A DISPUTED CLAIM.

Arguments Heard in a Complicated Case—Decision Reserved.

The argument in the case of Messrs. A. B. Stewart, Alexander Molson and Herbert Molson against the Molson's Bank for the value of 640 shares of the capital stock of that bank, was heard in the Practice Court yesterday. There was an unusual array of talent on on both sides, Messrs. C. A. Geoffrion, Q. C., and C. S. Campbell, appearing for the bank, and Hon. R. Laflamme, Q. C., W. W. Robertson, Q. C., F. L. Beique, Q. C., and Mr. Strachan Bethune, Q. C., for the plaintiffs. The case is an extremely complicated one. At the death of Hon. Mr. Molson he appointed Mr. Alexander Molson one of his legatees and gave him 640 shares of the capital stock of the Molson's Bank, of which he was to have the usufruct during his life, but which really would belong to his children. These 640 shares, it appears, were transferred to the name of Mr. Alexander Molson, and subsequently these shares were bought by a third party. Now Mr. Stewart in his quality of tutor to the substitution, the children of Mr. Alexander Molson, Mr. Alexander Molson himself is the institute, and Mr. Herbert Molson as one of the substitutes, call the bank to account for that alleged wrongful transfer of those stocks to the name of Mr. Alexander Molson, instead of to the substitution in his case, and demand the shares to be replaced, or otherwise the loss to be made good by $60,000 of the capital stock and a similar amount for the accumulated dividend. Counsel for the bank made preliminary objections to the action, chiefly that the interests of the different plaintiffs were incongruous. Mr. Stewart represented all the substitutes, why should Mr. Herbert Molson, one of the substitutes specially appear as plaintiff? The substitutes were interested only in the capital, whilst Mr. Alexander Molson was interested only in the dividend. There was evidently a misjoinder of action. In reply it was said that the interest was one because all depended on the capital stock.

Decision was reserved.

High License in Massachusetts.

[From the Troy Times.]

Evidence in favor of High License accumulates on every side. Massachusetts furnishes the latest and for the present the most conspicuous object lesson. It is just entering on its second year under the High License system. It appears from the official figures that the number of licenses granted in Massachusetts in 1889 was 3260, against 5831 in 1888 under the old system. Here is a falling off throughout the entire state of over forty per cent. In certain localities, including several of the larger towns, the reduction has exceeded fifty per cent. At the same time there has been a largely augmented revenue. The total amount of license fees received in 1889 was $1,812,110, against $1,286,305 in 1888, an increase of $526,805.

The auditor declares that the moral benefits of the new High License system keep pace with the financial gain. Fewer drinking places mean lessened temptation to indulgence, and there has been a decided falling off in arrests for intoxication, disorderly conduct and crimes resulting directly or indirectly from the drink evil. The character of the drinking places is also greatly improved. The gain in sobriety, peace and public order represents one of the most gratifying results of High License.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

HOPE
Be Your Own Physician!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.
℞—Erythroxylon coca, 1-2 drachm.
Jerubebin, 1-2 drachm.
Helonias Dioica, 1-2 drachm.
Gelsemin, 8 grains.
Ext. ignatia amarae (alcoholic), 2 grains
Ext. leptandra, 2 scruples.
Glycerine, q. s. Mix.
Make 60 pills. Take 1 pill at 3 p. m., and another on going to bed. In some cases it will be necessary for the patient to take two pills at bedtime, making the number three a day. This remedy is adapted to every condition of nervous debility and weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from imprudence. The recuperative powers of this restorative are truly astonishing, and its use continued for a short time changes the languid, debilitated, nerveless condition to one of renewed life and vigor.
As we are constantly in receipt of letters of inquiry relative to this remedy, we would say to those who would prefer to obtain it of us, by remitting $1 a securely sealed package containing 60 pills, carefully compounded, will be sent by return mail from our private laboratory, or we will furnish 6 packages, which will cure most cases, for $5.

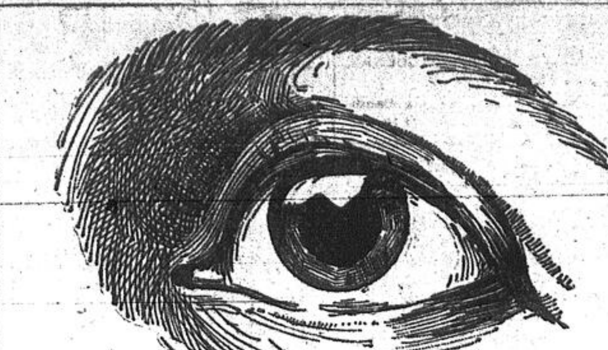
TO WEAK MEN
Suffering from the effects of youthful errors, early decay, wasting weakness, lost manhood, etc., I will send a valuable treatise (sealed) containing full particulars for home cure, FREE of charge. A splendid medical work: should be read by every man who is nervous and debilitated. Address, Prof. F. C. FOWLER, Moodus, Conn.



Bright eyes and dull; near sighted; far sighted; anybody (except those who won't, and they are worse than blind) can see at a glance the advantages gained by using PEARLINE. We do not expect everyone will see it, but millions do, and the number increases every day.

Delicate women and strong, wonder at the amount of work they can do with the aid of PEARLINE—the time saved; the satisfactory results, and when they have used it for years they realize that everything that is washed or cleaned with PEARLINE lasts longer. This is very simple—PEARLINE does away with most of the rubbing—the greatest wear and tear that clothes are subjected to is the repeated rubbings necessary to keep them clean with ordinary soap. Your own interests should lead you to use it, if you do your own work and value your fine linens and flannels; the latter reason should surely convince any bright woman that it is to her interest to see that her servants use it. PEARLINE makes a saving all around.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not. 262 JAMES PYLE, New York.

CHAPTER XXVI.—(CONTINUED).

The colonel lingered in London to repeat the advertisement and to extend his researches, while the marchioness, constrained by a sense of duty and hospitality, journeyed back to Yorkshire to enact her part as hostess to an invited Christmas dinner party.

Her heart was very heavy, as we have said, upon this return journey. The attempted treachery and imposition of Holm had been a great shock to her.

She experienced a foreboding that Lord Thornhurst had seen Colonel Redruth's advertisement for the stolen child, and that he would connect that advertisement with her journey to London, and accuse her of deceit and undue reticence.

She feared also, with a keener, sharper pang, that all her father's efforts to find the missing Georgia would utterly fail of success.

We may as well state here, having omitted to do so elsewhere, that the advertisements of both Captain Holm and Colonel Redruth had utterly escaped the eyes of any person interested in Tessa, or cognizant of her history. After her father's death, Agnes Stacy had given up all daily journals as a needless piece of extravagance. Reuben Dennis, anxious to lay up money in every way towards his expected marriage, and willing to economize in his personal expenses to the uttermost farthing that he might have the more to spend upon Tessa, and upon Agnes thereafter, had also given up his daily paper, obtaining a knowledge of the current news of the day from the bills or placards in the shops and streets. And we may also explain that, had Dennis or Agnes seen the colonel's notice, they would not have recognized in "Georgia" Holm their lovely little Tessa.

Lady Thornhurst arrived at Cottingham about the middle of the short December afternoon. As she stepped out upon the platform of the station, she was met by Lord Thornhurst, whose noble Saxon face towered high above the surrounding group of waiting passengers. He gave her his arm, his blue eyes glowing with delight, and his fair face flushing like the face of a lover. Leaning upon him, the marchioness was conducted to their waiting carriage. The marquis handed her in, followed after her, the powdered footman closed the door, the horses started, and they were on their way over the pleasant, wind-swept Yorkshire roads towards Thornhurst.

The wife sank wearily back on the soft cushions, and Lord Thornhurst took her hands in his, his face expressing anxious concern.

"You look utterly exhausted, Ignatia," he said. "I fear you are going to be ill!"

"Oh, no," answered Lady Thornhurst, trying to smile. "I am only tired, Antony. I shall be well enough after a night's rest."

"I'm afraid you exerted yourself too much upon this shopping expedition," said the marquis, tenderly. "I do not like to see you look so pale. The weather has been bad since you went, and if it were bad here, what must it have been in London? You will not be well enough to preside at dinner to-morrow? I think I had better countermand the invitations."

"By no means, Antony. I am not ill, only tired. I insist upon entertaining your guests. My duties will not be tiresome, as it is only a gentleman's dinner party, you know. I suppose the housekeeper has done as well in my absence as if I were here—I mean in her preparations for to-morrow?"

"Oh, yes. She used to superintend my bachelor parties in old times. She has done her best in your absence, hoping to surprise and please you. The Christmas decorations are finished, and the crystalized fruits and Christmas cake you sent from town arrived safely yesterday. The pines and oranges from our own hot-houses are fully ripe, and in profusion. The boys are wild with joyful excitement, and I could hardly persuade them to remain at home when I came to meet you. I believe that we shall have a 'merry Christmas,' my wife," added the marquis.

Lady Thornhurst sighed. There was no mirth in her heart—only a deep and terrible dread of her husband's anger when he should hear the confession she had resolved to make him.

"But I won't tell him to-night," she thought, looking with shrinking, sorrowful eyes from the carriage window upon the bleak winter landscape. "He is so full of joyous anticipations, I cannot tell him to-night. To-morrow; oh, not to-morrow; to-morrow will be Christmas day, and he will need to be in good spirits to preside at his dinner party; but the day after to-morrow I will tell him the truth, and hold nothing back. Then, if he casts me from him, I will creep away and die."

Lord Thornhurst pressed her hand tenderly. He attributed her strange and shrinking silence to bodily weariness, and with his unoccupied hand he drew her nearer to him, so that her head lay upon his shoulder.

"Christmas would not have been Christmas had you remained in town, my own wife," he said, in his rich, caressing voice, his tones thrilling the wounded, dreading heart throbbing heavily against his hand. "But as you are so pale and weak, why did your father allow you to come on alone? I expected Colonel Redruth would dine with us. Without him, we shall have but nine invited guests."

"Father has business in town, and I am quite able to travel alone. I had not even needed a maid, although you almost insisted that I should take Martha to town with me."

"Cannot Colonel Redruth allow business to wait upon pleasure in the holiday season?" enquired Lord Thornhurst. "Business at Christmas time? That seems too much like transacting business upon Sunday. By the by, Ignatia, I saw an odd notice in the Times—second column—yesterday. It was merely a striking coincidence of names. I must show it to you. What was the name of your girl baby who died in her infancy?"

Lady Thornhurst's heart gave a great leap against his lordship's hand. She withdrew from his embrace as if stifled by it, and gasped for air.

"Good heavens! you are really ill," cried the marquis, in alarm.

She did not answer, but pressed her forehead against the cold window-glass.

"It is nothing," she said, presently, in a half-choked voice; "a sudden spasm, that was all."

The marquis was silent. She looked at him. He was regarding her gloomily, with glances of distrustfulness that bordered on suspicion.

"It was what I said to you, Ignatia," he said, in an altered voice, "that made you start. I felt your heart give a frightened bound. There is something more than a coincidence of names in that notice. Did you put it into the Times?"

Lady Thornhurst shook her head.

"Colonel Redruth did?"

"Yes—he did," was the slow, painfully spoken answer.

Lord Thornhurst's face changed in its hue. The gloomy look deepened in his bold blue eyes.

"Who was this lost child—this Georgia Holm—for whom the colonel advertised?" he asked. "Was she your daughter?"

The marchioness assented by a movement of her head.

"But you told me she was dead?"

"I thought she was," was the answer. "I was led to believe that she died."

"Why has there been any mystery about her?" demanded the marquis, his face and voice growing stern. "Why have you never told me that she was stolen from you? How have you discovered that she lives? Who stole her? and for what object?"

"It is a long story, Antony, and I am tired," said Lady Thornhurst, wearily. "I have not told you because the story has been very painful to me, and I supposed my child to be dead. Do not question me now. I will tell you all when I shall have rested."

The marquis was dissatisfied, and his face showed it; but he would not press his enquiries while his wife was so fatigued.

"Very well," he said, after a brief silence, speaking cheerfully. "I cannot understand this mystery—for that there is some mystery in this matter is plain to me. I cannot understand either why you should have preserved from me a secret during all the nine years of our married life. I have had no secrets from you, and I supposed your heart was fully known to me. But I trust you, Ignatia; you will explain the matter to me in good time."

"To-morrow night, after the dinner party, or the next day," she answered, gratefully. "Trust me, Antony, until then. I have never wilfully deceived you, and the only secret I have kept from you will be soon revealed."

The marquis forced himself to be content.

"Did the advertisement meet with success?" he asked. "Did you find your daughter?"

"No. She may be dead, as I formerly believed. I had a suspicion only that she lived; not an absolute certainty."

The marquis lapsed into silence. The mystery of the appearance of Holm at Thornhurst, as related to him by the gardner, came back to his mind. The mystery of Lady Thornhurst's singular agitation, illness, and late outdoor walk upon the same night, recurred to him. An atmosphere of mysteries seemed to surround him, and in spite of his resolve to trust his wife, he became gloomy, suspicious, and troubled.

The drive to Thornhurst seemed to both interminable. Both experienced a sense of relief as they bowled in between the open lodge gates, and went swiftly up the long avenue towards the mansion. A rough wind was blowing in from the sea. The sky was dull, and the trees lining the avenue and arching overhead were stripped of their leaves. There was frost in the air, and winter in its bleakest, dreariest aspect reigned dully over land and wild gray sea.

But on alighting at the great porch, and entering the house, a different atmosphere awaited them. In two great massive fire-places along the side of the hall fires were glowing brightly. The hall was spanned with green arches, whose spicy pine odor filled the air. The drawing-room was undecorated, but the long parlors were festooned with wreaths and sprays of polished green, among which the red holly berries glistened like sparks of fire. The dining-room also, as the housekeeper, who was awaiting the return of her ladyship in the hall, informed Lady Thornhurst, was a miracle of beauty in its Christmas suit of feathery green.

The noble little sons of the marchioness were waiting for her just within the door. She embraced them both, complimented the housekeeper and butler on their taste in decorations, and went up to her own rooms. She appeared at dinner, but soon after retired to her rooms again for the night. The Marquis did not follow her, passing the evening alone in his library, and the husband and wife did not meet again until morning.

That both felt the coldness and estrangement that had arisen between them was very evident when they met, but neither alluded to it. The Marquis was proud and jealous, and Lady Thornhurst dared not confess her story to him until the dinner party should be over and the guests departed.

The marchioness spent the day in her own room, and in the nursery of her boys. Her husband took care not to intrude upon her. They met again at luncheon, when Lord Thornhurst coldly expressed his pleasure at the recovery of her ladyship, who was indeed looking unusually well, excitement having brought a faint pink flush to her cheeks, and a glorious lustre to her dusky eyes.

The dinner hour was eight o'clock. The guests were nearly all neighboring gentlemen with whom Lord Thornhurst had been more or less intimate in his long ago bachelor days, and included two or three gentlemen from town who were visiting in the neighborhood.

Lady Thornhurst came down the grand drawing-room some minutes before the arrival of the earliest of their guests. The marquis was pacing the room impatiently, but halted and looked at her admiringly as she swept into his presence. Their estrangement was forgotten for the moment, as he gazed upon the full splendor of her tropical beauty. She had never looked more noble, more grand, more queenly, than upon this Christmas evening. She wore a dress of moire antique, with a sweeping train, and of a rare amber color, by contrast with which her clear, dark skin, her blue-back hair shining like satin, and her magnificent eyes like the midnight, appeared more superb and glowing. Diamonds sparkled in her hair, upon her round throat, and on her arms and hands.

Lord Thornhurst approached his wife, and the two were in conversation when the first carriage arrived, bringing Admiral Sir Henry Harcourt and Lady Harcourt his wife, an intimate friend of Lady Thornhurst, and a near neighbor. She was to be the only lady present besides the beautiful hostess.

THE BANKRUPT FARMER
OF THE UNITED STATES LOOMING UP

As a Disturbing Element in the Commonwealth—The Republicans as "Commercial Unionists."

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A recent despatch to the Boston Journal from its special correspondent in this city has a menacing tone to its utterances concerning the probable report of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce as the result of its investigations thus far made into the relations of Canadian and American railways. The despatch says: "A draft of the report has already been completed. It will be submitted for the consideration of the committee within a few days. It is a report which will greatly surprise the Canadian Pacific people, if they are relying upon any assurances from any quarter that the report will be long delayed and that when made it will be mild in its provisions. It will be very severe in respect to the Canadian Pacific railroad and it will recommend such legislation as will bring that corporation under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act."

The tone of the entire dispatch would suggest that it was inspired by some one high in authority and that the correspondent was not writing without some definite knowledge on which to proceed. When it is known that the Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal was the clerk of the Special Committee of the Senate appointed to enquire into the relations existing between this country and Canada, and of which committee Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, was chairman, the relation between cause and effect is very readily seen. And perhaps right here is as good a time as any to show how all prominent Republicans seem to be working in the interest of the commercial unionists. I have already made clear the position of Mr. Hitt, the Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. There is in existence a letter written by Mr. Hoar in which he says that by constantly irritating Canada commercial union may be secured. He says that it is not his intention to bring any of the questions now open to a conclusion, but by constantly tinkering with them the Dominion may at last be led to believe that it would be for its own benefit to have commercial union with this country. The Americans covet the Canadian market, and they would give a good deal to possess it. That is the milk in the cocoanut.

The Canadian railway question now before Congress has a double raison d'etre. In the first place it is fomented and urged by the competitive American railroad interests as a simple and effective means of crippling the strong and energetic rivalry of the Canadian railways. It is a for business and supremacy, which before the passage of the Interstate commerce act would have been waged in the usual form of a rate war and the weakest would have gone to the wall. But there is another side to this agitation. It is forced by certain astute statements (sic) and newspapers of the "manifest destiny" order and men like Mr. Hoar, who if they cannot make Canada part of the American Union are yet willing to see it come under its peculiar tariff system. It is somewhat strange that the annexationists and the commercial unionists have nothing in common. The annexationists are not in favor of commercial union; they want the whole thing or nothing, and if the commercial relations between the two countries are amicable the necessity of annexation is not apparent. An amicable adjustment of the fisheries question between the two countries, and which seems altogether probable in the near future, will do much to emasculate the efforts of the annexationists. It is certain that the Senate would not be supported by public opinion in a refusal to ratify a reasonable treaty covering the fisheries, neither is there any evidence of the existence of such a disposition in the minds of any considerable number of that body. The railroad situation, therefore, presents the most feasible point of attack, and is being worked for all it is worth. The Canadian railroads as foreign corporations, in competition with the American roads must necessarily get small sympathy and few defenders on this side of the line, but the material interests of so many sections of the United States have become so indissolubly linked with and dependent upon the Canadian carriers that they cannot be ignored. Their influence will be solidly thrown against every attempt to injure Canadian railroad competition. The present juncture of American affairs is thought by many of the shrewdest and most observant politicians to present a most

to promote or even to suggest any measures looking toward restraint upon railroad competition. The political atmosphere is now resonant with the wail of the American farmer for relief from the bankruptcy of his class, which he claims to be imminent, owing to the unremunerative prices obtained for his products. The Socialistic fever is creeping through his veins, and he is deluging Congress with petitions for all manner of wild and absurd schemes for his relief. Some of them are the free and unlimited coinage of silver, Government loans on farm mortgages at one or two per cent. interest per annum, Government warehouses for the storage of farm products, with money advances on the same; the prohibition of selling farm products for future delivery by boards of trade, and governmental regulation of freight rates on railroads to be proportioned to the prices of farm products. The Interstate Commerce commission is now in Nebraska by resolution of the Senate, and by request of the farmers, to enquire into the prevailing freight rates, and whether they are proportionate to the price of farm products. The fear of losing the farmer vote is ever present with this administration, and any legislation hostile to the freest railroad competition, either Canadian or American, would provoke a protest from the North-West which would be fatal to the administration. The foregoing considerations, together with the exhaustive and practically incontrovertible array of facts and figures favorable to the Canadian roads which have been laid before the senate committee by Mr. Raymond, of Detroit, and others, seem to warrant a modification of the journal correspondent's lugubrious predictions. In any event the Canadian Pacific railway must receive precisely the same treatment as the Grand Trunk, for any law covering the question must be general and uniform in its objects and action.

The reported determination of the senate committee to bring the Canadian railroads within the control of the Interstate commerce act has in it no terrifying significance, when it is remembered that they are now, always have been, and were designed to be made subject to the act, by its clearly expressed terms. They do not object, nor have they sought under any pretext, to escape its jurisdiction over all their American traffic, and it is a curious fact that in all the testimony and arguments thus far elicited, no specified evasion or attempted evasion of the spirit of the law has been anywhere pointed out by any witness or attorney, but on the contrary it tends to show a more strict compliance with the law by the Canadian lines than by their American competitors.

It may be that a policy of oppression may be agreed upon by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee as another reason why the Dominion should be only too glad to conclude a treaty of commercial union. It is true that some queer things are done in the name of "statesmanship" in this city, but I do not believe, for the reasons I have already given, that the Senate is prepared at this time to restrict competition. If the western farmers take the notion in their heads that Canadian competition is injuring them something might be done, but all my information tends to show that they believe the Canadian roads are helping rather than hurting them. A. MAURICE LOW.

SUNDAY READING.

The Sympathy of Prayer.

How often does the Christian feel the inadequacy of his prayer to his needs! God somehow seems such a different being from Himself—so far off, so infinitely beyond the human. And yet, of a truth, it is only with God that man can have any such thing as a perfect communication. Language between man and man is multiform; ever growing, but never complete. No man ever perfectly understands or is perfectly understood by another. Human sympathy is too restricted. No human being can wholly sympathize with any other human being; yet sympathy is the real medium of communication between personalities, as air is the medium of sound, and the ether of light. Divine sympathy is, however, wholly unrestricted. There is no form of human need that God cannot feel and comprehend. Language between man and man is sufficient to reveal man perfectly to man, while language between man and God is all-sufficient to reveal man perfectly to God. Between man and man, words are often dumb, while silence is vocal; and there is an involuntary tear that speaks more to sympathizing men than voluntary gestures, or cast of countenance, or word of mouth. Much of what man does not utter, and feels that he cannot utter, is often responsively apprehended even by man. But all that man utters or would utter in simple faith to the Divine Man, is wholly understood by Him. Here is the only perfect language; here is that which alone can express all the needs of all men—the faith-filled prayer. Here is the only perfectly free and full understanding—that which is between God and the servant of God. And here it is that we find "That blessed mood,

In which the burthen of the mystery,
In which the heavy and the weary weight
Of all this unintelligible world,
Is lightened."

Love the Swaying Power.

Love is the swaying power in God's nature, and in the nature of him who is God's likeness, says the Sunday School Times. All the attributes of God are exercised in love; for "God is love." In the matter of teaching we must somehow, first of all, get lost men to know that God loves them. This really is the very heart of the gospel message. It was to reveal this truth to men that the Son of God came to earth. This was the burden of his words wherever he went. It was this blessed revelation that shone out from the cross. And this is what we want men to know and believe,—that God loves them. It is related of Edward Irving that he went once to see a dying boy. Entering the room he put his hand on the sufferer's head, and said simply, "My boy, God loves you," and went away. The boy started from his bed, and called out to those about him in the room, "God loves me! God loves me!" That one word had been a revelation to him, and it burned and glowed in his heart until it changed him into a new creature stamping the image of God upon his soul. This is the one message that we should whisper in the ears of those we try to win for Christ. To get them deeply and truly to believe this is to save them. We cannot win the lost without a genuine love for souls in our own hearts. We can never be a great blessing to those for whom we do not personally care. We may help them in eternal ways,—providing bread for their hunger, fuel for their fires, clothes to keep them warm, and not really care for them at all; but we can be of little spiritual help to one we do not love. All successful winners of souls have compassionate hearts. No one can read the Gospels thoughtfully, and not be struck with Christ's intense and passionate love for souls. He looked upon the most ruined life with a pity that drew out all his great heart in melting tenderness. We read continually that he was moved with compassion as he beheld sin's sad and terrible work in the people about him. Some measure of the love that brought Christ from heaven to earth, and inspired in him such care, such compassion for souls, and led him at last to his wonderful sacrifice, we must have, if we would be Christ's messengers in bringing the unsaved to him.

The Influence of Persons.

In the opening chapter of his "Meditations," Marcus Aurelius enumerates the sources from which he had derived the precepts and principles which had entered as constructive forces into his character. It is noticeable that the entire list consists of persons. No mention is made of literature or philosophy, though the famous Stoic was a devotee of both. By his own testimony, his character had been moulded by the influence of persons. It is always so. The most potent forces that enter our life are the forces which spring from personal example and contact. Such forces are vital and formative. They spring from life and they continue with life. They represent the contact and interaction of spirit upon spirit which is at once the most mysterious and the most profound reality of our being. There is a life deeper than the life of sense; there are realities more subtle and potent than those which we see and handle; there is a closer environment of the soul than nature, it is the presence and power of spirits kindred to our own. If we should set ourselves at the task of analyzing the forces which have done most to shape our lives, we should find, no doubt, that we could trace our best impulses and strongest incentives to progress to the influence of persons upon us. Perhaps as we threaded our way back along the course of our plans and struggles in life, we should find that it was the encouraging word of some friend, at a critical moment, which turned the scale with us when our resolution hung trembling in the balance. Doubtless, if we could fully understand the play of influences upon us, we should see much more clearly than we do how the personal environment of our lives has sustained and steadied us as nothing else could have done.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Bad thoughts quickly ripen into bad actions.

An effort made for the happiness of others lifts us above ourselves.

Be quick. You can't use a minute but once—make the most of it.

There is no nobler motive of action than the desire of doing good.

To have what we want is riches, but to be able to do without it is power.

An unkind word falls easily from the mouth, but six coach-horses cannot draw it back again.

You just bring a couple of little quarrels into your family and they'll breed like sparrows.

We cannot judge for one another; we have each our peculiar weaknesses and temptations.

The first condition of human goodness is something to love, the second something to reverence.

As "violets plucked will never grow again," so a good name, once lost, will never be regained.

Cultivate forbearance, till your heart yields a crop of it. Pray for a short memory as to all unkindness.

The mind is enriched, not by what it passively receives from others, but by its own action on what it receives.

When a kindly face greets us, though but passing by, and never knows us again nor we it, we should feel it an obligation.

Never look back. You can't help the mistakes you have made. Don't make any more. Don't think of what you have achieved, but of what you may accomplish.

It is best to strive to cultivate an interest in simple, innocent, and inexpensive pleasures. We may thus aid in diffusing that spirit of contentment which is of itself rich and a permanent possession.

A bad habit broken away from is a good day's work. The earlier a habit is formed the stronger the hold it has. Private personal habits are more difficult to get rid of and have a more demoralizing effect than public ones.

THREESCORE AND TEN.

Threescore and ten! How the tide rolls on,
Nearing the limitless sea;
Bearing the voyager over Life's flood
To boundless Eternity;
On through Childhood's sunny hours,
On through Youth with its golden dowers,
On through Manhood's ripened powers,
Till Age appears
With its crown of years;
And the time-worn mariner, sighing for rest,
Anchors at last in the port of the Blest.

Threescore and ten! How the rolling years
Are checkered with sunshine and shade!
The calm chased away by the pitiless storm;
Earth's joy into sorrow must fade!
Spring with its bloom and perfume sped;
Fruit-laden summer quickly fled;
Then autumn came with heavy tread,
Bowed with the load
Of treasured food;
And then stern winter, with frosty breath,
Throws over the fields the pall of death.

Threescore and ten! And if we shall reach
The bound that to life is thus set,
How few of the comrades of early years
Around us will linger yet!
Fathers and mothers—their journey is o'er,
Brothers and sisters—they greet us no more;
Our loved ones stand thronging the further-shore.
They beckon us on;
They point to the crown;
And there with longing hearts they wait,
To lead us through the pearly gate.

Threescore and ten! And the snows of years
Are resting upon the brow;
And as backward we glance o'er the way we have trod,
Before God our Father we bow;
And we bring to Him our grateful praise,
Whose mercies have crowned us through all our days;
And we that fervently pray Life's setting rays,
Through love divine,
May cloudless shine
Till they melt away in the purer light,
Illuming the land which knows no night.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

MR. MURRAY REPLIES TO QUESTIONS.

An Old Latin Form—Boxing Day—The Sulpician Towers—The Thumb and the Arena.

Dominarier.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR MR. MURRAY,—Please inform me what is the meaning of the form "dominarier" in the 7th Book of Æneid, v. 70. I must have known it in years gone by, but I have not read any Latin for, I suppose, eighteen years. I have, however, taken a notion to read through Virgil and Horace, and I find much enjoyment in so doing. Of course, I can understand "dominari," but "er," I cannot. My dictionary (an old Ainsworth) throws no light on what to me seems odd. A. P.
(Montreal.)

There is no difficulty in the matter. Dominarier is merely an ancient and rare form of dominari, the present infinitive of the deponent verb dominor. This, and various other forms, belonging in the main to the earlier Latin, occur in the poets, even of the classical period, and occasionally also in prose, to impart to the style an air of antiquity or solemnity. The termination ier for i is not confined to the first conjugation in Latin, but occurs in the four conjugations. Thus we find viderier, dicier, etc., in several of the poets.

"Boxing Day."

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly answer through the STAR as early as possible, the following question? Why is the 26th of December called "Boxing day" in England? By complying with the above request, you will much oblige ARGUMENT.
Cote St. Paul.

The following paragraphs, reprinted from the STAR, form a full reply to my correspondent's query. For further information he may consult Brewer's "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable," p. 163; and pp. 764-5, Vol. II, of "The Book of Days—a Miscellany of Popular Antiquities in Connection with the Calendar. Edited by R. Chambers (London, 1883).

"Though the term 'Christmas box' is not applied in America as it is in England to the gratuities which are expected and even demanded at the Christmas season by the letter-carrier, the milkman, the butcher's boy, the district messenger, and other equally useful and indispensable members of society, yet the custom of giving them has come to be nearly as general in the one country as in the other. With us these donations are usually expected before Christmas, or on the morning of that day at the latest, but in England they are not levied until the following day, December 26. Then all who expect them go about and collect them in person, and from this collecting of "Christmas boxes" the day after Christmas is known as "boxing day," and its night as "boxing night."

The origin of the term "Christmas box" as applied to donations of Christmas spending money is uncertain, though antiquarians generally seem to think that it was derived from the custom of placing money for Masses to be said or sung on Christmas day, therefore "Christ Masses"—in a box, which from this use was called a Christmass box, a term gradually corrupted to Christmas box, and finally applied to all money given as a Christmas gratuity.

Boxing day, especially its night, is one of the greatest of all holiday occasions in England, even surpassing Christmas day itself in festivity among the working classes, whose pockets, thanks to their Christmas boxes, are then supplied with the means of enjoyment. The London theatres, which, strange as such a thing may seem to us, are closed on Christmas, reopen and are crowded from floor to ceiling on boxing night, on which occasion the great spectacular pantomime, with which every London manager regales his patrons at the Christmas season, is almost invariably produced for the first time.

Why pantomime should so long continue the universal English theatrical attraction during the Christmas holidays it is impossible to say. Colley Cibber tells us that the English pantomime was an outgrowth from the ballet d'action. Be that as it may, it was Cibber's rival in theatrical management, a man named Rich, who first presented pantomime in its present form to an English audience. He was then managing a company in Lincoln's-Inn Fields, London, and finding it impossible to compete with Cibber's productions of the legitimate drama of Drury Lane, he advertised in the London Daily Courant, of December 26, 1717, that he would present on that boxing night "a new Italian mimic scene (never performed before) between a scaramouch, a harlequin, a country farmer, his wife and others."

The new style of entertainment captured the fancy of the town at the very start, and soon the legitimate drama was being played to empty benches. This was the first production of the present style of Christmas pantomime on boxing night, and the custom has been continued down to the present time, having obtained so firm a hold upon the affections of the English people that a London or even a provincial theatre without a new pantomime on boxing night would be regarded as even a greater incongruity than the play of "Hamlet" with the melancholy Prince of Denmark omitted.

Stenography and the Chinese Language.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

DEAR SIR,—Can you, or any of your kind readers, give me such information which might enable me to adapt stenography to the Chinese language? I have already adapted with success Duployé's stenography to the Greek, Hebrew, Arab, Volapuk and to four different Indian dialects (the Indian grammars were given me by two missionaries). I will receive with equal pleasure all informations on any other foreign languages. If they can interest you, I will give you copies of these adaptations. DENIS R. PERRAULT.
223 Champlain.

I sincerely hope that some correspondent will reply to the letter of M. Perrault, as I have great respect for his energy and industry. [ED. OF N. AND Q.]

A Question of Nomenclature.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

SIR,—Francis Parkman, in chapter II of his "Old Regime in Canada," relates that the priests of St. Sulpice erected two fortified houses at the two extremities of the settlement of Montreal, and lodged in them a considerable number of armed men, whom they employed in clearing and cultivating the surrounding lands. One of these was dedicated to Ste. Marie, the other to St. Gabriel. This would appear to indicate the origin of the name afterwards borne by St. Gabriel village, and still retained by St. Gabriel Ward. But I have nowhere been able to discover the reason why Point St. Charles was so designated. Could you furnish me with the information?
POINT ST. CHARLES.

Thumbs Up and Thumbs Down.

Here is an incorrect use of "thumbs down" from a novel, "Bella-Demonia," by the late Selina Dolaro, published in Lippincott's Magazine for March, 1889: "Since then I have make Arlingford my tool in many a plot, only the more surely to shatter him when I turn down my thumbs, and cry, like the Romans in the arena, 'Habet!'"

Here is example of the correct use of the same words, from p. 204 of "Outlines of the World's History," by Wm. Swinton (Ivison & Co.: New York and Chicago): "At the trumpet's sound, throngs of wretched men—captives, slaves or convicted criminals—closed in deadly strife. The trodden sand soon grew red, yet on they fought with parched lips and leaping hearts, for they knew that a brave fight might win for them their freedom. Erelong, hacked and bleeding limbs began to fail, and dim eyes turned to seek for mercy along the crowded seats. There were times when the dumb prayer was answered, and the down-turned thumbs of the spectators gave the signal for sparing life; but too often mercy was sought in vain, and the sword completed its work." When will authors who incidentally write about gladiators learn that the down-turned thumb meant mercy, and the up-turned, death? The error is continually cropping up, and, whenever I meet an instance of it, I invariably make a note of it in print. P. S.—Since writing the foregoing words, I have met with a very interesting "Cyclopedia of Universal History," (by J. Clark Redpath, LL. D., Professor of History in De Pauw University) which I can recommend highly to general students. At p. 642 of vol. 1, I read: "When a gladiator was wounded in the arena, the cry was "Habet." "He has it"; and then the populace indicated by holding up or turning down their thumbs, whether he should, or should not, be slain." Dr. Redpath here shows that he understood the signals of death and mercy. In the same way, my friend "Sarepta" wrote thus in the Dominion Illustrated of February 15, 1890:

"Then with her weapon, poising at his breast,
And mantled eyes, she waits, aware his life,
If she but look, must be her pity's gift,
And with a sigh drives home the point well press'd,
To end for him, the gladiatorial strife,
While laughs the world, its mocking thumb uplift."

St. George's Home.

At the quarterly meeting of the St. George's Society Thursday, the Building Committee was authorized to expend $3000 in improving the building as suggested by the committee.

The Nazareth Concert.

A well chosen and very interesting programme was enjoyed by those who attended the annual concert given for the benefit of the Nazareth Asylum for the Blind in Queen's Hall, which on this occasion was filled with a large and fashionable audience, including many of the clergy, among whom was Rev. Father Babonneau, who has always taken such an interest in the Institution Artists such as Mlle. Tessier, Mlle. Boucher, Messrs. Baker, Clarke and Wiallard furnished the greater part of the programme, but the most interesting portion was doubtlessly that wherein the choir of blind girls and the brass band of younger pupils showed what could be attained by careful preparation even while lacking the sense of sight.

THE NEED OF A NAVY

Urged Upon the United States Congress by Representative Lodge.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A good deal of comment has been caused by the speech which Representative Lodge, of Massachusetts, delivered in the House late yesterday afternoon on the naval appropriation bill. Arguing in support of the necessity of the United States having a powerful fighting navy, he said: "Let me tell you, sir, if we had had such a navy as I have described behind us in the negotiations which have dragged on for so many years, under every administration, seeking a settlement of the difficulties of our fishermen and of our Behring Sea dispute, those negotiations would have ended long ago."

A member—"By war."

Mr. Lodge—"No, by diplomacy. It is acknowledged that our great cities lie exposed to the first hostile ships which come along; that gives other nations only force against the United States in the negotiations It is this which ties the hands of our diplomatists. The question of going to war is not always a question of cool judgment and sound sense; it is much more frequently a matter of pride and passion. We came to a point last summer in relation to the German Empire, when it looked at one time as if we might have very serious difficulty. The trouble was settled by withdrawal on the part of Germany, in a manner which satisfied the honor and wishes of the United States, but Germany was then under the guidance of a great statesman, who has lately left the chancellorship, who was able at a glance to count the ultimate cost of war with this country. If Germany then has been under her present guidance, passion and not reason might easily have ruled, and we might have found ourselves plunged suddenly into a naval war and have seen our great coast cities laid in ruins before we could gather means to defend them."

Mr. Lodge is one of Secretary Blaine's and Speaker Reid's most intimate friends, and consequently his words have added importance attached to them.

A NEW IRISH CITY

Established by Tenants Evicted From the Smith-Barry Estate.

LONDON, April 11.—The formal opening of New Tipperary, the new Irish town established by the tenants evicted from the Smith-Barry estate, has been further postponed in order to put the finishing touches on the most important of the buildings. Already eighty residence buildings have been completed, and a new row of shops is in process of fitting up. The market is finished, and will be open to-morrow. The preparations for the opening of the market are very elaborate. The building is literally covered with evergreens and flowers. Among the speakers who are to address the inhabitants of the new town are Wm. O'Brien, Michael Davitt, Sir Thomas Esmonde and several other National leaders. Mr. T. D. Sullivan, ex-Lord Mayor of Dublin, has written a poem for the occasion which, it is expected, he will read himself. Mr. Parnell has been elected an honorary resident of the new town, and at the formal opening of the settlement a few days hence a large number of Liberals and Nationalists and Commoners will be present. In addition to the popular festivities on the occasion of the addition of the new star to the Irish constellation, a banquet has been provided for and the entertainment of 5000 distinguished guests.

JOTTINGS FROM QUEBEC.

The Next Elections—The Speakership—Bankrupt Stock Sold—Bills of Sale.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, April 12.—L'Electeur is of the opinion that the principal question that will be discussed at the next general elections in Ontario is religion and the so-called privileges enjoyed by French Canadians.

L'Electeur says: It is possible that Mr. Thos. C. Casgrain will run in the new division of Lake St. John. The paper adds that the Conservatives need not hurry, as there is a lot of time before the election.

The Chronicle asserts that Mr. Jules Tessier, member for Portneuf, will be the next speaker of the Legislative Assembly.

The bankrupt stock of George Darveau was bought by Gagnon and Rochette at 57⅜ cents on the dollar and the book debts by H. A. Bedard at 27½.

A delegation of the Board of Trade of Toronto is expected here to-day to have a conference with the Quebec board in connection with the fixing at four months the dating of bills of sale of dry goods.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, April 11.—The commission to enquire into the desirability of building the Trent Valley canal, to connect the Georgian Bay with the Bay of Quinte, is sitting here. Two forwarders testified to the effect that the five feet draught boats which would be used in the canal would not do for river service, therefore, the grain would have to be transferred at Kingston all the same and increase the through freight. They did not think that the canal would reduce the through freight from Chicago, even if canal boats could be run down the river.

CANADIANS FOR EUROPE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

NEW YORK, April 12.—The following Canadians were passengers on the White Star Line steamer "Adriatic," for Liverpool: Mr. John Black, Mrs. Black, Miss Chadwick, Montreal; Mrs. Armstrong, infant and maid, Miss Cunningham, the Misses Isabel and Marion Cunningham, Mr. R. Cunningham, Mrs. Graham and infant, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lamb, the Misses Annie E., Alice J., Ethel M., Clara M. and Edith B. Lamb. Mr. Charles A. and Master F. Lamb, Mr. James Lillie, Miss Taylor, all of Toronto; Mr. McMillan, London.

How to Govern East Africa.

LONDON, April 12.—"What kind of a Government do you think will succeed in East Africa, asked the N. Y. Herald correspondent of Stanley yesterday?"

"Such a government as the Congo Free State has there. The system is suited to the people."

"But do you think it worth while for any nation to possess north-east Africa? What is there to gain?"

"There is land to gain, land that will grow almost anything under the sun. Why, this soil that you see here in Southern Italy (and Stanley pointed to the green slopes rising from the harbor) would not be looked at. In Africa we call it sterile. Then there are millions of strong men to gain, men who can be converted into wealth by proper management. Every laborer who enters the United States is valued at $1000 as an addition to the national wealth. Africa teems with black men, and they can easily be controlled. As this population becomes civilized it must be clothed and housed. Think of what a great market it will be for a nation."

"If Emin should re-appear in his old province would his scattered people rally to him?"

"No, he can only retake it with a powerful force."

"And do you think the Germans have a right to go there?"

"I had the authority of the Khedive of Egypt to take his governor out of the country and abandon it. The province belongs to no one now."

BERLIN, April 11.—It is stated that the Emin Relief Committee has subscribed 10,000 marks to Emin's expedition on condition that the expedition rescues Dr. Peters.

The Socialist Programme.

BERLIN, April 12.—The Volksblatt publishes the text of a letter which the executive committee of the Paris Socialist Congress, held last June, sent to the Berlin Labor Conference. It shows that the Socialist programme is almost identical with the protocols adopted by the Labor Conference.

Workmen Discharged.

BERLIN, April 12.—Seven hundred workmen have been dismissed from the German dock at Kiel because they refused to work overtime unless they received 25 per cent. extra instead of ten per cent, as at present. The Government has provided men to replace those engaged in building ironclads.

Munificent Bequests.

ROME, April 12.—Prince Doria, who died a few days ago, bequeathed $600,000 to charities.

MUTUAL BENEFIT

TO NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA

Would, in the Opinion of Good Authorities, Result From the Former Joining the Confederation.

Mr. Malcolm Morison, of Wm. Shaw & Co., commission merchants, thought that the benefit accruing to the rest of the Dominion by the union of Newfoundland with the Confederation would be that we would supply her with those articles of commerce of which she, at the present, so extensively purchases from the United States and perhaps from England as well. Now she buys all her sail check and a large amount of products, as well as manufactured goods, from the States. There is no reason why these should not be supplied by the Dominion, as we produce and manufacture all that she requires. Take for instance shirtings, both cotton and flannel, she imports these. We manufacture them and can supply them as cheaply as she at present purchases them elsewhere. Indeed, everything they desire we could furnish. The commerce of the city of course would be thereby considerably augmented, as the goods would be chiefly shipped from here. "The benefit to Newfoundland from joining the Confederation would, in my opinion," said Mr. Morison, "be inestimable. The French dispute would be settled, as she would have the Dominion at her back as a sympathizer and helper."

Mr. Morison also added that it would have the effect of developing the splendid natural resources of the island, as moneyed men would feel safer in making investments there.

MR. A. W. OGILVY,

of the firm of W. W. Ogilvie & Son, flour dealers, said that by nature Newfoundland should be in the Dominion, and it was undoubtedly in her interest to join us. She would find, as the other provinces that first stood out, but subsequently came in had found it, to her great advantage. As to the matter of their trade with the island it depended much upon the year. Whenever there was a surplus of flour to export over and above the needs of the Dominion they sent some to Newfoundland, "but you know," he said, "that in the past once in three or four years we have had a short wheat crop which meant that we had no flour for export. Then the St. Louis millers sent their flour through Canada in bond to Newfoundland, but I think that the increased wheat acreage in the North-West will assure us an amount of wheat large enough for a considerable export in the future and to command the market there, for remember that we have the best and cheapest facilities for shipping to them as we give a return cargo of coal which we purchase in Sydney, C. B. We already have three lines of steamers engaged in this trade and making tri-weekly trips. When trade might once be established Newfoundland would be able to get her articles much cheaper and quicker from this port than elsewhere.

"We have quite a number of Newfoundlanders working for us in the North-West, and we find them most industrious and intelligent, and they tackle work with energy. Again I would say, I believe that her union with the other provinces would prove most beneficial to her, as her disputes would be settled with greater satisfaction."

MR. JOHN BAIRD'S OPINION.

"Yes," said Mr. John Baird, shipping and commission merchant, "I know something of Newfoundland, for I was for eighteen years a resident of the island, being connected with one of the oldest and largest of its mercantile houses. I can also tell you that it is the merchant interest of the island that has thus far kept it out of the Confederation. But the people are awakening to their interests. They are fast coming to realize the fact that their interests are identical with ours, and that to progress as they ought they must join the Confederation and break down the few monopolies that oppress them. Why, sir, I verily believe if the question of union with the Confederation were made a straight issue to-morrow that the people of Newfoundland would adopt it. The merchant monopolist would of course oppose it, for it would mean the destruction of their monopolies. What do I mean by their merchant monopolies? Why, simply that a few long established and rich houses have kept the control of affairs, until recently, in their hands. It was in their interest to do so; they didn't want outsiders to open up the island's resources, which would naturally follow from a union with the Confederation, and they have opposed it bitterly, tooth and nail. But the people have got the control of affairs now as they have the ballot system, and the vote at the last general election in Newfoundland was taken upon this principle and resulted, much to the astonishment of all, in the overthrow of the old merchant influence in the government. If Newfoundland come into the Dominion she would prove a most valuable customer. Her relations with the States have been close in the past as the volume of her trade shows, but there is no reason why it should not be turned into our channels. As to her ability to defend her rights and command attention and respect, there can be no doubt but that her union with the Dominion is necessary, and until she joins the Confederation she will not be strong or the Dominion perfect.

MR. MUNN,

of Stewart, Munn & Co., commission merchants, said he thought while the union of Newfoundland with the Dominion would prove of mutual benefit, the advantage would be largely on the side of the Island. Take this French shore question which has been such a source of irritation. The present difficulty is but the one of 1857, only, perhaps, worse. This matter has been allowed to drift on until now it has assumed a most serious aspect. If Newfoundland had been in the Dominion this dispute, if it had not been settled long ago, would at least be in a much better position than it is to-day. No such condition of affairs as at present exist in the island would for a moment crop up if she were in the Confederation. Newfoundland has, you know, rich mineral deposits. At present there is very little doing in the way of developing these resources. Some of these deposits and the richest too are on the French shore and have been a matter of dispute as to rights over them. If Newfoundland were to come into the Confederation I have not the least doubt but that capital would at once flow in to develop these resources. I gravely fear, however, that the pork duty and a few similar freaks of the tariff have had the effect of scaring the Newfoundlanders out of the thought of joining the Confederation if they ever seriously entertained it. They consume a large amount of mess pork and the additional tax recently imposed upon its importation would make it ruinous to them.

Wesleyan Theological College Convocation.

The Wesleyan Theological College is about completing a very successful session. Their annual examinations are now in progress, terminating on the 28th inst., and their convocation will be held on the evening of Tuesday, the 29th, in the James Ferrier Hall, at which addresses will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, and Principal Robins, of the Normal School. During the session forty-two students have been in attendance, of whom ten are pursuing the full Arts course at McGill, eight are taking the college course leading to the degree of B. D., and the remainder the licentiates' course. The need of enlarged buildings is already very much felt, and it is hoped that in the increased equipment of McGill this institution will be materially benefited. The approaching convocation will be the first occasion at which degrees in divinity have been conferred. It is rumored that several honorary degrees of D. D. will be conferred, but it is probable that the Senate will be very sparing of this honor.

Meeting of the Congregational Union.

The annual meeting of the Province of Quebec Congregational Union was continued in Zion church yesterday. After routine business and an hour of devotional exercises Rev. M. Goffin, of Waterville, read a paper on "The Best Mental Attitude in Spiritual Work," which was widely discussed and was followed by another on Oberlin College and its ministerial education by Rev. A. P. Soloudt, of Brigham. The meeting will be closed this afternoon and will be adjourned till the last Monday in September, when the Union will meet at Eaton, Quebec.

The Canal Tolls on Oats.

The fact that the Government has once more asked the Board of Trade for information as to the prospects of increasing the carrying trade of American oats has caused general satisfaction among the shipping men, who now express themselves as confident that the Government intends to reconsider its decision and grant the same rebate on the canal tolls on oats as allowed on other grains. The forwarders have received several enquiries from big holders of oats in Chicago as to the prospect of the desired rebate on oats being granted, and if the announcement of the rebate is received soon, there is no doubt that large quantities of oats will seek the seaboard by the St. Lawrence route this season.

THE SIX ELECTORAL DIVISIONS

And the Numbers of Voters in Each—Sons of Proprietors Not Included.

In view of the approaching Provincial general elections Mr. Gosselin, assistant city clerk, has prepared a list showing the number of voters in the six new divisions as follows:

Division 1
St. Mary's Ward		6600
Division 2
St. James' Ward	6076
East Ward	911
		6987
Division 3
St. Louis Ward		4498
Division 4
St. Lawrence Ward		3043
Division 5
St. Antoine Ward		7254
Division 6
St. Ann's Ward	4999
West Ward	1424
Centre Ward	957
		7380
Total		35,762

The act also provides that sons of proprietors of age and residing with their parents are entitled to vote, provided the share of each aggregates $300 per annum. The list does not include the names of these, and they consequently will be unable to vote at the forthcoming election. An effort will be made by the revisers to include them in next year's lists.

THEY HAVE THE PULL.

National Conservatives to Run in Straight Liberal Constituencies.

It has been stated in political circles for some time past that Hon. George Duhamel, Commissioner of Crown Lands, and the Nationalist-Conservative representative of the district of Montreal, would not again seek re-election in the county of Iberville, which he now represents. The reason given was that the county being probably the strongest Liberal division in the province was anxious to have a straight rouge for its representative and the names of Messrs. Ph. Roy, Ph. Demers and Mr. Gosselin were mentioned as being likely to succeed Mr. Duhamel in the representation of the county. Le National, the minister's personal organ, removes all doubt on the subject now by stating in the most emphatic terms that although Mr. Duhamel has received the offer of ten other counties he has decided to again run in Iberville in the coming elections. The journal also intimates that the elections may come off at an early date. This announcement knocks on the head a favorite idea of the stalwart Liberals that Liberal counties would be given to Liberals. The castors evidently have still the strongest pull with Mercier.

A Canadian "Labby."

The Dominion House of Commons seems to be blessed with the possession of a member whose oratorical style is a kind of mixture of Mr. Labouchere and Mr. Cuninghame Graham, with a little of "Tim" Healy's airy grace thrown in. On March 5 the Premier was not in his place, and the Ministerial ranks were represented by Sir Hector Langevin, who moved the adjournment on the ground that four of his colleagues were disabled by indisposition. What was the nature of the epidemic which had thus played havoc with the Government he did not state. Thereupon Mr. Peter Mitchell took occasion to observe that "if the Government from sickness or general inability, or any other reason, felt themselves unable any longer to carry on the business of the country, let them resign. (Great laughter.) There were other men in the House like himself and others he could mention on the same side of the House who were quite willing and quite ready to take their places. (More laughter.) Of course the House knew very well the present Ministry were an incapable lot. There were two clever men in the Cabinet, and all the rest didn't amount to shucks. (Cries of "Name.") Two of them were sitting in their places opposite him. 'You pays your money and you takes your choice.'"—Pall Mall Gazette.

Junior Conservative Club.

The annual meeting of the Junior Conservative club was held at the Windsor Hotel last evening, Mr. D. H. Henderson, president, in the chair. The election of officers for the year resulted as follows: President, Mr. F. C. Henshaw; first vice-president, Mr. M. J. F. Quinn, Q. C.; second vice-president, Mr. A. W. Morris; treasurer, Mr. C. H. Godfrey; secretary, Mr. Campbell Lane; committee, Messrs. J. P. Scott, W. H. Arnton, A. W. Hooper, B. Tansey, Geo. Bowie, A. H. Sims, E. B. Busteed, John A. Patterson, John Shinnick, M. Loughman, Geo. R. Starke, F. Massey, C. W. Radiger, Henry R. Gray, Enoch James, Maurice Drummond, N. T. Rielle and Richard Costigan.

Destroying Shade Trees.

At the last meeting of the Light Committee a letter was opened by the chairman from a proprietor in a private street demanding $25 for damages to a fine elm tree, wilfully caused by the men in putting up an electric light. This letter was not read by the chairman but was handed to Mr. Badger to enquire into. The City Surveyor says the wanton destruction of shade trees by the pole companies is disgraceful. He knew of several instances of fine trees wilfully destroyed, and instanced cases on Cadieux street, Dorchester street, and Union Avenue. He directed the street inspector to send notification to the companies in every case. Mr. Flynn said he had served several notices to the companies to take their guy wires off the trees but no notice had been taken.

Sailors' Institute.

At the annual meeting of the Sailors' Institute Thursday afternoon a committee composed of Messrs. Richard White, Captain Adams and J. Ritchie Bell were appointed to lay out a course of weekly lectures and concerts, and it was decided to continue the Hochelaga branch under Mr. Jackson. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mr. Andrew Allan; vice-president, Mr. C. Alexander; secretary, Mr. P. S. Ross; treasurer, Mr. H. McLennan; manager, Mr. J. Ritchie Bell.

Railway Traffic Earnings.

The traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the week ending April 7 were $277,000, as against $262,000 for the same week of 1889, an increase for this year of $15,000.

St. Stephen's Church, Chambly.

At the Easter vestry meeting of this church the rector presided. The people's warden, Mr. W. B. Austin, presented a very satisfactory financial statement showing a small balance in hand after meeting all liabilities, and some assets in the way of pew rents and subscriptions still to be collected. Messrs. J. W. Howard and Benj. Burland were elected lay delegates to Synod and Messrs. W. B. Austin and John Watt church wardens for the ensuing year.

Police Protection Wanted.

A resident on Pine Avenue asks what has become of the police force, or if Pine Avenue is without the boundary of civilization. He has not seen a policeman there for a twelvemonth and the other evening while his wife was returning home about six o'clock in the evening, she was accosted by a ruffian, who pulled her satchel from her arm in a most insulting manner.

ELECTION NOTES

FROM CHICOUTIMI AND SAGUENAY.

Rumors as to Movements Among Candidates for Parliamentary Honors in Various Parts of the Province.

Several candidates for parliamentary honors are said to be already in the field for Chicoutimi and Saguenay. The candidate offered by the town of Chicoutimi is M. V. Savard, advocate, of the legal firm of Savard & Alain, and the one proposed by St. Alphonse, is M. Onésime Côté, a local merchant of some wealth. The leading men of the two sections of the electoral division, Chicoutimi and the county of Saguenay, will likely adopt the following arrangement. The choice of the member for the Quebec Legislature will be left to the county of Saguenay electors for the next and all future elections, and the Chicoutimi electors will elect their own man for Ottawa. In the event of this proposal being rejected by Chicoutimi, a resident of Tadoussac will enter the field at once against all comers from the western part of the division. Or else, an outside man of great political weight and importance will be invited by the county of Saguenay electors, to meet with their unanimous support.

Ald. Villeneuve states that he has positively decided not to run in Hochelaga county. The name of Hon. Louis Beaubien is now mentioned in the Conservative interest, while Dr. O'Leary, who formerly took great interest in the county politics, is spoken of as the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Chas. Champagne says he will again run in the Government interest. Mr. Bourbonnais' friends declare that he will be shelved, and that the Government candidate in Soulanges will be Dr. Mousseau.

It is rumored in the Nationalist camp that Hon. Mr. Blanchet will not stand again for Beauce in the Local House, but will seek election to the House of Commons at the next general election.

L'Union Liberale says Mr. Charles Langelier, M. P., has gone back to Mr. Mercier and will support his Government in the next election. Mr. A. Turgeon will be the Government candidate in Bellechasse.

Rumor has it that Hon. Mr. Flynn declared in a caucus held a few days ago among the Conservative leaders in this province that he would not again be a candidate for the local elections, but would stand for election for the Federal House. For that purpose Mr. Joncas, M. P. for Gaspe, must disappear from the political arena. He will, it is understood, be appointed to the position of Collector of Customs at New Carlisle, which has become vacant by the death of Dr. Robitaille.

It is understood on good authority that Premier Mercier will stand for Bonaventure and St. Hyacinthe at once at the coming elections. He is sure, say the Nationalist leaders, of being elected in both, whilst another candidature in St. Hyacinthe might possibly split the vote in that district

The State of the Exchequer.

At this time of the year the city chest suffers from the usual well-known consequences that follow when it is all paying out and none coming in. At this afternoon's Finance Committee Mr. Robb reported that the day before yesterday the city had a balance of $750,000. Yesterday $260,000 was sent to England to pay interest on the civic debt due in May, and to-morrow $210,000 will be paid into court to pay for the expropriation of the second section of St. Lawrence street, leaving the balance in hand reduced to $280,000.

DENTIFRICE ELIXIR
DOM MAGUELONNE (Prior)
THE BEST CURATIVE AND THE ONLY PRESERVATIVE OF Dental Affections
INVENTED in the YEAR 1373 BY Prior Pierre BOURSAUD
NOTICE'S ABSTRACT
PIERRE BOURSAUD'S formula and his primitive method are scrupulously respected. This Elixir of our Forefathers possesses the most valuable properties. It prevents decay of the teeth, whitens and strengthens them. It removes blood from gums, which are fortified and strengthened so that swelling is not to be feared. It purifies breath and renders mouth perfectly healthy, leaving it in a state of delightful and lasting freshness. It prevents and cures sore throat, hoarseness, inflammation, aphtœ and irritations of every kind. In one word, the daily use of the R. R. P. P. Benedictin's Elixir, secures a continual health to the throat and mouth. As it may be seen, our Reverend Fathers' specific, fivefold secular, has no connection with products having the only property to be grateful although patronised in Commerce; it distinguishes itself as well by its preventive properties as by its curative, energetic, swift and certain acting.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

The Easter festivities have made this a broken week in business circles, and there is little to note outside of the ordinary run of trade. The departure of a prominent notary has once more shown the evil results that follow the practice of divided accounts, and the use of accommodation paper. As day by day the tariff and the New Bank Bill are discussed, interesting objections and suggestions come to light. Until the tariff is beyond the reach of change, for this session at least, certain lines of goods will be hampered. At present all entries are passed subject to amendment and importers scarcely know what quotations to give. At the same time country remittances are reported better; particularly in dry-goods and hardware. The circulation of the banks is increasing, indicating a larger volume of business being done. The Bank of Montreal is reported to have offered $900,000 to the city of Toronto at 6 per cent., but the rate is considered too high. Toronto is progressing rapidly and her own banks may offer the money on better terms. Incidentally we might mention that frequent strikes are retarding much of the building work in that city, and we understand that in new contracts a clause is being inserted, excusing the contractor for any delay that may arise through a strike. We understand that a meeting of bankers will be held in the Bank of Montreal on Monday afternoon to consider the new bank bill. This will doubtless be a meeting of no little importance to the bill as united action on the part of the banks will have undoubted weight with the Government. It is not unlikely that the guarantee fund may come up for discussion, and the suggestion of an old banker, which has been privately discussed, may be brought forward in the interests of the larger as well as the smaller banks. This suggestion is that the banks be allowed to issue notes only to the extent of seventy per cent. of their capital, but with the privilege of issuing in addition notes equal to the specie and Dominion notes held by them. This, it is urged, would be following the example of the Scottish banks and at the same carrying out the original proposal of the Minister of Finance respecting circulation and cash reserves. The clause which is causing the greatest disturbance in St. Francois Xavier street is that which enable the banks to number their shares and thus compel the registration of the numbers as well as the shares. There is no doubt that this clause would restrict transactions in bank shares whether legitimate or otherwise. That short sales would be restricted, if not prevented, is rather in favor of the clause, for short selling pre-supposes a desire to decrease the value of a stock, and the decline of a bank stock is likely to cause a want of confidence in the bank resulting, if not dispelled, in disaster. A physician, however skilled, and a bank, however sound, must have the public confidence, or fail of success. The money market, both in this city and in other financial centres, is inclining to greater ease, and this tendency has been assisted by the reduction of the Bank of England rate from 4 per cent to 3½ per cent. Money here is at 5½ per cent. on call and has been got as low as 5 per cent. Exchange has advanced and closes firm. The stock market has been quiet and weaker, partly on account of the holidays, and closes little, if any, better. There are some rumors that the Street Railway Co. intends following the example of the Gas Co. in issuing new stock. In flour and grain the week has noted a stronger feeling, but no special activity. It is said that the western millers are asking more for flour than it is being sold for here, but their demands do not as yet seem to have any effect on the market.

The recent advance in wheat in the United States caused an advance in flour also, which is assisted by the decreased output of the Minneapolis mills. The condition of the winter wheat on April 1 averaged 81. March was not a favorable month, yet good weather now will, it is said, undo almost all the harm that has been done; and will also lead to the spring wheat acreage being large. The month so far has assisted the winter wheat, but the rains have delayed spring seeding. By the closing of Lent the fish trade has lost its importance and the butcher smiles again. Groceries have moved moderately well, but some complaint is still heard about remittances although partial payments are more satisfactory than heretofore. Dry goods are in good order for a good trade as stocks are low in the country, and well assorted. The leather and boot and shoe men report that April has opened encouragingly; and the Canadian tanner seems jubilant at the duty of 15 per cent. imposed on foreign hides by the United States, as he expects to be better able to compete with the American tanner in England. Eggs and butter have been dull and weak, and are not goods that will improve on keeping, though that seems to be the opinion of the farmers of this country. Cheese is quiet.

The Clearing House returns for the week are smaller than the week before, owing to the two holidays. They are as follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
This week, April 10	$6,333,815	$0,841,302
Last week	7,402,949	1,100,396

OWNING ONE'S HOME.

As nearly as we can get at the facts, about every tenth resident in this city has an account in a savings bank, and the average sum at credit is not far from four hundred dollars. Of course a considerable proportion of the depositors in savings banks are well-to-do people, but the great majority of them are very far from being well-to-do. In many cases the $300, $500 or even the $1000 in bank is the sole resource of a household against the contingencies of business, of illness, or death. Now an interesting question arises as to how many depositors with such a sum as we have mentioned at their credit are living in rented houses. A very large number, we take it. The ownership of Montreal's real estate is very far from being as widely diffused throughout the population as is the case in Toronto, or in Philadelphia—perhaps the most comfortable city on earth. Two very prominent facts are most significant just here. The first of them is that the rate of interest paid by savings banks has been steadily falling within the last twenty years. Instead of earning five per cent. as it did in 1870, a deposit now earns but three. The Post Office Bank pays three and a half to be sure, but the red tape necessary for withdrawals prevents it having the popularity of other banks. The next important fact to be considered is that in this city and its vicinity land has steadily risen in value during the years whilst savings bank interest has been falling. So that a family living in a hired house have been subject to a constantly rising rent as their percentage of increase on savings has been shrinking. It is clear that a movement for the owning of homes has a wide field before it in Montreal under the circumstances we describe. Elsewhere in Canada, and in the United States, the multiplication of building associations has been one of the notable incidents of the year just past. In this city an unfortunate speculative element entered into the building associations formed fifteen to twenty years ago, and several of them resulted far from profitably to investors. There is no good reason why a soundly established building association may not be one of the most beneficient enterprises ever devised by the wit of man. But in availing oneself of it, rules of common prudence must not be cast to the winds. When a mechanic or clerk is liable to idleness or illness during part of the year, he should only undertake the purchase of a house when part of his savings are enough for the first payment, so as to leave him a decent reserve fund. And he should furthermore have every reasonable likelihood of being able to pay each instalment of the purchase price as it falls due. Building associations of the new type, which eschew auctions and premiums, and tell a buyer exactly how much the price of a house is, how much cash down is required, and what the instalments are, should in all cases have preference.

The main reason why a good many men hesitate to buy a home is the dread of debt; sometimes, too, the important question arises, what will become of the money paid in partly acquiring a house in case the buyer should die? To meet this very proper enquiry some of the most responsible insurance companies in the United States now combine the issue of policies with the advance of money wherewith to build a home. The North American Company of Philadelphia has an enormous business of this kind, and in Staten Island Mr. Wiman's recently launched building associations have adopted the same principle, so that if the breadwinner dies the house becomes the property of his family without further payment. We have no doubt that an arrangement similar in character could be made between associations in Montreal and leading local insurance offices. And a house, while a form of investment most desirable during a husband and father's life, is doubly so in case of his death. There are few women with so little business ability as not to be able to keep a house in repair, let it and collect its rent. If the home can be retained it remains much the best form in which its value can be held, for the price of real estate tends upward as certainly as population increases in number.

Beyond all considerations of the financial gain, which comes by directing thrift to paying for a house, is the satisfaction and benefit of having a permanent home,—a roof-tree which remains, a hearthstone about which the worthiest associations may gather without risk of disturbance or interruption. There is as much difference between the boys and girls brought up in a succession of hired houses, and children reared in a permanent home their parents have felt free to adorn, as there is between a maple transplanted every year, and a maple in a grove taking root for life.

WE have been so long accustomed to rumors of war that a rumor of peace is quite a pleasant surprise. The possibility of an understanding being arrived at by France and Germany, with a view to disarmament, is the most welcome news to Europe and the world that could be imagined. The truce of armed nations which has continued so long is producing its natural effects. It is slowly sapping the energies, exhausting the vitality and ruining the productive industries of the peoples. Worst of all is the social degradation entailed by the maintenance of vast standing armies in time of peace. There is but one way, however, by which peace can be established—the restoration of Alsace and Lorraine to France, or the neutralization of those provinces. It would be a grand concession on the part of Germany, but it would result not only in a permanent peace, but also in a lasting national friendship between the two nations. The French are a chivalrous people and would accept the cession as a proof of magnanimity never to be forgotten and which they would strive to emulate. The industrial powers of both nations, released from the crushing burdens of gigantic military systems, would revert to their normal channels. Russia, checkmated in her design of keeping the western nations at enmity, while she matured her strength to smash them in detail, would be compelled to limit her ambition. The labor problem, which now threatens Europe with social revolution, would find a natural solution. The ground-swell of discontent now shaking not only thrones and governments, but the very institutions on which thrones and governments are founded, would subside and an era of peace would dawn upon the world more happy and lasting than the most exhausting war could secure. All the horrors of war would be obviated and the supremacy of industrialism over militarism would be established in a way that would be, in itself, a guarantee of a glorious future for the world.

"It is a common fallacy to suppose that certain employments are in themselves dignified and certain others undignified. If the work is a reflection of the worker, it depends not upon what it is, but upon what he is for its dignity. How is it done? With ardor and resolution, with purpose and aspiration, with a view to improvement and excellence, or with but little care and thought, with half a heart, with a view only to the immediate reward? It is on the answers to such questions that the dignity of labor depends."

"In mercantile affairs punctuality is as important as in military. Many are the instances in which the neglect to renew an insurance punctually has led to serious loss. With sound policy do the banks insist, under penalty of a protest, on the punctual payment of loans, for, were they to do otherwise, commercial transactions would fall into inextricable confusion. Many and many a time has the failure of one man to meet his obligations brought on the ruin of a score of others, just as the toppling down in a line of bricks of the master brick causes the fall of all the rest. Thousands remain poor all their lives who, if they were more faithful to their word, would secure a large run of custom, and so make their fortunes. Be punctual if you would succeed."

"To the young man just starting in business, we would urge that the power of fixity of attention is an absolutely necessary qualification to success. No matter what the object in view, bend every energy to its attainment. You may possess industry, energy, even talent, and yet fail of success in your chosen life-work simply because you lack the power to concentrate your every thought and effort on one thing, until it is accomplished. Look it up, and you will find the secret of the successful business man is no secret after all, but, simply interpreted, spells 'concentration.'"

CHIT-CHAT.

Captain Bond Shelton, who was present at the recent wedding of his nephew, Lord Louth, is—or was—the young cornet of dragoons who, when the ill-fated "Birkenhead" struck on the rock (1852), helped to save the women and children, and when this was done, marshalled his men on deck, formed them into line, and went down with them firing a Royal salute. The men all perished, but he was picked up by a stray boat after long suffering in the water. The then King of Prussia, the grandfather of the present German Emperor, when he heard of this deed, ordered a parade of 100,000 men at Berlin, and had the account publicly read as a record of military heroism.

Mr. Balfour threatens to give us a new Parliamentary catchword. A hundred times he must have said on Tuesday night, "Very well, sir." He marked his divisions of subjects by it, his sub-divisions, and the progress of his oratorical paragraphs. "I hope I have made it clear to the House. Very well, sir," was said over and over again. Sir Charles Russell's catchword is, "Let that pass;" Sir Wm. Harcourt's "A-ah!" Mr. Goschen clears his throat. Mr. Gladstone takes a drink. But Mr. Balfour produces his pocket handkerchief, and exclaims, "Very well, sir."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Disraeli once went to a certain Israelite and asked for a loan of several thousand pounds. "On what security, Mr. Disraeli?" queried the Hebrew, doubtfully. "On the security of my ambition and my genius," said the young politician, calmly. "Very extraordinary collateral, Mr. Disraeli," murmured the other, "but call on me tomorrow, if you please, and we will talk it over." The Jew was wise, and Disraeli got the money; and, perhaps, when he saw a young man of merit struggling along, he recalled, as he stopped to help him, with a thrill of supreme satisfaction, that bitter hour of failure when his first speech was drowned by the noise of the Opposition, and he closed it abruptly with the passionate prophecy: "The day will come when you shall hear me."—The Arena.

It will surprise many persons not acquainted with statistics to learn that the average age of a bride in the United Kingdom is 24.7 years, having been increased by six months since 1873, and that in the "professional and independent classes" it reaches the age of 26¼ years. It appears, therefore, that the persons whose livelihood is more laborious or more precarious are less cautious in entering upon a relation which is at once admirable and expensive. The fact is partly explained by the principle that early marriages are frequent in those localities and among those trades where the housewife departs from her natural duty and contributes to the family earnings. But in spite of this consideration the collective prosperity of the United Kingdom can only be advanced—nay, it can only be maintained—if the women in the lower classes will follow the perhaps involuntary example of their betters. It is a ruthless paper, this of Dr. Ogle's, discouraging to the moralists and defiant against the clergy—especially against the Roman Catholic priests in Ireland who preach the sacred duty of Early Marriage. But it is full of profound suggestions; especially at a time when philanthropists are eager to remove one of the checks upon marriage, by giving education for nothing and meals for next to nothing to the children of all and sundry.

Two German engineers propose rapid transit by means of three continuous platforms moving along the streets side by side. The lowest of these platforms is four inches high and moves at a uniform speed of five feet per second. Any ordinary pedestrian can, they state, mount this platform from the ground without difficulty, and from this he can with equal ease step on to a second platform four inches higher than the first and moving twice as fast. The passenger thus acquires a speed of ten feet per second, and stepping on to the third platform in the same way, he is carried at a speed of fifteen feet per second, or ten miles per hour, to his destination, where he steps off by degrees as he got on.

A very rich man from Hamilton spoke in much the same way. 'You have retired from business,' said I. 'Why don't you live in Montreal?' THE TABLES TURNED

AS THE RESULT OF AN INVESTIGATION

By the Finance Committee Into Actions Brought Against Two Constables—The Policeman's Hat.

The tables were turned at the Finance Committee meeting yesterday afternoon. An opinion from the City Attorney was read, advising that two actions brought by one Zephirin Poulin against two constables, Altimas and Angers, for assault and false imprisonment be settled by payment of $150. The Committee of course saw no alternative but to accept the advice of their legal adviser, but Ald. Clendinneng wanted to know if the policemen were still on the force. Chief Hughes, being sent for, knew very little about the matter, which it appears took place over two years ago, before his appointment. He, however, said both the men were still in the force, Angers being a sergeant and Altimas had a record of 15 years with a perfectly clean sheet. The chief then intimated that Altimas was outside if the Committee would like to hear him; and on their signifying their approval he came in.

"Take off your hat, sir," said Ald. Clendinneng.

The man complied, looking much astonished.

"Oh, no, no," exclaimed the chief.

"What," said Ald. Clendinneng, "doesn't he take off his hat in court?" and the worthy Alderman looked very much surprised. The story as told by Altimas was that Poulin, the plaintiff, was charged by a farmer with highway robbery, that a general order was issued to the first man that met him to arrest him. He, Altimas, unfortunately, was the first man. He met him on Ontario street, where they had a scuffle in the mud, with the result that he got him to the station and delivered him to Sergeant Angers, but he himself was laid up for several weeks in consequence of the injuries he had received and the charge of assault was dismissed because he could not appear. The present actions were commenced, but had been adjourned because the plaintiff did not appear in court, and, he believed, was afraid to appear, and now tried

TO SETTLE THE MATTER.

The committee after this statement said a very different complexion had been put upon the matter and directed that the actions should be defended to the last.

A deputation of residents on Notre Dame street east, consisting of Mr. William Weir, president of the Ville Marie Bank, and others, was introduced by Ald. Jeannotte and asked the committee not to concur in the report of the Road Committee advising the laying of stone blocks on Notre Dame street east, which, from the noise, would have the effect of driving trade away from the street. They asked for wood blocks.

Ald. Prefontaine said they would abide by the decision of the majority of the proprietors, who in return must not insist upon a pavement that the Road Committee thought not suitable to that street. If they did not have stone they must have asphalt.

Ald. Clendinneng complained that the reports as to the widening of St. James street west, St. Antoine street, Little St. Antoine street and Inspector street, were kept back from the Committee, and insisted they should be brought forward at once, and the chairman undertook to call a special meeting to consider the same.

The comptroller asked what was to be done respecting the arrears due from the butchers, they having applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council from the decision of the Court of Appeal. He was instructed to proceed against them by every possible means. It was decided to recommend to the Council the appointment of Mr. G. A. Normandin to fill the position on the Board of Assessors, rendered vacant by the death of the late Mr. A. Hamilton.

THE HORSE TAX.

The Recorder Asked to Declare the Council's Resolution Illegal.

The case of the city and J. Bte. Roy, market clerk, against John Kimball and some fifteen others for the recovery of the twenty-five cent. horse tax recently imposed by the Council, came up for hearing in the Recorder's Court yesterday afternoon. Mr. R. D. McGibbon appeared for the defence, the prosecution being conducted by Mr. Forget. The line of defence was that the Council had exceeded its power in passing a resolution to "farm" away the civic revenues; again if it had not exceeded its power, the city had transferred all its rights and titles to the tax to Roy, and Roy was the only party to take an action for the recovery of the tax. Roy is a stable keeper and it was shown that he had made use of his powers to collect the tax in order to increase the receipts of his stables, even going so far in some cases as to appear to throw off the tax altogether if the horse-dealer would patronize his stables. Mr. McGibbon called the attention of the court to the fact that the Superior Court had been petitioned to set aside the by-law on the ground that it was illegal. He said that the principle of farming out the civic revenues was barbaric and the custom was so old and entirely obsolete that no modern writer had thought it necessary to touch upon it. He asked the Court simply to declare such a resolution of the Council to be beyond its power. Mr. Forget contended that Mr. Roy was simply a civic employé and as such the city had a perfect right to sue in the matter. He further quoted from the civic by-laws to prove that the Council had a right to pass such a resolution. The case was taken en delibere.

Lecture by Dean Carmichael.

"The early Frenchman and Englishman in America" was the subject of Dean Carmichael's lecture, listened to by a large and attentive audience in St. George's school-room Thursday night. It was delivered in the lecturer's usual happy vein, and while brimful of information, sparkled with wit. The plan of the essay was the contrast between the methods of founding a colony pursued by the emigrants of the two nationalities. The history of New France was marked by individuals, great explorers, who traversed the vast continent across forests and lakes, encountering the dangers of flood, famine, wild beast, and savage Indian, and taking possession of whole territories in the name of his soverign. The English, on the other hand, settled down in bands in one district, cleared holdings, built houses, farmed the land, made roads, and formed themselves into well-organized committees with good laws and customs. Thus New England made great progress while New France was almost at a standstill. The proceeds of the sale of tickets were given to parish charities.

Oddfellows' Concert.

The concert and ball in the Victoria Armory last evening under the auspices of the Oddfellows' Band was very largely attended and a success generally. A feature of the programme was the production of an original musical burlesque entitled "Oddfellowship Exposed," in which an amusing representation of a lodge meeting was given.

Rev. Dr. Smyth has recovered of his late accident and will occupy his pulpit on Sabbath morning.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE COMING PHILHARMONIC CONCERTS

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" Described and Criticized—A New Work by Mr. Chs. A. E. Harriss.

The Philharmonic Concerts are close at hand, and as yet we have said nothing of the works to be performed, excepting Berlioz's "Faust," to which many columns have been devoted and which might fill up volumes. We have dwelt at length on "Faust" because it is altogether unknown in this country, because even its author's name is familiar only to a very limited circle of musicians and amateurs, while on the other hand, "Elijah" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" are well known among all classes. If "Faust" is destined to draw a crowd by its descriptive and fantastic character, "Elijah" will certainly not fail to gather a large audience, eager of applauding its classical and dramatic beauties. Wherever there is an English population, "Elijah" attracts a crowded house. For this reason, every important city generally gives an annual performance of it and it is conspicuous on every festival programme in England. The work has now become such an old acquaintance with every body that there is no need to extol its merits or prepare the hearers. Rossini's "Stabat Mater" is a popular work in the broadest sense of the word. It seems to have been intended rather in view of pleasing the ear—however refractory it may be to music—than as a picture of the bitter affliction which overwhelmed the Mother of Christ at the foot of the cross. It is music superficially religious and therefore better suited in a sacred concert than during Divine service, yet eminently qualified to rouse enthusiasm among all who seek in music no more than transient enjoyment.

This defect is due to an absence of the religious element proper, not to want of musical merit, which is in every respect worthy of the author of "Il Barbiere" and "William Tell." A proof of this lies in the fact that, so soon as it was produced, the "Stabat" gave rise to an

and that three of its pieces, the tenor solo "Cujus Animam," the bass solo, "Pro Peccatis," the duett for soprano and contralto, "Quis est homo," are universal favorites and form that which constitutes the summit of ambition in many amateurs. For years the "Inflammatus" was a necessary complement to every programme. It was that of Madame Albani's concert last year, when she sang, assisted by the Philharmonic Society. Fétis gives the following information about the birth of the "Stabat Mater": "Rossini, while visiting Spain towards the close of 1832, had hastily written a "Stabat Mater" for a wealthy citizen of that country. Troupenas (Rossini's editor) suggested to the master that he should revise the work, and enlarge it with new pieces in order to produce it in Paris at a certain number of "concerts spirituels." Without apparently attaching much importance to this suggestion, Rossini set to work, carefully writing out his score and sending it to his editor. Paris was soon alive to the fact that a new work had come from the author of "William Tell," whose pen had slumbered for twelve years. It was quite an event! The concerts of the "Stabat Mater" followed in quick succession, a compact crowd thronged to the concert hall, and the favor of admission was secured at extravagant prices (au poids de l'or). Meanwhile editions of the work were published under different sizes, and in scores for orchestra or piano, with Latin, French and Italian words. The printer could hardly answer the demands of purchasers. On every side, in every salon just as much as at the theatre or at the concert, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" took the lead. The success and popularity of this work has not since decreased; for when properly rendered it creates a vivid impression among the audience.

The introduction, "Stabat Mater," the aria for tenor, the quartett "Sancta Mater," and the "Inflammatus" are of perfect beauty. Moreover, the whole work bears an incontestable stamp of originality. Rockstro, author of "The Life of G. F. Handel," in his study of the different settings of the "Stabat" says: "We do not pause to enquire whether of Rossini's "Stabat Mater" is worthy of the subject or not; but we do say, of critics who judge it harshly, and dilettanti who can listen to it unmoved, that they must be either case hardened by pedantry, or destitute of all ear for music. "We cannot resist the temptation of giving another quotation, due to Mr. E. M. de Monter, who thus felicitously describes the semi-worldly religious character of Rossini's sacred works. "One must acknowledge that Rossini's sacred music is that of a highly-polished society, fond of color, éclat, novelty, effect; thirsting for dramatic impressions; exceedingly sensitive to all which does not bear directly upon it; seeking in art, its most exquisite enjoyment, even its convictions; in quest of the grand, the gorgeous, a society which bows down in churches gay, comfortable, profusely ornamented, before the mysterious presence of an indulgent Deity to whose kindness it is indispensable to celebrate for the sake of this society, in the midst of music, eloquence, painting, flowers, sweet perfumes and luxury."

This sweetly-flowing music, requiring no particular strain of the mind, which the most languid temperament can hear without the slightest shock to ruffle its placid surface, which encircles the hearer in a melodic veil and bathes his senses in a delightful reverie, formes a very happy selection for the third concert of the society. Following the majestic choruses of "Elijah" and the diabolism of "Faust's" orchestration, the "Stabat" comes as a rest and will prevent subscribers from feeling any slight fatigue which might possibly result from three successive performances of elaborate works requiring a special mental strain.

But Rossini's "Stabat," with its enchanting music, will not be the sole attraction of this third concert. A new work, by a local composer—a case of very rare occurence in our young country, and we believe, the most important case yet recorded—will be performed. Under penalty of nipping in the bud all emulation, all healthy ambition, all hope in the breasts of our local musicians and discouraging the Philharmonic from extending its valuable assistance to rising talent, a keen public interest should be manifested whenever a new work is to be produced, provided, of course, the author has already set forth proofs of ability commanding public attention, as in Mr. Chas. A. E. Harriss' case. "Daniel Before the King" will surely be produced before all who, in our city, feel interested in the experience which our musicians are destined to acquire from the performance of their works, and in the reverberation initial performances generally provoke in border countries and even at a distance when the work is one of exceptional merit. In any case the country grows into note before its neighbors, and musical art spreads in consequence. SYMPHONY.

The Milk Question.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—As a milkman who attended the meeting referred to by Mr. Currie in your issue of Saturday, April 5, allow me space for a few remarks on the subject. After carefully removing any imputation on his character as to himself or his son selling buttermilk without a license, which no one supposed they did, the proper authorities being equal to looking after that, Mr. Currie complains of the treatment he received by the ill-mannered majority in not granting him a hearing at a meeting chiefly through his exertions got up, the latter in my opinion not being the case, although a meeting on the same subject held the week previous probably was. Myself and some few others, supposing by the advertisement that it was called by the Ministerial Association, unfortunately attended, and considerable discussion ensued, Mr. Currie having plenty of say, principally in proving to his own satisfaction that milk improved by keeping, and making the very charitable proposition that children and sick people who required fresh milk on Sunday should be charged double price for that day. And it was this first meeting being recognized by us that made the second a necessity to show Mr. Currie and his few followers that they neither represented the milkmen or citizens of Montreal. As to his light on the tricks of trade surely milkmen themselves did not need it (unless he meant the buttermilk trade), and the chairman in his opening remarks distinctly stated that the discussion should be only on the subject of delivering milk on Sunday or not. If he thought to reach the public through the press I should say the same avenues are still open. But Mr. Currie in losing his temper shows his hand, forgets Sabbath observance, and comes out in his real colors as champion of the trainman, who not being able to get fresh milk on Sunday wish us to stay at home. His array of figures proves nothing as far as I see, having no vouchers for their accuracy. How milk can be improved by a ride by rail I am unable to explain nor do I see how it can be different in cows, as those brought to market and bought by us are chiefly from the districts supplying milk to city dealers and are generally in such poor condition that we find their milk thin for a few weeks until they get accustomed to good feeding; and this fact causes us some little difficulty in spring each year. Mr. Currie knowing this may have selected the month of May for his comparisons. Believing I express the sentiments of many milkmen I sign myself one of the

THE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

The Handling Facilities on the Wharves Wanted by Shippers.

The Live Stock Association is still urging upon the Council of the Board of Trade the necessity of co-operating with them in securing from the Harbor Commissioners the assignment of a special wharf for the shipment of live stock. The live stock men ask that a wharf either at Windmill Point or Hochelaga be set apart for the shipment of live stock, and that vessels proceed to these wharves after they have taken on their general cargoes, to receive their cattle, sheep and horses. The cattle men claim that to place cattle conveniently on shipboard they require pens and gangways of special construction, and which it is impossible to provide at wharves where general merchandise is handled. The Harbor Commissioners are consulting the managers of the steamship lines before deciding what to do in the matter. It is understood that the steamship men object to the proposed change on the ground that the moving of the vessels from one wharf to another would entail considerable loss of time and additional expense. The Harbor Commissioners have, however, expressed themselves anxious to do something in the way of providing handling facilities for cattle.

The Charges Against Premier Blair.

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 11.—The investigation into the charges against Premier Blair before the select committee began today. It was proved that Mr. Murphy, of Kelly & Murphy, St. John, went to Fredericton just before the election, deposited a package in a safe at Gunther's Express office and then got Gunther to show him the way to Blair & Barry's office. Murphy is Kelly's partner and Kelly has been Jas. D. Leary's most intimate friend and strongest supporter in the St. John council board. Murphy swore that he took fifteen hundred dollars in the package to Fredericton, first deposited it with Gunther and afterwards delivered it to Mr. Barry, Blair's law partner, at their office.

Chicago's War on the Bucket Shops.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A mass meeting of the Board of Trade was held to-day. As the bucket shops are getting quotations by private wires the directors were authorized to act in their discretion to compel the removal of such wires from the offices of members of the board. The meeting also voted to forbid any member or combination of members from collecting or disseminating quotations. It was also resolved that the telegraph companies be requested to restore the rates in force from the exchange rooms, and in the event of refusal that the board take steps to organize a telegraph company among the different boards throughout the country.

Horrible Fight in Wigan.

LIVERPOOL, April 11.—A horrible fight took place at Wigan, Lancashire, yesterday. Two noted wrestlers, Moran, of Wigan, and Haigh, of Standish, were the principals. They were naked, with the exception of short trousers and clogs, but in the first round the trousers were torn to shreds, and the clogs were then used as weapons. The men presented a sickening sight at the close. They were seamed, scarred and gashed in all directions. Haigh was declared the victor. Moran was carried home unconscious.

Rothschild's Mansion Burned.

LONDON, April 11.—The mansion of Baron Ferdinand James de Rothschild, at Waddesdon Manor, Aylesbury, has been partly destroyed by fire. Among the property burned were a picture by Gainsborough valued at £10,000 and a large quantity of valuable tapestry.

Herr Gruenwald's Expulsion.

BERLIN, April 11.—It is stated that the action of the Italian Government in expelling from Italy Herr Gruenwald, correspondent of the Frankfuerter Zeitung, was taken at the instance of Germany, which requested his expulsion for attacking the Triple Alliance.

Mr. E. B. Busteed, and Mr. Campbell Lane, advocates, have been appointed commissioners for receiving affidavits for the Superior Court and all courts of record in the province of Quebec.

WORLD'S NEWS IN BRIEF.

THE FRENCH BLOCKADE OF DAHOMEY.

The Panitza Conspiracy—Lord Derby on the Land Purchase Bill—Reported Arrest of Eyraud.

CABLE.

The Right Rev. Edward Parry, D. D., suffragan Bishop of Dover, is dead.

Emperor William has asked the Czar for permission to make a tour through Russia.

Grand Duke Sergius, brother of the Czar, replaces Prince Dolgoroukoff as governor of Moscow.

Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, has arrived in Rome. He has seen Cardinal Simeoni, and will shortly be granted an interview with the Pope.

The blockade established by France to prevent the landing of arms for use by the Dahomians will be extended to certain additional portions of the African slave coast.

The Roumanian paper Telegraful says several persons implicated in the Panitza conspiracy in Bulgaria have confessed that Sloanoff was poisoned in Paris by Russian agents.

The Russian Government has granted the Danube Steamship Company a subsidy of 2,700,000 roubles to increase its flotilla on the condition that all the company's vessels be henceforth considered in the active service of the Russian navy.

The Earl of Derby, in a letter on the Government Irish land purchase bill, argues that the opposition of the Parnellites to the measure is a strong argument in its favor, based upon the knowledge that wherever tenants have become owners the agitation has ceased.

AMERICAN.

The steamer "Hudson" arrived at Chicago yesterday from Buffalo. She is the first eastern boat through the Straits this season.

The strike in the building trade in New York is spreading, and carpenters, stair-builders, steamfitters, plumbers, housesmiths, bricklayers and bricklayers' laborers are now out.

A man calling himself Baron Leopoldo Andres Paulhan has been arrested at Chilpancingo, Mexico, on suspicion of being Eyraud, the murderer of Police Inspector Bouffard, of Paris.

The Senate World's Fair committee met at Washington yesterday, and after discussion determined to report the World's Fair bill favorably to the Senate with Chicago in the bill, but with the amendment which provides for celebrations in Washington and New York added.

Great pressure was brought to bear upon Governor Ferry to have him veto the bill granting telegraph companies the privilege to construct lines on all railroads in Washington Territory. The Governor, however, allowed the bill to become law by lapse of time. The effect of the bill destroys the Western Union Telegraph Company's exclusive privileges and permits the Postal and Canadian Pacific companies to construct lines on all railroads in Washington Territory.

CANADIAN.

General Laurie, M. P., has leased his famous farm known as Oakfield, N. S., to B. W. Chipman for a term of years.

A bill was introduced in the Nova Scotia House of Assembly last night for the abolition of the Legislative Council and passed its first and second readings.

The steamer "Ocean Prince," which arrived at Halifax last evening short of coal, had a terrible time. She left Gibraltar 21 days ago bound for Gloucester, Mass., and ever since leaving port met with terrific weather, the storms at times developing into regular hurricanes.

STANLEY ON EMIN.

The Explorer Frees His Mind Regarding the Rescue of Emin Pasha.

NEW YORK, April 11.—In an interview with the Herald correspondent at Brindisi, Henry M. Stanley freed his mind concerning Emin Pasha. He was asked:

"Suppose you had left Emin where you found him, what would have been the result?"

Stanley replied: "He would have been at this moment in Khartoum as a common slave. The Mahdists would have made him share the common fate. Nothing could have saved him. If I had found Emin with a strong and stable force and an established authority I would have given him ammunition. It would have been give! give! give! —and pray to God for the rest. But what are the facts? I found Emin and made him three offers—first, to remain and receive £1500 a year and a subsidy of £12,000; second, to be escorted to another part of Africa and there established as Governor; third, to be taken out of Africa safe. He said he wanted time to think. I gave him a year and went away under a cloud of mystery, which was only penetrated when I returned and found Emin a prisoner."

"But, was Emin anything more than a prisoner in name?"

"Certainly; he was as much a prisoner as a fellow in chains. His people did not want him. They said, in effect, 'Go and gather butterflies and bugs, but we want none of you.' There was

His servants would not obey him. Had he been frank with me when first I met him and told him his situation I would have advised him how to act. When I returned it was too late to do anything but save him."

"Mr. Stanley, you have heard it said that certain people worked on Emin's mind while he was sick in Bagamoyo, and convinced him that he had been put in a humiliating position by being rescued?"

"Yes, for the Germans wanted to get him in their service. There was not a surer way to do it. He was sick and in their hospital."

"What do you think the Germans mean by employing Emin?"

"Well, there is no doubt that he is going to get in and cut off the British coast from the interior of Africa. It was agreed between England and Germany that each should have a sphere of influence divided by a fixed line. It was as if England should control all North America from the north side, and Germany should control all from the south side. They agreed not to cut each off in the rear, but that is just what the Germans seem to be intent on doing."

ANTI-STANLEY FEELING.

LONDON, April 11.—A correspondent at Berlin says he notes a growing anti-Stanley feeling there. Herr Richard while lecturing recently, declared that Stanley while on his search for Livingston learned from Arabs at Zanizai Livingston's location, but concealed it in order to enhance his feat. The lecturer declared that Stanley by threats induced Emin Pasha to leave Wadelai. He himself had failed in commercial land-gambling and speculation. The lecturer read a letter from Count Stellaire, whose son, the Zanzibar agent of the German East African company, had informed him that Stanley's proposition to Emin was to collect forces and go and establish himself in Kavirondo while Stanley would bring two steamers from Mombassa, and join him in an expedition to conquer Uganda and Anyoro and create an equatorial dominion of which Emin with a princely salary should be ruler in the service of the British East African company. The railway would be built from the coast through the dominion connecting with the sources of the Nile; the scheme would prove the grave of the commercial hopes of Germany.

STANLEY IN ROME.

ROME, April 11.—Henry M. Stanley arrived here to-day. He was greeted with cheers and vivas by a great crowd of people. The president of the Italian Geographical society welcomed him and presented him with a gold medal.

Terrible Scene in a Church.

LONDON, April 11.—During the celebration of mass in the cathedral at Bronischewitz, Hungary, to-day, the edifice caught fire and was burned to the ground. The congregation became panic stricken and choked the exits, so that a large number of persons must have lost their lives but for the presence of mind of the villagers, who rushed to their assistance and set the stream in motion. Two persons were killed and several injured.

A Female Club in Trouble.

SEDALIA, Mo., April 11.—Acting under instructions from Judge Ryland, the grand jury has issued subpoenas for a number of the "High Five" club, a social club among whose members are a number of young ladies. It is supposed an effort will be made to find indictments against members of the club on the charge of permitting gambling on their premises. At first it was regarded as a joke, but now a more serious view is taken of the matter.

A Clergyman's Confession.

DAYTON, O., April 11.—Letters have been received from Rev. Edward Manson, a resident of this city, and pastor of the Progressive Brethren church at Miamisburg, confessing he is a forger, and is on his way to Wales to reclaim an inheritance, or failing in that to kill himself. He leaves a wife destitute. He left home on March 10, saying he was going to St. Louis to preach a funeral sermon, but instead he went to New York, whence he wrote to his wife and others. He forged notes and borrowed money from a number of banks. The amount is not known and it is a mystery what was done with the proceeds. Rev. Mr. Mason had a high standing in religious circles and is an author of some repute. It is said he was addicted to opium.

The Oka Question.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—As I have lately been authorized by the Indians to defend them in the press I would feel thankful for their sakes if you would allow me to state a few facts in reference to your article of last night. I have in my possession now a copy of the original title and conditions on which the Seminary got the seigniory of the Lake of Two Mountains in 1717. The title distinctly states that one of the reasons for their getting the said seigniory for the Indians was that they should be further away from the opportunities of getting intoxicated. There are several licensed places at Oka now. That point speaks for itself. The only conditions required of the Indians were that they should pay the Seminary 20 sols and a capon (chapon) for each lot one acre in front by 40 in depth. In plain language they were to pay 20c and a rooster for every lot. The only restrictions were that they must not cut the oak trees that might be of use for building His Majesty's ships. I trust that you will do the Indians the justice to insert the above facts. The documents may be seen at the Fraser Institute any time.

The Use of Hand Hose.

Special Notices.

The summer is coming, buy a parasol at S. Carsley's, new goods just passed into stock.

Umbrellas! While it is of the utmost importance to display great care in selecting the material that our umbrellas are covered with, to ensure good wear, we have also found that the selection of handles has to be well considered; these facts we claim to have paid special attention to, the gold and silver handles and those of two metals, or either combined with ivory or carved wood, are beautifully made and most artistic in design. Henry Morgan & Co. 85 2

Raining, raining, raining, buy an umbrella at S. Carsley's, largest stock in the Dominion.

Jerseys are still in demand, and likely to be, until a substitute is found which can be sold at a correspondingly low figure, therefore we keep our stock well up in all the leading lines, prices ranging from $1.43 upwards. Henry Morgan & Co. 85 2

Scratched 28 Years.

Scratched twenty-eight years. Body covered with scaly psoriasis. Constant shedding of scales. Suffering endless and without relief. Scratched all the time. Physicians and the usual remedies useless. $200 thrown away. Cured by CUTICURA REMEDIES at a cost of $5. Skin now as clear and free from scales as a baby's. Cured Jan. 20, 1887. Cure permanent to date, Feb. 5, 1890.

CURED BY CUTICURA.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took......and......

Sarsaparilla over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors, and no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book, of Psoriasis (picture No. 2, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Anyone who reads this may write to me, and I will answer it.

DENNIS DOWNING.

WATERBURY, VT., Jan. 20, 1887.

I confirm my cure of Jan. 20, 1887, which remains complete and permanent to date.

DENNIS DOWNING.

WATERBURY, VT., Feb. 5, 1890.

Grand's Repository

ADELAIDE ST., TORONTO.

We beg respectfully to call attention to a few of our horses described below as being a fair sample of the large number we shall have the honor to offer at our Great Annual Spring Sale, which takes place on April 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19.

The first two days will be devoted exclusively to the sale of high-class saddle and harness horses. The following three days we shall sell 250 young general-purpose draught mares and geldings and stallions.

SUPERB—Black Gelding, 5 years, 16 hands, sound. Sired by Whistle Jacket; dam by Ivanhoe. A remarkably clever jumper, up to great height; a capital harness horse, and extraordinarily handsome; can top 5 ft. 6 in. with but little handling.

RAVEN—Black Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands 1 in., sound. A complete pattern of an Irish hunter; would command a very high price in England, being capable of carrying 20 stone over any country; is also a thoroughly-reliable harness horse. He is sired by Judge Curtis, out of a mare by Black Jack.

RAINBOW—Chestnut Gelding, 7 years, 16 hands 1 in., sound. By War Cry; dam by Milesian. This is a horse of unsurpassed quality and finish; is a magnificent fencer, a fine goer in harness, and would command the attention of gentlemen in any part of the world.

RODERICK—Chestnut Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands 1 in., sound. By Longstreet; dam Glencoe. Has great substance, a grand mover, good heavy-weight carrier, jumps well, capital dog-cart horse, and matches well in double harness with RAINBOW, thus making a very valuable pair of all-round horses.

MARJORIE—Black Mare, 6 years, 16 hands, sound. By Speculum; dam, Clarion. This is a fine saddle mare, clean jumper, good action, and well adapted for a dog cart.

LILLIAN—Grey Mare, 7 years, 16 hands, sound. By Milesian; dam, Erin Chief. This is undoubtedly one of the very best harness mares to be found anywhere, having great substance, a fine natural mover, and can road 100 miles in ten hours, besides being extra good under saddle, and jumps well.

IRON DUKE—Chestnut Gelding, 5 years, 16 hands, sound. By Royal Revenge; dam, Judge Curtis. This is, without exception, one of the finest and most stylish dog-cart horses to be found in Canada, having extraordinary fine action, and is a remarkably prompt and free driver; also rides well.

GORDON—Grey Gelding, 6 years, 15 hands 1 in., sound. By Thunder; dam, Kimble. Very handsome, stylish in all harness, besides being one of the most pleasant and reliable light-weight hunters in this or any other country; can jump 5 ft. 6 in. with ease, and is of a remarkable docile disposition. Many lady riders would consider him worth his weight in gold.

STANLEY—Gray Gelding, 6 years, 15 hands 3 inches, sound. By Thunder; dam Tippoo. This horse has extraordinary fine knee action for one of so much breeding; has been jumped but few times, but is very promising, and can gallop fast enough, in good, judicious hands, to win a hunt-cup steeplechase. This horse with GORDON would make a magnificent pair of leaders for four-in-hand.

LANCER—Bay Gelding, rising five, 16 hands 1 inch, sound. By Longueille; dam Hyder Ali (sire of Spokane). This is one of the most magnificent specimens of a hunter and park horse ever offered in any country. Many a nobleman or gentleman, could they see him, would pay a tremendous price to own him, as he combines all the very best qualities obtainable in a horse, being of fine size, breeding and appearance; is remarkably sound, clever in all his paces, good jumper, and fine harness horse, single or double.

FRALICE—Chestnut Mare, 3 years, 15 hands 3 inches, sound. By Huckleberry; dam Kimble. A remarkably clever medium weight hunter, being fast, a fine fencer, a capital harness mare. Would make a lovely lady's hack, park hack, for both saddle and harness; with but little handling has beaten 5 ft. already.

RIVAL—Bay Gelding, rising 5 years, 15 hands 3 inches, sound. By Longueille; dam Pastor. Is a wonderfully compact cob-built animal, with a remarkable short, strong back, capable of carrying great weight; is of a very fine disposition, and well adapted to carry a heavy lady rider; is a clever jumper and very quiet and kind in all harness.

BARONET—Chestnut Gelding, 7 years, 16 hands 2 inches, sound. By Glencoe; dam Vespucius. A very compact, short-legged, cob built horse, of great quality and substance, is a magnificent jumper and fine harness horse. (This horse is highly recommended.)

BOBBY and TOMMY—Pair dark Chestnut Cobs, sound, 5 years, 14 hands 3 ins. Very kind in single and double harness, prompt drivers and fast, adapted for park phaeton, being very handsome and showy. They are sired by an imported English Norfolk Hackney Stallion, out of French mares.

PARIS—A beautiful rich, red Chestnut Gelding, 7 years, 16 hands 2 inches, sound. By Judge Curtis; dam Rysyk. This is without exception the best big weight carrying hunter to be obtained in this country, having a remarkably fine disposition, is a thoroughly reliable, safe and high jumper, a magnificent harness horse, and can be ridden or driven by a lady. There are but few to be procured like him in this or any other country.

CHARLEY—Chestnut Gelding, rising 5 years, 15 hands 2¼ inches, sound. Caligula; dam Vespucius. Is a horse of extra quality, very handsome, an exceedingly promising jumper, and any lady can ride or drive him, being of a fine and tractable temper.

ROAD MARE, JEANETTE—Bay Mare, 5 years, 15 hands 3 inches, sound. By General Keene (Hamiltonian); dam Toronto Chief. Is one of the finest gentleman's road mares in this country, has never been trained by professionals, but can trot any day close to 2.50, and for a long journey roadster cannot be surpassed, and if put into good hands is likely to create a surprise, as she is very rapid-gaited and level-headed.

ORLANDO—Dark Bay Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands, sound. By Stockwood, dam Virus. Was hunted with Toronto hounds two or three times last fall and proved very fast, a high jumper and therefore would be a splendid candidate for any Hunt Cup or Green steeplechase; has great courage, up to weight, far more than ordinary trotting action in harness—a perfect dog-cart horse—capable of doing better than 12 miles an hour.

STAR—Bay Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands, sound. By Marmaduke, dam Lord Derby. This horse is up to great weight, having remarkable substance, with magnificent flat legs and good feet, is of high courage, promises to jump very high; extra stylish in both single and double harness, and is of a pattern which would command a high price in any part of the world.

BISMARCK—Chestnut Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands, sound. By Stockwood; dam Trumpeter. A very fine looking gentleman's horse, being very sporty in appearance, a capital jumper, and very prompt and good-looking in harness, and would attract attention anywhere.

"DOC."—Brown Bay Gelding, 4 years, 16 hands, 2 inches, sound. By Lord Cleveland; dam by Lucksail. A remarkably fine specimen of the English bay coach horse, being bred from imported stock on both sides; has extraordinary fine knee action, and if mated closely the pair would command a very high price—is kind in single or double harness.

PRINCESS—Bay Mare, 5 years, 16 hands, 1 inch, sound. By Derby; dam Harper. A wonderful clever fencer, up to great weight, and one of the finest harness horses in the Dominion, as she has both style, speed and action far above the ordinary; a lady can drive her close to an engine.

JASPER—A rich, dark Chestnut Gelding, 5 years, 16 hands. By St. James; dam by Thunder. This is a remarkable sporting looking horse, has short back, capable of carrying any weight, with great bone and substance, is a fine harness horse, high jumper, and in fact combines all that is most desirable in a gentleman's all-round horse.

GLADSTONE—Bay Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands 1 in., sound. By Glencoe; dam by Jack Bell. Can jump now with very little schooling 5 ft. 6 in., and in good hands will undoubtedly rival if not excel some of the champions; is also a magnificent harness horse.

DONOVAN—Bay Gelding, 6 years, 16 hands 1 inch, sound. By Galway; dam Capt. Beaufort. Can jump close to 6 ft., and is a reliable harness horse both single and double; has been driven and mates well with GLADSTONE.

FASHION—Bay Mare, 4 years, 15 hands 2¼ inches, sound. By Princeton; dam Terror. A very handsome mare, with extra fine quality; can jump over 5 ft.; a rare light weight hunter across country, and is prompt, stylish, and free in harness.

GLENDALE—Bay Gelding, 7 years, 16 hands 1 inch, sound. By Longueille; dam War Cry. Is a clever heavy weight hunter, jumps high; a horse of magnificent symmetry, and can be driven by a lady in all harness.

JOY—Bay Mare, foaled 1883, sound; sired by Magician; dam, Floss by Jack the Barber—marks, nigh fore and hind ankles white. Joy is an extremely well-bred mare, stands 15 hands 9 inches in height, shows great quality, is a great jumper, and has fine action in harness. The mare, by her breeding and conformation, should prove a hunt cup winner.

BRITANNIA—Brown Mare, foaled 1883, sound, sired by Junior Briton. "Britannia" is a seal brown mare, stands 15 hands 1 inch in height, and is a real old hackney sort, on short legs; fine long well-bred neck; beautiful head; has lots of bone and very high knee action; is broken to ride; is up to great weight; is very kind in harness.

FLORENCE—Bay Mare, foaled 1883, sound; sired by Marmaduke—marks, small white star. "Florence" is a very powerful mare, has a fine shoulder, short back, long arched neck, small, well-bred head, and will carry 200 lbs. with ease; she has been hunted, and is a capital jumper and a fine hunter.

ENCHANTRESS—Bay Mare, foaled 1884, sound; sired by Magician, dam by Marmaduke—same markings as above. "Enchantress" shows lots of quality, stands 15 hands 2 inches in height, is a very nice saddle mare, will carry a lady; has beautiful knee and hock action. "Joy" and "Enchantress" together make an extremely handsome and breedy-looking pair of park horses.

AVON—Chestnut Gelding, foaled 1886, sound; full brother to "Stratford"—solid color. "Avon" is an exceptionally fine gelding, stands 15 hands 3½ inches high, is a grand horse anywhere placed, single, double, or harness.

GERTRUDE—Bay Mare, 7 years, 15 hands 3 inches, sound. By Revolver (imported), dam Jack the Barber. Is very handsome, of fine, gentle disposition, rides well, and is perfectly reliable in all harness.

Sale will commence Tuesday, at 1.15 p. m., four following days at 11 o'clock sharp.

SOME LIVELY SCENES

DURING THE DEBATE ON THE TARIFF

In the House of Commons—Various Opposition Objections—General Laurie's Explanation—Parliamentary Notes.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, April 12.—In the House, yesterday, General Laurie offered an explanation regarding the charge that he had been paid $600 as travelling allowances from London, England. Owing to private reasons, he said, it was necessary to move his family to England. Before going he was unsuccessful in pairing with an opposition member. His home, he said, is London, and for the present he must stay there. In making up the account for his mileage the accountant of the House told him he was entitled to the allowance provided he would make a declaration that his residence was in England. Accordingly he did so. Mr. McMullen, though ruled out of order, managed to make himself heard. The General, he said, only brought up the matter on learning of Mr. McMullen's intentions. General Laurie angrily repudiated the insinuation. "Well, you got the money," exclaimed Mr. McMullen. This ended the matter.

DIVULGING OFFICIAL SECRETS.

Hon. Peter Mitchell strongly objected to Sir Adolphe Caron's bill for preventing the disclosure of official documents. The measure was drafted at the British Government's request. It resembles the English act, except that the maximum penalty is fixed. In England judges enjoy discretionary power. Hon. Mr. Mitchell said such legislation was arbitrary and unnecessary, reflecting, as it did, upon the Canadian Civil Service. Sir Adolphe, in reply, said that, in view of the proposed Imperial defensive works in Canada and Great Britain, the least the House of Commons could do was to pass the proposed measure for the common good of all parts of the Empire, even if it were not more particularly for the welfare of Canada herself. It had been thought necessary for the Imperial authorities to undertake the strengthening of the fortresses and other places of naval strength on the Atlantic and Pacific. These works were not solely in Great Britain's interests, but for the defence of our own shores.

SCENES AND SQUABBLES.

The tariff changes were then taken up. A constant succession of scenes and squabbles occurred until the adjournment. Mr. Mulock, aided by Dr. Wilson, commenced the fun amidst derisive cheers. He insisted upon Mr. Foster withdrawing certain language used in the debate last week. The Minister, in a heated outburst, had declared in effect that he held it criminal for public men to slander their country. Mr. Foster would not take back his words, but shouted back, "Hear, hear." Mr. Curran followed in a speech which is described as his ablest effort this session. He charged that the Opposition policy of misrepresentation was inflicting serious injury upon Canada across the border. The United States had no better friend than this country in its late civil war. Darcy McGee, in a speech, said "Canadians declared for justice, mercy, civilization and the north." After making a plea for national unity, Mr. Curran defended the National Policy before turning his batteries upon the Opposition. The honorable gentlemen opposite wanted annexation. Let them unfold their flag, he said, rather than seek it in a roundabout, sneaking way. Great was the commotion across the floor. Sir Richard Cartwright with a vengeance. Sir John's strongest supporters, he said, were dyed to the hilt in annexationist tendencies. It would be recalled that a Cabinet Minister at one time openly avowed himself as an advocate of political union. Acrimonious expressions for another hour were freely indulged in. The other speakers included Mr. Clark Wallace, Dr. Landerkin and Mr. McMullen. The Opposition objected to the tax on trusses and suspensory bandages as excessive. A motion by Mr. McMullen for a reduction was lost by 45 to 33. A long discussion followed regarding unhulled rice. The Liberals maintained that this tax was required neither for revenue reserve nor for protection. Mr. Foster declared it was necessary for revenue purposes, whereupon objection was taken to the urging of a revenue duty on a necessary of life, whilst such articles as diamonds and raw silk came in free. There was a lively passage at arms between Sir Richard Cartwright and Bowell, the former having hinted that the manufacturers were bribing the Minister. Mr. Bowell, in an excited manner, pronounced the statement a lie. Feeling ran high. Sir Richard explained that he meant the manufacturers only subscribed to the election fund. The item then passed.

HURLED BACK THE CHARGES

NOTES.

Henry Bolze, G. C. Clausen, New York; Jas. Cochrane, contractor; J. D. Lawrence, contractor; J. Misael Fortier and Edmond N. St. Jean, Montreal, are applying for incorporation as "The Sicily Asphaltum Paving Company," to import into Canada in its natural state rock asphaltum from Sicily, Hanover and other countries, to establish in Montreal or elsewhere mills or works where the said asphaltum will be prepared for the paving of streets, public roads and such like purposes. The capital stock is $30,000.

C. C. Campbell and C. Peverley, of Montreal, with New York Capitalists, are asking incorporation as the Bushnell Oil Company with a capital stock of $100,000.

George Baird, St. John, N. B.; Alfred Vanwart, Fredericton; Hugh McLennan, Chipman, George Kitchen, and Wesley Vanwart, Fredericton, make application to run steamships for the transportation of freight and passengers from St. John, to a port or ports in the West Indies and South America, the company to be called the Canadian, West Indian and South American Steamship Company, with a capital stock of $250,000.

The bill respecting the Pontiac Pacific Junction Railway, after meeting with strong opposition, passed the Senate Railway Committee yesterday. It extends the time for completing the bridge across the Ottawa here until May, 1892, and gives power to extend into this city.

There is considerable talk now of bringing out a Liberal and Equal Rights candidate in Ottawa, owing to the persistency of Messrs. Macintosh and Christie in remaining in the field. Mr. A. F. McIntyre, president of the Reform Association, says he thinks the association should meet without delay.

Judge Gwynne and others who with Rev. P. Owen Jones, the rector, resigned from membership in St. George's Church, owing to troubles about the form of worship, have issued a circular calling a meeting to take steps towards erecting a new church.

Mr. Chas. Noel, teller in the Quebec bank, and formerly a well known lumberman, was taken ill on Parliament Hill last evening. He died before reaching home in a cab. Apoplexy was the cause.

The Territories Real Properties act, among other things, extends the Dorrens land system to the North-West.

Messrs. Franchet and Williams, of Buckingham, have organized a company in England to develope the Emerald phosphate mine.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau yesterday introduced a bill to amend the Franchise Act, recasting last year's amendments and curtailing expenditure in printing, posting and distributing the voters' lists. A clause also allows the appointment of a revising barrister when the incumbent is suddenly taken ill.

Hon. John Costigan's bill to amend the Gas Inspection Act proposes to bring natural gas under the operations of the Act and provides for the more frequent inspection of gas meters, and to bring gas works into direct communication with gas inspection offices where such are established.

On the third reading of the Grand Trunk Bill, Hon. Edward Blake objected to the general amalgamation powers asked for. Sir John Macdonald suggested that the company should include the names of railways proposed to be acquired and operated. Mr Curran, who has the bill in charge, agreed to this and the Schedule will be added, to provide for the issue to a limited amount of bonds in aid of the acquisition of steam-vessels; to authorize and ratify agreements with certain British Columbia railways; to provide for the construction and equipment of the Souris Branch of the Company's railway, which branch is to include extensions in Southern Manitoba and to the west thereof, and for the issue of bonds in aid thereof, and for securing such issue; to provide for the issue of consolidated debenture stock for the purpose of satisfying or acquiring bonds issued in aid of the purchase of ocean steamships.

Considerable surprise is expressed in official circles at the failure of the Imperial Government to notify Canada in respect to the extradition treaty, which, however, was proclaimed by both Great Britain and the United States on March 4th. It looks as though Canada was ignored.

The railway subsidy bill will contain a handsome appropriation in aid of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Mr. Dalton McCarthy took his seat in Parliament yesterday for the first time since the dual language debate.

The Government steamer "Northern Light" has been sold to Messrs. E. Lantalum & Co., St. John, for $4559.

The Government steamer "Stanley" has succeeded in forcing her way through two feet of ice into Charlottetown harbor.

Word has been received here that Lieut. Stairs, the Canadian who accompanied Stanley through Africa, will shortly leave London, England, for Halifax, N. S.

A cable will be laid this spring by the Marine Department between St. Paul's Island and Cape North, Cape Breton. This has been rendered necessary owing to the frequent interruptions to the cable from the Magdalen Islands to Bird Rocks, and which cable will be disconnected.

Restrictive regulations respecting the salmon fishery in Baie Chaleurs have been adopted. Notice is given that a standard regulation net will be established and adopted by the Fisheries Department next year, and thereafter no other salmon net will be sanctioned in Canada.

Mr. W. F. Orr, of Calgary, has returned here from Montreal. He says that several Montreal millers have agreed to build this season a mill at Calgary with a capacity of 200 barrels a day.

BOYCOTT AGAINST THE BRITISH.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

ZANZIBAR, April 12.—Mr. Johnston, the British Consul, has returned to Mozambique. He complains of the boycott of the dealers against the British warships. A corps of volunteers has been raised at Quillimane for service in the Shire district.

The River and the Ice.

BATISCAN, April 12.—The ice has not moved yet; the water is getting higher.

THREE RIVERS, April 12.—There is no change in the river since yesterday.

POINT DU LAC, April 12.—The water has risen about three feet since Monday, but the ice bridge still remains firm. The ice in Lake St. Peter has not moved yet.

CARILLON, Que., April 12.—The water continues rising and crossing on foot is still considered safe.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., April 12.—The river is clearing opposite here; clear water can be seen for some distance above and below.

HUDSON, Que., April 12.—The ice bridge has not broken up yet.

SOREL, April 12.—The ice opposite here is still solid and has not moved.

Canadian Enterprise Acknowledged.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 11.—William Pierson Judson, a civil engineer, will shortly publish an article in favor of the building of the new Niagara ship canal. Mr. Judson points out the enterprise of the Dominion in matters of this kind, and says that if the proposed canal is not built the United States might as well surrender its commercial supremacy at once to the more enterprising Canada.

The "City of Paris" Disaster.

LIVERPOOL, April 12.—The true cause of the accident to the "City of Paris" was learned to-day. The steamer is in the dry dock at Birkenhead, and the water is gradually being run off. As she was raised to-day, the starboard propellor dropped off, showing the shaft to be broken close to the blade of the propellor. The sudden relapse of the strain thus occasioned caused the collapse of the starboard engine.

Socialist Demonstration in Paris.

PARIS, April 12.—The Socialists here are preparing to make a great demonstration on May 1. M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, declares he will prevent any demonstration of the kind. The Socialists, however, vow they will meet in such numbers that the powers vested in the Government will pale into insignificance in comparison.

Italy's Action Criticized.

BERLIN, April 12.—The progessist press severely criticizes the action of Italy in expelling newspaper correspondents. The Vossische Zeitung regrets that Italy, the home of liberty, has used a weapon from the armory of Mettermich and says that Premier Crispi's position cannot be strengthened by a public repudiation of past traditions.

Canadian Direct Meat Company.

TORONTO, April 12.—The following special cable appears in the morning's Globe dated London, April 11: Notice is officially given to-day of a petition presented to the Chancery Court by the Canadian Direct Meat Company for the voluntary winding up of the company. To-morrow week is fixed for the hearing.

Spotted Fever.

MORGANFIELD, Ky., April 12.—Spotted fever has broken out in Union County, and the wildest excitement prevails. It appeared at Henshaw a few days ago and over a score of children have been attacked, in each case fatally. The disease is identical with that which last summer carried off 250 victims in Webster, an adjoining county.

Cowhided and Disfigured.

ATHENS, Ga., April 12.—Col. P. W. Davis, one of the most prominent members of the Georgia Legislature, was cowhided and badly disfigured at Elberton yesterday by John Harper. It is alleged Davis had grossly insulted Harper's sister.

The Vacancy on the Harbor Board.

OTTAWA, April 12.—It is stated that the vacancy on the Board of Harbor Commissioners of Montreal, caused by the death of Mr. Andrew Robertson, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Richard White.

Run Away With Her Coachman.

"The Lloyd Concert."

The management of the Lloyd Concert have displayed good judgment in selecting a Decker Brother's Concert Grand Piano, as this celebrated maker's instruments possess a sustaining (or singing) quality of tone that cannot fail to please the great tenor. Also an elastic action and wonderful power which will materially assist the pianist, Mr. Conrod Ansorge to render his share of the programme satisfactory.

Important Improvement in the Building Trade.

The public will learn with pleasure of the introduction of porous terra cotta as a building material, for lining outside walls, for partitions, party walls, hollow floors, roofs, furrings, etc. Making a house fire-proof, free from vermin, dampness, and sound proof, it will be most appreciated for partition walls, as it will do away with that greatest element of danger, the wooden stud and lath partition, which, besides being a fire trap, is also a vermin breeding ground, and its substitute will be hailed with joy by any one who objects to being roasted alive in case of fire.

The porous terra cotta walls are never damp, and the house where it is used is cooler in summer and warmer in winter. Porous terra cotta will supply a long-felt want, and the Montreal Terra Cotta Lumber Co. are to be congratulated on their spirit of enterprise in supplying Montreal with such a valuable building material.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

THE MENDELSSOHN CHOIR CONCERT.

Close of the Choir's Twenty-Sixth Season Signalized by Another Unqualified Success.

The real inauguration of the Windsor Hall took place last evening on the occasion of the Mendelssohn Choir concert, this being the first important concert held within its walls, and the hall being for the first time crowded to its full capacity. This afforded an opportunity of testing quite fairly the qualities and defects of Windsor Hall. The qualities—as mentioned some time ago—consist in its cleanliness, in a good management, in the accessory rooms offering so much comfort to the public and the performers. The defects—more deeply felt last night than ever—reside in the entrance vestibule, too small to contain the large gathering waiting for admission into the hall; in the level floor, which shuts the stage out of sight from a great many; in the narrow chairs, so tightly cased as to be most uncomfortable; in the closeness of the different rows of seats, leaving no space for passing before persons already seated; in the diminutive size of the aisles and in the single exit door, which does not allow the crowd to disperse promptly. Why not throw open the side doors after the concert and build a sidewalk of proper width on Cypress street? All these disadvantages were keenly felt by all present last evening, and may be found not to balance the advantages above alluded to. Unless they be remedied to some extent, the Windsor Hall craze will soon spend itself, and the Queen's Hall regain favor, especially if the new proprietors deem it advisable to make required improvements. The Mendelssohn Choir closed last night its twenty-sixth season. The work done by the choir was better than ever, while the extra outside help had perhaps never been so unsatisfactory. The five part songs: Mendelssohn's "On the Sea," F. Clay's "The Rose," Schumann's "Uncertain Light," Alf. J. Caldicott's "Winter Days," and H. Leslie's "Old Ocean's life is in our veins," were given in such a way as might be styled the quintessence of delicacy, neatness,

BEAUTY AND PERFECTION.

We could not praise one more than the other; each was so carefully rendered, so delicately chaste that it would be impossible to imagine any improvement in it. Does the public truly realize what an amount of work, patience and devotion must be expended by choristers and conductor in order to attain such a degree of excellence? Does the public reflect that such patience, such hard work, such self-denial give to the performers no other reward than the satisfaction felt by refined and cultured minds in co-operating in public education? Does the public think of casting even one thought of gratitude towards those who thus facilitate intercourse with the works of great masters, and honor our city by their artistic associations? Does the public stop to consider that this enjoyment derived from hearing such finely rendered choruses, is the result of constant effort and ever renewed sacrifice? Despite their love of music, members of a choir cannot always attend practices without setting aside other pleasures, without neglecting to a certain extent other important calls on one's time, without curtailing family reunions, without exercising self-denial when the day's exertion has wearied the body and unpropitious weather points to the cosiness of home. The public is perhaps too apt to consider a musical society an organization destined to minister to its enjoyment and to whom it owes nothing when the subscription fee has been duly paid. It easily confounds the choirs of musical societies, established with a view to giving concerts, with the choirs of opera companies composed of illiterate subalterns, hirelings, paid by the week, who for the most part see nothing beyond the note they must sing and the salary they draw at stated times. No! respect and gratitude are due to such a society as can offer so remarkable a rendering of Hamish McCunn's "Lord Ullin's Daughter" and Jensen's "Feast of Adonis" as that given by the Mendelssohn Choir. Hamish McCunn's work, written with an exuberance that time and experience have not yet tempered, proves that the Mendelssohn Choir can, without faltering, face the most awkward, the most intricate harmonies, however unprepared the author

MAY HAVE LEFT THEM.

The orchestra was replaced by a very good arrangement for two pianos and harmonium supplied by Miss Wonham, Mr. Chas. Gould and Mr. Hilton. "The Feast of Adonis," a merely lyrical composition, with no pretensions as to depth, in fact much lighter in texture than the greater number of Jensen's songs, calls for graceful singing and many high notes, which the sopranos gave with perfect smoothness, without the slightest trace of fatigue or deviation from true pitch. In fact, none but a choir most carefully trained and conducted by a musician of refined taste and great authority could have overcome in such excellent style the difficulty of so trying and complex a programme. Montreal's debt of gratitude towards Mr. Joseph Gould increases every year. Few men have so unostentatiously accomplished so much for the benefit of Art and of a city. Mrs. Chambers and Mr. N. J. Power, two of our local singers, although apparently not quite so well disposed as on some previous occasions, sang their parts very satisfactorily. Mr. Power's voice has a peculiar charm and sweetness, and which lack of effort or strain renders particularly pleasing. We noticed once more in the accompanist, Miss Wonham, a perfect mastery in her accompaniments to choruses and local soloists, and a very imperfect knowledge of the accompaniments to foreign soloists. The imported singers, as above stated, were no very satisfactory acquisition. Miss Miriam Homer has great moral self-control, but is deficient in vocal control, and in those qualities necessary to appear before an audience knowing in what artistic singing consists. Miss A. M. Lampman was evidently too nervous to give the full measure of her means. Nevertheless she seems as yet too much of a novice to figure at such an important concert as that of the Mendelssohn choir, where every addition must harmonize with the high vocal standard of the society. The Mendelssohn choir thus closed its twenty-sixth season gloriously, and has set itself even more deeply in the esteem and admiration of all susceptible to appreciate its grand and exquisite work. "Shrine of the mighty! can it be
That this is all remains of thee?"

These well known lines of Byron, I intended addressing to my old friend Ben Hunton, as we met on Sherbrooke street last evening. I had just returned from a business trip to the Maritime Provinces, which lasted three months, and this was our first meeting since my return.

Seeing the changed appearance of my friend, I decided quickly not to try my elocutionary powers on Byron's lines, lest I should wound his feelings; so I grasped his outstretched hand, and expressed my great pleasure in meeting him again. He congratulated me on my return, and successful trip, and expressed the hope that I would remain in the city for some time.

I said, "Ben, old fellow, you look broken up and miserable: are the boys not using you right about town?"

"O nothing to complain of, Tom, as far as the boys are concerned; I have not had an opportunity of seeing many of them for two months or more, and we have been so very busy in the office, I have been obliged to work night and day since you left. The constant office work, with other worries, has made me so very nervous and sleepless, that I feel a used-up man."

I truly felt sorry for my friend's condition and although I had never received any medical education or training, I could detect the nervous look of the eye, the twitching of the hand, the haggard and pale face, and the weak step. My friend some years before was considered one of the best athletes of the city, and had always looked strong and muscular. The change indeed was a mighty one, and would, I thought, result seriously, if not attened to quickly. My friend during the course of our conversation informed me that he was now under a doctor's care, but thus far had not felt much better from the treatment he was receiving.

I ventured to suggest the use of a simple yet effective remedy that my brother had used while suffering from almost the same symptoms.

My brother was office manager of a large commercial house in Halifax, and from overwork and great mental strain, and insufficient exercise, he had found himself almost on a sick bed, and had, by the advice of a friend, used Paine's Celery Compound, and was completely restored.

I said, "Ben, is this not a sufficient proof of the remedy's efficacy?" "Will you try it for a short time, and set aside all the drugs that you now swallow from day to day?"

"All right, Tom," he replied, "I will begin to-morrow."

Suffice it to say that Ben Hunton my friend, in two weeks' time found himself on the elevated pathway to health and strength. He continued the use of Paine's Celery Compound daily for over three months, and became as strong as he ever was before.

Ben now never misses an opportunity of saying a good word about Paine's Celery Compound to any of his friends who seem to be overworked and used up. Reader, and afflicted one, take comfort while reading the following words of a lady, who a short time ago was very ill. Mrs. Liddell writes from 138 Banton St., Hamilton, Ont., as follows:—"I am now taking the fifth bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. I was completely run down from sickness, but, thank God, I am feeling better and stronger."

A. E. DuBerger, druggist, 24 Chaboillez Square, Montreal, says: "I have been selling Paine's Celery Compound for nearly three years in large quantities, and I can say that not one customer has ever complained about it. I always recommend it highly as a good medicine, giving all effects as advertised." 86†1

CIGAR SMOKERS
READ THIS!

IT WILL INTEREST YOU
AND MAY BENEFIT YOU
IN MORE WAYS THAN ONE.

The proprietors of the LUNTIN CIGAR FACTORY have not been sleeping. In fact they have spent many sleepless nights thinking over some plan whereby a real improvement in Cigars might be effected.

Finally, after much study and a great deal of experimenting, they hit upon a plan which they feel confident will prove to be not only a lasting benefit to those who indulge in the luxury of smoking, but likewise be the means of handing their name down to posterity as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind, the present age has produced.

THEY CLAIM FOR THE QUILL TIP

PATENTED 1889
THE FOLLOWING
IMPROVEMENTS
OVER ALL OTHER CIGARS.

ECONOMY.

For the reason of the quill inserted in the mouth end of the cigar, doing away with the necessity of cutting or biting off that end, and the cigar may be smoked close up.

CLEANLY & HEALTHFUL

For the reason of the absorbent material at the bottom of the quill, which, collecting the nicotine, and retaining it obviates the necessity of expectorating, thereby making the habit of smoking more cleanly, and also prevents the digestion from being impaired from that cause.

Besides the improvements in the construction of the cigars above mentioned, the tobacco used in their manufacture is of the finest and purest the market affords.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

MEETING OF LACROSSE ASSOCIATION.

The Capitals Given the Intermediate Championship—The Montreals, Ottawas and Shamrocks Declared Seniors.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

OTTAWA, April 12.—The annual meeting of the National Amateur Lacrosse Association took place here yesterday. There was a council meeting in the morning, and the association met in the afternoon, the president, Mr. McKay, in the chair. The secretary, Mr. Snow, read the annual report which gave a comprehensive statement of the business done at the council meetings during the year. At the meeting held in Ottawa, on April 30, Mr. J. Hunter was declared a professional and the Capital Lacrosse club were awarded the intermediate championship. At another meeting, held at Ottawa on September 18, Messrs. Lewis and McAteer were reinstated, and Mr. Clewes was recommended for re-instatement by the C. A. A. A. The Sherbrooke-Capital disputes the Council had left in abeyance, because its decision depended on whether the Ottawas, Montreals and Shamrocks should be classed as seniors. There were twenty-one clubs in good standing and eight in arrears. Sixteen new applications for membership had been received. The clubs applying were as follows: Young Shamrocks, Montreal; Independents, Quebec; Ottawa Amateur Athletic Association; Moulinette, Moulinette; Oskosh, Ottawa; Huntingdon, Huntingdon; Union, St. John, N. B.; Independent, Ottawa; Quebec, Quebec; Alexandria, Alexandria; Pictou, Pictou, N. S.; Young Capital, Ottawa; Orient, Montreal; Montcalm, Ottawa; Mattawa, Mattawa; Gladstone, Ottawa; Spring Hill, Spring Hill, N. S. The championships of the Association were as follows: Senior, Shamrocks, of Montreal; intermediate, in abeyance; eastern district of Ontario, Glengarries, of Lancaster; Ottawa Valley, Renfrews; western district of Quebec, Crescents, Montreal; southern district, Quebec, Junior Sherbrookes; south-western district of Quebec, Valleyfield; eastern district of Quebec, Independents, of Quebec; provincial championship of Ontario, Glengarrians, Lancaster; provincial championship of Quebec, Crescents, of Montreal. Owing to the eastern district of Quebec it was decided to purchase one. The council suggested that the jurisdiction of the two Lacrosse associations be settled by a boundary mutually agreed upon. The national game had revived, owing to several clubs in Quebec having joined the association. The council also recommended that the junior clubs of Montreal and Ottawa be taxed to secure banners for their districts, these banners to become the property of the clubs owning them.

HAVING NO PENNANT

The President, in his address, congratulated the members of the association on its general prosperity. He said that while the number of clubs affiliating was increasing, the number of disputes and quarrels was decreasing. He extended to them a welcome to the capital. The rest of the afternoon was taken up in examining the credentials of members.

After recess, the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Snow, read the financial statement, which shows that during the year the sum of $275.75 was received; the expenses were $288.67; there was $145.86 on hand last year and this year it is $152.94.

Quite a heated discussion took place on the question whether the Montreal, Shamrock and Ottawa clubs were senior clubs, as the decision on that question would decrease the validity of the victory of the Sherbrookes over the Capitals. Mr. T. Maguire, of Sherbrooke, made a gallant fight to have it ruled that these clubs were not seniors last year, as his club was accused of playing some of the senior players in their matches with the Capitals. Mr. F. C. Chittick, of the Ottawa Athletic Association; Mr. McNulty, of the Crescents, and Mr. Harry Morrison, of the Capitals, argued that it was absurd to claim that the clubs mentioned

WERE NOT SENIOR CLUBS.

Mr. Chettick then moved that the Montreal, Ottawa, and Shamrock Clubs were senior clubs, which was carried by an overwhelming majority. Then Mr. Morrison moved that the Capital Lacrosse Club be declared entitled to the intermediate championship. Mr. Maguire read letters of the secretary, which would certainly bear the interpretation that the Sherbrooke Club were entitled to the pennant. The secretary tried to explain his letters, but the explanation was somewhat unintelligible. Mr. W. H. Lewis suggested that the championship be played for in Ottawa by the two clubs early in the coming season. Mr. Maguire, while holding that the Sherbrooke Club were entitled to the pennant, was not averse to their playing it out at Montreal. Finally he agreed to amend his motion to the effect that the deciding game should take place in Ottawa as early in the season as convenient, the president of the Association to appoint referees and umpires. Mr. W. S. Weldon moved that in view of the breach of the rules by the Sherbrooke Club, and the equivocal letters of the Secretary of the Association, the pennant be put up to be competed for, the challenges now in for the said championship to be taken up in order. The amendments were all voted down and the original motion was carried. Mr. Maguire magnanimously moved to make it unanimous.

The following officers were then elected: president, C. J. Dogherty, Shamrocks, Montreal; vice-president, Ed. McKay, of the Renfrew Club; secretary-treasurer, Harry Morrison, Ottawas; executive council, E. A. Larmonth, A. G. Pittawa, G. Woods, D. Milligan, J. Kent, W. J. McKenna, T. Maguire, M. F. Nolan, R. Lunny and W. A. Hutchison.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the association in Montreal. Before adjourning Mr. W. L. Maltby was unanimously elected honorary president.

Chicago Markets.

The Chicago wheat market this morning opened quieter and weaker showing a decline of ⅛c from yesterday's closing point at 84¼c May, and 83⅛c July. In pork there was considerable excitement and trading was active. It opened strong and 5c to 20c per barrel higher and steadily advanced the latest quotation for July being $14.50 which is an advance of $3.30 per barrel from yesterday's opening price. Latest private advices on the markets generally are strong and excited and much higher prices are looked for. It is reported that May Pork at 11.45 a. m. was at $15.75.

AN ANGRY ALTERCATION.

OTTAWA, April 12.—Mr. McMullen, M. P., and General Laurie had an angry altercation in the lobbies of the House last night. Hon. Mackenzie Bowell got them separated before any damage was done.

Found in the Canal.

The bodies of three men were found in the canal last night and this morning, and removed to the morgue. One of these, found early this morning by the men at work on the new water main across the canal, above Wellington bridge, has been identified as that of Young Cahill, who disappeared on St. Patrick's Day, and another as that of Pary, the man who broke through the ice while crossing the canal at Cote St. Paul. The third body, that of an old man, wearing overalls, found near the Wellington bridge, has not been identified at the hour of writing.

Special Notices.

The Symphony Society Bulow and Knabe.

The sixth and last symphony concert of the season took place on Saturday March 29th, at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

The Musical Courier of April 2nd says: "The piano played by Dr. Von Bülow was a noble Knabe Grand, whose sonority and liquidity penetrated every part of the huge opera house, while its delicacy and sweetness of tone produced the most favorable impression on the audience. It must be a pleasure for a great artist libre Dr. Von Bülow to play on an instrument which is so responsive to every change of emotion of the virtuoso. Brillant and powerful, yet replete with tonal color of the most varying sort, it was, indeed, a beautiful piano."

Willis & Co., Montreal, are sole agents for the Knabe pianos.
