LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Cey slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run as Los Angeles Dodgers edged New York Yankees 4-3 on Wednesday to take a 2-0 lead in baseball's 75th World Series.

The best-of-seven series now moves to New York, where Don Sutton will pitch for Los Angeles against New York ace Ron Guidry in the third game on Friday night.

The Los Angeles come-from-behind victory was preserved by rookie pitcher Bob Welch, who replaced reliever Terry Forster in the ninth inning with one out and runners on first and second.

Welch got Thurman Munson on a soft liner to right field for the second out and then ended the game by getting Reggie Jackson, who had driven in all three Yankee runs, to strike out on a 3-2 pitch.

Cey drove in the first Los Angeles run with a fourth-inning single and then turned the game around in his next at-bat in the sixth. He powered a Catfish Hunter pitch into the left-centrefield seats with two men on base.

Cey's three-run homer in the sixth put the Dodgers ahead 4-2, but the Yankees came back in the seventh inning. Roy White's second hit of the game pushed Los Angeles starter Burt Hooton out of the game and Forster was brought in from the bullpen.

PQ 'seeking mandate'

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque told the Quebec national assembly Wednesday that his government will seek a mandate in the promised referendum to negotiate sovereignty-association with the rest of Canada.

The clarification that the referendum would only give Quebec the go-ahead to negotiate, rather than a clear mandate for sovereignty-association, came one day after Levesque laid out the basics of his party's option.

He added that even though opposition to the PQ program from the federal government and the other provinces has been constant, he is confident the rest of Canada will eventually be ready to negotiate.

If Quebec makes a democratic decision, he said, English Canada will have no choice but to negotiate.

The premier's statement sparked Liberal house leader Gerard Levesque to ask whether a second referendum dealing with the actual declaration of independence would follow.

Levesque refused to be pinned down on this possibility, saying "that doesn't seem to be one of the questions we have to answer at this point."

Opinion polls have indicated that support for sovereignty-association among Quebec voters does not exceed 30 per cent, while most voters would favor negotiation of a new deal within Confederation.

Levesque's approach appears to be an attempt to go down the middle, trying to retain the support of Quebecers who favor independence, while also attracting those who want to negotiate constitutional change.

He told the assembly Tuesday that Quebec would seek a common currency under the new constitutional deal and there would be a joint central bank.

There would be no Quebec passport and no Quebec customs duties on goods shipped within the associated states of Canada and Quebec, allowing the existing flow of goods and people to continue.

"If Quebec decides to stay in the Canadian federation, all discussion on the program of economic association as conceived by the PQ becomes redundant and superfluous," he said. He added that the current federal system already offers an economic union "far more solid and efficient than that dreamed on paper by the PQ."

If Quebec decides to leave Confederation, Ryan said, it must be willing to negotiate economic association on a new basis, without any guarantee it will be accepted by the other provinces.

ASK AUTHORITIES

The voice asked authorities to give the kidnappers the time they requested—1½ to three hours from the time the $500,000 ransom was to be dropped off to the time Marion would be released.

"I have a great deal of confidence in my kidnappers," the voice said. "They assure me that they'll keep me alive if you act as they have requested."

"Do what they tell you and my Calvary will come to an end."

The second tape began: "My dear friends, to you my dear wife, my children, Pierre, my Roseline, I love you so much—I want to see you again."

"I am certain I won't be the only one killed in the province if plans aren't carried out as they should be," the recording continues.

"I'm sure I'm on the verge of having a nervous breakdown. I am at the end. My morale is at ground level. This must end quickly."

The recordings were entered as evidence as provincial police technical expert Cpl. Yvon Desbiens read through the communications that had been given to him to authenticate during Marion's disappearance for 82 days from Aug. 6 to Oct. 27 last year.

When the hearing was adjourned Wednesday, 18 of the messages from the presumed kidnappers and numerous accompanying letters and photographs had been placed before the jury.

The last communiqué discussed, dated Sept. 7, was addressed to Sherbrooke television reporter Normand Maltais and Montreal radio reporter Claude Poirier. It described an attempted ransom exchange and claimed police "organized the biggest frame-up imaginable."

"You (Maltais and Poirier) kept your word," the message said, but the "so-called (police) force de frappe from Montreal was called in and was right on your heels...with their lights out."

It added Maltais and Poirier could have been cut down in a cross fire if the kidnappers had decided to shoot "but we kept our word, we told you nothing would happen to you."

Earlier communiques threatening the lives of credit union employees, clients, their families and friends had been read to the seven-woman five-man jury.

OTTAWA PLOTS MAIL STRATEGY

OTTAWA (CP) — A special cabinet committee met Wednesday to plot the government's next move in its bitter contract dispute with the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, which has threatened a strike Monday.

Bill Kelly, the federal labor department's top mediator and a key figure in the post office's recent settlement with the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, was among those attending the government's strategy meeting.

Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne was non-committal as he entered the meeting.

"We are discussing the whole situation," It is expected that recommendations from the meeting will be presented to the full cabinet today.

Lamontagne indicated in the Commons Tuesday that the government will seek back-to-work legislation if a settlement cannot be reached. But first, the government will try for a resumption of negotiations.

The union, now conducting a national strike vote, asked for the appointment of a new mediator. A strike was threatened for Monday if no progress was made.

Union anger flared Wednesday with the appearance of newspaper advertisements presenting the post office version of negotiations to date. The advertisements, based on the union's opening demands 18 months ago, claimed the cost of CUPW proposals would amount to $11 an hour.

The headline on the post office advertisements, that appeared in daily newspapers across the country, was "It's your Money."

The advertisements, Lamontagne said Tuesday, cost half-a-cent for every taxpayer.

31 evicted by Gables closure

By TERRY SCOTT
COWANSVILLE — 31 elderly residents of the Pine Gables Nursing Home have been forced to find new accommodations immediately after the ministry of social affairs advised them of its closure yesterday.

"We were requested by the owners of Pine Gables last weekend to intervene on their behalf because the nursing home was on the verge of bankruptcy," an attache to social affairs minister Denis Lazure told The Record in a telephone interview.

The nursing home, located at 455 Bell Street, cares for both ambulatory and semi-invalid patients.

The closure came one day after 20 residents, most of them invalids, were ousted from 'Residence sous les arbres' in Chateauguay, a nursing home owned by the same company which is headed by Jean Gagnon, a Montreal lawyer, and Charles E. Campeau, a Montreal architect.

Neither could be reached for comment yesterday, but the Social Affairs spokesman confirmed that the poor financial state of the homes is the reason for the decision. "Their current bank threatened to petition them into bankruptcy and then they went to an American bank looking for funds and were refused. That's when they realized it was time to close."

According to records at city hall in Cowansville, the group has owned Pine Gables since 1976.

Many of the nursing home staff are still owed several weeks' back pay as the result of the company's financial position.

COWANSVILLE — In the midst of the chaos at the Pine Gables nursing home yesterday, the kitchen staff were bustling feverishly to prepare a mid-day meal.

For the residents still awaiting word on their next home, it was to bear all the significance of the Last Supper and most of the faces reflected the trauma.

While some sat around reminiscing about warm friendships that would soon be cooler than last week's ashes, others paced the familiar corridors and fought back the tears.

"A lot of the people here were born and raised in the Townships," said one woman, and for some of them the closing means they'll have to relocate in an area unfamiliar to them."

In a room not far from the kitchen table, directrice Monique Tremblay, who had given so much to the nursing home, restrained her frustrations and continued the last-minute placement of her loved ones. For the umpteenth time, the calm, deliberate voice of social affairs ministry representative Andre Beaudoin patiently explained to a family member that his department was only an innocent bystander to the closure and he had ar-

Do-nothing Throne speech rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — The government throne speech Wednesday offered a platter of economic and constitutional reform the opposition said was lukewarm at best.

Only moments after Gov. Gen. Jules Leger and his wife Gaby finished reading the throne speech opening the fourth and final session of the 30th Parliament, opposition leaders denounced the government for failing to deal with Canada's financial woes.

The measures the government promised to use to ease economic problems had all been announced by ministers earlier this year and were criticized by the opposition as insufficient.

The government also re-committed itself to carry out constitutional reform begun in June by revising its proposals. But it did not indicate the extent of the changes.

The throne speech, read amid traditional pomp and ceremony to MPs and senators in the redcarpeted Senate chamber, pledged to "strengthen Canada through unity, to unify Canada through economic strength." "Seldom in the past have the seriousness of the challenge, the strength of our national will and the scope of our opportunities combined to create for Canada a moment in history so full of potential for good," said the speech, written under the direction of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark and Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, were less enthusiastic about Canada's potential after hearing the government's intentions.

"What disappoints me is there is no indication of anything new, certainly nothing to merit an eight-month delay before a general election," Clark told reporters.

Broadbent said the speech should have promised economic stimulation, including tax cuts and promotion of house construction.

Neither expected the speech to have significant impact on 15 federal byelections Monday.

Clark and his party's constitutional critic, Flora MacDonald (Kingston and The Islands) said they were pleased the government appears willing to revise the constitution in one stage rather than in two steps.

RYAN: 'COLOSSAL DUPLICITY'

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque's statement that the Parti Quebecois government would negotiate political sovereignty and economic association for Quebec concurrently is "colossal duplicity," Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan said Wednesday.

Ryan made the comments during a news conference called to announce the official launching of the Quebec Liberal party's 1978 fund-raising campaign, which aims to collect $1.25 million by Nov. 17.

Ryan said Quebec has only two choices—to stay in Confederation or leave it.

Valence trial hears ransom recordings

MONTREAL (CP) — In spite of numerous objections from the defence on points of law, two cassette tape recordings that accompanied written communiques from the alleged kidnappers of Charles Marion were allowed into evidence Wednesday in the trial of Claude and Jeanne Valence.

The Valences are charged with conspiring to kidnap Marion, kidnapping, forcible detention, attempted exortion and extortion. The recordings were played over courtroom loudspeakers and terminated with a voice repeating the name Charles Marion—a credit union employee—seven times.

The voice on the first tape said it was recorded Sept. 16, 1977, at an unknown place. The second tape allegedly was recorded Sept. 21, 46 days after Marion's disappearance.

Alleged communiques already in evidence have indicated lengthy negotiations between the kidnappers and credit union officials over ransom and exchange procedures.

Mexican airlines cancel flights

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's two major airlines—Aeromexico and Mexicana—cancelled 80 per cent of their flights Tuesday so foreign airlines could operate normally on the sixth day of a strike by the country's air traffic controllers.

A government source said President Lopez Portillo met with two cabinet ministers to discuss ways to end the strike, which has paralysed airline service and disrupted Mexico's tourism industry.

Only 10 of 36 airports were open. The government banned take-offs and landings between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. The walkout, similar to one staged last month, was called to protest the government's attempt to make the 900 commercial controllers join a new organization and sign individual contracts that would reduce salaries and fringe benefits.

Only 65 qualified controllers were manning the country's airport control towers Tuesday.

Hydro bills unpaid

QUEBEC (CP) — Hydro-Quebec the provincially-owned electrical utility, lost $16.2 million in the last eight years because of unpaid bills, the national assembly has been told.

In a written reply to Fabien Roy (Ind.—Beauce Sud), Energy Minister Guy Joron gave the total for unpaid bills from 1970 to 1977.

The highest total was in 1977, when the utility lost $3.2 million because of unpaid bills.

Hydro-Quebec recently asked the government for substantial rate increases over the next three years.

Chemical stocks pick up

The weakness in the performance of chemical stocks "may not be as dire as some fear," says Marpep Publishing Ltd. in a recent Canadian Business Service Investment Reporter.

The Toronto-based investment company says the move to build huge petrochemical complexes in the oil-producing countries of the Middle East and Latin America has led many investors to shun Canadian chemical stocks. And many brokerage firm analysts now pay them scant attention.

"There's no question that the coming-on-stream of these new sources of production will heighten competition, especially in the more basic chemicals which are not so far removed from the petroleum they come from," Marpep says.

"But the chemical industry is no stranger to boom-and-bust cycles—over the years, many investors have learned they can make money buying shares in this industry, or any other cyclical industry, at the bottom of the cycle when things look bleakest."

The publication says there already is a measure of over-capacity in the chemical industry around the world, which has caused soggy earnings. Producers had felt that demand for their output would continue to grow, Marpep says, and failed to make allowances for the forecast worldwide recession.

"However, the demand picture could brighten considerably between now and the 1980s, when the new plants are due to reach full production."

Dollar drops again

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar continued to drop on international money markets for the second straight day today despite news that inflation eased in September.

At 11 a.m. EDT, the dollar was trading at 84.47 cents U.S., down 7.50¢ from a cent from Tuesday's closing rate of 84.61 cents on the inter-bank wholesale market, where banks trade currencies in huge sums.

September's consumer price index, released in Ottawa today, was 177.5, a decline from August's 177.8.

In the Commons on Tuesday, Finance Minister Jean Chretien fielded opposition questions about the government's handling of the economy, promising he will bring down a new budget in mid-November.

And in Quebec City, provincial Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau gave a tongue-in-cheek admission that the election of the Parti Quebecois government in November, 1976, might have had something to do with the fall of the dollar.

UN tackles sea law

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — It may be in the 1990s—or even closer to the 21st century—before a new regime of international law is finally in place, legalizing the vast mineral wealth hidden in the ocean sediment as part of the common heritage of mankind.

Experts who believe that a comprehensive law of the sea convention still is possible don't dispute the timetable. But they just don't know when it will happen because so many nations still disagree on what they want.

Some negotiators say a draft text serving as the basis for the convention may be completed by 1980. But the signing and ratification of a sea-law convention could take 10 years or more.

Exploitation of the seabed outside national jurisdiction also is a long way off, probably not before 1985 or 1990, even if the United States and others from the European Common Market proceed unilaterally before a sea-law pact.

WORK CONTINUES

The United Nations first tackled the law of the sea 20 years ago. Substantive work began five years ago when the third law of the sea conference was convened. It still is going on.

"We really are close to the end of the road," says Ambassador J. Alan Beesley, veteran Canadian negotiator. "We're either going to be successful or I think governments will lose patience. They'll say it's too expensive, it takes too long, even though if you totalled up the number of months, it's peanuts compared with the disarmament commission meetings in Geneva."

Since the concept of the rich and poor sharing the revenues from deep-sea mining is such a drastic change in the international economic order, it has taken years of work and compromise even to get the broad outline of a seabed plan in document form.

Nothing ever comes easy at sea-law talks because they involve new areas of international law and new ideas ranging from creation of 200-mile economic zones for coastal states to controlling pollution and delimiting maritime boundaries.

Without a seabed convention, the unemployed nickel miner in Sudbury, Ont., would lose because unrestricted new nickel production extracted from the estimated 1.3 trillion tons of manganese nodules would compete against land-based mining. But international control would bring more order to world production to fit in with increased demands while still preserving a role for land-based miners.

GM denies plant switch

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) —

Donald McPherson, president of General Motors of Canada Ltd., has denied that the parent United States firm has decided to shelve a plan to build a $500-million aluminum die-casting plant in Quebec.

Commenting on a Washington report, McPherson said: "We have carefully checked all responsible parties at GM corporate head office in Detroit as recently as this morning and to the best of our knowledge no further decision on the location of the proposed aluminum foundry has been made."

The Toronto Star, in a front page story yesterday by Washington correspondent Joe Hall, said only a handful of senior GM executives were aware of the decision not to go ahead with the plant.

Both the federal and Quebec governments had offered GM $78 million in subsidies to build the plant in Quebec.

The newspaper quotes reliable but unidentified GM sources as saying the decision has been made not to build the plant.

A GM spokesman here said the need for a third aluminum foundry has "not really been determined." GM already operates two aluminum die-casting plants, in Bedford, Ind., and Messina, N.Y.

The shift to aluminum came about to meet new U.S. regulations to save gasoline by reducing mileage costs per car. One way to cut weight was to add more aluminum lightweight parts to cars.

The GM spokesman here said that "aluminum is an expensive way to get the weight out."

Auto-makers have been investigating other ways of reducing the weight of cars and improving gasoline mileage, including improved lubrication, reducing road friction and better engine efficiency.

"It is possible that emerging technology will eliminate the need for large-scale aluminum castings," the spokesman said.

A few years ago, the U.S. firm began looking at sites for a possible aluminum plant as part of what was described as "on-going surveys."

The spokesman here emphasized that the discussions about Quebec were not proposals to build a plant, but only reviews.

In the U.S., GM has been under pressure to end the international bidding that has taken place between Canada and the U.S. car-plant sites.

A decision to forego a plant in Quebec would be a step in that direction.

Last summer, Ford Motor Co. of Detroit decided to proceed with the building of an engine plant in Windsor, Ont. after being offered $68 million in government subsidies.

CLC: Carr blasts Grit strike stand

TORONTO (CP) — Stripping public employees of the right to strike is a step down the road to dictatorship, says Shirley Carr, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Removing the right to strike from the public sector leads to removing that right from all workers, Mrs. Carr said Monday in an address to the opening session of the United Rubber Workers international convention.

"And when that's done in any country, that is the first step to dictatorship," she said.

She accused Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Treasury Board President Robert Andras of trying to split the Canadian labor movement by setting up different bargaining practices for workers in the public and private sectors.

Unions are the watchdogs of true democracy and they—not corporations or governments—are in the best position to decide whether to withdraw their services once steps in the collective bargaining process have been carried out, said Mrs. Carr.

She criticized efforts by Michelin Tire in Nova Scotia to resist union organizing drives and said she objects to workers being made to feel their employer owns them.

If your Canada Savings Bonds mature this year

Now's the time to reinvest in new Canada Savings Bonds

Here are three easy steps to keep your money working for you.

1 Locate and identify your bonds

Two Series of Canada Savings Bonds mature this Fall:

1969/70 Series (S24) maturing November 1, 1978.

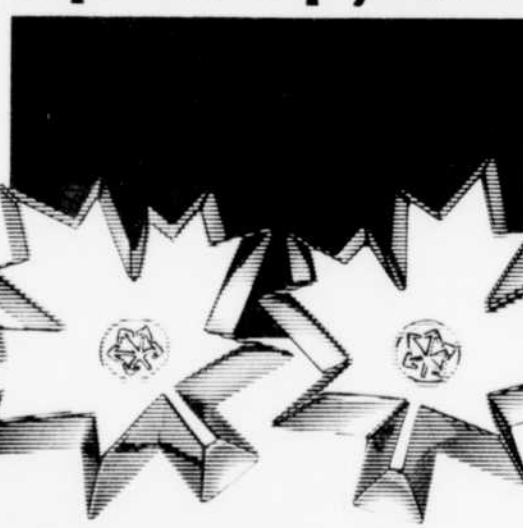

1968 Special Replacement Series (SR) maturing October 1, 1978.

Look for "S24" or "SR" preceding the serial number on the corner of your maturing bonds.

2 Find out the cash value of your bonds

At maturity, every holder of "S24" or "SR" bonds will receive the face value shown on the bond, plus a special cash bonus payment and any interest payable on the bonds.

If you have any questions about the value of your bonds, just ask the people where you bank or invest.

In connection with the redemption of your bonds will be done for you at that time. For "S24" bonds the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1.

In the same transaction, you can sign up for the new 1978/79 Series Canada Savings Bonds. You may reinvest all proceeds from your maturing bonds in the new Series. Also, you may buy an additional amount up to $30,000, the purchase limit of the 1978/79 Series. It's a great way to keep your money working for you!

Act now

There are more than 900,000 Canadians who own maturing bonds. If you are one of them, go to your bank, investment dealer, trust company or credit union and make arrangements to reinvest in the new Canada Savings Bonds. Do it now and avoid the rush!

New Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice

With the new Series, you have a choice of bonds. There's a Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year. And a Compound Interest Bond that reinvests your interest automatically, earning interest on your interest.

The Regular Interest Bond

If you want a regular annual income from your investment, you'll like the Regular Interest Bond which pays interest automatically each November 1.

If you're like many bondholders, you'll appreciate the direct deposit feature. With this convenient option, your interest is deposited directly into your chequing or savings account. Simply ask for it when you buy your new bonds. Or, you can receive your interest by cheque through the mail.

The Compound Interest Bond

If you seek savings growth, or an investment for the future, or a retirement fund, you'll choose the Compound Interest Bond which earns interest on your interest, after the first year, at the guaranteed annual rate of 8.90%. For example, a $100 bond will grow to $181.74 at maturity in just 7 years.

Security and instant cash

Whichever type of bond you choose, you will own a safe, secure investment which can be turned into instant cash whenever you need it.

A good return

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1978 and yield an average annual interest of 8.90% when held to maturity in 1985. Each new bond earns interest of 8.50% the first year and 9% for each of the remaining 6 years.

Buying Canada Savings Bonds has been a great Canadian tradition for over 30 years. They're the proven choice.

Sky divers drop into BU

With all the talk about College Street looking like a battleground, it really came as no surprise yesterday when three paratroopers descended on the Bishop's campus. It was not a re-creation of the D-Day invasion or the World War II Arnhem drop, but rather a prelude to a course on parachute jumping organized through Champlain College animator Roger Cote.

The jump, intended as a splashy ad for the course session, was led by skydiving vet Rene Presse. Presse, 23, of Richmond, has done the exercise for over three years with about 600 jumps to his credit. He was joined in yesterday's outing by confreres Guy Comeau and Paul Le-Violette.

The trio began circling the campus around 12:30 before the watchful eyes of approximately 70 spectators who were drawn to the jump site by the many posters scattered around the Bishop's and Champlain buildings weeks in advance by Cote. After a few trips around the area, the three daring young men fell out of their small single-engine aircraft and began their descent.

The light wind present seemed to blow them over a bit and for a few moments it appeared that the parachutists were going to land in the crowd and not near it. However, such was not the case and the group recorded a flawless touchdown moments later.

Presse said the wind was really of little concern to them yesterday; weather conditions were excellent. He added that they had jumped from the dizzying height of 7000 feet. This, he said left them with a grand total of 30 seconds to pull the ripcord that would open their parachutes 2500 feet above the ground. Though this may not even seem like enough time to enjoy the view, Presse seemed to regard yesterday's dive the way some of us would regard a hop out of bed. He has done his little act from 16,000 feet up.

Presse said that he felt yesterday's jump had generated "a lot of interest" in the course. He said fees would be around $75 per student, depending on how many people enrolled. Information sessions will be held today, both on the course and on skydiving, in room 108 of the Johnson Building at 4:30.

As a postscript to Wednesday's aerial antics, it was purely coincidence that a local undertaker was on campus to give a talk entitled, "Undertakers are really fine people," in the MacKinnon Lounge, adjacent to the jump site.

While on the subject of dizzying heights, mountaineer Normand Lapierre will be giving a talk tonight in the Sports Centre meeting room at 7:00. Lapierre, who led this year's mountaineering expedition to Mount Logan — Canada's highest peak — will present slides on the climb and talk about mountaineering techniques and environments.

If your head seems to be stuck in the clouds after all this, you might as well keep it there and drop in to the Outside Inn tonight and sample the "musical graffiti" of Kevin Head. Head, who does everything from bluegrass to rock and roll, manages to tie his style together with a blend of past and present sounds. He'll be appearing at 8:30 with an admission charge of $1.50.

Next week, the Outside Inn will also be the site of a performance on the life of Norman Bethune put on by Champlain College English students. The performance will be a montage of poems, broadcasts, slides and music covering the life and times of the famous Canadian doctor who fought as an anti-fascist and communist in the Canada, Spain and China of the twenties and thirties. The performance will take place on October 16 at 8 p.m.

On a lighter note, the Bishop's Film Society will screen the popular family musical, "Oliver" on October 18 at 7:30 p.m. The winner of six Academy Awards, the film stars Oliver Reed and Jack Wild. Admission is $2 for adults and $1.50 for children under 14. The showing will take place in the Centennial Theatre.

The Good Food Parlor will be making a comeback soon with the recent appointment of Marian Cornelissen as Student Centre Day Lounge manager. Miss Cornelissen, who worked in the Good Food Parlor last year intends to carry on the tradition of good food served in a comfortable atmosphere.

Finally, let the bells ring out and the banners fly; it's Homecoming Weekend at Bishop's again. About 300 alumni will arrive on campus this Saturday for a day of such sports as squash, golf or basketball prior to the pre- and post-football game receptions.

Also for the first time this year, parents of first-year students will be invited down so they can tour the campus and get an idea of what junior has been up to for the last couple of months.

The football game this weekend will be the day's highlight, with Bishop's squaring off against Concordia for first place in the league. If the Montreals go down to defeat on this one, it will mean a fight to the finish with Queens in two weeks' time.

May the best team win. Ahem.

Granby church damaged

$60,000 blaze probed

GRANBY (TS) — Fire chief Denis Turgeon has called upon the QPF arson squad to investigate a blaze which severely damaged St. George's Church on Main Street here Tuesday morning.

The fire, which ironically occurred during fire prevention week, caused more than $60,000 damage to the 81-year-old landmark which has served as a community centre for parishioners for several years.

Turgeon said an inspection of the church showed the fire apparently started in the furnace room located in the basement of the chapel. From there the flames spread to a stairwell which acted like a chimney in allowing the fire to creep to the main floor.

The fire director added that he was perplexed by the fact the blaze seemed to have started on a cement floor near a three-foot-high cement wall.

At this point he called in the QPF arson squad who were due to begin sifting through the rubble yesterday morning.

Following the fire the church was described as "nearly a total loss" as the main floor received extensive damage and firemen had to chop holes in the roof in an attempt to quell the flames.

The QPF arson squad are investigating Tuesday's fire which caused more than $60,000 damage to St. George's Church in Granby.

rived to relocate every resident.

Outside this room, which buzzed with the activity of a convention centre, a tall, fragile woman sighed as she explained what the move meant.

"My mother... she's 87 going on 88. She simply has to go to a place where she can get care. She does exercises and on her good days she could get around with the aid of a chair, but she definitely needs supervision."

The lady, it turns out, will go to a nursing home at a Montreal suburb, and advised that it has had excellent reports; a daughter expresses her solace.

A staff member walked passed the narrow hallway, a tray containing a finished breakfast in her hands. She smiled faintly through pursed lips, a remarkable reaction considering that she's worked for too long for practically nothing.

But her demeanor only served to support the theory that for the staff who remained to the bitter end, the sorrow was not in the loss of paycheques but more in the departure of friends who needed help.

It has been a trying period for everyone since the news surfaced a few days earlier. There's mention of one spy but aging gent who inadvertently received a second dosage of his mineral oil in the dazed unfolding of events.

There are repercussions, of course, but it's not nearly as bad as parting with familiar surroundings.

There are hugs, handshakes, and the hushed expression of good wishes. The only thing missing was auld lang syne, but the scene already had more than its share of sentimentality.

quit while the others have remained because they're so dedicated to the old people," a source close to the scene informed The Record.

Although many people were aware of Pine Gables' impending fate last weekend, yesterday's events still left everyone in a state of shock, including Monique Tremblay, the nursing home's director.

"I have no comment at this time. Maybe tomorrow I can talk about it. Right now, all I can say is that all the residents will be moved out by the end of the day."

Accompanied by social affairs representative Andre Beaudoin, she spent most of the day dialing other nursing homes in an attempt to find suitable locations for each resident. Late yesterday afternoon, an ambulance left the premises with the last of the Pine Gables inhabitants.

Most of the residents were transferred to nursing homes in the Montreal area, but a few managed to get suitable accommodation in nearby municipalities.

Residents' families had been in a quandary after receiving calls on the weekend from a representative of Plaza Van Horne, a Montreal nursing home, who informed them the social affairs department had authorized their relative's transfer to the Decarie Blvd. home.

"They even gave instructions where to take the ambulance once the person got there," said one source.

The social affairs ministry attaché told The Record the department had never authorized such a call and that Plaza Van Horne does not even hold a provincial government permit.

Coincidentally, the residents forced out of the Chateaugay nursing home the previous day were taken to Plaza Van Horne.

A few of the Pine Gables residents were eventually moved there as well, but social affairs representative Beaudoin assured each family his department would be responsible for the transferred residents.

"If they aren't satisfied with the place, they can get in touch with the social affairs department and changes will be made," he said.

Townships talk

GRANBY (JM) — "I think I'm going to succumb to writers' cramp," Judge Gerard Normandin complained following closure of sessions court here Friday. 70 persons who had been cited to jury trials, and who renounced their rights opting for trials before a judge or a magistrate alone, were due to have trial dates fixed.

Sixteen neglected to show and the judge was deluged with an excessive number of bench warrants.

His dismay was the complete opposite of the grins on the faces of certain policemen who were anxiously awaiting the opportunity of re-arresting some of their favorite clients who neglected to appear.

The same situation is expected to arise in Sweetburg Court Oct. 10, when other speedy trial dates will be fixed.

SHERBROOKE (AF) — A left leg severed below the knee and including the entire foot was found by a youth about 6:30 last night at the end of Chicoine Street in a plastic bag marked "For hospital use only".

Municipal police suspect a prank rather than murder; the leg appears to have been surgically amputated. However, the method of its disposal has led police to visit all local hospitals in an attempt to discover its origin. If the guilty party isn't found today, the limb will be sent to the Medico-Legal Institute in Montreal for clues.

Taking stock...

Taking stock... Thanksgiving is, traditionally a time at the end of the harvest to give thanks for what has been grown and stored away to provide for the long winter. Those of us who have left the farming life for the cities, might have trouble relating to this idea of Thanksgiving, but we also have our harvest. Our homes, our families, our friends, all come together to make our lives what they are. We have our harvest of memories, tears of joy and pain. I hope your harvest this year has been full.

Playing around... The Lennoxville Players will meet in MacKinnon Hall, 7:30 prompt. Come out and enjoy yourself...

Note... I can see no good reason to abolish our police force to hire what would probably be poorer quality protection. However, some people might be afraid of what a police force dedicated to this town, might dig up.

Concert... John Mills came on to the stage at the Centennial Theatre Tuesday night, carrying his glasses and his guitar. As he sat down on the solitary chair in the middle of the stage he placed his guitar on his leg. He didn't really hold it, rather it floated in front of him, and when he moved his hands across the strings, a new world was opened to me, the world inside his guitar.

Parting thought... Thank you Mr. McElreavy, for your letter.

Referendums elsewhere: Eleven students probe topic

This country's been going through the referendum panic so long it's got used to it. It's now less of an anxiety than a shrug, a 'let's get on with it', a 'not to worry' situation.

In all this time, then, almost two years since November 1976 there have been waves and waves of studies. But, despite the fact that the constitutional reform and referenda and separatism are so much in the air, it's only very recently that the first study comparing Canadian experience with elsewhere has appeared.

"The Referendum and Separation Elsewhere: Implications for Quebec" is edited by Professor Donald Rowat. He's at Carleton University, which also publishes and sells the book (at $6.70). The 11 articles are by graduate students. They emulate their professors in the range both of their interests and their abilities. The book possibly has a bit more than its fair share of superficial, sweeping and simplistic statements but on the other hand this sample of what some young Canadians are thinking does have some strong and promising contributions. The implications of the present crisis are for Canada, not just Quebec: studies such as these, not available elsewhere, help us get some idea of how to respond to the difficulties now facing the country.

Comparisons are made over time and space. One of the first articles looks at earlier uses of referenda, as devices for consulting the people. Apart from the 1898 and 1942 plebiscites, on prohibition and conscription respectively, and Newfoundland's two referenda, to enter Confederation in 1948, most experimenting with the referendum or 'direct legislation' has been in the four Western provinces.

Two weeks after the November 16 election in 1976, M. Morin wrote in Le Devoir about the Newfoundland referendum. He argued that since Newfoundland has had no major constitutional problem entering Confederation, Quebec should have no problem leaving. The steps taken would only have to be reversed.

But, as this book shows, referenda and plebiscite are tricky devices, and should be used very cautiously and sparingly. There is no consideration of the British referendum on the EEC, which has been a basic model for both Quebec City and Ottawa, or of Norway's, which kept it out of the EEC. (In the latter country on the eve of the referendum, bonfires were lit on mountaintops throughout the country, the traditional appeal to all Norwegians to rise and repel invaders. Referenda tend to simplify issues, and to heighten the appeal to deep-rooted emotions and prejudices.)

While there is considerable international experience of referenda on constitutional futures to draw on, the literature on separatism is incredibly more varied and complex. Separatism is neither new nor confined to Canada. A surprising number of countries in the world, in fact, are multinational in composition. Various articles in this collection examine attempted and actual movements of separatism to see what they require for success.

In addition, this book puts separatism in the twentieth century international framework. After World War One, self-determination was the order of the day, particularly in Eastern Europe. After World War Two, independence and decolonization swept throughout Africa and Asia.

The United Nations gives great importance to self-determination but also, as a federation of nation-states, it argues that present-day boundaries are inviolate and sacrosanct. Much of the fighting going on at present in both Africa and Asia is basically over this issue rather than over "democracy" or "communism". (Latin America got its independence in the early 19th century, and national boundaries are not seriously in dispute.)

Now, however, the world faces the third great wave of nationalism in the 20th century: separatist movements in the developed, industrialized states of Western Europe and Canada. Attitudes of both governments and people are understandably confused. The only way to remedy this is through knowledge, and sensible use of it. An article in this book, for example, on the right to secession reflects some of the changing reactions. It makes the basic point that there can be no change in Quebec's relationship with the rest of Canada without the latter's consent.

That's from the point of view of the rule of law and international recognition. These, however, especially the first, require the consent of the government. To get this, particularly in Quebec, requires a keen understanding of the forces at work in people's minds. Nationalism, after all, is "first and foremost a state of mind, an act of consciousness."

Comparisons, like anything else, shouldn't be taken to excess. They can mislead and oversimplify. A lot in Canada is peculiarly Canadian. Yet a study such as this one reinforces the value of looking at other experiences.

"Sovereignty-association" is out in a new light when one discovers that Belgians "realized that economic depression can be alleviated by economic association and that a drive to become a sovereign state would trigger an extended period of turmoil and political uncertainty throughout Belgium, sending both communities into an economic tailspin."

Returning to the Commonwealth, we find that in both Nova Scotia just after Confederation and in Western Australia in the 1930's, "popular support for secession was clearly overwhelming." Yet in each case the British houses of parliament refused to consider them because of federal opposition.

Any book can only go so far. This one hardly pays any attention to such basic factors as the economy, domestic and international, and relations with the U.S. Nonetheless, it does look at quite a number of areas, and provides a lot of material for ideas and discussion about the uncertain future of Quebec and Canada as a whole.

Questionable

How is it, that a nursing home can go bankrupt in the midst of all the controls and guidelines laid down by the Ministry of Social Affairs?

Something's fishy about yesterday's closure of the Pine Gables Nursing Home in Cowansville, a day after a similar home in Chateauguay — owned by at least two of the same people — also closed its doors.

The gentlemen listed with the Ministry of Social Affairs as the officers of these two homes are unreachable, yet the families of ousted patients were being solicited to move their relatives to a home which isn't even approved by the Ministry before the news of the Pine Gables-Chateauguay closings was made public.

The doings of the Pine Gables management appear to be shrouded in secrecy; Quebec, for all its promises to bring regulation and order to facilities which care for the handicapped and the elderly, seems powerless to delve into a highly suspect bankruptcy.

Caught in the middle are the residents of the home. Bewildered by the unusual activity and shattered by the growing realization they're to be moved out of their familiar surroundings, they're the real victims of this situation.

Friendships, many of them close and long-enduring, are being severed at an age when new friends aren't that easy to make.

We must congratulate those individuals from the Social Affairs Ministry who made it their job to ensure every last patient was placed elsewhere in an impossibly short time; it bespeaks a professionalism combined with a real ability to care, which is gratifying to see.

But it doesn't alter our feelings toward the federal and provincial governments, who, after their vainglorious promises of a dawning new age in the care of the elderly, have done very little to regulate one of the most troubled situations in Canada's entire social-affairs dossier.

We urge immediate steps to bring all nursing homes under government supervision. We're not advocating more control, but we do feel there should be the means to prevent what happened at Pine Gables.

Surely our senior citizens are entitled to the peace of mind of knowing they won't be shifted due to the financial vagaries of nursing-home owners.

Tip that hat

One must take one's hat off to the Vermonters who masterminded this Canadian-dollar-at-par gimmick with various merchants. They have the wisdom to sell an advantage and we hope the program works.

There's no question people will use the 20-per-cent premium to enjoy the restaurants, motels and other services the state has to offer, and we understand New Hampshire is studying the outcome to see if it's worth their while to jump onto the bandwagon.

We doubt the program will cause people to jump in their cars and tear off across the border to do their partying, but at least it makes the dollar difference less painful.

Curious about yourself?

Freedom of information not that free

OTTAWA (CP) — Getting a look at the information about yourself in 5,000 federal data banks isn't all that easy.

Since March 1, the Canadian Human Rights Act has given individuals the right to see at least some of the data in their files.

But under the law, 23 data banks are exempt from public scrutiny for reasons of national security, a term the government has been unable to define.

And parts of other files may be withheld because making them public would endanger national defence, international relations, or federal-provincial relations.

There is a privacy coordinator in each federal department who deals with applications. Currently, most of the co-ordinators have no staff, and applications are piling up. Government has given the program priority, but no money.

Slowing down the process further is the fact that a deputy minister's approval is often necessary if files are to be shown to the applicant.

USED AS PRETEXT

Marianne Roy of Montreal, president of the Canadian Federation of Human Rights and Civil Liberties Associations, is skeptical. She says the exemptions may be used as a pretext to keep some data out of the hands of the public.

The Federation and the Quebec Human Rights League, a member group, have put Ken Rubin to work on a study of the repercussions of the law.

Rubin says he has found that the federal government compiles a lot of useless data on individuals. He says the law's real value is that people now may correct errors in their files.

Men and women in federal prisons are particularly sensitive to the effect a mistake can have on their future.

More than 4,000 out of 9,400 have asked to see their parole eligibility files which are shown to members of the National Parole Board when they decide whether or not to grant parole.

A study done for the Law Reform Commission of Canada says the files contain contradictions and irrelevancies—so errors, the kind that keep you behind bars, aren't impossible.

Since March, the solicitor-general's department has managed to reply to only 1,500 prisoner requests because of a lack of personnel to deal with applications.

Another problem is that the French version of the law granting access to files is not the same as the English version in an important section dealing with exemptions.

The RCMP, which has files on about one million Canadians, has received more than 1,200 requests.

About 200 have come from current or past members of the force who'd like to know what their colleagues have put in their files.

Assistant Commissioner Maurice Sauve says 26 per cent of the requests have been rejected in the public interest.

Under the law, the RCMP doesn't have to give out information from data bank 23840, which holds security service files.

Sauve says 180 requests for these files have been rejected.

Any application for RCMP files must include a set of the applicant's fingerprints. Sauve says fingerprints are needed to establish the applicant's identity and will be returned to him. An applicant can go to any RCMP office to have prints made.

There may, however, be some risk involved in asking for personal files. One observer says that if the RCMP doesn't already have a person's fingerprints, this might be a good way to get them.

MAY BACKFIRE

Applying to the health department's bureau of dangerous drugs to find whether you are in one of 200,000 files on known or suspected drug users also may backfire.

Don Whiteside of the civil liberties association says that if the bureau doesn't have a file on the individual it may decide on the basis of the application to open one.

There is no central registry for applications, but federal officials estimate there have been 15,000 since March 15. This doesn't mean that 15,000 individuals have applied, however, as some may have filled out as many as 20 application forms required for data from various banks. Forms are available from post offices.

Applicants who feel they have been unjustly treated may appeal to Privacy Commissioner Inger Hansen, who has already received more than 400 appeals—mostly about delays.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

White House holds key to Vesco mystery

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The key to the Robert Vesco mystery, despite an intensive effort to remove it elsewhere, still lies in the White House.

Some intriguing questions have been raised by the reluctant explanations that the Securities and Exchange Commission has now forced out of the White House.

By a White House spokesman's account, presidential aide Richard Harden was informed on Feb. 8, 1977, that the international swindler Robert Vesco had offered "a large sum of money" to gain entree to the White House.

Harden waited a week and then reported the bribe offer to President Carter, according to the spokesman. Yet it made such a small impression on the president that he doesn't remember the incident.

Even more incredible, neither Carter nor Harden notified the Justice Department of this possible conspiracy to defraud the government and to obstruct justice.

Instead, the president scribbled a note to Attorney General Griffin Bell asking him to see the middle man, Spencer Lee IV, who had told Harden about the Vesco offer. The note, written on Feb. 15, 1977, urged Bell: Please see Spencer Lee of Albany when he requests an appointment." It was initialed "J.C."

According to the White House version, Harden had persuaded Lee to drop out of the plot to fix Vesco's federal problems. Thus Lee gave up a cool million dollars, which he claims he could have collected by putting Vesco in touch with White House honcho Hamilton Jordan.

But Lee never bothered to return $10,000 that he had already accepted for intervening in Vesco's behalf. Authenticated telephone records also show that after Lee's Feb. 8, 1977, repentance he continued to remain in contact not only with Vesco but with the other influence peddlers.

The White House, meanwhile, not only neglected to advise the proper authorities to the Vesco plot but bestowed upon Lee a presidential appointment to the Judicial Nominating Committee. Thus the man who had confessed a flirtation with an international swindler was commissioned by the White House three months later to help select federal judges.

We had hesitated until now to mention another witness to the crucial events of Feb. 8, 1977. He is R.L. Herring who instigated the $10 million plot to help Vesco buy exoneration. Herring is a bitter, tense young man with a record as a shady operator.

We regarded his word as worthless, therefore, unless it could be corroborated. But the last place we expected to get corroboration, even in part, was from the White House itself.

We interviewed Herring in his jail cell, where he was awaiting trial on fraud charges. At our request, he spent the next few days writing down his recollections of the Vesco venture. He delivered this to us in the form of a sworn affidavit.

We also asked Herring to submit to intensive cross-examination. For 14 hours, a crack Washington private detective, Richard Bast, grilled Herring under oath on tape. Bast's instructions were to try to break down Herring's story.

Here's what Herring had to say a full month before any White House admissions about the Feb. 8, 1977, happenings:

Lee had just returned from Nassau where he had helped to set up a Bahamian corporation called Southern Ventures Limited. This was the code name that the influence peddlers had been using in their private papers to refer to the Vesco caper. The purpose of the corporation, Herring attested, was to launder the $10 million they expected to collect from Vesco.

On the red-letter Feb. 8 date, Herring and Lee checked into the Washington Hilton Hotel. Recalled Herring: "I went to State Department while he went to White House that afternoon."

We confirmed at the State Department that Herring, indeed, had delivered some Vesco papers there. But Lee denied under oath that he had dropped by the White House. This has now been disputed by competent sources who say Lee logged in at the White House at 3 p.m. on Feb. 8, 1977.

Herring declared in his affidavit that he later spent "about 45 minutes" laying out the sordid details of the $10 million Vesco scheme to Richard Harden. Then came the kicker: Herring claimed that Harden was supposed to "brief the President."

A month after Herring had this affidavit notarized, the White House ruefully acknowledged that, in fact, Harden had briefed the President. Of course, the White House version is quite different from the Herring account. A spokesman said that Lee had told Harden about the Vesco offer and that Harden had persuaded Lee to pull out of the deal.

Both Herring and Lee agree that they placed a call to Robert Vesco on the night of Feb. 8, 1977. Thereafter, they had continuing contacts with the corporate freebooter. Nothing they told Vesco, apparently, gave Vesco the impression Lee was backing out. For Vesco went ahead and transferred $10 million worth of his prime stock to the Georgia influence peddlers in mid-1977.

But it was President Carter's failure to report the criminal conspiracy to the Justice Department that troubles us the most. Both the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Justice Department launched immediate investigations after they belatedly learned of Vesco's manipulations. This was a full year after the president had been briefed.

AGRHS holds annual awards night

By JANICE VAUDRY
LENNOXVILLE — Warning students not to fall into the trap of specializing in their studies too early, guest speaker Dr. C.I.H. Nicholl, principal of Bishop's University, congratulated Alexander Galt Regional High School staff and students at their annual awards night held in the school auditorium on Oct. 5.

Although awards nights were abolished a few years ago by most major Quebec high schools because of their competitive nature, Eastern Townships board members and teachers decided Galt would continue the annual event.

The auditorium was filled to capacity as Awards Committee Chairman Les Nutbrown, acting as emcee for the evening, welcomed everyone and introduced Frank Boushel, AGRHS principal.

John Tsai, a 1978 graduate of Galt, who won the top-academic-student trophy in Level 5, gave the student reply. He also tied with Marilyn MacDonald and Louis Godbout for the Everett "Doc" Porter Award for academic excellence over five years at Galt and won the mathematic-science award.

Mrs. M. Paulette presented Sharon Patton with the Norton-St. Laurent Award for proficiency in French and music and academic achievement. Sharon also won the Band Trophy for excellence in music.

Jane Wright received the Choral Trophy for participation in the choir over five years and Deana Hawley won the top-academic-student trophy in Level 4.

The David I. Crawford Memorial Trophy for citizenship among agricultural science students was awarded to Laura Banks.

The Whitman Haines Citizenship Award for the greatest contribution to school life and community involvement through attitude and participation was presented to Andy Lyon by Bob Halsall.

A new award, the Captain Edward Brown memorial Award for excellence in art, was introduced by Dr. R. Paulette and awarded to Caroline Guay by Mrs. Brown.

208 honor certificates were awarded to students who achieved 80 per cent average in 5 subjects or more during the 1977-78 school year.

Scholarships and bursaries were awarded to several students to further their education.

Departmental awards were presented for achievement in English, Spanish, French, art, home economics, drama, and music.

Following the ceremony students and parents met in the cafeteria for refreshments where the students had a chance to meet old friends who had graduated from AGRHS.

GALT NEWS

The school year at Alexander Galt is underway once again after the first few hectic days of rearranging schedules and getting into the proper classes. It was good to see old faces, and some new ones too, including Heather Thomson and Joe Prah, our new school chaplains.

Extra-curricular activities — ranging from the Aviators' Club to Debating to Inter-School Christian Fellowship to our radio station, CJRR — were soon established once again.

One of the major jobs to be taken care of was the election of new House Councils and a Regional Council.

After the ballots for each had been counted it was discovered that our Regional Council governing the six houses was an all-girl executive, headed by Julie Theoret as president, with Debbie Gillam as vice-president, Sandra MacCaskill as secretary, Nancy Williams as treasurer, Susan Warner in charge of cultural affairs, and Melanie Durrell as publicity chairman. The six house presidents are also girls.

The competition between houses was initiated with our annual marathon run, and the competitive spirit will continue this week as we try to raise money with our yearly Chocolate Bar Drive.

Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) How much you enjoy yourself will be determined to a large extent by the company you keep. Stimulating companions will inspire you today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions may not be as routine at home as you anticipated today. Enjoyable drop-ins could stir things up in a fun way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Much to your credit you may participate in a delicate situation today affecting a close friend and straighten matters out with compassion and understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep on your toes at this time. There are developments brewing that could contribute handsomely to your sense of well-being and security.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your sunny disposition and positive attitude qualifies you as a leader today. You bring out the best in others because you see only good.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can readily attract the attention of the right people and gain a solid sense of achievement by taking extra pride in your work today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do fun things today, but make sure they're physically active. You may not think you have the necessary pep, but you do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is a good day to make a major change you've been contemplating, or to at least take some positive steps to make it possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A problem bugging you can be solved today if you have someone who is a good sounding board to hear you out. Seek a friendly listener.

From the pens of E.T. writersTO STRESS A POINT

May I take a moment of your time,
I'll gladly give you mine
To make a matter clear,
To some, I hold most dear.

My poetry was not meant to bring me fame or fortune,
But just a hobby or an outlet for spare time and devotion.

Some are good, some are bad, some are happy and some are sad, but the ones who worry about me, are doing so most foolishly,
For after all, it's only poetry.

A CHILD'S PRAYER

Thank you God...
for two good hands
that I can fold to pray, and...

Thank you God...
for two good legs
so I can run and play.

Thank you God...
for two good eyes,
so that I can see,
But...
Most of all I thank you God, for loving me.

THE CROOKED ROAD OF LOVE

As we walk along life's pathway as all of us have done,
We come to a highway called the winding road of love.
This road is hard to follow with its heartaches around every bend.

And still you go along this road of love, that never seems to have an end.

Oh love with all its beauty and tender as can be is a great mystery like the ghost ships on the sea.
You may send your love on the winds, to a lover who may be far away.

Sometimes you get an answer from a star in the great milky way.

You look up towards the heavens and she sends her love to you, then her voice it fades away.

Then you start back down the winding road of love and you wonder why you had to part.

You are filled with grief and sadness and a lonely broken heart.

Oh the winding road of love no one knows where it will end.

If you walk along too far it will only break your heart again.

You sit there alone in the forest and you listen to the morning lark.

There is someone walking down that winding road of love who will only get another broken heart.

There are many kinds of love some that are so sweet,
Like a mother's love for her child when she rocks him to sleep.

As you watch the child there playing on the ground you see this love has no bounds.

The love of one's home and the place that we were born.
That of a child for a toy no matter how tattered or torn.

This is all along the winding road of love
It travels across the ocean blue.

It goes up to your doorstep with the love I hold for you Through all the friends that passed along and all the friends I used to know.

God made this road and gave it to us for free.
I think we should thank him for this little highway that he gave to you and me.

There is love in the music that we hear around us everyday.

And love in the message as a child kneels down to pray.
As you walk along that little road in the tree you see a morning dove.

So get on this winding road but make sure this love is true.
And then you'll see all the things that love can do for you.

Oh love is on the ocean and in the flowers on the hill.
It's in the highest mountains and down there in the dell.

So we walk along the winding road of love.
Sometimes with sadness in our hearts.

But I wouldn't be without it, for love and I will never part.

OUR THIRTY ONE YEARS

As I sit here and think of our Thirty one years
I think of the joy and the tears
I think of our Edie our pride and our joy
Who came the very first year.

I think of our Wilfred a bouncing big boy
Who made our family complete
Until two years later our dear Cora came
So bouncy so wholesome and sweet.

The next one was Linda so early she came,
At dawn she was crying and protesting her name
Then there came Lloyd we had him with pride
And again our lives were complete.

But the Good Lord said "No" he wanted him too
And our hearts were broken with grief
Our last child was Robbin, so sweet and so small
So loved, and so wanted and spoiled by us all.

We've added three sons and a new daughter, too
And grandchildren came then
To bless us and cheer
Now who could ask for a better
Thirty one years.

WMS meet

SCOTSTOWN — A meeting of St. Paul's W.M.S. group was held at the home of Mrs. D.P. Murray on Sept. 20 with a fair attendance.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. K.A. MacDonald conducted the meeting.

The thought for the day being, "Where there is no vision people perish", Rom. 29: 18. The Bible reading was taken from 1 Sam. Chap. 3. A reading on "Vision" was read by Mrs. MacDonald.

Many of us live with our eyes to the ground instead of looking at the beauty around us. We do not take time to look at God's handiwork.

Let us look through a window that faces the dawn, when God lights his fires of hope for the day, or to a window that looks westward when the glowing embers die in great glory.

Let us take the far look at things eternal, with their limitless possibilities and look until we see God back of the purpose in our lives, and then go forward strengthened for the day's work. (Other readings were given).

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. D.P. Murray and proved satisfactory. Two generous donations were received and gratefully acknowledged.

Mrs. W.G. MacLeod, Presbyterian President, reported on plans made for the Synodical Executive Meetings which will be held in Sherbrooke, Oct. 11 and 12. Also for the visit of Miss Margaret Kennedy, Missionary from India, who will be visiting Quebec-Presbyterian from Oct. 25 to Oct. 31.

The date of the October meeting will be announced later.

The meeting closed with prayer, followed by a social hour.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Mike Passell made a winning decision with the North hand. He decided to give a spade preference over Malcolm Brachman's three diamonds. Malcolm continued on to game and West opened the four of clubs.

At this point Malcolm made an unusual but eminently correct play. He called for the three of clubs from dummy.

East took his ace and led back a trump whereupon Malcolm developed a squeeze against West to make an overtrick. He played four rounds of trumps while discarding two hearts from dummy. Then he led a low diamond. This gave up a trick developed a squeeze for the balance. He simply won the heart return in his own hand; cashed the ace of diamonds and his last trump.

That play of the last trump squeezed West. He had to unguard either the jack of clubs or jack of hearts. His selection was the jack of clubs whereupon Malcolm threw the last small heart from dummy and made the last four tricks with the king of hearts and king-queen seven of clubs.

At the other table Paul Soloway opened a diamond against three notrump and declarer was held to his contract. Fifty points plus was worth two IMPs.

A Nevada reader asks the correct opening bid in standard American and when two clubs is played as the only forcing opening bid.

In standard American you should open two clubs. When you use two clubs as an artificial forcing opening bid it is better to open just one club so that when you jump in hearts later your partner will know that you have a two-suit hand.

Dog aids blind man

COOKSHIRE (ESH) — Mr. Sam Vermette is very fond of animals, particularly dogs, and has had a stone memorial placed in his back garden, in memory of his seven dogs who died. Through experience, Sam has learned that he must not feed his pets too much.

Due to the loss of his eyesight, he agreed to take up a course of study for the "Leader Dogs for the Blind". He and his dog "Toby" have recently returned home, both of whom are graduates of the Leader Dog School, Rochester, Michigan. Sam is delighted with his dog's performance, and adheres to the feeding of his dog's special diet.

Sam trained at the Leader Dog School for four weeks, learning to travel confidently with Toby. Daily intensive training sessions in the classroom, and four-hour practice periods conducted in Rochester, Birmingham, and Royal Oak, Michigan, prepared Sam and his Leader Dog to work together. Their practice included trips to various department stores, and many other places of interest, all under the supervision of an instructor. Graduates must know where they are going and direct the Leader Dog to the destination with commands. A dog does not read traffic lights, but crosses the street upon command from the master, who must study the pattern of traffic. The dog will proceed when it is safe. The public is asked not to interfere while the dog is working. If it is apparent the individual is having difficulty, a person nearby may simply ask, "May I help you?" A few months of "seasoning" will eliminate problems and distractions. There is no charge for Leader Dog training, though the cost per team is approximately $4,500.00. This non-profit organization is supported entirely by contributions from Lions Clubs, various publicly-supported agencies and private sources.

Anyone wishing information about the Leader Dog program is invited to contact a member of the local Lions Club or write to Leader Dogs for the Blind, Rochester, Michigan, 48063.

LOBA meets

SAWYERVILLE — The regular meeting of Maple Leaf no. 689 L.O.B.A. was held on Sept. 26 in the Lodge room with the W.M. Sis. M. Pinchin in her chair and ten members present. Also present were members from Francis Valley, Sherbrooke and Smith Memorial, Lennoxville. All had met together to meet the Prov. Grand Mistress of Quebec, Sis. C. Chapman of Lachute.

Jackson of Lachute, Prov. Grand Secretary, Sis. G. Hoyle of Montreal, Past Prov. G.M., Sis. A. Everett of Lennoxville, Prov. Grand Chaplain of Quebec, Sis. T. Lowry of Sawyerville, Prov. Grand Treas. of Quebec, Bro. L. Humphries, P.P.G. Master of Quebec. All were welcomed, given Grand Honors and escorted to their chairs.

The floor work was put on, after which Bro. Humphries and his daughter, Mrs. Copping sang a duet, Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee. Sis. Chapman gave a report of the M.W. Grand Lodge which had been held in Ottawa and Sis. Hoyle gave a good report of the Children's Home in Rosemere.

All Grand Officers spoke a few words saying how pleased they were to be here and were thanked by the W.M.

Sis. Copping on behalf of Francis Valley members presented a gift to the Prov. Grand Mistress Sis. Chapman. Sis. M. Larmouth for Smith Memorial and Sis. Pinchin for Maple Leaf presented gifts to Sis.

Chapman, who expressed her thanks.

Routine business was carried on. Letter of thanks read and the Tea mentioned for Oct. 7, also some tables have been bought. Three members of our Lodge were presented with their Past Mistress Jewels, Sisters R. Ord, M. Prescott and E. Hodge and these were pinned on by the Prov. Grand Mistress.

Lodge closed in regular form and a delicious lunch, including ice cream, was served and a social time enjoyed.

UCW Meeting

AYER'S CLIFF — The United Church Women held their first meeting of the new season at the lovely home of Mrs. A. de St. Croix with Mrs. D. Sutton as assisting hostess, on Wednesday, September 20. The weather was sunny and warm and all enjoyed the gorgeous view from the sun deck overlooking Ripple Cove and Slack's Bay.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson who will be the leader for the balance of this year due to the resignation of the President, Mrs. Maurice Dezan. Her resignation was accepted with deep regret and the Corresponding Secretary was asked to write her a letter.

Devotions were led by Frances de St. Croix who used the Scripture passages to be used at the up-coming Rally, Math. 5: 14-16 read by Mrs. F. Cunliff, Romans 12: 1-8 read by the leader and Ephesians 4: 1-12 read by Mrs. J. Pierce. These were discussed briefly and a few short passages were read from Summer Event notes in Happenings. Mrs. M. Fleming, a former member, offered prayer and all repeated the Lord's Prayer. Routine business items were handled. The treasurer's report showed a good balance with all obligations paid up to date and most satisfactory receipts from the annual Smorgasbord and Sale.

Correspondence was read with two letters from the Foster Child, one from the Unitarian Service Committee and the Leprosy Mission. It was agreed to give a donation to Dr. L. Hitschmanova for U.S.C. and to order forty Church Calendars for 1979.

Elizabeth Robinson gave a very good report of Summer Event prepared by Mrs. Muriel McClary as well as her own impressions.

Several members volunteered to meet on October 7 to make sandwiches for an upcoming event. The corresponding secretary was asked to write several "thank-you" notes. It was agreed to have several pairs of work bag handles made by Mr. Pope.

The next meeting will be held on October 18 at the home of Misses E. Boyes and M. Allan. It was agreed to invite friends to the November meeting and have a special programme. The annual Christmas Sale and Tea will be on Friday, November 17 and all are working on sale articles.

At the close of the business session delicious tea breads and cheeses were served buffet style from a prettily appointed tea table centred with a bowl of variegated dahlias. All were pleased to welcome Mrs. M. Mosher, area vice-president and two other guests along with twelve members.

Gifford Family Reunion

DENISON MILLS (JE) — The Annual Labour Day Gifford Family Reunion, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mastine, Denison Mills. Seventy members of the family were present to help celebrate Mrs. Hazel Gifford's 86th birthday. A delicious lamb BBQ was served, followed by the singing of Happy Birthday and serving of the birthday cake artistically decorated by Mrs. Ida Gifford. Dancing and singing followed the supper hour.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Kydd, Miss Debbie Lee, Mr. Jim Gifford, Welland, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Ian Bruce, Kit-chener, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Waterman and children, Tammy, Robbie and Kimberly, Kingston, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gifford and Kelly, Mrs.

Claudia Donovan, Toronto, Ont., Mr. Bill Waterman, Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McClure, Amesbury, Mass., Mrs. Edith Howen and Mrs. Mary Barrack, Montreal. Other family members from Melbourne, Richmond, Kingsey Falls and Danville also attended.

Best wishes were extended to Steven Mastine who will be leaving shortly for Vancouver, B.C.

Golden Agers

enjoy foliage

KNOWLTON (KT) — The beauty of the fall foliage was possibly at its peak when members of Knowlton Golden Age Club enjoyed a trip by chartered bus Wednesday, September 27 with the president Grayson Cousins and treasurer Harold Spencer in charge.

Leaving the Legion Hall parking lot promptly at 9:00 a.m. every one of the 44 seats were occupied. Heading for Sherbrooke via Austin, the first stop was at St. Benoit du Lac Monastery where many in the group purchased some of the fine cheeses and other items to be found in the shop.

Passing through Magog and North Hatley and up the Katevale Hill, the colour of the landscape was a constant delight to the beholder. After arrival in Lennoxville, the party next stopped at The Ponderosa in Sherbrooke for dinner and then a further hour or so was spent shopping at Rock Forest Shopping Centre. The trip home was especially beautiful, through St. Elie d'Orford, past Bowker Lake and then Ste. Anne de la Rochelle, after which, came Warden, Waterloo and home.

A day of happy relaxation and good humoured fellowship, the constant attention and expert driving of Maurice Lacroix once more adding so much to the pleasure.

RCMP Band

STANSTEAD (DB) — 400 people gathered at the Ursuline Convent, Stanstead, on Monday evening, Oct. 2nd to hear and see 12 members of the R.C.M.P. band play and sing many fine selections, both old and modern.

Under the Director Kenneth Moore, this is just part of the 33 piece band which travels across Canada and have recently been on TV.

This was such a success they have been asked to return some time in the future. This appearance gave a profit of $650.00 with half going to sports at the Ursuline Convent and the other half for Sports Complex.

Mideast talks underway again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egypt and Israel, urged by President Carter to "stay until we get this settled," are working out the final details of a treaty to end 30 years of warfare.

As he welcomed them to the White House Wednesday night, Carter promised the Egyptian delegates he would be "available any time I'm needed" to expedite the talks, taking place under a United Nations flag at Blair House across Pennsylvania Avenue from the executive mansion.

Carter was launching the talks today with a brief ceremony in the East Room of the White House. He then planned to turn over the U.S. chair at the bargaining table to State Secretary Cyrus Vance.

The Egyptian delegation is headed by its defence minister, Lt.-Gen. Kamel Hassan Ali, and by acting Foreign Minister Boutros Ghali. The Israeli delegation is headed by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defence Minister Ezer Weizman.

MUST SET LINES
If the participants stick to the framework reached at Camp David, they must agree on three lines through the Sinai's sands to achieve their goal of a peace treaty by Dec. 19.

The most difficult problems in achieving peace between Egypt and Israel were apparently solved at Camp David and immediately afterwards when Israel agreed to a complete withdrawal from the Sinai, including the withdrawal of its settlements, in return for peace and diplomatic relations with Egypt.

Obituary

HAROLD H. GEORGE
of Vale Perkins
Harold Henry George, a life-long resident of this vicinity, passed away at The Courville Nursing Home, Waterlooc, Que., on September 10, 1978, following a very lengthy illness.

Mr. George, a well-known and highly respected citizen, was born on February 9, 1894, the son of Lewis George and his wife, Estella Jane Darling.

Besides being a successful farmer all his life, he was at one time, Rector's Warden of the Anglican Church at Vale Perkins. He became a Councillor and later held the position of Mayor for the Municipality of Potton. He was also a member of the Potton School Board and later became Chairman of the same board.

Harry, as he was always called, was a hard-working, home-loving man. His only recreation was hunting. Each autumn, he managed to take a little time off for this popular sport. In his declining years he took much interest in gardening. He was also very fond of reading, but his greatest pride and joy were his grandchildren with whom he spent many hours enjoying their company and amusing them.

He is survived by his wife of 60 years, Ethel Eliza (Magoon) George, a son, Ralph, and daughters, Pauline and Eleanor, and five grandchildren. Also surviving are two brothers and several other close relatives.

The funeral service, attended by many relatives and friends, was held on September 13 in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Mansonville, the Rev. J. David Stanway officiating.

Interment took place in the Mansonville Protestant Cemetery.

The bearers were his grandson, Hugh George, his nephew, Ben George, and friends and neighbours, Porter Knowlton, George Jewett, Charlie Jewett, and Fred Jersey, all of Vale Perkins.

Card of Thanks

GEORGE — We extend our sincere appreciation to our relatives, friends, and neighbours for the many acts of kindness shown during the death and burial of our dear husband, father, and grandfather, Harry George. Special thanks to the Rev. J. David Stanway for his comforting words. Our grateful thanks to Mr. E. Lessard, the bearers, the organist, and to those who sent flowers, messages of sympathy, memorial donations, called at the funeral home and attended the service. We also wish to thank those who prepared and served lunch in our home, and all those who helped in any other way. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

THE FAMILY
MARSHALL — We would like to extend our thanks to the staff of the I.C.U. of the Sherbrooke Hospital; also to Mr. Boynton and son, to friends and relatives for flowers and all the help received at the time of the death of Yvonne Marshall.

THE MARSHALL FAMILY
MCGOVERN — My sincere thanks to all who visited me, sent cards, or flowers, especially the Legion Ladies Auxiliary and to Dr. Claude Rancourt and nurses on 2nd floor, while I was a patient in Sherbrooke Hospital.

Cullen's ULC stance disgruntles ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment Minister Bud Cullen made several concessions Wednesday to provincial ministers protesting federal plans to tighten the unemployment insurance program.

However, he rejected their insistence that he delay legislation containing the changes until a full assessment is made of the impact they will have on provincial welfare rolls.

As a result, Allan Williams, British Columbia labor minister and spokesman for the provinces, said his counterparts left dissatisfied from a one-day conference they called to discuss the insurance changes for the first time since Cullen announced them last month.

Cullen agreed to establish a federal-provincial working group to assess how much increased welfare and other provincial costs will result from the insurance changes aimed at saving $580 million in federal funds next year.

But he would not delay the bill, expected to be ready for Parliament in two or three weeks, until the working group's report is assessed.

If the bill is in the middle of the parliamentary process, the bill might be reconsidered if the group finds the cost too high, Cullen said.

CHANGING TACK

He also agreed to ease slightly a measure that increases minimum insurable earnings by introducing it as a cabinet regulation, instead of in the legislation, so it can be withdrawn easily if it causes undue hardship.

And he reiterated a promise made Tuesday to ease a measure that would require those seeking benefits for the second time in a year to have worked the same number of weeks that they received benefits the first time.

He now proposes this requirement vary according to regional unemployment levels, in light of protests from Atlantic Liberal MPs that it will hurt seasonal workers.

News Briefs

Jamieson to visit Namibia

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson says he and other Western leaders will go to South Africa this weekend to discuss minor modifications to a United Nations plan for an independent Namibia.

He said in an interview Wednesday that the leaders are prepared to suggest solutions to South African objections to a proposed 7,500-man UN peacekeeping force in Namibia, Namibia, or South-West Africa, is administered by South Africa.

City 'not involved enough'

MONTREAL (CP) — The City of Montreal finance department was not involved enough in the management of construction for Olympic Games installations, an accounting firm warned the city in 1975.

A provincial inquiry into the $1.27-billion cost of the 1976 Games was told Wednesday that the Montreal accounting firm of Raymond, Chabot, Martin, Pare et Associes also criticized Montreal's internal financial controls in a report to the city in March 1975.

Dollar ignores good news

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar, unaffected by news of a decline in the rate of inflation, took a deep plunge against its American counterpart Wednesday.

The dollar closed at 84.20 cents U.S. on Toronto's inter-bank wholesale market, more than two-fifths of a cent lower than Tuesday's close of 84.61 cents.

Grit enumerators 'partisan'

QUEBEC (CP) — The Parti Quebecois struck back Wednesday at the provincial Liberals in a controversy over alleged political meddling in the recent provincial voter enumeration.

It charged the Liberal riding association in Joliette-Montcalm had instructed its enumerators to engage in "partisan work" by directing them to make a list of 10 Liberal sympathizers in each polling district of the riding, about 50 kilometres east of Montreal.

PSBGM urged to exempt students

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyer Robert Litvack called on the city's largest English-language school board Wednesday to provide bilingual education for several Greek immigrant children transferred to unilingual French-language classes this year.

The children, who had earlier been attending English-language classes illegally, were transferred to French schools after the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal bowed to pressure from the Quebec government to conform with regulations in the province's French language charter.

CBC continues homosexual ad ban

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC has decided to stick to its policy of refusing all public service announcements from homosexual organizations, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission was told Wednesday.

Mike Johnston of the Canadian Lesbian and Gay Rights Coalition said this is a case of discrimination based on sexual orientation and asked the commission to order the CBC to carry the free-time messages of homosexual groups advertising meetings and social events.

Throne speech

last June.

HAD TIMETABLE

The government originally hoped to enact changes to the Senate and Supreme Court of Canada and entrench a charter of human rights by July 1, 1979, and then enact changes to the distribution of powers July 1, 1981.

The throne speech reiterated the government's intention not to change the role of the monarch in its constitutional reforms.

"There is no intention to change or to reduce in any way the role of Her Majesty plays."

On the economic front, the government reiterated plans announced during the summer along with a $2.5 billion spending reduction by April 6, 1980.

The government said the cuts will allow it to help private business stimulate economic growth and to shift public funds from lower priority programs to industrial expansion and job creation.

Among specific government plans reiterated in the throne speech were:

— Re-introduction of legislation to tie maximum public service wage increases to average boosts in the private sector, a move hotly denounced by government employees.

— Introduction of legislation to make the post office a Crown corporation.

— Paring the unemployment insurance program by $580 million and redirecting the money into job creation and training.

As written, the speech read: "Our faith in the future of Canada is stronger than it has ever been."

But Leger, perhaps conscious that the phrase implied a change in attitude, altered it to read: "Our faith in the future of Canada is very, very strong today."

It was the only alteration he or his wife Gaby made in the 3,000-word speech delivered in the Senate.

Leger's five-year term ends next Jan. 14.

Leger adds a personal touch

OTTAWA (CP) — Throne speeches, used by the government to preview policies at the opening of new parliamentary sessions, traditionally are read by the Queen or her Canadian representative, the governor-general, as written.

But Wednesday, as he read parts of what will probably be his last throne speech, Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger departed briefly from the prepared text.

Montreal MD reaps reward

MONTREAL (CP) — Fourteen years ago, American-born Dr. Herbert Jasper set out to reduce the gap between English- and French-Canadians in the medical world.

This week he tasted the fruits of his efforts. The Canadian Association of French-Language Doctors, numbering 1,000 members, awarded him its prize for scientific research.

"I am very happy," Jasper said in an interview with The Canadian Press. "There is no recognition I could hope for that would touch me more."

Jasper, who came here from New York in 1938, worked at the Montreal Neurological Institute, affiliated with McGill University, for 26 years before transferring in 1964 to Quebec's largest French-language university, the University of Montreal.

He dates his decision to work at setting up a French-language equivalent of the McGill institute from the time when Quebec terrorists started planting bombs in Westmount, a posh residential area in Montreal where leading English-speaking families have traditionally lived.

"I told myself that if one of us from McGill went to the University of Montreal... that might convince francophones that all the English were not devils," said Jasper, who became a Canadian citizen in 1943.

short notes...

Tremblay's leg heals

SHERBROOKE (BP) — Pierre Tremblay won't be dancing for a few more days but at least he is a lot closer to it than he has been for the last four weeks.

The Beavers' defenceman was sidelined during a pre-season contest in Chicoutimi on Sept. 12 and had his left leg put in a cast to allow injured ligaments to heal. The plaster came off Tuesday morning though the 19-year-old won't be back on the Sherbrooke bench before Nov. 1.

Tremblay said his leg was very weak from being inactive for a month and it is expected that he won't begin to practice with the team for another two weeks. He will be taking daily physiotherapy to regain his strength.

There is still no word from Mario Chartrand, the Hull player traded to Sherbrooke for Chuck Tuplin and Luc Locas last Saturday. Coach Ghislain Delage says the next move is left to Chartrand - to let Sherbrooke management if he will remain retired from junior hockey or if he will return to the Beavers to finish out the season.

An important meeting between the Beavers and the Sherbrooke Saints Junior 'A' directors today to hopefully being around a conclusive understanding between the clubs. The entente was strained earlier this season when players, property of the Beavers but playing with the Saints, were being jostled back and forth between the two leagues, causing tension. The differences may be resolved this afternoon.

Allaire charged

NICE, France (Reuter) — Pierre-Desire Allaire, a top figure in the French trotting world who trained and drove horses owned by film stars and pop singers, was charged Wednesday with swindling and infringing gambling laws, his lawyer said.

Allaire, 44, was flown to nearby Grasse to be arraigned following two days of interrogation by police gaming experts in Paris, the lawyer said.

Police sources also said other leading trainers were being questioned in connection with allegations of race-fixing at Riviera tracks, particularly at nearby Cagnes-sur-Mer.

QMJHL roundup

Shawinigan Cataractes edged Cornwall Royals 5-4 in one of two Quebec Major Junior Hockey League games Wednesday night.

Montreal Juniors edged Quebec Remparts 3-2 in the other contest.

Benoit Desjardins, Sylvain Boute, Sylvain St. Pierre, Pierre Dumouchel and Gary Ryan each scored one goal for the Cataractes, while Peter Haramis, Dan Daoust, Mike Corrigan and Rod Willard scored for the Royals.

In Quebec City, Denis Savard, Jean-Pierre Dubois and Denis Tremblay got goals for the Juniors. Guy Riel and Claude Lafontaine scored for the Remparts.

In QMJHL play tonight, Chicoutimi Saguenéens travel to Cornwall and Laval Nationals play at Montreal.

Sports transactions

Boston Bruins acquire defenceman Mark Suzor from Colorado Rockies for centre Clayton Pachal, then send Suzor to Rochester Americans of American Hockey League.

New York Rangers send left winger Frank Beaton to New Haven Nighthawks of the AHL; centre Wayne Dillon and defencemen Don Awrey to minor leagues.

Vancouver Canucks send defenceman Jeff Bandura to Dallas of Central Hockey League.

OILERS, JETS TIE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Edmonton Oilers and Winnipeg Jets rounded out their pre-season schedules Wednesday night with a 4-4 overtime tie before a sparse crowd of 5,128.

The Jets' ended up with an exhibition record of two wins, three losses, and three ties. The Oilers overall record—including European matches—was five wins, four losses and three ties.

Leftwinger Morris Lukowich fired a pair of goals for the Jets, while Bobby Guindon and Steve West added singles.

Edmonton marksmen were Ron Chipperfield, Dave Semenko, Stan Wier and Paul Shmyr.

Chipperfield's power play tally opened the scoring at 3:45 of the first period. Eight minutes later Semenko made it 2-0.

Lukowich's first goal, at 14:01, came on a power play.

Late in the second period West set up a Jets goal on a perfect pass directly from the faceoff circle to Lukowich, who drilled a shot from 30 feet out. West scored one of his own earlier in the period on a pass from Barry Long.

Weir and Shmyr gave the Oilers a 4-3 lead early in the third period and it looked as though it would stand up until Guindon got the equalizer with a 15-footer from directly in front of the net at 15:37.

Both teams had golden scoring opportunities during the fast-moving 10-minute overtime period.

Oiler goalie Ed Walsh stopped 27 shots, while Jets netminder Markus Mattsson stopped 34 drives.

Edmonton was assessed five minor penalties and two majors, while the Jets had six minors, two majors, and a misconduct.

Dodgers lead World Series 2-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Cey drove in four runs with a single and a homer, and rookie Bob Welch came out of the bullpen in the ninth inning to save the victory as Los Angeles Dodgers defeated New York Yankees 4-3 Wednesday night in the second game of baseball's 75th World Series.

The come-from-behind victory gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series which switches to New York for the third game Friday night when Don Sutton is scheduled to pitch for Los Angeles against New York ace Ron Guidry.

Cey, who drove in the first Los Angeles run with a fourth-inning single, turned the game around in his next at-bat in the sixth. He drilled a 2-0 pitch from Catfish Hunter into the left-centre field seats with two men aboard.

It was the second time Cey had tagged Hunter for a Series home run. He also connected last year in the second game of the Series. In that game, the Dodgers began their string of seven consecutive Series games in which they have hit at least one homer. That is two short of the Series record set by the Yankees in 1936-37.

Welch replaced reliever Terry Forster in the ninth inning with one out and runners on first and second. Welch got Thurman Munson on a soft liner to right field for the second out and then ended the game by getting Reggie Jackson—who had driven in all three Yankees runs—to strike out on a 3-2 pitch.

Jackson fouled off four pitches before Welch fanned him on a swinging strike, sending the roaring Dodger Stadium crowd to its feet in ovation for the rookie right-handed pitcher.

Cey's three-run homer in the sixth put the Dodgers in front 4-2, but the Yankees came back in their next turn at bat. Roy White's second hit of the game knocked out Los Angeles starter Burt Hooton, and Forster, who had saved the Series opener for Tommy John, marched in from the bullpen.

Pinch-hitter Paul Blair tagged his first pitch for a double, but then Forster retired the next three batters—striking out Munson and Graig Nettles on three pitches each.

Sandwiched around the strikeouts was an infield grounder by Jackson that delivered the third Yankees run. Jackson also had driven home the first two New York runs with a third-inning double that staked Hunter to an early 2-0 lead.

Jackson's RBIs increased his career Series total to 19, tying him for 13th place on the all-time Yankees list.

New York stung Hooton early and reached the right-hander, who depends on the deceptive knuckle-curve, for two runs in the third.

With one out, White singled and then stole second after Gary Thomasson—part of a patchwork New York lineup forced by injuries to three regulars—flew out.

Munson walked on a 3-2 pitch and Jackson then slashed Hooton's next pitch into the rightfield corner for a double. Reggie Smith had trouble retrieving the hit, and Munson scored all the way from first, barely evading the tag by Dodgers catcher Steve Yeager, who lunged late with Smith's throw.

Hunter, the crafty veteran, pitched easily through the first three innings. He retired the first eight batters he faced, but trouble arrived in the fourth.

Bill Russell opened with a single to left but was forced by Smith. Then Nettles made a brilliant diving stop on Garvey's shot inside the third-base line. His throw to first was too late to catch Garvey, but the play saved a double and a run when Cey followed with an RBI single to centre.

With the crowd of 55,982 fans roaring in anticipation of a big inning, Hunter bailed out of trouble. On a 3-2 pitch to Dusty Baker, the Dodgers played hit-and-run, trying to stay out of the double play.

But the strategy backfired when Baker bounced to third baseman Nettles, who tagged Garvey and threw to first for the rally-killing double play.

That made the score 4-2 and set the stage for a few tense moments.

First, there was Forster, coming out of the bullpen in the seventh to escape a jam. Then there was the drama of Welch's ninth-inning performance against Munson and Jackson, the meat of the Yankees batting order.

Grand Prix kinks

Swept up by the euphoria of Gilles Villeneuve's triumphant homecoming last weekend, one might be led to believe the Canadian Grand Prix at Ile Notre Dame came off without a hitch.

True, it ranked right alongside an Alouettes' Grey Cup victory or a Stanley Cup win by the Canadiens for the sheer outpouring of fan affection toward the local hero but there are still some kinks to be ironed out by Grand Prix organizers.

Pat Delorme, a racing fan from Cowansville who took in part of the Sunday spectacle, would be the first to agree with the assessment. The Perils of Pauline seem like kid stuff after her experience at the Grand Prix site Sunday.

With $20 ticket already in hand for the great race, she set out at mid-morning for Ile Notre-Dame, requiring just under an hour to reach the congested parking lot.

"They claim there was parking for 5,000 cars but the way they were placing them they probably squeezed in an extra few thousand."

That shouldn't come as a great shock, considering the fact officials had stamped $5 over the normal $2 fee for an Ile Notre-Dame parking stub. No wonder the police department advised everyone before the event to go by Metro.

But at least Ms. Delorme had ample opportunity to fume over this timely piece of price gouging. It was, after all, more than a skip and a jump to the race-track and bleacher H as indicated on her ticket.

Still, she was understandably at a loss for words, when, checking her watch she noted that getting from the parking lot to her intended destination consumed as much time as travelling from Cowansville to the Jacques-Cartier Bridge.

There was more bad news awaiting her when she arrived at Bleacher H. Since there were no ticket attendants to verify seat numbers customers perched, to a large extent, where they pleased. Even a few holders of $10 standing-room tickets managed to squeeze into Bleacher H.

Above her, a guy who had motored from Florida to witness the first Canadian Grand Prix grumbled, "all those miles just for this!"

Accustomed to the Grand National circuit down south he felt as though his pocket was being picked when a Formula One car streaked by the corner, offering little more than a split-second glimpse.

And, like most people, he wasn't enamored with the sub-freezing temperatures which accompanied the Grand Prix. You don't mind emptying your wallet if a suntan's included in the bargain but it's less pleasant with the prospect of catching pneumonia.

"Why can't they have it before the month of October?" he bellowed. "Of all the times to stage an event like the Grand Prix."

Meanwhile, tired, frustrated, and chilled, Ms. Delorme made what was undoubtedly her wisest decision of the day. Glancing at her watch she noted that there was still enough time to return home before the televised showing of the race.

So, at precisely 2 p.m., about $30 poorer but decidedly wiser, she flicked on the old tube and watched the Villeneuve heroics from the best seat in the house — literally and figuratively.

"Next time I'll know what they can do with their Grand Prix," she offered as a parting comment.

Hopefully, Grand Prix officials will also be more aware of what they can do to make the event a touch more comfortable for the paying fan.

The CBC sure didn't do its bit for national unity during the Alouettes-Roughriders game in Regina last Sunday.

The cameras from our national network saw fit to focus on a crudely-designed banner concocted by one of the local yokels depicting a rugged football player strangling a frog.

The caption, which the cameras showed for only a split second, urged the Roughriders to choke those bloody frogs, with the intent of the message having decidedly political overtones.

I can't buy the theory coming from some circles that the Canadiens can't unload Pierre Bouchard because it would bring a howl of protest from the club's French-speaking following.

The guy who probably would have replaced "Butch" had he remained with the Washington Capitals — Gilles Lupien — would have made them forget Bouchard rather quickly.

Robust, unhesitating when it comes to dropping the gloves, and constantly improving defensively, he may yet relegate Bouchard to the bench before the season's long advanced.

Sherbrooke Beavers may be out to duplicate the Expos' unenviable record in one-run games last season. Three of the Beavers' four losses to date have been by one goal.

ETIAC roundup...

LENNOXVILLE (ME) — Alexander Galt Regional High swept Bishop's College School in girls' soccer action yesterday at BCS. Sue Guille, Maureen Patrick, Jocelyn Smith and Kristine Goulet scored for AGRHS seniors as they recorded a 4-2 win. Jill Badger scored twice for BCS. Galt juniors blanked BCS 5-0, sparked by the two-goal performance of Jane Lynch. Others counting for AGR were Sally Bishop, Sanya Page and Karen Dobson. In the bantam match, Galt completed the sweep with a 2-0 shutout. Susan Moore and Karen Littlejohn netted the goals.

In ETIAC senior football play, BCS recorded their first league victory of the season as they upended Massey-Vanier Regional 24-19. Touchdown scorers for BCS were Mike Jarrett, Brian Bell, David Molson and Brent Dorion. AGRHS walloped BCS 24-0 in junior play on TDs by John Fletcher, John Coulter and Troy Kerr. Larry Morgan added three converts and a field goal.

Massey-Vanier blanked AGR 2-0 in an ETIAC field hockey match in Cowansville. Richmond Regional High soccer seniors downed Stanstead College 3-1 on three markers by A. Patrick. Ron Mezey replied for Stanstead. In a Tuesday game, Stanstead edged AGRHS seniors 1-0 on a goal by Dave Kreuger.

In exhibition action, Bishop's-Champlain field hockey team defeated BCS 3-0 and BCS bantam boys soccer squad dropped a 3-1 contest to West Island College from Montreal.

Top four clubs still dominate WHA

The World Hockey Association, a league many people predicted wouldn't survive to celebrate its first anniversary, begins its seventh season Friday with seven teams playing a 26-week schedule.

It will be 26 weeks mainly to determine the playoff pairings since there's little doubt which four teams will qualify for the post-season play.

Defending champion Winnipeg Jets, Quebec Nordiques, Edmonton Oilers and New England Whalers should capture the bulk of the points. The remaining three clubs—Cincinnati Stingers, Indianapolis Racers and Birmingham Bulls—don't appear able to provide much opposition.

The financial stability of the four strong organizations in the WHA has been reflected on the ice where Winnipeg, Quebec, Edmonton and New England dominate the game.

But their efforts have been hampered by the remaining three clubs that created more controversy this summer by signing under-age junior players.

Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Birmingham all went after the under-age players. The biggest signing was that of Wayne Gretzky, 17, by Indianapolis owner Nelson Skalbania.

But the most signings were by Birmingham owner John Bassett who signed six youngsters.

While those clubs were creating more problems with the under-age signings, the four strong teams strengthened their positions by grabbing some of the NHL's prize draft picks, and they attacked the heart of the league—Montreal Canadiens.

Montreal lost its top five selections: Dave Hunter and Ron Carter to Edmonton, Dale Yakiwchuk to Winnipeg and Richard Davis and Dan Geoffrion to Quebec.

WHA clubs will again play European teams with points counting in the regular standings and the WHA all-star team will play a three-game series in mid-January against the Soviet Union.

After being jilted by the NHL for the third straight year, the WHA owners took steps to consolidate their own league and while it appears to have created a strong four-way battle, there are question marks on most teams.

QUEBEC: The Nordiques will again be carried largely by their offensive guns, with veterans Marc Tardif, Chris Bordeleau and Real Cloutier leading the way. Providing them with adequate support will be Geoffrion and David. But the shooters will have to adjust to a new system under coach Jacques Demers who stresses defence. In an effort to strengthen the defence, the Nordiques' weakness the last few seasons, they obtained Dale Hoganson and Rod Langway from Birmingham and traded for goaltender Levasseur from the Whalers. Otherwise, it's a set team.

INDIANAPOLIS: The Racers have added some scoring punch with the acquisition of former Aero Don Larway, and the stabilizing influence off the ice of former player Pat Stapleton could make a difference. The development of Gretzky could be a key to the Racers' season although it doesn't seem likely that a 17-year-old will make a drastic improvement to an otherwise weak club.

BIRMINGHAM: "Basset's Babies" will all have to show remarkable, and almost instant, maturity and adjustment to make the Bulls a respectable entry.

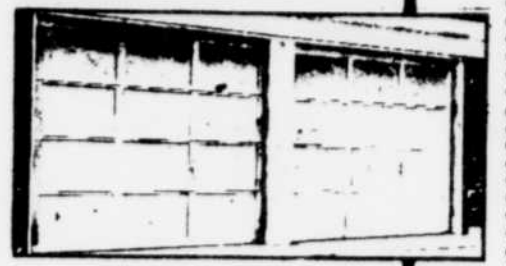

Without the likes of Ken Linseman, Frank Beaton, Gilles Bilodeau and Steve Durbano, the Bulls aren't likely to recreate the bench-clearing problems of last season. The Bulls are made up mostly of under-age juniors, unwanted free agents and a handful of veterans, including Peter Marini and Paul Henderson.
