SQ nabs Bury pot grower

Following an investigation lasting several months, the Sûreté du Québec Eastern Townships Regional Investigation Division (REED) conducted a search on a property on Route 108 in Bury early Thursday. About 140 cannabis plants were seized from the residence and the garage area.

A 28-year old suspect was arrested at the scene and will face charges of producing cannabis. Some of the seized plants were mature but another portion of the production was at an earlier stage of growth, demonstrating that the suspect was planning some turnover in production cycles.

Motorcycle cops back on the road

The traffic division of the Sherbrooke Police Services (SPS) is deploying its motorcycle cops to help ensure motorist safety. The 'biker' squad patrols the region every day with the aim of enforcing the rules of the road.

"Motorists do not realize that the police are there to ensure their safety," says SPS Lt. Yves Rancourt.

"They save lives in their own way. Speeding in the streets remains the thing that most people complain about to city council, but it's the offence they whine most about when they're caught," Rancourt added.

The mandate of the motorcycle police is to enforce speed limits even though they always give motorists some leeway.

Surprise in store for moms

Surprise, mom, I made you soap! LES students Ryan, Cole, Jillian and Tayvia show off the beautiful soap they made as a Mother's day Surprise.

By Matthew McCully
Special to The Record

Lennoxville Elementary School (LES) grades one and two have been working on a special gift for Mother's Day.

Under the supervision of teacher Cathy Dustin, the 92 students combined an environmental awareness exercise with a Mother's Day gift by making home made soap.

Dustin let the kids choose their favourite molds, and decide on the colours, and used essential oils to give them a nice scent. She discretely enlisted the help of dads and volunteers to supervise the activity, which took five weeks for the students to complete. "We learned a lot about soap," said Dustin, describing the process.

Lennoxville moms are in for a treat when the kids get home from school. On behalf of the staff at The Record, Happy Mother's Day.

"Now that mail must go through Montreal, I doubt that delivery can be less than two days."

Canada Post to move local mail through Montreal

Canada Post has transferred the sorting of local mail to Montreal from Sherbrooke, Magog, and Asbestos, in a move that could affect up to 350 workers.

Beginning this Saturday, the Crown Corporation will begin removing about half the mailboxes in local neighbourhoods, as the centralization of mail sorting will no longer require users to sort their mail into local and non-local categories.

"As of next week, a letter mailed on the corner of a Sherbrooke street will go through Montreal before being delivered to the other side of the street," local union president Pierre Avard told Sherbrooke media, adding that the change could not help but affect service to the public.

Up until now, local mail was sorted in Sherbrooke, while external mail was sent to Montreal, but Canada Post's new mail-processing strategy provides for the transfer of this kind of work to larger centres to capitalize on current operational capacity while respecting delivery standards, an assumption Avard questions.

"Normally, local mail is delivered the next day. Now that mail must go through Montreal, I doubt that delivery can be less" he says.

This change is part of an overall strategy to centralize the Crown Corporation's operations affecting forty offices in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and Labrador, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and, Quebec.

Canada Post expects these changes will generate savings in the affected areas and that these savings will be achieved through a reduction in overtime. Job reduction, however, may occur through attrition.

"At the Sherbrooke office, the employer considers that there is an excess of 6.1 sorting personnel out of 42 full-or part-time staff. Currently, we're not talking about layoffs, but the situation is worrisome. Especially since the revision of delivery routes is underway and we've been told about a reduction in staff requirements equivalent to about 10 per cent," he said.

"Also, fifteen part-time employees working 8 hours a day will have their time reduced to 4 hours per day or 20 hours per week. And some evening-shift workers will have to switch to the night," Avard concludes.

Sherbrooke-Montpellier twinning becomes official next month

SHERBROOKE

Sherbrooke will officially become a sister city to Montpellier, France, next month, representing joint ventures in tourism and health. A Sherbrooke delegation will take part in a tourist mission to its new 'sibling' in mid-June to sign the twinning agreement, according to Sherbrooke's La Tribune.

Montpellier has cooperation agreements with 11 cities on four continents. Of these, only Sherbrooke has been considered as a "friendly city." Under this arrangement, representatives from both cities have convened to discuss major themes, whereas "twin cities" implies working cooperatively on concrete projects.

Sherbrooke City Council endorsed the Montpellier pairing earlier this week, the French daily Midi Libre announced. Sherbrooke officials will do the same in the coming weeks, said Sylvie Proulx, Press agent for Mayor Bernard Sevigny.

Sevigny will then travel to France in mid-June to sign the cooperation agreement with Montpellier. City councillor Rémi Demers, vice president of Destination Sherbrooke, as well as two representatives from the tourism organization will accompany the mayor on a scenic three-day mission that will include the development of tourism projects. All Montpellier twin cities will be represented.

A Sherbrooke delegation participated in the first cultural and economic mission to Montpellier, last fall, which helped launch three projects. And Sherbrooke Innopole is developing its key life sciences sector by improving the niche for medical equipment and instruments. The University of Sherbrooke will also develop a student exchange program and a joint tourist event will also be organized by the two cities. Partnerships between Sherbrooke and other cities twinned with Montpellier could also eventually see the light.

The city of Montpellier is located in the Languedoc-Roussillon region in the South of France. It has over 250,000 inhabitants, three universities, and is recognized as one of the best places in the world for high-tech companies to be nurtured and grow. Its economic development agency also served as a model for the creation of Sherbrooke Innopole.

Other cities twinned with Montpellier include: Louisville, KY; Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Chengdu, China; Heidelberg, Germany; Barcelona, Spain; Kos, Greece; Fes, Morocco; Tiberius, Israel; Bethlehem, Palestine; and Tiemcen, Algeria.

CREE demands action on Conteneur Rock Forest case

Record Staff

The Regional Environmental Council of the Eastern Townships (CREE) is responding to recent news about the litigation involving Conteneur Rock Forest (CRF) and is demanding that the Minister of the Environment take charge of the situation.

In a communiqué released Thursday, CREE points out that Conteneur Rock Forest is breaking the rules for certification (it doesn't have one), but also the Act respecting environmental quality and asks if the company intends to live up to its legal obligations, and how it intends to do so after selling off most of its equipment.

According to CREE, the media, although pointing out the company's certification problems, have tended to ignore the impact the company is having on the environment.

According to the notice of noncompliance sent to CRF by the Ministry, "petroleum hydrocarbons were identified in the eighteen (18) samples. Eleven (11) samples exceeded levels prescribed in Schedule II in the regulations on the protection and rehabilitation of contaminated land. Incidentally, the presence of metals such as copper and zinc has also been detected in some samples. These elements constitute a threat to surface water and groundwater and because of that, to water protection groups.

CREE is not quick to hand out blame in this case, however. It agrees with the City of Sherbrooke that it should tighten the rules in its calls for tender when awarding contracts for the recovery of materials from its ecocentres. The Ministry, for its part, should have from the beginning provided a binding approach rather than a voluntary one. "It is difficult to blame either municipal or provincial ones; it can be difficult for bureaucrats to opt for regulatory and judicial remedies when available resources are insufficient. In this situation, it becomes inevitable that they would emphasize conflict resolution and mediation.

The situation with Conteneur Rock Forest unfortunately illustrates the weakness of environmental mediation in some situations. CREE believes the Ministry must be given adequate resources to avoid this type of situation.

Lifting the veil on mental health in the Townships

By Matthew McCully
Special to the Record

National Mental Health Week provided Townshippers with an opportunity to shine a light on issues that often remain in the dark.

"Nobody in Knowlton suffers from depression or mental illness," joked Linda Ransom, a Knowlton resident who openly struggles with depression. She has hosted a support group in Knowlton for 16 years, inviting people to gather to discuss their struggles, and share their successes. The meetings are held discreetly, because Ransom believes the stigma associated with mental illness still prevents people from coming forward and seeking treatment. "Nobody wants to talk about it," she said.

As Ransom sees it, illnesses that manifest physically are unavoidable, and usually dealt with openly, but mental illness is something people can't see; and people don't understand what they can't see. She suggested people are more likely to put up a front than talk about how they are really feeling. "The statistics are there," she said, "most suffer in silence and don't get the help they need."

Tim Wisdom is a Counselor at L'Éveil, located in Cowansville. It is a community resource that works to maintain the social reintegration in the community of people suffering from mental health problems. Wisdom does one-on-one counselling in French and English, and also assists with referrals.

"The worst thing to do is not talk about it," Wisdom said. He insisted that breaking the taboo is important, saying that as many as one in four people are likely to develop a mental illness at some point in their lifetime. In addition to counseling, Wisdom has a radio show on CIDI, where he discusses a different mental health-related topic each month, and occasionally invites guests to share their experiences.

For the second year, L'Éveil will host a talent show. Sortir de l'Ombre (coming out of the shadows), which will take place at Theatre Tournesol, 331 Chemin Brosseau, Cowansville, Friday May 10 at 7 p.m. Clients from L'Éveil will sing, read poetry, and share their recovery stories, giving the subject matter visibility in a positive context. Admission is free, but tickets should be reserved through l'Éveil, to ensure the event is not overbooked.

Mental Health Estrie Executive Director Judy Ross shows off donations to the Walk in my Shoes HUGS program, including nine boxes of scarves knit by Butler Elementary students and community members through an Établissements verts Brundtland (EVB) initiative to think globally and act locally.

Who is affected?

Mental illness indirectly affects all Canadians at some time through a family member, friend or colleague.

- 20 per cent of Canadians will personally experience a mental illness in their lifetime.
- Mental illness affects people of all ages, educational and income levels, and cultures.
- Approximately 8 per cent of adults will experience major depression at some time in their lives.
- About 1 per cent of Canadians will experience bipolar disorder (or "manic depression.")
- It is estimated that 10-20 per cent of Canadian youth are affected by a mental illness or disorder – the single most disabling group of disorders worldwide
- Approximately 5 per cent of male youth and 12 per cent of female youth, age 12 to 19, have experienced a major depressive episode. The total number of 12-19 year olds in Canada at risk for developing depression is a staggering 3.2 million.
- Mental illness is increasingly threatening the lives of our children; with Canada's youth suicide rate the third highest in the industrialized world. Suicide is among the leading causes of death in 15-24 year old Canadians, second only to accidents; 4,000 people die prematurely each year by suicide.
- Surpassed only by injuries, mental disorders in youth are ranked as the second highest hospital care expenditure in Canada.
- In Canada, only 1 out of 5 children who need mental health services receives them.

From the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Mental Health Estrie, located in Lennoxville, is another great resource in the Townships for Anglophones. The organization provides information, support, and education for families dealing with a mental health issue. They have a current lending library, a documentation centre, and they assist with referrals and mediation with health institutions. A support group meets the first and third Wednesday of every month at 10 a.m. for caregivers, and a weekly peer support group meets Mondays for people who have experienced mental illness and are stable.

Mental Health Estrie also offers Tele-Workshops, where a professional from AMI Quebec (action on mental illness) gives a lecture via conference call, and then answers questions. The workshops are open to families, caregivers, and clients of the organization.

Judy Ross Mental Health Estrie's executive director, spoke about the isolation people in the Townships face.

Geographically, the English-speaking population is spread out in small scattered pockets. Services are not always available in your mother tongue, Ross said. Because of the nature of mental illness, and the stigma attached, diagnosis and treatment can be challenging. People sometimes feel too discouraged to return for help if they are not immediately successful, she added.

Ross referenced an educational DVD featuring Mike Santoro known as the 80/20 project. Santoro, a vocal member of the mental health community, has been coping with schizo-affective disorder for more than 25 years. On the DVD, he shares his experiences and tackles important questions about living with mental illness. The main idea behind Santoro' story is that the dealing with mental illness is 80 per cent lifestyle changes, hard work and determination, and 20 per cent medical intervention. There are no quick fixes.

Involved with mental health in the Townships for 15 years, Ross has seen many improvements in services. "People should be far more encouraged to seek help," she said, while asserting there is still more to be done.

Each CSSS/CLSC now has a mental health team, and staff have increased. They also maintain direct contact with doctors in the psychiatry department at the CHUS, which helps with consistency and expedient service.

Ross feels what is missing most in the Townships right now is supported housing. "It just doesn't exist," she said. In cases where clients with mental illness could live independently with moderate supervision, no services are available. People can end up placed in seniors residences, which doesn't suit the needs of the client. In extreme cases, people can end up homeless.

Ross asserts that close to 90 per cent of the homeless population suffer from some form of mental illness. She started a program called Walk in my shoes, HUGS (hats, underwear, gloves, shoes) for the homeless, collecting new clothing items to protect homeless people from the elements. Though the program focuses mainly on winter apparel, donations of summer clothing and accessories are also welcome.

Mental Health Estrie will hold a fundraiser on Friday, June 28 at the Piggery Theatre in North Hatley. Tickets for the event, 'Tophats and Tails,' a dance and comedy theatre piece, can be reserved through the Piggery Box Office, at 819-842-2431 (specify that you would like to purchase a benefit ticket)

Mental Health Estrie is located at 257 Queen Street, in Lennoxville. Drop ins are welcome, but office hours could vary. It is recommended to call first (819)-565-3777

L'Éveil is located at 112 rue du Sud, local 500, in Cowansville. Drop ins are welcome. Call (450) 263-6240 or visit www.eveilcowansville.com

Police Ethics Committee ends officer's career

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

Jessica Gareau a former officer of the Sûreté du Québec in Thetford Mines has seen her police career ended by the Quebec Police Ethics Committee.

The 33 year old pleaded guilty in 2010 to felony charges of fraudulently obtaining confidential information using computers in the Quebec Police Information Centre (CRPQ). She received a suspended sentence accompanied by one-year of probation.

Gareau was arrested in April 2010 along with her life-partner Patrick Madore after Operation Floraison led to the dismantling of a marijuana production and distribution network in Thetford Mines, Beauce, and Lotbinière.

Gareau was stationed at the Sûreté du Québec detachment in Thetford Mines at the time of the events. Her relationship with Patrick Madore, whose record showed a long criminal history and organized crime connections, prompted the SQ to launch an investigation

As part of the investigation by the Joint Regional Squad police watched the activities around a cottage Madore had rented in Stoneham in the National Capital Region and saw Jessica Gareau there.

"The attitude of the police officer at the time of the offences clearly demonstrates, as she testified, that she chose Mr. Madore over her career," says the Committee's report. "For the Committee, she made this choice knowingly. One goal of the law is to protect the public; the Committee considers that a reasonable person informed of the facts should not have to face a police officer demonstrating such behavior."

The committee added that "the well-informed public would have doubts about the objectivity and impartiality in the performance of work carried out by a police officer sharing her life with a man connected to organized crime."

Maureen Quigg: The athletic volunteer

By Olivia Ranger-Enns
Record Correspondent

Maureen Quigg, longtime resident of the Lennoxville community, is always on the run.

She signed up online to be a Bronze volunteer for the Sherbrooke Canada Games last fall. Quigg hopes to work as a hostess for the Games. "Basically, being a hostess means welcoming people, helping out at the Village at Bishop's campus. I volunteered as a hostess for the Youth Canada Games, which were Games for 18-year-olds and younger athletes who came from international countries. It was an amazing experience. We saw Usain Bolt!" adds Quigg.

As a retired community nurse working for the CLSC and school nurse, Quigg moved from Montreal to Lennoxville 40 years ago for work-related reasons.

"I worked with young children, I interacted with elementary and high school kids all the time," explains Quigg. "I've been working with people of all ages, so I feel prepared to be helping out with many different age groups at the Canada Games."

Quigg is mostly excited about the social interaction that will take place at the Games.

"To see distinctly Canadian interaction is going to be wonderful. Of course, every athlete wants to do her or his personal best and must compete with other athletes, but at the same time the Games are a uniting force, bringing Canadians together," notes Quigg.

Quigg has always loved the Townships.

"I knew right away that this place was great in bringing up a family. I have two grown-up boys... well, they're men now, in their forties and fifties... but I loved the sense of community you have here," remarks Quigg.

OLIVIA RANGER-ENNS

Maureen Quigg.

"I love going up to Montreal to see shops, museums, restaurants, a play... that kind of thing. My sister still lives on the south shore, and I often go to visit her. But my home is Lennoxville. I went to visit one of my sons, who currently lives in Australia, for Christmas, but somehow it always feels so good to walk through your own front door!"

"The sense of a small town is always attractive to me. I walk down to the bank or to a shop and I bump into so many people I know. The access to sports complexes are also a bonus here, especially at Bishop's University," says Quigg.

The Lennoxville lady knows a thing or two about sports complexes and exercise. Tirelessly active, Quigg laughs modestly when asked if she is athletic.

"Oh yes! In the summer I jog and walk a lot, I golf, play tennis, swim, kayak and do yoga. In the winter, it gets a bit more difficult but I always find a way of going outside and doing something productive. I cross-country, snowshoe, go walking, have tried my bit at curling and also hit the gym at the Bishop's sports complex to work on the weights. I love Lennoxville, since I can just strap on my cross-country skis and go skiing in town!" she says, waving her hand as she sits in her livingroom, decorated with beautiful Indian silk paintings she picked up on her travels.

Quigg plans on working hard during the two weeks, welcoming athletes and participants with her friend Nancy Robichaud.

Quigg finds lots of ways to give back to her community.

"I volunteer for the Canadian Cancer Society, I volunteer at the local library, and I also give some of time to Uplands," indicates Quigg. "Another volunteer activity that is really interesting is that I have been volunteering as an invigilator for students with special needs writing their finals. In this way, I get to know more university students."

Quigg has many passions.

"I love a bit of everything," says Quigg laughing lightly. "I love to do some photography, listen to music, read good books and cook. I am also learning Spanish with five other women at the Lennoxville and District Women's Centre. I have so much homework these days, learning vocabulary, I think my head might explode!" adds Quigg with a smile.

Very little credibility can be given to an administration who has done all it can to walk away from science based work like the Kyoto Protocol.

Revisionism as a disease

By Francois Tanguay

Not content with wanting to rewrite history, to go back to Royal everything, to celebrate a forgotten war with the Red Coats, the Conservatives are now revisiting science. After attacking the science within the climate debate to justify being the first nation to walk away from the Kyoto Protocol, the Harperites have taken on the science community from a new angle. Science's new main impetus is now to create jobs. "If it don't bring on new jobs it ain't worth funding."

The new Canadian National Research Council will concentrate from now on on practical science, whatever that is, and will tone down work on fundamental research. "We are open for business," stated minister of Science and Technology Gary Goodyear. "The needs of business and industry will now set the agenda for research. Fundamental research should be done by the universities and they have more than enough funds to cover this mandate," added Goodyear. To be clear on this new orientation, basic staff has been let go to be replaced by people... who better understand "our new orientation..."

Funny, while attending a host of UN meetings on climate over the years, I was never made aware that universities were the prime tool of state research and decision making for any nation. It is usually the other way around. Universities are mandated to help with science research for national programs. They feed into national research policies. The best wind up being the ones governments seek for their expertise. They are the ones states eventually rely on for policy making.

The best become leading research teams that include some university graduates seeking experience, in pure scientific work. That is how all major scientific breakthroughs come about. Science by definition is neutral and fact seeking. Researchers observe, experiment, measure and publish their work so we can have a better understanding of where we are. The credibility of any scientific publication has to be backed, after review, by peers.

Who will want to be a peer reader of a paper on job creation? Last I checked glaciologists, climatologists, geographers, geologists did not get involved in their field of research to justify job creation.

Very little credibility can be given to an administration who has done all it can to walk away from science based work like the Kyoto Protocol and the secretariat on biodiversity and has kept attacking any credible scientist who has criticized it. This agenda is clear and the Harper administration is in total denial while facing a planetary emergency. Last week, twelve leading scientists were met by senior While House staff to discuss the alarming rate of the polar meltdown. Meantime Natural Resources Minister Joe Oliver was taking on world climate specialist James Hansen, no less.

Science is the basis for any debate. First facts, then opinions and debate then decision making. Scientists by definition, are not job justificators. Most science is discreet, astray from political bullying as much as possible. It thrives on just that, how independent it is. It takes special circumstances for any given scientist, or group of scientists to speak out publicly. It is only as of recently for example that we have heard the scientific community speak out on the dire consequences of climate change. Why? Because the facts are clear, we are on the brink of a major climate upheaval in our global weather patterns if we don't get serious about reducing greenhouse gas emissions through a much wiser use of fossil fuels in particular.

So what have the Conservatives come up with? "Creates jobs or else!" Faced with more and more evidence on the impacts of using up our tar sands reserve, what have they come up with? Lobbying the European Parliament and both Chambers of Congress in the US. Peter Kent and Joe Oliver are trying to outdo the European 27 and Al Gore? Good luck!

The dismantling of such fundamental institutions does not create jobs, it leaves us with a society in disarray, a science community that will flee to greener pastures. Most probably even our universities will suffer from this right wing agenda.

In the end we all lose, even the 'big C' Conservatives.

Dear Editor:

Changes to credit card rules could hurt Canadian consumers

Canadians don't know it, but there is an active public policy debate underway that could negatively impact how and where Canadians use their cards and the rewards programs they value.

What's being proposed is the elimination of two credit card system rules which currently benefit Canadian consumers. The first, the "honour-all-cards" rule, requires that if a retailer says it accepts Visa or MasterCard, then it must accept all cards with the Visa or MasterCard brand. And second, the "no-surcharging" rule prohibits retailers from adding a surcharge – a retail check-out fee – to customers paying with a credit card. (Stores can now offer a discount for other forms of payment, but very few do).

So why are these rules important and what would it mean for credit card users if they are eliminated? A lot, in fact.

Let's assume the no-surcharging rule is eliminated and stores can charge their customers extra for credit card transactions. The fees that retail stores pay to accept credit cards are already reflected in how stores price their products. Surcharging would be an additional charge to consumers.

In 2003, Australia allowed surcharging in the hopes that retailers would pass on the cost savings to consumers. But that hasn't happened. In fact, some stores are imposing surcharges that are much higher than the cost of their credit card acceptance, sometimes double. So Australian consumers are effectively paying twice for retailers to accept credit card payments.

The Consumers' Association of Canada is strongly opposed to eliminating this rule as are 84 per cent of Canadians according to its research. It's easy to see why.

And what about the honour-all-cards rule? Imagine that you're in the grocery store with a cart full of groceries. You wait patiently in the checkout line but, when you offer your MasterCard as payment, you're told that the store accepts some MasterCards but not yours.

Embarrassing? Frustrating? Maddening? All of the above. But that's exactly what could happen if the honour-all-cards rule is eliminated.

In addition to the negative impact on consumers from changing these rules, retailers also leave out some important facts from the whole debate on credit cards.

Retail stores have many expenses that are part of their costs of doing business including rent, wages, utilities, supplies and a fee to accept credit cards. But what is often not acknowledged is that paying with cash is one of the most expensive forms of payment for retailers and has higher security costs and safety concerns for a store's employees.

Retailers receive many benefits from of credit card acceptance. Credit cards provide retailers with fast and safe guaranteed payment that can reduce lines at the check-out. If every payment transaction took an extra 30 seconds, that would add another 27 million hours of staff time each year. And credit card payments allow retailers to offer customers credit without taking on the risk.

Retailers who enjoy the benefits of accepting credit cards already build their costs into the price of goods and services. But it seems that retailers now want to build that in twice. Is that fair?

If either the rule on no-surcharging or on honour-all-cards is eliminated, the retail experience for Canadians could be drastically changed, and not for the better.

Dear Editor:

McDevitt's got it all wrong again

On May 1 Mike McDevitt in yet another lengthy tirade against Prime Minister Harper stated "This week, it was revealed that the RCHG, with its emphasis on the economy, the end of wastefulness, and national security could not account for $3.1 Billion in its anti-terrorism spending. $3.1 Billion: that's a lot of gazebos! They can't be accused of misspending it because, apparently no one has any idea where it went."

The same day The Gazette reported on the matter. | Some excerpts follow: "Federal departments and agencies spent about $3.1 billion less on public safety and anti-terrorism activities that they were allocated, and there was no explanation for the gap." On the same page: "We didn't find anything that gave us cause for concern that the money was used in any way it should not have been," Ferguson (the auditor general) said at a news conference."

Another way of putting it is that less money was spent than allocated, but no explanation was made as to why less was spent.

That's quite the opposite of what McDevitt said. He still doesn't know the difference between spending less which is what happened and spending without explanations which he claims..

On May 8 in his column he refers to "–the mysterious disappearance of $3.1 Billion that was supposed to keep us safe–." He still doesn't get it, or prefers his totally inaccurate version.

I think Record readers are entitled to more accurate information than we get from McDevitt.

Parents know a thing or two about sex

STEVEN BLACK

Statistics seem to show a decline in the percentage of sexually active teens over the past several years. This surprises me based on what is portrayed on television or represented in music. I've also heard reports from local students as to the kinds of sexual activity taking place on campuses. I heard about one person who boasted to have had 200 sexual "partners" in one year. It tires me out just to think about it and terrifies me because of what this forebodes about the spread of the many sexually transmitted diseases and infections out there that cannot be blocked by condoms and do not have cures. There are others who feel the personal need to have these sexual experiences to feel normal and part of the initiated.

To explain the decline, could it be that they have simply redefined "sex" to being confined to coitus excluding all other forms of activity that involve stimulation, climax and ejaculation? I remember when President Bill Clinton lied to the public with the statement that he did not have sexual relations with a junior aid. Later we found out they had been involved in oral sex and the insertion of other kinds of objects in the vagina.

With the ready availability of all kinds of pornography youth are seeing represented kinds of sexual activity of the basest sort that usually depict women allowing all manner of things to be done on and in their bodies for the - enjoyment usually but not exclusively - of men. The infamous date rape drug is common that has the sole purpose of rendering an individual unable to resist whatever their attacker chooses to do. Sadly there are documented instances that with the use of such drugs women have been gang raped, taken from party to party, videoed while attacked with nary an individual to step in to protect her while others film and tweet the event to friends. Have sexual values been overrun by those depicted in pornography?

Back to the statistics, do they reflect a strange kind of redefinition of what sex is? Or, with dangerous and dehumanizing sexual expression becoming mainstream are some people shying away because they see it for what it is and its risks?

A recent news item in the Gazette featured a new way for people to get information about sex and related subjects by texting. With sexual curiosity and activity among young people, accurate information given in a safe environment has to be a good thing doesn't it? Ignorance and the inability of people to get information or be referred to those who can truly help can't be a good thing for any of us.

Our whole society will bear the consequences of careless sexuality. The photograph featured with the article included two women who have had a vital role in developing this program. In front of them is an image of a computer screen on which is a page from their website (sexted.org). The page has a bold colourful banner on it with the caption, "This isn't your parents' sex ed" superimposed over a banana with a condom on it.

What got me thinking about the issue is what this banner suggests about the reliability of parents to be a good source of sex information. Of course there are those parents who freak out should junior ask anything touching on sex. Old people may remember parents who wouldn't talk about it and of course there is always the mythology that Victorianism runs rampant among the older generations and they just wouldn't understand the realities of today's relationships

NOTE – Studies show that couples in long term, heterosexual marriage are more fulfilled sexually than those in all other forms of relationships. Imagine, odds are your grandmother and grandfather might have had a rather enjoyable sex life explaining the strange phenomenon of your existence.

But I fear that the message most people will associate with the banner is that parents don't know what they are talking about. It reinforces the belief that they cannot be approached on these issues and be expected to stay rational. Parental values about self- control and morality have no relevance whatsoever and are in fact baseless to the real ethics of sex and the practice of sex that is both safe and good for today. Mom and Dad will tell you some things are wrong and they might make you feel bad or afraid and our society seems to promote the idea that negative feelings are unhealthy and counter to liberating us from old fashioned constraints.

Educators themselves seem to believe they are better equipped than parents to understand the world and what values and practices are good for us. Governments have removed the need for parental support or involvement in matters like sexual practice, abortion and treatment of STD and STI.

Contrary to this I want to suggest that parents might actually be the best people to get information from, especially if they are in a healthy, long term relationship called "marriage." They've been through the struggles of the place of sex in relationships and love. They've learned from them. They've probably learned to put sexual passions and practices in their rightful place and have a perspective on self-esteem and true love that transcends sex. And after all this, they probably still enjoy sex. Besides this, a loving parent will stand by the child, and love her far more deeply that any clinician or volunteer or friends through thick and thin. Sometimes information is actually better when it comes from a source that is biased towards love for the individual and a rational, practiced foundation of morality and ethics.

I agree that Sexted is "not your parents' sex ed." In many cases parents are better.

Coaticook Canadian Tire goes flat

Record staff
COATICOOK

Coaticook is about to lose its Canadian Tire outlet in a decision that seems to have taken everybody by surprise.

The Wellington street business will cease operations on May 22, company officials said

The closure not only creates a 'retail vacuum' in the city but has also caused considerable frustration among city leaders. "We are disappointed that the Coaticook stakeholders were not consulted so that we could be part of the solution that could have prevented this closure," says Coaticook Chamber of Commerce president, Dominic Arsenault, "but communication with Canadian Tire Corporation has always been difficult."

Coaticook Mayor Bertrand Lamoureux shares these sentiments and denounced the 'cavalier' way in which he was informed. He also complained of the lack of interest Canadian Tire Corporation showed in updating what came to be called its "school store," because of the many managers who 'learned the ropes' there.

"In recent years, our hardware merchants have invested millions of dollars to revamp their businesses and better serve their customers," Lamoureux says. "It seems that the status quo of Canadian Tire was hiding a desire to close the store in more or less the short term, rather than planning a relocation, despite negotiations that took place between Canadian Tire and the owner of the targeted shopping centre."

Ecotierra: A powerhouse in the carbon credit market

SHERBROOKE

Ecotierra, a developer of carbon credit projects, proudly inaugurated its new facilities on Belvedere Street in Sherbrooke, in an event attended by Bernard Sevigny, the mayor of Sherbrooke, and partners and client organizations such as Borealis, the Host Society of the Canada Games, and the Cegep de Sherbrooke.

Founded in 2011, Ecotierra specializes in large scale forestry and agricultural projects with major socioeconomic impact that generate high quality carbon credits. "Our primary objective is to create sustainable projects that not only promote and conserve natural resources, but do so in tandem with the socioeconomic development of the communities involved," explained Ecotierra founder Etienne Desmarais. "We have an office in Peru as well, where a local team is directly involved in the field."

Ecotierra's growth and project development have prompted it to invest more than $900,000 in the past 30 months, creating five jobs in Sherbrooke and seven in Peru. The inauguration of its new facilities puts the stamp on this new phase in its growth and development. Desmarais underscored the contribution made by its partners by stating: "We have had support from a number of organizations over the past few years, including Filaction, the Fonds Soutien Estrie (FIER) and Sherbrooke Innopole, whose team worked with us at every stage."

In addition to the Castana Corridor REDD (Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation) Project, which promotes and conserves Brazil nut forests, Ecotierra is currently developing the Shade Grown Coffee and Cacao Project, which will result in sustainable fair trade exploitation of thousands of coffee and cacao producing hectares in several years' time. "These projects help to curb deforestation and soil erosion while contributing significantly to higher revenues for local producer families," stated Bernard Gauvin, Ecotierra's marketing manager. "In Peru and Colombia, we have also joined with SOCODEVI, a Quebec agency that support small producer cooperatives around the world." Ecotierra projects follow strict international carbon credit procedures and are approved by independent certification agencies.

The Host Society of the Canada Games – Sherbrooke 2013 uses Ecotierra's carbon credit services. "The REDD and CAMPO VERDE projects in which we are going to be involved with Ecotierra, through the purchase of carbon credits, are important to us and our sponsor, Cascades," explained Patrice Cordeau, from the Host Society of the Canada Games – Sherbrooke 2013. "Ecotierra's effectiveness and drive quickly won us over. Our involvement means we can reduce the ecological footprint of the sport competitions being held this year from August 2 to 17. Our commitment to global sustainability prompted us to get involved in order to offset the greenhouse gases produced by our event."

The Cegep de Sherbrooke, the first college in the world with carbon neutral certification, agrees: "Our GHG commitment is in line with our institutional values. It made sense to offset our residual emissions with a local partner, like Ecotierra for fair trade credits," explained Equipment Services manager Jean Lussier.

"The Cegep de Sherbrooke has always striven to stay active at the forefront of sustainable development. The steps we have taken since 2006 as part of a structured and integrated approach to eco improvement reflect our genuine desire to be eco responsible corporate citizens," added Marie France Belanger, the Cegep's executive director.

The same sense of eco responsibility is the driving force behind the Magog firm Borealis. "Climate change related issues are of great concern to us", echoed Jules Paquette, Borealis president and CEO, "because our work involves helping major mining and energy companies to meet their social and environmental commitments. By offering opportunities for carbon offsetting to businesses, Ecotierra encourages us to meet our responsibilities and neutralize our climate footprint."

Purchasing carbon credits is not restricted to large companies and organizations. Basta Communication in Sherbrooke also uses Ecotierra's services. "In a consumer society, we have a duty to act and to take responsibility for our actions," stated Patrice Cote, president of Basta Communication. "I encourage Sherbrooke businesses to get into step and explore the issue with Ecotierra. This program is really very affordable and by increasing the number of participants, we can make a real environmental difference."

Bernard Sevigny, Sherbrooke's mayor, emphasized the importance of reducing our carbon footprint, stating that "Like all communities the world over, our institutions, organizations, and businesses see climate change as a compelling issue. People are urging us to commit to reducing our greenhouse gases, a commitment made by the City of Sherbrooke some years ago."

Chloe Legris, director of business development for the Cleantech sector at Sherbrooke Innopole, expressed her pride in having a company like Ecotierra in Sherbrooke. "We are delighted," she claimed, "to have been able to contribute to the development of Ecotierra and its unique expertise. It is a leader in its field and a key player in an emerging economy committed to green, socially responsible practices."

Ride like the wind

Good Reads

Eleanor Brown

Yay spring, it has finally sprung. And for many, it's time to learn how to ride a bicycle. Whee!

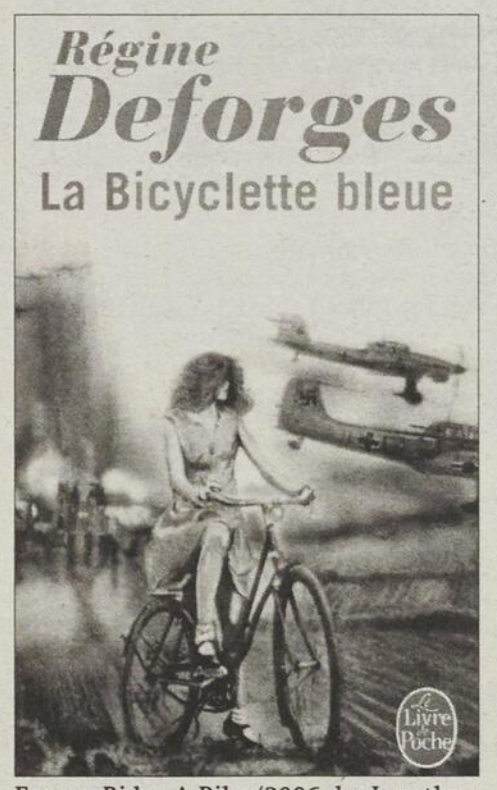

Yet for some, removing those training wheels is very scary. Franklin the Turtle falls when the training wheels are gone. Falling off hurts, and it's embarrassing, and Franklin decides that he just will never learn. So he puts away his pretty red bike and, sadly, watches his friends pedal off without him.

But Franklin's parents explain to him that learning to ride a bike takes time, and hard work. And slowly, Franklin begins to realize that the time and work are worth it.

The Franklin series is very popular, in both English and in French. En francais, Franklin is known as Benjamin. Check him out in Benjamin a Bicyclette (1997, by Paulette Bourgeois with pictures by Brenda Clark, filed with a blue dot).

For parents who worry, there's Safety Bicycle (filed under the book title, illustrated by Sue Wilkinson, 1988, also a blue dot book). Your guides are Gina and Danny Raccoonelli. Bestest hints: don't wear a scarf that can get caught in the wheels, and don't bike by dogs that love to chase after two wheelers – both for your own safety, and for that of the dog.

For kids who are a lot more excited about learning to drive a bicycle, there's Froggy Rides A Bike (2006, by Jonathan London with pictures by Frank Remkiewicz, blue dot). Froggy is so keen on his spanking new two-wheeler he jumps out of bed and rides off in his jammies! Or at least, that's the idea.

Froggy also must learn to keep his balance and ride like the wind!

Eventually, some (older kids) spend all summer on a bike, even riding to school. Trouble On Wheels, by Ann Aveling (1993, orange dot), features boy detective Hunter Watson.

Someone has destroyed classmate David Pruitt's new bike, paint gouged, tires slashed. The kids gang up on an oddball, beating up the suspect. But new bikes keep getting trashed.

Hunter needs to find out who really did it. As well as cope with his friends, who are getting all googley-eyed about girls. Humph.

Here's one last biking book, this one for grown-ups. La Bicyclette Bleue (1981, by Regine Deforges, in adult fiction) is a romance novel with Nazi edge. Our heroine, Lea Delmas, is the middle daughter of a grape grower and wine maker in France. She is 17 and, just days before the beginning of World War II, discovers that the man she loves is about to marry a rival. Her effusive declaration of love changes nothing.

She is instead courted by an infuriating rogue and then agrees to marry a man – a boy! – she's not seen in a year.

This book takes us through the war. And the bicycle? Lea grows up, and that blue bike allows her to run messages through Nazi lines to the Resistance. And all the while, she hopes to rekindle a connection with her first love.

Getting personal

Chesney reveals himself in new album

Country Connection

JESSIE AULIS

With Kenny Chesney ready to hit the road with his summer tour, the timing was perfect for a new album from the country singer. So Life on a Rock is here, only a year after his last album, Welcome to the Fishbowl.

The album is made of songs that Chesney wrote in a personal journal, and were initially never meant to be heard. The 10 tracks show off the 45-year-old's more contemplative side. This time around, Chesney uncovers even more of himself in the personal tracks of the new album.

This work defines Kenny Chesney, and who he is at this time in his life, both as a man and as an artist. It is quite different from the commercial-grade music that has sold tens of millions of dollars of concert tickets for Chesney.

While most of Life on a Rock references island life, the songs are about getting away from the chaos of daily life, the first single released, "Pirate Flag," is a rowdy beach anthem reminiscent of

John Cameron

MAURICE SINGFIELD

John Cameron. Now there's a name that resonates throughout the Townships music scene. He has been with STOP! since its inception some six and a half years ago, bringing his audio expertise to the production table with a dedication and responsibility hard to find anywhere.

We started working together back in 2002, in the days of Le Festival Sunnymead Inc., a non-profit that was dedicated to promoting local musicians through the production, recording and manufacturing of CDs.

John developed his passion for music and recording while living at home as a child. "It was a regular event, going to bluegrass jams and concerts with my father," recalls John.

"When I was 12 years old my father bought a bass and hung it on the wall in the living room...I would pluck its strings and listen to it resonate. That led me to buying an electric bass and experimenting with rock and blues...I played in a bar band called "The Mad Hares of March" and always took care of the sound system."

Laughingly, John remembers: "My first audio engineering experience was the day I helped my father set up his new sound system. I started noodling with recording in the mid 90s with friends, but it was more like fooling around than capturing something for real."

Today, things have changed. John has a house in Knowlton, a wife and daughter and a home recording studio. He is regarded as one of the best audio engineers in the Townships, for both studio recording and live sound reinforcement (shows, festivals etc.).

Over the years John has recorded many Townships artists (Sarah Biggs, Mike Goudreau, Amos Joannides, Desert Heat, Matthew McCully, Michael Hynes, Stanley Lake, Oliver Klaus and Donald Patriquin, to name a few) and continues to utilize the latest technology. Actually, anybody can build a home studio with today's affordable gear, but there is something else needed when it comes to producing good tracks.

"A good percentage of my knowledge was gained through experience," says John. "You can go to your local music store and walk away with a home recording rig for a couple of thousand dollars, and some people think they can create topnotch albums with these tools. I've always said my grandmother can buy an F1 car, but she will not win the race!"

His work at STOP! TV helps promote artists and the area in today's video-centric world, giving them exposure on TV and the Internet. In his words: "It's important for local musicians and groups to get exposure. With our crew they can get professional production."

Country Connection

his many fun-in-the-sun party songs of the last dozen years. There is an honest feel to the lyrics and arrangements than we haven't heard on a Chesney album in a long time.

The East Tennessee singer wrote four numbers and co-wrote four of the other songs. There are light moments, as in the duet with Willie Nelson (another excuse for Nelson to make marijuana references) on the breezy "Coconut Tree," but the focus is on real-life characters ("Lindy") and on taking a moment to count one's blessings (the title song).

"Lindy" is a soft but uplifting song about a homeless man. An island man, who, most brush off as a crazy homeless man, but Chesney saw more and he sings, "But I believe he's the salt of the earth, just look past his dirty shirt and you will see just what he's worth."

One can almost call it elegant in its deeper look at someone most men of Chesney's wealth would ignore.

"Marley" is an introspective piece about what Marley's music means to Chesney, and again, this song offers some of the most revealing lyrics Chesney has ever given us. If you enjoy Bob Marley's music and the ocean, you will love it.

"When I See This Bar" is truly reminiscent of Toby Keith's "I Love This Bar." The song paints a vivid portrait as he sings about himself. "I see a kid, coming into his own and a man, learning to move on/Somehow trying to find his way/A dreamer bettin' on blind faith/and chasin' that sun and followin' his heart. Yeah, that's what I see, when I see this bar."

Fans will love the bluesy feel of the awesome "Must Be Something I Missed." On the title track, "Life on a Rock," Kenny Chesney counts all his blessings, and there are many reasons for him to be grateful.

On this album, we clearly get a glimpse into the world of Chesney, and it is fascinating and diversified. "Spread The Love," featuring The Wailers and Elan, is a reggae laced tribute to the style of Bob Marley.

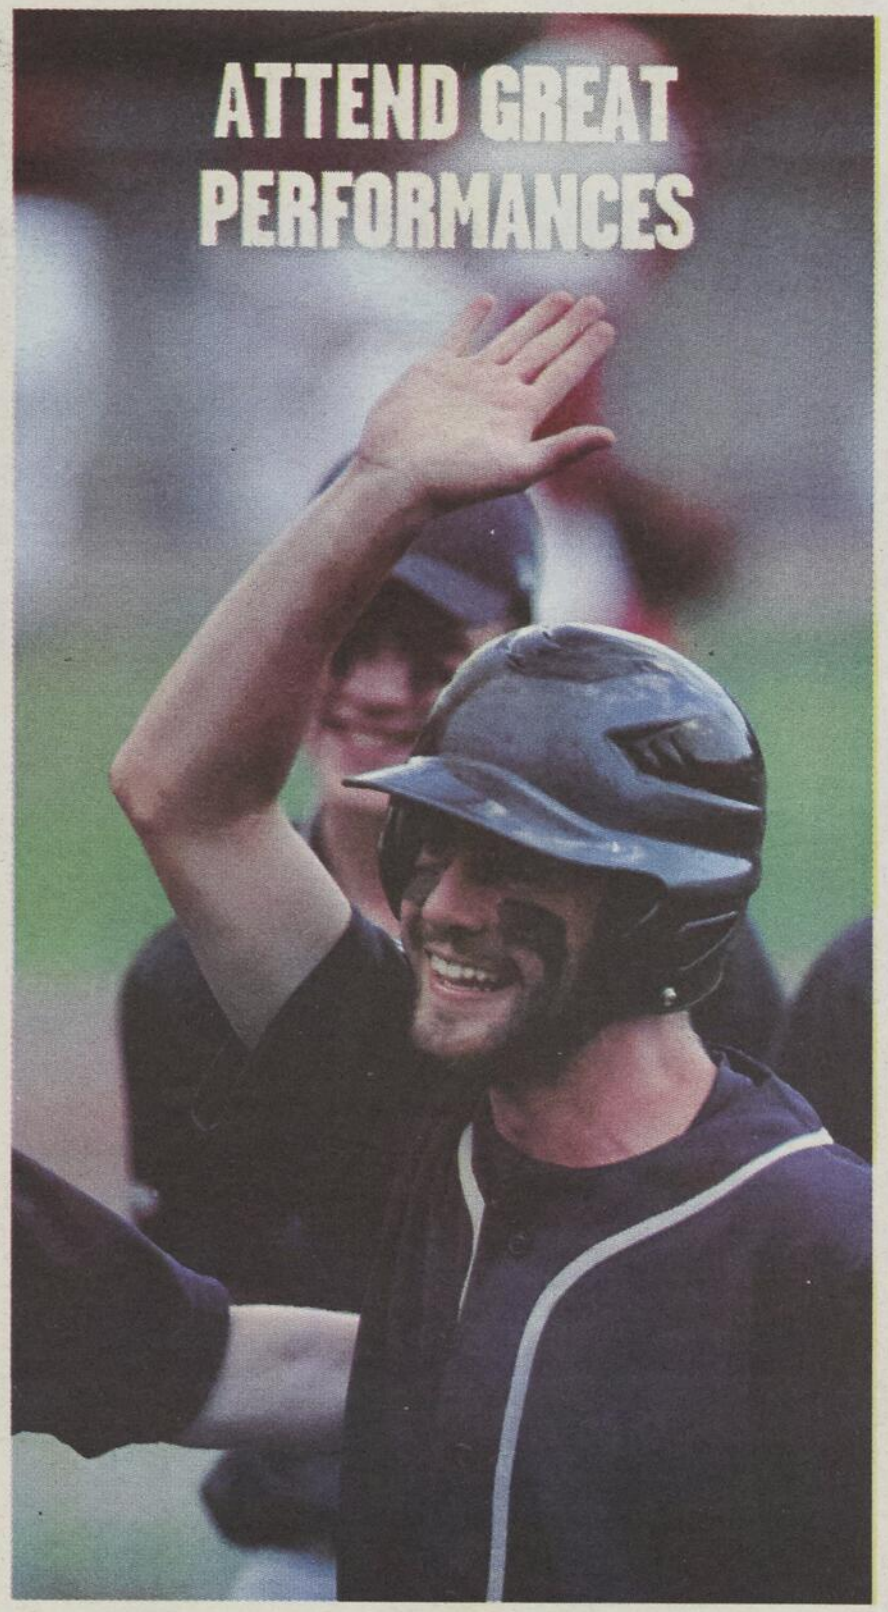

This new album might be a bold move for the artist, considering that most of the new country rockers are selling millions of albums, modeled on Chesney's pounding arena rock sound.

But, to his credit, Chesney follows his muse and offers up an album that exposes his weathered soul. The result is as appealing as it is surprising.

The heartbreaking "Happy On The Hey Now (A Song for Kristi)," the last of the ten, could not be more different than the opening track. Written about, and for, a friend who died suddenly at the age of 35, this is simply one of the most honest and revealing songs Chesney has ever written and recorded. It is also stunning in its simplicity and vocally, Chesney has never sounded better.

The mood is relaxed with songs that highlight the artist's love for the Caribbean (and Jimmy Buffett), and while the collection doesn't break any new ground, it shows off Chesney's always-comforting voice and songwriting talents that too rarely emerge.

Chesney has recorded 15 albums, 14 of which have been certified gold or higher by the RIAA. He has also produced more than 30 Top Ten singles on the US Billboard Hot Country Songs charts, 22 of which climbed to the top of the charts.

'Young and the Restless' star Jeanne Cooper dies at 84

By Lynn Elber
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jeanne Cooper, the enduring soap opera star who played grande dame Katherine Chancellor for nearly four decades on "The Young and the Restless," has died. She was 84.

Cooper died Wednesday morning in her sleep, her son the actor Corbin Bernsen wrote on Facebook. The family confirmed the death to CBS, according to a network spokeswoman.

She was in a Los Angeles-area hospital, according to Bernsen's spokesman, Charles Sherman, who said the cause of death was not immediately available.

"One of the last great broads in our business — Jeanne Cooper, Mom — is now stirring up trouble in great beyond," her family said in a statement.

Cooper will be remembered "as a daytime television legend and as a friend who will truly be missed by all of us here at the network," said Nina Tassler, president of CBS Entertainment, adding that the actress brought "indelible charm, class and talent to every episode."

Cooper joined the daytime serial six months after its March 1973 debut, staking claim to the title of longest-tenured cast member. The role earned her 11 Daytime Emmy nominations and a trophy for best actress in a drama series in 2008.

"God knows it's claimed a big part of my life," she told The Associated Press in March as CBS' "The Young and the Restless" celebrated its milestone 40th anniversary.

On April 12 Bernsen tweeted that his mother faced an "uphill battle" for an undisclosed illness. In subsequent days he wrote of her gradual improvement and said that she'd been taken off breathing equipment.

In a Facebook posting April 17, Bernsen said his mother cursed several times, "showing me that she's becoming her old self, not thrilled about the situation, and ready to get out of the hospital and shake up the world."

On Wednesday he wrote that she remained a fighter until the end: "She has been a blaze her entire life, that beacon, that boxer I spoke of earlier. She went the full twelve rounds and by unanimous decision... won!"

Cooper, born in the California town of Taft in 1928, attended the College of the Pacific and performed in local theatre productions before her professional career began with the 1953 film "The Redhead from Wyoming" starring Maureen O'Hara. Other film credits include 1968's "The Boston Strangler" with Tony Curtis and 1967's "Tony Rome" with Frank Sinatra.

She had a parallel career in TV, with shows including "The Adventures of Kit Carson" in 1953 and "The Pepsi-Cola Playhouse" in 1954 and "Bracken's World" in 1969-70.

In a recurring role on "L.A. Law," she played the mother to Bernsen's character, Arnie, and received a 1987 Emmy nomination for best guest actress in a drama.

"I love the running, and listening to AC/DC makes me run faster. I run and go to the gym four to five times per week for one hour..."

Matthew Willson is armed with strong pipes for running and acting

A Runner's Mind

Christine Blanchette

Matthew Willson is a Canadian award-winning actor, producer and owner of his own sand and gravel business. When the 39-year-old native of Paris, Ontario who currently resides in Hamilton, isn't on the road acting, doing radio spots or working at his company, he loves to hit the road running.

In a recent phone interview he revealed how he caught the acting bug, and expounded on his journey to health and fitness. Willson is a great example of the cliché, "Life is what you make it," because this is what he's been successfully doing ever since the theatre beckoned to him.

"I grew up in Paris, which then had 4,000 people (compared) to 12,000 people (today)," Willson, in his broadcast quality, booming voice, said. "Paris is known as one of the prettiest towns with a thriving arts community. I was a little lad and was very good at impersonating others," he said, appropriately in an improvised Scottish accent. Willson was about seven years old when his love for theatre began, but it wasn't until after seeing a play in Port Dover in his teens and his girlfriend moved on to greener pastures that he reinvented himself. "I was in my twenties when I changed my ways. I got involved in theatre, (which) changed my life," he repeated for emphasis.

Indeed, it did. Willson became a well-established actor in the theatre community, his hard work and drive leading him to success in film and television, including appearances in many commercials. Willson has appeared in several Canadian TV shows, including Murdoch Mysteries, My Secret Identity and Tracker, to name a few. When he isn't on set he is at the theatre. He offered a thought provoking analogy, comparing his love of hockey to working as a team on set.

"I love hockey, I love the sport and it is like working with the cast, there is the goalie, forwards (and defensemen), we all work together as a team." He said recently in a tweet that his favorite team is the Chicago Blackhawks and predicts they will win the Stanley Cup. All right Matthew, we'll see about that.

When asked which play he most enjoyed performing in, he didn't hesitate: "12 Angry Men, it was brilliant, I loved the parts." In 2010 he performed in Skinning the Cat, a dramatic thriller that picked up several awards, notably, the Audience Choice Award at the 2012 Cinema Hamilton Incite Awards. In 2010, he performed in and later helped adapt Skinning the Cat from its original form as a stage play into a screen play, and went on to produce, finance and star in it. It won for Best Drama Feature at AIFF and also received Honorable Mention at the 2010 Los Angeles Movie Awards.

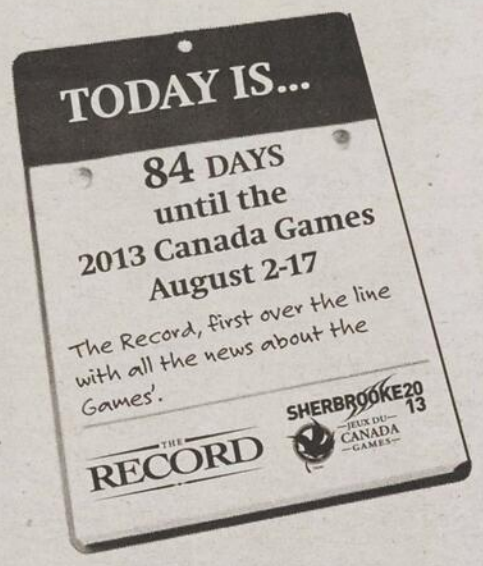

COURTESY

Matthew Willson

"I loved the producing part of it," he said.

Willson has done more than 400 stage performances and just keeps adding more credits to his resume. From his fast paced lifestyle, he is still keeping fit.

"I used to eat a lot of tremendous food," he confessed. "For the longest time while living in the house, I never ate at home. I never made a can of soup." It was about three years ago he hired a personal chef to help make his meals. "I began being more health conscious, clean living, eating chicken, turkey and vegetables." His love of red meat had to go because it wasn't good for him. "I noticed a healthier complexion, (and I started) feeling better." He adds, "I love the running, and listening to AC/DC makes me run faster. I run and go to the gym four to five times per week for one hour. I do drink three cups of black coffee and two litres of water per day."

When Willson isn't working or working out, he will be watching the NHL playoffs and hoping that Toews, Kane and Keith will once again lead his beloved Black Hawks to the Stanley Cup Promised Land.

Sens fan from England travels to Ottawa for playoffs

By Joshua Clipperton
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ravi Patni isn't your average Ottawa Senators fan. Before last weekend, he had never seen them play in person or ever set foot in the city they call home.

But the 26-year-old doctor from England decided that needed to change when his favourite team qualified for this year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Patni bought tickets to Games 3 and 4 of the series against the Montreal Canadiens, hopped on a plane and travelled more than 5,000 kilometres from London to Canada's capital — by himself.

"I am a massive fan of the Sens and I have been for the last five years, ever since they made the Stanley Cup finals," Patni said outside a festive Scotiabank Place prior to Game 4 of the first-round series. "I just love the Sens, I came all the way from London for the Sens — absolutely a huge fan."

So what brought a surgeon, who grew up not far from London's Wembley Stadium and supports Chelsea of England's Premier League, across the Atlantic Ocean for an all-Canadian NHL playoff matchup involving a Senators team that has only been in existence since 1992?

"I just love their brand of hockey. They're physical, they've got skill players, Daniel Alfredsson is an absolute legend, and I just love the way that they play," Patni said. "I'm just really passionate about the game. There's no other game that I prefer to watch in the world and there's no other team I prefer to watch than the Sens."

Patni, who often stays up past midnight to watch Senators games online because of the five-hour time difference, says immigration officials at Ottawa's Macdonald-Cartier International Airport didn't believe his reason for the visit at first: "They made me show them my tickets to the games."

Ottawa wasn't Patni's first road trip to see NHL hockey. He visited Prague in 2009 to watch the league's regular-season games in the Czech Republic, but adds that the atmosphere of a Canadian arena in the playoffs is a whole other experience.

"When I go back, I'm going to tell people about the 6-1 game (Ottawa's fight-filled Game 3 victory) and how incredible an experience it is in Scotiabank Place. I don't think there's a better live experience in the world," Patni said.

He says that friends and family don't quite understand his love for a team that most of them have never heard of.

"In London hockey is not exactly the most popular sport ... but I try to convince most of my friends because I believe it's the best sport in the world," Patni said, adding with a laugh. "I prefer hockey to soccer, but don't tell too many of my friends that.

"My parents think I'm mad, my friends think I'm mad, but it's all for the love of the game."

Patni says the people he met in Ottawa were friendly and welcoming to a fan with strange accent.

"I've had a great time ... I've already made loads of friends just from talking to people and people picking up that I'm from out of town," he said. "I partied on the Sens Mile after (Game 3) and it's been really, really good."

Patni adds that a long playoff run could mean a return visit this June.

Bryant says he never gave his mother the right to sell his mementos

The Associated Press
CAMDEN, N.J.

Kobe Bryant says in a court filing that he never gave his mother permission to sell mementos from his high school days and early professional basketball career.

Bryant is in a court battle over whether hundreds of items can be auctioned off.

Pamela Bryant says the NBA star told her the memorabilia was hers. She arranged earlier this year to auction it off through Berlin, N.J.-based Goldin Auctions and received a $450,000 advance.

Last week, lawyers for the NBA star wrote to the auction house demanding it cease the June sale. Goldin is suing to assert its right to sell.

In a filing Wednesday in US District Court in Camden, Kobe Bryant says his mother acknowledged to him recently that she did not have permission to sell the items.

Leafs defenceman has surgery after taking puck to face

The Canadian Press

Leafs defenceman Mark Fraser, hit in the face with a puck, has undergone surgery to repair a fracture between the eyes and the cranial area.

Toronto coach Randy Carlyle says the burly blue-liner is resting at home and was texting and talking to his teammates Thursday morning.

Carlyle says Fraser is on the road to recovery.

Fraser, who does not wear a visor, left the ice after taking a Milan Lucic shot in a 4-3 overtime loss to the Boston Bruins on Wednesday night.

Game 5 goes Friday at Boston's TD Garden. John-Michael Liles is expected to take Fraser's place in the lineup.

The Bruins are 15-2 when leading a best-of-seven series 3-1. Toronto is 2-12-1 in its last 15 games in Boston.

Price to miss rest of playoff series with lower body injury

The Canadian Press

Canadiens goaltender Carey Price will miss the rest of Montreal's playoff series against the Ottawa Senators with a lower-body injury.

The team made the announcement on Thursday, hours before Game 5 of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference quarterfinal.

Peter Budaj, who was 8-1-1 in the regular season, is expected to start in goal with Robert Mayer as his backup.

Budaj replaced Price for the overtime period in a 3-2 loss Tuesday night in Ottawa. He faced two shots and allowed a goal from Kyle Turris.

Price appeared to injure his groin late in regulation time. He has struggled at times in the series and had a 3.26 goals-against average and .894 save percentage.

The Canadiens announced Wednesday that captain Brian Gionta would miss the rest of the playoffs with a torn biceps tendon. He is to undergo surgery on Friday.

Forwards Ryan White, Brandon Prust and Lars Eller are also out with injuries.

The Canadian Press

The Toronto Blue Jays have sent left-hander Ricky Romero to triple-A Buffalo and designated right-hander Edgar Gonzalez for assignment.

Romero lasted just one-third of an inning as Toronto dropped a 10-4 decision at Tampa Bay on Wednesday night. It was the shortest start of his career and the quickest exit by a Toronto pitcher since Esteban Loaiza got only one batter out on July 2, 2001.

Romero, who gave up three run-scoring singles in the defeat, lost his rotation spot after a poor spring training and remained in Florida when the season began to work on mechanics. He was called up earlier this month when right-hander Josh Johnson went on the 15-day disabled list.

Romero is 0-2 this season with a 12.46 earned-run average. He has a 51-45 career record and 4.14 ERA.

Romero posted solid numbers in his first three seasons with the Blue Jays but struggled last year with a 9-14 record and 5.77 ERA.

Also Thursday, the Blue Jays selected the contracts of right-handers Ramon Ortiz and Mickey Storey from the Bisons.

Ortiz returns to the big leagues after making a relief appearance with Toronto last month. He has a 2-0 record and 2.18 ERA in four appearances with Buffalo.

In 297 career major-league games, Ortiz has an 86-84 record with a 4.93 ERA.

Storey has made nine relief appearances in Buffalo this season, posting a 0-1 record with a 3.93 ERA.

Defending champ Russia upset by France 2-1 at hockey worlds in Helsinki

By Marius Turula
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
HELSINKI, FINLAND

Defending champion Russia was upset 2-1 by France, which shocked a team dominated by NHL and KHL players at hockey worlds on Thursday.

Russia lost to a group of mainly French league players, who ended its 13-match winning streak at the world championship.

"It's so big for French hockey, it's hard to describe," France coach Dave Henderson said.

France wasn't good enough to play Russia or the Soviet Union until 1992. It had lost all six previous games, the last 7-2 in 2009.

All the goals on Thursday were scored in the middle period. Alexander Perezhogin gave Russia the lead at 6:57, shortly after teammate Aleksandr Radulov missed a penalty shot. France forward Damien Fleury evened the score at 9:52 with a slap shot. Antoine Roussel, France's lone NHL player, scored the winner at 16:48 when he broke in from the left and backhanded through Vasili Koshechkin's legs.

Both teams fielded their third-string goalkeepers. France's Florian Hardy finished with 28 saves, and Koshechkin 17.

"It was my first start, an unbelievably good result for us," Hardy said. "I don't know what to say, I'm so happy. When I watched the clock with five minutes to play, I thought that this is for real, that it is possible to win.

"All the team played an unbelievable game defensively. When the Russian player took the penalty shot and I stopped it, I just followed the puck and that was it."

France's second win in four games gives it a good chance of staying in the premier group at the worlds and an outside chance of making the quarterfinals with a top-four finish in its group. It still has to play the United States, Latvia and Germany.

In Stockholm, the Czech Republic beat Denmark 2-1 after a shootout, with Zbynek Irgl scoring on his team's fifth and sixth shots.

Zbynek Michalek scored in the last period for the Czechs and Morten Poulsen tied the game with four minutes to go.

High HDL levels are but one component of a healthy heart

ASK DOCTOR K
by Anthony L. Komaroff, M.D.

DEAR DOCTOR K: For years my doctor has been telling me about the benefits of high levels of HDL cholesterol. Now I read that high HDL may not protect against heart disease after all. Is "good" cholesterol still good for you?

DEAR READER: The HDL cholesterol story is a cautionary tale. It demonstrates once again that even the most persuasive theories about what should make us healthy need to be put to the test.

It has been solidly established that people who have high levels of LDL (bad) cholesterol have a higher risk of developing heart disease. Moreover, it has been solidly established that treatments that lower LDL cholesterol reduce the risk of developing heart disease.

It also has been solidly established that people with HDL levels above 60 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dL) tend to have a lower risk for heart disease. Since HDL cholesterol removes fat from the plaques in arteries, that observation made sense.

Not unreasonably, doctors and scientists assumed that boosting HDL with medication would lower cardiac risk even more. There are several drugs that have been around for 30 years — particularly gemfibrozil and niacin — that modestly raise levels of HDL. These drugs were tested in people with heart disease. They did lower the risk of new heart problems, but it wasn't clear if they achieved that benefit by lowering HDL cholesterol or through some other effect.

Then several different types of drugs were developed that could dramatically raise HDL levels. Most doctors, myself included, bet that such drugs would probably reduce the risk of heart disease. Why? Because all the evidence seemed to point in that direction.

Before such drugs were approved by the Food and Drug Administration, however, the agency required that studies involving large numbers of people be conducted to prove the value of the drugs. To make a long and painful story short, over the past five years these drugs have proved very disappointing. Not only have they not convincingly lowered the risk of heart trouble — in some cases, they have increased the risk.

In addition, a recent Harvard study pooled health information on more than 116,000 people genetically predisposed to produce higher-than-normal amounts of HDL. Surprisingly, this group did not show the predicted lower risk of heart attack.

How can this study be squared with previous studies that have convincingly showed that people with high levels of HDL have a lower risk of heart disease? The most likely conclusion is that it is not the high HDL levels, but rather something else about people who have high HDL levels that protects them from heart disease.

Many lifestyle changes raise HDL cholesterol and indisputably reduce your risk of heart disease: regular exercise, healthy weight, avoiding trans fats, quitting smoking and moderate use of alcohol. These lifestyle changes may not work through their effects on your HDL level, but they surely and powerfully do work.

Obituary

Janice McClary Little of Huntingville, Quebec

Janice Margaret (McClary) Little was born on May 17, 1937 in Hatley Village, Quebec, the eldest daughter of Ronald and Madelene (Moulton) McClary. Her arrival was soon followed by the birth of her sister Lois, and a few years later by that of her sister Elaine.

As a child, Janice learned to cook, and to knit with her mother, and loved to fish with her father in the brook near their home. She also enjoyed spending time with her grandparents Harold and Mabel McClary, and Carlos and Susie Moulton. Janice enjoyed music, learning to play the piano as a child and, as her sister Elaine bragged, "singing alone" at the Hatley United Church.

Upon graduation from Ayer's Cliff High School, Janice joined the Royal Canadian Air Force where she served for a short time. After returning home to Hatley, Janice fell in love and married Robert Little in 1958.

Janice and Bob set up housekeeping in North Hatley where they had two daughters, Karen, born in 1959, and Nancy, born in 1963. In 1965, the family moved to Huntingville, into the house that is still the family home. In the early 1970's the Little family bought a cottage on Mirror Lake, where they have spent every summer enjoying the company of their adopted "lake family", and entertaining numerous relatives and friends.

Janice was employed for many years as a cook at Grace Christian Home, and later on volunteered her time serving tea and treating the residents to her famous homemade doughnuts. She also became active in the Huntingville Community Church, where she was a Pioneer Girls leader and Junior Church teacher. Over the years Janice and Bob became avid snowmobilers, later trading in their skidoo helmets for curling brooms when they became members of the North Hatley Curling Club. There Jan put her cooking skills to work on many occasions, working in the kitchen during bonspiels and preparing dinners for senior curling days.

In recent years, Janice's health began to deteriorate, first with arthritis that affected her hips and knees, then with cancer, which she fought with courage and her trademark sense of humour. Thanks to the dedication of her husband Bob and the care she received from the nurses of the CLSC, she was able to remain at home until her final few days.

Janice passed away on January 27, 2013 at the CHUS Fleurimont, where she was surrounded by her family and close friends.

Janice is survived by her loving husband of 54 years, Robert Little, her daughters Karen (Stephen Heeney) and Nancy (Frank Sparkes), her sister Elaine Raffan, brother-in-law Percival Little (Marion), and sister-in-law Janet McLellan. She was the proud Nana of eight grandchildren Ryan (Julie-Anne), Lindsay, Hilary (Gary), Adam, Matthew, Hannah, Rachel and Erin, and was thrilled to become a first time Great-Nana to Rosalyn Jade in December 2012. She was also fondly known as Aunt Jan to her many nieces and nephews.

Obituary

She was predeceased by her parents, Ronald and Madelene McClary, sister Lois Sutcliffe, and brothers-in-law, Alvin Sutcliffe, James Raffan, and Rudy McLellan. Jan will be fondly remembered for her wonderful cooking, her infectious laugh and her sense of humour.

A funeral service was held on January 31 at Cass Funeral Home in Lennoxville, with Rev. James Potter officiating. Internment of ashes will take place at Reedsville Cemetery in North Hatley on May 18 at 4 p.m., with Rev. Dean Ross officiating.

McCOMB - This year was another great success for the Shoot for the Cure Dart Tournament, held on April 27 at the Stanstead Legion, to raise funds for Breast Cancer Research. We raised $1,580. Again without all of the supporters an event like this would not be so successful. A big thank you goes out to all of the dart players that took the time to come out and play on such a beautiful day. To my sister Elaine McComb for going around and collecting all of the donations in the Lennoxville Area. To Margaret (Maggie) Simoneau and Mike Dessaint for cooking all of those great hamburgers and hot dogs. A big thank you to Dallas Dessaint for running the game and last, but not least, to the best half & half and raffle ticket seller you would ever want at a benefit tournament - Garry Greenwood. Thanks again to each and everyone that had anything to do with making this day such a great success.

I also spoke to Sara about getting help, but she became hysterical and slapped Andrea for "telling tales."

FRIDAY, MAY 10, 2013

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I'm concerned about my sister's parenting style. "Sara" just went through a nasty divorce, so we let her move into a house we own next door, thinking it would help to have family close by.

Sara's kids spend a great deal of time with us. What worries me is my 7-year-old niece, "Andrea." Andrea appears underweight for her age and height. When she has dinner here, she eats like she's starving. Several weeks ago, Sara joined us for dinner, and I watched her dole out food for the kids. She gave her 5-year-old son a much bigger portion than she gave Andrea. When I mentioned it, Sara said the pediatrician warned her that Andrea is obese. I do not believe this for one second.

Andrea is sick all the time. Last week, when I was preparing the kids an after-school snack, Andrea started crying. She said she was really hungry, but if she ate anything, it would make her mother angry because she is "so fat." I have never been so furious with my sister.

I spoke to the school social worker and was told there is little they can do. I also spoke to Sara about getting help, but she became hysterical and slapped Andrea for "telling tales."

I've never seen Sara like this before. I called CPS, but I worry that Sara will take off with the kids before help can be provided. What else can I do? — Big Sis

Dear Sis: Sara should not be slapping her daughter. You need to befriend your sister so that she trusts you and her children can turn to you for help. It's difficult to ascertain whether Sara is still stressed from the divorce, simply needs better parenting skills or there is something else going on. You may be interpreting the food issues through your own subjective filter. Leave a message with the pediatrician's office with your concerns. But please do not criticize and alienate Sara right now. Those kids need you. Be a safe haven for all of them.

Dear Annie: I am a married woman in my 50s, and I hate to be hugged. I'm sure it stems from my childhood, when my mother, who was not affectionate, forced me to hug relatives.

I have a friend in his mid-70s who's a great guy, but he's a hugger. "Henry" insists on grabbing everyone and giving them a bear hug. I have told him repeatedly that I don't like this, but he doesn't listen. He also hugs my husband, who has a bad back, and those bear hugs really hurt.

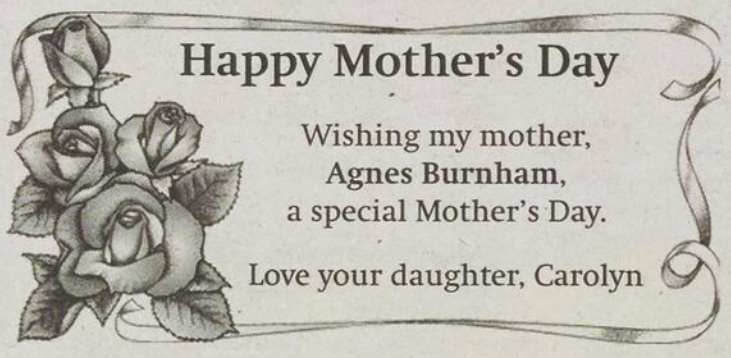

I've been avoiding Henry lately, but I miss him. Perhaps if he sees this in print, he might finally get it. — Hate Being Hugged in Kansas

Dear Kansas: You will have to remind Henry each time he comes near you that you don't want a hug. He has difficulty controlling his effusiveness, and until he can associate his hugging with negative consequences, he won't stop. Gently put out your arm to distance him. Tell him he is hurting you. Cry out in pain if need be. Do whatever will make it extremely clear that you don't like this and he must stop.

Dear Annie: Some responses to "Your Husband" indicated that he needed to try harder to be intimate with his wife. Maybe he did.

I tried talking to my wife. I shared and cleaned, went grocery shopping, did laundry and dishes. I took care of the kids while she went out shopping. Giving her flowers didn't work, small gestures didn't work, and talking about her day didn't work. Seeing a therapist didn't work. I didn't cheat, because I didn't want to lose my kids. Well, that didn't work, either. She left with no explanation. It takes two to make a marriage work. — Mark from N.C.

10 motorcycle safety tips for new riders

FROM CONSUMER REPORTS®
by the editors of Consumer Reports

Motorcycles are fun and fuel efficient. That's not news to anyone who's ridden one. But neither is the fact that they're also way more dangerous than a car.

The cold reality is that motorcyclists are 30 times more likely to die in a crash than people in a car, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS). The numbers are even scarier for older riders. Because of slower reflexes, weaker eyesight, more brittle bones and other disadvantages, riders over 60 years old are three times more likely to be hospitalized after a crash than younger ones.

The key to optimizing your odds is to be prepared and avoid risks. Forty-eight percent of fatalities in 2010 involved speeding, according to the IIHS, and alcohol was a factor in 42 percent.

Here are some more tips to help you — or a loved one — stay safe on two wheels:

— Don't buy more bike than you can handle. If you've been off of motorcycles for a while, you may be surprised by the performance of today's bikes. Even models with small-displacement engines are notably faster and more powerful than they were 10 or 20 years ago.

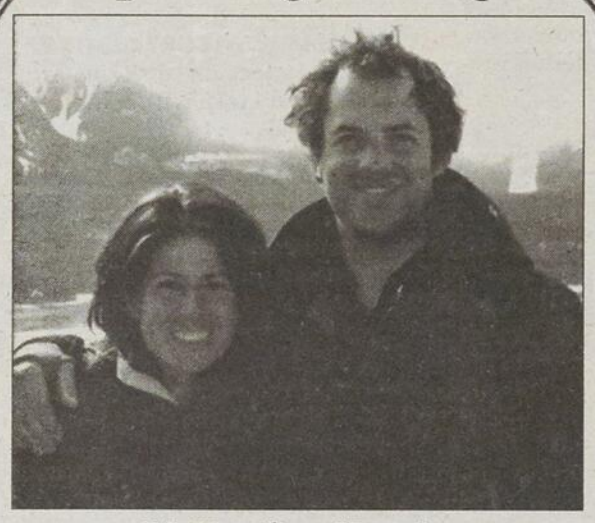

— Invest in anti-lock brakes. Now available on a wide array of models, anti-lock brakes are a proven lifesaver. IIHS data shows that motorcycles equipped with ABS brakes were 37 percent less likely to be involved in a fatal crash than bikes without it.

— Hone your skills. A Motorcycle Safety Foundation (MSF) riding course or similar class can teach you the basics, as well as advanced techniques, like evasive emergency maneuvers. The cost ranges from free to about $350. An approved safety course may make you eligible for an insurance discount and, in some states, to skip the road test and/or the written test part of the licensing process.

— Use your head. Yes, helmets are an emotional topic for some riders. But the facts show the risk. Riders without a helmet are 40 percent more likely to suffer a fatal head injury in a crash and are three times more likely to suffer brain injuries than those with helmets, according to government studies.

— Wear the right gear. Jeans, a T-shirt and sandals are recipes for a painful disaster on a bike. Instead, you want gear that will protect you from wind chill, flying bugs and debris, and, yes, lots of road rash if you should slide out. For maximum protection, go for a leather or other reinforced jacket, gloves, full pants and over-the-ankle footwear, even in summer. You'll also want effective eye protection.

Your Birthday

FRIDAY, MAY 10, 2013

Financial trends will be developing in your favor in the year ahead. Take advantage of all that comes your way and make the most of every opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — The way to acquire something you've been wanting will become apparent. It's up to you, however, to focus your efforts on making it happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Mask your assertiveness with unselfish actions and lots of charm. If you make sure that others will also benefit from your aims, you'll meet with success.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — If you don't give up on your dreams and keep a realistic viewpoint, you make success much more probable. Keep pushing forward.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You will be presented with some intriguing opportunities via your social contacts. It pays to be the nice guy, sometimes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — There's no need to try to duck tedious assignments, because the things that appear to be the most troublesome could, surprisingly, be the easiest to handle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Closely observe the people you admire, because there's a strong possibility that you could profit from mimicking their behavior. You'll wisely use what you learn.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Something advantageous can come from an arrangement that is initiated by a close friend or family member. There's room in the endeavor for your skill set.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Your pleasant and cheerful demeanor today could serve as a magnet attracting all kinds of companions of similar dispositions. Something that is both fun and interesting will come of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You have a special knack for handling jobs that require creativity. Use your artistic touch to transform what you consider to be unsightly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — There's no need to be surprised if an appealing someone evinces an interest in you. This person has been waiting for the right time to make his or her feelings known.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Make the concerns of a close someone your top priority. He or she needs help that only you can provide.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — As long as there is justification for it, be lavish in your praise. Expressing sincere approval will go far in securing the loyalty of those who work at your side.

SATURDAY, MAY 11, 2013

There's a chance that you'll become more independent and strong-willed than you've ever been before. This new attitude will bring numerous fresh successes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Even you will be surprised by how assertive and confident you are today. Luckily, you'll be able to speak your mind without giving offense.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — If you take the time to evaluate your innermost feelings, you should be able to get a new take on some unresolved issues. Self-awareness breeds solutions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Be optimistic regarding your present endeavors. You're in a lucky cycle, and you should be able to meet most of your expectations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — When it comes to competitive involvements, the odds tend to favor you. You'll have the ability to focus on something that will give you an edge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This is a good day to make a presentation to the proper people. What interests you will also intrigue others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — It will be very difficult for your associates to keep anything from you. Your natural detective instincts will be keener than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — This is an exceptionally good day to take care of matters that require cooperation. You'll have the ability to bring people or things together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — There is something important that you can do right now to further your ambitions. Chances are it doesn't require any more study, just more action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Nice things are being said about you, because a number of colleagues admire your style. Keep up the good work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You should be especially solicitous toward members of your own family. They've done much for you in the past, and it's time to repay the favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Your brain will be on active duty today, and you'll need it. Focus on thinking your way toward solutions instead of using force.

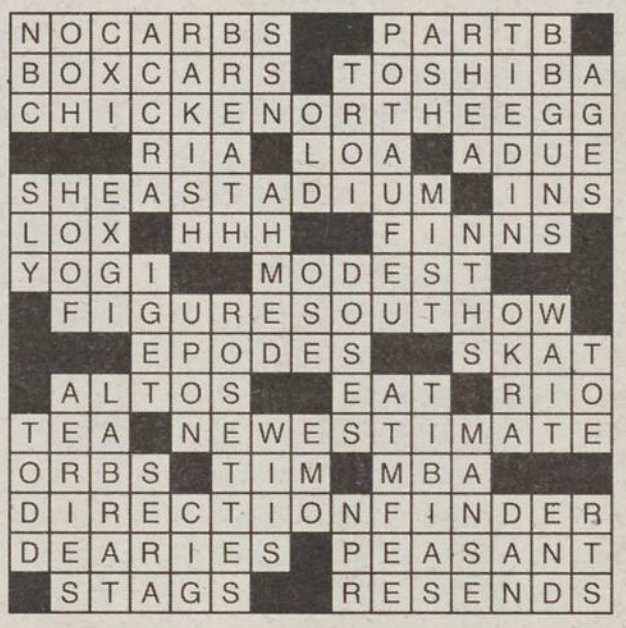

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Conditions that pertain to your material well-being are trending quite favorably. Be alert for opportunities to enhance your material situation.

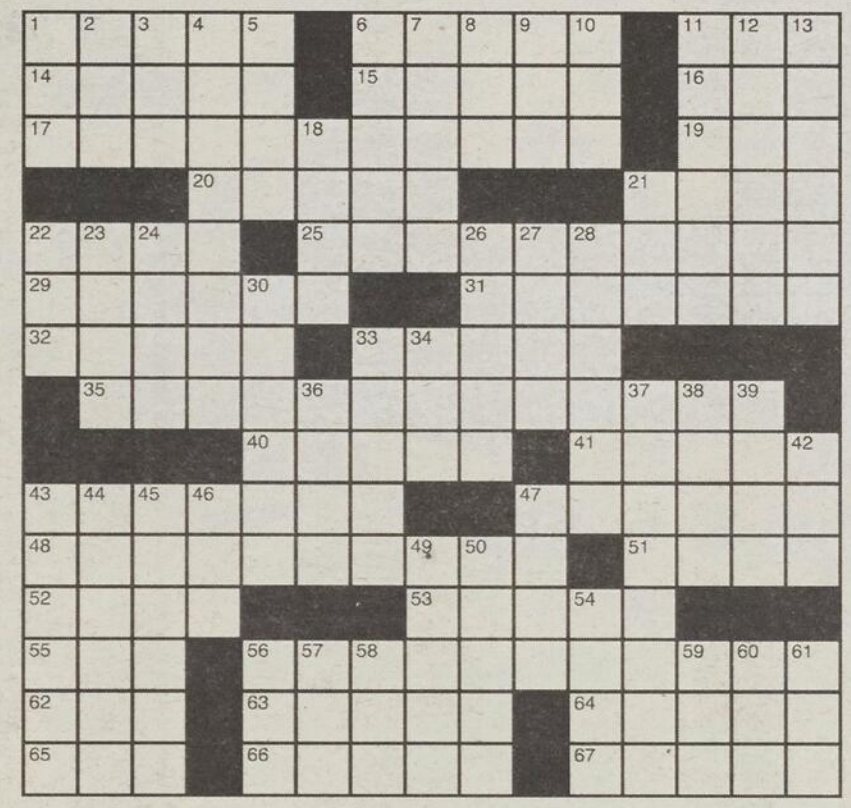

Bridge will return next week.

The Role of your pharmacist: Your pharmacist's job is to fill your prescription and advise you on the best way to use your medication. He is there to answer your health-related questions, inform you and guide you through your drug therapy to help you get better. If you're interested in understanding the pricing structure for prescription drugs in Quebec pharmacies, we invite you to watch the video or ask your pharmacist for the leaflet that will provide you with more information. Remember, your pharmacist is a health specialist and not an insurance advisor.

Download the free app. This convenient app is the perfect resource for any medication you or your loved ones are taking. Among other things, it will send you alerts to remind you to take your medication at scheduled times, and tell you how strong your dose is and how much you should take. You can also check side effects and contre-indications and locate the nearest pharmacy. In many ways, it's like having a pharmacist everywhere you go.
