Dinner theatre planned for Knowlton's Lakeview House

By John McCaghey

KNOWLTON (JM) — Brae Manor Theatre has long closed its doors and the Lakeview House has been closed for seven years, depriving the community of cultural and other activities. But this will soon be remedied when the hotel, which originally opened in 1874, gets a facelift leading to the advent of dinner theatre.

Ron Blair, a self-avowed history buff, bought the Lakeview and intends eventually to restore it to its original grandeur. Emma Stevens, more than a theatre buff, will look after the staging and production of the full gamut of entertainment which will probably begin in mid-August.

"I've always been interested in photographing old buildings, graveyards, in fact my current project is shooting the graves of all the former Prime Ministers of Canada," Blair explained. "The Lakeview is a historic place and I have a flair for renovating so I thought I'd like to save it for history's sake as it was a shame to see it falling apart what with Knowlton being the hub of the Townships."

BECAME REASONABLE

"I approached the owners about three years ago and they wanted first class money for a run-down building; however, the price finally became reasonable and I bought it," Blair said. "Even so the restorations are going to cost some $250,000 over my original estimates. I definitely want the exterior returned as close as possible to its Victorian beauty."

Blair's critical path calls for reopening on July 1, but the possibility of interruptions due to the current construction contractual problems may cause some delays.

Blair said one of the first items on the agenda was the installation of a first class dining room, "something sadly lacking in Knowlton today," as well as a pub-type back bar with pub-type food — no disco, thank you very much. He envisions the possibility of serving dinner in the theatre as well as in the dining room, but the certainty will be excellent food coupled with top flight entertainment.

Enter Emma Stevens who graduated from the Guildford School of Acting in Surrey, U.K., which was affiliated with the Yvon Arnaud School of Theatre. She paid her dues in small productions, eventually made it to London's West End where she was an understudy, then finally landed the lead in "There's a Girl in my Soup".

FOLLOWED HUSBAND

Married and with a child in tow she followed her former husband to Knowlton. The move did nothing to dispel her love for the theatre and from that emerged the Knowlton Youth Group's production of "Jesus Christ Superstar". It was a hit and this resulted in the formation of the adult Lac Brome Theatre Group who performed "Play On" during the winter carnival to the delight of both the audience and cast.

Devoid of makeup, stage or otherwise, her eyes sparkled in anticipation of the re-opening of the Lakeview and its theatre. "We're planning two or three shows weekly over the year and they'll range from comedy to the bizarre, remembering we will be limited by the size and area of the stage and its facilities," Emma explained.

"We will certainly be using amateurs for three or four shows a year but to survive we have to have professional actors," Emma concluded.

All that remains of the Lakeview is the shell today but workers, local and as talented as available, are getting ready to jack it and level it, then get on with the interior restoration. Blair set the first phase as completion of the ground floor for 1986, the second storey bedrooms will come in 1988 and the third storey possibly by 1990. One of the side-effects of the gutting was finding a full pack of Turret cigarettes with a contest coupon calling on the owner to return it by the end of August 1932.

Back in the 1870s four-legged horse power was the way and things won't have changed too much over the years. Blair said the coach house would be restored and the Lakeview would provide horses and carriages for wedding bridal parties with the driver in suitable livery. Another flashback to a bygone era will be afternoon tea in the Lakeview dining room.

"The lakeview used to be the centre of all the activities in town with service club meetings and the like and I intend to see that happen again with the community's interest in mind," Ron said. "We'll provide a room free of charge to any non-profit organization — all they have to do is put in their own telephone."

Meanwhile as the interviews were going on last weekend, a host of volunteers and friends were out in the sun at an auction to raise funds at the Thirsty Boot with all the proceeds going to amateur theatre. Many a budding actor or actress got the fever and went on to bigger and better things from Brae

Ron Blair... Save it for history's sake.

Manor. Surely history will repeat itself.

Emma Stevens... From comedy to the bizarre.

1983 excellent vintage, but irregular

If you have ventured down to the King West branch of the Société des Alcools this week you will notice in the specialty section a number of Grands Cru Classé wines from the region of Bordeaux. These 1983 "Bordeaux Primeurs" represent a number of excellent Chateaux from the Medoc, St. Emilion, Graves and Pomerol.

Before you turn in your RRSPs however, there are several comments about the 1983 Bordeaux that should be made.

This particular year had, as they say, its ups and downs. June proved to be an excellent month with adequate sun and rain to guarantee a good flowering. July was also good with plenty of sun — in fact temperatures hit record highs. But by August the heat, now combined with too much rain, resulted in a continuing battle with mildew.

For those growers who sprayed

on a regular basis — weekly at times — the mildew proved to be no more than a costly inconvenience since Mother Nature finally got over her snit, blessing the region with an excellent September and October.

The end result is that 1983 is an excellent vintage but irregular with the Medoc area fairsing better than either St. Emilion, Graves or Pomerol. Or, to put it in the words of Robert Parker, editor and publisher of The Wine Advocate, 1983 was an "... an abundant vintage of very good, sometimes outstanding wines that are quite large-scaled in size and weight."

To find out which wines turned out well and which didn't, you will have to purchase a good guide to the region such as Parker's own Bordeaux. In short, caveat emptor, which translates roughly as "Don't buy what you don't know."

In another direction entirely, I tried a bottle of Casal Mendes Rosé this week ($6.35 per litre) which only reinforced my belief that summer-time drinking is best done with Portuguese wines — red, rosé or white. I haven't had a bottle of this lightly-bubbling refresher in some time now but it was everything I remembered and more. Good as an aperitif, it will also serve as an excellent accompaniment to a barbecue, a picnic or that mid-day-after-the-lawn-cutting sandwich you so richly deserve. Cheers!

Rock Island to put on a real steamy show May 23-25

By Laurel Sherrer

ROCK ISLAND—As organizers pick up steam for their second annual International Steam Meet May 23 to 25 in Rock Island, the steam nuts are popping up all over to take part in the weekend event.

"We're finding more and more of them," said Ann Kasowski, coordinator of Heritage Technologies, the non-profit organization putting on the event. "We started off with competitors from the Three Villages and northern New England, and now we have groups coming from Montreal, Trois Rivières and the Beauce, so I think our network is spreading."

Sunnyside Elementary School at 100 Main St. in Rock Island is the headquarters for the events, but they will also take in a good part of Rock Island, Stanstead and Beebe (the Three Villages), Derby Line, Vt., and even parts of Lake Memphremagog and Newport.

THREE DISCIPLINES

The main focus of the three-day event is steam technology and it's the only event in North America that features cars, boats and stationary equipment (such as engines to run saw mills and farm machinery) all powered by steam.

Highlights of the celebration include a steamboat race on Lake Memphremagog from the Cedarville Wharf to Newport; a parade featuring steam cars, vintage cars and horses; a hill climb competition for steam cars and a slo-race.

There are also technical sessions on steam technology for steam buffs or anyone with mechanical inclinations.

The steam meet came about as the result of discussions among a group of people who were interested in making the heritage of Rock Island and the surrounding area into something that will provide for the future of the community by attracting tourists.

Howard Smith and Valerie Cerini, owners of the weekly Stanstead Journal newspaper, were thinking first of preserving the historical printing equipment endangered when their building was damaged by fire in 1983.

"We can't afford to open a museum," said Cerini, and besides, they wouldn't want to be a constant burden to the town and the government "as museums tend to be unless they're extremely popular."

GENERATE REVENUE

They would like to set up a working print shop that would bring in some revenue through its printed products at the same time as it demonstrates how printing was done in earlier times.

Their project expanded to include other technologies such as photography and steam engines as they encountered hobbyists with knowledge in the historical aspects of each.

The steam meet is only one step in a long-term project to make the whole town a tourist attraction with perhaps a whole street of old-time businesses, or several of these businesses spread about the town. The period Heritage Technologies would like to recreate is 1924, said Smith, because it seemed to be a turning point in many fields. The look of the newspaper, for example, changed drastically.

A steam meet seemed an appropriate way to start raising money and awareness of the project.

FIRST CAR

Steam has a special place in the history of the region, Kasowski explained. Henry Seth Taylor, a local resident, invented what could have been the first car in North America, in 1865. One was apparently built in Ohio in 1861, but "expert opinion has it that it never went anywhere."

Taylor's steam buggy ended up in the Museum of Science and Technology in Ottawa, and Heritage Technologies wants to keep this kind of thing from happening in the future. They would like to see artifacts from the area stay in the area.

Smith and Cerini believe the town can be rejuvenated by catering to tourists. "It's a town where they could adapt very well to having lots of people through, and I think they'd be very good at it," said Cerini.

The steam meet opens Friday,

May 23 with entertainment at Sunnyside. For $2 you can see the Alexander Galt High School senior band, magician Brent Cairns, the stage band from North Country Union High School in Newport, Vt. playing big band era music, Irish and Scottish folk music by Pendragon and the Three Villages choral group La Brise. The Humphrey Bogart movie African Queen is also included.

CRUISE DOWN LAKE

The steam boat race goes on Saturday morning and guests can cruise down the Memphremagog on the Aventure II to watch the race and have brunch at The Landing restaurant in Newport at the finish.

Saturday afternoon there will be exhibits of stationary steam equipment and a tour of the local granite industry.

There will be a barbeque Saturday night at Sunnyside followed by a bonfire and free entertainment.

Throughout both Saturday and Sunday an arts and crafts sale at Sunnyside will feature everything from ceramics to lawn mowers.

A parade that includes steam cars and vintage cars leaves Stanstead College at 1 p.m. Sunday and travels to Derby Line, Vt. On the way back, the steam cars will compete in a hill climb on Main St. in Rock Island. They will then proceed to the Stanstead College soccer field for a slo-race, with the object of seeing how slowly they can cross the field without stalling.

A hot supper of casseroles and lasagna, followed by square- and round-dancing and more technical sessions will round off the weekend.

For more specific schedule information, or to reserve tickets, you can call Ann Kasowski at (819) 876-5057.

Wiseguy depicts scope and power of crime families

Wiseguy by Nicholas Pileggi (SIMON & SCHUSTER — GENE-RAL): $24.95, 256 pp.

If the outrageous scams, savage whacking of enemies and traitors, and descriptions of the lives of the street-smart hoods ("wiseguys") found in Nicholas Pileggi's book were encountered in a work of fiction they would be dismissed as unbelievable examples of an imagination run wild.

Wiseguy is not a fictional account of the organized crime families of New York City in the Godfather vein, but rather a confession of a wiseguy named Henry Hill, who at the age of 11 wandered into a seedy cabstand in the Brownsville-East New York section of Brooklyn looking for a part-time job. Twenty-five years later, in May of 1980, Hill was granted an entirely new identity for himself and his family and relocated somewhere in America, in repayment for his co-operation in testifying for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with a massive drug conspiracy and information he was able to provide about the $6 million Lufthansa German Airlines robbery, the largest successful cash heist in American history. His story, related by writer Pileggi through Hill's own recollections and those of his wife Karen and others, such as the detectives who finally nailed Hill, reads with all of the compelling interest of the best crime novels.

Henry Hill's indoctrination into the small but varied sphere of interest controlled by Paul Vario, one of the movers and shakers of New York's five organized-crime families, began at the Euclid Avenue Taxicab and Limousine Service. Here he encountered "horse-players, lawyers, bookies, hand-cappers, ex-jockeys, parole violators, construction workers, union officials, local politicians, truck drivers, bookmakers, policy runners, bail bondsmen, out-of-work waiters, loan sharks, off-duty cops, and even a couple of hit men from the old Murder Incorporated days."

In unemotional, matter-of-fact prose, Henry Hill relates astounding tales about living from hit to hit, about hustling cigarettes and other contraband from hi-jacked tractor-trailers, about spending fat wads of dirty money with scarcely a thought about its origin, and the practice of using his family apartment as a clearing house for every conceivable kind of "hot" merchandise.

The thievery, number collecting, extortion and protection money hustles, even the shaving of points on college basketball games, seem like innocent fun for the wiseguys compared to the cold-blooded savagery of the killings that Hill witnessed or had a blemished hand in. Mugs are whacked in bars as they sit carousing with their friends, in cars as they sit with their girlfriends, or in holding cells before they can squeal on their fellow crooks, and Henry Hill can recount these brutal slayings with a toneless precision that suggests that they were just part of the price of being a wiseguy.

Kaleidoscope

In addition to the inside stories about the way the big families did "business" Wiseguy is also a remarkable account of the scope and power of the major crime families. The cargo thefts at Kennedy Airport, including the disappearance of $2.2 million in cargo stolen in ten months of 1967, and the daring Air France robbery, when $480,000 was removed from the air cargo warehouses, should give readers an indication as to why American insurance rates are at all-time highs. Wiseguy is a surprisingly candid, frighteningly authentic portrait of the underside of American city life that will be ranked with The Valachi Papers, The Godfather and Serpico as books that should be read by anyone attempting to understand the psyche of the criminal mind.

RECORD REVIEWS

John Eddie JOHN EDDIE (COLUMBIA)

Richmond, Virginia native John Eddie, who has been playing the East Coast club circuit for the past half a decade, has been teamed with a formidable studio gang for the debut album that bears his own name. Produced by Bill Drescher (Rick Springfield, Jules Shear), Eddie's record gets away to a rubber-burning, screamin' start with a couple of dynamite tracks. "Dream House" is a strong bet for a single to follow "Jungle Boy", but the ultimate rocking track here has to be "Pretty L'il Rebel". With some raunchy guitar work from Nils Lofgren guesting on the track, and piano playing from Faces veteran Ian MacLagan, "Rebel" is a driving, dirty track with a Springsteen style of vocal and a great hook.

A relatively unknown performer like John Eddie is not often accorded the kind of musicianship support that is found on this record — in addition to the presence of MacLagan & Lofgren, David Lindley plays guitars, violin and dobro, while Max Weinberg sits in on drums, with Phil Chen on bass. With the backing tracks well covered all that's left is for John Eddie to monopolize the microphone with some commanding vocal lines. He does, and the recording that obtains is an equal blend of rock expertise from seasoned pros who join forces with a raw, young fiery talent who shows great promise of becoming an artist who'll be heard from in the immediate future.

John Lennon *LIVE IN NEW YORK CITY (CAPITOL)

The young generation that is currently trying to sort out the hype from the reality regarding the Beatles, and those naysayers who perhaps feel that the Liverpool quartet was merely a band that the guy in Wings used to have, should buy this John Lennon album. After hearing the Plastic Ono Elephants Memory Band and the tracks such as "New York City", "Instant Karma" or "mother", that listener should be urged to plop any of the Beatles numerous albums onto the turntable and make a comparison. The magic that the Beatles had is never as glaringly noticeable as it is when any of their tracks are compared to Lennon's desperate attempts to bring it all back home with the many combinations of musicians he employed to inject some life into the show he and Yoko Ono passed off as rock and roll. This band, with only Jim Keltner the L.A. studio vet on drums a recognizable name, just does not have anything going for it. Tracks such as "Hound Dog", or even the Beatles' Abbey Road cut "Come Together" just fail to get into any kind of a groove despite Lennon's attempts to resuscitate these songs.

Despite Lennon's attempts to float a few of Yoko's strident causes on the wings of song, the only thing that is half decently listenable on this live set is a version of "Imagine", but even this track doesn't come anywhere near the poignancy of the original recording. Hearing a Lennon Ono Ensemble band of any stripe is testimony to the fact that in comparison McCartney's Wings conglomerates, in almost any manifestation but particularly the Denny Laine edition, sound like genuine, exciting rock and roll bands.

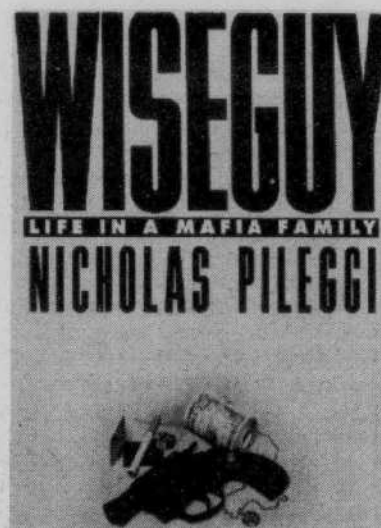

Stan Meissner WINDOWS TO LIGHT (A&M)

Recorded at the secluded Morin Heights studios north of Montreal, under the assistant-direction of Fred Mollin, who co-wrote six of the nine tracks here, Stan Meissner's latest album reveals that he is slowly maturing as an artist. The music is mellow, beautifully mixed tracks with the emphasis on vocal arrangements, with more than a few echoes of fine country rock bands like Poco, the Eagles and their ilk coming through in the harmonies and guitar arrangements. Of note are Meissner's easy-flowing lead guitar lines on songs such as "Lifeline", where his light touch blends perfectly with the multi-tracked vocal lines that fill this album with such laid back, richly-mixed compositions. If anything, the Meissner style is so comfortably listenable that it might have been profitable to include a real jolter of a track just for a change of pace from the hypnotic predictability of these songs. With Meissner's predictability at least the expectation is that one good track follows another, with really no fillers on this album at all. He's another strong Canadian performer poised on the brink of larger successes.

VIDEO SCREENINGS
COCOON (CBS-FOX VIDEO)

For a while there is looked as if the kids were going to have all the fun with delightful but odd-looking extraterrestrial creatures like E.T., R2D2 and C3PO, as Hollywood plumbed the deep pockets of younger moviegoers with a rash of Star Wars clones, space odysseys and extra-galactic visitors. Then along comes young film-maker Ron Howard with a heart-warming, delightful movie that moves the younger folk out and gives centre stage to an inspired group of senior citizens in Cocoon, in a story that plays with the outer-space themes, the dilemma of aging and a few other very pertinent topics of current interest.

Don Ameche was rightfully nominated for an academy award for his spirited performance as a member of a group of aging citizens of St. Petersburg, Florida who happen upon a swimming pool adjacent to their Senior Citizen's condo unit which has amazing properties and leads them into an exciting and unpredictable adventure. Steve Gutenberg plays a zany, young skipper of a charter fishing boat who falls head over heels in love with the fetching newcomer to films with the hauntingly familiar face — Tawnee Welch, offspring of the inimitable Raquel. The younger Welch doesn't really need the special effects of the character she plays to light up the screen with a dazzling presence, and she has one of those remarkable faces that shout "star" with each easy smile in her small but noticeable role in Cocoon. This film brings some remarkably gifted elder statesmen of the stage to the screen, such as Canada's Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy, who work well with Ameche in a movie that is as noteworthy for its subject matter as it is for its fine performances.

Granby courthouse series

Young artists show professional skill

By Merritt Clifton

GRANBY — Frelighsburg painter Jacques Lajeunesse cancelled out of his scheduled two-week exhibit at the Granby courthouse. That means 30 student artists will hang two weeks longer, until May 23, and that's good news for anyone who hasn't dropped by the courthouse yet, because the kids are all right.

The 30 students were selected from classes at local CEGEPs and high schools by three veteran art instructors, and hung by Marie Desranleau of Communications Quebec, the young woman whose vision has transformed the courthouse lobby into a gallery. The student artists range in age from 12-year-old Stephane Dupuis of Cowansville, to 24-year-old Denise Fontaine of St. Joaquin.

Several of the students are of professional calibre right now. And age isn't a factor. Claudine Gevry, 14, of St. Cecile de Milton is star of this exhibit with her acrylic 'Houses On The Hills.' Appealing composition reminiscent of Grandma Moses and extremely good color sense combine in a painting that could hang anywhere, fetching a fancy price.

Ingrid Hardy, 23, of Granby is also thoroughly professional, presenting her watercolor portrait 'A Girl Of India.' Denis Fontaine leans toward sentimentality, but that trait should help, not hinder, her efforts to earn a living. Isabelle Cote, 18, of Ange-Gardien shows flair for commercial illustration, while 22-year-old Daniel Lemaire of St. Cesaire can cartoon and draw with anyone.

Rock Patenaude, 19, of Granby could be a bit bolder with his colors, in his huge 'Reject The Present', but subtly is an admirable and rather scarce trait in would-be science fiction illustrators. Schaila Mady, 16, of Cowansville shows considerable flair for painting wildlife in her watercolors of elephants and cranes. Genevieve Noel of Bromont, also 16, is inconsistent as yet, but definitely has the knack of figure-drawing.

Twenty-one-year-old Josee Duclos' watercolor of a 19th century shipwreck also indicates a creative future ahead of her.

Other show participants include Sally Scott, 16, Cowansville; Kim Craft, 15, Bedford; Thierry Lessard, 15, Cowansville; Michel Mainville, 15, Cowansville; Chantal Lepage, 17, Cowansville; Isabelle Maillette, 16, Cowansville; David Lavigne, 14, Knowlton; Serge Lavigne, 16, Knowlton; Stephane Dusseault, 15, Knowlton; Nicholas Bachand, 16, Cowansville; Robert Bisailon, Adamsville; Marc Charrier, 15, Sutton; Andre Jacob, 19, Cowansville; Suzanne Leduc, Granby; Anne Jannick Lepine, 19, Adamsville; Sylvie Loiselle, 20, Granby; Nancy Marcoux, 16, Cowansville; Johanne Pitre, Granby; Sylvain Sauvageau, 15, Cowansville; and Danusia Wiazowski, Foster.

Daniel Lemire can cartoon and draw with anyone, as evident in his drawing, 'Boots'.

Author Fielding leads charmed life

By Patti Tasko

TORONTO (CP) — How I Became a Successful Novelist, by Joy Fielding, goes something like this:

Chapter 1 — At age eight, I sent my first story, Hilda the Dancing Star, to Jack and Jill magazine. It was rejected.

Chapter 2 — At age 12, I sent my first script to the CBC. It was rejected.

Chapter 3 — At age 27, I sent my first novel, The Best of Friends, to a New York publisher. It was accepted. I sent them more novels — such as The Other Woman and Life Penalty — and they became best-sellers. I now live happily in my lovely Toronto home with my lawyer husband and two adorable daughters.

Note that years of living in an attic amid swarms of cockroaches and piles of rejections slips — supposedly standard fare for writers — are missing from what appears to be the charmed life of a novelist who writes books about women faced with "everyday" problems such as adultery, childnapping and husbands who desert them.

SEVEN PUBLISHED

At 41, with seven novels behind her — the most recent, The Deep End, was released this spring — she's happy to have more than a million readers, some nice royalty cheques, and the opportunity to continue to write novels that are, as she puts it, somewhere between trash and art.

If there is one dark cloud in all the sunshine that embraces Fielding, it's reviewers who dismiss her books because they are merely a good read.

"It's starting to get on my nerves," complains the slim, lively woman over tea in her huge mid-town Toronto home, generously decorated with modern art and a maid.

"They criticize me more for the book I didn't write than the book I did write. If my first book had been War and Peace, all right, then criticize me for The Deep End.

"But to say, 'Gee, this book is a great read but it's not art ...' well, I'm not writing a serious novel in the sense of 'important' serious."

USED AS FODDER

She has often fallen prey to clever reviewers who use her as fodder for their own repartee. When Kiss Mommy Goodbye, her fourth — but first really successful — novel was published, the Washington Post called it the beauty parlor book of the year, "the perfect thing to read while your hair is drying, a novel uncomplicated by style or grace or subtlety or wit.

"The truth is that most of us want a book like Kiss Mommy Goodbye the way we sometimes want a Slurpee."

Do big paycheques offset the bitchiness of reviewers? Fielding laughs good-naturedly but admits that "when someone says your deepest thoughts are shallow, you start to wonder."

Still, the confident, likable woman is proud of her books.

"They're entertaining; they're hard to put down. I think I have my own little messages. I think I have a certain amount of insight and a few things I'd like to say to people about the human condition."

ALWAYS WROTE

The Toronto-born Fielding, who started life as Joy Tepperman, was, she says, "always the kid who was being asked to read her compositions out loud in English class.

"I just always wrote. I was always good at it."

Sidetracked by dreams of becoming an actress, she moved to Los Angeles after graduating from the University of Toronto and christened herself Fielding, after Henry, the famous English novelist. But she was reduced to working as a bank clerk and came home, her biggest acting triumph a part in TV's Gunsmoke. That's about as depressing as the Joy Fielding Story gets.

A friend in Los Angeles, after reading her diary, predicted she would be a successful writer and she decided to give it a try.

SET IN U.S.

Her first novel, written in five weeks, was published in Canada and New York and was modestly successful. American agents — no Canadians — sought her out. Now she sets all her books in U.S. cities, using street maps for accuracy, "because my editors feel more comfortable with that." About 90 per cent of her audience is American.

She doesn't feel the settings offend her Canadian readers, many of whom don't realize she is Canadian.

"Canadians are used to reading books set somewhere else," she says.

Here comes creeping bilingualism

Well, good old 'Sink' Stevens, former Minister of Industry Trade and Commerce, finally took the honorable way out and resigned from cabinet. 'Sink', you may recall, got himself into a jam when it was revealed that his wife had secured a couple of million in interest-free loans to bail out one of his companies. Unfortunately the money came via connections with a company that had received $60 million or so in government grants given out by guess who's department. Stevens claims he never knew what his wife was doing since all his affairs are in a "blind trust" controlled by the little woman herself.

Using a corollary to the Rodriguez Biron Rule of Conflict of Interest — you remember, "My brother is not a member of my immediate family." — Stevens maintained that there was nothing wrong with his wife merely making a shrewd business deal. I suggest Mulroney should not only fire Stevens but hire his wife to negotiate loans for the federal government.

langue française, have been sounding the alarm ever since the Liberal government returned to power. According to language watchers throughout the province, the English-speaking population is back-sliding and English words are finding their way onto signs, menus and birthday cards at a terrifying rate. Why just this week, restaurant-owner Jim Pezoulas was charged with violation of the province's language law when the words "dry gin, sweet vermouth and breaded veal" crept onto his restaurant's 25-page menu without the French-language equivalents! According to a Canadian Press report, the West Quebec businessman offered the obviously trumped-up excuse that the printers had made an error.

Interviewed at his Hull dungeon, commission representative Jacques Torquemada, denied that his office was in any way carrying out a linguistic vendetta. Said Torquemada, "Today it's 'breaded veal', tomorrow who knows? Give them a syllable and they'll take a sign."

The new Liberal government of Ontario brought down a budget this week that cut the provincial deficit to $1.54 billion — $1.4 billion less than Quebec — with more money for social spending and no tax increases. All done with mirrors you say? Nope. Unlike Quebec, Ontario has decided it doesn't need three civil servants for every citizen, nor does it need a duplication of every federal ministry. Larry Grossman, newly elected leader of the Regressive Preservatives, even complained that the deficit should have been reduced further because the Grits have a $300,000 "slush fund" put aside to pay for election promises. According to Grossman's reasoning, any party that intends to balance the budget and actually make good on promises has no business being in power.

Something Red examines 'where violence is headed'

By Laurel Sherrer

SHERBROOKE — Right on the heels of a La condition des soies, a play that dealt with sexual perversion, transvestism and incest, Le Pigeonnier theatre in Sherbrooke is presenting one that looks into the dynamics of violence and sado-masochism.

The English version of Something Red, by Canadian author Tom Walmsley, has been acclaimed for its originality and disturbing veracity in New York as well as major Canadian cities. The French version has played to full houses every weekend since April 4 in Montreal's Licorne theatre.

The French version of the play will open next Wednesday, May 21 in Sherbrooke.

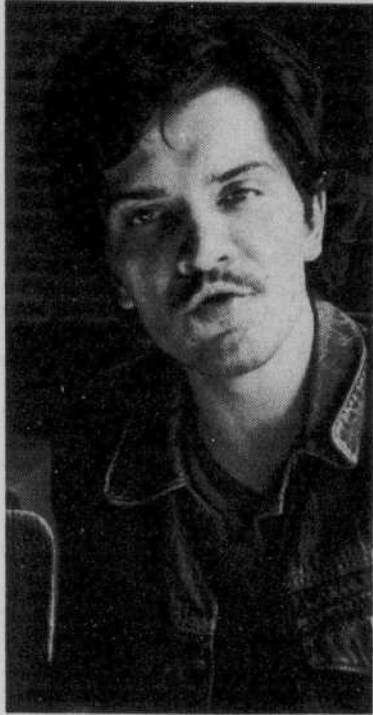

Director Daniel Valcourt agrees with the critics who say the play's violence is bound to shock the audience. But he says it has a purpose.

"I want to provoke people," he said. "I want people to realize just where violence is headed."

"Sometimes we get used to this and I think the goal of Something Red is to make people reflect."

RELATIONSHIPS TORN

The play deals with two couples: Alex and Elizabeth, and Robert and Christine. In the course of a weekend, relationships are torn apart when it's discovered that Elizabeth and Robert have a sado-masochistic relationship going on. As each of their respective partners confronts them, the play becomes a forum for examining how this kind of activity can come about.

Elizabeth has lived a sheltered life and loves to hear of the daring and illegal exploits of Alex and Robert, who are good friends. The two are sort of bums or delinquents who have been involved in numerous small thefts and store hold-ups and have generally lived a debauched lifestyle. At one point Elizabeth says she feels she hasn't really lived, compared to all they've experienced.

Robert is "a teenager that never grew up" said Valcourt; someone who has to try everything and always pushes himself to extremes.

Their sado-masochistic rites give them both the sense of going to the limit.

PLAIN LANGUAGE

Although it dissects relationships, Something Red "is not an intellectual play," said Valcourt. The characters are not psychologists, so they express their feelings in plain, even crude language.

"Walmsley's great strength is just that," said Valcourt. "He talks to the people."

The play has a message for contemporary society, said Valcourt, but it's also a great thriller.

Family drama is deft, humorous and hip

By Bill Anderson

The Canadian Press

Family drama on television often means a sentimental story involving life on a farm, misadventures on a raft or a noble, heroic dog.

But it's 1986, and at least one family drama now involves drug dealers, skinheads and bag ladies. It's called Brothers By Choice, a six-part half-hour series beginning May 19 on CBC.

Produced by Oscar-winning Atlantis Films of Toronto, Brothers by Choice takes the traditional theme of fraternal misunderstanding into modern Vancouver, and emerges with a deft, humorous and hip family-adventure story.

"So many of the stories that come out of this country are farm-related," says producer Seaton McLean. "Yet we are no longer an agricultural society, despite the number of people who still live on farms."

"Most of us are now urban, and it's nice to see a story that has that gritty, downtown, darker side of Canadian life."

ONE ADOPTED

The title for the drama, which has already been sold to the Disney cable channel in the United States, plays on the relationship between two teenage boys, Scott and Brett Forester. Scott was adopted as a baby by the natural parents of Brett, and though the pair are close their differences are clear.

As the story opens on the first day of summer vacation, Scott, played by Yannick Bisson, is doomed to another session of summer school but eager to spend the rest of his time at the marina, pursuing his talents for sailing and boat repair. Brett, played by Charley Higgins, has passed his year with high grades and is hoping to join the local marching band on a tour of Europe.

When the boys arrive home at the end of the day, Scott's disastrous report card is waiting. His father, a doltish disciplinarian, bans Scott from any further sailing until his marks improve, and soon the embittered boy runs away from home to a seedy hotel in downtown Vancouver.

Among the punks, scrags and shaven-headed toughs are two drug dealers, who see Scott as a potential delivery boy. "He'll come around," one dealer says. "They always do."

PANICS AND RUNS

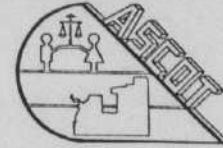

Short of money and anxious to get to his uncle's farm in the B.C. Interior, Scott agrees "just this once" to drop off a packet of cocaine. But on his way to the appointment he panics at the sight of a police cruiser, abandons the dope down a sewer and flees the city with only the clothes on his back.

The next day, as the dealers begin to get threatening calls from jilted customers, Brett gets a tip from a friend about Scott and turns up at the hotel. Brett means well, but he's hopelessly naive and is soon being manipulated by the dealers in their search for the missing boy.

The chase turns to the Interior, and, like a good mystery thriller, the story transforms a background detail into the linchpin of the climax.

It all might sound a little like the Hardy Boys meet Ordinary People, but Atlantis avoids the usual clichés of a young people's adventure story and creates something that anyone can enjoy.

"Flowering Cities, Villages and Countryside" and "Flowering Quebec Houses" contest

Once again, within the activities of the Cities, Villages and Countryside Provincial contest, the Ascot County Corporation is organizing a "Flowering Quebec Houses" local contest.

All owners and tenants residing in Ascot County can register before June 30, in the following categories:

1- BALCONIES, 2- ROCK-GARDENS, 3- LAWNS

During the week of August 18th to the 22nd, a special jury will choose a winner in each category, who will win an amount of $25. and a souvenir plate.

For this occasion, the Club Optimiste Bellevue is organizing a tree, bush, and flower sale, for Saturday and Sunday, May 17th and 18th at Place Belmont, corner of Belvedere and Thibault.

WHAT'S ON

Music

Country Plus has their own little corner tonight from 6 to 10 p.m. at Richmond's Salon de Commerce in the Richmond arena. Saturday evening Richmond Legion on College St. hosts another dance once again with Country Plus, starting at nine until closing.

The Colebrooke House in Colebrooke, N.H. features the country band Weekend Express every Saturday night for the rest of May.

The Salle Jean-Paul in Bury has music by the Nashville Cats with Bob Lasenba tonight, Saturday and Sunday, and next weekend as well.

A Montreal band called Broken Window plays commercial rock music at the Bar Salon Burrough's Falls both tonight and Saturday starting around 10 p.m.

Over at the Shady Crest in Ayer's Cliff, there'll be early style rock and roll Fridays and Saturdays from 9:30 on and Sundays from 3:30 to 9:30 all month long with Johnny Fara-go and Gilles Girard.

Ray St. Laurent and Lyndon Sheldon, otherwise known as the Good Ole Boys, play country music at the Bretagne Bar Salon in Waterville Friday and Saturday nights until the end of May. This Sunday they'll also play for a Victoria Day Dance that starts at 4 p.m.

At the Maples in Stanstead, Whiteliner with Donald Goodsell plays country-western music Fridays and Saturdays until the end of the month.

The Del Monty in Rock Island has a band all the way from British Columbia this weekend. Magazine will play rock music tonight, Saturday and Sunday night from about 10:30 on.

At Jimmy's in Derby Line, Vt., The Bridge plays the latest from ZZ Top, Huey Lewis and Billy Idol. The music starts around 9:30. The following Sunday there will be a big Memorial Day bash there.

Dave Mooney returns to the Burning Log Bistro near Mansonville this Saturday, playing soft rock from the 50s and 60s. Tonight owner Jim Lawrence will provide the musical entertainment.

Both Friday and Saturday night Just Us, featuring James Todd plays country rock at the Bar Salon Chez Ralph in Mansonville.

At the Thirsty Boot in Bolton Pass near Knowlton, Allen Walker and Co. continue to play country-western music Wednesday nights until the end of May. The music starts there at about 9 p.m.

Fridays and Saturdays throughout the month, you'll find the Kon-kordes playing country-western music at Station 88 in South Stukely.

The Sun Set Boys have made themselves at home at the Foster Hotel, and the Foster Hotel doesn't seem to mind. They play their country-rock music Saturday nights.

The Hotel Union in Magog, newly refurbished and looking pretty classy, features Idle Hands Fridays and Saturdays for the rest of the month. They play quite recent rock and roll hits, including lots of ZZ Top, Bryan Adams and Dire Straits, with some snazzy guitar playing, particularly by Bob Boisclair. They also have quite a bit of their own material mixed in.

Ramblin Fever-Bigfoot continues at Hee Haw Country in Magog Fridays and Saturdays until the end of the month.

Schaila Mady's paintings of wildlife are part of a talent-filled exhibition of high school and CEGEP students' artwork in the lobby of the Granby courthouse. See page 5.

By Laurel Sherrer

and starting May 25 The Backroad Band will play there Sunday nights. Moonshine takes over there starting June 6, and June 15 they're going to start having amateur nights with The Backroad Band as back-up. Hee Haw's first anniversary is coming up too, with some kind of celebration planned, so watch for it.

Rock 'n' roll and blues are on the menu at the F.L. Hideaway this weekend with James McDonald. He'll play Friday, Saturday and Sunday night.

The Old Tyme 4 Orchestra plays for the last dance of the season at the Lennoxville Rifle Club tomorrow night.

Theatre

The Pigeonnier theatre in Sherbrooke continues its foray into the hidden, suppressed sides of human nature with the French version of Something Red opening next Wednesday. This play, by Canadian playwright Tom Walmsley, has received favorable reviews in New York and the major Canadian cities it visited, says the director of the French version, Daniel Valcourt. It's a play that deals with violence and sado-masochism, but it also has something to say about liberation. Valcourt has a whole lot more to say about the play in an interview featured on page 7.

Tonight and tomorrow night at the Pigeonnier, you can see La condition des soies by Paris author Annie Zadek. The play takes place in a single evening, in which a father and daughter relive painful memories and delve into the inner recesses of their respective psyches, uncovering incestuous desire, perverse pleasures and transvestism. The ghost-like presence of their dead wife and mother serves as a catalyst to this baring of the soul. You can reserve tickets for this and Something Red by calling (819) 564-2060.

The Alexander Galt production of Arsenic and Old Lace takes to the stage next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Galt auditorium. This Joseph Kesselring comedy revolves around two elderly sisters who believe they're doing their lonely gentlemen callers a favor by putting them out of their misery with poisoned wine. Their nephew Mortimer has to postpone his wedding plans and try to restore sanity to the home when he discovers there are 13 bodies buried in their basement. The plot becomes more complicated and the pace more frantic as his evil brother Jonathan appears on the scene. A lavish set has been designed by John Pille and thoroughly authentic 1940s costumes by Margaret Lowry. Tickets are $4 and you may reserve seats by calling the school between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at (819) 563-0770.

Another event of a different, but nonetheless theatrical nature, starting this week is the Cirque du Soleil. The first show is tonight at 8 p.m. and then there are two shows a day until next Thursday, with the exception of Monday when the performers take a rest. This is a circus that follows the Chinese tradition, with the emphasis on human skill in juggling, tight-rope walking, acrobatics, trapeze artistry and such rather than on the trained animals we're accustomed to seeing in the North American style circus. It includes an international cast whose average age is 25. If you'd like to know the various times you can see the show, and reserve tickets, you can call (819) 565-3231.

Exhibitions/Events

Over 40 black-and-white photographs depicting Anticosti Island between 1853 and 1926 are featured in an exhibition at the National Archives, 740 Galt West in Sherbrooke. Anticosti au temps des Menier shows through photographs how the island in the mouth of the St. Lawrence developed under its dynamic owner, millionaire Henri Menier during this time. The archives are open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Artwork by 31 young artists of the Granby area is featured until May 23 in the lobby of the Granby courthouse, and according to critic Merritt Clifton, there's a lot of talent shown there. You can read his review on page 5.

Ilana Isehayek's work is featured at the Horace Gallery in Sherbrooke until May 25. Isehayek is a Tel Aviv native who now resides in Montreal. Her work is described as incorporating elements of the folk tale and the fairy tale. The gallery, at 906 King West, is open Wednesday to Friday from noon to 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Paintings by Gaston Ricard will be on display at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est gallery until May 30. A press release from the gallery describes Ricard's work as giving a new dimension to very ordinary things through the richness of his colors and use of light. The gallery is accessible during banking hours.

Sculptures and bas-reliefs in bronze as well as watercolors by Uriel are on display at the Auberge Estrimont in Orford (Cherry River) until Sunday. Uriel, born François-Olivier Beaulieu, is fascinated with hieratic, Sumerian and Egyptian art and cuneiform and hieroglyphic symbols. His works will be on display today, tomorrow and Sunday from 2 to 9 p.m.

The Galerie d'Art La Falaise at 56 Wellington North in Sherbrooke is having a vernissage this evening for an exhibition of recent works by Pierrette Trudel and Alan Richardson. Trudel is a self-taught Granby painter whose subjects are people, rendered in delicate colors and often half hidden behind cloaks or hats. Richardson is a romantic realist who often paints Victorian-style people with a background of the English countryside where he was born. This show goes on until May 26.

The work of more than 50 artists from the Townships and Montreal will be auctioned off this Sunday at the Blue Armoire gallery in Dunham this Sunday starting at 1 p.m. Before then, you can examine the articles to be auctioned at the Blue Armoire from 1 to 5 daily.

Movies

Three totally new movies drift into Sherbrooke this weekend. At the Capitol Theatre on King Street East, there's a comedy adventure from the director of War Games. Short Circuit is being talked about as the "E.T. of 1986". Well, we'll see. This shows nightly at 7:15 and 9 and stars Ally Sheedy and Steve Guttenberg. Wednesday is $2 night at the Capitol, by the way.

And over at the Cinemas Carrefour in the Carrefour de l'Estrie shopping centre, there's a horror movie, April Fool's Day showing every night at 7:15 and 9 p.m. and Sunday and Monday at 1, 3, and 5 p.m. as well. Also new there this week is an action-adventure-type film, Top Gun showing nightly at 7 and 9:15 and Sunday and Monday at 12:25, 2:30, and 4:45 as well. Also, if you want to see Ron Howard's Gung Ho really badly, you might check out the French version at the Carrefour at 7:30 and 9:40 every night as well as 1:15, 3:20, and 5:25 Sunday and Monday.

However, if you'd rather see the original English version of Gung Ho, it's now playing at the Merrill's Showplace Cinemas in Newport, Vt. nightly at 7:10 and 9:20 with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 1:50. The idea behind this comedy is the clash of cultures that occurs when a Japanese auto assembly plant moves into a small Pennsylvania town. There's apparently a hilarious scene where the Japanese and the natives square off in a baseball game.

Legend also arrives at Merrill's this weekend. This is a story about a struggle between the forces of light and darkness and a young heroine caught between them. It's a big-budget film full of special effects, heroics and creatures such as unicorns, elves and demons, but according to the Christian Science Monitor it's "stale and tedious" and doesn't live up to all the money and talent poured into it. The violence, says critic David Sterritt, is also "too harrowing" for the young crowd it's aimed at. That's one person's reaction; you might find it useful if you're a parent. Legend shows nightly at 7:20 and 9:15 with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 1:45.

The third feature at Merrill's is 9½ Weeks, which I'm afraid I'm totally uninformed about. This shows every night at 7 and 9:25 with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

The Princess in Cowansville is bringing back a couple that were in the Townships back around Christmas time. At 7:15, Rob Lowe stars as a young farm boy who has a chance at playing for the National Hockey League, in Youngblood. I've heard it gives an admirably realistic portrayal of the world of hockey. This shows nightly at 7:15. It will be followed at 9 p.m. by the horror movie of 1985, Rocky IV. Unfortunately this wasn't meant as a horror movie, but I can't think of a better word for a movie so full of violence, blood and mutilation, and worst of all, insipid stereotyped portrayals of the Godless Russians. The following week the Princess will feature Sylvester Stallone's newest endeavor, Cobra, opening the same day here as in Montreal. I can't wait.

For something a little more civilized, next Tuesday the National Film Board office at 311 King St. W. in Sherbrooke will show three films about wild animals. Wild in the City looks at the variety of wild animal species existing within the urban area of greater Vancouver, and how they're able to survive and interact with humans and the city environment. Where the Biggest Bluefins Swim, a film on fishing bluefins follows this, and then Where the Bay Becomes the Sea looks at the myriad life forms to be found in the fertile marine ecosystem that exists where the Bay of Fundy meets the Atlantic Ocean. Screenings for these three films are at 2 and 8 p.m.

Television

A documentary special on CTV Television Saturday provides a thorough look at the issue of wife assault. No Place to Hide airs at 1 p.m.

Brothers By Choice, a six-part half-hour drama series, will be telecast on CBC Television starting Monday at 7:30 p.m. A boy and his adopted brother end up on an acysey of adventure and self-discovery when the adopted one runs away, and the other sets out alone to find him. They run into shady types all over the place, and a kidnapping and high-speed motorcycle chase keep the movie action-filled and fast-paced.

The splendour of the Menier family villa on Anticosti Island is evident in a photo exhibition now on at the National Archives in Sherbrooke. See Exhibitions column.

Monday at 8 p.m. CBC Television will present comedian Howie Mandel, hosting a Gala evening at EXPO 86. Taped May 3, this is a pop concert featuring Bryan Adams, Kenny Rogers, Sheena Easton, Loverboy, Vancouver's Idle Eyes and Quebec's Veronique Beliveau.

The off-Broadway play Painting Churches, being telecast on Vermont ETV Monday at 9 p.m. tells of a daughter and her elderly parents coming to terms with growing up, growing older and changing family relationships. Donald Moffat and Sada Thompson star.

Tuesday on Vermont ETV, Portrait of a Terrorist looks at political violence from the point of view of a former terrorist. This is the story of Fernando Gabeira, who took part in the kidnapping of an American diplomat in Brazil in 1969. The man later died of wounds received during his captivity, but Gabeira does not regret his action. Gabeira has been shot, imprisoned and exiled himself, but is now a respected journalist in Brazil and running for political office. The program airs at 10 p.m.

For a bit of a nostalgia trip you can tune in to CTV Monday at 1 a.m. for Three, a 1969 "contemporary" adventure that involves two young American men and a British girl who meet and decide to spend a carefree summer travelling through Europe as equals, but it doesn't quite work out as they planned.

Radio

Folksinger Murray McLauchlan replaces Stan Carew as host of The Entertainers, Saturday at 10:05 a.m. and his guests are Alan Alda, who's been in Toronto to promote his new film, Sweet Liberty; K.D. Lang; Jane Siberry and Burton Cummings.

The Pact is a love story by Henry Comor airing on CBC Stereo at 7:05 p.m. Sunday. Sue Cox as Jessie, and Comor as Tom, portray a couple nearing the end of their lives and their long marriage. Together they confront a last issue of life and death, and find a way out that is true to love an each other.

May 19 and 26, CBC Radio's Ideas program will look at the roots of democracy in Athens 2,500 years ago, and examine how it began, how it worked and what it means today. Ideas is broadcast weeknights at 9:05 p.m.

CBC Stereo's Vanishing Point series presents a satire with Yuppiedom the target Monday at 11:10 p.m. In A Communicable Disease, Gloria suddenly loses at squash and forgets how to make her favorite pasta dish, while Walley's financial management skills mysteriously evaporate.

Gentle weavers exist in violence-torn region of Peru

By Kathryn Leger

AYACUCHO, Peru (CP) — Getting to the Onzebay family house in this region of conflict in the Peruvian Andes requires a little effort. Their home is on a steep hill that no car can manage.

Once there, the family of weavers welcomes the visitor with soft handshakes accompanied by a slight grasp of the forearm, the traditional way of greeting among Peru's Quechuas Indians.

Their gentle air contrasts sharply with the violence the area has endured in the last five years as the centre of the Peruvian army's war against Communist guerrillas.

The smell of raw wool clings to the air as the Onzebays peel the visitor freshly picked cactus fruits and serve tea steeped from herbs growing wild in their garden.

In a corner of the yard, a large duck, being fattened for a later feast, is tied to a tree while chickens and ducklings sputter about.

LOOMS FILL ROOM

The family of nine lives in an open-front two bedroom house. Four wooden looms line the walls of the front part, showing off weeks of weaving in various, painstaking stages.

"We all work together, even the littlest ones do something," says Saturnino Onzebay, the oldest of seven children.

Saturnino, 25, started weaving when he was eight, following a tradition established in the family more than 70 years ago.

"It's a father-to-son thing," he says amid the clacking of the looms being moved back and forth by hand and foot. "Our grandfathers did it. My father did it, I do it and my sons will do it."

"That way we maintain the quality."

DESIGNS ANCIENT

Saturnino, who is part of a new generation of Ayacuchan Quechuas attending university, is also the artist for the mythological designs. The weavings feature monkeys, ducks, swans and snakes in the part-human forms visualized by the Paracas culture, which flourished on Peru's southeast coast between 700 and 300 BC.

The colors he chooses all come from the trees and plants growing in the walled yard and pasture on the family's small plot of land.

The cactus growing in the middle of the yard is home to the cochinita, a parasite growth that produces shades of wine reds when boiled in water.

Other colors produced from plants range from willow green and desert pink to chick yellow, shocking violet and lime. Black and grey are the most difficult, Saturnino explains. Shades are determined by soaking time and water temperature.

COLLECT PLANTS

The youngest children are responsible for collecting the plants. The mother and her older daughters squat in the yard preparing the wool for dyeing.

The wool is bought raw at the marketplace from countryside herders and must be washed to remove dirt and natural oil. Then it is spun, dyed, and rolled into tiny balls, which are tied on to the looms operated by the older sons.

Weaving a tapestry that is slightly smaller than a desktop can take a week of working from a complex numbered design drawn on a piece of paper by Saturnino.

The weavings are cheap by North American standards—from $2 to $25 Canadian — and are sought by tourists who can pick different styles by visiting local artisans' homes.

FEWER TOURISTS

But fewer and fewer visitors are travelling to Ayacucho, a high mountain city of about 30,000 people that boasts 33 colonial churches. Saturnino says even the city's internationally known and lavish Holy Week celebrations are attracting fewer people from the outside world these days.

A guerrilla movement called Sendero Luminoso (Shining Path) arose five years ago in the city, which is now an army stronghold. There are reports of hundreds of peasants disappearing in the surrounding countryside as the war against the guerrillas continues.

The Ayacuchan Quechuas Indians do their weaving high in the Peruvian Andes, in an area torn with the violence of the Peruvian army's war against Communist guerrillas.

Festival to present Shaw's Back to Methuselah

By Rod Currie

CP Entertainment Editor

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP)—It had to happen sooner or later, and the 25th anniversary of the Shaw Festival seemed a good time to take the plunge and stage George Bernard Shaw's five-act epic, Back to Methuselah, for the first time in Canada.

Running about six hours, Shaw's study of civilization starts with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden and travels far, far into the future, says artistic director Christopher Newton.

It will be presented 12 times, each performance beginning in the afternoon, breaking for dinner, then continuing in the evening.

"We want to do all Shaw's plays at some point, that's our mandate," says Newton, "and the anniversary year seemed a good opportunity" to present what Shaw considered his masterpiece.

Whether the play will be a financial success remains to be seen. "To quote Shaw," says Newton with a hearty laugh, "You never can tell."

"We're exactly like farmers and fishermen — we never know what the weather is going to be like."

The weather is a big influence on the success of the season opening May 28 in this quaint tourist town on the edge of Lake Ontario, with its restored Victorian homes and main street stretch of gift and fudge shops.

SALES A RECORD

Still, the festival does have the security blanket of record advance ticket sales so far this year, ensuring a measure of success come rain or shine.

"We're fine financially," says Newton, 49, who became artistic director in 1980. "We made a breakthrough in 1982 and have been pretty much in the black ever since, although it would be nice if we could build up more of a financial reserve."

One sure winner this season is Noel Coward's Cavalcade, which got off to a shaky start with its premiere presentation last season until the rave reviews following opening night made it a best-seller.

"It was a terrifying gamble and it didn't sell until the reviews came out," Newton recalls, chatting in his cluttered office after a hard day of rehearsals. "Then you couldn't get a ticket."

The Agatha Christie plays are always winners and this season the festival will stage Black Coffee, featuring Christie's Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot, solving the murder of a famous physicist.

FROM ENGLAND

The boyish-looking Newton, with his close-cropped silverish hair, was born in England, but went to universities in the United States aiming to become an academic. He became preoccupied with university theatre and went to the Stratford Festival to audition for then-artistic director Michael Langham.

"He didn't like me at all," Newton laughs.

After starting his acting career in Toronto, Newton performed at Stratford, made a name for himself as founding director of Theatre Calgary in 1968 and then became artistic director of the Vancouver Playhouse.

Now, despite his enthusiasm for Canadian plays on Canadian themes, he is devoted to productions of Shaw and his contemporaries. There aren't too many Canadian plays from that time period — Shaw lived from 1856 to 1950 — but the festival has produced Robertson Davies's Leaven of Malice, Canuck by John Bruce Cowan and some other Canadian dramas.

Nevertheless, the festival has a Canadian flavor, Newton says, since "we are doing something quite special that is not done anywhere else in the world."

TRULY CANADIAN

It would be different if "we were importing British or Irish actors" but the festival is a truly Canadian creation.

So far, the festival has presented all but about a dozen of Shaw's 56-odd plays. A new one this season is

On The Rocks, in which Shaw satirizes British politics.

Some popular Shaw plays have been done frequently at the festival, including Arms and the Man which is once again in this year's lineup.

Others on this season's program are Ben Travers's Banana Ridge, a delightful look at British manners; Holiday, a comedy set in the elegant drawing rooms of an upper class New York family; and the cowboy musical Girl Crazy, by George and Ira Gershwin.

The Lunch-Time Theatre will run Shaw's Passion, Poison and Petrification, a one-act romp of mayhem and madness. And Tonight We Improvise will be presented in what Newton frankly calls the "risk series" established a few years ago "for plays that we do not feel would necessarily sell for a full run of 50 or 60 performances but would attract enough people for six to 10 performances."
