THE WAR IN THE EAST.

LONDON, October 12.

The Times' Berlin despatch says it is stated that the following are the conditions accompanying the Porte's proposals for an armistice:—Russia must stop the despatch of troops to Servia; Bulgaria and Servia must immediately suspend hostilities and give other military gurantees. The Turks accord armistice to the European powers, not to Servia; the Porte is willing to have a conference, provided that only Servian affairs and propositions be discussed, and no Servian representatives shall be admitted.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.

BELLEVILLE, October 11.

An additional number of delegates to the Sabbath-School Convention arrived last evening. The evening session of the Convention was largely attended, the church being filled with an interested audience. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. O'Meara, of Port Hope. The President elect, Mr. Wm. Johnson, on taking the chair, delivered an eloquent address. Professor Jacques followed in a very able address of welcome to the delegates, which was well received. Prof. Sherwin, of New Jersey, who had been engaged to conduct the singing, arrived and sang several pieces with fine effect, besides delivering an earnest address of a few minutes' duration. Rev. J. Bruce, of St. Catharines, and Rev. W. Millard, spoke on the indirect benefit of Conventions, and the proceedings closed at 10 p.m. The choir, under Professor Whish, organist of the church, performed very creditably.

This morning's proceedings were very interesting, and were largely attended. A prayer meeting, conducted by Professor Sherwin, was held from 8.30 till 9.30, when the Convention assembled for business. Rev. Dr. Newton, of Philadelphia, delivered a highly interesting address. Mr. David Frotheringham, of Aurora, opened a discussion on Institutes in our Counties, and was followed by Mr. James Hughes, of Toronto, and others. Rev. J. M. Cameron, of Toronto, and Rev. E. Barrass, of Hampton, delivered addresses on Sabbath School Mission work in Ontario, and Rev. Dr. O'Meara spoke for half an hour on "The Acts of the Apostles." The convention adjourned at after which Rev. [illegible] spoke on the subject of Christian Union. The Treasurer's report was read, showing a balance of $121 due to that official, and the programme of the afternoon was concluded with a discussion on "How to conduct a Sabbath School," in which Mr. H. J. Clark, of Toronto, led. The Convention adjourned at 5:50 to meet again at 7:30.

In answer to the question whether any full-blooded negroes had died of yellow fever, the Savannah News says: "The result of our observations and enquiries upon the above subject is to the effect that the pure-blooded negro is not a subject for yellow fever. One of the novelties at Barnum's show, New York, is Captain Costentenus, a Greek, who was captured by the Tartars in a rebellion and tatooed from head to foot, with no less than 488 distinct figures on his body. Frank L. Coolidge, a steady, industrious lad of 17, shot himself on Sunday night at Hartford, after writing the following letter:—"Dear father, forgive me for committing suicide. I am tired of life. I don't shoot myself till I hear your train come, so don't worry about the children."

A NEW USE FOR SEA WEED.

Hai-thao, or gelose, is a tasteless, odorless, colorless mass, obtained from a fibrous sea weed common on the coast of China and Mauritius. It is insoluble in cold water, but dissolves in hot water after boiling for ten minutes, and then forms a thin, dirty white solution, which, on cooling, deposits a yellowish gray jelly. The material has lately been used for finishing cotton fabics, and is reported to fill the thread more perfectly than dextrin or starch. By adding glycerine to the hai-thao solution, a still softer and at the same time stronger material is obtained. According to experiments made by Heilmann, an abstract of which is given in Dingler's Polytechnisches Journal, it appears that the material can only be employed for fine textures, soft and firm to the touch, and cannot be used as a substitute for dextrin or potato starch where a strong material is required.—Scientific American.

THE EFFECTS OF PHYSICAL CULTURE.

An official inquiry into the results of gymnastic exercises has recently been instituted at a military gymnastic school in France. The results of the inquiry, which extended over six months, established: 1. That the muscular force is increased, on an average, 15 to 17 per cent., and occasionally from 25 to 30 per cent., while the force has, as we might expect, a tendency to become equal on both sides of the body. 2. That the capacity of the chest is increased by one-sixth at the lowest. 3. That the weight of the individual is increased from 6 to 7 per cent., and occasionally from 10 to 15 per cent., while the bulk of the body is diminished, thus showing that the profit is confined to the muscular system. The increase of muscular force was generally confined to the first three months of the course. During the last moiety a serious diminution usally occurred; and here the dynamometer gave positive indication of the necessity of moderating or suspending the exercises.

A WONDERFUL RAILWAY.

A correspondent of the Mail says:

A description which I read a few days ago in a San Francisco paper of the route of a new railway just completed southward through California affords some encouragement to us in our struggle with the difficulties to be overcome in building the Canadian Pacific through British Columbia. In one canon on that road there are seventeen tunnels, with an aggregate length of 7,683⅞ feet; in another two which are respectively 264 and 332 feet long, and in a third one, which is 6,966¼ feet in length. The account goes on to say: "Tunnel nine is at the famous loop of Tehachape Pass. This loop completely encircles a mound, and by so doing gains a difference in elevation of seventy-seven feet. Emerging from tunnel nine the train winds round the mound and passes directly over the tunnel at right angles, having made a curvature of 300 feet. The length of the loop is 3,794 feet. Pictured on the map this loop looks like a coil thrown carelessly in a rope, it is a veritable cork-screw."

HOW DID IT GET THERE?

The Acton, Ont., Free Press says:—

A remarkable incident occurred at Brown & Hall's sawmill last Saturday, whilst a pine log was being sawed up into lumber. The outside slab and one board had been cut off, and while the workmen were turning over the log, they were surprised to see a large toad poke his head out of a hole in which he was imbedded, and where he had barely escaped being cut up by the saw. How the stranger got there is a mystery, as he was completely encased in the wood, with no possible means of ingress or egress. As the log was the fourth or fifth from the butt of the tree, his position must have been, at least, 50 or 60 feet from the ground, and he has, no doubt, grown up with it from infancy, being, probably, hundreds of years old. The animal was quite flat, and nearly as large as a man's hand. He was perfectly blind, but when taken from his bed he made use of his limbs to crawl away. The tree was perfectly sound with the exception of a decayed spot of about a foot in length below the hollow place in which he was imbedded. How did he get there? and what did he live on?

PIG-TAILS IN DANGER.

The London Daily News remarks that a very uneasy feeling has been excited in Chinese fashionable circles by the doings of the secret society founded, or rather revived, for the purpose of cutting off the pigtails which every Chinaman who respects himself makes a point of displaying. The earliest travellers in the Flowery Empire have told us of the care that the Chinese bestow upon their hair, which is plaited with great adroitness and perfumed profusely, the ends being tied with a knot of blue or black riband. The golden youth of China, like the ladies in countries nearer home, resort even to artificial means to lengthen these pigtails, which are the nearer to perfection in proportion as they come nearer to the ground. It seems that the secret society whose mission it is to remove these baubles has not been formed with a view to gain, nor is it acting in this way as a practical joke. The members of the society believe that the habit of wearing pigtails tends to effeminacy, and they hope by snipping them off to rouse the wearers to a sense of the duties which they owe to their country. The Chinese believed at first, when their pigtails disappeared as if by enchantment, that they were the victims of some evil genii. The Chinese "authorities," more matter-of-fact, at once arrived at the conclusion that the ancient sect of "pigtail cutters" had been reconstituted. They have, it's said, accordingly decreed that any person found with scissors in his hand in a crowd shall be strangled, and it is hoped that in this way the evil may be stamped out. The operations of this sect commenced in the south of China several months ago, and have since been extended to the northern part of the Empire, and the terror is general. A Chinaman who suddenly discovers that his cherished appendage has vanished while he is taking his walks abroad presents a pitable spectacle of distress, and invariably disappears around the first corner.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST THE SON OF THE HON. E. B. WOOD.

The Hamilton Spectator says:—Shortly before the Hon. E. B. Wood left Brantford for the North-West, Mrs. Wood took a fancy to a pretty and interesting waiter girl, named Maria Callahan, employed in the Kirby House. Her quick wit, her beauty and her native manner pleased Mrs. Wood, who induced her to leave her lowly situation, where she was happy, and accompany her to Manitoba as servant. Struck by her remarkable beauty, Melville Burke Wood, a son of the Hon. E. B. Wood, commenced to pay his addresses to his mother's servant, and pretended to be deeply and passionately in love with her. He insisted that she should marry him. He told her that he loved her beyond endurance, that his whole heart was bound up in her, and that he could not live without her. The unfortunate girl finally yielded, and the marriage ceremony was duly solemnized in St. Paul's Church, Winnipeg, by the Rev. Mr. Pritchard, Church of England minister, in the presence of five witnesses, the minister's wife, sister-in-law, and three other parties. Shortly after the marriage the young married couple came to this city and stopped a short time. Wood gave his wife some money, and told her to remain here a short time while he went back to Winnipeg and straightened up his affairs, when he would come back to her again. From that day and his last letter was cruelly insulting. Mrs. Wood has put her case in the hands of an able and conscientious lawyer in this city, who has written to young Wood and to the head of the Government Department at Ottawa. He wrote to ask that a portion of his wages should be held back for the maintenance of his wife. He got a reply from Mr. Dickinson, stating that everything possible would be done in the matter. And there it rests for the present.

POLICE INVESTIGATION.

SERGEANTS KEHOE AND HILTON LET OFF WITH A REPRIMAND.

The Police Committee met last evening. Present: Ald. Grenier, in the chair; Alds. Taylor, Rivard, Foster, McCambridge and Hood. The representatives of the press were not admitted. The following is the decision arrived at as the result of the recent investigation into the charges brought against Sergeants Hilton and Kehoe:

Resolved, "That the Chairman do call before him Sergeants Hilton and Kehoe, and caution them to use more discretion and judgment for the future than they did on the occasion in question; and, that in all their dealings with prisoners and with the public in general, they do act with that civility and discretion expected of them, consistent with the proper discharge of their duty."

It was proposed that, hereafter, the representatives of the press be excluded from meetings of the Committee. Some of the members contended that, in many cases, the publication of proceedings of the Committee, before the matter had been referred to the Council, was detrimental to the interests of the departments. Other members urged that, in the interest of the public, reporters be admitted, but be requested not to give publicity to such information.

The question being put to the vote, resulted as follows: For the exclusion of the press—Aldermen Rivard, McCambridge and Taylor; against its exclusion—Aldermen Foster and Hood.

The Committee then adjourned.

OUR TABLE.

THE DOCTRINE OF ANNIHILATION IN THE LIGHT OF THE GOSPEL OF LOVE, by the Rev. J. Baldwin Brown, B.A.; Milton Publishing League.

The author deals with his subject in five chapters:—Preliminary Consideration; The Doctrine of Everlasting Punishment; The Doctrine of Annihilation in the Light of Man's Nature, Experience and History; The Doctrine of Annihilation in the Light of God's Character, and Methods in the Government of Mankind; The Gospel of Love. Towards the close of the book, the rev. author says: "There are many, I fear, who will think that I have robbed their Christianity of a terror to which they largely trusted as an instrument to frighten men from sin and to drive them into the Saviour's fold. I trust that they will find, when they look into it a little more closely, that I have endeavored to substitute the fear of a father for the dread of a tyrant; the fear which makes sons for the terror which makes slaves or brutes."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1876.

CITY DELIVERY.—Residents of Bleury street and west of it who desire the six o'clock edition of the STAR, delivered regularly at their homes by careful newsboys, will please send us their name and address.

THE Holland-Kehoe investigation has ended in a mild rebuke being administered the police officers concerned. The moral of the matter should not be lost upon our young men.

THE Police Committee yesterday resolved to exclude the Press from their meetings. The names of Ald. Hood and Foster stand out honorably on the dissenting list.

THE Canadien sympathises with Hon. Mr. Letellier de St. Just, whose name has been more than once mentioned in connection with the Lieutenant-Governorship of the North-west Territories. Our contemporary's emotion is wasted, for while there is Customs collectorship available at Quebec in the prospective, the Minister of Agriculture is above the need of sympathy. It is just as likely as not that he will be the next one to go however.

IT IS A RATHER GOOD sign that the stock-pot of political abuse is running low, to find party organs all over the country busily engaged in solving the question as to "who was the father of Confederation." The exercise may be useful to those whose knowledge of constitutional history is slight, but when it branches into raking up all the worn-out strifes of the past thirty years, it becomes depressing. It is safer to tell the truth at once, that the colt Confederation was gotten by Political Expediency out of Deadlock, and have done with it.

THE PROVINCIAL MINISTERS.—It is only a month to the meeting of the Provincial Legislature, and yet there is no sign of preparation on the part of the Ministry. We hear of the gentlemen who compose it here, there and everywhere but in their departments. During the whole of the recess they have been fluttering about enjoying themselves, none but those who really could not help it remaining in Quebec. Judging from the amount of work most of them appear to put in, there is small chance of their being ready to meet Parliament with their reports, while there is an abundant prospect of a repetition of those unnecessary delays which last session were nothing short of disgraceful. Mr. DeBoucherville ought to call his team home and set them to work.

UNWORTHY TACTICS.—We are sorry to see the Gazette endeavoring to foment re- [illegible] that the Hon. Mr. Laird is in favor of unsectarian schools, and the insinuation is dangled before Mr. Anglin, evidently in the hope that a feud may arise. This is a poor sort in political warfare indeed. Whatever may be the opinions of the Governor of Keewatin with respect to education, it is to be remembered that the settling of such questions does not rest with him. From the tenor of the article in question, it would seem that our contemporary is not favorable to unsectarian schools. We could have wished otherwise, feeling, as we do, that one of the most important needs of the Dominion is a universal system of unsectarian schools, imparting education of a thoroughly practical stamp. If the Hon. Mr. Laird is likely to effect anything in this direction, he will deserve to be regarded as a benefactor of his country.

THE FEMALE PRISON.—It is about time that some decision were arrived at concerning the occupation of the Female Prison. Here is the costly building ready; the common jail is densely over crowded, and with the winter setting in there is nothing being done toward relieving it of its overplus. It has been stated in palliation of the unjustifiable delays that have taken place that there is a disagreement as to the management of the new institution, as it seems the nuns who are to take charge demand complete and contrammelled control. It is said that they wish to be free from any responsibility to the Sheriff, and to run the concern independent of any outside interference. If this be the case, they should be informed as gently, but as firmly as possible, that they are asking too much, and the sooner they are disabused of any such preposterous ideas the better. The Protestants afford the Government an excuse also. The objections noted by us some time ago have not yet been dealt with, and the deadlock is as aggravating as ever. This is really a pitiable state of things which should be brought to a speedy conclusion by the adoption of vigorous measures. The jail cannot be permitted to remain in its shamefully over crowded condition, and the whims and caprices of a few wrong-headed people should not stand in the way of the carrying out of an absolutely needed reform, especially when all the material is at hand.

ABBE CHANDONNET ON FRENCH EDUCATION.—Rev. Mr. Chandonnet, a writer and thinker of great repute in French-Canadian circles, has been contributing to the Evenement a series of letters from Philadelphia, remarkable for their observation, clearness, and insight into the causes of American progress and commercial advancement. He had been dealing with the subject of education, and in his latest letter he writes as follows: "We want (the French-Canadians) commercial and industrial schools, good ones; we must have them. We have not got them, or not enough of them. On the head of commercial and industrial education, I humbly and with all frankness avow and declare that we are fifty years and more behind the United States in general, behind Ontario, and in the Province of Quebec itself, behind the English minority. Look at our Boards of Trade in Quebec and Montreal, penetrate the banks or financial institutions, enter the great stores, the workshops; go where great public works are being carried out, and observe superiority with them and inferiority with us." He cites a late meeting of the Board of Trade in Montreal, where only one French-Canadian was present to thirty-four English-speaking members, and says: "You see! one in thirty-four in a Province where we form three-fourths of the population! In every other point it is the same thing. Whence comes this manifest inferiority? From a want of aptitude? It has been frequently said that the French Canadians have not as much aptitude as this, that or the other people for industry, commerce, &c. This is all nonsense. They have as much aptitude as any other people, if not more. I say it because I know it; because experience is constantly proving it; because men of the highest standing in commerce and industry, and consequently the most capable of judging, unite in affirming it. The cause of our inferiority in this connexion is not a want of aptitude, but a want of instruction, or what the English term 'training.' We have no commercial or industrial schools; our secondary education is null. Where shall we go to acquire knowledge, taste, the first experience of commerce and industry? Not to the colleges; and outside of the colleges what have we? Nothing, or next to nothing. There is one school I suppose, kept on a good enough footing, and I will voluntarily cite the Placeau Academy; but will you say that there will be given in an efficient manner sufficient commercial or industrial instruction for a whole people?" The reverend writer proceeds to adjure his countrymen to compare their backwardness with the material advancement of other nations; to take their inferiority into consideration and seek to remedy it by the application of the most practical measures. The present educational system he declares to be inefficient, and insufficient to the needs of the people, and he argues that what is wanted is that the Government should found industrial and commercial schools for the practical training of the young; endow them, and if necessary, add boarding houses to them where parents might send their sons without fear. The idea is not an utopian one; governments have done as much elsewhere, and why not in Canada? It is a good sign to see a man like Abbe Chandonnet taking up a subject so important as this, and placing before his fellow-countrymen truths which cannot be controverted. The educational system which costs so much, does not, we have frequently heard said by prominent French Canadian gentlemen, fit young men for the practical work of life. They come out of college crammed with classical lore, but utterly ignorant of the world, and unfitted to enter upon the part they have to play in it. Abbe Chandonnet does not hesitate to avow this, and it is to be hoped that his earnest words will have some effectual weight with those whom they are intended to reach.

PUBLIC OPINION.

THE HARBOR TRUST.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—On several occasions, public and private, I have stated to you that you would find me always ready to give you and other members of the press any information as to the Harbor Trust, and the proceedings of the Commissioners, yet, in your issue of last evening, you write an article headed: "HOW THE HARBOR TRUST MONEY IS EXPENDED," and "$300 WASTED ON POMP AND SHOW."

Perhaps you will be surprised when I inform you that there is not one sentence of truth in the whole of your statement, except the mournful fact of the death of the wife of my old friend, Captain C. L. Armstrong. I have hesitated in taking any notice of the article, for, to myself personally, it matters little what your opinions are of me. I am, however, deeply interested in the success of the works now carried on at Sorel (as you state) to any of the officers of the Harbor Trust. Intending to leave for Sorel by the Quebec boat. I learned from Mr. Kennedy, the Chief Engineer, that Mr. Ferns, the collector and paymaster, would be up in the morning in the steamer "John Young." Mr. Ferns goes down monthly to pay the men, leaving by the Quebec boat and landing at Batiscan. Here the "John Young" meets him and he is taken to the works at Cap a la Roche, Cap Lenard, then up to Lake St. Peter and to Contrecœur, and from thence to Montreal. Mr. Kennedy suggested that I should wait till morning for the "John Young," as he had his plans of survey and soundings of the difficult work at Point aux Tremble, to obtain a channel of 25 feet; that he was anxious I should see the proposed change of the channel. He wished also to take Mr. Lavielle, the Superintendent of Pilots, to make any suggestions as to the route. After this was done it was intended to visit the dredging fleet at Contrecœur and then proceed to Sorel, where the Engineer could also visit the repair shops, and subsequently join with the Superintendant of Pilots in attending the funeral.

To this arrangement I readily consented, knowing well its great importance to the Trust. The "John Young" being out of the ordinary channel at Point aux Tremble, struck a sunken buoy and damaged one of her wheels. We, however, finished the examination, and proceeded to Sorel, losing the opportunity of going on board the Contrecœur dredges, on account of the damaged condition and slow speed of the boat, but visiting the workshops at Sorel, besides giving the opportunity of paying our tribute of respect to Captain Armstrong in his irretrievable loss, who, for the last 40 years, has been interested in the navigation of the river between Quebec and Montreal, and who has done much to make the navigation what it is to-day. Partial repairs were made to the "John Young," and it being necessary for us to be in Montreal, that night, after proceeding to one of our dredges and exchanging into the small tug tender, we came on to Montreal, the "John Young" going back to Sorel. Such are the facts of this "momentous journey," and the public will now be able to judge of your representations, and of the "quasi-royal progress of the representatives of the Board" and of the "dignity and importance of myself and my two companions." It is well to state that not one hour was lost in the operations of the dredge, and the whole expense was the coal consumed. I should, however, perhaps excuse you for making such statements, for where parties have a constitutional difficulty in stating facts, the habit is very hard to overcome.

Your obedient servant,
JOHN YOUNG.

Montreal, 11th Oct., 1876.

[In connection with this letter, we have only to say that our information came directly from a responsible officer of the "John Young," who stated that instructions had been received by telegraph to take the boat up to Montreal, for the purpose of taking Mr. Young to the funeral of Mrs. Armstrong. Great dissatisfaction is expressed in the workshops at Sorel at the mismanagement that exists there, and a petition, as we have already stated, is being got up, addressed to the Government, asking for a public enquiry into the proceedings of the Board, and is it not a little singular also that the gentleman who is promoting it is Mr. Barthe, M. P. for the County, and a supporter of the Ministry. The "constitutional habits" to which Mr. Young refers are probably more applicable to the "First Lord" himself than to any one else. The reason we do not go to Mr. Young for information about the Harbor Board is simply because we were met on former occasions with the coolest equivocation. It is far from our intention, however, to misrepresent anything in connection with the Board or its Chairman; but if the public is to be kept au courant with the proceedings of what has grown to be a great public trust, with the expenditure of millions, the only proper way to do that is to open up the management and proceedings of the Board to the light of public inspection by admitting the press.]

—"An Exhibitor at Philadelphia" writes enthusiastically respecting the management of the Canadian department. He says he is satisfied that no visitor to the Canadian department can forget the courtesy met with, and hopes that the several representatives will meet with a warm reception on their return home.

—The Ottawa Agricultural Insurance Company have issued a very fine bird's eye view of the Capital, with a separate view of the Government Buildings. The picture will greatly astonish those who have supposed Ottawa was little more than a backwood's village. We notice that the Agricultural has a capital of $1,000,000, and a perpetual charter; its President is the Hon. J. Skead.

—At an early hour this morning the gate leading to the yard of the Hebrew school, corner of Lagauchetiere and Chenneville streets, was burst open by some miscreant, and the clothes'-lines stripped of a whole week's washing. The thief, besides giving proof of his agility, by wrenching off the iron fastenings of the gate, showed a discriminating judgment in leaving behind him several worn-out articles, which he selected from the lot as unworthy of his attention.

CATHEDRAL EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—The service last evening was well attended. After the usual prayer and the hymn, "Oh, God, our help in ages past," the Revd. J. W. Bonham preached an earnest discourse from the 21st verse of the 9th chapter of the Acts, "But all that heard Him were amazed, and said: Is not this he that destroyed them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither with that intent that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests?" The reverend gentleman, after giving a sketch of St. Paul's early life, noticing particularly his severe and cruel persecution of the Christians, spoke of the great surprise of the Jews at hearing him setting forth Jesus as the long-expected Messiah. He enlarged upon the wonderful change wrought in the Apostle by the Holy Spirit, and concluded by calling upon all who had not yet come to Jesus to take the first step without delay, as they might never have another opportunity if they refused this. The Rev. George Forneret also gave a short address from the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, and the meeting closed with prayer.

CIVIC COMMITTEES.—The Sub-Committee on Water Rates met yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Present: Ald. Roy, chairman; Alds. Stephens, Nelson and McGauvran. The large amount of arrears due on water rates, footing up $200,000 for the last few years, was considered, and after a long discussion, it was unanimously resolved to recommend that water-rates be placed upon proprietors, who shall have the right to sue their tenants for the same. It was resolved that the Chairman and Ald. McGauvran, with the City Attorney, be a committee to draft a by-law for that purpose, said by-law to be authorized as an amendment to the City Charter. The Park Committee met at 4 p.m., Ald. Nelson in the chair. Letters from Mr. Olmstead, Park Architect, were read, having reference to improvements in the park. It was resolved to ask the Council for an appropriation of $18,633 for the completion of the mountain road from the Redpath property to the top of the mountain. The sub-committee of the Board of Health met at 4 p.m., his worship the Mayor in the chair. Present: Ald. Chapleau, Childs, Holland, Rivard, Grenier and McLaren; also, the Health Officers. It was resolved that in future the decisions of the Meat Inspectors be public vaccinators' services, and in no case had the placards been removed which had been pasted on houses in which small-pox existed to warn the public.

A FARMER'S GRIEVANCES.—To the Editor of the STAR: SIR,—Seeing in your valuable paper, a few weeks ago, an article on the disadvantages of bringing produce from a distance to Montreal markets through excessive toll-gate charges, and urging for their abolition, I now ask you, on behalf of the farmers and your subscribers in this district, to speak for us against the unreasonable charges we are subjected to on arriving in Montreal with our produce. As it would take up too much of your space to enumerate all, I will just mention hay. On arriving with a load we have no less than 35 cents to pay, and, what is more unjust, if we are unable to dispose of it that day, we have to go every morning and have the ticket renewed, and pay extra 35 cents until we have sold it; so that, taking a load of hay from Chambly, a farmer has to pay, 1st, 20 cents for toll-gate, and, if he crosses at St. Lamberts, 2nd, 40 cents for the boat; 3rd, in Montreal, 35 cents for market; altogether, 95 cents before he sells, and 35 cents per day until he does. Now, I, for one, don't grumble so much about the toll-gates; as we break up the roads, it is only right we should pay, but, because your Town Council, through its bad management, has got up to the ears in debt, I do decidedly object to pay, for their folly in Montreal, taxes. T. JOHNSON, Fairfield Farm, Chambly.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

Yesterday afternoon, in the case of Joseph Mirandas, accused of stealing $16 from an old man, named Alexis Lanctot, a fellow patient in the Hotel Dieu, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Hermidas Desorneau, laborer, aged 24, was put in the dock, charged with stealing $80 from his uncle, Narcisse Gravel, farmer, of St. Martin. The theft was said to have been committed on the 9th September last, while the prisoner was driving his uncle home, having previously found him in a state of intoxication in the village of St. Jean Baptiste.

The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

NOON TELEGRAMS.

WHEELING, W. Va., October 12.

But very few returns from this State as yet; those received, however, show, in some few cases, gains for Goff, Republican, but they are offset by still heavier gains for Matthews, Democrat. Matthews' majority will probably reach 10,000; the Legislature will be about two-thirds Democrat, thus securing for them two U. S. Senators.

NEW YORK, October 12.

The reception given last night to General Newton by the Xavier Union was attended by the Mayor, Generals Hancock and Scammond, Bishops Corrigan and Laughlin and a large number of Catholic clergymen and prominent citizens.

In the case of John O'Mahoney, President of the "Irish Republic," against August Belmont & Co., Judge Pratt yesterday fyled a judgment in favor of the defendants. This was an action brought for $20,000, the amount of bills of exchange bought on the Rothschilds, of London, and confiscated before they were received by John O'Leary, the Irish agent, to whom they were sent. O'Leary was arrested in 1865, in Dublin, for felony.

WHAT SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS MAY COME TO.

The Hamilton Times says:—"The special correspondent of the Mail, who has been in the rear of Lord Dufferin during his visit to Columbia, writes as follows:—'An Italian who acts in the hotel in which I have been staying in the capacity of boots, porter and general factotum, complacently told me, &c., &c.' Every one knows that the Mail staff is noted for its blue-bloodedness and the number of Lords, Dukes and Baronets it has on its staff, but this self-confession leads to the belief that they must all be of foreign origin. We have, for a long time, heard of German and French exiled noblemen who had to work by hand for a living (and all honor to them for doing so), but have never before known a Mail correspondent to make such a confession as that given above. But all honor to him for telling the truth."

CITY NEWS.

THE SCHOOL-TAX.—In view of the enormous increase in municipal taxes, the Finance Committee will recommend that the City Council petition the Legislature for an amendment in the School Act, which requires that "The Corporation of Montreal shall pay for the support of schools in the city a sum equal to three times the amount of the share of the Goverement grant coming to its schools; and the Corporation of Montreal shall levy annually, by assessment on real estate, a tax sufficient to cover the amount payable by them for the support of such schools."

FANCY FAIR.—The bazaar and promenade concert in aid of missions was well attended last night. The Band of the Prince of Wales Rifles performed the choicest selections in their repertoire, and promenading was kept up until a late hour. The numerous tables were well patronized, notwithstanding the commercial depression and the general ruin and decay, of which so much has been written of late, and the fair vendors, who were indefatigable in their efforts to humor th idiosyncrasies of each individual pur chaser, have reason to congratulate them selves on the result.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board o H[illegible]th took place yesterday afternoon the Mayor in the chair. It was proposed at the salary of Dr. Larocque, one of the th officers and physician to the Small-Hospital, be raised from $800 to $1,- After some discussion, it was decid- t in favor of the increase to the The Sanitary Superinten- d, reported that small- family of a dairyman, some of the vessels suspended business moved to the Hos- horoughly disin-

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CHEAP AND HEALTHY HOMES FOR THE PEOPLE AND WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

As the demand for Villa Lots at Mount Royal Vale still continues, the proprietor is induced to offer one thousand lots on the front part of the property, commencing on Cote St. Luke Road, each lot measuring forty feet front by a depth of one hundred and twenty, for five hundred dollars per lot, payable by instalments equal to one dollar per week, without interest. A few hundred lots on the rear of the estate will be sold for three hundred dollars per lot, in payments equal to fifty cents per week. The privilege of brick, sand and stone at nearly one-half less than city prices will be given to purchasers of those lots as heretofore, which is equal to getting land for nothing in other places where those materials would have to be carted a long distance. At the average price received for land and buildings during past season, together with brick-fields, sand-pits and quarries, this property represents a capital of two million dollars, every cent of which, as realized, will be applied to improvements.

Buildings will be erected, which may be paid for in weekly payments, in proportion to the cost. Purchasers can submit their own plans and specifications; also state how much money they are willing to pay down and weekly. Those paying the largest amounts will be entitled to a preference, as only a limited number of buildings can be sold on these terms.

Further information from Thos. F. O'Brien, at 532 St. Mary street, at 10 o'clock every morning, and at Mount Royal Vale every afternoon. 242

CITY NEWS.

— Mr. Phineas Leach, capiased at the suit of the Herald Publishing Company, was released this morning on payment of costs.

— A few young gentlemen met together in the Gazette building last night, and resolved to organise a Conservative Club on the same model as the Toronto Club.

— The persons who have charge of the small-pox posters should be very careful that none go out of their hands illegitimately. This morning a gentleman was exceedingly annoyed to find his house front decorated with one of the Corporation labels. He thinks he has a clue to the party who perpetrated the infamous act.

— A gentleman of St. Louis, Mo., largely interested in the mines out West, writes to a Montreal friend as follows:— "A thousandeth part of what truthfully might be written about the Philadelphia Exhibition never will be. I was astonished on all hands, but especially at the display from Canada. I had not the slightest conception of its mineral wealth, although you know I went particularly through the Geological Survey Museum in Montreal, until I saw their display at Philadelphia." This, it may be added, is the opinion of a practical man.

FAMILY JARS.—John Doherty, 29, St. Martin street, a waiter, was arrested by Sub-Constable Lecavelier last night for committing an assault on his father. It appears the prisoner came home drunk and demanded money [illegible] the needful not [illegible] at hard labor. Another case, something similar to the above, occurred in Manufacturer street, the actors in this cas being John Brown, sr., against Michael Brown, jr. Brown, jr., who is about 18 years of age, while drunk, threw a tea-pot at his sirie, striking him on the upper lip and inflicting an ugly wound, from which blood flowed freely. The prisoner was sent to jail for six months at hard labor.

STEEPLECHASING AT BLUE BONNETS.— To-day is the first day of the Montreal Hunt Races at Fashion Course. The track is in excellent condition, the weather all that could be desired, and the interest intense in sporting circles. The following are the entries for the three races which are on the card for to-day: 1st race— Green steeplechase: Mr. Crawford's g.g. Grenadier, aged; Mr. C. S. Hunter's b.g. Harvey Duff, aged; Mr. Baumgarten's b.h. Allah, 5 years. 2nd race— Half-bred steeplechase: Mr. Alexander Gordon's b. h. Big Bonanza, aged; Mr. G. C. McDougall's b. g. Billy the Huntsman; Mr. Andrew Allan's c. m. Shira, aged; Mr.———'s Fusilier aged. 3rd race— Farmers' Plate: Mr. Penniston's b. m. Minnie Mac. aged; Mr. T. Fletcher's b. g. Bay Dick; Mr. D. Ryan's c. g. Marksman, aged; Mr. Jeffery's b. m. Jess, aged; Mr. A. Kydd's b. m. Minnie Stevenson, 5 years.

BURGLARS AT WORK.—The premises of Mr. Frank Brennan, coal merchant, 135 Bonaventure street, were entered last night by thieves. When Mr. Brennan arrived at his office this morning he found the place in the greatest disorder. Several drawers of an office desk had been forced open and broken, and the contents, consisting of postal cards, stamps and valuable papers, strewn over the floor. The thieves effected an entrance through a window, in which they broke a large pane of glass. A heavy crowbar, with which they had vainly attempted to open the safe, was left behind on a desk. The safe contained some $300 in cash, besides promissory notes and other securities. It is believed that they worked in the dark, as the front of the office consists principally of a glass sash facing the street, and they were probably afraid to strike a light. This would account for their leaving so many valuables behind, including a fancy pipe. The damage done will be about thirty dollars.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

The Court was opened by the Chief-Justice at 10.10.

Joseph Larouche, accused of stealing $200 from F. X. Leroux dit Rousson, at the California Hotel, in whose case a former jury failed to agree, was again placed on his trial. The evidence was the same as in the first trial, and the jury found a verdict of "not guilty."

The Court then took recess.

A REVIVAL.

A correspondent, writing from Clarendon, Pontiac Co., Que., writes that "The Methodist Church here, for months past, has enjoyed spiritual prosperity; over 600 have sought salvation, 400 of which have been converted; over 30 of the recently converted are performing successful evangelistic work, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Mark, who is encouraging his co-workers to pray, believe and work for hundreds of conversions this year in and around Clarendon.

"The Methodists of Clarendon presented their pastor, Rev. Dr. Mark, with a fine carriage, horse and $40 for a harness, as a token of love."

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

PITTSBURG, Pa., October 11.

At 8.45 this a.m., a terrible explosion occurred at Guy & Co.'s mills, which was attended with great loss of life. The boilers in the nail mill exploded, and that building, and more than half of the rolling mill, was demolished. At the time of the explosion there were employed in the nailing department 150 men and boys. The explosion literally tore the building to pieces. The roof was raised, and, in falling, it fortunately rested on the nail machines, enabling most of the workmen to crawl out and escape before the fire from the furnaces caught the wreck. The following are, as near as can be ascertained, killed: Thomas Murphy, fireman; Andrew Sullivan, fireman; Frank Cupps, Peter Kendrick, John and Joseph Anderson, feeders; two brothers named Cafferty, and an unknown man, not identified. Twenty-two were wounded, some fatally.

LONDON, October 12.

A Paris correspondent of the Times telegraphs an account of an interview with an officer in the Egyptian army, who gives circumstantial details of the horrible events which have taken place in Abyssinia during the attempt of Egypt to civilize the Abyssinians The officer states that there have been two known expeditions: First, which was despatched in October, 1875, consisting of 4,000 men, was surprised in the defile of Goundel and massacred to the last man. The second expedition, composed of 1,500 men started in January last. It met the Abyssinians in February in the defile of Goura, and was overwhelmed, 4,000 men being killed. The Abyssinian King then disappeared into the interior, and, according to the latest reports has repeated what he did in the defiles of Gourdel and Goura, by again crushing an army of Egyptians, but the details of this, as well as other expeditions, are guarded with great secresy.

The Montenegrin commander reports that in the recent raid, which resulted in the burning of Trebinge and all the surrounding villages, 1,500 Turks were killed, inclusive of those who were burned in the houses. The bulk of the Turkish soldiers were decoyed into an ambush, and the Montenegrins then fired the villages. The Montenegrins lost 130 men.

At a meeting of cotton spinners held at Burnley and Blackburn yesterday, a determination was expressed to resist the demands of the operatives, but it was decided to abide by the decisions of the general meeting of employers at Manchester, to be held on Tuesday.

At a meeting at Preston, it was unanimously resolved to close the mills on the 1st November, if the operatives presist in their demands. If the masters adhere to their present attitude, a lockout of 7,000 operatives will probably result.

The race for the Middle Park plate took place at Newmarket, the second October meeting to-day, and was won by "Lagrange's b.c. "Chamont;" "Pellegrind," second, and "Plunger," third. Eighteen ran.

A despatch from the Western Union Telegraph agents, dated Indianapolis, 10.15 a.m. to-day, says it is not yet quite certain that the Democrats have carried Indiana.

The following has been received at the Democratic headquarters: Indianopolis, October 12—A Majority of five to eight thousand for the entire ticket. Signed, J. A. Hendricks.

CITY NEWS.

— The Finance Committee met this afternoon with closed doors. The Water Committee also met, but no business was done at the hour of going to press.

— The case of LeMetayer Masselin vs. Zotique Lefebvre, for alleged libel, was argued before Mr. Brehaut, Police Magistrate, this afternoon. Mr. Thibault for the prosecution, and Mr. Archibald for the defence.

— The case of body-snatching has been settled by the parties concerned. The accused, Goyer, was discharged, and the body returned to Mr. Moquin, who arrived from St. Remi this morning and identified the deceased.

POLICE COURT—THURSDAY.—Adolphe Wilscam, of the town of St. Henri, selling liquor without a license, $75 and costs. Calixte Bernier, wheelsman on board the steamboat "America," sued the Captain, Robert Smith, for wages to the amount of $68.50. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount. David McBurney, unlawfully offering fish for sale, $1 and costs.

ARREST.—John Sheehen, fruit dealer, Craig street, was arrested yesterday by High Constable Bissonette, accused of having, on the morning of the 14th September, stolen a silver watch, valued at $12.50, from a house occupied by one Louisa Howard, and the property of a man whose name is not known to the authorities, and who has since left the city; also a revolver belonging to James Kearns; a sum of money, amounting to $30, the property of the said Louisa Howard; and, further, on the 20th ult., from the same place, a watch of the value of $30, belonging to the woman Howard. He will be brought before the Police Magistrate.

ASSAULT.—David Laird, 24, driver for Mr. Livernois, fruit dealer, Bonsecours Market, was arrested this morning for committing an assault on a habitant named Armenegile Gregoire, by kicking him and tearing his coat, also for striking the constable who arrested him on the mouth with his fist. The first assault the prisoner alleged to have committed in consequence of the countryman having made use of a slang expression, familiar among the lower classes of French-Canadians, which the prisoner took to be a reflection upon his sister. The second assault, on the policeman, the prisoner tried to justify by saying the constable had no right to arrest him without a warrant, as he had not been present when it occurred. For the first offence he was fined $20 or two months. In the second case His Honor the Recorder read the law on the subject, which states that a constable can make an arrest on view or on the information of witnesses who were present at the time of the offence, without having a warrant. The constable did not press the charge for the last offence, as the fine had been tolerably severe in the first case, and a nominal fine of $5 or one month was imposed.

THE KUKLOS CLUB.

The editor of the Kingston Daily News was recently present at a meeting of the above Club. This is what he says of it:

"Already there is good reason to believe the formation of the Club has been productive of some of the good results sought after by those who called it into existence. Let any representative of the Ontario Press accompany one of its members to the Club Rooms—under the hospitable roof of its genial and highly-esteemed President, Mr. T. D. King—on a night of meeting, and he will there enjoy a 'feast of reason and a flow of soul' of which he will carry away with him home the most enjoyable recollections. There are assembled gentlemen (French and English) of all shades of politics and every phase of religious belief. But for the nonce political differences are cast to the winds, religious prejudices are buried, and all heartily enter into the spirit of social and mental pleasure, which, under the most favorable surroundings, are there so happily combined. If judiciously managed—a point in regard to which we entertain no apprehensions—the Club cannot fail to grow in influence and usefulness. If a similar Association existed in the leading cities of the Dominion where members of the press are sufficiently numerous, a rich harvest of favorable results would, we cannot help thinking, inevitably follow."

AN ANGLER'S RAMBLING NOTES.

A day or two with the trout is a treat of which most disciples of old Isaac Walton dream, but which comparatively few realize. The average take of a few bass, a doree or two, two or three perch, and perhaps a pike, is not to be despised, but in the estimation of the keen angler a very moderate creel of "speckled beauties" will outweigh a sack-full of the commoner species. For trout fishing has features peculiar its own which even those who have killed the king of fish do not affect to belittle. Only yesterday the writer after telling an old salmon fisher his experience among the trout streams about Lake Megantic was somewhat astonished to hear his tete-a-tete express his intention of spending next season not on the Restigouche or Metapedia, but among the waters of Compton county. Few localities offer such inducements to the sportsman, especially the angler. In the streams flowing into or out of Lakes Maccannamack and Megantic speckled trout of magnificent size and flavor are found in great plenty. Along these streams are to be found spots which fulfill the beau-ideal of the angler's imagination of what a trout stream ought to offer. Charmingly picturesque are many of the river stretches, the great trees overhang forming a lofty avenue; the river bed is full of boulders, rocky guardians of the deep pools wherein the big trout delight to lay in wait. Often the woods press so closely to the water's edge that the fisher finds it best to take to the stream, and then to the pleasure of luring one-pounders from their watery hiding-place is added the excitement of jumping from stone to stone as each pool is fished out, and the angler is led to try a cast in that other one just a little further on. Perhaps the heaviest trout are to be found near the source of the Chaudiere River. The waters here are perfection from a trout fisher's point of view, and the angler who delights in light tackle will be pretty sure to enjoy the pleasure of a decided break away. Lake Megantic affords splendid lunge fishing. This fish keeps to inaccessibly deep water most of the year, but during the first half of October they come to the shore at one or two favored points, and there royal sport is to be had. The lunge run as heavy as twelve pounds, and it is said some have been taken weighing seventeen. It is a powerful fish, dark, with grayish spots, the flesh is of pinky hue and by some preferred to salmon. It is caught by trolling, bites eagerly and fights gamely. The writer made the acquaintance of the lunge at Rocky Point, Lake Megantic, recently, and found Harper's patent double spinner a most deadly lure. In fact, it killed five fish for every one killed by ordinary spoons. The luxurious meals off lunge, prepared by old Ben Hillyard, a famous hunter of Lake Megantic, will not soon be effaced from the memory of any whose good luck it was to participate therein.

A good many people know the charms of the locality in question, and camping parties are very numerous. For those who think they might go next season, a few directions may be welcome. Take the afternoon train for Sherbrooke, rest that night at Chamberlain's hotel—noted for its luxurious beds—next morning take the train for Bury. There change for stage, which will take you to the Lake. If not good at camp-building, take a small tent, but to thoroughly enjoy life in the wilds, a double bark camp is indispensable.

MR. GLADSTONE AND THE GRITS.

The Toronto Globe says:

"Every one knows that the English people are just now very much divided in their opinions, not about the character of the Bulgarian atrocities, but about the propriety and expediency of indulging in such an agitation about them as will inevitably strengthen the hands of Russia in the pending negotiations and as surely weaken those of the British Government. There can be no question that much strong, and some very foolish, language has been indulged in at the expense of the Government by persons and journals that occupy no responsible position, and there are not wanting those who believe that both by his pamphlet and his speech Mr. Gladstone has placed himself amongst the number of those who, in the estimation of their opponents, are hot-headed, and in many instances dishonest agitators, willing to make political capital at the expense of their patriotism."

EXPENSIVE PERSONAL HABITS OF BUSINESS MEN.

The Monetary Times says: There is nothing more surely fatal to the success of a new trader than a habit of extravagance in his personal expenditure. It is likewise true that nothing is so exasperating to the creditors of a man who has failed, than to find that money which should have gone to pay their claims has been squandered upon objects outside the needs and beyond the means of their debtor. An instance, which confirms both these statements, is that of a Guelph news-dealer, Mr. G. M. Patterson, who last year opened business there with a capital, stated by himself at $600, and who, on the 19th June, this year, assigned by request of his creditors, with a deficiency in his estate of over eleven hundred dollars. Besides the twenty-three merchandise creditors proper, and near as many more local tradesmen for small amounts, which may be justifiable enough if they choose to trust him, we find some Montreal and Quebec claims upon which we cannot avoid remark. We will not be too hard upon a man who, removing from the ancient capital to the terrible temperature of Guelph, thinks it positively needful to purchase a $70 beaver coat, a $30 fur cap, and gloves and umbrella costing eight and nine dollars respectively; and we might forgive the eleven dollars spent for a revolver and cartridges for the protection, doubtless, of the store against robbers. But we do object to a man, who begins a new business on six hundred dollars professed capital, doing the magnificent with such articles as silk pocket handkerchiefs at two dollars and a quarter each, and requiring "one dozen Dent's gloves, $21. The thing is too high-toned. At this rate, we can easily understand how he should have run through seventeen hundred dollars in some eight months. It does not remove the impression which these revelations naturally make, to learn that the estate's first dividend is but sixteen cents in the dollar.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

John Fisher and Edward Fisher have fyled a document to the effect that they have carried on business as commission merchants in England and in Montreal, as woollen merchants and traders, in conjunction with Wm. Shaw, J. Whiteley Shaw, R. McShaw and Wm. D. Shaw, and still intend to do so, under the name and firm of Mark Fisher, Sons & Co.

BUSINESS ITEMS.

The proposition by Turkey to grant a six months' armistice, with the probability that Servia will accept the terms, seems to have created a more settled feeling on the London Stock Exchange and on the Continental Bourses, and funds and other bonded securities have assumed a certain degree of steadiness. The local money market continues to be marked by a moderate degree of animation, but rates remain the same as last quoted, and there appears to be no indication that any material change will occur before the spring, when the possibility of a general European war may lead to enhanced prices being charged for the use of money.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

At a meeting of the creditors of the absconding Jas. Chambers, of Ottawa, an assignee was appointed.

A writ of attachment has been issued against M. E. Knowles, hat and fur dealer, Guelph, Ont.

Mr. Carson Price, a general storekeeper at Williamsford station, has made an assignment.

The failure is announced of Mr. Walter Henderson, who for the past five years has been in the grain trade at Harriston.

Mr. S. J. Suell who has a general store at Berwick, is offering to compromise with his creditors at 25 cents on the dollar.

Thomson & Whitehead's case came before the Court to-day, but was adjourned till Tuesday next.

Messrs. Doutre & Ferguson, official assignees, to-day sold the stock of lumber, &c., in the insolvent estate of Duclos & Co., St. Joseph street, realizing over $5,000.

THE AMERICAN ELECTIONS.

The New York Herald remarks that "the Presidential election will be virtually decided, if both Ohio and Indiana shall have been carried by the same political party. But if the Republicans win in one State and the Democrats in the other there will be a more strenuous contest in the few doubtful States on which the Presidential election will then turn than has ever been witnessed in our political history. In that event New York will be the main battle ground, because its thirty-five electoral votes will probably turn the scale.

"We believe that the State elections which immediately precede a Presidential election have a malign and corrupting influence in our politics. They are to be deprecated from every point of view. They engulf all State questions in the maelstrom of federal politics, and give two or three States a disproportionate power in national affairs. If Ohio and Indiana should both go Republican or both go Democratic these two States will really choose the President, making the country at large a mere registering body to record their political verdict. There is no fairness in lodging so much power in two or three of the thirty-eight States, and enabling them to decide the Presidential election for the whole Union. We are confident that this unfair advantage can be of no long duration."

THE FATE of the FAIREST.

A Story of Life.

Her spirit of independence was not so fastidious or affected; it was genuine, sincere, and directed her along a path that, while by her open, ingenuous, cheerful, loving disposition, she gained the affection of all who knew her, she commanded their respect by eschewing all obligations calculated to fetter her freedom of action.

Malcolm Grahame, during the last few days of his stay, had contrived to ascertain her name, and the information that she was a humble friend of Miss Wilton's—a communication he received with great satisfaction, because it intimated that she was poor. To be poor was to be accessible to temptation, and he resolved to use gold profusely to gain her.

He little thought while making this ignoble calculation, that he himself stood on the very brink of a degraded beggary. Lotte was poor, but her poverty had no blur of dishonor upon it.

He caught sight of her walking alone in the garden several times, and rushed to an upper window to waft a kiss via his fingers to her, or to lay his hand upon the left side of rather a narrow chest, or to render himself conspicuously ridiculous in other ways. His vagaries were uselessly performed and expended without result, for Lotte did not once perceive him, and left the roof of Flora Wilton, in the Regent's Park, without knowing, or desiring to know, that any such vain, heartless coxcomb as Malcolm Grahame was in existence.

The interview between old Wilton and Grahame was brief; on the side of the former, it was conducted with cold dignity, and on the latter—after two or three revelations were made which yet further opened his eyes to the tremendous character of the gulph, on the verge of which he had stood with so slippery a footing—with an oily obsequiousness which was contemptible.

Nathan Gomer conducted the whole proceedings, and displayed an influence over Wilton, the more extraordinary as it was evidently not obtained at the price of pecuniary obligations. The preliminaries were all arranged, Mr. Grahame consenting to terms which gave him the enjoyment of half the property and surplus funds in trust, until the claim of Wilton was fully substantiated, when Mr. Grahame was to resign his half, and enter upon arrangements by which he would gradually restore to the estate the sums he had received from it.

The arrangement was far from being a satisfactory one to Grahame, but his position was that of a drowning man, and, therefore, he was only too glad to seize anything that floated within his reach, by which he might support himself for a time, if not save himself altogether.

A memorandum was drawn up by Nathan, who grinned as he composed it, grinned as Grahame signed it, and grinned yet more when he appended his name as a witness to it. He even laughed a fat, chuckling laugh as he drew Grahame's attention to the fact, that the sheet of paper, upon which the memorandum was executed, bore the proper stamp.

It was Grahame's turn to smile when, throwing a cold doubt upon the realization of the estates to be thus divided, Gomer laconically requested him to furnish him with a list of his most pressing engagements, and he would at once liquidate them.

"I have some thousands lying idle at my bankers," he said. "I may as well realize a slightly better per centage from you."

"And the security?" questioned Grahame, doubtfully.

"I require nothing more than your acknowledgment of the amounts advanced, and your copy of this memorandum," replied Gomer.

Grahame assented delightedly, and would have taken the most affectionate farewell of both Wilton and Nathan Gomer, but that the former coldly repelled him, and the latter grinned in his face in a manner so [illegible]

As he descended the stairs, he encountered Flora Wilton, just as she was entering her favorite sitting room, a small one, overlooking the garden.

He started as he caught sight of her upturned face, and turning to Nathan Gomer, who was following him, he said—

"Miss Wilton, I presume."

Nathan nodded.

"How strikingly beautiful!" he ejaculated. "Pray introduce me," he added.

Gomer did so briefly, saying—

"You will soon have the opportunity of knowing each other better."

"In truth, Mr. Gomer," exclaimed Mr. Grahame, in his grandest manner, "I shall look forward with impatience for that honor, I need not add, and high gratification."

Flora could only look timidly from one to the other, and feel extremely relieved by the absence of both.

Nathan Gomer having, ere they parted, reiterated his promise of supplying Mr. Grahame with all the funds his present need required, that gentleman walked into his mansion with the cold loftiness of a Sultan, and with high elation of spirits. Not that the latter emotion rendered him cheerful; on the contrary, it expanded and inflated his pride—it made him look over to the verge of the horizon, and believe the lands and domains between were his own. It made him regard his servants as serfs, his tradespeople as vassals, his acquaintances as persons who lived only to bask in the sunshine of his smiles, himself an imperial personage, to whom it was the duty of the world in general to bow down and worship.

During the last ten days, he had felt rather disposed to sneak out of sight than to exhibit his greatness to wondering eyes. Now removed from the danger of immediate disgrace, his own grand staircase appeared too circumscribed for the majesty of his presence.

Whelks, who had—by hot lotions, and fomentations, and blistering garlic, new flannel, a couple of calomel pills, and a half-pint of black draught—subdued the ear-ache, lost a sovereign—how, he was mystified in imagining—and taken the form of a ghostly shadow—noticed the change in his master, but with infinitely less surprise than that alteration which made him almost familiar with Chewkle.

Whelks, with the instinctive perception of individuals of his class, presumed, by the ascendancy of the commission agent, that "something was up." He was extremely anxious to find out what; hence, his civility to Chewkle, and his desire to form an acquaintance with him. Whatever that something was, it was plain, by his master's resumption of stern pomposity, that it was "down again."

Mr. Grahame, preceded by Whelks, entered the room in which he expected to find Mrs. Grahame and one, at least, of her daughters, but the whole family, as well as the two guests, who had been prevailed to extend their visit beyond the term originally intended, were assembled together, engaged in conversation, which did not pause for an instant at the appearance of Mr. Grahame.

"Can it be possible, lady Mawgawet," exclaimed the young duke, addressing Miss Margaret Grahame, using the prefix "lady" as he said in "playfulness," "that you did not consider that young cweachaw to wejoice in one of the fawest, divinest faces, ever pwesented by the wosy goddess of beauty, to one of youaw chawming sex?"

"I scarcely noticed the ill-bred person," returned Margaret in a cold, supercilious tone, bending her half-closed eyes upon a magnificently jewelled bracelet, clasping her fat, white arm, which she placed in various positions to study the effect of the bracelet, and to admire trinket and arm together.

Helen looked up at the duke with a quick action and a glittering eye. She said in a slightly petulant tone—

"Wax dolls have the 'fairest, divinest faces,' my lord duke, yet we do not fall into raptures with them."

"Not we, assuredly, Miss Grahame," observed Raymond slowly, "but little children do. In their eyes dolls' faces possess immense attractions, and they are the best judges of beauty in dolls, as—"

He paused and looked into Helen's eyes.

"As men lay claim to be of loveliness in woman," she responded, with a scarcely perceptible sneer.

Raymond bowed.

"As, indeed, they ought to be," he rejoined, quickly; "else why are your sex so desirous to obtain the approving admiration of ours?"

"A fallacy, which your sex has the impertinence to assert, and the fatuity to believe," exclaimed Helen.

"A shrewd imbecility, nevertheless," returned Raymond. "What say you, Miss Evangeline?"

"Indeed I think she had the sweetest face I ever beheld!" exclaimed Evangeline, with an enthusiasm which afflicted Mrs. Grahame—if that lady permitted any emotion, residing soberly within her well ordered frame, to agitate itself to the extent of affliction.

"Pish!" cried Malcolm, "you like dolls, now. The fact is, you are all at fault; the companion was the prettiest of the two."

"What, haw maid?" inquired the duke, extending his eyebrows half way up his forehead.

"No, her friend. I have seen them arm in arm. None of you looked at her face; I did—she had the prettiest in Christendom, Castle-Rose, all the world to nothing."

"May I, without inadvertence, inquire whose merits you are discussing?" inquired Mr. Grahame, with a loftiness he had for some time not displayed.

"I have been listening in pain and astonishment," responded Mrs. Grahame; "the subject is some creature who suddenly intruded herself upon your family, Mr. Grahame, and your guests in your garden."

"Intruded herself in my garden!" exclaimed Mr. Grahame, in a tone of outraged dignity.

"His grace, perhaps, will repeat the romantic story?" added Mrs. Grahame.

"Oh, weadily, weadily! you are wight, madam, the stowy is womantic," returned the duke. "The fact is, my deaw host," continued he, "we weaw all in the gawden the othaw mawning; we had awested owaw steps for a few moments, when, all of a moment, an appawition of angelic beauty pwesented itself to owaw dazzled eyes."

"In my garden!" exclaimed Mr. Grahame, fiercely, as to say, "how dare apparitions of angelic beauty present themselves in my garden?"

"No," said the duke, "in the next gawden to the left. She wemained but for an instant, and then disappeawed. We aw divided in opinion with wespect to haw chawms."

TRAVEL, ADVENTURE AND NATIONAL CUSTOMS.

An Indian Toilet.—No dandy of civilization is more fastidious in regard to his "make up" than a young warrior, or "buck," as he is called on the plains, whether in preparing for the war-path, a big feast, or an important council. The work of the toilet of an Indian warrior is always performed by the squaw, who takes great pride in adorning her own particular "brave" in the highest style of savage art. Generally the first stage of the proceeding is the painting of the face. This is an affair of the greatest importance. In winter, black appears to be the favorite color; in summer, reds and yellows are regarded as the fashionable tints. Paint serves a double purpose in an Indian toilet; while it adorns the face it covers up the accumulated dirt and saves the disagreeable necessity of washing. As a rule, Indians have an instinctive dislike to water, either as a beverage or for washing, and thus their faces are covered with alternate layers or crusts of dirt or paint. They say the paint preserves the skin, and keeps it from peeling off. The colors are kept in receptacles of horn curiously carved and otherwise decorated, and they are always hung and ready for use in every tent or lodge. The manner of decorating varies of course with individual taste. For the mere purpose of preserving the skin, a general wash of black in winter and vermillion in summer will serve; but on extraordinary occasions the face is generally streaked [illegible]

Oriental Workmen.—[illegible] you have the Malayan races at home, with all their national characteristics. The Chinese quarters are as much Chinese as streets in Hong Kong or Canton; and, in smaller proportions, the singular diversity of races is increased by the Kling from Madras, and slender Belgali, the Persee, the Chittie, the Armenian Jew, and the Arab. An Englishman fresh from home will be surprised at the busy appearance of the docks. Chinese carpenters and blacksmiths are hammering and sawing in the sheds, using tools as primitive as those which stood upon Joseph, the carpenter's bench, eighteen hundred years ago. Nothing can induce these remarkable people to adopt modern inventions. They do their work well, but it must be in their own way, and at their own slow speed. The better class of Chinese artizans you may distinguish by the light clothing which they permit themselves to wear. The majority of the Chinese and Malays about the docks, like their compatriots up in the town, are content with a wisp of cloth fastened round the loins, to hang more or less (generally considerably less) to the knees. To be sure you have on your outward voyage, beginning at Port Said, become accustomed to this, and by the time you have travelled far enough to be able to look about you in the Singapore docks, you regard any clothing, exceeding in dimensions an ordinary handkerchief, as a reckless and surprising extravagance in "the lower orders." Strong and lissome are some of these rice and fish-fed fellows; tall, straight and displaying good muscles. That this semblance of strength and condition is not delusive you may perceive by the amount of work the Chinese or Malay coolies get through, and the weights they carry. As a rule, it takes several Orientals to accomplish one Englishman's labor, but this is a rule not without a wide margin of exception. Speaking of men as they find them, the European employers give the native mechanics and the copper-skinned hewers of wood and drawers of water an excellent character; indeed, you will often be not a little pained to hear British employers speak better of them than of the British workmen, who is taught to pity his dusky heathen brother bowing down to blocks of wood and stone.—From "My Ocean Log," in the Gentleman's Magazine.

Servants in India.—Indian housekeeping is at once very simple and paradoxically complex. The fact that all servants are on board wages, from the moonshee, who takes a temporary engagement as secretary or tutor, down to the humblest punkah-wallah or grass-cutter, renders it comparatively easy for a master to know his expenses. But then there is something bewildering in the subdivision of labor, in having to harbor tailors and cobblers, washermen and watchmen and florists and sweepers. It is perplexing to find that every servant so well knows his or her place that a palki-bearer would scorn to fetch a pitcher of water; that hereditary poultry-keepers attend the hens, hereditary grooms the horses, and that not a meal can be cooked or a carpet spread except by the agency of somebody whose caste points him out as the appropriate person to perform the duty. An English resident, also, is apt to be puzzled by that habit of the native domestics, strange to our notions, of collecting around them a clan of relatives, old and young, more or less dependent for sustenance on the monthly wages of the bread winner. These "followers," like others of their plastic race, are by no means obtrusive, and are content to be tucked away in sheds and huts, or to lie about the passages of some rambling villa, while a pipkin of grain and a spoonful of ghee comprise, with a little cotton cloth, their few wants. But many a Briton unused to the country, yet drawing high pay, must marvel at the number of mouths that he indirectly has to fill, and must feel at times uncomfortably uncertain as to whether he has not made a gigantic mistake in supposing that the monthly payment of a few pounds sterling expunges his liabilities towards his servants, and as to the prospect of a little bill being sent in for all the rice and currie, all the wheat and pulse and clarified butter consumed by the domestic army that salaams at his approach. Servants in India have two merits to counterbalance such faults as are inherent in a race remarkable for the subtle ingenuity with which, on occasion, it can cheat and lie. They are grateful, not merely for exceptional kindness, but for the bread and salt they have eaten; and breach of trust is abhorrent to even the elastic conscience of a Hindoo, so that the very man who takes the lead in plundering the Sahib's store-room, when pitting his wits against the duller fancy of his European employer, may be rendered honest by being appointed dragoon in ordinary over the treasure it contains.—All the Year Round.

All the crops are one-sixth less than expected, on account of the very wet season, and a large proportion of the land only once ploughed.

Some interesting statistics have been published respecting the importation of American cattle to Glasgow. The experiment was begun in 1873, and was partially successful. In 1875 an average delivery of cattle was made in Glasgow of from 150 to 250 per week. This year the number is still greater; and altogether since the importation began it is estimated that a million and a quarter pounds of dead meat have been sold in Glasgow. A fortnight since 1,000 cattle were exposed for sale in the Glasgow market, and of these 365 had been imported from America. Arrangements are being made for continuing the importation during the winter; and it is expected that 200 carcases will arrive weekly.

SCIENCE.

A letter has been received from the German expedition engaged in the scientific exploration of Southern Siberia. It was written on May 13th, from the vicinity of Lake Balkash, and gives an account of the journey of Count Waldburg-Zeil and his companions, Dr. Finsch and Dr. Brehm, through Western Turkistan. They collected many birds, insects and reptiles, together with specimens of the various soils. They saw among the Khirghiz many tame golden eagles, which that tribe train to hunt and catch wolves and foxes. One of the lizards they secured is spotted with pink and blue. In Lake Balkash they found a peculiar fish, said to be poisonous. It was about two feet long, and was called the marinka. They tasted it without experiencing any evil effects, and liked it.

There has been some discussion in London lately as to whether men who work in sewers are more subject to typhoid fever and kindred diseases than other people are; and Dr. W. H. Corfield, professor of hygiene at University College, writes to the London Times that the information on the subject is very incomplete and contradictory. Experiments have shown the air of large sewers to be much purer than was suspected, but when they are badly ventilated the injurious effects upon the workmen employed in them are undoubtedly very great. Thus, of thirty-two sewer laborers in Paris, in a period of six months, four suffered from typhoid fever, ten from various other complaints, including jaundice and erysipelas, all of them from asphyxia, extending in eight cases to complete loss of consciousness, and nearly all of them from ophthalmia; but none died.

An interesting computation has been made of the amount of force imparted to the earth by the sun's heat. According to the best investigations that have been made, there is received in one minute enough heat to raise the temperature of five and one-half centigrade. If, now, we compare this with the work done by a given amount of heat, as utilized in a steam engine, it will be found that the heat sent to the earth in the sun's rays during the space of one minute is able to do as much work as would be done by two thousand steam engines, 100 horse-power each, working continuously for the space of four thousand years. What becomes of this inconceivably great amount of power is worthy of consideration; and we begin to realize the nature of the problems of the future scientists when we reflect that by far the larger part of this heat force expends itself upon the earth in actual work, only a small portion of it being radiated into space. Of course the result accomplished, such as the maintenance of the temperature of the earth, ocean and atmosphere, the stimulating of animal and vegetable life, etc., etc., must be equivalent of the power retained by our globe.

The only satisfactory detective of bloodstains, and the animal from which they have been derived, is the microscope. When a very thin film of human blood is pressed between two plates of glass, as in ordinary microscopic work, and examined under a tolerably high power of the instrument, the well-known red fluid is seen in reality to consist of a perfectly colorless liquid, known as the serum, and of an immense number of minute solid particles floating in this liquid. These latter particles are the blood-corpuscles; the vast majority of these bodies appearing of a reddish-yellow hue, while a few are seen to be of white color. Thus, the color of the blood is entirely due to the presence of these little globules, which exist in such numbers that the fluid presents to the unassisted sight a uniformly red appearance. The blood of all animals contain corpuscles or globules of one kind or another; and it is from the different characters presented by the blood-globules of different animals that the microscopist is enabled to distinguish the vital fluid of one from that of the other.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

Much of the trouble experienced in postal matters arises from carelessness, and a few general hints may be found of value:—

See that every letter, newspaper, or packet is securely folded and sealed, for every such packet has to be several times handled, and in the mail-bag is exposed to compression and friction.

Carefully secure every letter containing money or valuables, first with gum or mucilage and then with wax, and be sure to leave a good impression of a seal.

Never seal with wax letters for the East and West Indies, and other hot climates, as the wax melts and letters adhere to one another. The practice gives rise to serious inconvenience and injury.

When letters are delayed or missing, communicate immediately with the Inspector of the Division in which the Post Office is situated. In case of a missing letter state the exact contents, address, the office at which the letter was posted, the name of the person by whom posted and the name of the person by whom received at the office. In case of a delayed letter or paper, send the envelope or cover in an entire state to the Inspector, so that the place of delay may be ascertained by an examination of the post marks.

In the event of a supposed abstraction of money or value from a letter, send the letter and cover to the Inspector for the Division in which is situated the office at which the letter was delivered, stating day and hour on which delivered, name of Postmaster or Clerk by whom delivered, and persons by whom received.

Whosoever, being bailee of any chattle, money, or valuable security, fraudulently takes and converts the same to his own use, or to that of any other person not the owner, although he do not break bulk, or otherwise determine the bailment, is guilty of larceny, and may be convicted upon an indictment. This section does not extend to any offence punishable on summary conviction.

Under the criminal acts of 1869, whosoever is convicted of carrying about his person any bowie knife, dagger or dirk, iron knuckles, skull-cracker or slung-shot shall be subject to a fine, before any Justice of the Peace, of not less than ten and not more than forty dollars, and in default to imprisonment for a term not exceeding thirty days. The carrying of a sheath knife in any of the seaport towns or cities entails a like penalty, but the act does not apply to seamen and riggers.

This new preparation of Mustard Poultice, which has the advantage of being clean, convenient and effective, has been adopted by the Paris Hospitals and the Ministers of War, for the service of the Field and Military Hospitals, and after ten months of experiment on the sea, by the Hygienic Council of the French Navy. RIGGOLLOT'S PAPER has also made its way abroad. The English Admiralty has adopted it by the Royal Navy, and several hospitals in London are using it exclusively. The Vienna hospitals have imitated those of London, and Constantinople has followed those which we have enumerated. All these facts are an unexceptionable demonstration of the qualities of this new product. To avoid imitations the public are requested to exact the signature of
