QUEBEC HARBOR COMMISSION TO RECEIVE LOAN OF $1,500,000

Resolution Passed House After Spirited Debate—Ex-Mayor Church Declared Quebec "So Hungry" Couldn't Wait For Main Estimates—Hon. Ernest Lapointe Sharply Denied Charge

(By Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 5—A resolution to grant a loan of a million and a half to the Quebec Harbor Commission passed the House today after a spirited debate. Ex-Mayor Church of Toronto declared that Quebec was "so hungry" it could not wait for the main estimates. Therefore, procedure had been by way of resolution.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries who had the resolution in his charge, sharply denied the charge. The Government, he said, had proceeded by resolution because the law required it. It would have been easier to put an appropriation in the main estimates.

There were echos of changes made in the personnel of the Quebec Harbor Commission following the general elections.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Opposition, questioned why it had been necessary to change men with such a war record as the Chairman of the Board, the late Sir David Watson, and Brig. Gen. Tremblay.

Mr. Lapointe replied that Sir David Watson, in his paper, the Quebec Chronicle, had printed such articles attacking the Government and the Minister of Marine as made co-operation between the Minister and Sir David Watson impossible.

Mr. Meighen added fuel to the blaze by producing a letter in which reference was made to Sir David:—"What the Hun failed to do, Liberals succeeded in doing-killed him".

The Prime Minister heatedly demanded the writer's name. But it was not given, Mr. Meighen stating that he would ask permission of the writer to follow such a course.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, moved in the House today that it was expedient to provide that the Governor-in-Council may from time to time advance to the Corporation of the Quebec Harbor Commissioners a sum of money, not exceeding $1,500,000, to enable the Corporation to carry on with the construction of terminal facilities necessary to properly equip the port.

Improvements Necessary

Mr. Lapointe indicated that certain improvements were necessary at Quebec Harbor and that in time the harbor would pay its own way. Last year, the total receipts amounted to $387,000. Improvements had been made at other harbors under the same conditions, while at Toronto and St. John the improvements were carried on by the Public Works Department. If Quebec was governed by the same conditions as applied to other harbors the amount asked for would have been included in the estimates and very little would have been heard about it. In the expenditure of the money, every item would have to be approved by the Governor-in-Council before the actual advances were made.

Sir Henry Drayton objected to the proposed financing. Some $11,000,000 had already been granted and interest had not been paid. The arrears of interest now amounted to some $6,200,000.

The account had been going behind steadily and rapidly. There were contra accounts against these arrears, it was admitted, but the harbor board payments were now far behind. This was not the happiest moment for incurring such capital expenditures. There were facilities at the port of Quebec now but they were not being utilized. The trouble was lack of business.

T. L. Church, (Conservative, Toronto North), said the Quebec Harbor had not been a success because it had not been kept free of politics and administered by a Board which was not subject to change with every Government. Other ports had to have provision for harbor works in the main estimates and Quebec and Montreal should be on the same basis. Toronto City had spent some $21,000,000 of its own money in harbor improvements.

Mr. Church asked why a special resolution was put forward for this vote.

Province of Quebec Hungry

"Is it because the Province of Quebec is so hungry that they cannot wait for the main estimates?" he asked. There were cries of "order, order", and Mr. Church went on to give further particulars regarding the harbor of Toronto.

He said that though Toronto was a Conservative city, there were three Liberals on the Harbor Board, and that the Board was able to meet its fixed charges.

A. W. Neill, (Independent, Comox-Alberni), said that the resolution should be amended to provide that all contracts of the Quebec Harbor Board should contain a fair wage clause. Mr. Lapointe assured Mr. Neill that this proposal had his entire sympathy. He believed that contracts for all subsidized works should contain a fair wage clause.

T. W. Caldwell, (Progressive, Carleton Victoria, N.B.), called attention to the charges made at the end of last session by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, in connection with an item of $60,000, for the purchase of land by the Quebec Harbor Commission from the Park St. Charles Company. Mr. Lemieux declared this payment as a "scandal" and demanded an investigation. The item was dropped at the time by the Prime Minister.

Mr. Caldwell read from the debate in this connection and asked the Minister for a statement as to what had happened.

Mr. Lapointe replied that so far as he knew, no steps had been taken in regard to the Park St. Charles affair. The item had been dropped last session and he did not know whether it would be voted this year. At all events the matter was hardly germane to the vote under discussion.

Minister's Memory Faulty

Sir Henry Drayton said that the memory of the Minister was at fault. A tribunal had been appointed and Mr. Lemieux had been invited to go before it. He had said that he wanted a Parliamentary inquiry, and had refused to proceed.

"He challenged the jurisdiction of the tribunal", put in Hon. Jacques Bureau.

"Yes," agreed Sir Henry.

"And the Court sustained him" added Mr. Bureau.

At this point the chairman suggested that the debate was going beyond the scope of the item.

"If it is to be ruled out of order" replied Sir Henry, "I have no objection. I was merely replying to what had been said from the Government benches".

Mr. Lapointe explained that he had been referring to the action of the present Government, not that of the late administration.

"I admit that the Government has done nothing one way or the other", said Sir Henry, "and I do not know whether they will bring on an investigation".

Mr. Lapointe declared that it was quite incorrect to say that the money spent on Quebec harbor was not a paying investment. It was not an investment at all, except as an expenditure that was needed for building up the country. It was not an investment in the sense that it was expected to pay interest. A great deal of money had been spent on Toronto harbor, but it was voted in the estimates and there was no suggestion that interest should be paid upon it.

The Minister put in a mild protest against the language used by Mr. Church on the "Hunger" of Quebec. "He was wrong to say that we are hungry", the Minister put it, "as a friend of mine said the other day, if we are hungry in Quebec, we are not thirsty". (Laughter).

Mr. Lapointe gave the receipts and expenditures of the Quebec harbor for the years 1913 and 1921 as follows:—

1913—Receipts $226,020; expenditures $239,728.

1921—Receipts $387,323; expenditures $336,302.

Keep Economy In Mind

R. M. Johnson, Progressive, Moose Jaw said that Parliament was constantly being told that it must keep economy in mind. In common with other Progressive members he had visited Quebec, and had been much impressed with the remarkable facilities of that port. He had gathered the impression that the complaint there was against insufficient traffic rather than lack of facilities to handle traffic. He could not see his way to supporting the resolution.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie said that proposed expenditure must be regarded as a payment from capital account which would not be returned. He wanted to see the port of Quebec go ahead, and if the Minister could make out a case which seemed reasonable, he would not oppose the resolution. He was very doubtful, however, of the wisdom of putting a million and a half dollars into this project.

H. E. Lavigueur, (Liberal, Quebec County), said that Mr. Meighen's predecessor, when Premier had declared that nothing was too good for Quebec and that money to equip the port would be provided.

"We've done all that", Mr. Guthrie interjected. Mr. Lavigueur charged that the promises made to Quebec by the late Government had never been fulfilled. Millions had been promised for all kinds of improvements including grain elevators.

Grain Elevator Too Small

"You've got all that" Mr. Guthrie again interrupted.

Mr. Lavigueur admitted that Quebec possessed a grain elevator but declared that it was not of sufficient capacity.

Sir Henry Drayton said that Mr. Lavigueur made a mistake when he said that nothing had been done for Quebec by the late Government. In 1913, $300,000 had been expended; $2,000,000 in 1914 and $1,491,000 in 1917.

Mr. Lavigueur retorted that a terminal station which was a disgrace to Canada and to the citizens of Quebec had been erected.

John Millar, (Progressive, Qu'Appelle), said that the time had come when Canada must talk in thousands instead of in millions.

Mr. Meighen asked why the Quebec Harbor Commission had been replaced. Why it was necessary to change the personnel of the Commission or to ask for the resignation of men like the late Sir David Watson, or of Brig. Gen. Tremblay, another man with an enviable war record, and the third Commissioner, Mr. Gravel?

Mr. Lapointe said it was a delicate matter but he would not shirk it as he had no apologies to make. The Quebec Chronicle, of which Sir David Watson was the proprietor and General Manager, started in, after the change of Government, to print a series of articles against the Government and in particular against the Minister of Marine.

This brought about an impossible state of affairs and, with no co-operation between the Minister and Sir David Watson as chairman, it was inevitable that the latter must resign. The Government was only following precedent set by the late Government three years ago.

Replying to Mr. Meighen the Minister said Mr. Gravel was not dismissed for partisanship. It was only to be expected that a new chairman should have the right to nominate his own Board.

Get Business For Harbor

Mr. Meighen produced the correspondence which passed between the Minister and Sir David Watson in which the Minister stated that it was desirable that Sir David should resign in order that the Government might carry on its intended policies. Sir David's reply was to the effect that his only object all along had been to get the business for the Quebec Harbor and he presumed the Minister's objective would be the same.

Sir David Watson's only offence, said Mr. Meighen, was that he was the owner of the Quebec Chronicle.

"He was not only the owner of the majority stock" broke in Mr. Lapointe, "but he was the General Manager".

"He attacked the administration every morning at breakfast" added S. W. Jacobs.

Mr. Meighen retorted that the Government had been applying the policy of purchase for the suppression of Quebec's newspapers who were opposed to the Government.

"Names", called out a member of the Government Party.

"L'Evenement" answered Mr. Meighen"; and where purchase failed, the big stick has been applied".

Patronage was an evil, declared the Leader of the Opposition, but it was most indefensible when it was applied to deprive of office returned soldiers who were satisfactorily performing their duty.

Mr. Meighen concluded by reading the last words of a letter written to him by a personal friend of Sir David Watson.

"It it not too much to say" wrote this correspondent, "that what the Hun failed to do, the Liberals succeeded in doing-killed him".

The Premier was on his feet at once and asked for the name of the writer.

Mr. Meighen replied that he would ask the writer's permission to make the name public.

Mr. King returned that having quoted the letter, Mr. Meighen was bound by the rules of the House to give the name.

"If the Premier will quote the rule I will do it, was the answer of the Leader of the Opposition.

"There are some rules" shot back Mr. Mackenzie King, "that follow from ordinary courtesy".

"My honorable friend had better hold his own followers to that rule", was the retort of Mr. Meighen.

The resolution carried, was read a second time, and concurred in, and a bill based upon it was given first reading.

BOND ALLOTMENT FIVE TIMES OVER SUBSCRIBED

Montreal, May 5—The allotment of $1,500,000 of Canada Steamship Lines Limited bonds has been five times over subscribed, according to a statement here today of Nesbitt Thomson Co. Lt., investment bankers, who are handling the issue. As a result the firm states that it had become impossible to allot to investment houses more than 20 percent of their applications.

It is understood that some large Toronto houses will be associated with Nesbitt Thomson & Co. in the issue. These house have heretofore confined their operations almost entirely to Government and municipal bonds.

DRAWING ACCOUNT FROM SMALL ESTATE

Toronto, May 5—When Chief S. J. Dickson stated that the Ambrose J. Small estate had place a sum of money in the hands of the police for the purpose of defraying the expenses in connection with the investigation of Small's disappearance, he did not state the amount which had thus been placed at their disposal.

It is learned this morning that the amount to which he referred was $50,000. This is open to the police to draw from without application to or interference from any body at all.

IS ADJOURNMENT OF GENOA PARLEY TO BE PROPOSED?

Until Problems Can Be Taken Up With Probability Of Success

MORE COMPLICATIONS

Over Russian Memorandum Expected Today On Return Of M. Barthou

Genoa, May 5—It was asserted here tonight that the Little Entente, in view of the complications that have arisen over the memorandum presented by the Allies to the Russians, contemplates proposing an adjournment of the Economic Conference until the problems which now are unsettled can be taken up with some probability of successfully ironing them out. This plan is especially supported by Dr. Edward Benes, the Czecho-Slovak Foreign Minister.

Adolph Joffe of the Russian delegation, started for Moscow tonight to confer with the All-Russian Central Executive Committee which is now in session in the Soviet Capital.

While the Russian delegation has full powers to act at Genoa, it is desired M. Joffe explain the progress of the Conference to the executive committee which has authority to ratify agreements entered into.

The Russian reply to the Allied memorandum is not expected to be presented for two or three days, but, according to members of the Russian delegation, it will not necessarily be delayed until M. Joffe reaches Moscow.

Further complications over the Russian memorandum may arise tomorrow on the return to Genoa of M. Barthou of the French delegation, who has been on a visit to Paris and discussed the situation with M. Poincare and the Members of his ministry.

Belgium still is obdurate in her insistence on a new clause in the memorandum to the Russians relating to the treatment of private property. It is reported that M. Barthou will submit such a clause as a substitute for that at present contained in the memorandum.

Even if the entire commission on Russian affairs agrees to approve a new clause, it will be difficult to induce the Russians to accept it, as they now are complaining bitterly of the present clause and the French and Belgians are insisting upon new provisions which will be much more drastic.

They are demading that they must be guaranteed that the Russians will not eventually turn over the property of foreigners to new owners.

GOV'T. MAJORITY WAS ONLY 15

Number Of Votes Cast By Liberal Members Who Had Been "Paired"

(By Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 5—The Government majority of the resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to deal with railway freight rates, which came to a vote last night, should have been 15 instead of 17.

In the House of Commons this afternoon it developed that a number of votes had been cast by Liberal members who were "paired" with members of the Opposition and who were unaware of this fact. A. R. McMaster (Liberal, Brome), speaking on the orders of the day, explained that last night he had voted by mistake on the Drayton amendment to the main motion.

Early in the session he had asked the Chief Government whip, G. W. Kyte, to arrange a pair for him, and this Mr. Kyte had done. Through some error Mr. McMaster had not been advised that the pair had been arranged and consequently he voted against the amendment. Before the vote on the main motion was recorded however, he was informed of the mistake, and did not vote.

Mr. Kyte explained that there had been a number of errors owing to Members not understanding about their pairs. He had been so busily engaged in checking the vote that he had not observed some of these. As an illustration of the fact that mistakes of this kind were not confined to the Government side he mentioned that the member for West York, (Sir Henry Drayton) had also voted inadvertently when paired.

W. A. Boys, Chief Opposition whip, said that no less than five votes had been wrongly cast on the Liberal side. The explanation made was quite satisfactory but he felt that some arrangement must be arrived at to avoid such mistakes in future. It was possible when a Member had voted in error, to arrange, for another Member to abstain from voting.

Mr. Kyte added that the corrected majority of the Government on the main resolution was 15.

The Government will take over private members day after Monday, May 15. In the House of Commons this afternoon the Premier moved that the Government business should take precedence on these days, beginning Wednesday next, May 10; but there were objections from both the Progressive Leader and the Leader of the Opposition and eventually the latter date was decided upon.

Canada's Million Pounds

The question of whether or not Canada had subscribed $1,000,000 to a consortium for assisting in the economic reconstruction of Europe, was brought up this afternoon by Hon. T. A. Crerar, Leader of the Progressives. He stated that a news despatch from Genoa reported that the Canadian Government had subscribed this amount. He wished to know if there was any truth in this despatch. The Prime Minister replied that the report was not accurate. The Government had taken no action in this matter. He was informed that some documents in regard to it were being mailed, but they had not yet been received.

Interest in the Conservative caucus this morning centred around criticism of alleged Liberal breaking of pairs in the vote on the resolution to appoint a committee to hear evidence on the railway situation taken in the House last evening. After the caucus it was understood that Conservative members had charged that several pairs between Conservative and Liberal members were broken by Liberals. Whether or not this was due to misunderstanding was not brought out, but it is believed that the matter of pairs will be the subject of conferences between the two parties.

A great deal of time was devoted to consideration of resolutions on the order paper.

EVIDENCE ENDED IN MACAROW CASE

Argument Will Start Next Thursday—Sir H. Allan To Appear Friday

(Canadian Press)

Montreal, May 5—Evidence was concluded in the Enquete Court here today in the case against D. C. Macarow, charged with having wilfully signed falst returns to the Minister of Finance for the October 1921 standing of the defunct Merchants' Bank of Canada.

The feature of today's hearing was the deposition that there had been written off on bank premises by the bank managers an amount of $769,868.47. This was brought out at the close of the cross examination of George Edwards, the Toronto accountant engaged by the Minister of Finance on behalf of the Dominion Government and who has been the main prosecution witness.

F. E. Meredith, K.C., counsel for the Merchants Bank went into the witness box to testify in connection with a letter written by him to D. C. Macarow in regard to the agreements between the bank and Gordon W. Finlayson, trustee of the insolvent firm of Thornton, Davidson & Co., and C. O. Cameron, a partner in the company. This is the firm whose bankruptcy resulted in a loss of some $5,000,000 to the Merchants Bank.

It was attempted by prosecuting counsel to read the whole letter into the proceedings but N. K. Laflamme K.C., counsel for the bank, objected, saying that the purpose aimed at was to convey the impression to the court that counsel for the bank had notified Mr. Macarow that the whole matter of Thornton Davidson account was at an end.

Mr. Meredith in the box said that the letter meant merely that the negotiations with Mr. Finlayson were at an end.

Argument in the case will be heard next Thursday.

In the case against Sir Hugh Allan, President of the Merchants Bank, a pro forma adjournment was made to next Friday.

Mr. Nicoll explained that while he did not expect the highway to be completed this summer, a considerable portion of the road would be built, the first work being that portion between Sherbrooke and Magog.

Constantinople, May 5—The Turkish Nationalist Government at Angora, it was reported here today has forbidden the entrance of Italian ships in to Turkish Black Sea ports as a result of the recent occupation of the towns of Sokia and Scala Nova, in the Meander Valley in Asia Minor by Greek troops.

The Kemalists it was said, accuse Italy of having connived with Greece to dispose of Turkish territory with consulting Angora. They also blame the Italians for not having stipulated that the Greeks should not occupy the territory until the last Italian soldier had embarked. The Angora Government it was said has entered a protest against what it claims is an unfriendly act on the part of the Italians.

POUND AT HIGHEST RATE IN THREE YEARS

Demand Bills On England Sold At $4.44¾ In New York Yesterday

New York, May 5 — Exchange rates on London today reached the highest point in almost three years, demand bills selling at $4.44 3-4, an overnight advance of 1 1-8c. Heavy buying here and in London to meet cotton and grain requirements and the excellent condition of the British trade balance were believed to be responsible for the improved rates.

Sterling rates have been improving for several weeks. The low record was made February 4, 1920, when demand bills fell to $3.18 and international currencies generally were in a state of collapse. The normal, or par rate on sterling is $4.86 5-8.

CHAPTER XIII

Victory Year Opens. January and February, 1918.

Victory Year, though we did not know it by that name then, opened with fine bracing weather, and there was the usual round of dinners and entertainments with which we always greeted the birth of a new twelve month. We had several Canadian-like snowstorms. In the midst of one I met a forlorn despatch rider coming up the main street on his wheel with he blinding snow in his face. I stopped him and asked him if he wouldn't like to have some dinner, and I took him into the hotel. He had been to Bethune to buy some V.C. ribbon for one of the men of his battalion who was going to be presented with it on the following day, and was so proud of his mission that he made no complaint about the long and tiring journey through the snowstorm. The country behind Bruay is broken up into pleasant valleys, and there are plenty of trees on the hills, so the winter aspect of the district made us feel quite at home. I used to give many talks to the men on what I called "The war outlook," I thought it helped to encourage them, and I was perfectly sincere in my belief, which grew stronger as time went on in spite of notable set-backs, that we should have victory before the end of the year.

We had a visit by this time from Bishop du Pencier, who came to hold a confirmation for us at Divion. There were forty candidates, nearly all of them being presented by chaplains of the 1st Brigade. It was a solemn service and made a deep impression upon the men. The hymns were sung very heartily, and the Bishop gave a most helpful address. I remember specially one young fellow called Vaughan Groves who came to me for the preparation. He was a small, rather delicate young lad about nineteen years of age, and was a runner in the 2nd. Brigade. He had a fine open face, and had the distinction of having won the M.M. and bar. To have won these honors as a Brigade runner was a mark of rare courage. I felt the deepest admiration for the boy, who was the only son of a widowed mother in Canada. He never touched liquor and had lived a perfect straight life, and he was just the type of character which found scope for great deeds in the war. After the confirmation I lost sight of him, until months afterwards, when, as I was going through Arras one night, I looked into a cellar near the 2nd Brigade Headquarters, and seeing a number of men in there, went down to have a talk. I found they were the Brigade runners, and so I at once asked for my young friend. They told me that he had been wounded in the arm and when he came to the dressing station, finding there a man who was dying from loss of blood, had at once offered his own blood for transfusion into the veins of the sufferer. They took so much from him that the poor boy got very weak and had to be sent back to England to recuperate.

The men added that it was just the thing that little Vaughan would do. He was the finest, cleanest little chap, they said, that they had ever met. It was always delightful to hear such testimony from men to the innate power of human goodness. I have never seen or heard of Vaughan Groves since, but I hope that someone may read this book who will be able to tell me how and where he is.

I was not sorry when our rest was over. There was more time to get home-sick when we were out of the line. If we had to be in the war at all, the happiest place was at the front. So when on January 23rd, I left Bruay for Bracquemont, I did so with little regret. My billet at Bracequemont was the same which I had occupied in the previous September, and it seemed quite like home. Once more our men held the trenches on Hill 70 and the battalions in the back area were billeted in Mazingarbe, Le Brebris, and Sainsen-Gollelle.

Parish Visiting.

The day after I arrived I determined to do some parish visiting in the slums—as I called the front line. I started off in my old trench uniform and long habitant boots, carrying with me a supply of bully beef, tinned milk and hardtack. I went through Bully-Grenay and then out through Maroc to Loos. Here once again the dressing station at Fort Glatz was occupied by a doctor and staff from one of our ambulances. I spent a little while there and then continued on my journey up the road past Crucifix Corner to the trenches. The 7th and 8th Battalions were in the line. The day was fine and the warm sunshine was hardening the mud, so things did not look too unpleasant. I went to the 7th Battalion first and found the gallant men carrying on in the usual way. Hugo Trench was very quiet, and from it one could obtain a good view of the German lines and Lens beyond. It was great fun to go into the saps and surprise the two or three men who were on guard in them. The dugouts were curious places. The entrance steps were steep, and protected by blankets to keep out gas. At the bottom would be a long timberlined passage, dark and smelly, out of which two or three little rooms would open. The men off duty would be lying about on the floor, sound asleep and it was often hard to make one's way among the prostrate bodies. The officers' mess would have a table in it and boxes for seats. On a shelf were generally some old newspapers or magazines and a pack of cards. In the passage, making it narrower than ever, were a few shelves used as bunks. At the end of the passage would be the kitchen, supplied with a rude istove which sent its smoke up a narrow pipe through a small opening. In the trenches the cooks were always busy, and how they served up the meals they did was a mystery to me. Water was brought in tins from a tap in one of the trenches to the rear, and therefore was not very abundant. I have occasionally, and against my will, seen the process of dish-washing in the trenches I could never make out from the appearance of the water whether the cook and his assistant were washing the plates or making the soup, the liquid in the tin dish was so thick with grease. However, it was part of the war, and the men were doing their best under most unpropitious circumstances.

I had come prepared to spend a night in the trenches, and had decided to do so in the large German-made dug-out in the chalk-pit which was held by "D" Company of the 8th Battalion. The officer on duty with the 7th Battalion kindly acted as my guide. The day had worn away, and the bright moon was lighting up the maze of yellow trenches. We passed along, exchanging many greetings at different places, until we came to the outpost of the 8th Battalion at the top of the path which leads down into the chalk-pit. Here four men were sitting keeping guard. They gave me a warm greeting, and I told them that if I were not in a hurry to let my guide go back to his lines, I would stop and recite some of my poems in the moonlight. It struck me that they seemed more amused than disappointed. So wishing them good-luck, we started onward down the slippery path which led into the pit, where many shells had torn up the ground and where were remains not only of uniforms and mess-tins and rifles but also of German bodies. We had hardly reached the entrance to the dugout when two or three of those shells which the men called "pine-apples" arrived in quick succession they sounded so close that we dived into the place of refuge. We found the O.C. of the Company inside, and he very kindly arranged to give me a large bed all to myself in one of the chambers of the dugout. Suddenly a runner appeared and told us the pineapples had hit the outpost, killing some of his men to whom I had just been talking, but also the Adjutant of the Battalion. I at once got up and went back to the place. The line was quiet now, and the whole scene was brightly lighted by the moon and looked so peaceful that one could hardly imagine that we were in the midst of war, but lying in the deep shadow at the bottom of the trench, with its face downwards, was the body of the Adjutant. He had been killed instantly. In the outpost beside the trench, were the bodies of the poor lads who had been on duty when I passed a few minutes before. I stayed with the man guarding the bodies until a stretcher party arrived and carried them away. Then I went back to the dugout and visited the men who were crowded into its most extraordinary labyrinth of passages and recesses. In the very centre of the place, which must have been deep underground, there was a kitchen, and the cooks were preparing a hot meal for the men to eat before "stand to" at dawn. The men of course were excessively crowded and many of them were heating their own food in mess-tins over smoking wicks steeped in melted candle grease. All were bright and cheerful as ever, in spite of the stifling atmosphere which must have been breathed by human lungs over and over again. It was quite late when I stretched myself on my wire mattress with my steel helmet for a pillow. Only a piece of canvas separated me from the room where a lot of men were supposed to be sleeping. They were not only not asleep but kept me awake by the roars of laughter which greeted the stories they were telling. However, I managed to doze off in time. I was rudely awakened early in the morning by the metallic thud of pineapples on the ground overhead. I was wondering what it meant when a man came down to the O.C.'s room, next to mine, and roused him with the somewhat exciting news, "Major, the Germans are making an attack." It was not long before the Major was hurrying up the steps to the passage above, and it was not long before I followed, because I always had a horror of being bombed in a dugout. In the passage upstairs all the men were "standing" with fixed bayonets, and plenty of Mills bombs in their pockets. They were a most cheerful crowd, and really I think we all felt quite pleased at the excitement. A man came up to me and asked me what weapon I had. I told him I had a fixed bayonet on the end of my walking-stick. This did not seem to satisfy him, so he went over to a cupboard and brought me two bombs. I told him to take them away because they might be prematures. He laughed at this and said, "How will you protect yourself, Sir, if the enemy should get into the trench?" I told him I would recite one of my poems, they always put my friends to flight and would probably have the same effect upon my foes.

Homesick—With Reason

By this time the rain of pineapples overhead was very heavy, and I went to the door of the dugout where the Major was looking out. It was a curious scene. Day had just dawned, and we could see the heaps of broken rubbish and ripped up ground in front of us, while directly opposite at the top of the chalk-pit was our front line. Pacing up and down this was a corporal, his form silhouetted against the gray morning sky. He had his rifle with fixed bayonet on his shoulder, and as he walked to and fro he sang at the top of his voice the old song "Oh my; I don't want to die, I want to go home." The accompaniment to the song was the "swish" of the shells overhead and the bursting of them in the trenches behind. I told the Major that if we could only get a moving picture of the corporal and a gramophone record of his song with its accompaniment we could make thousands of dollars by an exhibition of it in Canada.

The next night I stayed at Cite St. Pierre. Who will ever forget the road up to it; and the corner near the ruined fosse, which was always liable to be shelled unexpectedly? In cellers beneath the unwholesome and dilapidated town our men found billets. They were really quite comfortable, but at night when the place was black as pitch, and one had to grope one's way in the darkness along debris-covered streets, shaken every now and then by German missiles from the sky, one longed for Canada and the well-lighted pavements of Montreal and Toronto.

On February 14th, at the officers' club at Corps Headquarters in Camblain l'Abbe, we had a great gathering of all the officers who had landed in France three years before. The one hundred and fifty who sat down to dinner were only a small part of the original number, and before the anniversary came round again many of those present were called to join the unseen host to whose memory that night we drank in silence. It was strange to look back over three years and think that the war, which in February, 1915, we thought was going to be a matter of months, had now been protracted for three years and was still going on. What experiences each of those present had had! What a strange unnatural life he had been called upon to live, and how extraordinarily efficient in the great war game had each become! It was a most interesting gathering of strong and resolute men filled with sublime ideals of duty and patriotism, and who at the same time were absolutely free from all posing and self-consciousness. They had learnt how to play the game; they had learnt both how to command and how to obey; they had learnt how to sink selfish interests and aims, and to work only and unitedly for the great cause.

On February 19th I held the dedication service at the unveiling of the artillery monument at Les Tilleuls. Owing to its exposed position no con-course of men was allowed but there was a large gathering of the Staff, including the Army Commander, and of course a number of officers from the artillery. The lines of the monument are very severe. A plain white cross surmounts a large mass of solid masonry on which is the tablet, which General Currie unveiled. It stands in a commanding position on Vimy Ridge, and can be seen for miles around. Many generations of Canadians in future ages will visit that lonely tribute to the heroism of those, who, leaving home and loved ones ,voluntarily came and laid down their lives in order that our country might be free.

CHAPTER XIV

The German Offensive--March, 1918

Over four months had passed away since my return from Rome, so leave was again due. Immediately after the unveiling of the Artillery monument I started off in a car for Boulogne, and the next after noon arrived in London. Conditions there were worse than they had been the year before. The streets were darker and food was scarcer. I went as far north as Edinburgh, but when I arrived at that city I found it cold and wintry and wrapped in mists. There were many naval men there, and I paid an interesting visit to a damaged submarine which was being repaired in the dry-dock. It was of course pleasant to meet friends again, but beyond that my leave was not a pleasant one. It was a time of great anxiety. The Amerkans had come into the war, but they were not yet ready. Another campaign was before us, and the issue of it none could foresee. I was haunted perpetually by the dread of meeting with some accident, and so being sent back from the front. Several times I had a vivid dream that I had got back to Canada and found that the war was still going on and I could not return to it. I shall never forget the joy of waking on such occasions and looking with dawning consciousness upon my surroundings and feeling that I was still at the front. It was a happy day for me, therefore, when on March 8th I arrived once more at Bracquemont, in the midst of my war-family, and able to revisit Leivin, Loos, and Hill 70.

My favorite home in the trenches was the dug-out in the chalk-pit which I have just described, and I often wish I could be suddenly transported there and revive old memories. We were planning at this time to make a big gas-attack along the Canadian Corps' front. Three thousand gas cylinders were to be fired by electricity upon the enemy. As I wanted to see this, I made my way to the chalk-pit. The time fixed for the event was five minutes to eleven at night. If the attack was to come off, the word "Japan" was to come through on the wires; if, owing to the wind being in the wrong direction, the attack had to be postponed, the word "Russia" would be sent. At 10:45 I climbed up to the steep steps to the observation post at the back of the chalk-pit and waited. From this point I had a good view of the line towards Lens. I watched the luminous hands on my watch, and they passed the hour of eleven without anything occurring, as the breeze came from the East. I knew that the word "Russia" the name of the country that failed us, must have been sent over the wires. It was a queer sensation to sit up there in the dark with no sound but the soft murmur of the night wind in the ears, and the crash of an occasional shell. In those long dark stretches of waste land around me, thousands of human beings on both sides of the li were awake and active, either burrowing like ants in the ground or bringing up rations and war material along the communication trenches.

I spent four nights that week in the chalk-pit waiting for the attack, and on March 21st, the night of the day on which the Germans launched their fierce attack against our Fifth Army, my patience was rewarded and the wind was propitious. I mounted the observation post and once more peered over the black stretches of country under the starlit sky. Suddenly, at five minutes to eleven, there was a burst of artillery fire, and over our heads with the usual swishing sound the gas-cylinders sped forth. The German lines were lit with bursting shells. Up went their rockets calling to their artillery for retaliation. I could hear their gas bells ringing to warn their men of the poison that was being poured upon them. It must have been a drenching rain of death. I heard gruesome tales afterwards of desolate enemy trenches and batteries denuded of men. The display of fireworks was, magnificent, and the German artillery in the rear were not slow in replying. A great artillery duel like that in the darkness of the night over a waste of ground on which no human habitation could be seen had a very weird effect, and was wonderful to behold. I climbed down into the dug-out and made my way through it to the chalk-pit, and then up to an outpost beyond. Here were four men, and I found that three of them had just arrived from the Base and that this was their first night in the line. They did not seem to be enjoying it as I thought they should, so I remarked that it was a beautiful night and pointed out to them the extraordinary romance of being acually out in the front line during such a bombardment. They seemed to get more enthusiastic later on, but the next morning I was awakened in my room by the laughter of men on the other side of the canvas wall, and I heard one sold soldier telling to the amusement of his fellows, of my visit on the previous evening. He said "We were out there with the shells falling round us, and who should come up but the Canon, and the first thing the old beggar said was, 'Boys, what a lovely night it is'." The men roared at the idea. It was always illuminating to get a chance of seeing yourself as others saw you.

Gathering Clouds.

That day, before I had gone to the chalk-pit, I heard from a staff officer at Corps of the Germans' attack in the South, and I gathered from his manner that things were not going well. On March 29th we suddenly shifted our headquarters to Chateau de la Haie. Here we were told that we had to be ready to move again at a moment's notice. Very bad news had come from the South, for the Germans were advancing, and our Fifth Army had been pushed back. The enemy had now got the initiative into his hands and things were exceedingly serious. The Americans would not be ready for some time, and the question was how to stay the onrush of the fresh divisions which the Germans were hurling against us. An order from General Currie, couched in beautiful language, told us that there was to be no retreat for Canadians, and that, if need be, we should fall where we stod. There was no panic, only firmer resolve and greater activity in every department. Thought I made a point of never questioning our staff about war secrets, I soon became aware that our Division was to be sent South to stem the oncoming tide.

Every night the 4th Divisional concert party gave an entertainment in the theatre, which was crowded with men. A stranger could not have told from the roars of laughter which shook the audience from time to time that we were about to face the fiercest ordeal of the war. The 2nd Brigade was quartered round us first, and one night in the theatre an officer appeared in front of the stage between the acts and ordered all the officers and men of the 5th Battalion who were present to report at once at their headquarters. Instantly the men got up and lef, the rows of vacant seats looking quite tragic. The play went on. Again, another battalion, and another, was called off. The audience dwindled. It reminded one of the description in the "Tale of Two Cities" of the condemned men in prison waiting for the call of the executioner. Before the close of the performance the theatre was almost empty. The 2nd Brigade moved away that night and the 3rd Brigade took their places the next day. I knew that they, too would have to move suddenly, so I arranged that at night we should have a service followed by a Celebration of the Holy Communion in the theatre after the play was over. Once again the building was crowded with an enthusiastic audience, and after the play was ended I announced the service. To my astonishment most of the men stayed and others crowded in, so we must have had nearly a thousand men present. The concert party had received orders to pack up their scenery immediatly and move off: so while I was on the stage getting the altar ready the scene shifters were hard at work behind me. In spite of this disturbance we had a wonderful service. I gave them a short address, and spoke about the high call which had come to Canadians to do big things, and how the eyes of the world were upon us. We were the champions of right, and I asked them to go forth in the power of God and do their duty. Then I began the Communion Service. The colours of the flag which hung over the altar showed like an inspiration, the two altas lights shone like stars above it. At the back of the stage (but we heeded them not) were the busy men packing up the scenery. We sang the hymn "O God our help in ages past," and at the of communion about two hundred officers and men mounted the stage in turn and knelt in rows to receive the Bread of Life. It was a thrilling moment, and it showed how, underlying the superficial thoughtlessness of the soldier's life, there was the deep and abiding sense of the reality and need of God. The service ended about eleven p.m.

For Parts Unknown

After shaking hands with some of the men I went back to my billet and therefound that we had to start that night for parts unknown. All our surplus baggage had been sent off and only what was absolutely necessary was retained. The members of "C" mess were sitting round the table having a little liquid refreshment and waiting for the bus which was to take them off. Our A.D.M.S., who was starting at once, kindly offered to take me with him in an ambulance. Alberta and I, with two or three men, got into the vehicle, and I bade farewell for the last time to Chateau de la Haie. It was a bright moonlight night and the air was cold, but the roads were dry and dusty. The A.D.M.S., who was the only person who knew our destination, sat in front with the driver and told him the various turns to take. Clouds of dust blew back into the ambulance as we sped onward. It was a curious expedition. The war seemed to be more real than ever. One felt that a new page in its history was being turned. I wondered what was in store for us and what our experiences were going to be. I was also surprised that one was able to go forth without any emotion upon an adventure of such magnitude. On and on we rattled down the moonlit roads, past sleeping villages, and round sharp curves, which jolted us in the car, until at last at half-past two we puleld up suddenly in front of some large iron gates which gave entrance to the grounds of a chateau standing back from the road. The A.D.M.S. and his staff got out and hunted for some cottages which they could use as an office.

I thought I had better go off and find a place in which I could spend the rest of the night. With my haversack over my shoulder and followed by Alberta, I entered the gate and made my way up the avenue till I came to the Chateau. It was a large and picturesque building, and stood out nobly against the outlines of the trees in the park. The moon lit up the gray stone front, which was made all the richer by the variegated lights and shade. The mansion, however, showed no inclination to be hospitable. All the windows were tightly closed with shutters, and there was no appearance of life anywhere. I knew we were not far from the advancing Germans, and so I supposed that the inhabitants had all fled. I was so cold and tired that I determined to force an entrance and spend the night inside. I walked round to the back, where I saw a great park richly wooded. A large door in the centre of the building, reached by a broad flight of stone steps, seemed to offer me a chance of getting inside. I went up and tried the handle, when, to my surprise, the door opened and I found myself in a beautiful hall richly furnished and lighted by a lamp. Antlers hung on the wall, and the place had the appearance of an English country-house.

A Dream House

After my long ride, and at that hour of the night, I felt as if I were in a dream. I saw a door to the right and opening it was admitted to a modern drawing-room luxuriously furnished. A grate fire was burning on the hearth, and on a centre-table stood silver candelabra with lighted candles. There were also plates of bread and butter, some very nice cups and saucers, and a silver coffee-pot. At once I said to myself, "I am evidently expected. It was a like a story from the Arabian Nights. I looked about the place and not a soul appeared. Alberta tucked herself up on a rug and was soon fast asleep. I was just preparing to partake of the refreshments which, it seemed some fairy grandmother had provided, when in came one of our A.D.C.'s. He was as much surprised to see me as I was to see him. He told me that our Divisional Commander had arrived there about an hour or two before and had gone to bed, and that we were in the home of a certain count whose servants had all fled. He also told me that there was a bedroom which I could have upstairs, which would not be occupied by our staff until the next evening. I had a cup of coffee, and then, calling Alberta and taking a candle, I climbed a very rambling staircase till I reached the top storey, where I found an empty room and a very dirty bed in it. However, I was glad to get a place in which to rest, and so, with my rain-coat for a covering, I went to sleep. The next morning, having foraged for some water in which I had a good wash, I went off to the village to get food. I met many of our units coming up in busses. Some were halted by the wayside, and nobody knew what we were going to do or why we were there. The Imperial transport officer in charge had either acted under wrong orders, or else the drivers did not know the roads. Some of our battalions had lost their way, one even entered a village at the other end of which were the Germans, and two of our Engineer Companies disappeared completely for two days.

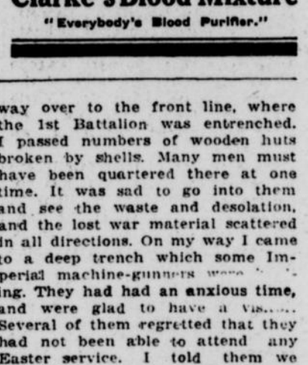

The country people were hurrying off in carts, taking their household goods with them. I found a primitive farmhouse where I was able to buy some eggs and bread, and I invited a number of stragglers in to have something to eat. By noon, however, we got orders from the Army to move back to a place called Fosseaux. There we occuppied an empty chateau which before the war must have been a very fine place. A wide grassy road nearly a mile in length, bordered on each side by fine old trees, stretched off into the distance in front of the central door. The entrance to the road was guarded by an exquisitely wrought iron gate, flanked on each side by stone pillars surmounted by carved heraldic figures. It was now cold and rainy, and our two artillery Brigades were halted in a field opposite and were awaiting orders. Before nightfall they had left, and the forward section of our Dovision made their headquarters in a hut at Warlus; the members of "C" mess remaining at Fosseaux.

Good Friday Underground.

March the 29th, was Good Friday, and a strange one it was. There was much stir and commotion everywhere, and we were so unsettled, that all I could do was to have a service in the cineman in evening, and on Easter Day two celebrations of Holy Communion to which I had only twenty-eight communicants. Our men had gone into the line to the southeast of Arras, round Telegraph Hill, where a German attack was expected, as their advance to the south had been checked. I made my way to Arras, and spent the night in one of the mysterious caves which lie under that city. It was called St. Sauveur Cave, and was entered from a street behind the station. The 1st Brigade was quartered there. In the morning I walked down the long dark passage till I came to an opening which led me to some high ground where there had evidently been a good deal of fighting. From there I made my way over to the front line, where the 1st Battalion was entrenched. I passed numbers of wooden huts broken by shells. Many men must have been quartered there at one time. It was sad to go into them and see the waste and desolation, and the lost war material scattered in all directions. On my way I came to a deep trench which some Imperial machine-gunners were ... ing. They had had an anxious time, and were glad to have a vis... Several of them regretted that they had not been able to attend any Easter service. I told them we would have one there and then, as I was carrying the Blessed Sacrament with me. So we cleaned a corner of the trench, and there I had a short service and gave the men communion.

Our trenches were not satisfactory, as we did not know accurately where those of the Germans were. That night, [illegible] going

Crippled with Rheumatic Gout

"Legs and feet so bad could not stand."

Our portrait is of Mrs. JESSIE E. MURPHY, of 36a, White's Square, Nelson's Row, Clapham, London, S.W., England, who writes:—"I feel I must write and let you know how thankful I am for the benefit I have derived from taking your famous Clarke's Blood Mixture. For four months I was crippled with Rheumatic Gout and my legs and feet were so bad I could not stand. My doctor ordered me to bed in blankets and there I stayed for a whole fortnight, but did not get any better. At last I decided to try your Clarke's Blood Mixture, and after having four bottles I am now quite well, able to do my work, and get about again. It is now four weeks since I left off taking Clarke's Blood Mixture and I have felt no signs of Rheumatism since my wonderful recovery. My friends gave up hope of seeing me about again, and I myself can hardly realise that I have suffered so much. My mother, who is a sufferer from the same complaint, is now taking it and already feels better. I will do my best to recommend Clarke's Blood Mixture to my friends, and to show you my thanks you have my permission to make whatever use you please with this letter."

Sufferers from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczema, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout, should realise that lotions, ointments, &c., can but give temporary relief—to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure waste matter, the true cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes, and expels the impurities; that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take and free from injurious ingredients. "My Mirror Told Me"

THE excitement of business emergencies kept me so busy that I did not notice that I was losing out physically, until one day, when looking in a mirror, I suddenly realized my condition. I could see then that I was rapidly approaching a nervous breakdown.

"About that time a friend of mine told me about what a large proportion of life insurance applications were being turned down because of physical disabilities resulting from the tense nervous strain of recent years.

"What was I to do?

"Well, my wife had noticed me being nervous and worried, and had been at me for some time to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I decided to give it a try-out.

"During the first week I could not see much improvement, and was getting rather discouraged. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Everything worried me so that I was continually nervous and irritable. But my wife saw to it that I did not miss my regular dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the second week I began to sleep better and to feel more cheerful.

"From that time on this restorative treatment seemed to build me right up, and I know now that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food saved me from a nervous breakdown.

"There must be many thousands of men and women in this country who are in just such a serious condition as I was, and who can benefit by my experience."

LACROIX FAMILY BURIED TOGETHER

Seven Victims Of Poisonous Weed In Ontario Town Laid To Rest

L'Orignal, Ont., May 5—Within twenty-four hours after having eaten wild parsnips the seven members of the Lacroix family who died in agony following a hearty meal of the poisonous vegetable were tenderly lowered into six graves at the Roman Catholic Cemetery here. The funeral mass was sung at 9 o'clock and immediately the lengthy cortege whic h included vehicles containing the seven bodies, wended its way to the cemetery, three miles distant, where the final blessing of the bodies was given. The condition of the bodies, due to the virulent nature of the poison, made it imperative that burial take place as soon as possible. As the survivors desired that the funeral should start from the home of the victims, the bodies were removed from St. Joseph's Hall to that place early this morning. There the remains were placed in caskets made during the night by sympathetic neighbors. The roughly-made boxes were all covered with black cloth, the two youngest victims being placed in one coffin. The funeral processions included three hearses, two of which were secured from Hawksbury. The bodies of Joseph Lacroix, Napoleon Lacroix, and his wife were conveyed in hearses in that order to the church; following came three farmers' wagons bearing the mortal remains of the children Louisa, Leopold, Marie Jeanne and Hector, the last two having been placed together in an adult casket.

Whatever, the Lacroix family ate that caused their deaths, it was not persnips, according to Dr. Hans T. Gussow, chief botanist of the Central Experimental farm. Parsnips, he states, do not contain strychnine and are not poisonous.

"It is extremely difficult to say what killed them when one has not seen the plant they are supposed to have eaten", Dr. Gussow said. "We are constantly receiving what people suppose to be parsnips. Usually we find they are the wild hemlock or cowbane. The former contains conine, a deadly poison.

"The water hemlock or spotted cowbane, is the most deadly and rapid in its action of all poisonous plants in Canada. It somewhat resembles the poison hemlock, except that no bracts grow at the base of the main umbel, whereas in the poison hemlock there is a circle of bracts. It is found in wet places, whereas the poison hemlock is found in dry spots. The roots and swollen base of the stem are the most virulent parts of the plant. The toxic principles are the alkaloid cicutine with oil of cicuta and cicutoxine. The first symptoms will occur within two hours of eating the plant. The victim usually dies in the most virulent spasms".

Few residents of L'Orignal were held in greater respect and liking than the adult members of the Lacroix family, who were hard working, reputable members of the community.

Mayor L. O. Bertrand, looked after the funeral arrangements on behalf of the municipality and earned the commendation of the townspeople and the gratitude of the relatives of the stricken family by his efforts. Business was practically suspended in L'Orignal this morning the townspeople assembling in hundreds early at the home and at the church.

Among the relatives of the deceased present at the funeral were Alex. Lacroix, Lachine, Que., a brother of the late Napoleon Lacroix; and a sister, Mrs. Joseph Tessier, also of Lachine and Mr. and Mrs. I. Laframboise, of Pointe aux Chenes; Mrs. Laframboise being a sister of the late Mrs. Lacroix.

Mayor Bertrand stated that it was estimated that the dead had taken enough poison to destroy 25 families, so potent was the poison.

Mrs. E. Seguin, a neighbor and relative of the Lacroix family, is caring for the two little survivors, Gaston, aged three years, and Henri George, aged 17 months. The younger is quite well as he ate none of the poisonous food, but this morning it was stated that Gaston was not yet considered out of danger.

Mayor Bertrand will hold a conference this afternoon with members of the Council and other townspeople to see what arrangements should be made for caring for the two little orphans and to make any other arrangements that may be necessary in connection with the affair of the family.

An expert of the Department of Agriculture left for L'Orignal this afternoon to obtain samples of he plant supposed to have killed the Lacroix family. Dr. Hans Gussow, Dominion Botanist regarded the step as necessary in view of the publicity given the case and the grave anxiety caused by the reports.

The herb which was the cause of the seven deaths in the Lacroix family was wild hemlock, which is described as a large biennial herb of the parsley family, according to the investigations made by Dr. G. G. Smith This morning he said that the foliage of the herb resembled celery, while the root is not unlike parsnips. The poisonous biennial can be found in large quantities in this district.

Gaston Lacroix, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Lacroix who with five other members of their family succumbed to poisoning on Thursday afternoon, is now out of danger. Dr. G. G. Smith stated tonight that the lad would recover. He and his 15 months old brother, George, will be adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Israel Laframboise, uncle and aunt of the children.

SIR LOMER IN WRONG WITH BAR

Manitoba Ass'n Enters Vigorous Protest Against Appointing Political Judges

Winnipeg, May 5—Local newspapers publish today copies of communications which have passed between Sir Lomer Gouin, Minister of Justice for Canada, and the Law Society of Manitoba and the Manitoba Bar Association, in regard to the appointment of J. E. Adamson as Judge of the Court of King's Bench in this Province. There is quoted a joint resolution adopted on April 28 by the Benchers of the Law Society and the Executive Council of the Bar Association which concludes in the following words:—

"This meeting desires to express as strongly as possible its view that no appointments to the Bench should be made for political reasons and respectfully and earnestly urges upon the Government that, in future, no judicial appointments within this Province be made without consultation with the official representatives of the profession in the Province so as to ensure that the appointee shall have the essential qualifications for the position as well as the confidence of the Bar and the public".

It is set out in the preliminary that for many years the Ministers of Justice have been willing to receive recommendations for vacant judgeships from the Law Society of Manitoba and that "recently certain persons have been appointed "without any opportunity having been given the benchers to make their views known "by both the past and the present Government".

A telegram dated May 2 and addressed to Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, and Sir Lomer Gouin, signed by W. Redford Mullock and Isaac Campbell, President and Secretary respectively, of the Law Society of Manitoba, and Theo. A. Hunt and H. J. Riley, President and Secretary of the Manitoba Bar Association, as quoted reads as follows:—

"At a joint meeting of the Benchers of the Law Society of Manitoba and the Executive of the Bar Association of Manitoba, held today, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

This meeting regrets that, according to newspaper reports of yesterday, the Government has decided to appoint as Judge of the Court of King's Bench of this Province, a member of the Bar whom we consider wholly unfit for the position.

It appears to us that such appointment, if made, will be solely as a reward for party faithfulness or service. We desire to register our most emphatic protest against the appointment, believing as we do that it cannot but tend to destroy the confidence of the public in the judiciary of the Province. We trust that we may have your assurance that the newspaper report is unfounded and that no such commission will issue".

Sir Lomer Gouin's reply, dated May 3, as quoted, is as follows, addressed to W. Redford Mulock:—

"Your wire dated May 2 duly received. I am unaware of the name mentioned in the nedwspaper reports you refer to. After full and mature consideration, the Government has decided to appoint Mr. J. E. Adamson as Judge of the Court of King's Bench and I desire to assure you that none of the reasons mentioned in your protest inspired the selection made.

The final message is signed by Mr. Mulock and addressed to the Minister of Justice, and is quoted as follows:—

"Joint meeting of Benchers and Bar Executive held today to consider your wire, unanimously desire me to wire as follows:—

Our telegram referred to J. E. Adamson , and we assumed that newspaper announcement would be within your knowledge. Adamson is no way first for the position and it is perfectly obvious that his appointment can only be based on party considerations. Trust your decision may be reconsidered and that commission will not issue to Adamson."

FRENCH WINES COST LESS IN DOMINION

Than In Land Of Manufacture, At Present Rate Of Exchange

Montreal, May 5—That the best of French wines may be purchased from the Quebec Liquor Commission more cheaply than they can be bought in the land of their manufacture, even at the present rate of exchange, is the statement made this morning by Sir William Stavert, of the Commission.

Although this may seem strange, it is nevertheless true, he said. This is due to the Commission's system of buying in the most advantageous markets, which has been brought to scientific perfection and to the reduced value of the franc.

Examples of the accuracy of these statements were given and it was shown that some of the best brands may be purchased here in Montreal for, say $1.26 per quart, while for the same quality and quantity, a buyer in Paris would pay $1.50, taking the franc at ten cents.

GENERAL WU IS VICTORIOUS

Forces Of Manchurian Leader Completely Driven From Region Of Peking

Peking, May 5—The forces of General Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurin Leader, have been completely driven from the region of Peking and General Wu Pei-Fu now is in control of the situation.

Chang's authority in Peking was eliminated today with the disarming of his guard inside the capital, and General Wu was recognized by the Peking Government as assuming control.

It is understood that President Hsu-Shih Chang will remain in office until the end of his term in October 1923. General Wu says he does not intend to interfere with him. A reorganization of the cabinet is expected. Premier Liang Shih-Yi, who is regarded as a supporter of General Chang, will automatically eliminated.

The premier is at present in Tien Tsin. Acting Premier Chow Tsu Chi probably will resign. He conferred with General Wu's plenipotentiaries with regard to the Government.

General Wu has remained outside Peking thus far and has given no indication of an indication to enter the city. He purposes to call a costitutional convention.

As soon as the military prboloems are solved, it is his intention to unite North and South China. The convention probably will be held in Central China.

The defeat of General Chang is attributed to lack of the support he expected from the Southern Provinces, the neutrality of Shantung and the failure of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, head of the Southern government in Canton to send a expedition northward to operate against General Wu.

EXEMPTION OF FISHING VESSELS

From Pilotage Dues Passed In House Of Commons At Ottawa

(By Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Ont., May 5.—A resolution was passed in the House of Commons this evening to provide for the exemption of Canadian fishing vessels from pilotage dues. The resolution also authorized the Governor-in-Council to grant exemption from these dues to ships of war and hospital ships of such foreign nations as may be specified by Order-in-Council.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, explained that it had been customary to exempt fishing vessels, but there was no legal authority for doing so.

After the resolution had passed, a bill based thereon was introduced by the Minister and given a first reading.

Votes totalling $41,788,300 for ocean and river service carried with comparatively little discussion in the House tonight.

Answering the Leader of the Opposition, Hon. E. Lapointe, Minister of Marine, said this was a decrease of $165,000 from last year's vote. The amount of last year's vote spent, totalled $1,491,211.

On public work of the Marine Department chargeable to Capital a vote of $613,000 for St. Lawrence Ship channel, maintenance and operation of dredging fleet was passed.

REFORM OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS

Government Has Had No Time To Reform Upper Chamber

London, May 5—Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer in an address today at a demonstration by the Primrose League in Albert Hall, said the Government had not had time to bring forward legislation designed to strengthen the House of Lords, but this promise would be fulfilled soon.

Alluding to Ireland, Sir Robert admitted that the force of events had been too much for the Conservative party, which had been forced to orientate its views, but that now it must have been demonstrated to the world that the unrest in Ireland did not arise only from misrule in England.

The speaker said the budget, which he presented to the House of Commons Monday was the result of the extraordinary steadiness of the British people and the solidity of the country's financial system.

Conditions in Central Europe, said Sir Robert, would make a revival of trade well nigh impossible if they were allowed to continue. That was why the Prime Minister was trying to bring Europe to reason. It was necessary he asserted that Russia by some means or other be brought back to play her part in the community of nations in Europe.

BUDGET AS SOON AS POSSIBLE NOW

Minister Of Finance Informed Sir Henry Drayton In House Yesterday

(By Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 5—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance informed Sir Henry Drayton in the House today that he would bring the budget down at as early a date as possible.

Right Hon. Arthuh Meighen reminded the Government that some time ago the Government had been requested to ascertain the correctness of certain remarks attributed by Press despatches to Hon. P. C. Larkin, High Commissioner in London. The remarks over which the controversy arose were to the effect that the continuance of the cattle embargo was placing a dangerous weapon in the hands of the annexationists of the Prairies.

The Prime Minister replied that the Government had not found it necessary to send a cable to Mr. Larkin because they had received a cable from him denying that he had made the statement attributed to him.

Mr. Meighen observed that this did not constitute an answer in that the remarks were alleged to have been made by Mr. Larkin while in conservation with a British Cabinet Minister.

A bill to restore special tickets on the railway was introduced by T. L. Church, Conservative Member for North Toronto. Mr. Church agreed that it was necessary that excursion tickets should be abolished during the war, but he thought it was time that they were restored, especially in view of the fact that the people of Canada had spent $900,000,000 on railways directly and indirectly.

Excursion rates had already been restored in the United States. The bill was given a first reading; but when Mr. Church asked for a second reading by unanimous consent of the House there were cries of "six months" and the bill went over to another day. There is little chance of it being heard of again this session, except by special arrangement.

MANY FAMILIES ARE HOMELESS

Owing To Flood Which Completely Swept Over Brandon Flats

(By Canadian Press)

Brandon, Man., May 5—About 185 houses scattered cver an area of two square miles have been vacated by families forced to leave their homes and most of their effects, owing to the flood which completely covers the flats from one end of the city to the other, north of the tracks and spreads across the fields in many places to the foot of the hills north of the city.

No further rise in the Assiniboine River has been reported since noon, but a slight rise is probable Saturday morning.

Relief work among the families forced to leave their homes is being carried on by the city and the Winter Fair are now placed at their disposals. However, some of the families have pitched tents on higher ground and others are residing with friends and relative outside the flood area.

Conditions on the whole are slightly improved as with no further rise in the river in the West, it is hoped that the torrential pouring down of the waters has practically ceased and a decrease is expected early next week. Should the water stay on the land for any length of time, further relief will have to be given the flood sufferers.

LONGSHOREMEN RESUME WORK

Differences With Shipping Federation To Be Settled At Montreal

Montreal, May 5.—Differences between the Shipping Federation and the syndicated Longshoremen will be ended tomorrow by the signing of an agreement, under which the Union accepts the reduced scale of wages offered by the companies, while the latter agree that their dock labor shall be supplied by the Union.

The settlement was reached after a meeting between the Union heads and members of the Shipping Federation, in the latter's office here this morning, held at the special request of Mayor Martin.

The settlement brings to an end a situation which had existed since April 16 and which on April 25 and May 2 resulted in lawless outbreaks involving the shooting of two constables by rioters.

The men go back on a wage reduction of ten cents an hour as compared with last year's rates. They will irreceive 50 cents an hour with extra pay for overtime and night work.

DAIL EIREANN IS ADJOURNED

Until Wednesday Next To Permit Peace Committee To Confer

Dublin, May 5—The Dail Eireann held only a brief session today, adjourning to Wednesday in order that those of its members who are on the peace committee might have opportunity to continue in attendance upon the Conferences, aimed at bringing about unity between the rival factions. Meanwhile the truce which was to expire Monday, has been extended to Wednesday.

The sitting was not begun until 3:45 this afternoon, the delay being due to the prolonged session of the Peace Committee at the Mansion House. The army delegation was again present.

A letter was received at this juncture from the Peace Committee which said it might be able to report by 11 o'clock Saturday morning, by general agreement, however, adjournment to Wednesday was voted.

Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork suggested that no public meetings be held meanwhile. Michael Collins, head of the Provisional Government who was about to visit Kilkenny, raised no objection to this.

Solid Support

Washington, May 5—Unqualified support of the Republican party in Ireland under the leadership of Eamon De Valera and unanimous decision to exclude participation of all those who do not subscribe to the policy of supporting the Irish Republic marked the opening session here today of the national convention of the American Association for the recognition of the Irish Republic.

The Rev. Michael O'Flanagan, Vice-President of the Sinn Fein and Austin Stack, member of the Dail Cabinet, who attended as members of the Irish Republican delegation to the United States were given an ovation when they entered the hall.

Stephen O'Mara, Mayor of Limerick, also was present and was enthusiastically received.

A message received from de Valera provoked applause. It read:—

"Greetings. Until the unity and sovereignity of the Irish nation is recognized, the fight for Irish independence will continue. The surest path and the path of least sacrifice is the road of the Republic. All who love Ireland will assist in maintaining it."

Collins' Message.

A message from Michael Collins, chairman of the Irish Provisional government, calling upon friends of Ireland to "take no part in assisting or encouraging that element in our midst whose object is to destroy the inherent rights of the Soverign Irish people," was made public here today by the "Irish diplomatic mission." The message, addressed to "Kinsmen and friends of Ireland throughout the world," said that every free people whom the world today respects, has had to fight to guard these liberties and that Ireland "will not be one less zealous" in guarding and protecting them.

"All we ask," continued the message from Collins, "is that our friends overseas will not alow themselves to be induced by any agents of the anti-democratic elements in this country to assist in the work of undermining these fundametal rights."

Belfast, May 5—When a dispatch rider from Dublin bearing announcement of the truce between the rival factions of the Republican Army arrived in Drogheda Thursday afternoon the Free States forces had their guns trained on the Millmount barracks occupied by the irregulars. They withheld their fire, however, on hearing the news.

PRIMARIES RESULT TO AFFECT U. S. TARIFF

(By Canadian Press)

Washington, May 5—The result of the Indiana primaries in which former Senator Beveride defeated Senator New, a close friend of President Harding for the Republican Senatorial nomination, promises to affect the tariff situation in the Senate. It has already encouraged opponents of the pending bill to make a harder fight on the high rates of thethe Finance Committee. Predictions that if the proposed high rates go into effect they will cause a great political reaction are made by Democratic and Republican opponents of the bill. One effect is to increase the demand among the Republicans that tariff revision be delayed until after November elections.

FAVORABLE REPORTS ON BLAND BILL

Washington, May 5—Favorable reports was voted by the House Labor Commission today on the Bland Bill to create a fact finding commission for the coal industry.

The commission would consist of ten members representing miners and by public and Government agencies directing concerned in coal, including the geological survey and the directors of mines and mining. The report to Congress on recommendations would be required within two years.

WON'T MAINTAIN HIS OPPOSITION

Is General Belief Of M. Jaspar Belgian Foreign Minister

London, May 6—It is generally believed, says a Reuter despatch from Genoa timed midnight, that M. Caspar, the Belgian Foreign Minister, will not maintain his opposition to the memorandum to Russia, which it is expected France and Belgium will accept as now framed.

If the memorandum is not accepted Premier Lloyd George probably will return to London immediately.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Genoa says that M. Barrere of the French delegation at the conference has notified Premier Facta of Italy that France has decided to reserve signature of the memorandum to the Russians until the Belgians accept the memoranduc.

The economic commission of the Genoa conference has completed its work, Reuter's Genoa correspondent says, adopting without amendment all the resolutions presented by the sub-committee. These resolutions substantially follow the lines of the London experts' report, but there are some amplifications.

Facta at Rome

Rome, May 5—Premier Facta will remain in Rome until Saturday evening due to the stress of parliamentary and internal affairs. He came here from Genoa yesterday morning and before the opening session of the Chamber of Deputies went into conference with the members of his Cabinet to whom he communicated his satisfaction over the progress being made by the conference at Genoa.

GENERAL WAGE REDUCTION IN BUILDING TRADE

Montreal, May 5—At a general meeting of the Montreal Builders Exchange held here today, it was decided that a general reduction in wages in the building trades should be enforced amounting to from ten to thirty percent, the change to become operative at the beginning of the pay week nearest the first of June next.

Following the meeting it was stated that prospects for building this year were brighter than they had been for some time past and that there was an ample supply of labor, both skilled and unskilled.

TWO FIREMEN NEARLY SUFFOCATED IN ST. JOHN

St. John, N.B., May 5.—Two firemen were nearly suffocated at noon today while fighting a fire in H. G. Harrison's warehouse, Main Street. One of the men, Edward Hartshorn, was in a serious condition and was rushed to the hospital, while David Speight, quickly recovered when brought into the air.

The fire broke out in the upper section of the building, where a large quantity of hay was stored. Companions realizing their comrades' plight, tore off a hatch of the roof roof and rescued them. The fire did considerable damage to the building and stock. This afternoon Fireman Hartshorn was improving.

GREAT THIRST THAT STATES HAS DEVELOPED

Ottawa, Ont., May 5.—The great thirst caused by prohibition in the United States was exemplified in the Hull Court this morning where S. J. Hayes, of Rochester, N.Y., faced a charge of illegally transporting liquor. He was found not guilty and the seven bottles of liquor bearing the stamp of the Quebec Liquor License Commission were returned to him.

In the court this morning it was proved that Hayes had come to the Hull district for the purpose of getting some liquor to take back to Rochester.

OIL BURNING SHIPS AND WATER POLLUTION

Washington, May 5—The bathing beach girl and the lobster have suffered alike from pollution of navigable waters by oil burning ships, the House Foreign Affairs Committee revealed today in a report on a resolution requiring the President to call a Conference of Maritime nations to stop it. Aside from the first hazard resulting from the piling up of oil along the docks, the report that on the Atlantic, Pacific and the Gulf, lobsters, oysters and fish of all sorts were being destroyed to an alarming extent and bathing beaches had been greatly damaged because of the pollution.

CIVIL SERVANTS WILL GET BONUS

Was Decided At Government Caucus Held At Ottawa Yesterday Morning

(By Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 5—The bonus to civil servants will be continued in some form during the present year. At this morning's meeting of the Liberals in caucus, the whole matter, it is understood, was fully discussed and the matter of working out the details of bonus for the present year was left in the hands of the Government. The expectation is that the bonus will be continued almost in its present form in the case of lower paid employees but that there will be reductions in the amount of bonus paid the higher paid civil servants.

The decision of the Government is understood to be pretty well worked out and it is likely that an announcement of the Government's proposals in the matter will be presented to Parliament on Monday.

There was a full attendance at this morning's meeting, both members and senators being in attendance. The question of selecting the personnel for the committee on railway rates was also taken up, it is understood.

The import of the above despatch was communicated to the officers of the Federal Civil Servants' Associations here, and while the announcement proved most gratifying to them they refused to comment until they had been officialy advised.

BILL THROWN OUT.

Toronto, Ont., May 5.—The legal committee of the Legislature today threw out the bill which would have given grocery stores right to sell hydrogen peroxide. The druggists strongly objected to the bill.

AN INCIPIENT REVOLT EXISTS

Indians On Tuscarora Reserve, South Of Brantford, Defy Government

Hamilton, May 5—A state of incipient rebellion exists on the Tuscarora Reserve, south of Brantford, as a culmination to a number of disputes between the Council of the Six Nations and the Dominion Government.

The Indians are openly ignoring summonses to Police Court and defying the authorities. The Brantford authorities are awaiting Mounted Police reinforcements before attempting tn enforce the law.

All disputes in reality arise from the contention which is not admitted by the Canadian Government, that the Six Nations are Allies of Great Britain and not subject to the laws of Canada.

The attempt of the Dominion Government authorities to evict one George Vise, whom they termed a squatter, from a farm, one mile south of Osweken, the Capital of the Reserve, has precipitated matters. Vise went on to the farm after a returned Indian soldier had been evicted for failing to keep up payments under the Soldier Settlement Board.

Ottawa, May 5—(By Canadian Press)—Officials of the Department of Indian Affairs were somewhat reluctant to make any comment on the Hamilton despatch dealing with "an incipient rebellion" on the Tuscorora Indian Reserve. The trouble which exists at present was not of recent growth but has existed for some years, it was stated.

No man can tell his side of the story fairly to the man on the other side of the controversy.

QUEBEC, MAY 6, 1922

CANDOR IS BEST

The Duke of Devonshire, in a recent speech delivered in England, emphasized Canada's need of "men who were prepared to go and work on the land, and put their backs into it." While people of all nationalities were welcome, he said, providing they were of the right type, "it was essential that the development of the country should be in the hands of the British. This is a true statement of the facts, spoken out of the late governor-general's personal experience of Canadian conditions. Speaking in the same sense, Sir William Beach-Thomas, the distinguished English journalist, at present in Toronto, who is making an empire tour for the London Times and the Daily Mail, in order to obtain first-hand information on the immigration policies of the various dominions, deplores the "exaggerated reports of unrest" which have got abroad with regard to conditions in Canada, claiming that a "host of desirable potential citizens" are being lost to Canada through this cause. He asserts that the type of Britisher who is desirous of emigrating today is very different from the pre-war class, the majority being people of some means, who would like to engage in outdoor occupations and "active callings."

These high-class emigrants are passing up Canada, he says, because of the "prevailing opinion in England today that Canada is not desirous of immigration." It is certainly unfortunate if such an erroneous impression exists in the mother country. The competition between the different states of the empire to secure these suitable British emigrants is keen, and if the stream is diverted from Canada by any misunderstanding, deliberate or accidental, we shall certainly be the losers. On the other hand, it is a fact that this country is not prepared to absorb any great addition to its industrial population, which is already greater than can be comfortably provided for. Reports of industrial "unrest," as Sir William declares, may have been exaggerated; there is little apparent evidence of unrest, for the simple reason that special measures have been adopted in this country to carry the unemployed over the period of depression, which, it is confidently hoped, is merely of a temporary nature. But the problem exists, as we all know. And it is just as well that those on the other side of the Atlantic should know that it does exist. It would not be fair to them or to us to encourage them to come over under false pretenses.

CANADA AND WHEAT

Wheat and its welfare are matters that, like the poor, are always with us. It plays a considerable part in the prosperity or otherwise, of the Western Provinces, and the annual value of the crop to Canada averages $400,000,000. It not infrequently figures as a subject for discussion in Parliament, in fact there have been several feature stories emanating from Ottawa published during the last few days regarding wheat and its future.

Wheat is one of the oldest grains known to agriculture, in fact according to a statement in the Winnipeg Tribune, there is a specimen of the variety of wheat that was cultivated 15,000 years ago, on exhibition at the Field Museum at Chicago. It is the most important food ever discovered by man—so important that wheat bread is known in many languages as the staff of life. Wherever man has carried his civilization on a large scale he has had to carry cultivation of wheat with him.

In 1520, the Spaniards brought overseas the seed that started the giant wheat-growing industry on this continent.

City folks give little thought to wheat, yet all eat it. The body through which your spirit manifests itself in this three-dimensional world, is largely a transformation of wheat. To tens of thousands of farmers the wheat seed is the key of livelihood. This year they will raise, it is hoped, about twenty-five bushels for every person in Canada.

Canada, in proportion to population is the greatest wheat-growing country in the world.

Economists says wheat is the chief regulator of our whole system of economics—from prices to health. Current price problems are nothing new, but merely a repetition of the endless series of up-and-down cycles.

One might devote a whole lifetime to the study of wheat, and still have only a faint conception of its importance in the world's prosperity, health, happiness and progress.

It is one of the things that are taken for granted, without the curiosity that prompts study, by a civilization that trance-like is interested mainly in the startlingly new.

Wheat excites less interest today than among the primitive people who evolved it slowly from the grasses they cultivated. Yet the grain of wheat is the principal opening through which, into our three dimensioned world, flows the mysterious current of life.

WHAT THE NATIONS FORGET

At the conclusion of the great war, such had been the intensity of the suffering and anguish that nobody believed it possible that a calamity of such proportions could ever be permitted again. But now, after the brief interval of years, the same greed, suspicion and hate which caused the war are cropping up once more in all their hideous strength, and it is necessary to be reminded of the solemn lesson which the war taught, but which, apparently, has not yet been learnt or even understood.

The total number of deaths caused by the conflict, not counting those brought about by indirect means—want and pestilence among the civil populations, etc.—has been computed at about eight million. The Central Records office of the American Expeditionary forces has issued a report which places the number of men actually killed in the war at 7,668,300, and the wounded at 18,681,257. For every hour the conflict lasted, we read, 207.07 men were killed and 506 wounded.

Of the losses suffered, by the various countries Germany come first with 1,808,548 killed and 4,246,779 wounded. Russia's losses are estimated at 1,700,000 killed and 4,950,000 wounded. France sustained losses of 1,385,300 killed and 2,675,000 wounded. Austria 800,000 killed and 3,200,000 wounded; the British Empire had 692,065 killed and 2,037,325 wounder; the United States had 50,327 in killed and 205,690 wounded. That is surely sacrifice enough to last for many generations. If that is not sufficient to cure humanity of its insane desire for slaughter, the outlook is indeed desperate.

Premier Lloyd George is putting up an heroic fight for the preservation of peace in Europe and the world. Well may the Pope give his support to these pacific efforts, and well may the peoples of the world pray that they may succeed. No one, surely, but a madman or arch-criminal would desire to encourage policies calculated to provoke strife; yet through indifference, selfishness, or fogetfulness, there is danger of drifting into courses which will inevitably bring about such a disaster.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT LAW

The Canadian Authors' association at its annual convention last week urged the government to bring the copyright laws of the country up-to-date and more in line with the provisions of the Berne convention, the essence of which is that authors of any of the signatory countries, or their representatives, shall enjoy in other countries the rights which the respective laws of such other countries grant to native writers. Last year an attempt was made in the federal parliament to amend the existing law, and it is probable that the efforts of Canadian authors to obtain their just rights will before long be crowned with success. The law as it stands at present is admittedly inadequate and inequitable. It is antiquated and quite out of keeping with conditions as they exist today. The opportunities for pirating, garbling and generally ruining the productions of Canadian authors, while at the same time depriving them of their legitimate profits, are so many as to be a source of scandal.

The United States is not itself a subscriber to the Berne convention; there is an agitation in that country, however, to bring it in. Whatever may be done there, Canada should no longer delay the introduction of the desired changes. Native talent deserves such protection and encouragement, and the measure would be an act of national benefit.

A Verse Or Two

(By Modern Poets)

THE MAKING OF BIRDS

God made Him birds in a pleasant humor;
Tired of planets and suns was He.
He said: 'I will add a glory to summer,
Gifts for my creatures banished from Me!"

He had a thought and it set Him smiling
Of the shape of a bird and its glancing head.
Its dainty air and its grace beguiling:
"I will make feathers," the Lord God said.

He made the robin, He made the swallow,
His deft hands molding the shape to His mood,
The thrush and the lark and the finch to follow,
And laughed to see that His work was good.

He who has given men gift of laughter,
Made in His image. He fashioned fit
The blink of the owl and the stork thereafter,
The little wren and the long-tailed tit.

He spent in the making His wit and fancies,
The wing-feathers He fashioned them strong,
Deft and dear as daisies and pansies,
He crowned His work with the gift of song.

"Dearlings," He said, "make songs for My praises!"
He tossed them loose to the sun and wind,
Airily sweet as pansies and daisies;
He taught them to build a nest to their mind.

The dear Lord God of His glories weary—
Christ our Lord had the heart of a boy—
Made Him birds in a moment merry,
Bade them soar and sing for His joy.

ANY OLD KIND OF A LEAGUE

(Indianapolis News)

The world has not yet made up its mind whether Lloyd George is merely an incurable optimist or a man of deep faith and clear vision. He certainly is right in holding that Europe, if it is to be saved must act together. He is also right in holding that it can not act togther if there is a reversion to the old system. The League of Nations, or a league of nations, or an association of nations—the name is unimportant—is an absolute necessity. Our own Government has entered into a little league of nations, and it did so because it recogl nized the serious possibilities of misunderstandin, controvery and perhaps war unless there were an agreement binding the parties to the league agreement to act together in maters of common concern.

THE LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE PASSES

(Detroit Free Press)

The modern school adheres to the principal of natural development; the older school clung strictly to the belief of forced training. It is not to be assumed that in the modern school we let the child do only what he pleases. On the contrary, we put in every device which human ingenuity can summon to make him develop as he should. We do not make him as the older school was likely to do, a little cog which fitted perfectly into the school machine. We try to make the school organization wide and varied enough so that every child can fit into it without undue cramping of his individuality.

THE TRAGEDY OF LOST OPPORTUNITIES

(Kansas City Star)

There might be made out a fairly long list of rare achievements by men and women, boys and girls, who have had no "chance;" who were beset with poverty, physical defects, lack of education, home training or proper environment. But the list would be short indeed were it put alongside another list of those who, with only slight handicaps or none at all, have failed to accomplish anything of merit whatever. It is from the latter that one hears the excuses, the alibis for failure.

THE FINAL ARBITERS

(Chicago Journal of Commerce)

When the miners accept a wage which is equitable in comparison with wages in other industries for work of the same class, not only will the operators accept a new contract, but under it their earnings will increase. It is, after all, not the operators or the miners that control the situation, but that indefinite unorganized group commonly known as "the public."

DAILY AMUSEMENTS IN NEW YORK

(Waterbury American)

In old days the stranger in New York went to the Aquarium or the wax works; later to the theatre or the Hippodrome and some place to eat; still later the movies. Now one stands still anywhere on the street and a robbery or a murder comes right to him.

TRACES OF ARSENIC IN MAN'S STOMACH

Cleveland, Ohio, May 5—Examination of the stomach of the fifth husband of a woman accused of a series of murders in order to collect $11,000, has revealed traces of arsenic, Assistant City Chemist Voreg reported today. Authorities say they are holding the woman for investigation on suspicion of having poisoned three of her five husbands.

Earlier in the day H. K. Newton, Chief of the City Chemical Laboratories, reported that traces of morphine were visible but none of arsenic. The arsenic was discovered during a further examination.

HEAVY RAINS AND THE FRENCH CROPS

Paris, May 5—Some concern is felt by the Ministry of Agriculture over the effect upon crops of the abnormally heavy rains in France. Detailed reports have not yet been received for April but figures given in the official journal today show that on April 1 the condition of the winter wheat, rye, oats and hay crops was from 4 to 15 percent inferior to their condition on the corresponding date in 1921. The crops, however, says the Journal, can still be classified as "rather good".

TWENTY YEAR GIRL WAS KEPT IN SHED

Bucyrus, Ohio, May 5.—Irene Menges, aged 20, was rescued today by the sheriff from an iron-sheeted shed on the farm of her father, Jacob P. Menges, near Crestline, where she is said to have been imprisoned two years.

The girl was brought to Bucyrus, where she is being cared for by the sheriff's wife. She has not spoken a word since she was released. When rescued she wore little clothing and the shed where she was found was lighted only by a lantern, the sheriff said.

Her father claims she is mentally unbalanced and said it had been necessary to keep her under restraint for two years.

Members of her family objected strenuously, it was said, when the sheriff made known his intention of releasing the girl.

LAST TRIBUTE TO MR. J. L. HABERLIN

Imposing Obsequies Held Yesterday — Interment In St. Patrick's Cemetery

With every mark of esteem and respect the remains of Mr. John L. Haberlin were deposited in their last resting place in St. Patrick's Cemetery yesterday morning.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Cartier Avenue and was attended by a large concourse of mourners, while the grief of condoling friends found further expression in the large number of spiritual bouquets and floral tributes which were sent.

Preceding the hearse there were the boys of St. Patrick's School and a delegation of the International Typographical Union, while in the lengthy cortege were the members of the staff of the Quebec Chronicle several of whom had been associated with the deceased for upwards of thirty years, as well as citizens representative of both nationalities and of all creeds.

Immediately following the hearse were the chief mourners, as follows:—His two sons, Masters Patrick and Martin Haberlin; his brother, Mr. William Haberlin; his nephews, Masters Nicholas and Francis Haberlin, T. O'Connell, A. O'Connell, J. O'Connell, Gerard Martin, Martin Delaney and Evpy Delaney; his brothers-in-law, Messrs. A. H. O'Connell, James A. Martin, John A. Brady, Daniel Delaney, M. J. Delaney, of Quebec, and Felix Berger, of Montreal; his cousins, Messrs. James O'Doherty, Ernest O'Doherty and Gerard O'Doherty. Next came the pall-bearers, Messrs. P. J. Holden, F. Fitzgerald, W. O'Connell, M. J. Crane, John Doyle and Joseph Paul and the remainder of the long funeral train was composed of mourning friends.

At St. Patrick's Church, McMahon street, the service was very impressive and the musical portion of the ceremony was particularly touching.

The celebrant at the solemn requiem mass was Rev. Father O'Sullivan, who was assisted by Rev. Father Connelly, Rector of the parish as deacon, and Rev. Father Laroche, of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, as subdeacon. During the service the following solos were rendered with much expression and pathos: Miss Vera Henchey sang Schubert's Adieu Mrs. Harry Quart, "Cor dulce", by Valenti. Mr. Jas. McInnis sang "Sweet Names" at the opening of the service and also sang the solo part at the Libera, while Mr. Wm. O'Reilly rendered the "O Salutaris" and "Miseremini mei".

At the conclusion of the service the remains were conveyed to St. Patrick's where they were laid to rest in the family lot. The prayers at the graveside were recited by Rev. Father O'Hara.

A. & N. VETERANS ENTERTAINMENT

Delightful Evening Spent In Their Quarters In Cove Field Barracks

Despite the unfavorable weather which prevailed last evening the large hall of the Army and Navy Veterans quarters in the Cove Fields Barracks was filled with members and friends who were treated to a fine concert, organized by the Social Committee of the A. and N. Veterans' Association, the convenor of which is Sergt.-Major Ralph Quilter. The programme, which was a remarkably good one, was arranged by Mrs. W. J. B. Fraser, whose ability in this direction is so well known as to need no further comment, beyond stating that it was one of the most delightful that she has yet been responsible for.

Captain C. J. Houghton presided and addressed a few words of welcome to the gathering, and at the conclusion extended the thanks of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association to Mrs Fraser and the artists who so kindly assisted in the programme.

Amongst those who figured on the programme were Miss Ida Donohue, Mrs. Jos Tanguay, Mrs. Ford, and Mrs. Harris, who rendered vocal solos. Several selections were also given by the Thorn Quartette, and these artists were accorded a splendid reception by the audience. Mrs. Arthur E. Scott kept the audience in roars of laughter with her humorous recitation. Miss O'Regan accompanied the various vocalists, while Corporal Homerston rendered several pianoforte selections previous to the concert.

Following the conclusion of the programme, refreshments were served, which were much enjoyed by all.

Amongst those who attended the concert were Brig.-General J. P. Landry, Lieut.-Colonel P. A. Pulze and the Rev. A. R. Kelley.

INTERVIEW HAS BROUGHT RESULTS

Carters Of Garbage Ordered To Cover Vehicles Passing Through Streets

The interview given by Dr. C. R. Paquin, City Health Physician, and published in the Chronicle on Tuesday last in response to the carting of garbage and ashes through the public streets in uncovered vehicles, has had a good effect. The Civic Road Department has become alive to the fact, that refuse from street cleaning has been carried through the city streets in open vehicles in contravention of the by-law, and on Wednesday orders were issued from the city hall to the foremen in charge of street cleaning to have all civic carts covered to prevent the dust from being scattered by the wind and the dirt from dropping in the street. In the meantime the police department has been ordered to put an end to the nuisance, and to apprehend all private garbage contractors, caught violating the by-law. Added to this the city Health Department has had a public notice inserted in the city newspapers calling upon all carters of garbage, and loose ashes to provide covers for their vehicles when passing along the city streets. In default of doing so, they are liable to prosecution in the Recorder's Court. The rule also applies to bakers delivering bread and confectionery.

MRS. THOS. MURRAY WAS LAID TO REST.

The funeral of Mrs. Thos. J. Murray, wife of the Superintendent of St. Patrick's Church, McMahon street, was held on Wednesday morning from her late residence Carleton street to St. Patrick's Church. The solemn requiem service was conducted by Rev. Father O'Hara, assisted by Rev. Fathers McCormick and Laroche. The chief mourners were Mr. T. J. Murray, husband, and Mr. T. J. Murray, Jr. son. The funeral was attended by a large number of friends of the family. The members of St. Patrick's choir were all in attendance and the musical part of the mass was very impressive. The interment took place in St. Patrick's Cemetery where the prayers were recited by Rev. Father Holland.

THE ATLANTIC SEACOAST

To many thousands of people there is no holiday that can compare with a vacation spent by the seashore. The smooth, sandy beaches, the rocky coves, the murmur of the restless ocean, the invigorating breezes, the cool, restful nights, the delights of bathing, boating and fishing, combine to make a well nigh irresistible appeal to the vacation seeker. The summer resorts of the coast of Maine are among the most popular in America. The attractions of the wonderful territory are manifold, there being innumerable natural beauties and cool retreats. Rugged capes, peninsulas and islands extend far out to sea. In the arms of these beautiful headlands are beaches and harbors washed out by the ocean,—unrivalled sites for the famous shore resorts. A handsomely illustrated publication with map, and list of hotels has been issued by the Grand Trunk and can be had free on application to S. J. Nestor, C. P. R., 10 St. Ann Street, Quebec, Que.

SECRETARY TO MRS. STILLMAN IS DEAD

(By Canadian Press)

New York, N.Y., May 5.—Estelle Klee, who, as secretary to Mrs. Anne U. Stillman has figured in the Stillman divorce case, died here tonight.

Last December, while at La Tuque on a mission for Mrs. Stillman, Miss Klee was painfully injured when the automobile in which she was riding made a sharp swerve. She had been confined to her room as an invalid ever since.

TWO AVIATORS MET DROWNING

Naval Planes Met In Collision High In Air Over Potomac River

Washington, May 5—Lieutenant Harold F. Sheldon of this city and Ensign Miller of the Bureau of Aeronautics, were drowned in the Potomac River late today when their naval seaplane was in collision with one piloted by Lieutenant Commander C. Y. Johnson, in command of the Anacostia Naval Air station, and his mechanician, C. W. Jacobs. The latter two escaped uninjured.

Lieutenant Seldon was said to have been trying out a new propellor and was about 500 feet up when the collison occurred. His plane fell into the river, just below the naval air station, while that of Commander Johnson flew off but made a forced landing in the river and was wrecked. Both Johnson and Jacobs were picked up by rescue boats.

CANADA OUT OF DAVIS CUP GAMES

France Notified Of Dominion's Withdrawal From This Year's Tennis Matches

Toronto, May 5—The executive committee of the Canadian Lawn Tennies Association acting for the council of that body, has notified France of Canada's withdrawal from this year's Davis Cup contest. The opinion of all the members of the council from Halifax to Victoria was taken With tennis hardly commenced in Canada yet and the matches to be played in France in six weeks time, and the French engaging in tournaments since early in February, coupled with the difficulty of selecting four representative players here, the council concluded it would be futile to undertake the sending of a team this year.

LIST OF PEERS VERY CONFUSED

Have Been Many Lords Of Similar Name In Both British Houses

London, May 5—Sir Arthur Balfour's acceptance of elevation to the House of Lords as Earl Balfour of Whittingehame adds to an already confused list of British peers.

There was already a Lord Balfour of Burleigh, two Lords Morley—the Viscount and the Earl—two Lords Cobham, two Lords Ashton, a Lord Curzon in both Houses, (the Commoner having the courtesy title of Viscount), Lord Midleton and Lord Middleton, Lord Lindsay and Lord Lindsey, Lord Longford and Lord Langford, Lord Terrington and Lord Torrington

Commenting on Sir Arthur's admission to the House of Lords, the Observer said:

"Having entered on the slippery slope of accepting titles, Sir Arthur Balfour now finds himself doomed to the House of Lords, the destiny equally of success and failure in politics. It is a pity we cannot find a way of distinguishing between those who are made peers because of their eminent services and those who have been made peers because their services were not eminent. Is there any other institution in the Empire thus curiously recruited from the top and from the bottom?"

"Here's a book," said the agent "which you can't afford to be without."

"I never read," answered the victime.

"Well buy it for your children."

"I'm single—I have no family. All I have is a dog."

"Well, don't you want a nice heavy book to throw at the dog now and then?"

STATES AND GERMANY ARE IN NEGOTIATION

Washington, May 5—Negotiations are under way between the United States and Germany, it was said in official circles today looking to the organization of the mixed claims commission which will pass upon claims growing out of the seizure of property in the United States and Germany, and upon claims filed with the United States Government by United States citizens as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania.

The commission probably will consist of three members—one from the United States, one German and a neutral.

WONDERFUL MOTORCAR.

A professor was bragging about his newly-acquired motorcar.

He ended his eulogy by declaring: "It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it; so quietly that you can't hear it; it has such perfect ignition that you can't smell it; and as for speed, why, my boy, you can't see it!"

His friend looked startled. "Bless my soul!" he exclaimed, anxiously, "how do you know the car is there at all?"

EARNINGS ARE STILL CLIMBING

Electric Trolley Lines Is Industry Now Fifty Four Years Old

New York, May 5—The earnings of electric trolley lines, an industry 34 years old today, are improving steadily in cities but the interurban lines of the country have not yet felt the upward swing, according to a statement issued by Robert I. Todd, President of the American Electric Association.

His statement is based on the revised operating returns from 160 companies, representing more than 50 per cent. of the total lines of the country. Of the number, 103 are city and 77 interurban and their total operating revenue for 1921 was $437,493,853 as compared with $650,149,805 for the entire industry in 1917.

"The improvement is not due to any growth in the amount of business done," said Mr Todd, "because the actual volume of business shows a slight decrease over 1920. Improved operating conditions, however, have helped finance.

"The outstanding feature of the reports is the increase in net income. In 1921 it was $22,022,722 as compared to $7,709,261 in 1920. In the face of a business depression with unemployment at a maximum this income figure is remarkable.

"At the same time, however, traffic on the lines fell. In 1920 it was 7,606,190,270, and in 1921, 7,144,332,920, a decrease of 6.1 per cent. The operating ratio, that is, the operating expenses divided by operating revenue, dropped from 78.4 per cent in 1920 to 75.2 per cent. in 1921....the source of the good showing and its bright promise for the future. That is helped by the reduction in labor and materials cost.

The net operating revenue increased from $93,916,654 to $103,315,732 or 15.5 per cent. A $14,000,000 increase gives a greatly increased purchasing power and the results should soon be seen in equipment and better credit which has been almost at its lowest point in the last five years.

"The interurban lines, while they have not shown the actual improvement of the city lines, are producing hopeful signs. They have a decreased operating expense and., with a return to more normal business to whiche thy must look for both freight and passenger increases, their outlook is brightened.

"It is interesting to note that one-fourth of all passengers riding on the 180 lines under consideration used transfers, a slight increase over 1920."

The first overhead trolley line run by electricity was perfected in Richmond, Va., on May 4, 1888. It was a double-tracked line with 30 cars in operation, built by Frank J. Sprague still a resident of New York Today there are 44,000 miles of tracks used by 15,000,000,000 persons a year.

KING AND QUEEN BOTH NEED REST

Windsor, May 5—King George and Queen Mary both are said to have needed the rest they are expecting to get while here. Not only did the wedding of Princess Mary mean a great deal of work for them but they have been under a considerable strain while the Prince of Wales was in India. Affairs nearer home have also caused them concern.

Queen Mary, always solicitous for the health of her family, is additionally anxious that the King should secure as complete a rest as possible now, because the coming summer is full of engagements which will tax his strength pretty considerably

Septimus Wagge met his chum the other day.

"I say, Bill, I watched a wonderful machine at our shop this morning".

"And how does it work?" asked Bill.

"Well", was the reply, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrumed lever converts a vertical movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disc that revolves in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disc and work is done on the periphery and the hardest substance, by mere impact, may be reduced to any shape".

"What is this wonderful machine?" asked Bill.

"A grindstone" was the reply.

AN UNFAIR ATTACK

To the Editor,
Quebec Chronicle.
Dear Sir:—

I would call your attention to an advertisement headed "Horse Power Efficiency" in the "Globe", April 7th. This emanates from the Dominion Live Stock Branch and is a deliberate and unfair attack on the car, truck and tractor manufacturers of Canada. I would like to ask these questions:—

On what authority does the Dominion Live Stock Branch use public money to attack an honorable and Progressive industry of value to the public?

What influence has been brought to bear on the Dominion Live Stock Branch to cause it to link itself for propaganda purposes with the Horse Association of America, whose headquarters are at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Illinois?

Is there any precedent for a Government Branch shouldering the advertising and printing the propaganda of a private association?

If the Dominion Live Stock Branch contented itself with performing its duty to the public by stimulating the breeding of heavy draft horses and the elimination of the scrub sire, it would have been doing meritorious work for Canada and her farmers. By linking itself with a private corporation against other corporations through the medium of advertisments which offend the basic ethics of decent advertising by misstatements of fact and by hiding of essential truths, the Dominion Live Stock Branch is discrediting itself and the other Government Departments, is bringing into ridicule the work of the experimental farms and misusing public money for class aims.

The bulk of the advertisement in question in a rehash of a letter written to Mr. Wayne Dinsmore, Secretary of the Horse Association, by Mr. C. S. Noble of the Noble Foundation, Nobleford, Alberta, and made by that association into a widely distributed folder combating the use of tractors.

To show the style of advertising the Government is dishing out to a confiding public, Mr. Noble's 1916 figures on gas tractor work as compared with horse power are used in this 1922 advertisement. The figures stand out in large type, the 1918 is buried in small type. Even allowing that the gas tractor figures given are reasonable and true, they sound to a tractor man as utterly absurd. Have there been no new figures on tractor operations since 1918 and no improvements in gas tractor efficiency or in the tractor implements used since that date.

Gas tractor figures are also given without a date, from the Experimental Farm at Charlottetown. These show the cost of stubble plowing to be $2.10 per acre. It is to be hoped that these figures were arrived at in the early days of tractor operation. At the present date they would be only derivable from a prejudiced teamster or an experimental farmer in an experimental condition if he were operating a worn out tractor of ancient model whose workings were a mystery to him.

As an advertising man for a car, truck and tractor firm in Canada, I am naturally supplied with data on gas tractor operations from every district of the Dominion. Excluding all work done by professional tractor men and giving farmer figures, I find the average cost of stubble plowing by average operators to be $1.25 per acre with one farmer giving 75 cents. Taking fuel and oil costs only, I find figures as low as 55 cents.

According to Mr. Noble, gas tractor discing costs 70 cents per acre. According to our figures, 40 cents is a fair average. We draw from several thousand up-to-date, unprejudiced sources. Mr. Noble is or was a member of the Horse Association and gives 1918 figures.

And before leaving Mr. Noble, let me state that the Noble Foundation mines wheat and fertility from 30,619 acres; that he is the specific source on which the Horse Association has depended for four years for tractor figures; that he uses gas tractors, steamers and trucks as well as horses; that he gives no figures in breaking with tractors and that he confesses in his original letter that, "We have not yet been able to bring our horse power up to the point where the work can be done in the proper season." This illuminating confession is carefully suppressed in the Dominion Live Stock Branch advertisement.

Under the heading "Facts" is another tissue of misinformation concerning commercial truck owners. No figures, dates or vital data are given and such instances as are picked are therefore valueless. It would be as true to say that swallows are white because one white swallow has been seen, as to convey the impression that department stores and big firms find trucks and motor delivery uneconomical because one or two firms once upon a time with an unnamed make of truck performed undescribed work at ungiven cost incurring unstated loss. It certainly does not explain why so few horses and so many trucks are now found in city streets. We are led to infer, however, that all the truck users are simply pining for horses and cannot get them. Silly stuff!

The fact that there is not an agricultural college in Canada or the United States which does not include in its curriculum a course in tractors, tractor machinery and power farming and that increasing time is being devoted to these subjects is abounding evidence that motorization is a vital factor in modern agriculture. To state as this Government advertisement for the Horse Association does "that the tide has turned. Horses are coming into favor with many of those who have been experimenting with other forms of power," is to ignore the contrary truth. To say that "Large transportation agencies have found that horses are reducing distributing costs," is a wilful misstatement in light of present knowledge, which cannot be excused on the score of ignorance.

The farmer looks to the Ministry of Agriculture for upright, unbiased statements of fact based on years of painstaking experiment. On the knowledge the farmer derives from Government sources agre at deal of the agricultural prosperity of the country depends. What the experimental farms says is taken as Gospel. What Government experts state to be the truth is the truth to the farmer.

Therefore, this reprehensible piece of propaganda issued at the public expense to favor a small and special class of the community, mostly Americans backed by American money (or Canadian Government money), is dameging Canadian farming interests by hindering agricultural progress and destroying public confidence in official integrity.

There is a place for the horse and a place for the tractor in modern agriculture. There is no place for dishonest advertising anywhere.

As a matter of public interest and in behalf of fair play, it is to be hoped that you will print this letter.

GLOVES OFF.

ANOTHER DEMPSEY CARPENTIER BOUT

Champion Is Certain He Will Fight Frenchman Late This Year

Paris, May 5—Jack Dempsey told the Associated Press today it was almost certain he would meet Georges Carpentier again in London or Paris, late this year, if Carpentier defeats Ted Lewis in London May 11 and provided the purse is sufficient.

The posting of forfeits and other details, Dempsey added, are being discussed in London by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier.

Definite arrangements, however, are awaiting the outcome of the Lewis-Carpentier fight. Dempsey asserted it was immaterial to him whether he met Willard before or after his second go with the French champion. "I am ready to meet Wills or anyone else, provided they mean business," said Dempsey. "I hope something definite will come out of all these offers. All I want is a few months training. I've seen Europe and had a fine rest, and am now anxious to get back to work."

London, May 5—Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight, said today his next fight would be with Georges Carpentier. He did not say, however, whether a match had been definitely arranged.

London, May 5—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion, said today that a second meeting between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier had not been definitely arranged, but that a bout with Carpentier was one of the propositions which had been made to the champion. He also declared that Dempsey had not been matched with Jess Willard.

"We are bound to no promoters for matches in Europe," said Kearns, but have received several offers for bouts with Carpentier and Beckett in London and Paris with purses as large as any offered in the United States. Which will be ultimately arranged depends somewhat on the outcome of the Carpentier-Lewis bout.

"We are returning to the United States May 13, as Jack has vaudeville bookings. If proper inducements are offered by a responsible promoter, Jack will agree to meet either Greb, Brennan, Willard or Wills before returning to this side."

BASEBALL MOGULS MET LAST NIGHT

Contract For Erection Of Fence Awarded To Mr. Miles Lonergan

The City and District Baseball League met at the Victoria Hotel last evening and decided to award the contract for the erection of a fence to enclose the ball park on Charlesbourg Road to Mr. Miles Lonergan, the well-known local contractor and prominent sportsman. The President and Secretary of the League will meet Mr. Lonergan today and complete final arrangements. The same contractor was awarded the contract for the leveling of the diamond, at a meeting held last week. Work on the ground as well as on the enclosure will be started early next week and everything will be in readiness for the opening games on Sunday, May 14th.

Three requests for the privilege of selling refreshments on the ground were received. These were left in the hands of the Secretary who was empowered to complete all arrangements.

JOHNNY DUNDEE WAS OUTPOINTED

Lew Tendler Had Better Of Veteran In Fifteen Round Contest

New York, May 5—Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight tonight defeated Johnny Dundee, the veteran 130 pound champion in a 15 round contest at Madison Square Garden.

Notwithstanding the fact that the decision was against him, Dundee fought one of the greatest battles of his career.

Throughout the fifteen rounds he took the hardest body blows of Tendler with a grin and sent back his best. His title was not at stake as Tendler weighed 133 1-4 pounds, Dundee's weight was 126.

The decision was popular with the spectators but Dundee was cheered for several minutes when he left the ring. The crowd admired his courage in conceding Tendler's weight advantage and for fighting gamely against the queer style of the Philadelphia man. Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, entered the ring before the start of the bout and announced that he was ready at any time to meet any logical contender for his title. The winner of to-night's bout was promised an engagement with the champion in a title contest.

Danny Frush, the Cleveland Ohio featherweight, knocked out Tony Capony of Rock Island, Ills., in the seventh round of the semi-final.

Fights Leonard July 4th.

Michigan City, Ind., May 5—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Boxing Promoter for the American Legion post here announced here that Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, would meet Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, in the Arena here July 4.

FORMER EMPRESS ZITA NEAR MADRID SOON.

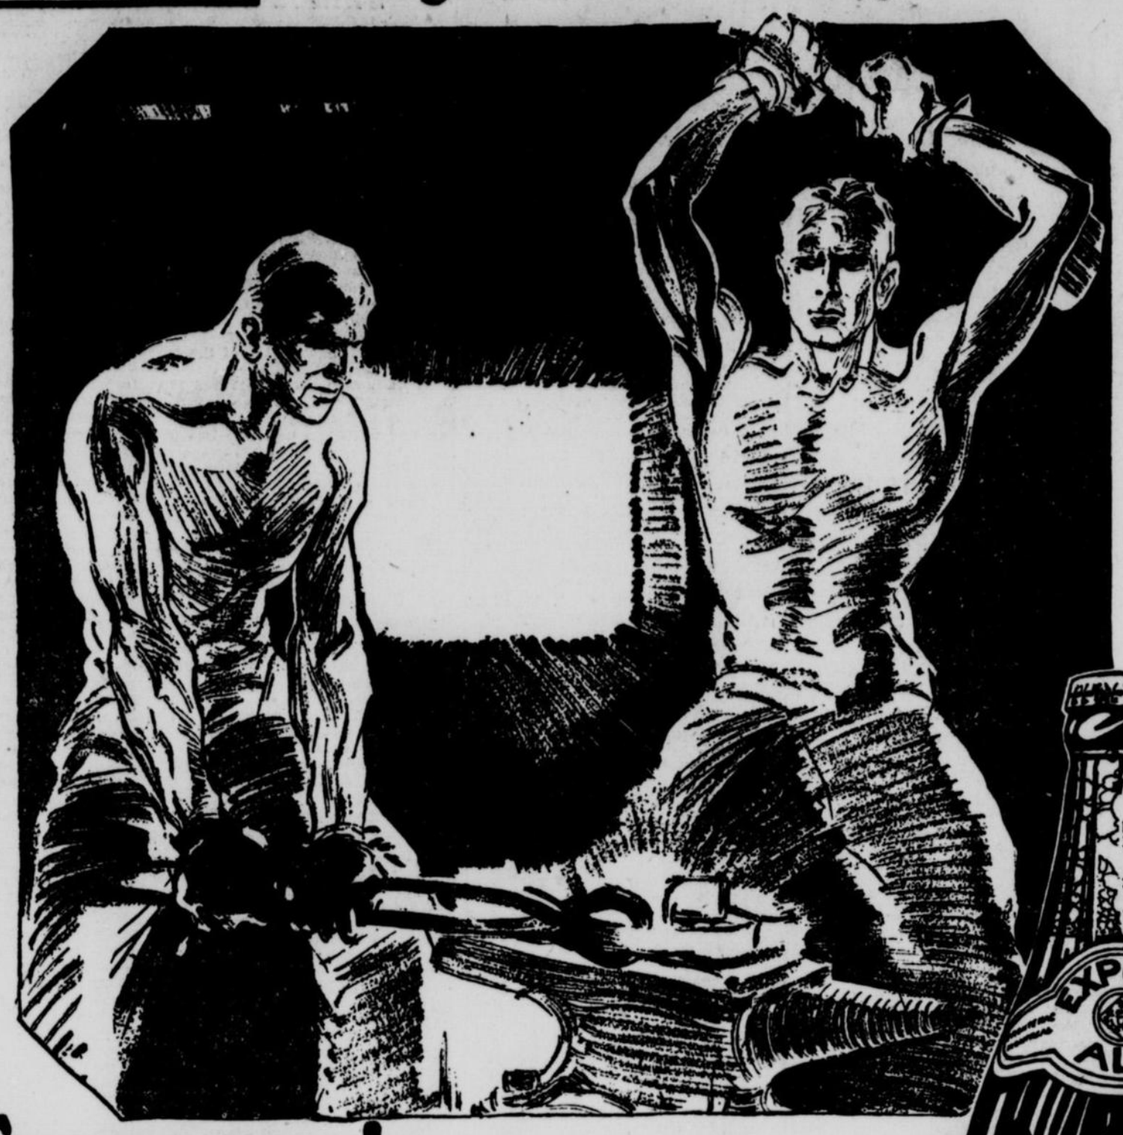

Madrid, May 5—Former Empress Zita of Austria Hungary is expected to arrive at Pardo, nine miles northwest of Madrid, May 15, and remain in the Castle there until her accouchement. After her child is born, the Allied nations are expected to decide where she shall reside in the future. Authoritative circles here are of the opinion that an annual pension for Zita will be arranged through the liquidation of her late husband's property.

Zita, at Pardo will occupy the same apartments Queen Victoria had while awaiting her marriage to King Alfonso.

CHIEF END OF BRAINS.

A well-known politician tells this one on himself. A barber while trimming his locks remarked: "You have a large head, sir (snip, snip). It's a fine thing to have a large head, for a large head means a large brain, and a large brain is the most useful thing a man can have, for it nourishes the roots of the hair."

LEONARD FIGHTS DUBE MONDAY

Another Strong Boxing Bill Arranged For The Imperial Theatre

Another strong bill of boxing bouts is scheduled for Monday night at the Imperial Theatre. In the main attraction Kid Dube who defeated Georges Girardin last Monday will face Joe Leonard, the crack New York featherweight in a bout scheduled for ten rounds. In the semi-final Frank Corrigan, who was also seen in action last Monday will have Arthur "Kid" Sullivan of Lewiston, Me., as an opponent. The six-round preliminary will bring together Kid Gagnon and Jos Duquet. A four-round scrap will also be on the programme.

Leonard, who has been coached by no less a celebrity than James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, has already proven that he is a high class battler and has met such boys as Bobby Michaels, Joe Tipiltz, Pepper Martin, Dutch Brandt, Jack Sharkey, Andy Chaney, Benny Valger and a host of others. Leonard is known as a scientific boxer and a fighter who gives his best from the opening gong, so when he steps into the ring with the clever Dube, action is sure to be on the bill.

The Corrigan-Sullivan contest is also bound to be a hummer, while the preliminaries as well promise to furnish the spectators with plenty of amusement.

Tickets, which are on sale at Thivierge's Barber Shop, 99½ St. John street, and at the Imperial Theatre, are selling like hot cakes and all indications point to another bumper house.

"Remember the Sabbath Day—" What about changing tires on Sunday? It is "labor" and it is unnecessary. Also consider the dark thoughts and wicked words that a tire-changing motorist has to answer for. It should make one think seriously about tires. Keep the Sabbath by having good tires on your car. Motoring to Church is sanctimonious enough, but you should always go in a car that has "Gutta Percha" Tires, giving you no cause for labor or bad words, or worldly anxiety about "blow-outs," but a mind calm, receptive and serene.

PRICE: The original price looks small enough, when you get such big value as "Gutta Percha" Cord Tires give you. "A long life and a useful one" can be said of these famous Cord Tires.

FRENCH PILOT BRINGS 2 CARS

European Star Broke String Of American Victories In Speedway Classic

Indianapolis, May 5—Jules Goux famous French race driver, is coming to pilot a Ballot in the international 500 mile race, May 30.

He is bringing with him two Ballot cars, but the driver of the second mount has not yet been named. It is believed by Speedway officials that he will choose an American pilot for his teammate.

Goux, among the first of the foreign invaders, halted the parade of American victories of 1911 and 1912 by winning in the Peugot, starting a string of foreign victories that remained unbroken until the late Gaston Chevrolet won in a Yankee car in 1920. Then came Tommy Milton's victory last year.

Goux was not in the race last year, and it is said he is returning in an earnest effort to break up the American wins as he did in 1913.

The Frenchman was wedded to Miss Ruth Davis, an Indianapolis girl, following the close of the 1920 race. He is a great admirer of Howard Wilcox, who has driven in every Indianapolis race, winning in 1919, and he was for several years a teammate with "Howdy".

The Ballot is the car with which Ralph De Palma thrilled the fans in the last two 500-milers by leading the field lap after lap only to have misfortune overtake him when it looked as though victory was surely his.

Has Great Record.

Goux has been a consistent driver at Indianapolis. This will be his fifth start. He won in 1913; was fourth the following year and in 1919 on his return to racing after the war he placed third. In 1920 he failed to finish.

When Goux first came to America in 1913 he could not speak a word of English and it was necessary to have an interpreter with him all the time.

Tommy Milton who has more titles than any of the pilots, will bring a new car made in California to the race. Milton was victorious here in 1921, is the speed king of the world, having travelled 156.4 miles per hour on the sands of Daytona Beach, Florida, at the wheel of a 16-cylinder Duesenberg and last year was winner of the A. A. A. championship.

Chevrolet Has Six.

E. G. "Cannonball" Baker, of transcontinental fame, another Indianapolis pilot is the only driver nominated so far by Louis Chevrolet, the man who designed and built the cars which won the last pair of 500-mile drives. Chevrolet has entered six Frontenacs in the race, but is keeping the names of five of the pilots a secret. Although this will be Baker's first start in the Indianapolis affair he probably is as well acquainted with the local speed bowl as Wilcox and Ralph Mulford who have driven in every race and have a flirting acquaintance with every brick in the course He is a bear for punishment, being famous for his wonderful endurance on the New York to Los Angeles jaunts. Five hundred miles one-sixth of his usual runs, should be easy for this old time campaigner who graduated to automobiles from the riding seat of a racing motorcycle.

And then, there is Wally Reid, fresh from winning a new series of moving picture races, who will stake his chances for fame and additional fortune against the prowess of the old masters.

Mae Harvey, of Los Angeles, the only woman in racing, has entered her Frontenac in the race and nominated Jerry Wonderlich to drive.

NAZZARO FOR THE LEADING RACES

Noted Italian Driver Has Rejoined Fiat Racing Team—A Brilliant Record

Felice Nazzaro, whose racing record is doubtless more brilliant than that of any living driver, has rejoined the Fiat racing team and will be seen on a car of this make in the leading events of the year, and notably in the French Grand Prix at Strasbourg, next July, and the Italian Prix at Milan in September. Nazzaro, who was originally a motor cycle rider, first drove for Fiat in 1903 Gordon Bennett race in Germany, when he had Lancia as one of his team mates. Nazzaro reached the height of his racing career in 1906 and 1907, when he took part in innumerable races in Europe and America with brilliant success.

Following the example of his companion Lancia, Felice Nazzaro resigned from the Fiat racing team to become a car manufacturer. Both were successful in this venture, but Nazzaro while engrossed with technical problems always retained his interest in car racing and quite recently concluded a narrangement to reappear as a Fiat driver. This return of one of the leading figures in the motor car racing world to the make of car with which he first earned fame will be watched with particular interest.

Another member of the Fiat team for the present season will be Biagio Nazzaro first obtained car racing experience, when he rode as mechanic with his uncle on the Fiat which won the Targa Fiorio. The following year he acted as mechanic to his uncle, first on Fiat and later on Nazzaro cars. During the war Biagio Nazzaro served as an aviator in the Italian army. Since the Armistice he has been particularly successful as a motorcyclist and is the holder of the world's kilometre and 100 kilometre records. He won the Italian road championship in 1920 and 1921.

The third member of the Fiat team will be Pietro Bordino who, before becoming a race driver was a mechanic to Lucia. Last year, driving an eight-cylinder Fiat, he established the world's road record at Brescia.

Reserve tomorrow afternoon and evening for the dancing at the Kent House. Swell floor, Tanguay's orchestra with latest hits. Dancing from 2.30 to 6 and 8 to 11.30.

CLAIM THAT TELLURIUM INCREASES CAR MILEAGE

Discovery of a tellurium gasoline compound which increases automobile mileage by one hundred per-cent, is claimed by two chemists employed in the Research Laboratories of the General Motors Company at Dayton, Ohio. According to the Chemical Society of America, the annual supply of tellurium, which has been regarded as waste matter at lead and copper refineries, is in the neighborhood of sixty tons. It is stated that fifteen hundred tons would be required to treat the gasoline consumed annually.

VEHICLE LAWS TOO COMPLICATED

Revision Of Existing Ontario Statutes Proposed By Hon. F. C. Biggs

Toronto, May 5—Any car owner who has attempted to wind his way through the intricacies of the Ontario motor laws will welcome with enthusiasm the proposal to modify and simplify the statutes governing motor vehicle traffic. In suggesting to the Legislature this week that a small special committee of the House be struck to consolidate existing motor legislation. Hon. F. C. Biggs as much as admitted that the present arrangement of traffic laws is complicated enough to please a lawyer, but too cumbersome to be of any use to the average motorist.

The Minister proposed that the committee sit during the recess and revise three acts now on the statute books: The Motor Vehicles Act, the Highways Travel Act, and the Loaded Vehicles Act. He stated that amendments had been so extensive and so numerous during the past eight years that no ordinary motorist could hope to interpret the acts as they stand at present. To add to the difficulties of enforcement, motor traffic had tripled during the past four years.

"There is no idea of making any drastic changes in the existing law," stated W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of Highways, when queried as to the significance of the proposal. "Traffic conditions have been changing so rapidly during the past few years and the amendments have been so numerous in the efforts to keep pace with these changes that the statutes are now in a very disjointed state. The proposal seeks merely to clarify the existing law so that the average motorist can understand it."

Chronicle's Review of Coming Attractions For Next Week

AT AUDITORIUM

The management announces that next week, it will go another step forward in its policy of serving Quebec really good, high-class attractions and in addition to the big bill of vaudeville (five acts) a superfeature photoplay "Good Women" is announced.

The photoplay was adapted from an original story by C. Gardner Sullivan, famous screen writer and is based upon the spirit of domestic unrest which is prevalent today. In a frank manner, this drama shows the trend of modern thought which would fly in the face of time-honoured conventions and establish a world which, although utopian in its ideals, is not at all practical when put to the test.

"Good Women" deals with life in its every phase and particularly, as the name of the production would imply, its effect upon women.

The characters who move through this drama were drawn by Mr. Sullivan from life and are impersonated by an all-star cast headed by Rosemary Theby, Hamilton Revelle, Irene Blackwell, Earl Schenck, etc., etc.

Vaudeville Also

The vaudeville bill that will also be presented includes five big acts, as follows: 1—Reck and Rector, two men in a very novel equilibristic offering. 2—Lex and O'Connor, boy and girl, in comedy, singing and dancing. 3—Raymond and Geneva, comedy jugglers. 4—Sargeant and Marvin, two boys in musical act. 5—The Patrick's a man and a woman in a sensational perch novelty.

There are also two other photoplays.

Prices, next week, will be: Mat. 25c, 35c; Even. 25c, 50c, 75c.

THE VICTORIA.

Gloria Swanson who has been called the best dressed woman on the screen will be seen playing the leading role in "Her Husand's Trade mark" which will open an engagement of four days starting tomorrow at the Victoria Theatre.

Miss Swanson's gorgeous array of feminine attire in this intance constitutes a necessary feature to the theme of the story. Her husband played by Stuart Holmes, is a money mad business man who adheres to the theory that a show of money attracts money and that a beautifully gowned wife is the best indicator of a husband's prosperity and wealth. On this false hope he over lives his income and in a final desperate effort to recoup, goes so far as to encourage a romance between his wife and old friend in hopes of obtaining a large oil contract. Finally comes the disillusionment for the wife and friend wth rather starting results.

Starting Thursday the main attraction will be "Poverty of Riches" enacted by an all-star cast.

"Good Women"

One of the strongest dramas of the season, "Good Women," is a story of a woman who despised Good Women and dared to live out her unconventional ideas of life—with a result that is surprising in its truth. It is a visualization of the complexities in the life of a brilliant young rich woman.

Gorgeous in its settings, "Good Women" travels from the picturesque Greenwich Village section of New York City to the South of France, to Monte Carlo and to sunny Italy, following the roads of the young woman who believed that the world is enslaved to "other people's opinions."

The product of the brains of the screen's most brilliant authors, coupled with one of its most artistic directors, "Good Women" has been given an all-star cast, headed by Rosemary Theby and Hamilton Revelle.

ALSO 5 BIG ACTS OF VAUDEVILLE AND TWO PHOTOPLAYS.

PRICES: Matinee, 25c-35c; Evening, 25c-50c-75c.

UNPLEASANT FOR MISS GRIFFITH

Equestrian Struck Her Horse With Riding Crop—Runaway Resulted

During the filming of one scene in "Divorce Coupons," Corinne Griffith had an extremely unpleasant adventure. The bit of action was bein shot in Central Park on the bridle path around the reservoir. One of the passing equestrians resented the fact that Miss Griffith's horse was partly blocking the path and he ill-temperedly struck her mount with his riding crop. The horse, which was a high spirited thoroughbred, reared and then bolted. Corinne was almost unseated by his sudden plunge, in which she lost her right stirrup. Fortunately the runaway made straight for the camera. Webster Campbell, who directs Miss Griffith, and the camera man were able to grab the bridle and bring the horse to a stop. The star was uninjured, but the camera man had been trampled on during the rescue and his left foot was badly bruised. After a short rest, during which the horse had time to quiet down, the star insisted on mounting again and continued the filming of the scene.

SPANISH FARMERS ARE VERY DRESSY

Valentino Had To Study Part Carefully In "Blood And Sand"

American gentleman farmers can wear overalls, top-boots, corduroy trousers—but not their counterpart in far-away Spain.

Your wealthy Spanish gentleman who spends much time on his rural estates must be dressed exactly to the mode required by long custom.

And so when scenes in Paramount's "Blood and Sand" were taken showing the bull-fighter hero at his country home, Rodolph Valentino and his customer were given several busy hours.

For he who would a-farming go in Spain must have, first of all, a pair of soft sheepskin trousers, carefully fashioned from the best leather of four sheep. "Borrego chaquetellia" is what they call 'em in Andalusia and the classier the leather the richer you're supposed to be.

And then there are a pair of well-dressed leather leggings. They look a bit like the old army issue but they're not — being fashioned from well dressed leather and finished with decorative bows and tassels.

When an American gentleman farmer would doubtless use his old college letter bearing a huge block initial in token of previous athletic accomplishments, his double in Spain has a sleeveless jacket of sheepskin with the wool on the outside. The shirt is of a soft silk while the headpiece is a bizarre kerchief tied gypsy style.

"Blood and Sand", in which Valentino wears this colorful outfit, was adapted by June Mathias from the Vicente Blasco Ibanez novel. Fred Niblo is directing.

HUNDRED WITNESS DETROIT MURDER

Man Shoots Another Following an Argument — Fifty Children Present

Detroit, May 5.—John Serami, aged 28, was shot and fatally wounded by Joseph Saputo, aged 40, this afternoon, following an argument over a dog fight. Serami, who was shot through the lungs, died within an hour in the Receiving Hospital.

More than 100 persons, including 50 children playing in the neighborhood, witnessed the shooting. Saputo fired five shots, only one of which took effect. After emptying his revolver Spauto fled, and his 18-year old son, who witnessed the shooting, was held.

The street and sidewalk in front of the two disputants were thronged when Saputo began shooting. The crowd scattered at his first shot.

Serami and Saputo, according to neighbors, owned dogs, and each believed his the best, although police say, both were mongrels. The two dogs fought shortly before 6 o'clock and were separated by their owners but the canine combat caused angry words between the men, and Saputo went into his house, got his pistol and began shooting.

DIVORCE BILL IS OPPOSED

Would Make Insanity Legal Ground For Divorce—Introduced In France

Paris, May 5—The bill introduced in the Chamber of Deputies by Andre Tardieu and Georges Almond making insanity a legal ground for divorce has met with considerable opposition. The bill provided that a husband or wife should be entitled to bring an action for divorce after the person to whom he or she was married had been detained for three years in a recognized lunatic asylum and if competent medical authorities declared the patient was mentally deficient beyond hope of recovery.

The measure is opposed on the ground that no physician is sufficiently infallible to be able to state that a case is hopeless beyond recovery.

Confirmed opponents of all changes in the French divorce laws see drawing distressing pictures of the "incurable" patient recovering and returning to the bosom of his family to find his wife married again.

Andre Tardieu, one of the authors of the bill, was a member of the last cabinet of Premier Clemenceau and was French High Commissioner to America during the world war.

Insanity was a ground for divorce in France 100 years ago. In Germany, Switzerland and other countries it is considered legitimate grounds for divorce although the laws vary in important particulars in each country.

Peter B. Kyne's "Brothers Under Their Skins," which E. Mason Hopper is directing at the Goldwyn studios, ought to be a clean picture. It has twenty bathtubs in it. No. Clarence, there are no bathing beauties in them; they just help fill up a shipping room.

Frederick Vogeding, famous Dutch actor, has been added to the cast of "The Bitterness of Sweets", which Rupert Hughes is personally directing at the Goldwyn studios. Mr. Vogeding is impersonating a star boarder and has acquired a moustache for the purpose. The actor is the husband of Florence Roberts, stage star.

BEST WAY TO PREPARE COFFEE

Glass Or Porcelain Pots Only Vessels To Make Perfect Beverage

(Special to The Chronicle)

Cambridge, Mass., May 5—The type of scientific research going on here at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is enlightening to the average layman, who imagines the work of the research scientists to be highly interesting if you know what it's all about, but of little practical value to anybody.

There is a quality to the work turned out by the scientists that strikes home. For instance, the average human is a coffee drinker, and while he might find the Einstein theory a trifle dull, he is interested to learn that since 1920 two full time chemists, one pharmacologist, and several assistants have been experimenting in the department of biology and public health to determine best methods of preparing coffee as a beverage, and also to analyse the physiological effect of coffee on the system.

The scientists have discovered that none but glass or porcelain pots are fit for making coffee worthy of the name. The apparatus used by them in making the perfect cup of coffee is fearsome to behold. Retorts, coils condensers and a myriad tubes are connected together, and the coffee that is concocted in this outfit is believed to be the best cup ever brewed. Complete results will be announced later when the work is finished.

A squad of women employees of the Institute assembly every noontime and are given two cups of the beverage, one brewed from one grade and the other from another. They are expected to file their opinions on the two cups and these opinions are considered in passing judgment on quality.

Problems in which the householder is deeply interested are attracting considerable attention from the research workers. Methods of preventing the molding of bread, which is anathema to the housewife, have been worked upon by biological chemists for months. Experiments in moth proofing woolen fabrics, success in which would cause millions to rise up and call the scientists blessed, have furnished a knotty problem which has not yet been overcome. The rotting of timber is being studied carefully in the same department, for the purpose of preventing it.

Treatment which will prevent the "reddening" of dried codfish, a natural phenomenon which spoils huge quantities of the food every year, is now being devised. The possibility of extracting sugar from dahlias was investigated some time ago, but not found practical. During the war the entire facilities of the department of hydraulics were turned over to experiments on the rate of descent of depth bombs in water. Formulae devised as a result of these experiments were later used by the Navy in firing.

All of the research which is done, however, is not designed to be of immediate application. It is intended that in general the amount of "pure" research done will equal the amount of practical.

Pure research is not designed to solve definite problems, but is prosecuted merely to gather general scientific information for the future benefit of mankind.

The research done is either experimental or analytical in character, and is divided among the various departmental laboratories in the more advanced branches of instruction. The actual work is done either by members of the faculty or instructing staff, by students who are candidates for advanced degrees, or by research assistants or associates employed for the purpose and paid for the time they spend.

When the Massachusetts Institute of Technology prosecuted a campaign for an endowment fund some time ago, the facilities of the Institute for research were opened to industry through the Technology Plan. By means of this plan commercial firms were empowered, for a consideration, to call upon the Technology staff, library and files for solution of their scientific problems. Considerable research is also done by the members of the staff, privately, as consultants.

Some of the facilities offered for experiments are unusual. For instance, in the testing materials laboratory there are machines capable of testing specimens up to 1,250,000 pounds in compression, and up to 400,000 pounds in tension, compression and transverse tests.

THE RETURN OF FULL PROSPERITY

Depends Upon Each One In Business, President Harding Is Told

(Special to The Chronicle.)

Washington, May 5—The return of full prosperity depends upon each one of us in business. We must improve our advertising and selling methods. We must look after all the details designed to make business grow. This, declared Charles Henry Mackintosh, of Chicago, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, in addressing President Harding, has been the foundational thought of addresses he has made to thousands of business men all over the United States since last July, and he invited President Harding to appear at the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs, in Milwaukee, June 11 to 15, and to add the weight of his words to the movement of the advertising clubs for the improvement of business.

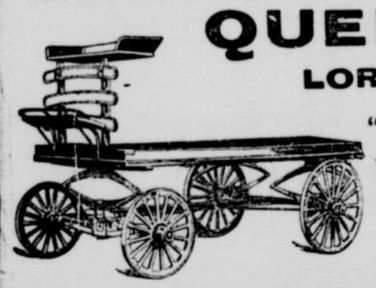

"In more than 200 cities and towns, all over the United States", said President Mackintosh, "I have told a audience of 47,000 business men and women that if they want business to be better they must make it better; that if they sit with folded hands, waiting for conditions to improve and for business to get better of its own accord, conditions will not improve and business will not get better; that the responsibility for the return of prosperity rests upon every individual engaged in business. Thirty-five thousands in my audiences have been retailers, who control the tap at the end of the pipeline of business. I have urged them to turn on that tap by adopting progressive and aggressive tactics of a sound and, permanent business building character, and I have placed these tactics fully at their disposal through the Educational and Better Business departments of our great Association.

"Now, an average of not less than twenty representatives from each of the 258 clubs in our Association, in addition to the leaders of our twenty departments such as the Newspapers Executives Association, the Associated Business Papers, the Agricultural Publishers' Association, etc., are going to gather at Milwaukee from June 11 to June 15 to crystallize this year of work. We hope that a total of from 5000 to 10,000 will go out from that Convention prepared to stimulate the return to full prosperity by their individual efforts. You are the one man who can bring all this work to a pass and if we can prevail upon you to be with us, and to drive home the national significance of this appeal to individuals in business to make business better, then we know that our efforts will be doubled in efficiency; not alone because of the intense interest aroused by your presence and by your personal message, but also because of the vast volume of publicity of an inspiring and educational character which would be based upon your presence and your message by the thousands of expert publicists who are members of our Association."

President Harding has not given his answer as to his ability to be at the Milwaukee Convention, but the advertising people are hopeful that he will attend, from the fact that he has on numerous occasions expressed views very similar to those which have animated the year's work of the advertising association.

THE GREAT WAR AS I SAW IT

back to the 1st Brigade I made my way to the huge Rouville Caves under Arras, where the whole of the 3rd Brigade was quartered. It was a most curious abode. No one knows when the caves were dug. They were probably extended from time to time as the chalk was quarried for the purpose of building the town. Long passages stretched in different directions, and from them opened out huge vaulted chambers where the battalions were billeted. I spent the night with the 14th Battalion, and the next day held services in turn for each of the four units of the Brigade. The 16th Battalion occupied a huge cavern with others branching off from it. I could hardly imagine more picturesque surroundings for a military service. The candle flame twinkled like stars in all directions in the murky atmosphere, and the singing of the men resounded through the cave. Overhead was the town which the enemy was shelling. In one of the caves we found the foundation of what had been an old prison, with a date upon it of the 18th century. It was very pleasant wandering down the passages, with a candle stuck on top of my steel helmet, and meeting everywhere old friends who were glad of a temporary rest. Life there, however, was very strange. One could not tell whether outside it was day or night. I made my way back that afternoon by a passage which led out to one of the Arras sewers, by the side of which there was a stone pavement, eabling one with a good flashlight to walk safely. The exit from the sewer, which now consisted of a shallow stream of perfectly clear water, led me up to a house in one of the streets, and thence by car I made by way to Warlus, and home to Fosseaux.

A few days afterwards our headquarters were moved up to Etrun, and there we found ourselves crowded into the quaint little town. The Chateau was our headquarters, and a tar-paper house which the Engineers built for me under a spreading hawthorne-tree became my home. Etrun was a most interesting place historically. It had been the site of a Roman camp where Valentinian had his headquarters in the 4th century. The large mound or valium, which the Romans had thrown up to protect themselves from the attacks of the German tribes is now a thickly wooded hill, pierced by the road which connects the village with the Arras highway. The grounds of the Chateau were most delightful, and before the French Revolution the house had been a convent. In the garden was the recumbent stone effigy overgrown with moss, of one of the sisters. The most beautiful thing though about the place is the clear stream, wide and deep, which comes from underground and flows over sparkling white pebbles through the green meadows to the River Scarpe. This stream was evidently the source of attraction to the Romans, who always made their camps where there was a plentiful supply of running water. The garden on one side was built up in stone terraces along which were gravel walks, where no doubt, the nuns of old enjoyed their holy meditations. In the stream as it wandered through the meadows there was a plentiful supply of water-cress, which looked exquisitely green against the pebbles at the bottom. How one did long for the war to end, so that we might be able to lie down on the grass free from anxiety and enjoy the drenching sunlight and the spring song of the birds.

GOOD ADVICE

The portly woman had, by mistake, taken a seat in a railway coach reserved for smokers. With unconcealed indignation she saw the man next to her fill his pipe.

"Sir", she said in frigid tones, "smoking always makes me ill".

The man calmly lit his pipe and puffed contentedly, and at the same time replied:

"Does it, ma'am? Well, take my advice and give it up."

PLAN TO CATCH CROOKS BY RADIO

Michigan State Department May Establish Station—Would Cost $100,000

Lansing, Mich., May 5.—Plans for the installation of a state-controlled radio system, with six sending stations and 16 receiving points were discussed here on Friday at a meeting attended by state department heads and radio experts.

Following a discussion in which the various state officials outlined how a state-controlled radio system could be employed in carrying on the work of their departments, a committee was appointed to work out costs and other data.

Under the plan outlined the state radio would be under the control of the state department of public safety, and could be employed by them to good advantage in intercepting criminals and spreading alarms.

John Baird, head of the conservative department, declared that his department could save the cost of the installation if, through the use of the radio the forest fire was prevented.

President David M. Friday, of the Michigan Agricultural College, outlined how the radio would aid and cheapen the work of the extension department of the college and make the sending out of crop bulletins, market reports and other data of interest to the farmers. He said receiving stations can be installed in country schools, granges and other farm organization headquarters and made to serve large communities.

It is planned to have the main broadcasting station of the state radio located at the Michigan Agricultural College, with five other stations scattered throughout the state. The receiving stations first to be installed at state police posts. After detailed information had been collected, it is planned to place the question before Governor Groesbeck and the state administrative board, with a request for funds with which to carry out the plan. It is estimated that the system outlined will cost approximately $100,000.

The Toll of Death in Russia

TEN MILLION CHILDREN in Russia are doomed to die in the slow agonies of starvation unless the people of Canada awaken in their generosity, and by gifts of food and money, enable the Save the Children Fund to prevent this horror.

The famine in the Volga region is the most appalling in recorded history. Whole populations are exterminated. Children—fatherless and motherless, homeless, with death stalking their steps—wander the highways and byways until they creep into some abandoned hovel to dic.

Hundreds of thousands have died from starvation and neglect; but millions can be saved if food is dispatched at once.

Will you give something? Will you save a helpless child from starving to death? What you do give means little to you—yet it means the life of a child!

25c will feed a child for a week.
$1.00 will ensure sufficient food for one child for a month.
$500 will establish a kitchen and feed 100 children until the next harvest.

SAYS WOMEN EAT LESS THAN NEEDED

Sir Malcolm Norris Declares Many Nervous Diseases Due To Malnutrition

London, May 5—Women eat too little, according to Sir Malcolm Morris, in his presidential address to the Institute of Hygiene. He said that he suspected one reason for this was that they were careful to "feed the brute" and added that "the brute would be all the better for less pampering, but if his womankind must go on overfeeding him let them at any rate be careful not to underfeed themselves."

Sir Malcolm said that multitudes of adlescent girls, "not only those who are in boarding schools," habitually eat less than they need. He said that this applied to women also, partly because the pleasures of the table make little appeal to them and partly because of their instinct of frugality.

"I do not hesitate to say," he added, "that a great deal of nervous and other illnesses for which so many girls and women engaged in business and professional life have to seek medical advice is due to chronic malnutrition as a result of their having got into the habit of eating less than nature requires."

He blames this partly on the present demand for retrenchment, and particularly deplored the underfeeding of children. "It is necessary," he said "that all who are intelligently concerned with the health of children bestir themselves to save them from being sacrificed to the cry for lower rates and taxes."

A Corrector of Pulmonary Troubles.—Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. It will allay inflammation in the bronchial tubes.

A Talk With Pres. Harding

(By MARGOT ASQUITH)

I went by appointment to see President Harding. After travelling to several wrong doors I was shown into an anteroom full of press men talking and smoking around an open fire.

The President's secretary was extremely courteous and I was hardly kept waiting at all. Ushered into Mr. Harding's fine circular room we shook hands and sat down. A large black and tan Airedale terrier sniffed round my skirts and was ordered to sit in a chair by his master.

President Harding has a large bold head with well-cut features and an honest, fearless address. He is still perfectly simple, and extraordinarily easy and pleasant to talk to.

He told me he also had lectured and gave me an account of how lecturing had first started. It was a sort of club or society which began around Lake Chautauqua and spread all over the country.

It was the only way that either pleasure or information could reach distant and dreary little towns inhabited by thousands of men and women who had neither the fortune nor opportunity to meet famous people.

While he was telling me this I looked at the big writing table in front of him. There was an old photograph of an extremely pretty refined middle-aged woman (his mother), and a framed engraving of George Washington. On the top of a bookcase I observed an interesting print of Abraham Lincoln. A fire in an open grate and large windows looking out upon a garden with trees completed a charming room.

Tribute to Balfour.

We spoke of Arthur Balfour and I told him how pleased my husband and all of us were that he had been able to go to Washington; that his quick mind, fine intellectual manners, and lack of insularity gave him an unrivalled understanding. The President responded with genuine warmth,

"I am very glad," he said, "that he attended our conference. As you were aware, Mrs. Asquith, he was known and liked here before this, and I can say he has added 200 per cent. to his former popularity by the patience, tact, straight-forwardness and ability he showed throughout our proceedings."

President Harding talked to me about the political situation in England and asked when I thought there would be a general election. I told him that the Coalition Liberals were the rich, ambitious, paying guests in a Conservative palace (or words to that effect); that in their recent attempts to force a general election they had tried to buy the palace, but that to heir surprise and keeper of the Tory purse and mana-annoyance Sir George Younger, the keeper of the Tory purse and manager of their great party, had, with a courage undreamt of by his flock, put a veto upon this, and in a polite and public letter given the Coalition Liberals notice to quit.

British Election.

This independent action upset the influential Downing street press, entertained the Free Liberals ad bewildered the docile Conservatives. The latter—having no Prime Minister of their own—are not only deeply indebted to Mr. Lloyd George for all he had done for them, but are committed to his leadership by the mutual bargain of the Coupon Kaiser election.

I told him I had no notion when the election might be sprung upon us, nor could anyone foresee its results, but that if there were many Sir George Youngers in the Conservative party it would just possible that the coalition might disappear.

Sympathy With France.

We spoke of the Genoa conference I said frankly I was tired of government by conference; that starting from the fatal one at Versailles to the futile one at Cannes, they had been a source of mischief, misunderstanding and recrimination; that the only one at which the truth had been faced, discussed and spread was his own at Washington. I tried to give him some faint idea of the effect that Mr. Hughes' opening speech upon disarmament had produced in our country adding how profoundly sorry I felt for France.

Mr. Harding was eloquent in his agreement, told me how devoted he was to the French people and added that he felt certain the misunderstandings would gradually pass away. After signing and giving me a facsimile copy of the message which he had delivered at the close of the Washington conference, we parted.

AN ABSURDITY IN BRITISH LAW

Vividly Brought Before Public In Trial Of Captain Owen Peel

London, May 5—One of the absurdities surviving in British law—that a married woman is presumed to be coerced by her husband when she commits certain crimes in his presence—was brought vividly before the public in the trial of the case against Captain Owen Peel a short time ago on a charge of obtaining money from turf commission agents by means of forged betting telegrams but this is not the only survival of an ancient law which is out of harmony with the present age. In the Peel case the wife had been jointly accused with her husband but because of the ancient law, referred to she was not placed on trial, but allowed to go free, while Captain Peel who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to prison for one year.

The law of coverture, as pointed out by Mr. Francis Balfour, President of the National Council of Great Britain, in the Times, although some of its worst features were swept away by the Married Women's Property Act, has never been abolished in its entirety. The doctrine is that a man and his wife are one person, and that the husband is that person. The wife's legal existence is incorporation and consolidated into that of her husband's.

Only about thirty years ago the House of Lords gave a decision in what was known as the Jackson case which definitely negatived a claim that a husband has a right to imprison his wife, which was based on this doctrine. At the same time, the wife' aposition as her husband's property is still in practice, as, for example, when she is not allowed to decide for herself whether or not she shall submit to a surgical operation. Her husband must first give his consent.

The National Council of women is moving to have these doctrines annulled—doctrines which the Council declares, belong to an age of servitude and serfdom. An equal responsible partnership in marriage is demanded by the ladies of the Council. They claim that this is necessary to the building up of the highest kind of family life.

The question of the "coercion" of wives was recently raised in the House of Lords by Lord Ullswater, who suggested a revision of the law It was announced that the Lord Chancellor, Lord Birkenhead with the Attorney General, Sir Earnest Pollock, would appoint a committee to consider the whole question of the status and responsibility of women under the law in the right of their changed standing.

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Remover is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

WHAT CAUSES SO MUCH SICKNESS

Constipation Responsible for 90% of Disease

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Corrects It

It is generally recognized among the medical profession that Constipation or Insufficient Action of The Bowels, produces more disease than any other one cause. Constipation is responsible for at least 90% of the disease in the world today—because Constipation is responsible for the Indigestion and Dyspepsia—the nervousness, Insomnia and Rheumatism—the Eczema and other skin troubles—the Headaches and Backaches.

Why is this?

As you know, it is the duty of the bowels to carry off the waste matter in the system. If the bowel muscles are weak or the liver inactive, then this waste matter remains in the body and poisons the blood. As a result, every organ in the body is poisoned by this waste.

"Fruit-a-tives" has been wonderfully successful in relieving Stomach Troubles, Nervous Troubles, Liver Troubles, Kidney Troubles, Skin Troubles and Blood Troubles, because "Fruit-a-tives" positively and emphatically relieves Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Constipation, even though the trouble has been chronic for ten, fifteen and twenty years. Thousands of grateful users proclaim "Fruit-a-tives" the greatest remedy for Constipation that the world has ever known.

The cabinet contains 54 panels depicting Japanese scenes and customs as represented by the Pujiwara or Fifteenth Century period. The doors are decorated on both sides, plus blossoms on the exterior and danes of the period on the interior.

A set of four silk embroidered hangings also will be given the royal visitor as a token of the city's esteem. These hangings are nine feet by seven, and reproduce floral works of celebrated masters in favor during the Fifteenth and three following centuries.

Mrs. Hiram Daly (engaging cook)—How are you on fancy dishes?

Bridget—Just as aisy as I can be, mum. But the plaguey things will break sometimes.

Pig Iron And Ferro Alloy

The output of pig iron in Canada during March showed a decided increase over the production during the preceding month and established a record for the present year with a total of 41,733 tons comprising 25,974 tons of basic pig iron, 10,123 tons of foundry iron and 5,636 tons of malleable iron. With the exception of 71 tons the output of basic iron was all used by the producing firms. Foundry iron on the other hand was largely produced for sale, the total under this heading being 10,030 tons with only 43 tons made for the use of the firms reporting. Compared with the preceding month the production of basic iron was only slightly higher, but the output of foundry iron was almost 2000 tons greater than in February. Malleable iron to the extent of 5,636 tons made during March was the first produced this year.

Ferro-alloys shaded slightly from 1,232 tons in February to 1,068 tons during March, the whole production consisting of ferro-silicion in the several grades.

At the close of the month there were only three furnaces in blast, two at Sault Ste. Marie and one at Hamilton, the single furnace operated by the Dominion Iron and Steel Company in February having been closed down before the end of March.

The revival of the iron and steel industry indicated in reports from the producing centers in February gained a little strength during March and while the number of furnaces actually in blast in Canada at the close of the month was less than at the end of February, the output in Canada was appreciably higher, and to that extent more satisfactory than in the preceding month. In the United States the impetus to production which occurred in February was continued throughout March with the result that there was a net gain of 7,425 tons per day over the February record.

Steel Ingots And Castings.

In spite of the advance in the production of pig iron during March the output of steel ingots and castings was much lower than in February, the total output being only 29,941 tons as against 42,388 tons in the preceding month. The decline was most marked in the production of basic open hearth steel ingots which in February amounted to 40,935 tons, but in the month under review totalled only 28,222 tons all made for the use of the producing firms.

Basic open hearth castings made during the month amounted to 678 tons practically all of which was used by the reporting firms. In February a very small quantity of basic open hearth steel castings was used by the makers but a larger proportion amounting in all to 472 tons was produced for direct sale.

Bessemer castings and electric steel made in March amounted to slightly more than 1000 tons which was a little higher than the corresponding figure for February.

In the United States the production of steel during March showed a considerable increase over the output during the preceding month and in Canada a general improvement in conditions in the steel industry was noticed towards the close of the month, although many plants were still operating at considerably reduced capacity. Dealers' sales were reported as having increased from 10 p.c. to 25 p.c. and a steady improvement was expected.

HIS NERVES NOW STRONG AS EVER

How An Ontario Teacher Regained Good Health.

"I am a school teacher by profession," says Mr. James R. Thomson, R.R. No. 1 Centralia, Ont., "yet when I started school teaching I was in very poor health. I suffered a nervous breakdown, brought on by overwork and no relaxation. I was unable to think, to act, or even to eat properly. Queer little pricky sensations were continually running up and down my back, my arms and my legs; like so many needles, seeming at times to fairly paralyze me, and often my heart was thumping like a trip-hammer. I determined to consult our family doctor, and he immediately put me under orders. I had to give up my school and return home in order to recuperate my lost health. Milk was his chief remedy and I drank quarts of it; yet, though it helped me, it did not build me up to my normal condition—something was missing; something my system was calling for, better blood. One day, when I picked up a newspaper, I came across an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills suggesting just what was needed in my case—new, rich, red blood. I immediately sent for a box, and when the doctor visited me, I told him I had decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and he seemed satisfied. By the time my box was nearly done, and I determined to get another, by the time I had finished this I was gradually coming back to normal. My strength was returning, I could sit and walk without strain. For the next few weeks I continued to take the pills, and they were working wonders with me. My head was becoming clearer, my memory better, and my nerves were becoming steadier. I began to go out frequently, enjoying myself. My appetite improved and was even better than before I had my breakdown. I was myself again. I got back my school, and to this day I have had no return of the trouble, and now when anyone comes to me with nervous trouble, I instantly suggest Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a remedy, as I believe that what they did in my case they will do for others."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

UNUSUAL BILL COMES OUT IN BRITAIN

Abolish Private Property in Land — Transfer to New Ministry

London, May 5.—A bill to abolish private property in land and to transfer all lands in Great Britain which is not already the property of the crown or of any public authority to a newly created Ministry of Lands has been introduced into the House of Commons.

In the case of agricultural land, while all the buildings (except laborers cottages) and other permanent improvements would be transferred to the new ministry, the measure provides arrangements whereby they can become the property of the tenant and form part of the tenant right, together with all other improvements made by him.

Compensation to owners is to be paid in the form of five percent National Land Stock (providing an annual income equal to the present net letting value of the land transferred) redeemable at par after 30 years.

After the redemption of the stock one-fourth of the net revenue of the land would be applicable to national purposes and three-fourths to local purposes.

AN EXTREMIST

"Mrs. Eke is a great stickler for form and ceremony, isn't she?"

"I should say so. Why, that woman would insist on dressing up to entertain an idea".

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions one of the best remedies that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and they pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

HAMID BEY HAS RESIGNED POST

As Protest Against Manner In Which Christian Population is Treated

Adana, Turkey, May 5.—Hamid Bey, who has been governor of Cilicia, the Southern Turkish province, since its evacuation by the French troops, has just resigned his post as a protest against the manner in which the soldiers of Kemal Pasha have treated the Christian population.

It has been charged that officers of the Turkish Nationalist army and Turks who have no respect for law have been roaming the Armenian quarters in the cities and towns of Cilicia molesting women and children and committing various crimes.

They are alleged to have extorted loans from the frightened Christians without intention of ever repaying them.

When Governor Hamid protested, Kemal Pasha is reported to have replied only: "This is war."

Before leaving Adana, Hamid Bey declared in an interview that he was disgusted with the attitude and behavior of the military authorities who, he said, considered the promises given to France to protect the Armenians as a scrap of paper. After recalling the heavy sacrifices of the Turkish territory as a consequence of the war, he added:

"We Turks must first learn to respect the rights of minorities if we are to win the good will of nations. France and England would never be willing to restore to us Asia Minor unless we prove to them our capacity for good and just government."

Leading Armenians here assert that, despite signed pledges and proclamations, Kemal Pasha ordered that all Greek Christians and Armenians be dismissed from all administrative posts. This threw hundreds of Christians out of employment and left their families without means of support, so that they must look to charity for subsistence.

Armenians charged also that, in the last few months, thousands of Turks have invaded Cilicia and helped themselves to any vacant or unprotected property belonging to Christians without compensation.

THOUGHTFUL DEACON.

The new minister had asked Ted Jones to lead in prayer. It was Ted's first experience, but, not wishing to disappoint his new pastor, he complied. Twenty minutes later found him still praying.

The congregation was becoming restless. Finally, from a deacon's pew, there came a loud and devout "Amen."

Unbending his knees the applicant exclaimed: "Thanks, deacon! That's the word I've been trying to think of ever since I started."

For years Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has ranked as a reliable worm preparation and it always maintains its reputation.

Birthday Gift For The Prince

(By Canadian Press).

London, May 5—A birthday present to the Prince of Wales, it is understood, will be in the form of the creation of His Royal Highness as a Knight of the Thistle. The gift will probably be handed to the Prince on the morning of his birthday, June 23rd, when he will be 28 years old. The Prince is expected to return from his tour in the East on June 20th.

For some time past the King has been considering how best he might bestow some tangible mark of his satisfaction with the efforts of the Prince of Wales in India and the Far East, and his Majesty has decided that the conferring of the Order of the Knight of the Thistle would be a suitable token of affection and appreciation.

In connection with the matter surprise has been expressed that the Prince has not already been made a member of this Order, but the King himself did not become a Knight of the Thistle until the eve of his wedding. This was on July 5th, 1893, when Queen Victoria gave a family dinner party at Buckingham Palace in honor of the wedding that was to take place on the following day. A short time before the dinner was due to be served her Majesty summoned her grandson to her private apartment and there handed him the star and ribbon of the Order, and expressed the wish that he would wear it that night. King George, who was then Duke of York, was in naval uniform at the moment, and he had to divest himself hastily of the Order of the Garter and assume the green ribbon in place of the blue one of the senior Order.

This, by the way, was not the last occasion upon which a Royal Knight of the Thistle was created, as Prince Arthur of Connaught is the "junior" Royal Knight at the present time. The Duke of Connaught is the doyen of the Order. He was invested as long ago as in 1869.

The formal designation of this Order is "the most Noble and most Ancient Order of the Thistle", whereas the Garter is merely "the most Noble Order of the Garter." The addition of the word "Ancient" is a recognition of the legend that it was originally founded in 787; A.D., when Achaius, King of the Scots, and Hungus, King of the Picts, saw the vision of a bright cross in the skies as they engaged in prayer for the defeat of Athelstan, King of England, whom they were to engage in battle on the following day.

The authentic history of the Order, however, starts in the year 1687, over 200 years after the foundation of the Order of the Garter, when James II of England and James VII. of Scotland either founded the Order, or, as some historians aver, revived it. In those days it was confined to the Sovereign and eight Knights, and it had its home in the now ruined chapel at Holyrood. When this monarch was forced to flee, in the following year, the Order of the Thistle once more lapsed, and it was not revived until Queen Anne did so in 1703. It has been in existence ever since, though the number of Knights has varied from time to time.

In 1827 its present constitution was established. It was then laid down that the Order should consist of the Sovereign and sixteen Knights. Subsequently other members of the Royal Family have been elected Knights without interfering with the ordinary establishment. At present there is a vacancy among the Knights who are not members of the Royal family, and this will be filled shortly. The home of the Order of the Thistle in these days is in St. Giles' Church, Edinburgh, where a handsome chapel was erected for this purpose a few years ago. It is here that the formal investiture of the Prince of Wales will take place.

A BRICK AND STUCCO COTTAGE
DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK

Bright and sunny is this six room brick and stucco cottage which is ideally suited for the suburban lot although it could easily be adapted for the city lot as well. Combined with "texture" brick, as this house is to the first story window sill course, with stucco above, the owner would have not only a substantial home but one that is pleasing to the eye as well. Very artistic indeed would this house be with flower boxes and a low cottage roof.

There is an attractive porch entrance into a vestibule off from which is a coat closet. The hall space opens with a wide arch into the living room with passage to kitchen and main stairs and grade entrance. In the living room one finds a fireplace casting its cheerful glow and on one side of the fireplace for which there is a central chimney, are built-in book shelves. Through a wide opening, one passes from this room into the dining room which is made particularly delightful by the bay window.

Upstairs there are two good sized bed rooms, bath room, sleeping porch on which there is a closet, and a large linen closet in the hall.

The first story has the hardwood finish, while the second floor is enameled. Floors are of oak and birch. There is also a full basement with laundry, heating and fuel room. All the rooms are liberal in size, the total size of the house being 28 feet 6 inches square, it being a design that shows a most economical use of space.

Exclusive of the plumbing and heating, it is estimated that it would cost between $4,500 and $6,000 to build.

Portugal Faces Hard Problems

Lisbon, May 5—A singular affair has happened here which seems in a certain degree to illustrate the peculiar measure of responsibility which Portuguese ministers in these days attach to their offices.

Mr. Barbosa Magalhaes, the Foreign Minister in the most recently formed Government, of which Mr. Antonio Maria da Silva is Premier, is, besides, a lawyer with a fair practice. The new Government had not been long in office before Mr. Magalhaes found himself with the opportunity of appearing in an important case in the courts of Coimbra. Without hesitation, he took up the brief allotted him and away he went, appointing a deputy to act in his stead as Foreign Minister until such time as he could return and pick up again the threads of Portuguese relations with the rest of the world.

The deputies in Parliament thought this was going rather far, even for a Portuguese Minister, and there was a debate upon the matter in the Chamber. Realizing feeling was strongly against him, that difficult questions were likely to arise, and that his lawyer's practice was worth more to him than his very insecure tenure of a Cabinet office, Mr. Magalhaes, from Coimbra, telegraphed his resignation to Lisbon, intimating he would not return to act in his ministerial capacity again. On the following day, it was decided to introduce a short bill into Parliament whereby ministers would be prevented, in the future, from exercising the profession of lawyer during their period of office.

No Fundamental Change

Meanwhile, the condition of things political and social, remains anxious, uncertain and difficult. Outwardly, there is a certain calm. Bomb throwing has stopped for the time being, for which the presence of many thousands of troops in a ring round the capital may be held largely responsible. These troops constitute an extraordinary spectacle under the circumstances. The Premier the other day, desiring they should be inspected and reviewed, and perceiving obvious inconveniences in doing it on foot, thus exposing himself unduly to possible unfriendly attentions of a critical multitude, determined to accomplish the business by aeroplane, which he did accordingly. Perhaps this was the first time a Prime Minister had reviewed nearly a whole army from the air.

The scene seems to have encouraged him. Returning to terra firma, the government began immediately to put the screws a little harder upon the Syndicalists and their works, as it had declared it would do, the intentions, as announced at the beginning of this new government's career, being to sweep the country quite clean of anarchists and their like—a most formidable task. However, many arrests were made. The headquarters of various Socialistic, Syndicalistic and other revolutionary organizations were closed, and it is now announced, somewhat permaturely and optimistically perhaps, that the danger of a revolutionary strike, a detailed plot for which had been discovered, has been averted. The tramway service has been partially restored.

Seeks to Weaken Guard

The more immediate and intense preoccupation being thus disposed of, the Government takes the opportunity of furthering other important business, and in particular that concerning the reorganization, reduction, and weakening of that danger to republican peace, the National Republican Guard. A decree has been published reducing its strength to 12,000 men, who will be controlled in the future by the Minister of the Interior. They will be distributed throughout the country, not concentrated so much in the capital. Their duties will be restricted solely to policing, and they will not be permitted to belong to any political organization. They will have no artillery or machine guns, such as they have possessed. In this way, it is stated that, apart from political and social considerations of a most important character, an economy of 15,000,000 escudos annually will be effected. It may be noted that while the Guard has hitherto done very much as it pleased, with Lisbon, which it has regarded as its own special preserves, a section of the army encamped outside has just been brought into the middle of the city.

The general idea seems to have been to try to make the Guard as much like the Spanish Civil Guard as possible. In all things, the Portuguese are more disposed to follow Spanish example than any other and there are frequent instances of the working of this disposition in these days. Just at this moment, there is evident one of the recurring waves of Hispano-Portuguese sentimental interest, and there have been exchanges of visits of eminent persons belonging to either country.

Prof. Leonardo Coimbra has been on an exhibition to Madrid, where he has been lecturing. On returning to Lisbon he was enthusiastic over the demonstrations of sympathy toward Portugal he had witnessed. He has received invitations from the municipal councils of Vigo, Corunna and Santiago to lecture there.

ADVANTAGES OF WEST AUSTRALIA

Could Absorb Whole Of United Kingdom And Have Room To Spare

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 5—Western Australia, with its 624,000,000 acres of land, and only 330,000 people; Western Australia ,where great industries for the Empire were run and where the fringe of its immense possibilities had not yet been touched—could find room for the whole of the United Kingdom and still have room to spare, Sir James Mitchell, the Western Australian Premier, told an interested audience in this city recently. Tens of thousands of ex-service men are wanted in his country, Sir James said. There was no part of the world that was so purely British as Western Australia in its stock and origin.

Western Australia, Sir James continued, posses a much better climate than Great Britain, and they could grow everything that could be grown here. In the northern parts of the country they could grow all the cotton that Great Britain required, without employihg colored men. Western Australia was within forty hours sail of Java, but the Premier said he was not going to raise a hand that would lead to the development of colored labor.

His country could produce enough wheat for the whole of the people of Great Britain, Premier Mitchell said. It could also produce tin, lead, copper, gold and other things; but for all that the country was empty and there was no chance of it doing anything more than it was now doing The 330,000 people could not do an ounce more, he declared. They were a busy people, and they had no loafers. He appealed to Great Britain for assistance in getting settlers for Western Australia. The Commonwealth of Australia would have 10,000,000 more people if Great Britain would help, he said.

Sir James said he had not come to this country to ask for 1,000 or 20,000 emigrants—he wanted a steady stream of population from this country that would make millions in a very few years. He gave the assurance that they would be welcomed heartily, and there was work in Western Australia for everyone. "Come to us," he said, "and come where men can live as men, and where all men can live as equals. There are no rich people, but there are no poor people."

COOK RESENTED THE REMARK

"I don't understand" said Mrs. Fuswig, "what that young man from the grocer's is doing at the back door so much. He always comes after dinner."

"He doesn't!" flashed back the good-looking cook. "He comes after me."

The college valedictories are coming due and we will learn the real merits of the St Lawrence waterways project.

BECOMING SANER ABOUT INSANITY

Thousands Go Voluntarily To Dispensaries "For Nervous And Mental Disorders"

New York, May 5—The public is said to be becoming saner about insanity. Families used to feel it a terrible stigma if any of their kin was considered "a little bit off", as the saying went. But thousands of such people now go voluntarily to free dispensaries "for nervous and mental disorders".

Last year 3,858 persons in New York State made 9,969 visits to the 40 such clinics conducted throughout the state. Only five or six years ago such a thing was unknown, according to officials of the State Charities Aid Association, which is cooperating in the work.

This organization, pointing to statistics which show the tuberculosis death rate dropped about 34 per cent from 1907, when the organized fight on the white plague began, to 1920, expects to show the same results in its battle against insanity.

The war and the business depression that has followed caused a considerable increase in mental disorders, Aid Association officials declared. They have found, however, that serious worries and diseases are not the only waves that shove the mind off an even keel. Some people become unbalanced by too much recreation, just as others skid from the path of sanity because of overwork and domestic unhappiness.

What the Association intends to do is popularize information concerning the causes, treatment and prevention of mental disorders generally. It contends that 40 percent of the 40,000 persons in New York State who are now under treatment in asylums and hospitals for feeble minded could have been saved from such a fate if the proper preventative measures had been taken in time. It feels that since the asylums of the country have a greater enrolment than the colleges, the people ought to be taught to have themselves examined by competent physicians if they feel queer, or if acquaintances so consider them.

The most hopeful sign for cutting down insanity is in the attitude of parents and teachers toward children, in the belief of the Aid Association.

"If we can help the queer children, we will have fewer queer grownups in the future", one official said.

Often the youngsters who are backward and queer merely need to have their tonsils or adenoids removed, the doctors have found. But others have complexes, inhibitions, and a neurosis or two fretting their young minds. In this connection, it was said that some of the doctors at the state hospitals make use of psychoanalysis, while others do not believe in it. Patients upon consultation often are told what to stop worrying about, and field agents go around to see how they are getting along. Others are discovered to be worse off than "merely nervous" as they most often describe their own condition, and occasionally these have to be sent to an institution.

Cultivation of health through proper habits of the mind and the cutting out of bad mental habits is one idea that those working on the problem hope to put into the public's head. Brooding over being snubbed by others, or misfortunes and injuries is the thing the experts want people to stop doing. Work instead of day dreaming, these experts say is a pretty good way to prevent getting lop-sided between the ears.

CANADA has the World's best MATCH

In the new Maple Leaf Match—the match that is different — Canada has something that cannot be bought elsewhere in the world.

Your grocer likes to sell you quality goods. Ask him.

In Britain, they have matches made by Bryant & May Ltd., the largest makers in the Empire, and Maguire, Paterson & Palmer Ltd., the second largest.

In the United States, they have the product of the biggest manufacturers in the world—The Diamond Match Company—inventors of the non-poisonous and non-glowing match.

But, in Canada, we have

MAPLE LEAF MATCHES

the product of the new factory, the latest match plant built, and the combined knowledge and experience of all three organizations, who have joined forces and formed the Canadian Match Company, Limited, to give Canada the match that is DIFFERENT AND BETTER.

Different and Better

The new Maple Leaf Matches are different even in appearance — longer and stronger than anything Canada has known—and very much different in action. They are non-poisonous, the heads do not fly off, no live sparks when the flame is out, they light every time, they withstand more moisture and wind,—every match is a perfect match.

Take any one from any Maple Leaf box. Examine and test it against any ordinary match that you can buy.

LEARNED AT SCHOOL

"Well, Tommy, did you learn anything at school today?" asked the proud father.

"Yes, dad," replied the youngster with pugilistic ambitions.

"What was it? History, geography, grammar——?"

"No, dad. I learned that Sam Snoggs, the butcher's son, has an awful punch with his right."

You Can't Dent an
EDDY PAIL

The knocks, blows and bumps inseparable from day in and day out usage can't dent an Eddy Pail.

The Eddy Pail is a one piece Pail. It has no joints or seams: no hoops to come off, no staves to fall apart.

It is as strong as steel and lighter than wood. Its glazed surface baked on to the machine-hardened pulp wood, defies the roughest treatment—can't collect odors or taints.

The Eddy Household Pail is moderate in price and will outlast four or five of the old-fashioned kind. Ask for Eddy's Household Pails.

THREE LINERS IN THE RIVER

Minnedosa, Scotian And Regina Coming Up The St. Lawrence To Quebec

Three ocean liners with passengers, are coming up the St. Lawrence on their way to Quebec, the Canadian Pacific steamer Minnedosa, from Liverpool, with 593 passengers, 262 cabin and 331 third-class, which was reported passing Martin River at six o'clock last evening and is due to arrive at Quebec at noon today; the steamer Scotian, from Antwerp, Southampton and Havre, which was reported at Cape Race at 2 p.m. yesterday and due to arrive at Quebec late tonight; and the new White Star-Dominion Line steamer Regina, on her maiden trip to Quebec from Liverpool, with approximately 300 cabin and 400 third-class passengers, which is due to arrive at Quebec tomorrow forenoon. On arriving at Quebec the Regina will land her third-class passengers for immigration inspection, who are all British coming to settle in Canada. The commander of the Regina is Capt. W. A. Morehouse, one of the senior White Star captains, and who is a native of Nova Scotia, where his mother still resides Mr. T. L. Evans is the purser, and for the past several years he has been engaged in the Mediterranean service of the White Star Line, and prior to that time on the Megantic.

Having made only one voyage to Halifax since her completion, the Regina is now making her second trip since being placed in commission and is reported to be the last word in ships of her class. Her builders, Messrs. Harland and Wolff, of Belfast, Ireland, who have been building ships for the White Star Line for sixty years, were allowed carte blanche in the matter of expenditure, and every improvement and comfort known to modern science has been worked into her construction.

MAJESTIC FASTER THAN ASSUMED

Germans Aimed At Speed Laurels Of Atlantic When Building Her

Private reports just received by the International Mercantile Marine Company, concerning the speed of the world's largest ship, the Majestic now at Southampton outfitting for her first voyage to New York, confirm cable statements that the ship is much faster than had been assumed, and that in building her as the Bismarck, the Germans aimed at the speed laurels of the Atlantic.

When the Majestic was turned over to the Reparations Commission in accordance with the peace treaty, and when purchased for the White Star Line, she was rated as capable of 23 knots an hour, with her quadruple turbine engines developing 64,000 shaft horsepower at 180 revolutions a minute. It now transpires that at the ship's trials, and on her way to Southampton after her delivery, the White Star Line engineers found that her engines developed nearly 80,000 horsepower at 180 revolutions, and that although she was not pushed for speed, she made nearer 25 than 23 knots.

This led to an immediate revision of the estimates as to what the ship could do when engaged in the Atlantic service, and to an official statement from President P. A. S. Franklin, of the International Mercantile Marine Company that she would "comfortably exceed" 25 knots service speed under ordinary conditions. Engineers familiar with the big ocean liners predict that the boat when driven to develop a maximum of 100,000 horsepower, of which she is now believed to be capable, may become a formidable candidate for the Atlantic record. That record is now 13 years old, the time being 4 days, 10 hours, 14 minutes, Queenstown to New York. The record for the fastest single day's run is 676 knots, or an average of 27.04 knots an hour.

The Majestic is scheduled to leave Southampton on her maiden voyage to New York on May 10, and to sail from New York May 20.

TRAVELLERS SAIL FROM MONTREAL

Special Arrangements For Eucharistic Congress And Convention In Rome

Montreal, May 5.—Special arrangements have been made to accommodate the travellers to the International Eucharistic Congress and to the Convention of Catholic Women of the World which are to be held in Rome the later part of this month. They will leave Montreal on Saturday on the Canadian Pacific S.S. "Montreal", sailing direct to Naples, where they will stay for three days, and thence journey to Rome. This pilgrimage is under the spiritual direction of the Reverend Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament. Father V. Lault, Superior of the Montreal monastery, will be one of the directors, and the Rev. Father Alphonse Pelletier, Superior of the New York monastery will also accompany the party.

Following the Eucharistic Congress at Rome the itinerary includes visits to Assisi, Florence, Venice, Milan, Genoa, Nice, Monte Carlo, Mentone, La Turole, Marseilles, Arles, Les Saintes Maries Nimes, Toulouse, Lourdes, Bordeaux, Nantes, Tours, Blois, Versailles, Fontainebleau and Malmaison, with a sojourn of six days in Paris. There will be optional visits to the Passion Play at Oberammergau and the battlefields of the Great War. On the French railways the trip will be by special train. All the railway trips will be made by daylight with no night travel. A feature of the Canadian Pacific pilgrimage is the placing of a special train of eight Canadian Pacific observation cars at the disposal of the party for the trip through Italy. Optional return trips have been arranged from European ports to Canada via the different services of the Canadian Pacific from Havre, Antwerp, Southampton, Liverpool or Glasgow.

ANNUAL MEETING FOR GOOD ROADS

Convention Will Be Held In Victoria, B.C. — Ministers To Be Present

The ninth annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads' Association, to be held at the Empress Hotel, Victoria, B.C., on June 12, 13, 14 and 15, already gives strong indications that it will be as successful as any of its predecessors, for notifications are being received by the secretary treasurer, G. A. McNamee, of Montreal, which indicate that every Provincial Government as well as the Federal Government will be well represented at the gathering. The Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Highways in the Federal Government, and A. W. Campbell, Commissioner of Highways for the Federal Government, will represent the Dominion Parliament, and will tell the delegates something of the scheme for general aid on main highways of which some Provinces have taken more advantage than others.

The Hon. W. C. Nichol, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, will formally open the convention on the morning of Monday, June 12, and will be joined in his welcome by Premier John Oliver, who has been for many years an enthusiastic advocate of good roads and who travelled across the continent to Halifax in order to speak at the convention in Halifax last year. All the members of the British Columbia Cabinet have been asked by Premier Oliver to attend the sessions of the convention, while the Government highway officials of the Province will be present as well as road engineers and municipal delegates from all parts of the middle West and Eastern Provinces.

The Hon. J. L. Perron, newly appointed Minister of Highways for the Province of Quebec, will attend the convention, and will give the delegates some insight into the new highway law of the pioneer Province in regard to highway improvement and other things. At the last session of the Legislature some drastic changes were made in the highway policy with a view to ensuring the proper maintenance of the highways on which some $35,000,0000 have already been spent, and of preventing unnecessary damage being done to the roads at periods when they are most susceptible to injury because of their softness. Several officials from the department at Quebec will accompany the Minister and give the benefit of their knowledge to their colleagues.

The Hon. J. P. Veniot, Minister of Highways and Public Works in New Brunswick, has promised to attend and give an address. He is much interested in the question of uniformity of laws relating to highways and traffic, and in this connection Fred G. Pearson, of Halifax, one of the directors of the association, and president of the Nova Scotia Good Roads Association, has voluntarily undertaken the codification of Federal and Provincial laws with a view to assisting the labors and promote the success of the inter-provincial conference of highway officials which is one of the features of the convention and which opens on the afternoon of the second day of the gathering.

Premier Bell or the Hon. C. W. Crosby, Minister of Public Works, or perhaps both of them will travel from Prince Edward Island to show their appreciation of the work being done by the association, while there will be many visitors from the United States in addition to the eminent speakers from over the border who will deliver papers on a wide variety of subjects in conjunction with their Canadian colleagues.

Ministerial representatives from Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan will also be present, the latter being headed by the Hon. Sam. J. Latta, president of the Canadian Good Roads' Association and founder of the new Saskatchewan Good Roads' Association, which will send a large delegation. Some 20,000 invitations are being sent out by the association to Government and municipal officials, road and machinery contractors, representatives of the automotive industry and kindred organizations, while it is expected that the delegates attending the newly formed Western Canadian Municipal Union, comprised of the municipal councils of the four Western Provinces will also be present, as their convention is scheduled to be held on June 7, 8 and 9 at Victoria. The provincial convention of the Western members of the Engineering Institute of Canada will immediately follow the Canadian Good Roads' Convention, and with an interchange of delegates the success of the later is already assured.

A strong reception committee is being formed on Vancouver Island, composed of representatives of the Victoria and Island Development Association, the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis, Rotary, Gyro, Canadian Kuntuks and 100 P.C. Clubs, the Victoria Automobile Club, Publicity Bureau, and the reception committee of the City Council, and everything possible will be done to ensure a pleasant time for the visiting delegates.

Invitations to hold the 1923 convention in their midst have already been received from Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal and these will be considered at the annual meeting of the association to be held during the convention.

"HOW TO GROW THIN"

Mrs. Ima Gobbler was a young woman of normal size in her more youthful days. But a few years after she had married and "settled down" she and her husband, Heza Gobbler, were suffering from the effects of an unlimited diet and too much resting in an easy chair. Both were decidedly too fat.

How Mrs. Gobbler reduced forty pounds in a course of five months by the most simple of home methods is shown clearly and in amusing way in "How to Grow Thin," an Educational novelty. To be shown at the Victoria Theatre 4 days starting tomorrow Sunday in addition to the regular programme.

Is The Policy In Force?

JUST a phrase from a letter recently received at the Head Office of the North American Life Assurance Co., but what the answer—Yes! or No! —meant to the sorrowing widow.

Mrs. Jordan's husband had years ago taken out a policy for $5,000. He paid three annual premiums and then circumstances arose which prevented his making the fourth payment.

After a lapse of more than five years, Henry Jordan was drowned. His sorrowing widow came across the policy among his papers—thought it too old—of no value—but at the advice of friends wrote the North American Life, asking if the Policy, by chance, had still some value.

And the answer rushed back was, "Yes!"

Unknown to his wife, Mr. Jordan had ceased his payments and selected the option extending his insurance for a further period of five and a half years. Although not one cent in premiums had been paid during that time, Mrs. Jordan received a North American Life Cheque for $5,000.

The liberality of North American Life policies is unexcelled. Consult our representative when you select a policy. Act now.

Market Manifested Hesitancy And Comparative Dullness

RENEWED SELLINGS FOR BOTH ACCOUNTS IN WHICH PROFIT-TAKING WAS MOST EFFECTIVE

Earlier Dealings Were Smallest And Most Circumscribed Since Last March — Later Operations Lifted Total Transactions Over Million Share Mark

New York, May 5—Renewed selling for both accounts in which profit taking seemed to be most effective, accounted chiefly for the intervals of hesitancy and comparative dullness manifested by today's stock market. Dealings during the early and intermediate periods were smaller and more circumscribed as to separate issues than at any time since last March. The more active pace of the later operations, however, lifted the day's total transactions to 1,125,000 shares.

Oils as a group again dominated the list in prominence and strength, notably the secondary domestic shares. High priced oils gave way in the final hour, reacting one to four points from previous maximums.

What promised to be a formidable setback toward the close was checked by a sudden demand for rails, including Southern Pacific, New Haven and a few coalers, of which Pittsburg and West Virgina was most conspicuous.

Tobaccos, textiles, sugar specialties and the local tractions and utilities were one to two points up at their best, but in many instances these gains were impaired or entirely cancelled.

Shippings were under pressure on authoritative statements which deprecated rumors of an early resumption of the dividend on Mercantile Common. Selling of May Department Stores followed the failure of the directors to declare an expected "extra" dividend.

Both domestic and foreign monetary conditions were helpful to the stock market's constructive side.

Call loans opened and renewed into next week at 4 1-4 per cent. but dropped to 3 1-2 per cent. in the afternoon.

Exchange on London rose steadily to 4.44 3-4 for demand bills, the higest rate of this remittance in more than two years.

All Continental quotations were better, albeit gains in the Allied group were relatively nominal. South American rates hardened, a belated response to yesterday's successful offering of the Brazilian loan here.

Today's bond market was dull and irregular except for the further activity and strength shown by local tractions.

British loans of 1922 and 1929 strengthened on the higher quotations ofr sterling exchange. French 7 1-2s. and 8 1-2s. showed occasional heaviness, while Japanese and Mexican offerings were steady.

The day brought two new underwritings of more than ordinary volume. A $5,000,000 Utah Power and Light six per cent. gold debenture and $8,500,000 Remington Arms 6 per cent. first mortgage were oversubscribed.

Total sales, par value, $14,597,000.

Closing Letters By Local Brokers

(By Bruneau & Co.)

New York, May 5—It is now nearly three weeks since we had our day of largest dealings, when transactions ran over two million shares, since that time the market generally has shown a disposition to hesitate and there seems to be large selling of stocks when they are strong, no doubt representing the taking of profits. The oil stocks have been the exception and almost all of these companies have made new high records. The extreme strength in this group has served to hold the general market steady, where as otherwise it might have and would probably have reacted. Today the market has been mildly reactionary in tone, but it has never been weak and is closing quite well above the low prices. Its power of absorption of sales is perfectly marvellous. The best judges here seem to feel, as we do, that this is the time for caution, and that they would not go in increasing commitments just now.

Sales 1,172,600.

(By L. G. Beaubien & Co.)

New York, May 5—The market displayed an irregular tone in the late trading although there were no news developments to account for the reaction. A few stocks, notably Southern Pacific and some of the leaders in the oil group, maintained their strength, although closing prices were not at the highest for the day. Reports were current in the financial district during the latter part of the day that constructive developments in the relations between the United States and Mexico are to be expected within the next few days.

The reports were not confirmed. all money declined to 3 1-2 percent in the final hour. The turnover was in excess of one million shares.

WIRE USED FOR AERIALS TRACED BACK TO EGYPT

The manufacture of metallic filaments or shreds, known as wire, dates back to the early ages of man. According to excellent authority, evidences of it can be traced to early Egypt. Gold wire is mentioned in connection with the decorations of the Sacerdotal robes of Aaron, while metallic shreds have been discovered that date back to about 1700 B.C. Homer and Pliny in their early writings made reference to similar products. Metal heads, having imitation hair made of wire, were recovered from the ruins of Herculaneum.

From the remote times up to fourteenth century, wire was made by hammering out strings of metal, inasmuch as the modern process of drawing had not then been invented. The first advance in the process of wire manufacture was made when the "die" was introduced. This consisted of a flat block of metal, having a hole, slightly tapered, bored through it. The die was securely fastened to one end of a table (or "bench" as it was later called) in such a position that the hole was in a horizontal position and longitudinal to the bench; the smaller end of the tapered hole towards the far end of the table. A round rod slightly larger than the smaller end of the die hole was previously hammered out from a small casting while hot. It was sufficiently tapered at one end, so that when inserted in the die, a few inches protruded from the opposite side. When the rod became entirely cold, the tapered end was inserted in the die. The protruding and gripped in a clamp securely fastened to a chain was pulled from the far end of the table. The rod was drawn through the die and by this simple process, became wire.

Smaller sizes were obtained by retapering the end of the wire, inserting the end of the wire, inserting it through a smaller die, and again drawing it. The reduction in diameter elongated the wire. The length of wire obtained in this manner was limited to the length of the table. This difficulty was later overcome by coiling the wire around a power-driven drum instead of pulling it the length of the bench. This permitted the use of longer rods, therefore giv-introduction of the rolling mill, taking a greater length of wire. The introduction of the rolling mill taking the place of the laborious hand hammering of rods was a boon to the wire industry.

Present methods of rolling rods and the drawing of them into wire have increased the wire lengths from the few feet of the fourteenth century to the several miles of today.

Practically every metal known can now be drawn, due to the many refinements in the art of wire drawing. Larger sizes are drawn through steel or chilled iron dies, while very small sizes of wire are usually drawn through dies made from diamonds or other hard precious stones. The hot rolled rods have but a small percentage of the tensile strength induced by subsequent cold drawing. This cold drawing hardens the metal while reducing its diameter. Hardening it gives strength. However, there is a point of hardness at which the metal becomes brittle and again loses its strength.

Before this point of brittleness is reached, drawing must be stopped. Hard-drawn copper is weak when compared to steel, and aluminum has less than half the strength of copper. The two metals commonly used for wire are copper and steel. Both have serious limitations, copper used mostly for electrical purposes being weak, stretches and breaks, so cannot be used for long spans. Steel wire is strong, but a very poor electrical conductor. It rusts rapidly even when protected by a galvanized coating.

The need of a high-strength non-corroding electrical conductor was seen some 20 years ago. Many attempts have been made to combine these metals with their ideal characteristics into a single wire. Wrapping steel wire with copper strip was tried with disastrous results, due to electrolytic action between the two metals. Plating was tried with equal results. Finally after years of research, the molten welding process was developed whereby a thick layer of highly-heated copper is cast around a large steel billet, previously heated to a white heat. The two metals weld together and cannot be separated. This welded billet is hot rolled and cold-drawn into wire as previously described. This wire is copper-weld.

Aerials for radio stations is one of the uses to which copperweld is particularly adopted. Its conductivity at radio frequencies is equal to that of pure copper and is much stronger, due to its high strength steel core. Copperweld is the adopted wire for commercial and amateur radio stations.

AMERICAN FAMILY HAD MANY SERVANTS

London Newspapers Comment on Number Required During Stay in City

London, May 5.—Several London newspapers commented on the size of the entourage of servants which accompanied an American family of father, mother and two daughters, which just concluded a stay at a London hotel. The party has departed to the continent.

The accompanying servants comprise three maids, one valet, two secretaries, a private physician, a masseur and two chauffeurs. In addition, while in London, a titled society woman was employed to chaperone the daughters on shopping expeditions.

The Daily Mail remarked: "Even Princess Mary on her honeymoon is not accompanied by the small army of attendants which are attached to a certain family now visiting London."

Alice Calhoun has started work on her latest Vitagraph production, of which the temporary title is "Blue Blood". This story was written specially for Miss Calhoun by Graham Baker, Editor of Vitagraph. It is a light comedy of social climbers and bogus noblemen.

TROUBLE ENDED CONTRACTOR IS FEELING FINE

H. Chamberland, Of Montreal, Declares He Owes Much To Tanlac For His Complete Recovery From Nervous Dyspepsia

"I am mighty glad to join the others who are praising Tanlac," said Hermas Chamberland, popular window dressing contractor, 1051 St. Andre St., Montreal, Quebec.

"For four years I suffered from indigestion and nervousness—couldn't eat the least thing without it forming gas that pressed on my heart so I could scarcely breathe. My nights were restless, I was all tired out and it was all I could do to climb a step ladder.

"But Tanlac has given me such a fine appetite I can eat anything without trouble. My nerves are steady as steel and I feel fine all the time. Tanlac is without an equal."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists and general merchants everywhere.

The Rifle Ranges.

The rifle season is now fast approaching and military marksmen are getting ready for their first shoot on the ranges. In view of the tremendous range of the new Lee-Enfield rifle now used by the Canadian Militia the present targets are distinctly dangerous, for laborers a couple of miles distant from them have on different occasions narrowly escaped being hit by stray bullets. Moreover, the present ranges cannot be extended beyond 600 yards, while the 1,000 yards range will now be freely used, since the new rifle is fully as effective as the Martini and Snider rifles were at the former. The government should move in this matter at once so as to place our shooting men on a par with those of other cities.

Mr. E. A. Jeffery.

We learn with very deep regret of the decease of Mr. Ernest Augustus Jeffrey, which has occurred at the early age of 44 years and six months. The deceased enjoyed the friendship of all to whom he was known, and was one of the leading amateur sportsmen of the city. He had borne a long illness with exemplary patience and resignation. The Chronicle extends its sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

ACCIDENT RESTORES USE OF CRIPPLED ARM

Fall Of British Captain Proves Cure For War Wound After Years

London, May 5.—As the result of an accident, Capt. Alfred Pearse has completely recovered the use of his arm, which was crippled in the war. While serving at the front Capt. Pearse was blown over by a bursting shell and his left arm was rendered useless.

This week while alighting from a tube train at Trafalgar Square, his foot caught in a gate and he was flung violently on the helpless arm against the walls of the station. When he recovered his balance, he found to his asonishment that he could move his arm freely. He hastened to a doctor, who, after examining him, said the blow had moved an accumulation of fluid which had made the arm useless. The doctor says that had he known the cause of the trouble, it would have required a serious operation to remove it.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE IN GRIP OF APE

Keeper, Mangled, Released As They Struggled Into Toledo Zoo Crowd

Toledo, May 5—Tony, said to be the largest ape in captivity, was killed in the Walbridge Park Zoo this afternoon after he had attacked and severely injured Louis Sherer, a keeper.

Babe, a giant elephant, driven wild by the excitement, is trumpeting and clashing furiously about the elephant house late tonight trying to break ankle chains which are anchored to piles sunk deep in the ground. Outside a dozen policemen are on guard with heavy elephant guns, ready to shoot him if he breaks out.

The ape, which had been noticeably morose and untractable for several days, attacked Sherer when the keeper entered his cage to feed him. He was squatting on a trapeze as Sherer entered. The heavy body of the ape suddenly hurtled down and landed on the shoulders of the keeper. Clawing and biting and screaming, Tony bore Sherer to the ground.

The keeper threw his arm across his throat as he fell and thus kept the animal's teeth away from his jugular vein, the first point of attack. But the ape ripped and tore at the man's head and arm, slicing the flesh as with a knife. Sherer managed to regain his feet after the first shock and while he guarded his own throat with one hand, with the other he tried to reach the throat of the ape to choke him into submission.

But the ape was too strong. He drove the man back against the bars of the cage. Outside, on the ground and lying against one of the bars, was a brick. Sherer got one hand through the bars, picked it up, and with his free hand, began smashing the skull of the brute. The blows had little if any effect. The first one staggered the ape, but it recovered and returned to the attack before Sherer could knock it down. Thereafter, although Sherer smashed steadily at the thick skull, the ape forced the keeper back and finally through the door of the cage into the park.

With the ape clutching him in both arms, biting and clawing, Sherer staggered from the monkey quarters into the park, in the midst of a crowd of sightseers, attracted by the sounds of battle. Other keepers had come up, but the ape and the keeper were struggling so swiftly and were so closely intertwined they could do nothing. Finally the ape released Sherer as suddenly as it had attacked. Dropping the man unconscious to the ground, it leaped to the top of an automobile, where it sat grimacing and screaming in rage.

Other keepers took up the battle, and one of them hit the ape with a spade just as it was about to spring at him. Another smashed it on the skull with a pickaxe. It slid unconscious from the top of the car and Patrolman Hennessy shot it through the brain. Sherer was hurried to Mercy Hospital, where it was said he would probably recover, although badly mangled and very weak from loss of blood.

The uproar attending the struggle penetrated as far as the elephant house, where it put the finishing touches to the nervous frenzy into which the big elephont Babe had been whipping himself for several days, and Sherer was the only keeper who could control him.

Babe went completely crazy within an hour after Sherer, unconscious was sent to the hospital. Keepers tried to calm him, but he got worse. His huge body rocked to and fro, his wicked little eyes became beady and vengeful, and he swept his trunk about the elephant house in a desperate effort to wrap it around a keeper and dash the man against the walls. A barrel was in his way and he ripped it to pieces; he tore up everything in sight, and then he settled down into a steady effort to break the leg chains which kept him back.

The police sent to the gun stores and got all the elephant rifles in the city and the best marksmen on the force surrounded the elephant house to wait for the brute to burst forth. The authorities will not kill Babe unless he breaks his chains.

SCORE ONE FOR SMALL TOWN GIRL

Casting Director Finds New Yorkers Too Worn And Jaded To Film Well

Cheer up, you girls from the small towns!

If a New Yorker tries to tell you that when you are away from Broadway you're only camping out, just remember what you are reading right now.

Robert B. McIntyre, casting director for the Goldwyn motion picture studio, who has just spent six weeks in New York looking for new faces, announces that New York girls are "over-sophisticated, worn looking and lacking youthful spontaneity." McIntyre believes most of the future motion picture stars will come from small towns and not-so-big cities.

"The New York girls go in for too much social life," said the casting director. "They chase from luncheons to teas to dinners and dances. The mad social whirl takes away the bloom of youth.

"On my recent visit to New York I interviewed more than a thousand girls. Some of them were in the theatrical profession, but most of them were not. Incidentally, the girls in the profession showed that they had taken better care of themselves than the others.

"The New York girl is too sophisticated. In her expression, her manner and her dress she is worldly wise. She knows how to wear her clothes smartly, but she looks tired and carries her body wearily.

"A young woman to be successful on the screen must be youthful and vibrant and must radiate freshness."

A little research shows that many of the most successful screen actresses were born in small cities or towns. Helene Chadwick grew up in Chadwick, N.Y., a village; Colleen Moore was born in Port Huron Mich.; Helen Ferguson in Decatur, Ill.; Claire Windsor in Cawker City, Kan.; Patsy Ruth Miller in St. Louis; Pauline Frederick in Boston; Molly Malone in Denver; Mary Miles Minter in Shreveport, La.; Jane Paige in Pairs, Ill.; Viriginia Pearson, Louisville, Ky.; Mary Pickford, Toronto; Irene Rich, Buffalo; Alice Terry, Nashville, Tenn. Jacqueline Logan, San Antonio; Mae Busch, Melbourne.
