A NECKLACE OF ISLANDS IN THE HEART OF THE SAINT-LAWRENCE

Just a hop and a skip away from downtown Montreal, right in the middle of the mighty Saint-Lawrence River, five small islands make up the Parc national des Îles-de-Boucherville, a highly representative sample of the Saint-Lawrence Lowlands' natural heritage. Hikers, picnickers, cyclists, canoeists, kayakers and now also campers come over to get away from the city's hustle and bustle. In winter, Île Sainte-Marguerite offers hikers, snowshoers, cross-country skiers and fat-tire bike enthusiasts wonderful snowy scenery, and an atmosphere beyond just peaceful.

NAUTICAL TRAIL

In a canoe or sea kayak, explore the fascinating world of the Îles de Boucherville's internal waterways, along an 8-km marked nautical trail that takes on average three hours to complete.

CYCLING TRAILS

A Bicycle Ride... in the Middle of the Saint-Lawrence! A 21-km cycling trail network allows cyclists to discover the site's most attractive natural settings. The terrain is relatively flat, so it will fit the whole family's needs.

BIRDS UNDER STUDY!

The Parc national des Îles-de-Boucherville is a favourite observation spot for a large number of bird-watching enthusiasts. Indeed, the diversity of its settings (wild land, aquatic environments, pine forests and woodland islets) provides numerous bird species with an ideal environment for resting, feeding and reproduction. Visitors will notice that certain species are ever-present, among which the Yellow Warbler, American Goldfinch, Eastern Kingbird, Grey Catbird and Northern Flicker. On the other hand, other species are particularly inconspicuous, especially in the big marsh, where you will find the rails, American Coot, Common Moorhen and American Bittern, and the rarest of them all, the Least Bittern.

For over 10 years, we have been using listening posts to identify species, take part in the Quebec marsh surveillance program, and track the Least Bittern's and other park-dwelling breeding birds' nesting habits. We have noticed a significant decline in nesting species' situations. This deterioration matches the generalized trend observed everywhere in Canada over the last few decades. Several factors may explain the prevailing fallback: a loss of habitats in hibernation sites, disturbance due to customer traffic, a decrease in several bird populations across the continent, or receding flying insect populations. The next few tracking sessions will enable us to determine whether it is an actual trend or simply a natural variance.

In order for us to contribute to maintaining the presence of migrating and nesting bird species in the park, we request everyone's co-operation. Thus when you observe a species, please remain on the trails and avoid pursuing it. In addition, we ask that you refrain from feeding birds or any other animal species. Mother Nature will provide them with everything they need to survive.

THE ISLANDS IN WINTER

NEW SCENERY!

Since Opening Day over 30 years ago, the park has always been open year-round. During winter, Île Sainte-Marguerite offers hikers, snowshoers, cross-country skiers and fat-tire bike enthusiasts new scenery and an atmosphere that is beyond just peaceful. The islands' flat terrains make practising these activities accessible to the whole family. The marked, packed rustic trails feature three hiking loops: Grand-Duc (1.5 km), Petite Rivière (2.5 km), and Grande Rivière (4 km). Skiers and snowshoers can take advantage of 7 kilometres of marked, non-mechanically groomed trails. Snowshoes (for adults and children) can be rented on site. A large part of our islands' fauna stays active even in cold weather. Thus owing to the snow's white blanket and the trees bare of any leaves, winter is highly suitable for observing these animals and indications of their presence.

Ask for your copy of our winter trails map and visit our Web site at address www.parcquebec.com.

Revel in the park's wonderland by night on foot, with or without snowshoes. On Saturdays January 21 and 28, February 11 and 25, and March 4, come and take a torch-lit hike on foot, with or without snowshoes, less than 10 minutes away from Montreal. You set off on an unguided trek along a 4-km marked trail and behold the park's many charms under the stars. You also get a chance to taste delicious chocolate nuggets and a decadent, wood stove-baked chocolate pizza. A discovery activity guided by a naturalist and park warden is also offered.
