School board agrees to cooperate with press

By WENDY McMULLEN

Record Reporter

RICHMOND — A proposal that control should be exercised on The Record's reports of school board meetings was rejected by the school commissioners yesterday at a meeting of the regional school board at Richmond Regional High School.

The proposal was included in a report made by the newly established public relations committee. Commissioner Joan Keys said she believed that control of the press was treading on dangerous grounds and, that at a public meeting, a reporter should be able to report exactly what is heard. Commissioner Garth Fields supported Mrs. Keys on this subject and recommended that this should be deleted from the report.

After some debate in which one commissioner suggested, in all seriousness, that The Record's reports of school meetings should be submitted to the board for approval, the recommendation was changed to read "the board should cooperate with the press."

It was also suggested in the report that employees of the school board be restricted from writing letters to the editor without the authorization of the board. Several commissioners including Mr. Gresham and Mrs. Keys objected to this since they felt the board was overstepping its authority.

It was decided that individuals employed by the board may write letters in an unofficial capacity without mentioning the name of the board.

SHOULD TELL PUBLIC

The report made by the public relations committee also recommended that the public should be informed properly of all public meetings. Commissioner William Rick, supporting this recommendation, said that the board had fallen down badly on publicizing recent committee meetings and read out a recent editorial comment in this newspaper which suggested that not only parents but also other interested taxpayers who might wish to attend should be informed of the meetings.

Ian MacLay, director-general, said that the committee meetings were not designed for taxpayers in general but only those who had children attending the schools and therefore notices to parents only was sufficient.

However, the recommendations of the public relations committee with the exception of restriction of press reports and employees writing letters to the editor, were accepted by the board.

The delegation of powers and responsibilities to the executive committee was debated at length by the commissioners. William Rick, commissioner for Richmond, suggested that the powers delegated to the executive committee should be specified and a time limit placed on the list until bylaws defining the exact powers could be made. Otherwise there would be no reason for the existence of commissioners not on the executive committee, he said.

Mr. Rick specified that the powers should be delegated, not abdicated by the commissioners, otherwise the commissioners not on the executive committee would have no power.

It agreed by the board to allow the executive committee to make day-to-day decisions as long as they fall within school policy. The executive committee would continue to do so until specific bylaws were set up defining the powers of the committee.

A total of $6,400 is to be paid as remuneration to school commissioners, it was decided.

The recommendations of the executive committee that the commissioners should not take full advantage of the amount authorized under government statutes was rejected by the board on the grounds that the work involved requires a great deal of time and that it would establish a precedent which might discourage future commissioners to stand for election.

Chairman Gresham felt that the amount paid to him as chairman of the executive committee and member of the executive committee was embarrassingly large and therefore recommended that the sum be reduced since it comes from local taxpayers.

Mr. Gresham would receive an amount in excess of $2,000 annually for his three positions following the government recommendations. He recommended, therefore, that the sum be reduced to $400 for each responsibility.

Commissioner Cass suggested that if this remuneration were reduced there might be difficulty in getting commissioners in the future. Mrs. Keys said there should be a redistribution of the amount since the recommendations paid only the members of the executive committee and nothing at all to the other commissioners.

REDISTRIBUTE MONIES

Commissioner Marguerite Knapp's motion that the remuneration for the commissioners should be for the full amount specified but that if it is possible the amount should be redistributed so that each of the commissioners received $100 was accepted unanimously by the board.

Teachers who left the employment of the Regional School Board in 1971 will receive the same three per cent retroactive increase as presently employed teachers, the board decided.

Most of the 40 teachers affected by this are retired and this will add to the percentage of their pension.

Along the way, he denied that his government had ever tried to hogtie Maxwell Henderson, the federal auditor-general and watchdog on government spending. "That was one of the wildest stories to come out of this Parliament," he told a question session at a high school in Hanmer.

"We have not attempted to muzzle the auditor-general, as the opposition says. We have given him the funds and the authority to hire the people he requires."

Mr. Toupin told a news conference that firms which buy corn from farmers and then resell the same product for cattle feed are capitalizing unfairly on the scarcity of feed stock.

"This year's setback shouldn't be allowed to hamper development in the farming industry," he said.

Heavy rainfall and cold weather caused serious damage to most crops in the Eastern Townships this year, hitting early in the growing season and later when crops were ready to be harvested.

QUEBEC (CP) — A new Quebec byelection in Gatineau riding is to be held Nov. 15 following a Superior Court annulment of the Oct. 11 vote because of ballot irregularities.

Francois Drouin, Quebec's chief returning officer, told a news conference Wednesday that names of candidates in the new byelection are to be submitted by Nov. 1.

Opposition parties called for a recount in the riding after it was discovered that ballots carried consecutive numbers which they said could be used to find out how individuals voted.

Liberal Michel Gratton won the byelection with 15,023 votes. Harold Kelly of the Unite-Quebec party had 5,145 votes and Pierrette Dupont-Rousse of the Parti Quebecois had 4,186.

The Unite-Quebec and PQ candidates lost their deposits for failing to win 50 per cent of the number of votes won by Mr. Kelly. Mr. Drouin said the candidates will be reimbursed for their $200 deposits, but not their expenses.

Mr. Drouin said the byelection had not been annulled, but only the ballots. The same enumeration lists would be used in the new byelection.

It was the second such annulment in Quebec history, he said.

REJECT VOTES

Judge Arthur Labbe of Superior Court rejected all ballots, forcing a new election under the Election Act. If only some ballots had been rejected, the election would have been valid but the rejected ballots would not have been counted.

Mr. Drouin said his own investigation of the numbers on the ballots showed the situation arose from "technical error and not from bad faith on the part of the printer."

He said proofs of the ballots showed no errors and were accepted as legal forms.

However, the metal cast of the ballot form was dropped by a printing plant employee before the final ballot was printed, he said. When the cast was reset, numbers which were to appear only on the two ballot stubs were moved and appeared on the ballot as well.

Mr. Drouin said the printer, Maniwaki Printing, and two employees, had said in sworn statements to him that the matter was a technical error and they had not been pressured by any party to tamper with the ballots.

The number on a ballot does not correspond with the number on the stub. The stub number is registered only to show the order of ballots cast.

Mr. Drouin said that even with the same numbers on ballot and stub it would be "a mathematical problem" to determine how a person had voted as the sequence of ballots would be determined by what book of ballots a polling station started with.

Judge Labbe said in his judgment that it is not necessary to prove there was connivance between any group and the printer or that the principle of secret ballot was violated.

The judge said it was sufficient cause for a new election that it was possible to connect voters with ballots cast.

Mr. Drouin said it was strange that even though there were several clerks and scrutineers in every polling station, there were no complaints about numbers on the ballots "from scrutineers, candidates, parties or voters" until 11 p.m. of election night.

Mr. Drouin said the only previous annulment of a vote in Quebec occurred in Terrebonne riding during the 1935 provincial general election.

All the ballots were rejected because there was no square on the ballot for the scrutineer's initials.

At the time, there was no provision in the Election Act for calling a new vote in such circumstances.

Mr. Drouin said that the chief returning officer had the right of a preponderant vote and as ballots cast for the two candidates in the election were nearly equal, he settled the situation by voting himself.

The returning officer's vote chose Liberal Athanasia David.

Interviewed in Montreal, Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, said the court had reached an "inescapable conclusion."

The party would have to decide "whether we will make a run again, hopeless as it always will be with 35-per cent English-speaking population, for the sake of democratic presence or whether we will just beg off and say to hell with it."

Michel Bellavance, a spokesman for the Unite-Quebec, said his party is ready for the new byelection.

"We did pretty well the first time and are planning to do better."

Unite-Quebec and Liberal party spokesmen said they would enter the same candidates in the new byelection.

Armand Bois, interim chief of the Ralliement Creditiste, said his party, unrepresented in the first byelection, would not enter a candidate in the new one.

It is "useless to use up their energy in such an election," he said.

Links raids to political pressure

FREDERICTON (CP) — Defence lawyer Donald Gillis suggested Wednesday that political pressure by Liberal Senator Charles McElman of New Brunswick was behind the anti-combines "raids" at Irving newspapers that led to monopoly charges being tried here.

Combines investigator William Lindsay of Ottawa, who supervised the search for incriminating documents in Saint John, Fredericton and Moncton, N.B., denied he ever took any instructions from Senator McElman.

Mr. Justice Albany M. Robichaud of the New Brunswick Supreme Court commented: "They're cuter than that in Ottawa."

These exchanges enlivened the second day in the trial of K. C. Irving Ltd. and three publishing companies alleged to have created a daily newspaper monopoly in New Brunswick.

Combines officers who worked under Mr. Lindsay said they took their search and seize orders from David H. W. Henry, federal director of combines investigations and research.

However, Mr. Gillis saw significance in the fact that the first searches took place in 1969 after a McElman speech criticizing Irving newspaper operations. More searches were made three weeks after another McElman speech in March, 1971.

Papers involved in the subsequent monopoly charges are the Saint John Telegraph-Journal and Times-Globe, the Moncton Times and Transcript and the Fredericton Gleaner. They came under Irving control between 1944 and 1968.

The court heard a statement by industrialist K. C. Irving, former president of K. C. Irving Ltd., that the greatest threat to the press comes from governments and politicians.

This observation was part of additional testimony given by Mr. Irving in Bermuda and entered as evidence at the trial Wednesday. Mr. Irving was not present.

As an example of political interference he reported a threat to Michael Wardell, former publisher of The Gleaner, by Liberal Premier Louis J. Robichaud, now Canadian section chairman of the International Joint Commission.

More French than English switch schools

QUEBEC (CP) — More than three times as many children transferred from Quebec French-language schools to English-language schools as vice versa during the 1970-71 academic year, a report shows.

The department of education report covers all schools in the province except those administered by the Montreal Catholic school commission and the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal.

Therese Baron, deputy minister of education, said figures from the two boards were dropped because of numerous errors.

The report, released Tuesday, said 4,481 students transferred into the English-language system from French-language schools while 1,289 went in the other direction.

A bill giving parents the right to choose the language of education for their children was adopted by the Quebec national assembly in 1969.

Toronto bank robbed of $250,000

TORONTO (CP) — Four armed men robbed a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, located at Union Station, of $250,000 Wednesday.

Police said the four men, brandishing revolvers and other guns, escaped in a car parked at a nearby parking lot. A fifth man was waiting for them in the car.

"It was all over in a few seconds," Larry O'Hagan, 22, a post office employee said later in an interview.

Mr. O'Hagan, who had gone into the bank to cash his pay cheque, said at least half a dozen customers were forced to lie on the floor.

He said a man with a machine-gun ordered him to "face the wall and keep quiet."

As the bandits fled the bank, Mr. O'Hagan said he ran after them to a parking lot where they got into a green car. Another man was waiting for them at the wheel, he said.

Q. W. Reid, assistant manager of the bank's main branch, refused to give an exact figure for the amount stolen, but other sources estimated it at $251,500.

Police said the haul is larger than the total of all bank robberies in Toronto last year.

He said he got the first three numbers of the licence and police later broadcast the number was 435. They said the wanted car was 1971 or 1972 luxury model LTD Ford with a green body and black vinyl top.

Trudeau's birthday: Voters let him eat cake

Prime Minister Trudeau collected a string of 53rd birthday cakes Wednesday and New Democrat Leader David Lewis accused the Liberals of permitting high food costs.

They were the most active campaigners in the bid for votes in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield took a one-day rest from the campaign trail. Social Credit Leader Real Caouette continued a swing through Quebec, asking for a chance to make his party the dominant one in opposition to the Liberals.

Mr. Trudeau collected three separate birthday cakes as he moved his campaign out of Toronto and into the Northern Ontario communities of Sudbury and Hanmer.

At Mississauga, just west of Toronto, he collected the first one Wednesday morning. From there on, it was an unbroken sequence of Happy Birthdays.

Says farmers cheated

MONTREAL (CP) — Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin said Wednesday the feed manufacturing industry is taking advantage of Eastern Townships farmers whose corn crops were severely damaged by bad weather during the summer.

The minister also announced a further $2 million in provincial government aid to farmers hit by heavy losses, increasing provincial aid to the farmers to $5 million.

W.I. meetings in the Townships

MELBOURNE — The regular meeting of the Richmond Young Women's Institute was held on Tuesday evening Oct. 2nd at the home of Mrs. N. Jameson in Upper Melbourne with Mrs. Norma Perkins as hostess. A Come As You Are evening was held. One member in sixteen had Yes which meant that particular member had to call each of the other members the evening before the day of the meeting and they were to come to the meeting dressed as they were when they received the phone call. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

Business was then discussed and several donations were made to Retarded Homes, hot lunches and other projects. The executive is to meet and make arrangements to cater for a gathering later in October. The yearly event of an evening out for all members was planned and the date set for Thursday, October 26.

The business being concluded refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting every member is to bring a guest. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Mastine, with Mrs. D. Banfill as co-hostess.

"DENISON MILLS — The regular meeting of the Denison Mills W. I. was held on Friday, Sept. 29 at the home of Mrs. C. Brock. The rollcall How W. I. members can help Teachers was answered with several very good suggestions. The general idea was that children should be encouraged to speak kindly about their teachers and to have their homework done on time.

The secretary, Mrs. Carson dealt with the correspondence and publications were given out. An article was read on the new snowmobile laws. Those who drive were asked to take note that this new law comes into effect shortly.

Mrs. Carson also read an article on the list of articles to be exhibited at the Convention in June. Members were asked to have their entries in in plenty of time for the judging.

Twelve dollars ($1 dollar per member) was voted for the service fund. Also $6.00 to the A.D.S. school and the same to St. Francis for prizes in 1973.

Also the treasurer was asked to send the sum of $6.00 to the Richmond County Agricultural Society to pay their fair prizes in the W.I. Dept.

The county meeting will be Oct. 19 and the members were asked to attend if possible.

Mrs. Brock served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

PELLETIER AND PENSIONS

Liberal hopeful Irene Pelletier told The Record yesterday he was very happy with the reception he received in Lennoxville Tuesday night, despite the difficulty he had answering some of the questions.

"I was encouraged by their understanding but the support the mayor (Cecil Dougherty) gave me really boosted my morale," he said. "I've done some research on old age pensions so that I can answer questions on the subject with more facility in the future," he quipped.

STOP INVITES CITIZENS

Tomorrow evening, 8:30 p.m. at Bishop's University, Room 4 Nicoll's Building, a panel discussion and question-and-answer period will be held under the sponsorship of STOP, the Society to Overcome Pollution. The panel will include Social Credit nominee Maurice Couture, Progressive Conservative Alexandre Kindy and Liberal Irene Pelletier from the political ranks.

The election candidates will be joined by Dean Cecil Haver and Professor J.D. Booth of Bishop's University. Both men have a keen interest in pollution problems. Dean Haver through his background in economics and Geographer Booth by virtue of extensive studies in the Eastern Townships.

Organizers of the discussion are hoping the encounter will answer some basic questions which touch all residents in the area. The candidates will be asked to state their positions on improving the environment.

Specifically, STOP supporters will confront each federal aspirant with questions pertaining to recycling, sewage treatment, depolluting lakes and rivers and recreation. When the answers are given local residents will be able to judge which candidate is most likely to represent their views at the national level.

Everyone is invited to attend this promising encounter to get an accurate idea of what each aspirant to the Sherbrooke seat thinks about pollution.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Approximately 50 persons attended a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored debate involving candidates Maurice Couture, Gerard Gosselin, Alexandre Kindy and Irene Pelletier.

Each candidate introduced his political platform before questions were allowed from the floor.

Social Credit Maurice Couture hammered out his party's proposals for monetary reform in an emotional appeal which somewhat seemed out of context given the mood of those present.

Couture reiterated that SC, if elected to power, would change the Bank Act to enable the Bank of Canada to make interest-free loans to the provinces.

"If we can make interest-free loans to underdeveloped countries we can surely do the same at home," he stressed.

Independent Gerard Gosselin once again had considerable impact on his audience with his theme of bridging the gap between political parties and the electorate.

"We must strive for a democracy which gives power to the people, not to exclusive political parties which are formed for the sole purpose of contesting an election," he declared.

As at Bishop's last week, Gosselin's sincerity won him the respect of many among the sparse crowd.

Alexandre Kindy, who was the only candidate to address the meeting in both English and French, stuck mainly to the party line by attacking the Liberal record and presenting the Conservatives as the only viable alternative.

The strongest point of Kindy's attack on the Trudeau administration involved the lack of government action to prevent violation of international trade treaties prohibiting concessional financing of exports.

Irene Pelletier concentrated his introduction on what he termed the responsibility of members of parliament towards their constituents and the need to focus on local rather than national and international issues.

Several of Pelletier's statements seemed to be taken from the points Gerard Gosselin has been emphasizing in his campaign theme.

Pelletier implied that the solution to Sherbrooke's economic woes lies in the establishment of an industrial park and the Liberal candidate hinted that Sherbrooke may soon be classified as an economically depressed area in order to take advantage of federal grants.

New divisions said a threat to tradition

By ALEX RADMANOVICH

SHERBROOKE — The Regional Development Council of the Eastern Townships is facing a new challenge today which threatens the geographical homogeneity of the region through reallocation of administrative centres.

In 1966 the Quebec government divided the province into 10 administrative regions to facilitate economic and social planning. The divisions were based on traditional socio-economic influences and projected trends.

Council of the Eastern Townships (ETRC) have embarked on an extensive campaign emphasizing the necessity to keep Region No. 5 intact.

Basic to their approach is the valid position that changes in boundaries disrupt the continuity of planning and administration. More particular arguments against redrawing the present map have also been presented to the Quebec government.

Region No. 5 directors assert that the proposed changes would disrupt the homogeneity of the Eastern Townships as it exists under the present division, rather than increase it.

The new Region No. 5 would be without half of Richmond county including the town of Richmond which would be in a new administrative area. The same situation applies in the case of Asbestos.

Other centres excluded from Sherbrooke administration in the proposed redistribution are Danville, Shipton, Kingsley, Valcourtville, Knowlton and many other smaller towns and villages.

The ETRC suggests that the residents of the excluded areas are accustomed to dealing with Sherbrooke and that asking the people to adapt to new conditions when the present arrangements are satisfactory is not reasonable.

Last Monday night Region No. 5 directors received an important vote of confidence from the people of Valcourt at a public assembly. The town's residents were unanimous in their desire to remain under the Sherbrooke administration.

ETRC officials told The Record yesterday that they are determined to carry on their protest against the changes as long as they receive public support. Every indication is that the fight will be long.

Jean Jacques Lafontaine
president of ETRC

Several months ago, however, the Drouin Commission was appointed to study the regionalization with a view to improving the homogeneity of the areas where the initial division erred in the grouping.

The recommendations of the commission have since been made public, causing much uproar, especially in Region No. 5, the Eastern Townships. To refute the viability of the proposed changes the directors of the Regional Development

Good luck!

Are you superstitious?

Most people are to a certain extent whether they like to admit it or not. For some, superstition becomes an obsession and their lives are controlled by it.

I have known people who actually believed that breaking a mirror brought seven years bad luck. I'm sure you must know someone like that. Nothing that is said can ever budge their attitude. They are completely convinced Lady Luck has abandoned them for 2,556 days and nights.

People's minds are obviously conditioned to this type of outlook. This conditioning began long before as early as childhood when parents and grandchildren instilled this concept in a fertile and pliable young mind.

Superstitions are cultivated, not born. They are creations of time. They come into being gradually and when finally established dig in and staunchly root themselves in the minds of those who want to believe.

How many times have you avoided a black cat, thrown salt over your shoulder, or refused to walk under a ladder even though you knew there was no possible danger? We all have pet superstitions we coddle.

Some people will not allow an umbrella to be opened in the house. Some cannot stand to see an empty rocking chair in action. Still others foster the impression that a blond-headed individual should never eat raw carrots!

I know one lady who honestly defends the belief that piercing the ears improves one's vision. Should this be the case the gypsies of old folklore must have been real hoot owls.

Most of the superstitions circulating presently and for the past 150 years deal exclusively with bad luck. In each case specific conditions are present which produce bad luck in various degrees. Very few superstitions have a positive attitude. I wonder why?

Superstitious people are not all elderly or uneducated. Many are middle age or younger, who have been brought up to respect it and consider it as a part of life. Superstition has no corner on age, nor does it live in a primitive age. It thrives today.

Superstition is a part of everyday life. For example Astrology, although many will claim it a science, is a high-classed form of superstition. Ancient beliefs that the stars rule our destiny have brought many present day believers to the point of purchasing all sorts of astrological charts at outlandish prices.

Ever wonder why most high rise apartment buildings seldom have a 13th floor or a room numbered 13?

Going to a race track for instance you will see superstition at its best. People will mostly bet on the various horses not because of their past records but because they have the same number as their birth date or have the name of someone they know and love.

There are countless thousands of different superstitions around the world. A wish bone in a turkey, a wishing well, and a wish on the first star seen in the evening all are honestly believed by some people to possess a certain degree of magical wonderment. Superstitions are funny things.

Perhaps one of the most prevalent superstitions and by far one of the strongest is the belief in voodoo.

Voodoo is considered a going-thing in some African tribes and even in certain North American cults. For most people the very idea of seriously injuring someone else by placing a curse on them or by sticking a doll with pins is ridiculous. But the fact remains that it does work in some instances if the victim knows of the plans of his assailant and believes in his powers. If you believe in something strongly enough it just might come about.

The North American Indians had a strong superstition involving one of their animals. They believed that if a brave ever sighted a white buffalo he was eternally blessed as that rare animal would bring him peace and contentment for the rest of his life. Superstitions involving death also played a large role in their lives. Everyone has heard of the Indian's "Happy Hunting Ground" which was comparable to our "Heaven."

Superstitions can be both utterly unbelievable and completely plausible depending on the individual concerned. A man who says he is not superstitious should stop and think things over. Undoubtedly if all beliefs held dear by that man were carefully scrutinized, he would possibly find that he was just a shade more superstitious than he first believed.

No one can say I'm superstitious, but last Friday I took no chances — I stayed at home, a rabbit's foot around my neck, and a horseshoe in my back pocket. When I at last ventured out, I tripped over a ladder which fell on our cat — the cat bit my leg — at the same time the horseshoe dropped from my pocket and found its mark on my foot.

No sir I'm not superstitious. Not a bit!!

They came from everywhere to celebrate the centennial

By DORA McCOURT

BROMPTON — On Sunday,

Oct. 15, the doors of Christ Church, Brompton, were opened wide to welcome over 200 friends, old and young, from far and near, who had gathered together in observance of the 100th anniversary of this church.

Some 150 clergymen, local dignitaries, and invited guests filled the church, while others were able to hear the service in the comfort of their cars through a public address system installed outside through the co-operation of Roger Longpre.

The small, white, clapboard church, unchanged in its 100 years, stood before a background of evergreens mixed with the beautiful autumn foliage of the hardwoods.

As the guests arrived for the service at 3 p.m. the wind was bitter, grey clouds prevailed and snow flakes swirled around.

Through these clouds the sun suddenly shone through, momentarily lighting up the church like a huge birthday cake.

It was a day of joy, thanksgiving, and remembrance, and the home-coming of many former members and friends who have left the fields of Brompton over the years. The hopes and plans of those who remain in the parish were realized as this great day arrived.

Four arrangements of red carnations and white shasta daisies were placed on each window sill. The flowers were later used to center the tables at the banquet hour.

These flowers were in loving memory of Hannah Ward Varney, who was confirmed at the consecration of Christ Church 100 years ago; her husband, Edgar Varney, and the following families: Knapp, Addison, Perkins, Ward, Wheeler, Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Destromp.

Messrs. Guy Robinson, Albert Robinson, Henry Wheeler and Reginald Robinson acted as ushers. The augmented choir included Mrs. W.E. Walker and Mrs. Fred Hess, Richmond; Mr. Clifford Allan, Sherbrooke; Mr. James Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gilbert, Mr. Clifford Robinson, and Mr. Donald Gilbert, Windsor; Mrs. Oscar Daigneault, Miss Diane Daigneault, Mrs. Mildred Halliday and Mr. Gary Halliday of Christ Church.

The choir, followed by members of the clergy, entered by the front door and proceeded to the front of the church as all voices joined in singing the hymn "All People

That On Earth Do Dwell." Mrs. Mildred Morey presided at the organ.

Right Rev. T.J. Matthews, Lord Bishop of Quebec, was the guest speaker. Rev. Gordon Peabody acted as bishop's chaplain for the service. Rev. W.E. Walker, rector of St. Anne's Church, Richmond, and present incumbent of the Brompton parish, welcomed the guests and conducted the service.

Rev. Walker commented, "It is coincidence that 100 years ago, Rev. Henry Roe, then rector of St. Anne's, founded this church and conducted its service of dedication, and today, I find myself having charge of the same two parishes."

Rev. Walker read a letter expressing prayers and best wishes from the Right Rev. Crane of Christ Church Cathedral, Indianapolis, Indiana. This letter was brought to Brompton by Mrs. Muriel Kemp Ganser, a member of Christ Church, Indianapolis.

Mrs. Ganser is the daughter of Fred Kemp and his wife, Emma Knapp Kemp, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knapp, all of whom are buried at Christ Church cemetery here.

Rev. L.G. Westman from St. Augustine's, Danville, read the first lesson. The second lesson was read in French by Father Berger, parish priest of the Greenlay Catholic Church.

Right Rev. Matthews expressed his pleasure at being able to be here for this anniversary service. He spoke of the pioneers of the church and of the faith and fellowship that has been handed down through generations.

"There will be no shutters covering the windows of this church," said Bishop Matthews. "The church is not a building," he continued, "but true Christian faith and fellowship of people."

He spoke of this "as being a day of great joy — but also one of sorrow." A congregation that once filled the church has now declined to a handful.

The choir and the congregation joined together for the singing of the hymns, "The Church's One Foundation," "We Love The Place, O God."

The offering was taken by Messrs. Guy, Albert and Harold Robinson and presented to Rev. Walker by Guy Robinson. During the offering the organist softly played "How Great Thou Art."

During the Recessional hymn, "Lead On, O King Eternal," the choir and clergy left the church in the same manner as they had entered, followed by the congregation. Right Rev. Matthews pronounced the benediction.

Despite the cool weather, folk lingered after the service and visited with old acquaintances. Many had the opportunity to chat with Bishop Matthews. Others walked through the graveyard, reading the names inscribed on the marble headstones, remembering loved ones who had gone before.

Immediately following, Bishop Matthews left for the Dorval International Airport where he boarded a plane for Halifax to attend another commitment.

Later all proceeded to the Dornier Plant Club House where a social gathering was held and 240 guests sat down to a turkey banquet catered by Mrs. Agnes Oakley.

The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Edwin Mackey and Miss Marion Mackey. The guest book was a gift from St. George Guild and presented at an earlier date.

Rev. Arthur Ottiwell, senior member of the clergy, asked the blessing. Rev. Walker read a telegram of congratulations and best wishes from Rev. and Mrs. Jim Young and family, formerly of this parish, and now residing in Australia.

Among former incumbents and parishioners who replied were airmail messages of best wishes and regrets at not being able to attend from Right Rev. Russel Brown, former Bishop of Quebec, and now of New Guinea and Rev. Vaughan Wilford, now of Lincolnshire, England.

Following the banquet Rev. Walker called upon fellow members of the clergy to say a few words. Rev. A. Fairbairn came to the Windsor-Brompton parishes as a student and was ordained at St. George's Church in Windsor in 1967.

Canon Franklin, rector of St. Peter's Church in Sherbrooke, expressed his appreciation in being a part of this anniversary service. St. Peter's Church this year celebrated its 150th anniversary.

Rev. P. Gaudine, minister of St. Andrew's United Church in Windsor, extended best wishes from his congregation and from the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery.

Rev. Gordon Peabody brought greetings from St. George's Church in Drummondville. Rev. Peabody is also in charge of Holy Trinity Church at Kirkdale and St. James Anglican Church at South Durham.

Rev. O. Merriman, rector of St. Paul's and Church of the Advent in Sherbrooke, brought greetings from both parishes. Rev. Merriman is also rural dean of Sherbrooke.

Rev. Jervis-Read, familiarly known as "Father Bob," in charge of St. Luke's at Sand Hill and Anglican Chaplain at the Sherbrooke Hospital, expressed best wishes and congratulations to Christ Church on its anniversary.

Rev. Arthur Ottiwell, retired and now residing in Montreal, expressed his great pleasure in being here and renewing old acquaintances. He especially mentioned the young people and his delight at being remembered as the one who had baptised them or officiated at their weddings. Rev. Ottiwell was in charge of the Brompton parish nearly 20 years ago.

Father Berger, parish priest of St. Gregoire Catholic Church in Greenlay, expressed his thanks and appreciation at being asked to assist in this anniversary service of Christ Church.

Rev. L.G. Westman had words of great encouragement to a congregation that has declined to few in number.

He said, "that with the great faith and religious fervor passed down from their ancestors, Christ Church would go on to celebrate its 200th anniversary."

Rev. Ted Carne brought greetings from the combined parishes of Adelphi and Amherst Island, near Kingston, Ont. Rev. Carne said that he had many fond memories of his stay here three years ago and expressed thanks for the help and co-operation he had received while here.

Mr. Edward Hyatt, lay secretary of Synod, brought greeting from the Anglican Church at Stanstead. He expressed the regrets of Canon Church of that parish at not being able to attend.

Rev. Walker thanked all of the speakers.

Mr. Harold Robinson, speaking on behalf of the wardens, voiced thanks and appreciation to all for coming and making this day such a memorable one.

FETE 100th — Christ Church at Brompton celebrated its 100th anniversary service on Sunday, Oct. 15. Christ Church stands midway between Greenlay and Bromptonville.

Job policy needed

As expected, in a gesture of desperation, the Liberals came out with what they described as a candy program, promising grants all over Canada, supposedly to reduce the number of unemployed Canadians. The Trudeau supporters hope that these promises will counterbalance the ill-effect of the last statistics of Statistic-Canada, showing that over seven per cent of the Canadian labor force is presently unemployed, this being the highest figures since 1961.

Apart from an enlarged national parks program, the Liberals have come out with a plan of reconciliation of Canadian sovereignty and the advantages of a continuing close association with the United States, they have also mentioned a new industrial relations policy, an industrial strategy for national economic growth, a market insurance program for farmers and measures towards the protection of environment.

The timing of these promises was carefully calculated for maximum results at the poll. However, considering the record of the Liberals to date, one must admit that the Trudeau Government has shown a remarkable capacity for bumbling anything it has tackled to date.

In these circumstances, as I had the opportunity to mention before, the Liberals have failed to convince the electors that they can really come out with something new and efficient to help the Canadian economy and reduce the number of unemployed Canadians.

I sincerely feel that the problem No. 1 in Canada today is unemployment and that we must, at all costs, try to bring down the number of people now benefitting from unemployment insurance.

What this country needs is not a policy to create more parks and recreational areas, but a policy to create more jobs. In this, the record of the Liberals is extremely poor and Canada cannot afford the luxury of another inefficient Liberal administration for the next four years.

Canadians have realized this and as can be seen by the results of the polls taken by various organizations, a definite and pronounced trend exists from the Atlantic to the Pacific in favor of Mr. Stanfield and his candidates. Canadians have also been able to see that even some former members of the Liberal Cabinet and some former Liberal members of the House of Commons have now left the ranks of the Liberal Party and have become strong supporters of Mr. Stanfield.

In the Province of Quebec, which was a stronghold of the Creditiste Party, the former vice-president of the Creditiste is running as a Conservative in the county of Richmond and the former Creditiste candidate in Sherbrooke is now backing the Conservatives.

For these reasons, we can expect a victory of the Conservative Party in Canada on October 30 and it is Mr. Stanfield who will be our next Prime Minister.

An impasse on the school issue

Last week the Supreme Court, with something very much like a yawn, affirmed the decision of the lower court, which refused Ohio the right to pass along money to the private, church-related schools on the grounds that what Ohio was up to was circumvention. As a matter of fact, that is exactly correct.

The Supreme Court has during the past few years honed its fanatical construction of the First Amendment into a fine blade, which cuts through any attempt by any accumulation of parents, priests, ministers, rabbis, school boards or legislatures to stitch together a plan that provides parents with fundamental freedoms to organize their own schools with some reference to religious principle.

Who says A, the philosophers never tire of reminding us, must say B. It is true that it is a violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution to allow a tax dollar to end up at a parochial school, no matter how circuitous the route, then it is true that Ohio has no business permitting parents of private school children to receive the little ninety-dollar annual subsidy the legislature of Ohio thought to return to them, in modest compensation for their saving the taxpayers of Ohio the approximately $1,000 per student annual tuition they'd have cost the state by attending the public schools.

The decision of last week disposes of most of the public intentions of prominent American politicians for relieving the religious schools of their plight. George McGovern backed, in effect, an extension of the Ohio plan. So did Richard Nixon. So did Nelson Rockefeller. Well, it's gone now. Where do we go from here?

Professor Roger Freeman of the Hoover Institute at Stanford University has been arguing for a very long while a distinction he considers constitutionally crucial.

On the right

with William F. Buckley Jr.

He says: the Supreme Court insists that once a dollar has slipped into the public treasury, you can never get it out for use by a religious-oriented school without constitutional cavil. The only way to do it is to grant the relief before the dollar becomes public property. I.e., before it is taxed. And the way to do that, obviously, is by tax remission.

The courts appear to be hospitable to the argument. In the 1970 (Walz) decision arguing against direct subsidies, the court said: "Obviously a direct money subsidy would be a relationship pregnant with involvement." On the other hand, "The grant of a tax exemption is not sponsorship since the government does not transfer part of its revenue to churches but simply abstains from demanding that the church support the state."

The good news is that Wilbur Mills caught the signal and though two years ago he was in the Oval Office of the White House pounding his fist in disapproval of the notion of tax remission, this year, mirabile dictu, he emerges as the sponsor of a bill which would provide relief for the private schools by exactly that expedient.

The Congress will close momentarily, and it is unlikely that it will vote during this session on the Mills bill, but particularly after the Ohio rejection of last week, it looms as the last hope this side of a constitutional amendment.

Essentially, the Mills bill would grant a straightforward tax credit ($200 is the figure they speak about) to any parent who sends his child to a private school. There are any number of variables, i.e., will it be $200 per child no matter how many children; does the tax credit inure even to the benefit of rich parents — and so on.

But the principle is comfortably lodged. If it is constitutional for the Congress to say that Mr. Jones's gift of $100 to his church decreases his adjusted gross taxable income, then why can't Congress say that Mr. Jones's expenditure of $500 for his son's education at St. Bartholomew's decreases his tax bill by $200? Who says A must say B.

If Congress can constitutionally permit tax deductions for religious gifts, why not tax credits for religious expenses?

We shall see. Meanwhile Mr. Nixon and Mr. McGovern should be asked to give their positions on the matter.

Their rhetoric and their analysis would argue their support for the Mills bill.

But ask them anyway. Get it on the record. Meanwhile, about two private schools per day are closing for lack of funds. And taxes increase, as the students go to the public schools. And the frustration mounts.

Anti-pollution incentive

Dear Sir:

Both the Federal and Provincial governments are stressing the need for anti-pollution controls and, in exciting the whole country and this province in particular, are establishing special committees, appointing research teams, designing means to combat abuse and filling the tax coffers while doing so.

Among the more directed efforts to overcome pollution has been a program demanding that rural residents install cesspools, or hook up to existing sewage systems. The idea is commendable in principle, but it would seem logical, if safeguarding our environment means so much, that some incentive be offered to make sure that the task is affected with the least possible delay.

At any rate, a lot of money is going into the program to make sure no one living outside an urban area defaults. Still, with all this concern, and the vast amount of money being spent to educate the population to the importance of rural disposal systems, funds for policing the action and to conduct never ending tests, the poor country dweller is still paying the 11 per cent tax on materials, then an eight per cent sales tax on top of this.

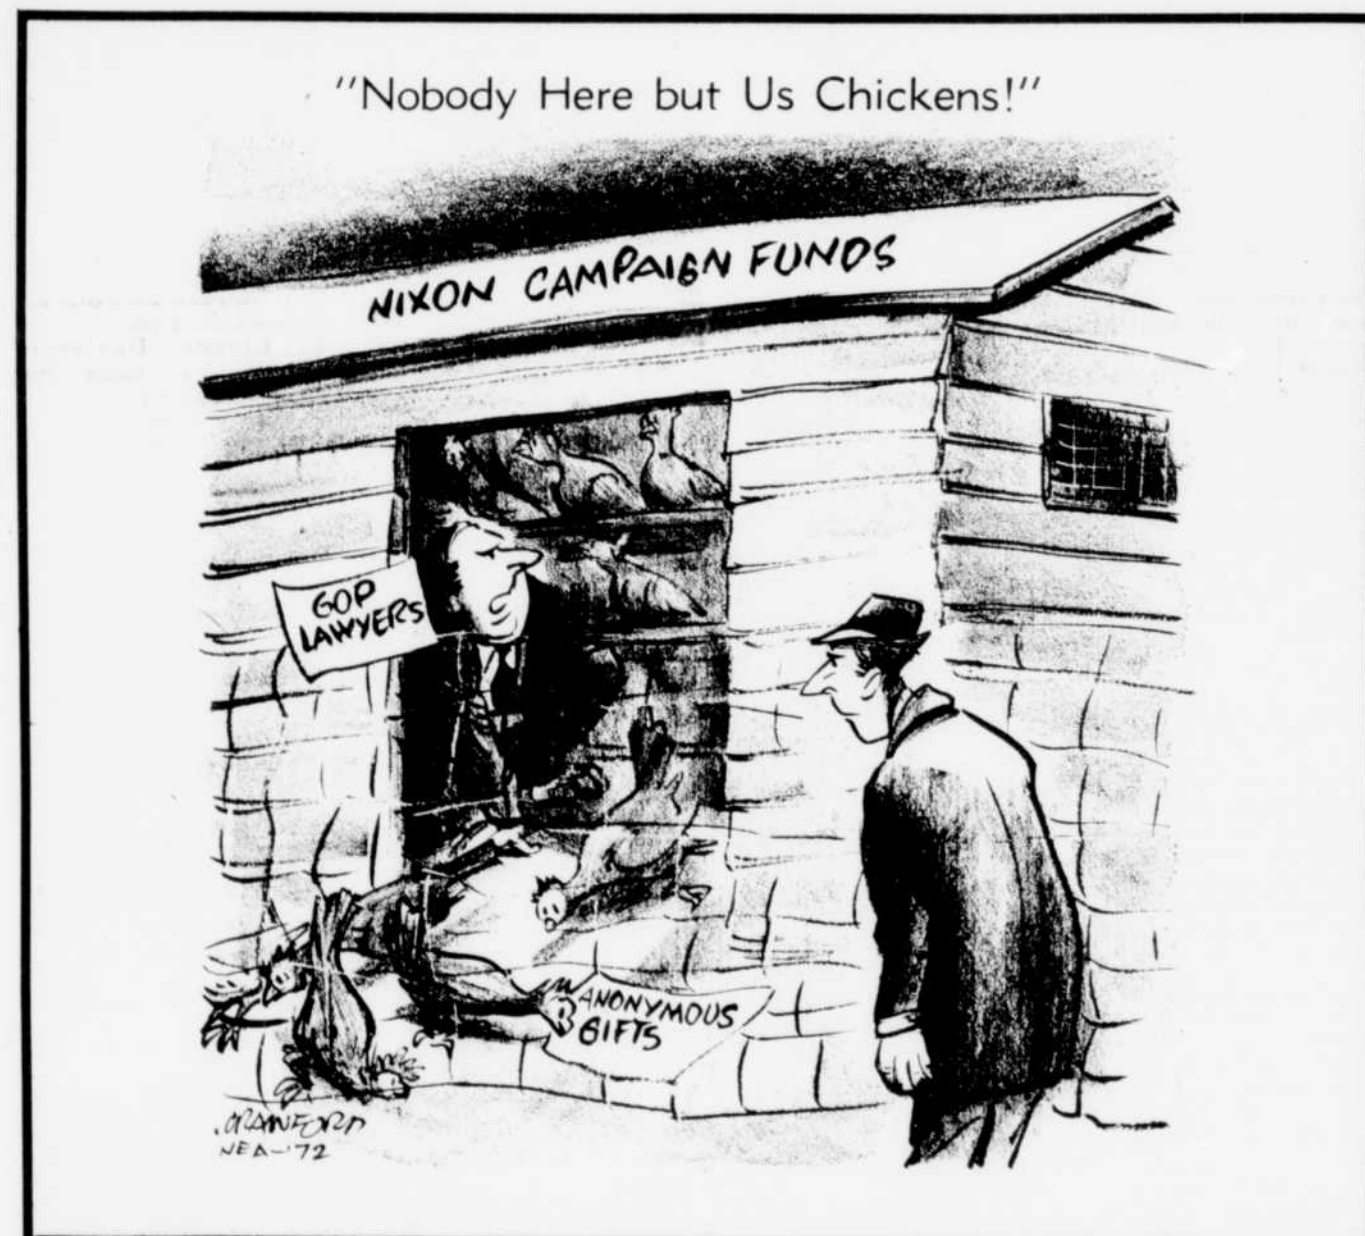

Why not start with that incentive, which could be dropping of these taxes, which would be a good start toward encouraging people outside of cities and towns to do something about their waste.

None of our politicians say anything about pollution this election, least of all anything about the eleven per cent tax on building materials and, chances are, they are as ashamed of the flagrant waste of money as those in the environmental departments, realizing that all the while we're pressuring the country property-owner to be a good citizen and install a suitable cesspool, both the country and province are cleaning up on his tax dollars.

By all means, this extra money is needed to tell the countryside that he must fight pollution.

Let's see, a $600 septic tank rates $66 in building materials tax, and 8 per cent of $660 is another $53.28. Do you realize it costs $119.28 in taxes to buy a tank so you can be a good citizen, then about $300 to install it.

Name withheld by request.

Water under the bridge

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — About the only obstacle before the Nixon bandwagon as its belts along toward the Nov. 7 presidential election seems to be a potential scandal arising from the so-called "Watergate caper."

Until recent days, aides to President Nixon have been disdainful of any suggestion that the White House was in any way connected with the plot to disrupt Democratic Party campaign efforts.

They haven't wavered but insiders now suggest that the Nixon administration is at last getting a bit tense as a number of newspaper and magazine reporters uncover hints that the Watergate affair may have been only the tip of a big political spy-and-sabotage operation.

In the wake of the June police raid that resulted in the indictment of seven men with Republican ties in connection with the break-in and phone-tapping at the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate Hotel, the White House flatly denied any connection with the escapade.

REPORTERS BUSY

Although the Democratic presidential candidate, Senator George McGovern, keeps hammering away at the incident as an example of what he has termed the "corruption" of the Nixon administration, the issue seemed to make little or no impression on the general public.

Since then a number of investigative reporters, notably those of the Washington Post, the New York Times and Time magazine, have kept chipping away at the incident.

Under bold headlines, The Post has suggested that "50 undercover operatives have been engaged since 1971 in an apparently unprecedented spying and sabotage effort staged by Nixon aides against Democratic presidential candidates."

Nixon himself had said earlier that no person at present employed in the government or White House was involved in the bugging.

Those arrested included a former White House aide and men associated with the Nixon re-election committee, but no link with the White House has been made. However recent newspaper stories have mentioned the names of Dwight L. Chapin, Nixon's appointments secretary, former commerce secretary Maurice Stans and others.

Quoting mainly unidentified sources, the stories have suggested that Chapin was a "contact" for spying operations and that Stans, now Nixon's chief fund-raiser, kept a special $700,000 fund for the operation in his safe.

ONLY EMBARRASSING

The whole thing is an embarrassment for the Nixon campaign, which otherwise has been a smooth-running operation. Although a number of legal and congressional investigations are in the offing it is unlikely they will come up with any answers before the election.

In the absence of formal hearings, the air is heavy with charges and accusations and the Democrats are seeking with increased vigor to keep the issue alive with charges of "police state" tactics and the like.

But so far there is no firm evidence that the potential scandal has had any impact on the voters. The most recent national polls indicate McGovern has inched up a point or two, but Nixon still holds an unprecedented lead.

BERRY'S WORLD

"... as a matter of fact, a certain amount of 'shady goings on' and 'dirty business' in politics is a good thing—tradition, you know!"

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES CECIL HOPKINS at their wedding at the Richmond and Melbourne United Church on September 2.

Hoskins-Moreland exchange rings

The Richmond and Melbourne United Church was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding on September 2, at 2:00 p.m., when Gloria Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Moreland of Richmond, Que., became the bride of Charles Cecil Hoskins Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoskins Sr., of Brampton, Ont.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. R.A. Cameron. Mr. Peter Cocks played the wedding music. White satin bows and small white bells decorated the guest pews.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie featuring a princess line dress with stand up collar, having Chantilly lace-trimmed long tapered sleeves and small pearl buttons at the waist, with the back forming a train from the waist. Her shoulder length veil of Chantilly lace was held in place by a headpiece of peau de soie flowers and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white sweetheart roses with yellow and blue carnations. Her only jewellery was a small gold necklace.

The maid of honor, Miss Linda Sullivan wore a long gown of yellow nylon lined with acetate taffeta, a stand-up collar, empire, A-line skirt, with satin ribbon around the waist forming a bow at the front. The bridesmaid, Miss Doloris Hoskins, sister of the groom, wore a blue gown identical to that of the maid of honor, and each carried bouquets to match that of the bride, and wore rose buds in their hair to match their gowns.

TIME AFTER TIME ... readers have thanked me for suggesting DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ... when they have had a nagging back-ache and tired feeling. You see, Dodd's contain ingredients that bring effective relief by gently stimulating the kidneys to help relieve back-ache and that worn-out feeling. It was interesting to learn from a friend that Dodd's Kidney Pills are also very helpful during menstrual periods. Landers

Again for you How to get through the day

Dear Ann Landers: Sorry, I don't agree with your comments to the wife who informed her husband that she gets the most out of their lovemaking when she pretends he's someone else. You said everyone fantasizes to a certain degree and it's nothing to become unglued about—it's the same as daydreaming at night.

If a wife has to think about Ryan O'Neal when she's with her husband the least she can do is keep her mouth shut. I would not be very flattered if I discovered that the reason my husband was having such a great time was because he was pretending I was somebody else. If he confessed such a thing to me I'd tell him that if I wasn't excited enough he could go find someone who was.

We hear too much these days about weirdos, switch-hitters, wife-swapping, peep-shows, naked men in centerfolds, and kooky sex practices. What we need in this country is a champion for decency and morality. I had hoped it would be you, Ann Landers. Sorry you let me down.—No Substitutes Needed

Dear No Sub: The human mind is such an intricate piece of machinery that no one can say exactly how it operates, particularly in the area of sexual responses. What turns a person on is a mysterious mix of everything he ever saw, read, heard and dreamed about, plus assorted bits and pieces, so private they are shared with no one. Not everyone can tolerate complete openness and frank talk. So, I agree with you, honey, some people SHOULD keep their mouths shut.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I clipped my favorite column and carried it in my wallet until it is just barely legible. You called it "How To Get Through The Day," and it helped me more than anything I have ever read in my life. Will you play it again, Sam?—Linda

Dear Linda: With pleasure.

Just for today I will live through the next 12 hours and not tackle my whole life problem at once.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look my best, speak in a well modulated voice, be courteous and considerate.

Just for today I will not find fault with friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change or improve anyone but myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I might not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two enemies—hurry and indecisions.

Just for today I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret.

If anyone finds out, it won't count.

Just for today I will do two things I don't want to do, just for exercise.

Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially will I be unafraid to enjoy what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Advice Is Best From Professionals

Dear Dr. Lamb—I hope you can help me regain my peace of mind and perhaps a 20-year friendship of an elderly person. A doctor prescribed glasses for her but she couldn't see through them. Rather than discussing it with her physician, she asked him for an appointment with an eye doctor. The eye doctor put drops in her eyes and ever since then she has "a gold screen" over everything she sees. A nurse told her that doctors never put drops in an elderly person's eyes as the muscles do not react and that the "gold screen" condition would be with her for the rest of her days.

My friend is 82 with poor circulation. I have tried to help her but now she's quite vocal in denouncing me for recommending that she see the eye doctor. I feel very hurt that this has happened to her and she is suddenly very disgruntled and has had almost a complete change in her personality. Any help you can give will be deeply appreciated.

Dear Reader—The biggest problem here is getting advice from people who don't know what they are talking about. The proper place to get medical advice is from a doctor. In the attachment with your letter it is clear that the lady has cataracts and macular degeneration. Cataracts are the gradual change in the clear lens of the eye so that it no longer transmits light properly and thereby obstructs vision. This is a common change in later years. Degeneration of the macula means degeneration of the small spot right in the center of the back of the eye where the light rays focus to form an image. The back part of the eye really acts like a photographic screen but the most sensitive area for receiving visual images is in this one spot at the back of the eye.

The drops the doctor used had nothing to do with either one of these conditions. The report you attached states he used them to examine her eyes properly. The first doctor, according to the report, knew the lady's problem and only gave her glasses hoping to get the best possible benefit in the face of a difficult situation. The "gold screen" effect is undoubtedly related to the cataracts and the changes in the retinal screen and has nothing to do with the drops the doctor used to dilate her eyes so that he could examine them properly.

There is still another problem you will have to face. With evidence of circulatory changes and at her age, your friend probably has some personality changes related to poor circulation to the brain. When this occurs in older people, there is often a marked change in personality. Wives are greatly distressed when their elderly husbands change from gentle, considerate individuals to crude, thoughtless individuals. Likewise, friendly, outgoing women can change to disgruntled, suspicious personalities. These are manifestations of illness and should be so regarded. I'd like to repeat that the biggest problem here is failure to talk to the doctor and relying on uninformed individuals for an expert opinion. The lady you identified as a nurse used poor judgement if she made the remarks you report. Your friend will continue to need a good eye doctor.

We aren't going to go into a long discussion of the merits of the bidding. The game was rubber bridge with the usual rubber bridge simple bidding methods.

South wanted to be in six after the opening no-trump bid and North's decision to bid the grand slam was based on his idea that he had to be holding the perfect hand for his partner.

Seven is a reasonable bid in either hearts, diamonds or no-trump. It is best in diamonds because South has a choice of ways to guard against a 4-1 break in hearts.

One is to draw two rounds of trumps and then lead hearts. If both opponents follow to the second heart the last trump is drawn. If the second heart is ruffed declarer goes down but he could not make the slam by drawing trumps.

Jim Kauder tried the best line of play. He won the spade in his hand and cashed the jack of diamonds to see if trumps were 5-0. Then he led a club to the ace; ruffed a club; led a diamond to dummy's queen to see if both opponents would follow.

They did, so he ruffed another club; entered dummy with the king of hearts; ruffed a fourth club; entered dummy with the spade ace; played dummy's last trump and claimed the balance since dummy was good.

If diamonds had broken 4-1 he would have had to draw trumps and hope for a 3-2 heart break and if clubs had broken 5-2 the play would not have worked, but all in all it was the best percentage play and it did win.

A Winchester gun is only half the picture. The other half is Winchester ammunition.

What's special about Winchester? Plenty. In our model 88 rifle for example, the lever and trigger area move as a single unit, your finger never leaves the trigger. And with the Winchester model 100 automatic you experience minimum recoil, you stay on target all the time. The Winchester 100 works equally well with all bullet weights and when the last cartridge is fired, the action stays open. Add in features like the detachable clip for fast reloading of both these models and you begin to get the idea that these are the most modern and satisfying sporting rifles you could use. Available in both rifle and carbine models, there's a lot to recommend your choice of a Winchester rifle, including price.

But why stop there?

Winchester also loads a complete line of centre fire ammunition in Canada. It's tailored made for your Winchester rifle. The same research-design people who designed the firearm also worked out the correct ammunition load for maximum performance. Winchester Silvertip and Power-point bullet design has proven its value in hunting conditions of every kind all over the world. And remember, Winchester holds more patents for ammunition improvements than all other North American ammunition manufacturers combined.

If you're looking to improve your hunting performance this year let Winchester complete the picture for you.

Winchester quality-made rifles and centre fire ammunition, at better dealers across Canada. They're worth shopping for.

Winchester shotguns offer the shooter the widest selection of style, gauge, and price. Whatever the action — for game or clay targets — one of these fine guns is sure to meet all the requirements of the sportsman. Each shotgun is the result of Winchester world-famous craftsmanship, built of the best materials, with the highest possible regard for quality and dependability.

Here are some of the popular Winchester and Cooney you'll find at your Franchised dealers right now:

(a) The model 70 Magnum is powerful and world famous for accuracy. It is featured in 5 calibers, and is an ideal game rifle with highest standards.

(b) Automatic accuracy and ease of handling describe the model 100 which is the world's fastest-firing sporting arm. In 243, 284 and the renowned 308 caliber, this is a hard rifle to beat.

(c) The lever action model 88 is a streamlined instrument of accuracy, and displays features as crisp as its shooting. It's sleek, safe and reliable with outstanding features, such as its lever and trigger assembly which move as a single unit.

(d) The 30-30 Winchester model 94 is still favorite with hundreds of hunters, who claim this is the best deer rifle ever made. We can't deny, it is a wonderful arm. See it with the others at your franchised dealers.

(e) Winchester's fast swinging model 2200 slide action shotgun is often termed the birdman's best buy. Indeed, it is a great buy that possesses the famous Winchester features of durability, accuracy and reliability.

(f) When Canadians asked for this sort of gun, we at Winchester gave them the model 2400 automatic shotgun. It has 10% less recoil than other automatics, and a host of other fine features.

(g) The 3" Magnum Field Gun is perfect for high flying birds. It has some wonderful qualities, besides capability to handle 3 inch shells, and is sure-fire in the hands of a good hunter.

(h) For the chaps who like Over-and-Under shotguns, Winchester's model 101 field gun is a gem. It shoots superbly as it looks, and is feature rich in 12 and 20 gauge.

(i) The single shot 22 has many uses, and is the first firearm for many junior hunters, who'll always do better, when started off with a quality arm like this inexpensive number.

(j) The tubular magazine 22 is a great all round .22, and handles the short, long and long-rifle cartridges. A beautiful arm, it is reliable, and another quality fast firing rim fire number.

(k) Model 64's new metal clip with semi-automatic action makes this a terrific small game and vermit rifle. It is true and genuinely pleasant to handle and shoot.

(l) Low cost utility is the earmark of model 840, the lightweight single shot field gun that is available in 12, 16, 20, 28 or 410 gauge. And, it's inexpensive.

Sight in on Canadian-made Winchester—a name that stands for leadership through extensive research and testing. It signifies the finest ammunition you can buy. Try it—you'll never go back to ordinary brands.

Way's Mills fetes 91st

WAY'S MILLS — The 91st anniversary of the Way's Mills Union Church was observed on Sunday, October 1st at 3:30 p.m.

A special service was conducted by Mr. Stanley Beerworth. The first lesson was read by Rev. Edward Schmitt, rural dean of Coaticook district, who also brought greetings from his Anglican parish.

The speaker was Dr. William J. Close, minister of this church which is one point in the five-point charge to which he was inducted on September 10.

Two duets were sung by Mrs. R.N. Mayhew of Bury and Mrs. Nelson Pierce of Ayer's Cliff accompanied by the organist, Mrs. W.B. Holmes.

A large congregation, representative of the surrounding towns and villages, enjoyed a meaningful hour of worship.

HATLEY — Approximately 350 persons attended the Stanstead County Ploughmen's Association banquet held in the Hatley United church hall on Saturday evening, October 14. A good number of these people afterwards attended the program in the Village hall.

The men and women of the church served a family style turkey dinner which was much enjoyed by all.

At the hall while the people gathered, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Soutiere, of Stanstead, played a tape of the recorded fiddling music. Later, Mr. Soutiere played his fiddle and Mrs. Roy Parrish, Beebe, the piano accompaniment.

Mr. Soutiere showed a film of the 1971 Provincial ploughing match held at the McKinnon Hunter farms in Barnston as well as other short but interesting films and slides.

Howard Ayer, secretary-treasurer, was Master of Ceremonies. He introduced the Soutiere and Parrish's and thanked them for contributing to the program.

Appreciation was also expressed to Hubert Smith of Hatley for the amplifier system, to Bruce Trevel, Ayer's

Cliff, who donated 200 gallons of Esso gas for the tractors the day of the Match; to Bill Brus for his farm field to hold the match, to Francis Loomis, of Sherbrooke, who judged the ploughing and all others who had contributed money and prizes and worked to make this 57th annual match another success.

Narcisse Dery, Stanstead County agronomist, congratulated all winners, all the contestants and the directors who worked hard to promote this match competition.

"Good plowing is much of farming and good plowing indicates a good farmer" said Mr. Dery.

He spoke of the adverse conditions for farmers this year and of the assistance they will be receiving from the government.

Richie Harrison, vice-president in the absence of President Dewey Mosher who was ill, spoke a few remarks and said the work of Howard Ayer contributes to the success of the matches. He expressed the hope that the 1973 Match will be even larger than this year's.

There were 27 to plow at the September 30 Match held at the Brus farm at Brown's Hill.

Border club invites all

By IVY HATCH

BOUNDARY — The Border Curling Club will begin a junior and intermediate curling program for boys and girls in the Three Villages, Derby, Newport and surrounding area this season.

Curling has long been a winter pastime in the Eastern Townships and, as the popularity of the sport grows, the Curling Clubs in the area are beginning to develop junior programs. Curling has been popular in the Eastern Townships since 1880 when the Sherbrooke Curling Club was formed.

It has long been considered the 'mother Club' for North Hatley, Magog, Lennoxville, Windsor, Danville, Asbestos and the Border Curling Club.

The Board of Directors has appointed two of its directors, Roland Roderigue and Peter Cross, Co-chairmen of the program. There are two separate age groups which the program will involve. The junior age group will range from 12-15 years old, as of September 1, 1972. The intermediate group will be from 16-19 years old, as of the same date.

The annual membership fee for juniors will be $3.

If one of the parents is a shareholder it will be $2. For the intermediates, the membership fee is $5 and if the parent is a shareholder $4.00.

For those who are interested in simply trying the game, a month's free curling will be given with instruction. Ice-chairman, Harold Emslie, anticipates the ice will be available around November 10.

A person is in no way obligated to pay his or her membership dues until after December 15, so, anyone who tries the sport and finds he does not enjoy it, can just quit.

In the words of the Club Executive "there is nothing to lose."

The basic equipment for a curler is nominal and actually there is no extra cost to the individual. A warm sweater, gloves, a pair of clean shoes and rubbers are all that is needed.

The only piece of equipment which is required is a special broom and this is supplied by the Club.

Some of the kids might laugh at the idea of sweeping with a broom up and down the ice, says co-chairman Peter Cross, who played with a team that finished second in the Provincial Curling Championships last year, "but it takes a pair of strong arms and wrists to sweep effectively."

Instruction for the boys and girls will be given in both French and English. Roland Roderigue, who has curled for five years and began teaching some intermediates last year, will be mainly involved with the French-speaking youth.

Pete Cross will be concerned with instruction in English and as the youths develop, strategy and the sportsmanship of the game will be taught in both languages.

As soon as there is an indication of the interest in junior and intermediate curling, the co-chairmen along with the interested individuals will try to establish a playing time so as not to interfere with hockey.

"Right now we have in mind Saturday mornings, Sunday afternoons and probably two week nights beginning around 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.," says co-chairman Roland Roderigue, "but we'll work out something more definite at the first meeting."

Two films have been ordered by the club and they will be shown to interested young curlers on Friday evening, November 17 at 7:30 p.m.

One is an instructional film which will be very appropriate for the interested beginner. The other film will be the exciting 1972 Canadian Curling Championships, which took place in Newfoundland last February. Truly a film which will tell everyone what curling is all about.

For those who want to try curling as a sport, complete instruction and supervision will be given. Any boy or girl between the ages of 12-19 who wants to learn about the game can phone in his or her name to Roland Roderigue, 876-5403, or Peter Cross, 876-5682.

Parents who would like additional information are also invited to phone either of these two numbers.

Presenting the one and only...

I don't know whether you saw the World 'Hohum' Association lidifier on the tube last Wednesday night, but if it's any consolation, breathe a sigh of relief that there won't be another televised game until November 26.

Better still, you should have been in Philadelphia the next night when team officials were forced to tell the sparse turnout it would have to wait another day to see the beloved Blazers. The ice surface in the Convention Hall where the Blazers play home games looked more like a tennis court, and when the Zamboni ice-making machine roared onto the rink, it nearly fell through the cement.

Someday I tried to explain that it was probably because of the hot air from politicians who'd frequented the building one night before, but the fans just wouldn't buy that. In fact they probably wouldn't even have bought a ticket to the game if Philadelphia management hadn't thrown in a free puck.

Being polite customers, the Blazer boosters did the only proper thing when the game was cancelled — in unison, they fired their pucks back on the ice to the people who had given them and, the only sad part of it was that the visitors' nets will never be that full again. The management should consider themselves lucky three years ago fans of the baseball Phillies tore the stadium apart seat by seat after the last game at Connie Mack stadium.

So the WHA has become a reality nearly 10 months after the idea was conceived but, if the first week of operation is a barometer, it's been nothing more than a nightmare for fans who are already suffering from a diluted NHL product.

BILLY HICKE A STAR

When Billy Hicke of the Alberta Oilers outsmarted Les Binkley of Ottawa on a penalty shot during Wednesday's nationally beamed classic, there's a rumour that Johnny Bower dragged out his equipment one more time, but it's probably more accurate that George Vezina turned over in his grave.

It's no secret there are a few gifted products in the new league on the sports block, simply because they were plucked from the NHL's clutches. But the majority of the buffoons who masqueraded as professional hockey players last week would have had trouble earning a first string berth on an old men's factory-league team. They could have served more purpose by posing as the before caption in a Figure Magazine advertisement.

It was immediately pointed out to viewers that one of the rule changes adopted by the fledgling circuit was the permission of the two line pass and now we know why. In the deplorable physical condition of most of these athletes, there'd be far less energy spent by simply lounging lazily for a long breakaway pass.

It's far too early to sound the death-knell for an operation that's merely in its infancy but, just for the sake of comparison, let's check how the WHA ranks with a pair of other sports enterprises that elbowed their way into business.

When the American Football League was born in 1960, eight teams made up the ranks, each of which was soundly backed financially, with enough talent in the lineups to form a pleasing product for the customers. They reached out and obtained the hottest property available at that moment in Joe Namath for a cool $400,000, much like the Winnipeg Jets turned to Bobby Hull making him a pioneer.

Seven years later the move paid off overwhelmingly when Namath led the New York Jets to a Super Bowl upset over the rival NFL and it so boosted the identity of the AFL that the former circuit agreed to a merger only two years later. Today there's little question that the infant of 1970 has developed into a manhood of health and riches.

NUMBER FOLDING IS LARGE

In 1967 it was the American Basketball Association's turn to set up shop beside the long and firmly established NBA, claiming 11 teams in its inaugural season. Five years later the picture is improving but still anything but rosy. In that short span of time, the number of folding franchises almost equals the number of teams presently in the league (surely you remember the Anaheim Amigos).

Just in case you thought things were getting better, two more franchises collapsed into oblivion during the winter and, to compound matters, the ABA continues to lose what few superstars it won in bidding wars with the NBA. The latter loop has promised a merger and this might turn out to be the best thing that ever happened to the ABA.

I think the WHA situation can more aptly be likened to basketball woes, since both leaned towards outgitting the greatest number of franchises possible, regardless of their solidity. And this is where the WHA stands to lose much more than the ABA.

Immediately, even in this early stage of the season, you have to single out only five, maybe six of the new operations in which you'd be willing to invest a few of your millions. Winnipeg has to be at the top of that list, not only because it has the biggest name in professional hockey, but also because it's established in a territory that's starved for a team it can call its own.

SIX MAY MAKE IT

Add a few other cities like New England — even an inferior product can pack them in hockey-mad Boston — Quebec, providing the Nordiques can offer winning and entertaining hockey, and Alberta and Los Angeles are longshots, since the jury is still out on the drawing power of both franchises. Cleveland might also be considered in this category.

As for the remaining half-dozen, there's little doubt they will become more of a headache than members in good standing.

Ottawa Nationals are being outdrawn by a junior club on most nights. New York Raiders have to compete with not one, but two NHL squads, Minnesota and Houston are struggling to haul more than 3,000 in their respective rinks, Chicago Cougars are overshadowed by the long time favorite Black Hawks, and Philadelphia... well, you must know the fans in Philly.

Put this all together and it has to mean you could be seeing more than one WHA entry enjoying its one and only seasons as a league member. The process may not be quite this quick but it will eventually rid the WHA of deadwood.

Wait until next year's contracts are up for renewal, and the poor sucker who's watched 2,000 file out of the arena every game has to match a higher bid, or pay off on one of those long term lucrative contracts.

WHA officials insist that 8,000 spectators per game will enable the league to break even. But what happens when that figure dwindles?

Soviets alive, kicking

The Soviet Union kept alive its hopes of qualifying for the 1974 World Cup soccer finals by beating the Irish republic 2-1 in Dublin Wednesday night.

The Russians had to win to have any hope of qualifying after losing 1-0 to France last week in their opening Group 9 match. Fedorov and Kolotov scored for the Russians before Conway netted for the Irish.

Bulgaria opened its Group 6 campaign with a 3-0 victory over Northern Ireland in a bruising match in Sofia. Northern Ireland's star forward George Best was sent off eight minutes from the end for a foul tackle which climaxed a violent match.

Hristo Bonev scored two Bulgarian goals, both from the penalty spot. Kolev was the other marksman. Portugal leads Group 6 with two victories over Cyprus.

Scotland, which has not qualified for the World Cup finals since 1958, made an impressive start in Group 8 by whipping Denmark 4-1 in Copenhagen.

Macari, Bone, Harper and Morgan scored for Scotland while Laudrup netted for Denmark.

Yugoslavia meets Spain in Las Palmas today in the most intriguing of this week's six World Cup qualifying matches. Yugoslavia is expected to field the team which drew 1-1 with England in a friendly match last week.

Group 2 will be in the spotlight during the weekend when Italy, runner-up to Brazil in the 1970 World Cup, plays Switzerland and Turkey faces Luxembourg.

Heavenly shades of night are falling, so the Reds are optimistic

OAKLAND (AP) — Cincinnati Reds and Oakland Athletics entered the Twilight zone again tonight for the fourth game of the 1972 World Series.

And because of it, both teams looked forward to another low-scoring game following Cincinnati's 1-0 triumph Wednesday night that cut Oakland's lead in the best-of-seven series to 2-1.

"The twilight made the difference for me," said winning pitcher Jack Billingham after gaining the victory with ninth-inning help from Clay Carroll.

"You'll see another good one tonight with Don Gullett pitching," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson.

"Maybe the rest will be onerun games too," said Oakland manager Dick Williams.

The first two games were played in Cincinnati last weekend, but the 3-2 and 2-1 Oakland successes were fashioned without any assistance from nature.

HITTERS' NIGHTMARE

When the Series switched to the Oakland Coliseum this week, the starting time for the contest in California was 5:30 p.m. That's the worst time for a hitter because of the fast-fading light.

Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench, who went 0-for-4 Wednesday night and struck out three times, had been apprehensive about the conditions.

"I hate to hit in the twilight in Oakland," he had said.

But while he hurt the major leagues' top home-run hitter, it also didn't do too much for the Oakland team.

"I don't usually strike out that many batters," said Billingham, who fanned seven Athletics.

"The twilight no doubt helped me."

The journeyman righthander, who gave up three hits through eight innings, started the ninth by throwing three straight balls to Mike Epstein while the crowd of 49,401 at the Coliseum cheered.

Anderson then decided that Billingham had gone far enough.

PRESERVES WIN

Carroll then came in to preserve that shaky lead by getting

Epstein on a bouncer. Sal Bando on a soft line drive and George Hendrick on an easy hit to the mound.

"Jack was tired," said Anderson. "I should have taken him out when he went 2-0, not 3-0."

Billingham agreed.

"I had pitched eight strong innings already and I didn't want to come out of the game," said Billingham. "You never like to leave in a situation like that."

But while he was in there, the right-hander who has an unspectacular 500 lifetime record fed the Athletics a steady diet of sinker balls and allowed only three flies during his tenure.

"LOW AND AWAY" They took a lot of strikes low and away," he said. "They were taking an awful lot of them."

His only jam came in the sixth inning, when the Athletics had men on first and third with none out, and the bases loaded with one man gone. But Billingham got Sal Bando on a rallykilling double play.

John (Blue Moon) Odom was equally good for Oakland, striking out 11 before running into trouble in the seventh inning, when the Reds scored the game's only run.

Tony Perez singled and was sacrificed to second base by Denis Menke. Cesar Geronimo, hitless in his first nine World Series appearances, then laced a single to centre field.

LAPSE IS COSTLY

Perez rounded third, slipped and fell on a field made soggy by 10 straight days of rain. But he picked himself up and scored the winning run when Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris made no relay throw.

"I didn't see him fall down," said Anderson, "but that's the way things have been going for us in this Series before tonight."

Williams has tapped Ken Holtzman to face Gullett in a matchup of hard-throwing southpaws tonight. The fifth game will also be played here Friday afternoon and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, in Cincinnati Saturday and Sunday.

Ex-Expo gave nothing but infield hits and fits

By ERIC PREWITT

OAKLAND (AP) — Jack Billingham gave Oakland Athletics nothing but fits and infield hits in the third game of the World Series Wednesday night.

"He kept the ball low all night and all we could do was beat it into the ground," said Gene Tenace, one of the Athletics' frustrated batters in the 1-0 loss to Cincinnati Reds.

Billingham, with relief help from Clay Carroll in the ninth inning, gave the Reds their first victory of the series in Game 3 by outduelling Athletics starter John (Blue Moon) Odom.

"John was super too," Tenace said of the right-hander who allowed only three hits and struck out 11 Reds in seven innings.

"I don't feel bad about losing a game like that," Odom said. "I did a hell of a job, and we're still one up on them in the Series."

GET 3 HITS

The Athletics had only three hits—a bunt single by Joe Rudi and scratch hits by Dick Green and Gonzalo Marquez. Some of the hitters blamed it on the fact the team has had no batting practice since last Sunday in Cincinnati.

"Batting practice has nothing to do with it," said Odom. "It was just a matter of good pitching on both sides."

"It was a combination of good pitching and sluggishness on our part," said Sal Bando, who grounded into a double play started by second baseman Joe Morgan with one out and the bases loaded in the sixth.

"I knew he was going to pitch me outside, I got a good looking pitch there, went for it and hit it right down there," the Athletics third baseman shrugged. "I knew I was dead."

TOUGH ON BANDO

Bando had another frustrating experience a half inning later, when the Reds scored their run off Odom. He saw base runner Tony Perez fall down after rounding third base while centre fielder George Hendrick threw toward second base.

Shortstop Bert Campaneris took the throw and looked toward second base to see whether Cesar Geronimo, who singled, was trying for two bases.

"I yelled for Campy to go home with the throw, but the crowd was yelling and he couldn't hear anything," Bando said. "If the throw had gone home right away, we would have had him."

Campaneris said the throw from Hendrick was off line, "and when I see the guy (Perez) he's sliding into home."

Last minute goal gives Habs tie

By IAN MACLAINE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harry Sinden, whose position as executive manager of Boston Bruins makes him the No. 1 decision-maker on the National Hockey League club, told a Toronto press reception this week his soon-to-be published book, Hockey Showdown, may take some of the heat of Hatfield.

Sinden, who coached Team Canada in its recent exciting hockey series with the Soviet Union, collaborated with Boston writer Will McDonough on the book encompassing Team Canada from its training camp to the conclusive final game in Moscow.

New York Ranger's Vic Hadfield jumped the team in Moscow and returned home amid speculation as to his reasoning and decision.

Much has been made of the incident and the ranger winger added fuel to the discussions back home by insinuating Sinden didn't know how to handle his conglomerate of NHL stars.

He probably still had that in the back of his mind Wednesday night when he scored the game's first goal en route to a 7-1 New York victory over Sinden's Bruins in the first meeting of the year between the two East Division giants.

Elsewhere, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3, Philadelphia Flyers nipped Los Angeles Kings 4-3, Minnesota North Stars blanked Atlanta Flames 6-0 and Montreal Canadiens earned a 4-4 tie with St. Louis Blues on Frank Mahovlich's last-minute goal.

Vancouver Canucks visit Buffalo Sabres in tonight's only game.

WE'LL BE BACK

"They can forget this game.... We'll be back," declared Boston centre Phil Esposito in the dressing room after the defending Stanley Cup champions regained their composure at New York.

"I'm tempted to say 'No comment,'" observed Boston coach Tom Johnson, "but bluntly we played a lousy game."

The Rangers jumped into a 5-0 lead and gave goaltender Gilles Villemure an easy cushion to work on as they threw up a near airtight defence that allowed Boston only 23 shots.

Bill Fairbairn and Rod Seiling led the attack with two goals each on veteran Ed Johnston in a game that spawned ill feeling from the opening whistle.

Ranger's Glen Sather and Fred O'Donnell of Boston paired off in the first period when Boston's Mike Walton took a game misconduct for intervening. Then in the second Gene Carr was assessed a double minor and major for his fight with Boston's Garnet Bailey.

Norm Ullman and Denis Dupere took advantage of an injury to Pittsburgh goalie Jim Rutherford to score goals 33 seconds apart in the second period that enabled Toronto to pull out the victory at home.

Rutherford was crashed back into the goal webbing by Paul Henderson who was upset as he attempted to break away from the Penguin defence. The young goaltender banged his head on the metal framework. He was later admitted to hospital for overnight observation.

Bill Flett's second goal of the game with 31 seconds remaining while Los Angeles had a man in the penalty box pulled the game out for Philadelphia on the west coast.

The NHL's leading goal scorer, Bob Berry, notched his sixth of the season and Butch Goring, with less than five minutes remaining, had enabled the Kings to overcome a 3-1 deficit entering the final period.

Dennis Hextall, one of seven North Stars arrested the previous night in an Atlanta lounge, spearheaded Minnesota's offence with two goals and two assists and Cesar Maniago turned aside 24 shots in registering the West Division club's first shutout of the year.

Bill Goldsworthy also tallied twice for the Stars and J. P. Parise scored once and added three assists in a game that produced only three minor penalties—two to Minnesota.

Frank Mahovlich, skating past the St. Louis goalmouth, nudged in the goal at St. Louis that salvaged the tie for Montreal and stretched their unbeaten string this season to five games.

The Canadiens had blown a 3-1 lead in the final period and were trailing after Garry Unger notched his fourth of the season at the 15:13 mark to climax a St. Louis comeback during which they peppered Montreal goalie Ken Dryden with 14 shots.

AGRHS takes majority

By BRUCE PORTER

LENNOXVILLE — Alexander Galt Regional High School claimed two victories yesterday against Richmond Regional High School and two others by downing Bishop's University Jayvees and Stanstead College. Meanwhile, Stanstead defeated AGRHS on three soccer counts.

The bantam soccer team, Leeds, beat its Stanstead opponents 4-0 in a game which saw Neil Garrish score twice, with Greg MacTavish and Steve Wilkie getting singles. Coach John Haller noted, "It was one of the best games of the year, the boys really started to work together."

The senior soccer Piperettes won their third game of the season, downing Bishop's Jayvees 2-0 in an exhibition encounter. The Piperettes have also tied twice this year, all games being shut in favor of Galt. In yesterday's contest, Judy Hobbs was credited with the assist on Maureen Hallam's tally.

The game saw one major injury, with Cindy Nutbrown being rushed to hospital after falling on her back. X-rays showed nothing broken and it turned out she had bruised her muscles. She was released soon after.

Richmond defeated the AGRHS girls' field hockey and Liverpool soccer teams by identical 1-0 scores. Debbie McLeod got the clincher in field hockey while the bantam squad scored with less than four minutes left in the game. Liverpool must either win or tie its last remaining game to grab first place in the league.

The senior boys' soccer team completed its season by losing to Stanstead 2-0 to give the team a season total of five wins, two losses and a tie.

The junior boys' soccer squad lost a close game to Stanstead 2-1, with goal-scorer George Darche playing extremely well. Coach Mac Learned commented, "If all the players were to attend the practices on a regular basis, we would have better team attitude and morale, and perhaps..."

Manchester also lost to Stanstead by a 2-0 count. Mentor Steve Beliveau mentioned he was quite satisfied with his team's performance, even though the team was slightly outplayed. "The different age classification was a factor for the school," he added.

Brian Heath's boys' cross-country team ran an exhibition meet against Bishop's College School with BCS winning by a close six-point margin, 31-25.

Coach Heath said, "I feel some team members will have a better effort in the upcoming Zone 14 and provincial meets. Patrick Fitzgerald and Pete Bishop ran well, they were the only two who gave a good effort."

There is no action today but tomorrow sees two games in store, with the senior football squad meeting Richelieu Valley Regional High School at 3:30 p.m. and Manchester facing Liverpool at 4 p.m. see tomorrow's Record for a preview of all weekend action.

Say curlers should include North

By DENNIS BELL

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The council of provincial sports and recreation directors proposed Wednesday that the Canadian curling association open its five major national curling championships to teams representing the Canadian North.

Delegates to a council conference, representing the sports and recreation departments of the 10 provinces, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, approved unanimously a resolution recommending that a northern entry be included in each CCA-sponsored national competition.

In past years, curling four-somes from the Yukon and N.W.T. have been forced by CCA regulations to compete as part of the British Columbia and Alberta playoffs respectively.

Under terms of Wednesday's resolution, the Yukon and N.W.T. would play off among themselves for the right to represent the Canadian North in the men's, women's, senior men's, mixed and schoolboy championships each year.

If the CCA goes along with the resolution, it would mean 12 teams in each national championship instead of 11. Under existing rules there is one four-some from each province except Ontario, which is allowed entries representing Northern and Southern Ontario.

"THORSEN DELIGHTED" John Thorsen, the Yukon's recreation director, said he was "delighted" with the council's endorsement of the resolution he drafted along with N.W.T. representatives.

"In the Yukon, everybody curls and it's ridiculous that we haven't been permitted in past years to send a northern team to the various national playoffs," said Thorsen. "We've got more CCA-affiliated curlers in the Yukon than have Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick or Newfoundland."

Thorsen said the resolution will be submitted to Sport Canada, the sponsors of the various national championships, and CGA president Ire England of Calgary.

"We've got the backing we were looking for from the provincial directors—now it's up to the CCA to get rid of the rules and regulations that make us second-class citizens in the curling world."

The Yukon recreation director said his next target is organized hockey.

Isaac now favored

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Isaac, who holds the world's closed-course speed mark for stock cars, did a one-mile lap at 138 miles an hour Wednesday and became a favorite for the pole position in the American 500 race at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Driving a new Chevrolet, Isaac's unofficial time for his fastest trip around the heavily banked oval was only about one-half second off the official world mark for that distance.

Bobby Allison, who also drives a Chevrolet in Sunday's $106,000 event, set the existing mark for one-mile courses in 1970 when he wheeled a Dodge at 139.048 m.p.h. at Rockingham.

Isaac's world record for stock cars is 201.004 m.p.h. in a Dodge set two years ago at Talladega, Ala.
