3rd volume of Glassco report

Urges Ottawa quit educational, hospital fields

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has been advised to call a halt to its massive activity in hospitals and education—including the $50,000,000-a-year operation of war veterans' hospitals.

The third volume of the Glassco royal commission report on government organization, made public Monday night by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says federal hospitals for veterans, Indians

Report proposals

May be a major theme of election campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on government organization may be a major theme of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's campaign in the next federal election.

Collaboration is encouraged

OTTAWA (CP) — Trends toward a more formal kind of collaboration between the federal and provincial governments in Canada seem to have found support in the report of the Glassco royal commission.

The commission has recommended establishment of a permanent secretariat for federal-provincial conferences.

Such a body was proposed by Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec at a federal-provincial conference in Ottawa July 25, 1960. But the Glassco commission doesn't have quite the same conception of it as Mr. Lesage.

Mr. Lesage said his secretariat should be financed and administered jointly by the federal and provincial governments.

and military personnel should be turned over to the provinces or local communities.

It proposes a withdrawal from the Indian school system, curtailment of military education and a hard look at the propriety of continuing free schools for the children of servicemen.

In these fields, the royal commission argues that there is considerable waste in the duplication of facilities by federal and provincial governments. It says that economies and increased efficiency will result if the provinces are put in full control, with Ottawa financing their extra burden.

The 180,000-word report contains a host of proposals to pull the government out of activities in which it maintains Ottawa no longer belongs.

It urges a halt to the sale of government annuities, contending they have outlived their original purpose; calls for a scrapping of the Veterans' Land Act Administration; suggests an end to the toll-free operation of pleasure-craft canals, and recommends a more business-like approach to post office operations.

The royal commission was set up more than two years ago to study the gigantic federal civil service and suggest ways to make it run more economically and efficiently.

It is headed by J. Grant Glassco, 57, Toronto accountant and business executive. Working with him are Eugene Thérien, 56, Montreal lawyer and insurance company executive, and Watson Sellar, 68, of Ottawa, retired auditor-general of Canada.

A task force of 197 specialists was hired to do the research, involving the most intensive study of government operations ever carried out in Canada. The reports, however, are being written by the commissioners themselves.

Their latest is a seven-section, 400-page volume which turns the spotlight on economic and statistical services; public information; education; health; lending, guaranteeing and insuring; the post office, and miscellaneous services.

The most radical recommendations are in the health section.

Hospitals should be developed in tune with the needs of the whole community, it contends. The creation of special institutions for veterans, Indians and servicemen made this impossible. Thus these should be integrated with the public system.

The commission found that in the 11 veterans' hospitals, which have a total of 8,900 beds, 70 per cent of the patients are either chronic or indigent cases. They should be in chronic care homes rather than in active-treatment beds, which today are in short supply in most communities.

Looking to the future, the report says that by 1980 the government will have to spend $200,000,000 on additional veterans' hospitals. The annual operating cost of the system would have doubled to $100,000,000. Yet by then virtually all patients would be chronic cases.

Indian hospitals came under special criticism. They were "generally old, ill-equipped and inadequately staffed."

"Too frequently, the quality of care . . . is not comparable with that provided in community hospitals in the same area."

HURT INTEGRATION? Also, provision of separate hospitals for Indians was not in line with the federal policy of integrating Indians with the general population. If anything, it tended to defeat this aim.

A recommendation is that hospital care for servicemen be gradually transferred to civilian hospitals and no further service hospitals be built. The Royal Canadian Navy's hospital at Naden, B.C., ought to be abandoned as one of the first steps in this direction.

WASHINGTON (AP) — World sugar prices have reached a five-year high, raising speculation about whether the United States can maintain stable prices and supplies for its consumers this year.

With more than half the U.S. sugar needs supplied by foreign producers, the steady price advance during 1962 has caused some concern in the department of agriculture.

A rather tight supply has encouraged a sharp increase in speculative trading in sugar futures. About 11 months ago the world price of raw sugar was 2.05 cents a pound compared with today's price of about five cents.

Cardinal enters hospital

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal, has entered Montreal's Hotel-Dieu Hospital on the advice of his physician "to facilitate his rest and assure him of the most appropriate care."

A statement Monday night from the archdiocesan chancery office gave no details.

There has been speculation about Cardinal Leger's health since he was ordered last Friday to take a rest for an indefinite period.

But chancery officials said: "The entry of his eminence in hospital does not imply a worsening of the state of his health, which remains unchanged, and does not suggest any fear."

The 59-year-old cardinal was first reported suffering from "heart fatigue," brought on "by many months of uninterrupted work."

Cardinal Leger recently returned from the ecumenical council in Rome. He was a member of the council's preparatory commission.

Gaitskell has had a rough passage since the day in December, 1955, when he defeated the late Aneurin (Nye) Bevan by 157 votes to 70 for the party leadership.

It was the biggest margin in the history of the Labor movement, but it didn't make things much easier for the man whom the acid-tongued Bevan had called a "dissipated calculating machine."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indian troops in the United Nations Congo force will come home by the end of March, a defence ministry spokesman said today.

The Indian brigade and supporting troops in the Congo total 4,700 men, forming the nucleus of the UN force that now controls much of Katanga province. It is the largest UN contingent.

U.S. seeks more pressure against regime in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sought today to rally stronger pressures against Cuba—still the base for an estimated 16,000 to 17,000 Russian soldiers—as the next step in an effort to remove the Communist threat in the Western Hemisphere.

U.S. officials believe the campaign may be long and difficult.

The United States and the Soviet Union put a formal and diplomatic end to the Cuban crisis Monday with a letter announcing the conclusion of their talks.

The letter acknowledged that U.S. and Soviet negotiators had not been able to "resolve all the problems that have arisen in connection" with the crisis.

But they said they hoped that the "actions taken to avert the threat of war . . . will lead toward the adjustment of other differences" between the two countries.

One issue remaining is that of Cuba itself.

'CUBA SHALL BE FREE'

The U.S. government, Washington officials stated, stands firmly committed to President Kennedy's promise to try to halt Cuban subversion and to his proposition that "the Cuban people shall some day be truly free."

Since the avowed U.S. intent is not to accomplish this by military invasion, and proposed measures are more psychological and economic than peaceful, an indefinite period of contest lay ahead. U.S. officials suggested the passage of time may bring about significant changes which cannot now be foretold.

Informants said the estimate of 16,000 to 17,000 Russian military personnel still in Cuba—substantially higher than previous estimates—comes from re-evaluation of intelligence data rather than any new influx of Soviet troops. No instances of Russian soldiers leaving Cuba have been recorded since Christmas.

New information is said to indicate Russian soldiers are more widely engaged in the Cuban military system than previously thought. Not only are they flying some jet fighters and manning anti-aircraft missiles, but they are also doing extensive training and maintenance work. It was stated.

THEY'RE NOT LAUGHING AT BUNNY ANYMORE

LONDON (CP) — They don't laugh at Bunny anymore.

The point is being punched home by the current illness of Hugh Todd Taylor Gaitskell, leader of the Labor party and regarded as an even-money bet to become Britain's next prime minister.

Gaitskell has had a rough passage since the day in December, 1955, when he defeated the late Aneurin (Nye) Bevan by 157 votes to 70 for the party leadership.

It was the biggest margin in the history of the Labor movement, but it didn't make things much easier for the man whom the acid-tongued Bevan had called a "dissipated calculating machine."

Some refused to take him seriously because of his schoolmasterish appearance. His Conservative opponents detested him as a traitor to his class. Gaitskell, though something of a late developer school-astically, went to a private prep school, Winchester and Oxford's New College.

Mock attack controversy

LONDON (Reuters) — The air ministry today blamed "misunderstanding between air ministry officials" for the confusion which arose Monday over newspaper reports that British Vulcan bombers had recently penetrated North American air defences.

But the ministry continued to decline comment on whether British bombers had at any time succeeded in piercing the North American air shield and reaching vital United States targets in a mock raid.

"We do not comment on the result of an exercise," the air ministry spokesman said.

The spokesman repeated the final air ministry statement Monday which said British bombers only once took part in a joint exercise to test North American air defences—Exercise Sky Shield II on Oct. 14, 1961.

He said a "misunderstanding" was responsible for a ministry statement early Monday—later contradicted—that Vulcan bombers took part in a joint exercise "about two months ago."

DENIES U.S. PRESSURE

The spokesman also denied that U.S. pressure had been exerted on Britain Monday to deny the stories in order "to save face."

"The air ministry was solely concerned Monday with accurately establishing the facts," he said.

Military squeeze tightened

UN forces take rail town

ELISABETHVILLE — Swedish United Nations troops have taken a north Katanga rail town without a fight, tightening the military squeeze on President Moise Tshombe's tottering movement for Katanga province independence from The Congo.

The thrust into Kaniama, 360 miles northwest of this Katanga capital, came as the UN command was believed preparing an ultimatum to Tshombe demanding that he surrender his last-ditch stronghold of Kolwezi without a fight.

Tshombe returned to Elisabethville today, arriving by car from the Rhodesian border. With him in a black limousine were Frederick Van de Walle, the Belgian consul in the Katanga capital, and Odilon Nwenda, the Katanga envoy to Brussels.

SCENE OF VIOLENCE — Newsmap centers on the secessionist Congo province of Katanga, where United Nations troops have been battling Katangese forces. Heaviest fighting has been in southeastern corner around capital of Elisabethville.

Renews appeal for home

Glen Brown, Liberal MPP for Brome riding, Monday night urged everyone to visit the Cecil Butters Hospital at Austin, "because you'll have to see to believe all the good works that is going on there."

Speaking at the Sherbrooke Lions Club dinner at the New Sherbrooke Hotel, Mr. Brown said the hospital, "is the best hospital in the Dominion of Canada, as such, and no other hospital is as well off."

"The hospital is the only one in the province which is not operating at a deficit and, for me, it is my favorite home," he said.

He said he visited the hospital often and described a few of the patients in it.

"There is a 19-year-old very good looking girl there both deaf and dumb and only to see someone smile at her is her greatest pleasure in life."

"There are nine deformed babies there all under one year old who have a spot of cancer on their back about the size of the top of a cup of coffee. These children have to have their beds changed about seven times a day and they have a most loving care they could get anywhere," Mr. Brown said.

"Today there are 338 children in the Butters home, some with heads twice the size of mine who will never get up because of the weight of their head."

"When you put them sitting up their head goes round in circles on the shoulder," Mr. Brown said.

Describing the children in the home, he said "some are a little retarded, others medium, and others are retarded so much that there is nothing that can be done."

"This is why the Cecil Butters Hospital is putting on a $500,000 charity drive, so they can have an operating room in the hospital, build play grounds both in and outdoors for these children, and be eligible to collect hospital grants from the provincial and federal governments," he said.

"To me," Mr. Brown said, "The Butters are the kindest people in the world."

"Out of 140 children who died in their hospital during the past years, 10 were buried in their cemetery and not one parent attend a child's funeral or offered to pay any of the burial expenses," Mr. Brown said.

For industrial purposes

City hopes to set up larger fund

The decision to seek permission from the Quebec municipal affairs department for the establishment of a new industrial fund of $4,000,000 by the City of Sherbrooke was taken at a meeting of the municipal industrial commission Monday evening, according to Robert Belisle.

If the permission is obtained, then the bylaw will still be subject to the approval of the property owners in the city.

According to Mr. Belisle, there is approximately $300,000 remaining in the industrial fund at the present time.

The purpose of the fund is to provide a source of money for the financing of industrial projects deemed suitable by the city.

According to Mr. Belisle the council is no longer permitted to establish an industrial fund on its own but, under a clause in the Cities and Towns Act, must first obtain the authorization of the municipal affairs department and then submit a bylaw to the property owners.

According to the municipal authorities it is expected that requests will be made in the near future by firms wishing to take advantage of the fund, and the city wishes to be prepared for this.

The completion of the Montreal-Sherbrooke autoroute is also expected to result in increased industrial expansion in the area.

The Lake Megantic municipal authority has just been given permission by the Municipal Affairs Department to establish a $2,000,000 industrial fund, it was learned.

SURPLUS OF $27,000 IS EXPECTED

Lennoxville is expected to have an estimated net surplus of $27,000, Alderman Frank Taylor, chairman of the town's finance committee told council at its monthly meeting Monday night.

The 1962 operating surplus, according to a year-end estimate, is $31,483.17, less $4,000 provisions for depreciation.

The estimated net surplus for 1962 of $27,484.17, and the actual 1961 net surplus of $22,101.97, combine to make a two-year surplus for the Town of Lennoxville of $49,858.14.

In his year-end report, Alderman Taylor said revenues to date were estimated at $166,408.67, compared to $134,925.50, estimated expenditures.

The 1962 budget allowed for $128,480 expenditures. The budget revenue was set at $146,400.

Council emphasized that the year-end figures were only rough estimates. The details of the 1962 operations will be contained in the auditors' report.

Mayor Gilbey lauded council committee chairman for staying within their budgets during the year.

Town secretary treasurer recalled to council how the year 1959 had closed with an outstanding bank loan of $5,000 plus other liabilities of a nearly equal amount. Council noted that these liabilities had been reduced to some $5,000 as of 1962.

Lennoxville council appeals to residents

Snow removal operations are hampered by cars left along streets overnight

Lennoxville town council has asked local residents not to leave their cars parked overnight on town streets during the winter months, because they interfere with the town's snow removal operations.

The request was made by Mayor Ernest Gilbey following the monthly police report given by chairman of lights, Claude Labrecque in the absence of chairman of police and fire, Hugh Brown. Mayor Gilbey noted that a number of warning tickets had been issued to local people who had left their cars on town streets overnight.

"The situation is going to get worse," warned the mayor. The town, he said, could not clear the town streets after a heavy storm if cars were parked on town streets.

"The roads department cannot function properly if it has to stop and get the owner of every car out of slumber and ask him to move his car," he said.

Lennoxville town council is awaiting approval from boards of Bishop's College School and Bishop's University before giving Photographic Surveys (Quebec) Ltd., the go-ahead to make a topographical plan of the town at a cost of about $2,300.

The land survey, suggested in December by town engineer, L. G. Carignan, would be made, said council, on the condition that Bishop's College School announced he would not run again for office.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank the town and council for the co-operation I have received, he said. "I have enjoyed the work and I think I can safely say that we (the mayor and retiring aldermen) are leaving the town a little better than when we came into office," he said.

Mayor Gilbey urged that the new mayor be given the same support that he was given during his term of office.

Mr. Grant is survived by his wife.

Burial will be in the Woodlawn Cemetery.

At this meeting, replacements will be sought for the mayor and for the aldermen who do not plan to seek office again.

Deadline for nominations is January 25. Elections will be held February 4.

The town council Monday night met for its final session before its members stepped down from office.

Chairing his last council meeting after serving 16 years at the council table — six of those years as mayor — Mayor Gilbey made a farewell address before stepping down from his post.

Although the members of the municipal body agreed that they were under no obligation to confer with the commission on the matter they agreed that consultation should take place.

Robert Belisle reminded the council that under a clause added to the Cities and Towns Act in the year 1962 the council is empowered to eliminate the machinery tax for both the city and the school commission for a maximum period of 10 years.

As Alderman Marcel Savard put it, "We have the authority, but it is only a question of courtesy to hear their opinions on the matter."

Lennoxville town council has asked the police committee to take under consideration a request by parish council of the St. George's Anglican Church on Queen Street that a stop sign be erected in front of the church during Sunday noon services.

"The request is a good one," said Mayor Gilbey, "a stop sign in front of all the churches here would be a simple way of protecting the people."

A letter to council from the parish organization said that while it was appreciated that policemen were on duty during the noon service, there was no protection at earlier services for the younger children attending Sunday School.

A cross-walk or a stop sign was the best solution to the problem the council thought.

Lennoxville has four churches, all situated on Lennoxville's main street.

Citizens' meeting

Council members will announce whether they plan to run again

A public meeting of Lennoxville residents will be held January 9 at the town hall at which time citizens will be informed by members of council whose terms of office expire this month whether or not they plan to run for office again.

The meeting will begin at 5 p.m.

The citizens committee will be headed by Col. L. M. Watson, and J. A. St. Marie.

Mayor Ernest Gilbey announced last week that he will not run for mayor.

At this meeting, replacements will be sought for the mayor and for the aldermen who do not plan to seek office again.

CNR said that the crossing gates were the accepted form of protection. The railroad company suggested, however, that a few extra seconds be allowed — proper time for the crossing gates to come down.

2 men face new charges

Charges arising from Sherbrooke's East Ward aldermanic elections on October 3 last have been laid anew against two men.

Armand Desbiens and Louis Marie Beaulieu face charges which were first laid late last year and withdrawn by Emile Perron, a losing candidate in the election which saw Ald. Robert Gauthier re-elected.

Mr. Desbiens faces a count of counselling others to engage in impersonation while Mr. Beaulieu is charged with impersonation.

Attorney Dewey Zoar who is now representing Mr. Perron said the charges were withdrawn because Benoit Turmel, lawyer, is a relative of Municipal Judge Pierre Beaudry. Judge Beaudry refused to hear the case because of the relationship. A date for the new hearing is expected to be held Thursday.

Canada's turn to feel US influence

Why would a man like General Lauris Norstad, retiring commander of NATO, choose this particular time to bluntnly tell Canada that she is failing in her commitments to NATO unless she accepts nuclear warheads for her armed forces in Europe?

It is certainly not happenstance. General Norstad's warning comes at a time when the United States, still flushed with her victory over Khrushchev in the Cuban affair, is flexing her military influence right, left and centre in the free world, laying about her with purpose but with something considerably less than diplomatic tact.

The cancelling of the Skybolt missile was a rude shock for Britain, a shock which has only been slightly softened by America's offer of Polaris missiles for British submarines (of which there are none at the present time capable of carrying more than one Polaris).

General de Gaulle has been warned on several occasions that the United States does not favor independent nuclear strike forces within NATO, and it has been made clear that the U.S. looks with considerable displeasure on France's efforts in this direction. De Gaulle, no mean wielder of power himself, has refused to be ruffled, but millions of Frenchmen probably are.

Now, it seems, it is Canada's turn, and General Norstad was chosen as the instrument of instruction. We appear to be reacting, too, like little boys caught without our homework done.

We need not feel so shamefaced about it all.

Certainly, our political leaders in Ottawa have not been at their best when discussing nuclear policy for Canada. There has been vagueness and haziness. There has even been contradiction and confusion. But none of this is any reason to be stampeded into hasty action by deliberately tough words from President Kennedy through his appointed mouthpiece. The American are decisive now but they have not always been this way. They, too, have contributed their share of confusion and wavering to the world military situation in the past.

We have yet to negotiate a satisfactory arrangement with the United States for control of NATO warheads — not one that is satisfactory to Canada, at any rate. There is no reason why we should settle for anything less. Our domestic political situation is uncertain, and this is a fact of political life that cannot, for the moment, be changed. At few times in the last decade has the world seemed so far from nuclear war. Under these circumstances, it is for Canada to decide what Canada should do. Let us honor our commitments, certainly, but in the spirit in which they were originally made.

We'll bet kids have as much fun slamming storm doors as they did screen doors.

Vested interests and economies

To most Canadians, Royal Commissions named to inquire into this or that facet of the national life are considered attempts on the part of the lawmakers to avoid making a decision on a pressing issue. Unable to reach a decision on the proper course of action to take, the governments often resort to appointment of commissions in the hope that by the time any recommendations are forthcoming the problem will have resolved itself.

But, at intervals, some commission does produce something concrete and worthwhile that restores public faith in the principle of these inquiries.

Such is the Classco Royal Commission on efficiency in government. The Commissions have produced a comprehensive report which would establish a basis for the reform of the governmental machinery, saving millions of dollars each year for the taxpayers. The recommendations cover all branches of the administration, some of relatively minor importance but others involving changes that would strike at the very root of long-established practices.

The unfortunate feature of the inquiry is that the commissioner have no power to implement their findings. The reforms must be effected by government action. The attitude of any administration could spell the success or disaster of the reform policies.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has promised that his Government will do everything in its power to apply the major changes recommended. A special cabinet committee is being set up to study the problems. With memories still strong of the economic crisis of mid-summer, an honest effort may be made to bring down government spending.

But how long the economy wave will last is another question. So many traditional factors are involved that vested interests will make a mockery of any substantial cost-slashing drive.

The happiest people are the ones who enjoy doing things that make other people happy.

Outlets for car heaters at garage?

The spring-like break in cold weather during the past few days has given motorists an opportunity to recover from the backaches and assortment of pains, strains and boiling tempers usually associated with trying to get the family car rolling at this time of year.

By far the most frustrating of setbacks which the driver faces is the car which refuses to respond in a normal way to the turn of the ignition key. No amount of pushing, kicking and cursing will put electrical life into the motor.

The wise and fortunate motorist is the one who builds a garage. But for most people who believe in paying for the car before they house it, a garage is sheer luxury. Even those motorists who prepare for cold weather by installing a block heater on the motor find, to their dismay, even this can be, inadequate. Once the heater has been disconnected, the auto will freeze ice-hard.

An improvement Sherbrooke authorities might contemplate for the Webster parking garage is the installation of electrical outlets for the purpose of keeping automobiles in working order during the cold spells. Perhaps, some device could be added whereby the motorists could obtain this service at a cost.

It would be a godsend to drivers and an extra source of revenue for the city.

Other papers say:

Urban living produces new disease

During these days of lull in the academic year, scholars of all sorts customarily assemble in various cities to deal with the profundities of their callings. The same thing happens during the Easter recess. It's an opportunity seldom missed for pundits to air their pet ideas and theories. Numbers of them with an instinct for publicity, are bound to get in the news.

For instance, Dr. Igho Hart Kornbluh of the University of Pennsylvania declares that many of us may be falling victim to an affliction he calls urbanphrenia, this is to say city jitters, as a result of modern living.

Dr. Kornbluh described the symptoms to a symposium of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in Philadelphia. The symposium dealt with biometeorology which has to do with the effect of weather and climate on life.

Many of us may be the victims of urbanphrenia without realizing it. It comes of human crowding into big cities and suburbs, which means too much indoors in an artificial climate.

Bridge to bring traffic to schools

Dear Sir: May this letter find space in your paper. This writer has not travelled too much, but has seen signs: "We love our children, drive with care." And too, he reads of one who went down from Jerusalem to Jerico and fell among thieves who stripped him and left him half dead. But alas! It looks like our city fathers care little for our children and not only plan on taking away their play-space but will invite sure death to many, by building a highway close to at least two schools. Is it not bad enough to pile a greater debt than necessary on the shoulders of the children who will escape death, without haunting them with death, needlessly, until they can carry that debt? Putting a bridge to the foot of Montreal Street, as I understand it, not only will cost more, but will bring traffic as close as possible to Mitchell School—and also the High School, as we cut off a big piece of the play-space for Mitchell students. Please let us ease the traffic burden on Portland Avenue with a traffic circle and have the highway traffic directed more up Prospect. But have the traffic circle cut smaller. Why should the children have to lose play-space and the traffic lights that give a small measure of security—and make the circle so big traffic will speed more and be more risk to the children. Sincerely, Neighbour.

Claims wrong site is being chosen

Dear Sir: In regards to the bridge crossing the St. Francis River and the definite opposition to the proposed site. I am sure I need not enlarge on the details or waste your time or mine if this matter has been cut and dried and with no regards as to the residents in this area or destruction of property and to say the least the burden of extra heavy tax levies if the bridge is constructed. We need a bridge but not on this site outlined.

The prospects of whitening off the park again can be classed with cutting shade trees, destroying monuments, and desecration of holy places. Living so close to the park, I have had the opportunity to see the blessing it is to the very young and the stranger visiting our city. I want to go on record as saying I would just as staunchly defend any park from vandals, destruction and wilful abuse as I have this one. I have fished boxes out of the fountain and threatened to box a few cars. Our parks are all there is in any city that are still a place for humans to rest as God meant land to be, the only place for a toddler to run in safety, the only place the aged and blind are safe for a little while, the only place the retarded child can still play. Reader.

A different glance at Red China

Dear Sir: At last we have seen a different glance at China in the press in your Wednesday's "Just Look at the Children"

Freedom

Dear Sir: Glad at long last freedom is being enforced in the Congo. U.N. Sec. Gen. U Thant is proceeding to do what his predecessor should have done a couple of years ago—performing duty instead of discussing it.

Native hunters disappear

Ways of the Eskimo on the wane

UKIVOK, Alaska (AP)—The rocky cliffs of King Island, which once harbored a hardy breed of native hunters, are growing increasingly silent as the white man's ways cut deeper into Eskimo life and custom.

King Island's Eskimos still hold together as a proud, independent band, but now they live in a crowded tangle of huts on the outskirts of Nome.

They still depend on the gun and the fishline for most of their food and they still carve intricate likenesses of Arctic wildlife from walrus ivory, but there the similarity with their old life ends.

King Island, a barren outcropping of rock, lies windswept and cold in the northern Bering Sea, 90 miles northwest of Nome and 85 miles from Russian Siberia. The island is approximately a mile wide and three miles long.

LONG ISOLATED For hundreds of years King Island's Eskimos lived isolated from the world, except for occasional visits to the mainland.

They wrested their living from the sea. They fished for crabs and small fish. They hunted for polar bear, walrus, seals and that staple of the Arctic, oogruck, which is actually a bearded seal. They used to stay at King Island the year around, with brief trips to Nome to sell their ivory carvings and to buy supplies. But, as Paul Tiulana, one of the leaders of the King Island group, explains it, the Nome visits became more frequent and more prolonged. In recent years, the King Islanders have been staying in Nome from early spring to late fall and they are thinking of establishing a new permanent home at Cape Wooley, 40 miles northwest of Nome.

"My people hear men say the hunting by Cape Wooley is good all of the year around," said Tiulana.

The farm operations are "one of the ways we thought we thought we could keep our heads up—by trying to do something for ourselves."

Under the original Nova Scotia grant the home has 242 acres of land, about 45 fit for cultivation. There are 4,200 laying hens, an annual hog turnover of 150 to 200, enough cows to supply the farm with milk, one horse, a tractor and a big

Like one big family

Negro children's home a landmark

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—The rambling old wooden building with its new brick addition stands on a hill six miles east of here.

Around it lie fields, a barn, hen houses, pig pens and a school. Behind it is a softwood forest and in front the main highway to Nova Scotia's eastern shore.

With school out for the afternoon, boys may be seen at games or helping with the chores. Inside there's the smell of supper cooking and the sounds of a nursery. A little girl is practising the piano. Half a dozen others are singing.

It looks like one big family. What the scene represents, in fact, is the result of broken or poverty-stricken families. Some of the children are orphans. All are Negroes.

The Nova Scotia Home for Colored Children is a landmark in suburban Westphal. It was built 41 years ago and since then has been home to more than 700 children.

The home is non-denominational and may accept children from any province. But most have been from Nova Scotia which has 13,000 Negroes, half Canada's total.

The children may be from three months old to 20 years. The family varies in size, usually between 40 and 60. They may stay only a few weeks or for years. They usually move to foster homes.

A walk through the home with Secretary Superintendent J. A. R. Kinney—often called Daddy by the youngsters—bears out the impression that it is one big family.

Small children toddle toward him to be picked up and hugged. Older ones seek his counsel.

The rooms and children are neat and spotless. The staff of 12 Negro women wear pressed white uniforms.

Mr. Kinney, 50, whose own racial background is Negro, Irish and Indian, says one of the first things the home tries to instill in the children is a feeling of confidence.

The farm operations are "one of the ways we thought we thought we could keep our heads up—by trying to do something for ourselves."

Under the original Nova Scotia grant the home has 242 acres of land, about 45 fit for cultivation. There are 4,200 laying hens, an annual hog turnover of 150 to 200, enough cows to supply the farm with milk, one horse, a tractor and a big

Gerald Warina REPORTING

OTTAWA — The start of the New Year being the traditional time for reflection, reassessment, and re-dedication to whatever one is trying to do in life, this seems an appropriate time to comment on the business of writing a political column.

Moreover, I have been encouraged — if that is the word — to look into my journalistic mirror by a letter from not-so-Gentle Reader William J. Thompson of Vancouver.

"Your pen," he writes, "is obviously dipped in the deepest kind of partisan Liberal ink that it has lost value as fair comment. Why not make a New Year's resolution to see the political scene with less bitter prejudice. It cannot possibly be as bad as you view and express your criticism of it."

Bully for you, Mr. Thompson! That's telling me where I get off! And I'll let you in on a secret: you're perfectly right — it's not as bad as I let on. It's worse.

One of the lessons drummed into me as a cub reporter was the maxium "When in doubt leave it out." I've left out a lot, Mr. Thompson, that probably was true. But I couldn't be sure.

First, this is a column of critical comment on national affairs. Since the government has the main responsibility for the conduct of national affairs, the column is performe largely criticism of the government.

It was such in the days of the Liberal government; it is such in these days of Conservative government, and it will be such whatever the political stripe of the government after the forthcoming election.

This is not being anti-government. It's being anti bad government. Of course, no government is all good or all bad. But to sing the praises of the administration is not the function of a critical reporter; there are more than enough government press agents and partisans to publicize the things the government does right. Where the light is needed is on the things the government does wrong — on errors, weaknesses, failures and inaction — in the hope that exposure will needle the government into taking another look at what I think it's doing wrong.

Last year this column helped materially in getting a fair deal for the impoverished Tsimpsian Indians in their sale of tribal timber. A weakness in the administration of the National Capital Commission which had cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars was brought to light in this column. It was subsequently rectified. And I could cite other examples.

Whatever my prejudices — and everybody has them: true objectivity is a chimera — the one I cannot afford is partisan prejudice. My criticisms may be, and often are, similar to criticisms made by the government's political foes. But they cannot have the same motivation, if I am to keep faith with my readers and myself.

In 1956, after the pipeline debate, the Liberal publisher of an Ontario paper banned this column from his pages. He wouldn't have that d—d Tory Waring in his paper another day. In 1961, after I had written some critical assessments of government weaknesses, the Conservative editor of a British Columbia paper banned this column from his pages.

Between them, they gave me a pretty good commendation for impartiality.

Our exclusive and improved Deep Dip process makes the new 1963 Rambler Classic the world's most completely rustproofed car

That's quite a claim—the world's most completely rustproofed car. But Rambler is perfectly justified in making it. No other automotive manufacturer in the world is so thorough. Our Deep Dip rustproofing process is the most extensive in the industry. And this year, with the introduction of 'Uniside', an exclusive new way of building cars, we have increased the amount of galvanized metal on the car by seven times!

Our exclusive Deep Dip method of rustproofing was developed at the Rambler plant in Brampton, Ontario. It is specifically designed to fight the rigours of Canadian weather and driving conditions. This is what we do: the entire car body is immersed completely into six separate baths which clean, scour and seal the surface of the steel.

After that the car is again dipped to the roofline in a rustproofing primer paint which fills every corner of the car body. In this way, there is not one area of surface of the car which has not been protected. There's no casual spraying in this process that might miss vital areas and leave them exposed.

So you see, it's no idle boast when we claim that we have the world's most completely rustproofed car. Why do we go to so much trouble? Because it's part of our firm policy of providing 'maximum usefulness to the user'. Visit your Rambler Dealer soon, and test drive the new 1963 Rambler Classic and discover how much this policy means to your driving pleasure and convenience.

Romantic characters come alive for 1963 brides

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian brides in 1963 will be able to dress as romantic characters from the fairy tales or be sleek, sophisticated and practical.

Montreal gown manufacturers report bridal styles for winter and spring will range from the delicate, filmy, dirndl-waisted gowns inspired by the stories of Hans Christian Andersen and the Brothers Grimm to more simple multi-purpose gowns.

The fairy-tale look is young. Short, puffed sleeves are gathered with silver threads; high waists are accentuated, and simple Sabrina necklines are featured. Skirts are full with only an illusion of a train. Wedding veils flow from clusters of pale flowers and from clusters of frosted hothouse fruit.

Bridesmaids gowns, designed to carry out the romantic theme, are ballerina-length with full, ribbon-bound puffed sleeves and come in equally romantic colors — rose, cornflower blue, jonquil yellow and embroidery on white. Hats are halos of flowers or frosted fruit.

DETACHABLE TRAIN

The 1963 brides will also find a range of the traditional floor-length or ballerina wedding gowns of muted satin, silk alpaca, Italian silk, satapeau or organza. While styled with the new fashion silhouette, the controlled skirt, the slim overtunic, the sarong and the cathedral skirt can each become another fashion with the simple unsnapping of a belt.

Full church trains will come off in 1963 to make dancing at the reception easier. Some convertible trains become full-circle evening cloaks for formal wear.

Lace sleeves and bodices slip off, leaving a sleeveless ball gown. Tunic-styled gowns become going-away dresses while others, etched in lace, convert to elegant dinner gowns.

TWISTING TYPISTS

Twisting makes a girl a better typist, says Mrs. Constance Bowen, principal of a London secretarial college, who says it relaxes arms and shoulders.

SWINGY SKIRT, SET-IN SLEEVES — Preview of this 1963 spring suit features a swingy skirt and set-in sleeves. Color is navy and white worsted checks.

VALLEY WEAVERS

Mrs. David Smith of Windsor, Ont., was the guest speaker at the Valley Weavers' regular monthly meeting, held at the home of Mrs. William Vanhorne, Bishop's University, Lennoxville.

Mrs. Smith, who has been weaving for the past 15 years, has studied with Harriet Tidball, Carl Laurel, Zelinaki, Dorothy Hulse and Helen Daniels Young. She recently returned from Michigan, where she attended a rug making workshop, with Peter Collinwood of England, an accomplished weaver of rugs.

Mrs. Smith is a member of the Ontario Handweavers and Spinners, the Windsor and District Weavers and the Michigan Weavers Guild.

Mrs. Ernest Johnston, president, introduced the speaker, who gave the highlights of the work shop. She also displayed samples of many beautiful types of rugs and in addition for the benefit of the newer weavers, she had many samples of work done on a two harness loom, which consisted of place mats, Christmas hangings and many other items that could be easily accomplished by the beginner.

In her collection were many beautiful pieces from Finland which were actually a study in color.

To conclude, Mrs. Smith demonstrated the working of a back strap loom, one of the more primitive looms.

Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace, secretary treasurer, thanked Mrs. Smith for her interesting talk.

Several out of town weavers were welcomed to this meeting and one new member enrolled, bringing the membership to 12, with the addition of Mrs. Russell Dougherty of Bury.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Edward Perry, 22 Deacon Street, Lennoxville, on February 7.

A social time was enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess.

Marriages Selby - Comee

CANTERBURY, N.H. — A very lovely Christmas wedding was solemnized on Saturday, December 29 at 4 o'clock in the Canterbury Community Church, when Suzanne Dickinson Comee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huntley Comee, Jr., of Canterbury, became the bride of Cleland Eric Selby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Selby, Derby Line. Rev. G. Stanley Keast officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Charles Thompson was the organist and accompanist. Mr. Thompson, the soloist. The church decorations were lighted candles, and holly, with white carnations and snapdragon on the Altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore an original gown of white silk, ottoman styled, with a fitted bodice, having long sleeves and a jewel neckline, the floor length skirt was bell design. Her mantilla of silk embroidery was edged with re-embroidered Alencon lace and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and holly.

Miss Mary Ann Turner, Boston, Mass., as maid of honor, Miss Jane Selby, sister of the groom, Derby Line, and Miss Jane Turner, Weyland, Mass., as bridesmaids, wore dresses of identical styling, in flame red velveteen, having three quarter length sleeves, bateau necklines, and bell type skirts. They wore in their hair a matching petal wreath, and carried holly and matching velvet bows.

Mr. Lloyd Selby was best man for his son and the ushers were Johnathan and Roger Comee.

Mrs. Comee, mother of the bride, wore a blue wool sheath, with matching accessories and a corsage of a deep purple orchid.

Mrs. Selby, the groom's mother, was in a dress of brown and black wool jersey and wore brown accessories and a corsage of yellow and brown cymbidium orchids.

The reception was held in the Community church hall where the bride's table was effective with a flame red cloth, having a center arrangement of white snapdragon and button poms, flanked by lighted white candles in silver holders and holly. The guest tables were also accented with flame red covers and lighted candles. The five tier wedding cake was decorated in white.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Selby left on their honeymoon trip to points of Quebec, for travelling the bride wore a rust colored wool suit under her winter coat, toning accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

They are residing at Holderness, N.H., to be near Plymouth Teachers College where the groom is a member of the 1963 graduation class.

Guests attended from Derby Line, Lennoxville, Holland, Derby, Irasburg and other points.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—Wet and place in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator, one wash rag and one hand towel and whenever of the children (or even an adult) gets a fall or bump, you can use it as an ice pack instead of using an ice bag. You can bend or shape it to an elbow, knee or any place. In fact, it is much better than an ice bag. I hope this wins a dollar for me to use for a needy family.

MRS. R. E. DEAR POLLY—For those who sleep with pins and rollers on their hair at night, I find a strip of foam rubber, six inches wide and long enough to reach nearly around the head, when tied on, is very comfortable.

M. C. DEAR POLLY—When the little ones are in bed but able to sit up after an illness, open two legs of your card table and let the other two remain folded. Put the table across the bed in the child's lap, with the two open legs on the floor. It gives ample space for playing, drawing pictures and so on.

MRS. H. L. C. DEAR POLLY—If there is a dog in your family, cook for the dog and the family at the same time. Instead of throwing out the outside leaves of cabbage, cauliflower, celery and so on, I wash them and cook in a separate pot while I am cooking vegetables for the family in other pans. The dog gets a good meal from things that might be wasted and they are mixed with gravy or commercial dog food. The funny part is that my married son visits me more often by coming to pick up his dog's supper.

LIVE LONGER The average life expectancy of a girl born in Canada today is about 73 years compared with 68 for a boy.

Mrs. Ivan Saunders' Lennoxville rink leading Silver D playdowns, morning games to decide winners

Mrs. Ivan Saunders' Lennoxville rink emerged as early leaders in Section "A" playoff of Zone Three of the Silver "D" Ladies Curling tournament. The Lennoxville team emerged yesterday with two straight victories in the round-robin battle.

Mrs. Saunders' quartet posted a 11-3 win over Mrs. L. Styan's Magog squad in the morning round while yesterday afternoon the Lennoxville rink made it two straight by pulling out with a close 10-9 victory over Miss E. McMurray's Danville foursome.

The final match in the series was slated this morning with Mrs. Saunders facing Mrs. Kerridge in Magog while Mrs. Styan and Miss McMurray were booked to clash in Lennoxville. All games are played on foreign ice.

Weeb Ewbank's future to be decided today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Weeb Ewbank, who coached Baltimore Colts to two National Football League championships and who hasn't had a losing season since 1956, may lose his job today.

Colt president Carroll Rosenbloom, general manager Don Kellert and Ewbank meet for their annual evaluation of the season.

Don Shula, 33-year-old defensive backfield coach with Detroit Lions, said Monday night he has been approached about the Colts job. He said he would take it if offered.

In 1958 and 1959, Ewbank led the Colts to the NFL championship. But since then, the season records have been: 1960, 6-6; 1961, 8-6; and 1962 7-7.

Bruce Cline top goal getter in AHL battle

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Marshall of Hershey scored seven points in a American Hockey League play last week to cut Springfield's Bill Sweeney's scoring lead in half.

The figures, covering games through Sunday night, showed that Marshall ran his second-place total to 49, only four behind Sweeney, who got only three points in four games.

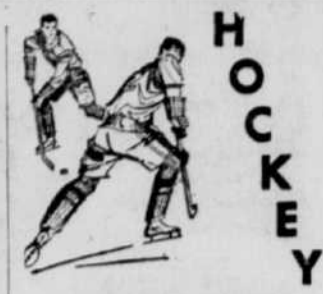

Sweeney has been the leader for nine straight weeks and also has the top assist total of 37. Bruce Cline of Springfield leads in goals with 22.

Ed Van Impe of Buffalo added 17 minutes to his penalty total to lead with 121. Charlie Hodge of Quebec retained his goaltending lead with a game average of 2.87. Ed Chadwick of Hershey picked up his third shutout to lead in that department.

Longview, Tex.—Henry Watson, 138, Dallas, outpointed Benito Juarez, 138, Austin, 10.

WIVES FORM OWN TEAM — A group of women, ages 15 to 30, aren't sitting back while their husbands and boyfriends play hockey this winter. They've formed their own hockey team at Schomberg, near Toronto. It's called the Morning Glories. Goalie is Jean Kitchen, 23-year-old mother of three, seen getting some pointers from coach Jess Turton. They don't play in a regular league, however.

CLTA to enter team in English tennis tourney

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association Monday announced it hopes to enter a team in an international competition for women next June at the Queen's Club in London, England.

The statement said the plan "will probably depend mainly on the extent of financial support" the association may receive from the national fitness council.

Each team is restricted to three players. Approximately 12 countries are expected to be represented in the event to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

Bathgate retains top spot in NHL race

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Bathgate's goal - a - game pace was the hottest in the National Hockey League last week and kept the New York right winger at the head of the league's individual points list.

Official NHL statistics released today show Bathgate scored four times—an average of once a game—to increase his total to 20 goals and 22 assists.

He is the second player to reach the 20-goal mark this season. Toronto's Frank Mahovlich, who picked up five points last week to narrow Bathgate's lead to a single point, has 23 goals.

The league's biggest producer last week, Johnny Bucyk of Boston, is in third spot with 38 points. The Bruin winger picked up six points on two goals and four assists.

Bucyk's linemate Murray Oliver, who earned three points, is fourth with 36 and Bathgate's linemate Dean Prentice, who salvaged only two assists, is fifth with 35.

Sixth is a three-way deadlock between Detroit's Gordie Howe, Montreal's Henri Richard and Chicago's Stan Mikita. All have 34 points, but they are ranked in that order because Howe has 15 goals, Richard 14 and Mikita 13.

Major leagues pick up tab for International

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's major leagues have agreed to pick up an estimated $78,000 in additional travel costs, and solved the immediate problems facing the expanded International League.

With that hurdle cleared, the International League Monday officially accepted Indianapolis and Little Rock of the defunct American Association, adopted a 152-game schedule and apparently received assurances that there will be no segregation problem in Little Rock.

League President Tommy Richardson said the Triple A International season will open April 17 and end Sept. 2. The league will be divided into two divisions with each team meeting a division rival 18 times and each team from the other division 16 times.

Making up the Northern Division are Buffalo, Richmond, Rochester, Syracuse and Toronto, with Atlanta, Columbus, Indianapolis, Jacksonville and Little Rock in the southern Division.

Richardson said he had been given assurances Negro players will receive the same treatment as whites in Little Rock. It was believed he got the assurance from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick in a conference held Monday morning.

Ineligible player and failure to dress junior players according to league ruling grounds for protest

Sherbrooke Beavers have lodged an official protest against the Montreal Olympics over a game played Sunday afternoon in the Maurice Richard Arena in Montreal. The Olympics emerged with close 4-3 overtime victory.

The Beavers' protest is on the grounds that the Montreal club broke two league rulings by using an ineligible player and at the same time failing to dress three juniors for the game. Andre Martin is the player in question.

The Olympics failed to ask permission to use Martin while permission had been granted for Andre Bessette the other new player. This was granted by the clubs at the last league meeting.

As for the junior ruling it is stated that all clubs must dress three if they wish to have a full lineup of players. This carries a league ruling and the club will be fined accordingly.

On Sunday the Olympics openly defied all league authority and took it on their own to break the rules. They had failed to live up to the usual routine by asking to use Martin. For failing to have their three junior players the club is fined $25 and will lose the game. This is a league ruling and will be strictly enforced.

At the last league meeting held in Granby the Olympics asked and were granted permission to use Andre Bessette but Montreal jumped to the fore on their own by dressing the ineligible player. In the past special permission has been granted to other clubs when the demand was made to use players outside of the league rules but Montreal didn't even ask such permission.

The ruling on junior players is a different story and this was installed in order to secure young players in order to keep the league at a good level. A league meeting will be held shortly to decide the issue.

SHS Midgets edge LHS 3-2 in close battle, Warren pots winning tally

Sherbrooke High Midgets edged Lennoxville 3-2 Monday afternoon in their first match of the pre-Christmas schedule in the Inter-School League.

Warren fired in the winning goal for the SHS squad in the third period while Montgomery was the standout offensively for Lennoxville with both his team's goals to his credit.

Cadman opened scoring in the struggle when he tallied unassisted against LHS goalie Taylor at 5:50 of the first stanza. Bessant put Sherbrooke ahead 2-0 on a pass from Halfenden at 5:48 of the second.

Montgomery of Lennoxville put his squad on the score sheet at 8:15 of the second frame on a pass from Cathcart and then, at 0:30 of the third period Montgomery scored again, tying up the count at 2-2, thanks to assists from Cathcart and Desjardins.

Warren tallied the winning marker for SHS at 3:10 of the third period on a pass from Bondurant with a sizzling shot that dented the Lennoxville nets.

Arnold Palmer picks up $9,000 for first place in Los Angeles Open, PGA title only big one left for him

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There isn't much left in golf for Arnold Palmer to win but money. The reigning king of the sport headed east today. In his pocket was a cheque for $9,000, representing his first-place finish for the first time in eight tries in the Los Angeles Open.

The only other major plum left for Palmer to pluck is the United States PGA championship.

The remarkable Palmer, in his brief years as a professional, has won the U.S. Open, the Master's and the British Open.

Using a putter, Palmer hit sharply from 50 feet in the back of and below the green. The ball responded like a rocket. It sped straight to the cup and plopped in.

The daring shot prompted fellow pro Mike Souchak to observe: "Here we go again. New year, same script."

George Knudson of Toronto finished in a tie for 21st with 281 after a closing 66, winning $750. Stan Leonard of Vancouver won $50 with a 285 total.

George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears and co-founder of the league 42 years ago, asked NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle last week to look into published rumors of a scandal.

The NFL's official stand is that the investigation is one of several it conducts every year and that it will not discuss specific individuals or cases.

YOUR MONEY IS WORTH MORE AT WOOLWORTH'S

A retrospective look

Until it got old, it wasn't a good year; but mellowness brought better things

By RON POULTON

Until it got old it wasn't much of a year. In 1962 the trip wires were charged with greed and infamy and then they were stretched from the Himalayas to the Caribbean.

But the year mellowed in time for science to look down from Venus on the fulminating politician and shift the wind to indicate a change in the modern art of learning to survive.

Russia stopped telling its midnight tale of the big, bad American wolf; and went home from Cuba to tell Mao of China, instead, that atomic war was out of the question.

A far cry, this, from the day it was telling all and sundry that another little war wouldn't do any harm.

It was a great year for Kennedy; a bad one for Macmillan; a neutral one for Canada; a disillusioning one for Nehru; restless one for Africa; a stubborn one for Adenauer and de Gaulle.

It showed, by stoking a brush war in an unheard of place called Brunel, that one man's woe is another's geography lesson.

It clarified that trouble brews on the most unlikely health and the witches are always out.

As the year languished and prepared to die, Kennedy, Khrushchev, Mao, Adenauer, de Gaulle, Nasser and Nehru were still in office, although it was occasionally a little difficult to determine just who was allied with whom.

Western defenses had reached such a point of personal opinion that a Tory backbencher — of all ominous people — felt constrained to rise and describe the Nassau agreement as "a diplomatic Dunkirk."

In the Congo, Adoula, Mobutu, Kasavubu, Tshombe and Gizenga were still confusing everybody — including themselves.

And the Yemeni premier, Azdullah Sallal, called Ibn Saud and King Hussein "fools and dirty parasites." Which was unfortunate because they don't like him, either.

Rebellious back-benchers and sun-dried premiers aside, we're cosier now than we were when 1962 was born. If for no other reason than that Moscow and Peking are calling one another names, as well.

A few conditions seem certain for 1963.

SAGES AND FOOLS
Man will continue to be capable of infinite wisdom and infinite idiocy. He will decay hunger while creating it. He will advocate international accord as long as it doesn't interfere with national pride. Trust will continue to take a licking from suspicion, Moscow's new mood notwithstanding. And parochial politicians will continue to cry that there is no alternative to the thought that they'd rather be dead than Red.

It's enough to cloud any crystal ball. But, specifically, these are a few of the matters which may make 1963 a different stew from 1962.

Another indecisive Federal election will leave Canada too preoccupied to fulfill the potential of its role in international affairs.

Castro will go because he is too erratic in a narrowing world where little dictators need big allies.

Men will continue to wear last year's suit and women's skirts will go up, if they don't go down.

The rift between Mao and Khrushchev will continue to widen, but those who dream that it will damage Communism to the breaking point will wake up disappointed.

Adenauer will be forced out and De Gaulle will not be quite so certain that pride requires private ownership of an atomic bomb.

Canada will decide on a defense policy but not on a national flag.

The Americans will orbit a two-man space craft.

The Russians will orbit a three-man space craft.

North Americans will spend more on fishing poles than on medical research.

OK COMMON MARKET

Macmillan will survive his present crisis and get a go-ahead for Britain's entrance into the Common Market.

Russia will change course from Cuba in search of another Latin ally. Likeliest target: Brazil.

Mr. Caouette will put his foot in Mr. Thompson's mouth.

North American motorists will continue to expect the other fellow to get out of their way in time. The other fellow won't. The highway death toll will rise.

Nehru will remain in office, still balancing his political faith on a philosophical pin-point beyond the view of any one save Menon.

There will be no world war because Communists will be too busy rewriting the rewrite of the rewrite of Marx; western Europeans will be shoring their economic and military dikes; Kennedy will be carrying the ball; and Mao won't have the bomb.

And if the last forecast comes true, phone all compliments, Dec. 31, 1963. If it doesn't, don't bother.

I won't be here. But, then, maybe nobody else will either.

COURAGE IMPORTANT TO BE A CHAMP

Bobby Nail of Houston is the only member of the 1962 American team who is on the 1963 team. About a month before the trials started, Bobby broke his leg and had to play in a wheel chair. The discomfort did not hurt his game any.

The strongest part of Bobby's game is his courage. Nothing scares him and he is willing to take chances any time he sees an opportunity to create a swing.

In our 1962 match against Great Britain, we were a trifle behind going into the last day's play. The East-West British pair were on their way to a vulnerable slam and East had just asked for aces by bidding four no-trump when Bobby made the move that won the match for us.

Holding one queen and two jacks Bobby threw a five spade bid at them. Assuming they had a slam, Bobby could afford a seven trick set and actually it would take perfect defense to set him six tricks at his five spade bid. He would show a profit assuming that East and West could make a slam.

As it was, the bid really created a swing. Instead of stopping at six hearts, the British went on to seven. North doubled and we gained 160 points on that one bid by Bob-
