World News In Brief

Bolzano, Italy, Aug. 14.—Thirty-five persons were drowned last night when a crowded excursion bus plunged into an icy Alpine lake.

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra embarked on the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth last night for its first visit to Europe since 1939. The orchestra, 105 members strong, will play Aug. 21 and Aug. 23 at the festival celebration in Edinburgh. Bruno Walter and Dimitri Mitropoulos will direct.

Washington, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The United States agriculture department said today the best information it has indicates that Russian agriculture has not yet attained the ambitious production goals set by Soviet rulers.

In a survey of Russian agriculture, the department said it appears that the total area planted to crops last year was 363,000,000 acres compared with a government goal of 392,000,000 acres.

Moscow, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Moscow newspapers and radio today claimed the Americans have dropped poison gas bombs in Korea.

The reports said a protest has been sent to the United Nations. They claimed the bombs were dropped Aug. 1 and Aug. 7 and that deaths have resulted from chemical poisoning.

Hof, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Three Russians and 10 east Germans who crossed the zonal border into west Germany searching for uranium deposits were captured yesterday by west German police.

Three others escaped and fled back across the border.

Dallas, Aug. 14.—(AP)—About 1,500 Dallas telephone operators who quit work today because of the heat began straggling back a few hours later.

But the heat was on in Texas again. The weather bureau said a high temperature of 105 was expected in Dallas before sundown. The maximum yesterday was 104.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Unofficial estimates indicated today that, of the 10,624 Americans officially listed as missing in action in Korea, as many as 4,500 probably are being held in communist prison camps.

Hollywood, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is playing host to Anthony Eden, deputy leader of Britain's Conservative party. Eden is touring the United States, talking with political leaders. He is to be guest of honor tonight at a dinner given by California Institute of Technology.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—(CP)—T. J. Allard, general manager of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, charges that Canada "is one of the nations which absolutely prohibits the broadcast of news, except such types of news as may be approved in advance by a governmental authority."

This is not done directly by legislation, he says, but by regulations issued by the CBC. He made the statement in a letter replying to an invitation from the external affairs department to comment on the United Nations' free convention on freedom of information. The C.A.B. represents most of Canada's private radio stations.

Pearson, Abbott, Claxton Are Facing Rugged Month

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Three Canadian Cabinet Ministers may never be the same again after next month's Ottawa meeting of the council of the Atlantic pact nations.

That may, of course, prove to be a pessimistic view. Given another four or five weeks to prepare, the planners may find it possible to reconcile the well-being of the three—Pearson, of External; Claxton, of Defence; Abbott, of Finance—with the requirements of protocol and the ebb and flow of social activity.

At this stage, it's hard to tell exactly what sacrifices will be demanded of the three Ministers who will represent Canada. The basic aim of the planners confronted with the biggest international gathering Ottawa has known in years is to insure (A) that the big three don't have to give up their own beds because of the shortage of accommodation and (B) that they don't have to be in more than four places at any one time.

At this moment, there is one of a number of problems which should be clearer by the end of the

Argument Over Air, Naval Strength Is Latest Snag At Kaesong Truce Talks

Red Troops Probe Into Allied Lines

U.S. 8th Army Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Red front-line troops, which Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said have been materially strengthened during truce negotiations, felt out allied positions in central and eastern Korea with small probing attacks, the Eighth Army announced today.

All were repulsed. Powerful U. N. air and naval forces—belittled by Reds at cease-fire talks—smashed at Red reinforcement lines to check the build-up.

Warships led by the U.S. cruiser Toledo shelled bridges and railways as much as 230 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Further south, three destroyers sank nine sampans trying to sneak Red supplies along water routes near Wonsan, east coast port now in its 180th day of siege.

British, Australian and New Zealand warships hammered Reds on the east coast.

Meteor jets of the Royal Australian Air Force flew fighter cover for United States bombers in a big raid on Pyongyang, North Korean capital, today.

They encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but Far East Air Forces said all allied planes were reported returning safely to their bases.

The air force said that American Superfortresses today also attacked large communist troop concentrations in the northwest sector of Pyongyang.

The air force commander, Maj. Gen. Frank Everest, said the Chinese command had been steadily building up supplies and troop concentrations around Pyongyang since early June.

Despite American bombing they had been able to keep up the flow of supplies to this key communications centre.

At the same time the communists had strengthened their anti-aircraft defences, making Pyongyang an extremely important military target.

The present Red operation had been planned long before the cease-fire talks at Kaesong were ever mooted, Gen. Everest said.

Correspondent Boss Is Injured

West Front, Korea, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Bill Boss, red-bearded Canadian Press war correspondent, is sporting two black eyes and a stitched-up nose as result of a jeep collision in which he was the only casualty.

Boss' jeep collided with an Australian truck while he was en route to visit the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. He came to Korea in December with the Patricia's.

At the Patricia's regimental aid post, Capt. E. K. C. Fitzgerald, of Toronto, medical officer, did the stitching and ruled that Boss will be laid up for two days with "superficial injuries." Boss says he'll spend the time getting ready for a fast trip to Canada on leave in September.

week when more facts and figures are available. Another: One pact power wired yesterday for want amounted to three-quarters of the suites at the Chateau Laurier, also a dozen or so cars, numerous offices and rooms for three Cabinet Ministers and dozens of advisers. It is being asked to trim its sails.

The horizon is bristling with other problems but consider that of the three Ministers. It is customary, for example, for Cabinet members to meet opposite foreign numbers on arrival. Since up to 23 foreign Cabinet Ministers will be coming by various methods at various times, there are headaches involved.

Should the Messrs. Pearson, Claxton and Abbott be portioned out piecemeal or should they spend hours racking back and forth in a group to the airport and station?

Again, it would not be surprising if many of the embassies of the 11 other powers decide they must entertain their ministers and that they must, of course, have the three Canadians along. Spelling one another off as official greeters would solve this one, too, but the hope is that social functions can be kept to a minimum.

U. N. Leaders Say That If Talks Break Down They Are Ready To Meet Red Forces.

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
Munsan, Korea, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Kaesong armistice talks snagged today on an argument over the importance of allied air and naval supremacy.

If cease-fire negotiations break down, the United Nations ground commander, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, said his troops are ready to "lobber" the Reds.

In Tokyo, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U.N. supreme commander, said the Reds have been steadily building up and are in a materially-better position to attack than they were when truce talks started July 10.

Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, commented: "The military feels we would like to have the opportunity to meet the communists if they attack. It would be a real clobber."

"I don't know of a better way to get it over faster. The enemy is hurt. He is in bad shape. He needs peace."

Van Fleet's opinion of the ability of the Eighth Army to meet a Red onslaught coincided with views expressed by Ridgway, when the top allied commander told about the Red build-up.

Ridgway said the U.N. position was not inflexible, but that his troops must have a defensible position during a truce approximately along their present battle line. He said the U.N. won't go back to the 38th parallel, where the Reds want to set up a buffer zone.

At Kaesong, just before negotiators adjourned until Wednesday, North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il, top Red envoy, wound up Tuesday's two-hour-and-40-minute session by announcing the Red demand for a truce on the old, old boundary is unshakable.

It was the demilitarized zone deadlock which generated the argument at Kaesong over U.N. air and navy might.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. delegation, told the Reds that allied planes and warships "are prosecuting a war behind your front lines which is not duplicated behind our lines."

A U.N. spokesman said this was a reply to a one-hour-and-13-minute attack by Gen. Nam attempting to "discredit the independent effectiveness of air and naval power which the U.N. command would relinquish in an armistice."

In one breath the North Korean said they weren't doing much good and in the next he said the Reds would run U.N. troops out of Korea except for allied planes and warships.

The spokesman described Nam's speech as an attempt to "discredit the independent effectiveness of air and naval power which the U. N. command would relinquish in an armistice."

The spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckolls, who attended the session, said Nam's speech was sprinkled with such words as "irresponsible," "belittling," "abusive" and "intolerable."

Nuckolls said Joy, in a one-hour-and-six-minute reply, emphasized air and naval power in an effort to convince the Reds of the reasonableness of the U.N. proposals for a demilitarized zone along approximately the present battle lines.

Joy, head of the U.N. delegation, explained that the U.N. would have to relinquish its air and set supremacy in the event of an armistice. Therefore, he said, U.N. ground forces would have to be left in positions that could be defended.

A U.N. communique said this "logical military reasoning" was "without tangible results."

Negotiators ended a two-hour-and-40-minute session in the sweltering heat of Kaesong still deadlocked on where to create a demilitarized zone.

They agreed to meet again Wednesday at 11 a.m.

While Admiral Joy and Gen. Nam argued at Kaesong, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told a press conference in Tokyo the allied position was not inflexible.

"The line we propose is the line now generally held by the United Nations forces," the U.N. commander said. "It is a military line, devoid of political implications, and the general line along which our forces now stand facing north."

He did not indicate the depth of a buffer zone he wants.

Communist negotiators say he wants the demilitarized zone to extend substantially north of the present allied line.

"We have made no effort to draw a rigid line," Ridgway said.

After a demarcation line is agreed upon, he explained, the Reds could "pick any line which would give them as much defensive ability as we have."

He conceded that the U.N. proposal for establishment of an administrative demarcation line and creation of a buffer zone would result in a communist withdrawal from their present positions.

United Nations forces also probably would have to pull back

They All Fled Iron Curtain

Shortage Of Steel Will Grow Worse

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—(P)—The squeeze on steel likely will get rough within the next few months.

Kenneth Harris, harried steel administrator, says in an interview that the United States is planning to take action to clamp down on exports of "free market" steel.

This will virtually close the door to sources of supply for many Canadian manufacturers of non-essential goods.

Mr. Harris said Canada is getting "fairly good" supplies of steel from the United States, but most of it is earmarked for defence. There's some left over for civilian production, but allocations are made on the basis of "urgency."

Mr. Harris said the American action to place 100 per cent control over U.S. steel production, probably starting Oct. 1, is a development of the U.S. Controlled Materials Plan.

This plan, covering strategic metals, went into operation in July to give defence projects top priority over supplies. As a partner to western defence, Canada got a C.M.P. steel quota, on a quarterly basis.

But the plan did not immediately cover all the U.S. steel production. And Canadian manufacturers, who could not qualify for permits as producers of essential goods, could still bid for that part of U.S. steel production that was not controlled.

That won't be possible after Oct. 1. The U.S. "free market" in steel will virtually disappear. Canadian manufacturers or other steel users affected will likely try for supplies in Europe or Japan, or they may try Ottawa.

Mr. Harris said all new applications will be considered "on their merits" but not all will be granted. There may be enough for defence projects, hospitals, household durable goods but there may not be enough for say, building homes and apartments with steel frames.

Continuing, Canada is getting steel from the U.S. at the rate of more than 1,000,000 ingot tons a year. She normally imported about 1,000,000 tons a year in peacetime. Her own production is being stepped up and is expected to top last year's record of 3,200,000 tons.

Mr. Harris said he could give no estimate on the shortage.

Youth Festival Disaster For East

Berlin, Aug. 14.—(P)—The western allies today sized up the world youth festival in Berlin as a near disaster for communism in Germany.

Official observers are planning to report back to their governments at the end of the festival this week the following conclusions:

1—East German communist youth were exposed to west Berlin in such numbers they may flood their home areas with pro-western feeling.

2—Many delegates from the satellite nations, restricted to the Soviet sector of Berlin, were impressed by the fact that the cause of communism has been stopped cold on the Iron Curtain border and isn't pushing westward.

3—The lack of enthusiasm among the German youth has cast a sharp reflection on party indoctrination work and the men responsible for it.

A steady rain today cut down the flow of German youth into west Berlin but the total now has passed the 630,000 mark.

Hundreds of thousands of east German youth discovered the food, entertainment and the general welcome in the west were far better than in east Berlin.

Earthquake Tremors Are Recorded

By The Canadian Press
Italian seismologists late Monday night recorded a violent earthquake with an epicentre somewhere between 730 and 1,350 miles from Rome, possibly in eastern Greece.

They said the shock would have "destructive and catastrophic" effects if it occurred in an inhabited area.

Shortly before the Italian reports, a dispatch from Ankara, Turkey, said a strong earth tremor lasting 11 seconds was felt in the Anatolia and Gandakiri areas of central Turkey, which is several hundred miles east of Greece. The Turkish shocks caused unspecified damage.

Seismographs at the Leghorn and Faenza observatories in Italy registered tremors of "exceptional intensity". Experts at Faenza said the tremors surpassed those which razed the city of Messina, Italy, in 1908 and killed 75,000 persons. They were so strong they knocked out the Faenza instruments and prevented exact observation.

The Italian observatories were not alone in their reports of a strong earthquake. The California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, Calif., said a tremor was registered on the institute's seismograph early Monday morning. Seismologist Dr. Carl Richter placed the shock 6,800 miles away in an undetermined direction. He gave its magnitude at 6½, strong enough to cause considerable damage in a populous area. Maximum magnitude is 10.

Southern and Central Italy was shaken by quakes Sunday night. At the port city of Ancona the tremor was felt.

An American plan for thwarting Russia's designs at San Francisco is reported to call for:

1. Limiting speeches to the subject of Japanese peace treaty draft.

2. A majority vote rule which can be used to declare violators "out of order."

Russia's delegates to the meeting are expected to press vigorously Moscow's contention that the United States is seeking to revive Japanese militarism.

No limits on Japanese rearmament are contained in the American treaty draft, co-sponsored by the U. S. and Britain. This stems from a U. S. government belief it would be suicidal to keep Japan disarmed at a time when it thinks communist China and Russia both have an eye on Japan's industrial facilities.

London, Aug. 14.—(Reuters)—Russia's decision to attend the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco next month was seen today in many quarters as an effort to prevent Japan from recovering her sovereignty and a strong position in the Far East.

On the whole, reaction was cautious. But the general feeling was that the Russians would try to obstruct completion of the treaty, and use the conference for their own propaganda purposes.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia barked "good" when told of the Russian decision, but did not amplify his comment. In Tokyo, stock market prices sagged gloomily.

The unofficial feeling in London was that the signing of the draft treaty could not be expected to take place smoothly.

The influential Tokyo daily Asahi Shimbun said Japanese diplomats expect the United States to press ahead with its treaty plans, but they feel the conference will be prolonged beyond its scheduled four days.

These sources suggested Russia would introduce a separate peace treaty draft which might encourage some Asian signatories to break away from the western bloc.

Recent public opinion polls have reflected a slight setback in the Conservative lead over Labor. But political analysts say that if a general election were held now, the Conservatives would be returned with a majority of from 100 to 150.

Washington, Aug. 14.—(AP)—American officials expect Russian delegates to walk out of the 50-country Japanese peace conference after staging a spectacular propaganda show to emphasize Moscow's opposition.

These officials expressed confidence to a reporter that Russia's demarcations would not succeed in blocking the signing of a peace treaty by an overwhelming majority of other countries.

The United States is ready to sign without Russia, if necessary, said these officials who may not be quoted by name.

State Secretary Dean Acheson, they hinted, may have a trick or two up his sleeve to curb the anticipated Russian propaganda filibuster.

Moscow's delegates, headed by acting foreign minister Andrei Gromyko, have promised to show up in San Francisco Sept. 4 for the conference.

Assisting him will be three other of Russia's more-noted conference orators—Alexander S. Panyushkin, ambassador to the United States; Georgi N. Zarubin, ambassador to London; and S. A. Golunski, Russian foreign office legal chief and former judge at the Tokyo war crimes trials.

Department officials look for communist Czechoslovakia and Poland, the only Russian satellites invited, to follow Moscow's lead and announce they will attend the conference.

Moderation Is Urged In Oil Talks

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 14.—(P)—W. Averell Harriman called on Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi today to appeal for continued moderation in the critical British-Iranian oil talks.

While President Truman's envoy met Iran's ruler, Premier Mohammed Mossadegh called the cabinet into special session to discuss the latest British offer to settle the oil nationalization dispute.

Neither the British negotiators nor the Iranians would disclose the specific details of the offer, presented last night by Richard Stokes, chief of the British negotiating team.

But informed sources said Mossadegh's first reaction was coolness toward the British proposal for joint operation of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's well and refineries, which Iran nationalized last spring.

It is believed Harriman appealed to the Shah to use his influence to keep the talks from breaking down over whether British oil experts should continue to operate the installations under the new Iranian national oil company.

Britain has renewed her offer to turn over all assets of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to the Mossadegh government.

Stokes had indicated that he would agree to Iranian participation in a new nationalized company, but that British technicians would insist on working under British management. Iran—woefully short of technicians—could not keep the complex operations going without highly-skilled foreign help.

The Iranians turned down the same general offer last June. That deadlock led to the closing of the world's biggest refineries of Abadan, Iran's Persian Gulf oil port.

U.S. Bomber Crashes Into Apartment Block, 11 Die

Seattle, Aug. 14.—(P)—A four-engine air force bomber plowed into an apartment house here yesterday, killing the crew of six and at least five residents of the structure.

A raging fire which reduced the wreckage and most of the three-story building to a charred mess of rubble may have killed others. Hours after the blaze, firemen played streams of water on the smoldering heap, attempting to cool it enough to permit further search.

The bodies of the 11 known dead were recovered by nightfall. More may be found today.

What caused the big B-50 bomber to crash is not known. Witnesses said all its four motors appeared to be working perfectly after taking off from Boeing Field. But at about 700 feet it turned losing altitude rapidly and started into a sharp right bank.

A leading edge of the plane grazed a wall of a brewery building and crashed into a concrete bulkhead behind it. The plane's nose struck a line of automobiles parked in front of the apartment house and the huge craft flipped over as it ripped into the Lester apartments.

Only about one-third the 64 persons normally resident in the building were home. Twelve were burned severely or injured in the impact, at least five others died.

Three of the crew aboard the plane were Boeing Airplane Company test personnel. The others were air force men.

Nearly 4,000 gallons of gasoline and oil in the craft's tanks caught fire almost immediately after the impact, searing some persons and hindering rescue work. Water poured on the flaming mass served in part to spread the flames as gasoline ran through the structure on the surface of the water.

It was nearly five hours after the crash at 2:18 p.m., before the blaze was under control.

Meanwhile, firemen and police tunneled steadily into the debris, removing the scorched bodies one at a time until 11 were accounted for, including the six crew members.

The apartment house records were destroyed, but Kengo Kadoyama, the manager, said he thought most of the residents had been accounted for.

COULD IT BE THAT ETHEL ISN'T AN ORSON WELLES FAN?

Hollywood—The Laugh Parade: It's an untold Ethel Barrymore story.

Shortly after Ethel arrived in Hollywood for a visit, in the day when she was still undecided about resuming her movie career, a magazine writer obtained an interview with her.

At one point he asked her opinion of Orson Welles, then at his movie peak with "Citizen Kane," and Ethel made an unfavorable comment.

The writer, a Welles fan, argued in Orson's behalf.

"After all, he's so young," the writer said.

"Yes," wailed Ethel, "but he's been so young so LONG!"

Mack Sennett, titan of the custard pie era of movie comedy, visited the set of Fox's "The Marriage Broker" and watched Thelma Ritter go through her paces. Even the great Father Goose himself was convulsed with Thelma's comedy finesse.

Afterwards, he shook her hand and told her:

"I just don't know how you do it. You pull every laugh in the book and you don't hit anybody with a single custard pie."

A famous much-married, much-divorced young male star was discussing his last wife at a Hollywood party.

To the amazement of the listeners, the bouncing short-statured entertainer praised his ex-Mrs.

"She was a wonder," he said. "She was the only one of my wives who insisted on working out a budget. She ran my household with the greatest economy."

There were some isn't-it-so nice - of-him-to-say-it smiles flashed, then the star smirked and said:

"Of course, the only reason she was doing it was to make sure that there would be a lot of community property when she got around to divorcing me."

When Tony Curtis, returned from his p.a. tour with "The Prince Who Was a Thief," he rushed over to his parents' home to tell them all about the crowds that turned out to see him.

Most interested was Tony's 10-year-old brother, Bobby, who said: "I guess that means people like you, huh?"

"Yeah," enthused Tony. Bobby thought it over a moment.

"It probably means that the studio is going to pick up OUR option," he said.

Vanessa Brown heard a famous stage actor who worked with her in the cast of the Theater Guild's "The Philanderer" say it:

"Movie money! Bah! It's the LOOT of all evil!"

Yvonne de Carlo, Edmond O'Brien and other cast members of Nat Holt's "Silver City" are still chuckling.

Fish And Game Club Meets At Rock Island

Rock Island, August 14. — A regular meeting of the Stanstead Fish and Game Club was held on Tuesday evening at St. George's Hall, Ayer's Cliff, with a good attendance.

President Charles Crawford presided over the meeting. Charles Gerin stated that the lease on a Baldwin's Mills cottage had been drawn up for six years and that the cottage is now available for rent.

It was reported that 275 pheasants had been received by the club and had been released in the county. These birds are under the protection of the province and a heavy fine will be imposed upon anyone molesting them.

Considerable discussion was given to the use of out-board motors at Lake Lyster; and it was said that motors are permissible but it is requested that the motors not be started near the dam where the water pipe goes to the fish hatchery; the same request applies to Crystal Lake, Stanstead, where the body of water is small, so it is requested of sportsmen not to use high powered motors for speeding. Leonard Desève, of Magog, said that biological tests have been made on O'Malley Pond and East Branch Pond and that the waters were reported to be good for game fish; the estimate of the costs of a dam and poison are not available, so it was decided to call a special meeting of directors, as soon as these costs can be estimated, thus permitting the cleaning of one of these two ponds this fall.

A motion was made that application be made at Quebec, for fishing pools at the Baldwin's Mills hatchery so that salmon and trout can be held there until they are eight to ten inches in size before being put into Lake Lyster and Lake Memphremagog. The members feel that when the stockings are of small size, they are eaten by the larger fish. Last month a number of sportsmen were subject to fines for salmon fishing at Lake Memphremagog with more than one rod. Mr. Crawford stated that the Club had become interested in it because many whom had been fined, did not know that this by-law existed, so a letter from Quebec was read in English and French, saying that the by-law permits one rod, or one hand-line only to be used per person for salmon fishing. It was motioned that a resolution be made at the October meeting of this by-law, and that be printed in the "Canadian Gazette" (a booklet issued with hunting and fishing licences) in both English and French, and a copy of this to be sent the Federation of Fish and Game for the annual meeting, a copy to Quebec and one to Mr. Gerin, Stanstead's M.L.A. It was then decided to have a wire fence put in at Lake Lyster to prevent fish going down Nigger River and a wire fence in Crystal Lake to prevent the loss of fish at spawning time.

Considerable discussion was given to plans for the Clubs annual chicken shoot this year with members from Coaticook and Magog in charge. The event will be held on Sunday, September 23, and will be an all-day affair with fun for everyone. Chairman committees to organize committees are Hector Tanguay and Paul Brunet of Coaticook, Alphonse Lavallee and Albert Simoneau of Magog, Leon Gots and C. Gerin are the publicity committee. With this event there is to be a raffle; after a great deal of discussion, the choice of the article was left to be decided by the committee. A field was suggested on the Coaticook-Dixville road for the shoot and the announcement will be made when permission is granted by the owner.

A member from Magog stated that the Magog district was without a game warden, and he asked the Club to consider the appointment of two wardens for this district to preserve the wild life and enforce game laws. A motion was made that the Club do its best to have the wardens appointed as soon as possible.

The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, October 9 at St. George's Hall, Ayer's Cliff.

Kiwanis feel that this natural beach is now one of the best in the entire district and that the citizens of Waterloo should be justly proud of it, and take good care of it.

It was announced that next week the members would attend another Theatre Night at Brae Manor, Knowlton, when the play will be "Light Up the Sky," an American comedy. It is hoped that many members with their families and friends will attend this play on Wednesday night.

Following the regular meeting, a short director's meeting was held when some routine business was dispensed with.

Outdoor Camping Reported From Georgeville

Georgeville, Aug. 14. — For the second summer, the Camp Committee of the Quebec Provincial Council has sponsored a camp at Lake Memphremagog, on an ideal camp site, lent by a member of the Executive Committee. Instead of a Patrol Leaders' camp, such as was held in 1950, the scheme this year was to make a camp site and central staff available to guides in experienced in camping, but who were anxious to take their guides to camp. The response has shown that the idea interested many divisions, seven taking advantage of it, some for the whole period, others for part of the time.

Each group, comprised of its guide and eight to ten guides, lived as a separate unit, cooking its meals on an outdoor fire, but the camp joined for swimming, special activities and camp fires. Special attention was given to campcraft and outdoor cooking as a preparation for the National Camp, to be held in 1952. Four guides earned their Camper's badge, and several, their Pioneer badge. The proposed National Camp is being planned by the Canadian Council of the Girl Guides Association. Canada will come to this camp, which is to be a pioneer one, much like the Lake Memphremagog camp except on a very much larger scale. The groups are to do their own cooking on outdoor fires, and to live under canvas. Quebec's quota for this camp is about a hundred guides and guides. These will be chosen from campers experienced in this type of camping. Already guides are weighing their chances of being the lucky ones chosen to represent their divisions.

Mrs. William Hyde, Provincial Commissioner, and Mrs. E. C. Thurston of the Provincial Camp Committee visited the camp. Miss Muriel Davies, Provincial Camp Adviser was commandant of the camp with Miss Joyce Hart, Commissioner for Music, and Mrs. A. E. Lewis, Camp Adviser for St. Maurice Division, as Assistants. Miss Jo Anne Talley, of Oklahoma, a Girl Scout leader from the United States, on exchange to Canada, brought new games and ideas which were enjoyed by all the campers. Other leaders were Dr. Florence Farmer, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Miss Beverley Webster,

Kiwanis Club Of Waterloo Holds Weekly Meeting

Waterloo, August 14. — The Kiwanis Club of Waterloo held their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening at the Waterloo Hotel with a good attendance including one guest, Mr. Andrew Ross of Manotick, Ont. President Jack Buckland was in the chair, and further arrangements were made in connection with the proposed booth to be operated by the members at the Waterloo Fair this year. The menu will consist of baked beans, hot dogs, sandwiches, pie, coffee and other home-made articles; the booth will be opened in time for breakfast, and will remain open all three days until closing. As in years past, the motto of the members operating the food booth will be, quality and service, and the money raised through this means will be used exclusively for underprivileged children's work in Waterloo and immediate district.

It was announced that the work at the beach was completed for this year, and that everything done did much to improve the beauty of this spot. Considerable work has been done there, including a general clean-up of the beach and several loads of sand were spread around. The old fence was removed and a new one erected and painted. The beach house was moved back twenty feet by the town council, and improved greatly with repair work. Police protection has been provided and a guard is on hand all day and every day to help in any circumstance that might arise. Diving and playing equipment has been placed in the water, and is of Granby, Miss Silvia Monkman, of Montreal, Miss Edith Crawford and Miss Sheila Bell, of East Angus and Miss Gertrude Perley, of Three Rivers. The nurses were Mrs. H. Cass, of Beebe, and Mrs. E. Pearson, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

The camp would like to express publicly its appreciation of the many and varied kindnesses shown by the people of Georgeville, who co-operated in every way possible, from lending lifebelts, to permitting groups to make overnight camps on their property.

It is expected that one of the values of this camp is the training of the fifty-three guides, who attended. These guides are potential guides so it is hoped the results may be far-reaching.

No Change Can Be Made In Itinerary For Royal Visit, St. Laurent Says

Any hopes that Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh might visit Sherbrooke during their tour of Canada this fall appear to have been dashed by a telegram from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent to Mayor Charles B. Howard declining to interfere in the arrangements as announced by the special committee in charge of the tour details.

When the announcement of the itinerary of the Royal Tour was released showing that the visit of the couple to the Eastern Townships would be restricted to a short stop at Drummondville, Mayor

Howard wired the Prime Minister to use his influence to have the party re-routed to take in other important centres in the Eastern Townships.

In rejecting this appeal, the Prime Minister pointed out that the itinerary had been arranged after the closest study by a select committee and that any change, even if possible, would involve extensive exchanges between the Canadian committee and the Imperial Privy Council who must also approve the plans.

Furthermore, he held it was outside the duties of the Prime Minister to interfere in such matters.

Tobacco Co. Employees Stage Strike

Montreal, Aug. 14.—Factory employees of three Imperial Tobacco company plants — two in Montreal and one in Hamilton — went on strike today as a result of a wages dispute with the company.

The company said 2,900 employees are involved, all members of the tobacco workers' international union.

The plants involved are the Tuckett Tobacco Co. plant in Hamilton, the Montreal St. Antoine St. plant of Imperial and the General Cigar Co. plant in Montreal.

Imperial employees at the Empire plant in Granby, Que., remained on the job, the company announced.

The company, in a statement said the dispute dates back to October when the collective agreement between the company and the union expired. The union recently rejected the award of a Quebec labor department arbitration board which inquired into the dispute.

Lions Club Holds Picnic, Field Day

The Sherbrooke Lions Club yesterday held a combination field day and picnic at the Mount Orford Golf Club.

In the afternoon there were golf matches and canasta games, followed by dinner in the club-house during which the regular club business meeting was held. Dancing at Manoir Orford brought the day's program to a close.

During the business session, president Alberic Julien announced that Leopold Chevalier, a past president of the club, has been named deputy district governor of zone number 19.

Henri Gagnon welcomed the guests and distributed the golf prizes as follows: Low net, Ossie Goyette; low gross, Henri Gagnon; ladies, Mrs. Henri Gagnon; consolation, D. G. Amaron.

L. P. Brousseau, chairman of the program committee, in charge of the day's program, distributed other prizes. The prize for children was won by Madeline Fiset, while the canasta prizes went to Mrs. Leopold Chevalier and Mrs. Lorezzo Ramsay.

At the head table, with Mr. Julien were Mr. and Mrs. Armand Morrissette, Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Chevalier, Mrs. Percy Francis and Mrs. Cecil Dunn.

Danville Girl Falls From Truck, Is Badly Injured

Danville, Aug. 14. — Leonine Boisvert, 15, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when she fell from the back of the truck driven by her father, J. Elphege Boisvert, of Danville, between Ste. Anne de Beaupre and Montmorency Falls.

The girl suffered a broken right wrist, injuries to her right shoulder, and two broken legs in the accident. She is a patient at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke.

In a phone conversation with the Record, Mr. Boisvert said the girl fell over the ramp at the rear of his two-ton truck after she became nauseated with driving sickness and stood up to retrieve her handkerchief.

She asked her father to slow down but he wanted to clear the hard surface of the road before doing so and she stood up before Mr. Boisvert had an opportunity to apply the brakes.

After a fruitless search for a doctor in Quebec City, Mr. Boisvert drove home to Danville where first aid packs were applied to Miss Boisvert's injuries, prior to driving her to the hospital in Sherbrooke.

Scotstown Co. Workers Strike For More Pay

Scotstown, Aug. 14. — Demanding an increase of 15 cents an hour over the existing wage rates, some 175 employees of the Guelph Calk, Veneer and Plywood Co. Ltd.—the chief employer in this town of 1,200 situated in Compton County about 40 miles east of Sherbrooke—are on strike today in support of their demands.

The strike became effective yesterday morning when the men failed to enter the mills.

A short time ago, spokesmen for the workers—there is no union in the plant—placed a demand before the management for the wage increase. The request was turned down by the company, which claimed that existing business conditions did not permit it to assume any further financial burdens.

There was no further response by the man to the announcement of the company until yesterday morning when they failed to enter the mill.

No effort was made to interfere with supervisory or clerical employees entering the premises.

Youth Asks For Extra Year In Prison

Nineteen-year-old Pierre Fargues, of Sherbrooke, surprised the spectators and even the judge yesterday in court of sessions.

Charged with theft the youth was sentenced to one year in jail after he had pleaded guilty. "I have no trade and I would like to go to jail for two years to learn a trade," he told the judge, who granted him his request.

Judge Dorais Panetton sentenced another local youth, Leo Savard, 19, to six months in jail after the youth pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. Savard, Fargues and another youth were arrested by municipal police in connection with robberies at local restaurants and grocery stores.

The establishments which were robbed were: Bonin Grocery Store, corner of Alexander and Bell streets; Ansell's Drugs and Olvier's restaurant, Dufferin avenue; La Regionale Grocery, King street west; Supreme Grocery, corner of Bowen and Chalkfox; Bellevue Service Station, Seventh avenue and Council street, and a grocery store in Sherbrooke East.

Municipal Police Constables LePage and Beauregard made the arrests.

Baseball Night For Boys Is Planned By Members Of Local Optimist Club

By special arrangement with the Sherbrooke Athletics baseball team, the Optimist Club will throw a big baseball night for young boys August 22, the evening the league-leading Drummondville Cubs invade Sherbrooke for a scheduled Provincial League game with the A's.

The Optimists will purchase over 1,200 tickets to be given away to the kids, absolutely free.

This "back to school" baseball night, as it was later dubbed by one of the members, was proposed by president Jacques Laliberte last night at the regular meeting of the Optimists, held in the LaSalle Hotel. The proposal was unanimously agreed upon by the Club as a whole.

Ken Ross is in charge of arrangements for this Optimist baseball party and he will be assisted by Guy Labrie and Ivan Dugre.

The tentative program, as outlined by this committee, will include band selections before the game, autographs of every member of the team for each boy ticket-holder and other special features.

The special tickets will be ready in the next few days and the Club is going to put them on display for distribution in several of the leading local stores. The kids accompanied by an adult will be admitted to the grandstand and those who come alone will sit in the bleachers, BUT, the Optimists point out, no boy, even if he hasn't a ticket, will be refused admission. All boys are welcomed but those who do get a ticket will be entitled to the autographs of the players and the other special treats the Optimists have in store.

The meeting last night was devoted entirely to baseball. Amodeo Roy, business manager of the local team, was present with pitcher Lou Shapiro, and trainers Gaston "Doc" Houffe and Bob Fontaine. They were introduced by Ivan Dugre, president of the Athletics, and member of the Optimists.

He added that the Athletics have played to 83,000 home fans so far this year and attributed this success to such features as the intense season-ticket campaign, the Knot-Hole Gang idea, sponsored by service clubs like the Optimists, the bringing of baseball comedians Johnny Price and Al Schact, and the Father and Son day when the sons were admitted free. He said that the coming Optimist baseball night for kids would have slugging contest feature between the best hitters on the Sherbrooke and Drummondville teams and also a pitchers' hitting contest.

Called upon to say a few words, Mr. Shapiro lauded the Optimists for their boys' work program.

He suggested that more of the ball players would be willing to help in the training of boys in baseball and other sports, if called upon, in order to "keep the kids off the streets." He recalled with pleasure having visited Glen Brown at Knowlton with some other players to conduct a sort of sports clinic for boys there. "The kids kept asking Silvio (Garcia) to keep hitting the ball over the trees," he concluded.

Jack Bedard, of the Northern Electric Company, was the guest of Jack McCabe.

GERMANY'S ROLE

A high American source in Frankfurt, Germany, has forecast that 175,000 German troops be integrated in a European army by the spring of 1953 "if all goes well," according to The Associated Press.

The American said the European army idea is warmly endorsed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the way to bring Germany into the continental defense effort.

Under the proposal, West Germany would not have a national army of its own, but give approximately 10 divisions and supporting units under command of a supranational general staff.

German military questions will be considered on a governmental level at the next meeting of the American, British and French foreign ministers in September.

The source said the Allies will wrap up decision on rearmament and restoration of limited sovereignty for joint acceptance by West Germany.

A contractual agreement regarding sovereignty — in effect a temporary peace treaty — is in the draft stage. The source said it would remain indefinitely for the Allies the right to intervene by force in West Germany against "a threat to democracy." Such a case, for example, might be a gigantic communist strike in the Ruhr or the seizure of power by new Nazis.

French spokesmen in Paris said foreign and defense ministers of the 12 Atlantic Pact countries will meet twice this autumn to settle Germany's role.

The first meeting is due in mid-September, probably Sept. 17, in Ottawa. A second session is to be held in Rome late in October, the spokesman said.

According to the present allied timetable, West Germany's Parliament will be invited to sign up for the European army early next year. If the contractual agreement on sovereignty is not yet ready for presentation then the Allies will give an advance pledge of its substance.

German military men would require 12 months to raise a force for the European army after all legal barriers are removed, it is estimated.

Legal experts differ on whether an amendment to the West German constitution is necessary to put rearmament into effect. If so, a general election might be necessary.

THE CASE OF JOHN IVANCHUCK

The Regina Leader-Post relates the interesting story of John Ivanchuck. Ivanchuck is a fisherman in Northern Saskatchewan and recently had two tons of fish he had taken in Reindeer Lake. But because he tried to sell his catch to a Manitoba buyer the Socialist Government of Saskatchewan seized the fish. Seized also Ivanchuck's fishing gear, and thus left him deprived of his means of livelihood.

The Leader-Post explains that under Saskatchewan marketing regulations all fishermen within a designated area are required to sell through a government agency if 70 per cent of the fishermen approve of that procedure. The Reindeer Lake fishermen having so decided, Ivanchuck was required by the law to accept this marketing arrangement even though he could make more money by selling privately. It was his effort to market his own goods in his own way that got him into trouble with the CCF powers.

"This is," says the Ottawa Journal, "vicious legislation, and a pitiful lapse from the rugged spirit of the Canadian pioneers on which this nation is founded. It makes a crime of something which was a perfectly legal and decent practice before the regulations were made law, and to enforce the law the authorities are given the right of search without a warrant, the right to seizure such as was exercised to the impoverishment of John Ivanchuck. That is socialism in operation, and it is not a pleasant sight."

TOO CRITICAL

From Havana comes word that Dr. Eduardo Chibas, leader of the Cuban People party and a candidate for the presidency, shot himself just after concluding his customary radio broadcast.

This is self-criticism in the extreme. He might at least have waited until he learned what his Hooper rating was.

TOOLING UP IS MAIN FACTOR DELAYING DEFENSE PRODUCTION

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent
Washington—(NEA)—Not the chief cook and bottle-washer, but the chief bottleneck-breaker of the now year-old defense production business is a hefty, tough-talking get of not quite 50 named W. Walter Watts. His official title is deputy administrator of the Defense Production Administration. Mr. Watts says yes, we've got bottlenecks this time just like the last, only maybe not as bad now as before.

Chief cooks of defense production this time are, of course, C. E. Wilson as Defense Mobilization director and Manly Fleischmann, smart young Buffalo lawyer, who is Defense Production administrator.

Under Mr. Fleischmann in DPA, as bottleneck breaker, is Walter Watts. He heads the Office of Procurement and Production. He is a production man in private life, a vice president in charge of engineering production for Radio Corporation of America at Camden, N.J. He has been in Washington about six months but hopes to get out in another six months. Let somebody else have the privilege of beating his brains out on these tough defense production problems.

Chicago-born Mr. Watts' first job was a telegraph operator. He got into radio as an amateur experimenter. Without any formal engineering education, he became a production and sales executive for Zenith, then Montgomery Ward and finally RCA. In World War II he was a colonel in charge of Signal Corps procurement, under General Harrison, who persuaded him to come to Washington.

ARMS ORDERED, ONLY HALF DELIVERED

Mobilization Director C. E. Wilson's second quarterly report was frank in admitting that deliveries of arms are still low. Though defense orders were placed at the rate of more than three billion dollars a month, deliveries are half that. This is double the pre-Korea rate. But deliveries won't be up to the $4 billion-a-month level much before June, 1952.

The reason is principally that it takes this long to tool up for full production. And here is where the bottlenecks are encountered. Walter Watts lists them principally as bottlenecks in materials, in engineering design, in paperwork, in facilities and machine tools.

So far, he says, Army, Navy and Air Force have not had any lack of deliveries because of shortages of materials. This situation may not last, because production is still low.

When jet engine production gets really rolling, the demand for heat-resistant alloys like the 80 per cent nickel turbine blades will be up. Only reason the tungsten shortage has not had worse effects is that comparatively few armor-piercing shells have been used in Korea.

Under full demand, there won't be enough of these alloys unless they are taken away from the civilian economy 100 per cent. That's one way to break a bottleneck. Cobalt demands have been met that way.

Another method is to develop substitutes for critical materials. Many of the big research laboratories of the country are now trying to develop such substitutes. But they have passed no miracles yet.

MONTHS LOST ON MACHINE TOOL ORDERS

Facilities bottlenecks are gradually disappearing as new plants are brought into production or existing plants are converted to defense output. Three or four months may have been lost over getting machine tool orders placed. This was a problem of price adjustment and government financing which has just now been licked.

Many of the bottleneck problems in defense production are simply paperwork. Somebody forgot to order something on time. Somebody also failed to translate engineering design into orders for parts. The result is planes without electronic equipment, ships without navigation aids and tanks without fire controls. Mistakes of this kind can't be remedied overnight.

The job of Walter Watts and the many production committees which his office runs is not to solve these bottlenecks but to identify them. Then after the problems are identified, the job becomes one of goading the proper people into doing what's needed.

C. E. Wilson is not running the defense production show this time with an all-powerful War Production Board of 40,000 government employees. DPA and NPA now have about 5000 people. Primary responsibility is left with the armed services, who are assumed to know what they want and how to get it. So there is much conflict between the military and civilian agencies. That was perhaps the biggest bottleneck of all in World War II.

STEER HAD REASON TO FEEL HATEFUL

St. Thomas Times-Journal
A few days ago a steer ran amok in Toronto, and, according to a newspaper report, "brought ruin to fences and gardens." Police cornered him in a backyard, where he snorted with head down, and, said a constable, "stood back with a hateful look in his eye." However, an official from a packing company arrived and killed him with a shot through the head.

Cause of the animal running amok, the newspaper report stated, was that he had received three blows on the head at the abattoir. Presumably the steer had been battered by the old-fashioned pole-axe method, or some other form of bloodgiving. Public opinion long ago upheld the idea that animals that have to be killed for food should be killed with a maximum of speed and a minimum of physical pain, and we are surprised and shocked that in this day and generation the pole-axe method should still be in operation in a licensed abattoir. It is several decades now since "humane killers" were invented for use in public abattoirs, electrically operated devices that penetrate the brain and addle it. There is no possibility of missing and death is instantaneous.

Is it any wonder that this miserable beast had "a hateful look in his eye?" Man had battered his head until, driven mad with pain and fear, he had managed to break away, and now, cornered in a backyard, man was, albeit with humane intentions, finally going to take his life. How many animals have been killed in this and other abattoirs in this cruel way? How many unskilled killers will rain blows upon them till they fall down? How many more animals will have to be slaughtered thus until the Toronto City Council, and other municipalities as well, pass by-laws requiring compulsory use of the humane killer.

The late George Artiss became a vegetarian about 30 years before he died as the result of seeing cattle slaughtered. Many people who enjoy meat would turn vegetarians also if they saw how cattle, sheep and pigs were killed in some slaughter-houses at any rate.

Conditions Are Grim For Korean Evacuees From Battle Areas

for four years and they had a little son one year old. With six other members of the family they lived in the family dwelling, now owned by his elder brother, Hong Yun-Jong, 31.

A week earlier, Teh-Jong said through the interpreter, he had been happy for the first time in months.

United Nations tanks and infantry—from the Canadian 25th infantry brigade group—had appeared on the plains north of the Chorwon area. As they passed his village on a knoll about six miles north of Chorwon, Teh-Jong turned toward the ailing Ki-Sun and said:

"Now we can live. Now we can be free. Now we won't have to hide any more."

Almost a year ago he had been conscripted for service in the North Korean army. After four days' service he had escaped. A deserter, he made his way home from Wonsan.

He and his brothers dug a hole behind the house and there they had spent every night since.

The army order had gone out that all civilians were to be evacuated and notices posted that henceforth all persons seen in the area would be considered enemy and shot.

The women and children were piled into one corner of a little square—perhaps 60 of them, from little girls to grim-mouthed grandmothers, many with infants on their backs. The older men were with them.

The younger men were kept apart of the square, hands above their heads, and were "frisked" by the platoon commander.

Teh-Jong cheerfully complied with every demand. He let them empty his pockets.

There were his linen wallet, his identity card, his bank-book, a book of shaman prayers, a school-atlas map of Korea and, wrapped in an old military map probably once left on the battlefield, a notebook indicating his progress in learning English.

A division of the spoils came to a shame-faced halt when the officer asked the visitor "say, would you like a communist bank-book as a souvenir?" and was answered with "no thanks, it's probably all he has to establish some day what he owns."

Teh-Jong's belongings were restored to him and now-friendly Canadian troops piled him with biscuits and jam and chocolate bars.

Then he was sent down the line for "interrogation." Despite his experience, he told the visitor, he would "go south" if he had to—if he could find his wife.

She wasn't in either of two parties that had trudged across the paddy-fields back to the collecting point. And the staff-sergeant wasn't worried beyond letting him stay there and watch until sunset, by which time he'd have to leave.

She came back in an ambulance just as the conversation ended, a girl of 17 who looked every day of 35, weak and complaining of pains in back and legs.

They turned to one another, their only future, said a few quiet words, and then he sat down, not far from the ambulance, to wait for the next party to assemble for the walk to Chorwon.

From there they'd be trucked to somewhere of Seoul, and then—no one knew or cared.

Q—How warm inside can Eskimos keep their snow houses?

A—Snow houses used by some Eskimos can be kept at an inside temperature of 40 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit without melting if air outside is cold enough to neutralize the warmth within.

DON'T BLAME FATE IF YOU DON'T WIN

"Fate punishes me whenever I step out of line," complains a Miami reader. "I know that I didn't have an opening bid with the South hand, but I couldn't resist the 150 honors. Maybe I shouldn't complain, however, because I made a 50-point profit on the hand."

"West opened the queen of hearts, and I played dummy's king. East ruffed, of course, and I later had to lose two diamonds and a club. Maybe North should have bid three no-trump instead of four spades, but I cannot tell a lie—I'd have bid four spades anyway. Is there any reasonable way of getting to three no-trump with this hand?"

I'm afraid there is no sure way of stopping at three no-trump with this hand. It's easy enough to do so when you can see all the cards, but the chances are that most experts would want to play the hand at spades.

Incidentally, most experts would open the hand with one spade, just as my correspondent did. It may not be a "book" opening bid, but so much the worse for the books. Hence my correspondent can't blame Fate and shouldn't worry about stepping out of line. The truth is that he should have made his contract of four spades. The correct play is to play a low heart from dummy at the first trick. After all, the bidding warns you that East is likely to be void of hearts. West holds the first trick with his queen of hearts (East cannot gain by ruffing, of course) and continues with the jack of hearts. Once more dummy plays low.

West continues hearts, and this time South can ruff in his own hand. Now declarer draws trumps and enters dummy with a club or a diamond to cash the ace and king of hearts. South discards his two losing diamonds on the top

The Record Short Story

LOVE LIGHTS ON CONEY

By HOLLIS STARNES

The first thing that his chambermaid Katie Kilfeather's observant eye, as she opened the Wright sister's door at the shabby San Pedro Hotel was that the wrong side of the bed was occupied. Sunday mornings, when the chubby veteran maid's showfolk guests slept even later than usual, it was always chorus beauty Mebane Wright who was pouncing her pillow. Her older sister Meredith, who now worked in an office, was off to church. But today there was a switch.

"How come?" asked the maid, trundling her dustmop and sweeper into the cramped, dingy room. No formality existed between Katie and her guests, mostly stagestruck young things whom she mothered or bossed.

Meredith Wright weakly pulled herself up in bed. "Mebane rushed in last night after the show to get swimsuit and stuff. That rich girl in her show asked three of the kids to her beach place for the weekend—wasn't that nice?"

"Nicer if she'd asked you, too!" Katie said.

"I don't even know the girl. Besides, to Mebane's teen-aged crowd I'm just an old maid sister."

Katie didn't like the defeatism in her voice. "Old maid at 27, huh? With your looks an' style?"

"Soon I'll look like a million other office drudges—no men in our lives, no romance, adventure, hope. But don't think I'm jealous of my kid sister's luck!"

Katie said, as she stunted the dresser. "Wonder what she did about that feller she was goin' to Coney with?"

Meredith shrugged. "Let's hope she remembered to call him. I hate lying for her to these kids she stands up. I'm no good at it."

"This was no kid," the maid said. "Navy brass—Lieutenant commander, no less! He'd been at her show Friday night, went backstage to see her. Comes from some place near your home town. I'd a bet of a chat with him myself, whilst Meb scrambled out o' the shower when he phoned yesterday. He's in town on a couple of days' leave, an' he's never seen Coney."

Meredith slipped on her scuffs. "I nearly went there myself today. A bunch of girls from the office were going. But I just couldn't take another hen party!"

As the girl shut herself in the shower, Katie thought grimly, "Somethin's got to happen soon, or she'll turn into a drudge, like she said!"

And this mustn't be, resolved Katie. The older Wright girl was worth ten of her selfish, young scatterbrained sister. They looked much alike, though Meredith was far more beautiful—in a less flashy way, mused the maid. She'd made a promising start as a Broadway stage actress, when Mebane ran away from home and landed on top of her. Soon she was chained to an office desk to pay their expenses. Now Mebane was in her first show.

The phone rang and Katie said, "Miss Wright's maid speakin'." She always answered that way for guests.

The familiar voice of the young Navy officer said, "How are you? This is Rutherford Lee, just checking in to make sure Miss Wright will be ready at 1. Great day for Coney, what?"

Katie's mind was working overtime while he talked. "Couldn't be beat! she agreed, her eyes fixed on the bathroom door. "Miss Wright will be ready at 1."

"It was a bold daring scheme, she admitted to herself, but why shouldn't it work? He'd seen Mebane only once, in stage makeup and costume. Their meeting had been brief. But it took all his powers of persuasion to get Meredith to go as her sister. Only when Katie pleaded patriotic duty—what loyal American girl would see a naval hero stood up on his last day of shore leave?—did Meredith falter. "It's not that I don't want to go, but I'm such a bad liar. I don't even know the man's name, or what he and Sis talked about."

"His name's Rutherford Lee, and they didn't talk much, they'd no time," Katie said.

Meredith was pale, but now she turned pale. "Rutherford Lee?"

"Ye know who that is?"

"Everyone in our neck of the woods, knows who that is! First family—money, social standing, brains, looks—all crazy about him."

"He's yours alone till 7 P.M.!" Katie said. "Then he has to shove off to visit his uncle near Washington."

Katie's work was finished by mid-afternoon, but how could she leave until she knew how her grand scheme turned out? She was sipping tea in her linen room, when Meredith appeared at the door, a glowing, radiant creature, with stars in her eyes.

"Come in, an' sit down," Katie said, "if we can get that close to earth!"

A shadow crossed the girl's face. "Don't ask me to come down yet, Katie! Let me stay a bit longer in seventh heaven. I'll never see him again—unless Mebane had played on him. But for a few blissful hours, I've known what happiness can be like—with the one man in the world I could love!"

She fled, and from the hall as she ran to her mean little room, Katie heard a heartrending sob.

Next morning Meredith had left for her job when the maid reached the room. Around 5, when Katie was leaving for home, Mebane rushed into the linen room. "I tore back to town expecting an agent to call me at 5 about television. But who called instead? You remember that fellow who asked me to see Coney?"

Katie gasped. "Rutherford Lee?"

"I forgot all about our date, when I got that bid for the beach. Now he calls up long distance, crazy or drunk, raving over the grand time we had—and he's just got to see me again! He's taking a plane that gets in at 6. He's coming right here."

"What'll ye do?" asked Katie in panic.

"I'm on my way out with the boy who just drove me to town in his car. Golly, do you think Lee got sore at the standup I gave him, and this is some scheme to pay me back the same way? I bet he never shows up anyhow, the laugh's still on him!"

She was gone. Katie ripped off her hat, told the switchboard girl to put the Wright sisters' calls on her wire. Meredith always got in from work at 5:30, flopped down a half hour, then showered, changed her clothes, and went out for a lonely meal—unless Mebane had no date, which was seldom.

"I'll leak not a word to her till I've seen Lee," decided the maid. "I'll get him up here, an' take full blame for switchin' sisters. If he's smitten or Meredith, he'll thank me. It's the idea of a front-line chorus cutie he fancies—poor Meredith never needs to know!"

Meredith was safely in her room lying down, when Katie faced the handsome Navy man in her linen room. His eyes, the color of steel, remained fixed on her through the recital. But he said not a word, even when she stressed Meredith's virtues, her sacrifices, unselfishness.

"An' that's the whole story," she wound up almost angrily. "If 'tis a Broadway career girl ye're after—Mebane's off with some lad she met on the week-end. But she'll be in time for her show, never fear. She's aimin' to be a big Hollywood star—an' no man's goin' to stop her!"

He was suddenly speaking. "That's why I fought against coming back. It seemed futile for a man like myself to get involved with an ambitious actress. Yet the girl I fell in love with at Coney Ossie Carnegie, with a gross of 73, won the 9th annual Circo golf tournament played Saturday at the Waterville Golf Club.

Orestes Minoza Still Pace-Setter In A.L.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Orestes Minoza of Chicago, continued to lead American League hitters last week.

The White Sox outfielder batted at a .342 clip through games of Sunday to lead Ferris Fain of Philadelphia by eight points.

There were two changes among the top 10 during the week. Gil McDougald of New York, took over seventh place with a .310 average and Johnny Pesky of Boston, moved into 10th with .302. They replaced Hank Majeski of Philadelphia, and Bill Gooden of Boston. Cleveland's Bob Feller took over the leadership in the pitching division from Tom Morgan of New York. Feller added a victory to make his string 18 against four defeats for an .818 average. Morgan won one and lost one during the week.

Other hitting leaders were: George Kell, Detroit, third, .331; Ted Williams, Boston, fifth, .326; Gil Coan, Washington, sixth, .322; Nelson Fox, Chicago, eighth, .309; Dom DiMaggio, Boston, ninth, .304. Minoza has the most runs and triples, 90 and 13 respectively. Dom DiMaggio has the most hits, 144. Irving Noren of Washington has the most doubles, 31, and Gus Zernial of Philadelphia the most home runs, 24. Williams' 97 was top in runs batted in and Jim Busby of Chicago led in stolen bases, 20. Vic Raschi of New York has the most strikeouts, 119.

Newark, N. J.—Ralph Giordano, 139, Newark, outpinned, 134%, Philadelphia (8).

Racing Commission To Expose All Involved

Toronto, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Ontario Racing Commission will expose all those responsible for "deceit and fraud practised on the public by jockeys and owners in the last 10 years," W. E. MacDonald, aid, commission counsel, said last night.

In an interview following yesterday's closed session of the commission, investigating Canada's worst racing scandal, Mr. MacDonald said the commission will disclose names and addresses of those involved and will take criminal action where warranted.

Mr. MacDonald described the principal person involved as a well-known Toronto man with a long criminal record who used his wife and associates as dupes. He did not name the man. The commission counsel said conditions had been worse before the present commission was appointed. Its predecessor, the incorporated Canadian Racing Association, lacked the commission's power to summon witnesses and compel them to testify under oath. The commission began its third week of hearings into the "fixing" of races at Toronto and Fort Erie tracks by clamping a muffler on the Toronto sessions. One commissioner said the newspapers already had printed "too much information."

Sports Roundup

By WILL GRIMSLEY For HUGH FULLERTON, JR. New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)

Brooklyn manager Chuck Dressen, of baseball's cleverest signaling thieves, says night baseball is killing this type of legal larceny. "In the old days you could snatch signals by watching how the pitcher gripped the ball, by keeping your eyes on the seams," the peppy Dodger says. "It's tough now with so many games as night." The Brooklyn manager always felt that much of Babe Ruth's home run success was due to the Bambino's ability to swipe signals. Dressen rated Carl Hubbell, the old giant lefty, as the toughest to steal from. He listed Billy Herman and Augie Galan as two of the best at figuring out what the other guy was going to do. Neckwear Dept. After he had come back from near-death and won the United States Open Golf Championship in 1950, Ben Hogan changed to over-hear a sports writer remark that Hogan would never win another major championship, "that his integrity was gone." Ben proceeded to bet the writer a dozen $25 neck ties he was a poor prophet. So far this year Ben has won the Masters, the Open and the "World" Championship at Tam O'Shanter. At last reports Ben still hadn't collected his ties. Lobs And Drop-Shots Art Larsen figures the United States will beat Australia 3-2 to recapture the Davis Cup. "The way I see it, we will beat Ken McGregor twice—we have three or

Stan Musial Holds Big Lead For Batting Title

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—With seven weeks to go, St. Louis' Stan Musial has opened up a 19-point lead on the Phil's Richie Ashburn in the National League batting race.

Musial's average through Sunday was .349, only five points ahead of Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at .344. The big man of the week was Roy Campanella, Brooklyn catcher, who moved up six points to .334 for the only gain among the top ten.

Johnny Wroestek of Cincinnati, tied with Campanella last week, dropped to .321. Then came Al Dark of New York, .319 and Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh, .316. Carl Furillo and Pee Wee Reese of Brooklyn tied for eighth at .315 and Harry Lowrey of St. Louis had .310.

Gil Hodges of Brooklyn regained the home run lead with his 32nd off New York's Jim Hearn. Kiner did not add to last week's total of 31 homers. Monte Irvin of New York remained first with 36 runs batted in, while Kiner led with 93 runs scored. Ashburn with 162 hits and Sam Jetmore of Boston with 25 stolen bases.

Gus Bell of Pittsburgh and Dark were joined by Wroestek and Ted Kluszewski, also of Cincinnati, in a tie for most doubles, 26. Bell also tied Musial for most triples, nine.

Although Preacher Roe went his second straight week without a win, the Dodger lefthander still topped the league with his 15-2 record. Dodger Don Newcombe was first with 119 strikeouts.

Jersey Joe Wins Hockok Award

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott won the Hockok Award as pro athlete of the month in July for his stunning upset win over Ezzard Charles. The 37-year-old heavyweight champion had a wide margin over Randy Turpin, who dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson at London.

four guys who can do it—and we'll take Frank Sedgman in one of the two singles. I'll have to concede them the doubles." Incidentally, Frank Shields, captain of the U.S. cup forces, is a real golf bug, shooting in the low 70s.

Literary Contest For French Plays Sponsored By CBC

Toronto.—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is sponsoring a new literary contest to bring more original radio programs to its French listeners.

By sponsoring the contest the CBC hopes to interest more Canadian writers in the radio markets and draw the public's attention to the creative writers of French Canada. The competition calls for original hour-long dramas in French and open to all Canadian writers—amateur, professional or beginner.

A total of $1,750 in prize money has been set aside for the contest with $1,000 going to the first-place script. Entries submitted will be judged for their radio suitability as well as for their literary merit. They will be judged by a panel of literary figures not connected with the CBC.

Marcel Oumet, director of the CBC's French network, who announced the contest, said he hoped it would uncover many new Canadian writers. The contest would also encourage professional writers to pay more attention to radio.

A similar contest staged by the CBC several years ago was won by Guy Dufresne who has since become a regular contributor to the French network. Winning plays in the new competition will be presented on the French network in the fall. Their authors will receive a regular script fee in addition to the prize money.

A talk on Canada's "Land of Silence" is scheduled for next Tuesday on the British Broadcasting Corporation's general overseas network.

The talk, titled "Hudson's Bay Trader" was written by Lord Tweedsmuir, son of the former Governor General of Canada. It is based on Lord Tweedsmuir's experiences among the Eskimos of Baffin Island during 1938 when he worked for the Hudson's Bay Company as a fur trader.

He found the Eskimo to be the most cheerful of all the King's subjects and quite hospitable and polite. Their year-round isolation tended to make them disbelieve the existence of any other way of life than their own.

Lord Tweedsmuir, whose full name is John Stuart Norman Buchan, was a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Canadian infantry corps during the second world war. At one time he commanded the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Sicily and Italy. He now is rector of Aberdeen University in Scotland.

slightly, he said. But he emphasized, the U.N. will not accept the 38th parallel as a demarcation line. That is the old political boundary between North and South Korea. It is poor terrain, militarily, for defence purposes.

The U.N. wants to hold its present position, he said, because: "It is a defensible line. The hill masses and the high points along its length command the main routes from the north which, throughout the long history of Korea, have been the main routes of invasion."

"We are not inflexible. Our point of view has been thoroughly explained, and we have expressed our willingness to make adjustments in the line as required by topography and the logic of events."

"The United Nations command is doing and is prepared to do everything possible, with honor and without appeasement, to carry the negotiations for a military armistice to a successful conclusion."

Ridgway said "there has been a very material increase" during armistice talks in communist ability to launch an attack, "and it is going on every day."

But, he said, the allies could handle any attack the Reds might launch if armistice talks break down.

Ridgway emphasized the Red build-up might be for either defensive or offensive purposes. He said they were not "bound to refrain from building up" during Kaesong talks.

So far Moscow radio has not amplified the Soviet decision to attend the conference, but it broadcast newspaper articles saying that a Japanese peace treaty would be invalid unless it carried the signatures of Russia, communist China and North Korea.

Earthquake Tremors

mors sent panic-stricken inhabitants scurrying from their homes. No damage or injuries were reported. Also shaken were the cities of Florence, Modena and Leghorn. A strong earthquake shock also was felt in a province of Chile north of the capital, Santiago. The little city of La Serena bore the brunt of the tremors but no damage or casualties were reported.

The Doctor Says

DIAGNOSIS IS IMPORTANT IN TREATING WATER-ON-THE-BRAIN

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.
Water-on-the-brain, hydrocephalus is its medical name, is luckily a rather rare condition. Nevertheless Mrs. K. asks about it and says that she thinks her 4-year-old son has it. At any rate, his head is rather large. What Mrs. K. wants to know are whether it is likely to get worse (there are apparently no symptoms now except the size of the head) and what the chances are that the boy may become mentally ill.

Now these questions are not too easy to answer. Before it can be done, one would need to know whether the enlargement of the head is really caused by accumulation of excessive fluid in the brain spaces, what caused the accumulation, whether it is getting worse, and if there are any symptoms such as headache, disturbances of vision, or mental impairment.

Sometimes, for example, the hydrocephalus is simply the result of failure of the fluid to be drained off properly. At times such a condition can be relieved by drawing off some of the fluid with a needle after which the situation takes care of itself.

As far as the outlook is concerned, a lot depends on the cause, what can be done and whether the hydrocephalus has developed slowly or rapidly. The intelligence may be affected but this is by no means always true.

One man has been reported who had an enormously stretched skull from hydrocephalus but who lived for many years and had excellent mental faculties. In milder cases, complete recovery frequently takes place, leaving a slightly enlarged skull as the only trace. Should Be Studied.

The thing to remember about this unusual condition is that if signs of it should appear, studies should be made as early as possible to determine the cause if possible and what line of treatment is best to follow.

Even though medicine does not yet know how to prevent hydrocephalus, must can be done for it and the investigations of neurologists and neurosurgeons are supplying more information and increasingly successful methods of treatment.

Women's Institute August Meeting At Stanbridge East

Stanbridge East, Aug. 14. — The August meeting of the Stanbridge East Women's Institute was held in the basement of the Anglican Church, in Freighsburg, when they entertained at a one o'clock luncheon, 88 ladies from the Home Demonstration Groups in Franklin County. There were ladies present from Franklin, Richford, East Franklin, South Franklin, Enosburg, South Berkshire, West Berkshire and St. Albans.

The business meeting was held following the luncheon with the president, Mrs. G. Harvey, presiding, and Mrs. Clifford Rhicard, acting as secretary. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag followed by the singing of "My Country 'tis of Thee," with respect to the American visitors. The Mary Stewart Collect was repeated in unison by the members.

Mrs. Harvey made a very pleasing address of welcome to the visitors, commenting on the similarity of the work of the Home Demonstration Groups and the Women's Institute and of how fortunate both were, to be able to serve under Democratic Governments.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer reported a balance of cash as $72.86 and a refund of $25 on the loom recently purchased, which is to be used by the members of the W.I. The secretary read Mrs. LeBaron's letter to the Institutes, which stated that the Tweedsmuir Essay this year would be on "The Rural Home;" also that there would be classes in home nursing, cultural courses, etc., and bursary awards.

Mrs. G. D. Harvey expressed her thanks to the group for the lovely Sunshine box she had received when she was ill, and asked that some one convey her appreciation to Mrs. Husband, Sunshine convener, who was not present at the meeting. She said she had received many such boxes in her time, but never before, one so beautifully decorated and tastefully filled.

Reports of standing committees were called. Mrs. M. A. Brown reported that she had received literature on Brownies and Guides, and that Miss Audrey Bradshaw, of Bedford and Mrs. Arthur Moore, of Stanbridge, would study them and help to instruct and assist Miss Jean Corey and Miss Joyce Fortin in order to form and lead a group of each, under the sponsorship of the Women's Institute. Mrs. Harvey introduced Miss

She also spoke of Mrs. Sayre's presence at the Institute convention, in June. In closing, she very kindly left a number of leaflets on Christmas Gift suggestions prepared by the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Vermont and State Agricultural College, Burlington, Vt. Mrs. Neil Creller graciously thanked Miss Hyde for her address and stated how pleased the Institute members were that so many had accepted the invitation to the luncheon.

Mrs. C. Rhicard gave an account of her visit to the Macdonald Convention, and a digest of Mrs. Sayre's address, after which, Mrs. Harvey gave the digest of Miss Bernice Reynolds' speech, which had been given at one of the board meetings.

The Presidents of the visiting groups each spoke a few kind words, expressing thanks for the invitation and pleasure at being present. The program for the day was prepared by Mrs. Homer Yates and conducted by Miss Hazel O'dell. It was a contest entitled, "Your Country and Mine," written throughout in rhyme, consisting of geographical and historical questions on the United States and Canada. Prizes were won by Mrs. Otis Kinney, of West Berkshire, Mrs. R. Macleary, of Enosburg, and Mrs. Arwin Bashaw, of Richford Centre, Vt.

Mrs. Harvey thanked the committee in charge of arrangements for the luncheon and said plans for a September meeting would be made later, as necessary arrangements must be made for the Hobby Show, to be held on September 13, in the Memorial Hall.

The Children's Corner

Tee Joe's Pretty Pests

BY LEE PRESTLEY

TEE JOE didn't like parties much, but since he'd paid his 15 cents to enter the contest for the best boy's costume, he guessed he would go. The Library Lady had thought up the party to make some money for the Book Boat that came to the Landing the first of every month.

Tee Joe consulted Gran'Mere about it over his breakfast. "What would make a good costume? Not like the crazy ones we wear at Mardi Gras. The lady said something typ . . . tip . . . It was some word that meant 'like the Big River country!'"

Tee Joe looked mighty like Jean LaFitte the pirate when he started out.

"Quit playin' with that salt, Tee Joe. Now, see! You spilled it. Throw some over your shoulder, or it will be bad luck."

But Tee Joe was too busy thinking about the costume to throw the salt over his shoulder. "I guess she meant dress up like a fisherman or a trapper."

Gran'Mere and Tee Joe thought about it.

"Maybe you could wear Gran'Pere's old blue coat and hard hat," Gran'Mere suggested. "Make like you was a steamboat pilot. Only I doubt you could act biggity enough."

Then they both had a fine idea. Jean LaFitte! That gay rascal who had been a pirate or a smuggler or a patriot (it all depended on whom you asked) had lived at nearby Barataria Bay.

"And we'll keep it a secret," Tee Joe planned. "So nobody else will think to be a pirate."

THE whole family helped with the costume. Gran'Pere braided a wide palmetto hat, painted it black with stove polish and fastened it up in front with a startling skull and cross bones he carved from a bar of store soap. Gran'Mere cut off the sleeves of a striped shirt and made a pair of pantaloons out of blue dyed sail cloth. Big Joe folded down the tops of some old rubber waders until they looked like real jack boots. Tee Joe whittled a pair of pistols and did such a good job that Lizette gave him a red sash to thrust the pistols into, real pirate style.

Tee Joe looked mighty like Jean LaFitte, the pirate, when he started out. The wind had blown hard all morning, but he didn't think about that until he tried to paddle the piroque out of the bayou. The canal that led to the Landing and the party was shut up tight as a corked jug by a wind blown mat of water hyacinth.

Tee Joe glowered at the mass of bright green leaves and silken lavender flowers. Water hyacinth was pretty enough, but it was the worst pest in the whole bayou country. The odd, bulbous, air-filled roots of the plant permitted it to float on the surface of the water. But the leaves and roots held together so tight that no boat could push through the great mats.

Tee Joe remembered the spilled salt then. He had forgotten to throw some over his shoulder to take away the bad luck and look what had happened. He wondered if he could crawl over the flowery mat. It would bear up considerable weight, he knew. He had seen water birds, even a muskrat or turtle cross the floating lavender carpet. He might get a little wet but that wouldn't hurt his costume much—not if he shed the pirate hat to the bank ahead.

That hat landed well ahead of the hyacinth square on a startled blue heron hidden in the tall grass! The bird flew up crazily carrying the hat perched precariously on its back. Someday someone would find the hat floating in the swamp and wonder about it . . .

Tee Joe began creeping over the tipping, bobbing flowers. A knee went through. He crawled faster, spread out like a muskrat skin nailed to a stretching board. Lizette's red sash caught on a floating snag. When it ripped loose the pistols fell out and were lost, too.

The jack boots went when Tee Joe slipped into the boghole on the path beside the canal. He could get out, well smeared with mud, but he couldn't get the boots pulled out of the sucking muck.

The Landing was just down the path, but Tee Joe's pirate costume was gone down to the last piece. That was real bad luck. Furiouly he pulled strands of Spanish moss from the oaks and fashioned a wild looking wig. Then he made a wreath of the pretty pests and clapped it on his head. He thought he might as well have some fun and scare the kids at the party by looking like a wild man from the swamps!

WHEN he opened the door of the hall, the Library Lady was looking distracted about awarding the prize for the best boy's costume. Facing her were 14 Jean LaFittes each looking like the other in black palm hats, wader jack boots and with wooden pistols in red sashes!

The Library Lady saw Tee Joe standing in the doorway, dripping, mud smeared, tattered, hung with Spanish moss and crowned with water hyacinth. A look of relief came over her face.

"The first prize for the best boy's costume goes to Tee Joe," she announced. "For his very original costume showing the Spirit of the Swamp!"

Leaving wet footprints on the floor, Tee Joe stepped up for the prize. He was thinking that bad luck was a funny thing.

Tight Squeeze

A plump woman asked a boy nearby if she could go through the gate to the park.

Mock Marriage At Bridal Shower Is Gay In Lennoxville

After the many beautiful gifts had been greatly admired, quiz games were enjoyed with Mrs. G. Wray emerging as the winner.

A delicious lunch was then served by the hostess, who was assisted by Mrs. H. Bennett, Mrs. A. Reynolds and Mrs. A. Raycraft. The tea table, which was covered with a lace cloth, was centred with a silver basket of white and yellow summer flowers and matching lighted tapers in silver holders. Two-Floor Restaurant Is New Feature Of Rex Theatre

Orchestras Will Be In Attendance; Full-Fledged Restaurant In Theatre On Galt Street Is New Idea Locally

Although it is part of the lobby of the Rex Theatre, the new two-floor restaurant will cater also to persons coming in from the street for a complete meal or a sandwich and coffee.

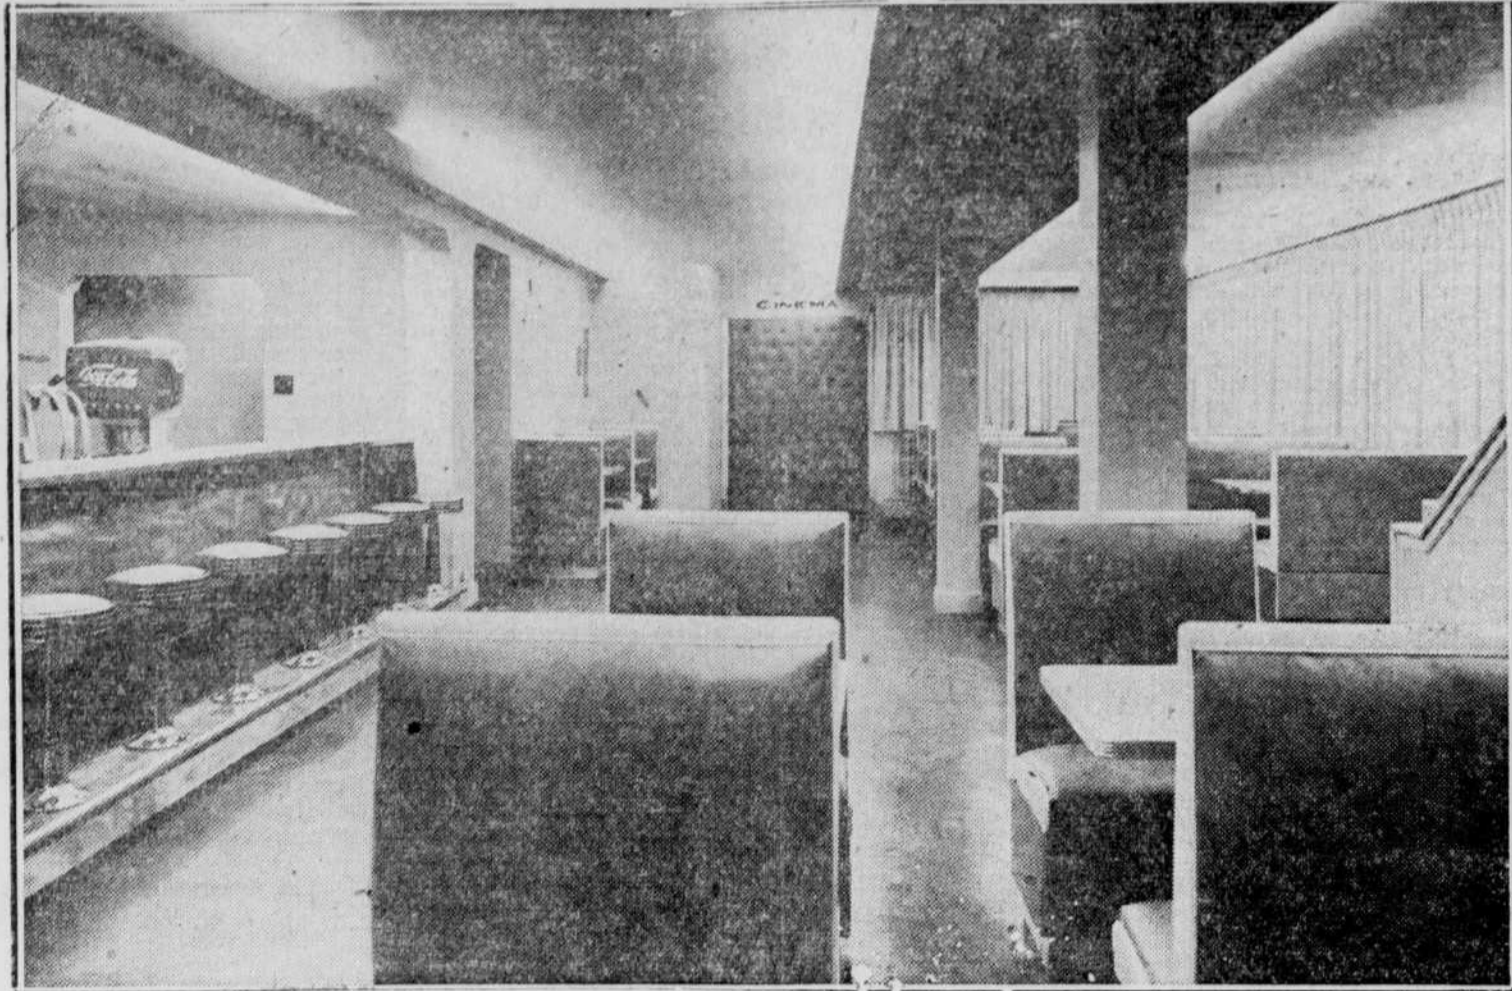

The idea of a restaurant which will serve everything from steaks and spaghetti to a coke within the limits of a motion picture theatre is a new one for this district.

Theatre manager Guy Bachand brought the idea home with him from a trip to Philadelphia last winter. He also has an American plan for distinguishing persons who have paid their way into the movie and have left the auditorium for a snack from persons who have come into the restaurant from the street to dine. A plan such as this one is necessary since the theatre crowd will be mingling with the diners during movie intermissions, both in "the Club," which is the lower floor section of the restaurant and in the mezzanine.

For the grand opening of the theatre restaurant, Mr. Bachand has an elaborate program planned which will include the presence of two musical aggregations, playing music at the same time in both sections of the restaurant. The program of music, which will also include leading district soloists, will continue from Wednesday until Saturday, inclusive.

The new theatre restaurant will cater to persons who wish a quick snack during intermissions at the movies and the more-leisurely diners who come in for a good, complete, meal.

The Restaurant Rex will not only provide an added service for patrons of the Rex Theatre but will provide also a fine, new restaurant for residents of the west ward.

THE QUIET AND RESTFUL CLUB RESTAURANT — Those who appreciate good food and a dignified atmosphere will welcome this new cafe. Utmost care is taken to assure the fastidious diner of the very best prepared food.

Girl Is Chartmaker For Harness Races

Toronto. — Mary Crosby got herself a job this summer as chart-maker for the "trots" at Thorncliffe raceway, Pert, 19-year-old Mary wasn't thinking about precedents.

Then reporters discovered her to be the first girl to sit in a Toronto race-track press-box and record the performances of the horses.

They dug further into records and found she may be the first in North America.

"Now they believe I'm the only one in the world," gasped pretty Mary.

There have been photographs and interviews. Mary flattered long black eyelashes. Interviews terrify her, she said.

Research as well as chart-making is involved in this job. The "trots" are six weeks of harness-racing at Thorncliffe, sponsored by the Canadian Trotting Association. Mary must keep charts of each horse's history and performance in the race.

Next fall she hopes to be keeping a different kind of chart—temperature charts. Because Mary is going to train to be a nurse.

"I would like eventually to work in Toronto's Sick Children's Hospital," she said. "You see, I like nursing."

Outside activities? Mary likes "sports especially." Basketball and volleyball are her favorites. She also is fond of music.

Boy friends? She's not "considering them now."

"I've got a career ahead of me, you see," she said.

Meanwhile she's learning all about race-tracks—including the language.

For instance, "When a horse makes a break that means it has got to get back into step," she explained.

However, races don't excite her as they do most people.

"I suppose if I bet on them they might," she conceded.

She Made Fortune Washing Clothes In '98 Gold Rush

Victoria, B. C. — Mrs. Josephine Cassidy, an energetic woman of 86, recalls that she made a fortune in the Yukon gold rush days by taking in washing.

In 1897 she was a dark-haired beauty with flashing eyes and a strong arm. It had to be strong because she did so much washing. She earned $50 to $150 a day.

"I used to muck my dog team eight or 10 miles up the trail from Dawson to the R.C.M.P. station. Oh, those trousers with the yellow stripes! Washed so many of them I can't count.

"Never see those yellow striped pants that I don't want to rush up and shake the hand of the man who owns them."

Mrs. Cassidy first achieved fame when she won a race with her dog team. "Col. Steele of the Mounties—the bank manager—everyone bet on me," she said.

"The race was eight miles over unbroken trail and I won $2,000."

She and her husband had bought equipment to join the gold rush. A series of misfortunes dogged them, culminating in the loss of all the expensive equipment.

One day someone asked her if she could wash. "And that is how I started my business," she said.

"I did very well, for when I left the Yukon I came out with a stake of $100,000."

At her home here Mrs. Cassidy observes an old unwritten law of the Yukon by keeping her table set at all times.

Colored Booklet Is Only Memento Of Cowboy Movie

Calgary. — The handsome hero learned over and kissed the heroine as she casually produced her trusty guitar and played a tune to the wire-supported moon over Lake Louise.

Then, as the sun sank slowly, they rode away together to the Calgary exhibition grounds.

The scene was Calgary's first movie set. The date: 1927.

It was Calgary's lone entry into the motion picture business — a roo-tin'-tootin' epic called "His Destiny."

All that remains of it now is a brilliantly-colored booklet describing the "stupendous story of the foothills of Alberta," that was "sincere and convincing, abounding in thrilling surprises."

Neal Hart, the cowboy glamor man of the '20s, was the star. He was also the director and in the movie was called upon to stop a wild horse stampede.

In the booklet, Hart is pictured wearing a wide-brimmed hat, pearl-buttoned shirt and fancy riding pants. He is also shown in a dark suit with a black tie wearing the worried look of a director.

The rest of the cast was home town talent Joe Big Plume, chief of the Sarcee tribe, played an Indian chief.

Inspector James Spaulding of the R.C.M.P. was a Mounted Police inspector. And somehow, Viscount Willingdon, then Governor-General of Canada, appeared in publicity as the Governor-General of Canada.

Mary Cross, "Queen of the Saddle"—a Native of Calgary, was the heroine.

One of her accomplishments in the film was riding a democrat—the wagon, not the political adherent—down the streets of Calgary to a ranch.

The sun porch of the Pallister hotel was one of the screen ranch houses. The city court house was another.

But as the booklet put it, "his destiny was more than a picture; it was grim reality that arouses every human emotion and causes amazement at the startling situations that follow in rapid succession."

The only trouble was that it was too grimly real and amazing for the patrons.

Aerial Dressing Increases Output New Zealand Farm

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent
Auckland, N.Z. — The fastest-growing branch of farming in New Zealand is aerial top-dressing—the spreading of chemical fertilizer from aircraft. It is rapidly becoming one of the main factors in expanding the Dominion's productivity.

The intensive farming practised in New Zealand with a high concentration of animals to the acre requires regular application of large quantities of fertilizer to keep pastures in good condition. On level country machine spreading offers no difficulties, but a large proportion of New Zealand pastures is hilly, often broken by steep ravines and ridges.

Various high pressure mechanical blowers have been used in this country, but hitherto large areas could be fertilized only by hand, if at all, owing to the steepness of the land and difficulties of access.

The result has been that vast areas of hill country pastures have been topdressed only occasionally so that they carry sparse flocks and herds, although the land is good and capable of supporting a greatly increased number of animals if topdressed regularly.

Aerial topdressing began in a small way after the war. The air force and government scientists co-operated with representatives of soil conservation organizations, fertilizer companies and farming interests in the initial experiments. In these tests techniques and equipment peculiar to New Zealand were developed to suit local needs. Various types of air force trainer planes were used, fitted with specially designed hoppers to hold the fertilizer and release it at an even rate.

Later a few private operators began topdressing on a commercial basis. They were mostly groups of wartime pilots who had put their savings together to buy one or two Tiger Moths. In the 1949-50 season eight firms were engaged in the work and they dropped 5,000 tons of fertilizer.

Farmers had by then become thoroughly convinced of the value of the new method for increasing production, and in the 1950-51 season the number of aerial topdressing firms jumped to 28 and fertilizer dropped rose to 44,822 tons.

This is still only a beginning, however, compared with developments expected in the future. There are indications that a very much larger amount of fertilizer will be dropped this season than last. Larger planes are being imported, capable of handling far greater quantities. One firm has recently been experimenting with a specially fitted de Havilland Beaver imported from Canada, while others have been using larger planes from Britain.

The work has reached such a scale that the Aerial Work Operators' Association has proposed a series of safety regulations to ensure that farmers are not involved in claims through accidents with inexperienced firms. There has been a fairly high rate of accidents in the work and the Association has proposed a set of safety standards and measures to maintain an adequate competence among pilots.

Self-Taught Pianist Gives Free Concerts

Calgary. — Sidney Leonard of Winnipeg has spent most of his life playing the piano for other people's entertainment—free.

And he's never had a music lesson in his life.

The 64-year-old entertainer visited Calgary on a western tour recently, playing for war veterans, hospital patients and crippled children.

"I've been in plenty of hospitals myself," said the veteran entertainer, "and it's a real pleasure to cheer up shut-ins because I know just how they feel."

Born in South Africa, Mr. Leonard moved to Winnipeg in 1907.

He says he has never received a penny for his efforts. Any gate receipts are given to charity and he pays all his own expenses from his private income from an estate in South Africa.

He has never taken a piano lesson in his life and can't read a note of music, but he can play any musical selection from the overture to "Faust" to "Alexander's

Urges More Comfort For Air Travellers

Montreal. — Aircraft designers neglect human comfort when building their airliners, said Sir William Hildred, head of international air transport association, in a recent interview.

Sir William, who flies 100,000 miles a year, said that present-day aircraft are wonders of safety, speed and durability. But inside, where passengers live and form their opinions of flying, things aren't too good.

The average passenger wants to sit, read, sleep, eat and clean-up. None of these things can be performed adequately in any aircraft in the western world, he said.

The seats, he claimed, cut off the circulation in the thighs, and there is not enough leg room to allow the passenger to lie back and catch a nap.

Eating is still an unsolved problem with trays that are inadequate for average use.

The light switch is directly over the passenger on the roof. To reach it the passenger must lift himself from the seat and paw overhead.

If he can't reach the switch and decides to ring for the stewardess, he can't—the bell button is beside the light switch.

Patrol Boat Wars On Basking Sharks

Victoria, B.C.—War against one of the biggest nuisances in the fishing industry—the basking shark—is being intensified by the federal fisheries department.

Taking part in the battle is the 68-foot vessel Comox-Park which covers much of the west coast of British Columbia.

Basking sharks, so called because they just loaf along with dorsal fins showing above water, are "pretty stupid," Capt. H. P. Nightingale of the Comox Park says.

"They can probably travel at very substantial speeds, but all I have seen were just lazing their way along the surface."

It is not uncommon for the patrol vessel's sharp prow to ram a shark, and quite a few have been killed that way. But most kills are made with a special harpoon. A mature shark is between 40 and 50 feet long, weighing several tons, and when harpooned displays tremendous strength. "We can get very close to the sharks," said the skipper, "and they don't appear to be a bit concerned until the harpoon finds its mark." Sharks have been known to tear around in the water for as long as two hours trailing the heavy 600-foot rope attached to the harpoon with a drum on the other end before becoming exhausted. "They raise pure Cain with fishermen's gear, especially gill nets," said Capt. Nightingale. During war years the big sharks were sought for their livers, but today there is no demand for them. It is not unusual for a shark liver to weigh up to 1,700 pounds.

Halifax Operator Scans Television At Long Distance

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Toronto. — New and amazing distance records for television reception have been reported, but like previous cases they are something of a freak.

These scattered long-distance cases in no way affect the plans for Canadian television. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has just announced award of a contract to the Bell Telephone Company for maintenance of a television link between Montreal, Toronto and Buffalo. The Montreal and Toronto stations will be in operation in 1952.

While reception generally is limited at present to receivers close to American TV stations, a veteran Halifax radio engineer has set new long distance reception records. He is Arleigh Canning.

Since he started experimenting two years ago Canning has chalked up a total of 17 stations from which he has watched programs. He uses an ordinary commercial TV set with a standard "booster." But he's put a lot of work into his efforts.

Canning, chief operator for the CEC in Halifax, first experimented with a receiver atop various high points in Nova Scotia. The trips were unsuccessful and he wound up with the receiver in his living room and an aerial on his roof.

His confirmed distance record so far is Houston, Texas, about 2,100 miles distant, but he has also received programs at times from Sao Paulo, 4,200 miles away in Brazil.

Mountain peaks and deep valleys are no bar to educational radio broadcasts in Columbia, one of the most mountainous central American republics.

Pupils in country schools, children of peasants separated by hilly country from the capital at Bogota, are regularly receiving programs in Columbia. Originator of the program was Father Joaquin Salcedo, a young priest, who regularly produces programs from a station 75 miles away from Bogota.

"I wanted to reach the social centres and to be in touch with the peasants who can neither read nor write," the priest explains. "So instead of having pupils come to the schools, we brought the school to the pupils."

At each meeting place for the pupils, in the various farmhouses or assembly halls, there is a battery-powered receiver, and textbooks previously distributed are used as a guide for the lessons.

quick and efficient service. The waitress in the mezzanine restaurant has only to place her order at the loudspeaker to the kitchen staff below.

Also connecting the mezzanine restaurant to the central kitchen on the lower floor is a small elevator which will carry meals to the floor above.

The mezzanine restaurant, which connects with the street, can also accommodate 60 persons at the same time, at the tables. In the near future a soda bar might be installed on this floor as well.

The floor is covered with very attractive linoleum which will be scrubbed every day. A juke box is on hand for customers who like music with their meals.

The exterior of the building has been completely remodelled and is in the form of a large window, bordered by aluminum. The door to the theatre remains unaltered but there is now an entrance to the mezzanine restaurant through a side door in the theatre lobby proper.

The theatre restaurant will remain open daily from nine o'clock in the morning until one a.m. and until three o'clock on Sunday mornings. The menu will be a la carte.

It will be known as the Restaurant Rex, and is a new idea for this district.

Sea Cadets Link Training, Sport On Georgian Bay

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Midland, Ont. — More than 1,000 energetic Canadian youngsters are summer visitors at Georgian Bay's rocky Minicog Island, a few miles north of here.

The boys who swarm about the 57-acre area known as Princess Alice camp are Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from every part of Canada. Water and air are clean and fresh and it is a good place for boys to learn about the sea.

Every two weeks through July and August 300 boys from Vancouver and Montreal, St. John's and Prince Albert and a score of other cities and towns across the Dominion arrived at the camp.

Princess Alice camp is one of three for Canadian Sea Cadets. It was sold to the Navy League of Canada, sponsors of the R.C.S.C. organization, in 1943 at a cost of $1, by Canadian industrialist George Leitch of Toronto and James Norris of Chicago, Ill. During the war years Princess Alice camp was used to train navy personnel as well as sea cadets.

The man with the job of training, feeding and caring for the teen-age boys, some of them thousands of miles from home, is Lt. CMDR. Jim Christ, R.C.N. of Toronto. His executive officer is Lt. CMDR. P. K. Wilton, R.C.N. of Halifax.

On arrival at the camp the cadets are divided into 10 divisions. Each morning of their 14-day stay they are up at 7 A.M. for religious services on the deck—a square of grass in front of the administration hall. Rev. Robert Good of Ottawa is the camp's Protestant padre while Rev. W. H. Principe of St. Michael's College, Toronto, and Rev. M. Robitaille of St. Marie College, Montreal, conduct the Roman Catholic services.

Breakfast is next.

At one table sits Claude Brisson, 14, one of the 38 French-speaking boys from Montreal. Next to him, George Warford, 14, of St. John's, adds the Newfoundland accent to the general din.

Down the line 15-year-old Gerald Mackie of Prince Albert, Sask., talks across the table to Tom Graham, 16, of Vancouver. The leader of the group of 66 boys from British Columbia, R.W. T. L. Leadvater, is quick to point out to visitors that his boys took first place in the swimming, dinghy racing and cutter competition in the camp's weekly regatta.

After breakfast comes one of the four, one-hour daily instruction periods when the boys are taught dinghy sailing, cutter pulling, signalling, seamanship and citizenship.

There's a well equipped sick bay staffed by Dr. Edward Klein of Harvard University and nurse Isabel Cody of Newmarket, Ont. If there's a real emergency the radio-telephone to the mainland alerts Midland Hospital while the boy makes the trip in one of the camp's motor launches.

Following a summer at the Georgian Bay camp a cadet may attend H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, near Digby, N.S. and the camp at Latona, Vancouver, B.C. Operational costs of these camps, including a $3,000 weekly food bill at Princess Alice, are paid by the Royal Canadian Navy, with the Navy League responsible for maintenance.

Training which they have received at camps such as Princess Alice has proved invaluable to the ex-cadets who form 60 per cent of Canada's naval forces.

Said Dr. Klein: "Here it is not important what language a boy speaks or where he was born. If he pulls a good oar he is to the boys a 'good guy,' and that lasts."

Sun Crest Beverages Are Now Available In Sherbrooke

Famous Sun Crest Soft Drinks Being Bottled At Little Lake

Sun Crest Sherbrooke Reg'd is undoubtedly destined to become one of the best-known bottling works in the district. You might say that the high quality of the products, which are nationally distributed, guarantees the success of this venture.

The new bottling establishment, of which A. M. Leblanc is proprietor, is situated at Little Lake Magog, centrally located between two of the townships largest centers, Sherbrooke and Magog. The whole district, as far as Thetford Mines and Lake Megantic, is served from this headquarters.

Mr. Leblanc has spared neither expense nor effort to assure the public of the very best soft drinks on the market. All machinery is the most modern available.

The plant is kept scrupulously clean; a 203 foot artesian well was sunk especially to serve the new plant. This absolutely pure water is undoubtedly one of the factors that contribute to the delicious tang of locally bottled Sun Crest beverages.

These new and distinctive soft drinks will undoubtedly cause a great deal of comment in the Eastern Townships as they are definitely superior from all points of view.

Show Literature Tends To Change Disease Fashion

By W. G. ROGERS

New York. — People in books just now are most liable to catch asthma, if they are going to have any disease.

Among novelists and dramatists there are fashions in diseases just as in clothes, speech and plots. The writer knows what the public is most noticeably suffering from or is afraid of, and if his characters must fall ill they are stricken with the currently most-talked about illness.

A hundred years ago it was tuberculosis. Fifty years ago, it was venereal disease. Today characters wheeze, snuffle and gasp for breath, take their special inhalation or sprays, and reach for the ephedrine.

There is, of course, no general standard ailment for which hero and heroine must be extra watchful. They can die of as many different things as the non-bookish mortal. Tessa, of Margaret Kennedy's "The Constant Nymph," died of heart attack. Henry James' "Daisy Miller" succumbed to malaria.

The cripple has figured in a lot of stories: Tiny Tim, in Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," Heyward's "Porgy" whom you probably met in the opera, "Porgy and Bess," Laura in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," and the wife of Edith Wharton's "Ethan Frome."

Heroines, like Esther in Dickens' "Bleak House," used to have good reason to fear smallpox and its disfigurements; and better reason to fear leprosy, the affliction suffered by the mother and sister of Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur" and cured by a miracle. Dostoevsky's "The Idiot" was epileptic, Ajax went mad. So did Walter Scott's Luey, "The Bride of Lammermoor," who goes mad operatically in fanciful coloratura passages.

Novelists began to inflict asthma on their people when they began to read about allergies in the newspapers. But even before the word got around, Marcel Proust, an asthmatic himself, became the ailing hero of his great novel, "In Remembrance of Things Past."

Other asthmatics, in more recent fiction have been Carey Arundel's stepfather, who took so many pills to cure his wheezes that he killed

Co-Op Housing Plan Provides Own Labor

Prince Rupert, B.C.—Thirty-six workers at a new cellulose plant here believe they have licked the house shortage by forming their own housing co-operative.

The group plans to have 20 homes ready for occupancy by Christmas, with a hotel and school to be built later.

"We wanted homes to bring our families to," says Len Loucks, an electrical superintendent, "but we saw we couldn't have homes unless we built them ourselves."

So the 36 members undertook to buy enough shares in the Co-op to finance the program. With members and their friends supplying most of the labor, they expect to build good homes for about $5,000 apiece.

The site for the housing development is near the new plant on Watson island, six miles south of here.

They contemplate a progressive financing method rather than trying to finance the entire undertaking at once. Enough money has already been subscribed to build the first home, and that one will be mortgaged to finance the second, and so on until the 20 homes are completed.

This picture shows the exterior of the newly constructed Sun-Crest Sherbrooke Reg'd Bottling Works. This modern business is located at Little Lake Magog. One of the company's trucks, a fleet of which is used to distribute these delicious soft drinks in the Eastern Townships, is shown in the picture.

A. M. LEBLANC, proprietor of Sun-Crest Sherbrooke Reg'd, in his modern bottling plant. It is evident that the machinery is modern and that absolute cleanliness is observed in the bottling works.

himself, in James Hilton's "Morning Journey." Catfish Edwards, who dosed himself liberally with a corn liquor cure, in Fred Ross' "Jackson Mahaffey," the aged aunt of Eric Rumbold's mistress, in John Lodwick's "Brother Death," the suffering heroine of Anne Crone's "Bridie Steen," who has vicious attacks; and Mrs. Antolini, in J. D. Salinger's new "The Catcher in the Rye."

A century ago, heroines coughed themselves to death. Margherita Gauthier was the stricken heroine in "Camille" (1852), by Dumas. Fils. Just a year before, Murger wrote "La Vie de Boheme," and countless Mimis have died lingering deaths on operatic stages since then. That was not exclusively mid-19th century, either; it was the disease which Joseph Conrad gave to his "Nigger of the Narcissus."

Carrier Girls Shine In West

Moose Jaw, Sask.—Boys in Moose Jaw are putting their sisters to work. The Moose Jaw Times-Herald now has several girls on its delivery routes.

Most of the girls are substituting for their brothers, who have either taken jobs paying better money for the summer or have gone on holidays.

Circulation Manager Harold Woodall won't go so far as to say girls are better than boys in the paper delivery business. But he claims there are fewer complaints on routes serviced by girls.

U. S. Doubles Tennis Tournament Reduces Field Of 144 Pairs By Forcing Top Teams To Play Matches

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The U.S. National Doubles Tennis Tournament was geared to reduce its starting field of 144 pairs, representing eight nations, to a more manageable 50-hole during today's second-round competition at Longwood.

Six of the men's seeded teams and three of the top-ranked feminine pairs were denied yesterday that they were granted to such outstanding entries as four-time winners Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Bill Talbert of New York, and Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor. Sedgman won here last year with countryman Jack Bromwich.

Pacing yesterday's victors from scratch were second-seeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles, and Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, who subdued Roger Young of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Jack Lynch from nearby Newton, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2. Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, spotted third on the domestic list, ousted Axel Kaufman of New York, and Bill Chalk, another Newtonite, 6-3, 6-0, 6-0.

Australia's Mervyn Rose and Don Candy humbled Stan Canton of Plainfield, N.J., and Gerry Slobin of Hartford, Conn., 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

Top-seeded Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., coasted into the second round on a bye as their most threatening rivals did so with decisive wins.

The second-seeded Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif., breezed for a 6-0, 6-1 win over Doris People of Des Moines, Ia., and Argyll Rice of Hartford, Conn. Third-seeded Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., and Nancy Morrison of West Palm Beach, Fla., overcame Rosemary Buck of Dallas, Tex., and Margaret Verner of Los Angeles, 12-10, 6-2.

Chalks Up His 19th Win Of Year To Help Indians Extend Lead Over Yankees To Two And A Half Games

Bob Feller celebrated his night at Cleveland Stadium Monday as he pitched the Indians to a 2-1 victory over Detroit Tigers and a 2 1/2-game lead in the American League.

His seventh-inning triumph was Feller's 19th and ran the Tribe's winning string to 11 straight.

One of the Tribe's seven hits was Al Rosen's fourth-inning homer, his 20th of the season.

The Indians' other run was unearned.

Ironically, Feller who won fame as a strikeout king, did not fan a single batter last night.

The Tigers spoiled Feller's bid for a shutout in the eighth. Jerry Friddy and Dick Kryhoski singled. George Kell grounded to Rosen and Friddy scored.

For the first six innings Feller was locked in a hurling duel with Marlin Stuart, 32-year-old knuckleballer.

Stuart rationed five hits before he was lited for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. He fanned three but was knocked for both Cleveland runs.

Philadelphia Athletics, in the most violent hitting attack New York has faced this season, defeated the Yankees 16-8 for their third straight victory over the World Champions.

Led by Pete Suder, Joe Tipton and Lou Limmer, each of whom drove in three runs, the A's clubbed four New York pitchers for 13 hits—the most collected by any team in a nine-inning game this year. Besides the hit barrage, including three doubles and two triples, it was also the most runs scored against New York in 1951.

Th A's drove Vic Raschi, New York's ace right-hander and generally a Philadelphia jinx, to the showers in the second. But it was Joe Ostrowski, the first of three relievers, who was charged with the defeat, his third against four wins.

Drummondville Edges Granby 6-4 To Extend Lead In Provincial; Three Rivers Down Quebec 4-1

The leaders and cellar-dwellers of the Provincial Baseball League defeated opposing clubs Monday night.

Drummondville Cubs, playing at Granby, widened their lead over the second-place Red Sox, downing them 6-4, while Three Rivers Royals won a home game 4-1 over the fourth-place Quebec Royals.

Jean-Pierre Roy, recently traded by Three Rivers to Drummondville who leads the eight-team loop by two games, was winning pitcher, working the full nine innings. Granby sent three hurlers to the mound and H. Griffith, who pitched the last frame, was charged with the defeat.

Drummondville, outitting the Sox 15-8, bunched three runs in the last inning to take the victory.

P. Barnes worked all the way for Three Rivers to earn the vic-

"Ladies' Night" To Be Held Tomorrow When St. Johns Meet Athletics In Twin-Bill; Ten Prizes To Be Drawn

Ten wonderful prizes will be drawn tomorrow evening at the Park Avenue Stadium when "Ladies' Night" will be held by the Sherbrooke Baseball Club.

St. Johns will be the visiting team and will tangle with the A's in a doubleheader, the first game commencing at 6:45, which will be a seven-inning affair, with the regular game following immediately after.

If the passing out of the special tickets for the game is any indication then the largest crowd of the season should be on hand for the event. The lady fans seemed highly pleased with the new idea. Only presenting the special tickets at the gate the lady supporters will be admitted for the small fee of 25 cents.

Joe Louis-Jimmy Bivins Bout Typical Of Heavyweight Situation; Meet Tomorrow Night At Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A 10-round fight here Wednesday night between Joe Louis and Jimmy Bivins is a story of today's heavyweight situation.

They never fought except an exhibition during their prime when Louis was busy 25 times defending his title and Bivins frequently ranked as a contender.

Now in the twilight of their careers they meet in what is considered an important encounter.

Important for 37-year-old Louis who has to go on winning if he's to get that comeback shot at the crown held by Jersey Joe Walcott.

Important for Bivins, too, because an upset might catapult him into line for the same chance. He has beaten Ezzard Charles.

Louis and Bivins is the best of the eight fighters he's taken

Hamilton Marksman Wins Connaught Match As Dominion Shoot Opens

Connaught Ranges, South March, Ont., Aug. 14.—(AP)—A 38-year-old Royal Hamilton Light Infantry marksman yesterday beat out 12 other veteran riflemen to win the Connaught Match at the opening day of the 83rd annual Dominion shoot.

S. Sgt. G. B. Kay, three times a member of the Canadian Bisley team, had to work hard for his win. He fired 18 bulls-eyes from 500 yards before he bested Maj. Desmond Burke of Toronto and Ottawa, a former King's Prize winner.

Thirteen riflemen finished the match with possible 50's but in the shoot-off Kay and Burke went out in front.

The pair matched bulls-eyes for 15 shots before Maj. Burke dropped to an inner on his 16th try.

Conditions were ideal for shoot, and only a light southeast breeze swept across these ranges, 14 miles west of Ottawa.

Close competition featured the three major events.

Besides the Connaught, 13 possibles were posted in the Tilton event from 300 yards and five in the Tyro match from 200 yards.

Demon Hanover, winner of the 1949 Hambletonian, Darn Flashy, Hadley Hanover and Tryshusky.

Invitations also have been extended to Star's Pride, Pronto Don, Bangaway, Peter Abbey, Aimee Scott, Silver Riddle, Jenko Hanover, Lord Steward and Mainliner, winner of the recent Hambletonian.

Railroaders And Textile Stage Fight For Honors In Industrial Softball Loop; Both Won Last Night

Textile and Railroaders who are running neck and neck for league honors, in the Sherbrooke Industrial Softball League, won their games against Machinery and Rubins, respectively, last night at Dufresne Park. Textile winning 13 to 6, and Railroaders smothered Rubins 16 to 2.

Machinery took a four run lead in the opening inning against Textile. They still led 4-3 at the end of the fourth inning, but in the fifth and sixth the Textile crew scored 10 runs, getting these on 5 hits and three miscues by the Machinery fielders.

Rene Pepin on the mound for Textile had trouble all the way with his deliveries, but smart defensive play by his infield pulled him out of more than one difficult spot. Machinery in the game left no less than 11 men on bases.

For three innings the Railroaders-Rubins clash was a ball game, after that the Rubins team fell apart.

Rubin got the first run of the game in their half of the opening inning. This he held on to until the fourth inning, when Railroaders tallied 8 runs, getting these on 1 hit and 6 miscues by the Rubins infield and also helped along by 5 free passes issued by Ronald, the Rubins' pitcher. Rubins tallied their second run in their half of the fourth, on two hits and

Seeded Players Race Through First, Second Rounds In Provincial Event; Bedard Drops Tough Match To Remy

Quebec, Aug. 14.—Ten players including defending champion Brendan Macken of Montreal yesterday advanced to the third round of the men's singles in opening day's play of the Quebec Provincial Tennis Championships. Seven entrants in the ladies singles swept through two rounds to reach the quarter-finals.

Six more third-round players in the men's singles and another quarter-final round player in the ladies event will be decided in remaining second-round matches to be played today.

In the ladies' doubles, defending champion Pat Macken, Brendan's sister, will team up with Montreal's Kae Otton to defend her title.

Macken and Tony Vincent of Elmurst, N. Y., top-seeded non-Canadian, were the only two leading players to reach the third round in the men's singles.

wo Torontonians, Beau Summers and Don Fontana, swept through the second round easily.

Others to reach the third round were Don Hodges of Regina; George Robinson and Jack Spencer, both of Montreal; Albert Stitt of Boston and two Quebecers, Jean Marois and Jacques Giguere.

Lorne Main of Vancouver and Henri Roehon of Montreal, members of Canada's Davis Cup team with Macken, won their first-round matches as did France's Paul Remy and Jean Zolnari.

Main is seeded second behind Macken and Roehon is No. 3. Remy and Molinari are seeded behind Vincent in the foreign group.

In the ladies' singles, Miss Macken led six other players who reached the quarter-finals. They

Leafs Blank Browns In Exhibition Tilt

Toronto, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Frank (Buster) Barnes pitched four-hit shut-out ball last night when Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League defeated their big league cousins, St. Louis Browns of the American League 3-0, before 5,354.

The Leafs, who have a working agreement with the Browns, tagged the ageless Satchel Paige for the loss. It was Barnes first victory with the Leafs.

Johnny Ostrowski and Les Fleming smashed home runs off reliever Fred Sanford who took over from Paige in the third inning. But the game was already lost earlier when Les Fleming singled in the first score.

Race For Playoff Spots In I.L. To Be Close

It appears that Rochester Red Wings, Buffalo Bisons, Syracuse Chiefs and Toronto Maple Leafs will battle right down to the wire for the three remaining International League playoff berths.

Montreal Royals are out in front by 13 games but only six games separate the fourth-place Syracuse Chiefs from the runner-up Red Wings today. The third-place Bisons are three games back of the Wings while the fifth-place Leafs are four games behind the Chiefs.

Rochester chalked up its seventh straight triumph last night, beating the Bisons 11-4. Bob Habentini limited Buffalo to six hits. The Wings pounded Buffalo ace Rudy Minarcin and three relief pitchers for 11 hits.

The Chiefs snapped a six-game losing streak as lefty Bill Miller turned back the Baltimore Orioles 2-1. Howie Moss accounted for the only Oriole run with a homer in the second inning. The Chiefs scored both of their runs in the last of the second on two walks, a fielder's choice and Ben Zientara's infield single and an error.

Springfield's tail-end Cubs defeated Montreal 3-1. The victory ended a 20-game losing streak in the Royals' park for the Cubs. Vern Fehr, with help from Tony Jacobs, gained credit for the victory. Carmen Mauro homered for the first Cub run in the opening inning. Nels Burbrink and Ed McQuade drove home the others in the sixth.
