Richardson resignation called for

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson, a lonely figure in a sea of empty government seats, Wednesday rejected opposition demands that he resign because of the failure of the $1 billion Lockheed Orion project.

Left to face the opposition music in the Commons virtually alone, Mr. Richardson formally announced the end of the government proposal to obtain 18 Orion patrol planes and then listened to the opposition criticize him and the government for the way the matter was handled.

"For the good of the department of national defence, and for the sake of Canada's reputation among our allies, the minister should offer his resignation," said Allan McKinnon (Victoria), Progressive Conservative military critic.

New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent agreed:

"If ever there was a case of ministerial incompetence, we have had it clearly demonstrated here today."

"The minister came before the House and announced that a project for which he has been fighting, almost ad nauseum without sufficient knowledge, for several months is going down the drain."

SEARCH BACK ON

Mr. Richardson said an urgent search now is on for a replacement for the aging Argus aircraft that are supposed to go out of service by 1980 and were to have been replaced by the Orions.

He said the government would welcome proposals from Lockheed Aircraft Corp., if it can resolve financing difficulties that killed the Orion project and from the Boeing Co., which lost out to Lockheed in patrol-plane competitions last year, if it can reduce its price.

A Lockheed official in Burbank, Calif., said Wednesday company officials still are talking with the government to see if both sides could reassess the situation with a view to completing the contract.

Re-election is favoured

QUEBEC (CP)—On the eve of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) leadership election, both declared candidates talked a militant line Wednesday against the federal anti-inflation program of selective wage and price controls.

President Joe Morris, favored to win re-election, said in a brief, fighting speech to delegates that the CLC executive will use its strong mandate "in the pursuit of power".

He said the labor movement took a landmark step Monday when 2,400 delegates to the convention gave leaders of the 2.3-million-member congress authority to call a general strike "if and when necessary" in the campaign against the anti-inflation program.

"We staked our claim that not only would we mount a direct and concerted attack against wage controls in the short-run but that we would also use this same strength to wrest power away from the corporations and their government for the good of the workers and the good of Canada," Mr. Morris said.

Challenger Lofty Macmillan, who describes himself as "the rank-and-file candidate", said in an interview the CLC affiliates should start working immediately to set up the general strike.

No breakthrough viewed as slowdown continues

By ROBERT MACPHERSON (Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — No sign of a breakthrough was evident today as the city's 130 policemen, protesting city hall's position in their contract negotiations, entered into the third day of a work slowdown campaign.

Some ten per cent of the force — 13 officers — are on duty during each eight-hour shift today, Sherbrooke Policemen's Association president Paul-Andre Provencher said yesterday.

And still fewer may be expected on the beat tomorrow, he added. But, he refused to give an exact percentage.

There were again no serious incidents yesterday, when 13 per cent of the ranks were on duty during each shift. Some cruisers and motorcycles were on the road, and traffic direction continued downtown.

The slowdown, consented to by 80 per cent of the men in an Association meeting vote the previous evening, began Tuesday midnight with 16 per cent on duty each shift.

The tactic is intended to pressure the O'Bready administration into either agreeing or dissenting with a conciliation report in their contract negotiations. Like the city's 1100 other employees, they have been without a collective agreement since December 31, 1975.

Mayor O'Bready, on the other hand, repeated that no comment whatsoever will be made until negotiations with other city employee's union progress and results are available.

The mayor's administrative secretary, Charles-Andre Beaudoin, quoted Mr. O'Bready as saying the situation "definitely" remains the same.

Mr. Beaudoin also denied reports that the city may take an injunction out against the Association, saying "It is not in anybody's mind" at City Hall.

He said the mayor has met with police director Jean-Paul Pelletier, where it was concluded the situation at present is under control, but will be reconsidered as new developments occur.

At the Marquette Street station yesterday afternoon, Mr. Pelletier refused all comment on the situation.

A refusal to answer all but emergency calls immediately and to work overtime are also part of the disgruntled officers' slowdown campaign.

However, the day-by-day decline of personnel will not lead to a total walkout, which is prohibited by law, Mr. Provencher said the decline will halt at a point where the officers feel adequate public security can be maintained.

When asked what this point may be, he refused, only saying "We have an idea of it."

Those officers who are not reporting for duty are continuing receiving full pay. A handful could be found at the Association's center on Bank Street, discussing the situation.

Their consensus was that the action is regrettable, but inevitable.

The conciliation report, prepared by Paul Deshar-nais and presented April 30, proposed police salary hikes of 17 per cent in the first and eight per cent in the second years of a two-year contract. The Association has accepted this.

However, as Mr. O'Bready pointed out, the first year proposal surpasses the sum allowable by the federal government's anti-inflation legislation, which is 12 per cent.

Further, an increase of one per cent in the salaries paid to all city employees means a $150,000 increase to the city payroll, which is presently $15 million a year, including fringe benefits.

For these two reasons — the law and municipal finances — Mr. O'Bready said he will not remark on the policemen's conciliation report. (See POLICE p.6)

Ottawa sets new oil policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government outlined new measures Wednesday it hopes will increase exploration for oil and natural gas in the North and offshore as well as boost Canadian participation.

The proposed regulations, six years in the making, will be introduced in legislation this fall and will govern all aspects of petroleum activities on federal lands.

The measures will: —Allow government to require a minimum 25 per cent Canadian participation as a condition of allowing a well to go into production.

—Change existing royalty system to a profit-sharing program with industry.

—Provide special advantages for Petro-Canada, the government-owned oil company, in northern exploration.

—Give Ottawa power to order a company to start drilling in a promising area or step aside and to start production from an existing reserve.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said, in outlining the proposals in the Commons, he felt the measures will meet his objective of doubling northern exploration in the next three years.

Reaction from the opposition parties was mixed, with New Democrat T. C. Douglas saying he felt the regulations will get the companies working harder on their properties.

James Gillies, energy critic for the Progressive Conservatives, disagreed, saying it will transfer decision-making from the companies to the federal civil service. The changes would not increase either oil production or efficiency in the industry.

Mr. Gillespie said the legislation will give government power to require a minimum Canadian content of 25 per cent after a discovery has been made.

A company might have to increase Canadian ownership of its shares or else find a Canadian partner to make up at least 25 per cent interest in the land holding

First-class mail rates to go up

OTTAWA (CP) — First-class postal rates are expected to increase by 50 per cent over the next year as the post office seeks to reduce an annual deficit of more than $626 million.

A senior official in one department and a political adviser to members of the Trudeau cabinet both confirmed Wednesday that increases, to take effect in two stages, will be announced in Finance Minister Donald Macdonald's budget next Tuesday.

The cost of mailing a letter first class will rise to 10 cents from eight cents this fall and to 12 cents next spring, bringing domestic postal rates more closely in line with rates in the U.S. and other countries, they said.

General increases of about 20 per cent will be imposed for all other classes of mail.

The increases will bear out warnings by Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey that postal rates would go up when a long and costly automation and coding program in the post office resulted in improved efficiency.

Critics of the post office say the increases represent

"two cents for better postal service and two cents for storage."

FIRST SINCE 1972 The increases would be the first since Jan. 1, 1972, when the rate for first-class mail rose to eight cents from six cents set in 1968.

The higher rates go well beyond restraint limits set in the government's anti-inflation program but, officials said, can be justified because of the big deficit.

The government has imposed big increases in some other charges for public services on the grounds that the services should be made to pay for themselves.

The 12-cent rate would still be lower than the recently increased first-class rate in the United States which now is 13 cents.

The post office deficit was $284 million in 1974-75 and rose to more than $500 million last year. It is expected to exceed $626 million this year.

There was no estimate of how much additional revenue the increases will produce, but based on revenues for 1974-75 the figure might reach $230 million a year.

QTF ends stoppages

MONTREAL (CP) — The 60,000-member Quebec Teachers Federation (QTF)—representing most of the province's French-speaking teachers—voted Wednesday to end all work stoppages by May 25.

A QTF statement also said members will decide three days later whether or not to resume their contract dispute with the government in the fall.

Union leaders have already instructed the teachers to boycott preparations for the opening of school in September in an attempt to exhaust all means of pressure before the school year begins, the statement added.

Meanwhile, the province's 6,800 Protestant teachers will be canvassed about a possible resumption of protest action after their employer group failed to present a promised contract offer on workloads.

Vilas hit by second blaze

COWANSVILLE (NW-JM) — Vilas Industries' plant here was hit by fire late yesterday when a small blaze broke out in the dust collection system at about 11:20 a.m.

At first it was believed that the fire was larger than it actually was, and the Cowansville Volunteer Fire Dept., was called, but quick action by the Vilas' own firemen had the blaze under control when the volunteers arrived on the scene.

Cowansville assistant police chief Gaston Lacroix said that arson is not suspected.

Police sources speculate the blaze was probably ignited by a spark from a nail or a screw in material which had been rejected and was being converted into sawdust which is used to fuel the plant's boiler.

The last fire in the recently installed dust collector system occurred April 8. Damages in the April 8th fire were estimated at $5,000 and police are assuming the same figure will hold true in the latest fire.

Quebec in focus

Aid for flood victims

QUEBEC (CP) — Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde announced Wednesday that his department has created a financial-aid office for flood victims.

Mr. Lalonde said in a statement the office will assess damages caused by floods, determine the amount of financial aid required and oversee payments to individual victims.

Application forms will soon be sent to stricken municipalities, the statement said. It said the new service will apply only to victims of floods that occurred this year.

Obront is arrested

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — William Obront, wanted by the RCMP in connection with a number of Montreal crimes, has been arrested here, police announced Wednesday.

A police source said the arrest followed a request from Canadian police, but that Obront also is being sought by U.S. authorities and may be deported to the United States.

A source in the U.S. Marshal's office at Miami said police there have been seeking Obront's arrest and extradition. The source declined to elaborate.

Obront, described as being in the meat industry here, was named in a Quebec police commission inquiry last year into organized crime as a top underworld money man in Montreal.

He was wanted in connection with a 1974 Montreal bombing but fled to Hallandale, Fla., where he developed several businesses and obtained U.S. citizenship in one year.

Earlier this month RCMP sources said he has been charged, in absentia, with fraud, forgery, conspiracy and the use of false documents.

In Montreal, an RCMP spokesman confirmed the charges had been placed, but added he had heard a news report that Obront was still free.

The spokesman indicated the RCMP was checking out extradition procedures with proper authorities and also was trying to find out if Obront's offences were extraditable.

HIGH WATER — Sherbrooke motorists were faced yesterday and early today with yet another detour, this time in a most usual place. The Frontenac street under pass was again flooded, causing the closing off access to Grandes Fourches Street, despite the public works department's efforts to pump the water back over to the other side of the retaining wall. (One consolation though, the water level didn't quite match that in the picture, taken recently when the water reached its highest level in recent years.) (Record photo by Steve Bell)

Wedding bells for Blue Eyes

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Frank Sinatra confirmed reports Wednesday that he plans to marry his longtime girlfriend, Barbara Marx, a spokesman said.

Sinatra, 60, has been dating for four years the onetime Las Vegas chorus girl. She is divorced from 75-year-old Zeppo—one of the original Marx brothers. It will be Sinatra's fourth marriage.

Spokesman Fred Skidmore said the entertainer, when asked about the rumored nuptials, replied: "Yes, it's true and it's nobody's business."

Sinatra and his fiancee, in her 40s, are currently in Las Vegas, where the singer-entertainer is slated to open an appearance at Caesars Palace this week.

A wedding date was not announced.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto stock market was moderately higher at the close of active trading Wednesday.

The industrial index rose 39 to 195.66 and the western oil 2.10 to 241.79. The gold index fell 3.48 to 281.55, its lowest point in four weeks, and the base metal 19 to 90.49.

Analysts attributed the rise in western oils to the federal government's announcement of oil and gas price increases to consumers. However, they said the gain probably would remain cautious until a breakdown of the increase was disclosed.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in a sluggish, stand-pat showing Wednesday after an early advance faded.

But American Telephone and Telegraph stock dropped nearly two points after its announcement Tuesday of plans to sell 12 million new shares next month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, weighed down by the decline in AT and T, slipped .55 to 988.90. The average had been up nearly three points in the session's opening hour.

What stocks did: Wed. Tues. Advances 71 730 Declines 01 701 Unchanged 458 82 Total 1,860 1,913

The drop in AT and T, by far the most widely held corporation in the U.S. with almost three million shareholders, was not unusual for a company that announces a new stock offering.

a company that announces a new stock offering. However, the reaction can be only temporary. Last year, when AT and T announced plans for a similar offering, the stock dropped from 48 $\frac{1}{4}$  to 46. By this spring it had climbed back up to hit a high so far in 1976 of 58 $\frac{3}{4}$ .

RALLY HOPED
Some brokers had looked for a market rally Wednesday on the theory that investors' uncertainties about the U.S. presidential campaign outlook would have been eased by President Ford's victory in the Republican primary in Michigan Tuesday.

But a small early advance in stock prices faltered in the face of concern over the persistent upward trend in interest rates.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index dipped .08 to 101.08, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks showed a .01 loss at 53.91.

Federated Department Stores, which reported a very slight earnings gain for its latest quarter, was down almost three points.

Fanstel rose more than a point on a new, $23.50-a-share bid for the company's stock by H.K. Porter Co.

Among Canadian issues on the New York Stock Exchange, Seagram was up  $\frac{1}{4}$  at 26 $\frac{1}{2}$  and Genstar  $\frac{1}{4}$  at 23 $\frac{1}{4}$ . Hiram Walker was down  $\frac{3}{4}$  at 31 $\frac{1}{2}$ , Campbell Red Lake  $\frac{1}{2}$  at 22 $\frac{3}{4}$  and Dome Mines  $\frac{3}{4}$  at 41 $\frac{1}{4}$ .

Guild meets

BEEBE — The All Saints' Anglican Guild was held at the Rectory in Stanstead with Mrs. O. Merriman the hostess.

A food sale and miscellaneous articles will be held in the Beebe Council room on June 26 from 3-5 p.m.

The June 8th meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hazel Brown.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served and a pleasant social time was spent.

Says distillery stock potential lacks spirit

Investors looking for a quick return on the dollar would be wise to pass up distilling industry stock at this time, says Richardson Securities of Canada in a recent economic newsletter.

The combination of the recession and apparent changes in the taste of the buying public has created "the likelihood of continuing pressure on distilled spirits earnings," the investment firm says. And it expects little possibility of earnings growth in the foreseeable future.

Richardson predicts a more variable and competitive market for distilled spirits.

A study of American drinking habits shows that an increasingly large part of the market is being taken over by prepared mixed drinks rather than the whiskies that previously led the buyers' list. And wine, particularly with dinner, has become increasingly popular with young adults on both sides of the border.

The question of vulnerability is also of concern.

"We believe those companies which have the bulk of their volume sales in whisky are the most vulnerable," Richardson says.

It forecasts the next few years as difficult ones for both Seagrams and Walker.

The fiscal 1976 earnings will probably be a little better, principally because of a rebound from recessionary conditions. But over-all lowered whisky consumption is expected to take its toll in both the domestic and export markets.

The newsletter points out that whiskies in general account for 70 per cent and 80 per cent respectively of Seagrams and Walker's distilled spirits sales volume in the United States.

WHISKIES FALL

"The whiskies took a beating in 1975, and it certainly was not due entirely to recessionary conditions. The trend is definitely down, which does not auger well for the distilled spirit earnings of either Seagrams or Walker.

"It would appear that the greatest threat stems from the possibility of an accelerating downturn of whisky consumption."

Of the two distillers, the investment firm says Seagrams is less vulnerable than Walker.

"Seagrams is perhaps more fortunate in having other important sources of earnings, notably oil and gas and wine, to provide any necessary offsets to soft distilled spirits earnings."

Walker, on the other hand, has no other major sources of earnings and will, in our opinion, more vividly reflect the soft conditions in the distilled spirits market. The newsletter concludes that, "given the likelihood of continuing downward pressure on distilled spirit earnings, we are inclined to deter purchase of Seagrams and Walker shares for the present."

Working environment for women improved

Women employees of the Canadian chartered banks now work in a more hospitable environment with greater potential for training and advancement than they did six years ago, according to a study of employment in the industry by Marianne Bossen, a Winnipeg consulting economist.

Her report cautions, however, that there is much to be done if the potential of women in banking is to be fully realized.

The study was jointly sponsored and financed by the Advisory Council on the Status of Women (ACSW) and the Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA), the industry association of the chartered banks, as an International Women's Year undertaking.

A major objective of International Women's Year in 1975 was to promote equality for women in society and to create an awareness of career opportunities open to them on the basis of "equal opportunity for equal commitment."

Canada's more than 7,000 bank branches employ about 131,700 people, of whom approximately 96,000 or 72 per cent are women. The study pinpoints some significant trends that have occurred since an earlier survey by Miss Bossen in 1969 for the Royal Commission on the Status of Women:

- The number of female branch managers has increased more than fivefold since 1969 compared with an increase of 19 per cent in the number of branches, reflecting in part "deliberate bank policy to make better use of women's potential."

- The number of women enrolled in the Institute of Canadian Bankers, the CBA's educational division, rose to 44 per cent of all students in 1974-75 from less than five per cent in 1969, indicating "higher level aspirations in women themselves and more self-confidence than in the previous decade". (Since Miss Bossen conducted her research the number of women taking ICB courses has passed the 50 per cent mark for the first time, the CBA says.)

J. Allan Boyle, president of the CBA and executive vice-president and chief general manager of the Toronto Dominion Bank, said the study confirms the success of efforts in the industry to open career opportunities to all employees on an equal basis.

"There's no doubt we have made significant progress, but as long as there is room for improvement we will remain committed to continuing efforts in this regard."

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Rejean Valcourt, St. Gabriel, Rimouski County, pleaded guilty to a charge of having been illegally at large from the Cowansville Institution. Defence lawyer Jean Riou told the court his client had been admitted to the prison in August to serve a two year sentence for robbery with violence.

"He was released on a code 26 to go to the Portage halfway house for drug addicts," Mr. Riou said. "Unfortunately his problem is with alcohol and he found the treatment at Portage wasn't doing him any good and he contacted a probation officer to explain his plight. When he received no answer he left and went home to Rimouski for a day or so then returned to Montreal where he found employment, and he was arrested during a routine car examination.

"In view of the circumstances, coupled with his loss of three and a half months statutory remission, I feel a sentence of two weeks additional to the term he is serving would amply fill the needs of justice."

Judge Gerard Normandin remarked the accused could have turned himself into authorities rather than returning to Rimouski. He then sentenced Valcourt to the one month term suggested by Crown prosecutor Claude Noiseux, to be served consecutive to any terms the accused is presently serving.

Trial and preliminary hearings in the case of Richard Frechette were adjourned to May 31 when defence lawyer Yvon Robichaud said his client, the former object of three bench warrants, was detained in Sherbrooke undergoing a psychiatric examination.

Leo Faucher, 49, of Cowansville was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination for a period not exceeding 60 days prior to facing arraignment on two charges of disturbing the public peace in Cowansville May 12 and 13. Jean Riou, Legal Aid Office, suggested the adjournment which was heartily endorsed by Crown prosecutor Noiseux.

ville, pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering at Le Club Equestre, Dunham, May 16. His lawyer, Jean Riou, chose jury trial and preliminary hearing was fixed to June 8. Juneau was allowed his freedom pending the hearing. However, Crown attorney Noiseux suggested he should refrain from frequenting establishments where alcohol is sold for consumption on the premises.

A bench warrant was issued by Mario Normandin who failed to appear for arraignment on a drug charge.

Bruce Ditchman, Bedford, pleaded not guilty to a charge of impaired driving in Bedford when his blood-alcohol level was .140 milligrams. His trial will be heard June 8.

Oliver Bazemore, Brooklyn, N.Y. pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal entry into Canada at Phillipsburg May 10. He was handed the minimum $50 fine, in default 30 days. Judge Normandin told the 24-year-old U.S. Airforce veteran laws must be obeyed in Canada as well as in the United States.

Douglas W. Billado, North Troy, Vt., was found guilty, in default, of a count of impaired driving in West Bromo. He was fined $100 and costs which was ordered seized from his cash bail deposit.

Raymond Hebert, Cowansville, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving through his lawyer, Yvon Robichaud. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days.

Sylvain Chagnon, Germain Duchesneau, and Real Grenier, all of Granby; William Moynan, Foster; Augustin Lanteigne, Verdun; Gerald St. Pierre, Town of Brome Lake; and Jocelyn Bernier, Waterloo, all pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving in the District of Bedford. Fines ranged from $100 to $150 and costs, in default one month, depending on the blood-alcohol ratio. Delays of up to 60 days were granted when requested.

compensation to miners struck by asbestosis, must be applied.

Yvon Vallieres, the Liberal MNA for Richmond who made this statement in a communique, was reflecting on a resolution adopted by the Commission des Accidents du Travail, which specifies complementary indemnity rates, based on the victim's declaration of inability and relevant information, whenever a mining company does not supply it with the required information.

"It is regrettable to see the ingenious manner in which these mining companies find means to avoid application of a law which renders justice to the miners," the communique read.

Debunking lobbying efforts by the companies against Bill 52 Mr. Vallieres said "The elected representatives will not place a step backwards and their offensive will receive the immense support of the majority of asbestos workers."

"It is not only incumbent on the working people to respect the law, multinational companies are no exception to the rule."

ET Autoroute use up

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS (GA) — The Quebec Autoroute Authority 1975 report shows an 9.7 per cent increase in the use of its roads over the previous year with 21,991,218 toll stops recorded compared with 20,055,466 the previous year.

The report shows a $2.1 million dollar revenue increase with $25 million collected in 1975 and $22.6 collected in 1974. A half million dollar increase in 1975 is attributed to the new Chomedey Autoroute that opened in October last year.

The Eastern Townships Autoroute showed $5.8 million was collected in 1975 compared with $5.4 million in 1974. $14.2 million was collected on the Laurentian Autoroute in 1975 compared to $13.2 million in 1974.

The Rive Nord Autoroute showed a half million dollar increase in revenue with $4.5 million collected in 1975 compared to $4.0 million the previous year. The Chomedey Autoroute shows a revenue of a half million in 1975.

The Eastern Townships Autoroute leads in a percentage increase in traffic deaths over all other autoroutes. According to statistics revealed in the financial report, the Eastern Townships Autoroute had 3.3 deaths for 100 million vehicle miles compared to the Laurentian Autoroute where 1.5 deaths per million vehicle miles were reported.

These statistics broken down further reveal that 362.85 million vehicle miles were logged on the Eastern Townships Autoroute in 1975 compared to 330.91 the previous year. In 1975 there were 400 accidents reported, out of which 190 were injured and 12 were killed compared to 1974 when out of 440 accidents reported 163 were injured and four were killed.

On the Laurentian Autoroute there were 1,007.24 million vehicle miles logged in 1975 compared to 934.39 million vehicle miles logged the previous year. In 1975 there were 1,292 accidents reported out of which 415 persons were injured and 15 killed compared to 1974 when out of 1,341 accidents reported, 341 persons were injured and 12 killed.

There were 222 accidents reported on the Autoroute de la Rive Nord from 271.53 million vehicle miles reported from which 64 persons were reported injured and two killed. This represents a marked drop in the accident and mortality rate in spite of an increase in million vehicle miles logged for that Autoroute.

On the New Chomedey Autoroute from Montreal to the Mirabel Airport 39.23 million vehicle miles have been logged to date with only 17 accidents where one person was injured. There were no highway deaths reported.

Waterloo to carry out sewage work on 2 streets

WATERLOO (BS) — Waterloo town council passed a bylaw at its May 10 meeting to borrow $160,000 for sewage work on Taylor and des Erables Streets.

The work is required due to new residences being built on des Erables Street and due to required updating of the sewage system on Taylor Street. Tenders have been received for the work with council accepting the lowest, $126,153.99, by Sintra Inc.

The loan will pay for sewage and drainage pipes on both streets, paving Taylor Street and survey and professional costs to carry out the work.

At the same meeting the following fees were set for the use of various municipal recreation services: Local organizations wanting to rent the municipal arena will pay $200 while out-of-town groups will pay $250. To rent the hall in the arena a $50 charge per evening was set.

Fees were also set for the municipal camping ground. The annual fee which includes water and electricity services is $350. By the season a camper will pay $175 for either winter or summer with both services. If only water or only electricity is used the camper will pay $125.

Weekly rates are $24 for both services; $18 with only one service; and $15 with neither services.

The daily rate is $4 with both water and electricity; $300 with just one service; or $2.50 with neither.

At the municipal swimming pool family membership for residents is $15, while non-residents pay $20. Individual memberships cost $5.00 for a resident child, $10 for a resident adult; while out-of-town residents pay $10 for a child and $15 for an adult.

Swimming courses cost $2 for a child and $5 for an adult, with a membership card being obligatory.

Admission to swim costs 35 cents for children less than 16 years and 65 cents for adults.

In other recreation department news councillors approved the hiring of nine summer employees to operate the camping grounds; two for tennis; six for the swimming pool; six for the playground and two for the arena.

The town recreation director told council a figure skating club may be set up in Waterloo and asked councillors for their approval. Members of council approved the idea in principle but want to first see the club's operating budget before giving the final go ahead.

The municipal camp ground restaurant will be rented to Mrs. Henriette Dufresne from May 1, 1976 to April 30, 1977 for $500.

Councillors also approved the purchase of chemicals for the municipal swimming pool at a cost of $787.

Several Bellevue Street property owners were present at the meeting to point out the need for repaving this street. Mayor Paul-Andre Roy said there was a good chance the town would go ahead with this work, but it depended first upon receipt of a government grant to cover costs.

Councillor Andre Belanger advised council by letter that he is resigning his seat, No. 2 for the south ward.

Arts, crafts courses set by Sutton group

The death penalty

The recent hostage dramas at two federal maximum security institutions in Quebec should provide Solicitor General Warren Allmand food for thought on his omnibus bill which is under debate in Parliament.

Hostages in penitentiaries are always possible. However, the possibility of the elimination of the death penalty for murderers of peace officers in the performance of their functions, as proposed in the legislation, will surely lead to further incidents of such nature. Many penitentiary guards have expressed the opinion that once a death sentence has been commuted for the slaying of a police or prison guard the inmate has nothing to lose.

Their fears will increase sharply if Parliament amends the criminal code and provides a minimum term of 25 years for persons convicted of capital murder. They will have even less to lose, especially when they know they will not be allowed beyond prison walls for the first 23 years of their sentences.

The drama at the Laval maximum security penitentiary, St. Vincent de Paul earlier this week indicates guards lives are still in danger under even the tightest of security.

Mr. Allmand has placed his cabinet post on the line in the event the Commons, in a free vote, decides to retain capital punishment. It is highly likely all members will vote according to their constituents. This practice, if adopted, is tantamount to breach of promise as the only honorable and just method of reading the pulse of the nation on capital punishment would be through a national referendum. Such a move, if it is to have any teeth in the final outcome of this thorny issue, would have to be binding on the government.

A jury composed of seven men and five women, in what was possibly the last murder trial in the Province of Quebec carrying the death penalty, took but 15 minutes to hand down a verdict of guilty as charged in the case of Mario Gauthier. Gauthier had been found guilty of the death of painting instructor Georges Nadeau at the Cowansville Medium Security Penitentiary, April 8, 1975.

The jury was a microscopic cross section of Canada with jurors coming from all walks of life. Its near perfect balance between the sexes further dispelled any notions Ottawa may have concerning the feelings of women vis a vis the death penalty. The women on the Gauthier jury were quicker and more positive in their replies when polled for the verdict by the presiding judge.

Twenty-five years imprisonment will create yet another problem for society.

Anyone incarcerated for more than 12 years shows a definite trend towards institutionalization and this syndrome will surely double if persons are detained for twice that period.

Will they be fit to be let loose in society? The opposite will likely prove true, and this all leads to an increased burden on the already overtaxed citizen. The average cost of maintaining an inmate is $16,500 per year. In round figures, without calculating inevitable cost increases, this represents approximately $500,000 for each prisoner detained for a period of 25 years. Multiply that by 12, the number of prisoners currently on death row, and you realize how the approximate six millions could be spent in other avenues which would enhance the lives of honest citizens who have not resorted to crime as a way of life.

Mr. Allmand's views on the death penalty are not a clear reflection of the mood of Canada. There is no lobby in Ottawa pressing for the retention of the death penalty. However were there one as effective as that currently calling for repeal of proposed legislation on gun ownership Mr. Allmand would probably be receiving thousands of letters a week from Canadians who have become sick and tired of Ottawa's 'Laissez-faire' attitude towards this pressing problem.

JOHN McCAGHEY

A life of hardship but peace for Cairo's Jews

By Phyllis and Herb Kamm

CAIRO, Egypt — The sand-colored granite building in bustling, fashionable Adly Pasha Street is hardly distinguishable as a house of worship. You must look carefully to find the Star of David carved into the facade about 25 feet above the street. A tall ornamental iron fence guards the stairway, discouraging the casual passerby from seeking entry.

Even if you are looking for the synagogue, it is difficult to find. Few people are aware of its existence, even though it is the only functioning synagogue in Cairo. (Once there were six — each with a large congregation.)

This is Ismailia Synagogue, also known as Doors to Heaven Synagogue.

Somehow the Doors to Heaven Synagogue, just a few paces from the frenetic auto, bus, truck and human traffic of downtown Cairo, symbolizes the status of the Jews of the city, barely noticeable against the background of 7,000,000 Cairenes.

The Jewish community of Cairo is an ancient one, dating back 2,500 years. Over the centuries their numbers grew and as late as 1952, when Nasser took over the reins of government, there were 50,000 Jews in Cairo. After the war with Israel in 1956, many of them left the country. Then, after the 1967 war, the dwindling Jewish population was further reduced by a second exodus.

It was the decree of the government both times that if one member of a family (parents, children, grandparents) left, the entire family had to go. They were not allowed to take money or personal possessions but they were permitted to leave their property in the care of those Jews who stayed behind.

Now there are 200 or 300 Jews left in the city — and perhaps a few more who do not identify themselves as Jews. Most of them are elderly. They live on income from their pensions and savings from former professions (law, medicine, teaching, banking) or businesses. The needy among them are helped from the income from the property left by the emigres. Funds from the same source are also used to maintain the synagogue and a home for the aged.

When we visited the synagogue on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, we were greeted warmly by the few people gathered there to worship. In a sanctuary that once was filled with a thousand people at this holy time of year, there was now only a handful: about 15 men well into their 60s or 70s, several middle-aged and two young women, two teenagers and three small children.

We sat in the high-backed, hand-carved pews and looked up at the great balcony supported on each side by six marble ionic columns and fenced in with a handsome carved balustrade. The carpeted sanctuary, rectangular in shape, has a magnificent marble rostrum where the readers stood to conduct the service. There is no one to replace the rabbi who died a year ago. Services are led by various members of the congregation.

The men seemed eager to talk with their American visitors, even after they learned we were journalists. The women, except for one, were hesitant, fearful. After the first flurry of female interest when they learned we were going on to Israel from Egypt, they moved away from their interview and the woman who was so eager to speak.

During the Yom Kippur service an Egyptian television crew intruded to film a documentary on religious freedom for the Jews in Egypt. A representative of Egyptian President Sadat, Nasser el Amsari, brought greetings from Sadat, and Albert Sasson, a member of the congregation, recited a prayer in Arabic for the wellbeing of the president and the nation.

Felix Iscaki, president of the Synagogue, told us this is an annual custom and that even during the Yom Kippur service in 1973, as Egyptian armies were attacking across the Suez Canal, Sadat's representative had arrived with his message of goodwill for the Jews of Cairo.

Iscaki is a small, pleasant-faced man nearing his 69th birthday who has no desire to leave Cairo, where he was born and has spent all his years. Recently he visited relatives in the United States, but he would not leave Egypt until he was able to obtain a re-entry visa. It has been the policy of the Egyptian government to allow Jews to emigrate, but not to return.

He is convinced peace will bring a return of the Jews. "We are happy because there is a great probability of finish of the war. When there is peace the Jews will return. Not only the Jews who were in Egypt but also many Jews from outside will come here because there is plenty of business," he told us. But he concedes that the young who are left are still anxious to get out and those who are out will not return.

There seem to be no restrictions on the movement of the Jews within the city, or the rest of the country, but opportunities for employment for the younger Jews are limited, although several are attending American University in Cairo. Their tuition is being paid from the community fund.

One of the worshippers was Elia Cohen, who had been expelled from the country in 1967 during the Six Day War and now lives in Paris. Contrary to the edict, his mother was not forced to leave Egypt with him. Now she is an old lady.

"I wrote President Sadat for permission to visit my mother and was granted a temporary visa," he explained. He returned to Cairo in May and was due to leave September 14th (Yom Kippur eve) but was extending his visit pending a decision on his request for a permanent return.

Although the Synagogue is the focal point of life for a few Jews, most of the few hundred still in Cairo live quietly isolated. There are even those whose Jewishness is unknown to their neighbors, like Eliahu Levy to whom we delivered medicines from his brother in Cleveland.

He lives in a large, high-ceilinged barren apartment that once was comfortably furnished. The apartment overlooks the broad Sharia Ramesses not far from the railroad terminal, but the shutters were closed and all we could see in the dimness was the small-statured, dark-skinned man in a yellowed galabaya (the white cotton loose garment worn by Arab men) and leather scuffs.

He, like other elderly Jews in Cairo, is reluctant to leave the loneliness of his known life for a strange world beyond the horizon. And so they live in the shadows, but in peace.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

DOORS TO HEAVEN synagogue, called "Ismailia," is Cairo's only Jewish house of worship.

Australia gets tough with its jobless

CANBERRA — (LENS) — Dole bludgers, beware. Malcolm Fraser's Liberal-Country party government in Australia has announced that it is going to make life difficult for people abusing the right to unemployment assistance.

The word "bludger" originally meant someone who lived on the earnings of a harlot, but for a century or so it has been used in Australia to describe any lazy fellow who imposes on others. Before last December's election there had been a considerable outcry about young men and women who preferred the dole to looking for work.

The Fraser government has not reduced the rates of benefit fixed by Gough Whitlam's previous Labor government, which in any event are not very high by the standards of West European countries. Instead, it has placed more restrictions on those who draw the dole.

The waiting time before receiving benefit has been extended from two weeks to six. Nobody who is voluntarily unemployed can receive it. The definitions of suitable employment have been widened, and people can be refused the dole if they unreasonably decline to travel away from their homes, or if they have turned up for job appointments unsuitably dressed and generally scruffy.

These changes may not make much difference to the general rate of unemployment, which is still around the 5 per cent mark, but they will certainly make or remove some of the more flagrant cases of indolence — which is what those who complained probably wanted. The attack on dole bludgers is in line with a sort of conservative puritanism which is emerging as the distinguishing mark of the Fraser government.

Fraser has already said that his first budget, due in a few months' time, will be a tough one, but that it will be tough on the government, not on the people. He explained that government had to be reduced and people thrown more on their own resources to spend their money as they wished, and he hinted (or some people thought he did) that taxes might be reduced.

The computer spies

WASHINGTON — Some of our most sensitive national secrets could be tapped by a few bright computer experts with access to a telephone.

A startling government report, which has been declassified but not released to the public, tells how a group of Navy scientists cracked a Univac 1108 computer system using an ordinary telephone. Yet the system was supposed to be "secure."

The 1108 is in widespread use throughout the government. The White House, all the military services and several federal agencies use this system to store sensitive information. Not only top defense secrets but personal details the government gathers about private individuals are contained in 1108 computers.

The Navy scientists write that they inserted "trap doors" in the system. "At the user's expense, we were able to covertly copy their files. Had we wanted to, we could have destroyed or selectively rewritten them."

What an enemy could do with this access to highly classified information is alarming. It also has grave privacy implications since the files on private citizens would also be compromised.

The scientists who engineered this computer break-in wrote that they believe "penetration of large (operating systems) can be performed at very low cost. However, because there are few well-documented examples of such penetration, there is a false sense of security among system managers, many of whom believe that holes in their systems exist in theory but are, in practice, not possible to exploit."

The government now claims to have plugged the holes described in this report. But the scientists claim "that no individual can understand such large and haphazardly constructed systems and the systems are bound to have holes."

The General Accounting Office (GAO), in a private study, found that some government employes have already turned their knowledge of these "holes" to their own profit. The GAO investigated 69 cases of criminal computer fraud, which cost the government more than $2 million in losses.

A clerk discovered, for example, that she could introduce fictitious food stamp claims into a computer on behalf of accomplices. They collected more than $90,000 in fraudulent benefits before they were caught as a result of an anonymous tip.

Footnote: Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., who has learned about the computer spying, has alerted both the House and Senate Armed Services committees, urging an investigation.

Whale Hunt: For centuries, the Arctic sea mammals, particularly the whale, have provided the Eskimos with most of the food, clothing and shelter they needed to survive in the most hostile environment on earth.

We sent our reporter, Hal Bernton, to the northernmost town on the continent, Barrow, Alaska, near the tip of a tiny peninsula jutting into the ice-bound Arctic Ocean to spend a week with the Eskimos. His assignment was to report the effect of the Alaskan oil fever upon the Eskimo culture.

The highlight of Bernton's stay with the Eskimos was a whale hunt. The Eskimos told how white intruders were scaring off the great whales, whose blubber is still one of their staple foods. One hunting party had waited on the ice nearly a week for a whale to appear in the open water, they said, only to see it frightened away by a low-flying plane.

Nevertheless, the Eskimos took Bernton with them on a whale hunt. He trotted alongside a sealskin boat which was lashed to a wooden sled. His job was to help keep the sled on the narrow trail that twisted through the Arctic ice pack.

They raced over the ice as Eskimos have been doing for hundreds of years. Yet there was evidence of the encroachment of the white civilization. The sled was pulled not by a team of Husky dogs but by a Skiddo snowmobile.

The Eskimos also tired sooner than their forebears would have and stopped for Coke breaks. "Last time I felt as bad as this," one Eskimo companion panted, "I'd been on a drunk for a week!" He added, "Yet I've been smoking since I was nine."

After refreshing themselves with Coke and orange pop, the Eskimos tossed the empty cans out on the ice. They also listened to Johnny Cash music on a transistor radio.

As they approached the edge of the ice, a party of returning hunters warned that the ice by the open water was treacherous. So Bernton and his friends pitched their tents a safe distance from the open water. The canvas tents, introduced by 18th-century whaling ships which sailed out of San Francisco, were lined with wooden racks and then were filled with caribou skins.

Inside the tent, a Coleman stove was lit and they dined on Spam, bread and hot tea. They slept until 3:00 a.m. when a companion shook Bernton awake.

"We have to go quickly," the Eskimo said urgently. "The radio says there is going to be a 40-mile-an-hour wind pretty soon." This could have broken up the ice and left them stranded on a floating iceberg.

The approaching storm ended the whale hunt before it got started. By dawn's eerie Arctic light, they headed back to Barrow, the roar of their snowmobile shattering the frozen stillness.

Footnote: We'll have more reports from Bernton on life with the Eskimos in future columns.

Homer may hold clue for future of lobsters

HALIFAX (CP) — There's a dark green, six-to-eight-pound lobster lazing around in a tank at Dalhousie University. His age is unknown but he is believed to be older than many of the school's biology students who fondly refer to him as Homer.

His purpose at the moment, besides being a pet, is to be part of a series of experiments on the food preferences of lobsters, whose numbers are decreasing.

Homar's tank, about six feet square and four feet deep, is filled with sea water, shells, numerous sea urchins and a chewed up crab. The only missing item of the lobster's natural habitat is seaweed.

And that's what the experiments are all about.

Dr. K. H. Mann, chairman of the department of marine biology at Dalhousie, said that in Eastern Canada, sea urchins are usually controlled by lobsters and that reduced lobster abundance has allowed the urchins to increase and devour beds of kelp.

Kelp, or seaweed, is used as a hiding place by lobsters. If lobsters decrease either as a result of over-fishing or because they are at the low point of their cycle, then sea urchins increase, kelp disappears and there is no place for the remaining lobsters to hide.

The university has been carrying out studies at nearby St. Margaret's Bay since 1967, aided by money from the National Research Council, but while allotments have remained the same for a number of years, costs have increased rapidly.

In fact, said Dr. Mann, the Science Council of Canada has calculated that, owing to inflation, a 1974-75 operating grant buys 41 per cent less research than it did in 1969.

A special $400,000 grant was given to eight professors at the university three years ago and will run out next year. In addition to lobster experiments, studies are under way on farming oysters and growing seaweed.

Dr. Mann said all special grants from the National Research Council have been discontinued because of government restraint. This might mean the end, or at least postponement, of many experiments now under way, as there appear to be no alternate sources of financing.

JOBS JEOPARDIZED — "The province is tight with money to the university," said Dr. Mann, adding that eight full-time technicians, who are paid from the special grant, might lose their jobs.

DOWN IS NO PROBLEM, but which way is up? It's a good question raised by a fish-eye helicopter view of Toronto's downtown lakefront. At center, casting its long shadow over the city, is the Canadian National Railways Tower. The helicopter crew is positioning final segments of the tower's steel antenna mast which, when completed this summer, will be the world's tallest free-standing structure at 1,815 feet and five inches, topping New York's World Trade Center by 465 feet.

Gov't., controllers positions unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — The government and the air controllers took steps to reopen contract talks Wednesday but their positions seemed to remain unchanged.

J. M. Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association (CATCA), emerged from a meeting with Transport Minister Otto Lang to repeat that there must be an acceptable settlement on all issues to avoid a strike May 31.

A walkout would automatically shut down all major airports under an agreement between the government and the union.

Mr. Livingston said he reiterated the union view on the touchy issue of bilingual air communications in Quebec. Mr. Lang said he is willing to clarify the terms of reference of a public inquiry he has ordered into air safety and the use of French in Quebec airspace.

The union leader said he will attempt to resume talks with the treasury board in the next two days on wages and other issues.

Earlier, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said outside a cabinet meeting that he is willing to talk with the controllers but has only limited room to manoeuvre. He was bound by the government's anti-inflation guidelines.

The union set the strike date early Wednesday morning after the membership voted overwhelmingly in favor of a walkout.

The meeting with Mr. Lang was confined to the delicate bilingualism issue as the transport minister said he has no authority to deal with over-all contract talks. Labor negotiations with government employees are conducted by the Treasury Board.

Mr. Livingston said he asked the minister to halt further expansion of French in air-ground communications in Quebec until the inquiry commissioner has reported. He also wanted the inquiry terms of reference broadened.

Mr. Lang said some aspects of bilingual air traffic control already are being extended gradually in Quebec but there is no dispute on these issues with CATCA.

"We aren't necessarily that far apart," the transport minister said. He was optimistic that all issues could be settled before May 31.

West Bank fighting flares up

JERUSALEM (AP) — Arab-Israeli feuding has flared anew in East Jerusalem, spreading to civilian confrontations with Jewish students led by a militant U.S. rabbi battling Arab youths with rocks and clubs.

The clash Wednesday at Jerusalem's Hebrew University left four Jews and two Arabs injured, Hadassah Hospital said.

An uneasy calm was reported outside Jerusalem in the occupied West Bank after three days of riots in which three Arabs were killed by Israeli security forces. Tight curfews were imposed by the military in several towns in the area where 16 Arabs have been killed since February.

Fighting at the university broke out when right-wing Jewish students led by Rabbi Meir Kahane began a counter-demonstration to 150 Israeli Arab students protesting Israel's Arab policies, police said.

Rabbi Kahane heads the radical, New York-based Jewish Defence League.

Concorde will land in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court upheld Wednesday the government's decision allowing the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde passenger jet airliner to land regularly at two United States airports.

The ruling by the three-judge court appeared to clear the way for Air France and British Airways to start Concorde service to Dulles International Airport outside Washington on Monday as scheduled.

However, the ruling has no effect on the Concorde ban imposed by the Port Authority of New York-New Jersey, which operates Kennedy International Airport outside New York City.

That six-month ban at Kennedy is being challenged by the two airlines in a New York district court.

The court ruling came in a suit brought by eight environmental groups and 27 congressmen that suit was joined by Fairfax and Loudoun counties, Va., and by Nassau County, N.Y., the State of the New York and the Aviation Consumer Action project—a group headed by consumer crusader Ralph Nader.

At a hearing Wednesday, the opponents claimed the Feb. 4 decision by Transportation Secretary William Coleman allowing Air France and British Airways to operate the Concorde on two flights daily into Kennedy and one flight daily into Dulles should be overturned because Coleman did not consider all pertinent information.

They objected specifically to the failure by the government to include a discussion on Concorde safety in the environmental impact statement. They also contended Coleman has no authority to rule on the Concorde flights until the government has set maximum noise rules for supersonic planes.

The World in focus

Kissinger and NATO

OSLO, Norway (CP) — Henry Kissinger arrived Wednesday to meet allied leaders whom, a senior American official said, obviously are wondering about his ability to conduct U.S. diplomacy in an election year.

The U.S. state secretary's arrival for the annual conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) foreign ministers was preceded by a parade of about 1,000 Norwegians through downtown Oslo protesting both the NATO and Soviet-led Warsaw pact military blocs.

The senior official told reporters on the flight from Washington that in an American election year it is obvious for NATO leaders to wonder who will be in charge and what effect the campaign will have on U.S. foreign policy.

"New economic order"

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing proposed Wednesday creation of "a new world economic order" which he said would "help open the way to a more stable, more peaceful world."

In a speech to the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, he said industrialized countries like France and the United States must provide substantial aid to poor countries.

"We have just as much interest as they have in promoting the growth of their trade, the modernization of their economies, and their integration into the stream of progress," he said.

Philadelphia is the third city Giscard d'Estaing has visited in his six-day stay in the U.S.

Vehicles recalled

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it is recalling 438,800 of its 1976 Ford and Lincoln-Mercury vehicles—including 29,800 units from Canada—to find a possible defect which might keep the throttle open even when the driver takes his foot off the accelerator.

Ford said the problem might exist in about 26,000 of the vehicles being recalled.

The No. 2 auto-maker in the United States said Wednesday the cables are on most 1976 model passenger cars and Rancho light trucks manufactured between Dec. 1, 1975, and March 24 of this year. Not affected, Ford said, are Mustang II and Capri II models.

Milby W.I.

The 45th Anniversary of the Milby W.I. was commemorated by attending a turkey dinner at the "Quebecois" on the Stanstead Hwy. on Monday evening, May 3rd. Seventeen members attended, also five invited guests: e.g. Miss Edna Smith, Prov. Pres., Mrs. Cascadden, Prov. Treas., Mrs. Gwen Parker, Co. Pres., Mrs. M. Smart, Co. Treas., and Mrs. Tracy, Co. Sec'y.

On arrival, guests of honour were given corsages of yellow mums, while each member received a corsage of blue and gold ribbon on which was the number in gold, indicating the number of years that person had been a member of the Milby W.I.

Mrs. A. Sutor, President, extended a warm welcome to all, mentioning especially the older members, one of whom, Mrs. Sadie Beattie, had been a member for 45 years. Regrettably, three other senior members were unable to attend, owing to illness or distance.

All were then seated at two long tables, attractively set, on which were vases of daffodils, at each place tiny place cards, and dainty little tulle wrapped baskets of mints, tied with blue and gold satin ribbon.

At the close of the dinner, Mrs. S. Cairns, Sec'y., gave a very interesting sketch of the group's work over the 45 years, ending with one of her usual humorous poems for which she is well-known.

A short, regular meeting then opened with the Collect, Ode and Salute to the Flag. The minutes, treasurer's report, and reports of the Conventers were read.

Citizenship made mention of the Queen's intended visit in July to take part in the opening of the Olympics in Montreal, also Princess Anne's hope to partake in the Equestrian Competitions in spite of her recent accident.

Health & Welfare had sent flowers to two shut-ins at Easter, also several greeting and get-well cards.

Publicity reported special article had been sent to Co. Conventer for possible use in Macdonald Magazine.

Agriculture conventer had purchased petunia plants to be distributed to members for the fall contest.

A beautiful cushion top of crevel work made by Mrs. Carolyn Coates for F.W.I.C. table at the annual meeting, was greatly admired by all, and appreciated.

It was decided the group would assist the Community Club in furnishing refreshments for a shower for a family member of one of our group.

Mrs. Bev Patrick reported the Club Room open for the next meeting.

Mrs. Allan Sutor agreed to act as delegate at the annual convention at Macdonald, Mrs. C. Coates for County meeting in Lennoxville as delegate.

Each of the visiting guests expressed her appreciation at being included in the Milby W.I. 45th Birthday Party.

Miss Edna Smith won the "Round Robin".

The Roll Call, "Hints on Gardening" brought forth some interesting ideas and comments.

ACW meeting

WINDSOR — St. George's A.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Grant Watson on Wednesday afternoon, May 12, with five members and seven guests present.

The president, Mrs. Agnes Oakley, opened the meeting with prayer. A minute of silence was observed in memory of the eldest member, Mrs. Lawrence Wheeler, who passed away on March 18.

There had been no April meeting. The minutes of the March meeting were read and approved. The treasurer, Mrs. Irwin Robinson, reported a good bank balance. Several donations had been received in memory of Mrs. Wheeler. Easter lilies had been purchased and placed in the church for the Easter service.

Correspondence included a number of "thank-yous" for remembrances received.

Mrs. G. Watson turned in money from the sale of cook books and an amount of money was voted to St. Andrew's Sunday School.

Mrs. Wm. Holliday acted as auctioneer for a sale of articles donated by members and friends, with a good amount being realized from same.

A drawing was held on two blankets, with Mrs. P. Robb and Mrs. A. MacDonald holding the lucky numbers.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Irwin Robinson.

The meeting was adjourned by Miss Wheeler, following which delicious refreshments were enjoyed.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Wm. Holliday and Mrs. W. MacDonald.

Fairmount Park to open

IRON HILL — Around a man-made lake in the heart of Shefford Mountain in Iron Hill is a very picturesque picnic and tenting area which will be officially opened on Saturday, May 22, for the holiday weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Swift will celebrate their fourth season. There is a canteen on the premises.

They will be entertaining the local Scouts, Cubs and Brownies for weekends during the summer months.

Why not come for a picnic pitch a tent or just spend a leisurely day in the great outdoors?

Mrs. Hilda Howard and Mrs. Wm. Mason attended the first day of Synod in Montreal at Christ Church Cathedral, which was a Service of Holy Eucharist. Mrs. Wm. Mason accompanied Rev. Wilbur Davidson and Mr. Paul Mason on Friday for the last day of Synod, 1976.

Confirmation held

IRON HILL — Confirmation service took place in Holy Trinity Church on Sunday, May 16, with Bishop Reginald Hollis of Montreal Diocese, officiating.

Rev. Wilbur Davidson conducted the service and presented four girls and five boys for the laying on of hands: Debbie Howard, Marla Hadlock, Sheila Beerwort, Kathy Beerwort, Patrick Rumsby, Martin Rumsby, Jeff Wilson, Mark Chambers and Craig Hadlock.

A short address from the Bishop was given, especially to those being confirmed and reminding us all of our vows and commitments which we had promised to keep, making God a part of our daily lives.

The Church Choir was in attendance with Mrs. Stanley Mount, our faithful organist.

Every seat was occupied in the church with friends, parents, god-parents and relatives.

Police

port until the results of negotiations with the other employees' unions are available.

But the police, argues Mr. Provencher, are an exceptional group of employees, and thus should be given a priority.

Under the old contract — still being applied at present — a first class constable earns $13,780 a year, said Mr. Provencher.

If the proposals in the conciliation report were to be applied in a new contract, the same constable would be earning $16,123 in the first year and, after the eight per cent hike, $17,413 in the second year, according to Record calculations.

If, instead, the anti-inflation limits — 12 per cent in the first and eight in the second — were set, he would be earning $15,434 in the first year and $16,669 in the second.

By comparison, a first-class constable for the Montreal Urban Community Police gets, at present, $17,250 a year.

STANLEY CUP BACK IN FORUM

SCOTTY BOWMAN AND HIS HABS returned to Montreal with the famous Stanley Cup after their battle with the Philadelphia Flyers, which they won in four straight. No one figured it could be done by Scotty and his crew certainly upset the experts in doing so.

IT WAS A TOUGH BATTLE but the Habs, under the guidance of Scotty, never relaxed a minute and bounced back time after time. This is the mark of champions and the Montreal Canadiens, after a two-year rebuilding job, are back on top of the heap and I think they will remain there for some time to come.

THE ISLANDERS' SERIES was a tough one also but the Habs went out and proved they had the man-power to do the job. You must admit that Scotty juggled his formations around but it seemed he knew what he was doing as he kept matters under control.

THE MAN IN MY MIND responsible for this is none other than "Silent Sammy" Pollock. He has proven once again that he is a smart dealer and once he decides something he then proceeds to reach his objective. A lot of the deals he had made looked funny at the time but in the long run one must admit they have paid off.

SO TO SAMMY, SCOTTY and members of the Montreal Canadiens congratulations for your fine effort and display in winning the "Old Mug" the Stanley Cup. The final was a hard-hitting duel but the Habs never stepped back, in fact they did a lot of the handing-out as well and proved that you don't have to stage battles and stick-swinging acts to win games. Nice work boys and good luck for years to come. I see no reason for not repeating next year.

THREE BEAVERS PICKED in WHA draft. Peter Marsh, Robert "Shmoe" Simpson and Alain Belanger went early in the pickings. Marsh was the second pick by Cincinnati with Simpson going to Indianapolis and Belanger to Calgary.

BLAIR CHAPMAN WAS THE first pick and went to the Oilers of Edmonton while Peter was second choice. Roger "Gee" Roy picked up Glen Sharpley when they lost Marsh. It seems that Cincinnati and Cleveland had a private agreement between themselves which set the scene for the draw.

REMPARTS' JEAN GAGNON was picked by Indianapolis and Garth MacGuigan of Montreal goes to Quebec Nordiques. Maurice Barrette of the Remparts also goes to the Nordiques. Eight players were picked from the QMJHL which speaks well for the circuit. Only five rounds were held with the next shift coming May 26 at Winnipeg. No doubt more will be picked at that time as there are several good players left unclaimed.

QUEBEC REMPARTS DIDN'T fare too well in the Memorial Cup playdowns in Montreal last week. In their battle with New Westminster Bruins they started off very well and held the upper hand in the early stages of the games.

COACH RON RACETTE had them playing sound hockey. They had one man in the Bruins' zone fore-checking with the wings covered. They potted early goals but then they commenced to wander and that was the beginning of their downfall. The Bruins just ran over them, and I mean over them, as they shoved the Remparts all over the ice.

THE REFEREE DIDN'T HELP MATTERS with his poor officiating. He just didn't have a clue what was going on. He was out of position the better part of the game and the Bruins got away with kicking feet from under, holding in front of the net and everything else they wanted to do. It was a shame as it ruined the game for both sides. The odd he would get back to the game, especially when the crowd would holler.

IT WAS A SHAME THAT the Remparts lost Maurice Barrette as this certainly hurt them. He played a terrific game in the first encounter and was picked as the number one star. Anyway they did well and were worthy representatives of the league.

PRESIDENT CLARENCE CAMPBELL has opened his drive to curb violence in the National Hockey League. He has forwarded letters to all club owners, league governors, general managers and coaches outlining the new changes which he will propose at the annual meeting next month.

HE POINTS OUT THERE IS no way that the league can challenge the authority of any Attorney general for enforcing criminal charges for their on the ice brawling. So far only visiting players have been charged which looks like a one-sided affair.

THE NEW CHANGES WILL be known next month but we assume that there will be plenty of stiff fines going along with them. They say the best way is by hitting their pocket-book, that hurts. So it seems that is just what will happen. We will wait and see.

THE SHELBROOKE COUNTRY CLUB will be holding their official opening Saturday, weather permitting, and a good crowd should be on hand for the season opener. All interested players should contact the pro shop for a starting time.

PRESIDENT AIME GAGNON and his foursome of Leon Beaudry, vice-president, Denis Brousseau, club captain, and Joe Leblanc will be the official quartet. The tournament will be followed by a supper in the evening. The ladies will hold their opening Tuesday with a buffet in the evening. Good luck to all and a good season.

Lennoxville Golf and Country Club to hold opening Saturday

The Lennoxville Golf and Country Club will open their 1976 season Saturday with the annual President-vs-Vice-President match as the main event for the day.

The evening, the opening dance will take place and this will be followed by the prize distribution and a late snack to complete the opening fixture of the season.

Maurice Mercier, who was in his second term as club president, had to resign his position since he has been transferred to Toronto. He accepted an executive position with the company effective on July 1. Johnny Lacroix, who held down the position of vice-president, will assume the top job to finish the season.

The Ladies Auxiliary's annual Dessert Bridge will be held at the club house on June 2 and all interested should contact the committee chairman if they will be

RCGA to hold qualifying round for amateurs

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced Tuesday that it will conduct a qualifying round to enable amateurs to participate in the Canadian Open golf championship, scheduled July 22-25 in Windsor, Ont. R. B. Forbes of Brantford, Ont., the association's executive director, said the round will be played Monday, July 19, at the Kingsville Golf and Curling Club in Kingsville, Ont.

Galt wins Relay Championships

The Alexander Galt relay team dominated their fourth annual Alexander Galt Relays by winning eleven of the twenty-one events. Nine other schools participated in the enjoyable day, held Saturday at Lennoxville.

Wendell Sparkes, Director General of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, presented the L.G. Balfour Trophy to Jo-Ann Lemieux, the captain of the A.G.R.H.S. Girls Championship team. The Alexander Galt Girls team had 78 points, followed by the team from Essex Junction, Vermont, with 58 points.

Frank Boushel, Principal of Alexander Galt Regional High School, presented the Eastern Townships Regional School Board Trophy to Fred Dezan, captain of the winning A.G.R.H.S. Boys team. The Galt boys amassed 96 points, while the Stanstead Boys team were second with 76 points.

Duncan Bruce, chairman of Lennoxville Park and Recreation, presented the Town of Lennoxville Trophy to the over-all champions, the Alexander Galt relay team.

Three records fell during the day. Seminaire de Sherbrooke set a record in the Midget Boys 4 x 100 with a time of 47.7 seconds. Beaconsfield High School set a record in Midget Boys 4 x 200 with a time of 1 minute 39.5 seconds. Lindsay Place High set a record in the team relay, which saw three boys and three girls run the 400 x 800 x 1200 x 1600 x 1600 x 3200 in a time of 28 minutes 21.4 seconds.

Rod McKell, Meet Director, was very pleased with the effort and sportsmanship that all teams displayed during the day. The quality of the coaching was high, and the baton passing was so good that only four relay teams were disqualified out of the possible 88.

Ron Yates won the Juggers' Mile in the Men's 30 and Over division, with a time of 4 minutes 53 seconds. He was followed by Brian Heath, Track Coach at Alexander Galt, with a time of 4 minutes 55.5, and by John Taylor, with a time of 5:01, from Beaconsfield. Ron was presented with the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club Trophy for his victory.

Frank Boushel, Principal of A.G.R.H.S., won and set a record in the Men's 40 and Over mile, with a time of 6:07.8.

Pam Edwards won the Girls' Juggers' Mile, with Ruth Fitzgerald winning the Ladies'.

WHA finals open tonight

HOUSTON (CP) — The World Hockey Association's championship final begins here tonight with both participants anxious to see how Winnipeg Jets respond to their 18-day layoff.

The two top clubs during the regular season, the Jets and Houston Aeros begin the best-of-seven final for the Avco Cup after having arrived via vastly different routes.

Winnipeg waltzed through the Canadian Division, losing only one of nine games against Edmonton Oilers and Calgary Cowboys and wrapping up the title on May 2.

The Aeros, however, sat out 15 days before beginning postseason play and then had to survive two rough rounds against San Diego Mariners and New England Whalers to emerge as the U.S. champions last Sunday.

"We didn't know how that layoff would affect us," Houston coach Bill Dineen said Wednesday. "But now I know I don't think it helped us any."

"We went into that first period against San Diego and scored six goals. Then we scored two at the start of the second period and went on to a 3-0 lead in the series before we started to feel the effect. "It wasn't until the last game of the playoffs, our 13th, that we came back to where we were at the end of the season."

WON OVER-ALL TITLE
Dineen said the Aeros, who won their last four regular-season games to win the over-all points title and gain the home ice advantage in this series, peaked in the final week of the season and then lost almost everything during the layoff.

Winnipeg coach Bobby Kromm said he anticipates some problems in the first 30 minutes of the game "but if we work especially hard and can stay fairly even with them until then I think we'll be all right."

In regular-season play this year, the two teams split four games.

The Jets, who worked out Wednesday along with the Aeros at the 15,000-seat Summit, are healthy. They haven't had one injury serious enough to keep a player out of the lineup.

Dineen, meanwhile, has been forced to shuffle his lines in an effort to compensate for the loss of veteran centre Larry Lund, who is out for the season with an injury.

SPLIT UP LINE

Lund's loss forced Dineen to split up wingers Frank Hughes and Andre Hinse. The pair may be re-united tonight with centre Gord Labossiere.

Meanwhile, the WHA has protested the CBC network's decision not to televise the series.

The complaint, accusing the network of discriminating against the WHA, was transmitted by Telex to Prime Minister Trudeau, government officials and CBC officials in Toronto and Ottawa.

In Toronto, the CBC said in a two-paragraph statement that it has "just completed coverage of the regular season and playoffs of the National Hockey League, and any additional hockey coverage would seriously interfere with regular programming."

Injuries plague top pitcher

Tommy John's left elbow was a sore point last year for Los Angeles Dodgers, but this year it's his right ankle.

John, who lost all of last season because of elbow surgery and cost the Los Angeles Dodgers one of their top pitchers, has been tattooed by batted balls in his last two National League baseball outings.

"Don't laugh if you see me wearing shin guards next time out," said the left-hander after his ankle was belted by a Ken Henderson drive during Wednesday night's 4-1 victory over Atlanta Braves.

John, pitching well at the time, wasn't seriously hurt but was removed from the game after the seventh inning as a precautionary measure. The last time out, a smash from the bat of Al Oliver chased him from the game with Pittsburgh.

"The shot tonight was almost exactly in the same spot as the Pirate game," said John, "but this one hurt a little more because it caught the bone."

It was a shame he had to leave prematurely, John pointed out.

"I had exceptional stuff tonight," he said. "It was as good a sinker as I've had all year."

ASTROS WIN

In the other National League games, Houston Astros beat San Diego Padres 9-4, Pittsburgh Pirates nipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-6, Philadelphia Phillies nudged New York Mets 2-1 and Cincinnati Reds outscored San Francisco Giants 5-4. The Chicago at Montreal game was postponed because of rain.

Steve Yeager slugged a two-run homer to back the combined six-hit pitching of John and Mike Marshall. The Braves had taken a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a run-scoring single by Ken Henderson. But in the second Steve Garvey singled, stole second and two outs later, Yeager homered into the centre field pavilion off loser Dick Ruthven, 4-5. It was the fifth home run for the Los Angeles catcher.

John, 2-2, scattered five hits over seven innings and Marshall worked the last two innings and earned his eighth save of the season.

Bob Watson's three-run homer in the eighth inning highlighted a five-run rally that sparked Houston over San Diego. After Rob Andrews broke a 4-4 tie with a basesloaded single off Padre reliever Mike Duplee, Watson iced the game with his second home run of the year.

PIRATES RALLY

Duffy Dyer's pinch-hit single climaxed a four-run Pittsburgh rally in the top of the ninth, lifting the Pirates over St. Louis. Nine walks from Cardinal pitchers, including seven in the final two innings, helped the Pirates overcome home runs by Mike Tyson and Willie Crawford in the third inning and a 6-1 St. Louis lead.

Run-scoring singles by Jerry Martin and Mike Schmidt carried Philadelphia to its 11th consecutive road victory. Larry Christenson, 4-1, checked New York on five hits before being chased with nobody out in the seventh. Tug McGraw, the onetime Mets' relief ace, put down that threat but gave up an eighth-inning run on Jerry Grote's pinch-single.

Johnny Bench and Tony Perez belted two-run doubles, powering Cincinnati over San Francisco.

TRAVEL CANADA

Modern travellers follow explorers' routes on cruises

Cruises in Canada are different.

Here there are no tropical islands, no coral reefs, or palm-shaded lagoons. Instead there are the Mackenzie River, in the Northwest Territories; Lake Winnipeg in Manitoba, and the fjords of the British Columbia coast, three waterways for three unusual Canadian cruises.

The Mackenzie River, lifeline to the western Arctic, was discovered by Sir Alexander Mackenzie who, in 1789, explored it to its mouth on the Arctic Ocean. Modern-day explorers can take a week-long package vacation and retrace this 1,100 mile route on the cruise ship M.S. Norweta.

The package actually begins in Edmonton, Alberta, with a jet flight to Hay River, Northwest Territories. Here a bus meets you at the airport, and you are taken on a tour of this community of 3,000, one of the largest in the Territories.

This is where the Mackenzie River starts its journey to the Arctic Ocean, providing a route for the transportation of goods to communities along its shores.

In Hay River there is an unusual secondary school designed by an Indian architect. Its exterior is composed entirely of curves; there are no straight lines or corners. It is painted in such a way that the color changes from a warm red to a bluish tint depending on the intensity of the sunlight. The school has a central concourse and the various facilities are contained in blocks divided by transparent walls which radiate from the centre.

From Hay River, the bus takes you along the Mackenzie Highway to Fort Providence. There, you board the 103-foot M.S. Norweta for the trip down the Mackenzie River. The ship sleeps 20 guests in 10 double cabins.

Captain Don Tetrault, who has lived in the north and plied the river for over 12 years, says it's pretty well up to the passengers to decide what kind of cruise they will have. There is no set itinerary, although stops are planned for all the settlements along the river.

Unscheduled stops are easily arranged. If, for example, he happens to have bird-watching enthusiasts aboard, Capt. Tetrault is more than willing to pull in along some of the marshes to let them watch to their hearts' content.

He will even stop the ship so passengers can have a barbecue on the shore or wander off to collect rocks.

At Fort Simpson the Laird River flows from the mountains of British Columbia to join the Mackenzie, bringing with it a load of glacial silt, turning the broad Mackenzie to a sandy brown.

This was the site of the Fort of the Forks built in 1804 by the North West Company of fur traders. In 1821 the Hudson's Bay Company built a fort here and named it after the company's governor, Sir George Simpson.

From Fort Simpson the Norweta continues to sail down the slow, broad Mackenzie which drops only 500 feet in its long journey to the Arctic.

Indian legend has it that a giant's campfire once went out of control and ignited a bed of low-grade coal near what is now Fort Norman. Indeed, the coal was burning when Alexander Mackenzie reached this spot in 1789, possibly ignited by a flash of lightning.

Fort Good Hope is the oldest community on the lower Mackenzie River, the first fort having been built about 100 miles downstream in 1804. In 1836, the community moved to its present site at the north end of the seven-mile-long Ramparts Canyon.

Religion quickly followed the trappers and settlers to the north, and in 1865 the Church of Our Lady of Good Hope was started by an Oblate lay brother Patrick Kearney. The small white church still stands, and inside it are a number of murals depicting biblical scenes and Indian life.

As the Norweta sails on to the town of Inuvik, you see families living in fishing camps along the river's banks as they did hundreds of years ago, seemingly unaware of the encroachment of the 20th century.

Before reaching Inuvik, the Norweta crosses the Arctic Circle, latitude 66 degrees, 33 minutes north. Like crossing the equator, this is an occasion which merits the breaking out of bottles of champagne and going ashore to "walk" across the circle.

Inuvik is a town built on stilts. The buildings are all constructed on pilings sunk into the permafrost below the tundra. If construction is carried on directly on the tundra, the permafrost melts and the ground becomes marshy. To avoid this, holes are steamed into the permafrost, the pilings are driven in and the permafrost is allowed to re-freeze. Only then is construction begun. Sewer and water lines are carried in above-ground conduits.

Inuvik, located on the Mackenzie River Delta, is the federal government's western Arctic administrative center. One of the main industries is muskrat trapping. The town was built in 1954; its name is Eskimo for Place of Man.

The heritage of Canada's Eskimos is evident in the architecture of Our Lady of Victory Church which is shaped like an igloo. It is built of wooden blocks and painted white. The dome is made of bronze.

Inuvik is a thriving community with hotels, cocktail bars and satellite television.

If weather and ice conditions permit, the Norweta will sail even further north to the town of Tuktoyaktuk. Along the way, pingos — 100-foot frost boils — can be seen on the shore.

Tuktoyaktuk means "it looks like a caribou." According to legend an Eskimo woman was once forbidden to look at the caribou. She disobeyed and looked at a herd wading in the shallow water at the mouth of the Mackenzie. The caribou turned to stone. When the tide is low at this point, the reef resembles a herd of caribou.

On the seventh day of the cruise you board a jet in Tuktoyaktuk for the return flight to Edmonton. A southbound cruise including the same main stops is also available.

In 1976, the Norweta will begin cruising the Mackenzie northbound on June 9, and will make its last trip southbound on October 5. Cost, including air fare from Edmonton and return is $1,395. Cost of the cruise alone, is $1,160.

Reservations should be made well in advance.

For fanciers of saltwater cruising, there is something slightly different on Canada's west coast.

The 3,800 ton, 329-foot Northland Prince sails out of Vancouver, British Columbia every Tuesday, returning the following Monday. Besides taking freight and supplies to communities along the coast of B.C., it carries passengers through spectacular scenery reminiscent of the fjords of Norway.

First stop after leaving Vancouver is Ocean Falls. From there it's on to Masset in the Queen Charlotte Islands, a group of 150 islands shrouded in mists, low clouds and Haida Indian legends.

The Indian village of Haida, near Masset, is the site of new totem poles carved by the Haida Indians, also known for their carvings in argillite, a black hardened mud stone. The Delkatlah Wildlife Sanctuary located here is home to geese, swans and ducks.

From Masset, the Northland Prince steams on to the ports of Port Simpson, Stewart, located on the border with Alaska, Alice Arm, at the end of Observatory Inlet, Kincolith, and Prince Rupert, 30 miles south of the Alaska panhandle.

THOUSAND ISLANDS — One of the most scenic sights in North America is the seven-mile, island-hopping five-span 1000 Islands Bridge linking New York State and the Province of Ontario. Seen here is the Canadian suspension

Ocean information vehicle launched

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Canada's first of a new generation of unmanned ocean information vehicles was recently launched near Dartmouth and is being tested for its designed capabilities.

Its makers, Hermes Electronics Ltd., call the vehicle D-1 and it is the first of a fleet of data-collection buoys to be produced under the federal government's Canadian Ocean Data System program.

Each vehicle, or buoy, has a capacity to monitor the ocean areas and fresh-water bodies under Canada's jurisdiction continuously. The data collected are to be used for a variety of scientific and commercial ventures.

span, under which a tour boat has just passed, and a panoramic view of some of the 1800 islands, small and large, that "dot and dash" this 50-mile stretch of Canadian and U.S. waters of the St. Lawrence River.

The users of weather forecasts are expected to be among the earliest beneficiaries of the device.

Others who should benefit include interests in shipping, commercial fishing, oil and mineral exploration, construction, resource management, regional planning and search and rescue.

The device has a number of instruments which can collect a wide variety of information including air temperature, barometric pressure, wind velocity, relative humidity, water temperature at several depths, sea pressure, water velocity, wave height and period and hull stresses and motions.

A country boy who grew to be a giant

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — He was a country boy who grew to be a giant. He lived a simple life, yet won the Victoria Cross and felt the handclasp of a United States president and a reigning monarch of England.

Herman James Good was born at South Bathurst Nov. 29, 1888, attended the country school there and worked in the lumber woods.

In the First World War he went overseas in the 55th Battalion and afterwards went as a reinforcement in the 13th Battalion, Royal Highlanders of Canada (Black Watch).

The Canadian Corps was caught up in the great Allied offensive of 1918 and the 13th was in action around Amiens on Aug. 8. The incident in which L. Sgt. Good became a Victoria Cross winner was at Hangard Wood.

The London Gazette reported his citation was "for most conspicuous bravery and leading when, in attack, his company was held up by heavy fire from three enemy machine-guns which were seriously delaying the advance."

"Realizing the gravity of the situation, this NCO dashed forward alone, killing several of the garrison and capturing the remainder.

"Later, while alone, he encountered a battery of 5.9 guns which were in action at the time. Collecting three men of his section, he charged the battery under point-blank fire and captured the entire crews and three guns."

Returning to civilian life, Herman Good went back to lumbering and guiding the occasional party of visiting sportsmen. He joined the New Brunswick Travel Bureau in 1927 and helped arrange exhibits at sportsmen's shows in Boston and Philadelphia.

From the Philadelphia Show of 1931, a select corps of New Brunswick guides was taken to the White House. Herman Good, in uniform, was one of the party which presented a hamper of choice moose steaks, venison and Atlantic salmon to President Herbert Hoover.

Eight years later, Herman Good was presented to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth when they visited Fredericton.

He died in his native town on April 18, 1969, and his memory is preserved in the name of the Herman Good Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, at Bathurst.

Program set up to aid the status of women

OTTAWA — A project to increase action to promote change in the Status of Women at the community level was announced recently by Secretary of State, J. Hugh Faulkner.

In a pilot project to continue the initiatives in the field commenced by the IWY Secretariat in 1975, eight consultants experienced with women's groups and community education have been hired to work in eight regions across the country.

The work of the consultants, co-ordinated by the Secretary of State Women's Programme, complements the work of the Department's field staff located in 22 communities across Canada as well as the work of individual women and women's voluntary groups in promoting change related to the status of women.

For a period of one year, beginning in April, eight consultants will be active in eight regions across Canada.

Consultants are: Colleen Hughes in Northwestern Ontario; Diana Bissell in Northern British Columbia; Ruth Annis on Vancouver Island; Christiane Pelletier in Le Bas St-Laurent, Quebec; Gail Rebbeck in Northern Manitoba; Fran McIntosh in Northern Labrador; and Evelyn Battell in South-eastern Alberta. Another consultant will be selected to work in a region within the Maritimes.

The consultants can be contacted through local offices of the Secretary of State Department. They will provide basic information and resources to the community on issues affecting the status of women and advise community groups and institutions on ways and means of organizing activities designed to stimulate action on women's issues.

In 1976-77 the Women's Programme of the Department will continue to allocate its major resources to support the activities of women's voluntary groups. Priority will be given to projects aimed at organizing community resources to enact legislative changes in the status of women, and help combat discriminatory practices.

Emphasis will be placed on activities that contribute to the development by women of leadership and community organizing skills; the development of print and audio-visual resources on women's issues; and the greater involvement of rural and isolated women in these issues.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I put one of those cleaning and disinfecting canisters in my toilet tank, and it has stained the pale pink bowl blue. I have tried all sorts of stain removers as well as bleach, vinegar and scouring powder and the stain does not even get lighter, let alone disappear. I do not know what to do about this and wonder if you have any suggestions. I never buy "off" brands of anything so this was a brand that should have worked well. Would nail polish remover damage it? It was suggested to me but I was afraid to use it. —CECILE.

DEAR CECILE — I certainly would not use nail polish remover. One-third cup of a regular toilet bowl cleaner should remove stubborn discoloration. Have any readers had this problem and solved it? —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My everlasting Pet Peeve is with those detestable people who write their opinions on the pages of library books. —DUE.

DEAR POLLY — I have found that an easy and helpful way to treat raw unfinished wood is to use mineral oil. This is good for homemade chopping blocks since it is a waterproof sealer and protector and is safe around children and food. Wipe it on, let stand overnight and wipe off any excess. Repeat twice. —DEBBIE.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper.

LOUNGING and bathing fashions come in matching items to take their wearer swimming, boating or to a patio party. Soft-skirted bathing suit (left) has matching separate pants to slip on. Ankle-length halter dress goes over a bare bikini at party time. Both designed in a seaweed and foam screen print on Caprolan nylon simplex by Rose Marie Reed.

W.I. meeting

EAST CLIFTON — On April 28 and May 6, the W.I. and Busy Bees jointly endeavored to spring-clean the Church and Hall, and a transformation certainly took place in the interior of the Hall.

To represent W.I. colors, a print of gold, blue and white wall paper was selected, new shades and curtains were hung, plus woodwork painted. At both gatherings a potluck lunch was enjoyed at noon.

The W.I. May meeting was brought to order, following lunch, with the Pres., Mrs. Bain presiding and leading in the Collect.

Our motto was You are Nearer to God in a Garden than anywhere else on earth.

The Roll Call - tell of something new you have read about in farming, evoked responses covering the following topics: blue tongue disease, American law banning lumber to be exported into Canada; organic gardening; polluted ponds; limited milk production quotas; Canada's diminishing role as a world food producer; dried up springs and proper hand feeding of calves.

Correspondence was a thank-you note from Mrs. Watt.

Mrs. Cairns gave her sunshine report and suggested three cards be sent to people in the area.

Mrs. Montgomery proposed a donation be given the Youville Hospital in the name of a prior member who is ill in this Hospital. This was passed.

The drawing was presided over by Mrs. Cairns. Mrs. Bain, Miss Robertson and a guest were the winners. Next month's drawing will be donated by Mrs. V. Bell.

Mrs. French requested that receipt post cards be given to her for the P.E.I. W.I. Convention.

Publicity - Mrs. Terry reported she and Mrs. Bain had attended a Publicity meeting in Bury Hall on May 4, when plans were made for the W.I. Booth at Cookshire Fair. Each branch is to create something to represent their branch's achievement, plus make handmade gifts to serve as prizes in the children's fish pond.

All branches are to design posters to publicize the accomplishments of the convenors over the W.I. History. Our branch will do Agriculture, also create a replica of the W.I. Hall.

The members then concentrated on the Compton County W.I. Convention which took place on May 10 in our Hall. Delegates were appointed, and plans made for preparing and serving the dinner, also cleaning up after.

34th annual Y's Men's Track and Field event

The 34th annual Y's Men's Track and Field Meet will be held at the Alexander Galt Regional High School track, this Saturday, May 22.

A total of 19 trophies will be up for grabs at the annual meet, with ten of the trophies going to the boys and the other nine to the girls. This year's meet is scheduled to commence at 9:00 a.m. and will run throughout the day with the majority of finals being run in the afternoon. According to co-chairman Bob Jarjour, the trophy presentations will take place after the final event, around 5:00. Times for the planned events are estimates and are subject to change, depending on circumstances.

The head officials for this year's track meet are familiar names in the history of the track meet. Bob Jarjour, Curt Bishop and Doug Guthrie, this year share the co-chairmanship. Sam Abbott is this year's official starter and marshalling the events will be the job of Rollie Dewar and Gordon "Beef" Ross.

A total of five schools have filed their entries for the meet: Alexander Galt Regional High School, Richmond Regional High School, Bishop's College School, Stanstead

College and Massey Vanier Regional High School from Cowansville.

This year, according to co-chairman Bob Jarjour, the team to beat will be the team with the "home track" advantage, Alexander Galt Regional High School.

The team from Galt last year captured both the "Skinner Trophy" the meet trophy for the boys and the "Elkas Trophy" the principal trophy for the girls.

If any of the other four teams, attending this year's meet, have any illusions of running off with the meet, they will have to contend with the exceptionally strong track team usually fielded by the regional school. The team as a whole, holds 35 of the 62 Y's Men's meet records, 13 of which they captured last year alone.

And also, in the past four years since the Y's Men switched to metric measurement, the team from Galt has captured the two meet trophies twice, only once losing them to Centennial High School of Montreal. So this Saturday should prove to be a most competitive meet, as the team from Galt tries to retain its two trophies.

TEAM TO BEAT — Again this year the team from Alexander Galt Regional High School will be the team to beat at this Saturday's annual Y's Men's track meet, which will be held at the Galt track in Lennoxville, starting at 9 a.m. Peter Logan (foreground), and Warren Suito (background), both from Galt, are seen in last year's bantam, 200 meter run.

Mrs. Ruby Moore honored by Missisquoi Historical Society

By KENNETH TREE (Record Correspondent)

STANBRIDGE EAST — An eventful evening took place on Wed., May 12 at the Cornell Mill Museum when the Missisquoi Historical Society honoured Mrs. Ruby Moore by giving her a surprise party and presentation.

A large crowd filled the seating capacity, some 20 having to stand in the lobby. This party was arranged after the last annual meeting, details being worked out by the executive at a later meeting.

Canvassers were appointed, asking for donations from the members to purchase a suitable plaque to present to Ruby, in recognition of her many years of faithful service that she has given to the Historical Society. Donations were very generous exceeding all expectations.

A beautiful brass plaque with suitably engraved wording, mounted on mahogany with scroll ends at each side. Considerable money was left over, so a beautiful hand tooled leather bag and wallet with Ruby's name tooled into the leather was added. A sizeable amount of money was enclosed in the wallet. Only a ten dollar bill was showing, but after the party, when she arrived home, she received an additional surprise, when on opening the wallet, she discovered several more ten dollar bills.

Last, but not least, of her gifts was a parchment scroll containing 127 names of the donors to this happy occasion (several more names are to be added later). This scroll was done in Olde English lettering by Mr. Jack Paton of Bedford, a very talented person, which meant many hours of very painstaking work. It was greatly admired when passed around for all to see.

Mrs. Moore entered the museum, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCaw, then President Paige Knight escorted her to her seat of honor. Ruby looked radiant in a green dress which she had made herself and was wearing an orchid corsage given to her by a very kind lady from Frelighsburg.

President Knight, acting as M.C., after much hand clapping had subsided, spoke about how this occasion was arranged pointing out the many sterling qualities of Ruby that had come to the fore during the years that she had worked so faithfully for the cause she loved so dearly, saying that it was not necessary to proclaim them all as everyone throughout the county was aware of them. He doubted if there was a family in the county that Ruby did not know the history of, and people marvelled that one person could keep all this in their head. He also spoke of the wonderful work that she had done as an archivist for several years, nearly always without pay, and wished her many more years of happiness and good health, always with the interests of the Society at heart.

Mr. Knight then called upon Kenneth Tree to present the plaque, but before doing so, Mr. Tree delivered the following address:

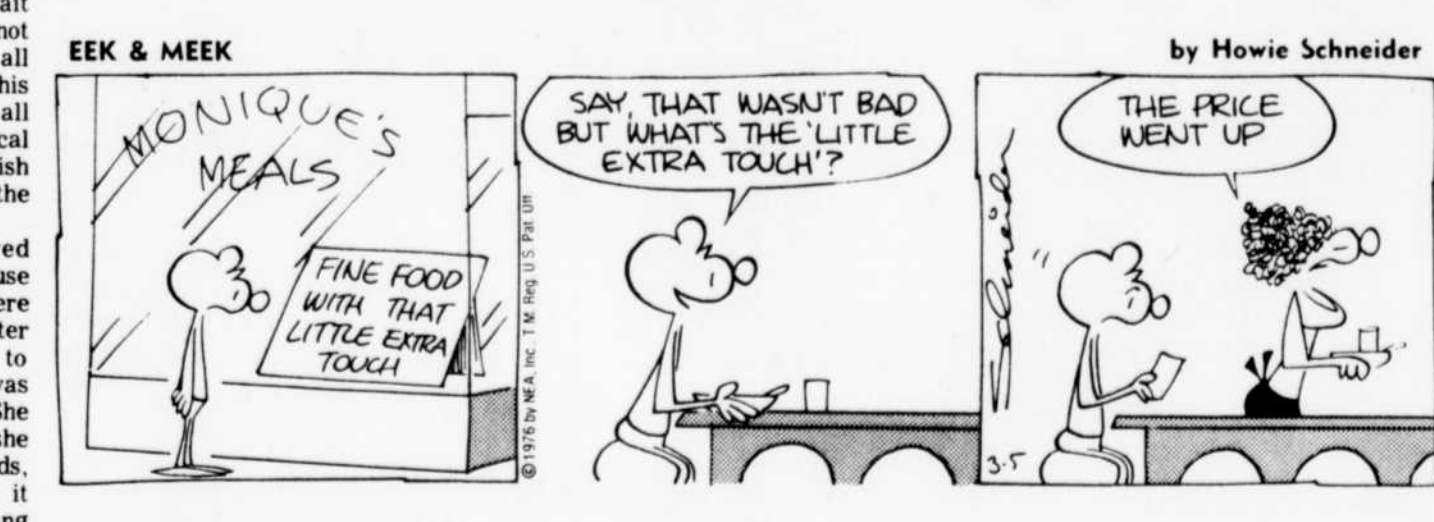

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, I presume that you are all aware of why we are gathered here on this delightful occasion, that is, to do honour to one of our most valued members of the Missisquoi Historical Society, one, who over the years since its reorganization in the early 1960s has never hesitated to give of her time, energy and talents to our Historical Society.

"Having been president of our Society for a few years, I feel that I am privileged to know of some of the tremendous contributions she has made. While speaking to our President, Mr. Paige Knight a few days ago, I made the remark that Ruby Moore had given more time without pay, to our History Society than all the rest of us put together and I am not excluding Bill Taylor who is running her a very close second.

"If you live long enough, Bill, you may be able to catch up to her. No doubt you all know of many of the contributions she has made but doubt if you know of all of them. Ruby is one of those lucky persons who get more pleasure out of giving than of receiving. Times without number when money has been given to her as a personal gift for assistance to people in helping them to trace their ancestors or other kindnesses she has rendered them, she has not kept any of it for herself but has spent it to buy things for the museum or books for the library.

"I know of no more worthy member of the Missisquoi Historical Society to whom we could do honour than Mrs. Ruby Moore. Therefore, it gives me great pleasure on behalf of our Historical Society to ask you, Ruby, to accept this token of appreciation from all of us.

"May you live many more years to participate in our activities which we know are very dear to your heart. God Bless You."
