Fine Weather Draws Large Attendance at Havelock Fair

Larger Number of Exhibits and Increased Gate Makes For Success

Fair days this fall seem to be the best days for the weather and on Wednesday, the day of Havelock Fair, the weather was real warm and bright. It was an ideal day for such an event, especially where so much is shown in the open. Not only was the weather ideal, but there was a much larger number of exhibits and a greater attendance than for some years.

Early in the morning a large number of cars were parked around the main show ring and as the day wore on the number was increased and the patrons were swelled to show an increased gate. Judging in all departments started early, but even at that it was late in the afternoon before all judging was completed. A ball game entertained the crowd before the noon hour and this was followed by a rush on the dining hall to partake of the very fine dinner served by the ladies of Zion United Church. Probably due to the increased attendance, the dinner was patronized to a greater extent and most everyone seemed to be going into the hall.

Usually this fair boasts of a number of sideshows of various kinds and these shows keep drifting in throughout the entire day, but this year they were absent except for one showing some kind of freak. There were several industrial exhibits however, and these attracted quite a deal of attention. The whole fair was well organized and markers were placed at various points to signify where trucks and cars should park, thus keeping these vehicles in orderly lines.

Exhibits of cattle and horses, poultry and cooking were greatly increased. The judging of the various classes in horses presented a miniature horse show and some very fine specimens were to be seen. The cattle judging rings were kept busy all the time and the list of winners which will be published in the next issue, will show the large number of exhibitors in the various classes. Sheep and Swine classes were down, although there were some very good specimens in the lots shown.

Cooking exhibits were far more numerous than for some years and some appetizing samples were on display. Plants and vegetables were down, as were flowers. Fancy work and sewing was about on a par with other years. Preserves and syrups were about the same in numbers of exhibits. The apple display was a little disappointing when it is considered that this is the heart of the apple growing country, but what was on view was of good quality and variety.

The industrial exhibits showed dusting machines for spraying trees, milking machines and coolers and the new type of chain saw. These drew quite a number of the people and demonstrations were proceeding most of the afternoon. Mr. Donald Black, M.P., was prominent in the horse judging ring with his fine team of driving horses as well as in meeting the people. Mr. J. G. Rennie, M.L.A., was also prominent around the grounds and could be seen conversing with various groups as well as taking an interest in the exhibits. Mr. Hadley, the secretary, was a busy man all forenoon taking in the last minute entries which helped to swell the exhibits, and he had been busy for some weeks previous arranging the various details for the fair.

Among the cars parked on the grounds were a large number bearing United States license plates signifying that the fair was being patronized by a goodly number of visitors from outside points.

The soft drink and ice cream booth was one of the busiest places on the grounds, the weather being warm called for such refreshment. The church booths were patronized to a great extent and according to reports gathered in a fair sum of money as a return for the goods sold.

The fair board of the Havelock Fair can feel satisfied that they had a most successful fair in all ways, and it is certain that all who attended enjoyed it and its friendly atmosphere.

CHANGE TIME ONE HOUR SATURDAY

Summer has drawn to a close and the time that we have enjoyed in extra daylight saving during the summer evenings, is now about to be called to a halt for this season. On Saturday, at midnight, the clocks of town must be put back one hour so that on Sunday, and from then on, time will be reverted to Eastern Standard Time instead of Eastern Daylight Saving Time. If you can sleep the extra time, you have one more hour in bed on Sunday morning to make up for the one you lost earlier in the year when the time was advanced. But don't forget to change your timepiece, or you will be arriving at church one hour earlier than you need to. However, you will notice it will be lighter when you get up in the mornings, and almost dark when you return from your work in the evenings.

Pioneer of Gold Rush Days Dies

Had Colorful Career During Klondike Gold Rush

James McArdle, native of Ormstown, who was a pioneer in the Klondike Gold Rush and later in the development of Grand Forks, B.C., died in the Huntingdon County Hospital, on Wednesday, September 17th, after a long illness. He was 80 years old. For many years he had lived in the Huntingdon district with his nephew, John Darragh. "Jim", as he was known by all, had a host of old friends in this area.

Mr. McArdle went to Ireland in 1895 but returned the same year and worked on his farm here until 1896. Moving to San Francisco, he worked for the street railway there for two years, then joined one of the first groups of prospectors on the Klondike Gold Rush early in 1898.

He earned his way to Dawson City by packing outfits over the Chilkoot Pass; sledding equipment to Lake Lindermann at the headwaters of the Yukon River; and building boats and rafts for the 200-mile trip to Dawson. After a year in the midst of the Dawson Rush, during which time he established claims on Bonanza Creek and Sulphur Creek, he returned to Ormstown on the news of the death there of his brother John. Before leaving the Klondike, he sold out several promising claims.

In the Spring of 1900, on the suggestion of W. J. Morrison and Jim Anderson, of Huntingdon, he went West to what was then the stage coach frontier town of Grand Forks. Before leaving Ormstown, however, he formed a company for the development of a copper and gold mining property near Phoenix, B. C. Later this property developed into a profitable mine.

In 1903, at Spokane, Washington, he married Alice G. Anderson, of Anderson's Corners, neice of Jim Anderson. She died in 1905, leaving one son, Kenneth.

Over the next 20 years he was interested in mining and real estate, acted as Alderman for several terms of office and saw the frontier community grow into a thriving fruit centre.

He returned to Eastern Canada in 1918 and since that time has lived in Huntingdon with a nephew, John Darragh, and in Montreal with his only son, Kenneth J. McArdle, who is president of the firm of Public and Industrial Relations Limited.

The funeral was held at the Roman Catholic Church, at Ormstown, on Saturday, Sept. 20th at 9.30. Burial service followed immediately at the Ormstown cemetery.

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Twenty-five sparrows met an untimely end here despite Works Superintendent Jack Shepherd's efforts to save their lives. The birds mistook a pool of tarry oil on a Nanaimo street for a water puddle and came down for a bath. None survived.

Burnside Ayrshire Winners Eastern States Exposition

Junior, Reserve Champion Male Won by Animal Bred by P. D. McArthur & Son

Ayrshires bred and owned by Canadians, as also Ayrshires bred in Canada and sold to United States Ayrshire breeders figured largely at the first post-war event of Eastern States Exposition, which event was held from September 14 to 20, at Springfield, Mass., U.S.A. The first such since 1941.

In past years this Exposition has always figured as the "Round-up" of Eastern States Ayrshires to meet Canadian and Western U.S.A. winners at the National Dairy Show, now defunct, with the emphasis on the Eastern and Canadian exhibits. It may therefore well be said that since in past years Eastern States and Canadian Ayrshires and figured largely in the top-winning lists at the National, this year's Eastern States Exposition was the logical successor to the former National Dairy Show.

Highlights of the Eastern States Exposition Ayrshire exhibit included the winning of the senior and grand male championships by Hugh J. Chisholm, Strathglass Farms, Port Chester, N.Y. (an Honorary Life Member of Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association) on Strathglass Predominant. The junior and reserve champion male was Cherry Bank Royal Master Fan, bred by P. D. MacArthur & Son, Howick, Que., and shown by Maiden Hill Farm, Ward Hill, Mass., U.S.A.

The second prize aged bull was Springlea Twinkle, bred by C. J. Miller, Lachute, Que., and shown by Wm. A. Gibson, Alta Crest Village Farms, Spencer, Mass.

The Burnside Farms' herd of R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que., won 8 firsts, 5 seconds, 3 thirds and several other prizes in the individual classes.

As a start-off in the female classes, Miss Bernice Ness (daughter of D. A. Ness of R. R. Ness & Sons) led Burnside Future Blossom, her Howick-Huntingdon Calf Club winner as also junior champion at the 1947 Ormstown Show, to first place in the class of 17 heifer calves and then to the junior female championship. Burnside Top Marietta 2nd was first prize senior yearling heifer for R. R. Ness & Sons.

Carnell Tulip 12th, Imp., led the class of 16 cows, 3 to 5 years of age, for R. R. Ness & Sons, and then won the senior and grand female championship for R. R. Ness & Sons. She also won first in the "Best Udder" class.

In the class of 23 cows, 5 years or over, the first six animals were bred in Canada, the first prize winner being Sunny Dale Joyce, bred by John McLennan, Martintown, Ont., and shown by Wm. A. Gibson, Alta Crest Village Farms, Spencer, Mass. Next in line were Burnside Future Fashion; Burnside Lucky Mary 2nd, shown by R. R. Ness & Sons; Glengarry Lady Wonder, bred by Cumming Bros. Lancester, Ont., and shown by Maiden Hill Farm; Connell Coronation Ruth bred by W. C. Connell, Spencerville, Ont., and shown by Wm. A. Gibson; Burnside Marguerite, shown by R. R. Ness & Sons.

As regards the groups Wm. A. Gibson won first on dairy herd (mostly with Canadian-bred animals) and R. R. Ness & Sons scored second. Best 3 animals, bred and owned by exhibitor—R. R. Ness & Sons; Senior get-of-sire, R. R. Ness & Sons on get of Burnside Future Hope. Junior get-of-sire, R. R. Ness & Sons, on get of Burnside Future Hope; Produce of dam, R. R. Ness & Sons on get of Drumfork Mary 4th; Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor Awards, R. R. Ness & Sons

Saturday's Windstorm Causes Damage At Franklin

During the high wind storm on Sunday night a tree was blown down on the electric line. This extra weight thrown on the electric pole at the corner of Mr. Stewart Moneypenny's store, caused it to break in two places; one piece fell on the roof, in such a position it did not fortunately, set fire to the roof. Broken wires were everywhere like a display of fireworks. Mr. S. Moneypenny was reading in his home at the time and heard the crash and noticed the extra voltage in the electric light bulb. He rushed out and when he saw what had happened, tried to telephone the Company but the telephone wires were down also. Mr. Milton Sharpe then went to the Flats and telephoned the Company from there. The power was turned off immediately and later an electrician arrived to take charge. Mr. Moneypenny tried his best to keep back the traffic from that road, as live wires were everywhere. Only a kind providence prevented the heavy shower, which fell shortly afterwards, from falling before the power was turned off, as in that case, most of Franklin would have been wiped out by fire.

Huntingdon Jerseys And Holsteins at Quebec Fair

There were two herds from this district at Quebec Fair, 20 Holsteins shown by Mr. D. M. Foster, of the Gore, and 15 Jerseys shown by Mr. D. M. Rowat, of Dewittville. This year the Jerseys outnumbered all other breeds.

Mr. Foster received first prize on a yearling bull in a class of six. This bull is a son of Montvic Ajax and is junior herd sire on the Foster farm. He also received fourth prize in the aged bull class on Luxiana Keys Dekel Rag Apple, third prize on a dry cow, fifth on another, and also a dozen or more lesser prizes.

Glenness Farms took second prize on Edgelea Basil Sport, as senior yearling, fourth on Tribune's Hilda in a class of twenty-five senior heifers, sixth on Glenness Easter Lily, as a dry cow, and five other lesser prizes.

The Foster herd was in charge of Gordon Foster and Wylie McArthur. The Rowat herd was in charge of Joseph Harrison and Murray McEwen.

Mr. Gilbert McMillan Gives Impressions of Visit to Scotland and England

First Article Deals With Trip to Scotland by Air and Arrival There

Mr. Gilbert McMillan has returned from a visit to Scotland and believing that he has a story of interest to tell the people of Chateauguay Valley, we prevailed upon him to give his impressions in a short series of articles in The Gleaner. The first appears below and others will follow each week thereafter until the subject has been completed.

We presume that in giving an account of a trip overseas, it is proper to make some comment on method of travel. This trip was made by air, and in good weather was not one bit more eventful, and except for the roar of the motors, less disagreeable than a trip of three or four hundred miles by train.

The most deceiving feature of an air trip is the speed at which you are moving, watching the wings and the earth below you feel you are moving very slowly, but we were advised that the average speed was about 290 miles per hour and the elevation about 9,000 feet.

The route from Dorval is south of the St. Lawrence, crossing the border about Megantic, flying over Maine and New Brunswick and seeing the coast somewhere on the Bay of Fundy. Looking down, there still appear to be plenty of woods in northern Maine and New Brunswick. Crossing P.E.I. under an afternoon sun is a sight not to be forgotten. With grain harvesting in operation it has all the appearance of a checker board and next to no waste land. The trip across Newfoundland presents the opposite extreme and a more God-forsaken landscape would be hard to imagine. A few scattered houses on inlets up the coast were the only sight of human habitation. Dropping into Gander about dusk one sees one of the largest strips of asphalt I believe, in existence, and we were told a whole squadron of bombers could be landed in very short order. There are considerable buildings and a large dining hall at which a very satisfactory meal is served free. This is now really one of the crossroads of the world. This is really your second meal as on a B.O.A.C. plane, the English custom of tea at 4 p.m. is observed.

I forgot to mention, that on taking off, you are given some instructions as to where to find a container if air travel disagrees with your stomach, fastening your safety belt, shown where your life belt is placed and how to put it on, and then shown the safety exit doors. Perhaps some of the passengers by then are looking rather white as the stewardess quickly remarked "Of course, we have never needed to use them yet". I was very much impressed with the high standard of the personnel employed on the planes, their unfailing courtesy and quiet confidence inspired the same confidence among the passengers. Nearly all carry some insignia denoting war service.

The first dawn of day is very clearly discernable from the plane's altitude, and this was an experience on approaching the British Isles, a clear sky gave a good view of the Firth of Clyde as we approached the Ayrshire coast, circling over the town of Ayr to reach the landing field at Prestwick. All passengers disembark here and clear immigration and customs and have breakfast while the plane is refuelled, allowing them to leave the plane at London without any delay. With the small number of passengers compared to a liner, the customs officers make a leisurely and complete job.

Breakfast at the airport is the first introduction to Britain's austerity programme, and one would gladly dispense with waiters wearing tail coats and stiff shirts for a little more to eat, for four shillings (one dollar). For the balance of my stay in Scotland the most of my meals were taken on farm homes to which the austerity programme does not extend in its full intensity. Later on, staying in a city home in England, I had a clearer picture of it. Scotland was enjoying one of the longest dry spells in recent years and for over three weeks neither raincoat or rubbers were necessary. Following a wet spring and early summer, this was much appreciated by farmers and harvesting was in full swing of what appeared as excellent grain crops.

As with us, tractors have largely supplanted horses and I only saw one team pulling a binder. The ravages of war have left very few scars on the rural sections, and except for training camps which now house prisoners of war and "D.P's", there was nothing much visible to remind one of 1939-1945.

No doubt there are many scars in the hearts that do not show, but the healing effect of time is at work and I found no resentment towards German prisoners, as a matter of fact they are more highly regarded than any other Europeans. They are excellent workers and give next to no trouble; they are all supposed to be repatriated by the end of 1948 and many are wondering what they will do for labour when they are gone.

No doubt these groups have been fairly closely screened, and those with genuine Nazi leanings removed, this would indicate, however, that all Germans were not Nazis at heart.

Twenty years does not change the general appearance of an old established country, the mountains, hills and glens remain the same, and time has little effect on houses and farms built mainly of stone and brick. It is a beautiful land, and there is an air of prosperity and contentment in rural sections that belie the real turmoil and unrest fermenting under the surface of the national economy. The biggest change in rural sections is the advent of the motor bus; fleets of them cover the country and no hamlet no matter how small can feel itself isolated. Roads from our standards are winding and narrow but with excellent surfaces everywhere, and motor accidents are very much rarer than they are with us.

Polio Campaign in Full Swing To Raise $1,300 Objective

Parade, Concert Held Monday Evening—House to House Canvass This Week

Members of the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Legion have had a very busy week the past week and there is still plenty to be done in the coming weeks. The reason for all the activity is the Legion Polio Campaign. On Sunday, several girls gave their time to collect for the Drive from persons passing through the customs at Trout River, and succeeded in collecting the sum of $28.47. They will do this work again on Saturday and Sunday afternoons of this week.

On Sunday evening, President Neish, and Chairman Lyons of Montreal, visited Huntingdon and appeared on the stage of the O'Connor Theatre to make an appeal to the audience in behalf of the present drive. They were permitted through the kindness of Mrs. D. J. O'Connor to stop the show between reels and make their appeal. Mr. J. Boisseau, a member of the Huntingdon branch introduced the speakers both in English and French. The speakers outlined the aims and objects of the campaign to help fight Polio and appealed to all to give generously. It was pointed out that not one cent of the money collected went to the Legion and all money collected was for the common good of all humanity. The members of the Legion are giving their time and energy toward making the collections and no remuneration of any kind is taken for this service. The money is placed entirely at the disposal of finding ways and means to combat this dread disease and all will benefit thereby. It was therefore urged that everyone should support it to the utmost.

On Monday night the Huntingdon Branch sponsored a parade of floats and the Boys Band, in an effort to bring more forcibly to the attention of the public the purpose of the present polio campaign. One of the floats depicted polio with its head on the block and the axeman about to behead him. The other float showed polio on the hangman's scaffold just after being hung. Each carried suitable inscriptions. This part of the evening's program was marred by rain. The parade ended at the Huntingdon High School where a concert was held. Dr. George Lefebvre, a member of the Huntingdon Branch, addressed the gathering on the efforts that were being made to fight polio and some of the consequences of the disease. The following took part in the programme.

O Canada, Boys' Band; Love the Peddler, Mrs. Wood; Si Vous L'avez Compris, Miss Barette; My Mother's Eyes, Mr. Walsh; A March, Boys' Band; Friend of Mine, Mrs. Ross; Accordian Selection, Miss Telfer; Song of Songs, Miss Barette; A March, Boys' Band; Film on POLIO; God Save the King, Boys' Band.

This week the members of the Legion are making a house to house canvas to try to reach an objective of $1,300 for this year. Last year $1,000 was raised for the fund and from returns coming in it is indicated that objectives are raised by 30%, thus it is felt that Huntingdon County should reach the $1,300 minimum objective.

The members are very enthusiastic about the drive and feel that they are contributing much to the ultimate benefit of all people and that therefore they should receive the wholehearted support of everyone. Amounts raised to date are as follows: Dutch Club, $50.00; Ladies Dutch Club, $10.00; Ladies Auxiliary, $50.00; Receipts from concert, $13.06; Receipts from Customs canvas, $28.47; Receipts from O'Connor Theatre, $25.47; Total $127.00.

It is hoped that a full turnout of members will be on hand for this event in order to help out the Valleyfield branch.

She joined the school staff this year and is also serving as Captain of the Girl Guide Company.

Mrs. M. C. Walsh, who has served for many years as French Specialist has been granted leave of absence because of illness and it is hoped that she may return to her duties later in the session. Mr. Alphonse A. Ariano, B.A., a graduate of McGill University and holder of the French Specialist certificate, has been appointed to the staff as acting head of the French Department. Mr. Ariano is a past student of the United Theological College, Montreal, and has taught previously in Pointe aux Trembles and in Lachute High School.

The School Staff is now as follows

D. C. Munroe, M.A., (McGill) principal, English, History, and Senior Boys' Physical Training: Miss Frances E. Crook, B.A., (Bishops), M.A., (Bryn Mawr), Vice-Principal, Grade XII, Mathematics and Science: A. A. Ariano, B.A. (McGill), Grade VIII, French: Mrs. Angie Barrington, Grades III and IV, Music: Miss Sylvia Eardley-Wilmot, B.H.S. (McGill), Home Economics and Junior Physical Training: Mrs. Margaret E. Lindsay, Grade IX, Commerce and Geography: Miss Dorothy Phillips, Grade VII, Librarian, Elementary French and Junior Physical Training: Miss Helen Smallman, Grades I and II: Miss Muriel Tolhurst, Grades V and VI, Secretary of the Staff, Art, Elementary French and Senior Girls Physical Training: Miss Eleanor Tomlinson, B.A., (McGill), Grade XI, Classics, English and History: Mrs. Mary C. Walsh, (on leave of absence); H. G. M. Winter, B.S.A., (Toronto), Grade X, Agriculture, Farm Mechanics and Woodworkng; G. L. Sutton, M.D., C.M., Honorary Medical Officer.

The Board has this year introduced a plan for cumulative sick-leave for the Staff. By this arrangement each teacher is entitled to a credit of ten days each year in the Leave of Absence account and this credit may accumulate year by year to a total of one hundred days. The number of days during which a teacher is absent will be deducted each year from this Leave of Absence Account and when the Account is exhausted salary payments cease. The Board further will grant a Retirement Gratuity to each teacher after five years of continuous service. This gratuity will be for a period equal to one-half the number of days remaining in the Leave of Absence Account, based on the annual salary at the date of retirement. This cumulative leave of absence plan has been widely adopted throughout the Dominion and it has recently been introduced by the Montreal Protestant Central School Board and the Richmond, Drummond, Athabaska Central School Board.

During the present session an exchange has been arranged between the Boards of Huntingdon and Ormstown. Miss Eardley-Wilmot, the Home Economics Specialist at Ormstown, is being loaned to Huntingdon High School two days each week, while a member of the Huntingdon staff is in loan to Ormstown.

Help Fight Polio

THIS week the Branches of the Canadian Legion in Huntingdon and Ormstown are conducting the Parade of Dimes campaign against Polio in the counties of Huntingdon and Chateauguay. This is purely a Legion project and its inauguration was made last year, when the epidemic reached such proportions in this Province. A considerable sum of money was raised and this was spent in providing equipment to treat polio victims and in capitalizing research into a possible discovery of the cause and treatment for a permanent cure or preventative.

Such a project requires a great deal of money and even this does not ensure that what is being searched for will be found in a short time. However, having the money allows the search to be carried on and while this is being done the conclusion is brought ever nearer. If a preventative could be found such as the inoculations now in force for certain other diseases, it would be a great day and at least a greater part of the battle would be won. One medical scientist said on one occasion with regard to cancer research, that they are at the back door of the cause but lack of funds is holding up the entrance. People will give money for all kinds of frivolous things, but to help in such a great cause they will only give a dribble. Such research works cost fabulous sums of money but if a cure can be found, it means that countless lives and suffering could be saved. As in cancer so it is with polio, large sums of money are required to carry on the research works. Once research has found the cause and remedy, the dread of the consequences of the disease has been conquered.

Thus it is that the Canadian Legion is appealing to all people to give generously to the campaign they are sponsoring, and remember it is for the good of all and not just Canadian Legion members only. If you or any member of your family is struck by the disease you would be entitled to share in the use of the fund. Therefore put as many dimes as you can in the parade and let them stretch the distance between here and the time that a cure or preventative has been found that will knock polio out of the fight—that is what is asked of you—when the Legion says HELP!

Flour and Bread Prices

CANADIAN bread and flour buyers—and that is a mighty inclusive term—knew in advance that the consumer wheat subsidy was to end. They knew that this would mean an increase in the price of bread and flour.

The development contained no element of surprise, and we believe the public will quickly adjust themselves to the new price. It is so clearly based on the logic of real costs.

Of course, there may be demands in some quarters for restoration of the subsidy. But with the exception of those directly influenced from the political left, most Canadians realize that subsidies such as the one paid on consumer wheat have no place in a stable peacetime economy.

The wheat subsidy was part of an emergency economy. At a cost to the taxpayers of millions of dollars a year, it enabled the government to keep prices of flour and bread at low levels. Recently, more than 81 cents was paid out by the government in this way on every bushel of wheat used in making Canadian flour and bread.

Withdrawal of this payment forced fixing of new flour and bread prices. And more than the cost of wheat had to be taken into consideration. Cost of malt, eggs, sugar, milk and other foods entering into the production of good bread had risen sharply.

The new bread price is a true price—with nothing disguised by government payments out of taxes.

The Firemen Organize

SOME long time ago it was suggested that The Huntingdon Volunteer Fire Brigade should organize a club of their own for social activities and for the purposes of discussing methods of fire fighting. This has now come to pass and the firemen have organized a Firemens' Club, under the presidency of Chief Vallee, as announced in the last issue of this newspaper. It is proposed that as part of the activities some speakers will be asked to visit the club and talk on matters of interest to firemen, also it is proposed that mixed with this will be some social evenings.

In order to launch the club and to create a little money for funds the firemen are sponsoring a dance and a drawing at the Fair Grounds, on October 1st. It is hoped that the people will give their utmost support to this event and that future functions of this kind will also be well supported. We all owe much to the firemen as we never know when we may need their services. Fires do not occur at the most convenient times, they do not respect the weather, the time of day or night, or whether it be a Sunday or a holiday. But the firemen have to be prepared to leave on the instant no matter where they may be, when the alarm is sounded. Further than that these men are giving their services voluntarily, they are not paid firemen who make it their job. Since the fire brigade has become organized, many nights throughout the year are spent in practice and learning about new equipment so that the men will be better able to fight fires. A number of people forget this and think that if there are not many fires then the firemen do not have much to do. The fact that there have not been many bad fires of late, is due to the firemen being better acquainted with their equipment and thus able to keep fires to a minimum. While no one needs to be careless about fire, there is a sense of great satisfaction that if one does occur, we have an organization of fire-fighters who will be on the job with speed and the knowledge with which to combat it.

We therefore feel that the Firemens' Club should be encouraged and given all the help possible so that they may enjoy their organization and get the most benefit from it. It is not likely they will make many calls on the general public, but when they do it will no doubt be in the form of entertainment that all can enjoy. The money raised from such events will be used to defray the expenses of operating the club such as providing speakers and so forth.

The Inflation Spiral

THE merry-go-round of increasing prices has been set toward full speed with the decontrol of practically everything that has been controlled. Bread and flour which have been held at the same level all throughout the war and since up to now, were the first in the line to jump prices. It is forecast that many other of the decontrolled articles will be advanced in price in the very near future. Among these are boots and shoes and clothing.

The unfortunate part of it all is that prices are increasing on the essential articles that it is impossible to cut down or do without. Food in all lines has shown increases that taken on an overall basis has taken quite a large slice from the regular family income. Even the so-called cheaper types of food have advanced so that the housewife cannot turn to these for savings. Clothing is about the only thing that can be conserved on and that means that shabby clothes can be worn longer and no new clothing need be bought until it is absolutely a must. Shoes can be repaired more often and less of them bought. But food is a different proposition—one must have sufficient food in order to live and to work. Housewives will tell you that it takes nearly all their household budget to buy sufficient food, and even at that shortages do occur and cannot be avoided. They complain that they cannot buy as much as they have been used to and still keep within the budget. Such being the case little is left with which to buy other things and thus the inflation spiral is creaping into the everyday living of all people.

The government is of the opinion that prices will not sky-rocket, but that they will find their own levels through the law of supply and demand. It may be that some prices will advance and then be retarded through the consumer refusing to pay the higher prices asked. In food buying this is rather difficult and manufacturers know this. There are certain foods which people must have and even though the quantity may be cut down, the foods will have to be purchased. Then again there are some people in more fortunate circumstances who will buy at any price because they have the extra money with which to make the purchases. There is no doubt that as long as people will pay the prices asked, that the prices will continue to soar. Thus there seems only one thing to do and that is to refuse to buy those things which can be done without, until the prices have come more within line.

Those who have studied the situation over the years, claim that prices are going to heights today that have never been known before. This is contrary to the belief when the government first started to control prices. It was then stated that when control was taken off the prices would remain close to or almost normal. Many factors have entered into the picture and among these is the one of strikes, this has done more than any one single factor to raise prices. It looks now that there will be a further round of wage increases in order to overcome the steadily rising prices that are squeezing the working man's budget so as to make it almost impossible for him to get along.

A complaint heard now and then is that the quantity of advertising over-shadows the space given to news and features. An examination of two weeks' issues of newspapers published in Montreal, Vancouver, Toronto, Winnipeg, Halifax and Calgary shows the recent average to be pretty nearly the standard of many years: 42 per cent news to 58 per cent advertising. The accepted proportion, according to the textbooks, was 40 per cent news and 60 per cent advertising.

To squeeze into this limited space a selection of news and features that will be of service to his readers, the news editor needs a particularly well developed ability to go outside himself. In the course of a day he handles a great mass of copy that insofar as he is personally concerned is absolutely dead. He must, threfore, project himself into the place of his readers, decide what they wish to hear about, know what they are talking about, and weigh the relative importance of this and that desire.

Editors know they can't satisfy everyone. Away back in 51 B.C. Cicero complained that his professional news correspondent was giving him too much of sporting events and not enough about the political situation. People seem, as a rule, to prefer reading about a dog fight on their own street rather than about a war in the Gran Chaco. The day Mussolini became dictator of Italy, the news was crowded off United States front pages by the Halls Mills murder case. When Dempsey knocked out Firpo that was all the Spanish news America could stand, and it eclipsed the military coup in Spain under Primo de Rivera. The assassination of the Austrian Archduke, which set alight the first world war, was given only an inch space in most newspapers. "Interesting" news, which probably means news that touches their personal lives or experiences or knowledge, attracts the mass audience, while, regrettable as it may appear in this enlightened age, the merely important is addressed to small publics.

The Canadian Press

In view of the necessity of having an adequate news supply from which to select what the editor thinks will best fill the needs of his readers, it is essential that a newspaper should have good sources. All newspapers have their own reporters, some of whom cover general "beats" while others specialize in sports, municipal affairs, courts, and social events. In addition, practically all daily newspapers and many weeklies take a service from The Canadian Press, a co-operative enterprise organized about 30 years ago. Its General Manager, Gillis Purcell, wrote for this survey:

"Canadian newspapers present a news-picture of the world as complete as that presented in any country. In many ways, it is more accurately drawn.

"If you regard as the ideal a paper like The Times in London or the New York Times, Canadian newspapers as a whole rank closer to this conception than do newspapers generally in the United Kingdom or the United States. You find the news of the world reported broadly, objectively and fully in virtually every Canadian daily, large or small.

"News is handled 'straight' in virtually every case; editorial comment goes in the editorial columns. With no comparable concentrations of population, Canada hasn't the million-and-more circulation papers whose news-handling in New York and London is aimed solely at circulation and opinion-making.

"In the Canadian West, there is no tendency to ditch world news as there is generally — with the exception of half-a-dozen outstanding papers — in the United States Middle West and West. Nor is there the concentration on local news that marks so many of the British provincial papers.

"It's the nature of the country and its people that makes Canada's papers so fair and open of mind in handling news. The country is small enough in point of population to have to look out on the world. Its people have learned to be friends of great nations sometimes not too friendly with one another.

"In its exchange of Canadian news across the Dominion, The Canadian Press has been one of the great factors in building national unity. But CP's balanced objectivity in handling world news is primarily a reflection of the nature of the Canadian people."

Foreign News is Important

Foreign news is particularly important in these days when so much that happens at home is linked in some way with far-off events. There can be no One World, no effective United Nations, no final guarantee of peace, said the New York Times recently, until all the peoples of the earth have access to all the news they need. A programme was brought forward in May as an objective for the International Conference on Freedom of Information: to facilitate the gathering and transmission of news, to implement the right of all persons and peoples to accurate, comprehensive and representative information, to provide for organization in all principal news centres of a foreign correspondents' corps with strict, self-administered codes and ethics, and to provide continuing machinery to promote the free flow of true information.

This last provision is important. It may be said that in order to attract the maximum audience the press emphasizes the exceptional rather than the representative, the dramatic rather than the significant; but increasing attention needs to be paid to seeing that the resulting picture is true. More people today than ever before are interested in knowing not only what is happening, but why it is happening. Newspapers aware of this trend have been attempting to provide interpretative material along with the news.

Editorial Page Functions

Such intelligent reporting should not be confused with editorializing. Every important paper has editorial writers to comment on the news. There was an ancient rule that the news columns should contain positively no editorializing, but this, particularly in regard to political matters, is not universally observed.

There are remarkable differences between the number of persons reading editorials in one paper and those reading editorials in another. An investigation reported in Mercury magazine said that out of 72 newspapers surveyed, the lowest editorial-readership score was 17 per cent men and 9 per cent women, while the newspaper with the highest score had as editorial readers 73 per cent men and 51 per cent women. The moral seems to be that editorial pages which offer genuinely worthwhile fare need not worry about reader appetite.

Editorial writers, like news editors, are up against the problem of selection of topics and treatment. Readers are no longer satisfied with Jovian thunder unless it is accompanied by some illumination. The editorial writer with a sense of responsibility will try to give his readers a balanced presentation of basic facts, suggest alternatives, tell the purposes of proposed action, and illuminate the whole matter by his skillful thought and observation. Merely to make statements, however portentous, is to be as ineffective in moving the public as was the little girl who reported to her teacher: "I told my brother that when you die you cannot breathe and he did not say a word. He just kept on playing."

When thundering is indulged in it must be sincere. A neutral policy on important public issues, a middle-of-the-road course: these are safest but hardly stimulating. On the other hand, editorial pages which fulminate on international affairs and things of long ago and far away, fearlessly attacking maneating sharks while ignoring local breaches of peace, order and good government, these are not giving satisfaction to thinking readers. Saturday Night (which asks editorially that people who quote it should not call it "The Saturday Night" but just "Saturday Night") had an article in June a year ago which remarked: "The politicians could do a much better job if the papers did their own job properly, instead of taking a strong stand on everything on which they are sure that all their readers agree with them, and saying nothing about all the questions on which there is disagreement and uncertainty."

To find out what Canadian editorial writers believe is good for their readers, we made an analysis of two weeks' editorials in each of six daily newspapers. Of the 305 editorials examined, there were 94 on international topics; 76 on national; 22 on provincial and 24 on municipal subjects. The balance was made up of welfare, health and social subjects 22; economics and labour 27; obituaries, congratulations, and other personal references 21; religion 5; comments on science 2, and odds-and-ends 12.

Criticism of Newspapers

There are several points on which newspapers are criticized. Criticism is a good thing. As was remarked in an article in the Montreal Gazette this spring: "Serious, searching and regular criticism of the press is the ultimate safeguard of its freedom. The lack of it deprives the press itself of the benefits of the very principle of which the press is, in relation to everything else, the chief exponent."

Probably the charge most often heard is that the press is sensational. Reporters on a good story are reluctant to prick the bubble that reflects the world in brilliant colours and turn it to a little soap and water. Editors know that their circulation is largely determined by the brightness of their copy; some persons mistake this brightness for sensationalism. There are editors, of course, who lapse into catchpenny huckstering, but it must be admitted there are not many such in Canada.

Canadian papers are not, as a rule, given to exaggeration, though they do sometimes slip into gibberish about miracle drugs and electronic brains. Bad popularizing of scientific subjects may do great harm, not alone by giving wrong information but by destroying faith in the newspapers which print it. Readers should bear in mind that most popularizers are writing to sell, and are not, as a general rule, principally exercised about spreading good. Their statements and judgments, particularly in health matters, should be checked with a professional man.

A criticism leveled against some newspapers is that they are organs of "propaganda." Propaganda is anything you read that makes you feel some action should be taken, and it would be a poor news sheet whose articles and editorials never gave that feeling. The kind of propaganda to beware of is the insidious kind that is more often met with in "organs of opinion" than in Canadian newspapers — the kind that uses "colour" or "weasel" words, mostly adjectives such as "ruthless, confused, bureaucratic, grasping." It would be well, when you come upon an article loaded with adjectives, to go back and read it with the adjectives left out, in order to make an unbiased judgment.

Another criticism, one that is too widely merited for comfort, is that newspapers colour reports, particularly of political events and speeches. Some of us are prompted to inquire whether newspapers have kept up with the broadening education they have had so large a part in making available to the public. This education has taught people to think for themselves, to recognize that there are at least two sides to every story, and to suspect oracles. Yet some newspapers continue to spoon-feed their readers. They attempt to lead them, openly as in editorials or by subtlety in coloured articles (or, as newspapermen call them, articles that are "slanted" or have particular "angles" played up).

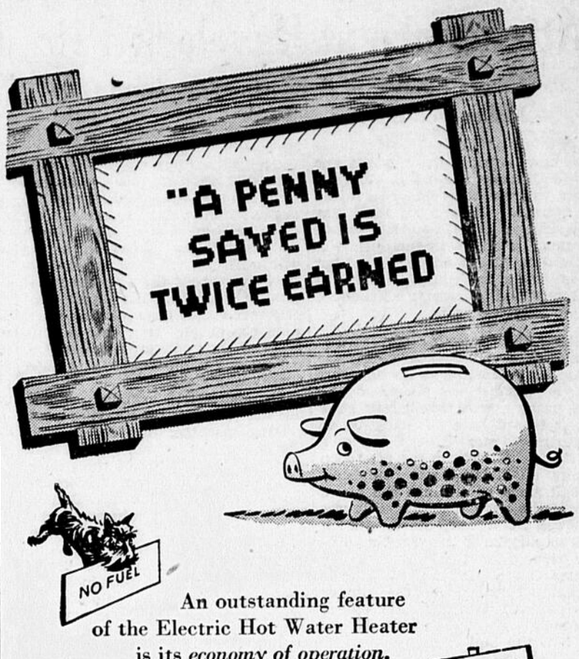

Newspapers should, in their own interests, be their own chief critics, because it is an inescapable fact that if they fail in self-control and come to regard freedom of the press as license, the time will come when the public will demand outside control. Then, should the government be persuaded to step in to control the newspapers, our chief guard against totalitarianism would be lost. The newspapers in Canada must realize their responsibility to protect freedom, and that they can do their part by avoiding error, bias, carelessness, prejudice, and false colour. As F. I. Ker said in his address as President of The Canadian Press last April: "The press holds a mirror to the happiness of the day. Unless the mirror is as flawless as it is humanly possible to make it, its reflections will be distorted. When distortion occurs in one newspaper, The Canadian Press and all who print its news may suffer."

Censorship of the Press

Censorship of the press is not an immediate menace in Canada. Outside the democracies the coverage of news is much less complete than it is in this country. Whole populations are denied news, while such newspapers as there are obey governmental dictates by publishing only material which will further the government's aims. As Herbert Brucker, widely-experienced newspaperman and a professor at Columbia, puts it: "This public-opinion technique of .... trying to make the real world conform to an artificial mental one, is an inherent part of the totalitarian method. The results in terms of the wreckage of things past now strewn about the world, indicate that the method is effective, in its way."

That way is a way of destruction,

Shows — Far and Near

Viola Lallemand came home from London, Ont., Horse Show on September 11th, carrying a boxful of ribbons. Beginning at Ormstown where she won the Shawinigan Trophy for Best Lady Driver, Lachute, St. Jerome, Ottawa, The Canadian National and London, her seven horses brought her a hundred and fifty prizes.

All sports fans in Huntingdon will be proud to know that this town has been widely publicised as an up and coming centre in consequence of Viola's outstanding career as a horse trainer, rider and exhibitor. Feature writers, photographers and radio commentators followed her progress with delighted comment. Here are a few reports:

Montreal Star, Sept. 9 — Quebec Horses Score Heavily at C.N.E.....

"Miss Viola Lallemand who represented Quebec with her entries from Huntingdon, won two seconds, three thirds and a fourth ..... Many of the spectators thought that in several classes she might have been placed higher on her neat little Betty Firefly."

Viola also won at C.N.E. First Prize in the Ladies Saddle Class and was second with her pair of Hackneys. Betty Firefly was awarded Reserve Championship.

The Toronto Globe and Mail placed Viola among the ten best riders at the C.N.E., and in fact she was the only lady entering in a class of twelve riders. With an entry of 14, Viola placed third in the Pace and Action event.

Montreal Gazette, Sept 4 .....

"Viola Lallemand made her debut in the Show (C.N.E.) to drive her four year old mare Alasa Bonny, to third place in the harness pony not exceeding 14.2, in a great class of 16 fine Hackney ponies."

—O—

Myrtle Cook, Montreal Star, Sept. 12, says: "Viola Lallemand, who used to give the cash customers in Madison Square Gardens a thrill as a tiny tot competing against the country's best in riding, is back in the spotlight again. Her mount "Betty Firefly won ribbons at Toronto Ex, and is now gathering more in the current London, Ont., Show."

Over C.J.A.D. the Radio Sport Commentator issued frequent bulletins regarding the Horse Show at C.N.E. .... and stated that Viola Lallemand was the outstanding Quebec rider. Here she was in competition with the old experts Vernon J. Cardy, H. J. O'Connell and the Francishini stable where each employed as many as six expert riders. Grace Lallemand accompanied her sister as far as Toronto and in her first appearance in the Hackney classes won 3rd in the Saddle Class and Sixth in the Harness Pony Stake.

Viola did not compete in any of the Jumping Classes, which were heavily covered by several entries each from the other Quebec exhibitors.

The Judge, Mr. Adrien Van Sunderen of New York, made the comment that no person entering the ring had better manners than Viola Lallemand. In congratulating her personally he said: "I hope to see you in New York with your Hackneys."

Viola firmly refused to consider many offers to purchase her Hackney pair, Alasa Bonny and Alasa Firefly, one being $8,000. She declined to put her own price on Betty Firefly, who is now in the legendary class for horseflesh. A feature article in a London paper presented "The black mare from Quebec, Betty Firefly, as "A black ball of dynamite, the way she came in the ring."

Over the loudspeaker in the Arena at London, Viola Lallemand was referred to as the best rider in Quebec and also the winner of the Shawinigan Ladies' Driving Trophy at Ormstown Show for two years in succession."

—O—

Entertainment extended to the exhibitors at the Canadian National Exhibition and attended by Viola, included a luncheon by the Mayor of Toronto at the King Edward Hotel; Buffet Supper by the President and Directors of the C.N.E.; a Tea in the Women's Bldg. given by the President and Mrs. J. A. Scythes.

—O—

Viola Lallemand's enthusiasm and dedication to horses is no sudden adolescent development. It dates from the cradle. When she could barely sit up in her crib her father brought a little Shetland up in the apartment elevator and into her nursery. The horse sense and smell must have entered the infant's blood stream. Her mother claims that her first words were not the usual "Goo-Goo" and "Da-da" but "Gee-gee" and "Click-click".

Parental sympathy and understanding was a prerequisite in assuring Viola's success, as in most other cases of youthful achievement. I had a brief look at Viola's scrapbook, kept by her mother. A real success story in pictures and prose from a four year old at Hunt Clubs, private and public horse shows and exhibitions. At eighteen she is an expert through the hard method of constant perseverance and personal effort. Always she has taken care of her horses herself in feeding, exercising, training and exhibiting.

In 1938 at Toronto Exhibition she was pictured in the group of Winning Women Athletes as "Top Lady Rider". At the First Canadian National Exhibition since the War, she returned and unquestionably maintained her title.

On Governor General's Night at the Royal Winter Fair in 1938, when nine years old, Viola drove the entry of Senator O'Connor for the Six-in-Hand in a class of eight. She was awarded the Governor's Trophy to the delight of 18,000 spectators.

Viola was especially delighted with her first appearance at London Exhibition, where she said everyone was extremely courteous and kind. She was a guest at a quite delightful entertainment at the Officers' Mess.

Prizes at the Show included a first in 15 hands and under, Betty Firefly; First 15.2 and over with Goldie Labelle; first Combination harness and saddle with Goldie Labelle; first single harness pony with Alasa Bonny; second in same class with Alasa Firefly. Irish Rose was fourth in the 15.2 and over, with a new rider.

It takes knowledge, courage and a rigid self-discipline to successfully follow the horse show circuit — to win or lose and take it. After showing in classes in London Wednesday evening, Sept. 10th, Viola took the Toronto train at 4.30 a.m. and arrived in Montreal that evening. Her father and Grace drove out to Huntingdon with her.

After the Canadian National and driving to Toronto and back Arthur Lallemand was exhausted with the show routine and declared he would not go to any more. After half an hour of exciting conversation concerning the above events, over a cup of tea, he had to leave for Montreal with Grace, who is attending Trafalgar Girls' School. Before leaving he borrowed my pencil and a slip of paper to make a note. "Entries for Madison Square Gardens, New York, Horse Show, Nov. 4th to 11th; Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, November 18-26!"

—O—

The Lassie Comes Home

Next day, Friday, Viola was in Dougie's, sipping a soda. Another customer sat beside her.

"Well, when did you get home?"

"Just last night."

"How about coming over to Huntingdon Fair now and driving my horse in the Ladies Driving class?"

"O.K. I guess I could do that."

Result: First again.

—O—

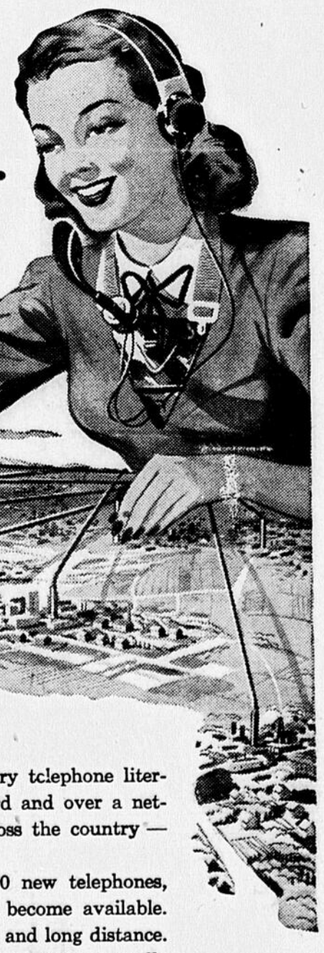

The seven horses arrived back in Huntingdon on Saturday morning after a trip by truck from London of 560 miles.

At her fingertips . . .

EVERY LONG DISTANCE operator has every telephone literally at her fingertips. Through her switchboard and over a network of lines and cables, she reaches out across the country — or across the world!

Every month we are adding some 10,000 new telephones, catching up with unfilled orders as materials become available. More telephones mean more calls — both local and long distance. To-day our operators are handling more long distance traffic than ever before.

Our aim is continuous improvement — better service. More service plus better service — and always at the lowest possible cost — means greater value to every telephone user.

W. I. Notes

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD BRANCH

The September meeting of the W.I. was held on Thursday evening, Sept. 11, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Templeton, with a large attendance. After the Opening Ode and the Clubwoman's Creed, the Roll Call was responded to by a joke or pay a dime. Needless to say, the dimes were few. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Another Personal Parcel has been sent to England. A letter was read regarding the Demonstrator's visit, and it was decided to join with Howick W.I. for this meeting. The annual School Fair is to be held as usual the same day as the Calf Club Show, on Sept. 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Orr. Two judges for the Fair were appointed from this Branch, namely Mrs. Gordon Easton and Mrs. Andrew Bennie. Current events were given from the following departments: National and International Relations — Use being made of books from England; an item on Princess Elizabeth's wedding; sugar ration being slightly increased. Agriculture: Don't cut lawns after the end of September; a reminder to listen to Mr. Donald McKell, of Riverfield, who will speak over C.B.M. on October 9th, on the farm programme. Home Economics: Chopping bowls should be sandpapered occasionally to keep them smooth; dishes browned by fire should be soaked in borax and water. Welfare and Health: item on the drive for a National Health Plan for all rural people of Canada, presented by Miss Marion Stewart, of the Health Study Bureau, Toronto, to the Q.W.I.; and a poem "Do We tell our Children the Truth"? The president, in a few words, welcomed Principal Williams and the staff of Howick High School, who were all present, and who carried on a very enjoyable program. Mr. Williams expressed his pleasure and that of the staff at being invited to be present, and gave a very interesting address on "Food for Thought", dealing with school lunches and the advantages of having lunches of high quality, and especially hot lunches during the winter. This was followed by a sing-song with Mrs. Florence Mattice at the piano. Mr. Welburn gave a very educational address on "French as it is spoken in Canada, and in France, and other places". Miss J. Catterson read "The Well Story", of Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, in her own amusing manner. Miss D. Fraser showed the results of her special hobby which she worked at during the summer vacation, several beautiful hand paintings and pastels. Several games were arranged by Miss McGerrigle, Miss Yuile, and Mrs. D. Templeton, which were much enjoyed. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Williams and the staff for their kindness in preparing this program, which everyone enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Templeton, Mrs. John Gruer, Mrs. Angell and Mrs. J. J. Anderson, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

HEMMINGFORD BRANCH

On Wednesday afternoon, September 3, the Hemmingford W.I. held their meeting in the United Church Hall, with 29 members and some visitors present. Mrs. S. D. Cunningham, the president, presided.

The roll call, An Old fashioned Worthwhile Cure, was well responded to.

Mrs. R. L. Hauver, Convener of Welfare and Health, gave a paper on "When Can Dieting Be Serious".

Mrs. Chas. Woods added very much to the program by bringing her guest, Mrs. Minter from England who spoke on Conditions Over There.

A parcel of food also one of clothing was reported having been sent to Britain during the past month.

A showing of home-made bread and rolls was judged by Mrs. G. S. Walsh.

A quiz, Know Your Apples, was conducted by Mrs. F. Sherrington.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. E. Moore, Mrs. E. Merlin and Mrs. H. McAdam.

The Rev. T. F. Duncan officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a street-length frock of white silk jersey and finger-tip veil held in place by orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white roses and maiden hair fern; her only ornament was a gold locket and chain, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ruth O... cousin of the bride, wore a street-length frock of powder blue jersey with matching hat and carried a bouquet of carnations, roses and asparagus fern.

Mr. John Steele was groomsman.

The bride's mother was gowned in navy blue crepe with a corsage of white and red carnations. The groom's mother wore a street-length dress of navy blue crepe with matching hat.

The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold engraved compact.

The living room and dining room were beautifully decorated with pink and white gladioli.

After luncheon, the bride and groom left on a motor trip through Northern New York and southern Ontario, the bride travelling in a grey wool suit with black hat and accessories and a silver fox fur. Upon their return they will reside in Brooklet.

The young couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts.

Those who entertained in honour to the bride prior to her marriage were the Mesdames Orr of Aubrey and Mrs. Gerald Levers and Mrs. Ronald Gamble, both at miscellaneous showers.

Mr. G. Robertson played the wedding music for the service. Mrs. J. R. Waters sang "All Through the Years" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white English point d'esprit lace over celanese satin, made with sweetheart neckline and bouffant skirt. Mrs. E. Oliver as matron of honour, wore a full length dress of yellow embroidered nylon and taffeta with matching mitts and picture hat. Miss Irene McCann, of Toronto, as bridemaid, was dressed in blue embroidered nylon and taffeta with picture hat and mitts of the same color as her dress. Each carried a colonial bouquet.

Mr. Norman Barrington was best man for his brother, and Messrs. Norman McLeod, the bride's brother and Mr. Gordon Barrington, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Victoria Hall, Westmount, where multi-coloured gladioli were used as decorations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Barrington left by motor for a trip through the New England States. For travelling the bride wore a grey tailored suit with matching hat, dark green alligator accessories, and Talisman roses as a corsage. The couple will reside in Verdun.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included: Mrs. J. M. Barrington and Mrs. John Gaw, of Huntingdon, Mrs. F. McKeating, Mrs. W. McCann and Mr. C. Hann, of Toronto, Mrs. D. E. Fraser, of Alexandria, Ont., and Mrs. Jas. Edmonstone, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Entertain at Afternoon Tea

Miss Astrid Jorgensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, was the week-end guest of Miss Lillian Rankin, R.N. Mrs. Bert Rankin and Miss Rankin entertained at an afternoon tea on Saturday in honour of their visitor. Miss Jorgensen, who is a trained nurse, came to Canada by air a month ago and is now on the staff of the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal. She was formerly employed by U.N.R.R.A. in Germany where she met Miss Rankin. Miss Rankin receives many appeals by letter from former acquaintances in Europe seeking assistance in emigrating to Canada. A letter arrived that day from a Rumanian mechanical engineer, trained in the United States and who is now anxious to bring his wife and family to Canada. He is now a Displaced Person in Germany and cannot return to his native country. During the German occupation he deserted from the Rumanian Army because he did not want to fight against the United States. Guests at the tea included Mrs. Harold Purcell, Mrs. Gordon McCrimmon, Mrs. Raymond Ross, Miss Gertrude Hampson, Mrs. G. McLean, Miss Effie Rankin and her guest Mrs. Lloyd Rankin, of La Tuque. Mrs. W. L. Carr poured tea.

It's two crowded weeks, truly a busman's holiday, but one that will be enjoyed and undoubtedly be of material benefit to the general business of The Huntingdon Gleaner Inc. The convention is being held in the Empress Hotel, Victoria, and it is expected nigh 400 Canadian Weekly Newspaper publishers and their wives will be present.

Road Work to be Done in Town

It is learned that the Provincial Government has undertaken to repair and widen at least five streets in Huntingdon. These are Bouchette, Cemetery, Church, Henderson and Lorne Avenue. It is understood that these streets will be widened much like city streets and paved to put them in first class condition. There is no doubt that it is needed and it is hoped that the work may be extended to other streets in town. Work on Bouchette has already started.

Sunshine Account Is a Passport to Better Vacations

Deposit One-Twelfth Of Holiday Money Every Month

The people who enjoy vacations most are those who prepare for them in advance — in fact, as soon as they get back from their previous holidays.

This sounds complicated. It isn't, though. The proof is that quite a few people now do it. They find that year-round planning saves skimping on vacation fun.

These folks begin by deciding how much they can afford to spend next holiday-time. Then, they open "Sunshine Accounts" in the Bank of Montreal and each month save one-twelfth of their holiday money, making deposits every week or every fortnight according to their payday.

The money set aside usually doesn't amount to enough to stint them in other ways. Then, when vacations start, they're the ones who really relax — without financial cares.

Mr. Pope, local B of M manager, urges everyone who thinks he deserves a good holiday next year to remember that the sooner a "Sunshine Account" is begun, the more it pays off! Advt.

Wedding

MURDOCH - GILBERT

The marriage of Miss Donelda Gilbert, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Gilbert, of Chateauguay Heights, Que., to Mr. Gordon Murdoch, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Murdoch, of St. Lambert, took place in St. Andrew's United Church, Chateauguay on Saturday August 30th, at 4.30 p.m. Rev A. M. McKinley Rose Officiating.

Baskets of gladioli and asters decorated the church. Mrs. A. McKinley Rose played the wedding music, and Mrs. Arthur Williams sang "O Promise Me" and "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of eggshell bridal satin, the fitted bodice having a frill forming a Victorian neckline outlining the transparent yoke, and long tight fitting sleeves ending in points over the hands, the skirt falling in bouffant folds. Her veil of tulle illusion net was held in place by a coronet of matching net, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Miss Winifred Hay, as maid of honour, was gowned in a floor-length dress of rose pink brocaded ordandy fashioned on the same lines as the bride's, with matching headdress and net mittens.

Miss Muriel Hay and Miss Hazel Gilmore, bridemaids, were similarly attired in powder blue brocaded organdy, all three attendants carrying colonial bouquets.

Mr. Donald Murdoch acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Lee Gilbert brother of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth Armstrong, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Gilbert, the bride's mother, wore a street-length gown of black crepe with turquoise trimming, a hat of matching turquoise and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Murdoch mother of the bridegroom, wore a street-length gown of grey crepe with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Chateauguay Heights. The house was decorated with multi-coloured gladioli and pink sweet peas.

The bride wore for travelling, a turquoise blue suit with black accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch will reside in Chateauguay Heights.

Shower

Recently a shower was held for Mrs. Gordon Murdock (nee Donelda Gilbert) by her three attendants, Misses Winnifred and Muriel Hay, and Miss Hazel Gilmour, at the home of Mrs. L. A. Hay. The shower was held in the rock garden in which the eighty guests were seated. The bride was presented with a sixty-six piece dinner set and twenty-four piece crystal set. The gifts were wrapped in white tissue and blue, pink and white ribbon and were placed on a dinner wagon decorated in white blue and pink crepe paper and the wheels and handle were decorated with appropriate flowers. The bride was presented with a corsage of roses by her attendants. Three seats of honour were placed under a white lawn umbrella from which white wedding bells were suspended and streamers which were attached to the chairs. The honoured guests were Mrs. Murdock Jr., Mrs. I. Gilbert and Mrs. Murdock Sr. After opening the gifts, the bride thanked her friends and told them how surprised she was when she arrived to see all the people. A game was played, the prize winner being Mrs. K. Bonnell. Tea and refreshments were served to the bride's friends. The ladies pouring tea were the bride's mother, Mrs. Gilbert, two aunts, Mrs. Suckling and Mrs. Armstrong, mother-in-law, Mrs. Murdock and two attendants, Mrs. Hay.

Missionary Meeting

The September meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. George Horsnell. Mrs. A. M. Rose, the president, conducted the Worship service, assisted by Mrs. L. Taylor, who led in prayer.

The Literature secretary, Miss R. McFarlane, gave a paper entitled, "The Bible for England", being the first of the series, in The Bible for all the World, the study theme for 1947-'48. Special reference was made to Jerome, Wycliff and Tyndale, three pioneers, who through their labours gave the Bible to England and the English-speaking world.

A pleasing incident of the afternoon was the conferring of a Life Membership in the Society upon Mrs. Rose. Mrs. Horsnell presented the certificate and Mrs. David Lang pinned on a corsage. The meeting closed with the singing of the hymn "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind." A social half-hour followed.

Farewell Party

On Monday evening, the 8th of September, the congregation of St. Andrew's United Church and friends from St. George's Anglican Church met in the Church Hall to bid farewell to Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Rose and family, Mr. Rose having received and accepted a call to Centenary United Church, Stanstead, Que.

Mr. Wm. Yarnell acted as chairman. The meeting opened with community singing, with Mrs. Louis Smith presiding very ably at the piano.

At the request of Mr. Yarnell, short speeches were given by the following: Mrs. Ernest Smith, president of the W.A., who expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Rose, John and Marion would be very happy amid their new surroundings and would face their new responsibilities with courage equal to the task.

Miss Rhoda McFarlane, vice-president of the W.M.S. thanked Mr. Rose for his interest and co-operation and Mrs. Rose for her leadership in the Society. At this point, Mrs. J. R. Dickenson escorted Mrs. Rose to the platform, when Mrs. David Lang presented her with the W.M.S. Life Membership pin. Mrs. Lang said in part, "Every W.M.S. officer carries a torch and sooner or later lays it down, that time has now come in your life in connection with the W.M.S. here.

"Across the sky there gleams
Three lights, which point the way
To a new day's dawn
Faith, Hope and Love.
By these, may you be guided on life's way."

Mr. Wm. J. Reid, representing the Session, Mr. J. H. Murphy, the Board of Managers, Mr. E. R. Richardson the Trustees and General J. G. Ross, the people paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Rose and wished them all success in their new sphere of work.

Mr. A. S. Friedlander brought greetings and best wishes from St. George's Church.

Mr. E. R. Richardson, Mr. W. Reid and Mr. T. Yarnell, on behalf of the congregation, then presented Mr. and Mrs. Rose, John and Marion, with a sum of money, a nest of tables and a lamp. The Sunday School, under the superintendency of Mr. David Reid, presented Mr. Rose with a copy of "The Bible of To-day", with illustrations by Wm. Lyons Phelps, and Master Earl Kyle gave a hand painted picture entitled "Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane".

Needless to say, Mr. and Mrs. Rose were greatly touched by these expressions of kindness and in a few words Mr. Rose voiced the appreciation of his family and himself.

Refreshments were served by the W.A. and the meeting brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

PRODUCTION

Canadian woollen and worsted mills supplied nearly 8,000,000 more yards of cloth for civilian use in 1946 than in 1945 while total production increased by 1,200,000 yards, to 24,243,705 yards. Sharp decrease in the demand for military cloths and cloth for UNNRA enabled the Canadian industry to turn practically all of 1946 output to normal domestic use.

Production of woollen and worsted cloth in Canada during 1946 is compared below with production in 1945 and represents returns from 90 per cent of looms in operation.

Story on Canada's Newspapers...

the suicide of personal freedom, and the smothering of intelligent thought. Canada has no peacetime censorship, puts no embargo on the import or export of news, and does not tell editors what to print, what opinions to express, what "causes" to support. The policy of public criticism is understood and accepted. Such criticism as there was of the Hong Kong or Dieppe expeditions could never have been made in dictator countries.

Freedom of the Press

Few safeguards of public welfare have been more hardly won, says Wickham Steed, than freedom of the press. Where men cannot without fear convey their thoughts to one another, no other liberty is secure. A free press must be free from compulsions from any source, governmental or social. As Milton pointed out in his great plea for freedom to publish: it is impossible to determine whose judgment shall decide what is good or worthy for the public to read. Only public support can be accepted as a safe criterion: the unworthy publications will find few readers who derive benefit from them and will soon cease to exist.

Canadian newspapers are in the fight for world-wide freedom of news, and all political leaders in Canada have expressed approval of the movement. George V. Ferguson, editor of the Montreal Star, has been elected a member of the Freedom of Information Subcommission of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights. The need for this commission is a warning against the complacency with which Canadians accept their freedoms. Practically all countries now entangled in the web of controlled information were once free from it, and had the feeling: "it can't happen here."

Freedom of speech and of the press are not ends in themselves. They merely enable people to express freely their thoughts on events so as to bring forth the best possible decision out of all shades of opinion. In other words, this is not merely "freedom from" but "freedom for." A person may cause evil not only by his actions but by his inactions. As Andrew Hamilton said at the trial of a printer in New York away back in 1735:" .. I beg leave to lay it down as a rule that the suppressing of evidence ought to be taken for the strongest evidence." Knowledge and civilization are advanced by positive actions, not by merely refraining from other actions, or by retaining unquestionably the existing state of things. Newspapers need to use fully the freedom that is theirs. They need to keep on challenging the sacred cows which occasionally stand in the streets blocking progress.

Duties of the Newspaper

Besides rights, the newspaper has duties. It must be independent. It cannot serve the public which supports it if it is the tail to anyone's kite. To be independent it must stand on its own feet, earning a profit without subsidies. It should be regarded as a major transgression of ethics and good taste to communicate with the editorial department through the business department.

The newspaper needs to take a long view. A policy which gains circulation this year by means which tend to weaken the newspaper as an institution is a bad policy.

The newspaper must be decent, not only in the language and pictures it uses, but in the way it goes about obtaining its news. There are situations occurring in human life into which no newspaper can decently justify intrusion.

Current pessimism about the press should not be over-estimated. There has been similar pessimism in the past. If reforms are needed, they will not be shaped by legislation, except with the destruction of values civilization needs. They can be brought about by public opinion which supports the right kind of newspaper and makes its wishes known to publishers and editors.

Another Fine Muskie Caught Here

Huntingdon Youth Association

By S. P. Liversidge, Recreational Director

Benni Coccia Softball league

The boys' ball league wound up in great style with Chicago nosing out Canadiens and winning the trophy. This came as a complete surprise to everyone as Canadiens were in such good form all season. However, that's the old ball game and proves that anything can happen to the very end.

The cup and crests will be presented at a later date and all boys will be notified of the date in good time.

—o—

H. Y. A. Clubhouse

The Clubhouse has been started on and work has been done on the floor and roof so that any other inside work can be started any time. All those boys and girls who have been eager to get going will very soon have the opportunity of putting in some time at the preliminary plans. With windows to clean, floors to wash, painting to be done and what have you, everyone will have a chance to do his bit.

—o—

Activities

As a start, it is hoped that the following activities will be in swing. Photography, where you will be taught how to take and develop pictures. This will be lead by Mr. W. Boyd, and all those interested (either girls or boys) are asked to hand names to either Mr. Boyd or Mr. Liversidge.

Motor Mechanics, where you will learn what makes an automobile tick. This activity will be lead by Mr. J. Telfer and all boys interested should hand names to Mr. Telfer or Mr. Liversidge.

—o—

Model Aircraft

The very name of this Craft speaks for it's self and the younger lads should be greatly interested. Doug. McGerrigle is the leader, and names should be handed to him or Mr. Liversidge.

—o—

Teen-Town

This group will be organized as a separate activity and will be run along the same lines as in the past. A special room will be set up solely for the teen-agers and Mr. C. Oney is the gentleman to see about this. We all know the grand piece of work that Mr. Oney did in the past, and Wolf Cubs — ages 12 and under. with this in mind, you can look forward to lots of fun.

—o—

Stamp Club

No leader has been found as yet to take this group but as soon as one is available, it will be made known. Meanwhile, all boys and girls interested in stamp collecting should give their names to Mr. Liversidge and they will be kept on file.

—o—

Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs

These two activities will not be started immediately, but all those interested should hand names to Mr. Liversidge.

Boy Scouts — ages 13 and over.

Sports

A fine group of men interested in sports have offered their services as leaders and it would appear as though a good winter of sports activities is ahead of us.

At the moment, the following sports are being considered. Boys and Girls Junior Hockey league and Boys Floor Hockey league.

—o—

Boxing

This is one sport which really should be considered and taken seriously. It is a scientific sport and a healthy one, and only those who are bent on always keeping in good condition should consider it. Mr. M. Smith will be the trainer, and if those who enter are as keenly interested as Mr. Smith, then we should have a grand group. Names should be handed to Mr. Merrill Smith or Mr. Liversidge.

—o—

Small Games

Ping-pong, dominoes, checkers, etc., etc. will take care of the games room, and as the season goes on, tournaments in these various activities will be run. Meantime, anyone who has any of these games around the house and feels they would like to donate them to the Youth Association are asked to contact Mr. Liversidge, dial 2162, and they will be picked up.

That's all for now, but in closing, I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all those who so kindly offered their expressions of sympathy at the very sad loss of my father.
