MACMILLAN SUCCEEDS EDEN

PRIME MINISTER MACMILLAN

Former Chancellor Of The Exchequer Is Queen's Choice To Succeed Eden

"Poor Health" Fells Eden; No Election Is Indicated

LONDON — (AP) — Harold Macmillan became prime minister of Britain today. He succeeded Sir Anthony Eden both as the Queen's first minister and as leader of the Conservative party—a party split by the results of Eden's venture into Egypt. Macmillan supported Eden's military expedition, at least to a point, and does not command the Conservatives' complete support. But in naming him her first minister, the Queen showed she believes he has wider support in the party than Richard A. Butler, whom many politicians overnight had figured as Eden's successor. Butler favored a softer line against Egypt than Eden and many of his colleagues.

The Queen before announcing her choice called in Sir Winston Churchill and the Marquess of Salisbury, two of the ranking Conservative leaders. They likely recommended Macmillan over Butler.

Macmillan moves up from his post as chancellor of the exchequer, the government's key financial post. He will have a free hand in picking the team he wants to run the government. Macmillan at 62 is three years older than Eden, who resigned Wednesday night with the explanation that his health prevented him from continuing to give his full loyalty to the job. Eden had served 21 months, a comparatively short term for a British prime minister, in succession to Churchill.

There was no indication Macmillan would call a general election—as demanded by the Labor party—to seek a new popular mandate. It seems unlikely the Conservatives will risk going to the country at a time of economic difficulties and with the people still divided over the Suez issue. The present Parliament runs until May 26, 1960.

Macmillan, who went to Canada in 1919 as aide-de-camp to the Duke of Devonshire, then governor-general, travelled to Buckingham Palace this afternoon to receive the Queen's designation of him as her first minister.

About 200 persons pressing against the railings of the palace seemed surprised when Macmillan's car wheeled into the courtyard. A few seeing the car coming toward the palace had shouted: "Here comes Butler."

Then as the car came closer they gasped: "Oh, it's Macmillan." Buckingham Palace announced: "The Queen received the Right Hon. Harold Macmillan, MP, in audience this afternoon and offered him the post of prime minister and first lord of the treasury."

"Mr. Macmillan accepted Her Majesty's offer and kissed hands upon his appointment."

Macmillan spent 20 minutes in the palace.

The phrase "kissed hands" referred to the ceremonial acceptance by Macmillan of the Queen's command.

The appointment touched off speculation that Macmillan will seek a quick meeting with President Eisenhower, probably in Washington. Macmillan also faces the job of strengthening Commonwealth bonds strained by Eden's Middle East policies.

Finally, he must cope with an economic crisis heightened by the British-French military intervention in Egypt and the closing of the Suez Canal. Macmillan was born in London Feb. 10, 1894. The six-foot aristocrat went to Eton and Oxford and was a Grenadier Guardsman in the First World War. He married Lady Dorothy Cavendish, and they have four children. He was elected to Parliament in 1924.

Churchill has called him a "man of fearless intelligence." They worked together against Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler and Mussolini, and Churchill in the Second World War appointed him secretary of the ministry of supply.

R. A. BUTLER

Missed PM Appointment

There he helped build Britain's great war arsenal.

Later he was in the colonial ministry as parliamentary under-secretary of state and dealt with the production of raw materials for war.

Mr. Butler was a British resident minister at Eisenhower's headquarters at Algiers, later head of the Allied commission for Italy. For a brief time he was Secretary of State for Air-just before the Labor party took over the government in 1945.

When Churchill returned to office in 1951 Macmillan entered the cabinet as Housing Minister. Later he was Minister of Defence, briefly Foreign Secretary and later in 1955 took over as Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Eden gave continuing ill health as his reason for quitting the post he had waited for so long. Continued on Page 5

May Raise Dope Term To Life

OTTAWA — (AP) — The government wants maximum life imprisonment for dope peddlers and smugglers.

It announced its proposal Wednesday when a bill, providing the stiff penalties for members of the multi-million-dollar illegal drug traffic in Canada, was introduced in the Senate.

It would make it a special offence to import narcotics illegally. The penalty would be 10 to 20 years for the first offence and 20 years to life imprisonment for subsequent offences.

Other penalties: 1. For illegal possession — six to 18 months on summary conviction before a magistrate or six months to seven years for a conviction on indictment before a higher court.

2. Possession of drugs for trafficking — up to 14 years, without a minimum, for a first offence; 10 to 20 years for a second offence; 20 years to life for a third or subsequent offence.

3. Unlicensed cultivation of opium poppies or marijuana plants would carry a penalty of up to 18 months on summary conviction and up to seven years on conviction by indictment.

A list of drugs affected by the proposed law includes opium, marijuana, and heroin — the three drugs most widely used in the illegal drug traffic.

SIR ANTHONY EDEN

Blames Poor Health For Resignation

Canadian Leaders Pay Tribute To Eden

OTTAWA — (AP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent, expressing "deep regret" at Sir Anthony Eden's health-forced retirement, joined Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Wednesday in paying tribute in the Commons to the 59-year-old prime minister, who announced his resignation, because of ill health, after 21 months in office.

"I am sure," said Mr. St. Laurent, "we all share with the people of the United Kingdom their regrets at what seems to be— I hope not an end—but a serious alteration in the kind of service Sir Anthony Eden can render his fellow citizens."

He hoped Sir Anthony would recover sufficiently to resume his contribution of service that had been so outstanding to the U.K. and all other Commonwealth nations.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no one more truly represents the finest in British statesmanship than Sir Anthony. His courageous stands through the years were in keeping with the best British traditions of statesmanship and public service.

Commenting earlier outside the Commons, both CCF Leader Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Low indicated they were not too surprised at Sir Anthony's resignation.

Mr. Low said it appeared to him there had been a growing feeling in Britain in the last few weeks that Sir Anthony either erred in the Middle East or was too soft. His resignation was "to be regretted" but it had been "increasingly difficult for him to carry on."

Mr. Coldwell said Sir Anthony's action didn't surprise him "because of the obvious division of opinion among the public and the British cabinet over the way the Middle East situation has been handled."

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles have extended their best wishes to Sir Anthony Eden but apparently are relieved by the British prime minister's resignation.

Eisenhower described Eden as "an old and good friend" in a statement Wednesday shortly after the announcement in London that Eden was leaving office because of ill health.

Authorities here believe Eden's resignation might signal an improvement in U.S.-British relations.

The president called Eden a "dedicated leader in the cause of freedom" and added: "Through the years I have developed for him a great respect and admiration."

Eisenhower expressed the hope the retiring prime minister would "soon fully recover his health so that he may have many useful years ahead."

Dulles commented briefly: "I have known Prime Minister Eden for a very long time and indeed have had the friendliest relations with him."

"I regret that his health was such that he had to resign, and I hope that he will have many more years of health and happiness."

U.K. Press Reaction Still Mixed On Eden

LONDON — (Reuters) — Sampling of the mixed British press reaction to the resignation Wednesday of Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden:

THE TIMES — "The swiftness and finality of his decision makes this latest act of his career one more of the many great services he has done the nation in a lifetime of public service. If the party can now pull itself together under a new prime minister it has an opportunity to recover from the recent debacle."

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN — "While he remained at Downing Street there could be no hope of making good the damage. . . There is no point in mining words about it. His policy has brought Britain into its worst predicament since 1940. . . A change of prime minister was the first requirement for national recovery."

THE DAILY SKETCH — "Let us be quite blunt about this matter. Ever since Suez the American government has adopted an attitude of frosty and self-righteous disapproval of Eden. . . The inference seems to be that so long as Eden remained prime minister, Britain would be regarded in Washington as an unregenerate bad boy."

THE DAILY MIRROR — "It took him 32 years to become prime minister. In less than two years the fruits of all his endeavors have turned to ashes. His final blunder was the disastrous war over Suez, an act which wrecked his past policies and now has brought him down."

THE NEWS CHRONICLE — ". . . The scars of Suez have eaten so deeply into the life of the nation that a change of leadership had become essential. . ."

Strike May End Soon

By JOHN LeBLANC

OTTAWA — (AP) — The CPR tie up could end quickly. Behind-the-scenes negotiations have led Prime Minister St. Laurent to say that he is optimistic over a settlement of the big dispute without the government using legal force.

While the prime minister was in touch with top officers of the CPR and its striking firemen's union, another high government officer said he wouldn't bet on a settlement on this eighth day of the walkout.

The prime minister met Wednesday with CPR President N. R. Crump, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress and Frank H. Hall of Montreal, chairman of the general conference committee representing some 124,000 employees on major railways.

The group that the potent Hall heads is not directly engaged in the strike, but thousands of its members have been laid off by the CPR which shut down rail operations Jan. 2 when the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) took about 3,000 CPR workers off the job.

After talking with Mr. Hall, the prime minister told reporters he thinks the union chief "is disposed to share my optimism that something could be worked out without compulsion to get the trains working again."

In the Commons, Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker said the government has followed a policy of "postponement, procrastination and promises" in dealing with the CPR stoppage.

CFE Leader Coldwell made an unsuccessful attempt to have House business temporarily set aside for an urgent debate on the strike. His motion was ruled out of order.

Arthur Roebuck, Liberal senator from Toronto, union nominee on the federal conciliation board that investigated the railway dispute, told a press conference the government should appoint an administrator to run the CPR at the company's expense.

He said the administrator would step out when the railway company could show that it could get along with its employees.

After the administrator would be in place, the railway company could show that it could get along with its employees.

US Presses For Vote On Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. —

The United States pressed for a vote today on its proposal to set up a fact-finding team in an effort to find out what is happening inside Hungary. Observers predicted overwhelming approval in the General Assembly. The resolution is sponsored by 24 countries. Only the Soviet bloc was expected to vote no.

The resolution touched off a flood of Communist criticism and for the first time brought Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold under Soviet attack on a major issue.

The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov, assailed Hammarskjold, charging him with siding with the West on the Hungarian issue. The Russians also made plain that no watchdog committee would have a chance of getting into Hungary itself.

Hammarskjold apparently led the move to form an investigating team when he told the assembly earlier this week that such a body should be organized to find out what is going on inside Hungary.

Army Irregularities Several But Minor

OTTAWA — (AP) — Auditor-General Watson Sellar has uncovered another crop of irregularities in government accounts but on the whole he finds the books in good order.

The public accounts for the 1955-56 fiscal year were tabled in the Commons Wednesday and they include Mr. Sellar's report, which states at the beginning: "Thousands upon thousands of transactions were reviewed and it is satisfying to be able to report that only a handful require notice to be now taken of them."

Among this handful: 1. Six years ago, the defence department decided to install underground steam distribution systems at 30 camps. Major repairs have since been necessary at 14 of these stations, chiefly because of faulty design. Original contracts at the 14 camps were worth $6,000,000 and estimated cost of repairs came to $1,218,500. At the Chatham, N. B., RCAF station, the original contract was $228,450, the total cost of $317,578 and the repairs $271,025.

2. In 1954, navy officers, without authorization from the defence production department, encouraged a manufacturer to spend money to develop a boat davit. The defence department later instructed defence production to buy the type of davits developed but the firm was not the successful bidder. It sought compensation and the government now has offered to pay the firm $34,000, including five-percent profit.

3. Fourteen Canadian minesweepers were built in nine different Canadian shipyards on a cost-plus basis, one minesweeper required 529,565 man-hours to build, another 850,195 man-hours.

4. The navy paid a "large number" of civilian doctors at rates higher than authorized.

Proposals On Wheat, Power Expected To Meet Opposition

OTTAWA — (AP) — The Gordon commission report, to be unveiled late today, will contain at least two proposals representing radical departures from present government policy. One deals with wheat; the other with power.

Informants said the 140-page document, forecasting Canada's economic future, definitely will contain a scheme for curbing prairie wheat surpluses by imposing long-range marketing quotas on farmers.

It also is expected to propose that the government relax its present stiff curbs on hydro power exports and encourage increased shipments to the United States to help balance a heavy deficit in U.S. trade.

The report, to be made public by Prime Minister St. Laurent at about 5 p.m. EST, has already been discussed by the cabinet. The wheat-power suggestions are reported to be causing the greatest controversy.

The wheat and power proposals will be major issues in the report, but it is doubtful that they will get cabinet acceptance. The view among some officials is that the wheat suggestion would increase government participation in industry, a move opposed to "free enterprise." It would also possibly involve increased outlay of Canadian wheat board funds.

There is strong opposition in some federal quarters to any reversal of the present policy of restricting power exports.

As reported, the wheat scheme would have the wheat board impose long-range marketing quotas on producers. Anything they produced over annual quotas, for example, would not be accepted by the board. But farmers would get advances for farm — head wheat within the quotas.

New Officers Installed By Local Kiwanis

Induction of the new officers for the Kiwanis Club highlighted a meeting held last night in the Mayfair room of the Hotel Sherbrooke. It was also Ladies' Night, and each of the Kiwanis Queens was presented with a flower.

Following the dinner and the presentation of door prizes, the meeting was turned over to Lieut. Gov. Dave McGruer for the installing of the 1957 officers. In his address, Mr. McGruer outlined the success of the past year's work, congratulating the retiring officers and outlining the difficulties to be met throughout the coming year for those taking over.

Retiring President Jos Faucher then stepped down and was presented with the past-president's button, after which the board of directors for 1957 were introduced, and, as the administrative head of the club, were charged individually and as a group, that it lay in their hands to determine the activities, finances and policies of the club.

Rick Alleen was then presented with the treasurer's pin and Secretary Henri Baudot was re-elected for the coming year. Sam Gillman, Len Curtis and Dr. Tom Cadman were presented with the First and Second Vice-President's and President's pins respectively.

In his address, Mr. McGruer charged the new president to keep in constant touch with his committees and warned him that his job was not just to authorize certain undertakings, but to participate in their development and conclusions personally. The president's main job lay in making Kiwanis more serviceable to the community and coupled with that, he must remember that "Kiwanis is a vitalized movement based on certain carefully selected ideals."

Perfect attendance awards were presented ranging from one to nine years perfect attendance. President Tom Cadman accepted the gavel from Mr. McGruer and as a candle was lit in front of him, symbolizing his entrance into office, that in front of retiring President Faucher was extinguished.

Jos Faucher was then presented with a gift of a silver tray by Reg Bishop on behalf of the club.

In a brief address, Dr. Cadman said, "There is much honor, but also much hard work ahead. Therefore let us interrogate the past, occupy the present and trust the future." Following the meeting, there was a dance.

Operation Refugee

First Hungarian Group Quickly Placed

By WARREN SPAFFORD

The usually slow process of finding homes and jobs for immigrants turned into a fast moving, efficient operation yesterday with members of the Hungarian Relief Committee placing the majority of 46 Hungarian refugees by last night. The group arrived here Tuesday night from a reception centre at St. Pauli l'Ermitte.

However, the near completion of this process could not have been made possible without the swift and sometimes spontaneous co-operation of local and district citizens.

One man from Lake Megantic phoned the local relief centre early in the afternoon saying he would take two couples, lodge them and find jobs for them. The man arrived a couple of hours later to pick up his charges. The same thing happened when a local citizen walked off the street and offered jobs and accommodation to more Hungarians.

The largest group to be placed yesterday comprised 12 people who were taken to Asbestos by the Hungarian Relief committee of that town. There they found jobs and lodging awaiting them. The group left around 5 p.m. last night.

Yesterday morning the entire group was at the Headquarters in the old Central School building on King St. west, where they filled out papers telling their name, age, type of employment desired and various other details which the Canadian Immigration department needs.

It was here that one saw the hardship which the Hungarian people have endured—and not physical hardship either. Some of the women interviewed were married but had left their husbands and children in Hungary.

Another woman said she fled her country after her husband had said he would join her in Austria after the fighting was over. Some families came with only some of their children and so on.

However when the first offers of lodging and employment began to roll in early yesterday morning and as each couple or family was placed one could see the tired smile of exhaustion lift from their faces like a curtain to be replaced by a smile of peace, happiness and security.

Members of the local relief committee spent considerable time yesterday teaching the new Hungarians some of the more important and essential words they would need. Most of the Hungarians showed an amazing capacity to learn and by the end of the day many were pronouncing words with ease. After settling in their new homes yesterday afternoon the Hungarians once again returned to the Relief headquarters and spent most of the evening writing down more words for their vocabulary.

One interesting point noted was the eagerness and willingness of all the women to work, not in private homes but in factories and similar industries. It was explained that in their native land, all Hungarians must work, otherwise there is no food in the homes as they draw no pay when unemployed and even the pay they do receive is not enough for one family to live on. Therefore the entire family must work. Loafing is not tolerated.

Some of the highly industrialized and modernized plants in Sherbrooke presented an eye-opener for those who sought employment in them. In the textile industry for instance, one woman was amazed at the looms. She said in Hungary all weaving was done with much smaller machines and there was considerable more manual work to be done in operating a loom. Consequently she will have to start as an apprentice, even though she has had many years experience as a weaver.

Most of us, when we get into a car, carrying on a conversation, or when we take someone on a sightseeing tour, point out the interesting points. However when language enters into the situation it becomes very hard and requires a little imagination and a quick ear.

An example of this was provided yesterday when a mother and her two children were taken on a brief tour of Sherbrooke's business section. The mother was equipped with a few words of French with the Hungarian meaning opposite but the words cathedral, school or main street could not be found.

Going by the Cathedral construction one of the guides put his hands together as a sign of worship and the women seemed to understand and then she said "templum," the Hungarian word for church. This system progressed rather well and at the end of the trip she kept repeating different words but unfortunately they were so strange to a Canadian's ear that most were forgotten at the end of the tour with the exception of one.

Going back into the relief building one of the men picked up some snow in his hand and the women said "ho" — snow in Hungarian. That was the extent of Hungarian vocabulary learned in ten minutes.

However if someone should see any of these people on the street just say "Isten Hostia" — welcome. They will understand and appreciate that.

Improvement Is Registered By Injured Worker

A 50-year-old employee of the Canadian Ingersoll Rand Co., Donald Cote, of RR 4, Sherbrooke, is reported in improved condition at the Hotel Dieu Hospital today following injuries suffered while working in one of the company's machine shops yesterday.

He was rushed to the Hotel Dieu with a possible broken pelvis and severe ruptures of the internal organs.

The trial of John White, of Montreal, was postponed until Jan. 18th by Justice William Mitchell this morning. The trial for theft and attempted robbery was the first scheduled in the current term of the criminal assizes.

White's attorney asked that the postponement be granted as an important witness for the defence was at present in Frobisher Bay.

The judge told the accused that his request was being granted in order that he benefit from a just and full trial but he stated that the defence knew the trial was fixed for today and it was up to them to see that the proper witnesses were present.

Snow Shoe Club Maintains Present Membership Limit

The members of the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club last evening decided almost unanimously to maintain the limit on active membership in the Club at 170 instead of reducing it to 150 as had been suggested earlier in the season. This decision was reached following a lengthy discussion at the Life Members' Night gathering held in the Prospect street club house under the chairmanship of President Art Wright.

Last night's meeting was marked by the initial tramp of the season led by Captain John Bryant and the initiation of the house volleyball league by Assistant Captain Newton Munkittrick.

During the evening, an oyster stew supper was served by Honorary Purveyor Wallace Lavallee to some 90 members and guests. Seated at the head table with the president were Jim Mitchell, Nelson Lothrop, Stan Lothrop, Ron Cotterell, Charles Parkin, Arthur Michie, Ernie Gilbey, Dr. Simon Marcus, Dr. Gordon Loomis, Max Long and Alex Rowat.

After a sing-song led by Chorister Alex Rowat, reports were given on the collection of dues by Treasurer Stan Lothrop and on the sale of club ties by Ski Captain Len Gillam.

Captain John Bryant spoke briefly on Club tramps, stating that 100 per cent trampers would be awarded buttons at the end of the season.

Guests of the Club for the evening were T. W. Townsend, Nelson Hardy, Uno Ives and Lloyd Hardy.

George Jobel, chairman of the Special Heating Fund Committee, spoke briefly and outlined the forthcoming canvass of regular members and Past President, George Dick reviewed the canvass of life members which will be conducted by the three "Georges" — George Dick, George Lothrop and George Parsons.

Three new members were balloted on, Leslie Heatherington, George Pariseau, and Jerry Besserer being elected members.

President Wright welcomed the new Life Members to the Club, stating that 20 years of continuous membership was an enviable record and a challenge to all members. Red Party Vice-president, Cy Pyke presented the new Life Members with their Life Member ribbons and appealed to them to continue their active support of the Club.

The new Life Members are Dr. Gordon Loomis, Dr. Simon Marcus, Charles Parkin, Arthur Michie, Ernest Gilbey, and Frank Simms.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a spontaneous, "For They are Jolly Good Fellows," was sung by the entire membership.

Ashley Shaughnessy conducted the weekly story telling contest. Club representative Les. Humphries was declared the victor over Executive representative Alex Rowat by Judge Ernie Gilbey.

Past President Glenn Sampson paid tribute to the fine work of the Sgt. At Arms Howard Simms, who acted as Scrutineer for the balloting and responsible for the parking of cars on New Year's Day and Ladies events.

President Wright reminded the members that next week would be Tuque Rouge Night and that the members would be the guests of the Tuque Rouge Club. This exchange of meetings between the two Clubs has continued since 1886.

Nurse Resigns From Magog's Hospital Group

MAGOG — (Special) — Miss Stella Quenneville, a member of the subscription committee for the lay hospital project here, officially resigned from her position last night for what she termed was "a difference between my viewpoint and that of Mr. Therrien and his conferees." Paul-Emile Therrien is president of the general committee.

Miss Quenneville, a registered nurse, was one of those who rallied around Dr. Jacques Pettigrew following his dismissal from La Providence Hospital last fall and was also instrumental in arousing public interest for the construction of a new hospital to be administered by laymen only.

The full text of Miss Quenneville's letter of resignation is as follows:

"Following the meeting of Jan. 7, 1957, there was disagreement after certain decisions taken which gave rise to a difference between my viewpoint and that of Mr. Therrien and his group and I feel I have the obligation to give my resignation."

Miss Quenneville said that her father, Ulderich, who is treasurer of the general committee, would also tender his resignation. Mr. Quenneville was not available for comment.

Blaze Destroys Slaughter House At Coaticook

COATICOOK — An early morning fire on Tuesday morning completely destroyed a slaughter house owned by the firm of D. S. Bachand, situated on Union Street, south of the J. W. Kilgour and Bro. property.

It is believed that the men had built a fire to heat water in preparation for the weekly butchering needs and while busy elsewhere the faulty stove ignited the building.

Since there was little or no wind, at the time firemen had little difficulty in controlling the flames or preventing embers from reaching nearby dwellings.

George Drew Steps Down

The decision of George Drew to resign his seat in the House of Commons because of continued ill-health will remove from the active political scene a man who has proved a sturdy fighter and a capable debater. During his term as Opposition leader, Mr. Drew displayed ability and energy which won him universal respect from all parties and which served to give the Official Opposition an importance in the parliamentary system out of proportion to his numerical strength. Obviously his decision to leave the halls of Parliament was taken only with extreme reluctance as the former Opposition leader has spent his entire adult lifetime in the service of the Canadian people—either as a member of the armed forces or in the field of federal, provincial or municipal politics. But it is a decision in keeping with the character of the man. George Drew regarded public office as a public trust and believed that a man elected to any parliamentary office should be prepared to serve the people he represents.

When ill-health made it apparent that he could no longer serve his constituents effectively, even as a private member, it should be inconsistent with his beliefs to continue in public office. So he adopted the only course open to him—to step down and make way for a person who could better serve his county—and Canada.

George Drew made a place for himself in Canadian public life and when he resigned his position as Opposition leader, many Canadians were hopeful that with the easing of his official responsibilities he would find his health sufficiently improved to continue his duties in the Commons.

They will join in expressing the hope that a comparatively brief retirement may so better his physical condition that before long he will be able to resume his service to the people of Canada in some form or another.

Delayed Justice

The decision of the federal government, as announced in the Speech from the Throne, at the opening of Parliament, to pay the equivalent of full municipal taxes on all its property receiving normal local services will give welcome, if limited, aid to hundreds of Canadian municipalities which are finding increasing difficulties in making both ends meet.

It is a logical follow-up to earlier legislation which provided that the federal authorities would pay the equivalent of full tax rates in municipalities where the assessed value of federal property was more than two per cent of the local assessment. This ruling, while it recognized that the constitutional provision that Crown property was not taxable provided a gross injustice to municipal taxpayers, still left more than one-half of the federally-owned property receiving municipal services exempt from municipal taxes.

The idea of exempting Crown properties from local taxation was not a major issue in the earlier days when federal properties were limited to the post office and perhaps a customs house or armory—which often were such matters of local pride that municipalities would have granted them tax exemption anyway, just to get them. But with the expanding role of the federal government in the national economy, with a consequent increase in the proportion of property being taken over by the central administration, the problem has become acute.

The lead having been given by Ottawa, the time appears ripe for the provincial administrations to consider their position and perhaps aid the troubled municipalities by assuming their responsibilities in the payment of local taxes.

Newsstand Pests

A familiar pest at newsstands is the free-loader who reads a book or a magazine, disfigures it with thumbprints, teardrops and (possibly) tooth-marks, then replaces it on the rack and goes away without spending a nickel.

The worst victims of such parasites are the proprietors of combined newsstands and lunch counters. In place like that, people read the books at their meals and return them illustrated with soup-stains and punctuated with spots of ketchup.

In stores where the boss is indulgent, we have seen boys camping on the bottom shelf of a magazine stand, reading a comic book and using a pile of magazines as a cushion.

A few of the more daring adults actually read books by instalments, turning back a leaf to mark their place. A friend came across a pocket book on a stand which had been purposely dog-eared in this fashion. The reader apparently had not taken the advice of the book to heart. The title was "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

Jacoby On Bridge

DEFENDERS TOO EAGER TO SPANK

West had a mighty good double of South's one no-trump overcall. Obviously, South was fooling around and ought to be punished. East suspected that South was going to run to one of the minor suits and decided to show his good six-card spade suit by taking out his partner's double.

When South rebid to two no-trump and West doubled again, East saw no reason to take this one out. He still suspected that South would run to diamonds or clubs, but maybe South was a trifle crazy. Hence East passed. South was crazy like a fox. He passed also.

West saw no better lead than his queen of spades and East signaled enthusiastically with the jack. South won with his king, claimed his seven diamond tricks for his contract, and blithely conceded the last five.

The defense could have picked off the first seven tricks if East had taken the opening lead and gone after the hearts and clubs, but that would have been small consolation for the loss of the easy major-suit game.

West should have realized the possibility of a "diamond no-trump" and also should have visualized a sure vulnerable game. Hence, he should have jumped to four spades instead of doubling. South might have taken the save at five diamonds, but at least East and West would have realized a nice profit on their good cards.

Le Chef du Quebec — Duplessis

Dictator Or Savior? He's Been Called Both

Probably Canada's most colorful and controversial political figure is Quebec's Prime Minister Maurice Duplessis. Following is a profile of Le Chef, issued by The Canadian Press as one of a series of stories on the premiers of Canada's 10 provinces.

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC — In Premier Duplessis' high-windowed office, hung with oil paintings of Quebec scenes, labor union leaders pleaded for postponement of a Montreal tramway fare increase.

Mr. Duplessis told the delegates who represented 300,000 workers that the matter was outside his jurisdiction.

In a final, futile effort to impress the Quebec premier, one labor man said:

"When we Catholics want a big favor we don't pray to the saints, we go right up to God."

Mr. Duplessis smiled. "Isn't that a backhanded way of saying you'd like to see me in another world," he asked.

Maurice, as Quebec voters call him at election time, has been described as a charmer and a political genius. He has also been called a dictator and the savior of Quebec.

He has been hailed as Quebec's great man in some quarters, bitterly denounced in others as a strong man who governs by the principle that friends are entitled to rewards and enemies must be crushed.

Mr. Duplessis makes no bones about his views on government affairs. He has called the system of letting out tenders for contracts "disguised hypocrisy," and has said of government purchases that it is his policy to encourage "our friends first" and to go elsewhere when necessary.

He says the government pays the highest retail prices for many goods because it believes in encouraging small business as well as big wholesale organizations. His electioneering is no less unconventional. He told voters in one riding they would not get a needed bridge unless they elected a Union Nationale candidate. The Liberal won. The bridge has not yet been built.

VOTES COUNT
Elsewhere he has mentioned possibilities of a new road or hospital.

"If you approve, let us know by your vote," he says.

A controversy on Quebec political morality, written last summer by two Laval University priests, declared itself strictly non-partisan, but in some quarters it was held to be an attack on Union Nationale election machinery.

Recently, provincial secretary Yves Prevost devoted three speeches to a public denial that the article, by Rev. Gerard Dion and Rev. Louis O'Neill, should concern the government.

Centre of controversy since he became premier for the first time in August, 1936, Mr. Duplessis stands at the pinnacle of a 30-year political career unmatched in Quebec's history.

He is the first Quebec premier to be elected for five terms of office—four of them consecutive. His Union Nationale party has held more seats simultaneously in the legislature than any other—82.

Next May 16 will be the 30th anniversary of his first election to the legislature as a Conservative member for the newsprint-manufacturing city of Trois-Rivieres. Four days later, May 20, he will have been in office 5,818 days, exceeding by one day the provincial record of the late Alexandre Taschereau.

1936 VICTORY
It was Mr. Taschereau's Liberal administration, bogged down in depression problems, that the young conservative party leader defeated in 1936 with the help of a rebel wing of Liberals and Nationalists.

During those politically stormy years when his coalition Union Nationale was in the travail of formation, he acquired a reputation as "the bad boy" of provincial politics among the Liberals who had held office for 40 years.

At committee meetings, an order from the chairman that smoking was not allowed would spur Mr. Duplessis to light a large cigar. He has since come to accept many of the old conventions and no one today would dare smoke at a committee sitting when he is present.

But he still takes verbal swipes at religious and civil dignitaries and highly placed solemn bodies.

He has chided French premiers about the instability of their governments and told them they could take a lesson from the descendants of Old France in Canada. As attorney-general he expressed displeasure with decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada in cases involving, in his view, the authority of Quebec in judicial matters. He has battled with Ottawa over provincial rights.

Now 66, Mr. Duplessis, his hair whiter and more sparse and his weight at 160 pounds about 10 pounds less than it was two or three years ago, is taking things more easily.

Le Chef, as he is known among his associates, last year—for the first time in his career, it is believed—left the conduct of a debate in the hands of a younger man while he went to Montreal.

Relaxed Leader — Premier Maurice Duplessis relaxes with a cigar in Trois-Rivieres, after hearing of the victory of his Union Nationale party in the 1956 provincial election. Although his hotel suite in Quebec is home for the bachelor premier, he also has an office and a room in the Trois-Rivieres home of his sister, Mrs. Henri Balcer, where this photo was taken. (CP) statute books unusual and drastic legislation—establishing a re-definition of freedom of worship aimed at restricting the activities of Jehovah's Witnesses, a provincial lottery, television censorship, newspaper controls—but much of it remains a dead letter.

The Lottery Law, for instance, cannot legally be promulgated unless the Canadian Criminal Code is amended.

Among Canadians outside Quebec, Mr. Duplessis is perhaps best known for his ceaseless fight with federal authorities over provincial rights, his refusal to share with federal Canadian provinces in federal-provincial taxation agreements, his 1954 law levying a provincial tax on personal income, his refusal to accept federal aid for universities.

DUAL PURPOSE
Mr. Duplessis has had his police shadow for a decade or more. At one time threatening letters found their way into his mail and the bodyguard system was adopted. Now, it helps forestall sidewalk interviews.

At his office, Mr. Duplessis tackles his correspondence with the help of three secretaries. Gerald Nolan, a blonde, blue-eyed Irish-Canadian, deals with the steady stream of visitors and telephone calls.

The premier lunches late—something high officials have to take into account—and dines at 7 or 8 p.m.

In the evening, and into the small hours of the morning, Mr. Duplessis works or talks shop with friends in his hotel suite.

His large sitting room is decorated with valuable paintings, most of them Canadian scenes by German—born Cornelius Krieghoff, who painted in Quebec in the mid-19th century, and the portraits of all Quebec's premiers since Confederation.

Mr. Duplessis was born at Trois-Rivieres April 20, 1880. His father, a Conservative member of the Quebec legislature for eight years, received the news on a Sunday afternoon while campaigning in his St. Maurice constituency. He announced he would call his son Maurice.

The boy grew up in a political atmosphere. Two uncles were members of the legislature—one sat on the government benches with the Liberals when Mr. Duplessis was first elected—and a sister married the son of J. A. Bureau, long-time Liberal member of the Commons for Trois-Rivieres and later a senator.

START IN POLITICS
Mr. Duplessis cut his political teeth in municipal elections, working for a Liberal. His father, who had been appointed to the superior court, had retired from active politics.

When he ran as a Conservative in the 1923 provincial election, the 33-year-old Duplessis went down to defeat, the first and last in his home riding. He was elected by 126 votes in 1927 and within eight years was leader of his party and had driven the Taschereau administration to the brink of defeat.

Mr. Duplessis had many friends among the Liberals and the step from Conservative leader to leader of a coalition which he called L'Union Nationale was a short one. In 1936 the Taschereau government resigned and the interim, appointed government of the late Adolphe Godbout was crushed at the polls two months later.

His anti-margarine legislation, in effect for the last five years, has been held up as evidence that the Union Nationale government concentrates its attention on rural constituencies which send the majority of members to the legislative assembly.

Mr. Duplessis' explanation of his catering to rural interests is that Quebec's agriculture is the foundation of French-Canada's society and economy.

To Quebec voters, Mr. Duplessis is first of all the builder of new roads, bridges, schools, hospitals. He is associated with progress and development. He is the man who gave Quebec a flag—a white cross on an azure

New Hampshire Bars Uninsured Canadian Cars

CONCORD, N.H. — (AP) — A bill to ban Canadian-owned motor vehicles from New Hampshire state highways unless their owners have liability insurance was filed in the state House of Representatives Wednesday.

The measure would force Canadians to carry liability insurance under supervision of the New Hampshire motor vehicle commissioner.

Representative George H. Keough, who sponsored the bill, told reporters the measure was filed because the Canadian provinces do not now recognize New Hampshire court judgments for damages in accident claims.

The bill would take effect July 1, 1958.

It is customary to offer an outgoing prime minister an earldom. In order to accept a title, Eden would have to resign the seat he has held from the Warwick constituency since 1923.

Revised Traffic Now Effective At Stanstead Plain

STANSTEAD — At the January meeting of Stanstead municipality it was noted that the new village traffic laws are being enforced. These prohibit overnight parking on all streets during snow removal months. It is an offence for anyone to dump snow from walks or driveways into the Village streets or onto property of the village and any persons so doing are eligible for a fine of $10, plus removal costs.

The police have been given the authority to demand removal of vehicles whenever necessary and in case of a fire to block off the street to the public. Parking is prohibited within 40 feet of a corner. All offenses are to be handled in the usual way — with a ticket under the windshield-wiper of vehicles.

Greetings of the season were received from Stanstead and Rock Island's twin village of Beausville, Ont. It was agreed to place the usual advertising in the Stanstead College annual magazine.

The secretary-treasurer was appointed by Mayor Carroll Labonte for consultation at any time with the Bell Telephone Company when pole planning is to be carried out in the municipality.

Bills, amounting to approximately $1,000 were ordered paid. The mayor and councillors expressed satisfaction on the decision of the International Water Company to install a fluoridation and chlorination system in the spring, following a report given by Councillor Lawrence Winter, who had attended the Water Co. meeting. It was also noted there should be no raise in the water tax.

Councillor Roland Major pointed out the costs of snow removal were less than a year ago at this time. However, there is an increase in the costs of sanding streets and sidewalks. The retiring mayor, C. J. Labonte expressed appreciation to the councillors and secretary-treasurer for the excellent cooperation afforded him during his term of office.

Yemen Getting Red Arms

CAIRO. — (AP) — Yemen, embroiled in clashes with Britain along the Aden protectorate border, has joined the parade of Arab nations getting arms from the Soviet bloc.

A Yemenite source said Wednesday night his country made an arms deal with Czechoslovakia after Western governments refused to supply the weapons.

Another Yemenite source said $8,500,000 worth of the Czech arms already has reached the desert kingdom on the Arabian peninsula's southwest coast.

The Yemenites claim they need the new arms to oppose British aggression and for internal security. The exact types of the weapons were not disclosed.

field with four white fleurs-de-lis.

Ungava's gigantic iron ore mining development; Bersimis, Manicouagan, Chute-au-Diable, and other hydro-electric projects; high-voltage cables laid under the St. Lawrence river to carry electricity to the dormant Gaspé Peninsula; roads that opened the northern regions of barren Chibougamau and sparsely-inhabited Lake St. John to an era of booming growth — these are achievements of which the Duplessis administration boasts.

Mr. Duplessis' opponents say that in Ungava he has turned over the province's greatest concentration of natural wealth to American interests "for a song." They say the $100,000 royalty paid annually by the Iron Ore Company of Canada averages less than one cent a ton.

Mr. Duplessis counters that his opponents forget the company pays full taxes and built a railway into Ungava without government subsidy.

Rural districts with new highways and schools overwhelmingly support the premier but there is anti-Duplessis feeling in Montreal and Quebec where rapid growth and expansion have given rise to increased social and labor problems, traffic headaches, housing shortages and inadequate school facilities.

These two largest cities of the province bristle with opposition groups who accuse Mr. Duplessis of building monuments of cement and steel but leaving humankind problems unattended.

But to Mr. Duplessis' cry of build, the province echoed with a resounding yes for the fourth successive time last June 20, electing 72 members of the Union Nationale to the 93-seat legislative assembly.

Fish Fillets Respond To Fancy Treatment

When the order of the day is something speedy and economical, try baking fish fillets with a simple, savory topping. They have the added features of being sophisticated in flavor and appearance. Fish Fillet Puffs come to the table handsome and haughty because they are baked with a self-sauce that is a puffy egg white cap, piquantly seasoned to set-off the mild fish flavor. Fresh or frozen fillets take ten or fifteen minutes cooking time, yet they come from the oven tender, moist and flaky. If you overcook fish you'll do it an injustice, for it will make the fillets tough and dry and they will lose their delicate flavor.

FISH FILLET PUFFS
1 package frozen fish fillets (any variety), ¼ cup mayonnaise, salt and pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1 egg white, at room temperature, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Dash of tabasco sauce.

Preheat oven to 450 deg. F. (hot). Separate fillets or cut block of frozen fillets into four pieces. Arrange skin side down in greased baking dish. Season with salt and pepper. Beat egg white until stiff but not dry. Fold in mayonnaise, onion, Worcestershire and tabasco. Spread topping on fish fillets. Bake in preheated oven ten to fifteen minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork and topping is golden brown. Makes 4 servings.

The stark sheath is out and in its place is the pegged or pleated skirt. Coming in is the wider skirt, usually handled with some pleating and propped over its own petticoat or stiffened lining.

Lightweight silk is used for cocoon capes that are hi-length and that turn a spring dress into a costume. In longer lengths and in lightweight flannels and worsteds, the cape makes an ensemble of the sheath.

Most of the capes keeping company with spring dresses are narrow rather than full types.

For Daytime, Silk And Softness

It's a silk spring and a cape spring for 1957 and we show both fashions here in daytime dresses. From designer Claire McCardell comes a two-piece charcoal gray dress in sheer wool with pumpkin cape (left). The cane is drawstring-gathered at the neckline and elasticated at the waist. Dress has a high round neck. The gentle and ladylike look is evident in Nettie Rosenstein's gray-and-blue checked sheer worsted-and-silk afternoon dress with lingerie shawl collar (center). Pauline Trigere's beige-and-white novelty striped silk organza afternoon dress with full-gathered skirt (right) is lined with white organdy.

By GAILE DUGAS
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Big news in daytime dresses for springtime is silk coupled with a softened look even in sheath styles.

The stark sheath is out and in its place is the pegged or pleated skirt. Coming in is the wider skirt, usually handled with some pleating and propped over its own petticoat or stiffened lining.

Lightweight silk is used for cocoon capes that are hi-length and that turn a spring dress into a costume. In longer lengths and in lightweight flannels and worsteds, the cape makes an ensemble of the sheath.

Most of the capes keeping company with spring dresses are narrow rather than full types.

They divide honors with the waist-length jacket as topping for slim dresses. Pleating is an enormously popular skirt treatment. Knife-pleating (suggesting the 1930's) is used for slim skirts while full skirts get soft, unpressed pleats.

Beauty Tips

Best wet weather protection for your hairdo is a hair set spray that will hold your hair in place without making it gummy. Pick one that contains lanolin. It will leave your hair soft and easy to handle.

When you find your hair going limp and your nails developing ridges, there are several things you can do. Undoubtedly, you need more milk in your diet. An adult should have two glasses a day, like it or not. Then, start wielding the hairbrush for a total of 100 strokes a day, either morning or night. You'll find that your scalp will tingle and come alive. You may not see results the first few weeks but after some time, your hair will become glossy.

If your favorite perfume no longer wafts its scent to you, it's time to switch to another. Half the enjoyment of using perfume is in being able to whiff it yourself.

Linen-like silks head off the fabric list for daytime wear. Next come the silk shantungs and silk tweeds, chiffons, crepes and printed surahs. The lightweight trend extends to woollens and includes chiffon-weight flannels and worsteds. Navy and gray are top spring dress colors followed by beige, a whole range of violets, muted blues and green.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Dan Gerber (MOTHER OF 5)

A column-reading mother writes: "I was surprised to find that I learned more about what was best for baby through the little mistakes I made. After all, I didn't really know she would prefer being held, bathed or fed another way until I did it the wrong way." Reassuring to know that new mother mistakes often lead to better baby care.

Strengthening influence. Proteins are the great strength-givers, the great growing tools of the body. That's why protein-rich meat is often considered a daily must for babies. Gerber Strained Meats—savory, smooth and succulent—are specially processed for high retention of quality proteins; precious vitamins and minerals. Made from selected juicy cuts, most of the fat and coarse tissue is removed. All pure meat, with just enough broth to brighten the flavor.

Saving grace. Save large, plastic vegetable bags. Slit the seams and you've got sizable, wet-proof squares that serve nicely as shoulder pads when you bubble baby—lap pads when you hold your angel.

Why not share the wealth of mother knowledge? So many mothers just like you send their helpful hints to me. If you'd like to share your special short cuts and suggestions, please write to me: Mrs. Dan Gerber, Dept. B, Box 4027, Terminal A, Toronto, Ont.

Early menu entree. Doctors recommend fully ripe bananas for small fry, not only to provide energy-giving calories in easy to digest form, but because most babies take to this palatable fruit almost instantly. Gerber Strained Bananas have a uniform, just-right degree of ripeness because ripening is controlled. Special processing preserves the delicate banana flavor and appealing color. The texture? Velvet-smooth and a delight to a delicate palate.

Flyers At Home To Waterloo In Crucial Tilt; Asbestos At Magog

Ted Kennedy Comeback Bears Fruit As Leafs Dump Rangers 4-3; Sets Up Pair Of Goals; Meet Canucks

The agonizing weeks of conditioning after a 1½-year layoff were rewarded Wednesday night as Ted Kennedy reappeared in Madison Square Garden in his accustomed role as Toronto Maple Leafs' take-charge guy.

The Teeder, a slow-gaited misfit in his comeback debut in Detroit last Sunday, was operating with all his old fire against the Rangers as he set up a pair of goals in a come-from-behind 4-3 Toronto victory.

Until this week the 31-year-old centre hadn't laced on a skate in National Hockey League competition since he won the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player on completion of his 13th season in 1954-55. A steady stream of Leaf injuries brought him out of retirement.

Captain Howie Meeker, a Kennedy linemate of past campaigns, stuck his old pro between Bob Pulford and Gerry James, both newcomers to the club since Ted's departure, and Teeder's old-style digging turned the new line into a top offensive threat.

After Dean Prentice had shot the Rangers into the lead before the game was two minutes old, Kennedy put a pass on the stick of rookie defenceman Al MacNeill, who drove home his 40-foot shot while Jack Evans was sitting out a Ranger hooking penalty.

A tripping penalty to Jim Morrison of the Leafs as the period ended set the stage for a second Ranger goal by Andy Hebenton 28 seconds after the intermission. Ron Stewart got that one back four minutes later.

Larry Poppen put the Rangers in front for the third time while both sides were a man short late in the second period, but Kennedy's perfect passout to Pulford set the youngster up for the tying goal at the 7:13 mark of the final frame.

Dick Duff converted George Armstrong's drop pass for the winning tally just past the half-way mark of the period.

The Leafs, who broke a fourth-place tie with the losers with their victory, move on to Montreal tonight in one of a pair of battles affecting the hectic three-team scramble at the top of the standings.

Detroit Red Wings, leading the Canadiens by one point and Boston by two, entertain the Bruins in the other contest.

Richmond Braves Entertain Windsor In Other Fixture; Close Battle Is Expected Between Maroons And Flyers

Waterloo Maroons, the hottest team in the O'Donnell Circuit, will be on hand this evening at the local Arena to keep an engagement with the Brompton-East Angus Flyers in a regular fixture of the Massawippi Valley Hockey League. In the other games Asbestos travels to Magog and Windsor moves down to tangle with the Braves of Richmond.

The Maroons and the Flyers are at present deadlocked in fourth position, each with 12 points, and they will no doubt be out to try and gain ground on the top three in the loop. The outcome of the other two games will also have a big bearing on the standing.

The Maroons have won their last three outings while the Flyers have been slightly off edge although they managed to edge Sherbrooke on Tuesday they will have to come up with a big performance if they wish to emerge with a victory over the Lemay squad.

At Magog the Meteors will be out to protect their slim two-point advantage over the Windsor Paper Makers when they take on the Aces. On their home ice the Theriault has one loss and that was on the initial appearance of the Meteors last month. They lost 7-5. Since then the Aces have posted victories over all of their opponents.

The Braves of Richmond will be out to try and upset the Paper Makers this evening on their home ice. The cellar-dwellers have been trying to reinforce their club and will present some new faces to their home town fans. Manager Roger Trudeau is still after more players and he hopes to have a new line in uniform very shortly.

The Paper Makers will be playing without the services of Gerard Spnard who suffered a fractured leg in Tuesday's game and will be out for the balance of the season. It is hoped that Captain Maurice Bachand, who missed the last couple of games with a fractured cheek-bone, will be back.

Molson's Brewery To Televis All Of Montreal Royals' Games; Tom Foley And Jerry Trudel To Do Play-By-Play

The contract for televising and broadcasting of Royals baseball games has been renewed for a two-year period, it was announced this morning by Rene Lemyre, general manager of the Royals' Baseball Club of Montreal and Zoticque Lesperance, public relations director of Molson's Brewery Limited.

Negotiations were officially concluded yesterday when Lucien Beauregard, president of the administrative part of the Royals and the Hon. Senator Hartland deM. Molson signed the contract. The sum agreed on for the television and radio rights was not announced.

Under the agreement the Montreal Baseball Club will allow Molson's to televise and broadcast not only home games from the Stadium but also out-of-town games.

The sponsor voluntarily agreed to give full support to the Royals with promotion and publicity. The one-year contract between the baseball club and Molson's last year was valuable to the Royals even though inclement weather and other factors made it a poor season for the team.

Speaking for the club, Rene Lemyre was enthusiastic about the contract renewal. "We will have a better team this year with popular and crowd-pleasing players. With the full backing of our sponsor and given good weather we should go places," he added confidently.

The Hon. H. deM. Molson said renewal of the contract for a two-year period is evidence his firm and he himself have confidence in the popularity of baseball in Montreal and that baseball will continue to play a major role in our sports sphere. "All doubt is dispelled in our mind that it will remain so for two more years," he said.

Rene Lemyre, Zoticque Lesperance and their associates will now complete final publicity plans for Royals' coming season. It is practically certain that commentators Tom Foley and Jerry Trudel who covered the baseball games last year, will handle them this year but with new talent to help them.

Jackie Robinson To Submit His Letter Of Voluntary Retirement; Giants Willing To Pay $100,000

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Jackie Robinson, standing firm in his decision to quit baseball despite a passionate plea by New York Giants, said today he planned to submit his letter of voluntary retirement to the proper authorities no later than next Tuesday.

The dynamic diamond personality reiterated to this writer that no amount of money, no amount of talk and no amount of pressure could get him to change his mind. As disclosed by The Associated Press Wednesday, Robinson acknowledged he had a dinner party Wednesday night at the home of Charles (Chub) Feeney, vice-president of the Giants who made a final desperate effort to induce Jackie to play just one more season.

"I did not give Feeney a flat no," said Robinson, "only because he asked me not to because he realized what my answer would be. He felt if I thought it over for a couple of days, there was the slightest possibility that I would change my mind."

"But I'm sure he knows that the case is hopeless. There is no doubt in my mind that when I give him the answer it will be no."

Robinson was reluctant to discuss the nature of the Giants' offer. Informed that the writer had learned the Giants were willing to offer him a one-year contract that would cost them $100,000 Jackie dropped his evasiveness.

"Yes," he said, "Chub did mention that the club was willing to lay out $100,000. That, of course, would include my purchase price from Brooklyn ($30,000 and a player). There is no question in my mind that I'd be getting more than I ever made in Brooklyn. Yes, I'd say it would have to come around $50,000."

Jackie also admitted he was offered other inducements designed to bring him an income from the Giants after his playing days were over. It was learned from other sources that the Giants, in their eagerness to persuade him to play, were willing to keep him on the payroll through 1959 even though they promised to give him his unconditional release at the end of the 1957 season.

Scots' Losses Laid To Canuck Hospitality

VICTORIA (AP)—A band of 26 weary Scottish curlers arrived here Wednesday on the fourth leg of a 20-match series with Canadian curlers for the Strathcona Cup.

In previous matches in Montreal, Saskatoon and Edmonton, the Scots lost 15 straight games and are behind 221-100 in points in a race for the cup.

Capt. W. G. Piper of the Scots blamed "extensive hospitality" extended to the party across Canada for its poor showing to date.

The Scots were to meet five Vancouver Island rinks Wednesday night and afterwards leave by plane for Penticton, B.C., to continue the series.

Carmen Basilio Will Ask Delay Of Title Tilt

CLEVELAND (AP)—Matchmaker Larry Atkins said Wednesday that he has been informed that welterweight champion Carmen Basilio will ask a postponement of his scheduled title defence against Johnny Saxton here Jan. 18 because of an ailment to his right hand.

Atkins said he had received the word from Billy Brown, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, in a telephone call from Syracuse. Basilio was en route here from Syracuse.

The Cleveland Boxing Commission will meet today, at which time Basilio will be examined by the commission's physicians, Atkins said.

Basilio, who regained the title from Saxton on a ninth round technical knockout in Syracuse last Sept. 12, was scheduled to start workouts here today.

Self Confidence Restored And Injury Jinx Disappeared, Dickie Moore Is Rapidly Blossoming Into Top Scorer

MONTREAL (AP)—Self-confidence, restored when the injury jinx disappeared, has been the difference between stardom and mediocrity in the National Hockey League for Dickie Moore of Montreal Canadiens.

After a sensational rookie season in the 1951-52 campaign, Moore was beset with injuries. His play bogged down and team officials began to worry about what appeared to be Moore's brittle physical makeup. But Dickie has found himself and is rapidly blossoming into one of the NHL's leading scorers.

Coach Toe Blake sums it up this way: "Dickie now has more confidence than he ever had, and a player with confidence and his ability is bound to score goals. Those recurring injuries undermined his faith in himself."

Blake said Moore "got the shot in the arm he needed" last season when, for the first time in his pro career, Dickie played in all of his club's 70 games. He wasn't bothered any more with gimpy knees and a trick left shoulder, which long had been injury-prone.

In 39 games this season, the 26-year-old left winger has scored 19 goals—more than he ever scored before in a full or part season. At that stage of the current campaign Moore was in an eight-place tie with 31 points, only five points out of third place. His 19 goals were the third highest, topped then only by Gordie Howe's 25 and Jean Beliveau's 22.

Asked about his re-born prowess around the nets, Dickie said: "I feel a lot better out there on the ice. But I can't honestly say I'm doing things differently except perhaps shooting at the net a bit more."

At 172 pounds and standing one inch under six feet, Moore created quite a stir with his rugged style of play when he broke into the NHL.

"I was pretty cocky then," he said. "I wanted to fight all the time. But I soon learned it's much easier to beat a team by scoring goals than by trying to bash players through the boards."

Dickie started his amateur hockey career in Park Extension, a suburb in north end Montreal. He resides there with his wife Joan, whom he married in 1954. One of Dickie's brothers, Jimmy, plays with Cleveland.

Lazzlo Tabori, Ace Hungarian Miler, Denies Statements Complaining About Poor Treatment Received In Miami

NEW YORK (AP)—Laszlo Tabori, Hungarian miler, and his coach, Mihaly Igloi, Wednesday night denied statements attributed to them in Miami Wednesday. They were reported to have expressed among dissatisfaction with their accommodation, food and training facilities.

But following an afternoon flight to Newark and a car ride here, both coach and runner, speaking through interpreter Alex Brody, said the statements "were not made."

The Hungarians, members of a group of Olympic athletes who refused to return to their native land because of Russian oppression, were brought to the U.S. under the sponsorship of Sports Illustrated magazine.

Tabori said Wednesday night he will definitely run in the first of a series of amateur athletic union meets in Boston Jan. 19, provided he is able to train under the proper conditions.

Miami reports had Tabori saying, "here in Miami, people can't

Furillo Signs '57 Contract With Dodgers

BROOKLYN (AP)—Carl Furillo joined captain Pee Wee Reese, Don Newcombe, Duke Snider and four lesser lights in the Brooklyn Dodger fold Wednesday when he signed his 1957 contract calling for a reported $27,500 the same salary he received last year.

The strong-armed outfielder, now 34, batted 289 in 1956, hitting 21 home runs. He is one of the few active players with a lifetime .300 batting average in 11 seasons with the Dodgers.

Directors, Officers Named

I. Fortier New Head Of Kiwanis Club

MAGOG — Irene Fortier will head the Magog Kiwanis Club during 1957, having been installed as the club's new president at last Monday's meeting, held at the Anchorage in Ayer's Cliff. Gordon McHarg of Ayer's Cliff and H. V. MacDonald of Magog are first and second vice-presidents, respectively.

Directors for the current year are Maxie Dingman, John L. Peters, R. J. Stafford, Stanley Needler, Cliff MacDonald, Rev. Canon John Comfort, Edward Henson and L. Despres. Edward Henson and Cliff MacDonald will also serve the club as secretary and treasurer respectively.

Lieutenant-Governor Dave McGruer installed the new officers, and in doing so emphasized the importance of living the "Golden Rule" as Kiwanians.

Before turning over the gavel to the new president, past president Edward Foggo outlined the club's activities during the past year. Included in the resume was mention of a donation of pillows to the Crippled Children's Camp at Ayer's Cliff, Christmas gifts to pensioners at La Providence Hospital in Magog, assistance to needy families of the area as well as other benevolent work.

Mr. Foggo also remarked that this club had spearheaded the drive for blood donors in Magog. He said that with all these activities, and maybe because of them, the Magog Kiwanis Club had increased its membership by thirty percent over the past year.

Mr. Foggo said that the Kiwanis club has entered 1957 in a very healthy condition, and under the energetic guidance of its new president, should be a great credit to Magog and Ayer's Cliff.
