THIRTEEN-YEAR OLD TORONTO GIRL, STUDENT OF THEATRICAL POSTERS, IS A SELF-CONFESSED MURDERESS

Toronto, May 22.—Harry Murray, the nine-months-old baby who was stolen, with its go-cart, from the lane between the Eaton and Gough stores, on Queen street, near Yonge, on Friday noon, was murdered, and Josephine Carr, thirteen years old, who was responsible for the child's death, is under arrest.

The baby was kidnapped by the Carr girl, and was thrown eighty-eight feet down an embankment beside the railway tracks which run along between Leslie street and Green wood avenue, at the northern city limits, in Riverdale, on Friday evening, shortly after it was stolen.

The body was found on Saturday morning in a tunnel beneath the tracks. The spot is within a short distance of Josephine Carr's home. It was Josephine herself who first gave the alarm. The death of the child was shrouded in mystery until nearly eleven o'clock on Saturday night, when Josephine Carr failed to account for discrepancies in important details of her story, confessed the murder, and her arrest followed.

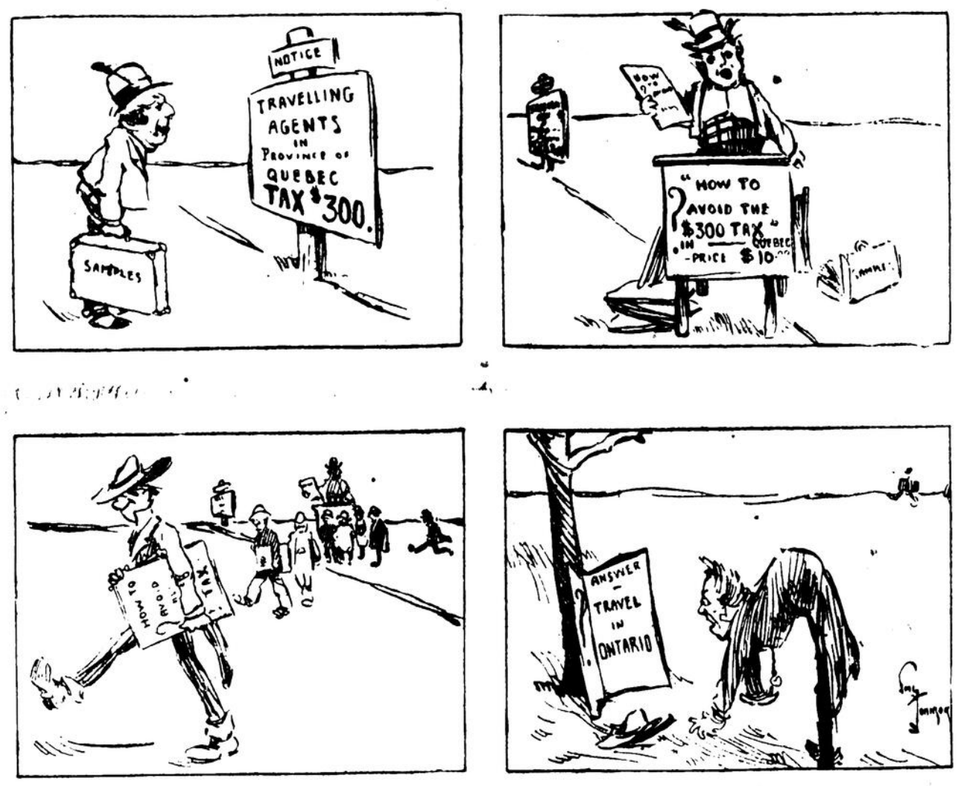
The girl first gave a detailed story of seeing a woman with a baby and go-cart in the vicinity of the crime on Friday, and it was only when she was taken in charge by the police, and handed over to the police magistrate that she confessed. She told how she had gone to Eaton's, taken the baby and go-cart, and proceeded to her home on the car. When she got to the place where the deed was committed, she became afraid of the consequences. The self-confessed murderess of Baby Murray was in the children's court at ten o'clock this morning, but was not asked to plead. She was represented by Mr. T. C. Robinettee, who asked, and was granted a remand for a week.

It is understood that the post-mortem report, which will be presented at the inquest to-night, will show that the death of the infant was due to exposure. It is believed that the child was still alive when stripped of all its clothing, and died beneath the culvert some time through the night.

Josephine, when asked why she took the clothes off, said she didn't want anybody to find out whose child it was. She referred to the killing and drowning of Baby Martin in Ashbridge's Bay last summer. She told Inspector Hall yesterday that she had been studying the posters of the play, "Kidnapped in New York," and had caught the suggestion of kidnapping a child.

Mrs. Murray, mother of the dead baby, is prostrate with grief.

THE WOES OF A TRAVELLING MAN



SIGNS OF PEACE ARE DISAPPEARING

Chicago, May 22.—Spreading of the teamsters' strike began promptly today. Thirty-six teamsters employed by the Rittenhouse & Embree Company, lumber dealers, and four by Edward Hines Lumber Company were the first to be forced into the struggle.

Through the threatened spread of the strike to all lumber dealers, every branch of the building industry in Chicago was to-day apparently faced by paralysis. There are only 800 teamsters employed by lumber firms, but so close are the relations between them and several other unions of men engaged in hauling building material that the walk-out of the lumber teamsters, it was said, would doubtless lead to strikes in nearly every department of the building industry. Indirectly dependent upon the building material teamsters, it was estimated to-day, hung the employment of nearly 100,000 men in yards, mills, factories and in construction work. If the walk-out extends all along the line, the lumber yards of Chicago will be tied up.

The same programme was seemingly in store for the stone workers and the industries dependent upon them. The planing mills, the sash and door factories, the box factories, and kindred plants would also face soon a shortage of lumber supplies which necessitate closing down.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED AND A FIRE HORSE KILLED

That is the Casualty List of the Fire Department on Saturday.

Two injured firemen and a dead horse, this is the result of Saturday's casualties, so far as the fire department is concerned.

While getting off a street car at the corner of St. Lawrence and Craig Sts., Fireman Joseph Lafleur of No. 9 Station, was jammed between the car and a passing express waggon. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital where it was found that he was suffering from a broken shoulder.

The same afternoon while responding to an alarm from the corner of St. Denis Street and St. Louis Square, the horse drawing No. 17 hose reel, missed its footing, and fell, causing one of its forelegs. The animal had to be shot. Captain Giroux, who was driving the reel, was thrown down but suffered no injury.

While hurrying to the same fire, Foreman Charpentier, of No. 11 Station, was thrown from the reel in St. Louis Square and injured his left arm on the pavement.

JOHN KNOX AND HIS WORK
THEME OF MANY SERMONS

KNOX THE PROPHET AND CHURCHMAN AND HIS ACHIEVEMENT

In St. Andrew's (Church of Scotland) Presbyterian Church yesterday morning Rev. J. Edgar Hill, D.D., preached an interesting and impressive sermon upon the occasion of the fourth centennial of John Knox. Choosing as his text Exodus iii., 11, "Who am I that I should go unto Pharoah and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt," the reverend doctor pointed out that the subject of Knox, the Scotch reformer, was a very large one and could not be adequately treated in one discourse. The morning's exposition would be Knox as a prophet and churchman—the evening would be devoted to the reformer as a man.

The ancient prophets were born, not made, and were formed with a capacity to receive the call. Not otherwise was the case of John Knox. When on that memorable day of 1547 in the castle of St. Andrews the call came to Knox he, overwhelmed with a sense of responsibility, burst into tears. At this time Knox, forty-one years of age, was in his mental and physical maturity. These were days of heart-searching and engrossing and deliberate resolve. The call had come and he was there to accept. The martyrdom of Wishart had made a profound impression on him who had the memory of Wishart's parting words as he set out for Edinburgh, "Stay with your scholars, John; one is enough for a sacrifice."

At this time everything in religious practice was calculated to arouse the indignant soul of a generous and true man. Knox's first appearance in the parish church of St. Andrews roused the people. Now was the time for doing away with the abuses of the church and the vices of the bishops and clergy. His hearers applauded his stern, heroic measures and his fame spread over the country. After the castle of St. Andrew's had surrendered to the French, Knox spent nineteen months as a galley-slave without losing the veriest tittle of faith or hope.

After his release he took up the cause in England and preached in every city from Berwick to London. He was appointed a Royal chaplain, and one of six to revise the articles of religion drawn up by Cranmer. The succession of Mary to the throne arrested the growth of reform, and Knox spent the next five years abroad at Dieppe, Frankfort-on-Main and Geneva. In this last mentioned town he made the acquaintance of Calvin, with whom he had much in common. On going back to Scotland his arrival spread dismay among the old order. His name became a power to conjure with. In twelve months the Scotch parliament declared that the old order must change. The Reformation had become an accomplished fact—a striking testimony to the power of the pulpit.

Never had prophet in ancient or modern time a stronger personality—never was there man more suited for the Reformation of the time. He trusted the people and they him. The uprising of the Scotch people was spontaneous. The old church had woefully betrayed their trust. The work of Knox, as a prophet was in great measure fulfilled on the declaration of the Scotch parliament of April 1st, 1560. To arouse the people and to destroy the old order were important preliminaries for reconstruction, and Knox was as wise in reconstruction and statesmanship as in preaching. In four days he who had been a revisor of the Church of England laid on the table of parliament the Articles of Confession for the Church of Scotland. Article 18 was the watch-word with its declaration as to the true preaching of the word of God, the right administration of the sacrament of Christ Jesus and the suppression of wrong. A striking clause in the preface of the Confession of Faith reveals better than all else the honesty of the reformer—that where he calls upon any true objector to point out what he conscientiously believes to be wrong.

The conduct of the reformers was in keeping with their creed. Although the religious houses so long hotbeds of ignorance and infamy were the objects of popular fury, no church was destroyed at Knox's instigation. In church discipline Knox started with noble ideas: The oversight of the morals of the people was committed to the ministers and elders. Parish schools were planted beside every parish church. Provision was made for high schools and universities. The division of funds was a noble one—one-third for the churches, one-third for the schools and colleges, one-third for the poor.

Knox did not disturb the church system as national and established. That was an obligation a necessity for which a century later the covenanters bled and died.

Dr. Hill went on to say that it was now necessary to inaugurate a new national Presbyterian Church. A territorially administered church was the only one that could meet the necessities of the people. That was Knox's idea, and it would be well to think of it now. It was a weakness to the common cause of religion that there was no established church in Canada.

Oh, for a John Knox in Canada who could bring the people together!

PRINCIPLES OF LIBERTY WERE KNOX'S GIFT TO ALL THE WORLD

At the evening service in St. Gabriel's Church, the pastor, Dr. Campbell, D.D., had as the subject of his discourse: "What Knox has done for Scotland and for the world." After touching on the more salient points in the life and career of the former, the preacher went on to say that after the Reformation was firmly established that the genius of the intrepid Knox shone forth most splendidly. The most noted of all his works was the composition of the "First Book of Discipline," in which he co-operated with Winram, Spottiswood, Willock, Douglasse and Row, his most famous contemporaries among the preachers of Scotland. They drew up this treatise in an incredibly short time. In it Knox's genius for organization is conspicuously shown. It displays ecclesiastical statesmanship of the highest order; and is the charter of Presbyterianism since all the world over. It shows a comprehensive grasp of the true principles of liberty, combined with respect for authority, which has imbued the mind and heart of Presbyterians in all countries, making them intelligent, responsible and welcome citizens wherever they go. These are the principles which are imbedded in the municipal institutions of our own country, and are implied in the federation of the provinces, as well as in the Constitution of the United States; government of the people by the people being the fundamental idea underlying his ecclesiastical polity and thus for the world.

While he abolished the order of bishops, as a part of the ecclesiastical system of Scotland, because he deemed it of doubtful scriptural authority, and counted it an usurpation of lordship which Christ forbade, he was prepared to conserve all that was advantageous in the diocesan system, by giving the oversight of the whole of Scotland, which he divided up to ten superintendents. The election of their religious teachers, however, was vested in the people, and for this right the Scots have ever since contended.

But that which has been perhaps most redounded to his renown, as a patriotic reformer, was his enlightened conception of the value of education—both intellectual and moral and spiritual. In every parish there was to be a school, and provision was made that no child should want education on account of poverty. If his parents could not afford to give it to him, then he was to have it at the cost of the parish, a forecasting of the principles of free schools for the people, as we, too, have them now in Montreal. But there was to be instruction daily in the Word of God and in the Catechism as well as in the three R's. Then every bright lad, who showed capacity in the free schools, was helped to continue his training in the secondary schools; and thence, through the help of bursaries, he was sent to one or other of the three universities, St. Andrew's, Glasgow and Aberdeen, all of which had received their charter from the Popes; Edinburgh, the most famous university of them all, is a post-reformation institution. In this way, it was planned that Scotland should never lack able men, but should train the cream of its intellect for filling the learned professions, law, medicine and divinity; and thus it has come about that in no country under the sun have the people been so well trained as in Scotland, trained to think, as well as to read, write and count; and to the foresighted statesmanship of John Knox they largely owe it.

Any one who visits Edinburgh, concluded Dr. Campbell, where in the old cathedral of St. Giles Knox preached oftenest, feels that he is still the genius loci—that after the lapse of nearly three and a half centuries, his is still the most honored name mentioned, and his voice and character are even now the dominating influence there, where this very day there are resounding from nearly every pulpit the most joyful and triumphant notes of gratitude to God for giving him to Scotland.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF JOHN KNOX WAS THE THEME AT KNOX CHURCH

The Life and Times of John Knox, was the theme of Rev. Jas. Fleck, at Knox Church yesterday, when the preacher gave a most interesting sketch of the life and work of the great Scottish Reformer.

John Knox's life came at a great epoch in the history of Scotland and the world. In Scotland it was the bright morning of hope—the death of feudalism and the birth of trade and commerce. In her church it was the resurrection from the grave of Popery—when all Europe was recovering its freedom from the claims of Rome. The life of John Knox just covered this period of great human upheaval.

Born at Gifford Sale in 1505 he, at sixteen, entered Glasgow University, with George Buchanan, the famous scholar, and at twenty-five he became a priest. A deep thinker, he set himself to examine the doctrines of his church and for many years was dissatisfied, but continued to study the older writers, and at the age of thirty-eight, he became a Protestant, and as lecturer at St. Andrew's College, his zeal in search of the truth was equalled by his energy in proclaiming it. He was denounced as a heretic, degraded from the priesthood, and driven from the college by persecution of Cardinal Peyton.

Then John Knox became bodyguard to the martyr, George Wishart, even after the attempt to assassinate him, accompanying him, with a naked sword. When finally Wishart was arrested at the Cardinal's command, Knox was hardly dissuaded from accompanying him. From that time Knax was in constant danger, and took refuge in the castle of St. Andrews, then besieged by the French fleet. It was here that the crisis of his life came. His comrades, Lindsay, Ronny and Ruf, recognized in him the skill and eloquence that were destined to alter the views of his nation, and urged him to enter the ministry and preach the truth he had found. But Knox modestly refused, until in dramatic fashion at service, John Ruff led the congregation in demanding in God's name that he accept the holy vocation. Knox attempted to speak, but could not, and burst into a flood of tears. For many days the tender, yet stern, John Knox, was in great trouble, but finally he accepted the charge and his first sermon was a stirring denunication of the papacy.

Shortly afterwards the garrison of St. Andrew's Castle capitulated with an agreement that they were to be liberated in France, not to return to Scotland. But at the solicitation of the Pope and the Scottish priests this treaty was treacherously violated, and for nineteen months Knox was chained to the oars in galley slavery.

At last, at the request of the English King, Edward VI., he was freed and was offered an English Bishopric. But he refused this and lived in England a simple preacher until Edward died and Mary renewed the persecution of the Protestants, when he flew to France, and later was an exile at Geneva, with John Calvin. In 1559 he took his final farewell of the continent—Scotland was at last ready to throw off the Romish yoke, and Knox was her recognized leader. With every energy he possessed he entered on the work of rescuing Scotland from a despotism which laid its iron whip on the minds, the souls and consciences of men. For at that time the church had reached greater degradation in Scotland than anywhere in Europe. Living in idle luxury most of its priests were abominable profligates, and their chapels the refuge of criminals—their religion a stupendous system of iniquity. Bishops and priests, so history tells us, openly outraged decency and lived licentious lives. Preaching had almost ceased, and bishops were not ashamed to say they never read the Bible. Scotland was in the shadow of death, and what Knox did for that land was simply its resurrection from the dead.

He brought new life to regeneration for more than his nation. The Puritanism of Scotland became the Puritanism of England and New England, and of the whole Anglo-Saxon Church.

With simple pathos the preacher then depicted Knox' last sermon, and the scene at his death, when his wife read him his favorite Scripture passages, and finally, as his last moments approached he, asked to give a sign that he died in peace, he raised his right hand, and almost at the same moment quietly breathed his last.

"No reformer," concluded Rev. Mr. Fleck, "has been so abused, maligned and misrepresented as John Knox has been. He was not faultless. Who is? but he had three great qualities—Devotion to Scotland, lots of souls and loyalty to God. Christ the way, Christ the Truth, Christ the Life—this was the message he proclaimed with untiring eloquence. Uncompromising, but not uncharitable, enthusiastic, but not fanatical; he was true when truth was treason; loyal to Christ when such loyalty led to the stake.

"How many of those perfect ones that find fault with him can stand where John Knox stood? He rescued Scotland from worse than paganism, and lifted her amongst the nations, into the light and glory of Love Divine. That was John Knox' work. We are in the line of John Knox' descent. His spirit ours? We should adopt the purpose of his life—live for our country and the good of our fellow men."

SCOTTISH APOSTLE WORLD'S GREATEST GOSPEL REFORMER

Although there were no special services in Crescent Street Presbyterian Church yesterday commemorative of the centenary of John Knox, the pastor, Rev. John Mackay, preaching from the text: "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God, unto the salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek," referred at the morning service to the life and works of the great reformer.

He reminded his hearers that Presbyterian churches everywhere were celebrating the fourth centenary of John Knox, who had been one of the greatest spiritual leaders the world had ever known. So great was his power and force of personality that he had changed the face of Scotland, had revolutionized its thought, and had saved it from the corruption into which it had been fast falling. He had fought for liberty and honesty of religious thought, and had vigorously upheld his own watchword, "Trust the people; give them the Gospel; let them think for themselves."

The secret of his power lay not in his scholarly attainments, for though John Knox was a scholar, Scotland had produced greater scholars than he. It was not his manner, for by many he was termed harsh and stern. But, like the apostle Paul, he had the power of the chosen one of God, the power of one who upheld the divine truth and faith, for its uplifting and reformation. As with Paul the apostle, he had believed in the power of the Gospel, and the power of salvation. He had applied the truths of Christianity to the need of his age, as it is possible for them to be applied to the needs of any age. He had placed himself in the hands of God, and as his messenger had revealed His Gospel, His power and His salvation.

At all times God had revealed Himself through the souls of men. He had come to the soul of John Knox and given him the strength to stand up for the right and for the truth, and to reveal anew His Gospel and teaching to them. So it was that John Knox stood to-day as an example of the power of God, as an example of what a man could accomplish if he placed himself in the hands of the Almighty. It was for his great and fearless character that all Scotland honored the courageous teacher, and honored through him, the power behind his soul, which was none other than the power of God, and the power of His Gospel.

REV. J. EDGAR HILL SPOKE IN EVENING ON JOHN KNOX, THE MAN

In St. Andrew's Church last night Rev. J. Edgar Hill delivered his second address on John Knox, treating this time of Knox the man. Knox, he said, had been the greatest power in the Scottish Reformation, and this had been the greatest event in Scottish history. Yet nowhere in all the earth is there a monument to Knox's memory, not even a slab to surely mark his last resting place. Only between St. Giles Church and the Parliament buildings in Edinburgh, a piece of plain paving stone inscribed with the letters J. K. marks the spot where once he lived and labored. But perhaps it is better so.

There are reformers and men in this world, too big for monuments of stone and mortar, or even of enduring brass. Knox was one of these. The Scottish church and nation are his memorial. The world knows this and needs no mere material token that he has lived and worked and died.

Knox has been perhaps the most abused man in all Scottish history. He has been censured as a reckless iconoclast who incited the unruly rabble to destroy in their fanaticism some of the finest examples of mediaeval architecture, among them the noble abbeys of Melrose and Kelso. But the great part of the destruction laid to his charge was compassed not by him nor at his bidding, but by the rude English soldiers in their ill-advised raid to the north, when they sought to force a union between the young monarch and Scotland's youthful queen.

Knox has been called a rude and boorish fellow, ignorant of human nature, a man who could gloat over the unhappiness and tears of a young and lovely queen. It is said that he was intolerant, rough, untutored, severe, unable to understand or appreciate the amenities of life and worship. He may at times seem so to us, but we must remember that the times are greatly changed since his day. We have not the same people to deal with, the same problems to solve, nor the same dangers to face. Tolerance cannot include everything. It has a limit. It must be measured and just. The men with whom Knox had to treat were the most intolerant of all who at any time ever trod broad Scotland. He could not be tolerant with those who themselves had an axe and a gibbet ready for every occasion.

Then we must not forget that his task and his responsibility were great. He had to be the mouthpiece of the Reformed church in Scotland, and as such it was incumbent on him to be severe against all that threatened her foundations and her weal. He was not John Knox the private man with only his own interests to guard. He was John Knox, the delegate, charged with a mighty work, and he watched over his charge with all the zeal he knew.

As for his so-called boorishness that charge may be dismissed with little thought. During his stay in England he was chaplain to Edward VI., and was offered the see of Rochester and the rectorate of All Hallows in London. Honors like these he could never have gained without the polish of the courtier and gentleman, and the culture of the scholar. Firm he was, and outspoken undoubtedly, but ungentlemanly or discourteous, never.

The best that can be said of any man is that he is the man for his time, that he can himself uplift and guide it, or at least can point the way. Such a man was Knox. He knew the perils that beset his church and country. He showed how they might be avoided, and led the way himself. He saw the work to be done, and he did it at his best.

The world is becoming more and more unwilling that Knox's memory should die. Truth, courage, constancy, these where truth dwells will weave for Knox a chaplet of everlasting glory. An open Bible and a preached gospel were his great bequest to his native land, a bequest in defence of which Scotland's noblest sons have given their dearest and their best. He was the champion of freedom of thought and constitutional liberty, of that true learning and sound wisdom which it is still a Scotsman's boast to love. He taught his people to live, and living to enter a course of unparalleled national glory. They built for him no monument of stone, but the celebration of this day is the grandest monument the world has ever built to any mortal man.

The closing scene of the great apostle's life is one that should never be forgotten by Scottish men and women. When he could no longer speak they asked him, "Have you hope" He simply pointed upward. Yes he had hope, hope in the victory of truth, in the nation he had guided, in the successful outcome of his severe and constant struggle. Noble testimony this, fitting climax to a noble and unselfish life.

THE CHARACTER AND WORK OF JOHN KNOX, THE GREAT REFORMER

"John Knox, his character and work," was the theme upon which Rev. F. M. Dewey preached last evening in Stanley Street Presbyterian Church. Ezekiel 2-4 was the text: "I do send thee unto them; and thou shall say unto them: 'Thus saith the Lord God.'"

In forming an estimate of John Knox and his work, one must realize the conditions existing in Scotland at the beginning of the sixteenth century. The population was small, the masses ignorant and superstitious, the clergy wealthy and extremely corrupt. With a population of one million, there were 240 monastic institutions. The social conditions were unspeakably bad. This was the ground on which fell the seed of the Reformation.

Mr. Dewey spoke of the first Scottish martyrs of the Reformation, Patrick Hamilton and George Wishart. The latter's preaching had been heard by John Knox, then forty years of age and a tutor. He became at once a preacher and reformer. Born in 1505 at Haddington, Knox had entered the Church, but afterwards left it. When he took up Wishart's mantle he was called publicly to the ministry at St. Andrew's. John Knox, the galley slave on a French ship, the reformer preaching in England, where he refused the offer of a bishopric made by Edward VI., and aided in drawing up the formularies of the Church of England, John Knox, as student, preacher, author, in Geneva—all these the speaker touched upon.

At the age of 54 Knox returned to Scotland, and his real life work began. Boldly he preached and struggled, not fearing even the Queen, with whom he quarreled. Through him Presbyterianism was established in Scotland, and a splendid educational system. With age his powers did not decrease, even when he had to be aided into the pulpit. At the age of 67, May 24, 1572, he passed away peacefully, and was buried in St. Giles Churchyard, Edinburgh. He had no monument of stone. Reformed Scotland was his monument, "more lasting than brass."

The lessons drawn by Mr. Dewey from the life of the great Scottish reformer were many and useful. Called among them, perhaps, was the necessity of striving to preserve purity of doctrine, worship, and life in the church. Another lesson was the function of the pulpit. Knox was pre-eminently a preacher. Were all our pulpits filled with men like Knox there would be no need of doubt as to the future of the church. The life of John Knox also exemplified how much God is able and willing to do through one man, and in how short a time he can accomplish the great work. Knox's work in Scotland occupied but fourteen years in all.

TWO TORONTO PASTORS REFER TO GAMBLING, ONE IN STRONG LANGUAGE

Toronto, May 22.—(Special.)—Canon Welch made gambling and betting the theme of his discourse at St. James Cathedral. His condemnation was severe. The subject, he declared to be one of those grave and moral issues intimately connected with the well-being of the community to which the pulpit was justified in referring, especially as in the present case the circumstances of the moment suggested it. Earl Grey, Countess Grey and Lady Evelyn and the Governor-General's suite attended the service. There was also present a large congregation. He called the money waste at gambling in races or otherwise as an unclean thing and pictured in graphic terms the poverty which often attaches to the family of a gambler who has lost all.

"I am sorry the vice-regal party attended the Woodbine Races . . . I do not believe that such a gentleman and nobleman as Earl Grey would have attended the race course had he known it was such a gambling resort . . . I am told even women high in social position in this city and elsewhere attend the course and bet on the races."

This was part of the remarks made last evening by Rev. J. C. Sisters in New Richmond Street Methodist Church. He expressed sorrow that any constituency was represented by men who would so far prostitute their public position as to vote for a bill legalizing betting and gambling on a race course. He had been told on the very best authority that so widespread was the betting evil that in shops, warehouses and offices, mere boys and girls were betting.

REV. DR. SHAW ON THE CAUSE AND REMEDY OF INDIFFERENCE

"Religious Indifference, its Causes and Remedies," was the subject of an eloquent sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Shaw in the Dominion Square Methodist Church yesterday morning.

Dr. Shaw alluded to the periods of moral depression in history from the time of the Hebrews to the present day. If the religious conditions at present were sadly marked by indifference, he said, some would attribute the ebb and flow of religious life to evolution but he claimed that the fault was all our own and not the outcome of evolution. He regretted the divergence of the laboring classes from the Church, often due to the failure of the churches to teach the laboring classes the ideal of brotherhood taught by the Carpenter of Nazareth.

Dr. Shaw suggested several remedies for the prevailing religious indifference. First, a ministry combining intellectual conviction with more earnestness. Secondly, continued and increased activity in religious life.

The Methodist Church was growing more rapidly than ever and with the exception of the Lutheran it was the largest Protestant denomination in the world. But Methodism, unrrue to its mission, was doomed. It died absolutely, if it died spiritually and failed to satisfy the hunger of humanity.

UNEXPECTED INHERITANCE

Of Large Fortune Brings Long Looked for Happiness to a Well Known Family.

Little Mary Jane Fry is the recipient of a very large fortune, which has driven away care and made both her and her family unexpectedly happy. All hope for such bliss had long been abandoned. Little Mary not only had no mother to care for her, which was a great misfortune, especially at the age of twelve, when a child so much needs the care of a mother, but her health kept gradually declining for the past year, until finally she had to be taken from school and placed under the treatment of a very prominent doctor of this city. All to no avail! But what was the inheritance that changed all this? It was perfect health, for which the gouty millionaire would willingly give all his millions; for what do these large fortunes avail one if he has ill health? Nothing.

And how was this perfect health attained? By the use of ST. JAMES WAFERS.

The following is what Mr. Thomas Fry, 96 Hyde street, Point St. Charles, has to say regarding St. James Wafers:

"For about one year my little daughter Mary suffered from anaemia, and kept gradually declining in health. Notwithstanding the efforts of our family physician to cure her, she was still very easily fatigued, was troubled with dizzy spells and sleeplessness, and was run down to such an extent that we feared the worst. As a last resort I thought I would try her with a box of St. James Wafers, and to my great surprise found her vastly improved before the box was finished. She is now, after two months' use of these marvellous wafers, perfectly well."

The above is only one of many testimonials that have been gratuitously given regarding the many wonderful cures obtained by the use of these wafers, which can be taken with good curative qualities of girls' and women's ailments. How many homes could be made brighter and how much worry and expense could be saved to thousands in this great Canada of ours were they to wisely follow the example of Mr. Fry? Think of it, you mothers who have daughters to bring up! It is your duty to look to the health of yourselves and your daughters, and what better way is there to do this than to use and see that your daughters use nothing but ST. JAMES WAFERS, which can be obtained from any druggist at the small cost of 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50, or will be sent post free on receipt of cash remittance by the sole Canadian agents, LYMAN SONS & CO., wholesale druggists, 380 St. Paul street, Montreal.

120 New Styles in Women's Shoes

There are a hundred and twenty new styles in the Slater shoes for women.

No other shoe in the world can show anywhere near so many styles.

Fifty styles would be many,
Seventy-five an unheard of number,
—but think of 120!
But that's Slater policy
—to make more styles by far than any factory, and smarter styles even than the swellest custom made shoes of New York.

—having exclusive style points of their own that make them more stylish shoes and shoes that are more stylish than the shoes in any store in New York city, no matter what their price or prestige.

The Slater high arched instep and the Cuban heel are as comfortable for a flat-footed woman as for one whose sole is naturally arched—thus giving style and sense combined. The Slater style man has no equal anywhere.

He has made your size and last
—in high shoes,
low shoes,
walking shoes,
calling shoes,
day shoes,
evening shoes,
golf shoes,
church shoes,
and it's going to be a delight to you to find fit
as well as fashion—
wear as well as looks —ease as well as elegance.

LUTHERANS' NEW PASTOR INSTALLED

Rev. C. G. Beck Assumes Charge of Church of Redeemer.

The English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer held an interesting service last night in Karn Hall, St. Catherine street, by the installation of the permanent pastor, Rev. C. G. Beck, formerly of Mahone Bay, N.S. The installation sermon was preached by the acting pastor and Eastern field missionary, Rev. M. J. Bieber. He based his remarks on Timothy v., 20, from which text he outlined the pastor's duties as priest, ambassador, shepherd, teacher, officer and the rewards connected with these duties. In his charge to the congregation he impressed upon the members the necessity of co-operation, financial support and prayer. The installation service following the sermon embraced the reading of the call, extended to Rev. Mr. Beck, by the board of English Home Missions of the General Council of the Lutheran Church of North America, and the call extended by the local congregation; likewise the reading of the duties of the pastor and congregation and the pastor's response. The service was impressive, and the congregation large. Four new members were added,

REV. C. G. BECK,
Pastor of the English Lutheran Church.

increasing the adult membership to 126, four of these having left the city. A public reception will be tendered Rev. Mr. Beck and Mrs. Beck to-morrow evening at the home of Miss Haeglin, 40 McGill College avenue, when the various organizations of the church will extend individual words of welcome.

Rev. Mr. Beck is a native of Pennsylvania, being born near Bethlehem. He is 27 years of age, a graduate of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., with the degree of A.M., and of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa. He has ben in the ministry four years, serving very acceptably and successfully his first and only parish at Mahone Bay, N.S., which parish consistd of several large congregations. Rev. Mr. Beck has already won the hearts of his people here by his genial disposition, his ability and zeal. The prospects of growth and development in his new field are excellent. He will preach his introductory sermon next Sunday evening.

Rev. Mr. Bieber, who organized the congregation here, will leave the city May 29 for Hartford and New Britain, Conn., where he expects to establish new congregations, after which he will return to Canada, going to Toronto, Berlin and Ottawa. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Bieber have made many friends in the city, have greatly enjoyed their seven months' stay, and are sorry to leave.

MONTREAL PASTOR TO LEAVE IN JUNE

Rev. William R. Harvey, of Point St. Charles Congregational Church, asnew duties as pastor of South tSanstead Congregational Church, Rock Island, on the first Sunday of June. Mr. Harvey will preach no special farewell sermon, but for his last service in Montreal will preach on the 28th instant in Emmanuel Church.

The Rev. A. W. Main, latterly of Lower Selmah, Nova Scotia, well known in the denomination and at one time its evangelist, preached very acceptably yesterday morning and evening in Point S t.Charles Church, and while no call has been formally extended, it is understood that it is the general desire of the church to secure him as the pastor.

Mr. Harvey had much of interest to sa yof the scene of his future labors. Stanstead Congregational Church is one of the most important of our provincial churches and is really an international church, the congregation partly Canadian and partly American, while the officials are nearly all citizens of the United States. The international boundary line runs within a few feet of the church and the community is essentially a unit.

One of the most noteworthy features of its life is its tone of literary culture, which has ben very largely helped by the munificent gift by the Haskell family, of a splendid library and concert hall, a gift representing in building, books and endowment, a sum closely approximatng $100,000. This building is right on the boundary line, part in Canada and part in the United States. It was given freely to the people of Stanstead, and Rock Island villages in Canada, and that of Derby Line in the United States. The proximity of Stanstead Methodist College also reinforces the general culture of the district.

Mr. Harvey's plan before receiving the unanimous invitation to Rock Island, was to proceed to London University and take a post graduate course in the Old Country. He also in the last few weeks received a call from the church at Yarmouth, N.S., of a very tempting nature, but decided in view of his loyalty to Canada and the need for men to be at work in this progressive country, to remain, and so accepted the pastorate of Rock Island.

ALICE ATKINSON,
Who left her Father and Step-mother in Boston and is now with relatives in Montreal. There is a possibility of an interesting legal fight over her.

SEA GULL SURPRISES CIGARETTE SMOKERS.

While a number of people were watching the antics of the seagulls, which rose continually to the parapet of London Bridge, recently, in search of food which several of the spectators were throwing to them, one gentleman gave a large bag of sprats to the gulls, who eagerly took the fish from his fingers one at a time. Standing close by was another spectator, who held an unlighted cigarette in his lips. Judge of the latter's surprise when one daring bird, finding no sprat awaiting him, suddenly swooped down on the cigarette and deftly removed it from the owner's mouth.

The seagull evidently knew that the smoker was using a Sweet Caporal cigarette, which, according to the Lancet, is "the purest form in which tobacco can be smoked."

ALICE ATKINSON MAY BE CAUSE OF LEGAL FIGHT

Little twelve-year-old Alice Atkinson, whose disappearance from her father's home in Roxbury, near Boston, caused such a sensation last week, is staying with Mr. William Gainfort, 235a St. Antoine Street, whose wife is the girl's aunt.

Mr. Gainfort claims that on the death of the girl's mother, he was appointed tutor and guardian of the daughter, and that she had only gone to Boston to visit her father. He had detained her, and she was not allowed to write freely, nod did the Montreal relatives know that Atkinson had married a second time.

Mr. Gainfort admitted to The Herald that he had arranged with a friend in Boston to have his ward sent to Montreal. He did not think that she was getting the education or treatment he wanted her to have, and he was her guardian. He says that he will fight to retain her in the event of the father appearing.

Mr. Gainfort is a veteran of the Boer war, and he will put up as strong a fight in this cause as he did beside "Gat" Howard in South Africa. A sister of the former Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Longley, of 638 Sanguinet Street, confirms his statements. Atkinson did not arrive to-day, as was expected.

GAS QUESTION WILL COME UP AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON

While not upon the order sheet for to-day, the gas question will come up for discussion this afternoon, and the aldermen who voted for the fifteen-year extension of the present contract with the city, will explain their side of the case, and, if possible, make clear how the word "cheap" may be applied to gas as supplied by the terms of the notorious contract.

As matters stand now, the resolution adopted last Monday by the vote of the "famous twenty" lies in the hands of City Clerk David—and just what that gentleman can, or will do with the papers is a mystery. The Mayor, City Attorney Ethier, City Attorney Archambault, and Ald. L. A. Lapointe, St. Denis, Vallieres, Duquette, Larivière and many others confess that the situation is a most peculiar one and admit that the proper course to take, legally, appears to be somewhat shrouded. A big surprise may be sprung, for from a statement made this morning by Ald. Vallieres, it is quite possible to rush the proposed by-law through by next Friday.

"It is possible that some one may call for the printing of the resolution in the proper by-law form, this afternoon," said that alderman, "and then, giving notice for a special meeting next Friday, run the three readings through in one session."

As a matter of fact, the resolution now in the hands of the City Clerk, has not the Mayor's signature, and does not need it, being an "affirmed" resolution and therefore a legal one. Whether the Gas Company may accept the offer in this resolution or must wait till the by-law is framed is not quite clear. According to Mr. Ethier's opinion the resolution is binding—but the legal phase is not at all satisfactory.

MAYOR PUZZLED.

"You know as much as I do about this contract," said the Mayor to a Herald reporter this morning, "and as for the legal position of the case, I'm almost in the dark. The city clerk may bring it up, but what will be done is another story.

"I'm still in favor of 80 cent gas," laughed his Worship. "I would like to see an expert appointed to go into the city's figures for 65 cent gas, and the company's real figures as shown by their books."

RECONSIDERATION VOTE.

"I will move for a reconsideration of the contract this afternoon," said Ald. St. Denis, "and I don't need a seconder. This will give us thirty days to think it over—and I know one alderman who will change his opinion, I'm sure."

MAY CHANGE.

"I don't know what to do." This was Ald. N. Lapointe's opinion. "I may vote against it the first chance I get, for I believe that it's an unfair deal in some ways, at least not a popular one with the people—but we've got to do something to redeem our pledge for cheap gas, and next year the city will be poorer than it is now. We can never run a gas plant—and our only hope lies in the terms of the Gas Company."

If the question is broached at all this afternoon, a lively meeting will be the result, and several of the city fathers may move over to the right side of the voting list.

MAYOR LAPORTE KNOWS AND MAYOR WEAVER FEELS

Resolution to Lease Philadelphia Gas Plant Will be Voted Over Mayor's Veto.

Philadelphia, May 22.—The first action taken by Mayor Weaver in his opposition to the consummation of the gas lease was the suspension of Oscar Noll, an assistant commissioner of highways, pending an investigation into the part taken by Noll in the passage of the gas lease ordinances by council last Thursday. Noll, who is the Republican leader of the Thirty-Seventh Ward, was appointed assistant commissioner by the Mayor. It is alleged that Noll influenced Walter Sykes, select councilman from that ward, to vote for the gas lease against the wishes of the Mayor. Mayor Weaver had a conference with leaders of several other wards. The leaders of the party say that the ranks of the advocates for the lease stand solid, and that the ordinance will be passed over the Mayor's veto in the event of the chief's non-approval.

Few Are Protected From Tuberculosis

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired, Languid or Run Down, Get Protection Before Too Late.

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing.

Blood rules the whole body. Upon its nourishing qualities depends the very life of all bodily organs.

Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power and the ever-present tubercular bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozone which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Manotick, Ont., tells as follows of her enormous gain in health from Ferrozone: "For two years I was not well. I was thin and anaemic. Towards spring I fell into a condition of nervous exhaustion. A dead tiredness hung over me like a load. Housework of any kind I simply couldn't do. A bad cough developed that worried me greatly for I thought it might be tubercular. When I first read of Ferrozone I was convinced it was good. I took it regularly for eight weeks and the change in my health was wonderful. My cheeks filled out and became clear and rosy. I gained eight pounds and now am strong and vigorous as possible."

Ferrozone feeds, nourishes and tones up the body—it sends the thrill and vim of robust health from head to foot—makes you feel better at once. Won't you use Ferrozone? Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE CHANGE OF LIFE

INTELLIGENT WOMEN PREPARE

Dangers and Pain of This Critical Period Avoided by the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that the most critical period in a woman's existence is the change of life, and that the anxiety felt by women as this time draws near is not without reason?

If her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, it is at this time likely to become active and, with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden.

At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to begin their destructive work. Such warning symptoms as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, dizziness, headache, dread of impending evil, sounds in the ears, timidity, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the world's greatest remedy for women at this trying period, and may be relied upon to overcome all distressing symptoms and carry them safely through to a healthy and happy old age.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism, and builds up the weakened nervous system as no other medicine can.

Madame Louis Belleau, of 17 Ramsay St., Quebec, Que., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound assisted me to pass the change of life with but very little sickness and pain, and I am pleased to give it my endorsement, for I feel that it is the medicine which every woman should take. I am the mother of three children, and when I reached the age of fifty naturally my health was none too good, and I feel sure that if I had not taken your Vegetable Compound I should not have passed the climax safely. I took it off and on for two years and now find that I am in splendid health and strength and feel younger and better than I did ten years ago. Much praise to your medicine, and may all suffering women learn of its value."

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

NATIONAL ENQUIRY INTO INSURANCE SITUATION

New York, May 22.—President Roosevelt has been requested to take cognizance of the situation that has been brought about by the Equitable Life Assurance Society trouble, and to institute a national investigation of the insurance business as it is now conducted. The enquiry into the beef trust and the present Standard Oil investigation are quoted as precedents. This request was made by W. F. King, former president of the Merchants' Association of this city, who has written the President as a policyholder in several companies, asking that such an investigation be made under the interstate commerce law. Should this course be deemed not practical, Mr. King asks the President to appoint a national committee on the lines of the coal commission that settled the anthracite strike to make an inquiry and report.

WANTED FOR ASSAULT.

Fredericton, N. B., May 22.—(Special.)—Fredericton has been aroused by brutal assaults upon young women on two successive Saturday nights on streets in the suburbs. One young lady was very critically ill as a result of the injuries from her assailant, but has now recovered consciousness and able to give a fairly accurate description of her assailant. Last evening, acting upon evidence which had been accumulating for several days, the police went to arrest a young man well known about town as an athelet and ball player. He eluded the officers and escaped to the woods back of the city and up to the present has not been captured.

COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS.

At the first general meeting of the General Specialty Company, Limited, held Friday, the following board of directors was elected: Mr. D. H. Loynachan, president; Mr. Geo. E. Bradshaw, Toronto, vice-president; Mr. Jas. M. Reid, secretary and treasurer. The other directors are Messrs. P. F. Richardson and Jas. S. Smith.

The General Specialty Company, Ltd., has but lately secured its charter. Its object is to buy patents and manufacture farmer's signs. The temporary offices of the company are situated at 782 Craig Street.

The ratepayers of Maisonneuve on Friday gave their approval of the by-law authorizing a loan of $175,000 by the town. The majority in favor of the by-law was seventy-two. The money is to be used to pay off indebtedness as well as to build a fire station in the northern section of the town, and to improve the thoroughfares.

HOW TO CURE A TERRIFIC HEADACHE

Many people suffer with an aching head week after week, occasionally getting relief from so-called headache powders and nerve-stupefying drugs. They never get cured because they start wrong. Such people should do a little common-sense thinking. Headache is simply the result, a warning signal, of a far more serious trouble. Usually it means bad blood, poisoned by an inactive or sluggish liver. Headache sufferers are often nervous, cross and irritable. Their sleep is disturbed and digestion impaired. The liver doesn't do its work right, and the bile elements poison both nerve and brain. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure headache by removing the cause. They are Nature's true laxative, and give tone to liver activity, are a positive specific for biliousness and a torpid liver. Get your liver right by using Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and your head won't ache, your nerves won't weaken, nor your food distress you. They cure headache, constipation, and biliousness in one night. Price 25 cents at all dealers.

MARINE MINISTER ON NEW "MONTREAL," PROMISES MONTREAL A DRY DOCK

Trial Trip of R. & O.'s Magnificent Liner is Made the Occasion of a Very Important Government Announcement.

Upwards of 800 guests of the R. & O. Navigation Company attended on Saturday the ceremony of declaring in commission the company's magnificent new steamer Montreal. The formal opening of the Montreal's career took the form of a trial trip to Pointe aux Trembles and back, during which time the newest and greatest vessel on the inland route was the subject of enough good wishes to carry her through life. Ald. Couture, representing the Mayor and City Council, presented four flags to the Montreal, and wished her a great future. Mr. Rodolphe Forget did the honors for the company, of which he is president, and sketched the history of the R. & O. from its inception. Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, took the occasion to promise the district of Montreal a dry dock in the near future, so that every marine man in the company was very happy.

The occasion was a notable one in many ways. It was the diamond jubilee of the great inland navigation line. It was the opening voyage of the greatest vessel of that line. It was looked upon by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as a suitable occasion on which to announce publicly and confidently the erection of a dry dock for this district. The reception this promise was given on Saturday showed clearly how real is the want. Mr. Prefontaine outlined the future of the inland route, and it must be a great one. It needs such things as a dry dock and similar improvements, lest its future be endangered.

The Montreal left Victoria pier about three o'clock Saturday for her trial trip. A large crowd of spectators were gathered to see the start, and as the great vessel, tall and imposing as an ocean liner, slowly moved out from the wharf, a cheer went up from the crowds on the shore. To one on board the Montreal the first impression is the absence of vibration. It is difficult to say whether or no the big boat is moving at all, unless one happens to see the shores gliding past on either side. In this respect she is a great improvement on the ordinary inland vessel.

ALD. COUTURE FOR THE CITY.

When the vessel turned at Pointe aux Trembles the passengers assembled about the main stairway, and the speakers of the day were introduced. Ald. Couture, acting for the Mayor, complimented the company for bringing out such a "floating palace" as was the Montreal. He presented four flags on behalf of the city to the new steamer.

Mr. Rodolphe Forget, president of the company, in acknowledging the gift, took occasion to give a short resume of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company's history. He noted that by a peculiar coincidence the launching of the Montreal and the company's diamond jubilee were synchronous. In May, 1845, the Societe de Navigation du Richelieu had come into being. The capital was £6,500 currency, and the company owned one steamboat and one barge. Mr. Forget traced the absorption of all the lesser local concerns by the company, saying that our ancestors knew quite as well the "trust" idea as we do.

At present the mileage of the R. & O. Navigation Company was 1,175 miles. The company had twenty-six steamers, commissioned to carry 17,000 persons, and to provide sleeping accommodation for 4,000. The Montreal was the newest, biggest and finest of the fleet.

Mr. Forget took occasion to twit Mr. Prefontaine, who was present, on the favors shown ocean navigation at the expense of inland navigation. In Upper Canada the company was forced to look after its own wharfage, and so on. In Quebec it was better cared for. Mr. Forget then declared the Montreal in commission.

Hon. Raymond Prefontaine replied, receiving a most enthusiastic reception. The orchestra greeted him with the National Anthem, as representing the government. Mr. Prefontaine thanked the orchestra for having honored him so highly. He was proud to be present to congratulate the R. & O. on "this splendid addition to our national fleet." He was proud because he had been all over the Dominion and seen all there was to see in the way of steamships, and the Montreal was a credit to Canada and to the Province of Quebec. He complimented the president of the company especially on this addition to the national route of the Dominion, the St. Lawrence River route.

MUCH FOR INLAND NAVIGATION.

The speaker did not understand Mr. Forget's reference about the Government and inland navigation. The present Government had, in the last eight years, done more for navigation, inland and otherwise, than had been accomplished in the preceding twenty-five years. The abolition of tolls and inspection fees, alone meant a clear bonus of $500,000 a year to the navigation companies.

Referring to the "dry-dock" question, Mr. Prefontaine said: "Before another general election takes place there will be a marine railway at Sorel and a dry dock in the district of Montreal." The trade of Canada and of eight or nine of the states of the union were dependent on the St. Lawrence route. If the money which was at hand were spent as it surely would be in making that route safe and reliable as were many of the American routes, we would get not only what was our due, the trade of our own enormous west, but that of eight or nine states as well.

Other speakers were, Mayor Paradis, of Sorel, Hon. Robt. Mackay, chairman of the Harbor Commission; Mr. C. J. Smith, manager of the R. & O., and Ald. Lavallee.

WHAT THE BOAT IS LIKE.

The Montreal will make her first trip to Quebec this week. She is the largest steamer on the Canadian register. The hull engines and boilers were built by the Bertram Engine Works Company, Toronto. Her dimensions are: Length, 340 feet; width of hull, 44 feet; width over guards, 75 feet 6 inches; moulded depth 15 feet. Her engines are of the triple-expansion variety, of 3,000 horse-power, with stroke of 6 feet 6 inches. She has side-wheels fitted with feathering curved-steel buckets. Steam is supplied by six Scotch cylindrical boilers of 11 feet diameter and 12 feet long, with working pressure of 185 pounds. Her fire pumps, life-saving apparatus, etc., are of the most modern pattern. The electric light plant will furnish power for 1,200 sixteen-candle power lamps. Pumps supply running water to each of the 250 staterooms, which include twenty parlor rooms, with bath-rooms attached. The entire steamer is steam heated.

The dining room seats 150 passengers. The scheme of decoration throughout is of the most elaborate. At the top of the stairway on the gallery deck is a splendid painting of Richelieu by Suzor-Cote. Amongst the officials who contributed to make the Saturday trip a success were: Messrs. C. J. Smith, general manager; Thos. Henry, traffic manager; Robt. McKeown, general freight agent; J. F. Dolan, passenger freight agent, Montreal; Capt. Johnson, mechanical superintendent; Percy Smith, secretary of company; J. A. Villeneuve, comptroller.

Some of the guests were:

GOD SAVE THE KING!

FROM SAME BOX

Where the Foods Come From.

"Look here, waiter, honest now, don't you dip every one of these flaked breakfast foods out of the same box?" "Well, yes, boss, we duz, all 'cept Grape Nuts, 'cause that don't look like the others, and people know zackly what Grape Nuts looks like. But there's bout a dozen different ones named on the bill of fare and they are all thin rolled flakes, so it don't make any difference which one a man calls for we just take out the order from one box."

This talk led to an investigation. Dozens of factories sprung up about three years ago making various kinds of breakfast foods, seeking to take the business of the origonal prepared breakfast food—Grape-Nuts. These concerns after a precarious existence, nearly all failed, leaving thousands of boxes of their foods in mills and warehouses. These were in several instances bought up for a song by speculators and sold out to grocers and hotels for little or nothing. The process of working off this old stock has been slow. One will see the names on menus of flaked foods that went out of business a year and a half or two years ago. In a few cases where the abandoned factories have been bought up, there is an effort to resuscitate the defunct, and by copying the style of advertising of Grape-Nuts, seek to influence people to purchase. But the public has been educated to the fact that all these thin flaked foods are simply soaked wheat or oats rolled thin and dried out and packed. They are not prepared like Grape-Nuts, in which the thorough baking and other operations which turn the starch part of the wheat and barley into sugar, occupy many hours and result in a food so digestible that small infants thrive on it, while it also contains the selected elements of Phosphate of Potash and Albumen that unite in the body to produce the soft gray substance in brain and nerve centres. There's a reason for Grape-Nuts, and there have been many imitations, a few of the article itself, but many more of the kind and character of the advertising. Imitators are always counterfeiters and their printed and written statements cannot be expected to be different than their goods.

This article is published by the Postum Co., at Battle Creek. Additional evidence of the truth can be supplied in quantities.

MONTREAL MONDAY MAY 22.

A GOOD PRECEDENT.

The entire change in the attitude of party governments towards franchise and corporation-charter legislation, which has had some exemplification at Quebec during the past session, received a still more striking demonstration on Friday at Toronto. The York Radial Railway had appeared before the House, after the manner of franchise-seeking corporations, very late in the session with a very ambitious bill, backed by the Toronto Street Railway Company. Premier Whitney personally notified the Railway Committee that if they reported the Bill the Government would have it thrown out in the House, on the ground that it had been entered far too late for a measure involving great public interests, and could not receive the study that it required. The fact is evidently being recognized that Governments can no longer escape responsibility before the people for the franchise-grabbing perpetrated by the legislatures in which they hold the majority, no matter how explicity they may repudiate control of that majority in "private bill" matters. The discovery is made a little late, but it is essentially sound government. The individual member, except he represent a district affected by the legislation in question, is absolutely irresponsible in voting on franchise bills.

A GREAT WORK FOR EDUCATION.

The education question is undoubtedly the most important matter the Quebec Legislature dealt with during its just terminated session; and the advance that has been made towards answering it is probably the most important step—not only for what it promises but for what it does—towards the genuine progress of the Province that has been taken at the Ancient Capital for several years. The passing of this legislation was accompanied by considerable discussion upon the real merits and demerits of Quebec schools. There is no doubt that the value of the Quebec schools is by some people greatly under-estimated. The Province of Ontario in particular, carefully nourished for years into the belief that its own schools are the finest in the world, inclines to be especially contemptuous of the state of education in a Province over half of whose schools are under directly religious auspices. As a matter of fact those who know the schools of the two Provinces where they exist under approximately the same economic conditions are the readiest to admit that the Quebec schools then compare very favorably with those of the sister Province.

The trouble with the schools of Quebec is that in too many cases the economic condition of the district in which they work is inferior to that of corresponding districts in Ontario. Quebec, which has concentrated sources of wealth in mineral deposits and water-powers that have long excited the envy of her rivals has not the same uniform agricultural fertility that serves most of the other Provinces of the Dominion. On the other hand she has a people so attached to the soil that they willingly consent to toil out a scanty living within her confines rather than migrate to the richer fields of the West. The instinct of our people has led them out into her unexplored territories, far ahead of any railway communication, and the Province being in no financial position to aid them in that communication, they are still waiting for it to arrive and set a proper value on the fruits of their labor. The sole factor that bears down the average of Quebec education as compared with that of Ontario is the vastly greater number of poor municipalities.

In the struggle for the bare necessities of existence that goes on in these poorer districts, what wonder is it that the claims of education have trouble in making themselves heard? The pure desire for the education of their children is the only inducement these people have to tax themselves for schools. The Province has under existing conditions no leverage upon them whatever. The great centres of wealth of the community, which contribute those of its revenues that do not come from crown lands, have never realized the obligations they are under to these pioneers, and, until Mr. Gouin and Mr. McCorkill began the great work they are now engaged in, have never offered them an inducement for the maintenance of adequate schools that was sufficient to make such maintenance possible. For a Superintendent of Education who could at best offer the school district a sum of ten per cent. of the cost of keeping a certified teacher, it was puerile to threaten that if that school district employed an uncertified teacher, who could be had for forty per cent. less, the grant of ten per cent. would be taken away. There was no leverage by which to work upon the ratepayers. There is none too much leverage now, but the grant for poor municipalities has for this year been doubled, and that is an immense step in advance. Of the exact distribution for the future of the increase of $50,000 voted to the elementary schools, the details are not yet worked out, but they can well be left to an Education Department that is at the present time singularly free from faddists and is composed of devoted and broad-minded men. As Mr. Leblanc, leader presumptive of the Opposition, remarked on Saturday, the marked amelioration which has been brought about in the system of public instruction by the goodwill of the departmental officers will undoubtedly be multiplied an hundredfold by the energetic action of the Government.

It is a far too common mistake to suppose that narrow-mindedness and parsimony are at the bottom of the inadequate supplies voted by the poor municipalities to their schools. It is easy for those who live in wealthy and highly populated districts to make this charge, but it is hard to maintain it in presence of the poor municipalities themselves with all their troubles. In this connection the figures quoted by the Premier on Saturday are eloquent proof of the fact that in the Catholic schools at least the improvement of elementary teaching goes hand in hand with the economic progress of the country. The average salary of the elementary teacher, beginning at $93 in 1897, has progressed in the Catholic schools to $118 in the past year. The minority schools unfortunately do not show the same progress, having reached their maximum in 1901, at $201, and having now fallen to $161. Within the period named the cost of heating the schools has been transferred from the teacher to the school authority, which would largely offset the reduction in the Protestant salary and as greatly enhance the very creditable improvement in that of the Catholic teacher. The entire amount paid by local rates to school boards of both classes has been increased over thirty-four per cent. in the seven years, while the increase in the number of pupils has been but four per cent. The past year showed a more marked advance of generosity than any previous. Surely these things indicate that what is needed is simply the realization by the Province as a whole that in the words of the Premier "we owe this great benefit (of educational facilities) to the colonists who are devoting themselves to the aggrandizement and the progress of our Province."

There is one other phase of the education question which the Premier also touched on in his speech, and which the Government has announced its intention to approach during the coming year. That phase is the enhancement of the educational profession as a career; and we think the appreciative sympathy which Mr. Gouin displayed with the aspirations of the real and devoted teacher must go far to win him and his Government the confidence of the profession. "We can only have good school teachers at the price of giving to those who offer themselves for the educational service a thorough pedagogical training, and at the price of raising that profession to a career, I will not say remunerative, but at least honorable, in which they can make a living, and which they can respect and love. In other words, the improvement of popular education rests upon the increase of the number of normal schools and the advancement of the lot of our school teachers."

QUEBEC'S PRIDE.

It is a sad but inevitable fact that the Twelve Children Act of the late Mercier Government possesses for the English-speaking section of the community but an academic and sympathetic interest. Out of the 1,258 claims now pending at Quebec under that law, we understand that something like six per cent. are in names of English Scotch and Irish origin. As the sad records of other provinces than our own go to show, the French-Canadian is the only race in the Dominion which possesses the twelve-children habit to any appreciable extent.

It must be remembered that the actual results of the law in settling new colonists on the soil were very insignificant. In its sentimental aspect, however, so splendid an appeal to national pride was this measure, and so fine a tradition of the Mercier regime, that we doubt if it could safely have been changed by any Government that had not a large heritage of the Mercier power of appealing to the public imagination.

BRITAIN'S FIELD FOR REFORM.

Last Thursday and Friday the National Liberal Federation of Great Britain held its annual meeting at Newcasale-on-Tyne. It was in this city in 1885 that the great pronunciamento was arranged upon which Mr. Gladstone fought that last great contest when Mr. Chamberlain and the present Duke of Devonshire were two of his most trusted lieutenants, Mr. Morley, then member for Newcastle, being the third.

After recording confidence in Lord Spencer and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman as the official leaders of the party, a resolution was affirmed which very emphatically endorses the policy of Free Trade in its entirety, and voices "unwavering determination to resist all proposals to depart from that policy, since, whether presented under the guise of Tariff Reform, Retaliation, Preferential Trade or Protection, they must inevitably raise the price of food and raw materials, diminish trade, involve us in a war of tariffs, endanger our relations with the Colonies and threaten the stability of the Empire."

As it is generally conceded that the party which announces, in such clear terms, its objection to any interference with the methods of free trade, as understood by Cobden, Bright and Gladstone, will come into office for at least the term of one Parliament, it is clear that as an issue in practical politics the Chamberlain agitation must soon reach a stage of suspended animation. The real test of its influence among the masses will only commence whenever an aggressive opposition seeks to use it as the principal lever by which to regain office.

In the matter of constructive legislation the Newcastle programme puts land law reform in a prominent position and provides for the levying of a tax on land values so as to give the community a share in the monopoly value of land, bring building sites into the market, relieve rates, and lighten the burdens on industry. Local authorities are also to be given power to acquire or hire land for letting in small holdings and for the provision of better housing accommodation for the artisan classes.

State machinery for investigating and alleviating lack of employment in times of trade depression, and increased powers to workmen to combine, are also items which will appeal strongly to the labor vote.

The Irish question is alluded to in very non-committal terms, there being no definite promise of any kind of legislation to foster that "Government of Ireland by Irishmen in accordance with Irish ideas," which it is suggested the present Cabinet has deliberately thwarted.

Regarding any amendments to the Education Act, which has been the principal means of restoring harmony between the different sections of Liberalism to something approaching what it was before 1886, there is no hint as to the character of the legislation which may be proposed, and in the matter of foreign policy, the Transvaal constitution, and the Chinese and Alien Labor issues, there is a similar reticence. Probably it has been felt by those responsible for formulating a programme that the electorate will be quite satisfied with a broad outline of proposed Liberal policy rather than any such attempts to define details as caused the schisms which the party is now only recovering from and which the ambitious elaboration of the Newcastle programme of 1885 was largely responsible for.

In a few days Mr. Balfour is to introduce his much-talked of resolution regarding a redistribution of the Parliamentary constituencies, which some observers claim may so cement the factions of Unionism that dissolution may be deferred until after next session.

John Paul Jones

The recent discovery of the body of John Paul Jones, in Paris, after the zealous search conducted by Ambassador Porter, of the United States, has re-opened to the public mind the strange and eventful history of the so-called "first admiral of the American navy." His remains will be interred with due honors at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and the man who, as Scotchman, American, Frenchman and Russian, lived a life of adventure and sea-roving, a man of no country, yet the honored of three, will find his final resting place in the "land of the free and the home of the brave."

There is none of us who has not heard of John Paul Jones, of the early days of the American Revolution, and his good ship the Bonhomme Richard. He has been the darling of many commanders, and the centre of much discussion and dispute, and truly his life was a strange one. Born in Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland, he emigrated to America when he was but twenty-six years of age, and settled in Virginia under the name of John Paul Jones. Two years after his arrival in America, when the American war of independence broke out, he was appointed first lieutenant of the Alfred, a frigate of the new navy, and afterward became commander of the frigate, the Ranger.

After this we find him cruising about the Irish Sea, and on the coast of Scotland, capturing, during one of his expeditions, the Drake, a British sloop of war. England termed him then, and still terms him, a pirate and sea-rover, and has never recognized him as representing another country in his attacks upon her.

It was after this he became the commander of the Bonhomme Richard, a merchantman changed to a man-of-war, one of a fleet of seven vessels, prepared by the French Government, on the advice of Benjamin Franklin. The battle between the Bonhomme Richard and the English ship Serapis, which followed soon after his appointment, is called one of the greatest naval engagements in history, and in that recently published and popular book, "Richard Carvel," the story of that struggle has been vividly, though probably inaccurately told.

After this success we find Pirate Jones, and Lieutenant Jones, and Captain Jones, and Admiral Jones, Scotchman and American, the darling of the French court and the hero of French society. Louis XVI. presented him with a gold-hilted sword, and decorated him with the military order of merit. No longer the plain sea-rover, he is Chevalier Jones, the recipient of royal favors and royal approval. The man loved display and flattery, and the patronage of titled personages, and for a while life is a happy May-day to him. Then he tires of inaction. He looks about him for a chance for further adventure, and, presto-change—we find him in Russia.

In Russia the Empress Catherine receives him with marked friendliness. She appoints him rear-admiral, under Polemkin, and he goes off to the Black Sea looking for adventure, as enthusiastic in his new nationality as in the old.

He is only forty-three when once again he re-appears in Paris, driven from Russia because of the jealousy of fellow naval officers, who object to the foreigner, the favorite of the Empress. In Paris, chafed and unhappy in his inaction, he lives for two years more, and, at the age of forty-five, in the year 1792, he dies, and is buried, as we are told, "in a leaden coffin."

That was over one hundred years ago. During considerable of that time he rested in an unknown grave. Now they are bringing his body back to the United States, where the Scotch-French-Russian-American admiral will rest in peace. The country which he served in its days of national infancy has not forgotten his courageous, if adventurous life, in its days of power and affluence.

And there are many, besides the people of the country to the south of us, who will appreciate the honor conferred upon a notable figure in naval history, and upon the man who, for the past century, has lived a life of his own in romantic stories of the imagination, and has become, to many, the ideal of an adventurous sea-faring hero.

—Francis Daor.

DEAD MAN WAS FROM BOSTON.

At the inquest held Saturday on the remains of the unknown man who dropped dead on the wharf on May 13th the body was identified by one of the workmen on the wharf as that of John O'Neil, of Boston. O'Neil had only been in the city a short time and was in the employ of the Dominion Steamship Company. As the evidence showed that he died from an epileptic fit the jury rendered a verdict that death was due to natural causes.

Comments on Golf.

By Horace Hutchinson).

We find abundant evidence that successful playing of the great game of golf is not merely a matter of hitting the golf ball far, in the right direction, and, for the shorter shots, a certain calculated distance. All these are valuable aids; it may even be said that they are primary essentials. A golfer cannot make success without these. But it is plainly, and very noticeably, possible for him to have all these and yet not achieve success. He requires some other qualities "more easily imagined than described," to speak in classic phrase; but there are certain details in manifestation of the qualities that can be seen clearly and that it is quite useful to appreciate. In a general way we will recognize the value of nerve, of determination to win, and so on—that is, of course, always supposing that the object of the game is to win it. For those who "play golf for exercise," none of these things matter, because these folk do not "play golf," they "play at golf." There is all the difference.

Very often, in following and thinking out the course of a golf match, it may have happened to us to be struck by the frequency with which one of the players, after appearing to have the worse of the hole from the tee-shot, or even at some much later stage of the hole's history, has achieved a halt; or even, it may be, a win, contrary to all expectations. And if you make a careful consideration, you will see, I think, that it has happened to one of the players far more often than to the other to achieve this. (I am speaking for the moment, not of the very highest class of golf—not of the Vardons, Taylors, and Braids. They have acquired such steadiness, and play so mechanically that they are past all the weaknesses. But to all others, in the long-declining series of excellence, the remarks are to be applied.) Very probably you will find that it was the shorter player of the two whose game you have been following that has won this hard half of the hole again and again, and then you may begin to see that it was necessary for this to happen if these two men were to find themselves playing on an equality at all; and, further, perceiving this, you will also see that the possession of this faculty has hoisted the man who has it right into a class that he has no claim to by mere virtue of his powers at hitting the ball, and, moreover, that if you could, by any miracle, engraft on the other of the two this faculty possessed by the shorter player, then he, with his greater power of execution, would be no longer where he is in the golfing scale, but would pass on at once to a higher level. The value of this faculty of saving holes is thus the value of a class. "But," it is quite likely some one may object, "everybody does his best to save holes"; and in a certain personal sense this is, no doubt, true; but what has to be realized is that the best of one man differs so much from the best of another. One has so much more faculty of trying than another. To exemplify it, the thing may be regarded in a little more detail. A typical case of the kind arises when one player is some eighty yards from the hole and the other is on the green, and perhaps within ten yards. This is a moment when the fortunes of that hole will seem to one of the faint-hearted kind, who has not the blessed hole-saving faculty, to be so far gone that it is hardly possible to retrieve them. "My opponent," he will say to himself—not in so many words perhaps, but this is the way that the situation will strike his mental view, more or less consciously—"My opponent is morally certain to hole out in two, whereas it will only be by something very like a fluke that I can hope to hole in two"; and mind he will play in a half-hearted manner, afflicted by a fatalistic feeling that only a fluke can save him, and that therefore it is hardly worth trying—and the result is inevitable, and as we see it. The same problem presents itself to one of the other kind in a very different light. He says to himself that the case looks bad, but that for that very reason he must do his very best to right it. He works his wits hard in order to study out the best line and method of approach, in order, if possible, to hole out in two, realizing that although it may perhaps be in the nature of a fluke if he does so flukes of this species come most often to the hand of those who strive hardest to deserve them; and, after all, the other man is still ten yards from the hole. It happens often enough, as the painful experience of all of us testifies very freely, that a man does not always hole out in two (although, of course, he ought to), even from so short a distance as ten yards, and, moreover, if the eighty-yards-off man can contrive to put up a good approach, so as to give himself a fair chance of holing out with his next, the very fact that the other man is thus called on to do something that he had not expected to be obliged to do—that is to say, to lay his put dead—is extremely likely, if anything is likely, to make him fail in doing so. Not only the actual accomplishment of a stroke of recovery, such as laying the long approach dead, is apt to have a partially paralyzing effect on the opponent, but the very knowledge that he is playing against the kind of a man that has the faculty of striving hard to the very bitterest end has its effect on his spirit. We must all, surely, be conscious of the different mood in which we meet the task of playing—say, in the Amateur Championship or any other tournament that we are pleased to consider of a certain importance—one of those who are made of the sterner stuff, and who are ready to admit themselves beaten before the hole is finished. Of course there are certain situations in which insistence on playing out the hole to the last stroke becomes no better than mere vanity and vexation of spirit. The ancient story, typical of this spirit in its extreme manifestation, is the rebuke of the old Scotch caddie to his master who proposed to give the hole up to the opponent after playing "four more." "Gie up the hole!" he said, with that sour ferocity which is characteristic of a certain class of the Lowland Scotch, especially when a wager appears in danger of being lost—"Gie up the hole! Wha' kens het yon mon'll no fa' doon deid afore ever he cames tae the hole?" No doubt there was a certain sort of pious faith in a possible intervention of Providence thus manifested, but the code of the golfing duel hardly justifies one in worrying the opponent to putt out after all human hope of saving the hole has utterly gone.

After all, the argument has the strongest instances to enforce it. The really dangerous players always have been those who have the faculty of saving holes—the power of recovery. The finest example that I can site is the late Mr. F. G. Tait, whose play often was far from faultless, but owed a large measure of its immense success to the player's gallant faculty of never regarding the hole as gone. Again and again he pulled himself out of trouble by the long approach laid near and the possible putt holed out. The very best of the present professionals are hardly, as I have said, in need of such strokes of recovery. Their mistakes are very rare. I once wrote that matches are won not by the extra good play of the winner but by the mistakes of the loser. Of all but some half-dozen (or perhaps half that number only) of the men playing to-day that still holds good, but there are these few exceptions, between whom the match seems to turn on the long approach laid dead or the long putt holed rather than on failure to hole out in three when the hole is within reach of any iron club. Such failure means mistake, and these men do not make it. But the rest of us—even the best of us—are no more than human. It is human to make mistakes, but more often than we realize it is possible to retrieve them; and the more we can realize the possibility the more often we shall retrieve them successfully.

A Section of a Cemetery.

Marshall Smith, a hunter from Indian Orchard, was called as a witness in behalf of Mrs. Hermann in a divorce case in Pennsylvania not long ago. He said that while Mrs. Hermann was down in Pennsylvania he had never seen her take a drink.

"Do you admire Mrs. Hermann?" asked Mr. Severance, counsel for Mr. Hermann.

"Not partickerly," answered the hunter, removing his chewing gum to his waistcoat pocket.

"What is your business?"

"Hunter."

"Do you hunt all the year round?"

"Not partickerly."

"Well, when you are not a hunter, what do you do?"

"Work as glass cutter."

"And what are you when you are not a glass cutter?"

"I'm a section of a cemetery."

The Fairyland Bellman.

The bee goes home when the shadows creep
Across from the slope of the western hill;
The cricket is quiet; the field is still;
The flushed little daisies are longing for sleep.

Look! Through the grass comes a firefly light;
'Tis the fairy watchman with his bell,
Crying, "Eight o'clock and all is well;
It is time that the daisies were shut up tight."

Hark!. Through the field goes a sleepy sigh!
Slowly the little white petals close;
Wee pointed nightcaps, rows upon rows,
Nod as the wind goes whispering by.

LAD LOSES LEG AND A FOOT.

Arthur Caron, the seven-year-old son of Joseph Caron who resides at 224 Joliette Street had both legs crushed by a Terminal car on Saturday afternoon. The little fellow who was playing at the corner of Ontario and Aylwin Streets, attempted to get on the moving car but was knocked down and thrown under the wheels. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital, where it was found necessary to ampute the left leg below the knee, and the right foot at the instep. The boy stood the operation well and it is hoped will recover.

THE FIRST SESSION UNDER PREMIER GOUIN WAS ENDED ON SATURDAY

The Legislature Prorogued Saturday Evening—Premier Explained Additional Grant of $50,000 to Cause of Elementary Education—License Bill Passed.

Quebec, May 22.—(Special.)—The Provincial Legislature prorogued on Saturday night at 9.15. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Louis Jette, arrived at the Parliament buildings dressed in his Windsor uniform, accompanied by has A.D.C., Major Sheppard, and Capt. de L. Panet, and some minutes later entered the Legislative Council chamber, accompanied by Premier Gouin and Hon. Messrs. McCorkill, Turgeon, Allard and Roy, together with the president of the Council, Hon. Horace Archambault and a large number of militia officers, who stood at each side of the throne.

There were a number of ladies present.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

After His Honor assented to the various bills passed by both Houses of the Legislature, he delivered the following speech:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

In relieving you from your parliamentary labors I am happy to congratulate you on the zeal you displayed in the performance of your duties. I am convinced that the legislation which you have adopted in connection with the matters of public and private interest submitted for your deliberation will have the effect of maintaining constant progress in the Province.

"Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly; I thank you for the supplies you have voted for the administration of public affairs.

"Hon. Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly; I beg to express my most sincere wishes for the prosperity of the Province as well as for your happiness and that of your families."

THE CLOSING SESSIONS.

When the Legislative Assembly convened Saturday morning, Hon. Mr. McCorkill moved the House into Committee of Supply on his resolutions respecting a tax on transfers of shares, bonds, debeutures, or debenture stock, in conjunction with the bill relating thereto, which was adopted and passed its third reading.

This important Government measure which has now become law, enacts that in order to provide for the exigencies of the public service, there shall be levied in accordance with the rules set forth, a tax upon every sale, transfer, or assignment of shares, bonds, debentures or debenture stock issued by any corporation or company, made or carried into effect in this province. Such tax to be paid by adhesive stamps amounting to two cents for every one hundred dollars or fraction thereof of the par value of the stock, shares, bonds, etc., transferred or assigned. the said stamps to be supplied and affixed by the vendor, transferor, or assignor, unless the sale or transfer is made through a broker, in which case the latter affixes the stamps.

Mr. Bergeron moved for an order of the House for all correspondence in connection with the establishment of an industrial school in the Court House at Beauharnois.

THE PREMIER ON EDUCATION.

Hon. Mr. Gouin then proposed that the House form itself a committee of the whole to take into consideration the resolutions granting an additional subsidy of $50,000 to elementary schools.

He said: It is my duty first of all to inform the House that these resolutions have been submitted to his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and that his Honor very specially recommends their adoption.

The principle upon which this measure rests is that of the encouragement of the elementary school. I have no necessity to defend this principle. It has no opponent in this House nor yet in this province. Of this I am perfectly convinced. I have therefore no intention to support my motion with a long plea; still less have I any pretention of pronouncing "a big speech," as certain newspapers have announced. I shall only say a few words to define the policy that the government desires to follow in educational matters.

And first of all, let it be well understood, we have no intention of striking down, destroying or overthrowing anything; all we wish to do is to ameliorate, to fortify, and to consolidate. We believe that the first duty imposed upon those charged with the administration of the affairs of this province is to look to the welfare of the school; and this is why we have placed at the head of our programme "the encouragement of public instruction." Nor do we pretend to be introducing any innovation. All our predecessors, irrespective of party, have recognized, as we have, that the question of education should take precedence of everything else. They have opened the furrow, we propose to deepen it and to render it more fertile.

The school which has the chief claim upon our attention is the elementary school, because it is the school of the multitude, the only means to improve it is to give it good and competent teachers. But we can only have good teachers by giving a good training in the art of teaching to those who are fitting themselves for that calling, and by making of this profession a career. I will not say remunerative, but at least honorable, in which its members may be able to live and one that may claim their attachment. In other words, the improvement of popular education depends upon an increase in the number of the normal schools and upon improving the condition of our teachers.

SALARIES VERY SMALL.

Now, of these two necessities, the most pressing is the necessity of increasing the salary of our teachers. As a matter of fact, if you consult the statistics which are annually furnished by the Superintendent of Public Instruction you will see that the salaries of our teachers are not what they ought to be.

I have here a table showing the average salaries paid for each of the last eight years to school mistresses holding diplomas and teaching in our elementary schools. It is as follows:

	Catholic schools.	Protestant schools.
1897	$98.00	$134.00
1898	102.00	133.00
1899	107.40	132.97
1900	111.00	152.00
1901	113.00	261.00
1902	110.00	151.00
1903	113.00	153.00
1904	118.00	161.00

These amounts, which have been paid to our certificated teachers, do not certainly represent the value of the services rendered by them. The task to which they devote themselves—of moulding the heart and the soul of our children—deserves at least double the salary that they now receive. It is gratifying to observe that, notwithstanding the fact that for some years past the school boards have been required to heat the school houses themselves, the average salaries of our certificated teacher have increased by more than twenty per cent. since 1897 in the Catholic schools of the province.

In consulting the reports of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, I find that the school municipalities have certainly contributed to the progress to which I have referred. In 1897 the taxpayers of the province contributed to their school corporations $1,488,349 in annual and special taxes and monthly fees; in 1904 they paid $2,005,542, being an increase of $517,193, or more than 34 per cent. in seven years, while the number of pupils attending the elementary schools has increased but four per cent. Last year (1904) was certainly most encouraging. The number of pupils attending the elementary schools was about one-half of one per cent. more than in 1903, while the amount of the school rates was more than eight per cent. in excess of those of 1903. Our population is evidently waking up; parents are commencing to feel that education is the richest legacy which they can leave to their children; they appear to understand more and more the necessity which exists for the imposition upon themselves of heavier sacrifices with that object in view. It is for the purpose of accentuating this onward movement of the common school that the government now asks to be authorized to spend an additional $50,000 for elementary education.

This sum is certainly not sufficient to satisfy all our wants. But in this matter as in everything else, it is necessary to proceed slowly but surely. To those who might be tempted to reproach us for not asking a larger sum I will say that the day is coming, and is not very far distant, when the government will come before the House with new demands, not only in favor of elementary schools, but also in favor of special schools, so that our young people may be given a better training in the arts of agriculture, of industry and of commerce.

DISTRIBUTION OF AMOUNT.

You would doubtless like to know, Mr. Speaker, how we intend to distribute this amount, but I regret to be unable as yet to enlighten the House upon this phase of the subject. The task of raising the status of elementary schools is most arduous and most complicated, and everybody will admit that since the 23rd of March last we have not had the time to sufficiently study the subject so as to propose a satisfactory solution.

Before resuming my seat permit me to express a wish, I would like to see all the members of this House actively devoting themselves to the extolling of the primary school, of "la petite ecole" as we learned to call it in our youthful days. I wish that each one of us may consider it a special duty to visit it frequently, to preach to the electors this truth, that education is fortune and that all money spent on primary schools is money splendidly invested. The codificators of our school laws, when they decreed that the members of this legislature should have the right to visit all the schools of the province did not intend only to confer upon us the mere title of visitors; they doubtless cherished the hope that we would avail ourselves of this privilege and that we would show a lively interest in everything pertaining to popular education.

AFTENOON SESSION.

When the orders of the day were reached at the afternoon sitting of the House, Mr. Tessier said he wanted to know from the Premier and Attorney-General, what were the prospects of the judicial district of Three Rivers, securing an additional judge. He said that a bill was passed at the last session of the Legislature to provide for a second judge and none as yet had been appointed, notwithstanding that there was room for one. The Government had not taken any action in the matter.

After some remarks from Mr. Taschereau and Mr. Leblanc, Premier Gouin, advised that the Bar of Three Rivers should petition the Government in the matter.

The House went into committee and passed the third reading of Hon. Mr. McCorkill's resolutions respecting licenses and taxes upon commercial corporations.

The House in Committee of Supply passed the estimates.

A number of public bills to amend the civil and municipal codes on the order papers were dropped, and the House adjourned for prorogation.

REMARKS ABOUT WOMEN

I believe the Creator called together all the omnipotent powers when he made woman. I believe she is the crowning masterpiece of all nature. I love woman because she is a woman. Behind every great accomplishment of man, you will find the prompting influence of a woman. All women would be good if the corrupting hand of man had not made some of them bad. The man who belittles all women, condemns his own sex. It is the man who, somewhere in past generations, has planted the seed of wickedness, or else he planted them in his own time. Show me a human being who wears trousers and hates all women, and I'll show you a male monster who is not a man.

Women are the greatest comforters in the time of pain and sickness. They are more practical as well as more gentle that men. Women investigate while men scoff. Women try things and see for themselves. More Hutch is bought by women than men, but I notice after a wife gets a bottle of it in the house, it doesn't take the husband long to put it to use. If he has a headache, heartburn, dizziness, pains in the stomach, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia, or if he feels bad in any way, many a man can thank his lucky stars that his wife had the good sense to investigate Hutch and then keep it in the house. The man from Indiana.

TWO HOME RUN HITS WON FOR THE BIRDS SUNDAY

Providence Won in Ninth Innings in Saturday Game

Singles by Dunn and Brodie, and Double by Jacklitz Gave Visitors the Victory—Thomas Put Out of Game For Talking Back to Hassett.

The Providence Greys solved Pappalau's enigmas in the ninth innings Saturday and pulled out a 4 to 2 victory over the Birds.

It was a heart-breaking finish, inasmuch as the locals apparently had the game cinched. They scored in the fifth on Bannon's single and stolen base, Meaney's sacrifice and Dyer's hit. They scored their other run in the sixth on Joyce's single and stolen base and Thomas' error. In the other innings, Cronin's benders were too much for them and symmetrical ciphers were chalked up against them.

The Greys drew first blood in the second, when Brodie got a base on balls and stole second. Conn struck out, but Thomas singled, sending Brodie over the pan.

In the seventh, Dunn, Brodie and Conn hit safely in succession, Conn making a two-bagger, and Dunn scored.

In the ninth—fireworks. McFarland flied out to Bannon. Dunn and Brodie singled, Conn went out, Dyer to Lachance, and Jacklitz, who had replaced Thomas in the eighth because the latter spoke rudely to Umpire Hassett, banged out a double, scoring Brodie.

It was a sharp finish to an interesting game and the Greys deserved to win. They played fast ball throughout and took advantage of every opening to advance their interests.

Both Cronin and Pappalau pitched good ball, and each was hit safely but seven times. The Greys were fortunate in bunching hits in the seventh and ninth, getting six of their bingles in these two innings. The Birds did not get more than two hits in any one innings.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Hitting is weak.

Bannon stole two bases.

Dyer put up a snappy game at third.

Brodie and Dunn each made two hits.

Bannon is hitting the ball pretty regularly.

The Birds are getting into that double-play habit.

Meaney's sacrifice in the fifth was a nice bit of work.

Jack Dunn's two hits resulted in two runs being scored by him.

It was bunching of hits in the seventh and ninth that won for the Greys.

Jacklitz was only up once, but he soaked out a double, that did the business.

Mike Joyce reached first three times, but on only one occasion could he make the circuit.

The Birds got men on bases in every innings but the seventh and ninth and only scored two runs.

A shower of rain compelled the stopping of the game for a few minutes.

The outfield is still muddy.

Umpire Hassett was justified in putting Thomas out of the game. After that incident things went along peacefully.

The Birds have picked up in their fielding, and if they'll only do the same in their hitting, they'll speedily forge upward.

Wiedensaul and Raub Hit Out Home Runs Yesterday

Birds Won 2 to 0—Felix Pitched Creat Game and Nops Was Very Effective—Pat Meaney Injured by Pitched Ball.

Home runs by Wiedensaul and Raub won Sunday's game for the Birds at the Shamrock grounds. Only three hits were made off Nops, but two of these were four-sackers.

The Greys made five hits off Felix, but couldn't make the circuit.

The score was 2 to 0, and the 5,000 fans in attendance were as jubilant as so many schoolboys with an unexpected holiday ahead of them.

An unfortunate incident was an injury to Pat Meaney in the fourth. He was the first hitter up, and after two strikes were declared on him, Nops threw a swift in-shoot. The ball caught Meaney on the back of the head and he dropped unconscious.

The players worked over him for ten minutes and then called a doctor from the grand stand.

Meaney came to, but was so badly hurt that he was unable to continue, and Tom Raub, who has been catching, went to right field and Gibson went behind the bat. Meaney was taken to the hotel.

In the first innings, Dunn hit safely, but was left at first. Conn, Thomas and Kelly were easy outs in the second, and Rock, Nops and Poland were retired quickly in the third. McFarland fanned in the fourth. Dunn drew a pass, but was doubled at second on Brodie's grounder to Miller, the latter heading Brodie off at first. In the fifth, Conn, Thomas and Brodie repeated their performance of the second innings. Poland hit safely in the sixth, but was held at first. In the eighth, Dunn tried out to Wiedensaul. Brodie and Conn made safe slashes, but were left on the sacks when Thomas struck out and Kelly knocked a pop to Dyer. An error by Wiedensaul gave Rock his base in the eighth, and Nops advanced him on his out, Miller to Lachance. Poland flied out to Bannon and McFarland hit safely. Two men on bases, but Dunn hit a grounder to Dyer and was out at first. Brodie, Conn and Thomas were retired without any trouble in the ninth.

Only thirty-three batters faced Felix in the nine innings and in five innings only fifteen Greys tried to knock the ball out of the lot.

Wiedensaul slugged the ball for keeps in the second. He caught it right on the beak and it drifted high over the left field fence. Wiedy went through the performance of touching the bases and the crowd went wild.

Raub was the first hitter up in the fifth, and he slammed it over the fence in almost the same place that Wiedy had picked out.

These were first home runs made on the local grounds this season.

At the other stages of the game, Nops was master of the situation. Bannon got the only other hit credited to the Birds. That happened in the first innings, but he was caught off second.

Birds reached first in the fourth, seventh and eighth, but succeeding batters could not do anything with Nops' puzzlers.

Score by innings:—

Providence .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Summary:—Home runs, Wiedensaul, Raub. Struck out, by Nops, Miller, Gibson; by Felix, Conn, McFarland (2), Nops, Thomas. Base on balls, by Nops, Wiedensaul; by Felix, Dunn. Double play, Miller to Lachance. Left on bases, Providence, 6; Montreal, 4. Hit by pitcher, by Nops, Meaney. Umpire, Hassett.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

None of the errors proved to be costly.

Miller is still suffering from an injured finger.

Dyer hit the ball hard, but could hit it safely.

Wiedensaul was the only player to steal a base.

Rock had a bad day at short, making four errors.

Dyer played a splendid game at third despite his sore leg.

Felix was given the kind of support that will win games.

Those around-the-circuit smashes by Wiedensaul and Raub were screamers.

As usual, Gibson kept the Birds gingered up while he was in the game.

The big grand stand was packed with the biggest Sunday crowd of the year.

Wiedensaul had the honor of making the first home run of the local season.

Lachance twice reached first on a fielder's choice and twice filled out to centre.

That was a cruel smash that Pat Meaney sustained in the fourth. He was knocked out cold.

The Birds hit to the outfield eight times and every fly, except the two that went over the fence, was corralled.

McFarland robbed Felix of a two-bagger in the seventh by making a beautiful running catch of Harry's long fly to deep left field.

Tommy Raub caught splendidly behind the bat for four innings and took Meaney's place in the night garden. Raub is proving to be a tip-top utility man.

NEWARK HERE TO-DAY.

Walter Burnham's "Sailors" from Newark will be in town to-day. They play the Royals this afternoon. To-morrow will be an off-day and there will be two games Wednesday, Victoria Day, morning and afternoon. For the holiday games it was announced last night that Leroy and McCarthy will work for the Royals.

To-day's game starts at 4 o'clock, and either Hammond or Barber will be on the slab.

DILLARD SOLD TO PROVIDENCE.

Dillard arrived in town yesterday morning and reported to Manager Bannon of the Royals, and when Providence left last night for Rochester Dillard occupied a berth with the Greys. It does not come often that a player comes to town for one club and moves out with another. Dunn thought he needed Dillard, so Bannon sold him out right, and the big chap slipped his mooring and moved out with Providence.

It is expected that Harry Aubrey will report to-day and if he does he may go in the afternoon's game. Dyer legs are badly bunged up.

SKEETERS MADE GARRISON FINISH

They Beat Toronto 6 to 5 in a Ten Innings Contest.

Toronto, May 22.—(Special.)—In a ten innings game on Saturday Jersey City defeated Toronto by a score of 6 to 5. Neither side scored until the fifth innings when Clements ran home on McCauley's two-bagger. McCann pitched good ball, but had poor support in the field. In the eighth innings Clements' errors gave Toronto an opportunity to raise the hoodoo, and Murray, Soffel, O'Brien, Toft and Currie scored before all out. The tie was broken in the tenth by Cassidy's two-bagger, which let Merritt home.

POLICE PREVENTED COCKING MAIN

That Was Scheduled to Take Place at Maisonneuve Sunday.

A cocking main which was to have taken place in Bennett's Bush, Maisonneuve yesterday afternoon, was called off in the first round by Chief of Police Benoit, of the municipality. Although no arrests were made, the chief confiscated two bags of birds that he found on the scene of the proposed fray.

Alleged sportsmen" from Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto and Montreal, to the number of 100 were on hand with their feathered fighters but Chief Benoit had been tipped off and butted in just in time to prevent any battles.

He took the patrol and eight policemen to Bennett's Bush, about 1.30 o'clock but some friends of the "sportsmen" got wind of his plans and, mounted on horseback, succeeded in reaching the bush before him and in warning the promoters of the fight that the jig was up. There was a hurried retreat through the undergrowth and when Chief Benoit and his squad, dashed up, the place was deserted except for a dozen or so birds imprisoned in bags.

The bush was scoured but any strollers Chief Benoit met were "just taking a constitutional, don't you know," and didn't know a cocking-main from a left handed monkey wrench. The chief will dispose of the birds by auction for the benefit of the borough.

Weisbaden Empress Augusta Victoria fell down stairs and was slightly injured on the forehead. Though the hurt is not serious the incident has caused the postponement of the departure of the Emperor and Empress for Berlin.

SULLIVAN KNOCKED OUT BY CALLAGHAN

The Loser's Manager Put Up a "Holler of Fake."

In the presence of over three hundred spectators, Tim Callaghan, the fast-fighting, hard-hitting boy from Philadelphia, knocked out "Spike" Sullivan, of New York, at the Shamrock grounds, Saturday afternoon, in the fourth round of what was to have been a fifteen-round affair. It was Calaghhan's scrap all the way, and in spite of the rumor that "Spike" was not in the best shape possible, and the frenzied oration of "Jim" Buckley, Sullivan's manager, to the effect that he had "tied 'Spike's' hands so that Callaghan wouldn't be killed," no one who saiw the affair but was of the opinion that the Philadelphia boy wes the better man.

According to Mr. Buckley's statement the affair had a distinct odor of fake—and Tim Callaghan had pulled off that interesting operation generally designated as "working the double-cross." Be that as it may, "Spike" was clearly out, and the S.A.A.A. had no knowledge of any attempt to queer the game. "Gentlemen," called Pat Rooney, as Callaghan sped across the sward to the club house, and the defeated New Yorker, hanging onto the ropes to steady himself, tried to speak to the crowd, "this thing was on the level—that's all I've got to say." The crowd believed the statement, and unceremoniously requested Mr. Buckley to hie himself to the tall woods.

The boxing match was advertised to begin at four o'clock, in the open air in front of the grand stand, but the continued rain of Saturday afternoon led many to believe that the event would come off in the club house at night, and only a small crowd assembled on the stand. Shortly before five o'clock, however, the principals climbed into the ring, with Pat Rooney as referee, and Jim Buckley as timer. Billy Weller and Billy Armstrong seconded "Spike," while two Philadelphians, Smith and Hart, did the honors for Tim Callaghan. The latter, as usual, wore bandages, while both men loked to be fairly fit for a brisk set-to. Pat Rooney called for Marquis of Queensbury rules, with clean breaks, and the bell rang at 5.17 o'clock. The boys looked to be about the same height, and both wore nervous expressions. So far as the crowd could see, it was "on the level."

ROUND ONE.

"Spike" led with his left, after some careful sparring, and Callaghan came back with a swift right jab. "Spike" ducked and the two clinched. Both missed light leads, and as "Spike" rushed to a clinch Callaghan landed a hard left upper-cut to Sullivan's face. Callaghan blocked a savage left for the stomach, and both smiled. Callaghan put over a straight right to "Spike's" face, and the bell found them mixing matters up in fast fashion.

Callaghan's round.

ROUND TWO.

"Spike" handed out a left to the ribs and Callaghan clinched. On the break, after a second's sparring, "Spike" put over a hard right to Callaghan's ribs, and planted a solid right on Tim's kidneys as the Philadelphian reached for the usual clinch. Tim was clearly angry—and the crowd waited for something to happen. "Spike" sailed in and met two beautiful right uppers. As the bell rang "Spike" walked unsteadily to his chair.

This, again, was Callaghan's call.

ROUND THREE.

Both fought carefully in this session and nothing occurred of moment. "Spike" planted two hard rights on Tim's face in return for a left swing for the jaw that barely missed, and the boys sparred for an opening. "Spike" assumed a crouching posture that puzzled his opponent not a little.

ROUND FOUR.

"Spike" came up laughing, but blood was trickling from his lips. Callaghan ignored the smiling and came in extremely cautiously. "Spike" woke up and slammed in both left and right for the face. Callaghan ripped up his right and the New York boy went to the canvas with a bump, his arms outstretched. On the count of "seven," he rose to his knees. "Nine" saw him spring groggily to his feet—and it was all off. He crossed his hands before his face then sparred wildly. Callaghan closed and "Spike" went down for keeps from a straight right on the chin. Pat Rooney waved off the counts "8," "9," "out"—and Sullivan was on his knees, as the last count was called. "I ain't out," he mumbled as he crawled to his feet and grasped the ropes. Callaghan was speeding to the club house, and when Mr. Buckley began his oration, he turned and came back to listen. He shook hands with "Spike" and laughed at the "fake" oration.

"Sullivan was out," yelled Pat Rooney and the crowd left the stand. Opinion seemed to be that "Spike" had been drinking "holy water"—but that Callaghan was the better man.

Any time Montreal wants to see a good fast scrap, it is safe to say that Callaghan will be one of the attractions.

PROPOSAL TO ENLARGE NATIONAL LACROSSE UNION

Mr. Wm. Foran, the Capitals' great lacrosse authority, is quietly working on his scheme to enlarge the N.A.L.U., so that it will embrace all the clubs in Eastern Ontario and in Quebec.

After the N.A.L.U. meeting Saturday night, he ascertained the views of the other clubs in the matter and naturally they were all in favor of it. Accordingly it is likely that a meeting of delegates of all the clubs interested will be arranged to take place in Montreal in the near future.

Mr. Foran's idea is that lacrosse will be put on a more solid basis in the East if the N.A.L.U. branches out and takes in the Eastern Ontario Lacrosse clubs and any other clubs that are willing to join. If this plan is carried out, the clubs will be graded and series drawn up. In this way a more general interest in the game will be fostered and in the long run, it will take a firmer hold on the public's affection.

TORONTO GAMBLERS WERE HEAVILY FINED

Toronto, May 22.—Eight members of the Toronto Fishing and Sporting Association appeared before Magistrate Peter Ellis in the County Magistrate's Court for sentence Saturday for conducting a common gaming house. This was the celebrated Toronto Junction pool room case. In summing up the case the Police Magistrate said that in view of the fact that the conduct of the accused in pleading guilty had saved the Crown authorities a lot of worry and expense, he thought it only fair to fine the defendants instead of imprisoning them. He therefore fined Frank Baby, the president of the Association, $100 or 30 days in jail; and the others, John Brennan, James Williams, C. N. Pire, John Hare, William Hare, John Lander and Edward Hopkins, $50 or 60 days each. The fines were paid by means of a cheque for the total amount.

INFERNO WON KING'S PLATE

He Romped Away From the Rest of the Field.

Toronto, May 22.—Barring a little chilliness in the air, Saturday was a perfect day for racing. Although the first race was not set to start until 2.30 the crowd began to arrive at the course at 11 o'clock, and two hours later the public stand and public lawn were well occupied. Half an hour later they were crowded and the members' club and stands had many occupants. By two o'clock the whole surroundings of the course, except the infield, from which the public were at first barred, was one mass of humanity. Among the earliest to arrive on the members' lawn were Premier Murray and His Honor Lieut-Governor Clark, each with a party of richly but quietly dressed ladies. The Governor-General, in an open carriage, drawn by four horses, with postilions, and escorted by G. W. Beardmore, M. F. H., the whips, and several members of the Toronto Hunt in pink, arrived about 2.30, and was received by President Hendrie, Vice-President J. E. Seagram, Hon. Melvin Jones, chairman, Dr. Andrew Smith, G. W. Torrance, Secretary W. P. Fraser, and other officials, and accompanied to the centre box in the members' stand, which was handsomely decorated and tastefully arranged for the occasion. Such a throng at so early an hour never before occupied Woodbine. Even the saddle paddock was filled to repletion, the one word on everybody's tongue seemingly being who will win the King's Plate. The majority seemed to favor Inferno, Mr. Seagram's high-going and thoroughbred looking colt, but many of the knowing ones expressed a preference for Will King. Now and again the remark being heard: "They tell me Maid of Barrie, Mr. Dyment's second entry, has a chance," but not one of the others was so much as thought of. The course was in excellent order, and the exhilarating air seemed to fill everybody with good spirits. When the cornet sounded for saddling for the first race, there were fully ten thousand people on the grounds, and by the time the race was decided the number had increased to 12,000. Great as have been the opening days of the O. J. C. in the past, there never has been so massed a throng as there was Saturday. The band of the 48th Highlanders, in full costume, played charming selections on the lawn, lending not a little to the perfection of the ensemble. No time was lost in calling the races, each and every one being brought off as closely to time as the fractiousness of some wayward horses would allow. As for the race for the Kings Plate it was the easiest victory and the smallest field for many years. It was a veritable romp for Inferno, and at that the marvellous colt just equalled Sapper's record, and his stable companion, finished behind Dyment's Will King, with Maid of Barrie next, then Golden Crest and Cross of Gold last. Thirty-six books were in line, and they easily handled the money of the enormous crowd that was there to see the races rather than bet on them.

First race, Trial purse, for three-year olds and up, six furlongs—Tongorder, 117, E. Walsh, even, won; Capersauce, 112, J. Walsh, 6 to 1, second; Pat Bulger, 124, Miles, 50 to 1, third. Time, 1.15 1-2. Claude, Light Brigade, Cricklade, Sandy Andy and Gertrude F. also ran.

Second race, Juvenile purse, for two-year-olds, half mile—Pater, 122, T. Burns, 2 to 1, won; Nagazam, 120, Miles, 2 to 1, second; St. Joseph, 110, W. Daly 5 to 1, third. Time 50 seconds. Ossineke Wee Lass, Ben Andrews, Medlet, jr., Ferronlere, Azure, Winnigs, Peter Becker, Royal China, Forty Winks, Ava, Henry Warin, Kameron and Miss Lingard also ran.

Third race, Minto Stakes, selling, for 3-year-old and up, 1 1-16 miles—Norbury, 106, J. Walsh, 3 to 1, won; Yeoman, 91, Powers, 3 to 1, second; Benckart, 104, Walsh 4 to 1, third. Time, 1.49 1-2. Wire In, Embarrassment, Goldfleur and Economist also ran.

Fourth race, Royal Canadian Steeplechase, for 4-year-olds and up, about 1 3-4 miles—Dramatist, 149, Gee, 4 to 1, won; Wellington J., 153, H. S. Wilson, 6 to 1, second; Butter Ladle, 130, Hazen, 10 to 1, third. Time, 3.45. Howard Lewis, X Mabon, Haversack, Gilmore, Avignon, Camembert, Gearholm, Sheridan, Ontonagon, Dick Willis, Junius Roane also ran. In the last stretch six horses fell.

Fifth race, the King's Plate, 1 1-4 miles—Inferno, 106, H. Phillips, 3 to 5, won; Will King, 106, T. Burns, 7 to 5, second; Half Seas Over, 106, J. Walsh, 3 to 5, third. Time, 2.12. Maid of Barrie, Cross of Gold and Golden Crest also ran. The start was good, the Seagram pair showed the way for a mile, with Half Seas Over the pacemaker. Inferno made his run at the middle of the back stretch, and thereafter it was only a breeze for the great Havoc colt. Will King passed Half Seas Over at the turn into the stretch.

HARRIERS ENJOYED A SPIN SATURDAY

Thirty harriers turned out to the union run on Saturday, held this time under the direction of the Y.M.C.A. Club. The start was made at 4.30 o'clock, and after covering nine miles of country of every description, the pack reached the Y.M.C.A. building about 5.30. The course was ideal and the intermittent rain was not sufficient to take from the enjoyment of the run.

Palmer and Shipman led off, taking the men through the McGill grounds, across to Fletcher's Field, and then out the Cote St. Catherine Road, to the back of Outremont. After going north a mile they turned west and struck out over ploughed fields, through orchards, and across ditches in true cross-country fashion. On reaching the St. Laurent road and following it for about half a mile, they turned homeward, passing en route through the Catholic Cemetery, around the Park slide, up into the pines on the western slope of Mount Royal, and thence to the Association building by way of the "gully" and McTavish Street.

The Y.M.C.A. Harriers will make a strong bid for the honors at the Harrier track meet next Saturday, on the M.A.A.A. grounds. In the senior events, Palmer will represent them in the half-mile; Stanley will try the mile, and McCuaig and Henschel will probably be the entries for the five mile. In the junior events the club expects good results from a number of new members. In the three-mile, McCallum, Watson and McCulloch will break into the sport. Barker will be entered for the mile, and Ableson will try for the half.

N.A.L.U. WILL USE TWO REFEREES

Montreals and Shamrocks Make a Temporary Agreement.

The National Amateur Lacrosse Union held a special meeting Saturday night, at which it was decided to follow the system that obtains in the Canadian Amateur Hockey League, and to have two referees officiate at the games. It was felt that the presence of a second referee would tend to eliminate rough and foul play.

The two years' residence clause was not altered, but an arrangement was reached whereby the Shamrocks will permit two of their men to go over to the Montreals, if these men really want to join the Montreal Club. The players in question are Robinson and McIlwaine.

The delegates from the outside clubs thought that the matter was one which should be settled by the Shamrocks and Montreals themselves, and pledged themselves to support any agreement that was entered into by these clubs.

President Arthur Hamilton, of the Montreal Club, moved that the constitution be suspended and the two years' residence clause altered to a six months' clause. He was, however, voted down after a rather warm discussion. Mr. Gauthier's motion to a similar effect was also killed by the Shamrocks.

There were present at the meeting, in addition to the chairman, Mr. O'Connell, Mr. Foran, Capitals; Dr. Cavanagh, Cornwall; Mr. Gauthier, National

The Royal Montreal Golfers Beaten by All-Montreal Team

The first big event of the local golf season was the match on the Dixie links between forty-six players from the Royal Montreal Golf Club and forty-six players from the the other city golf clubs.

The All-Montreal team of picked players won by a score of sixty to forty-one. Despite adverse weather conditions, the quality of golf played was uniformly excellent.. The rain which fell in the early part of the day made the course rather sticky but did not appreciably dampen the ardor of the competitors.

In view of the success of the match, the latter will probably be made an annual affair.

A feature of the day's play was the defeat of the Canadian champion, Mr. Percy Taylor, by Mr. Gerald Lees, the latter finishing two up. Mr. Lees played a particularly steady game, and this, added to the fact that the Canadian champion has not yet rounded into his best form, contributed to Mr. Lees victory. A contest which attracted much attention was that between Mr. F. W. Ashe and Mr. J. T. Morgan. It was nip and tuck between the two throughout, first one leading and then the other, the score finally standing even all at the eighteenth.

The clubs which competed against the Royal Montrealers were Victoria, Westmount, Beaconsfield, Outremont and Metropolitan. The Victoria Club made an excellent showing on the day's play. Seventeen members from this club competed, and of these ten won their games, one drew, and the other six were defeated. They scored an aggregate of twenty-seven points and lost thirteen.

The results follow, with the members of the Royal Montreal Club in alphabetical order in the first column, and their opponents in the second, with the initial letter of the club they represented following each name:

GOLF IN GREAT BRITAIN.

New York, May 22.—During coming week the first of three big golf championships will begin in Great Britain, and all of these notable events will be watched with peculiar interest by American golfers. The great amateur competition will start this week on the Prestwick links. Walter J. Travis, who won the English title last year, found it impossible to go abroad this season to defend his title. The only prominent player from this side of the water who will be among the native contestants this week will be George S. Lyon, of Toronto, the ex-amateur champion of Canada and the winner of the Olympic championship at St. Louis last year. If the American contestants are scarce this year in the amateur event, the women have more than made up for it by entering in larger numbers than ever before in the women's amateur championship of Great Britain, which will begin on May 29, on the Royal Cromer links near London. A team of the best women golfers in the United States sailed for England several days ago.

The third and last of the three big British events will be the open championship, which will be played on the historic old St. Andrew's links on June 7 and 8. Two of the leading professionals in this country have gone over to compete for the prizes in the persons of Willie Anderson and Aleck Smith.

QUEBEC XI. TO PLAY M.A.A.A.

The Quebec Cricket Club will send a team to Montreal on the 24th, to play against the M.A.A.A. eleven. Since acquisition of the grounds near Montmorency Falls the Quebec Club has had a new lease of life, and, although they have always been able to place in the field one of the best all around elevens in Canada, the team has been materially strengthened in the last two years. Montreal will be represented by Messrs. G. Ferrabee, G. E. Moberly, Rev. H. P. Plumptre, E. C. Smith, G. L. Foster, G S. Frew, A. S. Leupold, B. Motherwell, Dr. G. Fisk, G. C. Smith and another. The match will be an all-day one, play commencing at 10.30 o'clock on the M.A.A.A. grounds.

LYON PLAYS FIRST ROUND TO-MORROW

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

Prestwick, May 22.—Smith, Lyon's opponent to-morrow, is not considered a strong man, and it is thought that Lyon will have no difficulty in beating him, but George Wilkie, whom Lyon meets if he beats Smith, is considered a much stronger player than Smith. Maxwell and Graham are favorites. In a practice match this morning Lyon beat Smirke five up, four to play. He palyed bye and was two up on bye. This is the first match Smirke has lost in ten weeks.

Lyon, excepting a slight cough, from which he has suffered ever since landing in England, is otherwise fit. Speaking to the Canadian Press he said he holds many of his competitors as dangerous competitors, but thinks he has a good fighting chance. Lyon plays the first round to-morrow morning with Martin Smith. The ground is very dry and rain is anxiously wished for.

Michael McLaughlin, of the Lambton Club, is here. The Canadian Press has heard that ten to one is being laid against Lyon winning the championship. The draw has been remarkable for the large number of strong players who will be brought together in the opening round. There are six ex-champions in the list in an endeavor to regain the title.

LYON WON ANOTHER.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

Edinburgh, May 20.—Lyon, playing a three-ball match, beat Reade, thrice Irish champion, by one hole, and Forster, South of Ireland champion, by three up and one to play, Lyon playing a very strong game.

GENTLEMEN OF ENGLAND VS. AUSTRALIANS.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, May 22.—The Gentlemen, in their second innings made sixty, the Australians won by an innings and 189 runs.

JAP JIU-JITSU EXPERT TO WRESTLE TREMBLAY

Iamagata, the Japanese jiu-jitsu expert, has been matched to meet Eugene Tremblay at Sohmer Park next Friday night. He contracts to throw Tremblay three times in an hour. In two of the bouts the athletes will wear kimonos and in the third bout they will wear the ordinary scanty wrestling garb.

Iamagata was born in Tokio 28 years ago and studied jiu-jitsu from his earliest boyhood. Before coming to America three years ago, he was military instructor at Fort Konodova, Japan. He was instructor in jiu-jitsu at Yale last year and has engaged to fill a similar post at Harvard this year.

Iamagata stands 5 feet 3¼ inches in height, weighs 147 lb., has a 16-inch neck, 7½-inch wrist, 33-inch waist, 22-inch thigh, 14-inch biceps, 12½-inch forearm. His chest contracted measures 38 inches and expanded 42 inches.

HARDY'S DATE CHANGED

Montreal will have to wait a little longer to see Hardy do his famous high rope act, which was announced for next week., Hardy has been prevented from reaching Montreal in time, and is therefore compelled to change the date to a few weeks later. He will positively be here before long and will perform the great feat which has won him fame. While encased in an enlarged edition of a Sweet Caporal cigarette package he will walk a rope suspended in mid-air. Further details will be announced in due course.

WESTMOUNTS WON FROM LACHINE 2 GOALS TO 0

Westmount travelled to Lachine, and after a hard-fought game retired winners by 2-0. The game was late in starting, owing to the visitors having been delayed during their journey, but after the usual preliminaries the teams were soon at it tooth and nail. From the kick-off the champions pressed, but were sent back empty-hand, and Lachine took up the attack. The left wing of the homsters was conspicuous and Clapp had to use his hands to a nasty grounder from Raven. Woodburn eventually cleared, and Mac, getting possession, gave to Wilson, who hit the upright with a powerful shot. The Lachine boys again returned, and an exciting scrimmage ensued in the vicinity of Clapp. After some hot work in the Westmount penalty area, Crabbe cleared and Nairn had a splendid shot, which only missed the goal by inches. From the kick-off the locals again made for Clapp, but could not pierce the Westmount defence. Macfarlane eventually got posesssion, and centering nicely, Nairn headed a nice goal. Half-time was soon called with Westmount leading 1-0.

Alterv a short interval the game was restarted, and the Westmounts, now having wind and hill in their favor, soon took up the attack. After a lot of wild play, Harding scored a soft goal, McMillan allowing the ball to roll through his hands. The champions now took things easy and engaged in some close play. The Lachine defence was at this time playing finely and broke up many hot attacks. The game was called with Lachine in Westmount half and the champions leading by two close goals.

The teams were as follows:

Lachine—J. McMillan, A. Barrett, H. Tanney, J. Pashley, F. Pearson and W. Guest, W. Ogilvy, R. Yates, L. Edwards, J. Hunt and W. Raven.

Westmount—W. R. Clapp, J. Martin, H. G. Woodburn, L. S. Clebbin, R. Crabbe, W. Martin, W. S. Wilson, J. Macfarlane, C. L. Harding, W. Deans and J. Nairn.

Referee—Mr. McComble.

On Westmount Park the Westmount Intermediates beat the Caledonians by 7-0.

NOTES.

Westmount were at a disadvantage on the rough ground and never struck true form.

Lachine have good talent, but will always be at a disadvantage with such a ground, as they are unable to perform the finer points.

Westmount missed Heald and Neville, whose weight would have told on the heavy ground.

McMillan had better control his temper, or he may do "time." The officials of the league will not stand for such exhibitions, even when provocation is given.

WESTMOUNT SAYINGS.

Still no goals against either team. How long will it last, or will C.P.R. spoil the senior record next Saturday?

The boys have a heavy week before them, viz., SS. Lake Erie, Tuesday, 6.15 p.m. (scratch team); Y.M.C.A., in the Intermediate League, on Wednesday, and on Saturday a double-header with C.P.R. teams, intermediates at 2.30, seniors at 4. All who wish to make a place on the teams are requested to attend the Gym at 8 o'clock Tuesdays and Thuradays.

We are strong in musical talent, as the members of the Country Club can testify, who entertained the team after the match against Lachine.

The following will do duty on Tuesday evening, viz., W. R. Clapp, G. H. Heald and Walter Small, L. S. Clibbin, J. Martin and W. Neville, W. C. Wilson, Jas. Macfarlane, Toomey, R. Crabbe and G. Shortrede.

POINTS BEAT OUTREMONT.

The Points played their second league game on their grounds Saturday afternoon against the Outremonts. The game from start to finish was a strenuous one and proved very exciting to the 500 spectators present. Pretty football was at a discount, each team checking too closely to allow very much combination. Wright, after 15 minutes' play, opened the scoring for the Points, and McQuestion followed suit in about 5 minutes for Outremont, but the Points again got in the lead before half-time. The second half was closely fought out, each team in turn being dangerous, but no goals were scored. The referee proved a very efficient official and punished every infringement of the laws with a firm hand, and before the game was over they had one man from each side decorating the fence. Montreal can do with a few men of his stamp.

DOG SHOW PROMISES TO BE GREAT SUCCESS

Mayor Laporte's medal, offered to the Canine Association for the Dog Show opening Wednesday, (Victoria Day), in the Victoria Rink, has been placed by the committee for the best exhibit made. This will be another hard task for the judges, as all breeds will have to be gone over before naming the winner.

A feature this year is the competition for the best decorated kennel, a special cup having been given for same by Mr. Livingston, an admirer of the dog. This will make many exercise their artistic taste in decorating their stalls, and some elaborate plans are already known to have been made for benches holding from four to a dozen dogs.

One of the many attractions to be seen at the show will be a large kennel of setters and pointers, including the well-known setter, "Sutton Bay," whose work in the field cannot be surpassed in this province, and the well-known imported pointer, "Devonshire Maxim," recognzed as being the best heavyweight pointer on the Continent. This kennel is comprised of three setters and three pointers, owned respectively by H. H. Wootten and Ed. Outhet, which will undoubtedly draw many admirers of the hunting dog.

THE FRENCH OAKS.

Paris, May 22.—The Prix de Diane (the French Oaks), for three-year-old fillies, purse $10,000, ranking next to the Grand Prix, was decided yesterday at Chantilly, Veil Picard's Clyde ridden by Cormack, winning by a head. The betting was 5 to 1 on Clyde. Edmund Blair's Muskerry was the favorite, but was unplaced. There was a brilliant attendance. The scene, however, was somewhat marred owing to the chilliness of the weather.

WON BORDEAUX-PARIS RACE.

Paris, May 22.—Aurufurier, a Frenchman, won the Bordeaux-Paris bicycle race yesterday, covering the 379 miles in 20 hours and 13 minutes.

Vinson is playing regularly for Cleveland.

Cornwall, Ont., May 22.—Fred Degan left last night for Brantford to play with the C.L.A. club of that town. McMillan will leave to-day for Toronto, where he will figure on the Tecumseh team.

TOOK A SEVERE COLD.

It Settled In The Kidneys.

Pain In The Back The Result.

Catching cold and having it settle in the back is often the cause of Backache—the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches it is a warning that the kidneys are liable to become affected.

Heed the warning: check the Backache, and dispose of any chance of further trouble.

If you don't, serious complications are very apt to arise. Mrs. E. Williams, Hamilton, Ont., caught cold, and it settled in her kidneys. She used and is thankful for the immediate relief they gave her. She writes us as follows:

"It is with pleasure that I add my testimony in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills. Some time ago I took a severe cold, which settled in my kidneys. The soreness and pain in the small of my back bothered me greatly. After suffering for some months, and finding numerous remedies fail, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and received immediate relief from my sufferings.

Doan's Kidney Pills may be procured at all dealers, or will be sent direct by mail on receipt of price—

CYCLING

KRAMER WON AT LONDON.

London, May 22.—In the international cycling races at the Crystal Palace F. J. Kramer (American) won the mile (scratch) event, defeating Schilling, of Holland; Mayer, of Germany, and Friel, of France. Time, 2.12 3-5.

Later it was announced that Kramer had been disqualified for boring, and that Schilling had been awarded the race.

In the quarter-mile race, Mayer was first, Kramer second, and Schilling third. Time, .55 3-5.

Kramer won the half-mile, Schilling was second and Mayer third. Time, 1.02 3-5.

MILE IN .52 4-5 SECONDS.

New York, May 22.—The feature of the opening day of the Morris Park Racing Club, on the old track of the Westchester Racing Association, was the lowering of Oldfield's world's record for one mile of 53 seconds by Louis Chevrolet, who, in a 90-horse power automobile covered the distance in .52 4-5 seconds. Chevrolet's feat was remarkable, considering the heavy wind on the back stretch. Webb Jay made the mile in 53 seconds, but the best Oldfield could do was 60 3-5 seconds. The other competitors were Walter Christie and Charles Basle, who made the mile in .56 3-5 and 54 4-5 seconds respectively.

Basle easily defeated Oldfield in the five-mile match race.

Rome—King Victor Emmanuel received James Stokes, of New York, vice-president of the Young Men's Christian Association, in private audience.

ALCOHOL AN AID TO CONSUMPTION

Sir William Broadbent Takes Strong Ground Against Liquor Evil.

New York, May 22.—A special cable to the Herald from London says: The belief advanced by so many famous surgeons that intemperance is an active agent in the spread of consumption has found a powerful supporter in Sir William Broadbent.

In a striking speech at a meeting of the National Association for the Prevention of Consumption at the Mansion House, he declared that deficient food, overwork, stuffy rooms and alcoholic excesses were the principal factors in the progress of the disease, and then, in impressive tones, he emphasized his belief that the greatest and most potent of these was alcoholic excess.

Expectoration, he continued, caused it to spread more than anything else. If the whole of the expectoration could be destroyed at one moment the disease would be stamped out. Spitting must be stopped by public opinion and by punishment.

Regarding sanatoria, Sir William declared that they had been discredited by people expecting too much of them, but that they were, nevertheless, the principal means of curing disease. At present they were only for the rich, but they should be made available for the poor.

After the Earl of Derby had declared that light and air would do more good than the most skilful attendance and treatment, or the most careful concoctions of nauseous drugs, Sir James Crichton Browne gave it as his opinion that the better feeding of school children would diminish the disease in the poor districts.

He laughed at the theory that consumption was incurable. In 1902, he said, the disease claimed 50,000 victims, as against 57,000 in 1901, and 67,000 in 1883. This reduction had been brought about in spite of the increase of population and the overcrowding in cities.

The statements of Professor Schweninger, of Berlin, who was medical adviser to Prince Bismarck, that recourse is had to operations far too frequently nowadays, and that the physician is pushed on one side by the surgical handicraftsman, have created considerable interest among members of the medical profession in London.

A noted West End physician told an interviewer that a revulsion of feeling is taking place in regard to the use of the knife.

Some years ago, he said, Sir Felix S. Emen created a stir by hinting that larngologists were making too frequent use of the knife.

"As an example of the revulsion of feeling, of which I have spoken, take adenoids, a very common complaint with children. It is admitted by many able surgeons that operations have been far too frequent in the past, and now there is a tendency to see what treatment with change of conditions and air can do for children suffering in this way.

"It is the same with all obstructions of the throat and nose. There has been too much indiscriminate cutting."

"JUNIUS II." CHARGES WERE FOUND PROVEN

Toronto, May 22.—(Special.) — The Commission of Inquiry appointed by the Senate of the University of Toronto to investigate "certain anonymous charges" made against President Loudon and Professor McLennan, in connection with the "1851 scholarship" awards of 1090 and 1904, have presented their report to the Senate. The finding of the commission acquits President Loudon of charges of bad faith and incapacity and attributes the lack of harmony in the faculty and the dissatisfaction among students and graduates to the wide range of the President's duties and the municipality of details attached to his office.

Prof. McLennan was cleared of the general charges against him and the report commends his ability and industry in the department of physics as well as his work in the wider interests of the University. But the report declares it inadvisable that anyone actively promoting a student should be judge on his case.

The Commission unanimously found the 1900 award was irregular and should not have been made. Responsibility was laid on both President Loudon and Professor McLennan for having treated on equal terms candidates who had and others who had not submitted thesis in that year. In regard to the 1904 award, the Commission held the University Council were justified in treating Burton as eligible and they therefore found no fault with that award.

Recommendations were made in the report concerning the office of President and the administration of the University's affairs, but no censure was passed on C. B. Jamieson, author of the Junius, J., letters. Finding of irregularity, admission of lack of harmony, existence of dissatisfaction among students followed by recommendations for reform in administration are regarded as vindication of Jamieson's course.

FATHER AND MOTHER SAW CHILDREN PERISH

Lac du Bonnett, Man., May 22.—Unable to render any assistance or make any attempt at rescue, Mr. and Mrs. John Hendrickson stood and watched a fire destroy their little home, the lives of their three young children, and all that they possessed in the world, a valuable dog which might have escaped who was faithful to the children also perished. The tragedy took place on Friday evening at about 7 o'clock. The children were in bed and Mrs. Hendrickson was helping to unload the family supplies from a boat, when the house caught fire from a stove where her husband's supper was being cooked. The children were aged four and two years and nine months. The father made a wild attempt to save his children and smashed in the windows, but the flames filled the aperture and beat him back from his frantic efforts. He lost everything he possessed.

MR. THOS. MACKIE DIED SUDDENLY

He Was Federal Member for North Renfrew for Two Terms.

Pembroke, Ont., May 22.—(Special.)—Mr. T. Mackie, ex-M.P., died very suddenly at his residence here last evening of apoplexy. He had been in indifferent health for some weeks lately, but was able to be around as usual most of the time, and was down town Saturday. Last evening he ate a good meal. Shortly after he got up to go to another room and fell just as he crossed the threshold. Mrs. Mackie hastened to his assistance, and immediately summoned medical assistance. Dr. Gray was in attendance in a very few minutes, but Mr. Mackie was dead before he arived.

The late Mr. Mackie was in his sixty-eighth year, and was one of the most successful lumber men in the Ottawa Valley. He entered politics in 1896, when he contested North Renfrew and defeated Hon. Peter White, then Speaker of the House of Commons. In 1900 he again defeated Mr. White, but was defeated by him in the general elections last year. He leaves a family of five sons to succeed to his extensive operations in lumber and ranching, all of whom are at home except Major H. J. Mackie, who is at present on their ranch at Alberta.

Mr. Mackie was born in Ottawa in 1840, the son of David Mackie, of Glasgow, Scotland, and Eliza Thompson, his wife, of Edinburgh. He was married in 1872 to Miss Jessie Shaw, of Renfrew County, and had resided in Pembroke for many years.

PADEREWSKI EXPLAINS CAUSE OF BREAKDOWN

London, May 22.—Paderewski passed through London this week, on his way to Switzerland, where he is to rest two months in the hope of completely recovering his health.

He benefited very much by his voyage across the Atlantic, and from his appearance no one would judge he had been seriously ill.

Explaining to an interviewer the real cause of his illness he said: "The trouble was not caused by the programme I had undertaken, though that was, indeed, a long one. It was due entirely to the fact that I received a severe shock in a railway accident. After the accident I tried to play in six concerts, but it was too much. I ought not to have done it; and finally broke down. You may say I snapped no muscles, as some papers stated. It was my nerves all along that were affected. The nervous affection caused the muscles at the back of my neck to rise in knots, and to give me intense pain.

"I am much better now, however, and am going for two months' rest to my villa on the Lake Geneva."

"Stand right there, Miss Lady," said he, with all his old imperiousness. "Stand in that place where I done made it clean and easy for you, like I want to make the whole world clean and easy for you always. I'd like to smooth it that-away for you, always. Now, look at me, Miss Lady. I ain't a coward, at least I never was till now, and maybe not now; for I came here as soon as I knew how this thing was, though God knows I wanted to get on my horse and ride the other way as fast as I could. I came here because I wouldn't have been a man if I hadn't come, if I hadn't said this to the first woman I ever thought twice about."

"Don't, don't, please! please!" cried Miss Lady, pushing out her hands, but he commanded her again, sternly.

"Stop," said he. "There's one time when a man has a right to say his say, and say it all. I've got to tell you this. I've got to offer myself to you in marriage, Miss Lady. I've got to ask that of you; and, God pity me, I've got to give myself my own answer. Listen! Stop! It ain't for you to answer. It's for me.

"Now, look at me. I'm strong. I'm not afraid of any living thing, except you. I'm old, but there's younger men that's no better. I'm rich enough. I've got two thousand acres of the best land in the Delta, and that's the best on earth. There's money enough here to take you anywhere you want to go in all the world. I couldn't be mean to no woman. It's in my nature to feel that a woman is a thing to be took care of, for ever and for ever—that oughtn't to work, that oughtn't to worry, that ought to just be! I don't know much about women, but I always did feel that-away. You'd never have to worry about that. I wouldn't lie to you, not for any reason. No man should ever raise a breath against you. If"—he swept a hand over his face, but still went on.

"Listen," he said, "Miss Lady Ellison, I, Calvin Blount, old Calvin Blount, this sort of man like I told you, I offer myself to you, and all I have, for your own. I offer you that——" The girl's eyes looked up at him, swimming now all the more in tears. His face was distorted, but he went on. "Don't," said he, "please don't! Listen, here's the answer. By the Eternal, you can't and you shan't marry old Cal Blount! It wouldn't be right. It wouldn't be right, Miss Lady," said he again, presently. "It's right for me to tell you that I never thought twice of any other woman, that in my soul I love you, that I never shall know a happy day without you; but it's right, too, for me to give myself the answer, and I do. And it's No, Miss Lady, it's No!" He turned away. Miss Lady felt about her blindly and dropped her head on the rail of the chair, sobbing.

"I can't help it. I can't help things, Colonel Cal," said she, "but then, but then——"

"Yes, child; yes, Miss Lady," said Calvin Blount, gently, "but then, but then! I never did know much, but I'm learnin'. I'm man enough now to know all about what you mean when you say 'but then.' Come, it's all over. But I can't bear to see you cry. Please stop, Miss Lady. Don't do that."

Miss Lady could not stop. She buried her face in her hands. She half felt the touch of a hand, very light, upon her head; a touch given but once, and swiftly withdrawn. She heard him continue. "This home is yours," said he, "and you can stay here. I'll go out into the woods again. You need not fret and you need not fear. We couldn't, maybe, both stay here together now. Or, it may be there's a bigger world for you somewhere, and you want to go there. I won't stand in your way, and I'll help you all I can. I'm done talking about this, now and for ever. But if you don't stop crying I'll get on my horse right now and I'll ride out in the woods and I never will come back again."

Miss Lady put out her hand to him.

"Sir," said she, half-whispering, "I don't know that men were this way. It's different from what I thought. But you must remember," and she smiled wanly, "you must remember always only that it was you who refused yourself. Please think of it that way, Mr. Cal."

Old Hec ventured up the steps again and stood looking dumbly from one to the other of these two. At last he deserted his master and went over and laid his big head on Miss Lady's lap, looking up at her with questioning eyes.

CHAPTER XII.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

As Colonel Blount passed from the gallery into the house he came under the gaze of a close observer. Mrs. Ellison, for reasons of her own watchful and suspicious, had heard these agitated voices on the gallery, and, had it been possible without detection, would not have been in the least above eavesdropping. This being impossible, she was forced to draw her own conclusions, based in part upon her own suspicions. The droop of this man's shoulders, the drawn look of his face, spoke plainly enough for her. Hardly had the sound of his footsteps died away before she was out of the door of her room and by the side of Miss Lady, who still sat, pensive and downcast, in her rocking chair on the gallery.

Miss Lady was not prepared for the spectacle which thus met her gaze, this woman with clenched hands and distorted face, and attitude which spoke only of antagonism and threat. There came a swift catch at her heart, for this was the woman to whom of natural right she should now have fled in search of consolation. It seemed to her now as though all her world had known a sudden change. It was as when some tender creature, fresh risen from the earth, ventures into the strange, new world of the air, to flutter its brief day. Eternity seems to stretch before it, an eternity of joy hinted in the first glance at this new universe which it attains. Yet comes the sun, the sudden, blighting sun, the same influence which has broken the brooding envelope of another world and brought this gentle being into its new life, and this cruel sun withers at once the tender creature in all its hope and youthfulness and beauty, ending its bright day ere it as yet is noon. Thus seemed the universe to Miss Lady, no longer young, carefree, joyous, but now suddenly grown old. One look, one sudden flash of her inner comprehension, and she knew not, yet this was sure, she was not her mother, but her enemy. How dubiously swam all the world about poor Miss Lady at that instant! She knew, even before the enraged woman at her side had formulated her emotion into speech.

"So now, you treacherous little cat," said Mrs. Ellison, between her shut teeth, "you've been at work, have you? Oh, I might have know it all along. You've been trying to undermine me, have you? Why, do you think I'll let a little minx, a little half-baked brat like you, keep me out of getting the man I want? I'll show you, Miss Lady girl!"

"Stop! Wait! What are you saying?" cried Miss Lady.

STOCKS AND MONEY.

After Rally Prices Fall Again; Transfer Tax Now a Certainty

The local market showed little life to-day but considering the unsettled feeling on the Wall Street market held very firm indeed.

The weaker feeling in Canadian Pacific and Dominion Iron were the principal features. On Saturday the lowest point touched by C.P.R. either here or on Wall Street, was 144 3-4, and during the first hour to-day the stock sold 145 on a small fraction above these prices.

On toward noon, however, the Wall Street market became much softer and the ticker showed C.P.R. selling at 144. Even at that price there were not any bids for the stock here and a little later it sold 143 3-4, equal to the lowest in New York. The decline is entirely due to the conditions of the market as the earnings of the company are showing up particularly well.

The selling of Dominion Iron seemed to be for the account of a few small holders who were evidently afraid the market was going lower. Most of the sales were at 20, and at that price there seemed to be quite a number of willing buyers. Power held steady at 90, while Twins sold 110 1-2. Detroit, 88 1-4, and Toledo, 33 1-2. A small lot of Bank of Montreal, sold 254 ex-dividend.

Considerable interest was centered in the announcement that the new transfer tax introduced by the Provincial Government would be 2 cents per $100 instead of 5 cents per $100. The reduction was due to the protests made to the Provincial Premier and Treasurer on Saturday, by a delegation headed by Mr. A. A. Wilson, chairman of the Montreal Stock Exchange and Mr. C. Knight, secretary of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

The local exchange, as a body, has not taken any action regarding the tax, a leading official stating to The Herald to-day, that they desired to wait to see what effect the tax would have before dealing with it. The members with a few exceptions, are opposed to even the reduced tax, the contention being that it will drive quite a large amount of business away from here to Toronto.

While, according to the new law the tax is to be paid by the vendor, some firms stated to The Herald to-day that as long as the present commission of quarter of one per cent. remained, they would not charge their customers for the new tax. Just hoy many firms will be willing to do this it is impossible to say just yet but the feeling is that if a few are willing to do it the others will be forced to fall into line.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Mr. Henry Clews, the New York Banker, says of conditions in the money market:

Easy conditions exist in the money market and promise to continue until crop demands assert themselves in the autumn. Foreign exchange has been strong and in good demand, and there is still some talk of gold exports at no distant date, towards the end of the month some heavy remittances will have to be made on account of the Japanese loan placed in this country, and whether this will be provided for by previous purchases of exchange or by gold shipments remains to be seen.

Wall Street Market

After absorbing the profit-taking sales invited by the opening rise, the market again moved aggressively upward. St. Paul had, however, been lowered to Saturday's closing level and some of the metal and car equipment stock sold below. The rebound was quite pronounced in a number of favorites, including Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Reading and St. Paul, all of which sold a point or more above last week's closing. Some of the junior Vanderbilt stocks were notably weak. The demand at the higher level dropped to nothing and prices slipped back. Union Pacific and St. Paul reacted 1. U. S. Steel pfd., sold 92 7-8 to 93; com., 25 7-8 to 26 1-4; Union Pacific, 117 1-2; St. Paul, 171 5-8 to 172. Amalgamated Copper, 78 1-8 to 78 7-8; C.P.R., 143 3-4 to 144 1-2, Twins, 110 1-8.

WALL STREET GOSSIP.

J. S. Bache & Co., noon—London and covering by shorts made the market to-day. London is bullish on steels, St. Paul Harrimans, B. & O., and Nfk. and bought about 60,000 shares up to 11.30 outside business was small, shorts covered on heavy buying from London and the continued ease in money. There was some liquidation by reason of margin calls, but not of very large amount. The market looks as if it were on the bottom on this move. There was fair buying in Amal., probably as an answer to Lawson's add.

Sales in Wall Street to noon were 616,300 shares.

Mr. Evans of E. & C. Randolph.—The market has declined now steadily for five days, and the drop has been very severe. It would be most unusual if a rally of some importance did not set in to-day. A strong bearish party has been at work, and as it has been very successful, has become extremely confident. The professional short interest is large, and a good deal of it would probably run to cover on the first signs of a real rally.

Charles Head & Co.—There was good support in all the leading issues and it is said there are large buying orders in the market on a scale down but the traders are inclined to sell on the rally and there is no outside demand. It is expected that the bear crowd will make another attack later in the day but at present there is no liquidation of consequence and it is believed the market will settle down to a dull traders affair.

Result of Proposed Tax on Stock Transfers

The Chronicle says of the proposed tax on stock transfers:—The proposal to impose a stamp duty upon transfers of stock sold in this province is a form of taxation which is most impolitic, as well as unjust. Shares are frequently passed from owner to owner backwards and forwards several times in a short time, when the market is brisk. To tax each of such transactions is manifestly most unfair, as the same shares are liable to be taxed repeatedly, and in the course of one year the same stock might be taxed a score times. Such a tax amounts to confiscation of capital and is a direct obstruction to the movement and the investment of capital, the free flow of which is essential to the development of enterprises in which capital is to be, or has been invested. For a country like Canada, where capital investments need every protection and encouragement, it is a singularly injudicious step to revive obsolete stamp duties for the purpose of taxing the transactions of a legitimate business. It would be just as reasonable to compel every trade bill and invoice to be stamped as to impose such a tax on stock transfers.

Lawson's Latest Story

Lawson's story in the June number of Everybody's Magazine deals with the advertising of the Amalgamated subscription. Lawson gives an account of a long alleged interview which he had with H. H. Rogers in regard to his advertising, and follows this up with a charge of fraud perpetrated in the allotments. He alleges that each subscriber was deprived of his proper proportion of the stock by the introduction of a bogus subscription. He says the actual subscriptions were but $132,067,500.

In his interview with Rogers, Lawson declares that the bone of contention was that who should take the liability for the statements to be made in the advertisements. Rogers wanted Lawson to assume the responsibility for the statements, which should name "the good things" offered to the public. Lawson insisted that the City Bank and Rockefeller and Rogers should share the responsibility with him.

He quotes Rogers as saying: "If the public suspected that this stock was ours, and that we were not going to subscribe on the same basis as themselves, they would demand to know what we paid for it, and if we did not tell it would be figured out as a clear case of false representation."

In the end Lawson declares that he won his point, but not until he had told Mr. Rogers that he would become a pauper before doing what Rogers wanted him to do.

Extension of Ogilvie Co. Confirmed by Mr. Hosmer

Mr. Chas. R. Hosmer, president of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., has returned to the city after spending the winter in Egypt. On his way back, Mr. Hosmer spent some weeks in London.

Describing financial conditions in the British Isles, Mr. Hosmer said ... the money market was about as it is on this side of the Atlantic. Great Britain, he added, appears to be prosperous, yet Mr. Hosmer, who is a Protectionist, told them that their prosperity was due to the fact that strongly protected and prosperous countries like Canada and the United States are in a position to buy largely from the Old Country and thus enhance her prosperity.

Mr. Hosmer returns as he went as an admirer of Mr. Chamberlain, because he finds the ex-Colonial Secretary the one man in sight who is looking round for means to unite and consolidate the 400,000,000 people of the British Empire.

"When I go to New York," said Mr. Hosmer, "I want to be in a position to tell my American friends who invite Canada to throw in her lot with the eighty millions to the South that I belong to an empire with four hundred millions and have no time to consider so small an offer as theirs."

As president of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Mr. Hosmer was asked if there had been progress made as regards the company's plans for the future as outlined by Mr. F. W. Thompson, the vice-president and managing director a few weeks ago.

"Our plans," he replied, "are being matured for there can be no questioning the fact that the public mind of Great Britain now considers Western Canada as the granary of the world, and I may add that the Ogilvie Milling Corporation will grow in proportion to the great possibilities of the country."

The Mining Merger

Messrs. G. S. Waterloo, director of Le Roi mine; Jas. Cronin, representing the War Eagle and Centre Star, and W. H. Aldridge, manager of the C.P.R. smelter at Trail, B.C., have been in the city for a few days past making arrangements which, it is expected, will lead up to the amalgamation of the different properties.

Mr. Hosmer, one of the larger interests, having reached home, it is understood that the discussion which took place in Winnipeg will be continued both here and in Toronto. After all the minor points of interest are arranged, two or three months will elapse before the merger is an accomplished fact. All the companies will hold ratification meetings, to be followed by the incorporation of the consolidated interests and the flotation of the same.

The new company, it is said, will have a capital of something like $7,800,000, of which from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 will be cash for development purposes. The aggregate value of the interests involved approaches the sum of $13,500,000, or about double the figure at which they are being consolidated.

The probable list of the properties included in the merger, with their respective values, is as follows:—Le Roi mine and Northport smelter, $5,000,000; Centre Star mine, $3,500,000; War Eagle and associate mines, $2,000,000; the Trail smelter, $1,250,000; East Kootenay Coal lands, $1,000,000; Rossland Power Co., $300,000; Snowshoe mine, $500,000. Total, $13,500,000.

Three of the properties have produced in the aggregate $25,000,000 in the first thousand feet of development.

MARKET REPORTS.

The Canadian "Best Devon" and the English Consumer

The Yankee is generally credited with being the originator of most of the sharp business tricks that are going, but it is probable that some of the English butter dealers could give him a few pointers in that line. Many of those who belong to the wealthy classes in England do not like salted butter and will eat nothing else but the unsalted kind made in their own country. They buy it in neat rolls marked "Best Devon," eat it and enjoy it, thinking that it is the product of the Devonshire dairy. But in many cases they are sadly mistaken, and thereby hangs a tale which was unfolded to a Herald reporter this Morning by Mr. Alfred J. Brice, the well-known butter and cheese exporter of St. Paul Street, who has just returned to the city after a two months' visit to the Old Country.

"A good deal of unsalted butter is sent over every year by Canadian exporters to the English produce dealers," said Mr. Brice. "A large quantity of this goes to dealers in Devon and other dairying districts where it is mixed with English dairy butter and put on the market as "English" butter. It is made up into neat rolls and labelled 'Devonshire butter,' and the English consumers appear to be quite satisfied with it."

Business generally appears to be very prosperous in England, Mr. Brice says. The cotton mills, which were very slack last year, have orders booked away ahead and are likely to be exceptionally busy this year. New buildings are going up in every part of London and other large cities and there is no doubt that there will be a very active demand for lumber. The Canadian lumber dealers will, in Mr. Brice's opinion, come in for a good share of this business. The reputation of Canadian bacon has been greatly enhanced of late years, and there is a great demand for our goods which bring a considerably higher price than the American bacon.

With regard to the Canadian produce trade, Mr. Brice said: "Canadian dairymen have improved greatly on the quality of their butter of late years, and this, combined with the improved facilities, for handling the goods, which have lately been established, has given Canadian dairy produce a much better reputation on the English market than it had some years ago. Then, too, a national sentiment in favor of Canadian goods is growing up in England. Retail dealers told me that people now go into their stores and specify that they want Canadian butter or Canadian cheese when making a purchase."

Mr. Brice was unfortunate in having most unfavorable weather during his visit. The return voyage, too, was a rather unpleasant one. He spent a short time in New York on his way home. During the morning a number of local butter and cheese men dropped into Mr. Brice's office to welcome him back and have a chat about the condition of the English market.

Grain, Flour, Hay

Grain.—So far as business has developed for Manitoba spring wheat, the over cable bids being generally out of line.

Flour.—A fair volume of business continues to be done in flour on local and country account, but there is no actual change in the condition of the market to note. Manitoba spring wheat patents, $5.40 to $5.50; strong bakers', $5.10 to $5.20; winter wheat patents, $5.50 to $5.60; graigh rollers, $5.15 to $5.25, and in bags, $2.45 to $2.55.

Millfeed.—Business in millfeed was quiet and the market was without any new feature to note. We quote: Manitoba bran, in bags, $18; shorts, $20 per ton; Ontario winter wheat bran, in bulk, $18 to $18.50; shorts, $19.50 to $20.50; moullie, $24 to $28 per ton, as to quality.

Oats.—The demand for rolled oats was slow and prices were unchanged at $2.15 to $2.17½ per bag. Cornmeal was also quiet at $1.35 to $1.45 per bag.

Hay.—There was no change in baled hay, for which the local demand continues fair. No. $1, $8 to $9.50; No. 2, $8 to $8.50; clover, mixed, $7 to $7.50; and pure clover, $6.50 to $6.75 per ton, in car lots.

The Provision Market

There was no actual change in the condition of the market, prices for all lines being steady under a fair demand. Abattoir fresh-killed hogs were unchanged at $9.75 to $10 per 100 lb.

Prices:—Heavy Canada short cut mess pork, in tierces, $21.50 to $22.50; heavy Canada short cut mess, $21 to $22. Canada short cut back pork, $19 to $20; heavy Canada long cut mess pork, none; heavy Canada short cut clear pork, $19 to $20; heavy flank pork, $19 to $20; light Canada short cut clear pork, none.

Country Produce

Beans.—The demand for beans is limited and the market is quiet, with prices unchanged at $1.60 to $1.65 per bushel for choice primes.

Honey.—Business in honey remains dull. Extracted white clover honey, 7c to 7½c per 10-lb. tin, and 6½c to 7c in 60-lb. tins; buckwheat honey, 6c to 6½c, and white clover comb, 13c to 13½c.

Maple Product.—The demand for maple product was limited, but prices rule steady. Syrup, in 60-gal. kegs, 6c to 6½c per lb.; in tins, 65c to 70c per wine measure, and 75c to 80c for imperial, and Beauce sugar, 8½c to 9c per lb.

Hops.—There was no change in hops, for which the demand is slow. Prices:—Choice Canadians, 28c to 29c, and fair to good at 24c to 26c per lb.

Ashes.—The market for potash remains steady, but the volume of business passing is small. We quote as follows: First sorts, $5.45 to $5.50; seconds, $4.95 to $5, and first pearls, $7 per 100 lb.

No Damage

St. Catharines, Ont., May 22.—(Special.)—High wind, which prevailed Saturday night, kept off the frost. No frost of any consequence is reported this morning. Had there been the effect would have been disastrous, as the peach, cherry and most of the fruit trees are now in full blossom.

Cheese, Butter and Eggs

A firmer feeling is reported in the butter market this morning as a result of improvement in the quality of the goods and a more active speculative demand. The cows are now being put out to pasture and there will doubtless be a considerable quantity of grass butter received this week. The receipts last week were 9,616 packages, against 7,139 for the previous week and 7,644 for the corresponding week last year. The exports were 1,126 packages, against 648 packages for the same week last year. Prices have recovered somewhat and local dealers are now asking 18¼c to 18¾c. This is about 3¼c higher than prices ruling at this time last year.

The cheese market is quiet. The demand from the English market is rather slow, as buyers are holding out for lower prices. Local quotations are unchanged.

Although the receipts of eggs are larger for this time of year and appear to be increasing the market is still very firm. The receipts last week were 8,581 cases, against 7,283 cases for the previous week and 6,808 cases for the same week last year. The quality of the eggs coming in is very fine, owing to the cool weather and this is causing and active demand. Local dealers are of the opinion that prices will decline before very long, however, as most of the packers in the West have their vats filled and are now offering eggs for shipment. Prices rule steady at 15c to 15½c for straight receipts and 14c to 14½c for No. 2.

Wheat Markets

As a result of a bull movement and reports of continued rain in Kansas, May options opened at 99, one point higher than Saturday's closing, at the Chicago market this morning. During the morning they rose to 101½ and near closing 101 was bid. July options opened at 88⅛ and later were quoted at 88½. September options were quoted at 81⅝.

At the Winnipeg market May options opened at 92 and later 91½ was bid. July options opened at 93 and later sold at 93¾.

Wheat Inspections

Winnipeg, May 22.—The wheat inspections here to-day were as follows: No. 1 northern, 14 cars; No. 2 northern, 12 cars; No. 3 northern, 10 cars. Other grades 14 cars. Total, 50 cars; same date last year, 42 cars.

Cattle Market

Business was very dull at the East End cattle market this morning. But few buyers were present, and the demand did not appear to be very active. About 700 head of cattle were offered and sales were made at 5¼c per lb; 200 hogs were offered, sales being made at $6.75 for roughs, and $7 for selects; 100 sheep sold at $3.25 to $4.

English Metal Market

Mr. R. Sullivan David, representing Bolton, Fane & Co., London, Eng., has received cable advices reporting the state of the market as being very steady, and the only change of late is in Ingot (lamb and flag), which has dropped 10s per ton, and is now quoted at £136.

A POINT FOR MR. ROCHE.

Halifax, N.S., May 22.—(Special.)—Chief Justice Weatherbee has filed judgment in the election petition case of Hetherington vs. Roche. The petitioner, who is the secretary of the Halifax County Conservative Club, had entered a protest against the return of Mr. Wm. Roche, member for Halifax. Counsel for the respondent put in the preliminary objection, among others, that the petitioner was not qualified to file a petition, as he had no right to vote at the election, being disqualified by corrupt practices. His Lordship held that evidence of corrupt acts at the election by the petitioner such as would disqualify him from voting may be given on the hearing of preliminary objections.

Knit-to-fit
REGISTERED & PATENTED
COMBINATIONS

During the oppressive heat of midsummer a man can, by wearing this garment, cast off his vest and do away altogether with the wearing of suspenders. A belt will be sufficient to support his trousers and, as the undergarment is a one-piece suit, no braces are necessary to keep it in place, neither will the drawers ever show above the trousers.

This is a point worth while considering when buying underwear.
