

Choquette reveals FLQ note suspended Cross execution

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette told the Quebec national assembly Tuesday that a note issued by the kidnapers of British diplomat James Cross Oct. 17 did not ask another cell of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec to suspend execution of their hostage Pierre Laporte, the former Quebec labor minister killed that day.

However, Mr. Choquette admitted that the Liberation cell which held Mr. Cross had issued a note that day. He was replying to a question by Robert Burns (PQ—Maisonneuve) who had asked whether such a note intercepted by the RCMP and not revealed to other police forces had dealt with the fate of Mr. Laporte.

The weekly Quebec-Presse said in a story Sunday that Jacques Lanctot, one of seven persons flown to Cuba in exchange for the release of Mr. Cross, had told his family the Cross kidnappers had issued a note Saturday saying it would not kill Mr. Cross and hoped such action would serve as an example to the Chenier cell which held Mr. Laporte.

But the story said this did not happen because police intercepted the note and prevented its publication under terms of the War Measures Act which prohibited support or advocacy of the FLQ.

Mr. Laporte was strangled Oct. 17 and his body found in a car trunk shortly after midnight that night. A later FLQ note, which was revealed, timed his death at 6:18 p.m., almost exactly to the minute a week after his kidnapping.

Mr. Choquette read the note to the national assembly. It said the "death sentence for J. Cross is indefinitely suspended" and the British envoy would be held until the authorities accepted the kidnap demands.

"He will only be executed in the event that the fascist political police discover us and try to intervene."

It was never revealed by police or government officials that the kidnappers had suspended the Cross death threat.

Police finally did discover the kidnap hideout in Montreal North and surrounded it late last week. After negotiations, seven persons accepted free passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross.

The note said: "As for Pierre Laporte, the Chenier cell of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, is currently studying his case and will make its decision known in a little while."

At the end of the note, it said a letter from Mr. Cross to his wife was attached. It also thanked lawyer Robert Lemieux, who negotiated with the government for the kidnappers, for his "self-sacrifice which, happily or unhappily, can only serve to unmask the hypocrisy of the fascist authorities."

The earlier part of the note said the authorities "have declared war on Quebec patriots" and said the authorities' aim was "to terrorize the population by massive and illegal arrests and raids, by large police deployments which make a lot of noise, by smashing declarations about the urgent situation in Quebec."

"It is necessary for them, at all costs, to break this dangerous sympathy, which a large number of Quebecers feel, towards the patriots of the Front de Liberation du Quebec since the kidnapping of J. Cross and Pierre Laporte, since the publication of the Front de Liberation du Quebec manifesto."

Mr. Choquette also told Remi Paul, house leader of the Union Nationale, that no ransom had been paid for Mr. Cross. Mr. Paul had asked whether a foreign country had paid a ransom.

Also at the request of Mr. Paul, the justice minister said he would publish a statement for national assembly members listing events in the freeing of Mr. Cross last week.

New industry for Magog

MAGOG (CC) — The City of Magog may be gaining another new industry.

On Dec. 3, at a regular monthly meeting, council gave approval for an option on a lot measuring 200 by 800 feet.

The land would be sold in two portions, one at eight-and-a-half cents per square foot, the other at seven cents a square foot. No details on who is taking the option have been released.

Cowansville blood drive

COWANSVILLE (TS) — The Canadian Red Cross Society will again this year hold a blood donor clinic at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall Monday afternoon.

In past years this project has always been a huge success in the area, and directors of the Red Cross are hoping that the spirit of giving will also be present on this occasion.

A total of 376 people donated the blood during last year's clinic, which represented a decline from previous years. Therefore, the Red Cross unit has set a minimum of 475 donors as their 1970 objective.

Ministers will meet again

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's finance ministers Tuesday ended their annual two-day collective look at the state of the economy by persistently questioning federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson about his proposed tax changes and then agreeing to talk about them again in February.

The federal and provincial ministers will meet in Toronto in February. Among other things to be discussed will be a proposal made Tuesday by Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton that a better break be given owners of small Canadian businesses.

Mr. Benson said the proposal was interesting but would involve difficulties. It would allow a 50-per-cent credit against income taxes for any investment up to $10,000 a year that a person makes in his own business.

Under Mr. Benson's proposals, contained in his white paper, small businesses would be treated the same as big ones, and would lose the lower tax rate they now enjoy.

Mr. Benson described the Ontario proposal as a tax deferral. Dave Stuart, provincial treasurer of Saskatchewan, said small Canadian firms needed such a deferral, but they should also have a tax "break." His definition of small businesses included farms.

At these annual December meetings, the finance ministers take a broad, over-all look at the economy, discuss various fiscal proposals and give some indications of plans for their next budgets. The talks are behind closed doors and references to forthcoming budgets are regarded as highly confidential.

The ministers Tuesday devoted some time to talking about the federal government's white paper on social security, largely the monetary aspects. Federal-provincial welfare ministers meet here later this week to examine the document.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec said he hoped the federal white papers on social security and unemployment insurance, along with two others involving social security in Quebec, will form the basis for a revision of the whole system. Quebec, he said, wants to take over responsibility for more of its welfare schemes.

Finance Minister Jean-Maurice Simard of New Brunswick told the meeting that the economic slowdown of the last three years appears to have "bottomed out."

"However, economic indicators seem to be pointing in every direction, and there are still no firm signs of the re-emergence of the strong growth rates were experienced from 1964 to 1967."

He predicted that real economic growth in his province will be about 4½ per cent next year compared with 3½ per cent this year.

Soviets hold line on defence

MOSCOW (AP) — Kremlin planners unveiled the 1971 budget for the Soviet economy Tuesday, proposing a defence outlay the same as in 1970 and setting generally modest production goals.

Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov told members of the Supreme Soviet, the parliament, gathered in the Kremlin Palace that it would take 160.6 billion rubles to run the government's farms, factories and military machine during the coming year. The official rate of the ruble is $1.11 in United States currency.

Eleven per cent of that amount—or 17.9 billion rubles—would go for defence, Garbuzov said, because "imperialists" are continuing the arms race and "strengthening aggressive military blocs."

Military research and development is not included in the Soviet defence figure. Sums spent on development of new weapons systems are often concealed in funds allotted to other industries.

Western analysts expressed belief the Soviet defence figure represents only about half of the real military spending.

The total budget for next year was up 5.4 per cent from the current budget of 144.5 billion rubles. But the decision to hold steady the announced figure for defence spending aroused speculation that the Kremlin may be trying to set the stage for an easing of tensions with the West.

Soviet industrial production—a main indicator of the health of the economy—bounced back from a bad year in 1969 to register a respectable eight-percent increase in 1970, said the chairman of the economic planning commission, Nikolai K. Baibakov.

He told the 1,517 Supreme Soviet deputies that performance for 1970 could have been better if modern technology had been introduced at a quicker pace.

Committee reports pill most reliable birth control method

By KEN KELLY

Canadian Press Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday he hopes soon to remove the legal uncertainties surrounding operations for male and female sterilization.

He made the comment at a news conference where he expressed favorable reaction to recommendations of a special committee on the safety and effectiveness of the birth control pill.

The committee, headed by Dr. R. A. H. Kinch, Montreal obstetrician and gynecologist, found that for the couple with as many children as they want, sterilization is the safest form of contraception.

Next to that, the committee found the pill presents a lower risk of death over a lifetime than use of any other form of contraception or of no contraception at all.

Death rates in 1967 for women in the age groups 20-34 and 35-44 were respectively 20 and 51 per 100,000 maternities, including deliveries, complications of pregnancy, childbirth and the 90-day post-delivery period.

Annual risk of death from pill use is 2.1 per 100,000 users compared with 22.3 from unprotected intercourse and 1.5 from male and female sterilization.

Lifetime risk, including risk of death from two planned pregnancies, is 89.2 per 100,000 from pill use, 280.9 from no contraception and 46.2 from female sterilization.

Mr. Munro was asked what would be done, in the light of the committee's comments on sterilization, about the confusion as to the legality of sterilization operations. Mr. Munro replied that this has been considered in the past and there now is good reason to consider clarification.

"I would hope that we could come out with a clarifying statement on the state of the law on this question shortly."

With respect to other committee recommendations, tabled in the Commons Tuesday, Mr. Munro said he accepts most of them and expects that one involving a warning pamphlet for every packet of birth control pills will be in force in a matter of months.

The committee suggested that each time a woman buys pills on her doctor's prescription she receive a warning leaflet about potential signs of trouble from such things as blood clots. The literature also should emphasize the need for continuing medical supervision while using the pill.

Dr. Kinch estimated that some 1,500,000 Canadian women are taking oral contraceptives, in use about 10 years.

He said he hopes the committee's detailed technical study also will explode the argument put forward at times that the alternative to the pill is pregnancy at higher risk.

Simply stated, he said, the committee tried to say that, if virtually 100-per-cent protection against conception is demanded, the pill is the most reliable.

But the price paid is certain actual and some potential risks to health. Only in knowing those risks could the doctor and patient decide together whether to use the pills.

Dr. Jeffrey Bishop, who heads the drug advisory bureau of the food and drug directorate, told the news conference that talks are under way with drug manufacturers about better animal and human trials of existing and new oral contraceptives.

Canada demands end to South African arms sales

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada called on other countries Tuesday to follow it in banning the sale of arms to South Africa because of that country's apartheid—racial separation—policies.

It was the first such call by Canada since Prime Minister Trudeau sent a controversial letter to British Prime Minister Heath expressing concern over consideration of a British change of policy in the matter.

The federal government evidently attached such importance to the brief call that it sent Andre Ouellet, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, to deliver the statement before the 127-country General Assembly.

Ouellet was commenting on six resolutions on apartheid that were passed by the assembly. Canada abstained on the most controversial one while Britain, France and the United States voted against. Canada supported the others.

Ouellet reiterated the "emphatic opposition" of the Canadian government and people to apartheid and their support "for a wide range of peaceful measures against apartheid."

He said that Canada fully complies with the arms embargo against South Africa called for by the Security Council and "we hope that all members of the UN will find it possible to observe it."

Ouellet said later he was not talking of any other country in particular. But contributors of arms or spare parts for arms to South Africa are the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Israel.

Ouellet pointed out that Canada recently banned the sale of spare parts and other equipment to South Africa in compliance with a Security Council resolution.

Robarts resigns

TORONTO (CP) — John Parmenter Robarts, who often had said that 10 years in office is enough for a premier, took his own advice Tuesday and resigned as Conservative premier of Ontario.

He had been premier for nine years and a member of the legislature for 19.

"The time has come for me to pass the mandate," he said at a news conference.

"To those who may wonder why I have chosen this particular time to step down, I can only say ... that in the very fast-moving times in which we live, government policies and actions need to be continuously reviewed, revised and rethought."

The 53-year-old lawyer said he will remain in office "until the new leader is prepared to assume government leadership" and then return to his London, Ont. practice. He said he will remain neutral in the choice of his successor.

Alan Eagleson, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario, told the news conference party leaders will meet Thursday to choose dates for a leadership convention, to start Feb. 8, Feb. 24 or March 15.

Mr. Robarts said he will remain in the legislature to represent his riding of London North but will not contest the next provincial election.

An election is generally expected next year.

The premier's announcement was hardly a surprise. Newspapers and cabinet ministers had been speculating about its timing for weeks.

Mr. Robarts said he is in fine health but wants to spend more time with his family. As premier, he lived in a downtown hotel near his Queen's Park office and went to London on weekends to be with his wife Norah, daughter Robin, 16, and son Timothy, 13.

"I've got teen-age children—the old man should be home occasionally," Mr. Robarts said. "I am acutely aware of the sacrifices involved as far as my family is concerned and feel a strong sense of responsibility towards them."

His successor will be the fifth premier in a 27-year Conservative dynasty in Ontario. The party has been in power since 1943.

At least eight members of the Robarts cabinet are considered leadership possibilities.

Some Conservative backbenchers and one cabinet minister already have declared support for Education Minister William Davis, 41-year-old Brampton lawyer. Highways Minister George Gomme said he could not think of anyone he would rather work for than Mr. Robarts but would support Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis said he will have no statement on his intentions for several days.

"This is his day," he said of Mr. Robarts. "Everybody in the cabinet felt a sense of loss when Mr. Robarts told us today he was going to retire."

JOHN ROBARTS

Allan Lawrence, 45, minister of mines and a Toronto lawyer, had called a news conference for immediately after Mr. Robarts' statement, about 11:30 a.m. He did not appear.

In an interview Tuesday the premier said that after he leaves politics he will return to his London law practice—"my name is still on the door"—and "I suppose other opportunities will open up if I have the time."

He obtained his law degree from Osgoode Hall in Toronto in 1946, practised for a year in Hamilton and then returned to London with a law firm.

He was born in Banff, Alta., Jan. 11, 1917. His father was a bank manager. The family moved first to Winnipeg, then to Galt, Ont., then to London.

He worked on Lake Ontario excursion boats to finance his education and became an honor student at the University of Western Ontario, London, graduating in 1939.

In 1940 he joined the navy as a rating and ended the war a lieutenant after service in the Atlantic, Mediterranean and Pacific. He won mention in dispatches for Mediterranean action.

His first political office was as an alderman in 1951. In the same year he was elected to the legislature for London, and represented London North after his old riding was split.

Boycott or boredom?

MERSEA, Ont. (CP) — Voter apathy is a traditional problem in some areas and for Gosfield North Township in Monday's election it reached a low.

Election officials reported Tuesday not one voter in the township about 20 miles southeast of Windsor cast a ballot for a representative for the Essex County separate school board.

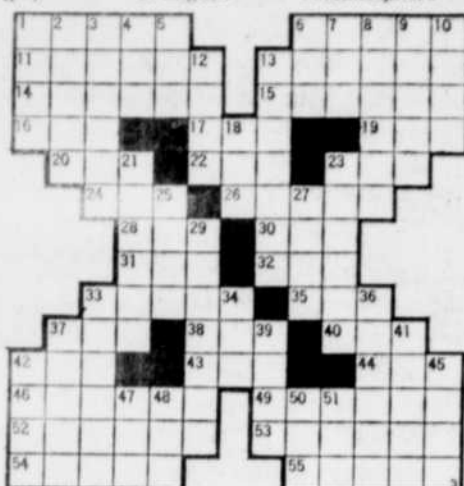

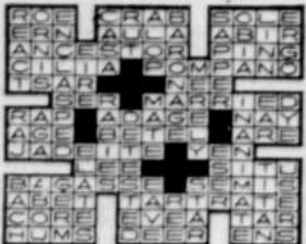

Chief returning officer Lynn Foster said it was unusual since 300 ballots were sent to the polling station. The township is included with five other municipalities to form a voting district.

Voters in other municipalities elected William Brown to the board.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Doctor Turns Detective

Bares Clues to Aching Back

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a back ailment from an accident and I would like to know if there is a back doctor or can I get rid of the pain that is agonizing me? I am associated with a swim team at the YMCA and my back is keeping me from participating in the same manner I did last year. I wear a band but it doesn't help much and it seems to be getting worse.

Dear Reader—Call the county medical society and ask for the names of specialists in "physical medicine." These doctors specialize in managing muscle problems. Often careful attention to the muscles—particularly after an injury—will relieve the problem.

It is a matter of history that President Kennedy had an old back injury and was severely disabled for years until Dr. Janet Travell, who was his doctor in the White House, treated his problem. You might enjoy reading Dr. Travell's interesting account of these problems in her book, "Office Hours: Day and Night" (published by New American Library, New York, 1969).

A clever physician trained in physical medicine can do a great deal for sore backs. The study begins from the bottom up. And I mean looking to see if one leg is too short, which places a strain on the back muscles, and considering all the factors that may be causing pain.

Too often attention is centered only on the point where the pain is located and not enough consideration given to all the other factors that can cause the pain. A complete study of muscle balance, posture and range of motion of joints and elasticity of muscles is indicated.

The strain on muscles can often be lessened by correcting for skeletal problems such as a short leg. Dr. Travell did this in Kennedy's case by putting a lift under the heel of the short leg. There are many other ways of reducing strain on sore muscles, which is as important as treating the muscle involved.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Would you please tell me what hyperuricemia is? What causes it and is there any cure for it? Is it similar to gout?

Dear Reader—This means there is an increased amount of uric acid—a product of protein metabolism—in the blood. It is often seen in gout although it can occur without gouty arthritis and gouty arthritis can occur without markedly increased amounts of uric acid. Treatment is indicated if gouty arthritis is part of the picture; otherwise it might be well to ignore it. Incidentally, gouty arthritis is uncommon in women.

At Home or En Route, the Holiday Mood Is "Casual"

Campaigna, Shelley Rolfe, Debra Taylor, Karen Taylor, Karen Morrill and Darlen Williamson.

Several games and songs were presented for the mothers with Shelley Cook assisting them.

At home for the holidays or going south to the sun, the fashion mood this season is casual.

Sportswear has spread its unconstrained message across the fashion industry and has changed the whole spirit of the way women look.

Soft, clingy fabrics and the popularity of those oh-so-comfortable pants outfits make putting on something that's easy to wear irresistible. Even the Beautiful People don't want to "dress up" anymore unless they can be draped in something comfortable, like flowing evening pants or soft knits.

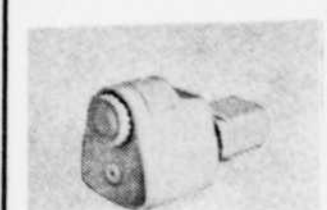

As clothing goes, so go the shoe styles. Casual is the word here, too. In the new Florsheim collection of women's shoes, natural, textured, and antique leathers, and the all-year favorite, patent leather, set the pace.

With smart pants-suits and go-south clothes, fashion experts recommend a medium-low-heel shoe in textured or antiqued leather for walking, shopping and touring. For evening and dressy outfits a higher, broader heel's a "must." Patent leather adds an elegant touch. Toes are naturally rounded. Extremes are out—no pointed or square toes, please.

Spectator shoes, contrasting navy, black or red with white, are fresher looking than ever in the new collection. Evoking memories of the Thirties, they're destined for popularity this spring. But the early shopper will catch them now in sharp, clean colors to spruce up winter wools.

Gustafson tells Rotary

Hope of the future lies in poet's craft

SHERBROOKE (PK) — "Poetry can save us. No one lets it," Ralph Gustafson, poet and professor at Bishop's University, told the Rotary Club at the New Sherbrooke Hotel last night.

The approximately 75 people who attended the ladies night get-together heard Gustafson explain that "poetry is on the side of life...Poems say don't give up life."

Gustafson attempted to answer the question: What is poetry? Quoting from Jack Frost he described it as "a momentary stay against confusion. It begins in delight and ends in wisdom."

We are all poets, he continued, because poetry lies in the emotional quality of our perceptions. Love is what makes perceptions poetic. What distinguishes the so called poet from non-poets is the poet's ability to articulate those perceptions in an artistic way.

Since the poet feels love in his perceptions of what is real, he is able to say, "Truth is beauty, and beauty is truth." The poet thus allows himself to perceive more, and thus be more aware. Gustafson said, "To dream one must be infinitely aware."

Poetry eliminates the desire to conquer men and things. "Let heroes have heroes. We have love," he said. This is why Gustafson concluded that poetry can save us. "Poetry says don't give up life...Life is noble in spite of what man does to it."

In other business, past President Paul Nadeau announced a new fund raising approach was necessary due to the provincial government's refusal to allow the club to hold raffles. He urged the ladies present to assist in the seeking of contributions. The club would like to raise $10,000.

D. B. Racey asked members to contribute old furniture, toys, and games to the new social center being established by the Lawrence Colony-Island Brook Community Center for the youth of Lawrence Colony. He can be reached at 562-8281.

During the dinner, club members and their wives were entertained by three pupils of Mr. Xouks, first violinist of the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra. Playing Christmas music were Celine Jacques on piano, Jacques Joubert on violin, and Jean-Marc Joubert on cello.

The man was identified as John Lester, 23, who police said has a record of five arrests for robbery and narcotics violations.

Foils gold seizure

NEW YORK (AP) — A man posing as a Brink's guard was arrested at Kennedy Airport Tuesday morning before the armored truck crew he joined was to pick up a $1 million gold shipment.

Airport police said Port Authority patrolman Melvin Klawnsky disarmed the man and arrested him after an Eastern Airlines cargo handler said he "looked a little funny."

The man was identified as John Lester, 23, who police said has a record of five arrests for robbery and narcotics violations.

Lawyers dispute pollution powers

OTTAWA (CP) — Wide powers proposed for the cabinet and pollution control officers were criticized Tuesday by the maritime law section of the Canadian Bar Association.

Representatives of the section appeared before the Commons pollution committee with their analysis of the safety and anti-pollution committee with their analysis of the safety and anti-pollution changes proposed by the government to the Canada Shipping Act.

At the same time, they entered a plea for urgent steps to establish land based radar control over vessels approaching Canada's shores.

F. O. Gerity, one of the country's top experts on maritime law and a former naval officer, told the committee that even during the Second World War sophisticated equipment was in use that enabled precise ship traffic control.

He figured Canada could set up a system to control vessels bound at least for such major oil-receiving ports as Halifax, Saint John, St. John's, Montreal and several west coast ports.

He said the Lion's Gate Bridge at Vancouver has effective surveillance radar. What was needed was radar to enable constant tracking of vessels from at least 40 miles off the coast.

Land based radar, supplemented by ship radar and ship-to-ship communications, was the best way to prevent such marine disasters as the sinking earlier this year of the tanker Arrow. The Arrow disaster and the multi-million-dollar cleanup job arising from tons of spilled oil led in part to the government's proposed legislation.

Mr. Gerity and Arthur Stone, chairman of the bar association committee, said the cabinet is being given too wide powers to declare what is a pollutant.

In addition, pollution control officers under the bill might be called on to exercise powers beyond the territorial sea and contiguous zones, running into conflict with long-standing maritime laws affecting vessels on the high seas.

Governors protest US energy controls

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Governors of four states sent a telegram to President Nixon Tuesday saying his efforts to control oil and gasoline prices are contrary to his objectives for a new federalism.

The telegram said state regulatory agencies have, without regard to price, administered oil and gas conservation practices effectively and created dependable supplies to support the national security and economy in time of war, peace and international crisis.

"The president's actions are completely in opposition to the new federalism he has proposed in that they will place the individual states in a secondary position rather than a primary position," said Gov. Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma.

Signing the telegram with Bartlett at the concluding session of the annual meeting of the 33-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission were governors Preston Smith of Texas, Stanley K. Hathaway of Wyoming and David F. Cargo of New Mexico.

Trying to reduce crude oil and gasoline prices, Nixon ordered the interior department last Friday to replace individual states as the regulator of production from offshore federal leases. He also opened the way for increased oil imports from Canada.

"Your recommended steps of increasing offshore production and Canadian imports for the stated purposes of controlling price do not serve to promote this self sufficiency and are antithetical to the new federalism which you have supported," the governors' telegram said.

Two ET firms receive development grants

SHERBROOKE (CJ) — Regional Economic Development Minister Jean Marchand has announced that two Eastern Townships firms will receive incentives under the Regional Development Incentives Act for projects designed to provide 52 additional jobs in the district.

Starto Jet Inc., of Thetford Mines, will receive an incentive bonus of approximately $40,000 to expand its plant for the manufacture of garbage containers. The project will create an additional 20 jobs. The development incentive is based on a rate of 10 per cent of the approved capital costs of $200,000 plus $1,000 per job. Construction is scheduled to start early this month.

Warwick Woolen Mills Co. Ltd. of Warwick will receive an incentive of approximately $138,000 to expand its plant and equip it to produce woolen material. The project will create an estimated 32 additional jobs. The development incentive is based on a rate of 20 per cent of approved capital costs of $451,000 plus $1,500 per job. Construction is scheduled to begin before February 1.

Scanlan's manages to print issue

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — Scanlan's Monthly, which accused union printers here of refusing to work on an edition entitled Guerrilla Warfare in the United States, has had the issue printed in St. Johns, Que., says Tom Humber, managing editor of the Magazine.

Humber said the St. Johns firm of Payette and Payette printed the issue and 6,000 copies were flown to San Francisco for sale. The remaining 95,000 copies were shipped by truck to New York.

The eight-month-old magazine last appeared in September.

Besides the printer obstacles in New York, the managing editor said in an interview, another dispute arose in Canada when a Montreal bindery company refused to work on the controversial edition. The publication was faced with further delay until Payette and Payette agreed to do the job.

Scanlan's difficulties arose Oct. 1 when editorial material for the 116-page issue was delivered to Barnes Press Inc., a 54-year-old New York City printing concern.

On Oct. 2 Scanlan's filed a $1.25 million damage suit in U.S. District Court here against Barnes and Local 1 of the Amalgamated Lithographers of America. The magazine began shopping for a new printer.

Trudeau sees new export strategy

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau outlined a strategy Tuesday for Canada to profit by striking into what he expects will be by 1980 a vastly expanded U.S. market for imported goods.

Mr. Trudeau told members of Saint John and area service clubs the strategy is based on the assumption that by 1980 two-thirds of the U.S. labor force will be engaged in service industries.

"The American demand for goods will, in the result, be satisfied largely by imports—imports which will be paid for by the increasing U.S. favorable balance from investment income and from the export of managerial skills, manufacturing techniques, licences and the like."

Mr. Trudeau, who suggested the Atlantic provinces can take special advantage of such development, discounted current pressures in Washington to increase protective tariffs. Labor unions lobbying for protection would represent a diminishing proportion of the U.S. population and eventually the majority could come to realize "that their interests as consumers are being sacrificed for the benefit of a minority, vested interest group."

There was further comfort because since the Second World War "the United States has been the sponsor of every major worldwide trade initiative," most recently the Kennedy Round of tariff reductions.

Mr. Trudeau said that Canadian "and perhaps particularly Maritime province sources will be provided with an unprecedented opportunity to take advantage of these shifting trade patterns."

His prepared speech, a copy of which was released in advance, then shifted to the similar issues of inflation and the need for increased efficiency.

Canada, he said, has already proven it can compete in the world market for manufactured goods and has succeeded better than its rivals in controlling inflation.

Satisfying city budget

Mayor Marc Bureau and his associates on the Sherbrooke City Council deserve credit for the results of their first effort at budget-making. For the first time in six years they plan to operate the city for 1971 at a surplus without any excessive increase in the tax burden upon the majority of the proprietors.

Admittedly the predicted surplus is a small one, $21,900 or less than one-tenth of one per cent on the estimated expenditures of somewhat over $25.5 million, but it at least represents a hope on the part of the administration that there will be some semblance of balance between the revenues and expenditures.

The importance of eliminating deficits on operating account, which have amounted to $2.6 million during the past five years, is stressed by the figures on debt service. This will take nearly $4.6 million during 1971, or 18 per cent of the total budget, representing 18 per cent of the total expenditure forecast. This is an increase of $400,000 over interest and sinking fund costs for the current year and most, if not all, the increase can be accounted for by the need for funding accumulated deficits.

To the average proprietor, the change in the real estate valuation and tax rate should mean little added burden. Unless his valuation was increased by more than 55 per cent by the scientific role adopted for 1971, the reduction in the mill rate from 13.8 to 8.8 would mean a slight cut in the burden.

But, satisfactory as it is for the coming fiscal year, the budget is but a temporary affair and financial difficulties seem inevitable for the future unless the entire set-up of municipal operations and financing are reorganized.

One step favored by the new administration at the City Hall is the establishment of regional governments which should increase the efficiency of the public services and lower their costs. Another is an increase in the municipal share of the tax dollar collected by Quebec.

However, these are for the future, and the Council deserves praise for the manner in which it plans to handle the actual situation.

Girls better drivers

Take it from 2,355 driver education instructors in 600 high schools across the United States: Girls are catching up to boys in being better drivers.

As part of its review of driver education, Chrysler Corporation asked instructors to rate their young male and female pupils. Despite boys having head starts because of earlier interest in cars and things mechanical, girls achieve driver-safety equality by the end of the courses taken by high school students.

The boys still hold a slight edge in the eyes of instructors — 52 per cent to 48 per cent — but instructors report girls accept instruction more seriously and are more eager to learn.

Continentalwide, according to highway safety authorities and others involved in driver safety, youngsters who take driver education courses have fewer violations and fewer accidents, both sexes included.

With 20 per cent of North American drivers in the teenage bracket, it is good to know the girls are pushing the boys in the right direction — toward safety.

Our column

by Mary Jean Bean

The twentieth century's greatest contribution to history may lie in the growing emphasis on scientific study of childhood. Although there always have been discerning parents and educators who recognized the unique character of the child, their ideals and teachings have been largely ignored and submerged by the majority who persisted in regarding the child as an adult in miniature and were over-anxious to mold him according to adult standards.

The relatively new science of psychoanalysis has revealed the importance of the unconscious mind and its influence on the development of the child. Elizabeth Lawrence, in her book, The Origins and Growth of Modern Education, observes, "It is being more and more clearly recognized that resistance to learning at the adolescent stage may almost certainly be traced to some form of failure or maltreatment in infancy."

The psychoanalysts, Freud, Jung, and Adler, have emphasized the strength of the inner drives and the effect of inner conflict upon the personality. Their findings have enriched the entire field of psychology and opened new territories to be explored. These studies could well be the means of transforming human character, provided their findings could be utilized constructively in the care and guidance of the young.

This century has witnessed two world wars as well as numerous localized ones, and we live under the threat of a major catastrophe, made possible by our advanced technology, which could wipe us all off the face of the earth. History reveals that none of the countries involved has ever really wanted war, but the irresponsible actions of people in high places, the customary belligerent posturings, gambling on bluffing, with diplomats resorting to dangerous expedients rather than suffer loss of face, have fanned the spark of a minor incident into a mighty conflagration time after time. The study of human personality development and national character has come to be of the utmost importance.

In 1952 UNESCO held the Regional Conference on Education and the Mental Health of Children in Europe in Paris. Its purpose was to study the effect on mental health and development of the changing values of society which resulted from two world wars, and to seek for means of solving the problems in education. From this conference, Dr. W.D. Wall developed his book, Education and Mental Health. Putting the question of education into a setting of world affairs, he wrote:

"International tensions, like tensions between individuals, do not arise solely from rational causes. They are coloured by, and indeed may sometimes spring from deep, unconscious feelings of insecurity, and from maladjustments and hostilities in the lives of the men and women who constitute nations and the leaders of nations."

The family, the school, the community, the nation, are aggregates of individual, whose behaviour and attitudes are influenced by unconscious elements and by the interplay of personalities in ways as yet obscurely known.

Anything therefore which contributes to the healthy emotional development of human personality, which frees men's minds from prejudice and from fear, is a direct contribution to the maintenance of peace.

WASHINGTON — The question of what to do about American passenger railroads is still very much on the Administration's mind. There is no doubt that the railroads are losing money on passenger business. If they had their druthers, they would just stay with freight. At the same time, the public's need for passenger trains, particularly commuter trains, is great.

What is the solution? Professor Heinrich Applebaum, who holds the Casey Jones chair of railroad philosophy at Pullman University, has come up with a radical idea that could save both the railroads and the needed passenger service.

Prof. Applebaum says the solution to the problem can be found in large aluminum containers which are now being used for freight.

These containers are placed on trains already packed, and unloaded the same way. This saves companies money in freight handling, loss due to pilferage and breakage, and also saves time.

Applebaum claims there is no reason you can't use the same containers for people.

This is how it would operate: Let us assume that 150 people are going to take the 7:30 a.m. from Greenwich, Connecticut. When they arrived at the platform, they would be placed horizontally in the containers. (This would give everyone an extra hour's sleep to New York.) The container would be insulated as well as air-conditioned.

When everyone was squeezed in the container it would be sealed. Then a freight train going through Greenwich would stop and the container would be hoisted on board a flatcar.

The same thing would happen all along the way. Commuters in containers at Portchester, Rye and Larchmont would all be waiting to be picked up by the freight train.

When the train arrived at Grand Central Station, the containers would be taken off by cranes and opened on the platform, and everyone could go to work.

The reverse would happen in the evening, Applebaum said, except in this case, to break the monotony, the commuters would be loaded in vertically.

The beauty of the plan, says Applebaum, is that by using containers, railroads could cut the cost of a ticket from Greenwich to New York by $3.50.

They could also profit by the fact that they would not have to build new passenger trains, and they could eliminate the bar cars.

Psychologically, they wouldn't have to worry about customer relations, as the commuter service would be run by the freight department.

The big advantage of this is that once the railroads were able to legitimately treat passengers as freight, they would improve their service rather than try to discourage people from using the railroads.

Applebaum says that, at the moment, the container idea would only be practical on short runs, but he felt that as time went on a method could be developed for long runs to freeze people in refrigerator cars and then thaw them out when they reach their destinations.

The Department of Transportation, which is trying to find a solution to the passenger train problem, has expressed great interest in the Applebaum plan. A spokesman for the department said:

"If nothing else, it could save the Penn Central Railroad."

Care needed in choosing toys

OTTAWA (CP) — Toys are tokens of love and should be chosen with care, the federal consumer affairs department says in a consumer release.

It outlines points for parents to consider in choosing children's toys, mentioning first that a toy should suit a child's age and ability.

"Toys that are too complicated for the child's stage of growth may be disappointing," the release says.

"Parents should keep toys for older children away from infants. Even some toys for older children, like chemistry sets and wood-etching sets, should have some parental supervision at first."

A toy's durability is important. Some toys are going to be chewed, dropped or banged about and they should be made to take punishment.

Toys are often a part of a world of make-believe, colorful and simple things will sometimes open up a delightful world of play and fantasy.

Children learn about colors from toys. They also learn how things fit together. So attractive colors and good design will give children some appreciation of artistic harmony.

Toys should function properly or the child will become frustrated.

AIM FOR QUALITY

Careful shopping for toys is sensible, since prices often vary from store to store. Also, children should not be overloaded with toys. It is better to select a few toys of high quality which are not necessarily expensive than provide a large "hit-or-miss" collection.

A toy that can maim a child is a disaster. Common sense in avoiding this danger is vital, but some hazardous qualities are hard for a parent to detect.

To try to deal with this problem, the government recently issued regulations prohibiting the sale of toys with excessively dangerous features. For example, any toy which might contain a poisonous substance is banned.

More detailed information about toys is contained in a booklet called Toys: A Guide for Consumers. It was written by the Canadian Toy Testing Council whose chairman is Mrs. A. B. R. Lawrence of Ottawa, wife of the Ontario minister of financial and commercial affairs.

The booklet, published by the consumer affairs department, describes several hundred toys tested by the council, a volunteer group of Ottawa women who select potentially good toys each year at the manufacturers' toy fair in Montreal and test them in use in homes and nursery schools before making a report on them.

The booklet is available from Information Canada, Ottawa, or from government bookshops in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver for $1.

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

TEL AVIV — Six months ago, he would have made anyone with a long enough memory think of Tyrone Power, brought back to life and made young again. He looks older now, however, and this is hardly surprising.

David — which is not his real name — is a leading Phantom pilot in the Israeli air force. He is as cheerful, as dashing, as proud of his plane and his men as he was when this reporter first encountered him. But since then, he has been through enough to put a line or two in most men's faces.

In mid-July, on a mission over Egypt, his Phantom took a hit from one of the Russian-operated SAM-3 missiles. He explains, coolly and professionally, that it was really his own fault.

"The thing is," he says, "that the SAM-3 is a lot smaller than the SAM-2, and that made me misjudge how far it was from me. With both of them, you have to wait until just the right moment to take evasive action."

"If you get it just right, they can't turn fast enough to get you. But I didn't get it just right, so it got me."

That meant that one side of David's plane was raked, from stem to stern, with a good half of the SAM-3s warhead of 50 kilos of small cubes of steel shrapnel. "It was lucky," he remarks simply, "that it wasn't a SAM-2. Their warheads weigh 2000 kilos. Both the Phantom's engines burst into flames and all but one hydraulic system went out for good."

Yet, by a near-miracle, David and his navigator Shlomo — which is another make-up name — had been barely grazed. One engine was not burning very fiercely, Shlomo, "the best navigator in our air force," coolly announced, "You have nothing on your tail." And with the one engine that was "only burning a little," David made it back to an airfield in the Sinai Desert.

Most air forces would give an air crew a month's rest after that kind of experience. But on July 31, there was a mission to attack a radar station at the head of the Gulf of Suez, for which particularly experienced pilots were wanted. In fact, David and the three other pilots of the lead-flight already had a total of more than 50 MIG-21s to their credit.

Experienced pilots were wanted because Russian-flown MIGs had already begun to challenge combat along the Suez Canal. They were expected to do it again this time, and so it turned out.

The two flights of Israelis were met, first of all, by two flights of Russians. These were then reinforced by two further flights, of Russians, so there were 24 planes in all — eight Israeli and 16 Russian — in the confused but ferocious dogfight that ensued. David is just a mite patronizing about the whole thing.

"The Russians," he says, "did some quite nice maneuvers, but they were not efficient. It was just like fighting Egyptians, except they took a little longer to break and run. As it was, we got four, and lost none. If they had waited longer, we would have got more."

Such, then is the story of the 12 days that have put a line or two in David's handsome face. More significantly, it is also the story of a very grim new precedent. Not a few Russian advisers have been killed in Egypt. But before July 31, on the eve of the cease-fire, no Russian in uniform had been killed in active and intentional combat beyond the borders of the Soviet empire since the end of World War II.

In isolation, the story makes you remember David and Goliath. Alas, however, the analogy of David and Goliath cannot apply in the long run.

A well-aimed slingstone cannot bring down the whole might of the Soviet Union, in other words. Yet that might has been and is being increasingly committed against little Israel. The combat on July 31 was another particularly grave stage in the commitment process. And if Israel is to survive, this is a matter for Americans to ponder.

Bruin centre gets help from friends

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Sports figures are a superstitious lot.

You wouldn't mention to a pitcher that he had a no-hitter going, would you?

Well, don't ask Boston head coach Tom Johnson about the current hot streak of Bruins centre Phil Esposito.

Johnson, whose club has a rest until it takes on Buffalo Sabres in Boston Thursday, was less reticent about some of his other players — notably Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman, Esposito's wings.

"It's the play of Cashman and Hodge that's helping Esposito. They have been able to dig the pucks out of the corners to set up Phil for all those goals. The line has been working very well."

Johnson said one reason the Bruins are atop the Eastern Division standings is the play of Ted Green, back in harness with a plate in his head after near-fatal injuries in an exhibition game in 1969.

"Teddy Green is very, very close to the Teddy Green of old," Johnson said.

"He has made a remarkable recovery. As a matter of fact, he is much further advanced than I ever expected him to be at this stage."

Saints miracle man

SEASON HIGHLIGHT — Regardless of where New Orleans Saints finish in the National Football League standings, their place kicker, Tom Dempsey, has already contributed one of the season's highlights with his 63-yard field goal against Detroit Lions Nov. 8. The special shoe Dempsey wears on his maligned kicking foot has been approved by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle after a protest by Dallas Cowboy owner Tex Schramm.

Shrewd draft choices land coast expansionists in fourth

By MICHAEL BENNETT
VANCOUVER (CP) — "I wouldn't trade him even up, his 20 for my 20."

That was general manager Bud Poile's comment on Vancouver Canucks-Buffalo Sabres expansion draft debate last June.

Today, with the upstart Canucks clinging stubbornly to fourth place in the stacked East Division of the National Hockey League and Buffalo scrambling to get out of the cellar, Punch Imlach probably couldn't make the deal if he threw in a lease on Niagara Falls.

"Our guys are nine feet tall today," says Poile, "but it doesn't take long to get cut down to size in this league."

"We can't get a balloon in our heads."

The Canucks are an NHL Cinderella story—both on and off the ice—at a time when the league governors are still experiencing growing pains in Oakland, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, three of the cities which received franchises in 1967 when Vancouver was passed over.

Four players considered expendable last summer—Andre Boudrias, Orland Kurtenbach, Wayne Maki and Murray Hall—are among the top 20 scorers.

Charter flights bring in fans from all parts of British Columbia and as far east as Winnipeg.

"There's no way anyone can look at the standings now and say we were out-drafted," says Canucks coach Hal Laycoe, whose only goal now and at the start of the season was to win the next game.

"On short notice, Bud put together an unbelievable crew. When I was with Los Angeles, my leading scorer had 42 points the year before and I had to assume I was going to have similar personnel in Vancouver."

"If we continue the way we are, we have three or four players who'll top that halfway through the season."

For Laycoe, necessity has been the mother of invention, especially on Boudrias's line. When Ted Taylor walked out of camp last fall, defenceman Poul Popiel moved up to left wing alongside Boudrias and Rosaire Pailment. He stayed there, leaving Taylor with the "black aces," the bench strength, when he returned last month.

Despite the Canucks success, Poile worries a lot about slumps, their goals-against average and the number of power-play goals given up.

"I haven't changed my thinking from before the start of the season," said Poile. "The only way we're going to make the playoffs is to keep our goals-against average at three or below."

...TED ANDERSON

With Sunday's loss to Drummondville Rangers, Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League have now lost five in a row. The question now is just what is wrong with the team? Since way back on Oct. 22 when they lost 8-2 to Quebec City Ramparts, the Beavers have not been showing anything like the squad that started off the season so well.

Where is the desire the club showed in the first three or four games? Some people are saying, and it may be true, that the team is taking too many cheap and unnecessary penalties, throwing a heavy load on the goaltending and defence. There is also a noticeable lack of backchecking, which is a must for the forwards. It's not too late to tighten up in all departments, but it means every man on the club will have to pull his weight.

Shawinigan Penguins, formerly Bruins, missed a chance to hold down second spot in the QJHL standings when Three Rivers Dukes lost to Quebec over the weekend. The Penguins are still in good shape, as they have two games in hand over the Dukes. Beavers and St. Jerome Alouettes are still locked in third spot. St. Jerome has played one game fewer than the Sherbrooke side, but this won't stand up long if the Beavers don't hit the winning stride again soon.

Well, it seems Bruce Cline of the Rangers has stepped down from his post as coach. He's been having his troubles since the season started. Gerard Bantam Paquin has taken over the coaching job. We understand Bruce was offered another job in the Drummondville organization but turned it down. New coach Paquin was pretty active in the now-defunct Quebec Provincial Senior League.

University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold, although they lost two or three players, came up with two victories over the weekend. The big 12-7 win over University of Quebec at Three Rivers Patriots Friday night last was a great team effort, and the close 5-4 win over Sir George Williams University Georgians Saturday showed the club is giving coach Tony Heffernan results. Daniel Bouillon, Yvon Robert and Normand Delisle were the big men in the two weekend wins.

Vancouver Canucks are showing they belong in National Hockey League and, by holding down fourth place in the East Division, have surprised to say the least — a good many hockey moguls. In Wayne Maki, Orland Kurtenbach and Murray Hall, the Canucks have a trio leading the way, but the team is not relying solely on these big guns. Their current rate of production would result in 20-goal seasons for both Andre Boudrias and Mike Corrigan. The Canucks possess six players who could conceivably finish the 1970-71 NHL campaign with 20 markers.

National Hockey League telecasts on the American Columbia Broadcasting System network start Sunday, Jan. 10. Never mind, you housewives, perhaps you'll get a second TV for Christmas. Why not give the old man a hint?

Len O'Donnell, secretary of the local race track, is now in Toronto attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Trotting Association. All race tracks across the country are represented, so it should be quite a session.

Sher-Lenn Little League baseball officials were a bit disappointed in the lack of interest shown by the city council in preparing a local field to play host to the 1971 Quebec and Maritime championship tournaments. The awarding of the tournaments to Sherbrooke was supposedly sure thing, but the unavailability of a suitable park necessitated the informing of eastern Canadian Little League director Jim Wilson of Montreal that the Sher-Lenn Little League would have to bypass the venture this time out. Perhaps by the time the league is ready to enter another bid, an adequate park will be available.

It's no secret that National Football League scouts are casting a covetous eye towards Montreal Alouettes' Moses Denson, the man described by Calgary Stampeder coach Jim Duncan as the best halfback in Canada. One report has it that New York Giants are waving a two-year, $80,000 contract at the starry runner for the Canadian Football champion Alouettes.

Top draft pick shows Toronto why

By IAN MACLAINE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't look for the name of Greg Polis in this year's National Hockey League Guide, but coach Red Kelly has high hopes for the Pittsburgh Penguins' No. 1 draft pick.

"He's from the open air country and he has done it all like Gordie," said Kelly recently of his prize rookie while comparing him in some respects to Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' 25-year veteran and a one-time Kelly team-mate.

"When Howe came up to the NHL he was the kind of guy who had sharpened skates, and things like that. Greg reminds me of him in that way."

Polis had his biggest night in the big league at home Tuesday night as the Penguins and goaltender Al Smith blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0.

In the only other scheduled game, the surprising Vancouver

Canucks tripped New York 4-1 to halt a Ranger takeover of first in the East Division.

Tonight, Montreal Canadiens are at Toronto, New York is in Los Angeles against the Kings, Buffalo Sabres are at Chicago Black Hawks, California Golden Seals entertain Vancouver at Oakland, Philadelphia Flyers meet the Blues at St. Louis and Pittsburgh goes against Minnesota North Stars at Bloomington, Minn.

HAS GOOD NIGHT

Polis, a 20-year-old rookie who sharpened skates and drove a bus last year while playing with Estevan Bruins of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, scored once and assisted on the first two Penguin goals by Ken Schinkel and Brian Hextall.

Hextall was given credit for the goal but the shot was taken by Polis. It caromed off Hextall's leg behind a beleaguered Jacques Plante in the Toronto goal.

Smith handled 29 shots, including 15 in the second period, in registering his first shutout of the season at the expense of his former team-mates.

In Vancouver, Mike Corrigan opened and closed the scoring as the Canucks padded their hold on fourth place with 25 points in the East and moved to within three points of third-place Montreal. The Rangers held second with 36, one behind leading Boston Bruins.

21 FOR 29

Corrigan, a 24-year-old Ottawa native who never quite fitted into the Toronto system and later failed to catch a regular berth with Los Angeles Kings, now has eight goals and 13 points for the season after 29 games.

In his first solid bid for an NHL berth with the Kings last year, he compiled six goals and four assists in 36 games.

Wayne Maki's 12th goal of the year in the first period proved the winner in front of 15,569 fans after New York's Dave Balon had replied to Corrigan's game opener.

All-star dream team walks over Ramparts

QUEBEC (SA) — The Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League All-Stars did what has been done only twice this season in beating Quebec City Ramparts 7-2 last night.

Six different players scored the All-Star goals against the league-leading Ramparts, winners of 23 of 25 regular season outings. The Ramparts hold a 13-point bulge over second place Three Rivers Dukes.

Hope for solution to olympic troubles

LONDON (AP) — Vital meetings to thrash out the future of the Winter Olympics, and the Olympic Games in general, will be held in London next month.

A spokesman for the International Olympic Committee said Tuesday: "The meetings are essential. We want to work out problems involved. We want to hear all viewpoints."

The future of the Winter Olympics, due to be held in Sapporo, Japan, in 1972, has been under a shadow since the 1968 Games in Grenoble, France.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, demanded that skis would not carry manufacturers' names. At one stage the International Ski Federation appeared to agree. Then FIS said this was impossible because such a removal of names could upset the balance of the skis.

WITHSTANDING THE PRESSURE — Bishop's College School, light sweaters, withstood late pressure from Alexander Galt

Regional High School in senior hockey play last night and captured a 3-2 decision. (Record Photo Service: S. Abbott)

Name change no help as BCS downs Pipers

LENNOXVILLE (SA) — Bishop's College School manufactured a 2-0 second period lead and hung on to defeat Alexander Galt Regional High Pipers 3-2 in Eastern Townships Interscholastic Athletic Association senior hockey action last night.

John McRae narrowed the BCS lead to 2-1 at 3:45 of the final stanza, but David Barden re-established the home side's two goal advantage with a tally little more than a minute later.

Bob Ditchburn's marker on a blazing shot from the left wing at 14:20 put Alexander Galt in position to try for the equalizer, but the pressure the Pipers applied was not enough.

It was the Bishop's squad which had the top two scoring chances of the final minutes. On the second occasion, an open net beckoned, but the shot was wide.

Bob Sewell scored in the third minute of the contest to deflate somewhat an AGRHS squad that came out for the opening faceoff flying.

Michael Dixon of BCS counted the only goal of the middle session.

Lawn tennis crisis averted

PARIS (Reuter) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation announced Tuesday it has settled its dispute with 32 of the world's top professionals and said the pros would play in the French, Wimbledon and United States open tournaments next year.

The pros, under contract to the Dallas-based World Championship Tennis, had precipitated a near crisis in international tennis by threatening to boycott the major championships and other top events next year to play in their own 20-tournament circuit.

Quebec colleges band together

By SCOTT ABBOTT
MONTREAL — Athletic director Doug Insley of Sir George Williams University announced yesterday the formation of a new collegiate sports union to be known as the Quebec University Athletic Association.

new QUAA has been forthcoming from McGill, however, despite the efforts of QUAA organizers, including Bruce Coulter of Bishop's University of Lennoxville, to secure the participation of McGill.

Coulter, athletic director at Bishop's, released to The Record some weeks ago the text of a letter sent to Dr. Robert E. Bell, principal of McGill, urging the Montreal university to take advantage of the opportunity presented by the new QUAA.

The letter read, in part: "The elimination of Intercollegiate Athletics at McGill has caused a great deal of concern for all the Universities and Colleges of Quebec.

"It has been particularly disheartening because most of us, in the past, have looked to your fine University for leadership and guidance. The tradition of excellence at McGill has always been a source of inspiration.

"The idea for this letter, sir, is not an original one, but a unanimous request from Athletic Directors of all the Institutions in Quebec. It is our hope that you will allow your very fine Director of Athletics, Mr. Harry Griffiths, to leave the door open for possible inclusion in our new Association."

McGill is now searching for the funds to permit participation in the new league.

The new league, to operate for the first time in the 1971-72 academic year, comprises "11 or 12" schools and will replace the Ottawa St. Lawrence Athletic Association. All Quebec universities and colleges with the exception of McGill University have indicated a firm interest in competing in the new federation. Royal Military College of Kingston, Ont., will also compete.

Competition in the first year will consist of such sports as hockey, wrestling, tennis, and basketball. There will be no QUAA football in 1971.

McGill, which recently announced the abandonment of its intercollegiate athletic program effective next year, had communicated a desire to participate in a league which would not entail the travel expenses of the school's present conference, the Ontario Quebec Athletic Association, and which would present the maximum amount of exposure to Quebec's French-language schools.

Committee aims at early cancer detection

A special medical committee composed of cytologists, gynecologists and doctors specialized in medical statistics has just been set up by the department of Health and Welfare to prepare a provincial program of diagnostic of cancer of the cervix.

The announcement was made by Dr. Jacques Brunet, Deputy Minister of Health, who was addressing the delegates of the Quebec Division of the Canadian Cancer Society at their annual meeting.

Despite the latest progress in the techniques of diagnosis of cancer, the number of cytological tests made throughout the province to discover cancer of the cervix is not sufficient, said the Deputy Minister. Actually, the department of Health is not even assured of reaching the population where the risk is higher.

"These facts have convinced us of the absolute necessity of setting up, in the province of Quebec, a systematic method of diagnosis," said Dr. Brunet, announcing the setting up of this special medical committee.

Among the patients hospitalized in the province of Quebec during 1968, there were 1951 cases of cancer of the cervix representing a great total of 42,423 hospital days. During that same year, 200 Quebec women have died of this type of cancer.

However, the cytodiagnosis method applied systematically is, according to Dr. Brunet, a very effective weapon for early diagnosis of this disease. Therefore, said the Deputy Minister of Health, the number of cytological tests in the province must be increased if we want to fight effectively the death rate due to cancer of the cervix.

This new programme is aimed primarily at women who are more exposed because of their age, their economical and gynecological background.

The benefits of the cancer crusade have been proven long ago, said Dr. Brunet. As a matter of fact, says the Deputy Minister, an American health organization has shown that every dollar invested in the fight against cancer of the cervix will earn $9 to the public, not only in lives that have been saved, but also in savings of medical and hospital cost.

The Quebec department of Health and Welfare is counting on the co-operation to the Canadian Cancer Society in the application of its prevention campaign of cancer of the cervix, added the speaker.

Silver wedding anniversary

ROCK ISLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Whitehouse were guests of honor at a surprise reception in the lounge of the Royal Canadian Legion Home in Stanstead, on Nov. 28th, their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson presented them with a corsage of pink and white variegated carnations and a white carnation boutonniere, gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Cairns. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson escorted Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse to a table as everyone sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Seated with the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, and the Whitehouse family, Michael, Donna Marie and Timmy and Miss Diane Wilson. They formed a receiving line where Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse were extended good wishes.

Arthur (Scully) Langevin was emcee. In his remarks he mentioned Don coming home from overseas with the Canadian army boys, followed soon by his marriage to Mary Locke at St. Catharines, Ont., on Nov. 24, 1945. Eventually Don entered the civil service and became a Customs officer at Rock Island Port where he is now a superintendent. They have been residents in Rock Island for nearly 25 years. He mentioned the affliction of Mary who a few years ago lost her eyesight and of the fact that Don is always beside her to guide her as are their family. Mary has accepted her handicap and can do amazing things without sight.

Others to speak were Oscar Palmer, Collector of Customs, Rock Island, Robert Johnson of Hatley, who was having his 23rd birthday and everyone sang the birthday song; Ashford Stewart of Sherbrooke who spoke on behalf of the Canadian Legion, Mrs. Jack Heald and Lawrence Johnson.

The piano music was played by Mrs. Evelyn Dority of Newport. A pleasant evening was spent dancing and chatting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Jack Heald. The head table was arranged with an ecru lace cover centered with a triple-tiered anniversary cake, made and decorated by Mrs. William Sutor of Milby. It was iced in white with white and pink roses and touches of silver, topped with a silver 25 numeral. It was flanked by pastel toned candles in silver and roses in bud vases.

The reception was arranged by cousins of the couple; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Cairns, Ives Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Hatley; Mr. and Mrs. William Sutor, Milby; assisted by Mrs.

Jack Heald, Rock Island. The Customs and immigration staff and friends in the Boundary areas provided and served the refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse thanked everyone.

Miss Margaret Muir, Richmond, was in charge of the guest book, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Heald. Relatives and friends attended from Ives Hill, Milby, Hatley, Newport, Sherbrooke, Tomifobia, Beebe, Graniteville and Boundary Villages.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse received congratulatory cards, gifts of money and silver.

On their anniversary they received a phone call from their elder daughter, Mrs. David Mayhew and Mr. Mayhew in St. Catharines, Ont., who were unable to attend.

The couple have four children, Janey, (Mrs. Mayhew) Michael, Donna Marie and Timmy, a son-in-law, David Mayhew and three grandchildren.

When you use two-clubs as your only forcing opening, you release the other suit two-bids for other purposes. Expert practice is to use them to show a good suit and a hand just below an opening one-bid in high-card strength. In other words, the sort of hand that you would pass if not using weak two-bids.

There is danger in passing a hand such as South held today. You are likely to be doubled if and when you back in. If you open with two spades, you aren't likely to get into trouble, provided your partner understands your bid.

In JACOBY MODERN, the weak two-bid shows 7-10 high-card points and a six-card suit headed by at least two of the four top honors. It also shows fairly balanced distribution, so that South has a classic two-spade opening.

West would like to act over that bid but can't afford to. Not that he can't make three hearts, but his partner will raise him to four. If he makes a take-out double, he fears that his partner will have to respond in a minor suit, so West passes. North is tempted to make some move but decides that his 11 high-card points and three trumps won't be enough for a spade game.

Against reasonable defense, South makes exactly two spades. He loses one trump, one heart, one club and two diamonds and winds up with a nice part score.

If South passes his hand, West will open with one heart. The hand will probably wind up with East and West playing and making three hearts, or with South going set at three spades.

The United Church Choir was also represented in the choir.

Wickenden, (sister Annie) of Three Rivers, Que.; Mrs. H. W. Shirreffs, (sister-in-law) of Bronxville, N.Y., several nieces, nephews and other relatives and friends.
