Rand votes to keep working

SHERBROOKE — "It was a really noisy meeting. The vote shows there are a lot of unhappy workers," said Ingersoll-Rand union secretary Gaston Beaudoin after workers accepted the company's latest offer at a stormy session Sunday night.

Over 95 per cent of the membership of Local 6670 of the United Steelworkers of America were present at the St-Francois School meeting when the vote was held. A majority of 54.6 per cent of those voting chose to stay on the job.

Beaudoin also said the union had negotiated with the company in difficult circumstances since February, with talks increasing in intensity since May. The workers contract ran out August 20.

The company offered a quick settlement in early June, he said, but the offer was rejected unanimously at a union meeting June 7.

The contract accepted yesterday will raise the average hourly wage of the members from $7.50 now to $10.53 by the end of the contract. This deal includes general increases and a cost-of-living adjustment as well as slight improvements to the pension plan, Beaudoin said.

Sov-Ass could be major issue — Levesque

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec sovereignty-association question could be the major issue of the next provincial election, Premier Rene Levesque told party workers on the weekend.

The executive of the Parti Quebecois which met in Mont St. Anne, near Quebec City, warned Levesque that a decision as to how the question will once again be put to Quebecers must be forthcoming.

Stagnancy will set in and divisions which already exist in the party could become disastrous if the matter is put off, the workers told Levesque who is president of the party.

The executive was meeting to discuss a report on short term plans for the promotion of independence.

The report says the idea of gradual sovereignty should be dropped and a major publicity blitz must be undertaken to get the party geared up for a decisive meeting in November.

Members of the executive admit the Supreme Court decision on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's constitutional package is an important element in their strategy.

RALLIES PLANNED

A court ruling in favor of Trudeau will help the sovereignty cause, and in that event, major rallies are planned to protest the decision.

Party policy currently states that to attain independence, the PQ must first win a general election in which sovereignty is an issue. That result would have to be ratified by referendum.

However, Pierre Harvey, party program chairman and Louise Harel, vice-president of the Parti Quebecois have said recently they believe the referendum idea could be scrapped.

Anglophone votes generally conceded to be against the independence option would be less damaging in a general election where they could only elect one quarter of the total number of deputies.

In a referendum, where only total number of votes count, the block voting of English-speaking Quebecers could once again prevent the PQ from winning a sovereignty-association vote.

The workers said that the party "must put all its energy and money" into promoting sovereignty-association or it will quickly become "an old party" that will discourage its supporters.

"I've seen some funny looking customers in my time, but this takes the cake," Tony chuckled. But Bruce, the Ross family's Clydesdale stallion doesn't take offense, as he enjoys a slice of rye bread... no sausage, please... under the watchful eye of Shelley Ross.

Sherbrooke Fair attracts 100,000 visitors

By Claudia Bowers

SHERBROOKE — It nearly didn't make it, but the weather cleared last Monday and Sherbrooke Fair organizers are sighing with relief today after six days of fine weather and an unbelievable attendance of over 100,000.

Still struggling with a chronic lack of facilities for livestock and space for exhibitions of maple syrup, vegetables, honey, etc., programs had to be dreamed up that would please both exhibitor and visitor.

Somehow, it was done. Warren Ross, president, together with an enthusiastic executive and board of directors argued and persuaded their way back into the hearts of the city people, enlisting more cooperation from business and industry than has been seen in many years.

Special events were planned for the kiddies, and when their first day was rained out, another was scheduled for Friday. Sunshine prevailed, and thousands of kids stormed the gates to roam in the Grandfather's farm, enjoy free pony rides and soft drinks, and to take advantage of reduced rates on midway rides.

Fashion shows featuring high styles and top-of-the-line models from Montreal, a family of tumblers and young local artists entertained the folks who toured the commercial exhibits in the sports palace. For the more stout hearted, one of the best motor cycle stunt shows even seen in Sherbrooke took place in front of the grandstand earlier last week.

Two nights of rodeo, including bull riding and bull-dogging, heavy and light horse shows under canvas, a pet show and one of the best midways to hit Sherbrooke in many years all contributed to the final success of this year's fair.

Entries were up in most sections, with top quality cattle shown in all breeds. Six herds of Jerseys and nine of Shorthorns brought spectators from far and near to watch the judging. Ayrshires and Holsteins completed the dairy sections, and Herefords and a record number of Simmental cattle rounded out the beef section.

Sheep were plentiful, with nearly 200 head competing, and poultry fanciers were able to view record entries in poultry, waterfowl, pigeons and rabbits.

Last weekend saw record crowds on the grounds, with more than 15,000 streaming through the gates yesterday. An antique car parade, international horse pulling competition, a giant bingo and a $25,000 raffle brought the first successful Sherbrooke Exposition to a close.

"Having an improved security system both at the gates and around the boundaries of the fair certainly helped, but mainly an unbelievable spirit of cooperation from every level of business and industry, including the City of Sherbrooke, and untiring support from fair organizers and workers were the main factors in making this fair one of the best," president Warren Ross said yesterday. "The only one who kicked a little in the beginning was Mother Nature, and even she came over to our side in the end," he added.

'Execute Khadafy for mad action' — Sadat

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has called for the execution of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy if he is found to blame for last week's Libyan-U.S. dogfight.

He said in an interview with Mayo, weekly newspaper of his National Democratic Party:

"I think the Libyan people should hold him to account. If he ordered his planes to shoot at the American jets, then he deserves to be executed for this mad action."

The United States says Libyan jets opened fire first in the dogfight Wednesday in which two U.S. F-14 Tomcats shot down two Libyan SU-22s over the Gulf of Sidra in the Mediterranean.

Washington called it an unprovoked attack although at the same time the U.S. defence department officials said the Libyan pilots apparently acted on their own initiative, rather than on government orders.

Sadat said the Egyptian Air Force called the Soviet-built Sukhois "flying coffins." He added that when he heard these were the planes Khadafy had sent against the U.S. jets, he considered it a criminal act.

Sadat said his brother, Atef, was killed in a Sukhoi on the first day of the 1973 Middle East war with Israel. He added that by coincidence he had given instructions to Egyptian pilots nine days ago not to fly Sukhois.

In Addis Ababa Libya and Ethiopia accused the United States on Sunday of planning to kill revolutionary leaders around the world, and a senior Libyan official urged that the Americans be deprived of Arab oil.

In a communique at the end of a visit to Ethiopia by Khadafy, the two countries said the shooting down of two Libyan planes last Wednesday was "a clear case of wanton provocation, an act of international terrorism, brigandage and brinkmanship."

Caisse plans economic recovery

ALMA, Que. (CP) — With a resounding fanfare of publicity the Federation des Caisses d'Entraide Economique du Quebec announced its plans for recovery Saturday.

And the federation chartered two aircraft to fly Montreal-based journalists to its headquarters in this community 300 kilometres north of Quebec City to give the plan a maximum publicity.

The credit union federation, which specializes in loans to small businesses, was hit earlier this year by rising interest rates and a $130 million run on its outlets in June after a series of negative television reports.

It also faces a $1.5 million deficit for the financial year ending in May 1981 because of, among other things, the bankruptcy of the Paquet Syndicat department store chain and unprofitable real estate investments.

Federation president Justin Dugal told a special meeting of 150 representatives of the federation's 71 member credit unions that the new plan will do more than protect members' savings.

In the near future, he promised, "it will show excellent returns."

The plan, which must be approved by all member credit unions, calls for changing $600 million of co-op capital into savings deposits and $200 million into capital shares.

British actor Patrick McGoohan and from Frank Moore and director Robin Spry as a mismatched pair of kidnappers.

But the movie is so overlaid with visual and auditory confusion as it bounces about a frozen North American city that even the good performances become fragmented.

From what you get on the screen, it's hard to see where the money went. The movie began shooting in Montreal in December, 1977, with an announced budget of $1.9 million, and ended up costing $6 million.

The world premiere Saturday morning, attended by a fair sprinkling of media types, was greeted with the unmistakable sound of hissing.

No capital can be withdrawn or received by the Caisses between now and February 1982.

Dugal said this would aid the creation of the capital share base.

MONTREAL (CP) — If a movie could be concocted in a food processor, it might look and sound very much like Kings and Desperate Men.

The lone Canadian competitor at the Montreal World Film Festival has, besides a wan-looking Margaret Trudeau in a prominent role, choppy editing, a choppy soundtrack, a choppy story line and uneven acting.

Which is not to say that 29-year-old Canadian director Alexis Kanner's first movie about a terrorist takeover of a radio station on Christmas Eve is all bad.

There are some fine performances (Trudeau's is not among them) particularly from Kanner as a university lecturer who becomes a terrorist, from

Iran envoy hostage in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — About 30 left-wing Iranians took Iran's ambassador to Sweden as hostage today in a protest against the fundamentalist clergy rule in their country.

The group, which said it represented two Marxist-Leninist organizations, said Ambassador Abdol Rahim Gavahi, his wife and one other hostage were unharmed when the Iranians occupied his official residence.

A spokesman said the occupation was peaceful and the group unarmed.

Police went to the residency, in a wealthy suburb of Stockholm.

STATES DEMANDS

In a telephone call to Reuters news agency in London, a girl who said she was calling from Stockholm on behalf of the group said the ambassador would be held until these demands were met:

Freedom for political prisoners in Iran and an end to executions and torture; an international or Swedish committee to go to Iran to investigate prisons and prisoners; a cable from the Swedish government condemning executions and the detention of political prisoners; and permission to hold a news conference to publicize the plight of prisoners.

Iran's Islamic leaders have been purging leftists and other opponents of the government and its spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Scores have been executed in recent months.

This month a group seized Iran's Embassy in Oslo and held it for seven hours to demand an end to "the Khomeini massacre."

The Stockholm spokesman said those involved are students living in Sweden.

Record rates cut building 50 per cent

TORONTO (CP) — A confidential survey of six of Canada's largest builders says record-high mortgage rates are cutting home construction by as much as 50 per cent.

The sampling, taken last week by the Canadian Institute of Public Real Estate, also says the high rates are affecting construction of rental apartment housing.

Michael Galway, the institute's executive director, said in an interview with The Star that only one of the big companies, most of which were not identified, reported its business was unaffected.

While none suffered cancellation on such commercial projects as office buildings, some indicated that, because of the high rates, they weren't considering new projects they normally would consider, Galway said.

Some of the survey's findings were:

- Company A, which has about $1 billion in assets, said up to $115 million worth of planned construction will not go ahead, including 500 houses and 500 high-rise units.
- Company B expects to build $100 million less housing than planned.
- Company C is not looking at new projects, although it may consider $50 million to $100 million in new commercial work if rates were better.

Colby-Curtis thieves grab invaluable collections

By Ivy Hatch and Stephen McDougall

BEEBE — Quebec Provincial Police are investigating a major burglary at the Colby-Curtis museum which was discovered by employees Friday morning when they came to work.

According to Malcolm MacDonald, administrator for the museum, unknown thieves made off with precious and in many cases, irreplaceable articles made of gold, silver and other valuable metals. MacDonald could not put a figure on how much the stolen articles were worth. He told the Record that the thieves "knew what they were doing" by going only for things of value and causing no vandalism.

The items, he said, were taken from the Lady Banting room, the library and the parlor. Some of the more notable items stolen include all medals of the late Frederick Banting, jewellery from the Ball-Banting families, rare pieces of glass, brass candlesticks and a collection of rare coins donated by J.D. Ferguson. An 1850 bedspread, museum officials believe, was used to carry the larger items to a waiting vehicle.

The burglars got into the building, according to MacDonald, by ripping away at a heavy screen grating on a basement window, breaking open the window, entering into the basement and then onto the museum's main floor. Museum employees also found that a heavily bolted exit door had been jimmied by the burglars to make good their escape.

When MacDonald was asked whether the museum has an alarm system, he replied that it would be of no use since Beebe has no police force and the Provincial police are over 30 miles away.

According to QPF officer Jean Marc Ducharme of the Coaticook detachment, it is too early to tell who the suspects could be or how much value was in the items stolen. But Ducharme did tell The Record the list of items taken was already five pages long.

The museum is expected to be reopened by mid-week and will remain open for the rest of the season.

Little House

BY KATHARINE SNOW

As I rounded a corner in the supermarket on Saturday morning doing my grocery shopping, I was approached hesitantly by a serious looking young man who told me that he had just overheard me speaking to another lady and, as I seemed to speak some English, he wondered if I might help him. I modestly acknowledged my adequacy with English and told him that I would be pleased to help if I could. He explained his problem. He wished to exchange some American money in the store. "What is the difficulty?" I asked him. "Have they refused you?" "I didn't even ask, Ma'am," he told me. "We understood that no one in Quebec spoke English."

I advised him to go to the cash counter. "If you should encounter someone who cannot speak English," I said, "he will immediately find someone else who does."

He eyed me dubiously but went off with two equally dubious companions toward the front of the store. A few minutes later, circling about, I passed the cashier's counter and saw the American boys laughing and chatting with the jovial young man at the register.

I stopped to ask if they had been successful with their exchange. A bearded one flashed me a wide grin. "We sure have, Ma'am," he said, "and everyone told us that we were in for a hard time in Quebec." The cashier and I exchanged glances, half-sad, half-amused.

As I turned away, pleased at their enlightenment, I happened to notice "University of Houston" written on one fellow's T-shirt.

"Are you really from Texas?" I asked. "Yes, Ma'am, we all live in Houston."

"You must know Doctor Cooley then," I said. They exchanged puzzled looks. "I don't believe we do", the bearded one said. Surprised, unbelieving, I pressed on. "Doctor Denton Cooley at The Heart Institute. He just transplanted a human heart the other day into a Dutch patient."

"That right, Ma'am?" They were warily polite now and eyed me with a cautious suspicion. I could almost tell what each was thinking — a real nut — as they eased away from me toward the store exit.

"Thank you for helping us" the serious one called back. "I think you've got things mixed up though, lady. We never heard of no Doctor Cooley in Houston."

With my impulsive attempt to establish a rapport, to make them feel at home, I may have set back the newly-formed Quebec-Texas relationship at least a decade or two.

Lenn-Ascot opens Little League park

Lennoxville got its new Little League baseball park Saturday at a ceremony before a game between Lennoxville Yankees and Waterville Astros. The park was built on land donated by the Eastern Townships Regional School Board behind its Queen Street offices. Construction costs of over $30,000 were supplied by the Ministry of Leisure, Hunting and Fishing and a provincial job-creation program for the disadvantaged. An honored guest at the ceremony was Darcy Bennett, first coach in 1951 of the Lennoxville Yankees. He was presented with a hat of the model worn by this year's Yankees by Lee Parker, whose father played for the 1951 squad. Bennett said he mainly tried to teach his original team to be "good losers. That's the name of the game."

Townships talk

The Waterville meeting of the Lennoxville and District Community Aide group will be held Tuesday August 25 at the Waterville town hall.

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Heavy rains last week created havoc with the municipal reservoir on Lake Davignon, fed by the south branch of the Yamaska River.

Suspended sediment was the culprit and environmental officials alerted all residents to boil drinking water at least 20 minutes as a precautionary measure.

Cowansville has no filtration plant but ionizes the water and adds chlorine at the pumping station located immediately below the dam controlling the reservoir level.

Jean Guy Masse, the assistant town manager, said they were made aware of the situation late Thursday and put staff to work immediately, contacting the media and all commercial and social institutions, such as the hospitals, nursing homes and restaurants, warning them of any possible danger, and, at the same time, passing on the corrective measures to be taken.

Staff from the provincial ministry are expected back on the scene today for further tests.

ASBESTOS (SM) — Johns-Manville Canada Inc. announced last week 93 more employees will be laid off in the next two weeks as part of the company's continuing production cutbacks because of sagging demands for asbestos fibre.

This brings close to 500, the number of people laid off by the company since September of last year.

Besides the layoff, unconfirmed reports by local media say the mine will shut down for the first week of September.

Meanwhile, negotiations between Johns-Manville and its 175 striking office workers and technical staff have been resumed since last Tuesday, the day after the strike was called, when members of both sides met with government conciliator Yvon Forest.

According to union president Rene Langlois, no headway was made at that meeting and no date was announced for further negotiations. Last Thursday evening a general meeting of the union membership renewed their support for the strike and gave their executive sole power to continue the strike or negotiate a settlement.

The renewed strike vote was taken despite a petition from 45 members who had asked that the original vote be reconsidered in light of J-M's poor economic situation and planned layoffs.

WATERVILLE — A 34-year old real estate agent killed a man with a 12-gauge shotgun, then called the Quebec Police Force and turned himself in early yesterday evening, according to police.

Real Denis will appear in court to face a murder charge arising from the killing.

The victim, Roger Demers of Spring Road, Lennoxville, apparently owed Denis a sum of money. The alleged murder took place at the Denis home at 140 Rue Denis in Waterville.

A friend of the victim, whose name has been withheld by police, apparently witnessed the shooting.

First class

Organizers of this year's just-ended Sherbrooke Exposition are to be congratulated today after a highly-successful fair.

For the last few years the Sherbrooke Fair had deteriorated, both in the eyes of fair-goers and the quality of the displays and attractions. But this year's effort showed how concerted effort, tighter security and a forgiving public could turn the situation around.

At one time, the Eastern Canadian Exhibition, as it was called, was a premier show for Quebec farmers. Top animals were exhibited; the prize-winners often went on to victory at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto and other national shows. International stars headlined the entertainment; one year Duke Ellington was the main attraction.

But TV came along, the big stars cost too much and were replaced by somewhat sleazy second-rate acts that drew less interest. At the same time, other, newer agricultural fairs took away some of the glitter of the Sherbrooke show for its produce and livestock exhibitors. And the ill-conceived Festival des Cantons distracted even the beery midway crowd that meant success at the gate. An almost-final breakdown in fair security last year saw thousands of would-be customers climbing under, over and around the fences to get away from the $2 entrance fee.

This year all that changed. The fair was opened by Canadian agriculture's answer to Duke Ellington, Eugene Whelan. A more active, committed board of directors made sure the top farm showmen were there with their best animals. The Festival des Cantons was cancelled for this year when its promoters couldn't get their act together. And tighter security ensured everyone paid to get in.

A first-class Sherbrooke Exposition once again. Perhaps beyond the wildest dreams of fair president Warren Ross and long-time secretary Eileen Morgan only a few weeks ago, it was a reality again last week. Let's hope they do it again next year.

CHARLES BURY

Iran: Both sides hate Amnesty

By Janice Hamilton

MONTREAL (CP) — Years of pleading for the lives of political prisoners in Iran has made Amnesty International the object of hatred for both sides of the Iranian revolution.

Pro-monarchists criticize the human-rights organization for helping to bring down the late shah because it denounced human rights violations under his regime.

And now, Amnesty spokesman Richard Roach says a pro-Khomeini newspaper accuses the group of being part of "an imperialist and Zionist plot."

Amnesty earned the enmity of the Islamic regime because of its denunciation of the current wave of executions, estimated at more than 130 last month. At least 1,600 Iranians have been put to death since the successful 1979 revolution.

Among those executed was poet Said Soltanpur, who was also imprisoned under the late shah's rule and adopted by Amnesty as a prisoner of conscience. Organization members wrote letters to the Iranian government to try to obtain his release.

He was eventually freed, but arrested again this April after accusing the Khomeini regime of torture.

CHINA CAUSES CONCERN

Roach, here to attend the annual meeting of Amnesty's international council, says his group is also concerned about China where a wave of crackdowns against human-rights activists has been conducted since early April. Twenty-one activists of the democratic movement have been arrested since then.

Roach says the attitude of the Reagan government in the United States towards human rights issues has not really hurt Amnesty's work.

The fact that the former Carter government vigorously took up human rights questions in bodies such as the United Nations meant some sort of diplomatic pressure came to the aid of the human-rights struggle, he says.

"Now it's very clear that human rights are being given second-rate position by some countries, not only the U.S. Curiously enough, I don't think this has hurt Amnesty's work. In fact it's highlighted the need for independent, non-governmental organizations like Amnesty."

More important than worrying about the positions taken by governments, he says, "is the amount of pressure that can be generated by ordinary people, first of all on their own governments and second, on other governments."

Québec begins to take destiny in hand

By Kevin Dougherty

QUEBEC (CP) — For just a few dollars a week, Quebecers are becoming "masters in their own house" as successive provincial governments have told them they should be.

Quietly and without flag waving, the low-profile Caisse de Depot et Placement, into which millions of Quebecers pay their pension money, has become a high roller in Canadian finance.

The Caisse, with assets of $11.749 billion last year, was seventh among financial institutions in Canada, outranked only by the six major chartered banks.

In a billion dollar deal last week, the Caisse became the major shareholder in the Toronto-based multinational Noranda Mines Ltd. through Brascade Resources Inc., a joint venture with Brascan Ltd.

Last week the Caisse got together with the Societe Generale de Financement, a provincial government holding company, and bought a 42-per-cent interest in Domtar Ltd. The Caisse's share is 20 per cent.

Domtar had sales of $1.653 billion last year, making it the second ranking pulp and paper producer in Canada. The Caisse and the SGF told Domtar they want four-tenths of the seats on the company board.

WAS SIMPLE TRUSTEE

Caisse spokesman Gerard Blondeau said this week that since it was set up in 1965 by the Liberal government of Jean Lesage, the Caisse has played a trustee's role, acting as a passive investor.

"The Caisse is changing," he said. "We have taken another step now and the size of our interests will grow; as this happens we will want to play a more important role on the board of directors."

Speculation is the SGF will sell its interest in Domtar to Donohue Inc. in which the government holding already has a 43-percent stake. In coming weeks, the Caisse will be in the news as a minor participant in what could be the beginning of a major corporate takeover.

Quebec financier Paul Desmarais denies he is buying the 5.6 per cent interest in Canadian Pacific Ltd. held by the Caisse with the intention of taking over the top-ranking conglomerate.

But the transaction will boost the interest of the Desmarais company, Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., to 10 per cent, placing him in a solid position to take over Canadian Pacific.

BOUGHT DOMTAR SHARES
No details of the deal between the Caisse and Desmarais were revealed, but it is believed the 22-per-cent interest the SGF picked up in Domtar came from Power Corp. subsidiaries.

The sale of its Canadian Pacific shares to Power Corp. could leave other corporate executives looking over their shoulders next month as the Caisse looks for ways to invest the $216 million it will get in the transaction.

The Caisse does not reveal the full extent of its interests in the 300 companies it has shares in, but Blondeau said it has shares in 35 of the top 50 companies in Canada.

Rhyming off the majors the Caisse holds shares in, Blondeau named Alcan, Bell Canada, Gulf Canada, Shell Canada, Hudson's Bay Co., Inco, Dominion Textiles, Steinberg's Ltd., Provigo, Moore Corp., Stelco and Dofasco.

The Caisse also has shares in most of the chartered banks.

Recently the Caisse has been criticized for letting its investment policy be determined by the goals of the provincial government.

BOUGHT GAS COMPANY

Last year it bought $55 million in debentures which can be converted for a 49-per-cent interest in Gaz Metropolitan. The Caisse already holds seven per cent of the utility.

A Quebec energy department official said the Caisse will keep a portion of the Gaz Metropolitan shares and sell the rest to SOQUIP, Quebec's equivalent of Petro-Canada.

Gaz Metropolitan distributes natural gas in the Montreal region. Last year SOQUIP also bought control of Gaz Inter-Cite which will distribute natural gas in the rest of the province once the pipeline is extended.

The two transactions give SOQUIP a monopoly over distribution of natural gas in Quebec without any political debate or public outcry.

During last year's referendum campaign, Eric Kierans, former Liberal cabinet minister in both Ottawa and Quebec City, where he worked in tandem with Rene Levesque in the Lesage cabinet, created a stir when he resigned from the Caisse board.

LOW-COST LOANS

Kierans was opposed to a new investment policy instigated by Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau, who had used his influence on the board to get the Caisse to lend money to the government and Hydro-Quebec at preferential rates.

Claude Forget, finance critic for the Quebec Liberals and a former Caisse board member himself, fears that cheap loans to the government and Hydro-Quebec could hurt the Caisse yield.

He also questions whether major acquisitions by the Caisse are good for the Quebec economy and is critical of the Parti Quebecois for using the Caisse as a policy instrument.

"No government spokesman, no Caisse spokesman, nobody from the Societe Generale de Financement said clearly what the government's intentions are," Forget said. Blondeau said contributions from Quebec residents and return on investment this year will boost Caisse assets by more than $2 billion.

Despite its hefty portfolio, the Caisse only has 14 per cent or $1.815 billion in company shares. It has another 7.5 per cent in corporate bonds, but the bulk of its assets are in government bonds.

Blondeau said the Caisse is authorized to hold as much as 30 per cent of its assets in company shares, but its interest in any company cannot exceed 30 per cent.

The Caisse was established as the investment fund for the Quebec Pension Plan, but contributions from that source only accounted for 58.7 per cent of the total in 1980.

The remainder comes from the pension plans of government and public sector employees, workmen's compensation schemes and Quebec's government-run no-fault car insurance plan.

The Caisse and the SGF have been in the spotlight lately, but another Quebec government agency born in the early 1960s has also grown to become a financial giant.

Hydro-Quebec, worth $18.012 billion, is the largest Canadian company in terms of assets. Finance Minister Parizeau is reorganizing it to make Hydro pay dividends into the provincial treasury.

The quiet interventionism of the PQ also manifested itself this summer when Transport Minister Michel Clair announced he was investing $15 million in Quebecair. The investment could be translated into an 87-per-cent interest in the regional airline.

But it could also provoke a fight with the federal government because Ottawa passed a law prohibiting provincial government from buying airlines after Alberta bought Pacific Western.

Jesus multiplies

Editor:

The Gospel reading for August 2 was, Jesus multiplies the five loaves and two small fishes to feed the multitude of five thousand people and many baskets left over. The sermon or homily, was about the hungry and starving people in many countries of the world. The Reverend said he read where a man had only one can of soup for several days and many other things concerning the hungry and starving people in many parts of the world.

When Jesus multiplies the five loaves and two fishes to feed the multitude. Why didn't God provide food for all those hungry people? I will try to answer my own question.

As long as the energy of man and the revenue of the world is used for war materials to kill their brothers and sisters, there will be hunger and starvation in the world. The energy it takes to build one fighter plane would plant and harvest hundreds of tons of food and the price of that plane would buy that guy millions of cans of soup.

God well knows all the good things he provided are not used for what they should be and by providing food for them would urge them to fight more. Wars are urged by big companies so they will get big contracts for military material to make millions.

There were many arguments after World War Two. Some said the war made more millionaires than there were casualties. I don't know the answer, but I do know as long as we back them (large companies) up, we are sharing in their crime and there will be hunger and starvation in the world. If the energy of man, the material and revenue of the world was used for the benefit of mankind there would be plenty of food for all. Rather it is used now for the destruction of the human race.

If we don't show the world that we are opposed to all those wars and killing we are wasting our time talking about peace for there is none. At this time our Prime Minister is touring those so-called third world countries explaining to those warring bums how he can supply them with funds and food so they can use their own energy and material for war to kill each other. As long as we feed them they will fight.

On August 6, thirty-six years ago the U.S. dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan which killed more than 250,000 men, women and children who had no means of defense. Millions were wounded and many suffer the effects of it to this day. I wonder if the man who dropped it and Truman who gave the order are shaking dice with the devil tonight to decide who will get the honor stripes and badges.

Reagan is planning far more destructive weapons. God save us, for it seems man is out to destroy the world and all that's in it. Sleep well tonight, for we never know.

Yukon: Nowhere to go but back

Columnist Bruce Levett, on a trek through Northern Canada, offers some advice on how to make the drive up the Dempster-Mackenzie highway safely while enjoying the scenery and appreciating the history.

EAGLE PLAINS, Y.T. (CP) — Nobody ever passes this way just once, for this is the halfway point on the Dempster-Mackenzie highway and there is nowhere to go but back. They warn you in advance.

"Driving the 750-kilometre gravel road is demanding," the Yukon brochures state.

"Good tires, reasonable load, care and sane speed should help make for an enjoyable trip."

The Dempster starts just outside Dawson City and skirts the purple and grey Ogilvy and Richardson mountains. It's a spectacular forest landscape. Then it climbs, cutting through the Richardsons.

When it reaches the high plains, sweeping and stark, it carves across the Arctic Circle. Ferries bridge the Peel River at Port McPherson and the muddy Mackenzie at Arctic Red River in the Northwest Territories.

The Dempster links with the Mackenzie Highway for the run straight north into Inuvik and you have gone from the land of the past — the Klondike gold fields — to the land of the future, staging-point for arctic oil exploration.

Bruce Levett

Everybody stops at Eagle Plain. It's the first gas stop since the Klondike Highway — about 250 kilometres behind you.

It's a rough road, winding, pot-holed — in parts gravelled with chips of shale that slash into tires.

But it's spectacular country, and a land filled with some of the most romantic history in Canada.

Dawson City, back near the beginning of the Dempster, once was home to 30,000 people during the gold rush. Today, in winter, there are about 300 inhabitants. There are a scant 85 people on the tax rolls.

The streets aren't paved with gold but — at least in summer — with dust or heavy, gubo mud. An old stern-wheeler stands as a museum. Pioneer churches and old cabins lie abandoned and leaning. Tourism has replaced gold-mining as the principal industry. The gambling hall runs all night.

But it's up here, in the solitude of Eagle Plain, that history closes in on you.

Over there, about 40 kilometres, the Mad Trapper of Rat River shot it out with the posse.

In another direction, but not much farther away, the lost patrol of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police died — four men, who ate their dogs as they struggled to within 60 kilometres of safety.

The Dempster is named for an RCMP corporal who led the search party and found their bodies.

The Dempster is the only public road to cross the Arctic Circle, but it's a demanding trip.

Take extra spares and extra gas and tie everything down. Mount a deflector against rocks thrown up by passing trucks.

And then prepare to step off into a land few Canadians see — where the scenery is as wild and spectacular as the history you're passing through.

Government costs

Editor:

At long last the postal strike is over after a lot of inconvenience to the public and at great cost to the taxpayer. It cost the federal government $150 million over two years for the new contract.

Once again Trudeau and his Liberals have capitulated to the union. When and where will it all end?

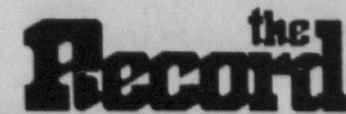

What I can't understand is why 17 weeks paid maternity leave was demanded and such a fuss made over it. If, as I understand, it would only affect 250 women employees and they would qualify for unemployment insurance.

Are the male employees by some miracle, having babies these days, so need the paid maternity leave too?

Specialty retail stocks show growth potential

Stocks of several specialty retailers are still inexpensive relative to their growth prospects even though consumer spending could taper off later this year, says a Toronto analyst.

J. Ronald Woods, vice-president of research with Merit Investment Corp., says companies that have turned in credible performances during the last six months include Dylex Ltd., Reitman's (Canada) Ltd., Grafton Group Ltd., Canadian Tire Corp. Ltd., Peoples Jewellers Ltd. and Dominion Citrus and Drugs Ltd.

In a recent report, Woods said all six companies have been able to keep inventories under control, are less reliant on bank and long-term debt and cater to a market segment that, despite inflation, has retained a considerable amount of disposable income.

Dylex Ltd., a clothing manufacturer and retailer, earned 25 cents a share in the first quarter, a considerable improvement over its five-cents-a-share loss in the same period last year.

These results, Woods said, "follow on the heels of an outstanding year in 1980, when earnings jumped to $2.03 a share from the depressed $1.53 a share in the previous year."

Net sales were also up 24 per cent in the last year and Woods estimated this year's earnings at about $2.50 a share.

The company's class A shares recently traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange at $16 1/2.

Meanwhile, first quarter results for Reitman's (Canada) Ltd. show sales up 17 per cent to $49.7 million from the same period last year, while net earnings reached $1.5 million or 33 cents a share, up 50 per cent from 22 cents a share.

EXPANSION PLANNED

Woods said the company, which has about 530 retail outlets specializing in ladies' wear and accessories, appears capable of extending that strong performance through the rest of this year.

He said the company plans to open another 35 stores across Canada and the U.S. by the end of its current fiscal year and estimated 1981 per-share earnings at $4, up from last year's $3 a share. The company's stock closed Monday on the TSE at $27.25 a share.

Woods said Grafton Group Ltd., which deals primarily in men's and boy's clothing, has underperformed other members in the specialty retailing field, mostly because its licences to operate within the Woolco chain will be terminated this year.

The company has a 55-per-cent interest in a joint venture that commences in the next fiscal year and while Woods noted that the market has taken a cautious approach to the stock, he believes there will only be a minor earnings disruption.

He anticipates earnings for the year at about $3.20 a share. The company's class A stock closed Monday at $14.25.

Canadian Tire Corp. Ltd.'s turnaround, which became evident in the second half of last year, appears to be well on its way to producing a strong earnings improvement for 1981, Woods said.

First quarter earnings of $1.07 a share represented an increase of 82 cents a share from the same period last year and Woods estimated earnings for the year at about $3.50 a share.

Canadian Tire is engaged primarily in the wholesale merchandising of automotive products, as well as household, hardware and leisure-time goods. Its class A stock traded Monday at $31.88.

Woods said 1981 is a transition year for Peoples Jewellers Ltd. and earnings will probably show only a modest increase over last year's $2.60 a share.

The company reached an agreement with Zale Corp. earlier this year, which allows both companies to acquire up to 21 per cent of each other's shares.

Corporate takeovers: Is the trend healthy?

EDMONTON (CP) — As corporate takeover battles continue, business leaders and observers are debating whether the trend is healthy for the Canadian public.

Small-business spokesmen and some economists are charging that consumers will be harmed by higher prices, reduced competition and the growing power of a wealthy few to influence politics.

But others say the trend will mean greater efficiency and better competition in world markets. They say arguments about the political influence of wealth are overblown.

Alexander Jenkins, University of Alberta economics professor, used the U.S. auto industry as an example of what Canadian consumers could face.

He says past takeovers reduced automaking companies to only four majors and, as a result, consumers ended up with fancier models rather than lower-cost, fuel-efficient cars.

"The auto-makers, even though they're losing money, have competed not with price cuts, but with heavier advertising and model changes," Jenkins says. "The consumer winds up, not with a lower-cost car, but with a fancier car he may not necessarily want."

ELIMINATE COMPETITION

Small-business spokesman Jack Foster says mergers or takeovers that develop into monopolies eliminate competition.

The ability of smaller firms to enter an industry or market competitively is reduced, says Foster, Edmonton-based western regional officer for the Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

"We (the federation) suggest pre-screening of mergers of the 300 largest companies in Canada by the combines investigation department."

However, Edmonton entrepreneur Peter Pocklington dismissed the argument.

"Someone smaller can compete with the bigger guys," says Pocklington, owner of Pocklington Financial Corp., which owns several companies, including Edmonton's major professional sports teams.

Pocklington said the government should stay out of business.

DEMOCRACY HURT

Ed Shaffer, an associate economics professor at the University of Alberta, says allowing economic power to be put into few hands will hurt not only consumers, but the democratic process.

"When you get control of the economy into a few hands, then we move from consumer sovereignty to producer sovereignty. They could run the economy for their own sake rather than the sake of the consumer."

Eric Geddes, president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, dismissed the premise.

Small firm, big acquisition

TORONTO (CP) — Although the small, low-profile John A. Huston Co. Ltd. may not have the appeal of major takeover targets, its new owners, nevertheless, see it as a significant acquisition.

"We now have a chance to control our own destiny," says Jose Ocampo, president of the company formerly owned by a subsidiary of U.S. multinational Colgate-Palmolive Co.

Ocampo and his partner, Bruce Riddell, a longtime employee and currently executive vice-president, rounded up other investors about a year ago and agreed to buy the plant for $129,000 plus inventory worth about $700,000.

Huston, which produces and packages soap and cosmetics for companies such as Mary Kay and Vidal Sassoon, was established in an industrial district in Toronto in 1914 and currently employs 120 people.

Ocampo, the former plant manager, says Huston had potential and was worth saving when Colgate-Palmolive decided to sell in 1980.

Hobbies often relate directly to work — report

EDMONTON (CP) — If you tell an auto mechanic to take a day off work he may go into his private garage and work on a car.

But if you ask him whether his hobby has anything to do with his work he may say it doesn't.

That was one of the surprising findings reported Wednesday to nearly 300 professionals taking part in the third Canadian congress on leisure research.

Economists, geographers, sociologists and others presented a series of papers attempting in part to nail down exactly what constitutes leisure.

For housewives in a recent study done in Halifax, leisure tended to involve some activity that could be described as pleasant or satisfying, said Sue Shaw of Carleton University.

Working women tended to think of leisure as something involving self-education and physical or mental effort, she said.

For working men, one key was freedom from "evaluation," that is, not having to worry about things such as comments from a foreman.

Another study suggested that retired people get more satisfaction from talking with friends than from physical activities.

And to the surprise of researchers, it appeared more important for retired people to see an opportunity to take part in various activities than actually to take part.

It was "puzzling" that physical activities did not appear to contribute significantly to "life satisfaction" among the retired people in the study, Ron Johnson of the University of Waterloo told a seminar at the congress. He was presenting a paper he had written with Gerry Romsa of the University of Windsor.

JOHNSON SURPRISED

Johnson said it was also surprising to find no difference in "life satisfaction" measured in urban and rural areas.

He and Romsa concluded that retired people like to visit or talk with friends, go travelling, pursue hobbies.

But they found it is more important for retired people to see a chance to do these and other things than to do them.

"This has a very important bearing on social policy," Johnson said.

Governments tend to provide recreation opportunities only when large numbers of people use them. But it may be at least as important for retired people simply to know there are things they can do, whether they do them or not, Johnson said.

"More work is needed on the relationship of real and perceived opportunities for recreation participation.

"Perception seems to be the key if you're going to get a life satisfaction among retired individuals."

The congress, which ends Friday, opened Tuesday with some participants calling for establishment of leisure studies as a recognized field of research. A meeting today was to set up a new Canadian Association of Leisure Studies.

Woman on Valium 17 years can get off it

Dear Ann Landers: I've been on Valium for 17 years, and for the last seven years I've wished I were dead. Please tell me how to get off this miserable stuff.

All these years I've been what everybody wanted me to be instead of what I wanted to be. I can get down to half of a five-milligram pill a day and function OK, but I still feel spaced out and not in control of myself. I think my family likes me better on Valium because I am easier to get along with and I don't make any demands on anyone.

I resisted taking Valium when the doctor first suggested it as a temporary relief for anxiety. The thought that I might not be in control of my behavior frightened me. I wish I had had the courage then to say "no" to that drug that was supposed to help me get over a bad time.

Now, I feel completely burned out. I have no self-respect. No matter what I am asked to do, I do it. This damned Valium has made a zombie out of me. I am unable to express an opinion different from that of a friend or a relative. I do as I am told — like a robot. In other words, I am not me. I am the creation of a chemical that can be purchased in a pharmacy. It's a lousy feeling and I hate it. Can I get off this stuff and be ME again? —

Ann Landers

Disgusted and Tired

Dear Tired: You are unquestionably hooked on the stuff. What kind of a doctor would prescribe a tranquilizer for 17 years? I am appalled!

People who know say it is harder to get off pills than booze. Contact a drug abuse centre. (Look in the phone book — there are several.) It's a tough battle but you CAN win it. Others have and so can you.

Dear Ann Landers: The secretary who was concerned about the unkempt appearance of the obese executive needs to have the wife of Lardo tell her side.

The reason Lardo is wearing the same pants day after day, with a rip in the crotch, yet, is because he is too lazy to throw the pants in the wash. As for his obesity (50 pounds overweight), I have long since given up trying to do anything about it because he stuffs his fat mouth with whatever he pleases.

Doesn't he ever look in a mirror, you ask? I've often wondered, especially since he walks past one every morning after he steps over the three pairs of pants he's thrown down. Why don't I pick them up? Because I grew tired of playing maid to a Mama's boy years ago, Honey.

And if you think he looks awful with his clothes on, you should see what a charmer he is without them! It's enough to make you lose your lunch for the next 16 years.

Why do I put up with him? I have a few problems of my own and my years of supporting myself are long gone. I need a roof over my head. — Lardo's Wife

Dear Wife: Your marriage sounds ghastly. You must need his paycheque desperately. Obviously you have decided to remain in this miserable relationship. Please get some counselling.

Social notes

Martin-McLellan

South Stukely Anglican Church was the scene of a small pretty wedding which took place at 11 a.m. on April 4, 1981, when Joanne Elizabeth McLellan, only daughter of Mr. Stewart McLellan and the late Mrs. Amona McLellan, South Stukely, was united in marriage to Mr. Dean Martin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Martin of Pigeon Hill. Rev. Wilbur Davidson of Waterloo officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Mildred Bowering, friend of the bride, presided at the organ and rendered appropriate selections as the guests arrived and during the signing of the register. Arrangements of flowers decorated the church. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows and tiny blue flowers.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March. She was attired in a beautiful floor-length ivory gown, ruffled at the hem line with a train. The center of the skirt was of lace and trimmed with pearls, the bodice and high neckline was of the same trim. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a crown of lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of salmon colored rose buds.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Linda Chartrand, sister of the groom wore a floor-length gown of yellow polyester knit, pleated skirt and lace collar. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, daisies, and baby's breath.

The groom wore a dark brown tuxedo with a salmon colored rose bud boutonniere. The best man, Mr. Richard Harris of Bedford, wore a matching tuxedo, his boutonniere was a yellow carnation. The bride's father wore a black tuxedo with a white carnation. The groom's father wore a three-piece suit with a white carnation.

The grandmother of the bride chose a floor-length gown of flowered polyester with black accessories. Her corsage was red rose buds. The groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of petal pink patterned chiffon toile, with bone accessories. She wore a corsage of pink rose buds.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party and 40 guests went to the home of Mrs. Myrtle McLellan, grandmother of the bride. Before a delicious cold buffet was served, the blessing was given by Rev. Davidson.

The bride's table included members of the wedding party, Mrs. Linda Chartrand, Mr. Richard Harris, Mr. Stewart McLellan, Mrs. Myrtle McLellan, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Martin, Mr. Neil Baker, Mrs. Bowering and Rev. and Mrs. Davidson. It was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's grandmother.

Dayna McLellan of Montreal, niece of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. During the afternoon dancing was enjoyed by the guests.

Early evening, the happy couple left for two weeks' honeymoon in Florida. For going away, the bride chose a pleated dress of dusty rose polyester knit with a white boucle jacket trimmed with the same color as dress and light brown accessories. Her corsage was salmon colored rose buds.

They have taken up residence in Pigeon Hill.

Guests were from Toronto and Wardsville, Ontario, Montreal, Sherbrooke, as well as the surrounding areas.

Bridal shower

Mrs. Brian Rolleston of Stanstead was taken by complete surprise on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15 when she called at her mother-in-law's home expecting to take her shopping to find about 15 of her relatives and friends already there. Mrs. Clarence Rolleston pinned a corsage of baby toys on her blouse and seated her in a chair decorated with yellow and white streamers. Emile Maclure and her son Roger. After the knitted sweater sets, blankets, sleepers, a baby playpen and numerous other gifts had been passed around and admired the mother-to-be thanked everyone.

Delicious refreshments of sandwiches and squares were served including a lovely shower cake frosted in white and trimmed with yellow having a stork and a baby in a cradle on the top, the artistic work of the grandmother-to-be Mrs. Clarence Rolleston.

Punch and chocolate fudge were passed around during the afternoon.

Congratulations

Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Phillias Goyette who observed their 45th wedding anniversary on August 18, from their family and friends.

Alcoholism among women growing

EDMONTON (CP) — The middle class and professional bracket.

Dorothy Rankin, director of the commission's detoxification or recovery centre, said the increased number of women in trouble with drugs and alcohol is having an effect on the centre. "We are running out of space." The detoxification centre is part of an over-all treatment centre directed by Clark.

Rankin said 463 women were admitted to the Edmonton centre in 1980 compared with 337 in 1979. Fifty per cent of the women were housewives and the rest single working women.

RUNNING FULL
The centre is running at full capacity most of the time, with eight beds allotted for women "almost always in use."

A few years ago, "it was unusual if we had more than one woman at any one time in the five-bed women's dormitory," Rankin said.

The increase is "greater than the general population increase," he said. Thirty per cent of the women who sought help were married and the majority were in their mid-30s.

Elinor Clark, director of a commission treatment centre in downtown Edmonton, said that when she first started work with the commission 16 years ago "we saw a ratio of one woman to 50 men, and generally from skid road."

Now, Clark said, "we are seeking one woman to every two men and mostly from the Thayer Family reunion at Newport, Vt.

MANSONVILLE (BN) — On August 9, 1981, several from this area were present at the Senior Citizen's Centre in Newport, Vt., where 51 relatives and friends of the Thayers gathered to renew acquaintances and to catch up on happenings over the past year. It was great to welcome some who had been absent for several years. Last year's attendance was 42.

As folks arrived, the buffet table grew in abundance. Before the sharing of the indoor picnic meal, Mr. Asa Thayer asked the blessing on the food and the assembled family. Late arrivals missed out on some of the annually brought goodies like homemade brown bread and butter.

After much good fellowship and the expected satisfying of appetites, the President, Jennie Thayer Monette and Secretary-Treasurer, Dorothy Thayer Morey arranged their books and agenda for the business part of the day. The reading of the happenings of last year's meeting refreshed everyone's memory and it was reported that the treasury was in good condition.

This year two new births were noted — great-grandchildren to Maud and Harold Clark, a son to Cynthia (Clark) and Ivars Perkins — little Brandon Ivars, who was born on September 29, 1980; and another son born to Brenda (Clark) and William Eldridge on July 16, 1981 — little Jeremy Bradford.

One marriage was reported: Elaine Wood to Russell Phaneuf on July 25, 1981.

It was sad to learn of the death of three members — Maude Fauchs on January 27, 1981; Dorothy Morey on June 13, 1981; and Frank James Thayer on July 11, 1981.

News of two graduations were happier items with Robert Thayer's Bachelor of Science in Communications, Arts and Science received from Lyndon State College on May 10, 1981, and he is in Rhode Island; and Charles Arthur Thayer graduated from U.V.M. Cum Laude — (Honours) on April 5, 1981 with a B.S. in Mathematics and is presently an Actuarial Trainee in Computer Insurance in Boston.

The youngest person present was two-year old Kyla Wood. Two of the "older citizens" were Vern Doucette a 77-year old and Asa Thayer who has celebrated his 83rd birthday. During the business meeting the person who had travelled the farthest was Alvin Wood from London, Ont., — a distance of 560 miles. However, later Chuck Giguere arrived and his home is Moose Jaw, Sask., — over 1500 miles away. A short genealogy report was given with more booklets available and a plaque was on display showing the Official Thayer Coat of Arms which was obtained from the Genealogical Offices in California.

During the following program, Rev. Ronald White with his guitar and Mrs. Robert Cargill led the group in song. Mrs. Ruth Austin (a distant Thayer connection) gave a talk on her very interesting and valuable doll collection — many of which were original German productions. The costumes were authentic and beautiful.

Mrs. Lillian (Thayer) Cargill gave two amusing poem readings entitled "What Happened To The Good Old Days" and "How Old Are You?" These were followed by a firely joke by Merton Thayer — the poor insect became "delighted" as it passed through a lawnmower!

Mrs. Maud Clark took orders for reprints of last year's group pictures. The Nominating Committee for the ensuing year are Florence and Asa Thayer, Maud and Harold Clark, and Verna and Merton Thayer. The same location was chosen for 1982, and the first Sunday of August was reset as the date for the Reunion.

Those attending the reunion from Vermont were Jennie and Rene Monette, West Glover; Mary Bachert, Flora and Asa Thayer, and Rena Brown of Newport; Merton and Verna Thayer of Newport Centre; Rebecca Thayer of Lyndonville; Robert, Carol and Benjamin Cargill and Everett and Lillian Cargill, all of Morgan Centre; Dorothy and James Morey and daughter Deena of Troy; Michael R. Tetrault, Newport Centre, and Leon and Katherine White from Bradford.

Rev. Ronald and Marjorie White live in Whitefield, New Hampshire. From Ontario were listed Nancy and Jason Price, Toronto; Alvin, Jason and Kyla Woods from London; Carroll, Rose, Tammy and Stanley Wood, address not listed; Vern Doucette, Nellie Wood and Ruby and Wayne from Beebe, Quebec. Others from this province were Clarence Thayer, Stanstead; Doris McKelvey, Lennoxville; Alice, Allen and Eddie Whitcher, Foster; Maud and Harold Clark and Bruce, Bertha and Brian Nichols, Mansonville; Lida Giguere, Brigham; Chuck Giguere, Brigham and Moose Jaw, Sask.; Jack Webb, Sutton; Betty Stone, Sutton; Frances and John Whitehead, Knowlton.

Obituaries

TERRY L. TICEHURST of Stanstead

The family, relatives and friends were saddened by the sudden and untimely death of Terry Leslie Ticehurst, on Friday August 7, 1981, only son of Mrs. Gladys Ticehurst of Stanstead and the late Leslie Ticehurst.

The funeral service was held on the following Monday afternoon, August 10 at 2 p.m., at the Cass Funeral Home in Stanstead and was largely attended. Rev. R. John Snow of Coventry, Vt., officiated, speaking words of comfort to the bereaved. The bearers were Terry's cousins, Erwin Taylor, Ronald and Erwin Ticehurst, Richard and Allen Wing and John Smith. Interment took place in the Ticehurst plot in Griffin Corner cemetery.

Terry was born at the Sherbrooke Hospital on December 16, 1952. He grew up on the Ticehurst homestead in Tomifobia, attended Sunnyside school, graduated from Alexander Galt and attended a year at Bishop's University in Lennoxville.

Latterly he had been employed at the Butterfield Plant in Rock Island but a few weeks previously had resigned due to ill health.

Terry was interested in pottery making and created several lovely items some of which he sold and several were given as gifts to relatives and friends. He was a person who was thoughtful, especially to the elderly. In respect there were several floral pieces and memorials in his name.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ticehurst, three sisters and brothers-in-law, Mrs. Wynn (Faye) Dustin and Mr. Dustin, Tomifobia, Mrs. Charles (Faith) La Rocque and Mr. LaRocque of Lennoxville, Mrs. Ian (Sharon) Lang and Mr. Lang of Waterloo, Ont., several uncles, aunts, nieces, nephews, cousins and many friends.

To attend the funeral with the immediate family were relatives and friends from Barre, White River Jct., Newport, Newport Center, Coventry, Derby Line, Vt., Beebe, Ayer's Cliff, Tomifobia, Montreal, Rochester, N.Y., Concord, N.H., Harrington Harbour and Sherbrooke.

ETHELWYNN D. LIBBY of Ayer's Cliff

Ethelwynn Dickson Libby, wife of the late Clair W. Libby, passed away on July 24, 1981, at the Stoddard Home in East Hatley, Que.

Born in Island Pond, Vt., on August 21, 1895, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dickson.

In 1920 she was married to Clair Libby in Island Pond, Vt. Of this marriage there were two children, Thelma Libby Burns of Lennoxville and Elton Libby of Vancouver, B.C., also two adopted children, Mrs. Nesta Libby Dumoulin of St. Catharines, Ont., and John Libby of Dixville, Que.

Ethelwynn graduated from Brighton High School in Island Pond, Vt., and was employed at the Island Pond Bank until the time of her marriage, when she went to start her married life on the Libby farm in Libbytown, Que. Most of her married life was spent in Libbytown and Ayer's Cliff, where she was active in church work and took part in many activities. She was "Grammie" to many young people around Ayer's Cliff and loved to have her friends come for a cup of tea and a game of cards.

The remains rested at the L.O. Cass and Son Funeral Home in Ayer's Cliff. Funeral service was held at the Beulah United Church in Ayer's Cliff, where Rev. Ron Coughlin and Mr. Stanley Beerworth conducted the service. The beautiful music was played by Mr. Jack Evans and included Ethelwynn's favorite hymn — "Amazing Grace".

The bearers were Nelson Pierce, Pete Pedersen, Warren Robinson, Keith Kennedy, Wayne Little, Douglas Stoddard, Bill Wyman and Lysle Thompson.

Following the Committal Service, lunch was served in the church vestry by the United Church Women.

MRS. EVERETT TAYLOR of Sherbrooke

The death of Mrs. J. Everett Taylor occurred on Tuesday, July 21, 1981, at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Argyle Street after a lengthy illness. She was in her 87th year.

Mrs. Taylor, nee Edna Violet Cromwell, was born at Perryborough, Que., (Hereford County), on May 31, 1895. She was the daughter of Robert Thomas Cromwell and his wife Mary Alexandra Seale.

After completing her preliminary education she entered the teaching profession in her 19th year. She taught at many "one room" schoolhouses during her career, but others more well known were Brompton, Ascot Consolidated, North Hatley and Fitch Bay. Her devotion to the education of the younger generations expanded over 19 years.

On October 25, 1924, she was united in marriage to Joseph Everett Taylor, at that time a farmer of Fitch Bay. They had one daughter, Maxine. On their 54th anniversary they received congratulations from Prime Minister Trudeau. Edna Taylor was predeceased by a brother, Leonard Cromwell, and three sisters: Jessie Covell, Bertha Wilson and Marion Marshall Waldron.

She is survived by her devoted husband Everett, a loving daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Webster of Thetford Mines, Que., two beloved grandsons, Mickey (Leonard E. Webster) and Barry John Webster and dear sister-in-law, Mrs. Frances Taylor (or Mrs. H.G. Taylor) and many loving nieces and nephews.

Her remains rested at the Webster-Cass Funeral Home in Lennoxville, until Friday, July 24. Funeral services were held at the Funeral Home, Rev. Douglas Warren officiating. Burial took place at the Cookshire Cemetery, Cookshire, Que.

Following the burial, lunch was served to the family by Mrs. Gloria Bellam of Cookshire, at her home.

Relatives attending were from Beebe, Knowlton, Toronto, Ont., Thetford Mines, Elmwood, Ont., Lennoxville, and surrounding area, Richmond, Rock Island, Hatley, and L'Acadie, Que.

EAST FARNHAM

Mrs. Eunice Thomas Friends and relatives were saddened to learn of the sudden death of Miss Helen Buck, a resident of Cowansville, but her home was in East Farnham for many years. Her illness began in her home and she was taken to B.M.P. Hospital where she succumbed to her illness in a few short hours.

Mr. George Hunt reports that Mr. Albert Malette of Bull Pond is home from B.M.P. Hospital, Cowansville and is recuperating nicely from his recent heart attack.

Miss Daisy Sanborn entertained Mrs. Olive Rubens at tea time and presented her with a pre-wedding gift. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Malette were guests at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Mahannah and two daughters, and their niece, Amy Rosner of Bristol, Conn., were dinner guests of their aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thomas on Wednesday. Miss Merne Powers of Toronto was also an overnight guest at the same home while visiting her mother, Mrs. Muriel Powers at the Robinson Residence, Cowansville.

Several members of the United Church congregation were at Brigham on Sunday to attend the farewell for our student minister, Miss Julie Sousa. A brunch followed the service, giving everyone the opportunity to wish her a "bon voyage" back to Kelowna, B.C., and more study before concluding her years for the ministry.

Card of Thanks

EVERETT — The family of the late George Everett wishes to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbours for their kindness and thoughtfulness at the time of death and burial of our dear husband and father. Thanks to the bearers, the organist and choir, Rev. L. Westman, Boynton's Funeral Home, and to those who sent floral tributes, food, visited the Funeral Home, for the many cards of sympathy, as well as donations to the various charities in his name. A special "thank you" to the H.K. Veterans who conducted a memorial service at the graveside, and to the veterans who formed a guard of honor at the church and cemetery. To each and everyone, your kindness will always be remembered.

NINA (wife)
BONNIE and LARRY
(daughter & son)

TAYLOR — We wish to express our sincere thanks to everyone for their acts of kindness during the time of our wife and mother's illness and death. Thank you to the nurses and doctors of the Sherbrooke Hospital for their wonderful care. Special thanks to all who sent cards, messages, flowers and donations. Our deep appreciation to everyone at the Webster-Cass Funeral Home in Lennoxville, Que. for making our grief more bearable, with their help, advice, consideration and kindness. We will always remember your thoughtfulness.

In Memoriam

SUITOR-ELMER & MYRTLE — In loving memory of our dear parents. Dad who passed away January 25, 1968, Mom, August 24, 1980. Those we love don't go away. They walk beside us every day. Unseen, unheard, but always near. Still loved, still missed, still very dear.

THE FAMILY

BIRCHTON

At 8 p.m. on August 12, the Directors, with all present, met at the Birchton Hall, their newly elected President, Yvon Roy, in the chair, supported by the other three of his executive, when the guest speaker, Richard Groudin, notary, of Cookshire, explained the procedure of making the Group into a Corporation, not an association. Then the necessary papers were made and signed by the required number of members of the directorate.

Several of the directors had come early, the meeting having been called for 8 p.m., were joined by the Mayor of Eaton, and did a walking tour of the property, and came back with dry shoes, one remarking, "it was not at all as awful as I had heard on the grape vine."

Some questions were asked, and answered. It is encouraging to note that every one of the Directors was present to sign the roll. They will need the support of the public, and will appreciate suggestions, etc., for the new venture. There is hope that the rink may be in operation this coming winter.

Miss Joan Halsall has returned from a holiday in the Toronto area.

90th Birthday

WINDSOR — Miss Pearl Morey was pleasantly surprised on Thursday, Aug. 13, to have several relatives and friends drop in to extend congratulations and best wishes on her 90th birthday.

The visits, cards, gifts and flowers were much appreciated and made the day a very special one. A cup of tea and refreshments, including a lovely birthday cake made and decorated by Mrs. D. Morey were served.

Among the visitors were Misses Gladys and Shirley Morey, Mr. and Mrs. D. Morey and Kevin and their guests, Misses Julie and Jane Jandron, Mr. and Mrs. S.M. Paige, Mrs. Joyce Lemoine and Mrs. Anita Robinson.

previous meeting were read and approved.

Two plaques were purchased for each boy and girl with the highest overall points at the Richmond Expo Community Fair. A trophy was also purchased for the youngest female plower in the fall plowing match. A motion was made to purchase another trophy for the youngest male plower in the plowing match. A motion was also made to have the name of our branch engraved on the plaques and trophies.

Correspondence consisted of a letter from the County Home Economics Convenor, Janet Banfill concerning the County Tea and Bazaar which is to be held on Saturday, September 19 at the Legion Hall in Richmond.

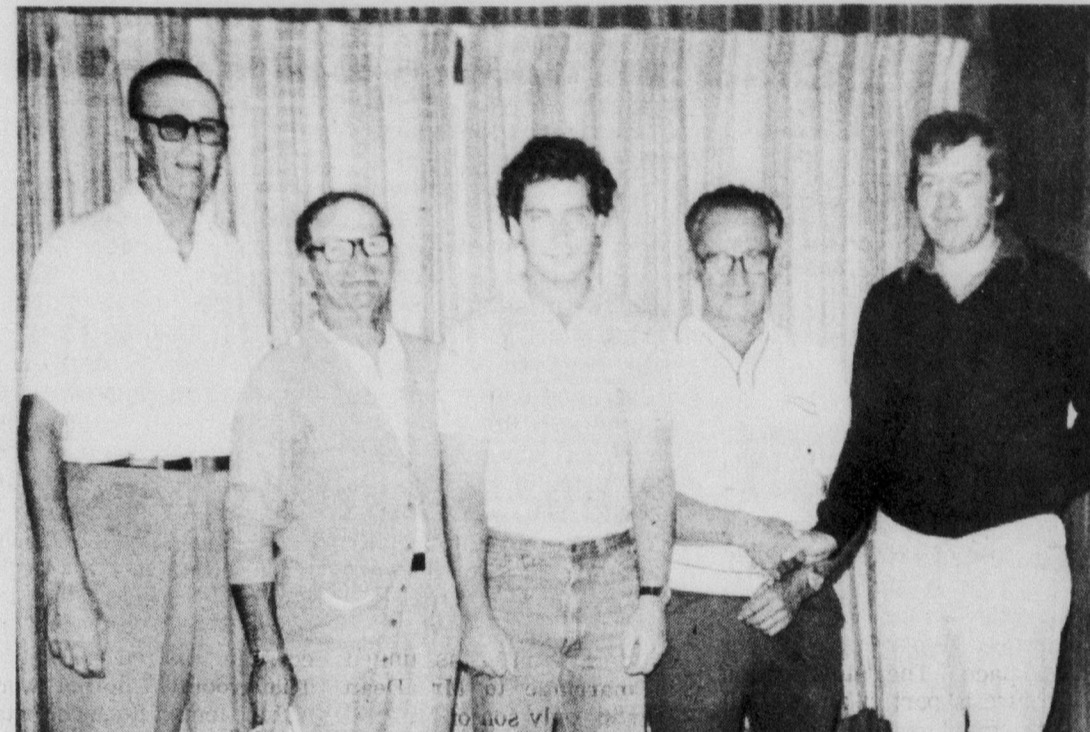

On August 29 we are to cater to a wedding at the Golf Club.

All members were in favour of accepting a catering job for October 17. A donation was made to the Student Loan Fund.

It was passed that we purchase a trophy to be presented at the Richmond Fair for the best four horse-hitch heavy draft team driven by a female.

Members were reminded that the embroidered quilt blocks for the Inter-branch competition are to be brought to the next meeting.

As there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned and a delicious lunch served by the hostesses Mrs. D. Whittingstall and Mrs. O. Knowles.

Golfers from 14 Eastern Townships and Vermont golf clubs played in the annual Dufferin Heights men's field day August 8 and 9. Over 172 golfers took part in the two-day event. Francois Dube from Sherbrooke won the low gross competition and Ken Mitchell of Dufferin, captured the low net honors. Left to right; Club president F. Hallward, J. Cox, S. Davies, C. Grenier and R. WI Meeting

SUTTON - The August W.I. meeting was held in the Sutton Arts building with Mrs. Lillian Miltimore presiding. The Collect was repeated in unison and the W.I. Hymn was read. The Motto: "Take care of the corners and the middles look after themselves". Roll Call: "How can we improve our W.I. this year"? 26 members were present and one visitor Mrs. Martha Barrette joined the W.I.
Mrs. Hilda Lahue as Agriculture convener said that this is the time of year to enjoy the fruits of one's labors to trim plants and to plant evergreens, but keep them well watered.
Citizenship - Mrs. Esther Cleland told about the highest placed building in Canada which is in the Rocky Mountains and 30 miles north west of Banff and that Abbott's hut is built of stone and cement to shelter alpinists wishing to climb the mountains. Abbott's Pass is notorious for strong winds.
Home Economics convener Mrs. Eve Laroche read when to take advantage of store sales and gave out a good recipe for corn fritters.
Publicity - Mrs. Ruby Knights told about her trip to the gateway to the Arctic having rode the Polar Bear Express which is a special tourist train to Moosonee, Ont. and had a boat ride to Moose Factory Island which is in James Bay.
Welfare and Health Convener Mrs. Eva Buche read an article on Insomnia and said that a special tea could be bought for Insomnia at Paramount Bakery.
Miss Mona Charters reported that the A.C.W.W. societies in the United States have taken on a project to help in Mexico, they have sent money for sewing machines and there will be classes for women in nutrition, first aid, dressmaking and home canning.
Mrs. Ola Carr introduced a guest speaker Mr. Robert Quilliams who is Vice-President of Sutton Art. Sutton Art is an important project in the Eastern Townships with 280 members. Mr. Quilliams told of the beginnings of the centre and of the upcoming exhibitions. Paintings were on display to be auctioned off in the near future. There is no admission charge so everyone should feel free to admire the work of local artists. Mr. Quilliams was thanked by the secretary Mrs. Corrie Slangen.
A delicious buffet lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Eva Buche, Mrs. Elsa Emma Grahl, Mrs. Elsa Merkel, Mrs. Marie Staub and Mrs. Hedwig Major. Marothly and a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

How not to get fit
Once and for all we'd like to clear up a few misconceptions about fitness. None of the following approaches represents a sensible way to get fit:
1. The "drive yourself till you drop" approach.
2. The "more it hurts the more it works" approach.
3. The "make up in an hour for what it took you ten years to lose" approach.
The plan fact is that exercise does not have to hurt before it is doing you some good. Real gains start long before you reach the pain barrier.
If you want to get fit, you have to get active. Do it, but don't overdo it. This is the sensible approach to fitness. And it works.
Can you get fit without struggle, without strain, without pain? AND HOW?

Astro

Tuesday, August 25

Bernice Bede Osol

August 25, 1981

Progress toward what you hope to achieve is likely to be slow, but steady, this coming year. Time is your ally if you are patient and tenacious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not make any investments or major cash outlays today if you feel you lack proper information. Gather all your facts first and act with deliberation. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In situations where you count on your luck to get you through, you could be let down today.

However, when you rely on your intelligence and initiative, the results will be successful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't make judgments on friends today based on hearsay, especially if the source has proven to be faulty before. It could be, again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your prospects for success today are good, provided you don't take things for granted. Be hopeful, but also take necessary, practical measures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be more productive today working with associates as realistic as you are rather than with persons whose expectations are too outlandish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes your first ideas are right on target, but this is not apt to be the case today. Think everything through carefully. Second thoughts may be required.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Much can be accomplished today provided you allocate your time properly. Avoid persons in the a.m. who waste their time as well as yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions are reversed today. Persons on whom you can usually count may prove to be the least dependable, while those who have been the most unreliable come through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) To get to the things you enjoy doing you may perform your other tasks halfheartedly today, thereby causing yourself greater problems at a later date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your expectations within reasonable limits today or you could be severely disappointed. Don't look for a harvest where you haven't sown seed.

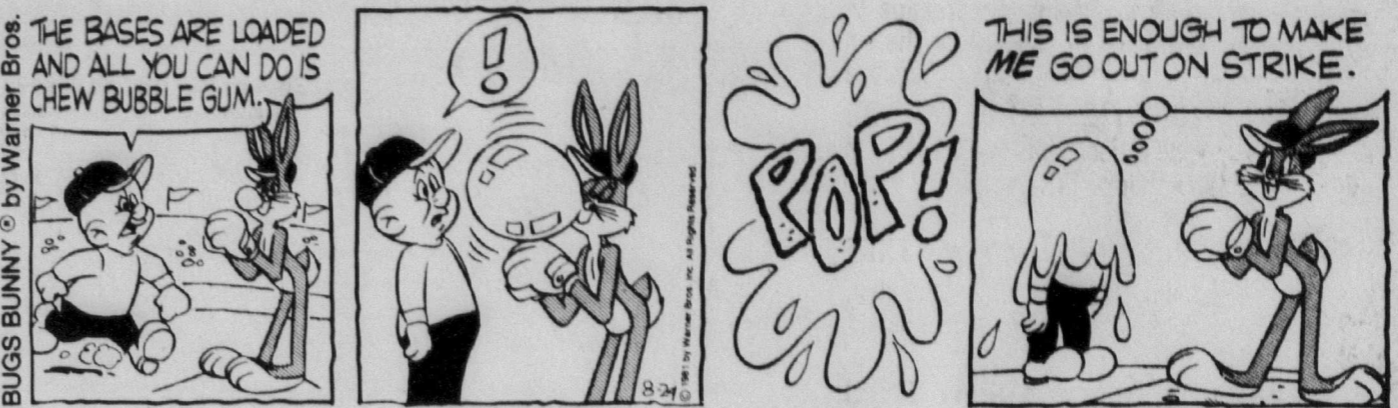

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unfortunately, you are apt to be the one who has to do for others today, instead of them doing for you. Above all, don't bank on their lavish promises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your hunches pertaining to business or financial matters are quite keen today, but your insights regarding other matters could be far off-base.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "There are lots of ways to bid today's hand, but after South rebid two hearts, North just Blackwooded his way to six."
 Alan: "The slam depends on the spade finesse, but if South held the king instead of the queen of spades and a weaker holding in diamonds there would be no problems."

 Oswald: "West opened the ace of diamonds and after mature deliberation, shifted to the 10 of spades. South, who had been thinking along with West, was ready. He went right up with dummy's ace of spades and played his queen. Then he led dummy's three of spades. His reasoning was that West just would not lead from king-10 of spades so that East was sure to have the king and just might play South for having been dealt a singleton queen."
 Alan: "I regret to say that East fell for the swindle. He thought and thought and thought, but finally ducked. South made his spade nine and the rest of the tricks came in easily."
 Oswald: "East really shouldn't have fallen for it. He knew that South held the king of diamonds. That would allow South to discard one club from dummy. He also knew that hearts were going to break evenly. He held two in his own hand. The only chance for a second trick would be to find South with another spade."

Mistakes and more mistakes, Als lose fifth in a row

MONTREAL — A sign of the times for Montreal Alouettes came not so much during their 29-14 Canadian Football League defeat to British Columbia Lions on Sunday as before it.

A trio of fans boarded an elevator to the upper echelons of Olympic Stadium wearing paper bags over their heads, a practice made famous last year by customers attending games of the National Football League's New Orleans Saints to protest the club's consistently poor performances.

The hidden threesome weren't the only unknown fans in the ball park. There were about 30,000 others who stayed away as the Alouettes dropped their fifth consecutive game and saw their won-lost record pushed to 1-6.

"They're a fine offensive team," said Montreal head coach Joe Scannella of the Lions. "We played well against them but not good enough."

"We should have scored another touchdown, and it would have been a different game. What can I say? We lost the football game."

The Lions, whose 6-1 mark moves them into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos for first place in the West Division, backed Montreal into a corner early in the first quarter as Lui Passaglia connected for a field goal and John Pankratz blocked a Gerry McGrath punt to set up a three-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Joe Paopao to Don Taylor.

Alouettes quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who hit on 23 of 34 passes before giving way to Gerry Dattilio in the fourth quarter, connected with Billy (White Shoes) Johnson to slice the margin to 10-7 on the last play of the first quarter.

But Ferragamo, known for his ability to toss the bomb, had the role reversed when Paopao found receiver Tyron Gray for a 63-yard touchdown at 9:12 of the second quarter.

Defensive back Don Harris, acquired by Montreal from Washington Redskins earlier this week, was the victim on the play. "We had noticed that Don was playing on most specialty teams," said Paopao. "One of our coaches up top said he seemed really tired on the sidelines."

"The next time he came out we wanted to test him. Tyron, one of our fastest receivers, ran a hesitation and I threw as far as I could. It kind of slipped out of my hands but he made a great catch for the touchdown."

The Alouettes, thanks to a 12-yard touchdown run by rookie Marc Laclelle at 1:30 of the fourth quarter, trailed only 19-14 when the Lions converted another mistake into a clinching score.

Ferragamo fumbled at the Montreal 45, and two plays later running back Larry Key broke a tackle and went in from 20 yards out giving the Lions a 27-14 margin.

"When you look back and try to assess it, the big plays won this game for us," said British Columbia defensive back Tony Proudfoot. "I think they competed well but they didn't get the big plays."

The biggest break of all for the Lions was probably the fact the game was played Sunday rather than earlier in the week.

"After we lost our first game last week I never saw this club so low," said head coach Vic Rapp. "It's almost like we'd lost five in a row. We fought, scratched, yelled and did everything, but we didn't seem to be getting up for the game. But when we got here Friday, the players started pulling themselves up. If we'd have played this game Thursday or Friday we would have got the hell beat out of us."

Passaglia, with three converts and three singles to go with his field goal, accounted for the rest of the scoring for the Lions, who also had a safety touch.

Alouette quarterback Vince Ferragamo completed a pass to David Overstreet on this play but his inability to come up with the play was Montreal's undoing yesterday.

Fresh Tracy upsets Evert Lloyd in Open

TORONTO (CP) — Tracy Austin disagrees but Chris Evert Lloyd says a back injury gave Austin a valuable rest that enabled her to win the singles title at the $200,000 Player's Challenge women's tennis tournament Sunday.

Austin, the second seed, upended top-seeded Evert Lloyd 6-1, 6-4 in the final.

For Austin, winning the $34,000 first prize over a field that included 19 of the top 20 players in the world, signalled a comeback from a lower back injury that sidelined her for 4½ months at the start of this year.

Evert Lloyd, the defending champion, credited Austin's unscheduled rest for her domination of the tournament, which she completed without losing a set.

"She was fresh and eager from her injury," said Evert Lloyd, who suffered only her second loss in 48 matches this year. "It was this that separated her from the other players."

Austin eliminated three seeded players on her way to the final, defeating 13th-ranked Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia, eighth-seeded Pam Shriver of the U.S. and fourth-rated Martina Navratilova of the U.S. She also beat fellow American Pam Casales.

While Austin admitted she's now returned to top form, she doubted the injury aided her game.

"Now I feel that I'm totally back," said Austin, who has an 8-6 win-loss lifetime record against Evert Lloyd. "But I was fresh before the injury.

"I think it was tough for me to work my way back. I had thought that when I first came back from the injury everything would be fine, but I was wrong. Being off like that really wasn't a rest."

Although Evert Lloyd was uncharacteristically inconsistent against Austin, she was happy with her general play in the tournament.

Ontario big winner at fourth Canada Games

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Ontario was the big winner at the fourth Canada Summer Games, but the last hurrah belonged to British Columbia.

The host province collected 52 of the 118 gold medals — a Games high — and had an unprecedented 14-point lead over Quebec in the official standings. But when the last title was decided, it was B.C. and Alberta fighting it out in the soccer final.

With less than a minute left and Alberta leading 3-2, Alex Barnetson of Coquitlam headed home a free kick to send the game into extra time. When play resumed, the defending champs were ahead before you could say Yosu Iruretagoyema.

Iruretagoyema, 20, a student at Spectrum Community school in Victoria, took the ball from Alberta goalkeeper Peter Snyder of Edmonton and slid it into the net for his second goal. The fight drained out of the Albertans, who eventually lost 5-3.

A few kilometres away at Lakehead University, there was no reprieve for the B.C. rugby team, which lost 19-6 to Ontario.

WINS IN LACROSSE
The night before, the Quebec lacrosse team defeated B.C. 14-10. The baseball team, which had not lost a game since 1969, bowed out in the semifinals, losing to New Brunswick, and settled for a bronze medal. Ontario walloped New Brunswick 17-1 in the final.

The Graham family of Kitchener, Ont., won four of the six water-skiing titles, Marlene sweeping all three women's events while her brother Jim took the men's slalom. And Ontario's swimmers won 21 of 34 races, the women losing only one, and the 17 Ontario golds in track and field compared with nine for runner-up Quebec.

The Games sent sprinter Tanya Brothers of Winnipeg and swimmer Jen Campbell of Sudbury, Ont., to represent Canada in competitions in Japan before the closing ceremonies.

Almost as successful was Michelle MacPherson, 15, of Toronto, who collected six golds, two of them in the record-breaking relays.

Zokol captures Canadian amateur golf

CALGARY (CP) — The 1981 Canadian amateur golf championship was a duel in the sun between a confident young Canadian and a country boy from Texas.

Richard Zokol of Vancouver won the head-to-head showdown Saturday but he needed an extra hole to dispose of Blaine McCallister of Fort Stockton, Tex.

McCallister shot a final-round 64, six under par at the Calgary Golf and Country Club's 6,452-yard course, to force a sudden-death playoff.

Zokol, who turned 23 on Friday, had led the tournament since the opening round when he shot a 64. He went into the final 18 holes four strokes ahead of McCallister, Gary Cowan of Kitchener,

Ont., and Canadian junior champion Keith Westover of Vancouver with "the idea of playing the best I can."

He carded a solid 68 but it wasn't enough to stay ahead of McCallister, 22, Texas state high school champion in 1977.

SET RECORD

Both finished the 72 regulation holes with record-breaking 271s, three strokes under the previous course record of 274 set in 1970 by Allen Miller of the U.S.

Zokol birdied the first playoff hole, a par-five, to win as McCallister missed his birdie-putt attempt.

"I didn't think it was going to be that close if I shot 68," said Zokol, who finished fourth last year and third in 1979.

McCallister, playing in Canada for the first time, said he went into the last day thinking about "applying pressure" to Zokol.

"Don't give it away and maybe something will happen," McCallister told himself.

He caught up to Zokol at the sixth hole and knew "it's going to be a dog fight."

Defending champion Greg Olson of Ottawa shot a 67, Saturday's second-best score, to finish third at 275, four strokes behind Zokol and McCallister. Cowan, former Canadian and U.S. amateur champion, shot a 70 for 277.

Westover stumbled to a 76 on the final day to finish in eighth place.

Morale not bad on Team Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Morale on Team Canada after two weeks of training camp is not nearly as bad as it has been portrayed, says Bob Gainey, the calm and collected left winger of Montreal Canadiens.

"I think it's more a case of the players wanting some real competition against other teams," said Gainey, referring to news reports last week about tension in the ranks.

"It's pretty difficult fighting for jobs without playing a real opponent," said the Montreal veteran, looking ahead to Team Canada's first exhibition game against the U.S. on Monday in Quebec City.

"I think the players here feel they've done about as much as they can in practice, where the level of hockey has been fairly high and there's not much to choose between the players.

"Now they want to see what they can do against an opponent."

Earlier in the week, goaltenders Billy Smith of New York Islanders and Mike Liut of St. Louis Blues urged the Team Canada brain trust to reduce the roster to 23 — the tournament limit — from 35 and start molding the lines and defence combinations that will represent the country in the six-nation Canada Cup tournament beginning Sept. 1.

WILL EXPERIMENT

Head coach Scotty Bowman responded that he would continue to mix his lines and experiment in practices to give all players the best chance to make the squad. His first cuts now are expected Wednesday.

Perhaps the biggest concern is defence. The two expected mainstays of the blue-line crew, Denis Potvin of the Islanders and Larry Robinson of the Canadiens, have no idea who their partners will be.

Potvin, nursing a groin injury, has missed several practices since the opening of training camp two weeks of camp.

Robinson, conducting a hockey school at a resort in New York's Catskills region, has appeared only rarely at practice and looks off form when he does show.

And Potvin says the other defencemen are thinking too much of offence.

"This team doesn't have defensive specialists like Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe, who excelled in international hockey," said Potvin. "We've got to be more disciplined on the blue line. We've got to play more positional hockey."

WILL PLAY SOVIETS

Next week is Team Canada's last before the tournament starts and the squad will play four exhibitions, including a Saturday contest against the Soviet Union.

Injuries to Bill Barber of Philadelphia Flyers and Guy Lafleur of the Canadiens further complicate matters.

Lafleur is a sure bet to make the team, but it's not known who his line-mates will be. He will be off skates for at least another two days nursing a lower back injury.

WEST BROME — "It was an ego-booster," participants agreed, after almost all recorded their fastest-ever demi-marathon times Saturday on what was billed as the toughest road course in Quebec.

Brian Girard posted his second straight West Brome victory, tied with P. Raymond, on one hour, six minutes, and 23 seconds — six minutes ahead by last year's pace. The 30-year-old Girard knew he wasn't quite that fast.

After other finishers were also unexpectedly fast, over the steep gravel roads between West Brome and Sutton Junction, in 80-degree heat, Lake Brome Runners president Roger Page finally checked the course against

Jackass runs a slow one

By Merritt Clifton

WEST BROME — They say criminals always return to the scene of the crime, and that a jackass, if turned loose on the road, will always trot back to the stable, even if it's a demi-marathon away. Thus I returned to West Brome Saturday, where I'd committed fraud last year by impersonating a runner for 13 miles, making a long-eared jackass of myself in two hours, 31 minutes, 16 seconds.

Sometimes I've accomplished the same thing much faster, but it's never been more work. I'd entered last year's West Brome demi-marathon just a few minutes before the race began, when I happened to drive past a gathering crowd at an ungodly hour in the morning after an all-night beer-bust, and stopped to inquire what was going on. I hadn't trained at all, and by halfway my hayfeverish nose was running faster than my legs.

This year I had a goal: to shave one hour off my last year's time. To finish in one hour, 31 minutes, the same time posted by former Record reporter Terry Scott last year. To be able to crawl back out after hitting the hay and not do it on my hands and knees.

I started training early, as soon as the snow melted, first at three miles, then at 6.8, or 11 kilometres, with an occasional long run to break the monotony — 12 miles, 15 miles, at the brisk trot I could manage. I discovered a whole schedule of races in the Townships and northern Vermont, enjoying the competition and camaraderie afterward, also enjoying my steadily improving times. I managed 52 minutes for 10 kilometres in the metres in the Memphremagog Road Race last May, improved it to 45 minutes in the Firecracker 10,000 July 5, and by race day had done several 10-kilometre runs in 43 minutes during practice. Over 20 kilometres, just short of a demi-marathon, I improved from 1:43 at Granby in early June to 1:39 at Brome Lake, then 1:36 at Jay Peak.

But I'd still need to take off five minutes at West Brome. And circumstances conspired to make it tough — an all-night environmental impact hearing I had to cover only 36 hours before, then a long day's business trip into Vermont on Friday.

On the other hand, Brome Lake Runners president Roger Page volunteered to run pilot for me. Page's a local running legend — did the National Capital Marathon in 2:47 last April, a world-class time, and often runs up to 100 miles a week just practicing.

"...a leisurely 1:31 would be just about right," he grinned.

Leisurely, the man said? With Page's old friend Peter Kostjuk and my own summer running buddy Denis Boisvert, we assembled a convoy up the first four-kilometre hill. Deciding we were slow, Kostjuk sprinted, vanished from view at the second rise, and eventually finished in 1:18. Page turned around occasionally to jog backward and talk. Gesturing toward Boisvert, he laughed, "This guy has his baseball cap turned around wrong, but we won't tell him 'til the race is over." Boisvert managed a grin. I got out a grunt between gasps. Page also offered useful tips, however: "Always take two cups of water at the water stations. Pour one over yourself, and drink the other. All of it. It's just as important to cool your body as to keep up the circulation. You have to do both."

But the course surprised me more. It took a bend that it hadn't last year. "We changed the route to make it a little more interesting," race organizer George Bristol told me later. More interesting it was, because the 15-kilometre sign followed the 11-kilometre sign by just one hill, at Call Mills, a water-stop, and a short straightaway. The last several kilometres went incredibly quickly. I was running well, I knew, just behind the eventual female winner, but I wasn't running all that damned well, because I'd beaten her by five minutes at Jay Peak.

I passed the point where I picked up a double charley-horse attempting a final burst of speed last year. I managed a good burst this year, catching and passing one last runner before the finish came into view at 'The Loft'.

Page stood there waiting. "You finished under 1:40," he guessed, judging from our pace, while together and the distance between us. I took a drink, then looked at my posted time: 1:31 and 15 seconds. One second faster than goal. Before I could catch my breath, however, the timers corrected it to 1:29 and 39 seconds. If I stood around long enough, I guessed, I might just match Speedy Gonzales.

And then the bad news arrived, via rumor at first, then confirmation by automobile odometer. The course wasn't an actual 13-mile demi-marathon this year. It was only 18 kilometres, a little under 11 miles. I made my goal, all right. It means a lot, that I'm in shape, for instance, and worth my hay and oats. But as a demi-marathon time, it means about as much as any of this stuff really means on the scale of human achievement: not a hell of a lot.

Mets in first, Braves sink Expos

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta's pennant hopes are usually gone with the wind by this time of year but the split season and some clutch baseball from players like Brett Butler are raising hopes for the Braves.

The Braves, 9½ games behind Los Angeles in the National League West when the players' strike began June 12, have a 9-5 won-lost mark and are in first place after beating Montreal Expos 2-1 Sunday.

Butler was leading the International League in hitting with a .335 average when he was called to the Braves after the strike. On Sunday, he knocked in the winning run with a groundout in the sixth inning and his throw from left field cut down the potential tying run at the plate an inning later.

Butler's throw, after a single by Gary Carter, carried all the way in the air and was a little to the left of the plate, but catcher Bruce Benedict speared it and made a diving tag on Montreal runner Terry Francona, trying to score from second.

"Bruce made a great play," said Butler. "We were just fortunate enough to get him."

MIETS EDGE REDS

In other NL games, it was: Pittsburgh 5, San Diego 2; New York 3, Cincinnati 2, in 10 innings; St. Louis 11, Los Angeles 7; Chicago 6, San Francisco 5; and Philadelphia 6, Houston 0.

On Saturday, Atlanta and Montreal split a doubleheader, the Expos winning 5-4 before losing 9-1. Elsewhere, it was: Philadelphia 8, Houston 4; San Francisco 2, Chicago 1; New York 7, Cincinnati 4; San Diego 7, Pittsburgh 6; and Los Angeles 3, St. Louis 2.

The Braves scored both their runs in the sixth inning off Steve Rogers, 8-6, the loser although he allowed only three hits in nine innings.

Although Butler is only 3-for-18 in his first five major league games, he has scored four runs and knocked in two.

The Expos scored their run in the first inning on a walk to Rodney Scott, an infield hit by Andre Dawson, a long fly ball from Carter that sent Scott to third and an RBI infield single by Warren Cromartie.

Mets 3 Reds 2
Bob Bailor starred at the plate and in the field in the 10th inning as New York trimmed Cincinnati.

Bailor hit a sacrifice fly in the top of the inning to break a 2-2 tie and then made a leaping, over-the-shoulder catch in left field to end the game. He held on to George Foster's line drive despite crashing into the wall.

Cardinals 11 Dodgers 7
St. Louis erupted for 20

hits, including four by Keith Hernandez — a two-run homer, a double and two singles — which raised his second-season average to .433.

Cubs 6 Giants 5

Leon Durham drew a walk with the bases loaded off Gary Lavelle to send Ivan DeJesus home with the winning run in the ninth inning as Chicago beat San Francisco.

Pirates 5 Padres 2

Phil Garner drove in three runs with a single, groundout and a sacrifice fly and Rod Scurry, 3-4, blanked San Diego on five hits for eight innings.

BE KIND TO THE OLD FOLKS

When young folks have lived to be old folks,
When they've grown to be bent and grey
When their minds cannot cope with the present
But think only of yesterday.

Be patient with their misunderstanding
Be kind when perhaps they are not
Make them feel that they are still wanted
Not in everyone's way, and forgot.

Give them love, protection and comfort
They gave it to you, years ago.
If we spurn them now when they're helpless,
We may have to reap what we sow.

Because someday we're going to be aged,
Will walk down the same road as they,
In whatever way they have suffered,
We, too, might have to pay.

DAISY JOHNSTON,
Brome, Que.

IN THE GOOD OL' SUMMERTIME

Rainy days revitalize a lazy summer mind
Caught up in the nowhere rush
That takes away our time

A million miles and camping trips
Closed eyelids sweating to make that tan
Then humorously back to just as pale as when it all began

Mixed up schedules of junk food and exercise
Even the dog lost 20 pounds
It's fast and slow... summer found

In the midst of this Eden gift
The restless human ways
Start thinking about schoolbus tune-ups
And Brome Fair nights and days

But then we shrug it off, blank our minds
The future, all too soon
September's just a chance to make up
For all the things we didn't do in June

Rainy day wet leaves and woodpaths
Falling stars on moonlight drives
A balcony coffee watching a hazy sunrise
Warm and glad to be alive

In the good ol' summertime...

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reil have returned from their holidays. They visited their daughter Diana and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen in Quesnel, B.C., spent a week in Nanaimo, B.C., where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Paulson from Portland, Oregon, and by Mr. and Mrs. Allen and family. They also motored to Edmonton, Alta., where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ling and family.

Mr. Jerry Mayers of Montreal spent three weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Fedor Onegow, and Peter. While here, he assisted Mr. Onegow and Peter with the house which Peter is building. Mr. Marcel Cyr of Greenfield Park was also a helper for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hull of South Royalton, Vt., were recent guests of Miss Winnie Douglas. Other guests were Mrs. Jason Hunter of Brigham, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Timmins of St. Jean and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Fortier of Broadbrook, Conn.

Mrs. Frank Corey spent a day in Montreal visiting Miss Dolena Nicholson.

Miss Winnie Douglas and Mr. Neil Baker were in Dunham visiting Mrs. Frank Clough and Mrs. Marion Perkins.

To Rev. Peter and Mrs. MacCaskill heartfelt sympathy is offered from their friends here. Their son Donald was accidentally killed while riding his bicycle in Vancouver, B.C., where he had been working for the past year. Mr. and Mrs. MacCaskill lived in Bedford when he was minister on the Bedford Charge from 1963-68. He is now minister in Northlea United Church, Chomedey, Que.

Mrs. Frank Corey accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kidd to the Memorial Service for Donald MacCaskill in Northlea United Church, Chomedey, on Aug. 15.

Mrs. John Alexson and Mrs. Ruth King of Torrington, Conn., were here for a few days, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bellingham. While here, they also visited Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bellingham, Mr. and Mrs. S. Monette in Stanbridge East and Mrs. Ed Dumouchel in Bedford.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bellingham and guests, Mrs. Alexson and Mrs. King spent a day at Parc Safari, Hemmingford, Que.

Other guests of the Bellinghams were Mrs. Leo Soucy and three daughters of Simsbury, Conn., and Glenn and Susie Rhy of Colchester, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Monette and Mrs. A. Monette accompanied Mrs. Edwin Bellingham to Cowansville for shopping and to visit Mr. and Mrs. Dominico Gentili. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reil were in Granby on Wednesday attending the funeral of Mr. Reil's step-father, Mr. John Buck, which took place in St. Francois Xavier Church.

Mrs. R. Rothney
Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Coates of St. Thomas, Ont., were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sims recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Herling in Hatley.

While on holiday, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Loveland and family went to Ontario where they visited Arthur Loveland in Strathroy, Rodney Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Olsson and little daughters in Cobourg; they also attended the Quebec reunion at Bowmanville.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Edythe Leacock of Manchester, N.H., Sydney McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little of Inverness, also Mr. and Mrs. Ron Belden of Lennoxville were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McKee of Inverness were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie King. Other visitors at the same home were Mrs. Grace Wallace and Mrs. Roy Davis and daughter Debbie of Derby Line.

On Friday, Mrs. Donald Wright of Inverness was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little. Their son, Eric Little, and his wife Joyce of Chambly, spent a couple of days at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gladwin Geake and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur King of Ontario, were visitors at the King home. The A. Kings have now returned to their home.

Mrs. R.L. Todd of Bulwer was a dinner and afternoon guest of her sister, Mrs. R. Rothney and Mr. Rothney.

Mr. and Mrs. Garry Dunsmore and Cameron have had her mother, Mrs. White of Sherbrooke as their guest for a couple of days. B.J. Hughes of Ottawa was also a guest for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dezan at Ayer's Cliff.

Callers on Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rothney were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cathcart, Jason and Dana of Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rothney and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robinson attended the 25th wedding anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Suitor, held at the Chalet in Birchton on the evening of August 2nd.

Victor Magwood of Chambly spent an evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie King.

BIRCHTON

The many friends of Mrs. Evelyn Plowright will be interested to know that she took up residence in the St. Paul's Home in Bury, and wish her improved health. Her sister, Mrs. Ed Newton is hospitalized with a broken leg. All wish her walking soon.

After spending a holiday in the Maritimes, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jackson of Franklin Centre, with Sean, Colleen and Dawn, (when Sean was the proud catcher of a 29-pound halibut in N.S.), they were overnight guests of their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jackson.

Merle and Judy Jackson, with family Pamela, David and Patricia, of Northfield, N.H., spent a couple of days at the same home, where Mrs. John Robinson of Spring Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fraser of Cookshire, with their son, John and Mrs. Fraser of Ottawa, were callers on Wednesday and Friday, respectively.

It is good to see the lights on at the Robinson home since Gwendolyn and Marjorie turned them on Friday afternoon, and to know that the former's health is so much better. She, with Marjorie Stafford, and Mr. and Mrs. J.M. MacKinnon with Christopher, enjoyed a few days with Jim Robinson and Susan at Arundel, by the Lake, where Jim has a musical engagement.

The healthy-looking garden in the Murray acres is the result of the work of Peter and Anna Clement of Sherbrooke, as is the well-mowed lawn and pruned trees.

Bob Halsall of East Sherbrooke motored to see some of his folks in the Toronto area, accompanied by his mother and brother Steven.

Leslie Picard, Margaret and Jason spent a short time at a not-too-distant lake, always a refreshing change.

Mrs. A. Rogers returned from hospital on Sunday. May you have a speedy return to good health, Hazel!

GRANBY & AREA
Mr. and Mrs. Douglas

Neil, Wendy, Steven and Nancy and Mrs. G. Neil, all of South Granby, motored to Calgary, Alta., in July. They went to the Stampede and visited Mr. and Mrs. G. Sherbrooke County WI quarterly meeting

LENNOXVILLE — The quarterly meeting of the Sherbrooke County Women's Institutes hosted by the Belvidere branch was held in the Huntingville Hall on Wednesday, August 12. The president, Mrs. Elwood Marlin welcomed the members and two guests, Miss Margaret Pegg and Miss Nancy Sutor. The meeting was opened by singing the Hymn of All Nations followed by repeating the Mary Stewart Collect. Mrs. Eldora Turner read an inspirational poem by Marge Montgomery entitled, "Count Your Blessings".

The roll call showed the following attendance: Ascot 10; Belvidere 10; Brompton Road 5; Lennoxville 7; Milby 5.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Roland Hutchison, and the treasurer's report given by Mrs. Ashley Hatcher. Correspondence included a letter concerning the upcoming series of programs to be held at Bishop's University with reduced rates available for groups.

Convenors' Reports: Education: Mrs. Eldora Turner read an article entitled, "Pay Attention to Yourself", which stated that often the most neglected, unloved person is yourself. The welfare of others is made to seem so important that we feel guilty when we think of ourselves. This is a false attitude. It is only when we have self-esteem that we can sympathize with and effectively serve others.

Home Economics: Mrs. Hugh Wallace expressed regret that the handicrafts sent to the convention arrived too late for judging. The exhibits for Expo Quebec were sent by Kingsway Courier Service owing to the mail strike.

Maynes reunion held at Waterloo

By Dorothy Maynes Huxtable Window
WATERLOO — On August 1st, 1981, 84 of the 300-plus descendants of Jane and Robert Maynes, who married in Ireland in the 1820's, met in Waterloo, Que.

As a result of research and a lot of organizing and hard work on the part of Shirley Maynes of Waterloo and Bill Maynes of Montreal, we met in a beautiful Camping Park beside Waterloo Lake. The weather was perfect and everyone was in a gay holiday mood.

Maynes' came from Vancouver, Calgary, Windsor, Ont., Burlington, Ont., Mississauga, Stroud, Bradford, Toronto, Oshawa, Ottawa, Montreal, St. Lambert, Chateauguay, St. Albans, Vt., Granby, Drummondville, Waterloo and other points.

Upon entering the pavilion, each person registered and received a name tag, picked up a replica of the Maynes Coat-of-Arms and sheets of information concerning the Maynes family.

As we gathered at tables to eat our picnic lunch, Bill gave a speech of welcome and read the poem "Kith and Kin", then each family introduced themselves to the assembled guests.

Shirley explained the vast array of cards connected by coloured lines and mounted on panels on the wall. At the top was the card introducing the couple who started it all - Jane Maquire and Robert Maynes - when they married. The card of each descendant from the union was connected with a certain colour down to the present generation - almost 300 cards researched and written by Shirley.

Lee Labrecque was the "official" photographer, so he posed us professionally for a group photograph.

Bill then took over as M.C., presenting a memento to the Maynes who had come the farthest and lived the longest. Hazel Maynes Baty of Vancouver qualified on both counts. The youngest present was Terena Wright.

Ken Ossington and his guitar then led us in a sing-song for which song sheets had been provided. The five daughters of Lloyd and Glenna Maynes - Joyce, Jean, Shirley, Helen and Doris, sang "Now is The Hour" in harmony, beautifully done.

The younger members of the crowd went out for games, swimming, etc.

Bill asked for suggestions regarding future re-unions. Shirley thanked all who came or responded to the invitation. It was a happy meeting of old friends and an opportunity to make new ones.

Official activities closed with a vote of thanks to Shirley and Bill and the singing of "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

Publicity: It was reported by Mrs. D. Geddes that the mail strike had also affected the sending of convenors' reports.

Reports of School Fair Committee: Mrs. Roscoe Patrick outlined plans for the School Fair on September 19 in the Lennoxville Elementary School assigning duties to each branch.

Dr. Kathleen Atto gave the secretarial report stating the number of requests sent out and the responses received.

As an item of general interest, Dr. Kathleen Atto recommended a book on the history of Huntingville by Elizabeth Milner. The author has also written a history of King's Hall, Compton. Dr. Atto also mentioned the historical significance of the Huntingville Hall which was built 135 years ago. It served as a school for one hundred years.

Members were reminded of the collection of materials for recycling on the first Saturday of each month in the parking lot opposite the Curling Club in Lennoxville on Speid Street. Clean glass bottles with the tops removed, magazines and newspapers are accepted from 9 to 11 a.m.

At noon a delicious dinner was served by the Belvidere branch. The hostesses were thanked by the 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Gordon Westman.

After lunch we were taken on a tour of scenes both near and far by Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hutchison. The local slides were taken on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Butler, who with their son Sidney operate a large farm near Huntingville. Various phases of farm work were shown as well as the large herd of some 70-odd Holstein cattle. The spacious farm house and the large vegetable garden were also shown.

The far scenes were slides taken of a trip to Australia and New Zealand. Exotic flowers, palm and banyan trees, extensive pasture lands where sheep graze, an opal mining district, beautiful cities and ocean scenes were shown, as well as crafts and folk lore of the native people. The unique wild life of these countries included kangaroos and koala bears in abundance. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison were thanked by Mrs. Marlin for the interesting travelogue.

It was noted by Mrs. Marlin in her report of the annual convention at Macdonald College that one hundred EWIC pins have been ordered. Reports are to be sent once a year — from the branch right after the February meeting — from the county by March 15. The convenors' outlines will be found in the annual reports. November is the month for provincial nominations. Mrs. Marlin thanked the members for sending her as their delegate. Mrs. Gordon Sims who taught in the Huntingville school for several years circa 1940, reminisced of her work during that time, enlivening her talk with several amusing incidents. On her walks to and from school she was accompanied by her son, David Fearon. Mrs. Sims was thanked by Dr. K. Atto. Miss Edna Smith, Past Q.W.I. President, made the drawing for the beautiful afghan which was won by Elizabeth Schoolcraft of Ayer's Cliff. The needle-point picture was won by Myrtle Pitman.

At the close, the president read the following: "Never depend on strangers. Remember if you ever need a helping hand you will find one at the end of your arm. As you grow older you will discover that you have two hands, one for helping yourself, the other for helping others."

KITH AND KIN
If you could see your ancestors
Standing in a row,
Would you be proud of them or not,
Or don't you really know?
Some strange discoveries are made
In climbing family trees,
And some of them you know
Do not particularly please.

If you could see your ancestors
All standing in a row,
There might be some of them, perhaps,
You wouldn't care to know.
But here's another question which Requires a different view,
If you could see your ancestors—
Would they be proud of you?
