Steve Lussier to run for mayor

By Gordon Lambie

Introducing himself as "the next mayor of Sherbrooke," local mortgage development manager Steve Lussier launched his campaign for the top job in town on Wednesday morning.

"(The mayor) promised to do two terms once upon a time, he has done his two," Lussier said as a part of his campaign announcement.

The candidate was vague with regard to his actual plans for change, saying that his platform would be announced later on, but he stated that he feels public money is being mistreated in Sherbrooke and vowed to put the city back on track.

"I want to work with what we already have," Lussier said, suggesting that the current mayor is too fond of spending money on development projects that fail to pan out.

"I'm not against airports," the candidate clarified. "I'm just against spending money without a sense of what we get back."

Asked about economic development, Lussier emphasized working on filling the city's existing industrial park and said that he is committed to seeking that area developed to its fullest potential.

With regard to what made him want to run for mayor, Lussier said that he

Marina Massawippi to assume management of Ayer's Cliff public beach

Ayer's Cliff local Alex Marcotte and Everblue Massawippi Executive Director Michèle Gérin standing on the Ayer's Cliff beachfront purchased recently by the Massawippi Regional Park Board. Under the company name Marina Massawippi, Marcotte and Everblue Massawippi have signed a three-year agreement with the régie for the management of the public beach.

By Matthew McCully

Management of the 11 acres of beachfront property in Ayer's Cliff purchased just over a year ago by the Massawippi Regional Park Board (La régie du Parc régional Massawippi) will be undertaken by newly formed company Marina Massawippi, owned by local Alex Marcotte in partnership with environmental group Everblue Massawippi.

The land was sold to the régie by les Pères Servites for roughly $1.5 million.

While five municipalities (Ayer's Cliff, Hatley Township, Sainte-Catherine-de-Hatley, Hatley, North Hatley) make up the régie, North Hatley opted out of the land purchase, which resulted in Ayer's Cliff assuming two-fifths of the cost.

Rather than take on the management of the beach, which would entail a substantial infrastructure investment and clean-up, régie President and Ayer's Cliff Mayor Alec van Zuiden told The Record the régie put out a call for proposals to manage the beach.

"I believe the RIPRM sent the offer out to five entities and Alex Marcotte was the only one to respond and with the help/alliance he previously negotiated with Everblue Massawippi," van Zuiden commented.

"We would have had to hire someone," van Zuiden said, if the régie were to take on the management of the beach itself. He added that the régie, comprised of four mayors and town managers, does not have the competencies or availability to operate a marina business.

"His (Alex Marcotte) parents already have a marina by the old bowling alley," van Zuiden said, explaining that Marcotte has the experience required, and

Who are the pickles in your neighbourhood

ROSS MURRAY

Ever since the snow melted, I had been eyeballing this jar of pickles at the bottom of our street. It was a litre jar of bread-and-butters lying on its side next to a cedar hedge right there by the stop sign. The pickles looked fine, but then pickles are already green, so that's an assumption on my part.

There was no label on the jar, so either they were homemade pickles or the jar had been there for so long that the label had disintegrated. But really it doesn't matter; it was a jar of pickles where a jar of pickles had no reason to be.

Day after day I walked by expecting someone to have picked up the pickles, but day after day the pickles were still there.

"The pickles are still there," I would tell my wife.

"You're not bringing them home," she would say.

Why would I bring them home? It's not like I wanted to eat them, although I was curious whether they were still good. Pickles are, after all, the hardiest of all the preserves. In my fridge, I'm currently working on a jar of homemade zucchini relish labelled "Sept 04/11." I have two more jars just like it in the basement. It's up to me to eat them because obviously we can no longer give them away as hostess gifts — except, perhaps, to hostesses we don't particularly like.

(By the way, if I'm ever found dead in my house under mysterious circumstances, check for evidence of hot dogs.)

Really I was more curious about how the pickles ended up there in the first place. Pickles are not your common roadside garbage. One doesn't generally misplace pickles. You're not likely to leave a jar of pickles on the top of your car and drive off.

Maybe someone got mad at her spouse. "I'll show him," she said, and then she threw away his pickles. Gently. Underneath a stranger's hedge.

And then there was the other mystery: why were the pickles still there? There's a family who waits for the bus stop on that corner every morning. Didn't they see the pickles on their property? Was there some kind of pickle-related standoff? ("I'm not picking up the pickles. You pick up the pickles.")

Life is full of such mysteries — mysteries one could probably solve if it weren't simply easier to just wonder about them.

For example, about a week ago, a cat started hanging around our property. It was hanging around other properties as well but of course my wife is the one who put food out.

"Wait, we're feeding it?" I complained.

"It's obviously hungry," Deb said.

"Well, obviously if you give it food it's going to come around looking for it."

Where had it come from? I later learned the kids had named it Nancy and that Nancy is a boy.

"We're naming it now?"

Monday night, I went out to the porch and the cat was sleeping there. It took off when it saw me coming.

"You scared off Nancy," Deb scolded.

"I walked out onto my porch. Why is the cat sleeping on our porch?"

"Don't worry, I won't let it inside the house."

"Sure, you say that now. But when winter comes you'll be saying, 'We can't leave him out there in the cold...!'"

Deb just smiled.

Then there was the other day when Deb and I were walking home from the store, just around the corner from the pickle place. A squirrel came running towards us. Then we realized it was running at us. We froze. It stopped right at Deb's feet. "It's going to climb my leg!" she cried.

A woman on a nearby porch said into her phone, "Une seconde," and then she called, "Charlie! Viens ici!" She flicked her fingers at the squirrel, who turned and scampered back to her, up her arm and onto her back. The woman went right on talking on her phone, not even an apology for the squirrel-related trauma.

Unsolved mysteries. How do you train a squirrel? Who owns Nancy? Does he mind being called "Nancy"? Why didn't anyone pick up the pickles? Why didn't I?

"You're not bringing them home," Deb reminded me.

"But what about when winter comes?" I said. "We can't just leave them out in the cold...!"

But then, Tuesday morning, the pickles were gone. So who picked them up?

It's a mystery.

Nurse punished for confidentiality breach

SHERBROOKE

A former auxiliary nurse at the CIUSSS-Estrie-CHUS has been fired after it was discovered that he had illegally accessed several medical files in order to transmit personal information to his spouse who worked for education fund manager Universitas over a period of ten years.

Marco Roberge systematically and illegally consulted post-natal files at the CHUS through a software program to which he had access in order to view the medical data of patients at the CLSC.

Roberge admitted that he had accessed all the newborn files and subsequently disclosed the parents' contact details to his now former spouse, who specialized in education savings. The parents of the newborns were then solicited by a Universitas employee.

The scheme continued for ten years, from December 2006 to December 2016 and it wasn't until November 2016 that the CIUSSS began to have doubts about Roberge's integrity, although new parents had been approached by company representatives in the weeks following their deliveries for a decade.

The offense is considered very serious for a health professional because patients are entitled to expect that a health care provider will take the necessary steps to ensure the confidentiality of their medical records.

In addition to his firing, Roberge has also been struck from the rolls of the Quebec Order of Nurse Auxiliaries for 15-months.

Dobson-Lagassé plays matchmaker for local business community

Entrepreneurs of the Townships had the opportunity to flirt with success yesterday at the 11th annual Dobson-Lagassé Speedcoaching session.

Held at the Bishop's University J-H Price Sports and Recreation Center, the event, a play on speed-dating, allowed entrepreneurs to mingle with and learn from their more experienced peers.

The goal of Speedcoaching, according to Dobson-Lagassé Executive Director Barry Hull, is to connect local entrepreneurs with experienced business leaders in order to guide and help them with any questions they may have. Many mentors from different areas of expertise attend as volunteers.

"We benefitted from the counsel of other people and now we want to give back," said Hull, explaining that the Dobson-Lagassé Entrepreneur Center has only a small paid administrative staff, with all others being volunteers. This allows the advice given by the mentors to be objective. "We have nothing to gain except the success of our entrepreneurs," he stated.

This year, Jean Provencher, owner of la Laiterie de Coaticook, was honorary president of the event. He was invited to speak to the crowd and answer questions about his business practices.

"I find it marvellous that there are mentors here to guide entrepreneurs through the business world, no matter their level," commented Provencher.

The event was attended by dozens of members of the local business community. Over 40 mentors and experts were on site in kiosks where entrepreneurs could ask questions.

Six presentations were given by local professionals, offering tips on various aspects of entrepreneurship.

At the end of the event, a cocktail was served, giving attendees the opportunity to network and make connections. Entrepreneur Maude Brodeur, who was attending her first Speedcoaching session, underlined the usefulness of the event: "It's an easy way to meet people who can help us solve any problems we may have."

feels the citizens of Sherbrooke are not being heard right now.

"I would go to city council from time to time, not to ask questions, but to listen," the candidate shared. "After a while I realized that things are not working. That's when I decided to get involved."

Lussier emphasized his position as an independent candidate for mayor, arguing that the existence of municipal political parties is making for a dysfunctional city council.

"We need to set parties aside right now and go back to everyone being independent," the candidate said, adding that if elected he is committed to working with all other councilors fairly, regardless of political affiliations.

Nearly 400 riders took off from Magog's Plage des Cantons Beach on Saturday as part of the Memphré Challenge. Recognized by the Fédération québécoise d'athlétisme, this event is an annual feature for the families in the region.

Magog Firefighters and the Town of Magog joined forces last weekend for this year's Leucan Shaved Head Challenge and raised more than $6,000 for Leucan Estrie.

Thirteen participants, a quarter of whom were girls, put their heads to the blade to help children suffering from leukemia at the Galeries Orford last Sunday.

The total amount raised reaches nearly $9,500 thanks to a number of activities organized by the Magog firefighters, such as selling hot dogs, sumo wrestling, water slides, and inflatable games. All money raised will go directly to Leucan Estrie for research to support patients and their families.

Magog Mayor Vicky-May Hamm also jumped into the fray, agreeing to get wet in a dunk tank after the challenge, raising $500 in the process.

Magog Fire Chief Eric Giroux, who was the first to shave his head, raised $950 for the cause and Josianne Jetté, president of the Magog Historical Society, raised $750.

High speed biking proves costly

They were also fined $1,500 and $2,250 respectively for additional offences.

Marina Massawippi to assume management

The agreement is for Marcotte's company, Marina Massawippi, to manage the operation of the beach for three years.

Marcotte paid the régie $15,000 for the concession of the property.

"It's a three-year contract, I'm doing what I can with what I've got," Marcotte said.

Marcotte plans to invest roughly $400,000 into the business, with $145,000 going towards a new dock with 32 boat slips. He will also invest in 10 new pontoons operating with a maximum of 25 horsepower, kayaks, canoes, and paddleboards which will be available for rent.

Marcotte is partnered with Everblue Massawippi, although the organization has no financial stake in the operation.

Michèle Gérin, executive director of Everblue Massawippi, told The Record

the organization wanted to make sure the beach didn't fall into the hands of someone whose only interest was profit.

"We're sharing our competencies," Gérin said, explaining Marcotte has the marina experience, and Everblue Massawippi has the water quality and environment at heart.

"It's the best of both worlds," Gérin said.

"The docks are going in over the weekend," Marcotte said. The new rental pontoons should arrive before June 24.

Locals who book before June are assured a boat slip, Marcotte added.

As soon as he got the green light a few weeks ago, Marcotte has been at the beach working on cleanup. While he is currently balancing his time between his new business and his parents' marina, Marcotte said he has already removed four large containers of debris from the beach.

Because the majority of the property lies in a 20-year flood plain, Marcotte is limited in what he can do. Any structures will need to be portable, he said, considering new bathroom facilities and other small structures.

"The lake can rise a metre in 24 hours," Gérin pointed out.

When asked about how revenues generated at the beach will be divided, Marcotte explained that in addition to the $15,000 he paid the régie for the management of the beach for three years, he also committed to pay the régie $10,000 in his first year of operation, and $15,000 for the two following years.

"He (Marcotte) won't get rich," Gérin said, addressing concerns that the régie could have handed over a potential cash cow to a private business.

"Anyone who is unhappy doesn't know the dossier," Gérin said, pointing out that the operation will require a full-time lifeguard, as well as employees to run the boat launch and rentals.

"We need someone from 5 a.m. till 8 p.m. seven days a week," she said, adding that insurance alone for the business will cost $15,000.

"The college was losing money for years," she added.

Marcotte said feedback about the new business plan has been positive so far. "It's a lot cleaner already," he has heard from locals.

When asked what will happen if the business doesn't pan out for Marina Massawippi, Marcotte said he will bring his rental equipment to another location and sell the docks to the régie.

PHELPS AIDE PHELPS HELPS

By Clea Corman

There is a fine line between needing help and wanting help; that dilemma that can either empower you or make you feel powerless. It is sometimes easier to sit back and let things play out, letting yourself become a self-fulfilling prophecy and giving yourself a back-up reason for things not going well. As we approach the end of May, I find myself thinking back over the last seven months to the countless students who have dared to change the status quo. Students who come in three to four times before finally asking the question they needed answered; parents who suggest and suggest that their kids come to Phelps, and that day that the kid takes the initiative to come to Phelps; the mini-epiphanies that we see light up the students when a missing piece of information falls into place. Reaching out is not easy or straightforward, it takes courage, and Phelps commends all these students for it. Our hope is that students will continue asking questions and continue challenging the status quo, becoming stronger and more confident about asking for help.

Kittens, kittens and more kittens!

Please meet Pasha, Juju, and JFK

Pasha and Juju were born to a stray mother but thankfully they will not suffer that same fate and will instead spend their lives with a loving family. They are approximately 3.5 months old and more than ready to entertain you with their kittens' antics. Pasha is a male and Juju is female. They are very friendly and playful and love to cuddle. Both kittens are orange and white.

JFK is from a litter of six kittens (all of whom are up for adoption but currently we only have a photo of JFK). He is a little shy but he is lovely and sweet and so deserving of a home of his own where we know he will quickly learn just how fun it is to be a carefree and happy kitten. JFK is two months old and will be ready for adoption shortly.

We currently have 12 adorable kittens looking for loving homes. It is kitten season after all! If you've been thinking about adopting, now would be a really good time.

As they grow, kittens need continued socialization so their ideal home is one where they have another cat or kitten to play with. If you are interested in adopting a kitten but currently have no other cats, please consider adopting in pairs.

At the risk of sounding like a broken record, please sterilize your pets and if your cats are not sterilized, don't let them roam outdoors until they are. Thousands of healthy, gentle, playful, and loving cats are killed every year in this province simply because there are too many cats and not enough homes. We would like for that to change. We are doing our part, please do yours.

For more information about adopting Pasha, Juju, or JFK (or any of our cats or kittens), send an email to frontieranimalsociety@gmail.com or call the shelter at 819-876-7785. Keep in mind, we hold a cat adoption open house every Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the shelter located at 2405 Griffin (Route 247) in Ogden.

If you can't adopt but would like to help in other ways, please consider donating cans of wet cat food. We have a lot of hungry kittens to feed. Thank you!

EDITORIAL

His Lordship also pointed out that really rich young people are just like everyone else with the same fears and concerns.

The stress and anxiety of being young and rich

TIM BELFORD

When journalists or the common folk talk about the fabled “One Percent,” that little group that controls ninety-nine percent of the world’s wealth, they often throw about terms such as “money grubbing,” “grasping,” “uncaring,” and “ostentatious.” Rarely do you ever hear the words “depressed” or “insecure.” But that’s all about to change if Francesco Lombardo has his way.

According to a recent National Post article, Lombardo is a Canadian-based money manager who up until now has been satisfied with handling the wealthy set’s money. Now he wants to handle their angst and insecurities as well. According to him, the heirs of all this wealth are a deeply troubled lot who are in a state of constant anxiety over all the money, the cars, the palatial homes, the groveling servants, the private jets, the prep schools, and the weekends in Aruba.

Who’d have known? He’s teamed up with what can only be described as the poster boy for poor little rich kids everywhere, one William Murray, known to his friends as Viscount Stormont. Bill is also heir to the Earldom of Mansfield and as such will be forced to inherit buckets of cash along with a pile of stones called Scone Palace.

Scone (pronounced soon) Palace is where Scottish Kings were crowned for centuries while sitting on the stone of Scone. This stone was carried off to England when Perfidious Albion took over the island and used in coronations there as well. The palace that poor Viscount Bill is forced to live in makes Downton Abbey look like a Verdun row house so you can understand his unsettled feelings.

Lombardo and His Lordship decided to organize the Scone Project which for the last two years has seen gatherings of the “scions of ultra-affluent” families worldwide. They get together and discuss their fears and concerns with people like themselves who can truly understand the stress of skiing in Gstaad, picking the proper colour for your Rolls Royce, and the proper fork for foie gras. As Lombardi says, the idea was to create a “safe space” so that offspring of the filthy rich could share their concerns with people like themselves.

Viscount Stormont, who is 29, says the project was designed to “try to ensure they are not crushed by privilege and wind up squandering their incredible birthright.” He should know since he also pointed out that when he becomes Earl Mansfield he will have “400 years of responsibility on my shoulders, 16 generations of portraits with creepy eyes looking down at me . . . There’s a lot of pressure. You don’t want to be the one who screws it up.”

Most of us can empathize. Who hasn’t got fifteen or sixteen generations of portraits on the walls of their living room? Personally, my ancestors would be terribly disappointed if I let the side down and could no longer keep my polo ponies properly shod.

His Lordship also pointed out that really rich young people are just like everyone else with the same fears and concerns. “Do people like me for my money, my last name or who I am?” Well, as any of we dull normals can tell him the answer is probably simple – yes, yes, yes. After all, he’s rolling in dough, he’s got a Viscount in his name and he’s the guy who lives in a palace.

Case closed.

Just to ease my own anxiety, I asked She Who Must Be Obeyed what is was that drew her to me, my money, my name or who I am. She merely laughed as she went out the door of Clough Castle.

Letter

What did you learn today?

Dear Editor:

At its annual spring conference during the weekend of May 25-27, in Bromont, Quebec, the Quebec English School Boards Association (QESBA) intends “to look for ways to better meet the needs of its nine member boards.”

Ideally, it should disband because the association has outlived its usefulness. Let’s analyze.

The QESBA came into existence in 1998/99, when boards went from being confessional (Catholic and Protestant) to linguistic (English and French).

The association cannot serve the boards’ needs because they are different as day and night.

At any rate, I recall in 1998, to get anything done between schools, organizations, and the government, took forever.

Today’s high-tech communication tools where everything is done in “real time,” the Internet has generally replaced the fax machine and paper letters. Email and texting are more popular than the telephone.

Consequently, parents today are more educated. After school, parents are more likely to ask, “What did you learn today?” as opposed to, “What did you do today?”

As far as student achievement is concerned, with or without the QESBA, our students do quite well.

This conference could easily be considered as a financial opportunity that could benefit all English schools, classrooms, and students in Quebec.

The boards should consider dropping their memberships to the QESBA.

Take the membership fees, and invest the funds of about $1,000,000 into their schools, and deal directly with the government.

Lastly, elected school boards are manned by commissioners, many of whom I have known for years.

They are, generally, smart and range from lawyers, business people, retirees, and so on.

This upcoming weekend they should ask themselves:

“What is it that QESBA does that we cannot do ourselves to benefit our students?”

Quebec Golf Hall of Fame

Golf Québec has announced that notorious golfer Debbie Savoy Morel will be inducted into the Québec Golf Hall of Fame on October 5, 2017, at Club de Golf Le Mirage.

A New Brunswick native but raised in La Tuque, Debbie Savoy Morel is a renowned golfer both in Quebec and Canada. Her induction into the provincial Hall of Fame is a well-earned recognition of her unlimited involvement in the game of golf through the years, and numerous achievements.

Morel acquired a bachelor of business administration with great distinction in Human Resources and Marketing from Bishop's University before becoming a professional golfer some 24 years ago. Class A member of the PGA of Canada, she is a Level 2 certified coach trained in the National Coaching Certification Program (NCCP) program. She was also one of Golf Québec's coaches for elite female golfers and one of the first coaches of the AGP of Québec Golf-études program, a position she held for five years.

Honoured 13 times in the Top 10 of best Canadian golfers, Morel was a member of Team Canada for seven years and was a member of Team Quebec 14 times. She took part in numerous championships presented all around the world, including the Canadian, British, and Mexican championships, US North and South Championship, Liverpool International Championship, Commonwealth Games, and World Championship held in Cali, Colombia.

Morel was proclaimed Athlete of the Year in 1976 and 1978 in the Mauricie-Bois-Francs region. In 2002, AGP du Québec presented her with the "Gentleman of the year Trophy," voted by her fellow Quebec professionals and in 2008 Teacher of the Year. In 2005, the National Post appointed her to the Top 50 of Canadian Teaching Professionals, and in 2006 she was inducted in the RBC Wall of Distinction of Bishop's University. In January of 2010, Morel was also inducted into the Mauricie-Bois-Francs sports Hall of Fame. Based on this outstanding record, Golf Canada presented her in 2012 with the Distinguished Service Award.

Her extensive knowledge of golf brought her to become a sports analyst on television, instructor in televised golf shows, and she writes golf specific instructional articles in well-known golf magazines such as Golf International. Moreover, in 2006, Morel fulfilled one of her lifelong dreams when she released a golf teaching DVD called, "A Swing for a Lifetime" in collaboration with Anne Chouinard.

Driven by her passion for golf, she attended numerous seminars presented by the greatest names in the golf industry, including David Leadbetter, Dr. Dede Owens, Donna White, Butch Harmon, Craig Shankland, Bob Vokey, Rodger Cleveland, Bob Rotella, Dave Pelz, and many others.

Nowadays, Morel is a Class A golf director of the PGA of Canada at Golf Le Mirage. Even though she has numerous administrative responsibilities, she dedicates a lot of her time to lessons and clinics offered to all levels of golfers. She is a strong supporter of women in the game of golf and shares her passion to promote the development of new participants. Morel is also involved with the Jocelyne Bourassa Series, which is comprised of two provincial women's championships, including one that is named after her: the "Debbie Savoy Morel Cup." This annual tournament is presented in rotation at Golf Le Mirage and the Ki-8-Eb golf club in Trois-Rivières, where she has been living for 40 years.

Goins' slam one of four HRs for Blue Jays in 8-4 win over Brewers

By Genaro C. Armas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ryan Goins hit his first career grand slam, one of four homers for the Toronto Blue Jays in an 8-4 win over the Milwaukee Brewers on Wednesday.

The Blue Jays swept the two-game interleague series and wrapped up a seven-game road trip with three straight victories.

Kevin Pillar, Devon Travis, and Jose Bautista hit solo shots for the Blue Jays, who have homered in four straight games. Bautista's towering shot caromed off the Miller Lite sign high above the centre-field wall 400 feet from the plate.

Marcus Stroman (5-2) allowed four hits and a season-high four walks but won his fourth straight game, pitching into the sixth before Domingo Santana's two-out, three-run homer cut Toronto's lead to four.

The bullpen ended the afternoon by retiring 10 of the Brewers' final 11 hitters. Goins' grand slam in the sixth provided more than enough cushion.

A .202 hitter entering the game, Goins hit an 0-1 pitch from reliever Oliver Drake into the right-field stands to break open what had been a 4-1 game in the top of the sixth. The lefty-hitting Goins left an impression in what might be his last game at shortstop before regular Troy Tulowitzki (right hamstring) returns from the disabled list.

Matt Garza (2-1) had the worst outing of his season, allowing seven hits and six runs over 5 2/3 innings. His ERA ballooned from 2.43 to 3.60 after giving up three homers.

The Brewers lost their third straight game.

Stats

Bautista went 2 of 4 for his seventh multi-hit game in his last 11. He extended his on-base streak to 16. ... Keon Broxton hit his fifth homer of the year, a solo shot, to open the scoring in the third off Stroman.

Trainer's Room

Blue Jays: Manager John Gibbons expects 3B Josh Donaldson (right calf) and Tulowitzki to return from minor league rehab assignments to rejoin the team in Toronto for a weekend series against the Texas Rangers. ... OF Anthony Alford was placed on the 10-day disabled list with a fractured left wrist. Alford got hurt while striking out in the ninth inning of Toronto's 4-3 win on Tuesday night. He had snapped an 0-for-6 streak to start his career two innings earlier with a pinch-hit double. OF Dwight Smith Jr. was recalled from Triple-A Buffalo to replace Alford. Smith picked up his first career hit with a double in the ninth.

Brewers: OF Ryan Braun got a day off from the starting lineup, two games after being activated from the disabled list with a strained left calf.

Up Next

Blue Jays: After a day off Thursday, Toronto returns to the Rogers Centre to begin its three-game set on Friday against Texas.

Brewers: The Arizona Diamondbacks arrive in Milwaukee to open a four-game series in a matchup of early surprise teams in the National League. Zach Davies (5-2, 5.44 ERA) takes the hill for the Brewers.

Do just one thing

By Danny Seo

If you park your car in a garage — at home or in an underground structure — keep your windows rolled up. Closed parking structures have poor ventilation, so fertilizers, paint fumes and other chemicals can build up inside. Since there's nowhere to vent, these chemicals can contaminate the interior of your car if your windows are down. When you are home, leave the garage door open to ventilate, and when you do drive, roll down the windows and let it vent out for at least 1 mile of driving.

Your Birthday

THURSDAY, MAY 25, 2017

You'll tend to be temperamental when it comes to your relationships. Keep an open mind and be willing to compromise if you want to get things accomplished. Don't miss out on opportunities due to an unwillingness to share. You'll get further being supportive instead of critical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Emotions will be difficult to control when dealing with matters that affect your personal life, status or reputation. Be careful not to offend someone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Ask precise questions. Put together a plan based on what you are told and how best to apply that information to get the results you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Opportunity knocks, and you must answer. Much can be accomplished if you get involved in a cause or project you believe in. Personal changes will turn out well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Refuse to let emotions halt your pursuits. Not everyone will like what you do, but you must do what's right for you. Don't falter when you should be moving forward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Taking short trips, talking to an expert and collaborating with someone who is as visual and creative as you are will lead to fabulous results. Don't be afraid to make personal changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Someone will mess with you if you aren't careful.

Don't let anyone handle your financial, contractual or medical affairs. Do your own legwork and ask questions if you are in doubt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Partnerships are featured and should be nurtured and taken up a notch. Kind words, encouragement and sharing your opinions will promote a healthy relationship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Too much of anything will work against you. Avoid anyone who is erratic or showing signs of indulgence and excess. Refuse to let someone manipulate you emotionally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Keep your plans a secret until you are fully prepared to present and promote what you have to offer. Timing will make a difference to the outcome.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Call in a favor to make changes that will help you enhance your personal life. Home improvements will encourage you to host an event or start a new hobby.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Participate in something that concerns you if you want to make a difference. Your energy and ability to make things happen will put you in the running for an award. Personal gains look promising.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Look outside your normal venues for answers to questions of a personal nature. Insight that can be adapted to suit your situation will come from an unexpected source.

It needs power to drive high

By Phillip Alder

Here is another interesting comment by Dan Quayle: "For NASA, space is still a high priority."

When a bridge player drives the auction to a high level, perhaps at least five of a minor, he must have a good hand.

In today's deal, South opens one club, and North responds four diamonds, a splinter bid showing a big club fit, at least game-going values and a singleton (or void) in diamonds. How should South continue the auction?

I am not fond of North's splinter bid, because the best contract could easily be three no-trump — for example, change South's heart ace to a low heart. I prefer a two-club inverted minor-suit raise, if the partnership employs that useful method. Without it, the hand is too strong for a three-club game-invitational limit raise.

At the table, four diamonds should have worked beautifully. South had such a powerful hand that he should have immediately used (Roman Key Card) Blackwood. That would have quickly led to six clubs. At the time, South control-bid four hearts, then passed when North rebid five clubs. But it was impossible for North to be lacking both pointed-suit aces.

Six clubs made easily when West led a spade to his partner's ace. South had two spades, one heart, three diamonds and six clubs. But even after, say, a trump lead, declarer would have presumably won on the board, cashed the diamond ace, played a club to the ace, discarded two spades on the high diamonds, crossed to dummy with a trump and led the now-singleton spade. East could not have won.
