gave them a rabbit apiece, and a handsome wooden house to keep them in.

"You must keep the house clean, and feed them yourselves," said Farmer Wyngard.

"That isn't work; it's fun," said Bert.

"Not likely we'll forget," Ray declared, proudly.

The farmer laughed.

Ray was to feed them three times a day; and Bert to sweep out the house and put in fresh water once a day. They were to take turns, week about, at the work.

But before the week was out, a discussion arose.

"Ray, you've forgotten the feeding three times this week; now, I shan't clear out the house to-morrow.

"Very well, then I won't feed them the next day," Ray answered.

"Then I won't do my part for two days," cried Ray.

Farmer Wyngard listened with a twinkle in his eyes. "Bless us! Seems to me it's a bad lookout for those rabbits. They're to starve because you youngsters are lazy."

The boys looked ashamed. They attended to their duties promptly for a few days, then they forgot again, and each accused the other of neglect.

"Now I'll tell you how to manage," said the farmer, sitting down on the wheelbarrow. "'Tisn't fair to punish the rabbits for your faults—you see that?"

"Yes," the boys admitted.

"Now, when Ray forgets to feed them three times, he must take the turn of house-cleaning, besides his own work; and if Bert forgets his part of the bargain once, he must feed the rabbits a whole day, besides his share of the work. Punish yourselves, boys, but don't punish the rabbits. Watch each other, and be fair and square."

The boys laughed at the old farmer's clever plan. Then they looked at each other.

"We'll try it," they said.

"That's right! Be fair and square, boys!"

THE PLUCKY COOK.

There was a young maiden whose look
Was as if she'd been trying to cook:
Her apron was flour-y,
Her eyes rather showery,
And dough smeared her pretty cook-book.

But being a maiden of pluck,
She resolved that she yet would have luck.
She would not be beaten.
Her bread should be eaten,
Though now it like mucilage stuck.

At last she prepared such a lunch,
That her brothers, beginning to munch
On Saturday morning,
In spite of all warning,
Continued till bed-time to lunch!

—St. Nicholas.

A WONDERFUL CURE.

There was once a girl in Dixie, so quarrelsome and tricksy,
If she could not rule the other girls she'd say she wouldn't play!
And her mother sighed, "My Julia is so nervous and peculiar
That how I'm e'er to govern her is more than I can say."
But a funny little woman (who was more or less than human)
Saw that wilful little maiden once break up a merry play,
And she took her and she shook her, till the "nervousness "forsook her,
And that sad "peculiarity" was shaken quite away!

NEAR AND FAR.

At the Little-End-of-Nowhere lived a single little man:
He had nobody for company but a little black-and-tan;
There was not much to do there, as perhaps you will suppose,
For as he had no neighbors, he had neither friends nor foes.

And so he fell to wondering, and wondered night and day:
"I wonder why the people live so very far away!
They must find it inconvenient—I should think! extremely so!
For when they come here they will have so very far to go!"

At last he took a high resolve; he said: "I'll go and see
Why these misguided people live so far away from me!
Perhaps it is their ignorance, and I can set them straight
Before they grow so very old that it will be too late!"

So he walked and walked and walked and walked until he found a city,
And to the people he expressed his wonderment and pity.
He was completely thunderstruck when some one chanced to say,
"'Tis you, my worthy little friend, who lives so far away!"

He went home pondering deeply; he said "It cannot be!
That person is insane—'tis they that live so far from me!
But I'll be patient with them, and perhaps they'll learn some day,
That such a distance from my home must needs be far away!" — Margaret Vandegrift in March St, Nicholas.

THE DANCED-OUT SHOES.

A FABLE FROM THE GERMAN.

There was once upon a time a king who had twelve daughters and it seemed as if each one of them was more beautiful than any of the others. They all slept in one great room where their beds stood side by side; and every night when they had lain themselves down to rest, their father, the king, locked the door himself and then bolted it. But when he came in the morning and unbolted the door, he saw that their shoes were all danced to pieces; and nobody could find out how that could have happened, for the door had surely been locked so tightly that no one could possibly get out. So the king had word sent to all the people in his land, that whoever could find out where his twelve handsome daughters had danced out their shoes, should have one of them for his wife, and when he himself should die, the lucky man might be king in his place. But if any one came and offered himself, and after three days and nights could not find out the secret, he should be put to death.

Not long after this a very fine, handsome prince presented himself to the king, and offered to try to find out where his daughters went. He was very nicely treated when he came and at night was shown into a room right next the room in which the twelve beautiful daughters slept. His bed was made up here and he was told he must be on guard to see where they went and danced; and in order that they might do nothing secretly and get out some other way, the door was left open which led into their room. But the prince became very sleepy; his eyes would shut up and, in spite of himself, he fell asleep. When he awoke in the morning the princesses had all been at a ball again, for there in a row stood the twelve pairs of shoes, and what was more, there were holes in the soles of every pair.

The second and the third nights went on just the same and then the poor prince's head was cut off without pity. Many other foolish people came afterward to take the risk, but every one of them lost his life.

Now it happened that a poor old soldier who had been wounded in the war and who was not able any longer to fight, found himself on the road to the city where the king lived. An old woman met him on the way and asked him where he wished to go. He said:

"To be honest with you, I do not know myself where I am going;" and then he added just in fun, "I did think maybe I would find out where the princesses danced out their shoes and afterwards get to be the king myself!"

"That is not so very hard;" said the old woman, "you must be careful not to drink the wine which will be brought to you at night and you must act as if fast asleep; that is all." Then she gave him a little cloak, and said, "When you put this on, you cannot be seen; you will be invisible, and you can then creep along after the twelve beautiful daughters of the king."

When the soldier heard this advice, he took heart and began to be in earnest, and at last went before the king and announced himself as a suitor for one of the maidens. He was just as well received as all the others had been, and they even dressed him up in fine clothes. In the evening at bedtime, he was led into the room where all the others before had slept, and when he wished to go to bed the eldest daughter came to him with a glass of wine. But he was not so foolish as those who had lost their lives before him, for he had fastened a sponge under his chin, so that the wine all ran into this sponge, and he never drank a drop. Then he laid himself down, and when he had lain quite a little while, he began to snore as if he were sound asleep. The twelve daughters heard him snoring, you may be sure; and how they did laugh! The oldest daughter said:

"This poor fellow might just as well have saved his life, and not come here to have his head cut off, like all those other foolish people." Then the twelve beautiful daughters got up, opened boxes, drawers and chests, and fetched out the most splendid dresses. They dressed themselves before the glass, jumped about, and were jolly together thinking of the dance they were going to have. But the youngest sister said:

"I do not know about this; you are all very happy, but somehow I feel very strange; I am sure some bad luck is going to happen to us!" The oldest sister said:

"You're a silly little goose, you are always so afraid! Have you forgotten how many fine princes have come here in vain? I really did not need to give this soldier the drink which makes everybody sleep; the stupid fellow would not have waked up anyhow."

When they were all ready they looked back at the soldier, but he had his eyes shut tightly and never tried to raise himself up or stir in the least and they thought they were very sure of him. Then the oldest sister went to her own bed and knocked on it. No sooner had she done this than the bed sank down, down through the earth, and the sisters climbed one after another down through the opening which it made; the oldest going first. The soldier, who had seen everything that was going on, did not wait, but put his little cloak on and climbed down behind the youngest sister. Just above the middle of the stairs, he stepped a little on her dress. She was dreadfully frightened and cried out:

"What is that? Who is holding my dress?"

"Don't be silly"—said the oldest one. "You have caught on a nail." They went on down and at last stood in a wonderful path lined on each side by trees whose leaves were all of pure silver, and you cannot think how bright and shining they were! The soldier said to himself:

"I must surely take away one of these beautiful leaves, to show where I have been," so he broke off a twig, and as he did so the tree gave a loud crack. Then the timid young sister cried out:

"Something is wrong; didn't you all hear that noise?" But the oldest sister said:

"Those are friendly salutes because we are so soon to set our princes free."

They soon came upon one path where the leaves were of gold, and at last they arrived upon a third where they were of diamonds. The soldier broke a twig off each time, and again came the loud cracking noise, so that the youngest sister started back from fear, but the oldest sister kept on saying that the queer noises were only friendly signs. They went on farther and came to a great water where stood twelve little boats and in each boat there sat a handsome prince. They had been waiting for the twelve sisters and each brave prince took a princess in the boat with him, but our soldier sat himself down in the boat with the youngest maiden. Then her prince said:

"I do not know why, but this boat is heavier to-day and it seems as if I must row with all my might to make it go along."

"That must be from the warm weather;" said the youngest sister, "it seems very warm to me too." On the other side of the water there stood a fine castle all gay with lights and they could hear beautiful music coming out from it. They rowed over, went into the lovely halls and each prince danced with his princess. But the soldier danced with them unseen and when one of them held up a glass of wine to her mouth he drank out of it until it was empty. This made the youngest sister afraid again, but the eldest one made her keep quiet. They danced there until three o'clock in the morning, when all their little shoes were danced to pieces and they had to stop. The princes rowed them back over the water again, only our soldier sat himself this time before the oldest sister. On the shore they said good bye to the princes and promised to come again the next night. When they got to the stairs, the soldier ran ahead of them all, and lay down in his bed, and when they came up slowly and wearily, he was snoring so loudly that they could not help hearing him and they said to each other that they were very sure of this stupid fellow. Then they took off their beautiful dresses, put them away, stood the worn out shoes under their beds and lay down.

The next morning he said nothing of what he had seen, for he wished to see again the wonderful things with them and so he went the second and third night, as he had gone the first. Everything went on as on the first night and the sisters danced every time until their shoes were worn out. The third night he brought back with him a goblet for a sign of where he had been. At last when the hour came that he must answer what he knew, he put the three leaves of silver, gold and diamonds, with the goblet into his pocket and went before the king. The twelve sisters stood behind the door to listen to what he would say. When the king asked him:

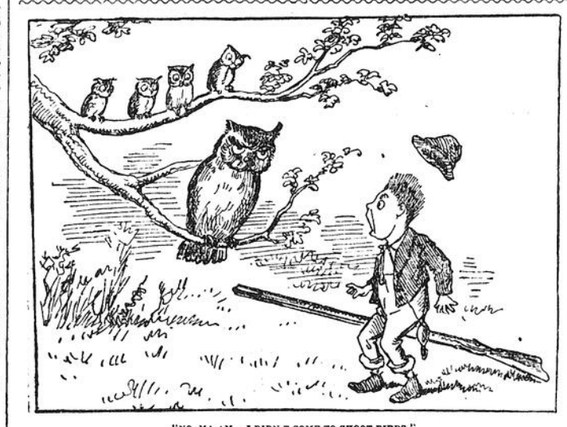

"Where did my daughters dance out their shoes?" he answered:

"With twelve princes in a castle down under the earth." Then he told how it all was, and brought out the leaves of silver, gold, and diamonds, and the fine goblet to prove that he was telling the truth.

Then the king made his daughters come out and asked them if the soldier had told him rightly. As they saw that he had found them out and that it would do no good to tell a lie about it, they said it was all true.

The king then asked the soldier which daughter he would take for his wife, and he said:

"I am no longer a young man, I will take the oldest daughter." On the very same day they were married and the kingdom was promised to the soldier after the king's death. But the princes away down under the earth were put under a spell for as many nights as they had danced with the beautiful daughters. —Josephine K. Brown, in Treasure Trove.

"NO, MA AM,—I DIDN'T COME TO SHOOT BIRDS."

A TRUE DOG STORY.

Gyp was a handsome brown spaniel, of the kind known as "bird dogs." When only a small puppy her instinct as a bird setter showed itself in a passion for chasing and killing young chickens, and as she grew older, not even the larger fowls were safe from her sharp teeth. At last, however, by much patience and punishing on the part of her master, Gyp was taught not to chase the fowls, on her master's premises at least.

One of the children of the family had a pet hen, which, being always near the house, annoyed Gyp very much by stealing the food from the plate of scraps set for the dog upon the back porch. In vain did Gyp chase her away. As long as she forebore giving her a shaking, old Biddy would return on the instant that Gyp went back to her plate, and snatch another choice bit under her very nose.

At last the poor dog's patience was worn out, and one morning Gyp resolved to put the old Biddy out of the way, and yet not to risk punishment by killing her in the way common to bird dogs. She seized the hen in her teeth, and ran with it to the garden, where, still holding it in her mouth, she scratched a deep hole in the earth, and laid the squawking hen in it, holding her down with one paw, while with the other she proceeded to bury her tormentor alive.

So well did she accomplish this task that it is doubtful if the hen could have got out without help. When the hen was buried, Gyp trotted back to finish her breakfast in peace.

The hen was released uninjured, and ran back cackling to the barn-yard. The lesson proved a good one, however, and if the hen ever came near the plate of food again, a spring at her from Gyp would send her away in great fright.

PUT ON THE SHOE.

Have you heard that old saw of the Persians,
That saying both witty and true,
"The whole world is covered with leather
To him who is shod with a shoe?"
Fine calfskin or kid or morocco,
Great cavalry boots armed with steel,
The dandiest, jauntiest slippers,
Coarse brogues tumbled down at the heel—
What matter the differing fashions?—
The richest and poorest of you
Will find the whole world clad in leather
As soon as you put on your shoe!
Before, it was cold and uneven,
Rough pebbles and sharp bits of glass,
Now, presto! a smooth and warm pavement
Wherever it please you to pass.

But ah! there's a maid—have you seen her?—
A little maid cheery and sweet,
Who daintily trips, yet I see not
What leather she wears on her feet;
For I know by her sunny eyes' sparkle,
And by the calm curve of her mouth,
And by the kind grace of her manners,
Like warm breezes fresh from the South,
I know that wherever her foot falls
On loving task speeding or sent—
The cobbler may laugh, but I care not—
She is shod with the shoe of content!

And, little maid, Cinderella
Night claim your wee shoe for her own,
But borrowing's out of the question
For me, with my "sevens" outgrown.
Just whisper the secret, I pray thee,
Come, what is the shop and the street,
And where is the cobbler who fashions
Such beautiful gear for the feet?
I'll go and I'll offer a treasure
Will make his big spectacles shine,
If only two shoes—somewhat larger—
Like your little shoes, can be mine!
And then I will don them, and leaping
Off over the world will I go,
Off over my frets and my worries,
Off over my aches and my woe,
And loudly to all limping grumblers
My shoemaker cheer will be sent;
"The whole world is covered with gladness
To him who is shod with content!"

THE KEENLY TEMPERED SCYTHE OF DEATH FOILED AGAIN.

A Young and Promising Life Saved by Paine's Celery Compound.—Another Startling Proof of the Value of this Great Remedy.—It Cures and Saves.

The grand work never ceases; wonders are being accomplished every day in all sections of this broad Dominion. Our people now recognize and appreciate the marvellous healing virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, and seem eager to make known the wonderful cures it effects. With the diseased, sick and afflicted, Paine's Celery Compound is a true talisman, a never-failing magical protector and renovator. Its fame has never been equalled in the annals of medicine, and no wonder it is that the medical profession look on with awe and astonishment. This grand, life-giving remedy boasts of its power to raise up and cure the people that some physicians pronounce incurable. It speaks words of cheer, comfort and hope to those who are far gone in disease, and honestly promises new life.

What other remedial power known to man can do the same work? Can any other agency known to medicine show such a record? We think not; the public well know that there is no other medicine that can work such wonderful results.

Paine's Celery Compound always produces the best character of approval and proof from amongst our own people. It does not require to deal with false or imaginary cures; it has an abundance of the most convincing letters and testimonials from Canada's own people, always fresh, crisp, strong and powerful in tone and feeling.

To-day we are enabled to give the public the testimony of a well-known young man of Clementsport, Annapolis Co., Nova Scotia, Mr. William S. Roop. He suffered from a terribly dangerous, and often fatal, disease. He was treated by doctors, and consumed large quantities of medicines, but no cure came until the great modern remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, was used. Mr. Roop very recently wrote as follows:

"I would like to add my testimony to the effect of Paine's Celery Compound. For about four years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart. Have taken lots of medicine from different doctors for it. Before I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound, I could not sleep, was very nervous, had pains in my left side, shoulders and arm, nearly all the time. I is gone now. I have used altogether about one dozen bottles. I send you my photo with this.

"WILLIAM S. ROOP."

This is to certify that we, the undersigned, are personally acquainted with William S. Roop, and can vouch for the truth of every statement made.

JAMES H. MERRITT, } Clementsport,
W. H. RICHAN, } Annapolis Co.,
WILLIAM ROOP, } Nova Scotia.

All diseased, weary and suffering mortals, afflicted with troubles which may prove fatal at any moment, should deduce this moral from the testimony given above: "Act promptly, by using Paine's Celery Compound when the first symptoms appear, and you will avoid suffering, anxiety and care."

LORD WOLSELEY ON THE ARMY.

No Fears of Foreign Invasion—Irish Soldiers Still the Best for Fighting—Rabies Among the Fox Hounds.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE STAR.

DUBLIN, April 6.—At a general meeting of the College Historical Society, held in Trinity College last Wednesday, General Lord Wolseley occupied the chair and took part in the debate which took place on the subject, "That the institution of compulsory army service in these countries is desirable." Lord Wolseley, in the course of an address which he gave, said that great European nations whose frontiers are opposite one another have really no means of protecting themselves such as we have, and must depend absolutely on their armies, and it becomes a matter of most vital importance which nation is able to maintain the best as well as the largest army. From a British point of view, however, this is unnecessary, because if we are likely to be invaded at all, it cannot be by a large army. Those great armies of from five to six hundred thousand, up to two or three millions of men, could never cross the channel and land in England. At the outside the greatest force that could invade us would be a hundred and fifty thousand, or two hundred thousand men. It would require an enormous number of vessels to carry guns, ammunition, and food for men across the narrow channel that divides England from France or the Continent, and therefore, when we think of the army that we require in England for the defence of our shores, we find that it need only be a very small one compared with the great armies of the continent.

FAVORS SHORT SERVICE.

Lord Wolseley spoke in favor of short service, as he considered it was the only way to create a good reserve. England now had a reserve force of between 70,000 and 80,000 men, and he had no hesitation in saying that these men would bear comparison with any soldiers in the world. Altogether, England could muster about three hundred thousand men, and this force, Lord Wolseley thinks, would be most ample. To our population (about 37 million) we have only one soldier to every hundred and seventy-seven souls, while Germany has one in every twenty-one and a half, and France one in every nineteen. If we were to obtain from our population the same proportion of soldiers that continental nations maintain, the city and suburbs of London alone would supply us with an army. On the question of volunteers versus compulsory service, "our only General" said that when he had a job to do which presented unusual features, he always obtained volunteers to do it. He was convinced that two volunteers are equal to at least three men whose service is not voluntary. What ever little he had done in the world had been done by selected men, so that he was perhaps somewhat prejudiced in favor of volunteers. On the matter of good fighting men Lord Wolseley also appears to have a prejudice, and that in favor of the men of his native Isle. You will find, he said, that the races fond of war and fond of fighting will produce much better soldiers than any race not given to fight. The race to which we Irishmen belong has from time immemorial had a great reputation, and still carries the reputation of being the finest soldiers in Europe. This comes from being fond of fighting. It is born in the Irish, and you may rest assured of it, that as long as you have throughout Ireland, men trailing their coats, and looking for a fight, you will find a good race of soldiers. I hope the day is far distant when we shall give up any of our manly sports and amusements, and I hope the day will never come when Paddy will cease to trail his coat looking for fight." In conclusion, Lord Wolseley said: "The army we require is small, and the voluntary system does all we want. I am cordially in favor of that voluntary system, although I am fully alive to the great advantages which certain nations are deriving from compulsory service."

A LADY STUDENT.

Miss Mary Strangman, a student in the Royal College of Surgeons here, did very well in the late examinations. In the practical anatomy class she was fifth in order of merit, being one of those securing a first-class certificate. In descriptive anatomy she also stood high, with 81 per cent., the first prize winner and medallist, Mr. Robbins, having 91 per cent. This lady's success may encourage many others of the gentler sex to enter the lists now that the portals of the R. C. S. I. are thrown open to them.

LUCKY BROTHERS.

Verily, the Dublin porter-peers—the brothers Guinness—have a fine time of it. Lord Iveagh is cruising about in the Mediterranean in his magnificent yacht, and is on his way to Constantinople. He is to visit the Sultan. I wonder what the sublime Porte will think of the sublime porter. Lord Ardilaun, the eldest Guinness, left Dublin on Saturday last from here, in the "Warwick Castle," of Sir Donald Currie's celebrated Castle Line, which splendid ship he has chartered for a cruise of some months. The ship was most luxuriously fitted up, and nothing left undone to make life happy. Wealth, however, is not everything, for neither of the Guinnesses have the health to enjoy it; both of them being far from strong.

LACROSSE IN DUBLIN.

They never caught on to lacrosse properly in the Irish metropolis, although in the north of Ireland it is a most popular game. An effort, however, is now being made by the undergraduates of Trinity College to revive it in Dublin. Some members of the College Football Club are taking the matter up in real earnest, and whether on a large or small scale the game is sure of an early start. Some years ago a lacrosse club was formed in Trinity, but died out after a flickering existence of a couple of years. The trouble was that there were no outside clubs to compete with, and a continual series of practice matches grew monotonous. Now the heaven of lacrosse is being introduced into the various leading football clubs playing under Rugby rules, and it is hoped that the "blue and white" will soon have foemen worthy of their "sticks."

RABIES IN A PACK.

There has been a very serious outbreak of rabies in the county Armagh. One of the hounds of the Armagh Hunt Club got bitten, and the consequence was that the whole pack had to be destroyed. There were eight couple and a half of hounds left, and these were destroyed by poison, by Mr. Huston, V. S. All the carcasses were buried six feet under the surface of the ground, and deeply covered with quicklime. The most stringent measures have been taken to prevent a further spread of this dreaded disease, and all unmuzzled dogs are promptly disposed of.

SPORTING EVENTS.

Cross-country running was brought to a close here on Saturday last, 2nd April, when the race for the senior championship of Ireland took place over Clouskeagh course, about two miles from Dublin. The course, which is a stiff one, is six miles. About fifty competitors took part in the race, representing five of the principal "Harrier" clubs, viz., the Haddington, Belfast, Dublin University, County Dublin and Elysian. The race created much excitement amongst Irish athletes, but W. M'Guirk, of the Haddington Harriers, came in an easy winner, by 200 yards, in the fast time of 35m. 58 sec. The four miles championship of Ireland will be run about the end of May—probably at the Masonic sports here on the 21st of that month. J. P. Conneff, and the cream of Irish runners, will take part in the race. Conneff will make his first public appearance since he came from America at the I. C. A. sports on Easter Monday. He has quite recovered from his accident, and is getting on well with his training down at Clare, in the Co. Meath.

The athletic contest—Cambridge University vs. Dublin University, on the grounds of the latter College on 9th July next.

MARRYING MONEY.

A very poor Earldom is about to be gilt with Australian gold, by the marriage of the young Earl of Huntingdon with the daughter of Sir Samuel Wilson, the millionaire "squatter." The Huntingdon title is a very old one, dating back to 1529, being inferior in antiquity to only those of Shrewsbury and Derby. The present Earl, who is now twenty-four years of age, comes of a thoroughly sporting stock from both sides, and, though the title is an English one, the Hastings family has been identified with the Green Isle for generations. The Earl's maternal grandfather was the late Hon. Col. Westoura, one of the best known of Irish sportsmen of the good old times. The late Earl of Huntingdon was a most popular man, and was M. F. H. of the Ormonde and King's Co. Hunt for many years. When hunting was boycotted in Ireland Lord Huntingdon sold his pack to the Montreal Hunt Club, and your present pack has a lot of the old O. and K's. Co. blood in it.

WHERE VACCINE IS PRODUCED.

A Visit to the Provincial Vaccine Institute Near the City of Quebec.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, April 22.—On Thursday last, a STAR correspondent had the privilege of visiting the Provincial Vaccine Institute situated on the St. Foy road, about one mile from the city limits. This institution, which is the only concern of the kind in the Dominion, was established in 1886 and has ever since been under the able management of Edmond Gauvreau, Esq., M. D. During the smallpox epidemic in 1885, Dr. Gauvreau was public vaccinator for the city of Quebec and in the numerous cases which came under his care he discovered that the vaccine virus used was not very good, and in the following year opened a stable on the St. Foy road. Shortly afterwards, the Local Government, at the request of His Eminence Cardinal Taschereau, the physicians and a large number of citizens, granted Dr. Gauvreau an annual subsidy of $1000, and since then the institute has made rapid progress.

In connection with this establishment, it may be of great interest to know something in regard to how and where the vaccine virus is obtained, how put up for use and how it is kept in a right condition to be employed in its important work. Until 1886 the supplies of vaccine matter used throughout the Dominion were derived mostly from the United States and principally from Boston, but now Dr. Gauvreau supplies almost every physician in the Dominion with vaccine from his farm.

The building occupied as a stable is a two story structure, built of wood, but will soon be replaced by an iron one, as wood serves as a receptacle for the vaccine microbes. The cattle are quartered on the ground floor and on opening the stable door the correspondent was struck with the absolute neatness of everything.

The stables contained several head of the finest and best stock, young, fat, healthy animals, which are an absolute necessity for the best results.

Only those that are fit to be slaughtered and used on the table are fit for vaccination, and those that are bought for this purpose are kept for a few days previous to being operated upon, and during that time receive the very best care, and before being inoculated the animals are inspected by the Provincial Government veterinary surgeon, Mr. Couture, who is also Federal Inspector at the Levis quarantine. In the process of vaccination the parts of the animal less liable to come in contact with any further substance are shaved very closely. Thus for a space of 6 inches wide and 4 inches long on each of the hind quarters of the animal the hair is shaved off close to the skin. As many as 15 or 20 scarifications can be made with a lancet on these bare places, and the vaccine matter of a previously vaccinated animal is then inserted, and the process of incubation of the disease is then begun. As a rule five or six days elapse before the sores are ripe for the production of healthy lymph. The process of taking the lymph requires considerable care and has to be performed only by a specialist at a certain stage of the disease to secure the best results. When the pustules are fully matured they exude the lymph which is intended for vaccinating purposes. The points, which are made of thin strips of tusk ivory are then coated with the virus, and as soon as they are dry are carefully inspected. These points are then put in small brass cases, which are hermetically sealed, then wrapped in silver paper and sealed with rubber paper so that dampness can never affect them. Each case contains ten points.

The time to collect lymph is between the fifth and sixth day after inoculation. After that date, lymph cannot be used, as the suppuration of pus begins, and then that lymph cannot be used, as the pus is mixed with vaccine, which would cause a regrettable inflammation if used on subjects.

Dr. Gauvreau uses a new process by which he is enabled to charge alone 50,000 points daily and which in the case of an epidemic would be of an immense advantage to the medical faculty, as he can at any time meet the requirements of the profession.

The Quebec Vaccine Institute is the only one in America that is under the direct supervision of the Government, as are all the institutes of the same kind in Europe, and there is thus no fear of speculation. Almost every physician in Canada is now supplied with vaccine points from Dr. Gauvreau's farm.

People do not now object to be vaccinated, as the vaccine received is chemically pure and has received the public's confidence.

Some idea of the number of points sent out from this establishment may be gained from the fact that during October, November and December last, 50,000 points were delivered.

Dr. Gauvreau has received numerous certificates testifying to the excellent quality of the vaccine produced on the farm.

THE REBELLION IN VENEZUELA.

A Force of Government Troops Routed—A Furious Encounter.

NEW YORK, April 22.—A cable to the Herald from Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, says: This seaport is in a state of excitement over the rout of the Government troops on April 14. At sundown on that date, Palacio's army made its final and futile attempt to dislodge a force of insurgents under command of Gen. Mora, who were entrenched at a spot just beyond Polito. Twice the Government soldiers attacked the enemy and failed to drive it from its position. Discouraged over their ill-success, Palacio's troops showed signs of panic, but under the stirring appeals of the leader they rallied and again charged. The encounter was brief but furious. They were defeated all along the line, and, turning, fled in every direction. The insurgents followed in hot pursuit, and did not abandon it until the Government troops were well on the road to this town. There were many dead and dying and wounded left upon the field. Some of them were rebels, but the large majority were followers of Palacio. Nothing definite could be learned as to the exact number slain, but it is officially announced that the Government lost one-third of its force in the encounter. Of this loss by far the greater portion was caused by desertions. As soon as Palacio's men saw that they were overcome many of them threw down their arms or went over to the enemy. The news of the result spread terror throughout Puerto Cabello. It was almost immediately followed by a general conscription order. The town has 9000 inhabitants. Every able-bodied man among them has been forced into military service. This state of affairs has had the effect of almost paralyzing the entire commerce of the port.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's Sickness.

MONTE CARLO, April 22.—Sir Arthur Sullivan, the composer, who has been ill for some time past, started on his return to England yesterday. Special arrangements for his comfort were made, and the train on which he travelled awaited his arrival at the station. Upon his arrival in London a consultation of physicians will be held, and it will then be decided if an operation is necessary in his case. Sir Arthur Sullivan is suffering from renal calculus, and it is thought it will be some time before he is again able to do any work.

Gulf and Lower St. Lawrence.

FATHER POINT, April 22.—Cloudy, calm; inwards 8.30 a. m. American steam yacht, "Wm. Harrison."

MAGDALEN ISLANDS AND ST. PAUL'S, April 22.—Cloudy weather, west wind, no ice.

MEAT COVE, April 22.—West wind; open ice distant.

ESQUIMAUX POINT, April 22.—Raining, north-east wind; schooners "Willie" and "Albertine" anchored at Esquimaux Point.

MOISIE, April 22.—Inward 7 a.m., schooner "Jeune Pardrix."

Deeming's Trial Begins.

MELBOURNE, April 22.—The trial of Frederick Bailey Deeming for the murder of his wife opened to-day. The court room was crowded. Counsel for the prisoner at once asked for an adjournment until April 28, in order that time might be given for the arrival of witnesses. The application was granted, and Deeming was taken back to gaol.

The Insolvency Bill.

TORONTO, April 22.—Representatives of the Montreal, Hamilton, London and Toronto boards of trade met here to-day to discuss the proposed insolvency bill. It is understood the bill is nearly complete and will shortly be submitted to the councils of the different boards.

JUDGES' SALARIES.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON'S RESOLUTION.

Increases all Through the List—Puisne Judges of the Superior Court Receive Increases of $500 a Year.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 22.—The following is Sir John Thompson's resolution respecting the increase of judges' salaries:

1. That it is expedient to amend the Act respecting the Judges of Provincial Courts and to provide that the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature of Ontario shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of Ontario, $7000 per annum.
Three Justices of Appeal, each $6000 per annum.
The Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, $7000 per annum.
Two Judges of the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, each $6000 per annum.
The Chancellor of Ontario, $7000 per annum.
Three Judges of the High Court of Justice, Chancery division, each $6000 per annum.
The Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, $7000 per annum.
Two Judges of the High Court of Justice, Common Pleas Division, each $6000 per annum.

If the Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, the Chancellor of Ontario or the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas is appointed to the Court of Appeal, the Governor in Council may direct that he be paid a salary not less than that previously enjoyed by him as such Chief Justice or Chancellor.

2. That the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench and of the Superior Court in the Province of Quebec shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, $7000 per annum.
Five puisné Judges of the said Court, each $6000 per annum.
The Chief Justice of the Superior Court, $7000 per annum.
Thirteen puisné Judges of the said Superior Court, whose residences, within the judicial districts respectively assigned to them, are fixed in the cities of Montreal or Quebec, each $6000 per annum.
Sixteen puisné Judges of the said Superior Court, each, $4500 per annum.

The Judge appointed to perform at Quebec the duties of the Chief Justice of the said Superior Court; if the Chief Justice resides at Montreal or the Judge appointed to perform such duties at Montreal, if the Chief Justice resides at Quebec,—in addition to his other salary, $1000 per annum.

3. That the salaries of the judges of the Supreme Court of the Province of Nova Scotia shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the said Court, $6000 per annum.
Six judges of the said court, each, $5000 per annum.

4. That the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the Province of New Brunswick shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the said Court, $6000 per annum.
The Judge in Equity, $5000 per annum.
Four puisne Judges of the said Court, each, $5000 per annum.

5. That the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the Province of Prince Edward Island shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the said Court, $5000 per annum.
One assistant Judge, being also Master of the Rolls in Chancery, $4500 per annum.
One assistant Judge, being also Vice-Chancellor, $4500 per annum.

All fees heretofore payable to the said judges are abolished.

6. That the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench for the province of Manitoba shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the said Court, $6000 per annum.
Three puisné Judges of the said Court, each $5000 per annum.

7. That the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court for the province of British Columbia shall be as follows:

The Chief Justice of the said Court, $6000 per annum.
Four puisné Judges of the said Court, each $5000 per annum.

8. That the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the North-West Territories shall be as follows:

Five puisné Judges of the said Court, each $5000 per annum.

9. That the thirteenth section of the said Act is amended:

(a) By inserting after the word "Toronto" in the seventh line thereof, the following words, that is to say: "Provided that no Judge shall be paid at any such rate for more than ten Courts in any one year, and that for attending each additional Court he shall be paid six dollars for each day's absence from his place of residence, together with his actual disbursements for conveyance."

(b) By inserting after the word "side" in the tenth line thereof, the following words, that is to say: "or extraordinary or additional term of the Court."

(c) By inserting after the word "term" in the twenty-third line thereof, the following words, that is to say: "or extraordinary or additional term."

(d) By inserting after the word "dollars" in the fifteenth line thereof, the following words, that is to say:

"To each of the Judges in the Court of Queen's Bench and to any Judge of the Superior court acting as assistant Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench or appointed to replace a judge thereof in case of incompetency, absence, suspension or leave of absence, for every extra day of a term, and for every day's attendance elsewhere than at his place of residence, at any delibere fixed by the Chief Justice, or the senior Judge, six dollars."

10. That there shall hereafter be paid to each Trial Judge of an election petition under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act for each day he is absent from his place of residence, six dollars, together with his actual disbursements for conveyance, and no more.

A MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING CASE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, Ont., April 22.—Michael Sherbonneau, who was shot a few days ago in the neighborhood of Stoco, East Hastings, is in a precarious condition at the Hotel Dieu Hospital. The young man was employed as a teamster of the Rathbun Company, and told a reporter he had been drinking and insulted a woman. She ordered him away, and when he was about to start she got her husband's shot-gun and blazed away at him. It was loaded with fine shot. Sherbonneau doesn't intend to take proceedings against the woman in case of his recovery. His end is now said to be near at hand, and it is probable that the whole affair will be thoroughly investigated. The Hotel Dieu authorities state that Sherbonneau was delirious when he was speaking to the reporter.

KINGSTON, April 22.—Sherbonneau died this morning. Mother arrived here, and remains will be taken to Stoco for interment.

WINNIPEG WIRINGS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

WINNIPEG, April 22.—Between two and three hundred immigrants reached this city last night from the Old Country.

Count de Leusse, of St. Laurent, has been presented with a largely signed requisition asking him to run as an independent candidate for the legislature.

Buildings in the aggregate valued at $175,000 are now in course of erection in Winnipeg.

Spence, of Whitewood, found guilty of attempting to murder Inglis McArthur at the Methodist Church recently, has been sentenced to ten years' penal servitude at Stony Mountain.

KINGSTON LOCOMOTIVE WORKS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, April 22.—Business at the locomotive works is very dull. Within the past few weeks many of the workmen have been discharged and the most of them have left the city. There will not likely be a boom at the works until after the annual meeting next month. Then it is expected some important changes will be decided upon. It is expected that in the autumn the work will be run by a full staff.

A KINGSTON DESERTER.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, Ont., April 22.—Gunner Wilson, gate-keeper at the Royal Military College, is a deserter in a double aspect—a deserter from "A" Battery, a deserter from wife and two children. The ones he has left are in great distress. They are totally unprovided for. When he left he kissed his wife and family good-bye. He secured his civilian clothes. Wilson is an Englishman, and had been married seven years.

ANARCHISTS STILL ACTIVE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

PARIS, April 22.—Notwithstanding the fact that a number of leading Anarchists are in gaol and others have been driven from the country, those at liberty are still active and hold secret meetings. Gendarmes this morning raided houses where the Anarchists lived, and captured forty-five men, who were taken to the prefecture and afterwards locked up.

LIEUT.-GENERAL PELLY DEAD.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

LONDON, April 22.—Lieutenant General Sir Lewis Pelly, member of the House of Commons for the North division of Hackney, died to-day.

WHAT KINGSTON DESIRES.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, April 22.—A large deputation of aldermen will go to Ottawa on Monday to interview the Government on the following questions: The permanent establishment of the military camp here; the establishment of a manufactory of military clothing; employment of convict labor on the breakwater, and the use of the stone taken from the harbor shoals. The deputation will also look after the belt line bill.

The grist mill of Messrs. Bentz & Pitalske at Eganville has been destroyed by fire. Loss estimated at $10,000; insured for $6000. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

THE SUPREME COURT.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 22.—The spring term of the Supreme Court opens on Tuesday, the 2nd prox., when a large number of cases will be argued. The court meets on the Monday to deliver judgment in appeals heard last term. The cases inscribed for hearing at the coming term are: Election appeals, South Grey, Williams vs. Landerkin; Pontiac, Murray vs. Lyon, et al; L'Assomption, Gauthier vs. Brien; Rouville, Brodeur vs. Charbonneau; Bagot, Dupont vs. Morin.

Nova Scotia appeals: British American Asso. Co. vs. Law, et al, Chandler Electric Co. vs. Fuller & Co. in re C. M. Cahan, Nova Scotia Central Railway Co. vs. Halifax Banking Co.; Crowe vs. Adams, Smith, et al vs. McLean, et al.

New Brunswick appeals: Ellis vs. the Queen, Timmerman vs. St. John, Peters vs. St. John, Vaughn vs. Richardson, American Plough Co. vs. Wallace, Scott vs. Bank of New Brunswick, Buck vs. Knowlton.

Quebec cases: Paradis vs. Besse, O'Shaughnessy vs. Bail, Lewis vs. the Queen (Exchequer appeals), Dubois vs. Ste. Rosa, Plett vs. Perreault, Williams vs. Irvine, Rodier et al. vs. Lapierre et al., Martindale and Powers, Empire Phosphate Co., vs. Angio-Continental Guano Works.

Western District cases: British Columbia appeals—Reference under Chapter 54, 55 Vic., respecting jurisdiction of county courts in British Columbia—Edmonds vs. Tirnan et al., Davies vs. McMillan.

Ontario appeals: Campbell vs. Patterson and Mader vs. McKinnon, Connon vs. Middagh, Hill vs. Middagh, McDougall, et al., vs. Cameron, et al. and Bickford, et al. vs. Cameron, et al., McGugan vs. Smith, McGugan vs. McGugan, Western Assurance Co. vs. Ontario Coal Co., Harris vs. Robinson, Waterous Engine Works Company vs. Palmerston, Draper vs. Redenhurst and the Queen vs. Clark, et al.

ALLEGED PLOT AGAINST CARTWRIGHT.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 22.—The Empire's Montreal correspondent says he learns "that a scheme is on foot, aided and abetted by the French Liberals, to prevent Sir Richard Cartwright from receiving the party nomination at the next Dominion election in any division of the province of Ontario, which means in plain English that the aggressive knight is to be crowded out of the reform party." The correspondent says, a leading Ontario Reformer now in Montreal made use of the following language to the Empire only a few hours since: "It was at Blake's request that Cartwright was provided with a seat after his defeat some years ago, and this was one of the greatest errors our party has ever committed. Why, do you believe," continued the Ontario Reformer, "that Cartwright has declared that if Mr. Blake ever again attempted to secure a seat in Parliament he, Sir Richard Cartwright, will take the stump against the traitor? I am for Blake's return," concluded the gentleman from the sister province, "yet the consummation of this wish is being more bitterly opposed by Cartwright than any other man, either in or out of Parliament, and, mark my words, he will be crowded out when the proper time arrives."

THE LEGISLATURE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, April 22.—Le Matin says that the Hon. L. O. Taillon will be leader in the Legislative Assembly, and that Hon. Mr. Chapais will probably propose the address in reply to the speech from the Throne in the Legislative Council.

It is generally believed that Mr. Tellier, M. L. A. for Joliette, will propose the address in Legislative Assembly and that the seconder will either be Mr. Hackett or Mr. Cook.

A CHILD'S SUSPICIOUS DEATH.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

ST. JOHN, April 22.—The Attorney-General has been asked to take action in a case of suspicious circumstances connected with the hasty burial of a child named Otis Smith, who lived in the family of a man named Vail, near Gagetown. The child was buried within an hour of death, the family stating that it died of black diphtheria. The body was subsequently exhumed and found to have no trace of such disease, but had a wound on the head.

A CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST'S DEATH.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 22.—Robert J. McAuslin, a millwright, who lived at 91 Marion street, died on Tuesday night under somewhat peculiar circumstances. He was a Christian scientist and when he became ill about a year ago, instead of calling in a physician he relied on the ministrations of his fellow-believers. The natural results followed. Coroner Johnson will hold an inquest.

A PHYSICIAN FINED.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 22.—For not reporting the case of diphtheria, which caused the death of W. C. Palmer at the Palmer House, on Saturday night, Dr. Allan Baines has been fined one dollar and costs. The Magistrate said that there was no charge against Dr. Baines of want of professional skill and care, but the law had been violated and he must fine him.

THE UNDERGROUND TROLLEY SYSTEM.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 22.—Ald. Lamb, Hallam, Crawford, Stewart and the Mayor went to Sarnia yesterday to attend Hon. Alexander Mackenzie's funeral. Before returning they will visit Chicago and take a look at the underground trolley system, which is said to be working successfully there.

THE TORONTO VACANCY.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 22.—The labor party have nominated Phillips Thomson as their candidate to represent Toronto in the local house. The candidates are now: H. A. E. Kent, Conservative; N. G. Bigelow, Liberal, and Phillips Thomson labor. E. A. Macdonald will run as an annexationist.

ONTARIO TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 22.—The convention of the Ontario teachers closed yesterday after revising the constitution so as to allow separate school teachers and trustees to become members. S. B. Sinclair, Hamilton, was elected president.

TO SUCCEED THE LATE REV. DR. COOK.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, April 22.—Rev. Andrew T. Love has been appointed by the Government a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction in place of the late Rev. Dr. Cook.

NEW IMMIGRATION OFFICIAL.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 22.—Mr. H. H. Smith, Dominion Land Commissioner at Winnipeg, has been appointed to the directorship of the new immigration branch recently transferred from the Agriculture to the Interior Department.

DISMISSED THE SERVICE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

CALCUTTA, April 21.—A despatch from Umballa says the court-martial in the case of Lieutenant Gay, of the Seventh Dragoons, charged with forging a cheque for £50, has sentenced the accused to dismissal from the service.

THE CENSUS NEARLY COMPLETE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 22.—Owing to the rapid approach of the completion of the census compilation nineteen employés have been discharged and 21 more will be notified in a few days.

At the Bar of the House.

HALIFAX, April 23.—The affair of Mayor Thomas, of Truro, is becoming more interesting every day. Another chapter was enacted yesterday. It will be remembered that Mr. Thomas, as Mayor of Truro, sent to the House a petition reflecting on one of the members, Recorder Laurence, of Truro. The latter made the matter a question of privilege and Thomas was summoned to the bar of the House to explain. He came and asked for a postponement so as to be represented by counsel. This was granted and eventually when a mild resolution of censure was passed upon him he eluded the sergeant-at-arms and left the Parliament buildings. Yesterday the sergeant-at-arms and a detective found Mayor Thomas in hiding at Belmont and arrested him. He was brought to this city and to the bar of the House last night and pleaded that he left on advice of his lawyer. He was put in charge of the sergeant-at-arms for twenty-four hours and will be brought to the bar of the House to-night again.

The Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—While it is an open secret that the President is endeavoring to secure an international conference on the silver question, the closest reticence in regard to the whole subject is maintained at the White House and the Treasury Department. Dana Horton, as a confidential representative of this Government, has spent a year or more among the financial officers of the Governments of Great Britain, France, Prussia, Austria and Italy for the purpose of ascertaining their views on the subject of a bi-metallic standard, and he has made elaborate private reports of the results of his missions. He is now in Washington and is a frequent visitor to the State and Treasury Departments. Since his return from Europe the correspondence on this subject has been wholly with our ministers at the foreign capitals. It is said that the reports received from the different countries have satisfied the President of the advisability of an international conference, and that he has practically decided to take the initiative in the matter. It is also understood he will soon send a special message to Congress, transmitting the correspondence on the subject.

Toronto Boys Smothered in an Excavation.

TORONTO, April 23.—Alfred Lucas and Ernest Lucas, brothers, aged respectively 7 and 8 years, and Henry Prittle, aged 12, were playing in an excavation made in a street in the northwestern part of the city yesterday afternoon. They set to work to dig a cave in the side of the embankment, which was made of sand and gave way when they had made a considerable cavity. A lad looking on warned the three boys what would happen, but they did not heed him. The three were completely buried by the earth. The fourth had started for help, but was so horror-struck that he lost his presence of mind, and several minutes passed before he made any one aware of what had happened.

All haste was then made, and the three boys were taken out fifteen minutes after they were buried, but it was too late. Every effort was made to resuscitate them, but life was extinct.

Wants Uncle Sam's Protection.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—King Teburimo, of the Makin and Apaiang Islands, of the Gilbert group, in the Pacific Ocean, sailed on the steamer "Montserrat" for his island home at Butaritari last night. The King's mission here was to cultivate more friendly relations with the United States, and he has appointed his nephew Tebano to represent him. The King, it is stated, has written a letter to President Harrison stating that he fears some European Government will seize his islands, and requesting that the United States establish a protectorate over his kingdom. Colonel Dailey is given full power to make negotiations with this Government and will forward the King's letter to Washington.

The Californian Earthquakes.

ESPIRITO, Cal., April 13.—The earthquake yesterday completely levelled the brick portion of this town. The brick chimney was thrown to the ground and the wooden buildings were wrenched out of shape. W. H. Shulte, engineer, was seriously if not fatally injured by a portion of the walls of his building falling on him. Lewy & Schwab's brick store is almost a complete wreck. The entire fire wall and part of the east and west walls are down. Mrs. J. R. Davison was taken out of the debris unconscious. A baby in her arms was unhurt. Baron Rosenthal had a leg broken and knocked out of the wall. Reports from the surrounding country show great destruction to property.

Indian Finances.

LONDON, April 22.—It is reported that with a view of reducing the weekly sales of India council drafts, and thus, as hoped, restoring the value of silver by stopping the purchases which stimulate production, the India council are meditating the issue of a loan of £5,000,000.

No Cardinal's Hat For Mgr. Corrigan.

LONDON, April 23.—The Chronicle's Rome correspondent says: "The Pope has definitely refused to bestow a cardinalate upon Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, possibly because of antagonism between Archbishop Corrigan and Cardinal Gibbons."

Painful Spectacles the women who try to wash without Pearline. It's hard to look at, but it's harder yet to do it. Washing with Pearline is easy—easy for weak backs, easy on delicate fabrics. It does away with the Rub, Rub, Rub. There is nothing as convenient—nothing so effective. Washing with Pearline is safe; millions know it, and can tell the millions who want to know.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, go the honest thing—send it back. 576 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

WONDER IN WELLAND!

A Representative Farmer Speaks.

MR. C. C. HAUN.

The following remarkable facts are fully certified to as being undeniably correct in every particular. Mr. Haun is well known in the vicinity, having resided here over fifty years, and is highly respected as a man of the strictest honor, whose word is as good as his bond.

As will be seen from his letter, four physicians had attended him, and it was only after he had given up hope of cure that he decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters on the recommendation of a neighbor who had been cured of a similar disease by its use. Mr. Haun writes as follows:

DEAR SIRS,—I think I have been one of the worst sufferers you have yet heard of, having been six years in the hands of four of our best doctors without obtaining permanent relief, but continually growing worse, until almost beyond hope of recovery, I tried your Bitters and got relief in a few days. Every organ of my body was deranged, the liver enlarged, hardened and torpid, the heart and digestive organs seriously deranged, a large abscess in my back, followed by paralysis of the right leg, in fact the lower half of my body was entirely useless. After using Burdock Blood Bitters for a few days the abscess burst, discharging fully five quarts of pus in two hours. I felt as if I had received a shock from a powerful battery. My recovery after this was steady and the cure permanent, seeing that for the four years since I have had as good health as ever I had. I still take an occasional bottle, not that I need it but because I wish to keep my system in perfect working order. I can think of no more remarkable case than what I have myself passed through, and no words can express my thankfulness for such perfect recovery.

C. C. HAUN,
Welland P.O.

In this connection the following letter from T. Cumines, Esq., a leading druggist of Welland, Ont., speaks for itself:

Messrs. T. Milburn & Co., Toronto.

GENTLEMEN,—I have been personally acquainted with Mr. C. C. Haun for the last 20 years, and have always found him a very reliable man. You may place the utmost confidence in anything he says with regard to your medicine. He has on many occasions within the last four years told me that it was marvellous the way the Burdock Blood Bitters had cured him, and that he now felt as able to do a day's work as he ever felt in his life. Although quite well he still takes some B. B. B. occasionally, as he says, to keep him in perfect health.

Yours truly,
THOMAS CUMINES,
Welland, Ont.

The steadily increasing sale of B. B. B., the length of time it has been before the people, and the fact that it cures to stay cured, attest the sterling merit of this monarch of medicines, the people's favorite blood purifier, tonic and regulator.

ELECTRIC LIGH

A FLOURISHING CLUB.

HOME OF OARSMEN AT THE POINT.

The Grand Trunk Boating Club House and Its Members—One of the Finest Clubs on the Island of Montreal.

As far as aquatics are concerned, the coming season promises to be a very busy one, and taking into consideration the large number of clubs on the Island of Montreal and their numerous membership, it could hardly be otherwise. Amongst the organizations of amateur sailors and scullers, the Grand Trunk Boating Club occupies a most prominent place, and the STAR to-day publishes a picture of the club house and a short description and history of the club. The grounds are beautifully situated on the banks of the St. Lawrence, just on the outskirts of the city, the entrance being from the Lower Lachine road. Although the originators of the club were mostly employes of the Grand Trunk Railway, residing in Point St. Charles, it now numbers amongst its large membership residents of all parts of the city, it being within easy access now that the Street Railway Company have extended their tracks to the end of Wellington street. Being the only recreation ground in the vicinity, it has been a great boon to Point St. Charles people, and has done a great deal towards making the far end of the Point the pretty summer resort that it now is. The progress of the club has been very rapid; it was organized in 1875 with about fifty members and a few boat sheds were erected on the banks of the river by private enterprise. At the present time the membership is about 350, and the club owns a large club house, two stories in height, the interior of which is nicely finished and presents a very tasty appearance. The lower story is filled with racing shells, the property of the club, valued at about $1500, and the annex is devoted to a dressing-room, in which are to be found two large shower baths, lately erected, and lockers for members' use when they are in training, as well as a four-oared rowing machine. The second story is laid out as a club room, accommodating about 250 people, and a committee room. A spacious verandah extends around three sides, giving splendid views of the city, mountain and river. A special feature of this club is their system of boat stalls, of which there are 105, all being occupied. They are built in four terraces and terrace, affording an easy means of conveying the boats to the water. Last year the grounds were levelled, drained and sodded, and a portion of them laid out as a tennis ground with accommodation for four courts, and with the shade trees which have been lately planted will in a few years make one of the most beautiful parks around the city. The club has captured its full share of aquatic laurels. In 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883 and 1884, the justly celebrated Joseph Laing won the senior singles at the C. A. A. O. regatta for them and in 1883 and 1884 he also won the championship of the United States. In 1882 he and his brother, Robt. Laing, won the double unrigged race, and in 1886 the Messrs. Green won the same race at Lachine. Mr. L. Mitchell won the single-unrigged race in 1886 and 1887, "rowing over" in both events. At the close of the season of 1890, a few prominent members, being confident that there were oarsmen in the club who were capable of sustaining the reputation of Montreal as a leader of athletic sports in Canada, but who were seriously handicapped by the want of suitable boats, carried through a vigorous canvass amongst the members and those interested in sporting matters in the city and they met with such a hearty response that they were enabled to hand over to the club on the 30th May, 1891, five racing shells of the latest pattern, and, notwithstanding the limited time for training, the club entered crews for the senior and junior fours, the junior double and the junior singles in the regatta of the C. A. A. O., held at Barrie, Ont., in the month of August, and although victory did not reward their efforts, they managed to take such a creditable position in all the events that crews are already in training on the new rowing machine (which has lately been erected in the club house) with enthusiasm, and determined that they will make a big effort to bring a large share of the honors of this year's regatta to Montreal. While this is essentially a rowing club, the social element is not neglected, and fortnightly bonnet hops and smoking concerts are held throughout the season, and are very popular with the members. The enterprise of some of the members last year added to the fleet two war canoes, which are splendid specimens of the canoe-builder's art, and the friendly rivalry existing between the crews adds much to the growing interest which is now being taken in the club, and with the class of boats owned by the members, make up a fleet of which any organization may be proud.

A TRAMWAY RUNS IN FRONT OF EACH

Sails and Paddles.

The old centreboard sloop "Truant," sent from New York to England over forty years ago, is reported as still afloat and in good order at Kingstown, Ireland, where she has just been relaunched.

The prevailing fashion of light weight has naturally extended from the hull to the fittings, and the makers of stoves, watercloosets, etc., have begun to cut down superfluous weight. Yacht plumbers have within the last two years reduced the weight of their No. 2 closet, the size used in a 40-footer, from a total of 135 lbs. to 75 lbs., including all connections. Orders have been received from well-known designers for a closet not to exceed 40 lbs. total weight, which limit they hope to reach by the use of new and lighter castings, and drawn brass piping in place of lead pipe.

Among the small fry which are vexing British yachtsmen of late is the double-hulled boat, for which a great future is foreseen by some of its enthusiastic admirers, while other conservative yachtsmen are filled with dire dismay at the prospect of the extinction of the prevailing single-hull types by the new invader. One club, the Royal Portsmouth Corinthian, has already taken action in the matter, and has resolved to accept no entries from double hulled craft.

The Union des Yachts Français has called a Congress of all French clubs and nautical societies, to be held in the autumn of this year, in order to consider all questions of racing rules and also of the general good of French yachting.

The New York C. C. at a meeting on April 11 finally passed the amendment altering the titles of officers to captain, mate and purser and also made several changes in the rules governing the club's international challenge cup. A three years' lease was made with the Bensonhurst Club, and the club house will shortly be towed to Bath Beach, where it will be raised on piles in place of lying afloat. A challenge from the Brockville Boating and Canoe Club was accepted. Mr. Ford Jones being the representative named by the challenging club.

The Ottawa bench show committee met on the first inst. for the revision of the prize list, etc. The fall association, in connection with which the bench show is held, would grant no increase for prizes, so the committee can make little or no improvement on last year's schedule. The show dates will be September 27-30.

M. A. A. A.

Another Monthly Concert.

It would be unfair to the young athletes who provided such an excellent entertainment last evening to take Mr. Sheppard's complaints of extreme cruelty on the part of the press in earnest. The entertainment itself proved that he was too previous. It seems as impossible that his remarks, prompted evidence by a feeling of mistaken and unnecessary sympathy could have been authorized by the gentleman who usually contribute to the programme of M. A. A. A. entertainment as it seems funny that the man who can stand the blows and cuts received on the lacrosse field and in the rinks, without wincing, should tremble and mope at newspaper criticism of their musical and dramatic efforts. But strange things will happen in this world and if there really are amongst these talented young gentlemen any who take matters as deeply to heart as Mr. Shepard would make people believe, it would be a blessing to their own nervous system and that of their audience if they would take a pledge to abstain from the temptations of the footlights in the future. Last evening, however, things were extremely pleasant all around. The audience were well satisfied with the artists, the artists delighted with the audience. The Committee had for once made a concession to women's rights and the ladies showed by the large numbers in which they turned up how they appreciated it, and no doubt their presence will act as a greater encouragement than the praises of all the newspapers the hearts of those editors Mr. Sheppard's app might have touched. From the rst applauded overture by Mr. J. H. Campbell who added much to the success of the event by his accompaniments to the fine songs by Mr. Hodgson, the entertainment was most enjoyable one, and highly creditable for amateurs. The handbell sextette was a great feature and one of its members, Mr. McDuff, gave some very entertaining epic songs which appeared to be novelties to most of the audien, and the pathetic ballad of the unchegiected youth and the sorrowful remembrances of "my first and last cigar," were greatly applauded. Mr. Stacey is evidently a great favorite and the audience seemed rther pleased than otherwise when, on account of the unavoidable absence of one of the artists, he yielded to the request of Mr. Sheppard to take the place of the absent one. His recitations were not all o them exactly new but they were very enjoyable and the story of t poor men with the four babies to ok after was greatly appreciated by the adies. Mr. Thompson also gave a very effective recitation regarding the trouble his hat caused him. The other parts of the pgramme were purely vocal and the talents of Messrs. Dupuis, Hodgson, Barlow an Southam are so well known that it is nay unnecessary to say anything beyond a statement that they did exceedingly well, were loudly applauded and deserved the exhibition of interest with which their appearance is always looked forward to. If this be the last concert before the summer season, it is a consolation to know that the experiment of giving these monthly entertainments has proven sufficient success to assure their continuance in the autumn and winter.

ATHLETICS.

Normal Student and Model School Calisthenic Classes.

A very large audience assembled on Thursday evening in "Barnjum's Gymnasium" to witness the closing exercises of the Model Normal student and Model School gymnastic classes. The programme was varied and excellent, and the pupils acquitted themselves splendidly, and elicited frequent and hearty applause. The finish and precision with which each exercise was performed was remarkable and the perfect ease with which even the most difficult and prolonged movements were executed all evinced careful and thorough training. At the close of the entertainment, the united classes formed in line in front of the platform, and one of the pupils on behalf of the others and of Miss Hamilton, the young lady presiding at the piano, presented Miss Barnjum with a very beautiful photograph album. In acknowledging the gift, Miss Barnjum expressed her great admiration of it, and her deep appreciation of the affection which it represented. The following is the state of our finance:

TURF.

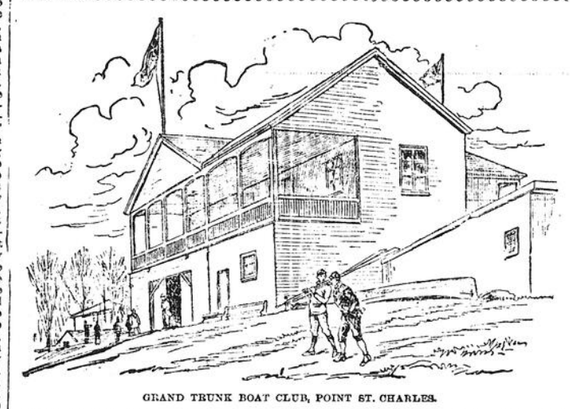

Gideon and Kelly Home From Europe.

NEW YORK, April 21.—John Kelly and David Gideon arrived on the "Majestic" yesterday afternoon after a four months' trip abroad. A big crowd of turfmen, bookmakers and politicians were at the dock waiting to welcome them, and the warmth and enthusiasm of their reception so surprised Lord Paget, who witnessed it, that his monocle fell off.

The travelling turfmen had a royal time abroad. They travelled all over Europe, visited every place of note, and were entertained on the Continent and in Europe in princely style. Mr. Gideon devoted considerable time to seeing race-horses while abroad.

"In the first place," said he, "the facilities for seeing the races over there do not compare with ours. For example, I paid $7.50 to see the City and Suburban and could not even get a seat. Everybody, except the members, had to stand up. An American public would not have endured such treatment.

sated. She spoke of the delightful relations existing between herself and pupils of the Normal and Model School classes, referring at the same time to the marked improvement made by the girls during the season now ending. Three hearty cheers were then given for Miss Barnjum and three for Miss Hamilton, and a very enjoyable time was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save The Queen." By special arrangement, the young people of the above schools have the privilege of attending the Gymnasium twice a week.

Testing of the A. A. A. of C.

The Amateur Athletic Association of Canada had a meeting in the M. A. A. A. gymnasium th week. Major Geo. R. Starke, president, occupied the chair. Applications for reinstatements were received from Thomas Wason, of Victoria, B. C., George Guthrie, of Georgetown and M. McDonald, of Toronto. The Woodstock Association requested permission to have the spring games of the A. A. A. of C. held in that town on May 24 in connection with their own games, by-law was passed that you. enabling the Association to hold the spring games in another town an where the autumn games are held. The Argyle Snowshoe Club were reinstated to membership, and the Montreal Garrison Artillery were likewise admitted. All the applications were referred to the Executive Committee.

LACROSSE.

What Will They Do?

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 22.—The Ottawas and Capitals are now holding a meeting and at the time of writing have arrived at no decision. Messrs. J. Jowlin, B. Slattery and Jas. White represented the Capitals and A. S. Pittaway, W. J. Stroud and W. Stuart the Ottawas. The meeting was held in Dowlin's office wit closed doors and the crowd of enthusiastic supporters remained outside and boomed lacrosse amalgamation. The delegates inside did not seem to get on so well, as at 2.30 they adjourned for a half hour's ress, and White and Pittaway, delegates, announced that they would not agree for a least two hours, the latter also thinking tae would never agree. The Capitals are credited with wanting the earth, with a fence round it, and seem to be anxious to do nothing to bring about the desired amalgamation. The fault is not certainly with Ottawa, as they are willing to give and take an equa share and throw in the capital deficit.

B. Hill, of the Young Ottawa Hockey Team, was this evening presented with a $75 gold watch by a number of friends.

Victoria Lacrose Club.

At a meeting of the Victoria Lacrosse Club, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Hon. president, Hon. James McShane; president, G. S. Arless, jun.; second vice-president, H. Juvenile Leagu.

The second annual meeting of the above league was held on the 21st b organize for the season, the president, J. T. Roach, in the chair. The most important business was the changing of the name to the Independent League, the forming of a schedule, the admission of the Gordon 2nd and the election of officers, which was as follows: President, Fred. R. Alley; vice-president, D. O'Neill; sec.-treasurer, W. J. Cherry; delegates, Lilac, C. Virtue, H. Anderson and A. Wheeler; Victoria, A. C. Read, H. Palmer and W. J. Cherry; Thistle, C. Honan, P. C. McKenrie; Emmett, D. O'Neil, R. Boyle; Gordon 2nd, not represented. After a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, the secretary's report was read as follows:

MONTREAL, April 21, '92.

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to submit the first annual report of the workings of the Juvenile Lacrosse League. We have reason to congratulate ourselves upon the success of our first attempt in forming a series, as we are satisfied that if all the clubs take the same interest and work together this year as they did last, we have a very prosperous season before us. The championship last year was won by the Lilacs, every match scheduled being contested. The only serious question with which we had to deal, was a charge of professionalism brought by the Thistles against Gaffney, of the Victorias, when it was judged proper to suspend Mr. Gaffney for the balance of the season. During the year there were five meetings held by the leagates, at all of which every club was

TWO WEDDED REFORMS.

An overwhelming majority of our people would vigorously oppose any proposition to expunge Canada from the map. Some of us may be Imperialists, and others, with Mr. Laurier, for "Canada First," but practically none are for the extinction of the Canadian name. Two sources of national danger, however, are recognized by all students of the situation—the exodus and the possibility that we may succumb to the Blaine-McKinley siege. Both of these perils have been so thoroughly discussed that their causes are pretty well understood, the possibilities sounded, and fairly sure remedies discovered. The exodus is a farmer's exodus, and can be cured by making his lot an easier one; while all probability of Annexation in any future or by any path would be removed, were we once well engrafted on the magnificent market of Britain. Then it comes to this that the two things which we need are a lightening of the tariff tax on the necessities of the farm and a closer connection with the British commerce. Indeed, a little examination will show that our requirement is simpler than even that; for by it we will discover that the lowering of the duties on British goods will go very far toward securing for us both benefits. The two birds may be reached by one stone.

* * * *

First, as to the British side of the question. It has seemed all along clear to us that the first advances toward a closer commercial union with Britain must come from Canada. Those who bid us do nothing until Britain is ready to abandon free trade for our sakes, are not true friends of Imperial unity. And when they grow so zealous in preaching this gospel of procrastination that they borrow Sir Richard Cartwright's colorbox to depict in sufficiently black shades the dismal depression of British commerce, broken by the assaults of McKinley and just ready to seek succor from the colonies, the suspicion is aroused that they have not an eye single to the promotion of our trade with Britain. Our people may depend upon it that British commerce is not in danger of being driven from the seas by the customs league of the Triple Alliance, the French tariff, or the commercial hostility of the United States. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said the other day that McKinley had only been able to shave off five per cent. of the exports of Britain into the States; and no American politician will ever dare to propose a higher tariff than the present. A hint of such a thing from the Republicans would give the autumn elections to the Democrats by a monumental majority. As for the European tariffs, how gladly would either the Triple Alliance or France admit Britain and all her colonies if the commerce of the Thames and the Mersey were pinced enough to think of such a thing. Fretting over Britain is surely waste sympathy; and those who propose to build up Canadian prosperity on the ruins of England's commerce are guilty of either fraud or folly.

* * * *

For many a day, at any rate, we must deal with Britain as a free trade power. This means that we must compete with the world in her markets; still, nevertheless, experience has taught us that there are other ways of showing preference than by the manipulation of tariffs. Why does Canadian cheese sell ahead of any other today in England? Why do our cattle get better treatment than those landed by American shippers? Why, on the other hand, is butter from the continent ranked ahead of ours? These advantages and disadvantages in the English market are not due to tariff enactments. Customs duties are plainly not the only forces that affect the currents of public patronage. There are other influences at work; and, things being reasonably equal, one of them would be a tendency of English consumers to patronize the products of the countries which buy most freely of their goods. To-day Canada is as hostile in appearance to the British exporter as Europe or the United States; and the standing of our cheese and cattle is due to unaided merit alone. This must be the great ingredient of success in the future as well, but a preferential treatment of British exports by Canada would incline the English buyer to look for our merits with a kindlier eye. Men are not automata. A friendly feeling still counts in the world; and, below all that lies the sound economic maxim that all trade is barter. If we buy more from Britain, she will be driven to take our goods in exchange. Money is but a symbol, and we are really trading Canadian horses and barley for the wares of Birmingham. Thus far, we have not been doing our share in building up this mutual trade. In January last, our exports to Britain increased 49 per cent over last year, and our imports from her only 15 per cent. In February, the exports increased 39 per cent, and the imports only 225 per cent. And it is moreover notorious that the ocean steamers plying between Britain and Canada have our ports laden to the extent of their capacity, while they come back but halffull of British products. This is the work of the tariff; and a small reduction of the duties on British goods would make the trade even-handed.

* * * *

The other bird to be winged is the cheapening of the necessities of the farm. Would this be accomplished by reducing the rates of duty on British imports? It certainly would, if for no other reason than that Britain produces practically all that a farmer needs, and if we buy these articles elsewhere now, it is because the tariff plus the ocean freight keeps the British product out of competition. Reduce the tariff, make British goods cheaper than the fully-taxed American; and our people will buy them and gladly pocket the difference. But, as a matter of fact, with the tariff as it is, a great proportion of the goods imported for our farmers come from Britain. Herewith we print a small table compiled from the statistics of the pre-McKinley year of 1889, in which are enumerated a number of common articles used by farmers that are imported in greater quantities from Great Britain than elsewhere. There is an absence of detail, but there will be little difficulty in locating specific articles—many tools, for instance, coming under the head of "manufactures of iron and steel."

Only such articles as come in larger quantities from Britain are given above, and this list would be greatly lengthened were British imports accorded preferential treatment. There is no reason, indeed, why practically all that a Canadian farmer must import should not come from the British Isles, and at a much lower price than at present. The missile that cut away a part of the duties on imports from the motherland would bring to earth both birds—the strengthening of Imperial trade and the cure of the agricultural exodus.

* * * *

This would seem to have been the thought in the mind of Hon. Mr. Foster when he closed his budget speech with a paragraph that has aroused the hope of the country. Any less inference could not be fairly drawn from these words:

> It may be, sir, that it is worth while and deserving the fair and thoughtful attention of the Government as to whether or not the time is not approaching, if it is not near at hand, when it will become the duty of this Government to propose to the House that we should hold out a helping hand to the land which helps us, to repay favor with favor, interest with interest, and to give the best treatment in our markets to those countries which accord us the best treatment in their markets.

There is no suggestion here that the Government wish to make a shrewd bargain with Britain, trading our market, forsooth, for hers. There is no hint that a commercial union or any other selfish absurdity will be demanded. Wherever certain newspapers found these ideas, they did not get them from the Finance Minister's Speech. "To hold out a helping hand to the land which helps us," said Mr. Foster. "Helps" is in the present. Britain gives us a free market; we "protect" her out of ours with the same tariff that we built to meet the hostility of the Americans. Let us "repay favor with favor," keep our farmers on our own lands, and put an end at once to the leakage and the miserable doubt which are the twin dangers of our Confederation.

THE Americans are bound to be in the fashion. They have not much of an army, but they do not intend to be without a scandal and a scare over its inefficiency. They can have any thing that Britain can, or know the reason why. They manœuvred for Shakespeare memorials and cast covetous eyes on the Gulf stream. The New York Herald says of the U. S. militia:

> Our present militia system, with army officers as inspectors and instructors, is developing an overestimate of our military strength. Even in official reports expressions are found which imply that the National Guard can hardly be distinguished from regular soldiers. The truth is there are only four or five states which maintain anything approaching a National Guard, and even among the best of these there is no company which, under a fair test of general efficiency, could cut any figure as the "double" of a regular company. Fairly considered, the militia of this country do not deserve to be classed as soldiers. They are more or less improved material, fairly well prepared to hold certain lines until the regulars and new levies can be assembled, and as such the country may be satisfied with them—though it will be leaning upon a broken reed if it considers them troops.

THERE is no good reason why any one should be impatient at the time spent by the Commons in supply. It is infinitely better for the country to have its accounts carefully scrutinized than to set aside long days to let the members practise campaign speaking under the name of a budget debate.

ONE paragraph in Lord Knutsford's despatch to the Canadian Government states that the right of the colonies to discriminate "against the Mother Country" has never been recognized. What do the Unrestricted Reciprocitarians think of this?

FROM the rumors that leak out from time to time, Quebec constituencies will have to exchange photographs if they wish to recognize each other on sight after the Redistribution Bill has graduated into an act.

CHIT-CHAT.

The great Austrian millionaire, Maurice Hirsch, lives in true baronial style in his castle on the Danube, Moravia. There is a drawbridge, portcullis and all the mediæval accessories of a once impregnable fortress. Here the Baron hunts and shoots to his heart's content, but he is very fond of his billiard-room, which contains every conceivable game of chance or skill. Mme. Hirsch, who speaks four languages fluently, is a model hostess, and the Baron's hospitality is unbounded.

There is no truth in the statement, which most of the daily papers printed last week, that the late King of Hanover bequeathed £150,000 to the Queen, and £150,000 to each of Her Majesty's daughters, which legacies were to be paid out of the Guelph Fund. The only foundation for this wonderful story is that King George appointed the Queen to be his executrix, and that he left a letter for her, in which he begged Her Majesty to use her influence with the Prussian Government in order to obtain payment of the incomes to which his widow and daughters were entitled out of the interest of the Guelph Fund, and he also left them certain legacies which were to be paid out of the arrears of interest. Up to the present time, however, neither Queen Marie nor her daughters have received anything, and, as no arrears of interest are to be paid by the Prussian Government, they are not likely ever to get their legacies, amounting altogether to six millions of marks.

The late Mr. Freeman, the famous English historian, was a very voluminous writer. He was the author of twenty-six books, many of which, taken singly, were bulky enough in themselves to be a monument to a historian's life-work. The professor was not a particularly amiable man, and on one occasion a church dignitary got even with him for a former snub. It became necessary for the dignitary aforesaid to propose, much against his will, the health of the historian, and he did it in this wise: "And now I have to propose the health of our distinguished neighbor, Mr. Freeman, who so admirably illustrates for us the savage customs of our ancestors!"

The widow of General Custer is not only a beautiful woman, but a fascinating talker also. She is frequently reported as giving lectures in various parts of the country, and her description of "Buffaloes and Buffalo-hunting," in Springfield the other evening, lasting two full hours, is said to have been delightfully graphic.

HOW MUCH HE KNEW.

A colored porter at a Washington hotel had charge of the hats of the guests who went in to dine. His accuracy and promptness is giving every man his own "tile" as he came out of the dining room excited one gentleman's curiosity.

"How did you know so well that this was my hat?" he asked.

A smile lighted up the waiter's ebony face as he bowed politely.

"Boss," he said, "I didn't know it was yours, but it's de one you guv me!"

A charming dress of which we give an illustration is made of beige chevron cloth spotted with rubies. The vest trimmed with little festoons of otter. The skirt in bias in front and behind with seams.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Bottom of Sea," is the title of the marine spectacular play which is to be produced before the patrons of the Theatre Royal next week. It is adopted from the French, and has had long runs in the leading American cities. The scenery, painted by Mr. John H. Young, of the Broadway Theatre, is said to be good and the cast a strong one.

A grand benefit entertainment is to be given at the Academy on Thursday evening, April 28, for the benefit of the Actors' Fund, of New York through the courtesy of Mr. Henry Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Warner, assisted by the various amateur clubs of the city. The programme is as follows: "Editha's Burglar," one act drama; "High Life Below Stairs," one act farce; "In Honor Bound," one act drama; "Little Toddlekins," one act comedietta. It is to be hoped that there will be a crowded house and that Montreal theatregoers will give this practical evidence of their appreciation of the members of the profession which has furnished them much amusement and been ever ready to give their services gratis to any charitable cause. The tickets are on sale at Nordheimer's.

ST. ANN'S YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY.

The dramatic and choral sections of the above society have during the past month been busily engaged in rehearsing and arranging for the final entertainment of the season, which will take place in their Hall, 157 Ottawa street, on Monday evening, April the 25th, upon which occasion they will produce a musical programme comprising "catchy" and pleasing vocal and instrumental selections, followed by a drama from the pen of J. R. Martin, depicting realistic scenes of the temptations and dangers in social life that beset the youthful and unwary.

The Congregational Record.

The first number of the Congregational Record, a journal devoted to the interests of the Congregational Churches in Montreal, has been issued. The several churches in the city, Zion, Emmanuel, Calvary, Point St. Charles and the Congregational College each have their separate pages, while there are interesting articles on "Our Form of Church Life," by Rev. Principal Barbour, D. D.; "The Creation of the World," by Rev. W. Henry Warriner, B. D., and other matters of interest to Congregationalists. The journal is neatly got up, and has received the approval of the Congregational Club.

Death of Rev. Abbe L. A. Charlebois.

The death occurred at midnight of Rev. Abbe L. A. Charlebois, parish priest of Ste. Therese, at the Hotel Dieu. The rev. gentleman had been ill for some time and his death was not unexpected. For a long time before becoming curé of Ste Therese he was Superior of the College of Ste. Therese, in which he did some very good work. The deceased was one of the most respected members of the clergy, and his demise will be learned with regret. The funeral will take place at Ste. Therese.

THE LAST WEEK.

First three months free of charge. On account of the large number of invalids who have been unable owing the rush to consult the staff of eminent physicians and surgeons located at No. 149 Metcalfe street, before April 1st, these eminent doctors have kindly extended the time for giving their services free to May 1st, therefore all invalids who call upon them before May 1st will receive services for the first three months free of charge. The only favor desired is a recommendation from those whom they cure. The object in pursuing this course is to become rapidly and personally acquainted with the sick and afflicted.

The Doctors treat every variety of disease and deformity, and will perform all surgical operations.

Catarrh in all its various forms cured by their new method, which consists in breathing up the cold-catching tendency, to which every person suffering from catarrh is susceptible.

Invalids will please not take offence if they are rejected as incurable. The physicians will examine you thoroughly, free of charge, and if incurable, they will positively tell you so. Also caution you against spending more money for useless medicine.

Hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and from 7 to 8 p.m. Sundays from 2 to 4 p.m.

FISHING LICENSES.

THEIR ISSUE TO YANKEE FISHERMEN.

The Government's Proposal to Make the Provisions of the Modus Vivendi Permanent.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 23.—The House spent the greater part of yesterday afternoon discussing the modus vivendi respecting the fishing of American vessels in the eastern waters of Canada. Heretofore the practice has been for Parliament to grant licenses to American fishermen from year to year, by means of an act passed at each session. Mr. Tupper now introduces a bill which proposes to vest in the Governor-General and Council the powers to issue such licenses, the bill specifying the terms and conditions upon which they are to be issued. The principal reason for the change given to the House was this: American fishermen intending to go to Canadian waters for the season had to fit out early in the winter and so licenses were required to be issued in the month of January. This was before Parliament met and consequently the licenses had to be issued on the expectation that Parliament would renew the modus vivendi. The present bill proposed to do away with that uncertainty by passing a permanent regulation and leaving to the executive the carrying out of the measure and the issuing of the licenses.

The House went into committee of the whole and considered the measure. It led to a prolonged and rather rambling debate during which the Opposition took occasion to express the usual amount of disapproval with the Government measure. Their criticisms were chiefly based on the ground that the bill would tend to make the present unsettled state of affairs a permanency and would, therefore, lead to a surrender of Canada's rights to the fisheries of her entire eastern coast.

Mr. Davies, who comes from the Prince Island province and who takes a particular interest in all matters relating to marine and fisheries—held this view of Mr. Tupper's bill and Col. O'Brien on the Government's side concurred in them to a considerable extent. He feared the bill would establish a dangerous precedent of concession. Mr. Tupper wished them to LAY THEIR FEARS ASIDE.

The bill did not propose to make these licenses permanent. The right to grant them was to be vested in the Governor-in-Council, but the licenses were to be issued from year to year as they had been in the past.

Mr. Laurier saw no reason for the departure from the policy of the past. The modus vivendi had been granted only as a temporary arrangement until the difficulties were settled. He desired friendly relations with the'r neighbors but he did not believe in surrendering to them Canadian sovereign rights.

When the committee of supply turned to the votes for immigration they opened a page filled with a lengthy opposition censure. Immigration suggested population and that brought up the census and loss of population, while this led on to the trade policy of the Government, which the Opposition of course held was all in fault for it all. All these things came to Liberal minds and they gave the House the benefit of their thoughts and kept up a long debate without passing an item.

Sir John grew weary and left the reins in Mr. Foster's hands. The latter dropped out and left Mr. Bowell to had the fort. A solid little fighting squad of Grits sailed forth to smite the Philistines, with the old weapons and on the old battlefields. Sir Richard was in the House till into and so was Mr. Laurier. The latter moved around among his followers and apparently had some pleasant chats with the French Canadian Liberals. Mr. Davies got into two or three hard hits and waxed quite eloquent over the cheapness of the Maritime Provinces. Their loss of population made him raise his voice in loud denunciation of the present trade policy. Mr. Foster nd told them in his budget speech that no better trade relations were to be exposed with the United States: "Inoculate the people with that doctrine of despair and you will make them annexationists within two years." Mr. Charlton, in his address, went on to the trade policy to show that t was responsible for the loss of population. That led to talk on immigration, and so he claimed a right to discuss it.

The Conservatives took exception to it and called order.

Mr. Sproule ruled wh them. Then the debate went off on the side issue. Mr. Sproule said that he would call upon the committee to SUSTAIN HIM N HIS RULING.

"Then," said Mr. Charlton, "I will appeal to the House to sustain me in my right."

In spite of the ruing, Mr. Charlton had his say, and he said it in the way he wished. If they had a better trade policy they would keep their people. It was time that Canada be governed not in the interest of the monopolist but in the interest of the farmer, the fisherman, the lumberman and the laborer. As to the debate drifted out on the troubled waves of protection, reciprocity, hard times, stagnant trade and the loss of population. Of course, Mr. McMullin took a hand in it, and so did Mr. Perry and Dr. Landerkin from the other side. Even Mr. Mowat grew weary and Mr. Carling, whose department was under consideration, was the only minister left in the House.

Mr. Bain, Wentworth, is a vigorous if not altogether an elegant speaker. He is an orthodox Cit and gave the handful of Government supporters remaining in the House a rousing sermon on the evils of their trade policy.

Some on interrupted him, whon Mr. McGregor cried out: "Take your medicine, gentleme; take your medicine."

One of Ir. Bain's pleasantries was to the effect tha Canada was the worst governed country a the civilized world. He pointed out the ast resources of the country and went orto claim that Conservative misrule blighte them all.

At 11.0 the House brightened up again and Government supporters came back, many of them from a dinner party, and Mr. Bowell put new life into the flagging debate. He intimated that the Opposition were talking to ki time. They had gone from Genesis to Revelation.

Mr. Laurier—"You know Exodus comes after Genesis."

Mr. McMillan—"Yes, and we had the Revelations last session."

Mr. Bowell intimated that it had been a rambling debate to obstruct.

Mr Richard Cartwright denied it. The loss of population was a subject worthy of consideration, and they had done right in discussing it.

Mr. Foster moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Patterson, of Brant, said that the Government had not been able to give the information ased for. The Minister of Finance or tried to dictate to the House. Because the Opposition would not sit quiet and vote supplies he moved to adjourn the debate.

SEEMED A CRY-BABY,

Dr. Campbell, of Inverness, a Government supporter, seemed to agree, once, at least, with the Grits. He had spoken before, and now he rose to state that it was not fair to say that the debate had been an obstructive one. Then he gave a sample of what it had been by repeating several of his arguments in support of the National Policy.

Mr. Mulock—"Did you not say that the people were leaving the country by carloads?"

Dr. Campbell—"Yes, but every carload was made up of Grits. Well, they will come back wiser and better men."

Mr. Carling then took a hand in the fight and read a speech delivered by a Grit in which the dark side of the shields was held up. It was from an address of Mr. Mills.

The latter replied and stood by every word of the quotation. London was the place in question. He instanced their factories closed, with machinery idle and rusting. Had not agricultural property depreciated.

Cries of "No, no."

Mr. Mills—"I say it is true and can establish it before any committee of this House. The Government forget that it was not unpatriotic to cry ruin and bankruptcy when they were in opposition. Perhaps they have forgotten their utterance in the campaign of 1878.

Mr. Mills continued in a good-natured sledge-hammer speech. The motion to adjourn the debate carried and when Mr. Bergeron reported progress to the speaker Mr. Patterson remarked that the Minister of Finance said they had made no progress.

Mr. Speaker observed that he was pleased to hear that some progress had been made.

The House at once adjourned.

Sessional Chit-Chat.

Judge W. Foster of Knowlton has, so it is said, secured the promise of the senatorship for the Bedford division, vacant by the death of the late Hon. G. Stevens. A good deal of lobbying to this end has been indulged in during the last few days, and it is believed to have been successful.

Hon. Geo. Foster will introduce a bill on Monday respecting the harbor commissioners of Three Rivers.

Sir John Thompson gives notice that he will introduce the Redistribution bill on Tuesday.

Ald. Villeneuve of Montreal was introduced yesterday by Mr. Cameron, M. P., to Hon. Geo. Foster, Minister of Finance, and asked for an increase in the duty on maccaroni and vermicelli.

The Dominion inland fisheries appear to be attracting more attention from wealthy Americans than from Canadians themselves. In this instance no international question can possibly arise, as our neighbors are peacefully disposed. Yesterday afternoon, Sir Donald A. Smith introduced a deputation of New Yorkers to Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Fisheries, who was urged to rigidly enforce the salmon fishery regulations. The deputation also suggested a more satisfactory arrangement for spreading nets and a more improved method of collecting the spawn. The visitors included Mr. J. S. Kennedy, an American director of the C. P. R., Dean Sage and Edw. Weeks. They represented the Restigouche Fishing Club, which owns valuable fishing privileges in northern New Brunswick and Gaspe. Messrs. Joncas and McAlister, M. P's., who come from the salmon fishing districts, were in attendance by request of Hon. Mr. Tupper. During the interview the visitors endorsed the attitude of Mr. Joncas in opposing the petition recently sent to the Minister by Boston and Hartford people, requesting that Canadians who gain their livelihood by fishing be prohibited from setting nets during three days in the week.

The visitors expressed the belief that a rigid enforcement of the existing regulations with modifications suggested would be satisfactory. They will, it is said, shortly acquire new fishing privileges.

Messrs. D. Blain and K. Tully to-day arranged an interview for next week with Premier Abbott and the promoter of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal, which will connect Georgian Bay with Lake Ontario. The visitors will also urge the deepening of the St. Lawrence canals from fourteen to twenty feet.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S UNJUST ARREST.

He Is Subjected to Many Indignities and Put in a Cell With Ravachol—Police Did Not Care for Britain.

LONDON, April 23.—Another arrest of an Englishman has been made in Paris, which coming as it does so shortly after the arrest of Mr. Purdie and his brother, the two Englishmen who were taken into custody at the Auteuil races on suspicion of being pickpockets—an arrest that led to diplomatic correspondence—is likely to result in tension between England and France. France refused to make either reparation or apology for the arrest of the Purdies, but in this case it is believed that England will take such steps as will leave no doubt as to her intentions in the matter. The latest victim of the extraordinary vigilance of the French police is a Mr. Delmard. He was the agent of an English projectile company, and had previously been employed by the Nordenfeldt company. On March 31 he was discharged, the manager of the company saying that he was in bad odor with the police and that it would be best for him to leave Paris. On the following Monday Delmard started to visit Mme. Bergeron, for whom he was writing the music for a ballet which had been accepted for production at Vienna. As he was entering her residence he was stopped at the door by a gendarme, who seized him,

CHAINED HIS WRISTS,

and hurtled him into a cab. The gendarme took him to the prefecture of police, and notwithstanding Delmard's request for an explanation, no reason was given for his arrest. He was put into a cell, where he was confined until the next morning. He was then taken to his lodgings. Once there he declined to move until a warrant for his arrest was shown. Delmard said that he was a British subject and that he would appeal to the British embassy for protection. Chief Detective Goron said he did not care a fig for the British Embassy, which would not dare to interfere in the matter. Delmard refused to move, whereupon he was struck in the face and knocked down. His captors then took him into the prefecture, where part of his clothing was taken from him, and he was again placed in a cell filled with vermin. The next morning he was examined by a judge, who said he had proofs that Delmard's presence in France was detrimental to the Government. The following day he was taken to the Mazas prison. Here he was stripped and kept naked for an hour and a half. Then he was put in a cell measuring 6 feet by 2 feet 6 inches. His companion in this cell was Anastay, who was executed a few days ago for the brutal murder of his benefactress, Baroness Dellard. At night he slept in a dormitory, with Anastay on one side of him and Ravachol, the Anarchist, on the other. The next morning he was placed

IN A CELL WITH RAVACHOL.

The latter expressed much sympathy for Delmard, and said that his arrest was a most unjust and unwarranted proceeding. Ravachol, in discussing the Englishman's arrest, asked him:—"Do you wonder now why we wish to blow up these people?" He added:—"That is the only redress we have for our wrongs. There have been thousands of arrests similar to yours." Ravachol declared that it was the intention of the Anarchists to blow up the Prefecture. Ravachol was very much excited and kept dashing his head against the wall. On the wall of the cell he had scratched the words: "Vive l'Anarchie!" "Ni Dieu, ni roi, ni juge!"

Delmard was subsequently subjected to another examination by the judge, who said that he had letters addressed to him (Delmard) by foreign governments asking for information in regard to the French ballooning corps. Delmard proved that these letters were old and of no importance. The judge, nevertheless, said he had proofs that the Englishman was a spy and sent him back to prison. On April 14 Delmard was liberated. The judge apologized to him for his arrest, and said that the police were to blame. Delmard was penniless, the police having taken everything from him. He procured money and has now returned to London. The matter has been laid before the Foreign Office, through which Delmard demands heavy compensation from France for his outrageous treatment.

ANNEXATIONIST CANDIDATE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 23.—The nomination of candidates yesterday to fill the vacancy in the representation of Toronto in the Ontario Legislative Assembly proved an interesting event. The last of the candidates to speak was ex-Alderman E. A. Macdonald, an officer in the Canadian militia. His nomination will make the campaign extremely interesting. Mr. Macdonald's reception was not at all a cordial one. After all the other candidates had spoken, the returning officer rose and said: "And now last, but not least, Mr. Macdonald." This remark was received by a vociferous outburst of laughter, and the hostile of annexation advanced to the platform. He prefaced his observations by hoping that nothing of an uncomplimentary nature would be said during the progress of the campaign. He thought the principles involved were broad enough and far-reaching enough to do away with the need of degenerating to personalities. "The way to develop the mines," the speaker continued, "is by annexation. You know I am a consistent Conservative." Here jeers and laughter were interjected by his auditors, "and I would not quote anything except from a journal of that party. He then read an extract from a city paper to the effect that while millions of money had been spent in developing the country the young men were still joining the exodus to the States by thousands. "What do you want annexation for?" cried out a man in the audience. This query Mr. Macdonald said was quite pertinent. He wanted annexation so that the young men of this country could have the same advantages as were enjoyed by those in the United States. In conclusion the speaker said that he did not wish any one to vote for him on personal grounds. He wished to vote for him as the representative of annexation and if not fairly and squarely upon this principle not at all.

The meeting broke up with cheers for the Queen.

THREW PEPPER IN HIS EYES.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, April 23.—Ever since the curling match at Pembroke two of the competitors have been bad friends. The matter culminated Wednesday night when the two happened to meet and one dashed cayenne pepper into the other's eyes. The injured man's optics are seriously burned.

MONTREAL DISPENSARY.

THE WANT OF NECESSARY FUNDS

Cramps the Work of the Institution—A Visit to the Place—The Suffering Poor Attended To.

Reports to be presented at the approaching annual meeting of the governors of the Montreal Dispensary will contain reference to the dispiriting deficiency of funds and house room at the disposal of that institution. Crowded into an unlovely, if not an insanitary location, between a narrow alleyway and a cul-de-sac just northward from St. Antoine street, cramped interiorly by twice too many partitions for such small space, overshadowed and darkened by adjoining shops and factories, the dispensary building is not cheerless, but dismal and forbidding—more like a penal place of torture than a house of refuge and charity. There are practically only two rooms. But one of these is sub-divided into a drug store, a private room for the caretaker and a waiting-room for the patients. The other, running across the rear of the building, is cut up into three little offices for the medical attendants. These attendants yesterday were Doctors Proudfoot, Kenneth Cameron and J. H. B. Allan. The waiting-room was almost entirely filled with poor, pale sufferers. "Lame, halt and blind." Drooping heads and bandaged eyes indicated a majority of the last mentioned among the afflicted ones. Some of them were

ABSOLUTELY SIGHTLESS

and many in semi-darkness—"in the gloaming" (more pathetic than sentimental). They were led one by one into the oculist's room, where they were treated by Dr. Proudfoot. The first yesterday was Michael Higgins, about seventy years of age, poor in health and pocket, and suffering from cataract in both eyes. At the outset in the management of this case the want of room in the Dispensary was apparent. A surgical operation had to be performed and for this there was no apartment, no bed, no reclining chair. The doctor, however, prescribed a palliative, and assured Mr. Higgins that he would call at his house as soon as the weather became bright enough for this delicate work. Then he would cure him. "Thank your honor; God bless Your Honor," said the old man several times; then he withdrew. Next came a young man who had been almost blinded by oil of vitriol, which burned the eye-ball and eye-lid into one red sore. He had almost recovered and the doctor urged him to continue the salve till he was well again. A girl of about twenty years followed. She had had four tumors cut from the membrane of one eye. She was rather weak to undergo another operation, but a fifth had to be removed; and she was about to leave the city to-day. So in the common, hard-backed, upright chair, without anæsthetics, her hands held only by a lady friend, she underwent the knife, moaning and crying aloud, "Mon Dieu! mon Dieu!" while blood and tears trickled down her face contorted by pain. On every side are the mysteries of poverty and pain; earnest but almost futile attempts are being made to solve the former. In the case of the Montreal Dispensary, charity is sadly curtailed for

WANT OF FUNDS.

Take the case of William Higgins. He lives far off in the suburbs. He can easily walk to the Dispensary, but for want of an operating room the oculist must lose some hours in visiting him. The physicians attend at the Dispensary two and three hours a day, treating many thousand patients a year.

It is true, the experience they gain here is valuable and much sought after. A keen canvass is now in progress for the election of two new doctors at the coming annual meeting. Nevertheless the medical work is purely charitable and philanthropic, because the beneficiaries pay nothing except five cents each for medicine and even this is optional. These payments do not more than the wholesale cost of the drugs. The drug store is one of the most important departments of the dispensary. It is managed by Mr. J. E. H. Quipp, who, with one regular assistant and several medical students, is kept constantly busy. Of these medical students there are young ladies of Bishop's College, Miss Maud E. Abbott, Miss Josephine Canin and Miss Regina Loudon. For these, special "ladies'" days are set apart, Wednesdays and Saturdays of each week.

One functionary of the institution who deserves especial mention is the secretary, Dr. T. D. Reed, who has served for six years in this capacity, doing untold work, without a cent of compensation. But this is true of all the supporters of the dispensary. It is an institution that has not much advertised itself. For fifty years it has been doing good by stealth, and now it needs and claims public support.

AN ELECTION BET.

Mr. Mercier's Tourouvre Cattle the Subject of it.

A singular law suit arising out of a bet made during the last campaign at St. Elizabeth in the county of Joliette has been brought to an end. On January 21, at a public meeting held there, Mr. C. A. Cornellier, Q. C., declared that Mr. Mercier was the owner of a fine herd of cattle at Tourouvre and that he had this information from Mr. Mercier himself. Mr. C. Piché, of Montreal, who represented the Liberal candidate, denied this statement and a wager was entered into and the money deposited in the hands of Mr. Lazare Guilbault, chairman of the meeting. After the election Mr. Piché failing to furnish a written denial from Mr. Mercier, Mr. Cornellier sent in an affidavit and claimed the money. Mr. Guilbault failing to hand over the amount Mr. Cornellier took out an action for the amount. Mr. Cornellier declared at the same time that it was his intention to have Mr. Mercier called as a witness. The action has now been settled by Mr. Guilbault refunding the amount to Mr. Cornellier and paying costs.

Sale of the Late Mr. Tiffin's Library.

The sale of the private library of the late Joseph Tiffin, conducted by Mr. Shaw, at his store, 70 Beaver Hall Hill, was well attended, and the bidding spirited. The whole catalogue of 220 lots was disposed of. Mr. Henry Tiffin bought, to present to the Art Gallery, the following works: Strutt's Dresses and Habits of the English, $55; Sir Joshua Reynolds, 3 vols., 300 plates, $33; Spain, Artistic and Monumental, 3 vols., $87; Wilde's English Cathedrals, $20; Royal Gallery of British Art, $26; Prince Maximilian's Travels in North America, $220. And for presentation to the Fraser Institute: Mrs. Barbauld's British Novelists, full calf, 48 vols.; Montreal "Transcript" for 1837-8 and several others.

The Beauty of Gratitude.

La Semaine Religieuse says this morning: "How rich and how happy the city of Montreal would be if a few dollars were taken from the religious orders! No; the people do not speak thus; and much less the poor and the unfortunate, because they understand too well the beauty of gratitude, and they are indignant at the repeated attacks made against benevolent institutions. The people will answer by tokens of greater sympathy and generosity, and the nuns, who are accused, by prayer and their customary devotion."

Catholic Order of Foresters.

At the meeting of St. Anthony's Court No. 126 Catholic Order of Foresters, held last evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chief ranger, H. C. McCallum; vice chief ranger, J. Quinn; recording secretary, M. J. Walsh; financial secretary, J. P. Doran; treasurer, P. Reardon; trustees, J. Daly, E. Fitzgerald, J. Lamont; medical examiner and court physician, Dr. J. W. Rourke.

Lecture on Jamaica.

Mr. Adam Brown, late Canadian Commissioner to the Jamaica Exhibition, will give a lecture on "Jamaica," illustrated by stereopticon views in St. George's Schoolroom, Stanley street, on Thursday evening, April 28. Sir Donald A. Smith will preside. The lecture is for the benefit of the building fund for a new mission church at St. Henri, now carried on by St. George's Y. M. C. A.

Natural History Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Society will be held on Monday evening next. The chair will be taken at eight o'clock. A special communication on "Some notes on the mineral resources of the Kootenay district" will be given by Captain R. C. Adams.

Hon. Mr. Mercier's Narrow Escape.

Last evening ex-Premier Mercier had a narrow escape from being run over. Mr. Mercier, accompanied by Messrs. L. O. David and J. A. Mercier, was going down Bonsecours street and had reached Craig street, which he was about to cross, when two express waggons driven at breakneck speed, met. One of the drivers was drunk and was whipping his horse. Mr. Mercier had barely time to run back as the transfer made a circuit in the street to avoid a street car which was turning into St. Denis street. The ex-Premier was saved by one of the gentlemen turning the horse slightly away by his umbrella. The drunken driver on being reprimanded for his conduct used some insulting language. He was taken in charge by a constable and landed at the Central Police Station.

THE POSITION OF CITY CLERK.

The Finance Committee in Favor of Mr. Gosselin.

Ald. Rolland presided yesterday afternoon over a meeting of the Finance Committee, at which the principal subject of interest was the selection of an appointee for the vacant City Clerkship. The members of the Finance Committee were all present, as were also the Mayor, Alds. Prefontaine, Cunningham, Nolan, Beausoleil and Crosse. Mr. C.A. Geoffrion, Q.C., explained that an action was being taken by Mr. E. Roy, growing out of the expropriation of the Bonsecours market. The arrangement made was that the remaining property of Mr. Roy should have a street frontage, but strips were built and no frontage obtained. The litigation has lasted some time, and at last resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, holding the city responsible for damages. A sub-committee will arbitrate in this case in a friendly way and decide upon the amount of loss. The Mayor brought up a complaint from Mr. John Taylor, that his stable doors on Cosse street had been banked up eighteen inches by the Road Department. The case was referred to the City Surveyor. The City Attorney, Mr. Roy, presented a statement of costs of city witnesses in the matter of the expropriation of Notre Dame street east which amounted to $677. A considerable difference of opinion was noticeable between the figures of the city witnesses and those of the tenants; the former assessed damage at $29,000, and the latter at $194,000.

Mr. Roy recommended Messrs. Nelson, Hayes and Charpentier as city witnesses for Pantaleon street, and Messrs. A. Raza, Denoon and Cadieux for Lagauchetiere street. An attempt was made to appoint O. J. Devlin a witness, but Ald. Cunningham drew attention to the fact that he was already a commissioner.

The subject of pedlers' licenses came up next, and the Mayor drew a sad picture of the many cases that came under his notice. He said that hardly a day passed but he had applicants come to him, who, with a license, could earn a living; without it, they and their families became a charge on the community. He had, therefore, accepted instalments of $5 and $6.

Ald. McBride said that there were numbers of persons peddling in the city who did not pay a cent. He thought it better to take a little rather than get nothing.

The Mayor said that every Mayor before him had acted in a like manner.

Ald. Hurteau thought that a by-law should be either enforced or altered. If the present license was too heavy, then let the Committee move that the amount be reduced. After considerable discussion the matter was left to the chairman, Ald. McBride and Perrault as a sub-committee.

The claim of Mr. Genereux for damage to his property proved a striking illustration of the want of capacity with which these claims are handled by the city.

Ald. Hurteau moved that in future claims should be referred first to the Finance Committee and then to the department from which their claim arises.

Ald. Prefontaine strongly opposed the motion. In case of damages from defective sidewalks or water pipes, the Road or Water Committees were the most suitable to deal with the cases intelligently.

Ald. Cresse said it was the absurd system of appointing commissioners in expropriation by which the persons most concerned had no say.

Ald. Hurteau's motion carried.

Ald. Hurteau moved that Mr. Gosselin be recommended for the position of City Clerk and the committee were unanimous in their agreement that Mr. Gosslin and Mr. Rene Beausot were the persons who should have promotion.

Ald. Prefontaine questioned whether it was in the power of the Finance Committee to make such a report to Council. After much discussion it was decided to hear from the City Attorney and if he said it was in order, to recommend both. The Mayor stated that he would bring up the question first thing on Monday at the meeting in Council.

Cruelty to Animals in Montreal.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—I have observed with pleasure the fact that my recent letter to the Star in the above premises has called forth an expression of opinion from several "Montrealers" endorsing my views even more vigorously than I could have hoped. While the matter is still warm may I be permitted to add a word with reference to the remedying of the evil. To my mind, your police might prevent many of the displays of wanton cruelty to horses which are unfortunately too common in Montreal. I have just come from a visit to the Toronto police department, and find that, while one man is specially deputed to look after animals, including their housing and home treatment, the whole police force has instructions to promptly check any public ill-treatment of animals that comes under their notice. This rule the men carry out very creditably, even to the stopping and thinning out of an overloaded street car now and then. We all know in London a policeman has only to hold up his finger, and a line of vehicles often two hundred yards in length will stop to allow a lady to cross a street. In Montreal it is usually dangerous to cross a busy street. The cabmen and carters act as if they owned the streets and police force too. Why should not the latter be required both to keep down fast driving, and to stop, if need be, arrest, every jerking and slashing Jehu? With thanks for your space, and hoping you will use the influence of your powerful journal in the good cause,

A Meteor's Pranks.

A meteor which fell in Alabama recently, ploughed up a furrow about as large as a flour barrel and three or four feet deep, then bounded and struck a large pine tree six feet from the ground, shivering the tree. It then exploded, scattering its fragments in every direction, cutting down small growth and tearing up the ground.

A BURNING SORE LEG

Ulcers Form. Hospitals and Doctors useless. Crazed with Pain. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

About eight years ago I wrote you from Wilkesbarre, Pa., describing how your wonderful remedies completely cured me of a terrible case of eczema or salt rheum. I must now tell you what CUTICURA REMEDIES have again done for me. On the 22nd of last September, I had the misfortune to bruise my leg, and put a piece of sticking plaster on it. Inside of a week I had a terrible leg. My wife became frightened and advised me to go to a surgeon. I went, and doctored for two months, but no good was done me, besides costing me a big money. My leg had by this time formed into an ulcer, and got worse every day. I could not stand it any longer, and made up my mind to go to a hospital and see if I could be helped. I went to several here in the city, in turn, but none could do me any good. I had a terrible leg, with a hole in it as big as a dollar, and pain that almost set me crazy. I got scared about it, and determined to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. I obtained a set and inside of five weeks my leg was healed up as well as it ever was, except the terrible scar it left for a reminder of what was once a terrible sore leg. These REMEDIES are worth their weight in gold.

LITERARY TREAT.

"CORSICA AND THE VENDETTA."

Lecture by Rev. Abbe Gaffie, at the Cabinet du Lecture—Large Attendance of French Canadian Society.

The French Canadian Society of Montreal were given a literary treat Thursday evening at the Cabinet de Lecture, on the occasion of the entertainment given under the auspices of the Cercle Ville Marie. Mgr. Emard, the Bishop elect of Valleyfield, presided and around him were a number of the clergy The Hall was decorated with French and Papal flags and above the stage was the coat of arms of the new bishop. Part of the escutcheon was used by a French bishop named Emard in the eleventh century, and the two red crosses were added by the new bishops. The leading feature of the soiree was a lecture by Rev. Abbe Gaffie, the distinguished Parisian Dominican who has been preaching at Notre Dame during the Lenten season. The rev. gentleman chose for his subject "Corsica and the Vendetta," and from his five years' residence in the island he was thoroughly qualified to handle his subject. The lecture proved most interesting and as the abbe is one of the most eloquent and polished reconteur speakers ever heard in Montreal, many of his eloquent phrases were rapturously applauded. He minutely described the Vendetta as it exists and related a number of instances of the system which came to his own personal knowledge. The Vendetta, however, is partly dying out in the pall of advancing civilization and the abbé expressed the hope that religion would finally triumph. The Vendetta was a relic of barbarous times but to understand it well one had to take into consideration the customs and the treatment which the Corsican people had received from those who had reigned supreme over their island. "When," said the Dominican "a people is the victim of long standing injustice and no justice can be obtained from the Throne or from the Bench, if that people is strong it rises in its might and crushes all that stands in its way, as the French people had done, but

WHEN THE PEOPLE ARE WEAK,

as are the Corsican people, guerrilla warfare is resorted to. The Vendetta is an outcome of that state of barbarism. Though the Corsican bandit has been described as an enemy of civilization and of religion, there are many traits in his character which raise him above the level which he has been placed by many historians. He is brave, loyal and hospitable. The Corsican bandit has been known in his mad bravery to face an entire batallion of gendarmes sent to arrest and behead him and to have fought with a determination of the weakest lion. He is loyal. In Corsica a man who betrays another man, no matter if he happens to be his worst enemy, is looked upon as a disgrace to mankind. Hospitality is one of the most striking traits of the countrymen of Bonaparte and in that hospitality he comprises all who came beneath his roof. Instances were given of how entire villages protected a bandit against the combined force sent out to capture his arrest. One of these related to the summary justice dealt out to a man who had betrayed an enemy to the police. The man was brought to the doorstep of the church and there, in the presence of the entire population, told to prepare for eternity. Fifteen minutes after the man was shot. Once in a village near Ajaccio the Vendetta had been declared between two men. It continued for years and finally one of them, who was closely pursued by the police, sought refuge in the house of his enemy. That personage was out, but a child of twelve hid the fleeing bandit. The police arrived, "Tell us where the bandit is," said the officer, "and this gold is yours." The child refused to speak. "Tell us where he will be found" added the officer "and this watch is yours." The child was tempted. The bandit was betrayed. When the father returned he was informed of what had taken place. He at once summoned the whole village and standing in the midst of the crowd his hand resting on his child's shoulders said: "This child is no longer mine. He betrayed my enemy while he was my guest under my roof. He is unworthy to live," and with these words he plunged a dagger

INTO THE CHILD'S HEART.

A number of similarly interesting anecdotes followed and the abbe produced a blood-stained scapulary which had been found on the body of the renowned bandit Manconi, who had fallen riddled by the bullets of the police after a hunt of several years. The abbé, in his concluding remarks, said: "Thanks to God, the Vendetta is dying out in Corsica, but it is unfortunately not as yet wholly extinct. It has, however, received official sanction and countenance in Europe in the enormous standing armies ready to spring at each other and cover the continent with blood. To-day 5,000,000 men are armed for mutual destruction. A great and terrible conflict is pending between the two great nations of Europe, and no one knows when it will break out. As long as France continues to build magazines and cannon and gun factories alongside its palaces of industry and its Eiffel tower, civilization cannot be said to have triumphed. The two great men of Corsica have been Napoleon and Columbus; one the eagle, holding in his clutches the terror of war, the other the dove carrying the message of peace and love to a new world. In Europe as in Corsica, the ferocity of the eagle is still at times stronger than the spirit of the dove, but with the help of God the time will yet come when men will understand each other better and living in harmony and good will settle their disputes in a more Christian spirit and before the tribunals of arbitration." An entertaining programme comprising recitations and music and a comedy "L'habit par la fenetre followed.

YOUNG WOMEN.

The Work of the Christian Association—Address by Sir Wm. Dawson.

Rev. Dr. Barbour presided at the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association, held Thursday afternoon in the Association Hall on Metcalfe street. Among those present were Sir William Dawson, Revs. Dr. Hunter, E. M. Hill, W. S. Barnes, A. J. Mowatt and Mr. Budge. There was a large attendance of members and friends. The hall was very prettily decorated. Miss Hattie E. Tenney, general secretary, read the annual report after devotional exercises. The report was a favorable one and noted the progress made during the past year, especially in connection with the endowment agency. The demand made for help was always greater than the supply, but the best efforts of the Association were baffled by the inefficiency of the applicants. The Association aimed at supplying better employment than domestic service for those women who could do better. During the past year 86 applications had been made for help and out of this number thirty-eight had reported themselves as supplied. The library was being much appreciated by the members and the books were now classified. The library was free to members. The educational work now, in its fourth year was more successful than ever. Three terms of ten weeks each had been completed during the season extending from September to May. The social gatherings and classes for physical culture had been most satisfactory. The recording secretary's report showed that 180 were admitted to the Home during the year, an increase of 51 over the previous year. Miss Forrester was much praised for her good work among the poor. The piece of land on Drummond street was reported by the treasurer of the new building fund to have cost $8955.50 of which amount $5701.25 had been paid. They now had $789 in bank and when $1000 was obtained they intended to make a further payment and reduce the amount due on the land to $4912.23. The sum of $1000 had been promised, but the Association earnestly asked for aid to liquidate the debt. All household expenses paid, there remained a balance of $171.

Sir William Dawson delivered an earnest address in which he expressed satisfaction at the various reports and the good work now being carried on. It was an admirable thing to see Christian thankfulness and Christian unity. The Young Men's Christian Association had a beautiful building, and he saw no reason why the Association should not have a similar one. A good start had been made in the purchase of the property on Drummond street. He felt confident that people would second the efforts of the Association when appealed to. The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Stevenson; vice-presidents, Mrs. E. K. Greene, Miss E. F. De Witt, Mrs. J. Mackintosh, Mrs. J. Macdougall, Mrs. H. S. Ewing, Mrs. L. H. Corse and Mrs. W. B. Lindsay; recording secretary, Miss E. C. Forbes; treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Learmont; directoresses, Mrs. C. Seybold, Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mrs. J. Fairie, Mrs. G. T. Ferrier, Mrs. E. T. Ames, Mrs. Mallock, Mrs. Ghilda, Mrs. Fairman and Mrs. Papineau. The meeting was closed with the benediction.

JEAN MARTEL.

The Father of a Family of Twenty-Nine—Four Times Married.

Jean Martel was the son of Honoré Martel, who came to Canada towards the middle of the seventeenth century. This Honoré Martel, who appears as being the first of his name established in New France, settled first in Quebec. In 1668 he married, in this city, Marguerite L'Admiraut or Lamiraud. From this marriage were born fourteen children, the seven first at Quebec, four at Pointe-aux-Trembles of Quebec, and the three last at Quebec, where Martel and his wife had returned after having lived in Pointe-aux-Trembles from 1680 to 1689. Martel became a widower, he remarried in 1707, Marie Marchand, widow of Jean Labbé. There were no children of this second union. Jean, the subject of this article, was the second born of that family of fourteen; he was born on the 4th of January, 1671. He settled at Quebec as a merchant, and in 1703, at the age of thirty-one years and a few months, he married Marie-Anne Rouville. The date of the marriage contract is the first of May of that year. It is shown by the "Greffe du Seguenay" that this contract was passed by of Father Michel Bruslé, a Recollect missionary, who attended Contrecœur, Rimouski and other places from 1706 to 1718. He had come to Canada in 1698. By the first wife, Jean Martel had nine children, every one of them born in Quebec, and it may be added as a remarkable occurrence that they were all boys, two of whom became priests, François, born in 1705, and Joseph Nicolas, in 1721. The former was ordained in 1731. He was appointed a few days after his ordination, curate of Saint-Laurent, on the Island of Orleans, where he remained until his death, which happened on the 12th of December, 1762; he was then 58 years old. He was buried in his parochial church by Mr. de Voble, the curate of the next parish, Saint-Jean.

HERE IS A STORY

relating to this curate, François Martel; it is found in the Répertoire du Clergé by Mgr. Languay:

When every one of the inhabitants of the Island of Orleans had deserted their homes, in 1759, the curate Martel remained all alone in his presbytere or residence. An English officer entered and was delighted with this priest's kindness and polite manners. He dyed and bye spoke of him to General Murray, who wished to visit him in person. It is reported that the General caused to be erected, at his own expense, the north-west end of curate Martel's residence, in order to put him in a more comfortable abode.

The other son of Jean Martel, Joseph-Nicolas, already named, was ordained towards 1755, under and at the end of the French regime. He entered the order of the Jesuits and went to France. He came back to Canada in 1764, and was the same year appointed curate of the parish of Saint-Laurent, where died his brother, as just now mentioned. In the 4th of August, 1772, he was drowned, and his body was buried at Contrecœur.

Towards 1722, Jean Martel, having become a widower for the first time, seems to have left Quebec to go and settle in Baie Saint-Paul, where he married Anne Simard in 1723. He was then fifty-three years of age, and his second wife twenty-three only. Of this union five children were born, three boys and two daughters. Having lost his second wife in 1731, he married again at Baie Saint-Paul, Marie-Joseph de Lavoye, 21 years of age, he being then 61 years old. From this third union there were five children, two boys and three girls, all born at Baie Saint-Paul.

Being a widower for the third time in 1741, he married again and for the fourth time in 1742; he was then 72 years of age. His fourth wife's name was Marie-Clotilde Dobien, of Isle-aux-Coudres, and she was only 19 years old. Not long after this marriage, Jean Martel removed to the Eboulements, the next parish below Baie Saint-Paul, and in 1745 he selected Isle-aux-Coudres for his new home. Of this fourth and last marriage were born ten children: three boys and seven girls. The last one, for the youngest of these girls, Marie-Louise, was born on January 1, 1761, and her father at that date was 90 years of age. He died in the following year, on September 22, and was buried at Baie Saint-Paul. This legendary Martel had twenty-nine children of his four wives and only wanted about ten years to accomplish his century when he got his last child baptized.

I have seen even better than the above. I met, some years ago, at a place called Pequenouche, in New Brunswick, an Acadian family of twenty-seven children of one and the same marriage and all alive!

UN ARCHEOLOGUE.

The Bisley Team.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—I notice in your Saturday's issue a letter signed "Rex" commenting on my annual report as secretary to the Victoria Rifle Association, and regret that owing to my being out of the city at the time I could not answer it before. "Rex" asserts that I stated in my report "that the Vics had two men in the Bisley team for 1892," and that I "was thereby misleading the public." I never stated any such thing. What I did say was this: "The 22nd and 25th places on the Bisley team for 1892 were also taken by Lieuts. Macadam and Pope, respectively." At the time that my report was published, Mr. Macadam was an accepted member of the Bisley team for this year. Any one who is interested in shooting is quite aware that only 20 men compose the Bisley team, and according to the report of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, "this team is selected from the first 100 highest aggregate scorers, their places on the list being determined by the scores made in the grand aggregate match and two other matches; the association reserving to itself the right to pass over for cause, any man, in making up the team." Last year the 24th man was on the team and a year before the 23rd man went. In future, when "Rex" has anything to say against the Vics in general, and myself in particular, let him not misquote statements; but come to the front like a man and sign his name to his letters, and not use the press anonymously as a medium for his despicable remarks—the outcome of petty jealousy.

M. POPE, Lieut.,
3rd Victoria Rifles.

City Clerkship.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR, The consensus of public opinion is that Mr. Gosselin, the Assistant, should be appointed to the late City Clerk's position. To be a lawyer is not necessary, as we have a Law Department to whom all questions requiring such knowledge must be referred. Surely Messrs. Roy, Coyle and Ethier are competent to grasp all legal questions—or the selection of a lawyer to fill the Clerkship must be considered as a poor compliment to them. CITIZEN.

Medical Staff.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—Dr. F. W. Campbell need not be surprised that graduates from Bishop's are largely ignored in appointments to the medical staff of the Montreal General Hospital, when only graduates from McGill, no matter how high their standing may be, are completely ostracized and tabooed if they are Catholics. CITIZEN.

St. Stephen's Church, Chambly.

There was a service of prayer, without a sermon, in this church on Monday evening last. At the close the regular Easter vestry meeting was held. The rector, Rev. G. H. Butler, presided. The people's warden, Mr. W. B. Austin, was absent through illness, being represented by his son, Mr. Bruce Austin, who submitted the accounts, financial statements, etc., etc., which were accepted and regarded as very satisfactory and most encouraging. The following appointments were made for the new term: Rector's warden, Mr. J. W. Howard; people's warden, Mr. W. B. Austin; sidesmen, Dr. C. W. E. Glen and Mr. Wm. Myhill; lay delegates to the Synod, Messrs. J. W. Howard and A. H. Pimsoll. Votes of thanks to the retiring officers, the Sunday-school teachers, the Ladies' Church Aid Society, the organist, and the ladies and gentlemen of the choir, for their valuable services during the past year, were recorded. A resolution of regret that Mr. W. B. Austin could not attend the meeting owing to sickness was passed unanimously.

Steamship Freights Easier.

Steamship freights are slightly easier, as practically all the space has been taken by the first boats. Grain rates to Liverpool are quoted at 2s. 6d. to London, and Glasgow 2s. 6d. to 2s. 9d. to Bristol 3s. to 3s. 3d. and to the continent 3s. 3d. Sack flour to Liverpool, London and Glasgow has been contracted for at 12s. 6d., box meats 17s. 6d., butter and cheese 25s. and deals 45s. to 50s.

CONVENT TO STAGE.

A FORMER NUN TO APPEAR IN OPERA.

She Is a Member of an Aristocratic Hartford, Conn., Family And Her Action Has Caused Much Scandal.

HARTFORD, April 23.—Much scandal has been caused to the Roman Catholics in this part of Connecticut by the withdrawal of the most prominent nun in the State from Mount St. Joseph's Convent to become a member of a comic opera company. Hartford people remember the stir occasioned some fifteen years ago by the conversion from Protestantism to the Roman Catholic Church of Miss Lulu Wilcox, a member of one of the most aristocratic families in the city, and a beautiful, charming and brilliant girl. It was while pursuing her secular studies that Miss Wilcox became imbued with the idea that Catholicity, and that alone, would work out her soul's salvation. With her, to think was to act, and though bitterly opposed by her people when she formally announced her change of faith, she was not deterred. Shortly after her conversion she entered the convent as a postulant, and in due time she was regularly received into the Sisterhood of Mercy. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and among Catholics the congratulations were mutual and general over what was regarded as perhaps the most notable event in the history of the Catholic Church in Hartford. Miss Wilcox was looked upon as a most decided acquisition to the fold, and not a Catholic in the city but that felt a sense of pride when she so closely identified herself with the teachings and precepts of the church.

The fact of Sister Calista's escape has been well concealed. She left the convent nearly three weeks ago, and not only was nothing known of it last night outside the priesthood, but none of the girl's relatives knew it until yesterday, with the single exception of her mother, with whom she sought refuge.

Her mother, Mrs. Craven, refused to say a word last night, excepting that her daughter remained with her for a few days, and was then sent to visit friends in Norwich, where she yet remains.

A friend of the family said last night that the reason of her flight from the convent was because of the jealousy of the mother superior, growing out of Sister Calista's wishes often having weight with the bishop in opposition to her own. She visited her mother in company, as usual, with another of the sisterhood, clad in her black robes, and to the enemy of her companion, flatly refused to return to the convent. The influence of the priesthood was brought to bear upon her in vain, and they had no power to compel her to return. Finally the pressure became so strong that as soon as her dressmaker had finished her outfit she hurried away to New York.

Miss Wilcox is a brunette, with large, flashing, black eyes, rather finely developed, thirty years of age, and is in every way highly attractive. She was, on her mother's side, descended from the family of the late Governor Seymour. Her mother married a Mr. Wilcox, was divorced and married George M. Tiffany, a son of the late E. D. Tiffany, for many years president of a Hartford bank.

Tiffany's interest in placing on the stage the actress Maud Granger led to a divorce, and she married Wilcox. On his death, she married William Craven, an upholsterer, with whom she is now living.

The girl was placed at the convent for an education when only nine years old. Her pleasant manners and rare musical abilities made her a great favorite with her teachers, and they urged her, if she ever needed friends, to return to them. Shortly after completing her studies and leaving the convent her father died, her mother married again, and it is understood the young girl herself had some trouble in a love affair.

Within a short time, and strongly against the wishes of her friends, she took the veil.

When asked whether she would ever return to the convent, Mr. Craven replied emphatically: "No, she never will; she likes her freedom too well."

It is stated by one of Miss Wilcox's family that negotiations have been opened for her to join the Boston Symphony Orchestra Company.

Whatever may be the reason why Miss Wilcox left the convent she was led to make that resolve quickly. Only the day before she left the convent she seemed to be contented with her lot to the extent of extreme happiness. When she announced her intention of leaving she was prevailed upon to remain until the bishop, who was away, would return, when she could apply for a dispensation, but she declined to do this, saying that she had made up her mind to leave, and that it was best she should go at once. This looks as if she meant to renounce the Roman Catholic religion as well as her vow. She intends to join a comic opera troupe, where her musical accomplishments will be utilized.

SHOT HIS WIFE.

A Deliberate Murder at Brampton, Ont.—Is the Murderer Insane?

BRAMPTON, Ont., April 23.—About six months ago James B. Lundy, a well-to-do farmer, and his wife and daughter rented their farm and moved into Brampton, where their only son is engaged in the hardware store of Mr. Buckham. They seemed to be a most affectionate couple. Mr. Lundy had been in Toronto for several days looking for employment, and was not expected to return for some months. Mrs. Lundy and family were entertaining a small company at their house on Main street yesterday, and during the evening Mrs. Lundy asked to be excused while she prepared refreshments. Upon entering the kitchen, Lundy, who had returned from Toronto, and secreted himself under the kitchen table, opened fire upon his wife with a five-chambered revolver and shot her three times, once in the forehead, once in the jugular vein and once in the breast. Mr. Selwood, one of the guests, hearing the reports, rushed out and succeeded in wrenching the revolver from the murderer's grasp. The guests were panic stricken and the young daughter nearly distracted with grief. Mrs. Lundy dropped on the floor with blood pouring from the wounds and expired almost instantly.

Constable Orth made the arrest and Lundy was taken to gaol. Coroner Mullen hastily empanelled a jury, who viewed the body and adjourned. Lundy was seen at the gaol and seems to take the matter very quietly and expresses his eagerness to take the consequences, whatever they may be, and only regrets he was not left alone till he completed the tragedy by taking his own life. He said he had been living in jealousy for twenty years and thought he would end the matter. He has, it is reported, been drinking heavily lately and was thought to be mentally unsound.

A Rise in Freight Rates.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 23.—Fredericton merchants are up in arms against the recent large increase in freight rates between that city and St. John, the result of a combine between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Star lines of river steamers. At a meeting of the council of the Fredericton Board of Trade to-day it was proposed to carry freight from St. John by schooners and to establish a regular line to make two trips weekly. It is thought that the increased tariff will seriously cut into the trade done by the wholesale merchants of St. John all along the river.

The Anarchist Hunt.

PARIS, April 23.—The police of this city have not been the only ones who have been on an Anarchist hunt. Similar hunts have been conducted in other places and the result is that a large number of men who are considered dangerous are now safely in gaol. At St. Etienne 30 Anarchists were arrested yesterday, at Dijon five, at Amiens eight, at St. Quentin ten, and at Lyons twenty-four. The papers found included no important documents, but numerous revolvers and daggers were found and seized.

Libel Suit Against Bismarck.

BERLIN, April 23.—Herr Fushnagel, of Bochum, has commenced a suit against Prince Bismarck asking damages for libel. The suit is based on a certain speech made by Prince Bismarck in which he declared that Herr Fushnagel, in making the charges against Herr Baare, was inspired by a selfish motive and that he was probably in the pay of foreign countries.

The Toronto Nominations.

TORONTO, April 23.—The nominations for the vacancy in the representation of Toronto in the Legislature caused by the death of Mr. H. E. Clarke took place yesterday. Four candidates were nominated, viz., H. A. E. Kent, as a straight Conservative, nominated by E. E. Sheppard, one of the candidates for the Conservative nomination, N. G. Bigelow, Q. C., straight Reform, nominated by Dr. Ogden; Phillips Thomson, independent labor, and E. A. Macdonald on the platform of political union with the United States. The candidates were allowed five minutes to speak, but all exceeded the limits. Messrs. Kent and Bigelow were received cordially, and were not annoyed by their opponents. Mr. Thompson was heard quietly, but excited no enthusiasm. Mr. Macdonald was received with hisses and cheering, and his speech was continually broken up by interjections and interruptions until half way through, after which he was quietly heard.

QUEEN'S OWN NOT COMING.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 23.—The Queen's Own will not make their contemplated excursion to Montreal on the Queen's birthday. Owing to the amount of time which would be taken up by the trip and the expense each member of the regiment would incur it was impossible to get a sufficient number of men to go. The regiment will probably go to Owen Sound for the 24th.

THE BARONESS MACDONALD.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 23.—The Baroness Macdonald returned yesterday from Lakewood, N. J. She will remain here until the end of the session before proceeding to her summer residence at River Du Loup. In September she will visit Banff National Park. Hon. Mary Macdonald will return from New Jersey next week.

The Sarnia's Passengers.

HALIFAX, April 23.—List of saloon passengers per Dominion Line Royal Mail steamer "Sarnia," Capt. Couch, from Portland, April 21, and sailed April 22nd for Liverpool: Rev. Father W. V. Burtin, Dr. E. Desjardins, Mr. Drummond, Mrs. Ellis, Miss A. C. Leavitt, Mr. Thos. Little, Miss Hortense Murphy, Rev. W. Martin, Mrs. Millward, Miss Millward, Master Millward, Mr. Fred. Moore, Mrs. Geo. Turner, Miss G. Turner, Miss C. Turner, Master Harold Turner and maid, Mr. Toker, Mrs. W. Whitehead.

Italy to Economize.

ROME, April 23.—At yesterday's Council of Ministers it was decided to meet the deficit in the budget by effecting economies amounting to $3,000,000. It was also decided to increase taxation and to create a match monopoly, which it is expected, will yield another $3,000,000. The Council discussed colonial affairs and, according to some reports, concluded to limit the Italian possessions in Africa to Massowah.

PHYSICIANS' TESTIMONY.

QUEBEC.

MESSRS. HANDYSIDE BROS.

Dear Sirs,—For several years past I have constantly recommended Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil in my practice, and have always had perfect satisfaction with it. I saw such good results among my patients for whom I had prescribed it, that I was led to take some myself, being affected with a bad cough and hemoptysis. It worked very well on my constitution, and since using it my health has much improved and now I cough very little and respiration is easy and natural. I was emaciated and am now growing fat. The addition of Lacto-phosphate of Lime to the "Phosphorized" Cod Liver Oil gives to your preparation much curative value in cases of Consumption or any serious Chronic disorder in the Lungs or other parts of the Respiratory Tubes.

Believe me, yours, &c.,
F. A. DION, M.D., L.R.C.P. & S.,

Always ask for Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion, and be sure you get it. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. All druggists sell it. 96?1

THE LACHINE TRAGEDY.

A POST MORTEM HELD.

There is no Reason to Believe That a Murder was Committed—All Points to an Accidental Death.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

LACHINE, April 23.—The town of Lachine is not convulsed with excitement on account of the Clay shooting case. The theory of murder is not generally accepted. Dr. Valois held a post mortem examination at nine o'clock this morning, the result not showing anything to strengthen wild rumors of foul play. Dr. Valois is convinced Clay's death was caused by an accidental discharge of his gun. In the brain he found several grains of No. 4 shot with which the gun was loaded. Alongside the body the gun was found with one barrel discharged. Mrs. Clay sister-in-law of the deceased at whose house he was staying, saw him prepare to go hunting. She told a STAR reporter this morning that deceased said he intended shooting muskrats and plec. She believed he carried with him a revolver as well as the shot-gun, but the revolver has not as yet been found, though search was made among all the dead man's effects. She also thinks that he had on his person a pocket book containing over $60 and a purse with some small change. The latter was found in his pocket to-day, but it contained only 87 cents and the $60 can no where be found. This together with the fact that the body was twelve feet from the gun and badly bruised is the only evidence of foul play. Constable Robert, who found the corpse, also stated that it was by no under a plank which crossed the river where the rise swam and that it was in a position where it could not have fallen alone but he admits that the current is strong enough to have carried it under the plank and also to have washed the pocket book away. The distance from the gun and the bruises on the body may also be explained by the fact that a passing train could easily have struck the body and thrown him down the inclined railway into the stream below. Moreover, the fact that the deceased's watch was not taken lessens the probability of robbery and murder. Dr. Valois thinks that suicide was impossible and his evidence at the inquest will go to prove accidental death. The deceased was a native of Dresden, Ont., and has been a C. P. R. Pullman porter for three years, running to Vancouver from Montreal. Every two weeks he visited his brother-in-law at Lachine, where he was well-known as a temperate, industrious man. The inquest takes place at 3 p. m. to-day.

New York Gossip.

The following items were among those received over Meredith & O'Brien's special wire to-day: President Thos. P. Fowler, of the C. A. W., states that the pottery of his road in the management of its coal trade will be one of co-operation. Although it is not in any way controlled by the Reading combination it will be found in harmony with all movements looking toward an increase in revenue from its coal traffic.

The London market is again inclined to weakness. Prices are about ¼ lower.

Mr. Astor has resigned as a director of the Delaware and Hudson and has sold his stock, of which he held very little. It is thought that the Vanderbilt interest has bought it. The Bank statement will show up very favorably—about three million increase. We rather look for a little further yielding in prices on account of the foreign selling. There is reported to be quiet selling of Erie by people who have been heretofore very bullish on the property. A large seller says that he has held this stock many years solely on the confidence he has had in the management. He is satisfied now, however, that Mr. King's sickness is such as to make it necessary for him to retire from active work, which he has been doing in connection with the prosperity, and that with his retirement there may come some change in the property which may not be so advantageous to it.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Dr. Smyth, who has been laid aside with pleurisy, is rapidly improving.

Mr. P. W. St. George, City Surveyor, is expected home on Monday. He is much improved in health.

Mr. W. L. Maltby, wife and daughter arrived last evening from the United States and registered at the Windsor.

A private letter from St. Albert, N. W. T., states that the health of Mgr. Grandin is much improved since he left Montreal.

Mgr. Grouard, Vicar Apostolic of Athabasca-Mackenzie, has returned from France and will leave next week for his diocese. He is accompanied by three priests and some fifteen young men, belonging to good families, who are going to settle in the North-West.

Mgr. Fabre has left on an extended tour to the United States, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Adam, cure of the Sacred Heart. Mgr. Fabre will attend the consecration of Mgr. McDonald at Brooklyn, and then that of Mgr. Gabriel, at Ogdensburg. From there he will attend the consecration of the cathedral at Hartford, Conn., in which there are some forty priests ordained by His Lordship. He will then go to Chicago to bless the new French Canadian church in that city.

Special Notice.

La Banque du Peuple will open a branch on or about 1st May next, corner Notre Dame and Aqueduct streets. Deposits will be taken from one dollar, and interest paid at the rate of four per cent. per annum.

THEATRES DENOUNCED

BY THE ARCHBISHOP'S ORGAN.

La Semaine Religieuse Calls For The Interference of Legislators to Protect The Young.

La Semaine Religieuse, the organ of Archbishop Fabre, is out with a strong editorial article this morning denouncing theatres generally. It says: "The theatre is a bad school for virtue, and its action for certain natures is extremely pernicious. It is so much so in our days, when, not satisfied with indecent and commonplace dramas, it revels in a realism which revolts and scandalizes the broadest mind. It places on the scenes veritable tableaux vivants which are nothing but sad stimulant to evil. We do not speak for foreign countries, but for our own city. We have here permanent theatres which cannot fail to exercise a nefarious influence on the population. The admission fee is small; this is a certain means of attracting the masses and every night there is a crowded house. In these crowded houses, all is unhealthy; atmosphere, society and spectacle, and the crowd anxious for emotions, is made up not only of mature men, but of young people, and young girls, forgetful of modesty, and even children. Alas! yes, one witnesses the painful spectacle of seeing in these theatres girls and boys of 15, 12 and 10 years of age." The article strongly recommends to parents to watch that their children are kept away from these theatres, and it concludes by saying: "If the law prevents the giving of intoxicating liquors to children, because they are a fatal poison for their health, why does it allow poison to be poured into their souls by unbecoming entertainments. This is a serious question which demands the attention of the legislators charged with watching over public morals."

Canada's Fiscal Policy.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—In your columns I perceive recently that Senator Boulton has offered for the earnest consideration of Hon. Mr. Laurier and others most valuable suggestions with respect to Canada's commercial policy. Though I have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with the worthy Senator, yet I am convinced he deserves well of this country, if for no other reason than his intelligent and patriotic effort to promote the general welfare. When the Mother Country cast aside for ever the restrictions by which her trade had long been fettered, I urged that the people of this colony should evince their wisdom and courage by boldly following such a noble example. Time has amply proved the value to Britain of her plucky, Christianlike offer to trade freely with all mankind. Old England to-day controls the commerce of the world, whilst her offshoots, the great Republic and Canada, lag very far in the rear, begging for a little reciprocity here and there, and almost smothered behind the Chinese walls of protection. Let Canada promptly adopt unrestricted reciprocity with Great Britain. All the leading statesmen will join enlightened economists in that, and within three or four years the United States will follow our lead. And then?

WELLESLEY JOHNSTONE.

No Electric Railways Just Yet.

A meeting was held this morning of the Electric Railway Committee to consider a proposition made by Mr. Mainwaring to commence work on a short line up Bleury street to Park avenue. The Mayor presided. Ald. Beausoleil suggested that $2000 a mile was an excessive charge in large contracts, and he moved that it be agreed that $25,000 be the maximum deposit required of any contractor. This was concurred in. Mr. Mainwaring's tender was next considered. Ald. Beausoleil was well satisfied with Mr. Mainwaring, but he urged that after tenders had been advertised for, it would be unfair to the other contractors to give the work before all the contracts had been considered. They must all be on the same footing.

Ald. McBride said he was very anxious to see the work commenced. This seemed the general feeling of the meeting, but the difficulty of the matter was that, as Ald. Lamey said the granting of this piece of work would perhaps greatly interfere with the tenders for the rest that would follow and depreciate the value. This feeling eventually overcame the desire for immediate start, and when Ald. McBride moved that Mr. Mainwaring's offer be considered the motion was refused by four to five.

Teachers' Association.

A meeting of the Teachers' Association in connection with McGill Normal School was held yesterday evening, the president, Mr. H. H. Curtis, in the chair. The gathering was large, the programme being attractive. Miss Peebles read "Patchwork," dealing in a pleasing way with current events and touching wisely on questions of the day. The Misses F. and N. Taylor then sang a vocal duet which pleased the meeting very much. A thoughtful paper on the importance of "Fresh Air in Schoolrooms" was read by Mr. L. E. Gregor of the High School. A vocal solo by Madame Cornu of the Normal School was the next item and was much appreciated. Professor Kneeland presented a report on the course of study and Principal Silver, one on amendments to the Pension Act. Much discussion followed both reports.

A Series of Accidents.

At 4 p. m. yesterday Eugénie Hudon, a little girl, fell from the third-story gallery of a house in Point St. Charles, and fractured her thigh. She was taken to Notre Dame Hospital.

Content Allerele, 303 St. Ambroise street, St. Henri, jumped off a train in motion at the G. T. R. station there last evening, and in doing so fell and broke his leg. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital.

A lady, named Mrs. Hart, slipped at St. Louis square last evening and broke her arm. She was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital.

The New Trappist Monastery.

Rev. Dom Jean Marie, Mitred Abbot, of Bellefontaine, France, and Rev. Dom Antoine, of the Trappists of Oka, have gone to Quebec to confer with Cardinal Taschereau, regarding the opening of a new Trappist Monastery at Lake St. John. The Local Government have promised some pecuniary aid.

Honorably Discharged.

Louis Desrochers, farmer of Ste. Martin, arrested on a charge of pocket picking in a store on St. Lawrence Main street, on Easter Saturday, appeared before Judge Dugas this morning, and, there being no proof to convict him, was honorably discharged.

Fell From a Scaffold.

Thomas Hughes, 118 Murray street, fell from a scaffold, a plank having broken, at the Malleable Iron Co.'s works, Mill street, yesterday afternoon, and suffered a contusion of the skull. He was taken to the General Hospital. He is progressing favorably.

His Stock Transferred.

Mr. W. J. Withall, of the Street Railway Company's Board, transferred his stock to Mr. L. J. Forget to-day. He was only interested to the extent of $5000. At the next board meeting Mr. Everett will be appointed a director in room of Mr. Withall.

Lottery Actions.

Mr. Atwater has had information laid in the Police Court against all the lottery companies in Montreal with the exception of the Province of Quebec Lottery. Summonses will be served to-day upon the various parties.

Junior Liberal Club.

At a special meeting of the Junior Liberal Club held last evening, Mr. J. P. B. Casgrain in the chair, resolutions of regret at the death of Mr. Mackenzie and condolence with his family were adopted.

Requiem Service.

The annual requiem service for the late Mgr. Lastigue, first Bishop of Montreal, will be chanted at the Cathedral on Tuesday morning at seven o'clock.

Harbor Police.

Chief Hughes will have the Harbor Police commence duty on Monday first. There will be forty men in charge of Sergts. Reeves, Lemay and Gray.

St. George's Day.

The Mayor has had the flag on the City Hall hoisted to-day in honor of St. George's Day.

The Will of the Late Mr. Wm. Edgar.

A petition for probate of the last will and testament of the late Mr. Wm. Edgar has been registered. The document is dated June 6, 1891, before deceased's marriage. He bequeaths to his intended wife, Elizabeth Y. G. Tempest, in the event of their marriage, and as long as she remains his widow, all the property he leaves at the time of his death. If she marries again, he bequeaths to his sister, Ann Edgar, widow of the late W. S. Spiers, the sum of $1000, and the balance to his brother, John Edgar, and his wife in equal portions during their lifetime, and to their children in equal proportions after their deaths. The executors are Elizabeth G. C. Tempest, John Edgar and Alexander Stewart.

Special Notices.

Pianos $50, $60, $100, $150, $175, $200 and $225.

J. Wm. Shaw & Co., 1811 Notre Dame street, advertise pianos at above prices and and terms $5 to $10 per month. Call see their bargains.

Canadian Pacific Railway Suburban Service.

The Canadian Pacific begin their suburban service between Montreal and Vaudreuil on May 2nd. Their advertisement in another column shows that this service will meet the requirements of intending residents along the line.

Special attention directed to new and improved service to and from Cote St. Antoine, and between Montreal, Hudson and Rigaud.

Cote St. Antoine Academy.

The juvenile entertainment given last Friday evening under the auspices of the Melville Church Mission Band was a great success.

The Evans Bros. piano kindly loaned by P. E. Layton & Bro. for this occasion was much admired.

A New Piano Factory.

The latest addition to the piano manufacturers of Canada are Messrs. Shaw & Co., who have registered to manufacture "The Shaw Piano." J. Wm. Shaw & Co., who do a large retail piano and music business at 1811 Notre Dame street, have converted the upper floors of their building into a factory and are importing the essential parts of their pianos, such as actions, etc., from New York and with first-class workmen are making a piano equal to the American instruments. They are making at present two styles, small cottage uprights (the smallest piano made in Canada) and large cabinet grand uprights, and they have already shipped their instruments as far west as Medicine Hat, N. W. T. This firm also do a large repairing business, having every facility for making old pianos new. For catalogues and prices of "The Shaw Pianos," address J. William Shaw & Co., 1811 Notre Dame street.

A GREAT TRIBUTE TO MELISSA!

IS THE FACT THAT SUCH PERSISTENT ATTEMPTS ARE MADE TO PRODUCE IMITATIONS.

Counterfeit money to pass current even among the most ignorant must be made to resemble genuine coin.

In like manner it is found necessary to even copy Melissa patterns and styles in the frantic effort to place imitation goods on the market.

ALL IN VAIN.

The public are not so easily humbugged, and regard with undisguised contempt such an underhand and paltry manner of doing business.

Our Melissa Cloths are manufactured by the largest and best mills in the country. All our patterns are made specially for us and the mills guarantee they will neither reproduce them in any other cloth nor sell them to any other firm.

WE NEITHER DEAL IN COUNTERFEITS NOR PLAY SECOND FIDDLE.

Copies of Melissa patterns must therefore be obtained from some of the smaller inferior mills in lower grades of cloth.

NOTHING EQUAL TO MELISSA HAS EVER HERETOFORE BEEN PRODUCED either for Ladies' Cloakings or Men's Ulsterings. There is a large range of the most fashionable colorings and patterns to choose from. The Cloth being thoroughly rainproof, you get, in a Melissa Cloak or Overcoat, a beautiful fine soft Woollen Garment having all the advantages of a Waterproof without any of the disagreeable or unhealthy qualities.

Melissa Goods are now being sold by all the Leading Dealers throughout the Dominion.

All genuine porous rainproof cloths are stamped in wax with the Melissa trade mark seal, and Melissa Garments have the above trade mark label attached. None other genuine.

"THE GREATEST COMIC SONG OF THE DAY." Te-ra-ra-boom-der-e, the explosive but decidedly Captivating Ditty that has come to be known during the last 6 months all over England and America under the title of Te-ra-ra-boom-der-e, has won such a distinguished place for itself in the hearts of all lovers of Popular songs, over 10,000 copies sold last month. The above song, words and music, to be had at Kelly's Music Store, 154 St. Antoine St. Price 5 cents. Don't fail to buy a copy. 96 1

A CLEVER HUMBUG.

HE FOOLED THE RAILWAY MAGNATES.

Got Passes Over all Parts of the United States With Special Cars and Free Meals Thrown In.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A Chicago special says the railroad magnates of New York and Chicago have been cleverly taken in by an Englishman who signed his name as C. H. Cook. They pressed upon him private cars, annual passes and theatre boxes, dinners for select parties and luncheons ad libitum. Chauncey M. Depew mourns some annual passes; George B. Roberts, the president of the Pennsylvania road, was so taken in that he furnished his new acquaintance with flattering letters of introduction to western friends. When Cook landed in New York he said he was assistant superintendent and civil engineer of the London and North-Western Railway. He was in this country for health, rest and recreation, and incidentally he wished to look over the great American railways and see how they were run. The London and North-Western is Great Britain's crack road, and although English railways extend scant courtesy to American railroad magnates, Mr. Cook was received with open arms. Mr. Depew gave him annual passes in the Vanderbilt lines and a nice new Wagner car, a luncheon with a speech thrown in, and several letters of introduction. George B. Roberts furnished the freedom of the Pennsylvania system and sent Mr. Cook to the great Altoona shops to look them over, which he did under the guidance of officials whose time was worth $500 a day. At Pittsburg, iron kings and high tariff barons wined and dined the great English railroad official, and a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy private car was procured to bring the favorite to Chicago. President Roswell Miller, of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, at once interviewed Mr. Cook on elevated termini. Then Mr. Cook found out that Mr. Miller was in favor of surface tracks and promptly declared there were no elevated terminals in England to speak of, because they were impracticable.

With joy in his heart Mr. Miller had this interview published in the Chicago papers and sent his visitor up to Milwaukee to view the shops. Then Mr. Cook called on K. D. Springer, third vice-president of the Atchison road, and told him elevated terminals were the greatest benefit in England, and that gentleman gave up a complete assortment of passes on the Atcheson and California lines. But the Illinois Central was struck the hardest. Mr. Cook procured a pass to New Orleans and return and paid the fare south for his wife. When the Illinois Central heard of this the officials sent by telegraph free transportation back for Mrs. Cook and asked permission to refund the amount paid for going south. Then Mr. Cook journeyed west. He has seen America thoroughly from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains, and is now doing the Pacific coast in a Southern Pacific private car.

C. A. Banatonia, representative of the London & North-Western in New York, has just heard of Cook, and he telegraphed yesterday: "C. H. Cook has never been associated with my company in any official capacity whatever, and is a fraudulent person."

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 23.—The exports for the Dominion of Canada during the month of March were as follows: $3,988,337, exports for March, 1891; $3,265,848, increase of $772,428. The exports for the first nine months of the current fiscal year before amounted to $85,487,439, being larger by $11,753,488 than the exports for the first nine months of the fiscal year 1890-'91. The imports during the month amounted in value to $10,068,016, the duty collected to $2,001,842, an increase of $1,648,031 in value of imports and of $62,268 in duty compared with the returns for March of last year.

The imports for the nine months (ended March 31st) of the current fiscal year amounted to $81,990,945, compared with $81,829,943 during the first ten months of the last fiscal year. The duty collected was $14,580,189 against $17,081,532 during the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of $2,501,343.

A WESTERN RAILWAY DEAL.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

HAMILTON, April 23.—Work has not yet been commenced this year on the completion of the double-tracking of the Toronto Branch of the G.T.R., and it is currently stated among railway men that the work is suspended, pending the result of the meeting of shareholders on the 27th. The story has got abroad that the Canadian Pacific is negotiating for the purchase of the southern division or part of it and that something definite will be done at the meeting in question. If the C. P. R. took over the Toronto branch, the Niagara Falls and Sarnia line and the N. & N. W. division, the Grand Trunk would still have the air line from Port Erie to Windsor through for business between Chicago and New York.

THE LATE BISHOP WILLIAMS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, April 23.—The funeral of the late Lord Bishop of Quebec will take place this afternoon and will be very largely attended by the clergy, national bodies, city corporation, bar of the district, Lennoxville students, etc. The service will be conducted by the Bishops of Niagara and Nova Scotia and the Archdeacon, Dean and canons of Quebec, and the music will be as simple as possible at Mrs. Williams' special desire.

Many letters and telegrams of condolence from all over the country have reached Mrs. Williams.

OTTAWA CRIMINAL COURT.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, April 23.—At the Assize Court this morning a large number of the officials of the Public Works Department were present, expecting that the Talbot case would be called, but the hearing of Tackaberry vs. the Mutual Life Insurance was continued. Before resuming work Mr. Justice Armour said he would open the case against Lamoille for wife murder on Monday, but if one of the witnesses for the defence on her way out from England had not arrived he would again postpone the hearing.

THE DUTIES ON BOOKS.

TURNING TO RUSSIA.

REPORTED UNREST IN AFGHANISTAN.

The Ameer Reported to Have Sent Emissaries to St. Petersburg—A Feeling Against Great Britain.

LONDON, April 23.—The following appears in the Berlin Catholic Volkszeitung, which now and then receives interesting and trustworthy information through the medium of Catholic missionaries: "The Ameer of Afghanistan appears now to see that heavy taxes are not calculated to make his country prosperous. Such exorbitant duties are placed on imports that commerce with India is almost entirely at a standstill. The Ameer has now evidently turned to Russia in order to make good his error, and for this purpose has sent off envoys to St. Petersburg to bring about a commercial treaty. Of course, Russia will only too eagerly accept, especially as the Ameer is not at present on good terms with England. He refused an invitation from the Viceroy, feigning illness, and all attempts of the Indian Government to extend the railways from Peshawur and Quetta to Cabul and Candahar, as well as the putting up of telegraph wires, were refused, although it was the Indian Government which installed the Ameer as ruler in 1880, and since has assisted him with 1,200,000 rupees yearly, as well as with arms. From all this one may conclude that the Ameer holds with the Indian Government only as long as he has advantages to gain from it; but when he has got all he wants he will go over to Russia and perhaps attack the Indian Government literally with its own weapons. What the Indian Government is thinking of doing is not yet known, but from the preparations being made one may conclude that it intends taking steps against the Ameer."

Recently the following information came from Afghanistan from a reliable source:

The partisans of the dynasty of the Ameer Shere Ali, who died in 1879, have resolved to prepare everything for the eventuality of the present Ameer Abdur-Rhaman Khan's death. This, it is stated, cannot fail to happen soon, as he suffers from an incurable disease. They will immediately after his death proclaim Ameer a the son of Yakub Khan, who was dethroned by the English in 1881, and call upon Russia to protect him. It is even stated that four regiments of the Afghan army have been gained over to this plan. Two of these regiments are garrisoned in Herat. In Afghanistan the belief is beginning to gain ground that at the death of the present Ameer a sanguinary civil war will break out, which will probably make the interference of both England and Russia necessary. As Shere Ali was an enthusiastic admirer of Russia and the Czar Alexander II, the partisans of his grandson entertain hope that the present Czar will grant the young Ameer his protection.

GRANDSON OF SHERE ALI,

Mr. T. S. Pyne, who is described as engineer in chief to the Ameer of Afghanistan, recently passed through Bombay on his way home on leave and in an interview with a writer of the Times of India gave some interesting information in regard to the Ameer and to Cabul. It is now about five and a half years since Mr. Pyne first entered the Ameer's service. At that time he was the only European in Afghanistan, and the mater al he had to work with was very raw. The people were most conservative in their ideas, and everything new was regarded with suspicion. The coinage of the country was of the most crude description. The rupees and other coins were all hand stamped, but the people seemed very loath to change them. However, Mr. Pyne, at the instigation of the Ameer established a mint and very soon succeeded in putting into circulation a neatly coined rupee and other coins similarly well executed.

When the mint had been fairly established Mr. Pyne began a cartridge factory, and this, too, was speedily placed in satisfactory working order, so that the Afghan workmen are now turning out seven thousand cartridges a day, while their maximum daily output is placed at ten thousand. Then came a rifle factory, and, although the workpeople had all their lives been accustomed to rely on the work of their hands and to be entirely independent of anything like steam machinery, they very soon learned to appreciate the value of the improvements introduced by Mr. Pyne, and at the present moment they are PRODUCING THE SMALLER FIREARMS.

After the rifle factory had been established a forge, a boot and shoe manufactory and an English tailoring establishment were put in working order.

Asked now the Afghans took to these new introductions, Mr. Pyne said that at first they were a little backward, but now they are taking to them with a great enthusiasm and nobody is more enthusiastic than the Ameer himself. In some respects they were of an inventive turn of mind. For instance, about half a dozen of them set to work to make a steam engine of a quarter horse power. No one but Afghans had anything to do with the work, and when the Ameer saw the result of their labors he was so delighted that he gave them several thousands of rupees in order to stimulate others to follow their example.

"I think," said Mr. Pyne, "it would be hard to find a more thoroughly courteous ruler than the Ameer, or one who is more ready to do everything in his power to develop his country. I cannot speak too highly of him. He is certainly one of the most fascinating men that you could wish to meet. He is very anxious to improve the condition of his people, and is quite satisfied not to receive a penny return on the money he has laid out on new works."

Mr. Pyne added that the Ameer was very anxious to visit England, and will do so as soon as he receives an invitation.

THE FIRST BOAT OF THE SEASON.

The "Fremona" From Mediterranean Ports Arrives Up.

The first ocean steamship to reach Montreal this year is the Thomson Line steamship "Fremona," from Mediterranean ports with a cargo of fruit. This is just four days earlier than last, when the first arrival was the steamship "Charrington." She got here at three o'clock on April 27. It was expected that the "Charrington" would be the first boat here, but the "Fremona" caught her at Quebec and has beaten her up the river. The "Fremona" made a good passage from the Mediterranean ports and came through the Straits of Canso, meeting with but little detention from the ice. Coming up the river, however, quite a quantity of floating ice and logs was met with, necessitating the steamer slowing down to half speed part of the distance. The "Charrington" is near at hand in the river, and is expected up this afternoon. She is from the Mediterranean ports also with a cargo of fruit. The third arrival will be the coaler "Poitou," from Cow Bay with a cargo of coal.

These Testimonials Mean Something.

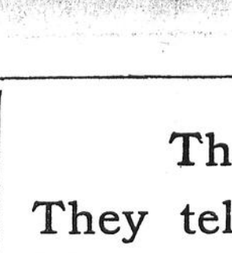

They tell the Wonderful Story of Cures by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. They are Not Purchased, Nor are they written up in our Office, Nor are they from our Employes. They are Facts, and Prove that HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA Possesses Absolute Merit, and is Worthy the Confidence of the People.

Every day adds to the many cures of Scrofula and other diseases of the blood effected by Hood's Sarsaparilla. All parents whose children suffer from humors should read this statement. Mr. Ruby is a well-known railroad man, running on the Pennsylvania Rd. between Columbia and Philadelphia:

"I wish to tell what has been done for us and our little boy by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Until he was six years of age he was from birth a terrible sufferer from

Scrofula Humor

Sores would appear on him and spread until as large as a dollar and then discharge, only to be followed by others, so that the larger part of his body was one mass of sores all the time. The scrofula was especially severe on his legs and back of his ears and on his head. His hair was so matted that combing was sometimes impossible. His legs were so bad that sometimes he could not sit down, and it was impossible for him to run about and play like other children. Frequently when he tried to walk his legs would crack open and the blood start from different places. The humor had a very offensive odor, and caused

Son of Harry K. Ruby, Columbia, Pa.

Intense Itching

We cannot tell how that poor boy suffered in all those years. Physicians did not effect a cure. At last I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla, as my druggist recommended it. In about two weeks the sarsaparilla began to have effect. The sores commenced to heal up; the flesh began to look more natural and healthy. Then the scales came off and all over his body new and healthy flesh and skin formed. When he had taken two bottles he was entirely free from sores, having only the scars to show where they had been. These have all disappeared. We are unable to express our thanks for the good Hood's Sarsaparilla has done our little boy." HARRY K. RUBY, Box 356, Columbia, Pennsylvania.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

The Cure Was Permanent

COLUMBIA, Pa., Jan. 9, 1892.

"I have had numerous enquiries about the cure of my son by Hood's Sarsaparilla and am glad to be able to reply to all that the cure was permanent. He is now and his skin, once such a pitiable sight on account of the scrofula humor, is as soft and smooth and healthy as any child's. I am always glad to tell about and praise Hood's Sarsaparilla." H. K. RUBY.

In Perfect Health

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, do not cause pain or gripe.

The following letter, received just as this advertisement is being prepared, bears right on the point:

Office of Dr. H. F. Merrill,
AUGUSTA, ME., April 10, 1892.

C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sirs: In justice to you I would like a word, as also for Hood's Sarsaparilla. I do not use any of these remedies myself, but I have found among many friends and patients your preparation spoken of in the highest terms of praise, as a fine, genuine, strengthening remedy, doing all you claim for it. And what is better still, your TESTIMONIALS ARE GENUINE. I have taken pains to write to quite a number. Very truly yours,

DR. H. F. MERRILL.

Food Made Me Sick

Distress in the Stomach—Lost 25 Pounds

Hood's Sarsaparilla Made a Wonderful Change.

Mr. Charles C. Aber, the well known grocer, of Canisteo, N. Y., says:

"About May, 1890, I was taken with pains in my Back and Chest. I could eat scarcely anything and had a faint feeling in my stomach most all the time. When I began to eat, the first taste of food would make me so

Deathly Sick

I would then take a swallow of cold water and go back to the store again. I kept running down in flesh all this time and had lost 25 pounds. My

Mr. Chas. C. Aber
of Canisteo, N. Y.

wife and family were very much alarmed and I expected my stay on earth would be short. I had tried almost everything I could think of without the least benefit. July 4, 1890, a friend named Miles Brong, of Hornellsville, asked what made me

Weak and Thin

I replied I was sick and had been for two or three months, and could get no help. He said he had been in the same condition, took Hood's Sarsaparilla, by advice of Dr. Jamison, and was perfectly cured. He urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and said if the medicine was not successful he would pay the bill. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla on the evening of July 4, 1890; in the morning I ate a hearty breakfast, which was a very unusual thing for me. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and also continued to have a good appetite for three meals a day. I gained two pounds per week until I got my regular weight back again. In all I used eight bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and at the expiration of that time I was a well man and never felt better in my life. To-day I am cured and I give Hood's Sarsaparilla the whole praise of it."

A Dark Prospect

Numb Spells—Hot Flashes—Chills—Neuralgia of the Liver

This statement comes from a highly esteemed Boston lady:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"Three years ago I was in very poor health, and was told by a leading physician of Boston that if I did not go through a course of treatment of Boston.

Mrs. Annie W. Jordan

by some skilful doctor I would not be alive at the end of the year. He said the Veins Were Bursting

all over my body, and, as he expressed it, rotting. The blood would rush to my head at times until tears rolled down my face. He said it would end in apoplexy. I could not pay doctor's bills, and having heard good reports about Hood's Sarsaparilla, gave it a trial. I had only taken one bottle when my blood circulated naturally, and I had no more numb spells or hot flashes. I continued to take it for about 9 months, with constant improvement all the time, until I became a very picture of health and felt perfectly well. Then I had a collision with the deadly double runner, was knocked down, and struck my right side. I began to have

Congestive Chills

and could not lie upon my right side. Then I was taken with tonsilitis; had to have my tonsils lanced, and was very sick and low. The doctor said my fall congested my liver, and caused neuralgia of that organ. He left a prescription, which I tried a week, but got no better, and I was utterly discouraged. I then sent for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and had not taken half a bottle before I was nearly well. I soon fully recovered and have been in Good Health Ever Since

I could write in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla all day and then not say enough. Whenever I feel run down I take Hood's Sarsaparilla a few days and am soon all right again. It is the best medicine I ever knew of." MRS. A. W. JORDAN, 165 Tremont st., Boston.

William A. Lehr of Kendallville, Ind., says Hood's Sarsaparilla is

King of Medicines

And His Cure Was

Almost a Miracle

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen,—When I was 14 years of age I was confined to my bed for several months by an attack of rheumatism, and when I had partially recovered I did not have the use of my legs, so that I had to go on crutches. About a year later, Scrofula, in the form of appeared on various parts of my body, and I was an invalid for 11 years, being confined to my bed six years. In that time ten or eleven of these sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. Several times pieces of bone worked out of the sores. Physicians did not help me and I became discouraged.

"I went to Chicago to visit a sister, as it was thought a change of air and scene might do me good. But I was confined to my bed most of the time. I was so impressed with the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in cases similar to mine that I decided to try it. So a bottle was bought, and to my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better. This strengthened my faith in the medicine, and in a short time I was

Up and Out of Doors

To make a long story short, I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a year, when I had become so fully released from the chains of disease that I took a position with the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since that time have not lost a single day on account of sickness. I always feel well, am in good spirits, and have a good appetite. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of all medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, No. 9 North Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

An Opinion
—OF—
THE TRAVELERS INSURANCE CO.
By one eminently qualified to give it.

On the 25th of March, Wm. Hanson, Chief Agent, Travelers Insurance Co., Montreal, received the following letter from W. McWilliam, Confectioner, St. John Street, Quebec, one of the best known men in the Province, and who has carried over $100,000 of Life Insurance, distributed among the leading Canadian and American Companies. He writes as follows:—

WM. HANSON, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I received your Co.'s cheque for $2000 the very day on which my Endowment Policy became due, for which I thank you very much, as I saw per policy you had three months to pay if you pleased to hold the amount.

I may say that out of a large amount received from Endowment Policies ($34,000) up to the present time, yours is the most satisfactory—the amount being what was promised.

I have no money to spare, or I would certainly take more in The Travelers.

WM. McWILLIAM.

Moral:—Insure in The Travelers.
