NEW CANADIAN OFFENSIVE SMASHES DEEP INTO REICH, FORMS NORTHERN JAW OF PINCER DRIVE ON RUHR

New Red Drive In Silesia Reaches Liegnitz

Allied Parachute Troops Said To Have Landed In Reichswald Forest As New Drive Launched

Five German and Two Netherlands Towns Fall and More Than 1,200 Germans, Including Two Battalion Commanders, Surrender to Advancing Canadian and British Troops.

Paris, Feb. 9.—(P)—The powerful new 1st Canadian Army offensive penetrated at least four and a half miles into Germany and well into the Siegfried Line today, forming the northern jaw of an Allied pincer drive against the Ruhr.

Burning Kleve, northern terminal of the Siegfried Line, was imminently menaced. The new attack front widened to seven miles. Formidable forest defences in the Reichswald, considerably weakened by a terrific artillery and air bombardment, were being mopped up swiftly. Five German and two Netherlands towns fell. More than 1,200 Germans, including two battalion commanders, surrendered.

The United States 1st Army, 85 miles to the south, advanced to within a mile of the vast Schwammenauel Dam, controlling flood waters on the Roer River—a barrier to the Ruhr and the Cologne Plain.

The United States 3rd Army advanced to within a mile of Pruem and reached the Pruem River eight miles inside Germany.

The French 1st Army broke the last German opposition south of Strasbourg and drove up to the Upper Rhine banks on a 90-mile front from north of Strasbourg to Switzerland.

Like an avalanche which moves slowly at first, Gen. Eisenhower's offensive along the Western Front was gathering power.

British and Canadian troops of the 1st Canadian Army fought with tanks, flame-throwers, bayonets and planes and gained more than two miles today on a five-mile front into the edge of the fortified Reichswald wooded area after a flaming all-night battle. They moved to within eight or ten miles of the bend where the Rhine turns ponderously westward to the North Sea. A thousand prisoners were taken during the

Canadians Happy In Thick Of Fight Again After Long Wait

By DOUGLAS AMARON, Canadian Press War Correspondent
With the 1st Canadian Army on the Western Front, Feb. 9.—(P)—Cable—First Canadian Army troops were fighting today in the outer defences of the Siegfried Line after they broke out of positions held during three months' static warfare in a typical Field Marshal Montgomery offensive.

(Another field dispatch reported British and Canadian forces had advanced more than 4,000 yards on a five-mile front after a flaming all-night battle.)

Yesterday morning British and Canadian soldiers burst forward from the eastern side of the Nijmegen salient and the initial rush carried them to the western edge of the Reichswald Forest.

Several hundred prisoners were taken during the initial stages of the fighting and progress was good.

For considerably more than a week every road leading to the Nijmegen salient has been jammed with vehicles of all types bringing up troops and supplies.

Through all the build-up, there was the strictest security. Troops brought in from other parts of the front covered over the formation patches on their vehicles and many guns used in the five-hour opening barrage were silent until yesterday.

The Germans have been predicting a Canadian attack for the build-up couldn't pass unnoticed but they couldn't tell for sure where it might fall.

The enemy was left in no doubt, however, once the guns began firing.

ing. Soon the whole area of the valley facing the starting line was seething and it continued to seethe increasingly until it reached a peak during the hour immediately preceding the assault.

The foot soldiers struck at 10:30 a.m. following the barrage. Highlanders from Western Canada and men of a French-speaking Canadian formation went into action behind the skirts of the bagpipes and early reports placed them well on the way to their objectives. Beside them were United Kingdom troops and behind them were massed British and Canadian guns.

The gunners had rarely known a day like yesterday and they were in their element. I drove down some of their lines and they literally grinned from ear to ear when the concussion of their guns shattered the windows in a door of the jeep.

"It's good to be moving again," said Bdr. Kenneth Epps of Nelson Station, Que. Epps and other members of his gun crew, Sgt. Dusty Miller of London Ont., and Gnr. Peter Malysk of Flin Flon, Man.

John McDonald of Boisvieux, Que., claimed "this has even been better." He was recalling a mighty barrage laid down last summer in preparation for a Canadian attack in that Normandy battle zone.

NEGOTIATIONS SEEK TO SOLVE GREEK PROBLEM

Details Regarding Disarmament of E.L.A.S. Forces Believed to Be Occupying Major Portion of Present Talks in Athens.

By The Canadian Press.

Negotiations between the Greek Government and a delegation from the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front, Left-Wing) party are continuing in Athens in an effort to reach a settlement following recent civil strife of such a bloody nature that foreign officials as prominent as Prime Minister Churchill used the word "murder" in discussing it. British troops intervened on behalf of the Government during the fighting in Athens.

It was believed details regarding disarmament of the E.L.A.S. forces—members of the E.A.M.'s militia—were occupying a major portion of the present talks.

Meantime a report made public in London last night by Sir Walter Citrine, head of a British Trade Union delegation which visited Greece to ascertain the state of Greek trade unions, said British troops who had fought the E.L.A.S. described them as "the dirtiest fighters our troops had ever encountered."

Sir Walter said troops he interviewed were certain that British intervention in Greece had prevented wholesale massacre and that earlier intervention would have averted a great number of casualties.

He said Tommies and paratroopers who fought the E.L.A.S. had "a deep sense of grievance against certain sections of the British press and particular members of Parliament" for what they considered the inadequate and unfair manner in which recent events in Greece had been presented to the British public—a manner suggesting events in Greece were marked by "the use of reluctant troops on the side of reaction against a democratic people."

Sir Walter said he had been told E.L.A.S. troops had slain "at least 10,000" fellow-Greeks.

Documents published by the British Government January 31 reported some 1,200 hostages taken by the E.L.A.S. were executed, mostly with knives or axes.

"Trials of E.L.A.S. members accused of complicity in such atrocities were deferred February 2 pending settlement of the current Government-E.A.M. talks.

Such trials already had begun, however, and some death sentences passed. Two convicted E.L.A.S. men were sentenced to die by an Athens Military Court, February 2, for murder and violence and "taking up arms against Greeks and their allies." Three men alleged to be members of the E.A.M. were sentenced to death February 3 on conviction of charges of high treason and murder.

John Sofianopolis, Greek Foreign Minister, said yesterday: "The Government stands firmly by its decision to continue the negotiations and hopes that a satisfactory result will be reached."

Soviets Closing In Swiftly On Stettin, Big Baltic Port

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—Marshal Ivan Konev's new offensive in Silesia has reached the outskirts of the communications centre of Liegnitz, the German High Command said today.

Several Russian bridgeheads over the Oder on the Berlin Front were narrowed or eliminated, the communique declared.

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—Russian troops have launched a fresh offensive to encircle Breslau in Silesia, the German radio announced today. The Germans said one of the first towns to fall in Marshal Ivan Konev's offensive from his new bridgehead at Maltzsch was Parchwitz, a road centre 30 miles west-northwest of Breslau and 8½ miles northeast of the important junction of Liegnitz.

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—Russian troops closed in swiftly today on the vital Baltic port of Stettin in a sweep threatening to cut off upwards of twenty German divisions in Pomerania and set up a solid, 125-mile front along the Oder for an all-out assault on Berlin.

An Associated Press dispatch from Moscow said advance elements of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army were less than 25 miles from Stettin, indicating a 13-mile advance from Russian positions reported in last night's Soviet communique.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said the Russians were within nineteen miles of Stettin.

Other 1st White Russian Army units were locked in a bitter struggle with reinforced German divisions along a 60-mile front of the Middle Oder as the Russians unleashed a terrific artillery barrage against German positions.

The German radio said Soviet units already had expanded six bridgeheads across the Oder 30 to 43 miles from Berlin, and had ferried many heavy tanks across the river in the Kustrin area under cover of a withering artillery barrage against German lines.

Dispatches from Moscow suggested ed the possibility of Soviet spearheads west of the Oder at Kustrin, but emphasized that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov probably would push his 1st White Russian Army farther toward Stettin before driving on Berlin in force.

R.A.F. airmen supported the Russian drive on Stettin with a heavy overnight raid on a synthetic oil plant at Politz, ten miles north of Stettin.

German broadcasts said Zhukov had stabbed to within twenty-two miles of Stettin, sixteen miles farther than announced by the Soviet communique, which said the Russians captured Roatz, Bernstein and 100 other Pomeranian localities south-east of the big communications centre of Stargard, outlying citadel before Stettin.

The drive on Stettin, 72 miles from Berlin, threatened to seal off 13,500 square miles of German Pomerania and trap scores of thousands of German troops to the east.

Capture of the big ship-building centre with a pre-war population of 270,000 would give the Russians a powerful northern anchor for their Oder river positions stretching southward to Fuerstenberg, where the Oder bends eastward south of Frankfurt.

An early morning German broadcast said the Russians were assaulting Fuerstenberg and had established a bridgehead across the Oder there, but that the Germans had successfully defended the town and "narrowed down" the bridgehead with the use of heavy reserves.

A morning war summary broadcast from Berlin said German troops had broken the siege of Koenigsberg, capital of East Prussia, in bitter battles that had reopened the coastal road. Moscow last night announced the capture of the German stronghold of Koenigsberg, 13 miles south of Koenigsberg, which has been encircled by Russian troops for many days.

Berlin also said German troops trapped in Budapest had yesterday "succeeded in advancing their positions." The Russian communique said

GERMANS FEAR AN UPRISING OF SLAVE WORKERS

Further Evacuation of Foreign Workers from Threatened Areas in East Prohibited by Nazi Authorities.

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—German authorities have issued orders prohibiting further evacuation of foreign workers from threatened areas in the east on the ground that those already evacuated have been creating unrest in the areas to which they were removed, the Paris Radio said today.

The report was taken here as an indication of growing German fears

NAZI SYNTHETIC OIL PLANTS ARE RAIDERS' TARGET

Large Fleets of U.S. Bombers Also Reported Ranging Over Western Germany in Strong Support of Allied Ground Operations.

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—About 1,000 British and Canadian bombers last night blasted two of Germany's synthetic oil plants, and today large fleets of United States bombers ranged over Western Germany in strong support of Allied ground operations on the west front.

The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. hit twice at Politz, 10 miles north of Stettin in an area lying ahead of Soviet troops driving from the east.

Canadian heavies also dropped "a great weight" of bombs on the Wan-

U.S. Infantry Drives Toward Manila's Prized Dock Sector

Manila, Feb. 9.—(P)—United States infantrymen, splashing across the Pasig River in amphibious tanks, drove toward the prized dock section of Manila today in the face of new enemy demolition charges set off in the old Intramuros district, a death trap for its congested Filipino and Chinese residents.

Unseasonal rain dampened many of the scattered fires set wantonly by the desperate and trapped Japanese defenders but the Intramuros, or walled city, blazed so fiercely for a time that the heat could be felt blocks away.

The 37th Infantry Division entered Southern Manila by crossing the wide Pasig River near the governmental Malacanang Palace and began to root out the Japanese who had destroyed the four bridges.

The Americans worked south and southwestward through comparatively open spaces around the gas works, with the harbor facilities their prime immediate objective.

Headquarters announced today the 37th was "assisting the 11th Airborne Division in clearing South Manila."

The 11th Airborne Division which swept into the suburbs from a parachute invasion to the southwest, was last reported fighting around Nichols field, on the southern fringe of Manila. Small-scale but stiff resistance slowed this advance. There was no indication whether the enemy pocket at the airdrome had been eliminated or by-passed.

Japanese artillery fire began to taper off yesterday after two days of continuous shelling of American-held North Manila.

Destruction was announced of more than 200 Japanese tanks—more than two-thirds of the striking force of the Japanese 2nd Armored Division—in operations on the Central Luzon plain.

KOENIGSBERG'S MAYOR HANGED FOR DESERTION

Becomes Third in Series of Eastern Front Civilian Executions Announced by Germans—Himmler Organizing German Guerrillas.

London, Feb. 9.—(P)—The Mayor of Koenigsberg, Schreoter, was hanged for having left his town without having received evacuation orders, the announcement said.

This was the third in a series of Eastern Front civilian executions announced by the Germans. Previously the Deputy Mayor of Breslau was executed and the Police President and other officials of Bydgoszcz (Bromberg), the fallen fortress in Poznan Province, were executed "for cowardice."

The Paris radio said some foreign slave workers had risen against the Germans even as Heinrich Himmler organized German guerrillas for last-ditch resistance against the Allied invaders.

A French telegraph agency dispatch from Ankara was quoted as saying that Gestapo Chief Himmler announced the finishing touches to an organization of German Maquis which he will command himself.

The broadcast said "the men will be specially trained for fighting in the forests and mountains of Germany" with resistance centres in the Black Forest, Thuringia, Northern Bavaria, the mountainous parts of Tyrol and the forest area of Austria.

The broadcast predicted they would reach a total strength of 700,000.

WAR BULLETINS

London.—The Moscow Radio said today the Germans had ordered Danish authorities to make preparations to care for 10,000 German wounded, thus creating a serious situation in already crowded hospitals in Denmark.

Ondaw, Central Burma.—British 14th Army troops today enlarged their bridgehead at Kyaukmyaung, on the east bank of the Irrawaddy 45 miles north of Mandalay, capturing three hill features in an action which cost the Japanese about 200 men.

Sydney, Australia.—W. H. Donald, Australian-born adviser to President Chiang Kai-Shek and one of Japan's most implacable enemies, has been freed from a Manila internment camp after three perilous years during which recognition by his captors would have meant instant death.

Vancouver.—About 140 of 250 deserters from the Home Defence Army in British Columbia have been captured or returned voluntarily, it was learned last night.

ADDED DETAILS OF BIG THREE TALKS AWAITED

Peace Forces Believed to Work Inside Germany to Meet Ultimatum Expected Momentarily from Meeting of Allied Leaders.

By C. R. BLACKBURN, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Feb. 9.—(P)—Official Washington today awaited eagerly further revelations from the "Big Three" conference now believed to be approaching its conclusion in the Black Sea area.

While no official comment was forthcoming here, there was a feeling that peace forces are at work inside Germany, preparing to meet an ultimatum expected momentarily from the Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin meeting.

Foreign envoys with means of obtaining information appear convinced that an increasing number of Germans in high places are hoping for an offer that will bring an armistice less costly than a finish fight that would only prolong the lives of the Nazi High Command.

It is generally known that the Big Three and their Allies have already prepared the basic terms on which an armistice may be negotiated but the actual negotiations will be up to the Supreme Commanders in the field.

Some diplomats here are worried over the fact that neither Gen. de Gaulle nor a representative were invited to the meeting, but there is still the possibility that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill might meet him before they end their conversations, and seek to break down the coolness evidenced by the latter in his public statements that France would not be bound by the big three commitments to which he was not a party.

One of the subjects being discussed at the Conference is the plan for occupying Germany and that is of particular interest to France—so much so that it would not be surprising if it becomes known before long that Gen. de Gaulle had been summoned to the meeting place.

The necessity of haste in making these plans is seen by military observers here who are convinced that with Russian conquest of Silesia and Allied occupation of the Ruhr the Germans war supply system would be so crippled that it would be impossible to sustain any effective defence.

"Family Allowance Act" Bill Given 1st Reading At Quebec

Quebec, Feb. 9.—(P)—A bill entitled "Family Allowance Act," which would allow the Quebec Provincial Government to make "any agreement deemed necessary" with the Federal Government for the establishment of a system of family allowances, was given first reading as the first session of the 22nd Legislature got underway.

Text of the measure said: "It is desirable to establish a system of family allowances in co-operation with the Federal authorities and without impairing the constitutional rights of the Province."

The bill was one of several sponsored by the Government which were unanimously first-read by the Legislative Assembly. Others provide for improvement of rural roads, abolition of level crossings, amend the Courts of Justice Act respecting the Circuit Court and Magistrates' Court at Montreal, and an amendment to the Motor Vehicles Act.

Hereditary Baron (UN—Napierville-Laprairie) sponsored the motion in reply to the speech from the throne and it was seconded by Maurice Bellemare (UN—Champlain). Then the debate was adjourned until Tuesday by Opposition Leader Adelard Godbout.

In proposing the reply, Mr. Riendeau said he was "glad" that there was realization of the place of the family unit in society and the need of helping the family.

"Furthermore, there is the guarantee of the social legislation which was enacted from 1936 to 1939 (the first Union Nationale Administration) namely Mothers' Allowances. The provincial rural credits system has changed the whole attitude of finance towards the farmers."

Mr. Riendeau announced that the Government was studying a project for training young men who had to

The War Today

By DeWITT MACKENZIE, Associated Press War Analyst.

The growing intensity of the Allied assault which is boring into Germany from both west and east has strengthened the belief among observers that the Big Three, now in momentous conference in the Black Sea area, are likely soon to call on the German people to desert Hitlerdom.

Much must depend, as I see it, on the speed with which the Allied armies are able to pile up the threat against Berlin. The broadening of the attack on the Western Front by the launching of the Canadian-British offensive is a most hopeful development.

It is logical to assume that it would come at the psychological moment when the Germans have been squeezed just hard enough—a matter calling for delicate timing. That moment might be the fall of Berlin, or when the capital is invested and its capture is clearly imminent. One of the greatest blows that could be inflicted on the morale of the German people would be the loss of their first city.

The moral effect of such a summer would be greatly strengthened if the call came while the Big Three were in session. Certainly no ultimatum could be more effective than one coming from this dramatic Black Sea parley of the world's greatest leaders.

Desertion of Hitler by part of his people probably wouldn't end the war. Of course a good many folk in the United Nations almost hope that the Germans will keep on fighting until the Allied armies have had a chance to trample the length and breadth of Germany with hob-nailed boots.

The threat to Berlin is increasing hourly. It continues to ride with the Red Armies in their terrific attack on the eastern defences of the metropolis. As things now stand the Russians will get to the capital much ahead of the Western Allies, who will have the formidable Rhenish barrier to cross.

a few more blocks had been captured in the Hungarian capital.

The Soviet communiqué was silent on the great battle developing at Berlin's outer gate, but the Moscow Radio said "the Oder river line has been pierced and Berlin in panic is witnessing the crumbling of the last obstacle in its forehead."

A German language broadcast from Moscow said Soviet units were only a "dozen kilometres from burning Berlin, according to frontline reports." A Finnish broadcast said "Russian tanks probed to the outskirts of Berlin."

Among the places taken southeast of Stargard yesterday by official Soviet account was Sammenthin, 38 miles from Stettin and closest advanced Russian approach to the Baltic port, and Arnswalde.

The Germans said Russian spearheads had broken into Pyritz, 22 miles west of Arnswalde and the same distance from Stettin.

first twenty-four hours of attack. Kieve is the northern terminal of the permanent Siegfried Line defenses. It lies 35 miles northeast of Duisburg, gateway to the industrial Ruhr—always Germany's main arsenal but of increased importance now that the Russians have overrun the industries of Silesia and the United States 3rd Army has interdicted much of the Saarland's production.

(Reuters news agency in London quoted a radio dispatch as saying that Allied parachute troops had landed in the Reichswald Forest.)

Some miles south of the new offensive, United States 1st Army troops advanced to within a mile of the vast Schwammenauel dam, largest on the Roer headwaters and a potential flooding threat to the British 2nd and United States 9th Armies in jump-off positions along the Roer between the Canadian Army and the American 1st Army troops.

The last flicker of resistance was cleared in Schmidt by the 78th Division.

Jumping off yesterday morning after a heavy artillery and air barrage, attacking British and Canadian troops gained as much as two miles on a front of more than five miles during the first 14 hours. By last night, they were battering the outer defenses of the Siegfried Line.

The new assault, coming at a time when powerful American forces were battling through three new breaks in the enemy's west wall on the centre of the Western Front, apparently signalled the start of an Allied drive intended to carry to the Rhine and beyond—and perhaps into the vital industrial Ruhr.

Shortly before last midnight the German radio broadcast that "with in the last two hours Eisenhower has extended his preliminary offensive further to the south—to the area of Trier. Trier lies inside Germany some 20 miles southeast of where the United States 3rd Army now is attacking in the Diekirch area across the Luxembourg border."

The United States 1st and 3rd Armies already were known to be attacking on a 70-mile front inside Germany and the Berlin report, as well as many other signs, indicated the entire Allied line might spring into action.

The American 1st Army was on the verge of breaking out on the Rhine plain south of the Roer River dam system, still holding a flood threat to any Allied forces attempting to drive across the Roer east of Aachen.

In the south the United States 7th and French 1st Armies were virtually ready for possible operations beyond the Rhine. Only scattered German pockets remained in the Colmar area and these appeared doomed. Their last Rhine escape bridge was destroyed yesterday.

North of Strasbourg, the Germans have evacuated the towns of Herrlisheim and Offendorf.

In its new offensive the 1st Canadian Army was attacking the Siegfried Line, then divided into three heavily fortified belts.

The first opposition was described officially as light, but there seemed no doubt the enemy would attempt to strike back with increasing strength as the Allies advanced. Allied fliers said they saw German reinforcements moving up yesterday.

At the western edge of the Reichswald Forest the Canadian and British forces were less than eight miles from Kieve and about an equal distance from the point where the Rhine curves into Holland to the northeast. Kieve, located in the northernmost edge of the forest, long has been known as the northern terminus of the Siegfried Line, but the Germans now are said to have extended it beyond.

Once through the Siegfried defenses at this point, Allied forces could sweep southwest along the western bank of the Rhine, effectively outflanking Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's forces now drawn up along the Roer River at the western edge of the flatlands leading to the Rhine.

The offensive, under command of Gen. Crerar, was ushered in by a paralyzing attack Wednesday night by a force of 700 R.A.F. heavy bombers on Kieve and Goch, at the lower edge of the Reichswald.

Artillery opened at 5 a.m. with an earth-shaking barrage. At 10:30 a.m. Canadian and British troops and tanks began streaming toward Germany from positions southeast of Nijmegen, Holland.

Guarded and supported by the entire sky armada of mediums and fighter-bombers assigned to the United States 9th Air Force, the attacking troops quickly cracked through mediocre enemy defenses and by nightfall were fighting within the dark and formidable Reichswald Forest, inside which the Germans have strong concrete defenses.

Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press War Correspondent, said in a field dispatch last night that Highlanders from Western Canada and a French-speaking Canadian formation took part in the attack and initial reports placed them well on the way to their objectives.

Beside them were United Kingdom troops and armor also supported the attack, the dispatch said.

COUNTERATTACK IS LAUNCHED IN SERCHIO VALLEY

Fighting Still in Progress Following Enemy Counter-Blow North of Village of Burca on Italian 5th Army Front.

Rome, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Germans have launched a counter-attack in company strength against positions newly regained by the Allied 5th Army in the Serchio Valley north of Galliciano, Allied Headquarters announced today. The enemy counter-attack began a few hundred yards north of the village of Burca and the official report said fighting still was in progress.

Brisk clashes were reported in other 5th Army sectors, but on the whole there was no large-scale action on the front.

On the west coast Allied patrols drove forward to positions as much as 300 yards ahead of the lines despite light opposition, including mortar fire.

Northwest of Castelnuovo a 5th Army patrol ambushed a party of 30 Germans and killed or wounded half of them at a cost of four casualties.

Several patrol clashes occurred in the British 8th Army sector. German working parties strengthening Nazi defenses on the west bank of the Senio river drew Allied artillery fire.

Fair weather and higher temperatures prevailed over much of the front, but streams still were out of their banks from thaws in the 5th and 8th Army sectors. This and German dynamiting of dykes of the Senio river in front of the 8th Army in the Adriatic, where the 1st Canadian Corps has been stationed, are likely to prove barriers against an immediate Allied offensive or quick pursuit should the Germans choose to withdraw to the Alps.

associating the prosperity of the young people with that of the Province.

The importance of and necessity for young people to remain or settle on the land was fully realized by the speaker in his address to the assembly in his sessional programme it included and neglecting nothing that would in any way encourage, foster and aid both agriculture and colonization.

He was "against all measures of centralization taken under the pretext of war." Experience had proven that powers taken away are "never returned to us after the war." The survival of the income tax after the First Great War was a "typical example."

Seconding the reply, Col. Wilfrid Hovey (Lib., Rougemont) voiced the hope that "we shall prepare a clear and extensive blue print for educational research in Quebec."

He thanked the Union Nationale Government for the honor and privilege accorded him in asking him to speak and said that "I feel that the minority can look forward to justice in the measures the Government will propose."

He added: "I do not believe in educational centralization. I believe in the maximum of decentralization and I think our Quebec principles are good ones. If the time comes, and I believe that it will come, when federal subsidies for educational purposes are largely increased, we must make sure that we do not sacrifice our academic freedoms to the power of currency."

The motion was adopted unanimously, after brief speeches by Opposition Leader Hector Laferte, Sir George D. Brown, and then by Mr. Laferte, who was then elected speaker of the assembly.

After Speaker Raymond introduced Hon. Charles Delagrave (Lib., De la Durantaye) to the Council, Mr. Delagrave, a former member of the Legislative Assembly for Quebec West, is the sole new member of Quebec's Upper House appointed since the last session.

Mr. Laferte described the Throne Speech as "a model of its kind," model of generalities and act of precision" and said he would debate the announced Government laws in detail when each of the bills came up for discussion.

Sir Thomas Chapais said Quebec at the present time "is the target of unjust attacks and needless criticism from all other parts of the Canadian Confederation." He advocated two patriots, "a federal patriotism and a provincial patriotism, and these two patriotisms can and should unite."

Quebec was "the best and greatest province in Confederation" and "it is in our province that the people are the most impregnated with a spirit and idea of justice and fair play, and nowhere else in Canada are the minorities treated with such justice as here."

The Family Allowances Bill will allow the Quebec Government to make with the Federal Government "any agreement deemed necessary, efficacious and just for the establishment of a system of family allowances in conformity with the interests and the constitutional rights of the Province."

The bill respecting the improvement of provincial roads, sponsored by Roads Minister Talbot, will enable the Government "to take the necessary steps to prepare and carry out a general plan for the construction, rebuilding and improvement of the highway system of the province, and of rural roads in particular." A maximum sum of $30,000,000 will be spent during a period of not more than four years.

This law will be supplemented by one authorizing the Provincial Department of Roads to take the necessary steps to abolish level crossings.

Mr. Duplessis will sponsor a bill amending the Courts of Justice Act respecting the Circuit Court of Montreal and the Magistrate's

H.M.C.S. "Iroquois" Hailed By F.F.I.

In the early days of the invasion, officers and ratings from H.M.C.S. "IROQUOIS" went ashore on Les Sables d'Olonne, a pretty French summer resort island off the coast of Brittany, to pay their respects to the French Forces of the Interior, pick up information regarding enemy dispositions and movements, and to report on the state of the population after the German occupation. They received a royal welcome, found the Islanders reasonably well off for food and clothing but starved for cigarettes. The Luxembourg Radio said that new guards Hun prisoners captured by the F.F.I. in Les Sables d'Olonne.

Ft.-Lt. H. A. MacLeod was the guest speaker at the B.B.C. Literary Society meeting. The meeting was called to order by the President and after the reading of the minutes and the disposal of minor matters of business the speaker was introduced by Mr. McFadyen. Mr. MacLeod has been with the R.C.A.F. for over four years; two years with the Coastal Command principally over Norway.

of an uprising of foreign slave workers, of which it is estimated there are several million in Germany.

The Moscow Radio, meanwhile, quoted a Japanese correspondent in the German capital as saying that all subway service and bus service in the city had halted and that food supplies were running so low refugees had been barred from entering.

Stockholm dispatches said Berlin correspondents of Swedish newspapers reported the Germans had built four zones of defence fortifications east of the capital and were taking special precautions against an airborne assault on the city.

Civilians have been evacuated from the eastern part of Berlin and barricades are being thrown up everywhere, these advisers said.

The Luxembourg Radio said all Government ministries had left the capital, but that some party offices and the army headquarters were still there.

By some oversight, no report was made of the interesting programme of the previous meeting. It was the last week for the Hickson family to be at the college, so Mr. Arthur Hickson was asked to speak to the society. He gave a very interesting address on "Oldfield," his school in Southern England, illustrating his talk by lantern slides which helped to make more vivid the story of his famous school. All were sorry that Mr. Hickson and his family were leaving, as they have since done, and every member of the Literary Society wish them a safe voyage and an early restoration to their normal life at "Oldfield."

First Issue Of Sherbrooke Record Was Published 48 Years Ago Today

Today marks the forty-eight anniversary of the first issue of the Sherbrooke Record which has become known throughout the Eastern Townships and other centres in the Dominion as a paper which has served the public reliably and well for nearly half a century.

It was on February 9, 1897, that the Sherbrooke Record was launched as the only English daily in the Eastern Townships by a 30-year-old editor, Leonard Channell, an enterprising young man who devoted the greater part of his life to making the newspaper the integral part of community life that it is today.

Born in Stanstead on April 8, 1868, he was the son of Charles E. and Emily Bent Channell, descendants of the earliest settlers in Georgeville and Stanstead, dating their settling in Canada back to 1800.

The young future-editor, at the age of fourteen, began his career in journalism by spending a year in New York learning the printing business. Returning to Stanstead, he resumed his school studies at Stanstead College, where he secured his diploma in the commercial department.

He resumed his newspaper career following completion of his studies, working in printing and publishing houses in New York and Boston for a few years before purchasing the Gootlook Observer in 1889, in company with W. L. Shurtliff, to begin his career in the Eastern Townships.

Within the year, however, he sold his half-interest and founded the Compton County Chronicle at Cookshire with himself as editor and owner. He made such a success of this venture that L. E. Channell, a Sherbrooke lawyer, bought out the whole establishment in 1896.

Mr. Channell was the author of "A History of Compton County," which was acclaimed by the late Senator George Foster as the best county history he had ever seen.

While compiling the history of the county, the author conceived the idea of a daily newspaper which would record the happenings in the E.T. With only a modest capital at his disposal, he launched the Sher-

HARPIST GAVE FINE CONCERT LAST EVENING

Sherbrooke music lovers last night listened to one of the most outstanding recitals of the season at Plymouth United Church, when Miss Ruth Blane, gifted Montreal harpist, presented a well-chosen programme consisting of works by Bach, Dvorak, Grandjany and Salzedo.

Opening the first part of her programme, Miss Blane gave a masterful performance of the Bourée in C Flat Major from Johann Sebastian Bach's 1st Partita Suite. In her rendition of the Bach composition, the artist displayed fine technique and interpretive powers which rang true in mood and expression. Solemne Air, by Christoph Willibald von Gluck, filled with a soft, somber way of a religious nature, received a polished treatment and effective use was made of a series of arpeggios which added to the warmth and beauty of the Air.

An arrangement of John Reading's time-hallowed "Adeste Fideles" by Carlos Salzedo, world-renowned harpist and teacher of Miss Blane, concluded the first portion of the programme. This arrangement of the ancient carol evokes about a series of variations on the main theme into which is woven a series of intricate contrapuntal patterns, which require skillful handling.

Miss Blane's second portion of the programme was highlighted by a series of four excerpts from a suite comprising ten selections entitled "Pictures of Childhood" which was written especially for the harp by Carlos Salzedo. Those performed were Clock Maker's Shop, The Dandy, Little Soldier's Lullaby and Little Soldiers. Although short compositions, the harpist played each one in a truly delightful manner, depicting with great vividness the descriptive episodes of childhood, and unfolding each story with colorful imagination.

Other selections in this group included Antonin Dvorak's Humoresque, and a French folk song, "Le Bon Petit Roi Deyvetot," by the contemporary Canadian composer, Marcel Grandjany, which were performed with marked finesse.

Terminating the evening's programme, Miss Blane played Salzedo's "Variations on a Theme in the Ancient Style." In this work, the composer wrote a succession of variations on an original theme, in the style of several of the old masters. This piece called forth all the technical and artistic reserves of the artist, who showed her versatility as a harpist in a flawless rendition.

Assisting in the programme was J. G. Scherer, organist for Plymouth United Church, who gave commendable performances of "Chorus of Angels," by Clarke, "Reverie," by Hodson, "Toccata in A Minor," by Halsey, and "The Nightingale and the Rose," by Camille Saint-Saens.

The artists were introduced by the Rev. Francis A. C. Dossie, pastor of the church.

Bishop's Won Debate At McGill Ottawa University Carried Off Decision In Lennoxville Event

The presentation of their argument that the programme of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation could not save democracy in Canada won the decision of the judges for Paul Crepeau and Michael Galvin, of Ottawa University, in their debate against Bishop's University debaters, Francis Gooch and Leonard Waldman, in the first round of the Inter-University debating contest at Bishop's last night.

The unanimous decision was submitted by judges J. E. Perry, of Lennoxville, and J. Bachand and A. C. Skinner, of Sherbrooke. Chairman of the formal debate was the Ven. Archdeacon Jones. Leonard Baird, President of the Bishop's University Literary and Debating Society, acted as monitor.

At McGill University the Bishop's University upholders of the negative, W. C. MacVean and Ormond Hopkins, defeated the McGill team. The winning university in each of the eastern and western divisions will be announced by officials of the Inter-University debating League some time next week. Other universities in the league besides Bishop's, Ottawa and McGill are Loyola, McMaster, Western, Ottawa St. Pat's, and Queens. The division winners will advance to the second and final round on February 22.

Francis Gooch, affirmative captain, was the opening speaker. After welcoming the Ottawa visitors to Bishop's Gooch proceeded to outline the affirmative argument in favor of the programme of the C.C.F., first clarifying the resolution: "Resolved that the Salvation of Canadian Democracy Demands the Implementation of the Programme of the C.C.F." Gooch spoke on the two points: finance and industry. He argued that government ownership of monopolistic industries would mean a freer, more wide spread democracy.

The first speaker for the negative was Michael Galvin, of Ottawa. Paul Crepeau, refuted several of his opponents' points and went on to argue that socialism had failed to produce a better democracy in any of the countries in which it has been instituted. Crepeau backed much of his argument with quotations from prominent opponents of the movement as well as with quotations from the C.C.F. manifesto.

Leonard Waldman, second speaker for the hosts, used as the basis of his argument points on the social and business set-up in Canada today.

Upholding the affirmative of the resolution: "Resolved that the salvation of Canadian democracy demands the implementation of the C.C.F. programme," William McVean and Ormond Hopkins, Bishop's University debaters last night at McGill Union, Montreal.

Debating for McGill were Sherwin Raymond, second year medical student, and Isidore Rosenfeld, pre-medical student.

Loyola College debaters Jack O'Brien and Arthur Halley, both arts students, last night won a decision over McGill University debaters James Hennessey, first year student, and Richard Blanchard, first year engineering student, on the same resolution. Loyola was upholding the affirmative.

Last night's debates were preliminary rounds in the Inter-University Debating Competition. Winners in the eastern and western sections of the league will meet on February 22 for the Inter-University Debating League Trophy which has now been up for intercollegiate competition for 30 years.

His debate advocated replacement of a capitalist regime by the C.C.F. plan of national ownership. The final speaker for the negative was Michael Galvin. He illustrated how socialism had failed to work in France and England. He, too, upheld his argument with numerous quotations. Galvin rebutted the debate of the second speaker of the affirmative for several minutes before developing his debate.

All four debaters made good use of the extensive literature which has been published on this controversial subject. These facts were gathered from newspaper clippings, magazines and C.C.F. as well as anti-C.C.F. pamphlets and books.

The large assembly of students and guests were very receptive to the well-laid arguments of the public speakers.

The Rev. A. H. McGee, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Bishop's University at last night's debate made his first public appearance since his return from a trip to Western Canada. Others in the audience included the Vice-Principal, Dean Basil Jones and several of the professors on the teaching staff.

The visiting debaters will return to Ottawa University this evening.

Immediate Alleviation Of Shortage Of Buses In Sherbrooke Impossible

Alleviation of the critical shortage of buses now existing in Sherbrooke was seen to be far off today with the announcement by City Clerk Deslauriers that the City Fathers had been informed at a meeting between the Council and officials of the Provincial Transit Company that the current shortage of vehicles throughout the Dominion made it impossible to meet Sherbrooke's needs.

The Council put forth its complaints to the transit officials, claiming that overloading of buses existed, and also asked for service for Collinsville, changes in regard to certain routes, and that new vehicles be immediately put into service.

H. J. Curtis, Vice-President and Treasurer, explaining the current situation, told the City Fathers that new vehicles are impossible to obtain. He stated that during 1944, the Transit Controller, George Gray, had allocated 26 buses to the company, comprised of two parlor coaches, six city buses and eighteen suburban vehicles. However, at the time the allocation was made on the condition that the company meet all control requirements around the war plants in the territory.

He further explained that, at the time the controller permitted the company to order the buses, the firm had hoped that, when delivery of the new equipment was made, they would be able to transfer some good equipment to Sherbrooke.

However, Mr. Curtis pointed out, by the time the vehicles arrived, war traffic in and around Montreal had increased to such large proportions that all the vehicles were required to handle it.

"In point of fact," he declared, "although 1945 was such a heavy year, during 1944 our interurban and war plant services covered 1,279,985 miles more than in 1943, carrying 1,731,324 more passengers. To supplement our own fleet, we are leasing vehicles from other owners wherever they can be obtained."

The Provincial Transit official further declared that the company had been allocated, in late 1944, 25 interurban coaches which are expected in May, and that the firm is hoping that, by the end of the week, they will be able to get more vehicles but that these, even if granted, are not expected before summer.

He disclosed that he had communicated with the Controller and had

The Sherbrooke Senior Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are making application to the National Film Board for the establishment in this city of a regional film centre which would be operated by the members of these two groups, it was learned today.

Members of the trade organizations have met Raymond Mondor, regional supervisor of the National Film Board, who outlined the conditions under which the Federal Government makes available projectors and films. Further information is being sought by the Senior Chamber and a definite announcement is expected within a few days.

Mr. Mondor explained that the National Film Board specializes in presenting educational films to men and women in the armed services, workers in war industries, farmers, educationists, women's groups, schools, university extension departments, adult education groups, professional and civic organizations of all kinds.

Mr. Mondor added that the backbone of non-theatre distribution are the film repositories and in the provinces there are now forty of these regional centres where films may be borrowed for a nominal fee. He said that the National Film Board is encouraging the setting up of new repositories in communities where this service is not already available.

If such a centre were established in Sherbrooke members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, working in harmony with their senior confederates, would attend to the presentation of the films throughout the district.

FINANCE DRIVE FOR SCOUTS TO BE HELD HERE

The Sherbrooke Local Association of the Boy Scouts Association will hold a financial campaign from February 19 to March 3 on a similar basis as the one held in 1936. At that time, the public was advised that the money collected would be stretched over a period of five years, when it was expected that another campaign would be conducted. Through careful handling, however, the officials were able to stretch the money over a period of nine years.

The Chairman of the Campaign for this year will be W. S. Roy, and the members of the Committee are D. J. Salls, C. E. Soles, F. J. Briggs, C. Campbell and G. E. Ewing. The Committee is grateful to the local Y's Men's Club for their offer to assist with the Campaign.

The money to be collected this year is greatly needed in view of the fact that the Scouts officials are planning to expand their activities, with possible institution of Air and Sea Scouts units.

The cause is a good one, for the Boy Scouts Association is a training ground for citizens of tomorrow.

1,000 MEMBERS ARE SOUGHT BY B. AND P. W. CLUB

Alderman Hilda Henson, of Winnipeg, President of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, who was a guest of the local club at a buffet supper meeting held at 133 Quebec Street last night, rendered a gathering of members that the objective of the Federation for the next two years is 1,000 new members. There is power in numbers, and the Federation will be more able to act in matters affecting business and professional women with a large body of interested and powerful women in its ranks.

Miss Henson, who was speaking on "National and International Affairs of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs," read excerpts from letters from European and American presidents, and stressed the linking up of clubs and federations of other countries, through the International Federation. She gave a summary of a conference of the emergency committee of the International Federation which she attended recently in New York, at which two questions discussed were: What can be done to assist clubs in liberated countries? and the possibility of finding someone to carry on extension work in Europe.

In conjunction with the University Women's Club, the Business and Professional Women's Club in Canada is compiling a list of women capable of fulfilling Government positions. Women in Canada have for a long time been holding down responsible positions, and it is the relief of these organizations that they should have Government recognition.

Miss Henson spoke of the type of women that are at the helm of the Business and Professional Women's Club, women that all should be proud to be associated with. The executive of the club are women of excellent qualifications, well fitted to take an important part in the building of the mosaic of the new world, one worth while working for.

Following Miss Henson's address, there was a general discussion of equal pay for equal work, Government appointments, expansion, etc.

Miss Henson, who is an Alderman of the City of Winnipeg, was introduced by Miss Marjorie Moir, President of the local club, and was thanked by Miss Berne Milford. A short business meeting followed the guest speaker's address.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR EXPANDING WORK OF SCOUTS

Parents, Committee members, La-nep's Auxiliary members and Leaders assembled last night at St. Patrick's Academy to discuss plans for the reorganization of local Boy Scouts troops. Present at the meeting was Frank Hicks, Provincial Field Secretary, of Montreal, who spoke on "Scouting, Today and Tomorrow," and pointed out the various duties of the Group Committee and the Mothers' Auxiliary.

An interesting feature of the programme was the presentation of a long service and efficiency medal to District Commissioner C. Blake by Mr. Hicks. Commissioner Blake has completed twenty-five years of service in the Boy Scout movement in this district.

It has been definitely decided by the local officials that a Drum and Bugle Band will be organized in the Lennoxville Troop under the leadership of District Scoutmaster R. Blake, who has had experience in this connection.

An Air Scouts Patrol is to be created in St. Peter's Troop under the instruction of ex-R.C.A.F. personnel, and this troop is having a joint meeting tonight with St. Andrew's Troop in St. Peter's Church Hall at which Mr. Hicks and others will be present to explain the new plans for these troops. At present, St. Andrew's Troop is carrying on a recruiting campaign, and plans are continuing for the formation of a Sea Scouts unit at St. Paul's.

St. Patrick's Troop is remaining as it is at present.

It has been announced by the local Association that camping will be available this summer for every Scout in this district, and that a Patrol Leaders' banquet is to be held in the latter part of this month.

THE BIG THREE MEET AGAIN

The general tenor of German broadcasts and press statements indicates that the Nazis are expecting little good to emerge for them from the present Big Three Conference of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin now underway somewhere in the Black Sea region. And they have little reason to expect anything favorable, as the military sections of the talks are undoubtedly devoted to the means of speeding up the annihilation of Germany from a military point of view.

At the present time the Russians on the East and the Allied air forces from the West are doing a pretty fair job of bringing this condition about, but it is highly probable that the Big Three will prepare plans for the even closer co-ordination of their forces for the intensifying of the warfare on the Western and Italian fronts.

And from the long-range political point of view there can be little of comfort for the hard-pressed German leaders, for the statement on the progress of the conference emphasized that one of the matters now being discussed was the preparation of joint plans for the occupation and control of Germany, a clear indication that the United Nations are determined that the Reich will be rendered impotent to wage another war for many years to come.

Britain and Russia have bitter memories of the actions and policies of the Germans and there is every indication that hard realism has replaced idealism and doctrines among the hard-boiled officials in the foreign offices of the two countries. Russia can only remember with feelings of hatred the awful atrocities committed on its soil and against its people by the Nazis, while the British Isles have the memories of the blitz, the robot and the rocket bombs. Thus they will insist on a system that will guarantee peace for large and small nations alike, being thoroughly fed up with fine phrases. They remember that after the last war, the British Government followed the United States all down the road, from Wilson's fourteen points for small nations, naval disarmament and the Kellogg Peace Pact. That road led to Munich and Dunkirk. This time the Britons say "No" and seek that certain peace which can only be assured by practical means—in other words they see that force is necessary to any lasting security.

GERMAN LABOR GANGS

One proposal which is said to have received the strong support of the British Government is that after the conclusion of hostilities the Germans be organized into labor battalions and used for the reconstruction of devastated countries.

The whole idea has much to recommend it, both from an economic and sentimental point of view. Certainly there could be little that would give such satisfaction to the people of the once-oppressed countries to see the once-mighty German supermen engaged in such menial tasks as removing the debris and digging for water mains in such cities as Amsterdam and Warsaw. Even more irony would be given the situation if these labor battalions were placed under the command of residents of the country in which they were working. Perhaps it might be possible to ensure that the officers in charge the German groups be former inmates of concentration camps or men who have been deported from their homeland to work as slaves in German factories.

A strong material and economic case can be made for the suggestion. It will take many, many years to restore Europe to a semblance of normalcy after the German depredations. Millions of men, and days must be spent in reconstructing houses and other dwellings for the people before any of these nations can hope to resurrect their industrial and economic facilities. It would be only justice that Germany be made to pay this cost. But the post-war Germany will be a poor nation and it is the aim of most European countries that she remain too poor to go on another rampage. Thus she will be unable to make good financially the losses she has caused.

But she can provide a substantial portion of the manpower required for these tasks. Under the plan advanced, every able-bodied German would be conscripted into these labor battalions and after enough had been set aside to maintain the bare economic needs of a defeated nation, the rest would be despatched to where the greatest amount of work was required.

There might be some soft-hearted objections that it is impossible to enslave a people. But it must be remembered that the German people gave their support to Hitler largely because he promised to enslave the world and they were more and more enthusiastic as he came nearer and nearer achieving his objective. Now they must be prepared to pay the price.

WHY RUSSIA WANTS PEACE

One thing that many of the people who are predicting that Russia will prove a troublesome member of the United Nations in the days following the war forget is that it is a country of tremendous natural resources, which can be developed properly only through an extended period of peace. And to this end, it is probable that Russia may find it expedient to join in any drive to eliminate Japan as a troublemaker after Germany is disposed of.

Illustrative of the extent of the country is the report that the Russians are making experiments with the growing of grapefruit, which may be a surprise to those who believe that it is a land of cold and frost. As a matter of fact Russia has an area of more than eight million square miles and the vast surface has belts of widely varying temperatures.

In the north of Russia there is intense winter cold. The port of Murmansk is north of the Arctic Circle. On the great inland plains of both European Russia and Siberia there are sharp extremes of climate. In winter there are freezing winds and heavy snows on the inland central plains. There is a projection of Russia, however, that runs deep into the southland. Probably it is there that the grapefruit experiments are being made. Lenkoran, which is about the furthest south town, is virtually in the same latitude as Athens and the tip of the toe of Italy, the land of the olive groves. Lenkoran is farther south than Valencia in Spain where the oranges grow. In fact the southern tip of Russia is well below the fortieth degree of latitude.

With such a vast country and with such varying degrees of climate Russia certainly is destined for great development. There are illimitable acres for the production of grain and herds. There are forests and there are mineral bearing regions. It is a country wide enough to give full scope to all the energies of the Russian people without them hunting for additional territory. But to develop their country and make it the land they hope it will become, they cannot be continually disturbed by warlike neighbors. Thus they are anxious for the complete defeat of Germany and may hold the same views toward Japan.

GERMAN REORGANIZATION

Although a certain degree of interest can be displayed in reports emanating from Germany that a general reorganization of the Government may take place as a prelude to direct peace overtures, it would be unwise to place either too much credence or too much interest in these stories. According to these reports, Hitler will relinquish his dictatorship and will become President, while Franz von Papen will become Chancellor.

In any evaluation of the German situation it must be remembered that the key men in the governmental machine are willing to make any move required to maintain their power, even if it means casting themselves into minor roles or disappearing from the picture completely, leaving the administration of the country to stooges, who will take their orders from the underground.

But the report that Franz von Papen will head the new government makes it decidedly unacceptable to the United Nations who have many unpleasant memories of this shrewd but unprincipled diplomat, who has been involved in every piece of devilry perpetrated by Germany during the past thirty-five years. It was he who organized the reign of sabotage which affected United States industry during the First Great War and was highlighted by the famous Black Tom explosion. He was the man who sold out his former Chancellor to come onto Hitler's bandwagon and it was von Papen that Hitler entrusted the work of bringing the Balkans into line and in lining Turkey up against the United Nations.

Similarly other members of the proposed government, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch have unsavory reputations as far as the Allies are concerned and it would not be surprising if any overtures they might advance will be promptly rejected.

PRESS COMMENTS

CANADA STILL HAS THAT LUKE

Fort William Times-Journal.

Canada still has the conditions, resources and scope that make an appeal to immigrants from European countries. In the first years of the present century many thousands of immigrants came to Canada from Europe and a very large number of them prospered. Those who came, not as sects, but as individuals proved to be particularly good settlers and long since they have become assimilated into the general population. Some of these original settlers still may have difficulty in speaking fluent English but the younger generation only can be distinguished by their names from the English-speaking people of the country.

For a number of years now there has been little immigration into Canada and the man or woman who does not speak the common language of the country is becoming more and more rare. This is especially true where the immigrants of years ago settled individually and without ties and restrictions imposed by sectarian faith. Such groups as the Doukhobors have been difficult to assimilate. They have kept their own ways, have clung to their own language and customs and their settlement in this country cannot be regarded as a success.

In the old days, when every train brought in throngs of new settlers from Central Europe, the newcomers spoke a strange jargon of tongues. There were men and families from Galicia, Ukraine, Poland, Hungary and other countries. Most of these settlers worked hard and were thrifty. They made homes and they have been absorbed into the national citizenry. Those who were young when they arrived or who were born here now hardly can be distinguished from Canadians of British stock.

Those immigrants of the early years of the century found Canada to be a land where they could build homes and where they could enjoy equal rights as citizens. They found it a land of promise, in which the promise could be realized by the industrious and the thrifty. It is gratifying to know that Canada still is the Canada of old as far as immigrants are concerned and that if and when the day arrives when the gates again will be opened the newcomers will find a country where they can live happily and prosperously.

When Canada opened the doors of the country and the farmlands of Northwestern Saskatchewan and Alberta to refugees from Czechoslovakia and Sudetenland five years ago she got something of a bargain. Ken Liddell writes in the February issue of Canadian Business. To confirm his statement Mr. Liddell traces the lives of the 1,000 such refugees who reached Canada before war interrupted further immigration.

At St. Walburg, Sask., for example, 147 families and 34 single men settled on the land. Today, five years later, 67 of these families are still operating their farms and making them pay. Six disposed of their land and took jobs in the cities, and the remainder have rented their farms and are now working in war plants. Some of the men who left returned to their own professions, one as a newspaper editor, another as a doctor. Of the single men, five are still on the land, 20 have enlisted in the armed forces and the balance have entered business or war industry.

When the refugees came to Canada it was anticipated that ninety per cent would wish to return to Europe after the war. Now few, if any, show that desire and most are seeking Canadian citizenship.

AN EVIL EXAMPLE

Winnipeg Free Press.

The Alberta Government is evidently eager to reach an understanding with the bondholders so that its credit may be restored, so that it may be able to borrow money publicly in the post-war era, when such borrowings may prove essential. There can be no restoration of Alberta's credit, of course, until it outlines the stigma of repudiation and starts afresh by agreement with its creditors.

Ironically enough, while Alberta is emerging from the dizzy experiment of Social Credit (which finally consisted of nothing but robbery of the bondholders) Saskatchewan, next door is in the first stages of an experiment yet more dizzy, in provincial socialism, and already its credit has been largely undermined.

The province can borrow only from its friends who are willing to

AGAIN, SKILFUL PLAY CASHES EXTRA TRICK

Capt. Jack Berry, who is stationed with the Engineers in Alaska, stopped off on his way home to Pittsburgh recently.

Jack took full advantage of West's opening to make the maximum out of today's hand. He won the opening lead with the king of clubs. Now he had to decide whether he was going to try to ruff the diamonds out but he could see that he might lose a spade, a club and two hearts if he elected that line of play, so instead he cashed the king of hearts and led a small heart over to his ace. The ten of clubs was then played and when West refused to cover, the finesse was taken.

Now the deuce of clubs picked up the jack and established the clubs. On the five of clubs, Captain Berry discarded the three of spades. West trumped with the jack of hearts and then led the king of spades, which Berry won. The three of diamonds

So, think of your audience before you settle for a hat, a hair-do or a bag, for instance, that's too utterly daffy.

Some more "don'ts" to bear in mind, if you're out to win the masculine vote—these tips come from radio thrush Georgia Carroll (Mrs. Kay Kyser) who hears them from the bandmen of the "College of Musical Knowledge"—are lipstick smudges on water glasses, primping in public mirrors; corsages that get in between you and your dancing partner.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

The Situation: A member of your family leaves an opened letter about.

Wrong Way: Read it if you are interested, figuring that if it were something he didn't want others to read he would have put it away or torn it up.

Right Way: Never read another person's letter, unless you have been told specifically to do so. Members of a family should be able to leave their letters anywhere in the house without having them read by other members of the family.

MESS ROOM CHATTER

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Feb. 9.—Two Canadian instructors at an R.A.F. Coastal Command Sunderland flying boat training unit in Britain took a crew of R.A.F. air-men pupils on a routine anti-submarine patrol and ran into some unexpected excitement.

The big British aircraft was attacked by a Nazi Junkers 88. The Junkers was believed damaged in the fight but the Sunderland wasn't hit once.

PO. C. N. Ulrick of Hillcrest, Alta., 24-year-old flying instructor, was at the controls and FO. R. M. McDonald of St. Andrews West, Ont., was gunnery leader.

The J88 pounced on the Sunderland in broad daylight soon after the patrol started. Enemy tracer was passing underneath the flying boat when one of the R.A.F. pupils opened fire from the rear gun turret. He fired 800 rounds and could see his tracer going into the enemy aircraft. The Nazi broke off the engagement quickly.

A Saskatchewan pilot with an R.A.F. Mosquito squadron of Coastal Command participated in a recent shipping strike which left an enemy merchantman burning in Norwegian waters.

"As we approached the target we passed over a small town and German heavy flak batteries opened up at us, together with the ships' and light shore batteries," said PO. J. Harnett of Bradwell.

The leaders had to fly through a box-barrage of flak but by the time we came in it had eased off," Harnett said it was impossible to get a clear picture of the results of Films from the National Film Board were shown in the Town Hall. The first film, "When Asia Speaks," is of great importance at this time, as all wonder whether its people will form a Democracy, accept Fascism, help to establish world peace, or form a barrier between East and West. In India there is a demand for freedom from British rule. In some parts the Japanese have used various tricks to show that the white man is an enemy, and in China there is dissatisfaction. Our problem is to convince them that they can trust us, and urge them to work together with mutual respect. The second film, "Up Periscope," was most interesting; the third film, "New Towns for Old"; the fourth, "Caissons Go Rolling Along," and 5th, "Looking Through Glass."

WINS ROSS MEDAL

The Engineering Institute of Canada has announced the award of the R. A. Ross medal to R. A. H. Hayes, M.E.I.C., Assistant Chief Engineer of Aluminum Laboratories, Limited. The medal, which will be presented at the Institute's annual dinner in Winnipeg, was awarded to Mr. Hayes for his paper, "Electrical Equipment at Shipshaw," which appeared in the April 1943 issue of the Engineering Journal.

A native of New Brunswick, Mr. Hayes is a graduate of Mount Allison and McGill Universities and, before joining Aluminum Laboratories Limited, was associated with the engineering, design and construction of several of the hydro-electric plants in Eastern Canada, also in transmission line design and power cable engineering. Appointed Assistant Chief Engineer of Aluminum Laboratories Limited in 1941 when the Shipshaw power development was initiated, Mr. Hayes assumed responsibility for the co-ordination of the undertaking and in this capacity made a notable contribution toward the record time in which power from this project was made available for war industry.

Stafford, President of the Quebec Sherbrooke Presbytery of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada. The special object for the coming year was discussed and it was decided that money would be given for a dispensary in connection with a western hospital. Tentative plans were laid for the thank-offer meeting, which comes in April. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. E. E. Temple, who delivered an excellent article on "Temperance," and this was followed by a lively discussion. Articles were read from the "Blue Book on Medical Work," by Mrs. McHarg, especially concerning dispensaries, which was very fitting due to the special objective. It enabled the ladies a little wider knowledge of just what the work would be.

BY FRED HARMAN

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

In a Quandary

BY MERRILL BLOSSER

A SONG to REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

Copyright, 1945, Willard Wiener. Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: At the age of 10, Frederic Chopin's dexterity at the piano has already made him a person of note in the little Polish village of Zelazowa Wola. Count Skarbek, owner of the village, has requested that he play in a public concert at Warsaw. Frederic confides in Professor Elsner that he and his young friends have been having secret meetings and when they grow up intend to fight for the freedom of Poland, which is under the rule of the Russian Czar. Elsner is sympathetic, dreams of the day when the Paris musical world will acknowledge Frederic's genius.

THE CONCERT

The excitement of preparing for Fritzen's first public performance had its effect on Mamma Chopin. She was put to bed with a fever and it was thought she would not be well enough to attend. "I am not sick," Mamma said. "How perfectly ridiculous."

She called for Fritzen and the boy went into the bedroom and stood alongside Mamma's bed and took Mamma's hand.

"Frederic, did they tell you Mamma was sick?"

"Yes, Mamma."

"That is a terrible thing to tell you. Look at me. Does your Mamma look sick?"

"No, Mamma."

"I am not sick yet they won't let me get up. What am I to do? I am as well as anybody but to them that doesn't make any difference. I must still do as they say. Well, I will do it, of course, I am not so stubborn. I will do it if only to show them. But when they say I am sick, then I don't know what to say. I want to laugh in their faces. Fritzen, my darling, your Mamma can laugh as heartily as any of them."

She laughed and Fritzen joined in the laughter.

"Now, my darling, there are just one or two things I must tell you."

"Yes, Mamma."

"Your Mamma is not sick. That is the first thing. But do I have to tell you that? You can see for yourself. Now the next thing, Fritzen—the night air is not good for you. You will please see that your coat is tight about your neck, and do not open it, whatever you do."

"I won't open it, Mamma."

"Well, then I am sure you won't. Now, my darling, kiss your Mamma on the cheek."

Frederic placed his lips on her warm cheeks that were wet with tears.

"No, Fritzen, I am not crying. Why should I cry? This is all such nonsense. My children—they are all beautiful, talented—every one."

"Well, there is only this to say—when you walk out on the stage and you see all those people in front of you, looking up at you, you must not cry, or run away. Hold your head up, firm. Fritzen, show me exactly how you are going to hold your head up."

"I will hold it like this, Mamma."

"Yes, firm. And always, no matter what happens, hold your head up. And when you play, Fritzen, remember you are playing for your Mamma and your Papa and for your dear sisters, who are always proud of you, and for Professor Elsner. Nothing—nothing in the world must make you forget that."

"I won't forget it."

"I will be thinking of you, Frederic, all the time—every moment. I will be thinking of nothing else. Yes, another thing, I had almost forgotten. Count Skarbek will be there, he will be in a box, on the side of the stage. You can be sure he will have his eyes on you. Well, that is nothing to be afraid of. It might be a nice thing, Fritzen, when you have finished, to take a step or two toward the box where he is and make a special bow to him."

"But why should I bow to him, Mamma, and not to all?"

Mamma puckered her lips. "Fritzen, the Count is a very, very great man."

Frederic said, "Yes, but he is not so great as Professor Elsner."

Mamma could not sleep; she could not even close her eyes. She tossed and was very restless. All her thoughts were of the concert. Would Fritzen remember all she had told him? Her ears were alert for the sounds of the returning carriage. She heard nothing but the wind in the eaves.

One thing she had managed to do before they had put her to bed, a perfectly well woman; she had managed to see that Fritzen looked his best. She and Papa had laid out the money for the very finest velvet trousers and new shoes and a handsome smock with a broad collar and sturdy strings with which to keep the smock in place about the child's neck. He wore mittens, too, for his fingers must be warm if they were to be limber.

At last! They were home at last!

Mamma sat up. She flung the bedcovers from her, but, on second thought, pulled them back, then she shouted, "Well! Are you there!"

Fritzen was at the door first. Mamma saw by the light of the candles how his eyes glowed. She knew the concert was a success.

"It was, wasn't it?"

Papa Chopin, his high hat still on his head, was in the doorway.

"Well, don't any of you say anything?"

"I wasn't afraid, Mamma."

"No, no! Don't tell me that. I know that. What was there to be afraid of? But how was it? How did the people act? Did they applaud? That's what I want to know. Did they applaud? Well, don't you open your mouth? Don't you say anything?"

"They looked at me, Mamma. Well, not so much at me. But they all looked at my new collar!"

Poster Acclaimed

Art circles are acclaiming the above poster by the Canadian painter, Rex Wood, as one of the major highlights of the pictorial publicity in the promotion of war savings during this war. This portrait of a soldier, whose stern eyes ask, "What Have You Done Today?", is currently being used in connection with the five-week, nationwide $3,000,000 Food and Allied Industries War Savings Stamp campaign, of which Gordon Nadeau and J. Repairs To Farm Buildings In This District Recommended In Report Of Agronomes Corporation, E.T. Section

The Corporation of Agronomes of the Province of Quebec, E. T. section, in its post-war recommendations on agriculture, estimate at $15,000,000 the total evaluation of improvements to farm buildings required in the district. This represents a total of 7,558 farms.

The report continues: It is anticipated that about 15% to 20% of the farmers will take advantage of the loan for the first year. There might be an increase during the subsequent years, according to the propaganda that will be made. This would represent an outlay of about $3,000,000 to be put at the farmers' disposal for the first year; the money to be loaned under the basis of long and medium terms.

The utilization of the principal thus loaned will certainly promote the employment of labour, in the rural districts, after the war. A repulsion in the same way will also be seen on the business connected with the building industries.

If to be able to borrow money the farmers are obliged to follow definite plans of constructions, it is suggested that the said plans could be modified according to the conditions already existing on each farm and following the recommendations of the agronomes.

SPECIAL NOTES CONCERNING CERTAIN ITEMS OF THE PRECEDING TABLE
Item "A" — A second house would be a great help on many farms, either for the son coming back home, who would be probably married or for the hired man, who in many cases should be married.
Item "C" — An educational campaign should be made and a substantial help granted to the farmers so that they would take advantage of the offer for better living through the use of a bath room, running water, heating system, etc.
Item "D" — Many farm buildings have not been built during the war but should be shortly after. Some others would need important improvements such as: lighting system, ventilation, etc. The building of silos is likely to be widely expanded considering the very interesting reports of experiments on grass silage which are being carried at the present time.
Item "E" — The community hall should be built by the Government and turned over to the community, where it will be used for parish, school, municipal, agricultural and recreational meetings. This is in order to bring together, as often as possible, the young people as well as their elders, to enable them to know each other better and to teach them to cooperate more.

VICTORIAVILLE DISTRICT
A good hall is needed in every parish for agricultural meetings, etc., and the same must be built by the Government. In the case of new constructions or repairs of old farm buildings, a loan should be allowed by the Government to the farmers at 2% interest, on a ten-year instalment plan.
GRANBY DISTRICT
There are about 1,000 barn-stables that should be built in Brome and Shefford Counties; about 2,000 silos for hay or corn silage; this project would be extended over a five year period.
This Committee recommends to the Federal Government to make loans to farmers desirous of installing bath-rooms, sewage disposal and running water in homes and barns, etc.
Loans are also recommended for the building of homes for farmers' sons or hired men. About three hundred houses would be built under this plan in these two counties. These loans would be re-imposed over a period of ten years.
Loans should also be made to municipalities so that a community hall be built in every village and where entertainments given for the young folks of the vicinity would help to keep them on the farm.

Experimental evidence has shown that insect enemy No. 1 of the gladiolus, the gladiolus thrips, is unable to hibernates out of doors in Canada. Only the thrips carried into storage on the corns survive. This fact accentuates the importance of treating all gladiolus corns by one of the several approved methods before the corns are set out in the garden in the spring.

Order Fertilizers Take Delivery Now

Unless farmers place their orders for fertilizers at once and take immediate delivery, there is grave danger that they may not be able to get any later on, says the Fertilizer Administrator.

While it is considered that the available supply of fertilizers is sufficient to meet all requirements the difficulty, however, is in connection with delivery. There has been a tendency on the part of farmers in Eastern Canada particularly, to delay ordering the fertilizers they need for the spring and in taking immediate delivery. The situation with respect to railway box cars, due to wartime conditions, is that there are not enough to meet all the abnormal demands for them. Then the labor shortage is now more critical than ever before. Many plants during the winter are carried on principally by men from farms. Should there be an early spring many of these farmers will return to their farms and the problem of shipping fertilizers will be much more difficult.

Fertilizers are very important to increased production of land products, still urgently needed in the war effort.

Avoiding delay in placing orders and taking immediate delivery of fertilizers will help substantially to relieve the present situation. All fertilizer plants have a large supply of mixed fertilizers in stock available for distribution now, says the Administrator.

New Regulations Affect Live Stock

New regulations have recently been adopted by the American authorities governing the importation of live stock from Canada, effective February 1, 1945.

The only substantial change from the present regulations in respect to the certification of freedom from tuberculosis in the case of cattle originating other than in accredited herds or accredited areas and other than strictly range cattle.

Cattle exported from areas in Canada, which are in the process of accreditation, must have proved negative to the tuberculin test within thirty days prior to shipment and the herd or herds in which they originated must have proved negative to the test within the previous twelve months.

In the case of all other cattle the certificate must show a negative test for the animals reported, including the entire herd in which they originated, within the preceding thirty days.

Yearling Given Certificate For High Production

Last year the Experimental Farm at Lennoxville bought a carload of Jersey cattle from the famous herd of the Summerland Experimental Farm at Summerland, B.C. In this lot was a young heifer, and since coming to the Experimental Farm, she went on test as a Sr. yearling, and in 365 days has produced 7,819 lbs. of milk and 415 lbs. of fat with an average test of 5.67 per cent and has been awarded a Silver Medal Certificate by the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club for her outstanding production.

This new Medal winner, Summerland Flosson's Ray, is from the famous Summerland cow, Summerland Favorite Sparkle, that is also at the Experimental Farm at Lennoxville. Sparkle has been classified "Good" and she has a record of 10,665 lbs. of milk, 625 lbs. of fat with an average test of 5.86 per cent in 365 days as a Jr. 4 year old. She also has a Silver Medal record as a 3 year old.

POTATO BUG FOE

The young of the Colorado potato beetle are frequently attacked by a natural enemy known as the friendly perillus. The perillus is a flat, medium-sized, sucking insect which inserts its beak through the tender skin of the red and black grub, and quickly extracts the body juices. Death of the "potato bug" follows. The friendly perillus is definitely beneficial to potato growers and in some seasons assists materially in reducing the numbers of the potato beetle in a particular field or district.

CHIEF TEXTILE FIBRES

The principal textile fibres are wool, cotton, silk, flax, and rayon. Wool is the oldest and goes back to prehistoric times. Cotton was produced nearly 4,000 years ago, and linen from flax was woven in Egypt at a still earlier date. Silk was produced in China over 5,000 years ago, while rayon, the baby textile, was first produced commercially only 60 years ago.

NOTICE to POULTRYMEN

Egg receipts increasing — local demand good. Prices steady at export levels.

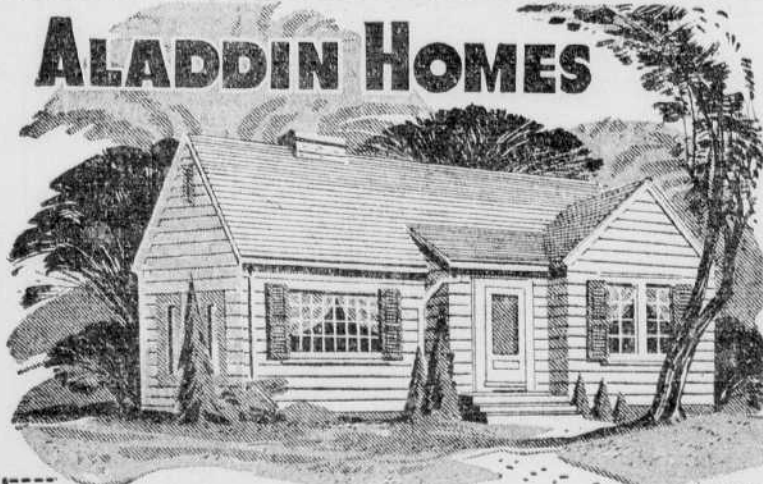

Poultry receipts moderate — demand good for fowl. Chickens that are nine months old are now falling into the class of old cockerels.

We strongly advise our shippers to place their orders with the hatcheries for baby chicks. You can depend on a good demand for all the table birds at prices as high, or higher, than they were last Summer and Fall. We have a market for all we can process.

We are installing an automatic scalding, which should step up our processing by 50%. Take advantage of this market, which we have worked to establish. It may not be the same another year.

A Dollar Can't See Through a Telescope

When it comes to a long distance venture like saving for the future, dollars alone can't see very far ahead.

Left alone, dollars are lazy by nature.

They just lie around in people's pockets until they are spent.

But the moment a dollar is paid on a life insurance policy, it starts to work.

The hundreds of millions of policyholders' dollars invested in Canada today are performing a three-fold service:—

1. They are setting up financial protection for the policyholders' old age or the future security of their families.
2. They are backing Canadian fighting men wherever our forces are in action.
3. Their investment now for future use acts, meantime, as a brake on consumer spending and so helps to fight inflation which would menace our fighting men and civilians alike.

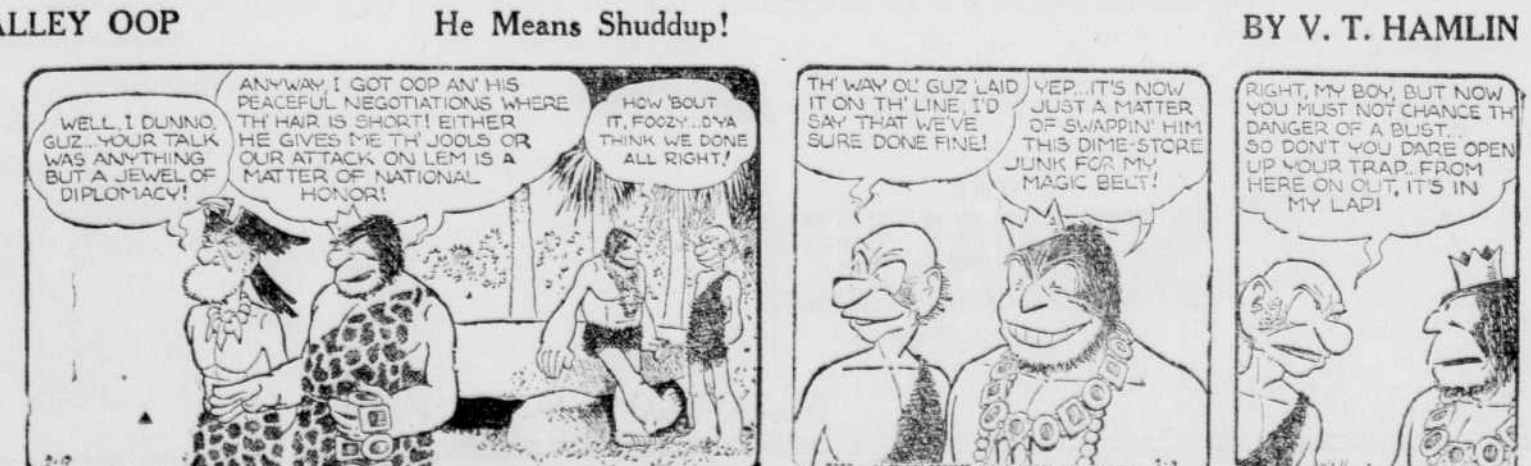

Actually life insurance dollars are among the busiest dollars in the world.

Such dollars are never idle. They are always circulating for the benefit of all.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE
