'SOCIALIST' GRITS BLAMED FOR ILLS

OTTAWA (CP) — The "socialist" leanings of the Liberal government are to blame for Canada's ailing economy, Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic told the Commons Tuesday.

"This government, though Liberal in name, is essentially socialist in nature," Stevens said. It is backed by the New Democratic Party, which "is not socialist in name but is socialist in reality."

He said the NDP supported Prime Minister Trudeau's minority government in power from 1972 to 1974.

The result was "an expansion in our monetary system and fiscal system that gave us the inflation we now are living with, gave us our high interest rates and caused the lack of real growth."

Partnership between the socialist NDP and "emperor" Trudeau "has ravished this country."

Speaking during debate on a bill to increase government borrowing authority by $7 billion, Stevens called for a return to the free-enterprise system.

"It is time we stopped being apologetic for the system that has given us our present prosperity."

Conservative MPs also attacked the government for spending $1.4 billion to take over Pacific Petroleum Ltd., saying it will not produce one extra barrel of oil in Canada and will not create any jobs.

There was no reason for the government to nationalize an established company, said Gordon

Ritchie (PC—Dauphin).

Trudeau made numerous promises this summer to cut government involvement in the private sector and to turn Crown corporations over to the private sector, said

Harvey Andre (PC—Calgary Centre).

"Less than 30 days later, they nationalize an airline and an oil company," Andre said.

The NDP applauded Petro-Canada, a Crown corporation, for its foresight in buying 48 per cent of Pacific Petroleum Ltd.'s shares.

roughly the same about the government's performance. But while 54 per cent of French-speaking respondents said they were satisfied with the government, only 35 per cent of anglophones said the same.

The PQ's highest score in the province-wide survey came in consumer protection, with 66 per cent satisfied with the government's performance and 24 per cent unhappy. On the status of women, the PQ scored 53 per cent against 25.

The government's performance on the sensitive language issue won the approval of 57 per cent. However, 64 per cent of francophones said they were happy and only

Trudeau plans Xmas shuffle

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he plans to shuffle his cabinet before the Christmas season is over and then lead the Liberals in a federal election when Canadians have more confidence in their future.

"Things are looking good, indeed, for the future," Trudeau told a news conference Tuesday. And when that state of goodness is reached, "we'll have a federal election."

He refused to pinpoint a date for the election, saying it will be held in a matter of months, rather than days.

Trudeau's five-year mandate expires next summer and he is expected to hold a federal election, his fourth as leader, in spring.

The prime minister was slightly more precise on the timing of the cabinet shuffle. It would be either before or during the Christmas season.

Liberals hope a revitalized cabinet, with fresh English-Canadian faces, will improve their dwindling support outside Quebec.

Recent public opinion polls have shown Liberals trailing the Progressive Conservatives in all provinces except Quebec. The Liberals were also embarrassed when they captured only two of 15 federal seats in byelections Oct. 16. Both seats are in Quebec.

Despite such gloomy harbingers for Liberal fortunes in a federal election, Trudeau said he is confident support for the party will improve.

Some polls show the Liberals might fare better if a new leader was found. Would Trudeau step down to help the party?

"No. When I was leading the party (in public opinion polls), I didn't think of ditching the party. I have no such plans now."

Some rank-and-file Liberals, especially in Western Canada, have openly criticized Trudeau's leadership and demanded a new chief be found. The name of John Turner, a former finance minister who returned to private law practice, is often mentioned.

Why was Trudeau so confident he should continue as leader?

"Considering the alternatives, I think I'm the best man," he said with a restrained chuckle.

Ministers refuse Drapeau kudos

QUEBEC (CP) — Six Parti Quebecois members of the national assembly, including two ministers, refused Tuesday to vote congratulations to Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau for his re-election last Sunday.

Robert Burns, minister of state for parliamentary reform, and Lise Payette, consumer affairs minister, both abstained from voting on a motion congratulating candidates in the municipal elections held in several municipalities.

Both Burns and Payette represent Montreal ridings.

The other members who abstained are Denise Leblanc (PQ—Magdalen Islands), Jean Alfred (PQ—Papineau), Laurent Lavigne (PQ—Beauharnois) and Roland Dussault (PQ—Chateauguay).

The vote was 68-0 in favor of the motion, with the six abstentions.

The motion, originally proposed by Guy Tardif, municipal affairs minister, called for the assembly to congratulate those elected, as well as all the candidates who lost.

Maurice Bellemare, House leader of the Union Nationale, suggested an amendment singling out Drapeau for special congratulations.

Trudeau: Canadians soft on separatism

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday Canadians have become relaxed about the threat of Quebec separatism. Commenting at a news conference on the eve of the second anniversary of the election of a separatist Parti Quebecois government in Quebec, Trudeau said Premier Rene Levesque has managed to lull Canadians by playing down his government's determination to pull the province out of Confederation.

After the Parti Quebecois was elected, Trudeau said, Levesque assured Quebecers the party would concentrate on providing good govern-

Later, the Parti Quebecois "began to harden its line and say they really meant business in terms of separation."

Then, Trudeau continued, Levesque again began playing down the independence movement.

"This has caused a certain relaxation on the part of Canadians as regard the danger of disturbance."

CHURCH EXEMPT FROM BILL 101

HULL, Que. (CP) — Churches are exempt from Quebec's controversial language law, says a spokesman for the French language office in Montreal.

Gilles Racine said Bill 101 does not deal with churches.

A recent language law directive sent to 32 English-language churches in West Quebec may have caused confusion, he said. The directive was sent after one church asked the language office in a letter about the legality of bilingual signs.

It said churches had to post French signs and provide French prayer books.

But Racine says church notices and signs may remain solely English as Section 39 of the legislation exempts messages of a religious, non-profit nature.

Only messages of a profit-oriented nature, such as notices advertising bingo, came under the law and therefore had to be displayed in French.

Racine said English could still be used on collection envelopes and that churches do not have to make French prayer books available, "though it would be a good service to do so."

Egypt reconsiders

Israel awaits proposals

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet broke off a review of the Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations today to await clarification of "new proposals and demands" expected from Egypt.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin told reporters after a three-hour cabinet session: "According to the latest reports received, Egypt is about to submit new proposals and demands related to the negotiations between the two countries. These reports are not yet official and complete.

"In view of this fact, the cabinet decided to hold the political debate after it has received all the necessary clarifications concerning the additional positions of Egypt."

The delay in the cabinet discussion was prompted by the departure for Washington of Egyptian Vice-President Hosni Mubarak with a letter from President Anwar Sadat to President Carter and a report from Egypt that Sadat has renewed his demand that Israel relinquish the Gaza Strip along with the Sinai Peninsula.

There was no indication when the cabinet debate would continue.

CALLS FOR ELECTIONS

The cabinet met to take up a new U.S. proposal designed to break the Egyptian-Israeli deadlock over the Palestinian question. The Israeli press said it calls for elections to be held in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip not later than December 1979.

Newspapers said a majority of the 17-man cabinet leaned toward rejecting the proposal. The newspaper Maariv says that Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan oppose being committed to a timetable for fulfillment of Israel's Camp David pledge to transform the two occupied territories into an autonomous region.

BEDARD PROMISES NEW PRISON

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Sherbrooke is to have a new prison located on Talbot Street, construction of which is to begin in 1981. Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard announced yesterday.

Bedard, in town last night to inaugurate Traverse, a residential community centre, told a press conference that he would reveal plans for the construction of another jail in the near future. He refused to project a date for a new courthouse in the city, stating that Sherbrooke had recently been endowed with a new building for the Quebec police force and this city is not the only municipality in the province which needs new buildings.

The announcement of a new Sherbrooke prison killed the rumor that construction of a jail would be delayed due to current renovations being carried out by the Ministry of Public Works on Winter Street to the tune of $100,000.

The residential community centre, Traverse, is located on Montreal Street and is to house about 15 people. Bedard said he considered the centre a first step in the application of measures aimed to ease the social reinstitution of probationers, weekend sentences and those on conditional release from jail.

The centre is run by the Prisoners' Aids Service of Sherbrooke, who have people referred to them by the Canadian Probation system. The centre will receive $60,000 a year as soon as an agreement is signed between authorities and the Quebec Ministry of Justice.

Two years later: PQ record gets average marks

MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Quebecois government gets good marks on social issues but not for its economic performance suggests a poll published in La Presse today — the PQ's second anniversary in office.

The poll says 51 per cent of the population is generally pleased with the government's record and 45 per cent are dissatisfied. Four per cent did not answer either way.

The telephone poll of 856 persons was conducted between Oct. 18 and 27 for La Presse by the Centre de Recherches en Opinion Publique, a professional polling agency.

People in Montreal and elsewhere in the province felt roughly the same about the government's performance.

But while 54 per cent of French-speaking respondents said they were satisfied with the government, only 35 per cent of anglophones said the same.

The PQ's highest score in the province-wide survey came in consumer protection, with 66 per cent satisfied with the government's performance and 24 per cent unhappy. On the status of women, the PQ scored 53 per cent against 25.

The government's performance on the sensitive language issue won the approval of 57 per cent. However, 64 per cent of francophones said they were happy and only 24 per cent of anglophones expressed approval.

WEAK IN ECONOMICS

Economic matters are not regarded as the PQ's strong point, the poll indicated. Only 28 per cent said they were satisfied with the government's general economic performance, and 62 per cent showed unhappiness—including 74 per cent of anglophones.

In job creation, the PQ was panned by 69 per cent of respondents, with 22 per cent expressing satisfaction.

Labor relations saw 38 per cent of respondents support for the government and 44 per cent unhappy with its approach. Eighteen per cent expressed no view.

In another way of looking at how the government is regarded, the poll found that 33 per cent of francophones feel the general state of Quebec society has improved since the PQ election win, 22 per cent say things are worse and 39 per cent say they are about the same.

Quebec's English-speaking minority is more pessimistic. Sixty-eight per cent said things are worse, 17 per cent saw little change and only seven per cent saw improvement.

La Presse provided a comparison with earlier polls showing the Parti Quebecois's early support dropping off in late 1977 and early 1978 but rising in recent months.

Act IV

The following complaint, dated Friday, September 15, is from Mrs. S.B. of Sawyerville:

On August 30 I bought an eight-week-old female puppy from the ETSPCA in Sherbrooke for $20 with a written agreement that the puppy had been examined.

On September 7, I took her to the vet. She looked tired and lethargic and the doctor diagnosed her condition as a bad case of worms and he treated her for that. She also got a shot for distemper.

A week later, I took her back to the veterinary clinic. She was still lethargic, had developed a cough and could hardly walk. The vet told me she had all the symptoms of distemper. Permission was given to put her to sleep.

This experience cost me a substantial amount. My son was heartbroken. According to me, the ETSPCA lied to me and God only knows how many others they lied to. There was a dozen other puppies in the same cage and they were all exposed to the disease. It was the same for other older animals in the other pens.

To top it all, the person to whom I complained told me to go back with the adoption certificate and they would give me another dog. Can they sincerely imagine that we could go thru a similar experience again.

Another conversation with Mrs. S.B. revealed to us that she felt the person whom she had dealt with was very amiable, friendly and cared greatly for the animals in her care.

Mrs. S.B. felt that it was unjust to have included in the certificate of adoption a clause establishing that the animal had been examined when according to Mrs. S.B. this is not true.

So we asked ETSPCA to clarify the following:

-Are animals examined when they arrive at the ET-SPCA?

-If yes, how soon after?

-Are they examined regularly after the initial examination?

-Are the animals examined again before new owners takes them away?

-Are the new owners advised at the state of health of the animal when it is last examined?

We visited the ETSPCA and talked with Mrs. Constance Villeneuve, manager of the shelter, located at 112 Queen North, and she proved to be very cooperative.

Yes, the animals are examined immediately upon their arrival at the ETSPCA and if they show any signs of disease they are immediately put to sleep. They are checked continuously after that. Unfortunately the SPCA in Sherbrooke does not have the services of a full-time veterinarian because of the lack of funds. The animals are checked by Mrs. Villeneuve and her assistants and the new owners are made aware of the state of health of the animal.

The problem related in the letter is the disease known as distemper, affecting cats and dogs alike. Since the virus has an incubation period of 4-7 days, the veterinarian could examine the animal and declare the animal healthy and the next day it would come down with the disease. That is why the ETSPCA cannot guarantee the animal.

The majority of pups or kittens when they are abandoned by the owners have not been vaccinated against the disease. The distemper virus is very tenacious and is definitely in the air at the SPCA. The disease's short incubation period means the animal will not necessarily show symptoms of distemper: vomiting, cough, general listlessness.

The virus remains in the contaminated area for one to three months and sometimes up to a year. If the owners are taking a new puppy or kitten into an environment where a previous animal had the disease, it is recommended that it get a vaccination before going into its new home and then have the distemper shot at three or four months. In case of an older animal, wait approximately two months after the pre-vaccine for the distemper shot.

According to Dr. Belanger of the Sherbrooke Clinic, animals catch the disease because of their lowered physiological resistance caused by the trauma of leaving their mother or the security of the litter, being brought to a place like the ETSPCA and soon after, moved to a new home. The distemper virus is air borne and in itself is not fatal. A strong dog will have what seems more like the flu. But it lowers the animal's resistance to post-bacterial infections and complications.

For the benefit of the reader we are reproducing the certificate of adoption in its entirety:

CERTIFICATE OF ADOPTION

I hereby acknowledge receipt from you of the animal described above. Although I understand that every animal given out has been inspected, nevertheless I appreciate that you make no warranty in regard to it, whether as to ownership, condition, or otherwise, and that you can only give me such information as you have received with regard to the animal. If at any time I desire to relinquish custody, or C.S.P.C.A. demands its return for any reason, I agree to return the animal to C.S.P.C.A.: making no charges of any character for licensing, care, food, or other service or thing. I shall be personally responsible for the humane care and control of the animal and your agent shall be allowed to see it at any time. I further understand that any sum I have given to the C.S.P.C.A. is a donation towards its work in caring for this and other animals.

At the moment the SPCA is attempting to enlist veterinary services at a cut rate, preferably on a volunteer basis. It is also negotiating for new owners of SPCA animals to have the animal vaccinated at half-price and later on, sterilized, also at half-price. Sterilization is of great concern to the ETSPCA, since every year thousands of unwanted animals have to be destroyed and with this service they hope to encourage owners to have their pet sterilized.

Also people are urged not to take puppies and kittens under six weeks old away from the litter. They invariably have to be destroyed.

Star strike drags on

QUEBEC (CP) — Labor Minister Pierre Marc Johnson says he has no intention of calling the two sides in the current strike at the Montreal Star to appear before a committee of the national assembly.

Answering a question Tuesday from Harry Blank (L.—St. Louis), Johnson said management and unions have been meeting for some time on their own.

The newspaper was shut down in late June by a walkout of pressmen, whose contract talks broke down on the issues of technological change and manning. The Star is introducing a computer typesetting operation, and the union had feared some jobs might be eliminated.

The two sides are reported to have settled those questions, but now they are bogged down in other details. Talks are also going on with the unions representing other composing room employees and editorial employees.

Blank had complained that the strike was depriving English-speaking Montrealers of "one of the greatest newspapers in the country."

Gosselin blasts Health Service budget

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Gerard Gosselin, the Sherbrooke county PQ deputy, is contending the use of $150 million spent for health and social service financing in the region.

In a series of documents sent yesterday to about 20 organisations, Mr. Gosselin recalled that the Ministry of Social Affairs will be allocating $119 million of the authorized budgetary credits of $128.3 million in 40 Townships establishments. He also said Medicare would be spending nearly $25 million for health service professionals in the region and that hospital services curative care monopolize more than 75 per cent of the total amount. Most of the money, he added, is channelled into acute care, to the detriment of the care of the chronically ill.

The CLSCs — Centres locaux des services communautaires responsible for first-line and prevention services, meanwhile are being hurt by cutbacks. Their $2,306,720 budget has caused a slowdown in this sector of services, which were once in full expansion and which deserved to be revamped.

Gosselin also questioned the Ministry of Social Affairs decision to not accept a plan for the development of housing resources for the elderly and concludes that the organization of all socio-sanitary services in the region should evolve in the next few years to answer the needs of the population. These needs include home care, psychiatric services and care of the chronically sick as well as preventative care.

He said that the fulfillment of these needs would necessitate the elimination of duplication of services between the hospitals and the use of daycare rather than continuous hospitalization.

Social Affairs aids elderly

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Because of the increasing need for extra services and personnel for the elderly in the reception centres of the region, the Ministry of Social Affairs has finally allotted $286,300 for the relief of elderly citizens. The total, which represents 5.74 per cent of the ministry's provincial budget, will be used to pay for additional resources and personnel in reception centres for the aged.

The Eastern Townships CRSS has sent a telegram to the Ministry of Social Affairs suggesting the following breakdown: Foyer St. Joseph, Sherbrooke, $74,700; Domaine de la Sapinière, East-Angus, $22,410; Foyer Jeanne Mance, Lac Mégantic, $32,270; Foyer de Weedon, $20,814; Foyer d'Asbestos, $33,948; Foyer de Richmond, $37,350; Residence de l'Estrie, $57,770; Foyer de Waterville, $7,470.

Sherbrooke woman killed

SHERBROOKE (AF) — The city claimed its eighteenth accident victim yesterday when Marie-Blanche Turgeon, in her late sixties, died as the result of an accident while crossing McManamy Street in front of her home. The accident occurred about 4:45 p.m. and the victim was transported to the CHUS but died soon afterwards, bringing the total number of traffic deaths in the city to 18 — nearly triple the number of victims last year at this time.

Sherbrooke woman pleads guilty

SHERBROOKE (CB) — A Sherbrooke resident pleaded guilty to four charges of impaired driving and two charges of having more than 80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 ml of blood, all six charges having been laid within a two-month period.

According to Defense lawyer Chapdelaine, the accused had experienced serious personal trauma and turned to alcohol for comfort. The defence produced a medical report stating the accused had resolved her problems, was not drinking any more, and was ready to resume work as a seamstress, and asked for the clemency of the court.

As the accused had no previous record of any kind, the Crown also recommended a light sentence in view of the extenuating circumstances.

Judge Benoit Turmel fined the accused $150 on each charge, amounting to $600 and costs or three months in jail.

More than one charge of impaired driving within a two-year period could have resulted in imprisonment of up to three years and fines not exceeding $2,000.

His topical subject, entitled "French Immersion: Is There a Cost?," will deal with the matter of French immersion within the English sector. "Does an English child's ability to perform in school suffer as a result of being taught in the French language?"

Gov't to sponsor heritage groups

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Denis Vaugeois, Minister of Cultural Affairs recently announced the allocation of $21,393 to six Eastern Townships organizations for the preservation of local heritage.

$8,250 to the Societe de la gare d'Acton Vale for the preparation of a technical evaluation on the costs of restoration of the CN station and a survey of the condition of the building as well as the needs of the municipality and its population.

-$2,300 to the Centre Culturel de Cookshire Inc. to evaluate the possibilities of using an old municipal building as a cultural centre.

Sykes-Davis

A pretty autumn wedding took place at one o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, September 23, at St. Anselm's South Church, Rock Island, Quebec, when Sharon Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis of Derby Line, Vermont, became the bride of Randy Ellis Sykes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Sykes of Morgan, Vermont. Rev. Gary Stokes of Cornwall, Ont., and Rev. Robert Rennie, church pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Terrance Walsh of Derby Line, was organist. Prior to the ceremony, Misses Lisa and Laurie Genco, accompanied by Mrs. John Genco, of Derby, Vermont, sang "You Light up my Life", and during the signing of the register they sang "Evergreen".

The church was decorated with fireside baskets of flowers each side of the pulpit, the pews were marked with ivory satin ribbon bows faced with wheat and bronze poms.

The bride was escorted down the aisle of the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

She was wearing a gown of white nylon sheer over bridal taffeta, in Queen Ann styling having a high neckline above a yoke trimmed with clung lace and ruffles. The bodice, bishop sleeves and full skirt that terminated at the hemline and the cathedral length train with a wide ruffle were trimmed with venise lace and pearls. Her three-quarter length veil of silk illusion edged with matching clung lace fell from a Juliet cap. She carried a colonial bridal bouquet of orange sweetheart roses, miniature bronze poms, blue snowdrift poms with white button poms and baby's breath.

Mrs. Michael Morin of Newport, Vermont, was matron of honor, the bridesmaids were Misses Sherry and Debra Davis, sisters of the bride. They wore gowns identically styled of light beige floral crepe de chine having blousant bodices with long full sleeves gathered with elastic at the wrists, round necklines with small Bertha collars and flare skirts. They carried fireside baskets of flowers to correspond with the bride's bouquet, and in their hair they had orange sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Michael Pare of Derby, Vermont, was best man and the ushers were Bryan Davis and Gary Sykes, brothers of the bride and groom.

Jennifer and Eric Robinson, twin cousins of the bride of West Moreland, New Hampshire, were flower girl and ring bearer. Jennifer was in a gown of tangerine polyester trimmed with material to match the gowns of the attendants and carried a miniature fireside basket of flowers.

The men of the wedding party wore forest green King George tuxedos. The groom's boutonniere was orange sweetheart rose buds, the ushers, and father of the bride and the groom, bronze poms and the ring bearer, a single orange sweetheart rose bud.

Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, chose a gown of seamist green silk jersey which was complemented by a corsage of yellow and white sweetheart roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Sykes, was in a gown of aqua polyester, her corsage was pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Robert Wallace, Stanstead, maternal grandmother of the bride was wearing a frock in rust color and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

The reception was held at the Elks Club in Derby where the receiving line was formed and relatives and friends extended good wishes to the happy couple and where a buffet was served.

Robin and Heidi Walker of Williston, Vermont, presided at the punch bowls. The hall was decorated with fireside baskets of flowers and potted poms. The wedding cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais of Derby Line.

Following the buffet, music was played by Pierce Arrow. Mr. and Mrs. Sykes left by car for their honeymoon in Bar Harbour, Maine. The bride travelled in a teal blue dress, with a corsage of white sweetheart roses, blue silk flowers and baby's breath. They are now in residence in Morgan, Vermont.

Guest from various parts of Quebec, Ontario, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York signed the bride's book.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of North Country High and graduated in May, 1978, from Castleton State College with a degree in nursing. She is practicing her profession at the North Country Hospital in Newport. The groom graduated from the same high school in 1974, and is presently employed at Ethan Allen Inc. in Island Pond, Vermont.

Pre-teen, teen TV programs needed

TORONTO (CP) — Dodi Robb, new head of children's programming for the CBC-TV English network, says shows must be developed to attract the pre-teen and junior teens audience.

"Our pre-schoolers are pretty well served with The Friendly Giant, Sesame Street, and Mr. Dressup," the broadcaster and author of children's plays said in an interview. "But we haven't enough for the six-to 12-year-olds and the early teens. We've found that children start watching adult shows at the age of seven or eight, and one survey found that the most popular show among children eight to 12 is Love Boat."

What children get from such adult shows is complete escapism and an altogether false impression of life. What Miss Robb seeks in new children's programs is not serious education, but relaxing shows emphasizing love of nature and a sense of compassion and humanity. BUILT MARKETPLACE Miss Robb, who developed the consumer program Marketplace early in the 1970s and was its executive producer until 1977, doesn't expect to jump into making major changes in the area of children's programs. She spoke of having a fallow year that may be forced upon her by CBC budget cuts. While she said no decision has been taken, other CBC sources indicate it is likely the program day will be cut back starting early in 1979, possibly with the network not going on the air daily until noon.

Miss Robb writes books and plays for children as a pastime, and said she expects to continue to write in her executive position. She will be searching, meanwhile, for new writers for children's programs as part of her new job. If all goes well with the CBC budget, Miss Robb said she would like to see an hour or more a day, in the late afternoons, devoted to programs for the six-to-12 set.

COULD SELL Such programs could include Rainbow Country and The Beachcombers, already on CBC-TV, and new programs which might also be sold internationally to other networks. The Beachcombers has become one of CBC's biggest foreign sellers.

Miss Robb said it is a misconception to think that writing for children is easy. In live theatre, it is more difficult to hold the attention of a junior audience than adults.

The same principle, she says, applies to television programs. Young people are far more imaginative, quick to grasp ideas, and quicker to show their discontent than adults.

Cigarettes increase risk of sudden death

DALLAS, Tex (AP) — Cigarette smoke seems to speed dramatically the natural deterioration of tiny arteries inside the heart, greatly increasing the risk of sudden death, a Pennsylvania researcher says.

Progressive hardening of the arteries that feed blood to muscles in the heart may explain why "people who smoke have several times the rate of sudden death—of just falling over dead in the street—than nonsmokers," said Dr. Richard Naeye, head of the pathology department at the Hershey College of Medicine.

"These small arteries in a 40-year-old person who's been smoking for 20 years look like the arteries of a 70-year-old non-smoker," he told a news conference Monday during an American Heart Association conference.

Dr. Naeye said the small interior arteries are seldom studied but his research indicates they may be far more important than had been suspected.

More than 250,000 persons in the United States each year are victims of sudden death—a heart attack that comes without warning and kills within moments, said the heart association. Although there are other possibilities, the stiffening of arteries inside the heart "is certainly an attractive (potential) explanation for some sudden deaths," Dr. Naeye said.

He said a six-year laboratory study of hearts removed from more than 200 human bodies shows the degeneration continues throughout life and may be part of the natural aging process. He said the problem is nearly impossible to diagnose before the damage is done, and, in any event, "it's probably an irreversible change."

The small arteries fuel muscles that drive the heart, causing it to pump blood rhythmically throughout the body. They also supply oxygen to a series of fibres that carry electrical impulses to govern heart beat.

If the fibres are deprived of blood and the oxygen it contains, they begin to die. Then "you get an abnormal rhythm and you get sudden death," Dr. Naeye said. He said stiffened arteries lose their ability to transmit blood when faced with even a small, momentary drop in blood pressure.

"What smoking does is damage these particular arteries and make their walls stiff," he said. "So when a pulse of blood comes down, the vessel can't expand (to ease its passage). That would happen in old age anyway, but it happens twice as fast in smokers."

This recipe requested by a gentleman from Lennoxville is sent by Mary Norton.

GRATED RAW POTATO STARTER

- 1 cup warm water
- 1 1/4 cups white flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 grated raw potato med. size

Mix the 1 cup warm water, 1 1/2 cups white flour and 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar into a 2 cup measure. Add enough grated potato to make 2 cups. Place in a wide-mouthed glass jar or small mixing bowl which will hold about 1 qt. Cover with a single thickness of cheesecloth to allow wild yeast from the air to settle into it for 24 hours. Stir well.

Cover tightly with clinging transparent wrap which will cause the moisture to drip back and keep top of mixture from drying. Stir several

As soon as half inch of clear liquid has risen to the top, it has ripened.

To renew starter add 1 1/2 cups white flour and 1 1/2 cups water each time it is used so that there are always 2 cups to bake with and 2 full cups to return to fridge. If not used regularly, add 1 teaspoon sugar and stir well every 3-4 days.

Improved lifestyles

DALLAS (AP) — Americans have become less susceptible to heart attack because of jogging, better nutrition and other factors, but Europeans now are more likely to be stricken as they "fall into our old evil ways," a medical researcher said Monday.

A decline in the incidence of heart attacks in the United States indicates that contrary to popular belief, Americans are willing to change their lifestyle in search of better health, said Dr. William Kannel of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute in Framingham, Mass.

"If the improvements have in fact derived from changes in lifestyle then it means it doesn't take a very drastic change in the way we live...to produce rather substantial benefits."

His remarks were made at a news conference as the American Heart Association opened a scientific conference here.

They were joined by the pre-schoolers and others at this time.

Each member had contributed to the supper which consisted of various casseroles, hot biscuits, donuts, cake and cookies, Kool-aid for the children, also tea and coffee. The supper was served by W.I. members, Audrey and Diane Allan, Helen Lowry and Helen Jamieson.

POPULATION COUNTS BY AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

Photographing resting waterfowl flocks for the purpose of population counts is effective where large compact flocks of one species occur. Portions of large flocks may be sampled as done with canvasback on the Mississippi River, or total flocks may be pictured on one print as is done with snow geese in the Arctic and along the east coast of the United States. Birds are then counted by automated equipment.

Pauline Julien: Publicity-tour rigors take their toll

PAULINE JULIEN: Still the political chansonnere...

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA SHERBROOKE — I must admit to a defeat of sorts — the name, the myth, the image and the person of Pauline Julien wrought its defeat on me yesterday.

She breezed into the University de Sherbrooke an hour late due to a hefty, time-consuming local radio program. She'd been doing interviews since 9 o'clock in the morning. Speedy, seemingly irritable and outwardly aggressive, the great Julien was surprised at the short duration of my interview but I was tired, shaken and intimidated too.

Pauline Julien veers when she can from the public's most common picture of her, that of a Quebec chansonnere. She will be appearing at the Universite's Salle Maurice O'Bready this Sunday at 8:30, singing the role of one of the two sisters in Bertold Brecht's ballet Les Sept Peches Capitaux, presented by Les Grands Ballets Canadiens. Recognized as the best North American interpreter of Brecht, Julien says she likes to be diverse, to have variety.

"It is interesting to do many different kinds of things on the stage. I do it for the stimulation which comes with doing something a bit out of the ordinary.

"It's like my Femmes des Paroles show which I launched in September last year and with which I have already gone three times to France. I also brought it to Belgium this past March as well as to Switzerland. It has two parts to it: the first half is eight portraits of women from 1890 through to now while the second half is spoken and not theatre; it's like a speech."

...one of the greatest Brecht interpreters around...

Asked about the changing role of the woman in the province of Quebec, she says she believes woman's lot has changed in Quebec in the past few years, but not much and certainly not enough. "My show portrays that evolution of women. It is of interest to women, my female friends, mothers, girls, to you — all women. The changes happen very little at a time and the social and economic condition in which women live everywhere has not changed enough.

"I do perform in other provinces on occasion when something special calls for it," she said. "For example, I performed in Toronto this past summer at the Festival of Nations and on the Radio-Canada program 'After Dark'. I was also recently on tour in London, Kingston and Waterloo, giving at least 16 presentations in all in Ontario."

A few years ago, a friend and neighbor of Pauline Julien's wrote a poem on the side of her house. The poem was written phonetically, to be read by anyone who passed by and cared. It was not positive in its outlook on the city administrators. It was the second such writing executed by its author on the wall of a house in the Carre St. Louis. It had been up for four or five months when the administration, through the police, attempted to have it eradicated.

The landlord was a Greek, recalled Julien, "and therefore understandably nervous about doing something against the law and was easily intimidated by the police. But the city was unable to enact the removal of the writings on that wall because no bylaw existed which prohibited the writing of poems on the outside of city dwellings.

"I think it's wonderful to be able to express yourself by writing on walls like my neighbor did. It's terrific to be able to see paintings with words on city walls much like the feeling some of Montreal's murals evoke. You see many, many people stopping and coming by to read what that poem says on the side of my house."

Questioned about her past involvement in politics, the 45-ish singer said she was as implicated in the politics of the province in the late sixties and early seventies as she is now. "I was like anyone else then as I am now. We are happy with our government and when we speak, it is because we are not.

"When we have something to say, when we talk, it depends on what is happening. When we need to contest something, that's when it is done. This is a government in which we have faith. We simply talk when we're not in accord. Life is a protest. If we're not happy with the people in place, we contest them; we question them even if they're our friends if we are not in agreement."

Brusquely interrupting my

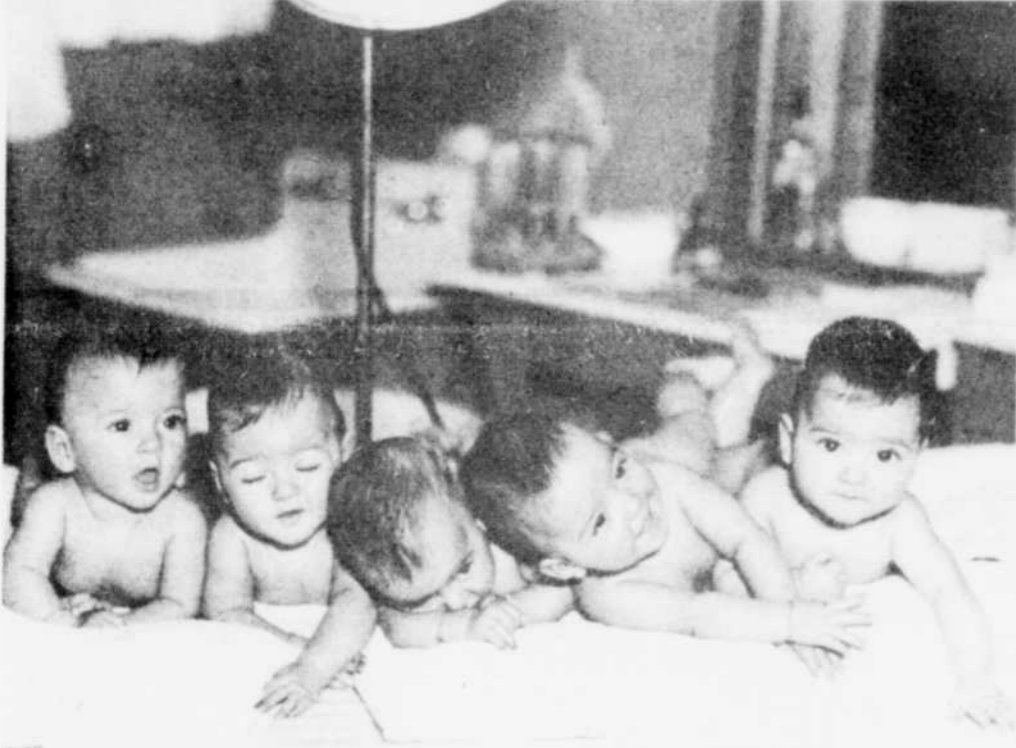

...and just as caught up in the publicity treadmill as any other entertainer.

questioning in mid-sentence to talk down to me, correcting my language and aggressively answering some timid queries, la doyenne de la chanson quebecoise took her toll from behind sunglasses. Much as I had looked forward to talking with her, I left flustered, disappointed and angry at dealing with someone who is obviously tired, ill-tempered and intolerant — but still on top of the Quebec personality-world.

Upcoming CBC programming

Other doings

Dionne story Sunday

The Dionne Quintuplets (above) will be the subject of an upcoming documentary on CBC Television on Sunday, November 19 at 9:30 p.m. by Emmy award-winning film-maker Donald Brittain. The 90-minute special, based on the bestseller by Pierre Berton and co-produced by the CBC and the National Film Board, evokes the story of Canada in the 1930's when five baby girls captured hearts and headlines around the world and came to symbolize an era.

Simard: Superkid comes of age

The Superkid comes of age — the razor's age, that is! It's a close shave for Rene Simard as he discovers the joys of young manhood.

The 17-year-old singer continues to be mobbed by enthusiastic fans and although he's still taken aback by it all, Rene Simard enjoys life these days, especially since his CBC-TV series gets such large audience ratings each Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m.

Newcomers: 1927

"Look at me, do you think I'm dead?" Ivan Lyba, a Ukrainian immigrant who years ago was reported killed in a mining accident, applies for an old age pension. But first he must prove he's alive, in the "1927" episode of Imperial Oil's Newcomers series Sunday, Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. EST on CBC television.

Don't miss BU Revue

The Bishop's-Champlain Cultural Series, in collaboration with the drama department of Bishop's University, presents a musical revue of Eastern Townships life on November 16, 17 and 18 at 8:30 p.m. in Centennial Theatre.

Billed as "Show Extraordinaire: Song and Stories of the Eastern Townships", the revue revolves around the efforts of the Duke of Lennox as he tries to find out exactly where the town of Lennoxville is and why it bears his name. Designed as a lighthearted look at the local history of the Townships, a collage of events will be paraded before the audience and will range in diversity from the tribulations of a pioneer family to the Battle of Eccles Hill, near Bedford, during the Fenian Raids into Canada in the 1850's.

The cast of the play is composed of students from the Bishop's University Drama Department, under the direction of Michael Mawson, a former Bishop's professor now involved in theatre work in Toronto. The entire concept of the play was the result of work by the students, with all research, scripting, set construction and costume design being carried out by them.

Cultural Series passes will be honored for the performances on Thursday and Friday nights only. Individual tickets for each night's performance are on sale at the Centennial Theatre box office (563-4966) or at the Centre Culturel of the Universite de Sherbrooke.

Richard: It's Mardi Gras

For Zachary Richard every day is Mardi Gras. We remember the summer of 1978 as the summer which placed Zachary Richard as the new superstar of Quebecers after a spectacular triumph at the Bois de Boulogne at the closing of the 370th anniversary of Quebec City. His name is on every lip as well as his hit song "L'arbre est dans ses feuilles." This November, he will tour the province and will be at the U de S in Sherbrooke on November 28 to promote his new single. In it he deviates from his traditional music and adds a more personal touch.

The Pringle Column:

What's in a name: Trooper, the Vancouver-based band that currently have a hit across Canada with their current single Round and Round, did not get their name from watching movies about the cavalry. As Ra McGuire of the band explains, "It's an old vaudeville term, spelled differently. The vaudeville term is 'He's a real trouper!' It's basically a guy who, regardless of what happens in the theatre — if the roof falls in on him — keeps on doing his soft shoe.

"The first time that I remember that term really hitting home was when I went to see Conway Twitty in Vancouver. I was about 12 years old at the time and I think there were about 15 people in the audience. Somebody commented that he was a 'real trouper' because he did his show to those few people the same way he would have done it to twenty thousand. I'd like to think that at this point in time the band has earned its name."

Trooper

Get out the violins! Lou Gramm of Foreigner tells us that the inspiration for the band's current hit Hot Blooded came from the lack of after-show whoopee that the band was able to indulge in because of their tight security and schedule. "We've had these problems in our live shows, that after the show, by the time we get through cleaning up and speaking with radio and press people, there's no young ladies to party with," moans Lou. "The security is so tight for us that it's almost impossible to have some fun after the show. We wrote this song about how we'd like to see things work out. It's slightly suggestive, but it's a good rock and roll tune." Whoopee!!

Allen Klein, the former manager of the Beatles, is back in hot water again. After his first trial in federal court on six counts of tax evasion ended in a mistrial when the jury failed to agree on a verdict, a three-judge Court of Appeals has ruled that he must go through a second trial. Klein's lawyers argued that a second trial would constitute "double jeopardy" for Klein, but no dice. Klein is alleged to have failed to report more than $216,742 allegedly received from sales of promotional records from 1970 - 1972 and underpaid his taxes by more than $125,000 during the same period. Where's my 1977 tax form?

The two new members of Paul McCartney's Wings are Laurence Juber and Steve Holly who replace guitarist Jimmy McCulloch and drummer Joe English respectively. Juber is a British session musician who has worked with David Essex, Shirley Bassey and Cleo Laine. Holly was most recently handling percussion for Elton John's upcoming LP. Joe English is now recording with Sea Level.

According to Bill Szymczyk, the Eagles' record producer, the next Eagles' album, which has a working title of What Would Robert Mitchum Do?, will have a sound more like Life in the Fast Lane and less like Wasted Time. In other words the LP will lean more towards straight ahead American rock 'n' roll. The album is about half completed and is expected to be released in the fall. There is a ballad on the LP though entitled Party Dress.

Flash!! Jim Morrison of the Doors, Jim Croce, Bobby Darin, Mama Cass Elliot of the Mamas and Papas and Elvis Presley are set to hit the concert trail again — together. No we haven't taken leave of our senses. This is a serious project being undertaken by an enterprising manager by the name of Dennis O'Day who has rounded up a number of performers who have agreed to undergo plastic surgery to take on the facial features of the above-mentioned artists. O'Day, not missing a trick, has two Elvis' lined up — one male and one female. I mean, let's face it...

Pepperization of America! Well, it had to happen. Dr. Pepper and the people at MCA/Universal films who distribute the movie Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, have tied in both of their products. Free Sgt. Pepper posters are being offered to purchasers of Dr. Pepper six-packs along with offers for an exclusive LP of five songs from the album. And of course, there's the usual slogans — "Be a Pepper, See Sgt. Pepper" and "Drink Dr. Pepper, hear Sgt. Pepper."

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

November 16, 1978

Through rather circuitous circumstances you may be drawn into a beneficial situation this coming year that someone else has already started. The two of you will work extremely well together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Tread warily in joint ventures today. Be sure your counterpart shares equally in all the risks and expenses. Don't be left holding the bag. Like to find out more about yourself? Send for your 1979 copy of Astro-Graph. Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A heap of frustrations can be avoided today if you steer clear of teaming up with one who doesn't appreciate the value of collective effort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Continuing to postpone attending to a responsibility clamoring for attention will not put the matter to rest. Tackle it today and be done with it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Normally you behave very democratically at gatherings. Today, however, you may play favorites and hurt someone's feelings in the process.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a chance you could sour something good you have going for you by tipping your hand to the wrong person. Don't spill the beans to one whose sincerity is doubtful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wary today of basing important decisions on wishful thinking. Don't fear to ask questions if you feel you haven't got all the answers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Doing business with strangers could be risky today, particularly if they make outlandish promises. Get them to put it in writing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If it's up to you to make the social arrangements today, don't invite friends who won't blend harmoniously. They'd spoil the fun for all.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll either look to others to perform your tasks today or else you might leave everything to the last minute. In either case, you'll get yourself in a tight bind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have the knack for arbitrating volatile issues between dissenting friends today, making each feel he or she is the victor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's likely your ambitions will be satisfied today, but the way you get results could cause others to speak unfavorably of you. You won't like what they say.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a bit more sensitive than usual where your ideas are concerned today. You could overreact if they are challenged. Keep an open mind and you may learn something.

From the pens of E.T. writers

— DO WE? —

Do we ever count our blessings, As we're grieving o'er our sorrows? Do we try to live our lives to-day As if there were no tomorrows?

Do we try to be the kind of folks, We'd like other folks to be? Do we try to only do the things, We'll be proud for the world to see?

Do we overlook the little faults, We sometimes see in friends? Are we kind and understanding, Always ready to defend?

Life is much too short to spend it, In so many ways that's wrong, When there are so many right ways, Filled with laughter, love and song.

WORDS

A careless word may kindle strife;
A cruel word may wreck a life.
A bitter word may hate instill,
A brutal word may smite and kill.
But....
A gracious word may smooth the way;
A joyous word may light the day,
A timely word may lessen stress;
A loving word may heal and bless.

AUTUMN

It's Autumn, and the radiant hues,
Of red and yellow and gold
Speak of the magic of Nature's hand,
Speak of God's power o'er all the land;
Of His wisdom and love untold.

As I watched the leaves come tumbling down,
Enchanted by their beauty,
Seeing the trees grow grim and cold;
Tall and stately, fearless and bold,
As a sentinel on duty.

The fowl of the air, all gather in flocks
To hold their consultations,
Always knowing they will find their way,
Without guide or road map, they soar away,
And will still reach their destination.

Opening lead: ♥10

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When your partner opens one no trump you can tell easily if you want to play a part score, invite a game; bid a game, invite a slam or bid a slam. If you want to play in a part score you can always pass, but frequently you have a bad hand that is really unsuited to no trump. Today's South hand is a good example. He knows that two spades will be a better contract than one no trump and if he plays Stayman he responds two spades. North is supposed to pass and does just that. He does not make his two-spade contract. West selects the 10 of hearts as his opening lead. It doesn't matter what is played from dummy. East wins the trick, catches a second heart and gives West a heart ruff. The defense will still get one trump trick as well as one in each minor suit. One no trump would go down two so South has saved something. He was also very unlucky. Both heart honors were wrong. The man with short trumps got in a ruff and the defense had no way to go wrong in either diamonds or clubs.

A Canadian reader wants to know what we bid in response to partner's standard one-no trump opening bid. We just pass. The odds are that he will make one no trump and there is no reason to try to improve to a very doubtful two hearts. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

by John McCahey

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Samuel Vandervalk, of Waterloo, who earlier pleaded guilty to a series of charges of breaking and entering and theft was shown the absolute clemency of the court here recently.

Judge Gerard Normandin heard representations from defence lawyer Pierre Gibeau who told the court his client had been treated by Dr. Pierre Gagne in Sherbrooke prior to his formal arraignment when he was judged fit to answer the charges and the court had freed him on his own recognizance pending sentencing.

"He was completely mixed up during the commission of the acts which is why Your Lordship consented to have him evaluated by Dr. Gagne," Gibeau said.

"He has since appeared before you on four different occasions, is steadily employed, is following treatment for his illness and I feel a jail term in his case would be useless.

"The majority of the crimes occurred three years ago and he has had no further contact with the law in the interim. I feel the absolute interests of justice in this case would be well served with a suspended sentence and a probation at the discretion of the court."

Crown attorney Claude Noiseux interjected the accused had been charged with similar offences prior to those under consideration, then said he had nothing further to add.

"I have read and studied Dr. Gagne's report and I am fully aware he was not in a position to be able to appreciate the gravity of the acts when they were committed," Judge Normandin said. "Sentence in all cases is suspended for two years and the accused is bound over to keep the public peace for the same period with the understanding he continues his psychiatric treatments."

Bernard Cusson, 50, of Cowansville, was found guilty of a charge of simple assault on his daughter, Ginette, 22, on Sept. 21, 1977. Miss Cusson testified she had taken a bath when her father chastised her for having used too much hot water, leapt on her back and attempted to strangle her when she was going downstairs to her bedroom.

Mr. Cusson denied his daughter's allegations and said there had been a verbal argument -- not involving hot water but her Siamese cat. "The damned cat won't let me sleep during the days which is highly frustrating as I work nights. I told her to get rid of it when she screamed and threatened me."

Judge Gerard Normandin continued the trial in chambers when he heard evidence from Cusson's 12-year-old son prior to finding the accused guilty as charged. He suspended sentence for one year and bound the accused over to keep the public peace for the same period.

Louise McGowan, 22, and Roxanne Delisle, 19, both of Farnham, were cited to the next term of the assizes following preliminary hearings on a count of breaking and entering and theft of approximately $500, the property of Georges McGowan, in Farnham, Sept. 15.

Lucien Richard, 50, an inmate at the Cowansville Federal Institution, changed his option and pleaded guilty to a charge of having been illegally at large.

"My client was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his girlfriend 17 years ago," defence lawyer Pierre Gibeau said. "The Parole Board finally decided to review his case when the told him to start preparing his own program for possible early release. During his incarceration he established a pen-pal relationship with a woman in Asbestos and when he was granted a three-day pass he went to visit her.

"We can appreciate his thoughts of being with a woman and having three children surrounding him after having been isolated from normal life for 17 years and he decided to extend his stay. He went to visit his sister in Quebec City and she told the QPF of the impending visit and they arrested him before he could see her. There are recent amendments to the criminal code which allow the presiding judge to impose concurrent terms for such offences, and I feel a concurrent term is appropriate in this instance as my client did not commit any infractions during his freedom."

Crown attorney Claude Noiseux urged a period of additional imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

"If I imposed a consecutive term to a life sentence we would look like fools," Judge Normandin said. "The sentence is one month."

WI MEETINGS AROUND THE EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

be outdone and before long he appeared on the scene, making the rounds, shaking hands and never taking the cigarette from his mouth.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

CHOOSE A GOOD CONTRACTOR TO ENSURE QUALITY INSULATION

With energy costs increasing and the prospect of tax credits for insulating looming, homeowners are well aware of the need to insulate.

What makes many homeowners wary, however, is the proliferation of "get rich quick" insulation dealers and installers. To avoid these requires extra care when choosing a contractor. Aerolite SPE Corporation, a leading manufacturer of urea formaldehyde foam insulation, provides some simple tips for selecting a reputable contractor.

Beginning the Search: It is always preferable to get recommendations from satisfied neighbors, but if not possible, there are other good sources. Local utility companies should be able to provide a list of reputable insulation dealers and contractors. Better Business Bureaus, Chambers of Commerce and banks also are helpful—and can help the homeowner avoid those contractors with several consumer complaints filed against them.

Once a number of contractors are contacted, each should provide a list of previous customers. Do a thorough reference check. Also, ask each contractor whether he is a member of a national trade association. Most of these organizations seek to enforce voluntary standards upon their membership.

Getting Bids: Narrow the list to three or four insulation contractors who will submit bids for the job. According to Bill Egnor of Aerolite SPE, this is the one area that is likely to be the most confusing.

"Weighing costs must take into account the integrity of the particular types of insulation materials and the installation procedures," he says. "It may be very tempting to select the lowest bid, but the consumer must make certain he or she is not sacrificing quality materials and expert application."

Making Comparisons: Insulation contractors often handle one type of insulation material and will most likely try to sell the homeowner on the benefits of their product. That's why it is a good idea to do a little advance research, Mr. Egnor advises.

Whether the area to be insulated is the attic or the walls, the greatest thermal protection is provided by insulation materials with high "R" values. An insulation's "R" value is its ability to resist heat flow. Urea formaldehyde foam, for example, has a higher "R" value than that of rock wool, glass fiber and cellulose.

Local utility companies not only can provide information on "R" values of particular materials, but also can tell homeowners what specific "R" values are recommended for their particular region. Besides checking "R" values, a homeowner must also make certain that the insulation material he specifies is fire resistant. Product literature available from contractors and building supply dealers should include this information. Choose the material that has a high fire-resistant rating from Underwriters Laboratories.

Writing the Contract: Once the homeowner receives a fair bid from a reputable contractor who handles quality materials—and whose references show him to be a highly trained installer—it is time to write the contract.

The contract must be specific. It must cover areas of the home to be insulated, brand names and types of insulating materials, "R" values to be achieved, warranties and other vital factors.

Reaping the Benefits: Once the terms of the contract have been met, homeowners can relax. The extra care taken at the outset will virtually assure a satisfactory job. But, concludes Mr. Egnor, "the greatest benefit comes later, with a comfortable home environment all year long and the relief of substantially lower fuel bills."
