Montreal world's fair enthusiasm spreads to Townships

THOMAS LEONARD
To urge Jaycee action

Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships will be a sideshow off from the big midway Montreal will open in 1967.

Experience from Seattle in 1962 indicates that a wide surrounding region of a world's fair site benefits from the event — and some tourist-conscious officials in this region are already entertaining first thoughts about the need to prepare.

W. Nichol, Lennoxville beef breeder and president of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association, went to the Seattle Fair last summer. He goes even further than hoping to attract some of the overflow crowds south of the St. Lawrence.

"I've been talking with some of the big dealers and breeders," he says, "and they'd like to organize a big stock show to follow the World's Fair — as big as the Royal Winter Fair. It could be a grand thing.

"The Sherbrooke Fair will still be here, of course, and I hope there will develop a circuit for livestock exhibitors including our fair and the new Montreal one. They would start at Quebec, then move to Sherbrooke, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, and on to Chicago.

"At the Seattle Fair they had a few fancy animals, but they didn't really go in for livestock exhibiting. I talked to the secretary of the Pacific Northwest Exhibition in Vancouver, and he was really pleased to have the World's Fair nearby — it brought people to B.C."

The Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce is one of several organizations which has yet to get their teeth into the problems a neighboring world's fair will pose for the region.

"The prospect of the Fair in no way influenced our recommendation that the Eastern Townships Automobile come right to the edge of town," Chamber Secretary Henri Baudot told The Record.

"I will say that it's sure to bring in a lot of American tourists. The automobile will be completed by 1965, and this will make it much easier to come down this way while attending the Fair."

Mr. Baudot thought it was a question which the Chamber's tourism committee could well give some thought to.

Thomas Leonard, local notary and president of the English-speaking Junior Chamber of Commerce formed just this year in Sherbrooke, admitted his group had not attacked the Fair question yet either. He told The Record he would urge the local Jaycees to form a World's Fair Committee.

"It could bring fantastic benefits to the area," Mr. Leonard said, "but I'm a little afraid that the fair they're going to have in New York in 1964 will discourage people from coming back to North America for the 1967 one. Once they've seen the U.S., that may be all the travelling they want to do for a while.

"It was partly because the prospects of the area looked promising that I opened my office here, and I want to encourage anything which will attract foreign investment."

Louis-Philippe Demers, director of the City of Sherbrooke's tourist office, said municipal authorities were concentrating more on 1963 activities than on long-term projects.

"But I have submitted a three-year plan to the council's tourism committee," Mr. Demers said. "I can't give full details while it is still under study, but the World's Fair is going to require a lot of expansion of tourist facilities."

As example, the director mentioned motels, which "will double," traffic once the auto-route is built, "tripled," and above all the need for more restaurants.

"In fact," said Mr. Demers, "in five years we will go forward 20 years." He noted that Chamber of Commerce economic planning discussions have taken tourism into account, suggesting local businessmen are ready to expand facilities.

"I'm very optimistic," summed up the tourist director.

Another municipal official, the mayor of "the most scenic spot in eastern Canada," felt the burden was on businessmen in the tourist trade to expand for the influx.

Mayor Charles Coleman of North Hatley said that although he had not been out to Seattle last year, he had heard that people attending the Fair had overflowed as far as Vancouver, 115 miles from the U.S. Fair site.

"That's the same distance North Hatley is from Montreal. I'll certainly bring this up in council, and talk to the resort owners in the area about it.

"As it is, our facilities are pretty well packed at the height of the summer vacation season. To handle any big increase, new ones would have to be built.

Says dim possibility of accidental nuclear blast

WASHINGTON (CP)—A U.S. military weapons expert says so many safeguards are built into nuclear weapons that there virtually would be no possibility of an accidental nuclear explosion over Canada should Canada decide to acquire nuclear warheads.

"I cannot make a 100-per-cent pledge because there is always the possibility of some unforeseen human or mechanical error," he says.

Meet Tuesday, today

Political strategy top cabinet concern

OTTAWA (CP) — Political strategy in the weeks and months ahead apparently tops the current agenda of cabinet business.

The cabinet met for nearly four hours Tuesday and plans another meeting today.

Nkrumah menaced by blast

ACCRA (Reuters)—A bomb explosion injured several persons Tuesday night at a rally attended by President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana.

The interior ministry announced that "a number of people were wounded" and taken to Accra hospital. It said a man has been arrested in connection with the incident.

The bomb was thrown among a crowd of about 25,000 at Accra Sports Stadium. Nkrumah—target of an assassination attempt last summer—had left the stadium before the bomb went off.

Before leaving, Nkrumah told the audience he expected all Ghanaians to "stand shoulder to shoulder to bring a successful conclusion to the second phase of our revolution — the construction of a socialist Ghana and a free united Africa."

He drove from the stadium amid thunderous cheers, which suddenly ceased at the explosion.

The crowd stampeded, but officials finally got control and channelled them through stadium exits.

Ambulances were on the scene within minutes to take the injured to hospital and additional police quickly cordoned off part of the stadium.

for, no matter how remote," says Brig.-Gen. A. W. Betts, military weapons chief of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"But on the basis of what we know, our experience and the fact that we have undertaken several hundreds of nuclear tests, I can say we had no uncontrolled or accidental explosions since 1945.

"I have every reason to believe that I can say the chances of an accidental explosion are so small that I just don't believe such an explosion can happen."

Gen. Betts, who has been associated with the nuclear program for many years, added in an interview that contrary to public impression, American strategic bombers on patrol do not carry huge nuclear loads with them. And every bomb is so wired and sealed that it simply couldn't be detonated without the deliberate manual operation of the plane crews.

An American bomber, sent to attack the enemy across Canadian territory, would be well over the North Pole before the bomb load was activated and the fission process started in preparation for a drop over enemy targets.

If the bomber was knocked down over Canada, the bomb load might shatter when the plane crashed, making a small area of about several hundred feet radioactive. But this would be a relatively small area. There would be no explosion.

All nuclear bombers flying over U.S. and Canadian territory carry their bombs in a deactivated position, Betts said. If a nuclear missile from the ground hit the plane, the missile warhead might explode, in turn destroying the plane and scattering the plane's nuclear weapons on the ground but these weapons would not likely explode.

The main reason for this is that the nuclear core of the bomb is surrounded by a conventional high explosive dotted with a series of detonators all of which must go off simultaneously to provide the proper "squeeze" on the nuclear core before it can explode.

In each U.S. nuclear missile environmental sensing devices are so designed that the missile would be automatically deactivated if it did not attain the required altitude and speed to bring it to its predetermined destination.

Purchase ship

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Steamships Tuesday announced the purchase of the 6,095-ton freighter Mimer from M. Thorviks Rederi of Oslo. The Mimer, completed in 1958, was designed to cruise at 14½ knots. She will be renamed Beaverash. The Beaverash is to sail from Antwerp Feb. 10 and is scheduled to arrive at Saint John, N.B., under her new flag Feb. 23.

Senator Harry A. Willis (Ontario), senior party organizer from Toronto, and E. A. Goodman of Toronto, his lieutenant principally concerned with ethnic groups, called at the prime minister's office.

ended. Suez had ripped away the screen, created by tactful diplomacy, that concealed Britain's post-war decline in power. Brushing aside the difficulties, Macmillan nursed the nation back to self-confidence and the never-had-it-so-good era. Despite his basically shy, unflamboyant personality, the unflappable prime minister collected an assortment of nicknames, some good, some bad. They called him Super Mac, Mack the knife, MacWonder, Unflappable Mac, the Great Tranquillizer, Euromac, the Old Attitudinizer.

LEAST-LIKED? They said he was a political Liberace, the least-liked prime minister since Neville Chamberlain; and almost in the same breath they hailed him as a new Stanley Baldwin. Now, after all the ups and downs, the man with the uncertain moustache and tired eyes seems back where he started. The Kennedy-Macmillan agreement at Nassau, painfully underlining Britain's subordinate status, started a new bout of soul-searching.

Again there is a sour taste in British mouths. Depressed by the dominance of the nuclear super-powers and not sure what to make of the changing Commonwealth, Britons who instinctively feel themselves cast for a destiny larger than their tiny islands experience a sense of bewilderment and uncertainty.

Install new bishop

MONTREAL (CP)—Rt. Rev. Robert Kenneth Maguire, 39, youngest member of the Anglican hierarchy in Canada, has been installed as Montreal's eighth Anglican bishop.

"I ask you to continue to pray for me," he told a packed audience who came to see him enthroned Tuesday night in high-arched Christ Church Cathedral.

"No man is adequate for this task," he said. "But perhaps the knowledge of inadequacy may be all the more necessary . . . in pointing the way for us."

Bishop Maguire, an Irish-born classics scholar and bachelor, was elected by diocesan synod in October to succeed retired archbishop John Dixon, who had held the post for 20 years.

More than 1,000 saw him consecrated in a two-hour morning ceremony by Bishop R. H. Waterman of Nova Scotia. The dramatic moment came when the young bishop knelt before the 68-year-old Nova Scotian to "receive the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a bishop in the Church of God, now committed unto these by the imposition of our hands."

LAY ON HANDS All the other bishops present placed their hands upon him, signifying that his consecration has the approval of the whole episcopate.

Then in the evening, a mild winter night, the new bishop, clad lightly in cope and gold mitre, appeared at the door of the cathedral to knock the traditional three times and request admittance to be enthroned.

Inside, Archbishop I. M. Lidstone of the suburban Bedford diocese, mistakenly answered the call after the second knock. But the bishop knocked again anyway.

Empire State is hit by fire

NEW YORK (AP)—The Empire State building—the world's tallest — was evacuated in pre-dawn darkness today when a two-alarm fire damaged offices on at least three of its 102 floors.

By 8:10 a.m. — about 3½ hours after the blaze was first discovered — the fire was reported under control. But 20 minutes later, after the building was reopened to office workers, firemen spotted flames again on the 33rd floor and the structure was closed a second time.

At least one television station and one radio station, which have transmitting equipment in the building, were forced off the air for a time when their engineers joined the evacuees.

As the choir and congregation sang a psalm, "We will go unto the house of the Lord," Bishop Maguire walked to the chancel carrying the crooked staff of office, to be enthroned by Most Rev. A. H. O'Neil, 55, of Fredericton, newly-chosen metropolitan of the ecclesiastical Province of Canada.

Taking the bishop by the hand, the metropolitan placed him on the throne. Bishop O'Neil took the 53-year-old pastoral staff from the altar and gave it to Archbishop Dixon, who placed it in the hands of the newly-enthroned bishop.

VOICE BREAKS

In a quavering voice which broke twice, Archbishop Dixon said: "This staff I now hand on to you, my brother and successor in office. May you so tend the flock of Christ . . . and may you receive a crown of glory that fadeeth not away."

But violence continues

Tshombe willing to bow to plans for unification

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) — President Moïse Tshombe of Katanga has indicated he is willing to carry out United Nations Secretary-General U Thant's plan for the reunification of the Congo.

Tshombe, who returned to Elisabethville shortly after U Thant's special emissary Ralph Bunche left the Katangan capital Tuesday, said he wished to avoid "new spilling of blood and useless destruction."

The secessionist president said Tuesday night in a terse press statement: "This consists essentially in rapidly applying the Thant plan without new spilling of blood and without useless destruction."

"It is obvious that in these circumstances I will abstain from any declaration against the United Nations."

But this morning, a Katangan government spokesman said

Katangans Tuesday night blew up an electric power sub-station and transformer between Jadotville and Kolwezi.

The power station and transformer served a new mine at Fungurume about 50 miles from Jadotville on the road to Kolwezi, the last major Katangan town not occupied by UN troops. Some electric power lines also were destroyed.

The Belgian-owned Union Minière Company, which runs Katanga's rich copper mining industry, had warned that Katangan gendarmes were placing explosive charges at dams and power stations in the Kolwezi area.

The company appealed to all responsible parties to prevent further damage to vital industrial installations "which would bring human and economic tragedy to the entire Congo."

Some UN strategists favored demanding the Katangans surrender their military stronghold at Kolwezi. But Tshombe declared Tuesday night "we must hold on in Kolwezi" and indicated he expected to return there.

It was from Kolwezi, 280 miles west of Elisabethville, that Tshombe flew by plane Tuesday to the Rhodesian border town of Kipushi, and then drove the remaining 32 miles to Elisabethville by car.

AVOID SNUB

Bunche, UN undersecretary for political affairs, and UN civilian Congo director Robert Gardiner of Ghana left Elisabethville before Tshombe's arrival, to avoid the embarrassment of having to snub the Katangan leader.

Looking tired, Tshombe told reporters who asked whether the Union Minière mining installations at Kolwezi were ready to be blown up—"that is true."

16 killed

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—Sixteen religious pilgrims were reported killed Tuesday in the collision of their truck and a train about 155 miles from this city in northeastern Brazil.

Refute Norstad

Dispute the need for a nuclear agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — Sources close to the cabinet dispute the contention of Gen. Lauris Norstad that Canada must sign a bilateral agreement with the United States before it can acquire nuclear warheads or nuclear training for Canadian forces in Europe.

The just-retired Western commander in Europe said at a press conference here last week that Canada would not fulfill an undertaking given to NATO unless it accepts nuclear warheads for the RCAF Air Division and Canadian Infantry Brigade in Europe.

This obligation couldn't be carried out without a bilateral nuclear agreement with the U.S., custodian of nuclear weapons in Western Europe, Gen. Norstad indicated.

Authoritative sources here say that in a war emergency the U.S. would not hesitate to supply the nuclear warheads for the air division's CF-104 low-level jet bomber and the brigade's Honest John artillery rockets, whether or not an agreement existed.

This would fall in line with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's stated policy that Canada does not want to enlarge the nuclear family in peacetime but that Canadian forces in any nuclear war should be equipped with nuclear weapons.

Gen. Norstad said nuclear training would require three to six months after the signing of a Canada-U.S. agreement.

48 held for questioning

MONTREAL (CP) — Police locked 48 people in a downtown cafe early today until they could be taken to headquarters for a statement.

The body of Harvey Beaudin, 26, of Gaspé, Que., was found in a lane behind the Rialto Cafe on lower St. Lawrence Boulevard. He had been stabbed three times in the chest and once in the face.

Constable Gilbert Gagnon, who found the body, and two other officers immediately ordered the cafe locked and started questioning the customers.

One customer, Andre Laliberte, 22, of Quebec City, was found to be carrying a gun and was held after all the others were released. He was later charged with possession of an illegal weapon.

Police said they found small pools of blood near a telephone booth in the rear of the cafe, and a bloody hand print on the cafe's front door.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Much television writing has resolved itself into a series of scenes and bits of dialogue which are sort of a secret code between authors and audiences.

A line here or a camera shot there and the audience picks up the clue and is prepared for the next development.

There's the shot of the well-dressed wife, mixing herself a drink at the well-stocked bar of the lonely lavish living room. Aha, you say, she's lonely, bored, has an alcohol problem, and her husband is concentrating too much on his business or his secretary.

LISGAR —

Mrs. Arthur Johnston is spending a few days with her father, Mr. James Bacon, and her sister, Mrs. Carrie Leney, in Beebe.

Miss Margaret Lindsay, of Montreal, spent New Year's with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Brazel.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Richards and daughter, Gail, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McComb.

There's the serious - illness gambit: The character coughs a bit, and somebody else says, "aren't you going to do something about that cough?" In television land, no one ever coughs or develops a splitting headache unless it subsequently turns into something big.

FAMILIAR QUOTES

There are also some over-familiar lines:
"John—what has happened to us, to our marriage?"

"Doctor — you've got to do something . . . she's all I have in the world."

"I'll call the police. You try to get some rest."
"I don't know how it got here. I always kept it loaded—in the drawer of my desk."

CANTERBURY

Holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacLeod were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Down, Sawyerville; Mr. and Mrs. Angus Nickels, Dearborn, Mich.; Miss Christine MacLeod, Sherbrooke; and Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacLeod, Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Goodin spent Christmas Day with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Crosby, Sherbrooke.

Mr. Everett Wootten, Bury, was a Christmas Day guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Groom. Mrs. Mary-Ella Hartwell and Mr. Earle Dezan both of Eustis, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hartwell and family on Christmas Day.

Mrs. Shirley Bennett of Northampton, Mass., spent the Christmas holidays at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Bennett spent Christmas Day at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wintle, in Sherbrooke.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Well, I thought I would pick up some money by appearing at a department store in Philadelphia. Then I went on the Bermuda yacht race and the whole thing snowballed. I just kept on going."

This was Gardner McKay's casual explanation of his eight-month disappearance from Hollywood. He spent that time on the waterfronts of the Caribbean and in the jungles of South America. Judging from his account, his travels were almost as adventurous as anything he played in his television series, Adventures in Paradise.

The reason for McKay's departure was more basic than he first stated. It stemmed from growing discord with his studio, 20th Century-Fox, after the TV series was concluded. "One factor was a summer theatre offer for $10,000 a week," he explained. "The studio said I could do it—at my regular salary, and they would get the rest."

KEPT ON GOING

So he took off, and kept on going, alone and virtually incognito behind a black beard that still hides much of his face.

An expert sailor, he shipped aboard sailing vessels in the Caribbean. One of them sank with the loss of two men, he said.

His travels took him into the jungles of Venezuela and Brazil, often with only an Indian guide.

He said he found the monoplanes of Jimmy Angel, discoverer of Angel Falls, who crashed-landed nearby and walked out in the 1930s. McKay brought back a compass card from the plane as proof of his find and said that the craft was remarkably well preserved.

He filled notebooks with his experiences and reflections. He has sold articles to a sports magazine and may get a travelogue out of his movie film. He is resuming his acting career, now that he is free of his Fox contract.

Twenty trials inscribed on roll for criminal assizes in Sherbrooke

Mr. Justice William Mitchell, of the Court of Queen's Bench Tuesday morning opened the 1963 District of St. Francis criminal assizes at the Sherbrooke Court House.

Twenty trials including a murder, three criminal negligence charges, fraud and indecent assault are scheduled to start Friday morning.

During the one hour opening session Mr. Justice Mitchell ordered Court Clerk Jean Marie Grogio to post a bench warrant for Francois Gerard Chouinard, of St. Hubert de Spaulding, who failed to show up in court to face charges of being in possession of counterfeit money.

The following is a list of the 1963 Criminal Assizes cases, the date of trial the charges laid, and the defence lawyer or lawyers.

Langlois, who had his trial postponed at the 1962 criminal assizes is charged with murdering Eugene Dupuis, of Brompton Lake in October 1960.

He was earlier sentenced to be hanged after a 12 man jury found him guilty. His lawyers won an appeal for a new trial.

Feb. 5: Lionel Boislard, 21, of Asbestos, charged with criminal negligence. Defence lawyer, Jean Louis Pelouin.

The criminal negligence charges against him arise from the death of five-year-old Audette Vincent, of Asbestos who was killed when a truck which Boislard was driving came off the highway Feb. 8, 1963 in Asbestos, and ran down three children.

Feb. 8: Regis Lachance, 28, of Sherbrooke, charged with theft and receiving stolen goods. Defence lawyer, Stanley Steinman.

minal negligence. Defence lawyer, Laurent Dube.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, both face charges arising from the death of their five-year-old son who was found dead on the front room floor of their home.

A Montreal doctor who performed an autopsy on the child said he died partly of a head hemorrhage as the result of being struck several times on the head, arms and legs, and partly because of starvation.

A public meeting of property owners in the city of Sherbrooke has been announced by the city clerk Henri Paul Emard for January 17 between 7 and 9 p.m. at city hall.

The reason for the meeting is to permit property owners to be present at the reading of by-law number 1269 which authorizes a loan of $145,000 for the improvement of the lighting on certain streets.

This is the second part of a three-year plan for the improvement of lighting conditions in the city.

If the bylaw is passed, the expenditures will be as follows: in the North Ward $45,900, East Ward $41,000, West Ward $33,100 and in the South and Centre Wards $10,200.

Sentence Feb. 5 in Frost church desecration

Judge Delaney Tuesday however, decided to wait until Feb. 5 before imposing sentence.

North Hatley potter studies in Japan

NORTH HATLEY — The work the world's potters most admire — Japan.

It's a personal trip," Mrs. Beaudin, whose last word from her husband was on his air stopover in San Francisco, said Tuesday. "He has applied for a grant from the Canada Council, but is going ahead whether he receives one or not."

The craftsman's wife said he will spend a good deal of his time in the studio of the Japanese potter Kai Fujiwara, with whom he has been in touch in North Hatley.

Mr. Fujiwara's studio is in Okayama, but Mr. Beaudin intends to travel around Japan, making a "general survey" of ceramic craftsmanship in the country. His schedule is not yet definite.

He left Jan. 4 from North Hatley, flew from Montreal the next day, and flies from San Francisco for Honolulu Wednesday.

Among his recent and prominent Eastern Townships projects has been the mural on the outside of the general administration building on the University of Sherbrooke's new campus.

The work he most enjoys, says Mrs. Beaudin, is "functional pottery, the work he does in his own studio at North Hatley and sells mostly through the Quebec Crafts Centre in Montreal.

Mr. Beaudin also holds an annual summer school for ceramic students. In 1963, Dean Mulvey, a potter from Concord, N.H., will be in charge of this school, assisted by Louise Doucet, of Montreal, one of Mr. Beaudin's students.

Spectacular achievement

Microwave system to contribute to business, industry in N.W.T.

Canadian National Telecommunications' $25,000,000 microwave system in Canada's north was hailed Tuesday as one of the most spectacular achievements in communications today.

The assistant superintendent of CN's Telecommunications branch at Montreal, J. J. Dube, told members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, "through this system we hope, not only to make a contribution to the private and business life in the Northwest Territories but also offer more low cost communication channels to the rest of Canada's industry and business," he said.

The microwave system was put into operation Dominion Day, 1962. The first message sent over the new system was made at the end of the Trail of '98, just outside of Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, that day by Prime Minister Minister Diefenbaker to the president of the United States he said.

The call marked the end of three years of planning and construction that went into the 1,200 mile chain of microwave towers linking Mount Dave on the Alaska border with Grande Prairie, Alberta.

"The communications link between Canada's North and the North American communications chain has proven itself as money well spent," Mr. Dube said. "The performance of the system has proven excellent," he said.

The speaker said the system engineered and built entirely in Canada compares favorably with systems from the United Kingdom.

Garage to be built under works program

Sherbrooke City Council Thursday night approved the resolution to authorize the construction of the Wellington Street South parking garage under the winter works program.

A demand for the incorporation of the Junior and Senior Bowling Leagues was approved Monday night by the Sherbrooke city council.

A request for an additional grant from the city by the National Institute for the Blind was refused by the council Monday night, because the amount was not provided for in the budget.

Council agreed, however, that if there are amendments made to the grant section of the budget that this institute will be included on the list of those eligible.

An answer to the request by the Technical School for the use of space in the O.T.J. in the afternoon for 18 weeks was postponed.

The school had asked for the use of the space in order that they might conduct course for 18 to 20 boys. Alderman Antonio Pinard said that the space was available.

The city's ski chalet in the West Ward will be opened officially on January 20.

However, the council agreed Monday night to the suggestion of Alderman J. M. Jeanon that there should be an inspection made of the premises prior to allowing people to make use of the building.

Members unanimously agreed that the ski chalet would be a good thing for the city of Sherbrooke.

The residents of the area concerned will be consulted before council replies to the request of a general contractor that 300 feet of land on 9th Avenue North in the East Ward be made commercial.

General contractor Trem-

The point was raised as the board opened its two day hearings at Sherbrooke's court house to consider permit applications for three taverns three grocery stores, one restaurant, a dining room and a private club.

Pierre Beaudry, lawyer representing three tavern license applicants, said the city's resolution should not be accepted by the board because "two of the aldermen were not even at council when it was passed and five city aldermen are in favor of opening the taverns."

"We have letters of recommendation from Aldermen Paul Gervais, Antonio Pinard, J. M. Jeanon, Gerard Berard and Marcel Savard who said they favor a tavern at 979 King Street West near London Street," Mr. Beaudry noted.

During the hearing which started at 10:30 a.m. and continued through until about 7 p.m., the three man commission decided they would not hear Aldermen Paul Gervais and Antonio Pinard testify they were not at the council meeting when the resolution was passed.

"because if there is something wrong with the city's books, it is up to the aldermen involved to speak up at the next council meeting and say what is wrong," the commission agreed.

Judge Lucien Dugas, president of the commission and QLB said, "if there is something wrong with the copy of the resolution we received from the lawyer representing the parties opposing the taverns, which came from city hall, we will gladly consider the resolution we now have as nil, only if the city clerk corrects it after the aldermen state what is wrong with it at a council meeting."

The main delegation trying to block the QLB from issuing tavern permits in Sherbrooke was the Sherbrooke Hotel Owners Association.

President of the association, Claude Genest, said the association is not in favor of more tavern licenses because there are enough taverns in the city and if new ones come in they wouldn't go along with the present hotel taverns which agreed to close at 11 o'clock at night.

Dr. Rubin Levesque, of the QLB asked Mr. Genest, "why do the taverns close their doors at 11 p.m. when the law permits them to remain open until midnight?"

"Because the hotel owners have an agreement to close their doors at 11 p.m. because there aren't enough customers," Mr. Genest replied.

"Is it not because the owners want the customers to move into the grill part of the hotel and probably stay there until closing time and allow them to make more profits," Dr. LeGrand asked.

"No," Mr. Genest answered. Judge Dugas then asked, "Do your hotels close their doors of the grills an hour earlier too?"

"No," Mr. Genest again replied. The location and people applying for the licenses are:

Yvon Ellyson, a tavern license for 979 King Street West.

Denis Proteau, a tavern license for 762 King Street East.

Roland Boulanger, a tavern license for 522 Galt Street West.

Jack Wing Lee, dining room license for beer, wine and alcoholic beverages, at 2637 King Street West.

Lee Hong, 2378 King Street, license for serving beer and wine during meals.

Carlo Fabi, license for selling liquor at the Fabi Club house in Rock Forest.

Loriot Gaudette, for a grocery store beer license at 2183 Galt Street West.

Wilfrid Doyon, for a grocery store license at 850 Wilson Street.

Mrs. Lucien Bergeron, a beer store license, at Rock Forest.

The following is a list of names of people applying for licenses outside of the Sherbrooke limits and the location where they plan to locate their establishment.

Eugene Ledoux, license for the Dixville Auberge, in Dixville.

Claude Marcel Roy, license for a hotel in Fitch Bay.

Mrs. Annette Cote, license for the Baldwin's Mills Auberge, at Baldwin's Mills.

Francois Thibault, license to sell beer and wine in a Coal-cook restaurant.

Real Langlois, license for a tavern in Granby.

Cadieux Rodolphe, license for a hotel at Roxton Pond.

Leon Brault, license for a tavern in Cowansville.

More applications for beer and liquor licenses will be presented before the QLB hearing commission today.

The commission composed of Judge Lucien Dugas, chairman of the commission, Judge Omer Legrand, and Dr. Rubin Levesque, will study the applications and why people are opposing the issuing of permits and later render their judgments.

Convoy system for winter driving

An experiment now underway in New York State to prevent the stranding of cars along the highways during heavy snowstorms is deserving of close study by Quebec highway officials.

Highway authorities in New York have developed a convoy system by which motorists desiring to travel the roads during storms are held up at check points until there are a sufficient number. Then they will set off with a snow plow in the lead and a tow truck in the rear.

This should prevent the recurrence of many incidents in the past where motorists have been stranded in snow banks, often suffering severe hardship and even death. In addition to causing loss and inconvenience to themselves, the stranded motorists also hamper normal snowfighting operations. They become embedded across the highway, holding up other vehicles and preventing the passage of plows seeking to maintain the highways in passable condition.

At least one such blockade occurred in this district during the heavy snow of the holiday season and the only way the Sherbrooke-Montreal highway could be opened was by the plow operator shoving blocked cars into the ditch.

Perhaps the enforcement of the convoy system might force inconvenience to some travellers who object to following a slowly-moving snowplow, but it might also save trouble, property damage and even the loss of life.

On the brighter side — What isn't can always be worse than what is.

Election issue in Glassco report?

The third volume of the Glassco commission report differs substantially from other two in that it points the finger at major policies, rather than practices as leading to waste and inefficiency.

There are, for example, no delightful examples of thousands of unneeded woolies for the navy, or compounded paper work that ends up in a dead file. Instead, the volume advocates that the federal government get out of the veterans, Indian and military hospital business, the school business in the same spheres and that it begin an orderly dismantling of the Veterans' Land Act administration.

The main point made by the third volume is that in these fields particularly, there is duplication of effort where no duplication is necessary. Specifically, the report notes that provincial and community governments can do the job as well as the government, with many of the facilities already available.

But there can be no doubt that in touching upon these matters of policy, the Glassco commission has invaded some extremely sensitive areas. It can be assumed that realizing this, the members of the commission must have been all the more convinced of the usefulness of their views.

Viewed objectively, the main measures proposed by the commission make good sense. Not everyone, however, will consider them with impartiality, and there are many, indeed, who find the commission's recommendations presumptuous if not downright unpatriotic.

This logically leads one to wonder if in the Glassco report — especially the third volume just released — there are the seeds of an election issue; the kind of red-hot, emotional issue for which the prime minister appears to be searching.

Contentment is fine except when it becomes a stumbling block for ambition.

Socred members making their marks

It may be difficult to admit, but those shrill Quebec Social Credit members at Ottawa are making their marks.

Gilles Gregoire, member for Lapointe, hit some kind of a jackpot when he started the whole Donald Gordon controversy during a committee hearing. He struck a responsive chord in Quebec, which has ranged all the way from trampling Red Ensigns underfoot to burning Mr. Gordon in effigy. Now, as the result of all this, a cry is out for a royal commission on biculturalism to investigate the French-Canadian issue. This is an excellent thought that probably never would have achieved the momentum it has without Mr. Gregoire's irritating needling.

It appears, too, that legislation bearing on Eastern Canada's farm feed supplies will be introduced in Parliament on a priority basis after the current recess. Farmers in the east, including the Eastern Townships, have always been plagued by fluctuations in the price and supply of feed from western Canada, particularly during the winter months. Social Credit protests against this situation have been frequent and loud — even if often out of order.

None of this suggests that Social Credit nonsense has suddenly become sound policy. Not a bit of it. But it does make one wonder about the other parties. And it proves once again, if any proof were needed, the value of active opposition in our parliamentary system.

Other papers say:

Past year taught important lesson

The year just ended taught one lesson above all others. It pays to be firm with the Russians.

It is a lesson which the West would do well to remember throughout all the year now commencing, and throughout future years.

It is a lesson all too easy to forget. There are all too many people eager to make us forget it.

We can only ignore the lesson at our peril. The Soviet leaders have had no change of heart. They have made no significant changes in policy.

If they had, we would see visible evidences of these changes. The Berlin wall would come down or, at the very least, brutal murders of people trying to change their place of abode would cease. There would be a new Soviet approach to agreements to stop nuclear tests and disarm. The Russians would agree to let our inspectors check up on them, just as we are willing to allow their inspectors to check up on our disarmament activities, step by step. There would be an end to the intensive Communist underground campaign of subversion. There would be an end to boasts and threats calculated to strike terror into the hearts of people outside the Soviet Union. There would be an elimination of the Iron Curtain.

Are there any such evidences of Soviet deeds of the king? There are lots of

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jan. 9, 1963 . . .

Sir Anthony Eden resigned as British prime minister six years ago today — in 1957 — because of ill health. The resignation came less than three months after the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt during the Suez crisis of 1956. The action raised a storm of anger both in Britain and abroad and Eden came under extreme pressure in Parliament. He was ordered to resign and went on holiday to Jamaica but shortly after his return he resigned and Harold Macmillan took over the government.

1873 — Napoleon III died.

1816 — The Davy safety lamp was first used in a coal mine.

ling of Soviet nuclear weapons in Cuba.

The world wasn't close to war at all. Once challenged, Mr. Khrushchev couldn't oblige Mr. Kennedy fast enough. He thought the United States could be blackmailed and frightened stiff. He found out he was wrong. So he did the only thing it was possible for him to do, he shipped his display of might back home, and got, regretfully, it must be said, enough concessions to save a little face.

Not only the year 1962 but other years all the way back to the Berlin blockade and airlift have amply illustrated the principle that it pays to be firm with the Russians. They are candidly out to rob us blind if we'll let them. But they have the art of setting up positions from which they can withdraw gracefully.

The greatest mistake the free world can make is to look back on the Cuban crisis of 1962 with a shudder, and seek desperately for any and all ways of avoiding similar crisis which the Russians may, and very likely will, create in this year of 1963.

There are just two things we need to do.

We must maintain a position of unity and strength. And we must maintain the strength of will to be firm in all of our dealings with Soviet leaders as long as they persist in pursuing policies of unscrupulous international gangsterism.

Revolutionary year ahead

Profit-sharing could end strife between labor and management

The stage is set for one of the most revolutionary and exciting years in Canadian labor-management history.

The next 12 months should see the ground rules firmly established for an industrial relations era that will be marked by harmony, accord and a growing degree of co-operation between trade unions and major industries.

It will also see the beginning of the end of the cold war that has plagued labor-management relations since the industrial unions were born in the depression era.

The fundamental changes will come quickly because the alternative is mutual distrust and the economic facts of life dictate that Canadian industry can no longer tolerate estranged labor-management relations if it is to survive in a decade of freer and freer trade.

CANADA NEXT
The new era has already started in the United States, and if history is a guide, will first come to Canada through the policies of American subsidiaries.

The agreement between the Kaiser Steel Corp. and the United Steelworkers has recognized that the hourly-paid worker is an integral part of the production process and therefore entitled to a share of the savings from increased productivity.

It seems logical that it is in fact revolutionary since it marks the first time that management has dropped the concept that production is entirely its responsibility.

The impact of the revived interest in labor-management co-operation in areas of mutual concern like employment, efficiency and production was seen in the report of the Productivity Council mission to Europe.

By FRANK DREA

This mission, which joined labor, management and Government representatives, reported that it was amazed at the degree of co-operation between workers and employers in the revitalized industries of West Europe. And it credited this common interest as supplying much of the impetus for the era of prosperity that West Europeans now enjoy.

Though the moves toward a new relationship between Canadian management and labor are just barely apparent, 1962 saw the first moves from both sides.

William Mahoney, head of the United Steelworkers, the nation's largest union, noted in April that strikes were a costly and obsolete weapon and the time had come for labor and management to sit down and evolve a new way of settling disputes.

It. Carl Goldenberg, the noted mediator, reported in his examination of the Ontario construction industry, that the only real way of stimulating stability in the strife-ridden field was through mutual understanding.

The Ontario Government, after dragging its feet several months, finally convened a conference of construction labor and management to discuss issues of mutual concern, from year-round employment to master contract covering entire regions or even the whole province.

HOPEFUL

Even in this field, where relations are established almost on a community-by-community basis, the advantages of co-operation were quickly apparent and the Government is now hopeful of significant progress in similar conferences in 1963.

The Nova Scotia pilot program of labor-management co-operation has already attracted the interest of Canadians and if it works the way its sponsors forecast it will, then it may become the pattern for the heavily industrialized provinces.

Because of their structure one union covering an industry, the impetus for a new attempt at co-operation has come from labor.

The response will have to be measured by the development of employer's councils, where a central group can speak for an entire industry. The present structure of management groups merely has them as clearing houses and legislative lobbies.

There are now movements by significant sectors of industry to form such associations so that an industry will be able to have an effective spokesman in the moves toward industry-wide contracts, productivity moves and a new approach to the human element of production.

Early in the new year, Ottawa will take the first cautious steps toward some planning and co-ordination of the economy. Then the curtain rises on the crucial era of Canadian labor-management history.

Press Comment

We are curious about the philosophy which led the Board of Broadcast Governors to offer the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation the first chance at five new television licences.

If CBC does not apply for these licences by next June, BBG is ready to recommend private licences for the cities involved.

In setting up this system of priority, BBG explains limitations to the rate of TV expansion must be set up. "Television service is costly," it declares. "The additional costs of extending service must be paid for."

"Payments must come either from the public treasury or from advertising revenues. Neither source is unlimited."

This is nothing more than a statement of the obvious. What is not so obvious is why CBC is given first lick at the new licences.

Why is the public treasury accorded the dubious honor of pioneering television in cities where the costly medium may have a hard time making ends meet?

Why is it that the public treasury is always volunteered when large amounts of money are needed? Are advertising revenues so limited, the chances of financial success so slim, that only the taxpayers' purse is deep enough to take the risk?

The cost of CBC already is nearing $100 million a year. Surely the taxpayers are doing enough now to subsidize TV.

Why does BBG want to risk more public funds on television experiments?

Contrasts in Saudi Arabia

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP)—Life in Saudi Arabia is a series of contrasts.

In this Red Sea port big new cars dent their fenders on donkey carts. At night goats roam along the main street, under the stare of a sleepy shepherd, and browse beside a shop window full of Japanese transistor radios.

Visitors in the biggest hotel dine on a veranda as the evening cools. On the ground below workers are lying down for their night's sleep. A nearby coffee house clears off the tables for use as beds.

Outside the towns there are only desert and an occasional oasis with date palms and perhaps a few meagre fields. It rains only two to six inches a year in central Arabia. But the Bedouins scratch out a living with their goats or camels or the few seeds they throw into gulches that hold the winter rains.

They are hardy people who carry guns and curved daggers. Some Western customs still shock them. A Briton once took his boxer dog for an automobile ride in the desert and stopped to talk to a Bedouin group.

"Is that a man?" they asked, pointing to the dog's face grinning from the window. When the Briton jokingly said "yes," the Bedouins fled in alarm.

The royal family, although under some restraint now, still lives in a combination of oriental luxury and Western gadgetry. Its members, including all the wives, are rationed to one Cadillac each a year. A gold watch is not an unknown tip from a gay young prince.

At one count there were 24 royal palaces. The one in Riyadh covers a square mile and cost $45,000,000. It consumes more electricity than the rest of the capital (population about 300,000).

Near Taif, a town with pristine nights, the summer palace is surrounded by villas stretching for a mile along the road where live the princes, wives, concubines, cousins and retainers.

ers. Last year when the royal family left for Riyadh, they tied up 20 Saudi Arabian airliners for 15 days.

All of this, of course, is changing. The family is budgeted now: its 1,000 members will get along this year on about $60,000,000 while the rest of the oil revenues of about $520,000,000 go to the country.

Certain people suffer from claustrophobia, a morbid dread of being in closed spaces, others have hydrophobia, an overwhelming fear of water. However, we probably all suffer in some form or other from nucleomitiophobia, a dread of atomic energy, at least the bomb.

Filled with assorted treats for the children, the pinnata is raised and lowered to various positions, while a blindfolded child tries to strike it with a club to break it. Chefs of the Eastern Townships

By PHYLLIS PICKFORD

(Record Women's Editor)

Chef Noel Lapointe, who for the past 6 years has been the chef at the cafeteria of the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, makes at least 100 dozen doughnuts a week, in batches of 30-40 dozen at a time.

Born in Montreal, chef Lapointe joined the armed forces in 1939, and as a cook, served with the Fusiliers Mont Royal. Upon his discharge from the army, he came to Sherbrooke, and continued to learn the culinary art at the Chateau Frontenac and later at the Chateau Berthelot.

Chef Lapointe who now cooks a full course meal daily for over 100 employees of the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, spends a great deal of his time cooking pastries, which are a great favorite of the employees.

"My wife does most of the cooking at home, and I believe it is a wife's place to do so," chef Lapointe said. "But when we are having company I like to prepare the desserts, such as pies, pastries and cakes," he added.

Chef Lapointe who excels in the pastry he bakes says, "The most important step in doughnut making is in the beating." "I always use a whip for beating the batter, rather than a spoon, this enables the air to circulate better," he added.

Although Chef Lapointe uses a recipe for about 30 dozen doughnuts, we are passing one on to you, which will be sufficient to fill a cookie jar, for the family.

ONE EGG DOUGHNUTS
3 tablespoons shortening,
¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 3 cups flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Sift dry ingredients. Cream shortening with one-half the sugar; beat the egg until light; add remaining sugar, beating between additions. Combine butter and egg mixtures. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, to make a dough that is soft but not sticky. Cover the bowl and chill 1 hour before rolling. Dust the board generously with flour; press or roll the dough to ¼ inch thickness. Dip cutter in flour before cutting the dough. Cut and fry as directed. When fried, sprinkle with fine sugar.

The flavor of the doughnut mixture may be varied by the addition of cocoa syrup, melted unsweetened chocolate, coconut, spices or grated lemon or orange rind. For two-egg doughnuts, use 2 eggs; reduce milk to ½ cup and baking powder to 3 teaspoons.

For three-egg doughnuts, use 3 eggs; increase shortening to ½ cup. Use only 5 tablespoons of milk and 2½ teaspoons baking powder. Delicious!

The wholesomeness of doughnuts depends upon how they are made. The cracking of the surface of the doughnuts and consequently soaking of fat will lessen their digestibility. If the doughnuts are mixed and fried correctly, they will not absorb fat and will be as light and delicate inside as though they had been baked in the oven.

The cracks in doughnuts may be caused by the use of too much shortening or too much flour in the dough. They may be due to too low temperature of the frying fat.

Keep the dough as soft as possible. A generous amount of flour may be used on the board. The flour that clings to the dough has no stiffening effect, but will help with the browning. This extra flour should not be worked into the dough, however.

Fry the doughnuts at 360 to 365 deg. F. Cook only a few at a time.

Chef Lapointe prefers to use pure lard for the frying of his doughnuts.

Have fun trying, and if at first you do not succeed, remember the proverb, try, try, again.

Silver 'D' Ladies Curling tourney ends in three-way tie, new playoff opens to decide a Section winner

The playoff in Zone 3 in the Silver "D" Ladies Curling competition ended in a three-way tie and a special playdown will be held, stated Mrs. J. A. Hogg, chairman of the Zone, last night.

In the final games yesterday morning Mrs. Arthur Kerridge of Sherbrooke pulled out with a 10-5 win over Mrs. Ivan Saunders' Lennoxville rink after a close battle. A win for the Lennoxville rink would have given them the berth in the Provincial playdowns. It was the first loss for the Lennoxville rink.

In the other match Mrs. Lloyd Styan of Magog walked off with a convincing 10-2 victory over Miss E. McMurray's Danville four some. The win moved the Magog rink into a three-way tie with Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Kerridge.

The first match of the play-off was slated in Sherbrooke this morning when Mrs. Styan of Magog took on Mrs. Styan of Lennoxville.

In case of a tie following this play-off Mrs. Hogg stated the rinks would then meet in a sudden-death battle with the winner earning the playoff berth to meet the winners of Section "B" of the Provincial playdowns.

San Francisco Chronicle suggests major ball clubs develop staff to handle duties of scorekeepers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Executive Editor Scott Newhall of the San Francisco Chronicle asks that baseball develop staffs of professional, unaffiliated scorekeepers and not depend on writers for the job.

The newspaper official wrote National League president Warren Giles that Chronicle baseball writer Bob Stevens will be available for scorekeeping duties henceforth.

Stevens has been one of the official scorers for the San Francisco Giants home games since the club moved here in 1958 and was one of the three men scoring staff for the 1962 World Series between the Giants and New York Yankees.

"For years the scorekeeping has been performed by baseball writers from newspapers published in the various home towns of the league clubs," Newhall wrote Tuesday.

"Generally speaking these baseball writers - scorekeepers are experts in this field and they do a good job of it."

"Nevertheless, I have come to the conclusion that newspaper reporting and baseball scorekeeping are separate functions and do not properly mix."

Newhall listed three reasons for his conclusions:

1. Newspaper reporters must be primarily narrators and critics. They should not be protagonists in the events they are covering.

2. No matter how hard baseball writers attempt to achieve complete objectivity in calling close plays, there is always present the temptation to make a "home town call."

3. Baseball writers, when they act as scorekeepers, are paid for their services by the league. Newhall said he does not approve in principle of any situation in which a newspaper reporter is on someone else's payroll in an activity that may overlap his role as a reporter.

"I wish to emphasize that this decision on our part is no way a reflection on Mr. Stevens' performance as a scorekeeper," Newhall said.

Leafs and Hawks clash, first place at stake

The last-place Boston Bruins have the highest-scoring line in the National Hockey League after more than half a season's play.

And even more paradoxical, the line features a player born and partially trained in the United States, 22-year-old Tommy Williams.

The Bruins' top trio of Williams at right wing, Murray Oliver at centre and veteran Johnny Bucyk at left wing has scored 44 goals to date, the league's highest for a regular forward line.

Bucyk has 17 goals, Williams 14 and Oliver, a former Detroit Red Wing, has 13.

Two lines share second place with 42 goals each. Toronto's Frank Mahovlich - Red Kelly - Eddie Shack threesome is one, with more than half its total accounted for by Mahovlich's league-leading total of 23.

The other is the Andy Bathgate - Earl Ingarfield-Den Prentice trio of New York. BATHGATE LINE TOPS In total points, the Boston line has 97, second only to the high-flying Bathgate line of New York with 104. Bathgate alone has a league-leading 42 points.

The amazing thing about the Boston line's performance is that it wasn't formed until the season was more than a month old.

One of the last things Phil Watson did before leaving the Bruins as coach in mid-November was to substitute tall, blond Williams for Wayne Connelly on Bruins' first line.

Williams had been warming the bench until then and had a grand total of one assist in scoring.

But he didn't falter when given the chance, scoring a goal in each of his two first games on the first line, Nov. 10 and 11.

RATES WITH STARS In 28 games, the strong-skating native of Duluth, Minn., has been one of the league's highest-scoring right wings in the east. His 22 points compares with 23 for Detroit's masterful Gordie Howe and 19 for Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion. Only Bathgate has a clear edge with 35 points.

The Bruins' management makes no secret that it was on the verge of buying Williams a ticket to Kingston and the Eastern Professional Hockey League Frontenacs when he caught fire.

Now, coach Milt Schmidt says Williams is one of the league's five or six best skaters. He says Williams could develop into a super-star if he learns to be more aggressive.

Williams has rarely been used on Bruins' power play so far, while other top right wingers in the league such as Howe, Geoffrion and Bathgate are fixtures on their club's power-plays. This makes Williams' scoring performance all the more remarkable.

Williams played junior hockey for Fort William, Ont., Hurricanes in the Thunder Bay League. He played a season with the University of Minnesota, then joined the 1960 U.S. Olympic team that won the gold medal in hockey. That's where the Bruins spotted him.

After finishing out the 1960-61 season with Kingston, he split last season between Kingston and the Bruins.

Unfortunately for him, he played 26 NHL games last season—six more than the maximum for eligibility for the rookie-of-the-year award. He would undoubtedly be a leading candidate if he were eligible.

In tonight's only league game, the two teams tied for the league lead, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs, meet in Toronto.

The Hawks will be out to break a spell the Leafs seem to have cast over them. Chicago has managed only one win and two ties in their eight meetings with Leafs so far this season.

There will be pressure on both teams to get two points rather than one, as Montreal Canadiens, now one point behind in third place, will have two games in hand over both after tonight's game.

26 pass Royal Life Saving Tests at YWCA Twenty-six swimmers have passed their Royal Life Saving Tests held at the YWCA under the supervision of Lorne Harding, chief examiner.

In Artificial Respiration test Marlene Bowes, William Thruax, Lorna McNiff, Kathy Barnard, Michel Dussault and Claude St. Vincent emerged with flying colors.

Young groom admits setting fire at Suffolk BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A 21-year-old stablehand who has admitted setting a fire at Suffolk Raceway last month, has confessed to setting three fires at Suffolk Downs near Boston, police said Tuesday night.

Police said the admission by George F. Briggs of Mansfield, Mass., was made some weeks ago, but withheld pending questioning by Massachusetts authorities.

Police said Briggs told them he had set two fires at Suffolk Downs last Nov. 7, including one which killed seven horses and resulted in an estimated damage of $120,000. The other burned itself out without causing any damage.

Briggs also admitted setting a fire at Suffolk three nights later.

In the Buffalo fire, 18 harness horses perished and a $3-year-old groom suffered a fatal heart attack while rescuing horses.

Montreal broke two league rules, lose game and are fined by league president, two games this evening

The Sherbrooke Beavers won their protest over the Montreal Olympics stated President Len O'Donnell, last night. The Beavers had filed a protest against the Olympics for breaking two league rules and the game was awarded to the Beavers.

The Beavers protested the use of an ineligible player, Andre Martin, and also that the Montreal club had failed to ice three junior players in their lineup Sunday thus breaking a league rule. President O'Donnell awarded the game to Sherbrooke and at the same time fined the Montreal club, according to the league ruling.

The league rule states that all clubs must dress three juniors and if this is impossible they can't have more than 13 intermediates in the lineup. The Olympics had only one junior along with 15 intermediates. Owing to this the Beavers picked up two points which moves them a little closer to the Granby Vics and gives them sole possession of second place two points ahead of the Rockets.

At the last league meeting in Granby Montreal was given permission to sign a player outside of the league ruling and this player was Andre Bessette. They were told if they needed extra help to return with a new demand to the teams.

Montreal instead took the decision in their own hands and signed Andre Martin. President O'Donnell pointed out that they had broken a league ruling and there wasn't anything to do on their negotiation list while the Montreal club had failed the last meeting Montreal had voted in favor of the rule concerning juniors and they were the first to break it.

Marcel Lafond of Montreal stated that until a league meeting they were going to continue to use Martin. He pointed out that Granby had picked up Jean-Paul Denis while they were dealing with him. President O'Donnell pointed out that Granby had placed Denis on their negotiation list while the Montreal club had failed the last meeting Montreal had voted in favor of the rule concerning juniors and they were the first to break it.

It was pointed out by President O'Donnell that the Olympics must respect the league rule as well as not using Martin until special permission had been granted. If they would persist in breaking the rule they would be suspended from the league as well as from the QAHA.

"easy-does-it" MOLASSES GINGER COOKIES

Don't worry if they disappear like magic. This is an ice-box recipe. Make a big, big batch of dough, roll it in wax paper and keep it in your refrigerator. Then bake 'em as you need 'em. Yes, Easy-Does-It with these new molasses ginger cookies.

One cup shortening
2/3 cup Crosby's Molasses
1/3 cup brown sugar
2 tsp. soda

Blend shortening, sugar and molasses. (For best results be sure to use Crosby's Pure Barbados Molasses.) Add dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape into roll (approximately 1 1/2" diameter) in wax paper. Store in refrigerator until chilled. As required, slice very thin and place on greased cookie sheet. Bake 8 minutes in a 365° oven.

1 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. salt
3 cups flour

It's pure Barbados

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

SHOW STRENGTH VERY QUICKLY

The first international bridge match was played in 1933. The American team that defeated the French, who were then the champions of Europe, consisted of Howard Schenken, Michael T. Gottlieb, David Bruce and this writer. Our team, known as the Four Aces, won so hand-somely that the next match was in 1939. This time we beat Great Britain. Howard and I were members of that team also, but I did not play. In between the time that we won our right to represent the United States and the match, I found myself back in uniform and over in Korea.

Howard and Peter Leventritt will be members of this year's American team and Howard's comment was, "It is a good omen to be playing with Jacoby again."

Of course, this time Jacoby is my son, Jim. I agree about the good omen and hope that when my newborn grandson reaches playing age, he will find himself on a team with Howard, some-day.

Howard believes in showing strength quickly. Hence his jump response of two spades followed by his later jumps to
