Many Test Cases are Taken To Test the Anti-Usury Law By Victims of Loan Sharks

The Loan Sharks Have Made No Effort to Resist the New Law Except in the Sending of Vain Letters of Menace and Threat—Suits Have Been Taken to Test Every Clause of the Statute, and Among Others to Recover Notes After Victim Has Paid Legal Interest.

The Star Information Bureau, on the subject of the bearing of the new law of July 13, on the money-lending situation, has still its large number of visitors daily.

As announced in previous numbers of The Star, the matter is now in its secondary phase. There are few cases now who come to the bureau asking whether or not they should pay the exorbitant interest demanded by the usurers. The question now is, with the majority, "How shall we act to get justice against the sharks who have ruined us?"

There are those now who deem that the law as passed on July 13, of this year, justifies them in taking proceedings to recover the money that the usurer has taken from them beyond what was his right and proper due. In one case at least, a gentleman who has paid one of our leading loan sharks a trifle over $20 too much, is taking action to this end.

Many test cases are being taken each directed to trying out some particular phase of the statute. The results will be watched with interest by hundreds of our citizens. In the meantime, beyond threatening letters and such unimportant demonstrations, the usurers have made few active efforts to assert what they are pleased to call their rights.

In The Star to-day are cited a few examples of the cases now being taken against the usurers. They show the range of the possibilities of the law, and their result will mean great things.

In the Circuit Court last week Judge Dorion refused to entertain a petition to re-open a judgment where 120 per cent. had been charged by a certain money-lender. This phase of the new law, the re-opening of judgments already rendered to the advantage of the shark before the passing of the law, will be further tested

SICK AND IN WANT VICTIM HAD TO PAY.

He was tall, over six feet, hollow-chested, stooping in his walk and unnaturally pale. Consumption had set its fatal mark on his features and under its hopeless ban poverty, and a life of ceaseless labor in that most unwholesome of callings, handling coal, made his lot a peculiarly unhappy one.

He came into the Star Information Bureau yesterday and presented the well-known "receipt slip" of the Canadian Finance Company.

"Have I got to pay any more on that under the new law?" he asked.

He was one of the more pitiable cases among the victims of the loan-shark, for he was unable to read or write. He was paying in the dark, and the usurer had taken advantage of him.

The payments on his slip totalled up to $151.45

This loan had been quite a typical one. In October of last year the man had gone to the Canadian Finance Company, then under the Max Roth regime, and borrowed $100. He is a carter, who owns his own horses and cart, and so these were mentioned in lieu of security. The repayment was to be made in twenty-six fortnightly instalments of $7.80, covering the year. This amounted to $202.80.

The interest on $100 for one year was to be $102.80!

The other day, after having already repaid to the usurer over $150, the victim was unable to make a payment. At once he received the threat which has of late become so popular with those who reign in Max Roth's stead.

"Kindly take notice that your account is overdue since the 10th of July, and we trust you will give same prompt attention.

"Canadian Finance Company."

Needless to say, the victim was told to pay no more, and to disregard any further intimations of this kind. Here is part of his statement as to how he has been treated by this firm of money-lenders.

"I was sick all last winter, half the time not able to work. I met with no mercy from them. Whatever money there was in the house had to go to the Canadian Finance Company, and as often as not it meant that we were all next door to starvation."

CASES ARE PENDING TO TEST NEW LAW.

More than any other company since the enactment of the usury act has the Canadian Finance Company displayed energy in attempting to call in its outstanding accounts at the usurious rates in force before the statute of July came into being. Scores of letters have been seen by the Star that have been sent to victims refusing to pay more than legal interest. These letters declare that the Canadian Finance Company has a version of its own regarding the interpretation of the law; that unless the account is paid at once the company will "hand it over to their attorney for collection."

In the cases which the Canadian Finance Company has already taken the name of L. J. Foisy has been used. Foisy is one of the employes of the concern, and in the declarations made in the several suits it is alleged that he has purchased the outstanding accounts of the company.

It is against the Canadian Finance Company that a test case has been taken that will bring out a phase of the action of the new usury law. As announced in the Star a few weeks ago several of the moneylenders have refused to relinquish the notes and other collateral given by borrowers, when the latter have paid up the principal of their loans and the legal interest as demanded by the present act. In one case detailed in the Star the Canadian Finance Company refused to return to a borrower two insurance policies which he had left with them as security. These had been transferred to the company.

This matter was put into the hands of a well-known firm of solicitors, and this week action was entered in the Superior Court directed to forcing the company to relinquish the policies.

A movement is on foot as well to test the law in the case of notes that the loan-sharks have refused to surrender after payment had been made in accordance with statutory requirements.

THREATS ARE LAST WEAPON OF USURER.

A Point St. Charles man became involved both with Tolman and the Canadian Finance Company, borrowing in each case small sums. From Tolman he had $18; from the other usurer, $16.

On the Tolman note the borrower had repaid $25.20, and on the Canadian Finance account over $24, when the new law came into force. Then he visited the Star Information Bureau to find out what he had better do in the matter. He was advised to cease payment at once.

He followed this plan of action. In spite of "warnings" from the loan sharks, and threats of all kinds he would not yield, although the real monetary value at stake was only two or three dollars in each case.

Yesterday he came to the Star with samples of the notices received from the usurers. One was the regular letter of the Finance Company, threatening to hand the account over to their "attorney" for collection. The other was one of Tolman's business cards, with an ungrammatical invitation to pay scrawled on the reverse side: "Please call at office as soon possible, yours, D. H. Tolman."

The loan firms are making every possible use of the one weapon they have left to collect these accounts disallowed by the law. That weapon is their knowledge of the wide-spread fear of litigation among the people.

JETTE HAS PROTESTED TWO NOTES.

A test case of a great deal of interest as regards the interpretation of the new law against usury will shortly be taken in the Montreal courts. At least the money lender in this instance has declared his intention of prosecuting for the balance of the debt.

The facts of the case are as follows: About a year ago a member of the city Fire Department went to A. Jette & Co. and borrowed the sum of $100. In order to do this he signed fourteen notes each for ten dollars. He has now paid to Jette the sum of $113.50. The money lender states that he still holds two notes, one for ten and the other for twenty dollars. In addition to the amount paid for interest the borrower paid Jette one dollar and a quarter as a fee for signing a notarial instrument when he last renewed his note.

After the passing of the new law against usury the borrower in this case came to the Star Information Bureau and was advised not to pay any more money to the usurer. He acted on this advice. Then Jette protested the note.

In the Star to-day is given a reproduction of the letter sent to the borrower notifying him of the protest. The case will, of course, be fought out in the courts and will form an interesting test of the scope of the act.

A translation of the above letter is: "Sir,—We notify you herewith that your note for $10 and that for $20, which were due yesterday, have been protested. Be good enough to settle them without delay.

"Yours truly,
"A. JETTE & CO."

Chauffeur Atkinson Gives Evidence in His Own Defence.

VITAL ISSUE IN THE CASE

Judge Choquet Finds It in Right of Way of Pedestrians or Vehicles at Crossings.

Judge Choquet yesterday afternoon concluded the hearing of evidence in the case of Herwold Thomas Atkinson, the chauffeur, who is charged with manslaughter for having caused the death of Antoine Toutant, who was knocked down by an automobile at the corner of St. Catherine and Maisonneuve streets, on August 11th.

After the evidence was closed, His Honor said that he would be ready to hear the argument of the counsel next Wednesday and that the principal point in the case, in his mind, was as to who had the right of way on street crossings. Should pedestrians stop to allow vehicles pass or should the vehicles stop to allow pedestrians to pass.

ATKINSON'S STATEMENT.

The most important witness examined yesterday afternoon was the prisoner himself, Atkinson. He stated that his automobile was not going at a faster rate than six miles an hour when the accident occurred, and that the accident would never have happened had not Toutant hesitated when he started to cross the street. Atkinson further said that Toutant started to cross the street, then went back, and just as the automobile was within a couple of feet of him, leaped in front of it. Had he gone across when he first started, or had he remained where he was when he drew back, the accident would not have happened, as there was sufficient space for the automobile to pass between the sidewalk and where Toutant was standing. Atkinson was positive that the machine was not going more than six miles an hour at the time.

He concluded his evidence by saying that it would be impossible for him to stop his machine in the short distance of six feet, if it had been travelling at 20 or 25 miles an hour, as many witnesses stated.

CHAUFFEUR CORROBORATED.

Hubert Dalgleish and James G. Berton, who were in the automobile with Atkinson at the time of the accident, gave evidence which corroborated Atkinson's, adding that they were positive that Atkinson had taken every precaution that a human being could take to avoid the accident.

Cross-examined by Mr. L. T. Marechal, counsel for the accused, Mr. Dalgleish, who is a chauffeur himself, swore that if the machine was going at the rate of 20 miles an hour, as witnesses had said, the car would have capsized when the brakes were applied. He further stated that on wet roads it was a most difficult thing to stop an automobile, as the back wheels always swerved around when the brakes were applied, and when it did this they were in danger of meeting with a severe accident.

Other witnesses were examined who gave exactly the same evidence as they gave at the Coroner's inquest.

JUDGMENT ON WEDNESDAY.

Both sides then declared the case closed, and Judge Choquet announced that he would be ready to hear the argument and give his judgment on Wednesday afternoon at half-past two. Before leaving the bench His Honor stated that he was convinced that the machine was not going more than 20 miles an hour, and that it might have been less, but as it was a very important case he would look over the evidence again and also look up the law as to the right of way at crossings.

Books of the Week Reviewed; Mountain Wild Flowers of Canada

By George Murray, B. A., Oxon., F. R. S. C.

Mountain Wild Flowers of Canada. By Julia W. Henshaw. (Toronto: W. Briggs.)

It is seldom that we have seen a more beautiful book than the one before us which deals with the "Mountain Wild Flowers of Canada." It is written by Mrs. Julia W. Henshaw, of Vancouver, dedicated to Sir Thomas George Shaughnessy, recommended in the highest terms by Professors John Macoun and James Fletcher, of Ottawa, and illustrated by exactly one hundred exquisitely engraved plates. The authoress modestly explains that as the volume is intended more for the use of the general public than for botanists, the flowers described are classified according to color, and without especial reference to their scientific relationship. This plan is adopted because the first attribute of a plant that attracts the traveller's eye is invariably its color, and his first question usually is "What is that red, blue, or yellow flower?" as the case may be. The ordinary tourist probably knows little or nothing of order, genus or species, and accordingly the descriptions given by Mrs. Henshaw in her guide to the mountain wild flowers are so simply and clearly worded that any plants indexed may be readily located in one of the color sections, together with its name and chief characteristics. Inasmuch, however, as every reader of the book should understand the principal botanical terms, more than two full pages are devoted to the explanation of the terms most frequently used in describing plants. These, of course, refer to the root, the fruit, the stem, the leaf, and the flower, and will be found eminently satisfactory. The six sections of the work deal (I.) with white and green flowers, (II.) with pink to red flowers; (III.) with blue to purple flowers; (IV.) with yellow to orange flowers; (V.) with flowering shrubs, while section (VI.) and last deals with some miscellaneous matters that required brief treatment. It is a treat to turn over the numerous pages of the book, and compare the plates with Mrs. Henshaw's vivid description of them. We sigh for the want of one thing only—viz., color. But to have reproduced that in one hundred instances would have placed the volume out of the reach of all but wealthy people, and Mrs. Henshaw kindly and judiciously wished her book to be obtainable by the general public.

And now, having said that we have been delighted, or, rather, charmed, by the volume, we ought in justice to the author to express in glowing language the nature of her book's charm and the nature of our own delight. But the feeling that our words would be inadequate to the occasion, and, therefore, disappointing to the fair botanical writer, seals our language and checks our pen. One thing, however, we can will, and ought to do. We can quote the accurate criticism of ... genuine scientists and competent to speak with authority on the merits of the book; and our readers will, no doubt, thank us for being diffident, and for reproducing the critical opinions of such men as Professor John Macoun, botanist to the Federal Government of Canada, and Dr. James Fletcher, Entomologist and Botanist to Dominion Experimental Farms. The former gentleman has written as follows to Mrs. Henshaw: "When you told me of your intention to write a popular mountain flora, I assured you that such a work would not only serve a splendid purpose in attracting attention to our grand Canadian mountains, but that until the tourist had in his hands some such book as would enable him to identify the many flowers that grow there in profusion, he must feel lost among the unnamed surrounding beauties. It was the one book needed. That the work should have been done as you have done it, is more than I could have hoped. The beauty of the photographs, the absolute correctness of the grouping of the flowers—the concise and yet complete descriptions make it easy for even the visitor of a day to identify all the plants he is likely to see. Your choice of English names, when such had not before been given to our Alpine flowers is excellent. They are themselves often sufficiently descriptive to enable one to identify the species. I am glad too, to note that the scientific names you have used are strictly in accord with our Canadian nomenclature, as endorsed by the Canadian Dominion Government Botanists." Our space is ended, or we would have reproduced Dr. Fletcher's letter, which is equally laudatory.

That Preposterous Will. By L. G. Moberly. (Toronto: The Copp, Clark Co.)

We are inclined to believe that this is the best novel of the season. At any rate, it would be hard to find another tale that combines in itself all the best elements of fiction in so full a degree. The plot is well arranged and sustained—the characters, for the most part are natural, the events might readily have taken place, and the conversations, etc., are interesting and lifelike. Mrs. Bedsworth is perhaps too melodramatic for the present period, but her desire to take vengeance on a dead man, whom in his life-time she had deeply wronged, will explain the apparently insane acts of which she was guilty. Horace, in his "Art of Poetry," tells us that we must maintain a character to the end such as we sketched it at first. Had Mr. Moberly followed this precept, he would have robbed us of Miranda Hume, one of the most charming heroines of modern fiction. If the novelist had kept this young woman in the same position in the world as that which she occupied when we are introduced to her, we could not possibly have waded to the end of the book; but Mr. Moberly permits a transfiguration almost miraculous to take place in the case of Miranda, once known as Molly, and though the girl was always the same in heart and intellect, we welcome the miracle with almost as much triumphant joy as her lover, Alan Dayrell, does in the final chapter. As we have no intention of revealing the intricacies of the plot, it may probably please the intending reader to know that it ends happily, though at one time there were few signs of such a denouement, and that the last words that Alan utters to his lady love are these: "You and I have entered into our kingdom. I was fool enough to abuse Godfrey Haines for making which I was pleased to call a 'preposterous will'; but now that I shall bless him for ever, because his will has turned out the key, which, for you and me, my own sweet wife, has opened the gate of our Paradise."

But as we have said that we are inclined to think Mr. Moberly's book "the best novel of the season," we feel bound to arouse a little interest in it, and this we propose to do by laying down, from the beginning of the book, the exact situation of affairs as regards the two chief "dramatis personae." The first chapter contains an interview between Alan Dayrell, the supposed heir of the deceased Godfrey Haines, and Mr. Bray, the family solicitor. Mr. Bray informs his young visitor that in his first will, drawn up some years ago, Mr. Haines, the godfather of Alan, left him his whole fortune unreservedly. Since that the godson had mysteriously offended Haines very much by promising to marry Stella Bedsworth, a very beautiful but rather inane girl, whose clever and intriguing mother had once been mixed up in the life of Godfrey Haines. In his last will, accordingly, the bulk of the old man's property is left to a goddaughter, Miranda Hume, who is to retain it unless she consents to marry Alan, when half the fortune will be settled on him. The second chapter, aptly entitled "A Strange Heiress," brings us face to face with Miranda (or "Molly," as she is then called), a little red-headed girl of perhaps 17 years, who is living at a common boarding house in George street, Islington, as a hard working "slavey" who does anything and everything for an exacting mistress. Mr. Bray calls also on this poor child, and informs her of the change that must take place in her life. The story of this change is that which is told by Mr. Moberly, and is full of interest and excitement. We will say no more.

The Cubs: The Story of a Friendship. By Shan F. Bullock. (London: J. Werner Laurie.)

The edition of this book that has been sent to us by the London publisher is issued for sale and circulation only in the British Colonies and India, and must not be imported into the Continent of Europe, or the United States of America. The contents of the book are very hard to describe. "The Cubs" are so numerous, and the story of their escapades is so strange that even the critic of the "Academy" feels himself compelled to deal in vague generalities in noticing the volume, and writes as follows about Mr. Bullock's quaint book: The boys of Thalma lived, there is no doubt of that. They lived like young Elizabethans. There was nothing drab or colorless about the life at Thalma. The bullying of the "Pets" was terrific; the adventures and wickedness of the "Cubs," was incomparable; the goodness of Brunel unmarred; the friendship of Jan Farmer for him as vivid and inexplicable as most of such friendships are. These wild Irish boys bear but little resemblance to the staid English public-school boys. They play marbles; they steal apples; they shoot blackbirds and even ducks and geese, with catapults; they fight on the least provocation, and pay out private scores at important football matches. They are what boys used to be once on a time, and are still sometimes thought to be, but are not. The development of the boy has been swift and wonderful. Though the wise old boy may shake his head in disdain, and mutter "Outsiders!" we confess to reading every word of "The Cubs" excitedly, and liking still more the relish and gusto with which their doings are described. Mr. Bullock's enthusiasm is catching, and the death of Brunel in the last chapter is very pathetically described. His friend Jan writes of him in almost the final words of the book: "Who says that Brunel is dead? He is not dead; he is of the kind that never dies. Every day he is with me. Not an hour ago we spoke together. Even now as I write he comes over the room and stands by my side." The sub-title of the volume, "The Story of a Friendship," was aptly selected.

Where Speech Ends. By Robert H. Schauffler. (N.Y.: Moffat, Yard & Co.)

This novel is called "A Music Maker's Romance," and the indefatigable Henry Van Dyke has written a "Prelude" of eleven pages to it. Leon Guipon has contributed to it three clever illustrations, Mr. Ashe two rather pretty ones, and Mr. F. D. Steele two purposely ugly ones. In the first few chapters the author has done his part fairly well, but we soon discover that he has received no training as a story-teller. Musical people are evidently fascinating to him, but he knows very little about life at large, and his figures, excepting in the case of two boys, are without life. Of course, there is a girl in the story, very lovely and very good, who plays the harp, and, in addition, writes poems, of which some samples are given. One of them reads fairly well, and the author is careful to mention that two of them had previously appeared in "Scribner's Magazine," and two in "The Outlook." For the rest, the plot is an old plot of melodrama, curiously padded with scenes from musical Bohemia, and college life. At p. 87 we notice the words "inter matre atque filia," where the nouns, of course, ought to be in the accusative case. At p. 121 "bete noir" should be "noire"; "innoculated" on p. 123 requires only one "n" and the author has blundered at p. 132 in writing "Colonel D. Streamer" from being ignorant that Captain Harry Graham signed his verses "Col. D. Streamer," as he was in the Coldstream Guards.

(I.) Treasure Island. By Robert L. Stevenson. (N.Y.: Cassell & Co.)
(II.) His Excellency's English Governess. By Sydney C. Grier. (Blackwood & Sons, London.)

I. It is certainly a great boon for the rising generation to be able to procure cheap and neat reprints of standard works. Here we have "for a song," as the saying is, one of Stevenson's masterpieces, clearly printed, and illustrated by Mr. Merrill with six clever drawings. The story, which consists of six parts, is dedicated to the author "To S. L. O., an American gentleman, in accordance with whose classic taste, the following narrative has been designed." In its present cheap form it is sure to obtain a very wide circulation.

II. This is the "People's Edition" of a successful society novel by Mr. Grier, author of "The Kings of the East," and "Like Another Helen." His first-mentioned story showed that he was intimately acquainted with what Milton calls "the gorgeous East," and this new tale serves to confirm the fact. The book opens on Presentation Day at the University of London, when Cecil Anstruther, the most distinguished pupil of Miss Arbuthnot, Principal of the South Central School, obtained the prize for French in the B. A. Final, and the second place in Honors for Mental and Moral Science. Cecil was the daughter, as the "Whitcliffe Argus," the chief organ of her native place, duly recorded, "of our esteemed fellow-townsman, the much-respected Vicar of St. Barnabas'," and the gentle methodical, and conscientious girl had a hard time at the Vicarage with the Anstruther children, who, one and all, were the terror of Whitcliffe. Unsupported unfortunately, by her mother who could see no faults in her progeny, Cecil's life was a daily torture to her, as she in vain tried to break in the impetuous "young barabrians"; and when she received a telegram from Miss Arbuthnot saying that she had heard of a good situation, she at once recognized the fact that if she could not be useful with the children at home, she might at any rate help to provide the money necessary to give them the education that they so greatly needed. Cecil goes promptly to Miss Arbuthnot to learn all the particulars about the situation that is to be offered to her, and is introduced by her to Lady Haigh, the wife of Sir Dugald, now high in the service, who had lately been made Consul-General and political agent at Baghdad. Lady Haigh subsequently introduces Cecil to Denarien Bey, an American gentleman at present on some business for the Pasha, His Excellency Ahmed Khemi, who wishes to engage the services of an accomplished English governess for his third son, Azim Bey, a boy of ten years old, destined to be his heir. An unbroken period of five years was deemed necessary for his education, and the salary proposed was a large one. Cecil was to sign an agreement to serve for two years, and, when they had expired, she could, if willing, at once sign another bond to remain three years more, after which she was to be entitled to a large extra bonus for having conducted Azim Bey's education to a successful close. Cecil accepts the position, signs the first document, reaches her destination in safety, and readers must learn the story of her adventures in the pages of Mr. Grier's "His Excellency's English Governess."

The Lost Heir. By G. A. Henty. Illustrated. (London: T. Fisher Unwin.)

It seems that the boys' favorite author, the late Mr. Henty, left several stories that had never been published before his death. This, we are told, is a clearly ascertained fact, and the boys of England and English-speaking countries have kept his memory green by eagerly buying these posthumous works. "The Lost Heir," for instance, though only recently printed, is now in its second edition, which is a strong tribute to its merit. It is, in many respects, very different from most of Mr. Henty's books. We expect, of course, some good fighting, and many exciting incidents in every one of the novelist's tales, and in these requisites "The Lost Heir" is not wanting. Staff Pay-Sergeant Sanderson, who afterwards personates a certain John Simcoe, is the hero, or, rather, the arch-villain of the piece, and calls himself "The Lost Heir." When he discovered that his fraud had been distinctly proved, he killed himself with some of the same deadly drug with which he had shortly before poisoned his old commander, General Mathieson. In the first chapter we have the main incident upon which the whole story hinges. Brigadier-General Mathieson was the officer in command of the force in the cantonments of Benares, and the surrounding districts. One day, while the General was tiger hunting he was accidentally thrown from his elephant, seized by a tiger and carried away into the jungle. It was then that his hunting companion, John Simcoe, a young English visitor, who, singularly enough, bore a strange resemblance in looks to Sergt. Sanderson, slipped off his pad, ran on and attacked the tiger, thereby saving the General's life, but nearly losing his own. When he had partly recovered, he attempted to return to England, but in December, 1832, was lost at sea in the ship Nepaul. General Mathieson, a rich unmarried man, had intended to make him his heir, and bequeath him his large fortune; but Simcoe's untimely death prevented this. It was just about the time of the General's accident that Staff Pay-Sergeant Sanderson, hitherto highly respected and honored, deserted, leaving a deficiency of over £300 in his accounts. In vain the authorities tried to hunt down the defaulter. He escaped, and the next news of him that we get from Mr. Henty is that, under the name of John Simcoe, he is living with a native woman called "Polly," and an intimate friend "Billy," on an island in the Pacific Ocean. How these two friends of Sanderson are murdered by a furious gang of natives, while he himself almost miraculously escapes is well told in the story. When finally, after many extraordinary adventures, Sanderson makes his appearance in England, and, taking advantage of his striking likeness to John Simcoe, pretends for his own purposes that he is that gentleman, who was not drowned in 1832 in the Nepaul, serious complications, ending with a trial, follow; but these must be studied by Mr. Henty's admirers in the 400 pages of "The Lost Heir."

CONDEMN INDECENT POSTERS

Canadian Bill Posters' Association Take Strong Action in Toronto.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Toronto, Ont., September 1.—Further action in support of their determination not to put up indecent or immoral posters was taken yesterday at the semi-annual meeting of the directors of the Canadian Bill Posters and Distributors' Association. A dozen posters, which the board were asked in appeal to accept, were in every case refused. The association received a letter from the Canadian Women's Christian Temperance Union endorsing their action against objectionable posters. The example of the Canadian association has been followed by the United States association, who in turn have received the endorsement of the National W. C. T. U. The latter, however, asked that liquor and cigar advertisements be omitted by the bill posters, but the reply went only so far as to consent to that when such advertisements were also refused by the newspapers and magazines.

The board dealt with the request of the theatrical managers to the Minister of Customs that the duty on posters and advertising be reduced. A letter was drafted to the Minister objecting to the proposal on the ground that it was against the interests of the bill posting and printing interests in Canada and that even now the tariff was evaded. It was decided to hold the next year's meeting at Niagara Falls in July.

More Land Bought From Indians.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, September 1.—The Canada Gazette contains notice of a recommendation by the Minister of the Interior of the terms of a treaty with certain Indians in Northern Alberta, and Saskatchewan. The treaty provides for the surrender of 85,800 square miles of land hitherto held by the red men. Provision is made for the creation of Indian reserves not to exceed one square mile for each family of five, and for the payment of $32 in cash to each chief, $22 to each head man, and $12 to every other Indian, and for payment each year hereafter of $25 to each chief, $15 to each head man, and $5 to every other Indian.

Dreadnought Unseaworthy.

London, September 1.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Portsmouth says that in the hurry to get the new battleship Dreadnought completed, her plates were badly fixed. Soon after she was launched, the correspondent says, some holes were found without rivets, and the men responsible were dismissed. Some leakage also was found, and she now is in dry dock. The Daily Mail calls for a searching enquiry into the matter.

Changes in Eastern Townships.

Quebec, September 1.—The Bishop of Quebec has made several changes in the clergy of the Eastern Townships. Rev. Frank Vial has been appointed to the mission of Windsor and Brompton; Rev. McIntyre Bradshaw to Fitch Bay, and Georgeville, and Rev. Ernest Rey to Shigawak.

Quebec Saloon Closing By-law.

Quebec, September 1.—Chief Justice Langelier, in chambers, has dismissed the petition for writ of injunction by a local restaurant keeper to prevent the city by-law ordering the close of bars on Saturday at 7 p.m. coming into force this evening. A number of hotel men intend keeping open as usual, but will be reported to the city authorities.

THE GRAIN COMMISSION.

Estimated the Northwest Grain Crop Will Be Worth $90,000,000.

Winnipeg, September 1.—The Grain Commission yesterday heard a large number of dealers, all of whom recommended a "per diem" basis of terminal elevator charges, instead of the present basis of 15 and 30 day terms. Several thought Government control of the clearing of grain advisable. A prominent exporters said rates to American ports were often cheaper than to Canadian ports, through Canadian carriers competing for American trade, though protected from such competition themselves by the coasting laws.

It is estimated that the farmers of the Canadian Northwest will receive $90,000,000 this year from three crops alone—wheat, oats, and barley. It is figured this way:—

Wheat, 91,813,900 bushels at 68 cents	$62,433,452
Oats, 80,854,680 bushels, at 28 cents	22,639,310
Barley, 17,735,790 bushels, at 30 cents	5,320,370
Total	$90,393,132

When to this amount is added the return to western consumers from live stock, dairy produce, vegetables, etc., it is safe to say that the total will pass $100,000,000. This is an enormous sum of money to do business with among a comparatively small population. Crop estimates used were those compiled by John Aird, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He figures that the three provinces will produce 91,813,900 bushels of wheat this season.

Figures issued by Chief Grain Inspector David Horn, show that during the crop year ending August 31, 1906, a total of 65,850,000 bushels of wheat was inspected, compared with 39,000,000 the previous year, which is the highest total in the history of Western Canada, the previous record being in the crop year ending August 31, 1903, when 53,700,000 bushels were inspected. Of last year's inspection, 80 per cent. was of contract grade. Other grains inspected were: Oats, 6,921,000, and barley, 1,400,000 bushels.

The balance of the total is made up of city property, parks, libraries, York County property, fire halls, hospitals, etc.

Sudden Death of Omaha Editor.

Omaha, Neb., September 1.—Edward Rosewater, proprietor and editor of the Omaha Bee, and prominently identified with political, financial and business affairs of Omaha and the State of Nebraska for forty years, was found dead in District Court Room No. 6, on the third floor of the Bee building, early yesterday. It is supposed that he sat down on a bench in the court room, fell asleep, and died of heart failure.

Bad Fire at Fryburg.

Fryburg, Me., September 1.—Fifteen buildings of this town were burned yesterday, including the Oxford House, a three-storey wooden structure, with accommodations for 250 persons; 12 residences, a store and an unoccupied hotel, by a fire which started from sparks on the roof of the Oxford House. The loss was estimated at $80,000, of which $20,000 was on the hotel.

ARREST OF MONTREAL MEN.

Five Montrealers Taken Into Custody for Using Gambling Wheels.

Quebec, September 1.—Five Montrealers were arrested here yesterday as a result of a raid by the Provincial Police on the gambling wheels which had been in operation during the annual meet of the Quebec Turf Club. The paraphernalia and money belonging to the operators, amounting to $500, were seized and taken to headquarters. Those arrested were:

Pete Coleman,
Art. Cote,
W. Thibault,
W. Coffey,
W. O'Brien.

A party of Quebec sports also ran a wheel during the meet, but they were not arrested. It was said that as they were known to the police it would only be necessary to invite them to attend the court.

Coleman was at the head of the Montreal party. He ran the wheels during the first day of the meet unmolested, and seemed to do a brisk business. After the arrest members of the Turf Club went to police headquarters and offered bail for the Montreal men, and this was accepted. The case will come up in court this morning.

One Henderson Case Dismissed.

Walkerton, Ont., September 1.—The Henderson case, for obtaining money on false pretences from Adam Seiling, of Walkerton, and Henry Peppler, of Hanover, came up here yesterday before Magistrates Robb and Tolton. Mr. Curry, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. Shaw, K.C., of Walkerton, appeared for Henderson, and Mr. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. Malcolmson, of Walkerton, prosecuted for Seiling and Peppler. The Peppler case was dismissed on his own evidence. The Seiling case was sent to a higher court. Henderson's personal bail was accepted. Mr. Curry is moving to set aside the decision of the magistrates on the ground of there being no evidence to convict.

Transport Sheridan is Ashore.

Honolulu, September 1.—The United States army transport Sheridan is ashore on Barbers Point, the southwestern extremity of the Island of Oahu, on which Honolulu is located.

The Sheridan went ashore at 1 o'clock. All efforts to send boats ashore from her thus far have been unsuccessful. There is no beach at the place where she struck and the heavy surf makes it impossible to land anywhere near where she lies. She has on board 17 sick men, one general prisoner and 45 enlisted men. She is commanded by Capt. Peabody, and the quartermaster in charge is Captain Frank J. Marrow.

Spence, Consecon, clerk, Seventh Division Court Prince Edward County, and John Wilson, Merrickville, bailiff, Fifth Division Court, Leeds and Grenville.

POPULATION OF WEST.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, September 1.—Returns have been received at the Census Bureau from nearly all the districts of Alberta, but a great many are still missing from Saskatchewan. The figures for Alberta have not all been made up. While remarkable gains have been made in many districts, the total population promises to fall considerably short of the estimates which have been made by the Immigration Department. This is probably accounted for by the fact that a record is kept of every land seeker who enters the country while no note is taken of these who do not remain. The population will probably fall a little short of two hundred thousand.

In several districts where not a single soul was found in 1901, there are now settlements of from one thousand to fifteen hundred people. Many other districts show increases of from one hundred to five hundred per cent. and even higher. In only a few districts has there been any decrease in the population, and this is explained by the fact that the sons of farmers have gone elsewhere to take up homesteads.

Tax Exemptions in Toronto.

Toronto, September 1.—There are properties in Toronto valued at $24,913,380 which do not pay a cent of taxes to the city, according to a statement issued by Assessment Commissioner Forman yesterday. The individual exemptions include: Cemeteries, $3,786.84; charitable institutions, Protestant, $662,124; charitable institutions, Roman Catholic, $324,285; Churches—Baptist $3,728.36, Congregational $219,982, Methodist $1,500,964, Episcopal $1,100,568, Presbyterian $955,908, Roman Catholic $602,938, other religious denominations $354,860; Dominion Government property, $1,498,303; Ontario Government property, $3,736,060; public schools, $1,328,969; universities, $2,401,389. RABIES IN NEW YORK.

Becoming An Epidemic in the Metropolitan City.

New York, September 1.—There is at present an epidemic of rabies in New York and vicinity and the disease has not yet run its course.

This is the startling statement made last night by Dr. W. L. Wheeler, of the Pasteur Institute. In explanation, the doctor declared:—

"Not only New York city and the surrounding towns are sufferers from the disease, but it has also taken a hold in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. That we are now in the grasp of an epidemic, I have no doubt. From casual observation I believe it had its inception almost a year ago in Yonkers.

"At that time we had at the Institute several cases from that town. Others followed them rapidly, and from then on the course of the disease could be traced east. That rabies can so spread over large tracts of territory is, of course, well known. A dog is discovered with the rabies. Before he can be killed he has run perhaps ten miles, biting every dog which he has met.

"These in turn develop the disease and like the first dog, run perhaps one mile, perhaps ten before they are finally despatched. The months of September, October and November always produce more cases of rabies than other months. The disease takes several months to develop. More dogs suffer from the rabies during the summer months than at other seasons of the year."

Ottawa Regiment in New York.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, September 1.—The Governor-General's Foot Guards, about 400 strong, entrained last evening for New York. Thousands of citizens turned out to give the regiment a send-off. To-day the Guards will tour New York city in automobiles and take a boat trip to Coney Island. The only ceremonial feature of the visit will be a review at West Point on Monday afternoon. The regiment will return home on Monday night.

There are good drug stores and drug stores not so good.

The not-so-good drug store may be a good enough place to buy patent medicines, sponges and soda water, but it is not always a safe place to get prescriptions filled.

Druggists differ.

Some prescriptions taken to four different druggists would have four different results.

The results might be equally good for the purpose intended—and they might not. Being all different, they could not all be absolutely correct.

One would be right—the others wrong. The right one would be the one put up by the most skillful and most careful druggist.

It is skill and carefulness that makes Dowler's the best dispensing drug store in the city.

FAVORS ELECTION OF JUDGES.

Joseph Ainey Makes This Main Point in Address at Mass Meeting.

At last night's open air meeting, at the corner of Prince George and Fullum streets, Joseph Ainey, the Labor candidate in St. Mary's division, spoke strongly in favor of the election of judges by the people. He advocated a better system of education and severely criticized the actions of the members of the Quebec Legislature, the Montreal City Council and condemned the immigration policy of the Dominion Government.

In explaining his reasons for demanding that the judges be elected by the people, according to the principles of the labor platform, Mr. Ainey observed that too many had crept to Parliament with the help of money, in order to afterwards secure a comfortable place for themselves in the judiciary.

"Ostensibly these appointments are made in return for services rendered to the country, but in most cases it is for services rendered to the party in power. We want judges to be entirely independent of politics, so that they may have the greatest freedom of action possible, and the only way to achieve this end is to have them elected by the people."

He was in favor of restricting immigration, because he did not wish to see a "poor lot of foreign devils" imposed upon by parties or corporations interested in securing their immigration to this country, and also because this indiscriminate importation of aliens was detrimental to the welfare of the Canadian workingmen.

Are Wanted in Quebec.

Officers from Quebec arrived here to-day to take back Michael Lafferty and "Spike" Druith, Quebeckers, who were arrested last night by Detectives Viens, LeHuquet and Connors. They were arrested on the strength of a telegram received from Quebec, stating that they were wanted there on suspicion of stealing furs from a wholesale house. When arrested a quantity of Persian lamb and mink skins, bearing the stamp of a Quebec firm, were found in their possession.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
This is the age of research and experiment, when all nature, so to speak, is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides during the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine comes that of THERAPION.
This preparation is unquestionably one of the most genuine and reliable Patent Medicines ever introduced, and has, we understand, been used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Rostan, Jobert, Velpeau, Maisonneuve, the well-known Chassaignac, and indeed by all who are regarded as authorities in such matters, including the celebrated Lallemand and Roux, by whom it was some time since uniformly adopted, and that it is worthy the attention of those who require such a remedy we think there is no doubt. From the time of Aristotle downwards, a potent agent in the removal of these diseases has (like the famed philosopher's stone) been the object of search of some hopeful, generous minds; and far beyond the mere power—if such could ever have been discovered—of transmuting the baser metals into gold is surely the discovery of a remedy so potent as to replenish the failing energies of the confirmed roué in the one case, and in the other so effectually, speedily and safely to expel from the system without the aid, or even the knowledge, of a second party, the poisons of acquired or inherited disease in all their protean forms as to leave no taint or trace behind. Such is which may certainly rank with, if not take precedence of, many of the discoveries of our day, about which no little ostentation and noise have been made, and the extensive and ever-increasing demand that has been created for this medicine wherever introduced appears to prove that it is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. Therapion may be obtained of the principal chemists throughout the world.—Diamond Fields' Advertiser, Kimberley.
THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY

Efforts on Foot to Preserve Ben Nevis Observatory and Auld Brig O'Ayr.

ROYALTY VISITS NEW LORD

King and Queen of Spain at Lord Leith's Aberdeensnire Estates.

(Frae oor ain Correspondent.)

Glasgw, August 22.—The man wha wrote me frae Moscow, Ontario (I think it was) a letter wi' the Petworth an' Yarker postmarks, will hae to excuse me for no answerin' him in a letter direct to himsel'. When I sat doon to write to him I discovered that although I had the envelope, an' the envelope and stamp he sent me for replyin' wi', his letter itsel' had been committed to the flames among some stuff that I wanted to be rid o'. That was my fault, but it was his fault that he didna address the envelope he sent me for replyin' in. If he had I wad hae managed no sae bad. He kindly sent me a twa-cent stamp. In this respect he is like twa-three readers afore him. They fairly forget that although Canada is a pairt o' the British Empire its stamps are o' nae use on this side o' the Atlantic, at least for carryin' letters. To get the good o' the Moscow man's stamp I will hae to gang ower to Canada an' post a letter to somebody in this country. That, I'm thinkin', wad put the cost aboon the honor.

As to the letter itsel', I may as weel mak a paragraph about it. Sae far as I can mak the Moscow man was askin' advice as to what Scottish papers he should advertise in for lost freen's, an' what the cost wad be. That a' depends. At least four good Scottish weeklies rin free columns for this purpose, an' each o' them boasts o' the number o' families it has made happy. They are the Weekly Herald an' the Weekly Mail in Glasgow, an' the People's Journal an' Weekly News in Dundee. They hae a' big circulations at hame an' amang Scots in ither countries, an' a letter to each o' them wi' the name o' the person wanted, when last heard o', an' where, an' the address o' the person advertisin' will be a' that is needed. If the advertiser didna care to see his ain name in print the editor will tak in his letters an' send them on. Amang papers that need pay for the notice, it a' depends on the kind o' person that is lost. If he is a business man, he'll see the Glasgow Herald for sure, an' likely the Evening Citizen; if he is a young man wha delights in city amusements an' city gossip he canna dae without the Evening News, an' if he gangs in for fitba' an' sporting he is sure to tak in the Evening Times an' Daily Record. As to payment each paper has its ain rates. This is aboot a' the advice I can gie the Moscow man the noo. When he sees this he will maybe write me again if he thinks I can help ony mair. Then I will send him back his twa-cent stamp.

The enthusiasts wha hae the Ben Nevis observatories on the brain are thinkin' they'll get somethin' oot o' the Liberal Government for keepin' them up. The Unionists fairly refused to help, an' the result was that for the want o' maybe £1,500 a year, the twa places, ane at Fort William, an' the ither at the tap o' the hill, had to be closed. Noo the Chancellor o' the Exchequer has got a petition signed by nearly a' the Scottish members o' Parliament, askin' for a Government grant for the support o' the twa observatories. Mr. Asquith says he'll think the thing ower, sae maybe somethin' will happen. We've just been hearin' hoo three-quarters o' a million was lost by sheer bunglin' an' stupidity in the Sooth African war, an' there's nae word o' onybody gettin' penal servitude for it. It seems hard lines just on the back o' this, if £1,500 a year canna be spared by the nation for scientific purposes on its highest hill. The Government—Liberal or Tory—aye seem far mair particular aboot the hundreds an' thoosan's than aboot the millions.

I was said in Society—wi' a big S—that the King an' Queen o' Spain were breakin' a' the rules o' newly married kings an' queens by leavin' their ain country within a year after they were married, an' that their visit to this country this month wasna exactly approved o' by royalty in London. Maybe thats hoo the young folk are spendin' sae muckle o' their time up in Aberdeenshire wi Lord Leith o' Fyvie—no lang syne Mr. Alexander John Forbes—Leith. Lord Leith is ane o' the richest men in the country, but he was hardly kent outside his ain estates afore the King made him a lord last November. He was since ane o' the leadin' men in some o' the big steel companies o' America, an' he married ane o' the richest American heiresses o' his day. When he had made his fortune he bought back the estates in Aberdeenshire that had since belonged to his ancestors, an' settled doon to be a country gentleman. He is a first-rate laird, an' isna mean in the matter o' money, but why the King and Queen o' Spain should choose to spend ten days at his hoose naebody seems to ken. But royalty an' rich men are laws unto themsel's, an' life is ower short to bother tryin' to explain a' their movements.

There seems to be still a chance for the Auld Brig o' Ayr, as weel as for Ben Nevis observatories. Mr. R. A. Oswald, the laird o' Auchencruive, wha has taen a leadin' han' in tryin' to preserve the brig as it has been sin' the time when Burns wrote about it, has himsel' collected £4,000 o' the £10,000 that is needed to carry oot the works for its preservation. There were twa-three plans—ane for takin' doon the brig stane by stane, an' buildin' it ower again as like what it is as possible, puttin' lika stane back in its ain place; an' anither for shorin' up the foundations wi' new stane an' concrete without disturbin' the brig itsel'. Some engineerin' authorities say this last plan winna work, an' that naethin' will mak the brig fit to stan' the winter storms, but clean new foundations. If Mr. Oswald can raise the £10,000 the shorin' up plan will get a trial, an' Burns' Auld Brig may then be saved as ane o' the curiosities o' Ayr, for the tourists to look at as they rush past in their motor cars. A shillin' a head frae the enthusiasts wha drink the Immortal Memory o' the poet on the 25th o' January wad raise plenty o' money. The enthusiasts could easily pay the shillin' a head, an' hae the haggis an' whiskey as weel. Even though they dropped the twa things for ae year for the sake o' the Auld Brig there wadna be muckle hairm done.

Glasgow seems to be makin' records for itsel' in bad as weel as in guid ways. The death rate has been gettin' steadily lower for a while back, likely because o' the clearin' awa o' slums, an' the smart way the officials hae o' dealin' wi' ilka case o' infectious disease that happens in the city. The week afore last the rate was only twelve for lika thousand o' the inhabitants. In the same week last year it was sixteen, the year afore that fifteen, an' the year afore that sixteen. The rate has been doon at fourteen afore noo, but never sae low as twelve. On the ither han' it canna be the illdochs' pairt o' the folk that are bein' kept livin', for there has been far mair crime in Glasgow lately than there used to be. In the last six months there were 4,000 mair cases afore the courts than in the same six months o' last year. O' this 4,000, nae fewer than 2,077 were drunks an' 1,533 disorderlies. Them wha dinna approve o' the early closin' o' public-hooses say the ten o' clock rule is to blame, as it hurries up the drinkin' an' sends the drinkers out on the streets afore the croods hae cleared awa' hame, sae that they get mair into trouble wi' the police than they did when they cam out at eleven an' had the streets pretty much to themsel's. This may be or it mayna. Onyway, we seem to be gettin' langer lived an' waur behaved.

The passin' o' Mr. John Mathieson, general manager o' the Midland Railway company, is the passin' o' the first o' three notable self-made men belonging to the land o' Burns, wha started life aboot the same time. Mr. Mathieson began as a boy at old Cumnock Station on the Glasgow an' South-Western line, an' ended as manager o' the Midland. Mr. Andrew Gibson began in the same job at New Cumnock Station, an' he is noo manager in Ireland for the Cunard Steamship Company an' Burns steamers. About the same time James Wilson was a herd laddie in the same district o' Ayrshire. He is noo the Hon. James Wilson, secretary o' Agriculture in the United States, an' ane o' President Roosevelt's strongest supporters in his campaign against the Chicago canned meat firms. This is no bad for three Ayrshire laddies.

The Irish men an' women in Scotland seem inclined to die mair than they hae been deein' to help trade in their ain country. They're to start a co-operative society for supplyin' Irish goods to Scottish markets. They are complainin' that in Scottish co-operative societies Irish members dinna get as muckle power as their numbers entitle them to, an' that there is nae attempt to cultivate Irish trade. Forbye, some o' the Scottish-Irish folk think that if they can get markets in Scotland for Irish goods something will be done to stop emigration frae Ireland. A' this mayna come to pass, but it's a good sign to see the Irish in Scotland wakenin' up. As a rule they come ower as laborers, an' as laborers they remain, wi' nae concern either in Scotland or in Ireland, but the winnin' o' laborer's wages week after week.

A man frae Boston, U.S.A., writes to the papers to say that he canna understan' Lon Scottish railway companies pay ony dividen's, and that he disna ken hoo mony millionaires there are amang Scottish railway employes, wha, he says, is wonderfu' for gettin' tips. He has been tourin' for three weeks in this country, an' has discovered that the trains an' boats beat aithing for bein' shint thel, there an' that the motor busses in connection wi' the railways are aye sae crowded as to be in danger o' disaster. These are his complaints, but though he has got them the dignity o' print the compoiles winna mind. They are ower weel used to complaints. They think naethin' o' duin' far queerer things than the Boston, U.S.A., man complains o'. I ken a man what went on holidays a month syne wi' seven o' a family an' discovered wh— he reached a strange house in a doon poor o' rain, that the company had kept back a' his luggage for a day. Sae there they were, eight o' them, ten miles frae a shop, wet an' tired wi' exactly what they stood in! What w— the Bostonmaniac said if he had been treated like that"

OUR LONDON LETTER

Conferences of Hon. Frank Oliver With Lord Strathcona.

THE EMIGRATION OFFICE

Story of How the High Commissioner Took Hold of Authority Which Had Been Usurped.

From the Special Representative of the Montreal Star resident in London.

London, August 22. Mr. Brodrick, secretary of state for war at the time of the last Colonial Conference, is too much of a statesman to inspire much Canadian interest; but he has managed this week to enliven the holiday dullness with a piece of wittieism. He was speaking of the South African policy of the Ministry, but what he said is just as applicable to the whole Colonial policy of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and his colleagues. "The Prime Minister," he said, "winks his right eye at the Imperialist and speaks through the mouth of Lord Elgin; with his left eye he winks at the Little Englander and speaks through the mouth of Mr. Winston Churchill; and the left eye, mind you, is nearer the heart than the right." There is much truth in the saying. What a pity that for some unexplained reason Mr. Winston Churchill so suddenly cancelled the plans for his Canadian visit this August. He might have made so much better use of that left eye wink.

MR. OLIVER'S MISSION.

Lord Strathcona and the Hon. Frank Oliver have had much to discuss at their conferences in Victoria street this week. First and foremost must have come the arrangement consequent upon Mr. Preston's retirement from the post of Emigration Commissioner. After the long-drawn-out unpleasantnesses which culminated in the Ottawa disclosures of last session it will surprise no one to find very clear guiding principles laid down for Mr. Preston'se successor. When Mr. Preston started out upon his commissionership he did it in a fashion which led everyone to suppose him to be independent of any other control than that of the Canadian Minister of the Interior. The High Commissioner though the supreme Canadian authority in this country, was left pretty much out of emigration affairs. Ottawa and Charing Cross managed it between them with no control that really counted from Victoria street. A great change this from the days when the High Commissioner spoke and acted for Canada in every one of the many activities in this country and experience soon proved how far it was from being a change for the better. The spirit of independence of the High Commissioner's control seemed likely to spread to the offshoots of other Canadian departments in this country, and with each subordinate Canadian official acting for himself we seemed destined to see an entire lack of unity of purpose and dignified concentrated effort. We know now that Lord Strathcona's last visit to Canada was much concerned with the restoration of order. He went to put his foot down; and we see now that, though the octogenarian High Commissioner will not be hustled into methods that are not his own, and though with his Scottish caution he peers well over the fence before he leaps it, he does get across the fence in the end, and makes the passage with a neatness, which is the envy of many a less deliberate athlete. To-day the High Commissioner is supreme—he signs all cheques, he directs all policy, and really exercises a day to day control; and with a High Commissioner of Lord Strathcona's business training and unrivalled character in the eyes of the world, this undisputed supremacy is an enormous gain to Canada's best interests here.

THE NEW REGIME.

Now that the supremacy of the High Commissioner in emigration as in commercial and diplomatic affairs is firmly re-established, there would seem no need to retain the rather ridiculous title of "Emigration Commissioner." There should be but one Canadian Commissioner in this country, and he the supreme head in all Canadian Government concerns. It may facilitate good administration if the new emigration representative retain a headship of all the European emigration agencies of Canada. In that case why not follow good precedent and let him be "Emigration Agent-General for Canada"? The emigration office in Charing Cross is well placed for attracting passers by, and though it is expensive in rent and equipment, it should, if well managed, well repay the cost. Than Charing Cross no better centre could be wished for. Every visitor to London would think his London trip incomplete without a good look at Trafalgar Square and Charing Cross.

The window space alone, with its opportunities for telling the world by pictures and samples what Canada is like and can grow, is worth the rent, heavy as it is. Charing Cross is, moreover, near enough to Westminster to make consultation with the High Commissioner a very simple matter. As yet there is no indication who the new London emigration representative is to be. In the interests of Canada, who has sound business reasons for desiring to figure well in English eyes, he should be no mere political hack. If the nomination were left in Lord Strathcona's hands we should be spared any such calamity. The Canadian political machine may well in future keep its activities within Canadian boundaries. Its methods can do nothing but mischief here.

MR. WHITNEY'S VISIT.

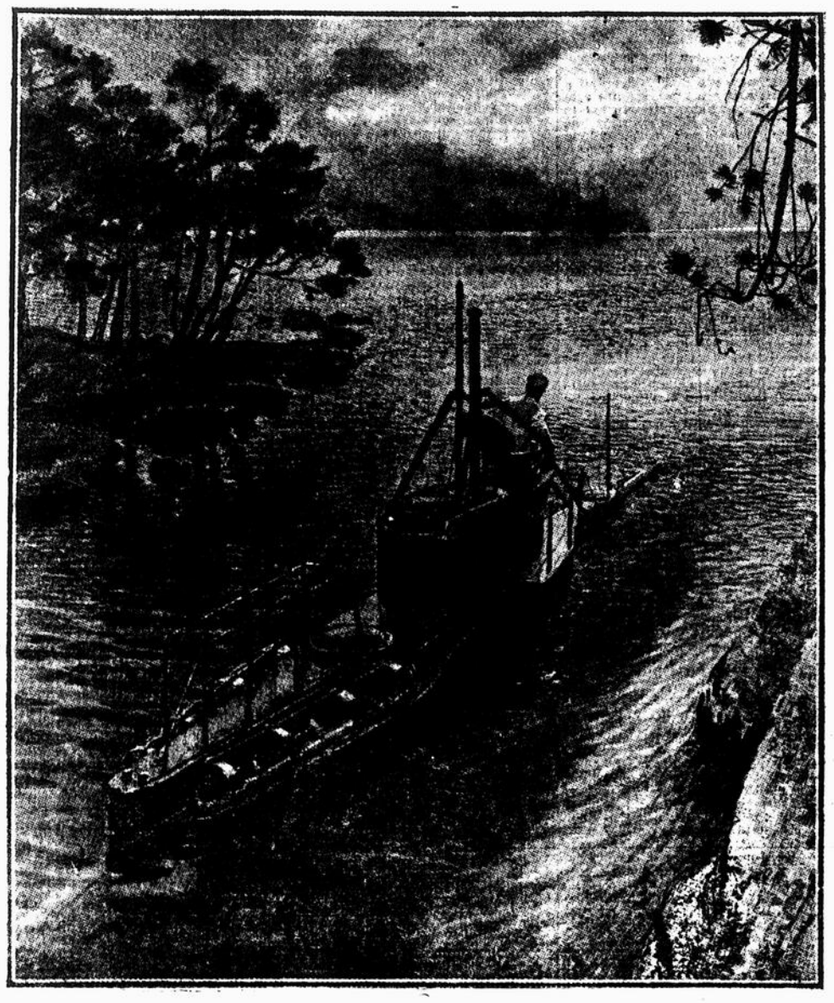
The presence in London of two Canadian Ministers has given rise to some interesting social gatherings. The career of Mr. Whitney, the Prime Minister of Ontario, has been followed here with keen attention since his successful fight for clean politics, and he and Dr. Pyne, Ontario's Minister of Education, were the recipients of many attentions before they left town. It was fitting that at one of these gatherings Sir Charles Tupper should have joined to do honor to the Ontario statesmen. Mr. Oliver is also being well received, for in these social amenities to visiting Canadian statesmen there is happily no intrusion of party politics, and the fact that Mr. Oliver comes from the West, of whose progress all men are thinking just now, gives an added interest to his personality.

STUDY OF CANADA.

It is well that there should be a corrective to the somewhat pessimistic study of "Canada: Les Deux Races," which M. Andre Siegfried has published in Paris, and which is also being read in this country. M. Siegfried is, of course, an able, but nevertheless a somewhat surfacy study of Canadian affairs, and the Times, in a review of yesterday, will have none of him. It says, and its sources of information as to Canadian developments are admittedly of the best:—"Those who have seen Canada through English spectacles as he has seen it through French, who know something of the spirit that underlies English-speaking Canada, will feel that he has failed to realize the moral and emotional factors which influence the predominant partner in Canadian affairs. His judgment on the future relations of Canada to the United States is, in our opinion, much sounder; he realizes that the danger is not annexation, but permeation, the influence of American social, industrial, and political methods, especially in the new Northwest, which is near Chicago and St. Paul, and remote from Canada."

WINDERMERE.

AT GENERAL HOSPITAL.—The visiting governors to the Montreal General Hospital for the week commencing next Monday, are: Messrs. C. E. L. Porteous, D. A. McCaskill, S. W. Jacobs, John Michaels.



THE HORNET OF THE SEA: A FRENCH SUBMERSIBLE LYING IN WAIT FOR A SQUADRON.
DRAWN BY KUPKA.

The submersible was sketched at the mouth of a creek during the recent French Naval Manoeuvres. Admiral Fournier, reporting on the work of submarines, says: "They are not the weapon for sea conquest, but certainly they are the surest for an attack on hostile fleets in port."

Dublin's Great Horse Show Looks Like a Very Promising Event.

ATTACK ON A MOTOR PARTY

An Abundant Hay Crop—Increasing the Pay of Dublin's Corporation Employes—Lively Contest.

Dublin, August 20. — The great event of the Dublin year—the Horse Show—will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 28th,29th, 30th and 31st August), and promises to be an excellent one. The summarized catalogue of the show has just been issued and indicates a notable increase in the number of horses entered, and even the splendid grounds at Ballsbridge will have enough to do to accommodate them all. The total number of entries this year is 1,322, as against 1,631 in 1905, being a substantial increase of 156 in the year. In the thoroughbred stallion class calculated to get weight-carrying hunters, there is a slight improvement, and in the brood mare class, but it is in hunters that the biggest increase is to be noted. The number of hunters entered is 593, an increase of 117. Young horses, suitable for making hunters, are 49 better, and cobs and harness classes also show a good increase. Altogether the prospects for the show are most encouraging,and quite belie those who are always croaking that the day of the horse is past. Here, in Ireland, it is evident that it is not, in spite of motors, etc.

It is not often that a man shows such a desire to be imprisoned as John Allen, who was charged before Mr. Wall, the Police Magistrate of Dublin, on Saturday last, with "loitering." Allen said he must get into prison some way or other, and that if the magistrate did not commit him he would break into some jeweller's shop, and then they would have to. Mr. Wall took a sympathetic view of the case, and humored Mr. Allen's anxiety to go to gaol by sentencing him to 7 days.

J. Barrett, a constable of the Royal Irish Constabulary, now stationed at Borissokane, county Tipperary, made two new "world's records" at the police sports at Ballsbridge, Dublin, on Bank Holiday, by putting the 28-lb. weight 35 1-2 feet 11-2 inches, and the 42-lb. weight 28 feet 5 inches. Curiously enough, an ex-champion weight thrower, Dr. Daly, also comes from Borrisokane, so Barrett has probably been under the Doctor's tuition.

The surgeon of a large hospital was paying a visit to the patients and came on a cot wherein lay an Irishman, who was groaning loudly. "Oh! come, my poor fellow," said the doctor, "try and bear your pain like a man. It's no use kicking against fate."

"Ishure, ye're right, sirr," groaned Paddy, "especially when they're the fate o' a mule."

He had been kicked by a mule

The Harvard University boat crew arrived in the Cedric at Queenstown last week, from New York. They are to try conclusions with Cambridge University, at Putney, on the 8th of September, and the River Bann Rowing Club have sent to Harvard a challenge, but it is not yet known whether the matter will be arranged. The Bann men have been very successful in the Irish regattas this year and would be likely to give the visitors a hard pull to beat them.

A motor party had a nasty experience at Macroom, county Cork, last week. A Captain Lynch, of Parkgariffe, Monkstown, Cork,accompanied by his wife and sister-in-law, were motoring to Inchigeela, about two miles outside Macroom, when the accumulator ran down and the motor had to be stopped to recharge. While so engaged a man came along with a horse and cart, and, halting, used abusive language, and then attacked Capt. Lynch. From a house near by four men ran out and set upon the Captain and his chauffeur. Three of the party felled Capt. Lynch to the ground, kicking him and beating him violently when they had him down, and only for the plucky interference of Mrs. Lynch and her sister, might have killed him. The chauffeur was also roughly handled. When Captain Lynch was able to get on his feet he got a revolver out of the car, and the men, seeing he was armed, made off, four of them returning to the house from which they had come. The chauffeur was despatched on the car to Macroom for the police, while Capt. Lynch kept guard over the house where his assailants had taken shelter. The police soon arrived and three of the men were arrested, the other, and the driver of the cart, who originated the assault, escaping. Capt. Lynch can ascribe no motive for the outrage.

During the first six months of 1906 some 27,000 horses have been exported from this country, or 7,000 more than in the corresponding period [illegible]. The value rose from £313,000 to £468,000, showing that there is still a good trade done in Irish horses.

A black cat is not generally a favorite on board a ship, but the Knight of Kerry and Lady Fitzgerald attribute their success in winning the King's Cup, and the German Emperor's Cup, at Cowes last week, to the presence on board of a cat of this color on the Satanita during the two races. It is probable that "black cats" will be at a premium with yachtsmen for some time now. The Knight of Kerry is a great sportsman and friend of the Royal family. The present Knight (Sir Maurice Fitzgerald) is now a baronet also, but the title of "Knight of Kerry" is a very old and honorable one. The Knight of Glin (Desmond Fitzgerald) is another ancient Irish title.

There has not been such an abundant hay crop in the Counties Meath and Louth for years as the present one. Hay is now selling in the town of Drogheda (Co. Louth) at the very low price of one shilling and sixpence per 112 lbs. Other crops are also looking well in the counties mentioned; potatoes never more plentiful nor so good, and selling at from four pounds per ton. In some counties, however, the broken weather lately is beginning to tell on the potato crop which is showing signs of disease, and the oat crop in places is in a bad condition. The flax crop in the north is said to be one of the best seen for many years. A much larger acreage of flax, too, has been sown in the north of Ireland, this season.

The bell-ringer of St. Mary's Chapel of Ease, Mountjoy street, Dublin, died very suddenly on Sunday evening last. He was ringing the bell, as usual, for evening service, when it was heard to stop suddenly, and on going to find out the cause, Mary Walker, the caretaker of the church, found Ryan lying unconscious on the floor of the belfry. He was a young man 25 years of age, and had not complained before. From the doctor's evidence the coroner's jury found a verdict that he died of heart disease. It was a case of "dying in harness."

It is proposed by the corporation to increase the wages of employes by two shillings a week from the 1st of August. This will mean another ten thousand pounds per annum on the already too heavily rated taxpayers of this unlucky city. Where Dublin is so over-burdened with rates, and there are so many men idle and only too anxious to work for less wages numbers of citizens are very much averse to this big additional expenditure which we can ill afford.

Some lively scenes were witnessed at Ballycastle on Sunday. The "Ballycastles" hold the Gaelic championship of Hurling and a Belfast team came determined to wrest the honor from them. The match was one huge fight all through, and sticks being freely used there were many broken heads. But the rowdy behavior of the Belfast men proved unavailing, as when the final whistle went the "Ballycastles" were still "champions of Antrim." The fight was afterwards continued at the railway station, and raged furiously for a time, and the only way it was stopped was by the ingenuity of a railway official, who had the engine whistle sounded, and moved the train slowly out, when the Belfast crowd bolted for the cars immediately.

The Captain of the "Irish Twenty" (Captain T. V. Sulley) writes to the papers complaining of the difficulty he has in getting together twenty good shots to compete in the International match at Bisley, England. Scotland and Wales have no difficulty in getting good teams, but poor Ireland has no volunteers (which the members of the teams must be) and so has to depend on the few Irishmen who are members of volunteer corps in Great Britain, and on the two corps of yeomanry in Ireland. The "Irish Twenty" club has been in existence for many years, but it is found very hard to keep it going, and he calls for "money and men," as the expenses each year are very considerable. Notwithstanding many difficulties the club has done good work. The team shooting has been steadily improving and success in winning the National Volunteer Challenge Trophy is looked forward to with hope.

On Monday (anniversary of the "Relief of Derry") a number of special trains brought crowds of Orangemen from Dublin, Belfast, Armagh, Lurgan, etc., the total number being over 30,000 persons. Large drafts of police had been sent into the town, but things passed off very quietly. A meeting was held on "the walls" in the afternoon, and there was some spirited speaking. Rev. Mr. Dowds (Armagh), moved a resolution declaring the resolve of the brethren to uphold principles of truth and loyalty, which were the heritage of Derry. He said the spirits of the brave men of Derry still lived in their descendants, who would stand another siege rather than submit to any encroachments of their rights and liberties, etc., etc. Mr. Dudley Field (from South Africa), seconded the resolution, and spoke of the strength and influence of the Orange Order. Mr. Tougher, of Belfast, moved a resolution declaring their settled determination to oppose any direct measure of Home Rule, or indirect measure of devolution, and impressing on Unionists the urgent need of complete organization to counteract the policy of Government pandering to the Nationalists.

The extra police now at Derry will be drafted to different parts of the county Derry in anticipation of trouble over the Lady Day demonstration on the 15th August.

Fourteen Indians from Canada, belonging to the tribe known as the Six Nations, reached Liverpool last Saturday. They are accompanied by Dr. Beatty as guide, and intend visiting this city (Dublin) very soon. They are certain to attract a great deal of attention here. Amongst them is the venerable chief, William Bell, who is now over 90 years of age.

The Rev. Mother Superioress and Sister Aloysius, of the convent of the Incarnate Word, Galveston, Texas, left Ireland yesterday (Tuesday), with 23 postulants from various counties in Ireland, to join the order in the United States.

After first refusing, the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet has notified the town clerk of Kingstown that the fleet will arrive at Kingstown on the 27th August, just before the horse show commences, and Dublin is at its very best. The greatest satisfaction is felt at the successful efforts of the Kingstown District Council in securing the attendance of the splendid Atlantic fleet at such an important time. The presence of the ships will form a great attraction to horse show visitors, and give many of them an opportunity of seeing how powerful we are on the sea. Horse Show has for some years brought large numbers of magnificent yachts to Kingstown, their owners having big Horse Show parties on board, and Kingstown, with the addition of the fleet, will be exceedingly gay and attractive. The fleet will number 34 ships, including some of the best and more up-to-date men-of-war in the world, consisting of nine battleships, eight cruisers, three special service vessels, twelve torpedo boat destroyers, and two attached vessels, so the sight will be a splendid one, which will doubtless lead large crowds to visit Kingstown. It is thought the fleet will remain three or four days. The West of Ireland cruise has been curtailed so as to let the ships come to Kingstown.

Grouse shooting commenced in Ireland on Monday (13th August), as the 12th was on Sunday. Formerly grouse could not be shot in Ireland before the 20th August, but this was supposed to encourage poaching here, so the date was assimilated with that of England and Scotland. Not many reports have come in from Irish shots, but the general idea is that birds were late, and will not be fit to shoot before the end of the present month. From Scotland and English moors, the morning of the opening day appears to have been wet and birds were scarce in London market and were fetching the fancy price of a guinea a brace.

At the meeting of the Council of the Dublin Industrial Development Association yesterday, Mr. William Field, M.P., took a very gloomy view of Irish prospects for the future. From the Registrar-General's statement he found that from January to the end of July of this year, 23,372 persons had emigrated from Ireland, as against 20,300 in 1905, for the same period, so that this year, in seven months, Ireland lost 3,000 souls more than in the previous year. In Mr. Field's opinion, this solid drain on our people is the whole bottom and basis of our country's poverty. "One hundred and ten persons per day went from Ireland during the last seven months," said Mr. Field, "representing a loss to this country for every able-bodied man of £120 each, so that during these seven months we had lost £13,200 per day of capital." He maintains that every able-bodied man constitutes our national wealth, and if this emigration goes on as it is, the hope of any industrial movement will be practically useless. Of those Irish emigrants nearly 18,000 went to the United States, and 2,400 to Canada. Australia got a few hundreds, but they are nearly as badly off for work in the Antipodes as they are here, for by last accounts there were some 5,000 people unemployed in Melbourne alone. The great increase of lunacy in Ireland is another disquieting matter, not to speak of over-taxation to the tune of four millions pounds and thirteen millions spent in drink! so it is hard to say what is to become of poor old Ireland!

Dublin people are going regularly mad over wrestling competitions, since the match between Hackenschmidt and McInnerney came off. An agreement has been drawn up in connection with the match between Munro, of Govan, the British champion, and Max Muller, of Germany, which is to take place at the Empire Theatre, Dublin, next Saturday afternoon. This contest will take place under Graeco-Roman rules for £50 aside, and a purse given by the theatre management. The winner will be the one gaining two straight "pin" falls out of three. Kahouta, the East Indian challenger, is rather surprised to hear that McInnerney (the ex-champion of Ireland), is ready to meet him, and a match will take place immediately. William Allen, another "champion," who is now in Dublin, has arranged to meet Sergt. Doubleday, of the Berkshire Regt., to fix upon the time and place of another match.

The Duke of Connaught was one of the party shooting with the King of Spain over the moors of the Duke of Richmond at Clarkandarrock, Perthshire, Scotland, on the 13th August. The King of Spain got over 20 brace of grouse to his own gun, altogether over 100 brace of birds were shot.

Have You Noticed That it is unanimously agreed upon by the doctors that one of the greatest dangers to the health of children, and one of the chief causes of the high infant mortality, is the poor quality of the milk retailed by many dealers in the city. And not only is much of it poor in quality, but it also carries the seeds of disease, owing to the careless manner in which it is handled and allowed to come in contact with all sorts of impurities. It is your duty to make certain that none of the milk used in your house is in this condition, and the QUALITY and PURITY of ours is GUARANTEED. Verb. Sap.

Cooks and Bakes perfectly at the same time

There is not another range built in which the heat may be regulated so that you can bake in the oven and cook on the top at the same time without spoiling one or the other.

But you can do both equally well at the same time on the Pandora, because its heat is not wasted and is at all times under the simplest, most positive control.

If you do the cooking of your household you can appreciate exactly what this means.

MY LADY'S BOOK-SHELF.

A Society Novel.

The author of that amusing book Iole has just come before his very large public with a new novel, "The Fighting Chance." In this, Mr. Chambers gives us what might well be termed a Society Novel, with a very big S. It is said in the press that the characters are drawn from real New York society people and are easily recognizable. Be that as it may they are quite bad enough to be drawn from life anywhere. It can scarcely be said that there is a decent character in the book. Mr. Beverley Plank, who makes a feeble attempt at being the hero is a fat young man of recently acquired wealth who has the high and laudable ambition of entering society. Shall I do it? he asks Stephen Siward, who is also a sort of hero, with an inherited taste for drink. "I think it depends upon yourself," was Siward's reply, "upon your capacity for being, or making people believe you to be, exactly what they require. You ask me if you may be able to go where you require, and I answer you that there is no limit to any journey except the sprinting ability of the pilgrim."

In the way of villians the book is rich. There are two principal ones, Quarrier, who is engaged to the heroine Sylvia, and Leroy Mortimer, the disgusting husband of the pretty Leila, who is navigating Plank's social ship. The whole plot of the story is Sylvia's love for Siward and her reluctance to break with Quarrier, and, incidentally, the business fight on between Siward and Plank on the one side, and Quarrier and his crew on the other. It is all very light and very readable. There is an atmosphere of money and luxury, motors, country houses, French maids, drinks, bridge, actresses and so on through it all. Women like this sort of a book. There is an atmosphere of 'high life' about it that appeals to them. And Mr. Chambers certainly knows how to write bright dialogue. Some of the conversations are very piquant. Here is a specimen. Quarrier and Sylvia are quarreling. "What do you want of me?" she said. "What are you marrying me for? Because divided we are likely to cut small figures in our tin trumpet world? Because united we can dominate the brainless? Is there any other reason?" "A man cares for two things," Quarrier replied; "his fortune and the heirs to it. If you didn't know that you have learnt it now. You hurt me deliberately. I tell you a plain truth very bluntly. It is for you to consider the situation." And Sylvia did consider the situation—to good effect. To tell the denoument would be to spoil a good story for the readers.

Economy in the House.

Every housekeeper should read a series of articles on household expenses that is running in Harper's Bazaar. They are full of helpful hints. Here is one woman's account of how she economized in her butcher's bill:

"Sundays we have lamb, beef, or chicken. Mondays we use the meats left over from Sundays. Tuesdays we get two pounds of good steak. Wednesdays we get five pounds of pot-roast. Thursdays we use cold or in hash meat what is left over from Wednesdays. Fridays we get two pounds of fresh fish. Saturdays we have pork and beans."

PRACTICAL FASHIONS

The Newest Hats.

The dish-like hat, or rather the inverted-bowl hat, is seen in the new felts. We had it all spring and summer in straw and chip, and now in felt it is even more fetching. It is not a style of chapeau, however, to be ventured upon by everyone, for it is very trying to some faces. Only the piquant types appear really fetching in the shape, but when it is becoming it is tremendously so, and as there is a distinct air of novelty about the style it is one to be desired.

One very charming model in this shape is of chamois colored French felt quite bowl-shaped and having laid about its top part a wreath of closely crowded white roses with buff centres, and at the back a bow of very wide white velvet ribbon, with long crooping ends that touch the shoulders. Another model of unusual oddity and a deal of charm was of pale faded blue felt trimmed all over with little full frills of pale blue Valenciennes lace set just a little apart to show the felt, at the top was a cluster of small pink roses—a daintier creation could scarcely be imagined.

Yellow Gloves.

The fancy for yellow gloves grows apace. They are in high favor in Paris and London, and are already appearing here; Jaune danois is the name of the tint. It is said that the King of Spain has a great fancy for wearing bright yellow gloves, and that the fashion has arisen from this royal source and been taken up by the fair ones of the world. With black tailor suits these gloves look exceedingly smart. Very fashionable English women are wearing white cloth gaiters or spats, yellow gloves and black cloth tailor gowns. The combination is very striking, indeed, but nowadays English women are more daring in their dress than American women (a most surprising turnabout), and it is a bit doubtful if we shall see very many white cloth gaiters, though one may safely expect the yellow gloves.

A Hint From Paris.

Hats of plaited and ruched tulle or malines, with a sable animal laid about the crowd, are topped off by long and voluminous plumes. The effect is exquisite. One model of white ruched tulle, as sheer as mist, had a sable animal laid about its frosty masses and from one side poured a vaporous and abundant black paradise plume held by a beautiful ornament of brilliants. One of pale pink tulle had a dark sable animal and a tan colored aigrette springing off at one side, after the coquettish Parisian manner.

The Latest Coiffure.

Tremendously waived are the newest coiffures, the hair fluffed out around face and the line of crimp at sides arranged so that the little French twist at back, starting just above the nape of neck, does not break the effect. The waving is in broad, rather than narrow lines, giving a very natural look; and the French twist is decidedly piquant, even a scant array of locks appears well, so dressed.

Home-Made Towels.

A nice way to finish home-made towels is to scallop the ends, and three inches above the scallops have a fancy drawn-work stripe. The monogram or initial is then embroidered, long narrow letters being the most effective. Huck, damask, and a good weight bird's eye all can be done in this manner, and for much less than the cost of an ordinary towel you get a very good quality of any of these mentioned materials, all coming by the yard.

The Vogue of Armlets.

"Armlets" to hold up the long gloves now so much worn are among the latest novelties. Of course they are not worn except for gloves which come to the shoulder. Girls who dance say they are a great invention. One pretty pair recently made had ruffles of white satin ribbon, where these ruffles met in the middle of the piece of silk elastic was hidden by a band of tiny artificial forget-me-nots sewn down very flat. Another pretty pair was made with ruffles of spangled gauze, and the joining concealed by a narrow gold ribbon. Still another pair had no ruffles, but the elastic was entirely covered with flat turquois beads.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

The True Story of Mike.

His real name was Michael Faraday, but it was soon shortened to Mike. His first appearance dates back three or four years. He was then discovered by his owner, a very famous scientific man, in a little stream. Famous men, in spite of their fame, often have very kindly hearts, and when this man saw the little morsel of fur in the muddy water, he, with much difficulty, managed to fish him out. Just a wee black and white kitten, half drowned, half starved, of the most ordinary birth and pedigree. Just a plain cat! However, such as he was he was taken to the laboratory where experiments are carried on that stir the scientific world from end to end. There he was dried and warmed and fed and christened Michael Faraday.

In three years Mike has grown from a miserable little kitten to a handsome big black and white cat, with the most intelligent head a cat ever had. His favorite resting-place is the wire basket that holds his master's papers on his desk. After that he is very fond of getting behind the books on the lowest library shelf and lies there by the hour cuddled up between wall and books. They are generally scientific books, and probably in this way Mike manages to absorb a good deal of learning.

One of his accomplishments is a purr that resembles the puffing of a miniature motor. When he wakes up in the morning he begins his little song, and if you hear a peculiarly penetrating hum you will know it is Mike purring from pure joy. He has more joie de vivre than any cat that ever was. Another characteristic is a little trick he has learnt of carrying anything that is given to him to the kitchen, that is if he is told to do so. If you should do anything so naughty as to feed him at table, suppose give him a tempting little chicken bone, and say, "Mike, kitchen," he will trot off to that domain.

He is quite human in his intelligence. For instance, when a sheaf of letters is laid on his master's desk to be looked over and signed Mike immediately walks over every one, often leaving a mark of his little paws. "This meets with my approval," he seems to say. Then when you go for a walk he will often accompany you just like a dog. In fact sometimes it is difficult to get him to stay at home. He cannot see why he should not go out with his master and mistress. Part of the time he spends in the country, and when there has a right royal time. He roams off often for half a day at a time. But the dinner hour generally brings him back, especially if reinforced by calls of "Mike, dinner; Mike, dinner!"

Ice cream has special charms for him. Did you ever know a cat who liked ice cream? At the country place where Mike spends his summers there is an ice cream man who comes along in a white cart, with a gray horse. As soon as Mike hears the tinkle-tinkle of his bell he comes flying to the front of the house and his master comes out and gravely buys him a plate of ice cream, which Mike laps up with great gusto.

When he sits and looks at you with his big solemn yellow eyes he seems positively uncanny in his human expression, and you are quite sure he understands every word you say. Perhaps when they teach monkeys to talk, as they are going to do in New York, they will attack the cat language, and then Mike will be able to have conversations with his friends.

POEMS WORTH REMEMBERING.

Love's Grave.

Mark where the pressing wind shoots javelin-like,
Its skeleton shadow on the broad-back'd wave!
Here is a fitting spot to dig Love's grave;
Here where the ponderous breakers plunge
and strike,
And dart their hissing tongues high up
the sand,
In hearing of the ocean, and in sight
Of those ribb'd wind-streaks running into white.
If I the death of Love had deeply plann'd,
I never could have made it half so sure,
As by the unblest kisses which upbraid
The full-waked sense; or, failing that, degrade!
'Tis morning: but no morning can restore
What we have forfeited. I see no sin:
The wrong is mix'd. In tragic life, God
wot,
No villain need be! Passions spin the plot:
We are betray'd by what is false within.
—George Meredith.

A curious custom is still in force at Norwich, in virtue of which, on three days in the year, any one can claim a substantial meal for nothing. The only qualification is that the applicant shall repeat aloud in St. Giles' Church a prayer for the Sovereign's health. Afterwards they partake of a meal of broth, beef and bread, finished off with a liberal allowance of beer.

THE FEAR OF DEATH.

The only way in which we can approach it is to put ourselves into dependence upon that Spirit. And the only course we can follow is this: not by endeavoring to anticipate in thought the moment of our end—that, perhaps, only adds to its terrors when it comes—but by resolutely and tenderly, day after day, learning to commend ourselves to the hand of God; to make what efforts we can; to do our best; to decide as simply and sincerely as possible what our path should be, and then to leave the issue humbly and quietly with God.

5410 Child's Coat.

FOR THE SMALL FOLK.

Never has a summer shown more attractive or daintier little coats than this one. It can be made from flouncing or from bordered materials and also from various plain lingerie fabrics and is just as charming, summer-like and well suited to the wee wearer as can be. It is made with straight lower edges and consequently can be cut from flouncing with perfect success, while it can be left either unlined or worn over a plain silk slip as liked. There is a shallow yoke to which the skirt portion is attached and a round collar which is finished with a wide frill and a little turn-over portion at the neck. For a child of two will be required 4 1-2 yards of flouncing 16 inches deep with 7-8 yard of plain material 36 inches wide; or 5 1-8 yards 21, 4 1-4 yards 27 or 2 1-4 yards 44 inches wide if plain material is used. A May Manton pattern, No. 5410, sizes 1, 2 and 4 years, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents.

THE HOME-MAKER'S DEPARTMENT.

A Delicious Gingerbread.

The following is an excellent recipe for a quick and inexpensive gingerbread. Not only is it quick and inexpensive, but quite the most delicious gingerbread possible.

Two level cups of flour, half a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and ginger, one heaping teaspoonful of cocoa, two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Mix these together and add a little salt. Then put a teaspoonful of baking soda in a cup and add a little boiling water. Then, leaving the soda in the cup, add two tablespoonfuls of shortening, beef dripping, butter, or any preferred shortening, and fill the cup with hot water. Mix with the batter until smooth. If desired it is made richer by putting with it a cup each of raisins and currants. This makes one large or two small cakes.

Cooking Corn.

Few housekeepers know how to cook corn. It should never be boiled more than ten minutes. Put it on in boiling salted water and boil for ten minutes. Roll in a table napkin and serve immediately.

Corn Fritters.

Three eggs, well beaten, and two cups of milk, mixed with a cup and a half of flour, a teaspoonful of baking-powder, and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat into this batter two cups of grated corn, and drop from a spoon into deep fat; drain on paper.

Baked Corn and Cheese.

Two cups of grated corn mixed with one slightly beaten egg, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, a cup of milk, and salt and pepper to taste. Put into a baking-dish which has been well buttered, and cover with grated cheese and fine bread crumbs dotted with bits of butter; bake till brown.

Corn Custard.

One cup of grated corn, a grating of onion, a half-teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne; mix with four slightly beaten eggs and a small cup and a half of milk. Pour into buttered cups, and bake in a pan of water until firm; turn out, and serve with a white sauce. These are especially nice with broiled tomatoes.

Celery and Cheese.

Cut up two or more heads of celery, and cook until tender in water; drain, and put into a buttered baking-dish in layers, with white sauce and grated cheese, with cheese and fine bread crumbs on top; bake until brown. This is prettily served in a shell of Edam cheese from which all the inside has been used.

ASTHMA

Permanently Cured after Physicians had Pronounced the Case Hopeless.

Asthmatics know what a waste of time and money it is to go to specialists. Their treatment is all alike—the stereotyped sprays and gargles—which may afford temporary relief, but never cure.

Clarke's Kola Compound not only affords instant relief, but completely eradicates the disease from the system.

Mrs. J. Wise, of Vancouver, writes: "I have been a sufferer from Asthma for eight years. My doctor told me I could never be better. Then I heard of a gentleman who had been cured by Clarke's Kola Compound, so I tried it. Before I finished the fourth bottle, the attacks ceased, and during the six months of damp, foggy, rainy weather, I have not had a single attack."

Such confidence have we in Clarke's Kola Compound that we will send a sample bottle free to any address. Write to-day, and get relief.

LEAVES FROM A NOTE-BOOK.

Home Again.

There is an old story of a railway conductor whose train ran off the track. It was his first experience of the kind and he telegraphed a very long and detailed account of the accident. Word came from headquarters that the next time he had anything to report to cut it short. Some months later his train again came to grief and, remembering instructions, he wired to his chief: "Off again. On again. Going again. Finigan."

So it is with our holidays. We have been off again, now we are on again, and we must start going again. It is not always so easy. Holidays have a bad habit of upsetting our routine of work. Too often instead of coming back refreshed we return with a dislike to the "daily round, the common task." If we do so our holidays have failed of their purpose, which is to fill us with fresh energy and courage for the battle of life. Do not come back to the city with repinings at leaving the country and grumblings that our one little holiday is over. The memory of it should last until summer comes once more.

The Note-book has had ten whole days at the sea! Such a dear little quiet place with the open sea on one side and a dear little river, meandering through green meadows, on the other. A place where it is not necessary to be always changing your clothes but where a short skirt and a Peter Pan waist are always quite proper. A place where you can go in bathing without doing yourself as though you were going for a walk in the city. A place, to put it briefly, where you can make the most of your holiday. Such bathes in the clear salt water, not too cold for a good swim. Such paddles up the little river in a light canoe! Such exciting sails out on the broad Atlantic!

Do the readers of the Note-book know that there are actually persons who go to the seaside and do not bathe? Can you imagine such a waste of opportunities? There is nothing so delicious, so bracing, so good for the skin and the complexion as a salt bath. If you are not strong do not stay in long, but even a dip and a rub afterwards are an unequalled tonic. There used to be a myth that one should not bathe immediately after arriving at the seaside. For two or three days we had to look longingly at the salt waves tumbling in. It was a time of almost unendurable suspense! And oh the joy of that first plunge! How salt the water was and how cold! But we have changed all that. Nowadays it is supposed to be quite safe to bathe when you want to. One thing about sea bathing that always upsets some women is the possibility of getting their hair wet. Goodness knows what would happen if one strand got moistened by the beautiful clean salt water. The fact of the matter is that salt water is an excellent hair tonic. It will be found after a summer's bathing that there are little new hairs coming in all around the temples. The Note-book remembers a dear old lady who, whenever she found her hair growing thin rubbed it with a weak solution of salt and water and the new hairs immediately began to grow. Of course it must be washed every now and then with fresh water, as it gets too sticky, but a little salt is good, not bad for the hair.

Well, here's to all the readers of the Note-book. May they all have had a pleasant holiday and be ready to pick up the dropped threads of life with new spirit!

Jealous Wives.

There are some women who create a particular little hell of their own by being jealous. This sounds strong language, but it is not too strong for the miserable state of mind that they work themselves into. There is no happiness in life for the woman who is perpetually in a state of suspicion regarding her husband. Trifles light as air become magnified into mountains. Little things that would ordinarily pass unnoticed cause many a sleepless hour at night, and many a tearful one during the day. A woman who is jealous loses all her youth and beauty, or whatever good looks she may possess. There are beautifiers by the hundred, but there is no unbeautifier like jealousy. Jealousy and worry are guaranteed to make the prettiest women plain and the women not noted for good looks almost repulsive.

And what good does jealousy do? If your husband's love is straying away from you will jealousy bring it back? No indeed, it will drive it still further away. It widens the breach, not lessens it. Therefore, have nothing to do with jealousy. Banish it as you would any evil thing, a temptation to drink or to steal. The trouble is that most persons do not realize the sin and folly of jealousy. They are sometimes actually rather proud of it. You will hear a woman say: "Yes, I'm jealous and I'm not ashamed of it." But she should be ashamed of it. And she should determine to cure herself of it.

One way of cure is to make yourself so necessary to your husband that no other woman has a chance. The odds are greatly in your favor, for a man naturally prefers his wife to any other woman. If she is a good wife he looks upon her as a partner. She is the sharer of all his joys and all his worries. She is the keeper of the exchequer, as it may be put. He earns the money and she is responsible for the outlaying of it as regards the house and family. This is a tremendous bond, and if she has exercised her trust wisely and well her husband will have such a respect for her that his affections will never fly far afield.

The mere fancy for a pretty face or a witty tongue passes away while the feeling of trust and reliance, the feeling of common aims and steady friendly love will endure for ever. If a woman is a real friend of her husband she need fear no rival. If there is the passing fancy she does not worry about it. Indeed, so sure is she of herself and her husband that she can afford a laugh and a joke about it. Unless a man is very fickle and shallow he is not likely to be permanently tempted from the wife of his choice, provided she has been the right sort of a wife, his friend, his intellectual companion, the sharer of his thoughts and aims and ambitions. When a girl marries she has the game in her own hands. It is to be taken for granted that the man loves her and upon her behavior towards him and her conduct of life generally his love rests. Let her come short of what she should be and his love may stray. But let her do the very best she can and it is safe to say there would be fewer married tragedies. Men hate a fuss. Men hate a scolding woman. Let a jealous woman yield to these impulses and she goes far towards deserving the lot that is thrust upon her—that of the lonely wife.

Mrs. Smith—No indeed; why, they dont' even call their kitchen girl a maid.

LEGAL QUERIES.

Ques.—A leases farm from B. A to take off three crops and fallow fourth year. A takes off three crops and asks him to take off another before fallowing. A does so and then fallows and this year crops again. A wishes to give up place this year. Is he compelled to leave place plowed? Lease just called for three crops and then to be left fallowed, and lease was not renewed.

J. S.

Ans.—Depends upon the terms of the agreement, which is the law between the parties. If at time B asked A to take another crop from the farm no arrangement was made as to plowing, A is not held to do so.

Ques.—A has a room rented in his house to B. A wants B to leave the room, as he needs it for his own use. 1. What notice, if any, must A give B? 2. Must it be in writing? 3. If B is not out of the room at the expiration of the notice, can A put his belongings on the walk? The rent is payable monthly and no written or verbal lease exists.

SUPPORTER.

Ans.—No notice is required. At the expiry of the term for which the room was leased, the lease is terminated, and the person may be compelled to leave at that time; but the boarding house keeper must take proceedings and not substitute himself to the law.

Ques.—I was ejected from an office while trying to collect an account. What action can I take?

A. H. W.

Ans.—If you were really the object of a violent attack on the part of the employe you mention, and if such was unreasonable, you have an action for assault.

Ques.—Has a landlady, who rents the lower flat, a right to throw refuse into the yard below?

Ans.—The landlord may do all that does not destroy or diminish the value of the property, or destroy or diminish the enjoyment of the other tenants.

Ques.—How far must an occupant of a lowest flat suffer from tenants of the upper ones in the way of watering plants or sweeping galleries, or hanging out dripping clothes on their lines. My line on the bottom flat is nearly always occupied in the daytime with the bed-clothes, to expose them to the sun and air, and it has occurred that plants have been watered, not once, but numbers of times, and the drippings have fallen not only on the bed-clothes, but on newly washed and starched clothes, and when the people are remonstrated with they take offence, as if their rights are being infringed on.

SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—A tenant only has the right to do that which is reasonable under his lease, and must not infringe upon or destroy the enjoyment of his co-tenants.

Ques.—I pay $8.00 per month for a furnished room, and paid this amount on Saturday, 18th, for rent for the month of August. Does this entitle me to sleep here, in the room, on the night of the 31st, or last day of August (I having given notice of my intention to leave at the end of the month), or am I obliged to get out before that night? I myself should consider a rent of so much per month for a room entitles a man to sleep in that room on every night of the month, even though he has given notice to leave. Or would occupation of the room into the 1st of the ensuing month constitute an extra day?

R. H. T.

Ans.—You are entitled to complete your month, and that includes the 31st.

Both men and women in Lapland dress precisely alike. They wear tunics belted loosely at the waist, tight breeches, wrinkled leather stockings and pointed shoes; their whole appearance, in short, is identical, at least to the casual observer.

WHAT Fruit-a-tives OR "FRUIT LIVER TABLETS" ARE

Fruit-a-tives are the marvels of modern medicine. They have accomplished more actual cures—done more good to more people—than any other medicine ever introduced in Canada for the time they have been on sale.

Fruit-a-tives are fruit juices. They are nature's cure for —CONSTIPATION

—BAD STOMACH
—HEADACHES
—IMPURE BLOOD
—SKIN DISEASES
—KIDNEY TROUBLE
—RHEUMATISM
—IRRITATED HEART

Fruit-a-tives are the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes. These juices are concentrated—and by a secret process, the juices are combined in a peculiar manner. This new combination is much more active medicinally than fresh juices—yet so perfect is the union that Fruit-a-tives act on the system as if they were in truth a natural fruit, medicinally stronger than any other known fruit.

To this combination of fruit juices, tonics and internal antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets.

These are Fruit-a-tives—sold everywhere for 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50.

MR. BERGERON, M.P., BACK FROM WEST

Impressed Everywhere by the Enterprise and Vigor Displayed.

EDMONTON AND CALGARY

Land Here, He Believes, Will Prove to Be the Richest In the Whole Dominion.

"I have always considered myself a good Canadian, but since my trip through the western part of Canada I believe I am a more enthusiastic and prouder Canadian than ever."

This declaration was made to a representative of the Star yesterday by Mr. J. G. H. Bergeron, M.P. for Beauharnois, after an extended tour through the West. During his trip Mr. Bergeron was accompanied by Madame Bergeron.

"There are in the Western part of Canada unbounded resources, vast riches, and there is no limit to the possibilities of the future. It is simply amazing."

Mr. Bergeron left Montreal on the 2nd of August, via Toronto and Owen Sound to Fort William.

"Fort William and Port Arthur are thriving towns," said he, "and for the last ten years have developed phenomenally. Factories and manufacturing plants are coming in rapidly, the population is increasing, and there is undoubtedly a great future in store for these two thriving places.

WINNIPEG'S PROSPECTS.

"We went right on to Winnipeg, and let me say a few words in regard to that city. This city is to-day a great one, but it will be greater. All the railways from the west converge at that point, and forward the products of the land, and passengers, to the East. The city is also becoming a great manufacturing town, and everywhere is displayed the greatest activity. There seems to be an immense amount of money floating around, and to say that business is brisk is describing it in a mild way. At present the C. P. R. and Great Northern run into the city, and shortly the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific will have lines into the place. In fact, it is stated that it iis the intention of the G. T. P. and Canadian Northern to erect an immense union station in the city, with a proportionate large yard. At the present day there are 110 miles of track in the C. P. R. yard in the city limits. This will give you a splendid idea of the railway possibilities in that western city.

"From Winnipeg we went to Edmonton, and on the way passed several small villages and towns which have lately sprang into existence. These places have no stations, and the name of the town or city is marked on a board nearby where the train passes. Edmonton is another great city of the West, and the growth there is extraordinary. Some years ago this town had a population of about 2,000 souls, while to-day there are some 11,000 people, inhabitants of the city. As an indication of the growth of this particular city, I might say that there are to-day in Edmonton some seventeen banks. Edmonton is the best town site in the whole of the West. There is not sufficient accommodation for the people, and a very large number are obliged to live in tents in the open fields. Needless to say, work is plentiful and mechanics there receive five dollars a day, while ordinary laborers get as high as three dollars.

CALGARY'S INDUSTRIES.

"Then we came to Calgary. This is a very pretty city, well built and clean. There are industries in Calgary which are not to be found in Edmonton. There is one feature of the West that struck me as being very remarkable, and that is the water in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Calgary is very bad. The water is not only bad to drink, but it is useless for washing purposes. This, of course, can, and will be remedied in time.

"Between Calgary and Yale there are immense tracts of land used for ranching purposes, principally because of the fact that they lack sufficient water facilities. If irrigated it is no exaggeration to say that these lands would be the finest in the world. Some parts have been irrigated with such success that they have produced three crops in the year, and it is a well-known fact that in many cases the third crop was the best of the lot. This irrigation question is a very important one, and is simply a matter of money. Three million acres have already been irrigated, and with such success that it is now only a question of whether the federal Government, local Government, or private parties should do the irrigating."

Mr. Bergeron described his trip from Calgary through the different sections of the country to Vernon. At the latter place Lord Aberdeen owns some 13,000 acres of land, which he purchased while in Canada. For the last three years the man in charge has sold annually some $30,000 worth of fruit, which will give an idea of the fertility of the soil in that region.

VANCOUVER AND VICTORIA.

From Vernon, Mr. Bergeron went to Vancouver, a city which now has some 45,000 inhabitants, and which in time, according to his views, will be one of the largest cities on the continent.

"From Vancouver we went to Victoria," said he, "and this latter city at once impresses you with the beauty of its buildings, and its extreme cleanliness. The city is very English in its atmosphere. I would like to mention something about the Chinatown in this place," said the M. P. "This part of the city is a very nice place, and the Chinese there are a very well-to-do, polite, and shrewd people. A great many of them are merchants and very good ones. Many of these fellows can give their cheque for $100,000. I met a young Chinaman there, 22 years of age, who made plans, and induced the people of Canton, China, to build an electric railway, which his fellow-countrymen accepted.

"Afterwards he made a tender to build the road and this was also accepted, and as a guarantee for the completion of the work he sent those interested an accepted cheque for $80,000. While in Victoria I learned that the Chinese were circulating a petition which had been signed by a great many people, Canadians as well as Orientals, asking the Government at Ottawa to allow 5,000 Chinese to come into Canada without paying a license, for the purpose of doing construction work on the Grand Trunk Pacific. As soon as the work is done and the railway finished, they will return home, and as a guarantee of good faith they offer to deposit with the Government $100,000, which they will forfeit if the contract is not fulfilled. A great number of Chinese are employed as domestics in Victoria, and the people say they do not know what they would do without them.

"Then there is the city of Vancouver, a beautiful place indeed, with its parks and unexcelled seaport. This port is one of the finest on the Pacific Coast, and is large enough to contain the entire British fleet. We saw there the largest sawmill in North America. There is no limit to the lumber product out there, and this in spite of the great and many forest fires that rage throughout that district and destroy quantities after quantities of lumber."

Speaking of the fisheries in British Columbia, Mr. Bergeron stated that many complaints were heard of the maladministration of this industry by the Government.

"Sufficient vigilance is not exercised in this direction," said he, "and the Americans receive the benefit of the fisheries to the great detriment of the Canadians. A great many Japanese are employed throughout the province in the canneries existing there, and in the city of Vancouver the domestics are principally Japs, in contrast to Victoria, where they are all Chinese.

"On my trip going and coming, the rush of immigrants was beyond conception, and they are coming in by the thousands. All the hotels in the district from Winnipeg west are crowded with people, and to have any comfort it is necessary to secure your railway and hotel accommodation weeks ahead of time. The people are very cosmopolitan, but appear to be of a very fine class.

"With the people we have in this country and our vast resources, Canada will certainly become one of the greatest countries in the world."

FAMOUS FAMILIES OF EARLY CANADA

Representatives Will Take Part in Celebration of Quebec's Three Hundredth Birthday.

Preparations are already in progress for the celebration of the tercentenary of the founding of Quebec in 1908.

On Monday next at the Windsor Hotel will gather representatives of the families of the founders of the Ancient Capital to organize a committee to arrange for the celebration.

From present indications the fetes at Quebec will be memorable. Descendants of the nobles of France, of the seigneurs, of the barons of Scotland, of the Chevaliers of St. Louis, now scattered all over the world will return to celebrate the deeds of their ancestors.

M. Vicomte de Fronsac, marshal of the College of Heraldry of Canada, is acting as the centre of the gathering of the descendants of these ancient families and has received notification already of the coming of representatives of many of the founders of New France.

It is expected that England will be represented by the Seigneurs of Longueuil; Italy by the Seigneurs of Carignan and Scotland by the Barons of Nova Scotia. The Ancient and Honorably Artillery Company of Boston, founded in 1639; the Foot Guards of the Governor of Rhode Island, founded under Sir Edmond Andrews; the Burgess corps of Albany; the Boston Cadets, founded under Sir William Shirley; all will be invited to take part in the programme.

Among the French families which are expected to have representatives present to celebrate the founding of the city by Sir Samuel de Champlain, are such names as d'Entremont, Latour, Beaujeu, Longueuil, Bonaventure and Fronsac, who form the Council of the Seigneurs of Canada, as well as de Salaberry, de Montigny, de Martigny, de Lille, de Guise, and du Tremblay.

All in all, the celebration, it is anticipated, will be on a scale commensurate with the greatness of the anniversary which is to be celebrated.

Schooner Minnie Maud, Captain Roberts, has arrived from Gaspe, light.

SUPERIOR COURT OPENS ON TENTH

Many Suits Against Railways are on the List—Innovation Made in Procedure.

The Superior Court will open its autumn term on Monday, the tenth of September next, under the direction of Justice Mathieu, the newly appointed chief justice. Several innovations have been instituted this year in regard to the way in which things shall be regulated at the Court House, and it is expected that cases will be gotten through much more expeditiously than formerly.

One new move is the means of distributing the cases to the different heads of the courts. Formerly the chief justice performed this task, but this year Mr. Monet, the prothonotary will have charge of that end of the proceedings. This new method of distribution as well as the increase in the number of judges, caused by the recent elevation to the bench of Mr. Eugene Lafontaine, K.C., the former Crown Prosecutor, will substantially aid in expediting the work.

There are several hundred cases of one kind or another on the roll, but it is hoped to get through them all without too much difficulty. Suits for damages against the different railway companies form a large per cent. of the civil jury cases, there being eighteen of these latter altogether, and ten of them being against the railways.

The opening of the Practice Division of the Superior Court is fixed for next Tuesday morning, Judge Fortin probably being on the Bench.

The Grothe case, in which considerable interest is taken, is another trial by jury to come up this autumn. It is an action taken by Mr. J. M. Grothe, et al, against the North American Insurance Company, to obtain an indemnity of $50,000 for alleged desecration of his brother's remains. Hearing of the case has been fixed for the 3rd of next October. The litigation is the final outcome of a disagreement over the issue of a five thousand dollar policy, which has already given rise to a suit at the Superior Court, judgment in the latter having been rendered in favor of the company shortly before New Year's.

Exodus from the Summer Resorts to Activities of City Life Under Way

The return of the summer resort contingent from far and near has commenced.

With conflicting emotions are the boats and canoes stored away for the season, sporting utensils packed up and the start made for the city.

On the one hand there is a keen anticipation of a return to the scenes of activity and bustle, of city gaiety, of theatres and receptions, which after the quietness of the country are commencing to exert all their old time allurements.

But on the other hand there are many keen regrets that the attractive outside door life, the zest of the sea breeze or the invigorating tonic of the mountain air has to be left behind for the resumption of the more arduous tasks of life, the college corridors or the church society work.

The school boy and girl invariably comes back grumblingly and sighs hugely for a few days of grace on the river or lake or on the tennis court.

At many of the more remote of the Canadian resorts the crowds are already beginning to thin out and more are getting their traps together for a flit at an early date.

Nearer at home, however, there will be plenty to occupy the summer residence for some time yet. True the evenings will soon be a little on the cool side, but there are still some warm days be[fore] the late home comers.

If it does not do all that is claimed for it, then discard it. But don't confound it with the drug cures and condemn it without a trial. That isn't fair to

MONEY IS THE REAL KEY NOTE

If There is no Trouble There the Stock Market Should Act Pretty Well.

A BIG MOVE IN U. S. STEEL

James J. Hill Has His Secrets Locked Very Securely in His Bosom Just Now.

From the Special Correspondent of The Montreal Star in Wall Street.

New York, September 1.—If no special difficulty is experienced in the money market interests in the stock market believe that speculation in stocks for some little time to come will be profitable and that the largest returns will be made on the long side. Such stocks as Union Pacific, St. Paul, Atchison and Southern Pacific, which have already had large advances, are expected to reach still higher figures. It is learned that some large blocks of Union Pacific that were bought below 160 are still being held on the belief that this security will sell at least at 200.

It is understood that an operator who, in years past, has been one of the most powerful factors in the stock market is favorably disposed toward the present upward movement, and believes that it will be carried further. It is understood that he looks with especial favor upon Atchison and believes that the earnings fully justify an increase in the dividend on the common stock. He believes also that soon the lower priced issues will receive considerably more attention than has been accorded them so far.

IN U. S. STEEL.

Apparently the movement in United States Steel common is on the largest scale that has ever been undertaken in that security or any other industrial stock. It is claimed that there is still a large stubborn short interest in the preferred stock, and it is believed that it will soon become proportionately as active as the common. From this time on the copper stocks, notably Amalgamated and Anaconda, are expected to occupy a position in the trading almost as prominent as that of United States Steel common. Although Amalgamated has had a big advance from the low prices of a few weeks ago, some interests are inclined to advise their clients to buy the stock on every small recession until it reaches several points above present prices. No one seems to have changed his opinion regarding the belief generally entertained that both Anaconda and Amalgamated will receive higher dividends at the next period.

WHAT WILL HILL DO?

Just what James J. Hill and his associates purpose to do for the Great Northern stockholders seems to be a secret nearly as well guarded as the increase in the Union Pacific dividend and the declaration of a 5 per cent. dividend on Southern Pacific common. Railroad men who believe that they are in pretty close touch with Mr. Hill, say that, while they do not know his plans in detail, they are thoroughly confident that in the near future an important official announcement with respect to the Great Northern will be made.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Interests in close touch with prominent men in the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, confidently predict that a higher rate of dividend will be paid at the next period. They intimate, however, that the directors will not commit themselves to a fixed semi-annual rate as Union Pacific and Southern Pacific directors recently did. On the contrary, these interests say that the larger distribution on Pennsylvania stock will be made in the form of an extra dividend. It seems to have been generally believed that if more than the 3 per cent. semi-annual dividend rate is declared, the extra would be 1-2 of 1 per cent. for the six months. It is now intimated by men in a position to be well informed that the extra distribution is more likely to be 1 per cent. for the year.

THE OUT OF TOWNERS.

It is understood that some prominent men in the Street who have been among the most important factors in previous bull markets and who are still out of town, have not participated in the present movement. They are expected to return soon, and it is believed that they will participate freely and that the market will be materially strengthened by their operations. Wall Street is imbued with the belief that speculation in securities is being encouraged by the most prominent banking and railroad interests, and in view of recent developments, it must be said that there is strong evidence that these interests have been most anxious to bring about higher prices for the purpose of shouldering the public with their holdings.

THE MANIPULATORS.

It also may be said that the methods employed by certain interests to attract public dealings in stocks have been more in line with gamblers' tactics than with the ideas of legitimate speculation. Criticism of this sort, however, counts for little with the people who are behind the present market, while the suggestion that the big men are quietly disposing of their securities in response to the public demand, and that this movement soon may be followed by the collapse of prices, in no way induces the enthusiastic commission house operator to exercise caution in dealings at the present range of prices.

THE PUBLIC ATTITUDE.

The so-called public was a most active factor in last week's market, its presence being more pronounced than at any time since the bull movement in the first month of the year. There appears to be little discrimination in the character of stocks bought, purchase being made in high grade and low grade issues alike, on the theory that, no matter what the actual value of a stock may be, its market quotation will advance under the influence of bull speculation. There has been no important investment demand. The bond market is dull in comparison with stocks, and there appears to be little prospect of the development in the near future of an active investment inquiry for mortgage issues. The absence of this sort of buying is due more to the money market conditions than to any other known factor, but it should be born in mind that bonds have been declining and may soon be at an attractive purchasing level.

STILL AFTER HARRIMAN.

Criticism of Harriman in the matter of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific dividends has not yet ceased. Views are conflicting as to his motives. Perhaps Harriman may have certain specific plans in view which prompted 10 per cent. for Union Pacific and 5 per cent. for Southern Pacific. These plans, it may yet transpire, have relation to St. Paul, notwithstanding denials—plans which would be facilitated by bringing the market price of Union Pacific on a par with St. Paul and Southern Pacific to half that value. Or, the coup may have been only a gigantic piece of stock market jobbery instigated by purely mercenary and unworthy motives as asserted by many persons. If not, Harriman has himself to blame for this interpretation having put upon his action. It is scarcely conceivable that a man occupying Harriman's high position could be guilty of such dishonesty; yet until some more convincing explanation than any of the many already made is forthcoming the public may be pardoned for watching Harriman's future with a suspicious eye.

BULLISH DREAMS.

Among the bull arguments held in reserve are the following: An increase in the dividend on Amalgamated Copper from 7 to 8 per cent., Atchison to 6 per cent., Chesapeake and Ohio to 3 per cent., Norfolk and Western to 5 per cent., Anaconda to 30 per cent., Louisville and Nashville to 7 per cent., Pennsylvania to 7 per cent., United States Steel common to 4 per cent., and possibly the inauguration of dividends on several of the railway equipment stocks, such as American Car and Foundry and Pressed Steel Car. It is considered as altogether probable also that at some time in the future Brooklyn Rapid Transit may be placed upon a 4 per cent. dividend basis. These rumors of "deals" and "melons" to be cut for the benefit of stockholders play no small part in the ammunition with which the bull crowd appears to be plentifully provided.

There is talk that New York Central will soon announce some new financial plans.

S. S. S.

HAS CAKE AND EATS IT TOO.

Canadian Pacific is In a Very Unique Position.

One element of strength in Canadian Pacific is overlooked by the Wall Street fraternity. It is the sale of lands to farmers. Wall Street argues that these sales are reducing the assets of the company. That is true, but as the land is going to farmers who are becoming actual producers of crops every sale increases the revenues of the company, and turns a dead asset into a quick one.

Most people cannot have their cake and eat it, too, but the Canadian Pacific seems to be an exception to the rule.

FOREIGN CROP CONDITIONS.

Foreign crop conditions, as published to-day in Broomhall's Liverpool Corn Trade News:

United Kingdom—The crop outlook is mostly favorable. An official report for Great Britain for the week ending August 22, placed wheat at 105, oats 102, potatoes 101, hay 101, and roots 105.

France—There are occasional complaints, but reports confirm a bare average of good quality.

Germany—Harvesting well advanced; threshing progressing rapidly.

Hungary—The condition of the corn crop is excellent.

Roumania—The quality of arrivals is unsatisfactory. The corn surplus is forecasted at 20,000,000 bushels.

Russia—Arrivals at ports increasing, quality improving, but good lots are still scarce. Much wheat is still unfit for shipment, being stored. There is a large fleet of steamers both at Russian and Danubian ports.

THE LATEST MINING DEAL.

The purchase of the Iron Mask property by the Canadian Consolidated Smelting Company is along the lines of the announced policy of the Consolidated Company at its last general meeting in Montreal, and it is just one more step in the direction indicated by James Cronin when he announced his resignation. "I think," in time," he said, "that the Consolidated Company will become one of the greatest mining corporations of the West, of the American continent, and one of the world's greatest mining concerns."

TROPICAL INVESTMENTS.

Mexican Power, Sao Paulo and Rio shareholders will be interested in the following, from the New York Commercial:—

"To the Republics of Latin-America the future bears promise of a commercial and industrial development far beyond anything that has taken place in the past. Mexico may be said to have arrived, under the wise and long continued administration of President Diaz, at least within measurable distance of realizing in actual progress and development the wildest dreams of its statesman of two or three decades ago. Indications are increasing that in the very near future Mexico will not stand alone among the Latin Republics in its enjoyment of the confidence of the world's capitalists. One by one other Republics will win the same measure of good will and regard."

The C. P. R. Rifle Association.

The presentation of prizes of the Canadian Pacific Railway Rifle Association took place on Thursday evening in their reading room. The president, Major L. R. Johnson, occupied the chair, and in his remarks referred to the many advantages of rifle shooting and complimented the association on their increased membership, and also on the marked improvement in their markmenship. During the course of his remarks, he referred to the keeping up of rifle practice during the winter months, giving an interesting description of a new air rifle which has been adopted for this purpose, and at the same time spoke of giving the members an opportunity of testing its merits. An interesting feature of the evening was a presentation to the association by the president of a silver trophy to be known as "The Railway Rifle Association Challenge Cup," to be competed for annually. It is expected this will be shot for during September by the G. T. R., M. S. R., and the C. P. R., Vancouver and Montreal Associations.

GREAT FORWARD STRIDES.

Facts and Figures Relative to the Steadily Increasing Business of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Which Has Recently Increased Its Capital Stock from $9,000,000 to $10,000,000 — One of the Most Useful Public Service Corporations in the Entire Dominion.

The following article appeared in the New York Mercantile and Financial Times of the 25th August, 1906:

"The City of Montreal proper has a population of about 350,000, to which must be added a population of about 75,000 residing in the suburbs of Greater Montreal. This in itself would constitute a most desirable field for telephonic service and development; but when to Montreal we add the numerous large municipalities throughout the Dominion the subject assumes an aspect of even greater magnitude and importance. The people of Canada are in no wise lacking in their appreciation of modern improvements, and, as elsewhere, they look upon the telephone as one of the agents of progress and one of the most important factors in the development of business and commerce.

"Apropos of these thoughts it will be of interest to note the fact that the Bell Telephone Company of Canada is generally recognized as being one of the most prosperous and useful public service corporations in the entire Dominion, and a significant evidence of its continued success and prosperity is evinced by the fact that its capital has recently been increased from $9,000,000 to $10,000,000, with the object of providing additional cash for the immediate and systematic extension of its system and development of its service. The new issue of stock is being offered to present shareholders at $125.00 per share, its par being $100.00, and at this figure it is an investment of such great promise as to assure a speedy purchase of the entire issue by those who are fortunate enough to be present stockholders of the company. This stock is now quoted on change at $152.00 per share, hence it will be seen that the interests of the 1,000 or more stockholders of the company have been wisely considered by the management in offering the new stock to them at a figure so much below the market price. The dividend on the stock is at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum and has been so for twenty years past.

"The Dominion Government has recently empowered the Bell Telephone Company of Canada to increase its capital stock from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000, so that the company may issue additional stock from time to time as conditions may make such action necessary for the extension of its system. This is the parent Bell company in Canada, and has been in successful operation since 1880. The territory covered includes the Provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and the entire Canadian North-West, in which the company now have about 100,000 stations, the number of which is being increased daily. The company also have about 1,500 offices, 550 of which are telephone exchanges, as well as 40,000 miles of long distance wire and about 9,000 poles. The wires of all the larger exchanges and in all of the most important cities are underground, and modern ideas prevail and characterize all of the details incident to the work of extension and betterment.

"The company have their own spacious and well-equipped office and exchange buildings at all important points in their territory, and here in Montreal, besides the imposing office building fronting Notre Dame, Hospital and St. John streets, also have two large exchange buildings at other points in the city. They also manufacture their own instruments, cables and wire, and nowhere in the world is there to be found a better equipped or more capably managed plant than that of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. The company now give employment to an average force of more than 5,500 persons engaged on both inside and outside work, and every year since it began business more than a quarter of a century ago has been marked by a substantial increase in the number of subscribers and stations in use. It is expected that 1906 will show greater gains than any previous year in the company's history, which significant fact attests a widespread and growing appreciation of its superior and satisfactory service in the newly-settled districts as well as the principal towns and cities throughout the Dominion.

"The company's executive and official staff is to be commended for its strength, ability and high character. The president, Mr. C. F. Sise, held the office of vice-president from the company's organization until 1890, when he was elevated to his present important and responsible position. Mr. C. P. Sclater has been secretary and treasurer since the organization in 1880, while Mr. L. B. McFarlane, who has been connected with the company for the past 26 years, formerly held the position of general superintendent, but was promoted to be general manager a few months ago. All of these gentlemen are widely and favorably known for practical experience and intimate knowledge of the details of telephonic management, and the great forward strides made by the company may be attributed in no little measure to their intelligent and well-applied efforts.

"Regarding the new issue of $1,000,000 of capital stock, it may be noted that each stockholder of record August 31, 1906, will be entitled to take, at $125.00 per share, an allotment of new stock in the proportion of one share for every nine shares now held, but the right to subscribe will expire at one o'clock on the afternoon of September 15th. It is not to be doubted but that the present stockholders will speedily avail themselves of the opportunity to increase their holdings of this desirable dividend-paying stock.

"In conclusion, it may be said that able and conservative management has been an important factor in the continued success and prosperity of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, and there is every reason to believe that the coming years will but add to the company's possibilities of usefulness and influence. The stockholders have abundant reason to felicitate themselves upon the capable and intelligent manner in which their interests have been advanced and promoted, and they must naturally feel great gratification at the many evidences of the company's continued success and prosperity."

COBALT

Cobalt is the richest silver field in the world.

Experts say so, and smelter returns prove it.

The ore runs as high as $100,000 to the carload, and more than one company has paid back several times its entire subscribed capital in its first dividend.

New and rich discoveries are being made weekly.

These are facts—cold facts—and the field yet in its infancy.

Now is the time to get in—before the best opportunities for big profits have slipped by.

I am a practical mining man, and was one of the first in the Cobalt field.

This has enabled me to secure for my clients opportunities that have, without exception, afforded them large profits—as high as 3,500 per cent.

MAY I COUNT YOU AMONG THEM? I am presenting an exceptional opportunity this week, and there are large profits to be made.

COAL

A Second Crow's Nest

Coal is actually to-day the greatest commodity of the world. With coal we run our mills and factories and our great railroads; with coal we propel our ships, provide our navies, and warm our homes; with coal we generate and produce electricity, with a few exceptions, where water power is available, but there are not very many Niagara Falls, however; with coal we produce iron, copper, lead, silver gold, and all other metals that we need, and must have, because all of those metals are to be found mixed in with the rock and in the ore.

Without coal we could not make coke, and coke made from a certain kind of high-class bituminous coal is the only fuel yet known to man that produces a heat intense enough to melt ore and hard rock into a liquid, by which process we are enabled to extract the metals we need.

England would not be the great world-power she is to-day if it was not for her inexhaustible supply of coal.

Coal is the basis of all industrial and commercial wealth.

Coal mining in British Columbia has always been a great success. It is a great deal like diamond mining in South Africa—a bonanza of the first magnitude.

The great mountain barrier of the Rockies shuts out the eastern coal, leaving the great Pacific coast to be supplied by the British Columbia fields, excepting a small tonnage from the State of Washington of a very inferior quality; in fact, so poor that the United States navy of the Pacific division get all of their supply from the Dunsmuir Coal Mines on Vancouver Island, and pay the duty on it, but neither the Washington nor the Vancouver Island coal is of any use for furnace and smelters coke, because the coal from both of these places contains a great deal of sulphur, and does not make good smelters coke.

Nevertheless, Dunsmuir made millions after millions every year from mining coal, and died a few years ago the richest man in Canada. He made it all from coal, and his mines will be productive for generations to come, and are worth more to-day than thirty-five years ago, when first opened up.

OPPORTUNITY.

To see it, and grasp it in time, makes a man the master of his destiny. DO YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY HONESTLY, AND LOTS OF IT? Would you like to become interested in a coal proposition in British Columbia, and make $10,000 in three to four years from now on an investment of $250.00? We offer you the opportunity to do this.

You have $200.00, $500.00 or $1,000.00, whatever the case may be, in bank, drawing 3 per cent. interest yearly. Does this satisfy you, when you can many times double your money in one year in an investment like this we offer you?

PUT YOUR SAVINGS IN COAL. It is safe, and as good as Government bonds. There are no "ifs" about coal mining. There never was known a failure in coal in British Columbia, if quantity and quality and shipping facilities were assured, and the business was managed right and honestly.

The price of coal and its commercial value is always advancing from year to year, whereas the demand is increasing enormously every year.

Millions and millions of dollars have been made in coal mining year after year by all those engaged in the business, and to prove this we refer to the statistics on hand for the year of 1902, where it is shown that nine of the leading bituminous coal mines in the United States and Canada made the enormous profits of $87,450,687 (one year's earnings).

There is no field of investment more absolutely safe and profitable than coal mining.

We now offer to the public 100,000 shares of the British Columbia Amalgamated Coal Company's treasury stock at the low rate of TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER SHARE.

The par value of this stock is one dollar, and is fully paid and non-assessable, and shareholders are exempt from personal liability. Once paid and secured it is settled for ever.

This Amalgamated Coal Company controls 17,500 ACRES OF COAL LAND in Nicola Valley, B.C., and, according to coal experts' reports, this great area is underlaid with inexhaustible quantities of high-class bituminous coal, the best for steam, blacksmithing and cooking purposes, estimated to contain approximately 1,400,000,000 TONS OF COAL.

TWO RAILROADS

are now building into the Nicola Valley, the Canadian Pacific and the V., V. and E. (Great Northern), and the C.P.R. has already constructed and completed a line from Spence's Bridge, on Thompson River, to Nicola Lake, a distance of about fifty miles, whereas the V., V. and E. are rushing the work as fast as money and labor can do it, and it is expected to reach Nicola by Christmas.

This is certainly a rare opportunity for the small investors. For $250.00 you can now buy 1,000 shares of the Amalgamated Coal Stock, which in a few years may pay you a yearly revenue or income of $10,000 figuring the dividend at $10.00 a share (the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. paid a dividend last year of $10.60 a share). This is an illustration to show what a few hundred dollars invested in coal stock means to investors. The Crow's Nest stock was offered to the people in the year 1896 at ten cents a share, and is to-day worth over $300.00, or $300,000 for 1,000 shares. You can yet 1,000 shares of our stock to-day for $250.00, which may be worth as much as the Crow's Nest is to-day if you hold it long enough. Do you realize what this means for you? That the British Columbia Amalgamated Coal Company's stock will reach the $100.00 mark in from six to seven years from now is the belief of those who have seen and examined the properties and are familiar with the local condition in that country. Get in on the ground floor. Act quickly, and do it now. Do not ask your neighbor for his advice. Use and act on your own judgment. It will soon be taken. Call early or write, and we will give you any further information that you may desire.

BETTER THAN LIFE INSURANCE.

A source of income that will last as long as you live. An asset that you can leave behind you for your friends and relatives. Have you a wife? A dear child, a sister, brother, or friend, whose welfare you have at heart? If so, why not invest $50, $100 or $200, or any sum you can afford, in this coal stock, and get a certificate issued in their names; that will give them an income for life.

TWO YEARS FROM NOW

the stock should begin to pay handsome dividends, and in another year or two may have a cash valuation on the market from the dividends it then will pay of at least $10.00 per share. This calculation is based on sound and conservative business judgment, and on well-tried laws of natural growth. It is quite safe to say that when the Amalgamated Coal Company shall have fully equipped its four properties on Cold Water River, in Nicola Valley, B.C., and has built up a market for its product, and can produce coal and coke on a large scale, which may require six to seven years to accomplish (taking the Crow's Nest Coal Coal Co. as an example), this stock should then be worth on its own merit, from the dividend it then will pay, $100.00 per share.

Opportunity knocks once at every man's door. To see it and grasp it in time is the keynote to success and wealth. This is meant for you. This is your greatest opportunity.

Fathers, mothers and guardians who have the welfare of your children at heart, and want to provide for their future needs, write us for information, and investigate our proposition carefully. You will thank us later for the advice given. Ask or write for printed prospectus and reports, etc. We will show you samples of the coal and of the coke and the assays of the coal from Government officials and other authorities.

RECOMMENDED BY BANKERS AND MERCHANTS

as the safest and best investment on the market to-day which is being offered to the public at large. We want men and women of moderate means to get interested in this great enterprise, and to get in now, on its first inception.

Remember, for $250.00 you will get one thousand shares of Amalgamated Coal, which will secure for you and your family a source of income, and may make you independently rich. Remember, 1,000 shares of Crow's Nest Pass Coal is to-day worth $285,000, and brings a yearly revenue of over $10,000.00.

We cordially invite you to call at our office, No. 61-62 Confederation Life Building, Toronto. If you cannot call, please write us, and we will mail you prospectus, reports, maps, etc., that will state facts and will give you all information you may desire.

HIS CLERKS MUST WORK.

Insult Offered Employes of the French Minister of the Interior.

Paris, September 1.—M. Clemenceau, the Minister of the Interior, is introducing drastic measures of reform in his department, with the object of weeding out the drones.

When he first came into office he outraged the feelings of the clerks and attaches at the Ministry of the Interior by insisting on their signing a time-sheet at 9.20 each morning, to make sure that they put in an appearance.

The other day, when M. Clemenceau left for Carlsbad, the clerks heaved a sigh of relief, and for the last few days they have been coming in late or not at all.

One morning the names of the absentees were telegraphed to M. Clemenceau. He dismissed a number of them.

A POSTHUMOUS TRIBUTE.

Statue Will Be Erected to Lazare, Dreyfus' Late Champion.

Paris, September 1.—Subscriptions are being raised for the erection of a monument to Bernard Lazare, the young writer who was the pioneer of the campaign in favor of the liberation of Alfred Dreyfus. Lazare died a few years ago, much regretted. He published in 1896 the famous pamphlet, "La Verite sur l'Affaire Dreyfus," which caused an enormous sensation, and influenced Senator Scheurer-Kestner and others to take up the case of the prisoner on Devil's Island. It is proposed to erect the monument to Bernard Lazare in his native town of Nimes, and at the same time his life story will be published by the organizing committee. This is composed of numerous political, literary and scientific men.

RABBITS A GOOD INVESTMENT.

In Australia the Game is a Paying Proposition.

Sydney, September 1.—The Australian pest of rabbits is being turned to a profit. The rabbits are being shipped all over the world. There are 24 rabbits in a crate, and recent prices paid in London range from 15s 6d to 11s per crate, according to the classes in which the carcasses are graded by government graders. Considerable consignments are sent regularly from Brisbane and Adelaide, and these, like those from Sydney and Melbourne, go to the United Kingdom, South Africa, Hong Kong, Japan and the Philippines. There is also big money in canned rabbit, and this is a branch of the trade, the prospects of which have been improved by Chicago canned meat disclosures.

To Entertain the Lord Mayor.

Paris, September 1.—The Paris Municipal Council is making elaborate preparations for an official visit from the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London, who are expected here in October.

There will be a banquet and ball at the Hotel de Ville, a gala performance at the opera, and the town will be decorated. In fact, the visitors will be accorded a semi-regal reception.

A Phenomenal Feat.

Special to the Montreal Star.

London, September 1.—Geo. H. Hirst, the best all-round cricketer in the world, while playing at Scarborough Thursday, established a record by completing his 2,000 runs and 200 wickets, this feat never having been previously accomplished by any cricketer in one season.

Cuba--The Land of Sunshine.

Canada-Cuba Land and Fruit Company, Limited

TO THE CAPITALIST.

Absolute security. Land that will in two years be worth five times the present price.

TO THE MERCHANT.

If your business or health fails a plantation will give you a handsome return. No laborious work in a climate of perpetual June.

TO THE WORKINGMAN.

An easy way of procuring a home. A future that cannot be obtained elsewhere. Don't fail to write or call. Every information freely given.

The heat in Cuba is never so oppressive as it has been the past week in Canada. Call and see us, when all information will be cheerfully given and literature supplied.

A HOME IN CUBA.

AN OPPORTUNITY like this comes but once in a lifetime.

Any one can have a home in Cuba under our most liberal colonization plan.

The way is now open to you. It only remains for you to grasp the opportunity now offered.

Bear in mind, too, that the Western farmer who raises twenty bushels of wheat to the acre and gets 75 cents per bushel for it, thinks he is getting rich, while in Cuba $250 to $500 per acre can be made with far less effort and uncertainty.

TEN ACRES of good, fertile land in Cuba, properly planted in early Winter vegetables in the Autumn, and properly cared for, with careful methods employed in harvesting and marketing the crop, will yield a net return by Spring of from $600 to $800 per acre, or $6,000 to $8,000 for the season's work, exclusive of cost of cultivation.

THE CROP from such a tract is marketable in December and January, from thirty to sixty days before the Florida growers have begun to ship, and at a time when the northern markets are practically bare of competing products.

ABSOLUTELY NO RISK.

We think we have shown you in the past that you take absolutely no risk when you invest with us. You secure land to-day that will be worth five times its money in one year.

A TEN-ACRE GROVE of orange and grape fruit trees will yield you a profit the fourth year of $1 per box, or $900 (90 trees—90 boxes, 90 x 10 acres—$900).

When your grove comes into full bearing it will pay you from $2,700 to $5,000 a year for life, and it will be worth $10,000 cash any day you wanted to sell it, and it will be yours.

TEN ACRES planted in pineapples will yield any man who will look after it properly from $2,500 to $3,000 a year returns from fruit and suckers, out of which must come the cost of the actual cultivation, which is not large when once the tract is planted.

How does this compare with farming profits in this country?

THIS OFFER IS GOOD FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY

PROMPT DECISION and immediate selection of lands and lots is absolutely necessary, and we urge you, for your own good, to avoid disappointment, by making your choice at once if you wish to share in this great allotment of land.

WE CANNOT keep this offer open always, as the Plantation Tracts we have to dispose of are limited in number.

WE RESERVE the right to withdraw this offer at any time, or to increase the price of our land.

LAND OWNERSHIP is an almost certain safeguard against adversity.

HARD TIMES, sickness and old age may come, but he who owns his home is certain, at least, of a port in which to ride out the gale or end his days peacefully in this sailors' "snug harbor."

FORTUNATE, indeed, is the man or woman, whose ownership of land includes both a home and a living, or means of support. Such land ownership carries with it not only a place of abode, but also food, raiment and the comforts of life. As a heritage for one's family it is better than life insurance or a bank account. In short, it does what a farm should do.

Upwards of 200 people intend to leave for our property during September to make their home amongst numbers who are already on their plantations and give most encouraging reports.
It is necessary to purchase now to have your plantation ready for this Winter's crop.
We have more settlers than any other Canadian Colony in Cuba, having sold over 40 square miles of our estate.

This Company will undertake to have your plantation cleared, plowed and planted at the mere cost of trees and labor, thus ensuring you a permanent home for the future. No investment is more profitable or so sure as an orange plantation. Trees bear for over one hundred years. Good returns can be made by growing all kinds of vegetables and small fruits (between the rows of orange and other trees), which can be shipped to Havana, New York and Canada during Winter months, when everything commands the highest prices.

Bear in mind all citrus fruit land must be a light, sandy loam soil. This is the experience of all citrus fruit growers. So many inexperienced judge the light soil of Cuba falsely. We undertake to locate for all our purchasers and will get them expert reports on their location and give them the privilege of exchanging the same into any part of our property so set apart and not already sold. We give you every acre free from swamp or rock. Any low lands are not charged for. You can't get any better or fairer contract than this.

The Best of Practical Orange and other Fruit Growers, who have purchased from our Company, select the lightest of our lands, and claim them to be the finest land to be found in Cuba for all citrus fruits. ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO

GEO. F. DAVIS, MANAGING DIRECTOR, Head Office, 24 King Street West, - - - Toronto.

A PERSISTENT RUMOR.

Stated That President Pulliam Has Control of Boston Club.

Special to the Montreal Star.

New York, September 1.—A despatch to a morning paper from Boston, says:

It is persistently rumored here that President Pulliam, of the National League, has got control of the Boston National Club, and that the announcement of the deal is being withheld until the close of the present season.

When Mr. Pulliam was here a few weeks ago, he said that negotiations for the purchase of the Boston club were all off, because of the high price asked by Soden and Conant for the franchise, players and grounds, but persons who are in a position to know say that a deal has been consummated.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

Which Will Transmit Maps, Writings and Charts to Any Distance.

London, September 1.—The autotelegraph is the latest invention for the transmission and reproduction of anything that can be written or traced upon paper. Mr. Henry C. Braun declares that with this instrument drawings, maps, charts, shorthand notes, and writing can be sent over a single electric current to practically any distance.

The mechanical principle is that of the pantograph which draughtsmen use in copying plans, but the autotelegraph is free from imperfections in construction which make the pantograph an inaccurate instrument. Moreover, the autotelegraph is independent of the personal equation, for it is automatic.

RUMORS UNFOUNDED.

French Government Will Retain Plantagenet Statues at Fontevrault.

Paris, September 1.—The French Minister of Education, M. Briand, has written to the president of the Angers Societe d'Agriculture, Science, et Arts a letter which it is to be hoped will reassure those archaeologists on both sides of the Channel who entertained the absurd fear that the French Government intended to offer the statues of the Plantagenet Kings at Fontevrault to England. The Minister says that the rumors in question are groundless, adding that these statues, being historical monuments in the sense defined by the French law of 1887, run all the less risk as they are preserved in an establishment belonging to the State.

During the last twelve months $40,218,000 in precious stones were taken to New York city.

Plain Facts About the Hair

It is the duty of every one who is interested in hair preservation to learn enough about the subject to tell whether an advertisement for a hair remedy is reasonable or unreasonable. In this connection, the United States Post Office department has begun a much needed campaign against false and misleading statements in advertisements in general. While this work is highly commendable and should be greatly extended, still at the same time it tends to paternalism rather than to personal self-reliance. If YOU know that the claims for a hair remedy are unreasonable and untrue, that knowledge will save you money and prevent disappointment.

The trouble lies in the fact that certain over ambitious Proprietors employ advertising writers who do not know the composition of the remedies they write about, and even if they did, they are not expected to know the therapeutic action of the various ingredients. Two very familiar and oft repeated statements are, that the hair must be watered and fed just like a plant, and that the color of the hair, once destroyed, can be restored, by natural process. While both of these statements are false in every particular, it requires some little knowledge of the hair follicle to understand why the statements are false.

The hair follicle is a pear shaped sack in the scalp that holds the hair root. At the bottom of the hair follicle and extending up into it for a short distance, is a nipple shaped projection that remains in the scalp when a hair root is forcibly pulled out. This projection is the hair papilla from which the hair "root" grows. The continuous addition to the bottom of the hair root, forces the hair proper out through the scalp.

The hair papilla is surrounded by the hair root, which thus takes a bulbous form. Above the hair root or bulb—which occupies about three-fourths of the entire follicle—is the neck of the hair follicle, below which the most penetrating fluids known to Medical Science can not penetrate. Therefore, the story of feeding the starved and impoverished hair roots with an external application is all a myth.

The short portion of the hair follicle above its neck opens somewhat like a funnel and is filled with the outer scalp skin. Opening into this outer portion are the highly important oil or sebaceous glands which, from their location, are most exposed to disease. When these oil glands become infected with a certain microbic growth (the cause of dandruff) there is hair disease and finally hair death. Fortunately this outer portion of the hair follicle can be treated by carefully rubbing into the scalp a suitable remedy. What remedy should be used? Manifestly one that will destroy the growth that causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair.

Newbro's Herpicide is the first remedy that was prepared for the particular purpose of destroying this invisible vegetable growth. In fact, it is called the "ORIGINAL remedy that kills the dandruff germ." Newbro's Herpicide was not made until after Prof. Unna, of Hamburg, Germany (ask your Doctor about him) discovered that dandruff is a highly contagious disease caused by a microbe. The almost marvellous success of Newbro's Herpicide has caused advertising writers to claim germicidal properties for other hair remedies, many of which were on the market years before Prof. Unna's discovery. Do you think that this new claim for old remedies is a reasonable one? Remember, that the hair gets its life, color and strength direct from the blood, and that good blood, deep breathing and sunlight favor hair development. Out-door exercise, to insure free circulation in the scalp, also scalp massaging for the same purpose, are very helpful. Worry, indigestion and sedentary habits oppose hair growth, while the dandruff germ will actually destroy the hair, unless it is eradicated and kept out of the scalp with Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide is delightfully cooling and refreshing to the scalp, and almost marvellous results sometimes follow its continued use. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

A FREE CURE

If you are weak and ailing, have lost the fire and vigor of youth; if you are rheumatic, full of pains and aches, or suffering from any disease that drugs have failed to cure—I want you to come to me. I can cure you with my wonderful Electric Belt, and I'll give it free to any weak man or woman. I want every weak, puny man, every man with a pain or an ache, to get the benefit of my invention. Some men have doctored a good deal—some have used other ways of applying electricity—without getting cured, and they are chary about paying money now until they know what they are paying for.

If you are that kind of a man, this Belt is yours without a cent of cost to you until you are cured.

That's trusting you a good deal, and it is showing a good deal of confidence in my Belt; but I know that I have a good thing, and I am willing to take chances if you will secure me.

As to what my Belt will do, I know that it will cure wherever there is a possible chance, and there is a good chance in nine cases out of ten. So you can afford to let me try, anyway, and I'll take the chances. If you are not sick don't trifle with me; but if you are you owe it to yourself and to me, when I make an offer like this, to give me a fair trial.

If you are not as vigorous as you would like to me. If you have weak kidneys, loss of vitality, prostatic troubles, nervous rheumatic weakness, or any ailment of that kind that weakens you, it would assure your future happiness if you would look into this method of mine.

It is as good for women as for men. Worn while you sleep, it causes no trouble. You feel the gentle, but no sting, no burning, as in old-style belts.

If you would believe the thousands of men whom I have already treated, my Belt is worth its weight in gold.

But some men don't believe anything until they see it. That's why I make this offer.

If I don't cure you my Belt comes back to me and we quit friends. You are out the time you spend on it — wearing it while you sleep — nothing else.

But I expect to cure you if I take your case. If I think I can't cure you I'll tell you so, and not waste your time. Anyway, try me, at my expense.

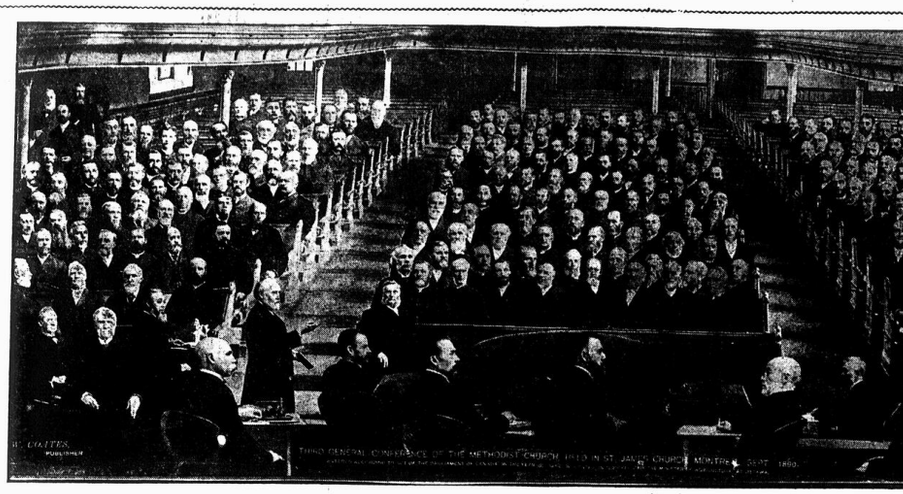
Large Issues Will Come Before the Methodist General Conference

The General Conference, the supreme governing body of the Methodist Church in Canada will, after an absence of six years, return to Montreal to open its quadrennial sessions in St. James' Church, St. Catherine street, on Wednesday, September 12.

Since the last sessions of the General Conference in this city held also in the same church in the autumn of 1890, the supreme legislature of the Methodist Church have met in London, Toronto and Winnipeg. The meeting in Manitoba's capital held four years ago, was in several respects epoch making.

It was the first occasion on which the General Conference had met west of Ontario. It was a recognition of the changing centre of gravity of Canadian affairs, a tribute to the power of the West. It was marked by changes in the constitution of the Church, which grew out of marvellous development west of the Lake of the Woods.

Previous to that Conference the work of the Methodist Church west of Ontario was conducted by two "Annual Conferences"—one for Manitoba and the Northwest, and the other for British Columbia. Now there are four Manitoba has her own, as has also British Columbia, while the intervening plains and uplands are now administered to by two other new "Conferences," the Assiniboia and the Alberta. At the same time there were appointed four superintendents of missions—one for New Ontario, and the other three for the West and the Pacific Coast. Thus has the Methodist Church responded to the call of the West, and prepared for ministering to the religious needs of the makers of the new Canada between the Great Lakes and the Pacific.



THE LAST SESSION OF THE METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE IN MONTREAL IN 1890, HELD IN ST. JAMES METHODIST CHURCH, WHERE THE CONFERENCE WILL MEET THIS YEAR.
(By permission of Mr. C. W. Coates, of the Montreal Methodist Book-Room.

SOME OF PROBLEMS WHICH CONFERENCE WILL DISCUSS.

This was the great work of the last General Conference, and it was probably the greatest question with which any General Conference has grappled since the last meeting in Montreal. But a greater than it is to come before the sessions to be held in Montreal this autumn. It is now nearly three years since the great debates over "union" called forth the strength of the giants in the now united churches, and once again the same question of "union" is to be debated, only this time upon an even greater scale. The former union was between sections of the same church; the proposals now to be discussed include the union with Methodism of Presbyterianism and Congregationalism, two religious bodies, both at work for well over a century before Methodism was born. The debates are likely to be keen, but tempered throughout with a strong sympathy with the union idea. In a recent editorial in the Church organ, The Christian Guardian reference was made to this issue, and the accompanying paragraph is probably a good indication of the general attitude of the Methodist people:—

"Without doubt there is no single issue before us at this time of more far-reaching importance than the matter of union between the Congregational Presbyterian, and Methodist Churches. The greatness of the issues involved, looked at from many points of view, the unlikeness of the proposal to unite bodies heretofore regarded as wide differing in doctrine and polity and outlook; the doubts that will arise as to the probable results of uniting—any one of these or the other line the apparent difficulties and dangers in the way—all these considerations and some others that it might not be easy to formulate, are inclined to make us pause. In fact, so formidable does the task of union appear at times that many would counsel a policy of delay, and would like to see the whole matter laid aside for a time. But that cannot, ought not to be. While it is well to be in no unseemly haste we must face the question honestly, courageously, in a spirit of utter loyalty to our Master, and of willingness to make any sacrifice of prejudice or sentiment or self-interest that He might ask of us. To our mind a conviction of duty in this matter should count for more than any ability we might have to see how the proposed plan of union either can or can not be worked out successfully. If union is in the great plan of God, then the method of the human working out of that plan will reveal itself under His guidance. The conviction that it is of we can judge correctly, is slowly but surely laying its hold upon the mind of a majority in each of the three churches. If that be the case the way out of any apparent difficulty will be made clear as time goes on. What is needed is singleness of purpose, union unclouded by any thought of narrow or selfish interest, a trust in the integrity and honesty of each section of the other denominations, and faith in the Divine guidance. Sheer indifference or too narrow a view of what the kingdom of Christ is may disastrously check a movement that is divinely intended to bring that kingdom nigh after a fashion, and by a rate of progress of which we have not been dreaming."

NEW CHURCH IN JAPAN.

But though undoubtedly the greatest issue to come before the conference union is not the only issue which is likely to lead to keen debates or which has large interests involved. Of only second import is the proposed constitution for the Methodist Church of Japan, which has been agreed upon between representatives of the various churches concerned, and will come up for ratification by the Canadian Methodist Church at the sessions here. The missions which are to be united include those of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, both of the United States, besides the Methodist Church in Canada. The Japan Methodist Church will begin its independent existence with a membership of about 1150, and a native ministry of over one hundred. The churches in the United States and Canada will continue their active support of the work in Japan as heretofore, co-operating with the "Nippon Methodist Kyokwai," which is the name of the new church, transliterated from the Japanese.

With the elevation of the Japanese missions to the status of a national church, the Methodist Church in Canada is looking out for a new mission field, and India is being discussed as a new scene for Canadian Methodist missionary enterprise. While it is recognized that the demands of the West and of China are great, it is argued in the Church organ: "While we must do more than we have been doing for the West, it would be a great calamity if we should act so narrowly as to forget and ignore the needs of the great world without. The missionary effort, like the charity, that begins at home, limits and cripples itself beyond the possibility of a healthy life and activity."

At the conference in Winnipeg, in addition to the creation of two new conferences, the church took a step forward by the appointment of a secretary of temperance and moral reform, Rev. Dr. Chown. The extension of this branch of the church's activity is to be discussed and a large fund for literature and the appointment of more organizers is likely to be on the tapis.

EDUCATION AND EVANGELISM.

The publishing interests of the church will probably, as usual, occupy a large place in the deliberations of conference, and a small ban issued for general improvement in the educational institutions, not only in the colleges themselves but in the Sunday-schools and Epworth League. It is recognized that the present agencies are doing good work, but the growth of new demands is pleaded as requiring new equipment to meet them. A suggestion is also afoot for the appointment of a Commission on Aggressive Evangelism.

These are likely to be some of the chief problems with which the General Conference will grapple, and they will undoubtedly give ample material for the little over two weeks which it is expected that the conference will sit.

REV. W. S. GRIFFIN, D.D.,
General Treasurer of the Superannuation and General Conference Funds.

A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE GROWTH OF THE METHODIST CHURCH.

The Methodist Church is one of the youngest and at the same time the second largest denomination engaged in work in the Dominion. Having its rise in the "Holy Club" at Oxford, of which John and Charles Wesley were members, its birth was a parallel of the movement which resulted in the earliest reforms of the British prisons. During the life of its founder, the young and vigorous "society" crossed the Atlantic, and settled both in the thirteen colonies and in the newly-won British dominions to the north, where it received strong accessions through the "volkerwanderung" of the United Empire Loyalists.

Organized as a "society" within the pale of the Church of England, before the death of John Wesley, it had become a separate religious denomination. Soon divisions appeared in its ranks, so that, with the coming in of both British and American Methodists, there were in the early part of the present century and well into the latter half some seven different branches of Methodism in Canada, namely, Wesleyan, British Episcopal, American Episcopal, New Connexion, Bible Christian, Primitives and Calvinistic Methodists. But just before the beginning of the third quarter of the century the spirit of union was working in the "people who are called Methodists." There were two unions, one consummated in 1874 and the other in 1883, and the result was the Methodist Church as it now exists, including all the followers of John Wesley in the Dominion.

QUARTER CENTURY OF UNION.

This union has been followed by twenty-three years of steady growth in membership. The united churches in 1883 numbered on their rolls 169,803 members in good standing; the latest report by the General Conference statistician shows a strength of 317,717, an increase of about eighty-five per cent in less than a quarter of a century.

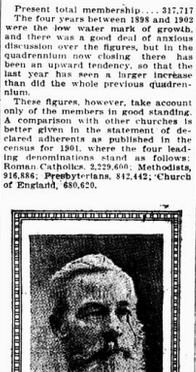
Not uniform, however, has been the rate of growth. The record by quadrenniums is as follows:

At the time of the Union in 1883 the membership of the united churches was	169,803
The increase for the four years 1883-1886 was	27,666
The increase for the four years 1886-1890 was	36,399
The increase for the four years 1890-1894 was	27,085
The increase for the four years 1894-1898 was	19,584
The increase for the four years 1898-1902 was	11,358
The increase for the four years 1902-1906 was	25,822

Present total membership..... 317,717

The four years between 1898 and 1902 were the low water mark of growth, and there was a good deal of anxious discussion over the figures, but in the quadrennium now closing there has been an upward tendency, so that the last year has seen a larger increase than did the whole previous quadrennium.

These figures, however, take account only of the members in good standing. A comparison with other churches is better given in the statement of declared adherents as published in the census for 1901, where the four leading denominations stand as follows: Roman Catholics, 2,229,600; Methodists, 916,886; Presbyterians, 842,442; Church of England, 680,620.



REV. JOHN POTTS, D.D.,
General Secretary of Education.

HOW THE METHODIST CHURCH IS ORGANIZED AND GOVERNED.

The polity of the Methodist church is founded upon the elective system. At the head of the system is the General Conference, which is supreme in all legislative matters and which elects the judicial and executive officers of the church at large. Under the General Conference are thirteen annual conferences and under them district meetings, under which again are the Quarterly Boards of the different churches. Quarterly Boards elect delegates to district meetings; district meetings, to annual conferences, although every minister is ex-officio a member of this body, and the annual conferences to the General Conference. The annual conferences have supervision over the stationing of the ministers, through a stationing committee, and over the general church work within their own bounds; the General Conference has general oversight over the whole church. The territory over which the General Conference has jurisdiction includes three countries outside of the Dominion. Newfoundland is an annual conference by itself; the stations in Bermuda are part of the Nova Scotia Conference; and Japan is an autonomous annual conference for many purposes, though under the General Board of Missions for other matters. The other annual conferences, which are represented by delegates are, beginning from the east: New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, Montreal, Bay of Quinte, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta, and British Columbia.

OFFICERS OF CONFERENCE.

The chief officers of the General Conference are:

General Superintendent, Rev. Albert Carman, D.D.

General Secretary of Education, Rev. John Potts, D.D.

General Secretary of Missions, Rev. Alex. Sutherland, D.D.

Associate Secretary of Missions, Rev. James Henderson, D.D. (retired).

General Secretary of Epworth Leagues and Sunday Schools, and Editor of the Epworth Era, Rev. A. C. Crews, D.D.

General Treasurer of the Superannuation, and General Conference Funds, Rev. W. S. Griffin, D.D.

Editor of the Christian Guardian, Rev. George Bond, D.D. (retired).

Editor of the Wesleyan, Rev. S. Maclean, D.D.

Book Steward, Rev. William Briggs, D.D.

Corresponding Secretary, with jurisdiction over the West, Rev. James Woodsworth, D.D.

Superintendent for New Ontario, Rev. James Allen, M.A.

Superintendent for Assiniboia, Rev. O. Darwin.

Associate Superintendent for Assiniboia, Rev. Thomas Lawson.

Superintendent for Alberta, Rev. T. C. Buchanan.

Superintendent for British Columbia, Rev. J. H. White, D.D.

Secretary of General Conference, Rev. George Steel.

Secretary of General Conference Special Committee, Rev. E. B. Ryckman, D.D.

With the exception of the General Superintendent, who was elected for eight years at Winnipeg, all these officers are to come up for election, but the chief interest centres in the choice of a new editor for the Christian Guardian, and the appointment of a new Associate Secretary of Missions. Rev. Dr. Bond has retired from editorship owing to ill-health, and Dr. Henderson entered the pastorate last July in Ottawa. Among the men mentioned as successors to Dr. Bond are Rev. S. P. Rose, D.D., formerly a pastor of St. James, in this city; Rev. W. B. Creighton, at present acting editor, and Rev. J. V. Smith, of Toronto. Discussion as to the successor to Dr. Henderson has as yet scarcely reached the phase of names, but the men who have been in the saddle as Superintendents of Missions for the past quadrennium are likely to be brought forward prominently.

Vegetarian Society Meeting.

The second monthly meeting of the Vegetarian Society of Canada was held at their rooms, 2296 Mountain street, on Wednesday evening. The meeting was opened with a short address by the president, Mr. Chas. Fife, after which the musical programme, in the able hands of Prof. Henry Healey, was admirably rendered. A lecture on "Vegetarianism," by Mr. Geo. Mills, was heartily enjoyed.

The Flesh Was Raw and Flaming

If you have any doubt as to the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema you should read the following letter:

Mr. G. J. McConnell, engineer in Fleury's foundry, Aurora, Ont., writes: "I believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold. For about thirty years I was troubled with eczema and could at obtain any cure. I was an unfortunate victim to this blood poison, and this developed into eczema, the most dreadful of all diseases.

"At times I could not sleep, would get up at night and scratch myself until the flesh was raw and flaming. The torture I endured is almost beyond description, and now I cannot say anything too good for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has cured me and I recommend it because I know there is nothing so good for healing skin."

Conductor Robbed of Fare Box.

Thursday afternoon, a robbery was committed in front of No. 14 Police Station, Rachel street, the victim being Mr. Urbain Faucher, conductor, on car No. 402, of the Montreal Street Railway. The car was running between St. Lawrence street and Lafontaine Park. While the conductor was turning the pole at the end of the line a young man, the only passenger in the car, grabbed the fare box and ran off. The conductor did not notice that the box was gone until he went to get the fare of a lady who got on his car at St. Hubert street.

D. B. Martin Company Fined.

The D. B. Martin Company were again brought up in the Recorder's Court this afternoon, charged with committing a nuisance and were fined $40 and costs amounting to $11.70. On Tuesday, however, when the complainant, said that it was the third action he was taking against the company. their place was a nuisance by the fact that a very bad smell was emanating from the premises. Many actions have been brought against the Abatoir Co. on the same charge.

PLAYS AND THOSE WHO PLAY THEM

The Pollard Lilliputian Opera Company closes a three weeks' season tonight, and have done a business similar to that of last season, which was a remarkable one. They return here in October to present the musical farce, "In Town," which had one season in New York, with an English "beauty show" company a few years ago, but was not played elsewhere on this continent. The coming week will find all the theatres open. In one of them, the Academy, the first city production of a new comedy by an old favorite will be the attraction. At the other houses all "old favorites" will be in evidence. Sohmer closes its season of week-day vaudeville to-night. No definite announcement of the date of opening of the new Bennet vaudeville houses in Montreal and Ottawa has yet been made. In Montreal the work of demolishing the old church which occupied the site of the proposed house, is still going on.

AT LOCAL PLAYHOUSES.

There will be a special Labor Day matinee at His Majesty's Theatre next Monday, which will also be the occasion for the opening of the Guy street house for the season. An exceptionally strong company is promised in "The Red Feather." All the music, handsome costuming and striking effects of the past season are promised again. The company is headed by Cheridah Simpson. She held a similar position with the Henry W. Savage forces for the past three seasons. A company numbering 75 people support her, among the principals being Lyman Wheeler, W. J. McCarthy, Ben. G. MacGahey, Gertrude MacDonald, Felix Rice, W. H. Powers, Daisy Fuguer, Richard Karl and Virginia Gilbert. "The Red Feather," it will be remembered, is by Charles Klein, and is formed upon the imaginary happenings in the fictitious kingdom of Ruritania. There all kinds of royal and other personages intrigue to gain possession of the throne. There are catchy and pretty airs and some of a high order, but the prevailing idea is martial.

Nat M. Wills, the happy tramp, will begin a week's engagement at the Academy with a special matinee Monday. Many have seen and laughed at Nat M. Wills, the happy tramp comedian for several seasons in his big musical successes, "A Son of Rest" and "The Duke of Duluth," etc., but this time they will have the pleasure of seeing him throughout the play in a role entirely congenial to him and one that offers him more opportunities than he has ever before had the pleasure of finding in one comedy. In "A Lucky Dog," he is Happy Holmes, a tramp, and the author, Mark E. Swan, has cleverly woven about him a story of the most absorbing interest, while George Nichols has produced a number of musical numbers which are bound to become hits at once. Nat Wills has with him several new songs and parodies and he will surely repeat his former success in this city.

The stage settings include the Egyptian Museum with the real mummies swathed in their bandages and other strange and weird Egyptian and East Indian curiosities, some of which come to life for a brief time during the action of the play, and lend zest, as it were, to the novel musical and dancing numbers.

The cast comprises a number of well known comedians, singers and dancers. Besides Nat M. Wills, there are Chas. E. Udell, Fred Bernaud, Joseph Engerton, Maurice Levigne, James Vincent, Peter Griffen, Carrie Thomas, Della Stacey, Anita Zorn, Lee Hobbs, Martin Ninon de Varenne, Mae Harrison, Edna Mitchell, Elinore Russell, Mazie Oliver, Sybil Brennon, Ethel Crowell, Vivian Pickard, Clara Pickard, and a chorus of Swedish beauties. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be played.

In "A Desperate Chance," which will be played at the Theatre Francais next week, Theodore Kremer, that well known playwright, has written what is said to be the best work of his life. The play contains incidents in the lives of those two notorious criminals, Ed. and Jack Biddle, of Pittsburg. It will be remembered that, some time ago, the entire world was startled by the escape of those two notorious men from the Pittsburg gaol, where they were incarcerated, awaiting the death to which they had been sentenced several months previously. They were aided in their escape by the wife of the warden of the prison who, previous to that escape, had borne the very highest reputation as a faithful and a loving wife. It was simply a case of a weak woman's infatuation for a criminal. The author has not exaggerated any of his scenes. Mr. Aubrey Mittenthal, proprietor of the attraction, has spared no expense in mounting the play, and has secured some of the original weapons that were used by the detectives in the capture of the criminals.

At the Royal next week, beginning with the matinee on Monday, "The High School Girls" will be the attraction. The opening burlesque will be "An Egyptian Lemon," and the closing concoction "Cupid in the Philippines" which is claimed to be a departure from the usual old-time "afterpiece." Charles and John Burke—the original Burke Brothers—are re-united in this company, after a separation of several seasons. The vaudeville interpolated will serve to introduce a number of artists. Among them will be found the Three Banta Brothers, a trio of instrumentalists; the Misses Willard and Hughes, a duo in a character sketch, entitled "From the Bowery to Broadway"; and George and Lilla Brennan, exponents of pedal dexterity. The "Red Raven Cadets," an interesting and sensational military spectacle, comprising fifteen young women, is announced as a special feature attraction.

The opening of the theatrical season 1906-07 at the Montreal Comedie-Francaise will take place Monday, September 3, and the French stock company supporting Mr. Eugene Lassalle will make its first bow to a Canadian audience in "Le Juif Polonais," the celebrated play by Erckmann-Chatrian, known in English as "The Bells." Mr. Lassalle is claimed to be one of the greatest French actors of the day, and the management of the Nouveautes has been particularly happy in inducing him to cross the Atlantic to appear in Montreal. Mr. Lassalle has played in every European capital, and his talent has been recognized by such tokens of esteem as decorations from Kaiser Wilhelm, the Czar Nicolas, the Sultan of Turkey, etc. The European press have been unanimous in their praises of Mr. Lassalle's artistic work, and in "Le Juif Polonais" he was favorably compared with the late Sir Henry Irving by the London papers. In the new stock company supporting Mr. Lassalle are such well-known names on the French stage as Messrs. Casset, Marmignon, Fleury, Melvil and Mesdames Jeanne Guerin, Bienfait, Montoux, De Luy, Bordo, Servais, etc. The Theatre des Nouveautes, controlled now by La Compagnie des Theatres de Montreal, is under the direction of Mr. R. J. Demers, managing director; Mr. R. Ravaux, manager, and Mr. J. Prevost, stage director.

The first complete rehearsal of "The Red Mill," the new comic opera by Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert, shortly to be seen here, with Montgomery and Stone as its stars, was held on the stage of the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, this week. The try-out was made before an audience comprised of author, composer and manager, the latter Charles Dillingham. Only costumes and wigs were needed to make the rehearsal a performance.

MISS CHERIDA SIMPSON,

so put did the work move in lines and business. Nothing has yet been announced by the management as to the character of the story of the opera. Report says that Mr. Blossom has succeeded in furnishing the former principals of "The Wizard of Oz" with humorous roles. The score is also spoken highly of by the very few authorities who have heard it. About a dozen songs, several of them entrusted to the stars, are to be found among the lyrics. The company numbers about seventy-five people. The names of the principals have already been published. A complete rehearsal of the opera with scenes, costumes and properties is listed for next Monday evening on the stage of the Knickerbocker. "The Red Mill" will be seen at His Majesty's Theatre the week commencing Monday, September 10.

fairyesque, "The Gingerbread Man," they also created a new character in the mythical child-world, Mrs. Santa Claus. In the play, this character is portrayed in a spirit of delicious burlesque by Ross Snow, who has been seen as Fairy Queen, Dowager and feminine absurdities for a number of years. He is an awkward, stumbling, good-natured, comical Mrs. Santa, backed by a chorus of pretty girls dressed as good fairies. Jack Horner, the Man from Our Town, Sallie Lunn, Margery Daw, Simple Simon, and other friends of our childhood help to round out what is claimed to be one of the most beautiful, interesting and enjoyable entertainments seen in years. The stage pictures are marvels of splendor, while the mechanical and electrical effects are simply wonderful. "The Gingerbread Man" will be one of the early attractions at His Majesty's.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Arrangements have been made for an appearance here of Leoncavallo, the famous Italian composer, who, with the grand orchestra of eighty men and solo singers from La Scala Opera House, Milan, is to make an eight-week tour of America before the opening of the opera season in Italy. Leoncavalo is best known to local music lovers as the author of "I'Pagliacci." He has composed several other notable operas, however, and from these selections will be made for the grand concerts to be conducted by the composer. The programmes, as at present arranged, will be made up of selections from "I'Pagliacci," "Zaza," "Roland von Berlin," "Medici" and "The Young Figaro." His first opera is almost contemporary with Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," and is similar to it in several particulars, having critics that place it high above Mascagni's effort. It is included in the standard repertoire of nearly all the great opera companies of the world and establishes its author as one of the foremost musicians of this time. Leoncavalo received the following letter from Pius X. on the occasion of the dedication by His Holiness of the "Ave Maria," composed in commemoration of the Calabria Misfortune:

"To the Beloved Son,
Professor Ruggiero Leoncavalo:

"Heartily praising your holy thought, we accept with highest satisfaction the dedication of your work, with the hope that Heaven will answer the prayers of the Blessed by kindly rewarding your act of charity, and we give you with paternal affection the Apostolic Benediction."

PIUS PP. X.

In addition to his other operas this "Ave Maria," with full orchestral accompaniment is to be one of the features of the ensuing tournee in the United States and Canada, beginning in Carnegie Hall, New York, October 8th. The Montreal appearance is down for October 19th.

Bewildering effects will be offered this season with the "Me, Him and I" company. Hurtig and Seamon's successful musical comedy sensation which comes to the Academy of Music week of September 10th.

DOMINION PARK.

Next week will open with a flourish at Dominion Park, Monday being Labor Day, and the Montreal Trades and Labor Council having decided to hold their annual outing there. After the parade there will be cars in waiting at Papineau Ave., which will be run direct to the park, so that there will be no delay on the part of the street car company. For the entertainment of the large crowd that is expected, a good programme has been provided, many of the features being specially arranged by the Labor Council. Two good acts that have never been seen in Montreal before will be presented on the stage in the open air. It had been arranged to have the flying Dordens here, but one of the troupe has sustained a broken arm so that the combination cannot work. In their place will come the three sisters, Herzog Camaras, who have just arrived in America from Europe. They are equilibrists and do some of the most difficult feats ever attempted. Octavius Cogan, on the slack wire, will be another up-to-date attraction.

MINSTRELS AT RIVERSIDE.

A novelty is in store for the patrons of Riverside Park, next week, commencing to-morrow afternoon, September 2nd. Wm. Josh Daly's minstrels are booked to appear for one week, presenting an original first part and vaudeville acts of the highest order. Among the artists to appear are the Elite Musical Four, the Bijou Comedy Four; Forsman and Dunn, singers and dancers; the Thomas Trio of Acrobats, and Harry Breen, eccentric comedian. The first part setting and costumes are said to be equal to those of any organization of this kind. The London Bioscope will show some feature pictures.

AMONG THE PLAYERS.

P. C. Shortis, the famous banjoist, has just returned to visit Halifax, N. S., his native city, after an absence of thirty years. As a boy he showed marked ability as a local dancer and musician. He went to the United States, won marked success and invented a system of banjo playing. He has lately been in Europe.

Henrietta Crosman's company this season in the comedy "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," has Edward Mackey, Ernest Stallard, J. R. Crauford, Addison Pitt, John Marble, C. A. Chandos, Kate Meek, Ida Waterman, Jane Marbury and Ann Warrington.

Miss Helen Ford will leave Montreal for New York next week, to begin rehearsals in Rachel Crothers' play, "The Three of Us," in which Walter N. Lawrence presents Miss Carlotta Nielson. Miss Ford is known to private life as Miss Mary H. Stafford, daughter of Mr. H. Y. Stafford, of this city.

Maude Adams opens her season early in October, continuing in her greatest success, "Peter Pan."

Ethel Barrymore will be seen on tour in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," the J. M. Barrie comedy, in which she scored so marked a success last season.

Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, in their great success, "Julie Bonbon," after a short preliminary tour, will open the Majestic Theatre, Boston, September 3rd. They will be supported by the same splendid company that made "Julie Bonbon" one of last season's most pronounced successes in New York and elsewhere. The play was written by Miss Lipman, revealing in her a hitherto unsuspected talent. Since this success, she has received many offers from stars and managers who wish her to provide them with plays. She purposes confining her playwrighting to the needs of Mr. Mann and herself.

Arnold Daly has begun rehearsals of his Bernard Shaw repertoire in which he will open the season at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, on Sept. 10th. The plays which Mr. Daly will use first are "Arms and the Man," which thus far he has presented nowhere except in New York, and his last season's great success, "You Never Can Tell." Special performances of "Candida" will also be given, as well as "The Man of Destiny" and "How He Lied to Her Husband." A little later in the season Mr. Daly will produce five new plays which he secured on his recent European trip.

The New York Symphony Orchestra has issued its preliminary announcement for the coming season, which will open on Saturday evening, November 3. There are to be eight Saturday evening concerts, and eight Sunday afternoon concerts, all under the direction of Walter Damrosch. Among the soloists announced so far are Josef Lhevinne, Moriz Rosenthal, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Gadski, and Leo Schulz. Ysaye is also announced, but as he has decided not to come to this country some one else will probably be substituted, perhaps Cesar Thomson. New York's musical season begins rather late, especially when compared to that of London, which opened August 18.

Patrons of the Paris music halls are being entertained just now by a performer with a brand-new feat. He is a young man, a Dane, of twenty-three years, who walks, jumps, and even runs on his head, without using his hands in any way. Simply divesting himself of his coat, he ties a little round cushion on the top of his head, fastening the straps under his chin. Then, with a graceful movement, he lands on his head with his feet pointing skyward. The performer does not walk in the ordinary sense of the word; he hops about upside down. In Vienna recently he gave a street exhibition, walking a distance of three blocks without taking a rest. In a Paris newspaper's office he stood on his head on a table, and jumped head first to the ground, winding up the performance by hopping head first down a flight of stairs as quickly and easily as the ordinary man walks.

Lily Langtry was booed by the crowd at Folkestone recently. She had been engaged to give a twenty-minute recital, and presented a playlet, "Between Night and Light," in which two others assisted her. The management did not furnish enough other numbers to give a full programme and the audience was dismissed at 9.30. They did not know the circumstances and waited outside. When the Jersey Lily appeared on the street, she was surprised by a storm of hisses and boos from people who thought that they had been buncoed out of their money.

Mr. George Edwardes, who years ago extinguished the sacred lamp of burlesque which Mr. John Hollingshead and his attendant priests and priestesses—Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. E. W. Royce, Miss Nellie Farren, and Miss Kate Vaughan—kept alight so successfully at the Gaiety Theatre, London, and replaced it with the fickle dame which earned the name of "musical comedy," has seen the writing on the wall. He announced at the annual meeting of the theatre company last week, that he thought it was time to make a change from ordinary musical comedy, and the new piece "Aladdin" would be of a different class. He had reason to believe that it would be a great success. The receipts amounted to £93,457, as against £81,134 for the previous year. The profit amounted to £17,196, as against £9,651. Instead of paying a larger dividend than 15 per cent., they thought it wise to write down that asset known as "stage properties" by a sum of £6,200 more than last year.

The following is the list of musical comedies running in London at present:—Prince of Wales' Theatre: "The Girl Behind the Counter." Vaudeville Theatre: "The Belle of Mayfair." Aldwych Theatre: "The Beauty of Bath." Apollo Theatre: "The Dairymaids."

What Men Owe to Fit-Reform

Originators in Canada of Hand Tailored Garments Completely Finished.

First in the Field, and First in the Esteem of the Canadian Public.

When Turner, the artist, was asked how he mixed his colors to get his striking effects, he replied "with brains."

So it is with Fit-Reform. A tailor may copy a Fit-Reform suit. But Fit-Reform garments are not mere jumbles of cloth, thread and buttons. The expression, the tone, the individuality, the indefinable style, grace and exclusiveness of Fit-Reform, are missing in the copies.

Because Fit-Reform Creates.

And more.

Because Fit-Reform has the brains, as well as the mechanical skill, to perfect its creations.

Fit-Reform founded hand tailored garments, completely finished, in Canada. Fit-Reform demonstrated the possibilities of this ideal method of tailoring.

Specialists On Tailoring.

Fit-Reform was the first to adopt the specialist system of tailoring. Men were trained on one individual part of the work until they became adepts at it. To-day, in the Fit-Reform workrooms these specialists make every part of every garment—sleeves, collars, lapels, shaping shoulders, moulding canvas, all by hand. It is not too much to say that Fit-Reform tailoring corps is the most expert body of its kind in the Dominion.

Fit-Reform also originated the plan which gives to every man perfect fitting garments. To fit stout men, short stout men, tall men, slender men, as well as the average men. So exact is the Fit-Reform system—and so gradual the gradations from one physique to another—that it is no exaggeration to state that every man may be fitted exactly in Fit-Reform garments.

Suits and Overcoats are so constructed that, if by any chance, a slight alteration should be necessary, it can be made quickly and accurately. Fit-Reform garments are completely finished, for the purpose of enabling men to see if alterations are necessary.

Fit-Reform Originated

the Wardrobe system, since copied and played upon by so many Canadian imitators, a manufacturer in the United States going one better, by using the name "Fit-Reform."

One of the prime factors in the success which Fit-Reform has achieved, is the high order of cloths, used in the garments. Quality and value are inseparable with Fit-Reform.

Fit-Reform, since its inception, has enjoyed a steady growth, and from its beginning has been regarded as "THE MAKER" of high class garments for men in Canada.

Look for Fit-Reform Label.

Fit-Reform is sometimes confounded with those who play upon the name. The public should be on their guard when buying suits and overcoats, to make sure that they get Fit-Reform garments. The Fit-Reform label, with price, is in the left inner pocket of every genuine Fit-Reform garment. Look for it.

NERVOUS DEBILITY TWO YEARS.

"Pe-ru-na Is the Best Medicine I Have Ever Known."

A Beautiful Girl Restored To Health.

Miss Irene Smith, 10 Minnesota avenue, Randle Highlands, Washington, D.C., writes:

"Peruna has cured me of catarrh of the head and stomach, and nervous debility from which I suffered greatly for two years.

"I most heartily recommend Peruna to all suffering from these diseases. Peruna is the best medicine I have ever known."

PERUNA is not a nervine. It does not benefit nervous debility by stimulating merely.

It removes the cause of many cases of nervous debility. It assists digestion, increases the appetite, regulates the circulation of the blood and thus gives new life to nervous invalids.

NERVE TONICS DO NO GOOD.

Nerve tonics, such as strychnia, quinine and the like often do more harm than good. Nervousness generally depends upon some digestive derangement or bodily deficiency.

The rational cure for nervousness is to correct the condition upon which it depends.

It is because Peruna does this very thing that it has become so popular for diseases of the nervous system.

DYSPEPSIA CAUSES NERVOUSNESS

Miss Alma Cox, Orum, S.C., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia for five years. How I suffered no tongue can tell. I tried several of the best physicians without receiving much benefit, and also tried many medicines.

"But still I suffered with sick headache, cold feet and hands, palpitation of the heart, and a heavy feeling in my stomach and chest.

"At times I would be so nervous I could not bear to have any one around me.

A FRIEND ADVISED PE-RU-NA.

"One day a friend sent me one of Dr. Hartman's pamphlets and I decided to write to him. He advised Peruna and Manalin and after taking the medicine two weeks I felt greatly relieved. My head did not ache so much and my stomach was relieved of its heavy feeling.

"I am so thankful that I can say that after taking several bottles of Peruna and Manalin I am restored to health.

"Before taking your remedies I could not eat anything. I lived on barley water and panopeptone for two years. Now I can eat.

ADVICE TO SUFFERERS.

"Everybody is surprised at my improvement. I would advise all suffering women to take your remedies, as I know if it were not for Peruna and Manalin I would have been in my grave to-day.

"I cannot thank you enough for the kind advice you have given me."

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, 61 Marchant St., Watsonville, Cal., writes:

"I was troubled with cramps in the stomach for six years. The doctors said that I had nervous dyspepsia.

"I procured Peruna and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured.

"I have gained in flesh and strength and feel like a different person."

NIGEL BARKER UNWELL.

Australian Champion is Unable to Get Into Form.

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, September 1.—Nigel Barker, the quarter-mile Australian champion, who was a member of the Australian team that took part in the Olympic games at Athens, arrived here Thursday, where he will prepare for the coming national championship meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union, which is to be held at Travers' Island, on September 8. Barker is far from being well, and said yesterday that he seems to be unable to get into proper form. He does, however, to be in good shape for the championships.

IRRESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Bryan touched upon a point in his Madison Square speech which will one day become a live issue in American politics, though at present there will be surprise that a Presidential candidate deigned to turn aside to give it notice. This is the fact that a popular election in the democratic United States does not become effective until thirteen months after it has been held. Canadians, who live under the promptly responsive British system of government, will realize in a moment what this means. We have an election late in June; and the new government is in office before the middle of July. What would we think if it were kept out of office until six months later—as is the case with a new President—or until thirteen months later—as is the case with a new Congress?

This autumn the Americans will elect a new Congress. Then Congress will meet; but not the newly elected body. It will be the old Congress which will meet—a Congress in which will sit many members who have just been rejected at the polls, whose political careers are over, and who have no sense of responsibility to the people. This is called "the short session," for it must terminate by the following spring; and Mr. Bryan gave to it its common reputation when he said that its abolition "would protect the people from the jobs that are usually reserved for the short session." What else could be expected of it, no one familiar with politicians would like to say. Here are a set of men—many of them, sick of politics forever—entrusted with the tremendous powers of Congress and conscious that they will not have to give an account to the electors for what they do. They have just been before the electors; and have either been re-elected for another Congressional term which is to begin the following year, or have already been visited with the condemnation of defeat.

Mr. Bryan has found during his European trip that "they do these things better" in Britain. "In several of the nations of Europe" he said, "the executive department of government is more quickly responsive to public sentiment than is our Congress. In England, for instance, where the ministry is formed from the dominant party, when an election is held upon any important issue, the Government proceeds to put into law the will of the people expressed at the polls."

The American system leaves the business of the lurch after an important Congressional campaign for more than a year, and keeps over it a threat of the unknown—"often more damaging," said Mr. Bryan, "than a change of policy promptly carried into effect." His solution would be to convene the first session of Congress within a few months after the election, and compel the second session to adjourn several days before the following election. This would give the public prompt relief through executive action and banish that mischievous post-election session.

What our neighbors want is, in two words, "responsible government." What they have is a divided responsibility which was intended to check the dominance of any one influence in the Government, but which has had the effect of denying to the people the power of holding any definite party or body responsible for the proceedings of the Government. An expert who closely follows the debates and the squirmings and the manoeuvres at Washington may know who is responsible for the failure of this measure or the passing of that "job"; but, amidst the mutual charges and recriminations which abound, the ordinary citizen can have no sure and definite knowledge in the matter. He simply gathers the impression that they are a bad lot down at Washington, and that it is not of much use for the people to try to improve them.

But if they had—as we have at Ottawa and as the people of the United Kingdom have at Westminster—one central body which was responsible alike for legislation and administration, which led the Representatives and led the Senate and administered the executive departments, the common people would know whom to praise for policies which they liked and whom to blame for policies which they disliked. With this system would go naturally the dissolution of one Congress before the election of another; and there would be no "hold-over" sessions to vote away money in defiance to public opinion or to pass legislation which they would not dare defend at the polls. The day will come when a democratic and practical people like the Americans will no longer tolerate so stupid and costly an arrangement.

THE FIELDING CASE.

There is no doubt that the Government and possibly the country—will suffer grave inconvenience if Mr. Fielding is precluded by the proceedings before the courts from taking his seat at an autumn session of Parliament. Nothing like factious opposition to an early by-election ought to be offered; for the loss will be felt by public business much more than by any private or party interest.

Still we may as well tear our laws against corruption out of the statute books if we are to show any favor in such a case to a man because he happens to be a powerful Minister of the Crown. The most influential Minister, as well as the humblest member, must be compelled to obey the law if we are to get anything like respect for the law. In the case of Mr. Fielding, the situation gains an additional gravity from the fact that the point appealed to the Supreme Court is no simple question of corrupt practices, but touches a charge intended to lead to the disqualification of the Minister himself.

Now disqualification is the most serious punishment which we inflict upon a political corruptionist; and men who believe that they have a case of this sort against a member of Parliament obviously have a duty to perform which overrides even the convenience of the public in getting an autumn session, and an early revision of the tariff. This duty ought to be more often recognized, especially in a community where election court "saws of" have become a public scandal.

The tone of the Government press, however, amounts almost to pressure upon the petitioners to stand aside and let Mr. Fielding run his by-election, so that Parliament may meet. The Toronto Globe has an article dwelling upon the results of delay, but saying nothing of the duty of the petitioners. This is hardly the moral leading which we should have expected from the Globe in the case; and we may be very sure that less scrupulous and less public spokesmen are using plainer language. Only the petitioners, however, can know where their duty lies; and subsequent events will go far to show whether they have chosen the service of electoral purity or of petty partizanship.

MEDICAL INSPECTION OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

It seems that the city schools are about to open with no provision yet for the systematic medical inspection of the scholars which was projected so boldly last spring. The physicians chosen did not consider the indemnity voted them sufficient, and so did not get to work, and the deadlock still exists.

Certainly something should be done at once to set the system working. Either the demands of the physicians ought to be met, or other physicians secured. If the money is sufficient for the time and skill required, then competition will surely bring out some doctors who will undertake the task, while if no fit ones will apply, then obviously more money should be set aside for this purpose.

This is not a matter to be played with. If one epidemic in a single school can be headed off, the city will be amply repaid for the funds devoted to this purpose. As a matter of fact, many a child would be protected from over-straining weak eye sight, or from over-working a feeble frame by timely and regular inspection. Incipient tuberculosis could be detected and the life of the child saved, to say nothing of the other children who would be removed from the peril of contagion. The City Council must not gamble in the health of the children. This is a point at which it is criminal to save money.

THE PEOPLE GROWING HAPPIER.

In an address at the directors' luncheon on the Toronto exhibition grounds, Dr. Goldwin Smith stated that in his time he had seen a great development in innocent pleasures. "It has been a great relief to all humanity, and especially the humanity represented by the toiler. When I came to Toronto there was no Exhibition, no island paradise, no Mimico, no Long Branch, none of these pleasant resorts. The pleasures of that day were not only scanty, but of a lower order. The man toped while the woman moped."

Much younger men have noticed the same happy change in our people. We are slowly but definitely abandoning the utilitarian as the only good, and are beginning to discover that it is as necessary to spend our money well as to earn it in sufficient quantities. Our cities go in more for places of entertainment, for attractive parks, for the gay machinery of recreation; and life is much more worth the living. The holiday habit, too, is growing; and we are coming to the European standard, which insists that a man must have rest if he is to do his best work. He was a wise philosopher who said, "Learn on a year's work in fifty weeks, but not in fifty-two."

Montreal is equipping itself fairly well in this way; but we yet lack what Dr. Smith called, in the case of Toronto, an "island paradise." Yet we have the island, and we have the river. All we lack is means of access to it, and free use of the island when we get there. Montreal has the finest Mountain Park on the continent; but it is still lacking in means of access to the noble rivers which flow around the island on which it is built. This is a reform which some enterprising City Fathers might take up with great personal glory as a reward.

A member of the staff of the New York Evening Post has been out "discovering" Canada and telling the world what kind of natives he found. Of Eastern Canada he writes: "The east is settled largely by descendants of the early British and French pioneers. They are aggressively loyal to the Crown, and look to England for inspiration, direction, guidance, and help. An English accent is cultivated. They say "duty," "juke," "immeeility," "Canajan," "eclark," for "duty," "duke," "immediately," "canadian," and "clerk." And the gear of the Regent and Bond street shops is far from unknown." There is also a country near unto Canada where there can be found people who say "hoss cah" when they talk about the ancient horse car; where they say "haow" when they mean what; where they say "dew tell" and "well, I want t' knaow" where other people say, "Oh, my!"; where "mahself" takes the place of myself; Boston is called "Bosh'n" and "Noo Yawk" masquerades for New York. Yet in that country, as in some others, the educated people speak pure and properly pronounced English.

Too much credit is being given to President Roosevelt and Andrew Carnegie for the part that they are playing in the way of spelling reform. More attention should be directed to the originator of this style of humor. The late Mr. J. Billings was handing out to the world his platitudinous philosophy in the quaint orthography now so much admired by the spelling reformers, when Mr. Roosevelt was in the nursery and before Mr. Carnegie had wealth enough to be ashamed of. It is about time that the memory of "Josh Billings" and what he did as a spelling pioneer should be honored with a public monument.

THIS DATE 30 YEARS AGO.

The late Justice Coursol.

Hon. Mr. Justice Charles Coursol passed sentence this morning in the Court of Sessions on several old penitentiary birds who have only been free men a few weeks. His Honor also called the attention of the Clerk of the Court and constables to the loose way witnesses were called to court, and bench warrants served. Many cases have had to be adjourned because witnesses did not appear.

THE LATE Hon C. J. Coursol, Q.C., was the son of the Hudson's Bay Company's factor. He was called to the Bar of Lower Canada in 1841, and created Q.C., 1873. He was appointed inspector and superintendent of police of Montreal, 1855, and became Judge of Sessions of the Peace in 1870, which he resigned in September, 1878, in order to run for the House of Commons for Montreal East, in which he was successful by a large majority. He was well-known for his decision in freeing the St. Alban's Raiders. He died in the eighties.

Our Quebec correspondent reports that the Pala of Montmorency are almost dry, only a narrow trickle coming down. The intense heat of the summer just closing and the want of rain is the chief cause. Bush fires are raging on the north shore of the St. Lawrence as far as Berabimia missionary station, and rain is badly needed to put the forest fires out. There has been a good deal of valuable timber destroyed.

THE weather during the summer mentioned was not unlike in its continuous heat and drought to the present summer. Forest fires raged all over the Dominion, and several small hamlets were totally destroyed. Farmers had to drive their horses and cattle for miles to water. Berabimia is a Roman Catholic mission in charge of the Oblate Fathers, and the Hudson Bay Company have had a fur traders' post there for over a century.

The late Chief Patton

At the meeting of the Fire Committee last night, before proceeding to the consideration of the by-law to regulate the construction of buildings, the chairman asked if the application of Watson and Baynes for leave to construct a direct telegraph, which had been referred to Mr. Badger, had yet been reported on. Chief W. Patton replied that Mr. Badger was not yet ready to make a report.

THE late Alderman S. Rivard was for some years chairman of the Fire Committee, and was very attentive to his duties. He was elected in 1870 to the City Council, and re-elected in 1873, and ten years later was elected Mayor of the city for two terms. He passed away in the nineties. The late Chief Patton was appointed to office on the demise of Mr. A. Bertram in 1876, and the late Mr. Badger was superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph for over a quarter of a century. He died a few years ago.

The Thames professional crew have just reached Philadelphia to take part in the Centennial regatta. The London Rowing Club crew of four preceded them by a week.

THE captain and stroke of the latter was F. S. Gulston, and Thomas Green was for the former. The Londoners were received out of the amateur four-oared championship—three miles with turn—by being fouled in their own water by the New York crew. The judges refused to allow the foul, upon which Gulston and his crew withdrew from all further participation in the regatta. The foul was plainly seen by hundreds, and the withdrawal of the fast-est crew from further contest was regretted by all sportsmen. In the final heat for professionals over the same course and distance, the "Thames" won from the "Halifax" crew on a clear foul, the latter being in and breaking the rudder line. The stakes were three thousand five hundred dollars. At this regatta Hanlan came to the front and won a magnificent championship of the world, which he successfully held for many years.

Racing Around the Parks.

The track surrounding Lafontaine Park is open for speeding and racing horses between the hours of midnight and ten o'clock in the morning; as the track is very tempting some owners of horses also take the liberty of racing outside the hours set aside for them, thus constituting a grave danger to children playing in the park. Instructions were given Thursday to stop this practise, by arrests if necessary.

In Mohammedan countries women are not admitted beyond the doorways of mosques.

The Queen of Spain enjoys Scotland hugely. She is proud of the fact that she is the first woman of royal blood to be born in the ancient kingdom since the Princess Elizabeth, afterwards Queen of Bohemia—"Queen of Hearts, wife of the Winter King"—came into the world in Edinburgh in 1596. Princess Ena having been born at Balmoral, and baptised there, was brought up to think very contentedly of her Stuart ancestry.—Truth.

The Empress Dowager of Russia, who has been spending the summer at Gatchina, her country seat near St. Petersburg, was expected to arrive at Copenhagen this week, and it is highly probable that she will come to England with the Queen next month, on a private visit to their Majesties.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and their children are to reside at Abergeldie Castle for between five and six weeks, after which they will go to York Cottage, Sandringham, for the winter. The royal party at Abergeldie will be present at the Braemar Gathering on Thursday, September 6.

Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria are visiting Queen Maud of Norway. Her Majesty will proceed from Christiania to Copenhagen, returning home about the middle of September, when they will join the King at Balmoral.

World Gossip

Berries in the Klondike.

The Klondike region is generally considered to be one of almost perpetual snow and ice, where vegetation of any kind is rare and stunted. This popular notion receives a somewhat rude shock from the statements of Mr. Harvey Grant, of Dawson, who passed through Montreal yesterday afternoon, and who reports a fine berry crop in the vicinity of that city.

"Dawson families," he said, "are reaping a great harvest of native berries on the hillsides near Dawson and on the creeks of the camp. Everywhere throughout the Yukon berries are to be found in abundance at this time of the year; and wild currants, raspberries, blueberries and cranberries can be had in large quantities, while gooseberries are sometimes found."

"I suppose the people welcome them as a change of diet, and pick large quantities of them?"

"They certainly do. Some families, in which there are several children to do the picking, have put away hundreds of pounds of berries for the winter, as well as supplying their table with all that was required during the summer. In some instances, families have gone camping on creeks, and have had berrying picnics on the hillsides."

"Do they keep the fruit by preserving?"

"Not in all cases, though some do so. But many have a way of packing the berries so that they are preserved in fresh condition all winter long. The favorite method is to use sugar, and to put the vessels containing the fruit on the ice at the bottom of holes sunk to the glacier on which the town stands. In packing raspberries for the winter some people squeeze them down tightly until the juice runs over the berries, covering them with the red liquid. When put on the ice in this condition, the berries remain perfectly fresh."

What Galveston Accomplished.

In view of the general interest centring on San Francisco and Valparaiso at the present time, and the close attention and sympathy with which their efforts at reconstruction are watched, the account of what has been accomplished by another city of this continent, which suffered a calamity scarcely surpassed in extent of damage by those which have overwhelmed the two cities of the Pacific coast, may prove of interest.

Mr. Mortimer L. Flynn, of Galveston, Texas, was in Montreal yesterday, and in an interview with a Star reporter, gave some interesting facts with regard to the reconstruction of that city after the terrible storm of September 6, 1900, when the sea swept over the island on which Galveston is built, causing the deaths of over six thousand people and the loss of millions of dollars' worth of property.

"At first," said Mr. Flynn, "it was thought to provide against such storms in the future by a double row of defensive piling along the beach front at an expense of about $400,000. But instead of this proposed piling, which would have made at best only a very feeble barrier against the might of the waves, a sea wall of concrete, four and a half miles long, has been built. It cost $1,500,000, and has been paid for, not in bonds, but in cash. And now comes the task of raising the level of the city."

"How is this being accomplished?"

"By filling in with sand behind this wall, so that the level of the city will be raised an average height of about fourteen feet. As an engineering feat alone, to say nothing of the cost, this is a very remarkable achievement. The land which is being filled in is not mere vacant land. On the contrary, the most important business and dwelling houses are jacked up, while sand is pumped under them from a canal which was cut three miles through the heart of the city as being the only means of getting the sand to the desired points. Eleven million cubic yards of sand are being used in this enterprise. It is expected that the whole work will be finished in two years more, when Galveston will be above the wash of the heaviest tidal wave, with a sea wall which will withstand any storm. If 'Frisco and Valparaiso follow this example of splendid energy set by Galveston, the traces of the recent earthquakes will in a very short period have entirely disappeared."

The Theatrical Season.

"The present theatrical season is one that promises to be of great prosperity for the managers," said Melville Hammett, business manager of the "Red Feather" Co., when questioned last night as to the outlook in the theatrical field this year. "When I say prosperity for the managers," continued Mr. Hammett, "I mean by it that the shows at the end of the year will have good substantial profits in hand, and it will not be a case of having labored the season through to give salaries to the artists and big payments to the railroads for forty weeks, with nothing but additional experience for the manager when he completes the season. Conditions now point to a very prosperous nine months, and I base my roseate views of the situation upon the very good returns that came to the majority of attractions last season, and upon the fact that in every part of the United States and Canada, the people seem to be in a most flourishing financial state, and, best of all, are ready and willing to spend their moneys for pleasure, which to my mind is proof that they feel that there is a whole lot more cash to come into their hands in the future. Was there danger of panic and hard times the money now going into the hands of the middle and laboring classes would be, in many cases, hoarded away against the days of idleness and the still further remote days of decreased wage earnings, and this saving would first be felt by the theatres. In the United States, fortune appears to have smiled upon every section of the country with absolute impartiality. Mr. Jos. M. Gaites, who controls the destinies of 'Red Feather,' has seven other big musical shows on the road, and this year each one of his attractions opened the season early in August, and at present are scattered in various parts of the country. Two of them are already well into southern territory, another is out in the north-western part of the States, I think to-day in Butte, Montana, and the remainder are scattered in New England and the middle west, and that conditions are all that I claim for them is borne out by the box office statements that reach Mr. Gaites at his New York office. Receipts in every quarter are phenomenally large, and the agents in advance of the different companies report the brightest kind of indications for the continuance of big business, and say that every show of any worth is experiencing the same halcyon days. I am particularly impressed with the prospects of our Canadian tour. On Monday 'Red Feather' is to open the season of His Majesty's, and already the sale is sufficiently large to ensure a most auspicious inauguration of the local theatrical year. Another point to be noted about our visit to Canada this year, which clearly shows the healthy state of affairs this side of the line, is that after Montreal we play four weeks between here and Detroit. This means that, allowing a week for Toronto, that we have three weeks of towns, wholly in Ontario, that can offer important enough inducements to bring a company of the size of ours to their theatres. In fact, this would not have been possible even three years since, but to-day the management has the assurance that in no one of these smaller cities will his share of the receipts fall below $800. Now, if that is not the best sort of proof that your small centres of population are thriving, I am greatly mistaken in my belief in the enormous strides that Canada is making on the path of progress."

Whitefish Are Disappearing.

Canadian fishermen along the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair are complaining of the scarcity of fish at present. The fishermen are not doing sufficient business to pay expenses. The scarcity of whitefish and perch is felt more than the other kinds of fish. A few years ago this class of fish was found in abundance in the Detroit River. To-day these fish are much in demand, and the fishermen are unable to supply their customers. Fishermen assert that the supply of 25,000,000 fry of whitefish sent out by the Sandwich hatchery to replenish the Great Lakes is not near the amount necessary to meet the depletion of this variety of fish by reason of fishing and the destruction by other aquatic inhabitants of the large waters and rivers. Millions of mullet, suckers, carp and other varieties feed upon the whitefish fry, and it is estimated that only one whitefish minnow out of a thousand reaches maturity. Another factor in this lack of fish is thought to be the dredging work being carried on at Amherstburg. The hatchery at Sandwich has a capacity for handling over a hundred million whitefish fry, but they cannot capture the whitefish during the spawning season to extract the eggs. The whitefish is fast disappearing, and will soon be as rare as the buffalo on terra firma. The department expends for the propagation and protection of inland fisheries in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and the provinces in the North-West only $50,000 a year for all purposes, while the sum of $55,000 is expended for the advantage of fishermen in the Maritime Provinces," declared a Windsor fisherman who has spent many years in the business. Fishermen have observed, especially near French River, how the whitefish deposit their eggs. The rocky beds would be literally covered with spawn, when suddenly schools of soft fish would appear and the eggs disappear, only a fraction being left in the crevices of the rocks. The war of extermination is aided by fishermen pursuing the whitefish.

The King on Army Reductions.

No one is more tactful than King Edward in avoiding all manifestations of preference for one or the other of the great political parties. To this day no one knows exactly whether at heart he is a Tory, a Liberal Unionist or a Liberal, while there are many who are firmly convinced that during the days of Parnell he entertained a considerable amount of sympathy for the Home Rule cause. The speech which he made, therefore, the other day on the occasion of the last muster of the Third Battalion of the Scots Guards, which is about to be disbanded in connection with the reductions of military expenditure inaugurated by the present cabinet, has excited a good deal of discussion. The King mustered the battalion at Buckingham Palace in order to bid farewell to its officers and men, and after explaining to them that "my Government has considered it necessary to reduce the expenses of the army," he expressed his "deep regret" at parting with the battalion, and his hope that it would confide its colors to him until the time came for it to be re-constituted and to carry them again. He added in conclusion that he "earnestly hoped" that either he, or at any rate his successor, might see the revival of the Third Battalion. These remarks generally are construed as confirming the truth of the story that the King thoroughly disapproves of the reductions of the military forces of his empire, both personally and in his capacity as Commander-in-Chief, but that in view of the overwhelming ministerial majority in the House of Commons he has considered it to be his duty as a constitutional Sovereign to defer to the views of his cabinet rather than to resort to the extreme measure of dismissing his ministers and appealing to the country in the form of a general Parliamentary election.

Time-Controlled Phonograph.

"The busy little bee" is not alone in its efforts to improve "each shining hour." A Canadian doctor residing in Berlin, Ont., working on the idea that the first thoughts impressed upon one's brain in the morning cling to a person more or less throughout the day, has devised a mechanism whereby a phonograph is made to deliver any set message at any desired time, says the Technical World Magazine. The phonograph is connected to an alarm clock, to which is attached a lever, tripped by a spring operated by the clock at the desired hour. One end of the lever is connected by a cord, working over a pulley, to the starting lever of the phonograph. The power is derived from three ordinary dry-cell batteries, which, at the moment the alarm is given, illumines a small incandescent lamp. The lamp, however, may be turned on or off as desired. The doctor has experimented with the delivery of messages at the moment of awaking, and claims that the results have been gratifying.

Legislation Delayed in Cuba.

The delay of the Cuban Congress in passing necessary legislation, now that it has adjourned, is one of the grievances urged in justification for the revolution. The Cuban constitution provides for an independent judiciary, but no law has yet been passed providing for the organization of the courts; therefore the executive has to attend to the matter at his own discretion. This has led to the assertion that the judiciary is a mere appendix to the executive, but the Cuban Congress has done nothing to relieve the executive in that respect. There is no law relating to the functions of the different Cabinet officers, and they proceed about their business as they are directed by the president. No municipal election has been held since the republic has been established. The Mayors and municipal councils elected under the government of intervention are still in existence.

Difficulties of Tunnelling.

The engineers in charge of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel now being constructed under the East river at New York have begun to meet the danger of "blow-outs" in the tunnel by "blanketing" the river bottom. The tunnel is filled with compressed air to keep the water from leaking in before the walls are sealed up, and when the head of the tunnel gets too close to the actual river bottom the air forces its way out, and there is a small geyser or blow-out on the surface of the river. It is to prevent this that "blanket" or reinforcement of the river bottom is being laid along the line of the tunnel. The "blanket" consists of clay.

REMEMBER SEPTEMBER 20th.

Our new steamer, the S.S. "SOKOTO," will sail from Montreal, September 20th, on her initial trip to the Bahamas, Cuba and Mexico. This vessel is specialy adapted for the Mexican trade owing to the large airy rooms, broad promenade deck, etc. Of 7000 tons register, 14 knot speed, fitted throughout with electricity, and in fact every known modern device to ensure the comfort and safety of passengers, she is sure to be a great favorite with the travelling public.

Write for our illustrated booklet entitled "A Tour to the Bahamas, Cuba and Mexico," giving full particulars of the several different countries visited on our special excursion tour. Think of it, a thirty-five day trip for less than $3 per day, which includes berths, meals, etc., and on the voyage visiting some of the most beautiful of the tropical islands. As this will be the last sailing on which our special summer excursion rates will apply, don't miss the opportunity, but look early to secure choice of location.

NORTHMOUNT

Is the largest and most important property before investors of Montreal to-day. The Co. has spent a large amount of money to improve the land and increase values. Fifty charming homes are being erected, some nearing completion, and many are already sold. This is evidence of the growing interest taken in Northmount by a good class of people, who want a home in quiet spot away from the noise of the city. Building operations are going on continuously, roads and sidewalks are made, and fine avenues of trees planted.

A Quarter of a Million Dollars in Improvements—Every dollar of which has done its part in making the property well known. Yet prices are the same to-day as when we opened the property.

15c and 25c a Foot, on easy terms if desired.

Where else can you match the location and prices?

Certainly nowhere near Montreal. Northmount is only 20 minutes distant from the business sections, and has a first-class car service.

If you are seeking investment, the proximity of Northmount to the city with its growth in this direction will make these lots extremely profitable. If you seek a home, we will do what no other real estate company will do for you: Build you an elegant house for a cash pay- of 10 to 15 per cent., balance payable as rent. By the time you have paid for the home it will be worth much more than it cost you.

Take the Mountain Cars to see the Property, and alight at Northmount Station.

THE BEST INVESTMENT IN MONTREAL

You Can Only Judge the Future by the Past.

Would you buy lots on the best streets in Westmount for $500? Of course you would, quick, because you know (if you know anything about real estate), that the market value is at least $5,000. Yet only a few years ago the same lots went begging for $500. Think of it! And yet somebody had foresight enough to buy them. What happened in Westmount, will happen in Westmount Plateau.

If people got rich by aftersight, there would be a new race of millionaires, but the stubborn fact is no one can get rich by hindsight, although some have grown rich by accident.

WHAT MAKES MILLIONAIRES?

Grasping the Opportunity is what has made men rich. If you desire the proof and convincing evidence of what we say, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich —how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: "Grasping the Opportunity."

It is a fact that some men "builded wiser than they knew," but, after all, rational, common sense should be the guide of every one's actions. If luck comes your way, well and good; but don't bank on it. It is not good collateral.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY

Out of one thousand building lots we controlled at WESTMOUNT PLATEAU, we have sold seven hundred during the past few months at current prices and six per cent. interest. TO ASSURE POSITIVELY THE IMMEDIATE SALE OF THE REMAINING THREE HUNDRED LOTS, we make the astounding announcement to-day that we will sell these remaining three hundred lots at CURRENT PRICES WITHOUT INTEREST for five years, as follows:

CASH PAYMENT—ONLY $25 PER LOT,
BALANCE IN TEN YEARS, PAYABLE MONTHLY.
NO INTEREST WHATEVER FOR FIRST FIVE YEARS.
NO OBLIGATION OR SPECIFIED TIME TO BUILD.

SPECIAL DISCOUNTS will be allowed on all purchases as follows:
TEN PER CENT. IF FULLY PAID IN ONE YEAR.
EIGHT PER CENT. IF FULLY PAID IN TWO YEARS
SIX PER CENT. IF FULLY PAID IN THREE YEARS.
FOUR PER CENT. IF FULLY PAID IN FOUR YEARS.
Interest at six per cent. after five years.

We are positively the only firm selling real estate on time WITHOUT INTEREST and giving such liberal discounts besides. A raise in prices would be fully warranted, but for the time being the current prices hold and first come is first served. If you want one lot or more "GRASP THE OPPORTUNITY." Our previous success in selling thousands of lots during the last few years made us proud of our reputation for handling only HIGH GRADE PROPERTY, and therefore of the many opportunities offered us we have selected for our patrons the best home sites obtainable. We offer them now at WESTMOUNT PLATEAU and we do not know a handsomer, healthier or better location for a home or investment.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF

to look carefully—but quickly—into this proposition, because it is by far the best offer that has ever been made to home-seekers and investors; and although it will hold good all week, it may be withdrawn next week.

STENOGRAPHER.

SHORTHAND IN 30 DAYS!

TYPEWRITER.

We Ask You as a Fair-minded Person to Reason It Out For Yourself!

If the well-known firm, whose recommendation appears below, can endorse BOYD'S SHORTHAND, along with many other large firms of this city, why should you spend six months trying to be a stenographer by the old system? BE PROGRESSIVE! Throw aside the old idea of learning Shorthand by the YEAR, and learn the BEST. WE GUARANTEE a speed of 100 to 150 words per minute in 30 DAYS.

Mr. W. T. Moon, Principal, Montreal, August 21, 1906.
MOON'S SYLLABIC SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS COLLEGE, MONTREAL.

Dear Sir,—

Replying to your favor of the 16th inst., we wish to congratulate you upon the fine showing made by your 30 day students, who have taken positions through us in the numerous leading firms of this city, all of whom are giving satisfaction, we having taken trouble to enquire. We can heartily endorse your system.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) MONTREAL BRANCH THE HAMMOND TYPEWRITER CO., per E. REED, Manager.

BOYD'S SHORTHAND is no experiment; it is a CERTAINTY. We can SHOW RESULTS. Our graduates throughout Canada are SUCCESSFUL. If we had no confidence in this WONDERFUL SYSTEM discovered by Mr. Boyd, we would not give our time, labor and money in establishing 8 Colleges in the leading cities of Canada.

WE ALSO TEACH

Book-keeping and Telegraphy.

Be a First-class Book-keeper! Learn Goodwin's Improved System, which will save you 50 per cent. of the time, labor and expense, required by the old systems.

Be a Telegraph Operator! Learn from a teacher with 12 years' practical experience in the C.P.R.

WELLINGTON BRIDGE MUCH CONGESTED

The Bridgeman Defends Himself Against Charges of Favoritism to Vessels in Canal.

That a certain amount of complaint is reasonable in regard to the manner in which traffic over the Wellington bridge is impeded by the working of the draw, seems to be the opinion of that part of the public using the bridge to any great extent. They claim that the bridge crew show too much favor to the craft plying up and down the canal at the expense of the valuable time of those travelling by land. Many instances are cited by people who have occasion to use the bridge often showing that the bridge is worked to more than the entire satisfaction of the canal boats, while but little regard for the rights of pedestrians, street cars and vehicles is shown.

CONGESTION ON BRIDGE.

A visit to the bridge at almost any hour of the day shows that it is a well patronized crossing. Should the draw be swung for the matter of only two or three minutes, and the traffic of teams impeded thereby, the length of time is quite long enough to collect a long line of drays, freighters, street cars and pedestrians all in apparently the greatest haste to get over from one side to the other. Men lose their tempers in their haste to get ahead of their fellows, and it is astonishing to see what a tangle the two lines of waggons going in different directions get into, and then out of before the bridge is cleared. It is most remarkable that more accidents are not reported from this source, the crowding, racing and shoving of the many teamsters making it a most dangerous piece of business to get through. To control the traffic a man stands at each end of the bridge with a rope, which he stretches across when he thinks things are getting too congested. This, however, has little or no effect on most of the teamsters, who push past whether or no, their sole ambition being to get through ahead of the next man.

THE BRIDGEMAN'S CASE.

The bridgeman's side of the story sounds reasonable, and, as he says himself, if he does not know his business he ought not to be there. He says that steamers naturally get the preference, for if they did not they would never get through as at every hour of the day there is either someone on the bridge or someone just going on, and it is absolutely necessary to swing the draw a little before crafts reach the bridge to have it swing without any waggons on it. He says he works the bridge for the public and to what he considers their best advantage. If there is delay he thinks it is not unreasonable, and claims that the Wellington street bridge is worked just as smartly as any other bridge on the canal.

Meanwhile the opinion is freely expressed that if the police of No. 9 are looking for work they can find it at any time on either end of the bridge, and also that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals might also find some work for their inspectors by watching the manner in which carters handle their teams trying to get across ahead of each other.

Harbor Commission Met.

The Harbor Commissioners did not hold their weekly meeting yesterday, owing to the fact that only four members were present. As this number was not sufficient to form a quorum, those present decided to sit as a committee of the whole. The routine business of the week was then completed.

Fire Loss Is Serious.

Fire, which broke out early to-day in the hat factory of H. McKay, 10 Bannockburn avenue, resulted in damage estimated at several thousand dollars. The blaze originated in the basement of the two-storey brick building and spread to the top.

LACK OF SANITATION MENACE TO LIFE

Dr. Starkey Furnishes Some Striking Facts Regarding Dangers From Intestinal Diseases.

In conversation with the Star on the subject of intestinal diseases prevalent in Montreal, touched upon in Wednesday's Star, Dr. Starkey furnished some further data from a paper written by him on this subject, in regard to the unsanitary condition of the areas, and the condition of the soil when these diseases prevail.

The examinations comprise both good and bad sites, and the difference in the bacterial content of the two is very striking.

For instance, average specimens were taken from areas where the diseases are practically absent, also from those where they were particularly rife. In all these specimens from the unsanitary areas, the number of organisms per gramme were enormous, varying from four to seven millions, and amongst these were many dangerous ones, whose presence there must be attributed to bad drainage, in the general sense. Specimens taken from places in healthful, or sanitary areas, comprising similar property, as that from which the former specimens were taken, show a marked difference per gramme, from those referred to above, producing organisms, amounting only from one hundred and twenty thousand minimums, to five hundred thousand maximum.

Besides the enumeration of bacteria, there was an absence in the specimens taken from sanitary areas, of any dangerous organisms.

As a further contrast to these results, plain house refuse taken directly from dust bins, gave varying figures, according to the conditions of the dust bin; the refuse taken and examined from those bins that were well kept, gave the lowest figures in amount of organisms, while the refuse taken from those that were badly kept, gave the highest figures.

REAL MENACE TO HEALTH.

The sum total of all these observations goes to prove most conclusively, that the soil round the houses, when suffered to be contaminated, either by bad drainage, or by house refuse, or by both, is a very real menace to health, not only on account of such spots being hot-beds of micro-organisms, but by virtue of their containing other dangerous organisms as well.

In conjunction with what has been said in Wednesday's issue, in reference to the unhealthy areas, and the main defects in general sanitation connected with these areas, the supplementary facts brought forth to-day, do undoubtedly establish a very strong case, calling for great sanitary improvements to be taken in hand, in the way of better drainage, and a more efficient collection of the house refuse. If further proof were wanted of the efficacy of such methods of procedure, it is only necessary to compare the unhealthy areas, with the areas in other parts of the city, corresponding as they do in every particular, in class of property, class of inhabitants, and general summoundings, but with this most important difference, that better drainage and disposal of refuse, have been instituted, with the result that in these re-modelled districts it will readily be seen, that the percentages in death rates from intestinal diseases, have gone down very markedly.

TOURIST TRAVEL RECORD.

Present Summer, It Is Calculated, Will Carry Off the Palm.

From all appearances it would appear as though the tourist trade of 1906 would carry off the palm in regard to size and wealth in the city of Montreal for many years to come. Compared with last year which was an unusually unpleasant and wet season, the tide of travel this year has been very great, and there is little doubt in the minds of hotel and railway men that the summer season, just now coming to a close will eclipse all previous figures. The reasons for this great influx of visitors are obvious.

And in addition to the ordinary tourists Montreal this summer has been invaded by all sorts of conventions and meetings, and it was conservatively estimated yesterday by one of the prominent hotel men in the city that upwards of eight thousand delegates with their wives and families had visited Montreal already this season.

Montreal-Midland Electric Line.

The financing of an electric road from Montreal to Midland, cannecting with Ottawa, Toronto and other Canadian cities, took Sir Adolphe Caron and Senator Domville to Europe some time ago.

Sir Adolphe has just returned to Canada, on the Empress of Ireland, and he reports success in every way. The British financiers who were approached on the question took kindly to the electric railway, and Sir Adolphe said he believed that Senator Domville would have little trouble in floating the project.

Sir Adolphe said he noticed a big change among the large financial men, in regard to Canada, to what he had seen in years past. Now the tendency is to place both faith and money, much more than in past years.

Large Increase in Customs.

Returns for the customs collections on imports at the port of Montreal were compiled yesterday and show a vastly increased business for the month. Following are the figures:—

Total collections during August, 1906.. .. ..$1,302,698.33
Corresponding month in 1905.. .. .. 1,167,379.50

Increase over last year.. $135,318.83

During the whole of this year the monthly returns at the customs house have shown substantial gains over the figures for last year, and there is every indication that this will be another record-breaking year for the port of Montreal.

Drowning Was Accidental.

The case of Adjutor Bouchard, who was drowned by being knocked off the wharf by a barge, while he was at work on the dock at Maisonneuve on Thursday, was disposed of by the Coroner yesterday with a jury as accidental drowning. The witnesses examined stated that the victim acted imprudently in leaving the winch while it was in operation.

ROYALS DID VERY WELL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

They Showed the Bisons That They Can Still Play Ball and the Game Was Worth Seeing From Beginning to End.

Montreal has banished the hoodoo, and trimmed the leaders here yesterday in fancy style. The game with Buffalo was a good one,and well contested from start to finish. Vowinkle twirled for Buffalo, while Burke did the pitching for the locals, and pitched a good steady game throughout. Montreal managed to run up two errors, while Buffalo tallied three, but in the matter of hits the locals made only five, while the Bisons made eight. The Montreal team played a nice snappy game, and showed good form. It is the best game they have played on the home grounds for many days. Simonds covered second in good style, Ruhland accepted many chances in all of which he was successful. These two men showed marked improvement over their previous performances, and if they keep it up may be counted on to do their parts in good shape. Wagner, owing to some words with Manager Kittridge, in the early morning, yesterday, refused to play, and it is just possible that he will not don a Montreal uniform for the remainder of the season. He was replaced in right field by Herbst, who played the position to perfection.

In the first inning Buffalo got right into the game. Nattress singled to centre. Gettman attempted to bat the ball along the line, but sent it to Simonds, who fired to first, making a double play. White walked. Murray sent out a long drive between Herbst and Raub, completing the circuit and bringing in White. Smith smashed the ball over the left field fence, and went to third. Milligan flied out to Raub.

Montreal also did some run getting in the first inning. Joyce walked. Connor singled. Raub sacrificed, advancing Joyce and Connor. Herbst drove out a hot one to Nattress, scoring Joyce. Simonds hit to Smith, who fumbled and Connor came home. Ruhland was passed. Hartman hit to the pitcher and was an easy out.

Montreal nearly added another tally in the fourth. Simonds started out with a triple. Ruhland fanned. Hartman hit to first, and out. Kittridge hit fly to centre, and Milligan made a beautiful running catch, saving a run.

The Bisons added to their score in the fifth. Vowinkle walked. Natress hunted, and Burke drove the ball to second, but Umpire Moran declared the man safe. Gettman smashed one directly in front of the plate, and Vowinkle scored on Burke's bad throw to first. Gettman tried to steal second, but failed. White received a pass and stole second. Murray flied out to Simmonds, and Smith fanned. This ended the scoring as far as Buffalo was concerned and though they tried hard to win out, their efforts were unsuccessful. The Royals were taking no chances and fielded the ball sharply and surely, and finally won out.

The seventh opened up with a foul hit by Louis Hartman in the vicinity of third base. White, Nattress and Corcoran all went after it, and held a consultation as to who should catch the ball. The sphere did not wait the gentlemen's convenience, and settled the dispute by dropping between the bunch. Hartman hit a hot one at Natress, which the latter did not get. Kittridge sacrificed. Burke hit a beauty down the third base line scoring Hartman, and went to second himself. Joyce flied out to second, and Connor flied out to centre.

In the eighth Raub hit a two-bagger to left. Herbst sacrificed. Simonds hit to shortstop, who threw to first, and Raub scored. Ruhland and Hartman flied to centre in turn.

In the ninth Buffalo failed to tally.

HUNTING SEASON IS OPEN TO-DAY

Since the Bill of Last March, the Regulations are Much More Stringent.

To-day is the opening of the hunting season. But though the closed season is ended for several animals, there are still a number of stringent regulations governing the chase in this province. These regulations have been especially stringent since the amendment of the law on the 9th of March last.

Following are some of the principal provisions:

Hunting for beaver is entirely forbidden up to the first of November, 1908; hunting for hare, between the first of February and the first of December of each year; hunting for bear, between the first of July and the twentieth of August of each year; hunting for muskrat, at all times of the year except the month of April.

Hunting for king-diver, for teal, or for wild duck of any kind, for merganser, for osprey, or for gulls, is forbidden from the first of March to the first of September.

It is forbidden to sell, to expose for sale, or to have in one's possession with the intention of selling, either grey partridge, prairie-chicken, or woodcock before the first of October, 1908.

The law forbids the hunting for animals or birds with Jack lights or any other kind of artificial light at all seasons of the year.

The hunting of the ordinary kinds of small birds is forbidden till the first of September.

If in a part of a river or lake where ducks or wild geese or other aquatic birds live or are in the habit of assembling, a person is found in a boat or vessel of any kind with a gun or Jack lights or any other lights adapted to snaring birds, it will be incumbent on the said person to prove that he was there without any designs against the birds.

It is forbidden for all time to chase, capture, or kill ducks or other aquatic birds by means of a yacht worked by steam or other mechanical power.

No one is allowed to hunt for elk, caribou, and deer without a special license. This does not apply to persons resident in this province who hunt these animals for their sustenance and that of their families and who do not carry on any trade in game.

These are the principal amendments to the hunting laws of the province, but apart from these the old regulations naturally hold good.

TORONTOS AND SHAMROCKS.

Though Torontos are Bringing Strong Team, Shamrocks Feel Confident.

Toronto will bring along a strong team to play the Shamrocks to-day.

On the home the blue shirts will be represented by Barnet, Lowe, Cameron, and Kalls, and they are said to be the finest aggregation of stick handlers that the Queen City team has ever had together. With Joe Lally as referee, the lacrosse public should witness a magnificent game of lacrosse this afternoon. Many people think that the Shamrocks as a team are down and out, but their eyes may be opened this afternoon, when the rejuvenated Shamrocks will appear and give Toronto the battle of their lives.

The Toronto team will be composed of the following players:

Regan, Francis, Menary, Hamburg, Richardson, Lambe, Mackenzie, Taylor, Barnet, Lowe, Cameron, and Kalls.

Shamrock line-up will be picked from the following players:

J. Brennan, jr., J. Howard, J. Kavanagh, J. McIlwaine, D. Munday, M. Kenny, J. Currie, E. Robinson, W. Hennessy, J. Brennan, J. Hogan, F. Hogan, G. Roberts, A. O'Reilly, Phil. O'Reilly, S. Rochford.

BEACONSFIELD GOLF CLUB.

Another Smoking Concert for Next Saturday.

Saturday evening, September 8th, at the club house at Pointe Claire, the third of the very popular smoking concerts which have become a feature of the season at this club, will be held. The array of talent arranged by those having the affair in charge will include many new number as well as some of the old favorites.

A glance at the programme, which will be published later, impresses one as surpassing anything yet attempted in the line by this popular club.

TRAINERS TALK ABOUT LACROSSE SEASON AND PROSPECTS

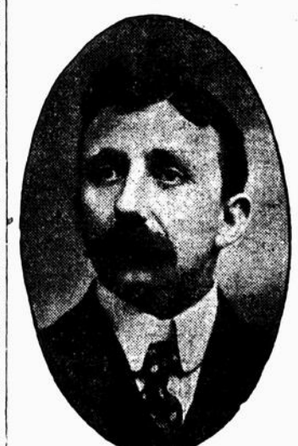
Four of the Best Known Men Give Their Opinions About Their Own and Other Teams.

In view of the wonderful surprises that have been in store for the followers of lacrosse during the present season, and the uncertainty that still exists as to the outcome, the views of four well-known lacrosse trainers given herewith will be of interest.

NATIONALS SHOT TOO FAR OUT TO DO GOOD WORK.

(By Billy Armstrong, trainer of the National Lacrosse Club.)

The Nationals have bucked up wonderfully lately, and it is difficult to recognize in them the team which performed so miserably early in the season. Jack Tucker is certainly coaching the men splendidly and deserves every credit.



THOMAS CROWN,
Coach and head trainer of the Capitals

In our first few matches we had no rally capable goalkeeper, and L'Heureux's return made all the difference in the world to us. From the time he came back, the team played with greater confidence, and they have steadily improved since that time.

Lately our men have given up that fatal habit of theirs, of shooting too far out. They are now "going in" more, with good results. I believe that our present form is very little, if any, inferior to any team now playing for the Minto Cup. The way we defeated Cornwall last Saturday was an eye-opener for the Factory men. I think we pretty well killed their hopes for "the old tin pot."

We intend to give Tecumsehs a similar dose—probably a little more of it.

Wm. P. Armstrong

MOORE THINKS MINTO CUP WILL BE BACK NEXT YEAR.

(By Tom Moore, trainer of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club.)

Though our team, for the first time for five years, has had to relax its grip on the Minto Cup, I doubt if we ever had brighter prospects before us than we have at the present moment. This may sound strange, but I believe it to be true. We have probably as brilliant a selection of young players to choose from now, as the club ever possessed. J. Brennan, Munday, Alec. Riley and Steve Rochfort—not to mention others—all give promise of exceptional ability. Men like Currie and Kavanagh—who speak of giving up at the end of this season—are difficult to replace, I know, but I am not without hopes that we can find youngsters that will worthily succeed them. The young material that we have at our disposal is not only of a splendid quality, but it is also developing at an extraordinary rate, and I don't think it will be long before the Shamrock supporters see a revival in the team of the old standard of play. I wouldn't like to appear rash, but I would stake my life that the cup will be back in its old familiar resting place next year.

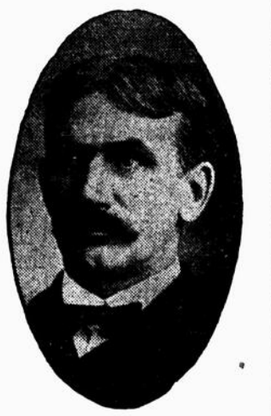
We play Toronto to-day, and I would like all who think that I exaggerate the abilities of our youngsters, to step around to our grounds to see their exhibition. Their estimate of the boys' abilities, after we have beaten the Rosedalers, will pretty well resemble my own, I think.

Thos Moore

CROWN BOOSTS UP THE CAPITAL STOCK A LITTLE.

(By Thomas Crown, Trainer of the Capitals.)

"In the first place, the team have practiced faithfully three times a week, and these practices have been no little picnic, but real hard play; in fact, just as hard in many instances as when we were engaged in a championship struggle. Another great factor is the harmony prevailing among the players, who are not busy all the time making grand stand plays, but who are out to win. They are not selfish in passing whenever there is an opening, instead of holding on and attempting impossible shots. Then an equally important point in the Caps' success is that this season they have been told to stay on the field at all costs, and have followed out these directions better than for years. More body-checking and less use of the stick in checking has also materially helped to put the Caps up where they are to-day. The boys have also worked harder and more faithfully, owing to the fact that Dave Mulligan, of the executive, has been out at all the practices, and taken a hand in the coaching. He was always there to give a hand if anything went wrong and you bet the boys appreciated it. The McGilton brothers, who did the main part of the training, are hard and consistent workers, and mapped out a plan which soon put the team in good condition. The team was never in better condition than today, and all the boys are prepared to put up a great struggle for the remaining games. Barring accidents, the team should beat any of them now."



MR. R. J. GRAVELEY,
the Cornwall coach and trainer.

COLD CHILLS WHEN AWAY FROM HOME, SAYS GRAVELEY.

(By R. J. Graveley, coach and trainer of the Cornwall Team.)

The reason there are so many defeats recorded against the topnotchers is that every team in the League, with the possible exception of the Shamrocks, have a few players in their ranks who get cold chills when away from home. At home, these same players are world-beaters. I cannot understand why this should be, but it is a fact nevertheless, as a reference to the schedule will show. The balance of the season is a difficult matter to form an opinion on."

LACROSSE UNION MAY BE RICH AT END OF SEASON

If Disputed Tie Game is Played Over Receipts Will Go in Its Coffers—"Grafters" and "Speculators" Amongst Words Used at Meeting.

Grafters and speculators were some of the choice epithets that were thrown about at the meeting of the National Lacrosse Union, which was held in the M.A.A.A. building on Peel street last evenig.

Mr. Foran had called the Tecumsehs speculators, and then Mr. Munroe, in a towering indignation, demanded that an apology be made, and that it should be made evident also that a body like the Lacrosse Union could not afford to have "grafters" sit in its Council.

President Joseph Mercier, of the Nationals, expressed the opinion that Mr. Foran had gone too far, and Mr. Foran withdrew the expression, and then to show that there was no such a thing as graft in its ranks the Union decided that in case the match, between Capitals and Tecumsehs, which was played on June 23, was played over again, the receipts, after paying legitimate expenses, should not go to the clubs playing, but to the Union as a body.

This is the punishmen: for the refusal of those two clubs to finish the match according to rules, and if the play-off takes place will leave the Union richer than any organization of its kind in Canada has ever been.

Montreal was represented at the meeting by Tom Carlind and Guy Pettigrew; Shamrock, T. O'Connell and H. McLaughlin; National, J. Mercier and A. Gauthier; Capitals, E. Tasse and W. Foran; Toronto, J. Murphy; Cornwall, G. Styles, and Tecumsehs, C. Querrie and Munroe.

In his report as referee, Mr. Dessie Brown stated that he had ordered the teams to proceed and they had refused to do so.

Mr. Brown admitted frankly that he was under a misapprehension as to the rules of the union with regard to tie games. The old rule as to playing until one or other scored was, he thought, embodied in the present regulations of the N. L. U.

The Tecumsehs admitted that they had twenty-five copies of the rules, but not one was to be found when the referee desired to verify his ruling. In fact, Mr. Brown was of the opinion that the tie business was all arranged beforehand.

The agreement signed between the two clubs to play the game at the Island on July 12th was introduced. The president ruled that it had nothing to do with the question before the union, and that in making the agreement the clubs further transgressed the rules. The agreement provided for a division of the receipts after all necessary expenses had been paid. Querrie maintained that he was approached by Pringle and admitted that he was quite willing to sign such an agreement. Mr. Foran claimed that it was Querrie who had approached Pringle. As Mr. Pringle was not there to present his side of the matter it was dropped at that.

Cornwall, through Mr. Styles, pleaded that the game be treated as a loss for the two clubs, and in this he was backed up by Mr. Tom Carlind, for Montreal. Both delegates thought that the clubs should be punished for refusing to obey the union's official.

Shamrocks and Capitals wanted the game played over, but in Montreal.

Finally the game was ordered to be played over at Rosedale on September 22, in the event of the game having a direct bearing on the championship.

THIER LAST HOME MATCH.

Cornwalls are Determined to Finish Home Season With a Victory.

Cornwall, Ont., September 1.—The last match of the present season on Cornwall grounds will be played here this afternoon, between Cornwall and Montreal. The fact that both Montreal and Cornwall met with defeat on Saturday last does not diminish the prospect of a great game here to-day; in fact, it rather adds to the prospect, for each will go all the harder to increase its present standing. Cornwall cannot afford to lose this match, and the locals may be depended upon to put forth every effort to prevent a repetition of the result of Saturday last. The Cornwall team will be selected from the following sixteen players: Lalonde, Burns, Cameron, W. Broderick, Fid Cummins, Fred. Degan, C. Degan, John White, Smith, McMillan, Francis Cummins, J.Broderick, L. McAteer, O. McCourt, Mack Craig, and Bob Degan, Thomas O'Connell and Peter Murphy, of the Shamrocks, will referee the game.

Arlingtons Play In Bordeaux.

This afternoon the Arlingtons will have a full line up and practice preparatory to their playing the Irenes tomorrow. The nine will be picked after the practice, and are expected to win.

The Arlingtons were to have gone to Sorel, but at the last moment word was received that the grounds were taken for another purpose; it is more than likely that the Sorel Club got "cold feet," knowing that their semi-professional team was slated for a defeat, and they are said to be poor losers; under the circumstances the visit of the Irenes was an unexpected piece of good luck.

Arlingtons will have Lesperance in the box against the Irenes. This will be his last game before he meets the M. B. C. at Terrebonne. Both of these games should be hummers, as the teams are very eager to defeat the A.A.A.A.

Dubois will pitch for the Points on Monday, this is the Pitcher Boss Kittredge intends to play. Morin will pitch against him. This should be a battle of the giants.

Junior Soccer League.

The following team will line up against Birks' Football team for the Crescents on Westmount Park, Saturday 1st September: Goal, E. Swift; full backs, Gain and Swift; half backs, Campbell, Sutherland and Gillson; forwards, Boswell, Jones, Thompson, Widblood and Hirsch.

St. Michael's R. B. Club have an open date for Monday (Labor Day), September 3, and would like to play any baseball club at 3 o'clock on St. Michael's grounds, corner of Defleurimont avenue and Amherst Park; take St. Denis street car. Telephone G. Dillon, secretary, East 2756.

Champions Of History--Great Contests Of The Past

Stirring Events Where Strong Men Have Striven Against Strong Men--Pen Pictures by Celebrated Writers and Historians.

To the youth of all ages and of all time, of every generation, the love of true manly sport has strongly appealed. To read stories of bravery and danger is one of the greatest pleasures to all men. To writing them nearly every historian of note has devoted some of his energy.

The selection given to-day is another selection from Victor Hugo's works.

This time it is from the story called the "Toilers of the Sea."

Among the Channel Islands lives a man named Gilliatt, of obscure parentage, but a man. To win the girl he loves, the daughter of a rich merchant, he decides to save the engines of that merchant's ship which has gone down amidst the rocks off the Island of Guernsey.

He decides to do this all alone, and during his work he meets with a gigantic devil-fish in a cave amidst the rocks, and to-day's selection tells of the struggle between the two.

Near the moulded arch, he remarked these low dark grottoes—a sort of caves within the cavern—which he had already observed from a distance. He now stood nearer to them. The entrance to the nearest to him was out of the water, and easily approachable. Nearer still than this recess he noticed, above the level of the water, and within reach of his hand, a horizontal figure. It seemed to him probable that the crab had taken refuge there, and he plunged his hand in as far as he was able, and groped about in that dusky aperture.

Suddenly he felt himself seized by the arm. A strange indescribable horror thrilled through him.

Some living thing—thin, rough, flat, cold, slimy—had twisted itself round his naked arm, in the dark depth below. It crept upward towards his chest. Its pressure was like a tightning cord, its steady persistence like that of a screw. In less than a moment some mysterious spiral form had passed round his wrist and elbow, and had reached his shoulder. A sharp point penetrated beneath the arm-pit.

Gilliatt recoiled; but he had scarcely power to move! He was, as it were, nailed to the place, with his left hand, which was disengaged, he seized his knife, which he still held between his teeth, and with that hand, holding the knife, he supported himself against the rocks, while he made a desperate effort to withdraw his arm. He succeeded in only disturbing his persecutor, which wound itself still tighter. It was supple as leather, strong as steel, cold as night.

A second form—sharp, elongated, and narrow—issued out of the crevice, like a tongue out of monstrous jaws. It seemed to lick his naked body. Then, suddenly stretching out, became longer and thinner, as it crept over his skin, and wound itself round him. At the same time a terrible sense of pain, comparable to nothing he had ever known, compelled all his muscles to contract. He felt upon his skin a number of flat rounded points. It seemed as if innumerable suckers had fastened to his flesh and were about to drink his blood.

A third long undulating shape issued from the hole in the rock; seemed to feel its way about his body; lashed round his ribs like a cord and fixed itself there.

Agony when at its height is mute. Gilliatt uttered no cry. There was sufficient light for him to see the repulsive forms which had entangled themselves about him. A fourth ligature, but this one, swift as an arrow, darted towards his stomach, and wound around him there.

A fifth long, slimy, riband-shaped strip issued from the hole. It passed over the others, and wound itself tightly around his chest. The compression increased his sufferings. He could scarcely breathe.

These living things were pointed at their extremities, but broadened like the blade of a sword towards its hilt. All belonged evidently to the same centre. They crept and glided about him; he felt the strange points of pressure, which seemed to him like mouths, change their places from time to time.

Suddenly a large, round, flattened, gluttinous mass issued from beneath the crevice. It was the centre; the five things were attached to it like the spokes on the nave of a wheel. On the opposite side of this disgusting monster appeared the commencement of three other tentacles, the ends of which remained under the rock. In the middle of this slimy mass appeared two eyes.

The eyes were fixed on Gilliatt.

He recognized the Devil-fish.

II.

THE MONSTER.

It is difficult for those who have not seen it to believe the existence of the devil-fish.

Compared to this creature, the ancient hydras are insignificant.

At time we are tempted to imagine that the vague forms which float in our dreams may encounter forces, having of the Possible attractive forces, having power to fix their lineaments and shape living beings out of these creatures of our slumbers. The Unknown has power over these strange visions, and out of them composes monsters. Orpheus, Homer, and Hesiod imagined only the Chimera; Providence has created this terrible creature of the sea.

Creation abounds in monstrous forms of life. The wherefore of this perplexes and affrights the religious thinker.

If terror were the object of its creation, nothing could be imagined more perfect than the devil-fish.

The whale has enormous bulk, the devil-fish is comparatively small; the jararaca makes a hissing noise, the devil-fish is mute; the rhinoceros has a horn, the devil-fish has none; the scorpion has a dart, the devil-fish has no dart; the shark has sharp fins, the devil-fish has no fins; the vespertilio-vampyre has wings with claws, the devil-fish has no wings; the porcupine has his spines, the devil-fish has no spines; the sword-fish has his sword, the devil-fish has none; the torpedo has its electric spark, the devil-fish has none; the toad has its poison, the devil-fish has none; the viper has its venom, the devil-fish has no venom; the lion has its talons, the devil-fish has no talons; the griffon has its beak, the devil-fish has no beak; the crocodile has its jaws, the devil-fish has no teeth.

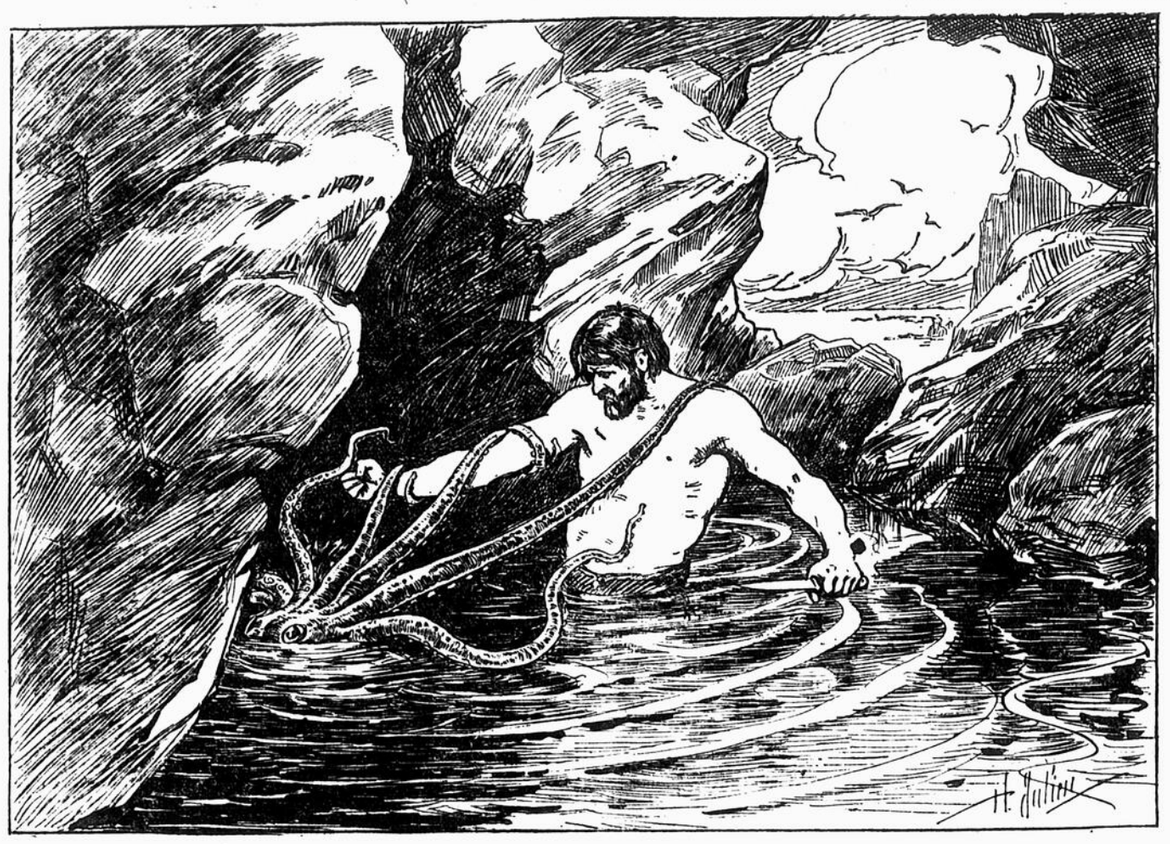
The devil-fish has no muscular organization, no menacing cry, no breast-plate, no horn, no dart, no claw, no tail with which to hold or bruise; no cutting fins, or wings with nails; no pickles, no sword, no electric discharge, no poison, no talons, no beak, no teeth, yet he is, of all creatures, the most formidably armed.

What, then, is the devil-fish? It is the sea vampyre.

The swimmer who, attracted by the beauty of the spot, ventures among breakers in the open sea, where the still waters hide the splendors of the deep, in the hollows of unfrequented rocks, in unknown caverns abounding in sea-plants, testacea, and crustacea, under the deep portals of the ocean, runs the risk of meeting it. If that fate should be yours, be not curious, but fly. The intruder enters there dazzled but quits the spot in terror.

This frightful apparition, which is always possible among the rocks in the open sea, is a grayish form, which undulates in the water. It is thickness of a man's arm, and in length nearly five feet. Its outline is ragged. Its form resembles an umbrella closed, and without handle. This irregular mass advances slowly towards you. Suddenly it opens, and eight radii issue abruptly from around a face with two eyes. These radii are alive; their undulation is like lambent flames; they resemble, when opened, the spokes of a wheel of four or five feet in diameter. A terrible expansion! It springs upon its prey.

The devil-fish harpoons its victim.



GILLIATT FIGHTING THE DEVIL FISH.

It winds around the sufferer, covering and entangling him in its long folds. Underneath, it is yellow; above, a dull, earthy hue. Nothing could render that inexplicable shade dust-colored. Its form is spider-like, but its tints are like those of the chameleon. When irritated, it becomes violet. Its most horrible characteristic is its softness.

Its folds strangle, its contact paralyzes.

It has an aspect like gangrened or scabrous flesh. It is a monstrous embodiment of disease.

It adheres closely to its prey, and cannot be torn away—a fact which is due to its power of exhausting air. The eight antennae, large at their roots, diminish gradually, and end in needle-like points. Underneath each of these feelers range two rows of pustules, decreasing in size, the largest ones near the head, the smaller at the extremities. Each row contains twenty-five of these. There are, therefore, fifty pustules to each feeler, and the creature possesses, in the whole, four hundred. These pustules are capable of acting like cupping-glasses. They are cartilaginous substances, cylindrical, horny, and livid. Upon the large species they diminish gradually from the diameter of a five-cent piece to the size of a split pea. These small tubes can be thrust out and withdrawn by the animal at will. They are capable of piercing to a depth of more than an inch.

This sucking apparatus has all the regularity and delicacy of a key-board. It stands forth at one moment, and disappears the next. The most perfect sensitiveness cannot equal the contractibility of these suckers, always proportioned to the internal movement of the animal and its exterior circumstances. The monster is endowed with the qualities of the sensitive plant.

This animal is the same as those which mariners call Poulps; which science designates Cephalopterae, and which ancient legends call Krakens. It is the English sailors who call them "Devil-fish," and sometimes Bloodsuckers. In the Channel Islands they are called pieuvres.

They are rare at Guernsey, very small at Jersey; but near the island of Sark are numerous as well as very large.

An engraving in Sonnini's edition of Buffon represents a Cephalopteras crushing a frigate. Denis Montfort, in fact, considers the Poulp, or Octopod, of high latitudes, strong enough to destroy a ship. Bory Saint Vincent doubts this; but he shows that in our regions they will attack men. Near Brecq-Hou, in Sark, they show a cave where a devil-fish, a few years since, seized and drowned a lobster-fisher. Peron and Lamorck are in error in their belief that the "poulp," having no fins, cannot swim. He who writes these lines has seen with his own eyes at Sark, in the cavern called the Boutiques, a pieuvre swimming and pursuing a bather. When captured and killed, this specimen was found to be four English feet broad, and it was possible to count its four hundred suckers. The monster thrust them out convulsively in the agony of death.

According to Denis Montford, one of those observers whose marvellous intuition sinks or raises them to the level of magicians, the poulp is almost endowed with the passions of man; it has its hatreds. In fact, in the Absolute, to be hideous is to hate.

Hideousness struggles under the natural law of elimination, which necessarily renders it hostile.

When swimming, the devil-fish rests, so to speak, in its sheath. It swims with all its parts drawn close. It may rock it may be seen in the deep obscurity of the waves below, expanding with a pale irradiation—a spectral sun.

The devil-fish not only swims—it walks. It is partly fish, partly a reptile. It crawls upon the bed of the sea. At these times it makes use of its eight feelers, and creeps along in the fashion of a species of swift-moving caterpillar.

It has no blood, no bones, no flesh. It is soft and flabby—a skin with nothing inside. Its eight tentacles may be turned inside out like the fingers of a glove.

It has a single orifice in the centre of its radii, which appears at first to be neither the vent nor the mouth. It is, in fact, both one and the other. The orifice performs a double function. The entire creature is cold.

The jelly-fish of the Mediterranean is repulsive. Contact with that animated gelatinous substance, which enveiopes the bather, in which the hands sink in, and the nails scratch ineffectively; which can be torn without killing it, and which can be plucked off without entirely removing it—that fluid and yet tenacious creature, which slips through the fingers, is disgusting; but no horror can equal the sudden appa- [illegible] with its eight serpents.

No grasp can equal the sudden strain of the cephaloptera.

It is with the sucking apparatus that it attacks. The victim is oppressed by a vacuum drawing at numberless points; it is not a clawing or a biting, but an indescribable scarification. A tearing of the flesh is terrible, but less terrible than a sucking of the blood. Claws are harmless compared with the horrible action of these natural air-cups. The talons of the wild beast enter your flesh; but with the cephaloptera it is you who enter into the creature. The muscles swell, the fibres of the body are contorted, the skin cracks under the loathsome oppression, the blood spurts out and mingles horribly with the lymph of the monster, which clings to its victim by innumerable hideous mouths. The hydra incorporates itself with the man; the man becomes one with the hydra. The spectre lies upon you; the tiger can only devour you; the devil-fish, horrible, sucks your life-[illegible] way. He draws you to him, and into himself, while bound down, glued to the ground, powerless, you feel yourself gradually emptied into this horrible pouch, which is the monster.

III.

ANOTHER KIND OF SEA-COMBAT.

Such was the creature in whose power Gilliatt had fallen for some minutes.

The monster was the inhabitant of the grotto—the terrible genii of the place. A kind of sombre demon of the water.

All the splendors of the cavern existed for it alone.

On the day of the previous month when Gilliatt had first penetrated into the grotto—the dark outline vaguely perceived by him in the ripples of the secret waters, was this monster. It was here in its home.

When, entering for the second time into the cavern in pursuit of the crab, he had observed the crevice in which he supposed that the crab had taken refuge, the pieuvre was there lying in wait for prey.

Is it possible to imagine that secret ambush?

No bird would brood, no egg would burst to life, no flower would dare to open, no breast to give milk, no heart to love, no spirit to soar, under the influence of that apparition of evil watching with sinister patience in the dusk.

Gilliatt had thrust his arm deep into the opening; the monster had snapped at it. It held him fast, as the spider holds the fly.

He was in the water up to his belt; his naked feet clutching the slippery roundness of the huge stones at the bottom; his right arm bound and rendered powerless by the flat coils of the long tentacles of the creature, and his body almost hidden under the folds and cross folds of this horrible bandage.

Of the eight arms of the devil-fish, three adhered to the rock, while five encircled Gilliatt. In this way, clinging to the granite on the one hand, and on the other to its human prey, it enchained him to the rock. Two hundred and fifty suckers were upon him, tormenting him with agony and loathing. He was grasped by gigantic hands, the fingers of which were each nearly a yard long, and furnished inside with living blisters eating into the flesh.

As we have said, it is impossible to tear one's self from the folds of the devil-fish. The attempt ends only in a firmer grasp. The monster clings with more determined force. Its effort increases with that of his victim; every struggle produces a tightening of his ligatures.

Gilliatt had but one resource, his knife.

His left hand only was free, but the reader knows with what power he could use it. It might have been said that he had two right hands.

His open knife was in this hand.

The antenna of the devil-fish cannot be cut; it is a leathery substance, impossible to divide with the knife; it slips under the edge; its position in attack also is such, that to cut it would be to wound the victim's own flesh.

The creature is formidable, but there is a way of resisting it. The fishermen of Sark knows this, as does any one who has seen them execute certain abrupt movements in the sea. The porpoises know it also; they have a way of biting the cuttle-fish which decapitates it. Hence the frequent sight on the sea of pen-fish, poulps, and cuttle-fish without heads.

The cephaloptera, in fact, is only vulnerable through the head.

Gilliatt was not ignorant of this fact.

He had never seen a devil-fish of this size. His first encounter was with one of the larger species. Another would have been powerless with terror.

With the devil-fish, as with a furious bull, there is a certain moment in the conflict which must be seized. It is the instant when the bull lowers the neck; it is the instant when the devil-fish advances its head. The movement is rapid. He who loses that moment is destroyed.

The things we have described occupied only a few minutes. Gilliatt however, felt the increasing power of its innumerable suckers.

The monster is cunning; it tries first to stupefy its prey. It seizes, and then pauses awhile.

Gilliatt grasped his knife; the sucking increased.

He looked at the monster, which seemed to look at him.

Suddenly it loosened from the rock its sixth antenna, and, darting it at him, seized him by the left arm.

At the same moment it advanced its head with a violent movement. In one second more its mouth would have fastened on his breast. Bleeding in the sides, and with his two arms entangled, he would have been a dead man.

But Gilliatt was watchful. He avoided the antenna, and at the moment when the monster darted forward to fasten on his breast, he struck it with the knife clenched in his left hand. There were two convulsions in opposite directions—that of the devil-fish and that of its prey. The movement was rapid as a double flash of lightning.

He had plunged the blade of his knife into the flat, slimy substance, and by a rapid movement, like the flourish of a whip in the air, describing a circle round the two eyes, he wrenched the head off as a man would draw a tooth.

The struggle was ended. The folds relaxed. The monster dropped away like the slow detaching of hands. The four hundred suckers, deprived of their sustaining power, dropped at once from the man and the rock. The mass sank to the bottom of the water.

Breathless with the struggle, Gilliatt could perceive upon the stones at his feet two shapeless, slimy heaps, the head on one side, the remainder of the monster on the other.

Fearing, nevertheless, some convulsive return of his agony, he recoiled to avoid the reach of the dreaded tentacles.

But the monster was quite dead.

Gilliatt closed his knife.

HOME RUN HAGGERTY

BATS THE ARMLESS PITCHER OUT OF THE BOX WITH A DRIVE THAT SPOILS HIS PITCHING FOOT.

By George William Daley.

I think the most astonishing upshoot I ever seen was thrown by Philander Potts, the armless pitcher.

I guess that's bad for an obscure country ball nine, in an obscure league out in Kansas. You've never heard of any marvels like them in the big leagues in the East, have you? I guess not. But I'm a bit ahead of my story. You see when the Alfalfas brought out the rubber-armed shortstop and the leather-handed ketcher and began to work 'em regularly in games, we had the whole Corndroppers' League bound round with woolen string, as they say. Talk about you nine-day wonders! That peerless pair o' priceless players, as the Alfalfa Citizen put it, were ninety-nine-day wonders. They made the other managers so green with jealousy they looked like watermelon rinds.

But you couldn't keep Tim McGinnis in the background long. Tim was accustomed to occupying the front an' centre o' the stage, with the spotlight turned full on him. But he seen he'd have to do a little better than his usual run o' freaks to make the howling audience forget about the rubber-armed guy who could stand between second and third and tag both bases without moving his feet. And that guy with the leather hands, Hick'ry Hank, who'd let the little boys stick pins in his hands and try to burn 'em with matches an' lighted cigarettes just to show he was no fakir. When they smelled the burning leather that bunch was always convinced.

McGinnis concluded early that animal stunts wouldn't do him no good this time. He had brought out the famous catamount coacher, which rattled every pitcher it howled against; his eagle fielder, which hovered over the outer gardens and ketched flies with its claws and dropped 'em down into the waiting fielders' hands, was played out; a tomcat had been thrown into the di'mond at a critical period in a game and put his Newfoundland dog backstop out of business. So he gave up natural ballplayers, as you might say, and turned to unnatural ones. It was in searching for these that he got hold o' the armless pitcher.

Now, you've heard o' curveless wonders, and boneless bacon, and headless horsemen, and oysterless oyster stews; but who ever heard of an armless twirler? That's what all the lawns in the Corndropper circuit asked when the posters flaunted the announcement that Philander Potts would occupy the box for Cloverdale the next Saturday against the Alfalfas; and it called him the "armless box artist," and showed him in a picture with two empty sleeves.

How does he do it" was the second question everybody asked; and it was to get an answer to this question that everybody showed up at the ball grounds in Cloverdale the next Saturday and watched the opening of the great series between us and Tim McGinnis' pets. It was a crowd of ten thousand, and McGinnis rubbed his hands and chuckled as he saw the dollars flowing in at the box office.

"Not havin' no arms to bother him, my new wonder don't need to warm up," says McGinnis, when the crowd began to ask questions. "He'll be on deck when the bell clangs for the opening of the game," and McGinnis folded his arms and worked off a quiet, superior sort o' smile, like he had an ace buried and two showin' an' was lookin' for trouble.

Soon Philander Potts came on the field, an' a shout from ten thousand throats told us it was him. And he didn't have no arms, sure enough. One of his feet—his right—was shoed an' stockinged just like a ordinary ball player, but they wasn't nothin' but a carpet slipper on his left foot; and that was where the eager thousands lookin' on jedged the pitchin' action was concealed.

And it was. Steppin' into the box, Philander Potts slips off the slipper and discloses a remarkably developed set o' gravel scratchers, otherwise toes. They was most as long as fingers, and when he ketched the new ball the umpire threw out of its red box and tin-foil between two of 'em and tossed it to the Cloverdale first baseman with a careless little flip of his leg, the audience screeched like four home runs had just been made.

Pinch Hobbs was first up for us, and he looked puzzled.

"I've batted most everything," says he; "pitchers which run by machinery an' cough shoots out o' their gizzards, but I don't believe I ever went up against a foot pitcher, an' a south foot pitcher, at that." So he goes up, and strikes out. Potts would ketch the ball between two of his toes, give his leg a long swing, him being a long guy, and it'd shoot over the plate like a flash, and with an upshoot on that was pleasant to look at, but very uncomfortably hard to hit.

He had a great up-curve, 'cause he could start it so close to the ground, and when he wanted to pitch a drop he'd sling his leg up behind his back with a vicious snap and let the ball sail over his shoulder like a rifle shot. He called that his overfoot ball. His underfoot in was a nice one, too—somethin' like Joe McGinnity's—but he had no outshoot to speak of, him being left-footed.

When he had struck out Pinch, Pete Brown and Sam Merrit on nine pitched balls, the audience offered him a house and lot in Cloverdale, with a bunch o' barred Plymouth Rock chickens chucked in. He slips on his slipper an' walks to the bench, very modest.

"Bad, eh?" chuckles Tim McGinnis, as we take the field, ruther downcast. "Coarse work, that—I don't think. I didn't hear any clarion calls for any rubber-armed or leather-pawed marvels we'en my little south-hoofed peddler o' slants is pitchin'," and he grinned in a way that made us have wicked feelin's.

Through eight long innings that thing went on. I ketched one of his drops solid once, but a circus ketch by the Cloverdales' centrefielder robbed me of a sure homer. That was the only time any of us hit the ball at all, except me. I fouled out once and got hit with a inshoot once. He couldn't fan me.

Reggie had been pitching good enough ball to win most any game, and they only had two runs when we came in for our half of the ninth. Pinch gets up and works the southfoot for a base on balls, Pete Brown and Merritt both fan, and it's up to me.

I had been getting desperater and desperater through that game, and now I realized that the time had come when I must do somethin' or my great record of never havin' gone through a game without at least one home run would be shattered.

I let two strikes go, because neither suited me for the purpose I had in mind. The third ball he put over waist high, and I met it with a crack you could hear back in Alfafa.

Zip! Like a grass-stained streak the ball shot back on the route it had come. Gosh! It hit Philander Potts' pitching hoof, takes it clean fr'm under him, and bounds out over second base. Pinch and I get second and third while they're gettin' the ball, and then they pick up Philander an' his shattered foot.

Down and out. That red-hot drive had shattered the medulla-oblong-something or other of his big toe, with which he used to put on that terrible upshoot. McGinnis wrings his hands as they help him to the bench, and then Corny Duff comes out to finish up the game.

That's all. Farmer Rufe Gibson, our rightfielder, clouted the first ball pitched over the left field fence, and it was a walk around win for us. And the armless wonder was out for good for I had spoiled his pitching arm—I mean foot. He never got over that awful wallop, and McGinnis heartlessly let him go as soon as he couldn't win no more games and attract big crowds. That's all the gratitude you can expect from a baseball manager, anyhow.

COASTING TRADE IN FOREIGN HANDS

Norwegians Practically Monopolise Canada's Coastwise Traffic.

MAKE VERY LOW CONTRACTS

Suggestion Made That the Dominion Government Should Take Steps to Encourage Shipbuilding.

It is an interesting fact, and one that is not generally known in this country, that a large proportion of the coasting trade of Canada is carried on by Norwegian vessels manned by Norwegians. Attention has been drawn to the matter recently by a writer in a Halifax paper. Last year, for example, no less than 1,300,000 tons of coal and 260,000 tons of iron ore were carried up the St. Lawrence by Norwegian ships.

It is by no means a general practice that a country should allow foreign vessels to take care of her coasting trade. There is no reciprocal arrangement, for example, between Great Britain and the United States. The latter nation would not allow a Canadian ship to load at New York for San Francisco any more than Canada would allow an American vessel to carry on any of her coasting operations. The privilege enjoyed by Norway seems to have been granted under an old imperial treaty, which gave that country the right to trade with Great Britain and her colonies along the coast of the country.

MAKE CHEAP CONTRACTS.

One of the greatest reasons for the popularity of Norwegian vessels with the coal shippers, for instance, is the cheapness with which ships of that nationality can take contracts. These boats come out to Canada largely provisioned for the summer season with cheap crews. Canadians cannot secure employment on these ships, and if they could they would not be able to eat the food or to exist on the wages paid. At this rate it seems a little more than unjust that the Norwegians should be given the enormous coasting privileges they enjoy without asking anything in return.

Coincident with the growth of Norwegian tonnage in Canadian waters has been the decrease of Canadian shipping, at least in maritime waters. After pointing out the reasons for this decline, the writer of the article concludes that there are two ways to revive Canadian shipping. One is that Canada should develop the shipbuilding industry. The other that the extensive privileges granted to foreigners in our coast waters should be taken away or at least curtailed to a great extent. "Let us give our own ships and our own sailors a chance to carry our own goods to and fro in our own country."

RESOURCES LARGELY GO WEST.

The allegation is made that Canada has tried to develop her land transportation facilities and her western lands at the expense of her maritime progress. A parallel is drawn between her plight and that of the United States since the war. Whereas before that event the United States carried 65 per cent. of her foreign commerce, she carried in 1905 only 8 per cent. The entire resources of the country have been used to build up the great American West and to give the United States her almost unrivalled railway facilities. It was only in 1902 that a bill was introduced to subsidize shipbuilding firms and to grant a subsidy as well to every seagoing craft above a certain tonnage. Canada is warned by this writer not to repeat the mistake of her great neighbor.

ENCOURGE SHIPBUILDING.

The decline of Canadian shipping dates from the supremacy of the great steam vessels. At one time there was a great shipbuilding industry in the Maritime Provinces, in the era of wooden ships. It would have been the best thing for the industry when conditions changed for several of the small shipbuilding firms to have amalgamated for the purpose of constructing larger vessels to compete with the great merchant ships of Germany, Great Britain and other countries.

In order that Canadian shipbuilders should have some encouragement to take up the task of restoring the Canadian shipping to the position it once occupied it is necessary that some subsidizing system should be evolved. Great Britain has always had some such system, and although at the present day the actual subsidies are confined to regular liners, yet there is an impulse given to shipbuilding from the very existence of the great shipyards which have been created largely through Government monies. Here in addition to the large liners and other ocean greyhounds, for which the plant was built, such are the facilities offered that large numbers of smaller craft, tramp vessels and the kind, are turned out every week at a very moderate cost. Practically the same state of things exists in Germany. Though Norway gives no bounty on the navigation of her ships, she does grant subsidies for the building of them.

Canada has the foundation of a shipping fleet, and she has as good navigators as the best. The conclusion is that a little encouragement from the Government is all that is lacking to make her renew her shipping prestige and begin to compete, however humbly, with her longer established neighbors.

Was Authority on Shipping.

William Quinton, for 25 years a member of the staff of the St. John Sun, died Thursday in this city, where he had been undergoing medical treatment. He was one of the best writers in the Maritime Provinces and an authority on shipping.

has been before the public for very many years (nearly a century) during which time it has commanded an ever increasing sale in all markets of the world. The innumerable imitations attracted by its success are devoid of the excellence of quality and richness of flavor characteristic of the genuine article, which is prepared from the original recipe, the exclusive property of Messrs. SHOOTING AT THE ROCKLIFFE RANGES

Private Leask Wins the Dominion Rifle Association Medal.

HIS SCORE ONE HUNDRED

First Stage of the Governor-General's Match Concluded—Scoring Was Good on Average.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, August 31.—The finish of the first stage of the Governor-General's match on the Rockliffe ranges yesterday saw the departure for home of many a disappointed rifle man whose only excuse could be that he had done his best, and in any event had got an experience that can only be learned on the Rockliffe ranges at a D.R.A. shoot.

The last range, 600 yards, of the Governor's match, was shot in tricky rear wind, but it is the match that shows the staying powers of the men, and it is where the old time shots put on their best stunts and invariably came up well ahead. In this first stage a great shoot was made by Pte. Leask, of the Queen's Own, Toronto, who, despite a bad wind, put in a total of 100, which is one point more than Nicholls, of the 12th Regiment, carried off the silver medal with last year.

The scores range about the same as last year, and scores of 88 had to shoot off for the last places. This year 88 will be highest in ties and 83 lowest, exactly the same as last year.

The possession of the Transvaal Cup for a year, and the keeping of the silver medal which accompanies it is decided by the best score made at the Dominion or Provincial Rifle Association meetings by members who served in South Africa. The range is the first range of the Governor-General's, and the result was a tie between Sergeant-Major Utton, R.C.R., and Col. Moscrop, 6th, D.C.O.R., which will have to be shot off.

In the Lansdowne aggregate the 5th C.A. just headed off the 48th Highlanders, with the other team from the Far West a good third. The Winnipeg people also win the Gordon Highlanders trophy, closely followed by the Governor-General's Foot Guards.

In connection with the Canadian Military Rifle League, the Minister of Militia's cup for highest aggregate of the King's ranges in the Bisley aggregate, is as follows: $50, Staff-Sergt. C. Crowe, Guelph, R.A., 260; next in order, Sergt. Morris, 46th, 257.

The secretary's prize, by Major C. F. Winter, for highest individual aggregate in 600, 800 and 1,000 yards in Bisley aggregate: Cup, Sergt. Morris, 46th, 197; next in order, Lieut. Cunningham, 6th D. C. O. R., 192; Sergt. Steek, 78th, 192.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S MATCH.

Governor-General's, 1st stage, ranges 200, 500 and 600 yards, 7 shots at each; first 150 to compete in second stage; D. R. A. silver medal to highest scorer and D. R. A. bronze medal to highest tyro in 1st and 2nd stages.—D. R. A. medal, Pte. Leask, 20th, 100; Sergt. Youhill, 90th, 99; Major Wetmore, 74th, 99; Major Morley, W.C.R.A., 99; Capt. A Challenge on Home Rule.

London, September 1.—Right Hon. Walter Hume Long, M.P., in a speech before the Irish Unionist Alliance, challenged the Government to state openly its policy on the question of home rule. The grounds for this challenge, of course, was Sir Anthony Macdonnell's recent declaration that the Government contemplated doing something for Ireland through which would become the fruition of many of those hopes the best Irishmen had for many years entertained.

Cailler's

is a product of the Gruyere Valley in Switzerland, that is bringing America to a fuller realization of the value of good milk chocolate, both as a food and as a confection.

Chocolate is second to no edible substance in point of nutritive properties, and CAILLER'S CHOCOLATE only wants comparison with the ordinary kinds to demonstrate its unrivaled superiority as a delicacy that is pure, rich and palatable.

It enjoys a growing use as an agreeable substitute for a hasty lunch, and never fails to win children from the unwholesome ordinary forms of confectionery.

PERMITS CANCELLED BY DEPARTMENT

DOCTOR TELLS HIS STORY

Dr. Marien Denies That He and Dr. Hervieux Violated the Game Laws.

The facts published in the Star yesterday in connection with the permit given by Hon. J. B. E. Prevost to two Montrealers to shoot birds during the closed season for "scientific purposes" aroused much interest and comment. The Star's Quebec correspondent telegraphs the following:

"Hon. Mr. Prevost is not in town, but departmental officers say that the minister issued permits to two doctors, in strict accordance with the provisions of the law, authorizing them to kill birds for scientific purposes, upon the positive assurance that they were required for that purpose. Later, when it was reported that there was apparent abuse of the privilege, Mr. Prevost ordered the immediate cancellation of the permits."

STATEMENT BY DR. MARIEN.

The two gentlemen whose names were mentioned in connection with the matter are Dr. Amadee Marien, of 129 Sherbrooke east and Dr. H. Hervieux, 184 St. Denis street. Dr. Marien was seen this morning by a Star representative and he made the following statement:

"There is not a word of truth in it. Dr. Hervieux and myself went to the district in a yacht but not on a shooting expedition. As a professor of biology and histology, I have a perfect right to kill any animal we want to kill in or out of season when done for scientific purposes. Do you think I have time to go on a shooting trip? We never had any permits from Hon. Mr. Prevost."

ORDER OF THE HOLY CROSS.

General Chapter Convened at Notre Dame College.

The general chapter of the Congregation of the Holy Cross convened in Sarin Hall, at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, last week. The leading men of the society, among them Very Rev. Gilbert Francais, superior-general of the order, and Rt. Rev. Bishop Murth, of Dacca, East Bengal, India, arrived for the meeting some time ago. Delegations from all sections of the United States and from Canada, Europe and Asia have been arriving during the last month. Rev. Dr. F. Linneborn, procurator-general of the order from Rome, was among the last to arrive. Dr. Linneborn brought with him letters from His Holiness, Pope Pius X., who sent his special blessing to Father Francais and also to all those assembled during the meeting.

A general chapter of the Holy Cross Order has not been held for eight years. It was to have taken place two years ago, but with the permission of the Pope a postponement was allowed for two years on account of the religious troubles in France. While the chapter is in session, business is transacted in much the same manner as in a conclave of cardinals at Rome, each capitulant being under oath. The results of the chapter will be submitted to the Holy Father for his approval. Probably this is the most important chapter in the history of the order. During the last eight years many things have transpired in the religious world which are of vital importance to the Holy Cross Order, among them being the action of the French Government in suppressing the monasteries of that country. At the time of the ejection of the religious orders, the Holy Cross was one of the most powerful in France. Besides going over the work of the last eight years, the general chapter legislates for the future.

Piano Dealers and Slot Machines.

The question of musical saloons is now up again, and this time a piano dealer threatens the city with an action, by which to force the issue of licenses for these instruments.

Yesterday afternoon a prominent piano dealer called at the license department and made application for a license for mechanical pianos to be placed in restaurants. This was refused, as music in saloons, whether mechanical or otherwise, is prohibited by a civic by-law.

When the employes of the licensing department told the applicant he could not have the licenses, he complained of the hardship it was for him, as he had several of these expensive pianos in the custom house, and could not deliver them unless the buyers could make use of them. But as no licenses could be granted by the city, the applicant said he would have recourse to legal measures to force the city to issue the licenses, by which it is understood he contemplates applying for a writ of mandamus.

Struck by a Locomotive.

James Sullivan, 62 years of age, was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital from the Wellington Street subway last evening, suffering from injuries sustained by being struck by a locomotive.

DEBILITY RELIEVED AND CURED

Wholesale Coffee Manufacturer and Agent, 351 Ontario Street | O. Hussenot, Importer.

MONTREAL, July 25th, 1906

MESSRS. MOTARD, FILS & SENECAL

My wife and my son have used the TRAPPISTS' PHOSPHATED WINE of CINCHONA BARK, during the warm weather with very good results.

Their debility and depression have entirely disappeared, their health, usually rather uncertain, is now most satisfactory in every way.

Consequently, I give you this certificate in order to tell of the efficiency of this remarkable wine.

Please consider this as a token of my thankfulness.

Signed and certified,

Letters to the Editor.

Anent Sir William Mulock.

To the editor of the Montreal Star:—

Sir,—Canada claims to be a nation. She is developing a new breed of statesmen, Sifton, who wants no navy, Mulock, no army. They seem to have forgotten history, if they ever learned it. Turn to the East; we see China, India, Corea ruled by the foreigner. Even the mother of nations has had her Roman, Saxon and Norman conquerors, and Europe is one battlefield, the weak going down before the strong. But we need not go past our own continent, Mexico, Peru, Chili, West India, even this Canada of ours all yielding to military force. At present we have not a cloud on our horizon. We have peace and plenty, a brave and manly and, can we say, independent people—but how soon clouds do arise.

What if Japan, under some pretext, cast a longing or covetous eye on British Columbia. What could Canada do to protect the Pacific provinces? Tell the Japs we are like the Chinese, not prepared for war. Oh; but we can appeal to a nation, who is prepared with the mightiest fleet the world has everseen, a nation that since the time of the Spanish Armada has believed in being prepared not only to defend her shore, but to protect her people in any and every foreign land, and she is the nation most respected among nations.

There is another cry. Brother Jonathan would not allow any one to hurt us. Can Canada, a nation, entertain such sentiment? Suppose Brother Jonathan comes with a golden shower to compel an unwilling bride to share his fortunes. Could we say him nay?

Not pay any tribute for the sins of our ancestors! True, but some one does. France, with her host of heroes, martyrs, soldiers, statesmen, explorers, has paid part of the price; Britain, in her turn, shed of her blood and treasure, and increased her debt to secure what we now so lightly hold.

Preparation for war, leads to war, but Canada does not prepare for war; her preparation should be for defence and to take her place alongside her sister nations when occasion calls.

It brings a blush to many a Canadian's cheek when he reflects that his defence is paid for by the taxpayer of the Mother Country. M.

(Montreal.)

The Question of Money.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I recently picked up a copy of the Star and read therein a letter signed "Englishman," severely criticizing Canada for the fact that whereas American (not United States mark you) money is good in Canada, the reverse is the case with our money over here. This is undoubtedly true, but to whom is the blame due? In my opinion it is due to the fact that for many years back United States merchants and tourists have realized that our country offers an excellent field for the expenditure of money, with a certain return in trade and pleasure, while, alas, until a very few years ago, the contrary was the prevailing opinion of those who should have known better.

The money question is one which will right itself as the relative positions of the two countries change (as they are changing now and will continue to do), and I venture the opinion that within another fifty years Canadian money will be on a par with United States in every State of the Union, except perhaps the far South.

CANADIAN.

Our Jury System.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I beg you will allow me a few lines of protest against the indiscriminate way of arresting citizens to serve on juries here. I am an Englishman, who has been in this country only three weeks, but was arrested while out seeking employment yesterday and compelled to serve in connection with an enquiry, with the result that when I eventually arrived at my destination I was a few minutes too late, leaving me still unemployed. I should have thought that in a great progressive city like this a proper jury list would be kept, and jurors summoned in their proper turn, thus avoiding the injustice caused by the present loose system at which I am amazed.

ONE OF THE JURY.

Jack Tar's Clothing.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir, Would you kindly inform me through your columns whether the sailors in the British navy have to pay for their clothing and oblige two gentlemen who had a discussion on this subject?

JACK.

Quebec.

Yes, after the first suit, which is given free.

Governor-General's Salary.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—Would you be good enough to inform me through the medium of your paper what salary the Governor-General of Canada receives?

WILLIAM BEALE.

Fifty thousand dollars, house and expenses.

Didn't Know it Was Loaded.

Antonio Robins, 15 years of age, 92 St. Elizabeth street, was accidentally shot in the thigh by a companion last evening. Robins was showing a revolver to Theodore Gastonguy, with the intention of selling it to him. The boys did not know it was loaded, Gastonguy was clicking the trigger when the contents of a chamber was discharged, the bullet lodging in Robins' left thigh. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital, where he passed a fairly good night. The bullet will be extracted to-day.

Parisian, of the Allan line, from Boston to Glasgow, sailed yesterday with 17 cabin and 21 steerage passengers.

SCHOOL OPENING.

School needs for boys and girls have recently received much attention by the dry goods firm of Messrs. Jas. A. Ogilvy & Sons, St. Catherine street west, corner of Mountain street. Parents can secure the most reliable makes at reasonable price. Their announcement on page 5 of this issue of the Star will interest you.

DIED IN GREAT AGONY.

Old Lady's Clothing Became Ignited and She Was Burned to Death.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Beloeil, Que., September 1.—Mrs. Prospere Bernard, 80 years of age, met a terrible death at her home here last night. She was lighting the fire in the kitchen stove when her clothing became ignited, and in a moment she was on fire from her feet to her head. She was alone in the house, but neighbors heard her screams and went to her assistance. Nothing could be done however, and she died in great agony within a short time.

Mining Concern in Receiver's Hands.

Boston, September 1. The Taylor Park Mining Company, a Colorado corporation, capitalized for $5,000,000, was placed in the hands of a receiver yesterday by Judge Dodge, of the United States Circuit Court. The receivership is the result of charges made by Clarence H. Knight, of this city, a creditor for $5,000, who alleged that the company is hopelessly insolvent and owes $218,000. The company is engaging in mining gold.

GREATER WINNIPEG IDEA.

Voting at St. Boniface on the Question of Annexation.

Winnipeg, September 1.—The town of St. Boniface has voted on four by-laws, and its English-speaking suburb, Norwood, Ward 4, took an informal plebiscite on the question of the amalgamation of the whole town, or of Norwood alone, with Winnipeg. The referendum did not register one vote against amalgamation in either form.

Owing to the votes cast being those of property-owners alone, the majorities—in fact, the whole vote—was not large.

For school purposes, $100,000—Majority, 157 for.

To exempt from taxation A. J. Adamson's mill for 20 years — 165 against.

In Norwood alone, out of 600 voters 180 voted informally for amalgamation with Winnipeg.

DID IT ONCE TOO OFTEN.

Collins, the Boston Manager, Suspended for Absence Without Leave.

Boston, September 1.—Captain and Manager James J. Collins, of the Boston American League team, has been indefinitely suspended by the local management. This action came on Wednesday, because Collins had absented himself without leave from the field since last Saturday, failing to report for either Monday's or Tuesday's games.

The offence was the last of several similarly committed by the Boston manager this season, all of which has been tolerated. On Wednesday, however, the club management decided that leniency no longer was a virtue, but that the welfare of the team and the interests of the American League in this city demand that drastic measures be taken to provide for competent management of the team. Consequently came Collins' suspension, and the placing of "Chick" Stahl in charge of the team until further notice.

Miwera, of the C.P.R. Pacific fleet, arrived at Vancouver yesterday.

English Immigrant When Offered Good Salary, Says Country Unsatisfactory.

Kingston, Ont., September 1.—Farmers yesterday wanted help. They came across an English immigrant, brought out by the Salvation Army, and offered him $26 a month and board. He declined, claiming he was not feeling well; his heart bothered him. Canada was so entirely unsatisfactory, in his opinion, and he wanted to return to England. He stated he had gone through the South African war, and was receiving a pension of one shilling a day.
