

BOARD OF TRADE LOOKS FORWARD TO BUSY YEAR

Arrangements Being Made for Board of Trade Speaker And Instructive Entertainment for Public Early in May.

The first meeting of the Board of Trade with the newly elected president Mr. C. W. Thomas in the chair was held in the County Building on Tuesday evening.

The first matter of public interest to be brought forward was that of a letter received from the Huntingdon Junior Hockey Club. The Board of Trade were asked if they would consider having a benefit hockey match put on under its auspices, for the benefit of the team, as they would like to make the hockey trip to Boston as had been done on two previous occasions. The members present were agreeable to the benefit game being arranged for the Huntingdon Juniors.

The matter of the Board of Trade having permanent improvements made in the town was given progress.

Mr. J. C. Boyd brought up the question of having waste paper receptacles placed at various points along the main street similar to that which the W. C. T. U. had offered to contribute funds for two years ago. Mr. J. A. Hunter was asked to bring in an estimate as to what the probable cost would be before further action would be taken.

The secretary was instructed to extend a letter of congratulations to Mr. F. E. McGrath of the N. Y. C. in Montreal upon his promotion and transfer to Buffalo.

The President was asked when a speaker might be expected to address the Board of Trade. Mr. Thomas replied that Mr. Lyman and in all probability two other men would address the Board early in May. At the same time other entertainments were mentioned that would be of interest to the general public was being arranged to take place on the same date.

Hinchinbrook Gravel Road Maintenance Charge Reduced to $100 Per Mile

When Mr. Andrew Philps, M. L. A., for Huntingdon County arrived home for the week-end he brought with him much good news for the Municipal Councils and the ratepayers.

The Roads Department issued special grants for four townships, and the town of Huntingdon. Mr. Philps reports that Franklin is to receive $1,726.35, Havelock $1036.10, Godmanchester $1117.35 and Hinchinbrook $1723.17, all of these grants are applicable for the work which was carried out during 1925. In the case of Hinchinbrook where they are maintaining 25 miles of gravel roads the Roads Department are reducing the maintenance charge from $200 per to $100 per mile which will mean a saving of $2500 annually to the municipality.

The Town of Huntingdon have also granted a sum of money, to pay for 50 per cent of the money expended on the laying of cobble bottom on the unimproved streets in 1925.

The Town of Huntingdon when building the new filtration plant installed high pressure machinery so as to improve the fire fighting system. For such necessary work the government have granted $3500 towards the work.

Mr. Philps is to be congratulated in being so successful in procuring so many beneficial grants for the County of Huntingdon.

IMPROVED COW TESTING SYSTEM TO BE ADOPTED

Cost of Testing Herds Will be Reduced to About Two-thirds of Present Cost.

An improved system under which the Cow Testing Association of Canada will be administered through the Live Stock Branch has been outlined. Mr. Walter Graham, supervisor of Cow Testing Work in Canada was in town on Tuesday consulting with Agronomist Pelletier and Inspector Wheeler regarding this work. It is considered under the improved system much better work will be accomplished than under the old system.

This is briefly outlined in the following press notice gotten out by the Live Stock Branch:

- Following a thorough review of cow testing work in relation to the appropriation which is available for carrying it on, the Live Stock Branch has decided to change completely the system for 1926. The new plan of operation is designed primarily to interest farmers who are prepared to accept cow testing as the fundamental factor in herd improvement and who appreciate the importance of daily weighing in providing a close check on their dairy business.
- The outstanding features of the new system may be summarized as follows:
- (a) Agreement on the part of the Branch to provide a testing service under certain conditions as set forth in any district in which a minimum of ten herds are definitely entered.
 - (b) Daily weighing of the milk of each cow entered.
 - (c) Testing by an official of the Branch of each centre in each district every alternate month instead of each month.
 - (d) A visit to each farm by the inspector at the time of each test, primarily to return samples and to relate butter fat tests to stable records of milk produced for each cow, but also to discuss with the farmer any questions in feeding or general herd management which may grow out of the month's testing.

Aside from the desirability of improving the system it has been found necessary to reduce the cost per herd and to cut down overhead expenses in relation to total work performed. It is anticipated that under the new arrangement the cost per herd will not exceed two-thirds of the present cost and the Live Stock Branch is confident that at the end of the year it will have some real figures on which to base an analysis and that there will be evident a general interest on the part of the majority of the farmers concerned.

In making the new system effective, it is the intention to rely on the services of the permanent staff instead of on local testers as in the past. It is hoped that the majority of the new associations will be ready to start work by April 1st. This means that the organization work should be completed during the next two months. Supervisors in charge of the work will be able to give some assistance in organizing between now and April 1st, and districts desirous of taking advantage of the new service should make application to Mr. W. L. Graham, Supervisor of Cow Testing, Live Stock Branch, Ottawa, as soon as possible.

It will be remembered Lizzie was the top priced female at the 1924 National sale held at Waukesha, Wis.

SHAMROCKS WIN TOWN LEAGUE SILVER CUP

Westmount Sextet Prove Best Trained And Fastest Team to Play in Huntingdon This Season.

CUP PRESENTED.

10 Minutes Overtime Played in Town League Game. Youthful Players Show Brilliancy.

The game of games, in the eyes of many of the youths of Huntingdon and the parents of the boys who played in last night's game, took place in the local arena. The two teams in the play off for the Town League cup, presented by the C. C. M. through the representative, Mr. C. H. Lamb, were the Victorias and the Shamrocks. The game was a hard fought contest and was a most interesting one to watch. From the start to finish the cheering was deafening and particularly so after Jimmie Barrington scored the first and only goal for the Victorias. Before the end of the game Purcell Fortune scored for his team, "the Shamrocks." Eddie Cappiello and Willard Allen played wonderful games for the Victorias but with all their efforts were unable to keep Chic Fortune from scoring in the 10 minutes overtime. Chic was assisted by Stanton Small at center. Immediately upon the last goal being scored the Victorias met the champions of the town league on center ice and congratulated them upon their victory. The referee, Mr. C. M. Oney then presented the silver trophy to the Shamrocks. The line-ups were:

- | Shamrocks | Victorias |
|-----------------|------------------|
| Jos. Boldovitch | Willard Allen |
| L. Galipeau | Eddie Cappiello |
| Geo. Maxwell | Stanley McDonald |
| Stanton Small | Center |
| Purcell Fortune | Wing |
| A. Picard | Kirby |
| Subs. | |
| R. Walker | |
| Dug. Fortune | Harold Walsh |

Westmount High vs. H'don Academy.

The second game of the evening was between Westmount High School and the seniors of Huntingdon Academy. The visitors were a brilliant team and showed much training and speed. In the first period Ewing notched the first and only goal. In the second period Smithers scored for Westmount followed shortly by Tedstone retalliating for Huntingdon. Towards the end of the period Ewing again scored for the visitors making the score read 3 to 1. The final period proved a most exciting one and it was thought on several occasions that the local boys were going to be able to tie the score but alas with poor results, and so the game ended in the visitors favor. The line-ups were:

- | Westmount | Huntingdon |
|-------------|-----------------|
| C. Budge | Goal |
| A. Smithers | Defence |
| A. Nesbitt | R. Maxwell |
| Center | Morris Hunter |
| L. Ireland | Wing |
| J. McKeown | Ferry |
| H. Ewing | Tedstone |
| Subs. | |
| H. Eaton | Tedstone |
| | Purcell Fortune |

The semi-finals of the Huntingdon Town League were played on Saturday night when the Maple Leafs and the Victorias met in a battle not to be forgotten for many a day. The game was keenly contested and from first appearances looked like a victory for the Maple Leafs. Leo Cappiello, although seriously crippled as we all know, played a most outstanding game in goals. He was penalized for two minutes on account of making his brother take a tumble, and during this time two goals were scored. At the end of the third period the game stood a tie, four all. To decide the game it was decided to play until a victory was won and it took 25 minutes before the deciding goal landed in the Maple Leafs net. The line-ups were:

- | Maple Leafs | Victorias |
|-------------------|-------------------|
| Leo Cappiello | Willard Allen |
| Leo Cappiello | Eddie Cappiello |
| Graham McGerrigle | Denis Kirby |
| Arthur Allard | John Wells |
| Cecil Tedstone | Jimmie Barrington |
| | L. Elder |

The second game of the night was between the boys of McGill, (Presbyterian College) and the Seniors of Huntingdon Academy. The first period proved interesting and of good speed, but as the local boys had the edge on the visitors the play slackened down to a marked degree. A good attendance was present and the rink will be able to add a tidy sum to their treasury. The line-ups were:

- | McGill | Huntingdon |
|---------------|-----------------|
| H. McGerrigle | Goal |
| R. McGerrigle | Tom Barrington |
| H. McGerrigle | Defence |
| T. Jopping | M. Hunter |
| Forward | R. Maxwell |
| McKenzie | Chas. Faillie |
| Henry | C. Perry |
| McCrimmon | E. Tedstone |
| Subs. | |
| McLeod | Cecil Tedstone |
| | Purcell Fortune |
| | Donald Maxwell |

1st Period—Faillie and Tedstone for Huntingdon.
2nd Period—Henry of McGill and Tedstone for Huntingdon.
3rd Period—Hunter for Huntingdon.
Both games were refereed by Mr. C. M. Oney.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD IN UNITED CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Hanson Special Speaker at Services at Tea Meeting.

EDIFICE 45 YEARS OLD.

Mr. W. F. Stephen Gave 40 Year Reminiscences of The Choir.

Sunday, 28th. February, was observed in the United Church as their 45th anniversary, and Dr. Hanson of Montreal preached morning and evening to appreciative audiences. His subject in the morning was "The Unique Gospel Message." In the evening it was the "Resurrection," his text being "I know that my Redeemer liveth." This was Dr. Hanson's first visit to Huntingdon, and the United Church will welcome his return.

The minister, Rev. J. I. Hughes, at the morning service stated that on the 25th of February 1881 the present church edifice was dedicated to the worship of God by the Rev. Ezra Stafford then President of the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada. On the amalgamation of several Methodist bodies in 1884 and in 1888 the name was changed to the Methodist Church and last June 12th., a tablet was put on the front of the Church with the words "United Church of Canada, 1925," thereon, thus the Church has passed through two changes in name since its dedication.

At the evening service Mr. Mowat assisted and the choir had appropriate music.

The 1st of March, Monday evening, tea meeting was not favored with good weather, and it was surprising how many were present. An excellent supper was served, and about 8 p.m. Mr. Hughes took the chair, made a few remarks about the absence of Rev. Mr. Naughton, Mr. Mowat and Dr. Maclean and called for a duet from Mrs. Reese and Mrs. Fortune. A new speaker then appeared, when Mrs. Benson delighted all with her rendering of "A Country Store," and a dorkie's speech on "Half-way doins."

Mr. Stephen then gave 40 years reminiscences of the choir. He said there are four other members of 40 years ago still living. Mr. John Dunsmore, Mrs. Blachford, Mrs. F. Gardner and Mrs. Geo. Biggar. Mrs. Dunsmore was organist, except a brief interval when Misses Neville and Kinniburgh played, till 1907 when some thought it a pity till 1907 when the pipe organ was installed, and some thought it would be a "white elephant." Miss Carter became organist and Mr. Smithson and Miss Sellar have officiated in the succeeding years. Always there has been a fair number of sopranos, often a shortage in other parts. No quarrels have disturbed the harmony and each minister has recognized the value of this choir. The members enjoy the sociability as well as the weekly 3 hours of practices, and hope ever to attract youth and ability, so will they continue.

Mr. Hughes thought the choir must be a heavenly place if there was no scrap in 40 years and expressed his appreciation of his singers, especially of Mrs. Reese, who was worth her weight in gold, and whom he would now ask for a solo.

The speaker of the evening Dr. Hanson then introduced and invited it was a pleasure to come to Huntingdon. He recognized Mr. Hughes' capability and to hear of no discord—not even vocal!—in a Stopping The Export of Power.

In Canada there is a division of opinion as to whether or not electric power should be exported to the United States. This is a question in which we, residents of a border district, have more than a passive interest. At the present moment large quantities of electricity are being exported from the power plant at the Cedar Rapids, and a company is now offering power in Huntingdon county which is being developed in the United States.

Last week the Premier of Quebec introduced a bill in the legislature which has as its object the prohibition of export of all electricity developed under the Province's supervision. The most important clause reads:

"Every sale, lease, or grant whatsoever of water powers, belonging to the province or in which it has rights of ownership or other rights, made on or after the date of the coming into force of this act, shall contain a clause prohibiting the exportation outside of Canada, of electric power which may be developed in this province."

Another clause makes it possible for the prohibition to be made retroactive so as to apply to present development, while a penalty clause is inserted calling for the cancellation of the lease if any violation takes place.

On the 15th. of June last year the Dominion House of Commons discussed the same question, and while no legislation was then before the House, a resolution was adopted to show the attitude the House took. It is well to remember that the resolution was moved by a Conservative member and after the Prime Minister suggesting an alteration, that this was made and then unanimously adopted. It read:

"That in the opinion of this House the export of hydro-electric power from Canada should be permitted only on a yearly license, and that hereafter no license for the export of power beyond that already granted should be issued except with the concurrence of the province or provinces in which it is proposed to develop such power."

Reading these two extracts together it is seen that the Province of Quebec is definitely turning its back on the exporting of power to the United States, and that the federal government will in honor be bound to recognize its action. It may only be a minor move on the chess board of our international relations with the United States, but electric power is becoming a more valuable asset than gold resources, and if the bill now before the Quebec legislature becomes law, there can be no doubt but that industries must come to Quebec to secure our power.

The Tale of the Shirt.

The Customs' enquiry at Ottawa is moving slowly ahead. Masses of files are being brought in and chartered accountants have been engaged to weed out that which is of value to the committee. In addition, Mr. R. L. Calder, K. C., has been engaged to bring order out of the tons of papers and submit the facts to the committee. It is well that this is being done for the first ten days of the enquiry brought out nothing but conflicts of political opinions and loosely worded evidence. The people of this part of the Province are convinced that there must be something wrong and they are anxious to see that those guilty are punished, and for that reason it would disgust them if the enquiry were to slip into a political wrangle, one that ended with a divided report and which instead of punishing the evil-doers would provide a shield to their past history.

For that reason the meagre evidence of the first two weeks was disappointing. The only witness of importance was Mr. Sparks who gave reports of what others had told him, but little that he was prepared to vouch for himself. Only once did he venture into deeper water and then he erred. He had been declaring that prison-made goods were exported to Canada. This is contrary to our law, for years ago the Labor unions claimed that this was a species of unfair competition and their request, that goods of this manufacture be banned, was granted. Mr. Sparks is a manufacturer of garments having a factory in Hull, so when he declared on the stand that he had recently bought a shirt in a store in Ottawa which was prison-made in the United States one of the committee men demanded that he produce the shirt. This he did, but then declined to definitely swear that it was a prison-made garment, contenting himself with the remark that the makers were known to sell prison-made goods, besides those manufactured in the ordinary manner in their factories. It weakened the contention of Mr. Sparks and again threw his evidence back into the hearsay category. This was not improved when on cross examination he remarked that when his organization had considered the advisability of moving a vote of commendation to the Dominion Government after the smuggling regulations were strengthened last year, it had been decided to wait until after the elections. As Mr. Sparks was a prominent speaker on Conservative platforms during September and October, his evidence suffered. This is not what the people want and it is to be hoped that from now on facts and not guesses will be submitted to the committee for consideration. The country is not interested in political evidence. It wants facts.

The British Breed.

An English immigrant of 1902 is now contesting a seat in the city of Regina; if successful Hon. Charles A. Dunning will come to Ottawa as Minister of Railways. Twenty-four years ago Charles Dunning came out as a humble immigrant, with no particular standing behind him, save that of clean blood and an honest family heritage. He did not come to Canada in the cabin of an ocean liner, but in the steerage. He worked hard, used his head and succeeded. Men of that type when they arrive at the top we appreciate, yet we are inclined to question the men and women who come from the British Isles to-day. For some reason or other we now associate steerage passengers with the "dole" system, and think that we must discourage all. The reverse should be the case. Great Britain has not gone to seed overnight. There may be tens of thousands of parasites who are willing to loaf, but there are tens of thousands of Britshers who are willing to come and help Canada become a greater and better country. We place the responsibility on the government departments to bring these people, but most of us lend but a poor hand to help those who come among us. This summer should see a heavy influx to Canada, and it is our duty to go among the newcomers, make them welcome, help them to adopt our ways and thus help them and Canada. It may be chance, but it is significant that the great majority of the British immigrants who have come to Canada since 1900 and who have risen in power and influence, have nearly all settled in the West. The Canadian West has been more cosmopolitan with fewer social divisions, and the East may learn a great lesson in that from the West.

CHATEAUGUAY

The members and friends of St. Andrew's Literary Society had the privilege of listening to an interesting address last Friday night in the Church Hall on "The League of Fellowship" by Mr. W. H. Goodwin of Montreal. The speaker commenced his address with a talk on "Patriotism" and said it was born, not made, and should be encouraged. He thought Abraham Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg was a masterpiece of patriotism. He also spoke of the degeneration of patriotism. Mr. Goodwin then spoke of Fellowship. Man calls for Fellowship in Church, in Literature, in Art and Business. Great proof that man is hungry for Fellowship is, by the number of "Service Clubs" that are in existence to-day; they use songs to break down barriers. He spoke of the "Craft Guilds" of the Middle Ages, when Edward III became a member; there are seventy of these Guilds in existence to-day. What is needed in these days is more personal communication to bring back Fellowship in business, more Fellowship in the Church of Christ. Jesus said "I am the vine. Ye are the branches." No two of us has the same point of contact; each one must find his niche, his point of contact, that point of contact depends on what he can do, and upon opportunity. We cannot bear fruit at the point of contact unless we have fellowship at the centre. The great desire should be a Fellowship with Jesus, with every one should stand by one another and administer the love of Jesus, at his daily point of contact. The machinery of industry, society and politics would then run smoothly. Miss Alexander, President of the Society presided. She introduced and thanked the speaker.

The February meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the Manse in the absence of the President, Mrs. G. Hornsby. BEAUHARNOIS

On Wednesday evening last, the congregation and friends of St. Edward's Presbyterian Church, had the great privilege of listening to all "Foreign Devils" by Mr. Wallace Goforth speak on various aspects of missionary life and work in his native land. Mr. Goforth is a son of the Rev. Dr. Goforth, pioneer missionary in Honan, China. He is about twenty-seven years of age, and as an 8 months old infant escaped with his parents from the infuriated Boxers who were intent upon the massacre of all "Foreign Devils". The story of this thrilling adventure sounded like a page out of one of G. A. Henty's books and fascinated the boys and girls who were present. In the very short time at his disposal, Mr. Goforth was only able to touch at points in the life of China that might interest his mixed audience—the "thrills" for the boys; how the little girls dressed, and did their hair, etc. for the girls; social and marriage customs, for the ladies, and politics for the men present. A fine tribute was paid to General Feung, who as a Christian is about the worst treated man by many in China to-day. Scurrilous reports were in circulation about this brave reformer and warning was given to pay no heed to such as they were merely the outcome of envy, mad jealousy and political intrigue. Mr. Goforth's parents have both addressed meetings in Beauharnois in years gone by and those of us who remember the fire and zeal of his father and the deeply spiritual tone of his mother's words, realize in some small degree how thankful they must be to have a son so closely following in their steps. Mr. Goforth expects to return to China when his college days are over, as a Christian educationalist. His brothers and sisters are also preparing for missionary work in the land of their nativity. Especially fine were Mr. Goforth's closing words, when he referred to his parents' heroism, particularly what it must have meant to his mother to leave a home of luxury and refinement to endure the hardships and danger to which they were exposed in the early days of Honan. "They counted not their lives dear" that endured as seeing Him who is invisible and they are now on their way back again, General Feung having sent for Dr. Goforth to become the Chaplain of his army.

Parliamentary News

Specially Written for the Huntingdon Gleaner.

Ever since Mr. Bird moved his amendment to the Speech from the Throne, that "The question be now put", the House has been passing through a period of protracted debate, which may be over by the time this appears in print. Speakers after speaker arises with nothing new to say, and generally no particular ability of saying that, and then holds the floor for one, two, three or four hours according to his staying powers.

Back Bench Oratory
During the past week the back benches of the Conservatives have handled all the floor for the Conservative fire of oratory, and they have been permitted to go with few interruptions.

Mr. Gott is one of the puzzles of the House. He does not appear to have any particular abilities, and what little is known about his previous efforts refer only to his organization of some amateur baseball and hockey leagues in Essex counties. Nevertheless, he defeated the Right Hon. George P. Graham by a good sized majority. His efforts for the first two months consisted of hammering his desk on the least provocation being given. However, he finally spoke and the puzzle still remains unraveled. His speech had nothing in it as far as example, one of the problems that was: what is the difference between a Scotchman and a canoe?—a canoe sometimes tips. Undoubtedly the new members are being in solutions to national perplexities! In the course of his speech he read a letter which he had sent to his electors at Christmas; we quote one paragraph as an example: "With a hearty 'Thank you' for the fine manner in which I was received throughout the constituency, and with the wish that the Almighty in His wonderful providence may permit you to enjoy a beautiful Christmas season with a flow of yuletide blessings, and bring you peace now and forever, is the earnest wish of your representative in my Christmas message of thanks and good cheer, in which I sincerely extend to all a Merry Christmas and a Bright and Happy and Prosperous New Year."

Baldwin's Style
The night before, Mr. Baldwin, the Liberal member for Stanstead took the floor and gave one of the most involved grammatical speeches that has graced this session. He was constantly in trouble with the Speaker over terms that he had thrown at Conservative members and lobbyists, and after declaring that a certain type of men who hung around the corridors at Ottawa and molested the members in their rooms to be "crooks, hot air artists and shysters", Mr. Lemieux found it necessary to interrupt with the suggestion that "it would be well if the hon. member would pay regard to the dignity of parliament and adhere to the king's English."

Mr. Baldwin, while not an orator, is known as a shrewd businessman, and one who has accumulated a large fortune. Indeed his possessions are such that every baby born in Stanstead county has a dollar deposited to its credit—and such an offer in a county in Quebec, is no trifling matter. He went after the front row of the Conservatives, and his language was so unusual that we quote: "Moving down the front row I come to that flowery and gifted orator from West Calgary (Mr. Bennett). He will give him credit for being able to smile at almost anything; for having a great conception of humanity and knowing that you can gain more in this world by smiling than by growling. Next I come to the hon. member for South Winnipeg (Mr. Rogers) who delivered a most eloquent speech and whose eyes were closely confined to his work. The next was the hon. member for Argenteuil (Sir George Perley), a polished gentleman, but he like all the rest decided that this parliament could stand only for hours or days. They did not reduce the time to minutes, but they said: You have no right here; your action is unconstitutional. Then the hon. member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) made a point blank bid, stating that this parliament could run for four years or even its full length of time under certain conditions on the part of a group in this House whom I highly esteem. I move down until I come to the vile vituperation of the hon. member for Frontenac-Addington (Mr. Edwards) who attacked the Chair.

Mr. Speaker: I must ask the hon. member to withdraw the expression "vile vituperation".

Mr. Baldwin: Thank you very much. He attacked the hon. member for South East Grey (Miss MacPhail), and when he attacked the hon. member for Quebec South (Mr. Power) whom he skinned, scalped and dissected. He said that he could not find a particle of the hon. member's being that was fit to deck an outhouse, and I knew what he meant.

Rumour of Changes
These rumours coming from a Liberal member must of course be discounted, but there is no doubt that Mr. Baldwin was expressing the private opinion of others in the House as well, for the tactics followed by the strategy board of the Conservatives has been weak. Mr. Baldwin had been referring to the attitude of the Conservative front bench on the confidence motion which had featured the opening week of the session, and its consequences to the House alignments.

Everything has now the appearance of a Liberal-Progressive government with a House majority of ten. The Liberals have elected their leader, and Mr. King takes his seat this week. Mr. Dunning has come into the cabinet, and this has been a slap in the face to the Opposition. The reason is simple to find. Ever since Mr. King announced that he would welcome Mr. Dunning into his cabinet—and this was early in the fall—the Conservatives have been making political fuel out of his delay in coming in. They have said: "Ch. Dunning knows when he is well off and won't leave a sure thing to join a wobbling government", but now Mr. Dunning has come in, and their eulogues of his judgment and foresight are now backfiring.

Everything may be happy and serene in the Opposition ranks but nasty rumours have been making the rounds, and the chief Conservative Whip on Friday thought it necessary for him to rise and deny that there was any thought of ousting Mr. Meighen from the party leadership. He found his reason for this in an article in the Toronto Star, but the Star is known to be as liberal as the Gazette is Conservative, so the query is why did Mr. Boys think it was necessary to make a public denial? More interesting is now being taken in the organization of the Conservatives than the Liberals, because the Liberals apparently have straightened out their organization, while the Conservatives may be leaning towards a change.

House Criticisms
In between these peculiar outbursts some interesting speeches were made. Mr. Geary of Toronto spoke well, and his attack on the Rouyn railway was well prepared. In part he said: "As to the chronology of the matter a question was asked in March of last year. In reply to that question the Minister of Railways said that the Canadian National Railways had suggested to capitalists that if they would build this road it might be leased. We know nothing further of it than that. The capitalists did not appear. Certain capitalists, so-called, representing bond-holders, have taken the place of directors, so we are told on the Rouyn Railway Company board; but as construction men, railway men, they do not exist. They are used only for convenience as representing the money that has gone into the railway and these people representing the bond-holders or trustees for the bond-holders are no more capitalists constructing the road than any other purchasers of bonds issued by the Dominion government in respect of construction. That was in March and things were then pretty well under way. On April 3, 1925, shortly after the minister had spoken, the Rouyn Railway Company was incorporated by the legislature of the province of Quebec. There must have been a great deal of discussion before that; the matter must have been pretty well completed and ready for crystallization if it was not already crystallized. This House was then in session, it sat until June 27, and on April 3 the railway company had got its incorporation. The minister had considered the proposal to build the road and everything was in train to bring the matter before the House for discussion if there was such a great hurry about it. There was sufficient time to have it taken up in the House if the government deemed it so urgent. On June 3 it was reported to the Canadian National Railways that negotiations had taken place with the Quebec government as to its grant of free lands and as to the guarantee with other parties of $20,000 per month. So that the whole thing was ready for consumption and it could have been brought before the House if it had been the intention to deal with it in the normal legal way, and to have it incorporated in a bill which could be subjected to discussion. Other branch lines were discussed during last session and this one could have been discussed also. But that was not done; the thing was allowed to drag through the summer until the election came on. On September 14 there began a series of council meetings and there was a great rush. The Rouyn Railway held its famous little meeting at which it was said that such and such might be the case. "Here is a form of lease", they were told, "and if you approve an arrangement can be entered into". And so went on. On the 21st the Canadian National Railways met and accepted the proposition and on September 26 the cabinet met and presumably discussed this important matter in its different phases and passed the necessary order in council.

It is a matter which perhaps it is difficult to bring closely to the attention of the House, I have endeavored to assure my hon. friends opposite that I am finding no fault with the acquisition of railways in the four provinces contemplated by the act of 1915; nor am I here finding fault, although there may be room for discussion, with the building of the Rouyn railway. I might or I might not agree with it; I am not given an opportunity to consider the matter.

The Need of the Railway
Later on Mr. Cahill, member for Pontiac, made a reply. The Railway passes through his country. "As you are aware, the Abitibi district is one of the finest colonization districts in Canada. It is peopled by the best colonizers we have ever had for a timbered country—the only people, in fact, who will at any time colonize our northern timbered districts of eastern Canada. There are in the neighbourhood of 30,000 sturdy French-Canadians in that country who are making a magnificent showing in developing the territory along the Transcontinental railway. In 1924, when the Rouyn district began to open up, when the mines were proven to be very good prospects, I interviewed the Minister of Railways and asked him if it would be possible to connect up the Rouyn district with the Abitibi district, the distance being only some forty-five to fifty miles. The Minister of Railways informed me that no action could be taken by the minister or by the government, except at the instigation of the board of directors. I interviewed Sir Henry Thornton and some of the directors and I also interviewed the Premier of Quebec, Sir Henry Thornton, as I recollect, told me that he would not be responsible for undertaking any new construction in Canada unless it could be profitable or that he would be reimbursed in some way by a subsidy for the period of time at the beginning of its operations when the railway might not be profitable. His officials investigated the possibilities of the country and the feasibility of building a railway, and they were satisfied that there would be a profitable business in the very near future. Mr. Taschereau was also anxious to see a line built in from the Abitibi district in order to link up the agricultural district with the mining district. The agricultural district had become developed to the point where the people were ready to export a certain quantity of their product. As they are far from the central markets of eastern Canada, if a market could be found in the upper part of Quebec it would be profitable to both the mining and agricultural districts. The negotiated with the province of Quebec first for a land grant, but Mr. Taschereau had apparently made up his mind there would be no more land grants. They continued negotiations until Sir Henry Thornton and his board were able to get from the Quebec government a grant of $50,000 a year for the first five years of operation.

Sir Henry Drayton: Has that guarantee been given yet, or is it still to come?

Mr. Cahill: It has been given.

Sir Henry Drayton: Does the thirty per cent regulation apply to that also?

Mr. Cahill: I do not know about that. I understand, and I believe my hon. friend will bear me out, it is a common regulation between companies under an agreement of this kind.

Sir Henry Drayton: Not with a mileage like that. It means the guaranteed is worth nothing.

Mr. Cahill: The Quebec government are to give a grant of $50,000 a year and the Noranda mines have guaranteed $20,000 a year for the first five years, making altogether a guarantee of $350,000 from the Quebec government and this company in lieu of any loss in operation and the expense of constructing the road. Instead of condemning Sir Henry Thornton and the government for this deal, my hon. friend from West York should commend them for making a deal that will save to the Canadian National Railways $350,000 in the next five years.

Sir Henry Drayton: I do not think I once mentioned the name of Sir Henry Thornton. My whole point was whether the country had a right to believe in the word of the government. Apparently it has not.

Mr. Cahill: The whole thing seems to hinge on, I was going to say, hair-splitting.

Sir Henry Drayton: No, common honesty.

Mr. Cahill:—but perhaps that is not the word. I will say that the whole thing seems to hinge on a technicality. My hon. friend is raising a point on a technicality when the result of whatever he claims is wrong-doing, if any, is to save to the Canadian National Railways $350,000 in the next five years. It becomes my hon. friend to condemn that action when he cannot point to any previous arrangement whereby the Canadian National Railways were reimbursed by any provincial government in the Dominion. That the territory is good was proven by the fact that the Ontario government were willing to build and they were anxious to build. The Canadian Pacific will, I believe, build into the territory, and I hope they will. I also hope the Ontario government will eventually construct a railway in there. I would be glad to see all three of them built railways into that territory, because the construction would be warranted. But the Quebec government had spent millions of dollars in colonizing the territory along the Transcontinental railway at not one dollar of expense to the Dominion government while we were spending considerable sums of money in attempting to colonize other parts of Canada. The Quebec government brought these people in, opened up roads for them, built bridges and roads over the country far beyond anything else that has been developed in Canada during the same period.

I would like to have the hon. member for West York pay a visit to the Abitibi district and also to the Rouyn country and see for himself the benefits that will accrue to that territory by the construction of these railways. I am sure that if he did, instead of criticizing, he would commend Sir Henry Thornton and the board of directors for the action they have taken. The work is necessary, and the only point of difference between my hon. friends opposite and hon. members on this side is the method by which it is done. The only means by which the Canadian National Railways could get an offer of $350,000 was that which they adopted, and it was under a statute passed by my hon. friends opposite. Now they quarrel as to which statute should be adopted, the one passed in 1919 or the one passed in 1915. That point is of no concern to the people of Canada, except that the method adopted is one by which the people will save $350,000.

Mr. Geary: Does my hon. friend wish to give the House to understand that the grant of $350,000 is conditional on this matter being put through not in the House but by order in council?

Mr. Cahill: My hon. friend knows very well that the Canadian National Railways could not ask the Quebec government to construct a line of railway in that province.

Sir Henry Drayton: Why not?

Mr. Cahill: When the people of the province of Quebec are shouldering their part of the responsibility for the Canadian National Railways why should they be asked to contribute to the construction of a branch line in that province when we are building branch lines all over Canada at the expense of the Dominion? Why should the people of Quebec be made to pay the shot in this case? That seems to me the whole burden of the grievance of my hon. friends opposite.

Mr. Nicholson: Can the hon. member point to anything in the lease between the government and the Rouyn company that indicates that the Canadian National Railways are building the railway?

Mr. Cahill: I have read neither the lease nor the agreement, but if I did and did not have more information on the subject than my hon. friend I should be ashamed to make any statements in this House in regard to the construction of this railway such as he has made. He made the statement, only last night, I think, that no tenders were called for, whereas as a matter of fact tenders were required. The contract was let to Messrs. Chambers, McQuigge & McCaffrey and Foley Bros., all respectable people, whose head office is at 611 Excelsior Life Building, Toronto.

Mr. Nicholson: I rise to a question of privilege: I did not say that no tenders had been called for. The statement I made was that under the terms of this agreement there was no obligation on the part of the Canadian National Railways to call for tenders and that the road was being built by a dummy company.

Mr. Cahill: It would not matter much whether it was being built by a dummy company or by a loud speaker company; that would neither help nor hinder the work. The fact is that the railway is necessary and that it is being built at the lowest possible cost. The Canadian National Railways have been assisted by the government of Quebec and the No. 4 mines to the extent of $350,000 to reimburse them for any losses in operation in the next five years, and I am sure the people of Canada will approve of that kind of railway construction at any time, in any part of the Dominion, especially when the Canadian National Railways are being protected as they are in this case.

Sir Henry Drayton: That is the point. Mr. Cahill: That point does not enter into it at all. The Canadian National Railways, under a statute passed by the Conservative government between 1911 and 1921, were at liberty to construct the railway in this way and apparently it was a distinct advantage to them to do so inasmuch as they got an advantage of $350,000. Evidently they considered that worth while and they came to the government for its sanction and obtained it. The railway will be constructed and will be of great benefit not only to that part of the province of Quebec but to the Dominion as a whole.

DUNDEE
The Ladies' Aid Society of Zion United Church were very pleasantly entertained on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wm. McNicol. The day being nice there was a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen present. All spent a very pleasant afternoon together. At the close of the meeting luncheon was served by the hostess.

Huntingdon's Own Enterprise Has Brought Us Opportunity For Service.

The TOWN OF HUNTINGDON was here long before we came. For a hundred years, in fact. The law of cause and effect prevails in human affairs. If communities were not on the earth, we would not be, either. For our mission is to serve communities, the homes and industries which they harbor, and the outlying farmlands upon which the citizens of towns depend for their food.

So, on this earth beneath, as without doubt in heaven above, EVERYTHING GOOD IS DEPENDENT UPON CO-OPERATION.

The identity of the first white settler in HUNTINGDON COUNTY is in doubt, though in his searches made in the Sixties, ROBERT SELLAR came to the conclusion that it may have been a man named BAXTER, or some other American on Lot 24 or 25 at the western limits of the town. But whatever his name, the arresting fact is that he remained—AND SO HAS HUNTINGDON.

So, from the decision of that white man to remain, came a rendezvous of pioneers who became neighbors. In the founding of HUNTINGDON it was proved again that EVERYTHING GOOD IS DEPENDENT UPON CO-OPERATION. The COMMUNITY IS ONLY AN INDIVIDUAL, MULTIPLIED. It is as true of the huddle of houses, the church and the schoolhouse, set in some lonely expanse of ALBERTA as it is of MONTREAL or LONDON or NEW YORK.

In human life there is no such thing as standing still. The man—or the city—either CLIMBS OR SLIDES.

HUNTINGDON CHOOSES TO CLIMB.

If HUNTINGDON had not wanted our service, we would not be here. SHE DID! So did the prosperous and progressive farmers living between here and Malone. A PUBLIC UTILITY IS A PUBLIC SERVANT. We were called to minister to the GROWING-PAINS with which this Section is now cheerfully suffering. HUNTINGDON asked for the ELECTRIC TREATMENT that has gained tremendous popularity in ONTARIO and in the States below the line.

WE'RE GLAD WE CAME! Our little office, that is already too small for the business demands your interest and your patronage are putting upon it in these first weeks, is humming with activity. If we're a bit slow, we ask your patience; we could not have foreseen a rush so early, and we're doing the best we can as the old sun swings higher toward the jolly Spring. We'll stay with you as the robins mate again. And through the coming lovely Summer into another winter's snows.

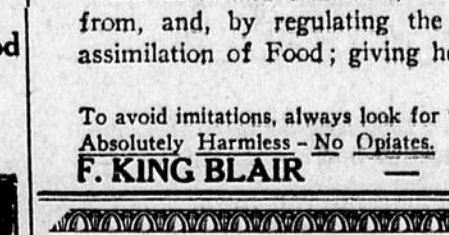

HUNTINGDON asked us in; asked us to get busy. We are! Thank you! . . . And Merci!

Breakers Drift at Brookside

Marcia Talbot was reading by the fire when Mr. Peabody announced that a gentleman wished to see her. The good woman was in her usual state of excitement over the advent of a caller. Never, in all the while that Mrs. Peabody had lived in Brookside, had her living room seen so many masculine callers as Marcia's coming had brought. Here it was, nearly ten o'clock, an hour when most people thought of retiring, and Mrs. Talbot was visited by a strange gentleman.

Marcia was a trifle surprised. The only man whom she knew at Brookside were the Inspector, Richard Verrinder and Manning, none of whom she expected to see to-night. However, the visitor was at once admitted to her rooms. She had been reading by the light of the lamp placed near the fire, and the rest of the room was in a shadow so that, for a few moments, she could not make out the features of the man who stood smiling at the door.

"Glad to see me, Marcia old girl," his hoarse voice echoed strangely in the sanctified atmosphere of Mrs. Peabody's home. "She gave a low cry. 'You!' she gasped. 'They said you were dead!'" "Well, they exaggerated, then. Although I must admit, I've been dashed near dead, a lot of times. I was on my way here when an inhospitable tree took the opportunity to fall and clump me on the head. Knocked me cold, it did. Since then I have been the guest of those charming people at the Manor House. Delightfully hospitable, they were. I really hated to leave there. I pretended that my memory had gone, and they took such compassion on me that I've had a perfect whale of a time. In fact, I have escaped their solicitous attentions, to-night, only by a little stratagem."

"But Solly," she ignored his flippancy. "What are you doing here?" "That is scarcely the way to frame a greeting, Marcia," remonstrated Solly Royal. "I called at your place in London, and I found my beautiful sister gone. I inquired whither from a very worthy landlady—I notice your penchant for respectable landladies, Marcia. It is a delightful touch of humor. At any rate, I was directed here."

"How thoughtful of my landlady," murmured Marcia. "Naturally, though you'd be glad to see me, I pictured an enthusiastic welcome. I had a most infernal walk from the junction to this beautiful suburb—lost my way in the very devil of a storm. I was just about to ask my way at the first house I came to when this tree came down on my ranium, and postponed my inquiry."

"But—you mustn't be seen here. Why not? This isn't a bad place to be seen in. As a matter of fact I'd prefer to be seen at the Manor House. They do you, Solly, well there. They know how to treat a perfect gentleman. But why mustn't I be seen here? What's the game?" "Solly! You'll spoil everything!" "Come now. Out with it. What is the game? That there is a game I am certain. It is like my talented and lovely sister, who buried herself in this dead and alive hole in the middle of winter for the sake of winter sports or the scenery. No, I feel that there is something in this which brother should know more."

Marcia Talbot drew the curtain closer and turned the key in the door before she replied. "In strictest confidence, eh?" breathed Solly, watching these precautions with a sardonic smile on his lips. "Well, shoot!" "Solly, haven't you been reading the papers?" "Not often. They take in such dull rags at the Manor House. There is a monotony about the straight truth."

"Haven't you heard of the murder of Jim Potter?" "Not a whisper. Personal friend of yours?" "Don't be ridiculous. He was at Brekers' Drift. Have you forgotten him?" "Solly Royal ransacked his brain. For a man who has lost his memory, I do awfully well," he remarked. "You'll have to be patient with me. Yes, I do believe I do remember the fellow. Where was he murdered?"

"Here—at Brookside." "Good heavens! This is a cheery little place. If their trees don't fall down on you, they arrange it some other way. What was he doing over here?"

"He was here to blackmail Adrian Manning." "Adrian Manning? Is he here too? Brekers' Drift appears to be well represented here at Brookside. When they discover I'm here they will arrange for an Old Home week."

"Adrian Manning," said Marcia solemnly, "stands his trial at the Assizes here tomorrow on a charge of having murdered Jim Potter." Solly Royal whistled. He was visibly impressed. "But what possible grounds could Potter have had for attempting to blackmail Adrian?" "You remember that fight you had with Adrian Manning?" "Far, far too well."

"Well, Potter blackmailed Adrian on the grounds that you died as a result of that fight." Solly stared blankly for a moment, and then burst into a loud laugh.

A Loving Brother

Solly sat down and lighted one of Sir John's cigarettes, still chuckling. "Really this is very amusing, sister dear," he said. "I should have remained dead, by rights, but how was I to know what was expected of me? I nearly did die, as a matter of fact. I spent some time in the hospital—in the slackest hospital that ever was. No real staff or anything of that kind—just a shanty. There were several fellows who died there that winter. Yes, Potter could have got away with it, all right. It's rather a joke."

"And to joke, Solly, I tell you if coming here, you will spoil everything," cried Marcia vehemently. "Very unisisterly of you, dear," adjoined her brother. "It is deeply distressing to me that my only sister should be grieved at my being alive. One would almost think Marcia, that you would have preferred Jim Potter's accusation to be a true one."

"Solly, will you listen to reason?" "Perhaps, if you explain my feelings will be a little less injured. What have you to do with this affair, anyway? Have you got to give evidence?"

"Yes, Adrian Manning paid me to keep away from the inquest." "Generous fellow, Adrian," murmured her brother. "I don't know where they got that information. I have a suspicion that the man who lives next door to my name is Richard Verrinder, a noisy, vulgar, brilliant fellow—must have found out and told the police. He discovered the principal piece of evidence against Manning."

"What was that?" interrupted Solly. "Never mind what, just now," she returned hurriedly. "Anyway, this business has been in my room several times while I've been out waiting for me. One day, I fancied that my papers had been tampered with. I wouldn't put that past Richard Verrinder. He's in your class."

"Evidently a brilliant fellow. Thank you, Marcia," her brother acknowledged the compliment. "Well, it doesn't matter about him, now. What does matter is that you know. So you've got to keep out of the way, Solly."

"What?" he persisted. "I don't get the hang of your plan, somehow. Do you want me to make out that Manning did murder me? Do you prefer to have me remain dead?"

"That's what I said. That's what I got paid to keep quiet about. If Adrian Manning had not got arrested—or if this fool Verrinder or some other fool—had not got the hang of things, I would have been paid over and over again."

"I see," Solly nodded. "But since the fact remains that he is arrested, the presumption that he murdered me may go towards hanging him."

"I don't care what happens to him now," cried Marcia, with all the fury of a woman scorned. "Solly looked at her quizzically. 'You used to be rather keen on Adrian Manning, one time, didn't you?'" he asked.

"That's my business," she answered shortly. "Solly shrugged his shoulders. True enough. That was Marcia's business and not his. He had his own to consider."

"How much did Manning give you?" he asked. "Again that's my business," "All right. Don't be ratty with your long lost brother. Let's admit that we're birds of a feather—Jim Potter, you and I. We're all after the loot. I've had a very lean time lately. In short, I'm broke. That's why I'm here."

"You'll get no money from me, Solly. I find it too difficult to get any for myself," said Marcia, firmly.

"We'll see about that," was her brother's suave reply. "Leaving out of account your obvious anxiety that I should keep out of the way and hid my identity, there's a little matter concerning you and your ex-husband which forms the object of my visit to this benighted village."

"What is that?" Marcia Talbot threw back her head. "He pays you an allowance?" "He does. You know that?" "On conditions?" "Well?"

"My enquiries about you in London lead me to the definite conclusion nay, I have absolute proof—that you have not fulfilled these conditions. We needn't go into details. Still, you see, if Talbot knew what I know, your allowance would stop."

Check-Mate
Marcia Talbot gazed at her brother with eyes of venom. "You've always been a low hound, Solly," she breathed.

"And you," he said graciously, "are my sister." Then his eyes hardened. "Let's get to business. What will you give me to keep my mouth shut to continue to have lost my memory?"

"I have no more than five pounds in the house." "I fear that is not a sufficient inducement," said Solly. "The fate of my dear friend Manning to be considered. Think again."

"I swear to you that there is no more in the house." "But you can get more. You have a bank account. I shall be content with a cheque. I shall find ways and means of cashing it tomorrow morning. My kind friends at the Manor House insist on my having a morning waik."

"Good night," she replied with her back to him. Solly Royal made his way back to the Manor House. He walked leisurely, knowing the habits of the household. He believed that all would be well at peace with the world. He did not cherish animosity even against Adrian Manning who had stunned him with a blow. Adrian Manning might hang for all he cared. He had a substantial cheque in his pocket with which he would cash the next day. He had a hospitable roof over his head, and if he were found out as an impostor, there was always his sister to rely on. Among those who knew him, Solly Royal was known as a "twister" and a "twister" he would be to the end of his days. His visits were many, but Adrian Manning was not one of these. Adrian had punished him according to the true justice of Brekers' Drift. For this he bore Adrian no ill will. It was, indeed, rather sorry that Adrian had got into such a mess.

Still, as he philosophically viewed the situation, it did not concern him. He walked up the Manor House avenue warily, noting with satisfaction that the house was in darkness. An old and sturdy plum tree afforded him the means of returning to his room. He climbed this castle and reached at the window which he had left open. Here came his first check. The window was now shut and bolted. Solly Royal drew from his pocket a knife and endeavored to force the bolt. He was thus engaged when a voice addressed him from below. "Why not come in by the front door?"

Solly Royal dropped to the ground. Again his expression was one of blank unconsciousness. He faced Philip Byron, who was in evening dress and smoking a cigar. "What have I been doing?" said Solly, blankly. "That's what I want to find out," said the King's counsel. "Come in and let's have a quiet chat together."

Relief for Colds

on the pantry shelf

When you feel a cold coming on, get the red and yellow tin—measure out 4 tablespoonfuls of Keen's Mustard, mix this into a smooth paste with cold water, then stir the mustard paste into a hot bath or footbath.

Congestion is relieved, proper circulation gently stimulated, and the cold driven out—all without fuss or inconvenience.

For chest colds the best remedy of all is the old-fashioned mustard plaster.

HUNTINGDON

In speaking to Mr. J. B. Cooper we were very pleased to learn that he had received a most gratifying letter from his son Duncan who is in Portland, Maine, intimating that he had received worth while promotion. Mr. Duncan Cooper states that the business field in which he is interested is booming and that with the mergers taking place many changes are being made. Mrs. Whiteside Cairns is spending a week in Montreal visiting her daughters.

While carrying in an armful of wood Mrs. A. S. Cleland had the misfortune to fall and hurt her right arm quite badly. Last Friday evening a sleigh load of twenty young people from Moore's Forks gathered at the home of Robert Jackson by way of a surprise. The evening was spent in games and music, after which lunch was served by the ladies. Glad to report Mrs. Robert Clark able to be out after her recent illness.

We have in our midst, Edward Walmesley, a lad of 14 or 15 years of age, who bought the parts of a radio and put it together himself. He is able to get broadcasting stations and hear them very plainly. Spring must be drawing near, for in a barnyard near here young lambs are playing about and hens are wanting to set, although King Winter hates to give up his grip. By the way, he has given us a heavy fall of snow this week.

FRANKLIN CENTRE

Mr. and Mrs. W. Brooks of Elenburg, N.Y. were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks on Thursday. Mr. Smith of the Eastern Townships was the guest of Mr. N. M. Brooks on Tuesday and Wednesday last.

Johnston read a report of the Convention clipped out of the paper, as she was unable to attend owing to Mr. Johnston's illness. One member was added to the roll, Mrs. Alex. Blair, and there was one little White Ribboner, Grenn Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waller. Altogether it was a very successful meeting. A bountiful lunch was served by the hostess, to which all did ample justice. Quite a number attended the special meeting held at Rev. Mr. Schamehorn's on Sunday evening which was very interesting and instructive.

EDWARDSBURG

On Wednesday, February 26th, the M.I.S. entertained the audience with a delightful surprise in every way. The platform was occupied by Messrs. Kirk, Alslph, Miss A. Moore and the Rev. Younger and Mrs. Lewis. A very instructive and amusing debate on Linen, China, Milk and Tea was thoroughly enjoyed. Mrs. D. Lowe rendered a delightful selection on the piano, while the singing by Mrs. Bell was thoroughly enjoyed. Refreshments (also a surprise to about 50 people) concluded one of the most enjoyable evenings of the M.I. Soc. February 26th marked the passing from us, of one of our oldest and well known members in Mrs. Fletcher Percival. For 35 years she was an active worker in all parish work, especially in Red Cross work during the Great War. The later years illness claimed her. She leaves her husband, one daughter, and three sons to mourn her loss. Sympathy is tendered by the whole of the community.

About 35 people were present.

On Sunday, Feb. 28th The La Patrie Hockey team made a second visit to Valleyfield. The visiting team scored first and the Valleyfield boys put up an advantage in a struggle in front of the goals. The teams were the most evenly matched teams seen in Valleyfield this year. On their first visit they were defeated by the score of 2 to 1, but this time they played the game to a tie, overtime periods being played. The people were well satisfied with the game.

Mr. Robert Reid of Montreal was the Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. The hockey match between Gault Institute and Ormstown was one of the week end attractions, a sleigh load of fans making the trip to Ormstown Friday night and returning early Saturday morning. The game was swift and hard, taking much out of both teams, and resulting in victory for Ormstown, the score being 4-2. Ormstown ran up its score early in the game, holding Gault to what appeared would be a shut-out until the last period, when there was a rally on the part of the visitors and two goals were made, one by Willie Cooke and the other by Ernest Talbot who is acquiring a reputation for steady and consistent playing, having scored in the last four games. After the match a social played. After the match a social played. After the match a social played.

The sleigh drive held on Friday night by the Boy Scouts was an extremely enjoyable and entertaining affair. After a drive about the town the boys returned to the Gault Institute where a sing-song was staged and ample food for hungry boys was served—beans, sandwiches, cake, ice cream and candy forming the mainstay of the menu. Mr. Sid. Anderson, bandmaster, amused the party by a series of clever imitations while several cyclone boxing matches formed an agreeable part of the program. Rev. J. G. Greig, Mr. A. Reid, Dr. C. L. Roman and Scoutmaster A. Anderson were present and spoke shortly to the members on the value of the

"I shall have to ask you to bring me a certificate of your age. When you go home, ask your mother to write me a note telling me when and where you were born."

After lunch, when the children were re-assembled in the school-room, Matthew presented himself at her desk, flushed with triumph. The glow soon faded from his face, however, as he felt in his pockets and failed to find the note his mother had written. He began to cry.

"What is the matter?" asked the teacher. "I've lost my excuse for being born!" sobbed Matthew.

We are puzzled to know in which of its aspects March 1st made its debut, that of the lion or of the lamb. The cold was not severe, the temperature ranging between 10 and 20 degrees above zero throughout the day. STRICT CONTROL OF TRANSPORT OF BEER SOUGHT

Shipments by Other Than Steamboats or Railways to be Regulated.

Quebec, March 1.—Not only is the Government determined that the closing hour for taverns, restaurants and hotels, shall be maintained at 10 o'clock, instead of an extension to 11 o'clock, as first stated, but amendments will be brought down this session to control more effectively the transportation of beer in the province. Premier Taschereau today confirmed the decision of the Government not to extend the hours of sale from 10 to 11 o'clock.

The Assembly today, incidentally, also gave first reading to a bill, in the name of Hon. Jacques Nicol, provincial treasurer, to amend the alcoholic Liquor Possession and Transportation Act. The intent of this, it was explained is to provide for a system of permits on the part of the Quebec Liquor Commission on all beer transported by railway or steamboat. The idea the Government has in mind is that the transportation of beer has become too brisk, and by this amendment to the law the commission will have power of control of transportation, other than by railway and steamboat, so that permits of transport may be cancelled. Hence, for the future, when beer is transported in the province a special permit will be required from the commission.

In connection with the government's attitude in regard to the whole matter of the amendments to the liquor law, there is under study on the part of some members a motion for production of documents by means of which the matter will be debated in the House. In any event, there promise to be interesting debates when the amendments to the Liquor Act itself, and to the Transportation Act, are before the House.—Gazette.

MALONE VILLAGE

BUDGET ADOPTED Last week the Malone Village Board held its last meeting of the fiscal year and adopted a budget to be submitted to voters and raised under section 110 of the village law without a vote amounting to a total of $142,347.79. If the entire budget carries the tax rate would be about $30 a thousand. If only the street program recommended by the Board for the coming year carries the rate, it will be in the neighbourhood of $22,000, which is about the same as last year. The street program offered by the Board calls for $19,000 submitted in one proposition. Besides this $12,000 for the improvement of Elm street and $20,000 for the improvement of East and West Main street are submitted on petition. The Board has laid out a program for 1927 covering these streets, provided the heavy appropriations called for are not voted at this time. Of course, all village streets cannot be improved at once and the program of the board covering two years' work seems to be a wise one. The following are the items in detail to be submitted to vote:

Collection of garbage, $1,500; Social Service, $200; visiting nurse $1,200; improvement of Elm street $12,000; support of local band, $1,500; purchase of Beacon lights, $1,365; salaries of president and trustees, $2,000; Williams' Road, $20,000; municipal ice rink, $500.

In addition to the above proposition to be voted on, the following amounts will be raised under the provisions of Section 110 of the village law not requiring a vote: Street lighting, $16,000; police fund, $9,000; fire fund, $11,000; salary of clerk $2,000; salary of treasurer, $350; assessors' hire, $150; bonds and interest, $7,492.25; expenses of health officer, $1,500; maintenance of state highways, $153; vital statistics, $100.

All of the above items constitute $142,347.79 referred to. The proposition submitted on petition, in addition to the Elm and Main street improvements are for the local band, salaries of president and trustees and Wadman's Reading Circle. The others are submitted on motion of the Board.

If the Elm street and East and West Main street propositions do not carry the following is the street program proposed by the Board for 1927: West Main street, from Rockland to Wellington, $2,700 for macadam, $1,600 for tile, a total of $4,300; East Main street from Clay to Center St., $5,300 for macadam, $1,200 for tile, a total of $6,500; Jones street and Highland Ave., $2,000; Edward street, $4,500; Clark St., $1,000; Williamson St., $1,500; Webb Ave., $700, a grand total for 1927 of $20,500. It is also proposed then to lay a ten-inch water main through Elm street to Lawrence Ave., out of the savings of the water department at an estimated cost of $12,000. If the Elm street appropriation called for this year should carry the work would probably have to wait until the new water main is laid. The Board's street plan for the two years seems to be the wise one, and we have no doubt that the amount called for and expended in 1926 will be adopted by the taxpayers.—The Farmer.

One rink from Howick and one rink from Ormslow journeyed to Quebec last week to take part in the Quebec Bonspiel, when around one hundred and sixty rinks met to contest the different trophies. The Howick rink, skipped by Mr. S. Stewart ran into hard luck and were eliminated in the second round of the Chateaugay competition, but the Ormslow rink display their staying powers and got into the Centenary Final, where they were defeated by four shots by the Three Rivers rink, skipped by C. O. Baptiste. The Ormslow rink also are elected to play again this week in Montreal in the Finals for the Inter-City Trophy.

The line-up of the Ormslow rink was as given below, and the scores in the Semi-final and Final for the Centenary Trophy are given below.
