Quebec backs daycare with $2 subsidy

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec cabinet has approved a $10-million increase in its 1980-81 daycare budget to $32.5 million. Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure said Tuesday. This will include a $2-a-day subsidy for each child in daycare, to be paid directly to the centres, in addition to a maximum $9-a-day subsidy for parents. Lazure also told a national assembly committee hearing on a proposed new daycare bill that funds available for new centres will almost double from an average of $7,500 to $14,600. Subsidies for running centres and purchasing equipment, which were set at a maximum of $12,000 in 1978-79 and $20,800 in 1979-80, will be increased to a maximum of $22,600 next year. A centre in its first year, could be eligible for up to $37,200, he said. BRIEFS HEARD

The committee also heard briefs from a number of women's groups and daycare associations regarding the proposed daycare bill. Lucille Bellemare of the Association Feminine d'Education et d'Action Sociale welcomed the proposals, which would establish an office for daycare services, responsible for making broad policies and promoting the organization of centres. But a rural women's organization, the Cercle des Fermieres du Quebec, came down hard on the bill. "Daycare is unhealthy for young children and the mother's presence is necessary for the child's development," said the group. Besides establishing an office to oversee planning and development of daycare services — whether full-time, part-time or in the home — the bill gives school boards the responsibility to develop daycare services for primary school-age children.

Townships teachers mull strike action

By NELSON WYATT
Meetings will be held in both the District of Bedford and at Alexander Galt Regional High School to discuss the possibility of a strike in the area's schools as a result of the present lagging teacher contract negotiations.

Don Jondreville, president of the 350-member Eastern Townships Association of Teachers, told The Record a meeting would be held Tuesday night at Galt to discuss the possibility of a strike mandate. He confirmed that representatives from the provincial teachers' affiliate union, the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers (PAPT) would be present to discuss the current state of negotiations.

He would not comment on the present state of negotiations or on the possibility of the local teachers accepting a strike mandate. ETAT takes in teachers from the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, and the Lennoxville and St. Francis district. They last walked out in 1976, when a two-week strike was held over contract negotiations.

Peter Langford, negotiator for the Bedford Association of Teachers (BAT), also confirmed that the DRRSP's educators would be looking at a strike mandate next Wednesday evening. He preferred not to comment at length on the situation and when asked about the possibility of a strike in the Bedford region, Langford said, "I wouldn't want to make any predictions."

...A MATTER OF WEEKS

The Joffre Bridge, undergoing renovation since last winter, and Cowansville's Main Street, closed for the last seven years following the opening of the Domaine du Parc shopping centre, will both reopen within weeks if finishing touches go well. Both await only lighting, guardrails and traffic light synchronization before the barriers come down and traffic remembers that the two spans exist.

Sherbrooke motorists won't have much trouble -- traffic congestion in the Queen City has been horrendous at rush hours due in part to the Joffre closing, with alternate routes unable to handle the peak. But Cowansville residents may find it takes a while to grow used to the artery's reopening, the subject of a bitter dispute between former Cowansville mayor Roland Desourdy and the town's current administration. Both the Joffre Bridge and the Main Street overpass are slated to open Oct. 15.

STRIKE FRONT GROWING

MONTREAL (CP) — The province's liquor stores were strike-bound Tuesday. So was the government department that issues hunting permits, hit by one of a series of rotating strikes by the province's civil servants. And if, by chance, a liquor-running poacher happened to be wounded, he would have had trouble getting anything but emergency medical attention at some Quebec hospitals. Nurses at 15 hospitals, fed up with dragging contract talks, staged a 24-hour walkout, their second in a week. The nurses, like their colleagues in the provincially-owned liquor outlets and Quebec's civil service, have been without a contract for more than 15 months.

Talks with the province's four major independent public service unions — the fourth represents 12,000 workers at Hydro-Quebec — either bogged down or collapsed completely in the past week, at a time when negotiations with the "common front" of public sector employees are also floundering.

The common front, which groups unions affiliated with the province's three major labor federations, bargains for 200,000 employees, the bulk of them working in education and social affairs. About 2,000 Quebec Liquor Corp. employees, the Hydro-Quebec workers, 37,000 civil servants and 30,000 of the province's health-care workers negotiate with the government independently of the common front.

Both the common front and the independent unions last month agreed with Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau to try to settle their differences by Christmas.

WANT MEDIATOR
The union representing the liquor store employees called on Premier Rene Levesque Tuesday to appoint a special mediator to end the five-month dispute after talks collapsed over job classifications Monday.

Guy Chevrette, who was a labor lawyer before he won a national assembly seat for the Parti Quebecois in the riding of Joliette-Montcalm, will be asked to bring the parties back to the bargaining table.

The dispute seemed near settlement Saturday when the corporation agreed to grant the employers wage parity with retail clerks at the Steinberg food chain.

BOKASSA 'A CANNIBAL' — SUCCESSOR

BANGUI (AP) — President David Dacko says dismembered human torsos and limbs "trussed up and prepared for roasting" were found in a freezer at a villa used for private parties by deposed emperor Jean Bedel Bokassa.

The Central African Republic's new president said a judicial commission is preparing an indictment against Bokassa, including charges of ritual cannibalism, mass murder, an unknown number of individual killings and embezzlement of millions of dollars in public funds.

"We are asking the government of the Ivory Coast to extradite Bokassa so he can stand trial for his crimes against his country," said Dacko in an interview Tuesday.

Dacko, who was reconciled with Bokassa in 1976 and became one of his advisers, said the human remains were found in a large freezer at a riverside villa in Kolongo, eight kilometres south of Bangui, which Bokassa used for private parties.

"All of us in his entourage long suspected that he practised cannibalistic rites," said Dacko. "One indication of this was that he often talked about the meals he took in secret, at dead of night, with only his most intimate companions present."

Bokassa's close associates either are under arrest or have fled and no one has claimed publicly he saw Bokassa eat human flesh.

Lalonde hammers Tories

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Joe Clark set the stage for big battles over provincial resource rights by giving Newfoundland control of its offshore oil, federal Liberal finance critic Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

Lalonde, on a tour of Western Canada to gather data for Liberal energy caucus meetings later this fall, said a transfer of resource jurisdiction is possible only through an amendment of Canada's constitution.

"It's impossible to amend the constitution by a fiat of the prime minister or by an agreement between two governments," he said. "Other provinces will ask for, and get, what Newfoundland got, complete control of offshore oil, he said.

"What he's signed away for Newfoundland will be signed away for everybody else. I only hope he won't sign away the Arctic."

Lalonde said Clark has been "handling issues as difficult and complex as these in a superficial manner."

PREDICTS SQUABBLE
He predicted a "huge squabble" in future over provincial resource rights and said Clark has been buying political peace at unknown and probably great cost.

The energy portfolio will keep a low profile under minister Ray Hnatyshyn when it should be in the forefront, Lalonde said. He said negotiations for the sale of Candu nuclear reactors to Argentina and Japan were made without input from the department. The former Liberal cabinet minister held Clark responsible for the recent loss of a $1.8-billion deal with Argentina for a reactor. He said a "dog fight" between External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald, who opposed the sale, and International Trade Minister Michael Wilson held up the deal.

"The cabinet wasted weeks and weeks and weeks on the decision. It was only at the last minute that Mr. Wilson's view prevailed, but it was so late that the Germans had cornered the market."

Argentina opted to buy one or more reactors from a German firm, although the Canadian price was lower.

Respect human rights, pontiff tells throngs

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Whether to the high-minded at the United Nations, the lowborn in the South Bronx or the adoring faithful at Yankee Stadium, Pope John Paul had one overriding message on his first day in New York. The message was simple, direct and spoken from the heart to rapturous crowds — the human being has basic rights that must not be violated.

To diplomats at the United Nations, the Pope declared: "All human beings in every nation and country should be able to enjoy effectively their full rights under any political regime or system." To the despairing thousands assembled on a desolate building site in the South Bronx — the symbol of urban blight in the U.S. — the Pope said: "Brothers and sisters and friends do not give in to despair but work together. Take the steps possible for you in the task of increasing your dignity."

ENCOUNTERS SNAG
But the people of the South Bronx could not hear him. The sound system on his microphone had gone dead and his words were heard only on television stations which had a different audio link-up and by security men surrounding him. "At least I saw him," said one man, "but I wonder what he tried to say to us."

The Pope arrived in the South Bronx from New York's black district of Harlem where he told black Roman Catholics that he had a message of joy. "There are those who live without hope because they have never had a brother or a sister who touched their hearts to Jesus . . . We must bring to them the message of true joy."

Harlem residents turned out in the hundreds of thousands to see the Polish Pope who rode through the city's St. Patrick's Cathedral in an open car — despite a threat on his life. After receiving a letter, police searched a home in Elizabeth, New Jersey, about 32 kilometres outside New York, and discovered a semiautomatic rifle and an empty handgun carton. STARTS MANHUNT

They began a hunt for a 37-year-old man but released his wife after questioning her. One local report quoted her as saying her husband was out of the country.

From the South Bronx the Pope went to Yankee Stadium, transformed for the night into an outdoor cathedral and celebrated mass before more than 70,000 persons.

Star reveals pawns in "Checkmate"

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says a left-wing group in Metro Toronto was one of the targets of a secret campaign by the RCMP between 1972 and 1974. The campaign, code-named Operation Checkmate, was disclosed in Ottawa Tuesday by Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, chairman of the royal commission examining RCMP wrongdoing. He said the campaign was a program of disruptive tactics aimed at what the RCMP considered subversive groups in Toronto, Vancouver and other Canadian cities. Three former solicitors-general serving during the Trudeau administration — Warren Allmand, Francis Fox and Jean-Jacques Blais — told The Star they had never heard about Operation Checkmate. Solicitor-General, Allan Lawrence said he was first informed on June 20.

By-elections seen as test for gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — By-elections will be held Nov. 19 to fill two Commons vacancies caused by the death of former prime minister John Diefenbaker and the resignation of Liberal MP Don Jamieson, Prime Minister Joe Clark announced Tuesday.

prime minister represented the Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert, Jamieson, a former cabinet minister who switched to provincial politics, represented the Newfoundland riding of Burn-St. George's.

reporters his party has a good chance of winning both ridings.

The NDP placed second in both constituencies in the May 22 federal election.

There was no immediate comment from Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, told there have been consultations with Liberal officials in Saskatchewan and Newfoundland to determine what role the former prime minister will play in the by-elections. It was not yet decided whether Trudeau would do any active campaigning, the spokesman said. Walter Baker, Government House leader, said Clark felt obligated to call the by-elections soon after a federal election because of the complaints he had directed at Trudeau, when the Liberals formed the government, about delays in filling Commons vacancies.

News Briefs

Bus owners unhappy

The Association of Quebec Bus Owners says it will discuss the proposal, which it feels will hurt established transport services, at a conference in Montreal later this month.

Sailor dies in fake war

VICTORIA (CP) — A make-believe war involving Canadian and United States armed forces finally started on northern Vancouver Island Tuesday, but some of the casualties were real.

About 240 men, part of a 2,400-man Kernel Potlatch II landing force, established a beachhead after waiting 24 hours for dangerous surf to subside.

One sailor died, several soldiers were injured and many more were seasick while the forces waited for calmer seas before storming the beaches.

6000 criminal files missing

OTTAWA (CP) — Former solicitor-general Jean-Jacques Blais has called for a police investigation into the disappearance of thousands of British Columbia court records given to Statistics Canada for safekeeping.

Blais, now Liberal justice critic, said the records of 6,000 adults who have gone through the criminal courts could be "very damaging" if they fell into the wrong hands.

Wife compensated

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman who worked as a nurse to help set up her husband in his pharmacy practice and was later abandoned by him, won $10,500 in Quebec Superior Court Tuesday.

Madam Justice Claire Barrette-Joncas ruled that 40-year-old Celine Tremblay was entitled to be repaid money she provided her husband, Michel Rivest.

Quebec's Civil Code provides for the repayment of gifts "by reason of ingratitude" if the recipient is guilty of "ill usage, crimes or grievous injuries" toward the donor.

B.C. slams PQ sov-ass'n plan

VICTORIA (CP) — Three Parti Quebecois members of the Quebec national assembly were told Tuesday that British Columbia opposes sovereignty-association and reciprocal agreements covering minority language rights.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said she told Pierre de Bellefeuille, Jean-Francois Bertrand and Gerald Godin, "We look on sovereignty-association or any terminology of separation of Quebec from Canada as a desire to leave our nation and we're disappointed in that."

"There are some similarities between B.C. and Quebec," she said. "The economies of both provinces are largely based on natural resources."

QUEBEC 'MISTREATED'

While the three PQ members complained that Quebec had been mistreated in the federal system, Mrs. McCarthy said B.C. also has grievances. Transportation rates, for instance, make it cheaper for eastern provinces to ship goods west than vice versa.

"But we do not see that as a reason to pull out," she said. "We feel we can do more remaining in the family."

As for an economic association with an independent Quebec, Mrs. McCarthy said: "I was probably not able to assure them of any commitment beyond the referendum."

B.C.'s focus of attention economically is to the Far East and the Pacific Rim, she said.

The three PQ members later met with Education Minister Pat McGeer to discuss the standing proposal by Quebec to negotiate agreements with other provinces for reciprocal minority language rights.

B.C. NOT INTERESTED

However, B.C. is not interested, McGeer indicated.

"I explained to them that each province sets its own policy in education, and B.C. does not plan to interfere in Quebec's education policies and we won't be influenced by their internal policies."

Radioactive steam escapes

RED WING, Minn. (AP) — A steam tube ruptured in a generator at the Prairie Island nuclear generating plant Tuesday, allowing radioactive steam to escape into the atmosphere for up to 27 minutes, but there was no immediate danger, an aide to Minnesota Governor Al Quie said.

Quie aide Bob Anderson said in St. Paul that Northern States Power Co. engineers at the plant near Red Wing first detected the leak at 2:14 p.m. in one of two 520-megawatt nuclear generators at Prairie Island.

Tidal power studied

NEW YORK (CP) — Premier John Buchanan of Nova Scotia said Tuesday that Fundy tidal power has become almost a necessity because the price of oil is rising "beyond all reason."

In a detailed presentation to the financial community here on the potential of resource development in the province, Buchanan said coal, tidal power and off-shore natural gas are good bets for future investment.

Murder inquest delayed

TORONTO (CP) — Backstage legal manoeuvres have threatened to abort the controversial inquest into the death of Andrew (Buddy) Evans, a black man who was shot to death by police one year ago.

Doris Evans, the dead man's mother, attempted Tuesday to lay a charge of second-degree murder against John Clark, the Toronto constable who killed her son.

Evans, 24, formerly of Halifax, was shot Aug. 9, 1978, in a scuffle with police outside a tavern.

Deficit up 15.5 per cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government chalked up a deficit of $6.99 billion during the first five months of the current spending year, a 15.5-per-cent increase over last year's five-month deficit.

Figures released Tuesday show the government spent $1.15 billion more than it took in during August, pushing the five-month deficit to a record level.

Police still hunting Ripper

LEEDS, England (AP) — Police, angered and embarrassed by the elusive Yorkshire Ripper, enlisted the public Tuesday in a country-wide effort to track down the killer of 12 women in four years.

Yorkshire Chief Constable Ronald Gregory said a million pamphlets describing the Ripper and his crimes will be distributed throughout Britain.

Doctor sues newspaper

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Words used in news stories about Dr. Tom Farrell carried by The Telegram are capable of being defamatory, Mr. Justice John W. Mahoney of Newfoundland Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The ruling cleared the way for proceedings in a libel suit launched by Farrell against The Telegram as a result of stories carried between Sept. 27, 1978, and Jan. 11, 1979.

Many blamed for IOS fall

GENEVA (Reuter) — A senior French banker Tuesday blamed the fall of the multi-million-dollar Investors Overseas Services on share speculation, technical problems within the group and on fugitive U.S. financier Robert Vesco.

Bernard Cornfeld, 52, a U.S. citizen and the founder of the Geneva-based organization, is on trial charged with fraud over the sale of some $35 million of IOS shares in 1969.

Working off fines proposed

QUEBEC (CP) — Instead of paying fines, traffic violators should perhaps spend a few hours working in a hospital's emergency ward, Quebec Transport Minister Denis de Belleval said Tuesday.

Speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Safety Council, the new transport minister also said he would like to create a special highway patrol to see that highway rules are enforced and to help with first aid in case of accidents.

Media control discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to a United Nations seminar on education through radio and television are wrestling with the problem of government control of the media, seminar chairman John Cairns said Tuesday.

But, he said, while the general feeling among the delegates from 17 industrialized and developing countries is that "some degree of control is necessary," programmers would retain a great deal of autonomy in practice.

Japan demands Soviet pullout

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese-Soviet relations, chilled for the last year, plunged to a low Tuesday when Moscow rejected a protest against its military presence on strategic north Pacific islands claimed by Japan.

Soviet Ambassador Dmitry Polyansky rejected Japan's complaint outright, Japanese officials said.

They said Polyansky called the protest a rude interference in the Soviet Union's internal affairs.

Leader's walkout illegal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Quebec labor leader took part in an illegal walkout when he did not show up for work during the walkout and gave no reason for his absence, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday.

In a 4-to-3 decision, the court upheld a $1,400 fine against Claude Roberge who was president of a local of the United Steel Workers during a labor dispute at the Campbell Chibougamau Mines Ltd. in the summer of 1974.

Schreyers back in Ottawa

HALIFAX (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer and his wife departed Tuesday from Deer Lake, Nfld., for Ottawa, ending a nine-day visit to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Before leaving, the vice-regal couple met with school children and pensioners in the Deer Lake area.

Gold rise surprises ministers

BELGRADE (Reuter) —

The soaring world price of gold was greeted with surprise and dismay by finance ministers and central bankers attending the annual meetings of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

The situation on world bullion markets was described as totally chaotic.

Italian Finance Minister Filippo Maria Pandolfi called the latest gold rush "barbarous" and one official said: "They have gone mad."

Some delegates said anxiety over the price has reached a level where some countries are sounding out their partners over co-operation to dampen the price.

The governor of the Japanese Central Bank, Teichiro Morinaga, told a news conference questioner Tuesday night that gold prices are totally out of control, mainly due to speculative buying.

Hindsight: Two days in one cramped symposium

By NELSON WYATT
SHERBROOKE — The organizers of last June's symposium on minorities held at the Alexander Galt Regional High School met last night for a post mortem on the session and comments that emerged from the meeting proved it to have been a generally favourable experience.

Kudos were given to Dr. James Ross for his job as Master of Ceremonies but a few details concerning overall organization were criticized. Among the complaints that arose was that there were too few resource persons available at the symposium and that there was not enough time in the plenary session for questions from the floor. It was felt that though an attempt was made to provide an ample cross section of representatives from all parts of the Townships, there were voices lacking from the western end of the region.

Among other points raised was that there could have been a better delegation of authority, that there could have been more stability at higher levels concerning the proceedings and that should a similar exercise be attempted again, a two day schedule should not be crammed into one, as was the case at Galt.

"The government should be congratulated on their initiative," concluded ETRSB Director General Wendell Sparkes. "This type of thing should be done more frequently."

Among those present at last night's meeting in the Sherbrooke Hospital Norton Annex were Sparkes, Susan Mastine, Marjorie Goodfellow, Quebec Farmers' Association representative Warren Grapes, Sherbrooke Hospital Director Earl Gould, Michel Marengo, and Sherbrooke Record publisher George MacLaren. Paul Camirand and Nicholas Beaulieu represented Communication Quebec.

Townships West

by Nelson Wyatt

The old saying may go that charity begins at home but in the Townships, it sure doesn't stay there.

With items still coming in, Ivy Moreton tells us that they've got everything, "including a kitchen sink" for the Cowansville Group's annual Flea Market in aid of cystic fibrosis research. The Flea Market has become one of Cowansville's big events over the year and is one of the days that is certainly circled in red on any bargain hunter's calendar. "We don't charge very high prices," said Mrs. Moreton. "The main goal is to raise the money for research."

It's a goal that has often been recognized. Mrs. Moreton said that when the doors opened last year, the people were lined around the block. With response like that it was necessary to move from their old church hall location to more spacious quarters in the basement of the Heroes Elementary School. Mrs. Moreton said that last year's sale brought them in just short of $4000 until she mentioned that the Cowansville Group was $107 under the four grand mark to Record columnist Terry Scott.

"I never expected Terry to put it in The Record but the next thing you know, we received a cheque for the amount from a group of ladies in Stanbridge East," said Mrs. Moreton.

There is no national fundraising campaign as such as cystic fibrosis research, though Mrs. Moreton notes "we could use a Jerry Lewis". Instead the research fundraising effort is split up into numerous scattered efforts spread around the country, with much of the work being done on the West Island and in Ontario and Alberta.

"It's only a drop in the bucket, but if we get enough drops..." observed Mrs. Moreton.

Cystic fibrosis goes under the name of The Silent Killer because its symptoms are not as obvious as some other diseases. The average life span for a child afflicted with CF is about 17 years old though one sufferer has lived to age 33.

Cystic fibrosis is the most common potentially fatal genetic disease contracted by children. Affecting the lungs and the digestive system, the disease produces a thick, gluey mucus that clings to the inner walls and reduces the oxygen intake. It also causes faulty digestive juices in the stomach which cannot extract the nutrition from food. One in every 1800 children is born with cystic fibrosis.

This year's Cowansville Group Flea Market for cystic fibrosis research will be held in the Heroes Memorial Elementary School basement. It will run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on October 6.

"Even though it is the Year of the Child, wouldn't it be wonderful if we could give them a few more Years of the Child," concluded Mrs. Moreton.

The Cowansville Group consists of Mrs. Moreton, Mrs. Rita Ouellet, Mrs. Pat Lickfold and Mrs. Karen Wright. Don't forget, folks.

The final tally isn't in yet but a family of Vietnamese refugees will be able to settle in the Townships area, thanks to a walkathon organized Sunday by the Committee of Brome-Bolton to Aid Refugees. The walkathon, which had about 100 area residents huffing and puffing or jogging around a 20-kilometre stretch of Brome Lake, was part of a project set up by area Roman Catholic, Anglican and United Churches, to help the boat people.

Children from various schools in the area scoured the countryside for pledges for the walk, the total amount of which will be known on Monday.

"It was quite successful in terms of participation," said Reverend David Stanway, one of the organizers of the march. "It was a most remarkable day and we were able to enjoy the beautiful scenery around Brome Lake as we walked."

Though there are no more projects planned for the future as the $10,000 target has been reached through donations, Reverend Stanway added that "Our only project right now is to get the Department of Immigration to send us some people."

The walkathon was organized by Reverend Stanway, Fire Chief Jean Grenier, and Mr. and Mrs. John Parey.

Finally, two area MPs have been busy. Social Programs Minister and Brome member of Parliament Howard Grafftey addressed the Golden Age Club in Montreal recently and outlined the various PC Party objectives in the fields of pensions.

Grafftey said that the government had given the area of pensions a high priority and that his department was working to ensure adequate retirement incomes to senior citizens. He said that he would be working on the problems that women face in receiving benefits as opposed to men and that any changes in the social programs sphere would put more emphasis on selectivity in the pension system rather than universality.

"As a nation, we can no longer afford to indulge ourselves too recklessly in universal benefits," he said. "We are going to have to devote greater efforts to directing the assistance to those who need it most, without undermining the country's economic system or jeopardizing those who rely on the existing system."

Shefford MP Jean Lapierre has also not been idle. Word has it that he fired off a communique to Employment Minister Ron Atkey saying that the government had better watch its step with regard to revisions in the Unemployment Insurance benefits distribution. He said that under the proposed revisions a number of young people could be harmed, particularly pregnant women, because benefits for the young are proposed to be cut by 50 per cent and pregnant women are to be ineligible.

"That's discrimination," charged the freshman MP. "And how can you forget how long women have been fighting for these rights?"

Lapierre said he sent his remarks to Atkey to be forwarded to the committee studying the reforms. He said that he plans to bring it up in the House again when it convenes, no doubt as one of the Liberal's opening shots. "They may be the cooks making the soup," said Lapierre, "but we'll boil it."

Oh, well, remember what Harry Truman said about heat and kitchens.

Open Factory at Johns-Manville

An open house at Johns-Manville's Asbestos plant was a smashing success Sunday, with between 1500 and 5000 people turning out to tour the mill. Tours lasted from noon until 4 p.m. and shortly after that, the gates had to be closed, with nearly 1200 people being turned back. As it was, the last group did not finish the tour until seven o'clock.

As people arrived from as far as Montreal, they viewed a movie on J.M., and then continued on to see a safety equipment display. After this they took a trip through the underground tunnel and up the stairs to the first floor of Mill 5. One hundred employees were on hand to guide the crowds, demonstrate the procedures and answer questions.

Slides were shown while people awaited the elevator that took them to the 12th floor and guides explained the different stages of processing fibre. As the tour came to an end for each group, they were served doughnuts, coffee and cold drinks in a makeshift cafeteria. Over 3000 doughnuts were ordered, but the crowd had eaten them all before the last visitor arrived. Children were noted as being especially enthusiastic and were more than ready to ask questions about the operations.

The men were treated to supper at the Foreman's Club and the Superintendent of the Mill, Mike Williams summed up the day as "fantastic". He said that without the employees, this day could not have been achieved. He said that all put their hearts into making this a perfect day.

Ploughmen fete centennial

By CLAUDIA BOWERS
SHERBROOKE — The 100th anniversary Sherbrooke Plowing Match is in the last stages of preparation and according to President Albert Cairns, will be the best ever held in the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association 100-year history. "Every ploughman, whether a tractor or horse-drawn plough, will receive a souvenir trophy as a memento of our anniversary match." The competitors in the horse-drawn sections will receive a souvenir trophy in memory of Earl Smith, donated by his sister Edna.

This year the match will be held at the Research Station in Lennoxville, and organizers are hoping for a larger-than-ever field of ploughmen. Last year's match was a record breaker, attracting 51 ploughmen including 10 competitors who ploughed with horses. Herb Winget, a champion ploughman for many years and secretary treasurer of the Sherbrooke association, foresees a field of at least 75 in this year's competition and up to 20 teams of horses on the grounds.

"Our prizes are quite substantial, $30 being the first prize in all classes with no competitor receiving less than $15 for his efforts," he explained. "Of course, some of the prizes are in merchandise or gift certificates, but the value in most cases is higher rather than lower."

All trophies and prizes are solicited by the organizers for this match and "that involves a lot of legwork," says Lawrence Emery, past president and keen supporter and participant in the competition. "A few years ago, the ploughing matches around the country almost faded right out of the picture. I remember one year recently when only 12 competitors turned up and for a while we were afraid that was the end." According to Gordon Garfat, also a member of the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association executive, interest has been stimulated during the past two or three years by adding more classes for young people and encouraging the parents to show their youngsters competitive ploughing techniques.

"We have one class we're particularly proud of and I think that it's a first, at least in the Eastern Townships," Garfat added. "The special prize which is a trophy donated by the Oddfellows Unity Lodge No. 8 is awarded to one parent who has competed in at least one class and a junior who has competed in class 2, 3 or 4, that is the classes dealing exclusively with young people starting at 8 years up to 17 years. Prizes are awarded according to the total points of the parent-youngster combination and so far this class has proved to be one of the most popular events of the match," Garfat explained.

Herbie Winget, winner of six provincial matches and representative for Canada in the World Championship Match in Denmark a few years ago, pointed out the quality of ploughing in today's matches is much improved compared to the early days of tractors and hydraulic ploughs. "Of course," explained Winget, "modern machinery has helped the farmer turn the sod more efficiently, but one big factor today is the trend toward ploughing clinics where young people and even seasoned competitors can pick up methods and techniques that took me twenty years to learn on my own."

This year's anniversary match promises to be a good one with over one-hundred donors of prizes and a dazzling array of trophies lined up for the winners.

"We are optimistic that this will be a well-attended competition," says president Albert Cairns. "The location is easily reached by competitors and spectators alike, dinner will be available free to all ploughmen and women and at reasonable cost to spectators. Ample parking and beautiful surroundings should combine to attract more than the usual number of both onlookers and competitors." Judges for the event are Donald Goodfellow and John Rose for tractor ploughing and Norrey Bonallie for horse ploughing. The annual banquet, distribution of prizes and dance will be held at the Commun-

Janelle: SC days are numbered

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Janelle, the former Social Credit MP who defected to the Progressive Conservative party, says he believes his old party's days are numbered.

"The last election campaign convinced me that Social Credit is not a viable party, that it has no future in this form and cannot survive except as a pressure group," Janelle said in an interview published on Tuesday.

However, the MP from Lotbiniere said, he feels he can still defend the ideas of Social Credit within the Conservative party, since the two parties are not all that different.

When he announced his decision to join the Tories Sept. 23, Janelle, 32, said he was dissatisfied with Social Credit leader Fabien Roy and impressed by what he called Prime Minister Clark's

Janelle also denied in the interview, held in his Ottawa office, that Prime Minister Joe Clark had enticed him with offers of a cabinet position.

He said he simply felt he could accomplish more as an MP for the government than as an MP for the Tories.

"I am well aware that the (Conservative) party has only three members in Quebec and that it is easier to be heard in this position," he said.

Janelle said the majority of his former organizers in Lotbiniere still support him.

Janelle first entered the Commons after winning an October, 1978, byelection. He was reelected last May by a margin of 3,000 votes.

Bourassa in town next week

The International Association of Commerce and Economics Students sponsor the Bourassa conference.

Hotel Dieu nurses strike again

SHERBROOKE (CAT) — Unionized nurses at Hotel Dieu Hospital will hold another 24-hour strike Friday, while nurses at Youville have not yet decided whether to strike again.

Nurses at both hospitals struck yesterday, but hospital officials say the union kept their word and maintained essential services.

Military drill: Neither good, bad, nor an end in itself

Mondays are heavy telephone answering days at the Record, and the imminent full moon doesn't help any. Millie Thompson, my favorite switchboard operator, used to say she could tell the phases of the moon by the number of nutty calls she got at the newspaper where she works.

I answered the phone at about 3 p.m. Monday to be told by a young gent at the other end that there would be a cadet revolt at a well-known local private school within a half-hour.

I had the dubious pleasure of being a cadet at this institution once upon a time, so I lent the lad a sympathetic ear, but he wasn't to be drawn out. "Be there," he barked, and hung up.

I sent someone, and it wasn't much of a revolution, as revolutions go. But it started me thinking about that curious practice of considering military training to be good for the soul. Was it Von Bismarck who said drill was the glue needed to meld the body and spirit of the fighting man?

Cadets at this particular institution have undergone a radical change for the better since we spent an afternoon a week marching around the quad with ancient Coey 22s, their bolts removed and carted off to God knows where because of the FLQ scare. For one thing, the school has become co-educational and mellower for it. They also have done away with a quaint custom known as 'fatigues', which called for the offending cadet to run around centre field with his rifle over his head. Today, cadets learn martial arts and winter survival while we concentrated on the best way to stay alive in the event of a tactical nuclear blast, which, if I remember correctly, boiled down to not being near it. Today cadets do all kinds of exciting, glamorous things, while we got our kicks shining the insignia off our buttons and spin-polishing our commanding officer's boots. We got a chance to fire one of the 22s about once a year; today's cadets seem to be off on survival missions from their first month in the corps.

I was once a member of a real top-notch cadet corps in the Maritimes; this was when Elvis was still in the army. We wore uniforms from sunup until sundown, did everything at a run and carried real FN assault rifles during drill, guns which needed only ammunition to start a war. We were trained by regular soldiers from Camp Gagetown and the school used to send us out to fight local brush fires to keep us tough. We all loathed it, but even our hatred was military in its precision.

Being sent to this certain Townships institution was like being let out of a cage. The privilege of wearing shirts, ties, sports jackets and penny loafers was an indescribable improvement over the scratchy, miserable outfits we wore day in, day out at the other place.

True, the uniforms were throwbacks to the Fenian raids, with cute little pillbox caps that made us all look like organ-grinders' monkeys. The new recruits wore bayonets made fifty years earlier by the same arms manufacturer whose generosity founded the school, and when we were all dolled up and on parade, we looked like something out of an old book. But somehow it wasn't the same sort of deadly-serious military business.

Cadets at this institution had their drawbacks, or I suppose I had my drawbacks as far as cadets went, because I never even made it to lance-corporal. It always seemed there was some officious little nerd with the rank of lieutenant telling me not to swing my arms on the stairs, and it seemed a bit much to be calling a kid two years younger than me sir but I managed to keep my mouth shut by remembering it must have been the same when officer training school pipsqueaks were sent to Europe to tell seasoned warriors how to kill more efficiently.

I survived cadet training by keeping my mouth shut and malingering a lot, both forms of what I consider to this day to be personal dishonesty. But I must say I marched in that last annual inspection with a little bit of pride, since I knew enough drill by then to march in the front of the platoon without turning the wrong way.

That was 13 years ago. I've seen some of the nurdy little lieutenants since then; they're out of shape mentally and physically and the only battles they ever fight are in offices and on paper. And every year I go out to a certain grove of trees above centre field and my blood somehow gets into cadence with the band's big bass drum and I let my head wander back to those school days.

There's nothing right or wrong with that kind of training I've since decided. It's how each of us lets it affect him -- and her.

Start at home

The National Council of Welfare suggests sweeping changes in Canada's laws which would lessen the incidence of poverty among our nation's single-parent families, most of which are headed by women.

Most of the changes they suggest are in the marital property laws, which now give the wife no credit for helping her husband make his way in the world. Divorce laws and child support payments are another shadowy area in which wayward husbands take refuge. Child tax credits should be abolished, says the Council, because they usually help husbands. Leave rights and absence rights should be drafted so parents can care for sick children or changing family situations. Higher welfare benefits, increased guaranteed income supplement benefits for pensioners and lower support age for poor pensioners are also suggested.

In another area, the council suggests tougher action to force affirmative-action programs and equal-pay-for-equal-work concepts for women in the workforce.

Some of these recommendations make immediate sense, while others are ahead of their time and will have to wait. But merely by dedicating a finite sum of its budget to child daycare, the Quebec government has shown itself to be at the forefront of equal-rights activity in North America. We will wait to see exactly how Quebec proposes to implement the new subsidy program, but we see it as a necessary step for any modern society to take.

There's no doubt poverty in Canada can be blamed at least in part on the breakdown of the family, for which we feel society is partly responsible. But no more so than industry and commerce, and for this reason we feel Quebec should not have to foot the entire bill.

Poverty in the family reflects very directly on poverty in future generations. Hungry brains don't grow as big. Hungry bodies aren't as capable of work or learning.

Pope John Paul II urges us to address ourselves to world poverty and this is a good, noble goal. But we should be tackling poverty at home first.

MP defends Franco-Ontarian aspirations

MONTREAL (CP) — Franco-Ontarians "are still at the stage where they must defend their culture," says Liberal MP Donald Johnston. "That's why, perhaps, they must create a ghetto to protect themselves."

Johnston made the comment after a two-day visit to Penetanguishene, Ont., where town officials have filed for an injunction to halt the establishment of a French-language school.

The Supreme Court of Ontario adjourned the injunction hearing indefinitely Monday. The Simcoe County board of education decided in June there were not enough French-speaking students in the area to justify the cost of building a new high school and proposed an annex to the existing English school, a suggestion francophone parents turned down.

However, the group went ahead and opened its own school, using the same texts as other schools, and operating with volunteer teachers.

Johnston said he was impressed by the "extraordinary motivation" of parents, teachers and students at the new French-language high school.

Maybe it is necessary for Franco-Ontarians to have their own schools, as invidious as possible to the influences of North American English-speaking society, to preserve their culture, the member for the Montreal riding of Westmount-St. Henri said.

BAN 'DISAPPOINTING'
 An English-speaking Quebecer who sends his children to a French-language school, Johnston said he was disappointed that Franco-Ontarians are not ready to accept English students wishing to learn French in their schools.

The former McGill University professor said he feels the school offers a good curriculum and the 58 students ought to be able to pass provincial examinations like other Ontario students.

He said he went to the community, with colleague Jean-Robert Gauthier, member for Ottawa-Vanier, to evaluate the situation firsthand.

The two MPs had a "very frank" meeting with Simcoe County board of education chairman Lloyd Fletcher and director Irvin Harris.

Johnston said he is convinced when the board suggested an annex for French students, it did so in good faith and did not understand the full dimensions of the cultural problem in the town.

Penetanguishene, 45 kilometres northwest of Orillia, has a total population of 5,460 — 95 per cent of whom are French-speaking.

Johnston said much of the problem seemed to stem from a lack of communication among the population, local authorities and the minister of education.

He added that Penetanguishene has a local problem which divides the community, but the dispute could eventually divide the country.

Quebec, under language legislation passed by the Parti Quebecois government, stipulates that all immigrants to the province eventually enter French schools.

The Quebec government has suggested that reciprocal agreements be made under which Quebec would allow the children of immigrants from other provinces into English-language schools if those provinces accord the same treatment to their francophone minorities.

Letters Ted's moving

Editor:
 I would like to take this opportunity to thank The Record for publishing many letters of mine written over many many years. I am moving to Alberta, where my son is building a home for himself and his beautiful young and brilliant girlfriend and her aunt and perhaps his mother-in-law.

It isn't only to escape renegade politicians that I am moving after nearly eighty years in this province; it is also to see this wonderful Canada that belongs to all of us and to meet other men and women partners in the building of the greatest nation on the face of the earth. I want to see Canada and its western people with my own eyes and say "Hi, it's good to meet you; may I have this dance, please." And so on and on while I'm able to live and breathe.

I'm not going to spoil this farewell love letter by talking about Quebec politicians except to say what is needed in Canada's federal government is a Margaret Thatcher, somebody with courage enough to protect Canada from its fly-by-night so-called leaders even if the Army, Navy and Air Force have to be used. She would use them to protect England's citizens but our gang are too sissified. They stand by while Canadian's lawful rights are trampled upon and taxes become unbearable.

After I relocate, I promise to write another letter to The Record along with pictures because The Record has become a part of my life and I have learned to appreciate the English courage that is displayed from time to time in this great daily. One learns to respect courage and not to respect cowardice, like a majority taking advantage of a minority in numbers or in power. Brainpower is not the same as brute power. One is good while the other is bad. How many politicians in Canada can see further than the next coffee break? Not very many, I venture to say.

So bye bye for now and all the best. Most respectfully,
 TED WRIGHT,
 Dunham

Bravo, Kay

Editor:
 I have been a faithful reader of the Record for over 40 years. It has been sent to me wherever I have moved to.

I enjoy reading very much about Sherbrooke, where I was born, grew up and trained at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

I have never written to the editor before but feel I must make a comment to the recent letter criticizing Kay Snow and her stories.

You cannot realize how many people who have moved away from Sherbrooke, who read her stories and enjoy them so much, remembering the good and happy times we had while growing up, and experiences such as a small town shopping trip.

Today there are so few happy stories in the papers, that Kay's make the day a little brighter!

Keep up the good work, Kay.

Watergate-style 'shredding' still going on WASHINGTON — One of the Watergate routines was the "deep-sixing" of documents, which showed negligence or worse on the part of government officials. It is a practice, unhappily, that still has not stopped.

Senate investigators were stunned to learn recently that as many as 50,000 grand jury documents had been shredded last March. The documents had been subpoenaed by a grand jury investigating price fixing by the international uranium cartel. The shredding was done with the supervision of Justice Department officials despite their knowledge that the Senate Judiciary Antitrust Sub-committee wanted to examine the evidence.

The department's cavalier attitude toward documentary evidence would come as no surprise to senators if they had seen an internal Justice Department memorandum that was part of the records sealed by the court.

The suppressed memo, which we will be happy to make available to the Senate, details a strong case for the prosecution of a California business executive. He allegedly destroyed uranium-pricing documents that had been subpoenaed by the Justice Department for use in its probe of the uranium cartel.

Yet the executive, George White Jr., was not indicted for felonious obstruction of justice, as Justice Department attorneys urged. Instead, he was allowed to plead guilty to contempt of court — a misdemeanor — and was let off with a fine.

This was just one episode in the Uranium Cartel Follies, which was orchestrated by John Shenfield, head of Justice's antitrust division. Yet he was not held in disrepute; on the contrary, he was hailed and promoted. He is coming up for Senate confirmation as Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti's chief deputy.

Shenfield has an upright demeanor about him. He is given to making impressive statements about the evils of economic concentration. He assured our reporter, Sally Ann Denton, that he didn't remember the details of the proposed indictment, which was recommended in a 24-page report by Robert Fabrikant and Kenneth P. Freiberg on Jan. 3, 1978. We're pleased to refresh his memory.

White was executive vice president of the Nuclear Exchange Corp. (Nuexco), a uranium brokerage and information clearinghouse in Menlo Park, Calif. It was one of some 40 companies that were issued subpoenas on June 16, 1976, as part of the Justice Department investigation of uranium price rigging. This has cost American consumers many millions of dollars in electric bills from nuclear-powered utilities companies.

"Although Nuexco was not considered a potential defendant in any civil or criminal proceedings," the report notes, "it was expected that Nuexco could provide valuable information on pricing mechanisms in the uranium industry."

The federal grand jury subpoena ordered Nuexco to produce "all documents in its possession from Jan. 1, 1971 to June 16, 1976, that discussed ... attempts by foreign producers to regulate the uranium market, the trend of uranium prices in the United States and abroad, certain types of market behavior by U.S. producers, sales of foreign-produced uranium in the United States, and Nuexco's brokerage and information services."

Clearly this was important stuff. But alas Nuexco's attorney informed the Justice Department that some of the subpoenaed documents had been destroyed under a routine housekeeping procedure for cleaning out old files.

By a coincidence that, remarkably, struck government investigators as innocent at first, the destruction occurred between the arrival by mail of an "information copy" of the subpoena and the service of the actual subpoena by a U.S. marshal a few days later.

The funny coincidence became no laughing matter, however, when testimony by other Nuexco officials was heard by the grand jury. There was damning evidence that White had taken the documents home and destroyed them deliberately, and that he then tried — unsuccessfully, as it turned out — to get a subordinate, Sanford Anderson, to tell the grand jury less than the whole truth about the matter.

The recommendation of the Justice Department's Fabrikant and Freiberg was that White be indicted on two counts of obstruction of justice — each punishable by a $5,000 fine and five years in prison. But Shenfield let the erring uranium executive off with a contempt of court charge.

Shenfield may now be on the hook himself since several senators want to know about his role in stonewalling a Senate investigation of the uranium cartel.

Footnote: Protected by the constitutional ban on double jeopardy, White admitted to us that he had indeed destroyed the documents.

SOLAR SHUFFLE: If you think solar energy will get you out of the clutches of Big Oil, don't bet on it. While publicly poo-pooing the future importance of solar power, the oil companies are quietly buying up controlling interests in many of the most important solar corporations.

Recently, for example, Amoco bought into Solarex Corp., one of the world's largest manufacturers of solar cells. Shell is the largest stockholder of Solar Energy Systems. And other oil giants, including Exxon, Mobil and Arco, have also invested heavily in fledgling solar industry.

Not to be outdone, some of the electrical industry's big boys have moved into solar energy. They include General Electric, Westinghouse and United Nuclear.

Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association fetes century

Story and photo research by Marjorie Goodfellow

Were the time machine a reality rather than a figment of the science-fiction writer's imagination, the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association 100th annual ploughing match, which takes place on October 8th, would be a suitable occasion to employ it to transport the ploughmen of 1879 to the site of this year's match to observe the changes the years have brought. There were fewer than a dozen competitors and teams on the field in 1879, in contrast to the more than 75 expected to take part in this year's anniversary match.

The Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association, perhaps the oldest in the province, owes its origin to the enthusiasms of one man — Robert N. Tylee, who came to Sherbrooke County from Montreal about 1878 and purchased a property which now forms part of the holdings of the Lennoxville Agricultural Research Station, still known by many as the Experimental Farm. Although one man is credited with the creation of the Association, it owes its continued existence to the persistence, hard work, and devotion to the cause of agriculture of those men who have served as directors and officers over the years.

The duties of directors are many. From the earliest times to the present, it has been their responsibility to choose the date of the match, to select a suitable site and mark out the plots, to collect donations for prizes, to prepare a list of prizes to be awarded, to see about food both on the field and for the banquet, to arrange for entertainment at the banquet, to find qualified judges for the various events, and to solicit government grants from the appropriate authority.

Source documents for the first decades have been lost or destroyed, but some historical information was recorded in the pages of the Sherbrooke Daily Record in 1929 on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary. The following, taken from that article, explains Robert Tylee's reasons for founding the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association and gives some facts about the early years: prior to a match, which continues to this day.

"A novice in farming, Mr.

Oldest Ploughman on the field, 1954. Hiram McLeod, Sherbrooke.

Tylee felt the need of education along agricultural lines and with this object in view he spent a year with Hon. Sidney Fisher on his farm in Knowlton. Becoming thoroughly impressed with the importance of ploughing as a basic operation for good farming, he decided to attempt the organization of an association with the object of having all farmers, young and old, thoroughly taught the best and most scientific manner of ploughing. The movement found friends and steadily expanded, the annual matches constituting one of the outstanding agricultural events of each year.

"From Mr. W.A. Hale, of Sherbrooke, comes an incident of that first ploughing match, which demonstrates the need of the education it was designed to give, and to a certain extent explains the success of the movement. Mr. Hale invited a neighbor to compete in one of the annual matches. The answer was, 'You can't teach me anything about ploughing, I've been at it all my life.' 'Well,' said Mr. Hale, 'Come along and help us to teach others.' When the day of the match came, Mr. Hale found this man sitting on his plough handles. He asked him how he was getting on, and the reply was, 'In the last two hours I have learned more about ploughing than I ever knew before. I'm going to buy a proper plough and commence all over again...'

"Among the names of the directors of the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association during its first years, the following are prominent: Mr. Robert Tylee, Hon. John McIntosh, Messrs. Wm. Morris, Simon Burrill, W.H. Green, E. Fitzgerald, Alphonse Camirand, W. Seaward, E. Wheeler, James

Logan, James McIntosh, and J. McClaren...

"...In 1912 the Belvidere Ploughmen's Association amalgamated with that of Sherbrooke... The year 1916 saw great expansion in the work of the Association, for in that year the matches were thrown open to the whole of the Eastern Townships.

"Among the veteran ploughmen of the district are the names of Henry Johnston, Robert Johnston, Samuel Jardine, A.W. Bradley, Victor Bessette, Douglas Ross, Melville Page, Joseph Hamilton and many others."

To these names from the first fifty years must be added Norrey Bonnallie, Keith Rose, Herbert Winget, Jack Drummond, Everett Beattie, Ed Sarrasin, Ritchie Harrison, James Beattie, Lem Clark, Russell Sutor, Ashton McGee, Lyman Page, Hiram McLeod, Robert Musty, Francis Loomis, Lorraine Harrison, Elizabeth Winget, (women began ploughing in the competition in 1953), and many others.

The aims of the Association have included, since the beginning, the improvement of the agricultural economy in general and the demonstration of new ploughing methods and equipment in particular. The judge who acted in the 1890s, George Buchanan of Montreal, emphasized in several banquet speeches that better ploughing produces better crops. In the 1897 competition, he noticed that only three of the 35 ploughmen were "old-fashioned in their method".

By 1908, Robert Ness of Howick and William Bell of Sherbrooke, noted the great improvement in ploughing which had occurred over the years during which they had acted as judges. They remarked on the pride that the ploughmen took in grooming and outfitting their horses for a match. They were quoted in the Sherbrooke Daily Record of October 16, 1908, as saying that "it would be difficult to get up an equal number" of ploughmen "from any other part of the province that could equal them in their work... Taken together, the benefit to be derived from ploughing matches in the past is beginning to bear results." There were twenty-four contestants that year.

Ploughmen's Association Centennial

The directors devoted particular attention to instructing young people in good ploughing technique. For many years of the Association's history, one of the committees appointed annually had as its duty to "help the boys on the field". Indeed, in January, 1927, a special meeting of the directors was held "to formulate some plan whereby more instruction could be given to the younger ploughmen in order to give them better confidence in going to plough at the provincial matches." It was decided to adopt the Ontario practice of arranging to have an instructor visit the district the day before the match to give instruction in the proper setting of ploughs, the laying out of the ridge, and so on. This evolved into the practice of holding demonstrations prior to a match, which continues to this day.

The Record report on the 1934 match held at the Morton H. Sanders farm on the old Waterville Road is particularly colorful:

"All the old-timers were there, champions of the yesteryears, and many of them had their sons in the ranks of the ploughmen to prove there was a heritage of skill even unto the second and third generations. Taking it by and large, the fields showed a higher average of finish than before, proving that such matches were improving the skill through both incentive and initiative.

"Grandpa Ben Page, in his eighty-second year, was spryly leaping from post to post giving his expert opinion. There was a whole book of Pages at the match.

"Ben Billing, Frank Thompson and Gordon Mc Bain represented the spectators from that Valcartier settlement away up by Glen Iver. Arthur Arbery was conspicuous by his absence, and Tom Barton was getting ready for Friday's market.

"From Johnville way came the other Mr. Billing, and of course there were present all the old standbys who have taken up the gerdon of responsibility in the later years of an organization now fifty-five years old, such as Henry Johnston, H.R. Ross, J.H. Woodside, V.R. Beattie, W.L. MacDougall, all active on the executive line."

1934 victorious tug-o-war teams. Ladies: Gertrude Moe, Helen McElrea, Clara Lavallee, Pearl McElrea, Mary Lavallee.

Many of the pictures which accompany this article were taken at this match, which must have been a particularly enjoyable event.

The earliest ploughmen used oxen to draw the plough and a pair was brought from Weedon to the fiftieth anniversary match in 1929. Fred Page, one of the oldest on the field that day, used them to demonstrate how ploughing with oxen was done. In 1936, Paul Bazinet of Rock Forest used a team of oxen in the event open to boys under twenty years of age. He must have been skilled in driving them because he won first prize in the class, and this in the face of keen competition.

While those with a taste for nostalgia were intrigued by the presence of oxen at matches, the forward-looking directors of the time were keeping their eyes on that new machine, the tractor. In 1923, a committee of the local association was appointed to secure tractor demonstrations at the Provincial Match which was held in Sherbrooke that year. At the 60th Match (1939) of the Sherbrooke Plough-men's Association, a tractor class was introduced which attracted 11 contestants who used eight machines on the field. While the advent of the tractor created interest on the part of spectators and participants and a new source of prize money (the companies involved in selling and servicing the machines being anxious to be associated with demonstrations of their use), it also introduced new problems. W.S. Richardson, a director at the time, recalls that the field where the tractor events were held was separated by some distance from that accommodating the sixty teams participating so as not to scare the horses. New rules had to be developed. By 1949, the tractor classes were divided into trailer ploughs and other types. At the 1950 contest, there were six classes for teams and ploughs and three for tractors. Sixteen years after the introduction of the tractor in the event, the 1955 entry statistics reflected the machine takeover: instead of sixty teams of horses, there were sixty tractor rigs, with only 12 teams taking part. For two or three years around 1970, there were no horses present at the matches, but that is no longer the case. The Association now assists owners with the cost of transporting the horses to the field and proud owners are once again displaying and working their beautiful animals at the events. In addition to its serious purposes, the ploughing match provides an occasion for meeting other people with agricultural interests and having some fun. In earlier days, the fun sometimes took the form of a tug-of-war contest. The newspaper account of the 1897 event tells about such a contest which took place between the ploughmen and the miners from the Eustis mine, which the ploughmen won. Tug-of-war contests were held in the thirties also, this time between the men of the northern end of Sherbrooke county and those of the south. The women also tested the staying power of one group against another. In 1932, the Association even established the rules of the game for these occasions, but they gradually fell out of favor and were abolished.

The main occasion for relaxation and entertainment has, since the beginning, been the banquet and social evening which has been held in conjunction with the ploughing match every year except 1975, when it was cancelled because of conflicts with the dates of the Provincial and International Matches. In the early days when the mode of transportation was slow, it was more convenient to have the banquet on the evening of the match. By the 1930s, it was more important for the participants to get home in order to do the chores and so the banquet was held on the evening of another date, usually the following evening. The main purpose of the banquet evening is the presentation of prizes to the winners, but the entertainment offered has usually been an important feature. The following list of programs shows the variety offered over the years:

1897-A gramophone was operating during supper at McDougall's Hotel. Speeches followed.

1898-Following the speeches, Messrs. Oughtred and Shuter sang.

1902-The Lennoxville Band played at the Town Hall, Lennoxville.

1905-It was dinner at 8 at College House, with Hubbard's orchestra in attendance. There were speeches by Dr. Worthington, M.P., Dr. Pelletier, M.L.A. and others.

1908-Mr. McDowell kept the company in good spirits by his rendering of several original songs and stories. A Bradley gave a recitation and I.F. Wark sang.

1909-Dudley's Orchestra of Sherbrooke joined Mr. McDowell of Lennoxville in entertaining those assembled.

1910-The banquet was held at Cote's Hotel where Turcotte's Orchestra played.

1929-Dr. McGreer of Bishop's was the featured speaker, while Bishop's Glee Club and the Lennoxville Band provided the musical entertainment.

1932-The young people of Sand Hill entertained.

1945-Colored films were shown and old-time violin music was played.

1950-There were films from the National Film Board of Canada and Imperial Oil.

1951-Magician Albert Perry performed and Sam Hopper and his orchestra played several selections.

1952-After the showing of films, Thelma Crawford, Clifford Force and Milton Goodwin sang.

1954-A film on farm safety was viewed and several solos were sung by John Hand.

1960-Films were shown. 1978-A dance was held at the Brompton Road Community Hall.

LEATHERBACK TURTLE

DERMOCHELYS, CORDACEA

The largest living turtle, the leatherback, may attain a total length of 2.7 m with a weight of 540 kg. Unlike other existing turtles, the leatherback has no visible shell. Instead, it has a carapace made up of hundreds of irregular bony plates, covered by a rubbery skin. The large sea turtle lays its warm eggs, which are known to breed off the west Indies, Florida, the northeastern coast of South America, the Azores, Madagascar, Japan and Mexico.

Occasionally it has been found swimming in large waterfalls such as the Gulf of St. Lawrence, possibly carried on Atlantic winds or currents. We adapted to life in the ocean. The leatherback has well developed air bladders which assist it in floating. It feeds on jellyfish and other soft bodied sea creatures as well as crabs.

Several other species of turtles & sea turtles are made in holes which have been dug in the sand. Several weeks later when the eggs hatch, the turtles "back pack" to the water.

UCW Meeting

SAWYERVILLE - The U.C.W. meeting was held on Sept. 27, the day after the Annual Turkey supper and was opened by the President, Bonnie Fowler, who had composed the following: I would like to thank each and everyone for their wonderful task that was so well done. The soliciting, the cooking and all the work that had been arranged. To make our U.C.W. annual supper that was so well planned. You need not seek a place apart. To ease the longing in your heart. Remember God is yearning too. To share in all the work you do.

The supper report showed it had been very successful both socially and financially. Cheer-sent 24 cards, 58 visits had been made. Lots of work on hand to start again. Mrs. Phillips expressed thanks to all who did work or gave donations to the sale table.

Christian Education - The Sunday School and Explorers Group both had sales tables at the supper. A vote of thanks was given to all who had helped at the supper.

UCW Meetings

BULWER (RR) - The September meeting of the Bulwer U.C.W. was held on Sept. 11, at the home of Mr. D. Grapes and Mr. and Mrs. L. Grapes.

In the absence of the president, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Helen Johnston chaired the meeting, opening by asking the members to stand for a minute's silence in memory of a faithful member, Marguerite Grapes. This was followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Ken McBurney who read from Matthew, Chapter five. She took as her meditation, salty Christians and ended the meditation by saying, salty Christians are the only ones who add true spice to life. She then closed with prayer.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer read her report which showed all commitments paid.

Our area vice-president, Marion Laberee, gave an outline of the Fall Rally which would be held in Cookshire, on Sept. 18, this to be an evening meeting. Ten members planned to go. She also mentioned that "Summer Event" next year will be held in July.

A visit to several sick and shut-ins was reported.

A committee of two was named to look into a suitable memorial for a faithful member, Marguerite Grapes, who was taken from us so suddenly.

Helen Johnston and Hilda Little agreed to go to the C.L.S.C. office to find out what help was available to the community, if needed.

A menu was decided on for a supper to be taken to a home for the elderly nearby, and the soliciting done.

We were pleased to welcome Miss Kathleen Johnston, a former resident of Bulwer and her friend from Vancouver, as visitors to this meeting.

The next meeting will be held on Oct. 9, at Mrs. C. Robinson's in Birchton.

Following adjournment of the meeting, several men joined the group when Gary McBurney showed slides of things and places of interest he saw during his stay from November until April in New Zealand. A number of pictures were of them at work in the field and in the barn and Gary gave an explanation as the pictures were shown. He visited his grandmother in Vancouver and on the way home stopped to visit cousins in Winnipeg and he had pictures of the flood there. Everyone was pleased to have Gary share his pictures and tell us of some of their ways of farming, different than ours, and also animals native to New Zealand.

The hostess, Peggy Grapes, served a buffet-style lunch, assisted by a few ladies, when everyone enjoyed a social time.

SUTTON - On September 26, eighteen ladies of Calvary United Church enjoyed a Salad and Dessert Luncheon at the Horizon Motel, when a most delicious meal was served us by our hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Boulay, who were thanked by everyone present.

Association's duty was 'to help the boys in the field'

The story of the first hundred years of the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association is a reflection of the social history of the area. To take just one example, when farmers began to supplement their income by taking jobs in town beginning in the 1950s, the date of the match was changed from a weekday to Saturday or a holiday. By adjusting in this and other ways to the changing times, the Association has remained a vital and healthy organization. The directors have watched for and welcomed innovations, from the introduction of the sulky plough to the field in 1909 to the advent of the tractor in 1939 and subsequent modifications since then. The officers and directors of today and the future face the challenge of keeping up the tradition of initiative and innovation established for them by their predecessors.

Ordained as Deacon

COOKSHIRE — St. Peter's Anglican Church was filled to capacity on Friday evening, Sept. 28, with members of the Parish of Eaton-Dudswell congregating to celebrate the Ordination of Mr. Bradley Hicks as a Deacon of the Anglican Church of Canada. A large delegation of the clergy of the Diocese was also in attendance.

Bishop Allen Goodings, of Quebec, presided over the Ordination; Venerable Alan Fairbairn, of Sherbrooke, presided over the Holy Eucharist.

Father Gilles Langelier, of the Grand Seminaire, preached the sermon, exhorting all to be broad-minded and tolerant of other people's faiths.

Mrs. Mary Heatherington provided appropriate organ music for the prelude, the singing of the five hymns, during the Eucharist and the postlude.

Late summer and autumn flowers were used to decorate the church.

Following the service, the ladies of Eaton-Dudswell Parish provided coffee and sweet breads for refreshments.

Stargill homer powers Pirates to victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Stargill says he has given out nearly 6,000 gold stars to his team-mates for game-winning hits or outstanding plays, but he declined to give himself one Tuesday night for his three-run homer which won the opening game of baseball's National League final.

Stargill's shot to deep rightcentre field in the 11th inning carried Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds and gave the Pirates the early edge in their best-of-five series.

"Those stars cost about 25 cents apiece," Stargill said, explaining why he wouldn't award himself one. "At the rate I'm giving them out, they're going to bankrupt me."

The Reds were to send rookie Frank Pastore to the mound in this afternoon's second game against Jim Bibby of the Pirates. Stargill, as usual, was expected to be at first base, batting cleanup for Pittsburgh.

Pirates manager Chuck

Tanner usually lets the 38-year-old Stargill take the day off following a night game, but that won't be the case in the championship series.

"Stargill's going to play the rest of the way," Tanner said. "He's the most valuable player in the league, in my opinion."

HOMERS OFF HUME

Stargill's homer came off loser Tom Hume after Tim Foli and Dave Parker had singled to open the 11th inning.

"If I hadn't done it, somebody else would have," Stargill said.

The Pirates scored twice in the third inning as Phil Garner hit a lead-off homer to right field and Omar Moreno tripled, scoring on Foli's sacrifice fly.

Moreno's speed — he was the League leader in stolen bases this season with 77 — induced right fielder Dave Collins to try to make a shoestring catch of his sinking liner. But the ball bounced in front of Collins and skidded past him for a triple.

"Our game plan was to keep Moreno off the bases," Collins said. "I gambled on the play and it hurt us, but I don't think it cost us the ball game."

"I did the same thing four innings later on a ball Dave Parker hit, and I made a good play on it."

The Reds got those two runs back in the fourth inning when Dave Concepcion led off with a single and George Foster followed with a towering home run into the second deck in leftcentre field.

Cincinnati starter Tom Seaver allowed just two more singles before leaving the game for a pinch hitter.

Willie Stargill's three-run homer in the eleventh was all Pittsburgh needed to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 5-2 in the first game of the National League playoffs.

Candelaria holds Reds to two runs

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Candelaria may have surprised some people with his performance in the opening game of baseball's National League playoff, but not his team-mates.

"He's played all year not feeling 100 per cent, and all he does is get smarter and better," said shortstop Tim Foli after Candelaria, who had not started since Sept 15 because of an injury to his left side, pitched seven innings of Tuesday night's game.

A quartet of Pittsburgh relief pitchers then held Cincinnati Reds scoreless until Willie Stargill's three-run homer gave Pittsburgh a 5-2, 11th-inning victory.

"He's a money pitcher," Tanner said of Candelaria, who allowed two runs and five hits. He held the Reds without a hit through the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. "If it's a big game, he'll get it for you."

Pirates catcher Ed Ott said Candelaria was feeling his aches and pains.

"He was grunting and groaning out there on the mound from the first inning," Ott said.

The Pirates were equally excited about their bullpen, which shut down Cincinnati threats in the eighth and 11th innings.

"That's the kind of pitchers we have," Foli said. "When the going gets tough, they all want the ball."

SWEET REVENGE

The victory was sweet revenge for the Pirates, who lost to the Reds in playoff competition in 1970, 1972 and 1975.

"It's like a bully who is constantly beating up on you and you say, 'Hey, I belong here too,'" Stargill said.

Stargill and several other players said they were upset by an article in a local newspaper the day of the game, which compared the two teams.

The article, which Stargill felt was not flattering enough to his club, was placed on the Pirates' bulletin board before the game.

For the Reds, and particularly third baseman Ray Knight, it was an unhappy night.

Draveurs take Verdun 7-4

Jean-Francois Sauve scored a pair of third-period goals to boost Trois-Rivieres Draveurs to a 7-4 triumph over Verdun Black Hawks in a Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game Tuesday night.

In the league's only other contest, Francois Gravel's two goals helped Chicoutimi Saguenens to an easy 7-2 victory over the winless Quebec Remparts.

The Draveurs, who received single goals from Pierre Aubry, Normand Rochefort, Michel Fortin, Michel Leblond and Mario Guillemette, moved into first place in the Dilio Division as a result of their victory.

Normand Aubin was again the bright spot for Verdun with a two-goal performance, while Chris Valentine and Michel Lanquette rounded out the scoring.

Five players shared in the balance of Chicoutimi's scoring as single goals went to Gilbert Delorme, Alain Lemieux, Robert Millette, Marc Roy and Guy Carboneau.

The Remparts got goals from Stephan Lessard and Gaston Therrien in a losing cause.

Hull Voisins meet Montreal Juniors in the only game on tonight's schedule.

Caribbean training camps approved

NEW YORK (AP) — Professional baseball has approved an agreement that will permit U.S. players to play baseball in Caribbean countries during the winter, commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Tuesday.

The agreement contains all of the provisions and protections of the former Winter League contract. A directive was issued last week prohibiting players from participation until an agreement was reached.

The understanding was reached with commissioner Rodrigo Otero Suro of the Caribbean Professional Baseball Confederation and it covers all major and minor-league players, managers and coaches and all Winter League teams.

Bully Clayborn fined $2,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Defensive back Raymond Clayborn of New England Patriots has been fined $2,000 by commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League for "conduct involving members of the news media" — including his Sept. 9 locker-room fight with Boston Globe writer Will McDonough.

Clayborn, with New England Patriots, threatened and then poked McDonough in the eye after the Patriots defeated New York Jets 56-3.

McDonough responded by punching Clayborn, and the two scuffled briefly before other writers and players intervened.

Calgary grabs Snelling

CALGARY (CP) — The University of Calgary announced Tuesday the appointment of Derek Snelling, who coached the Canadian swim team at the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, as swim coach beginning in September, 1980.

Snelling, who will complete contractual obligations at Toronto's Etobicoke Swim Club before reporting to Calgary, will coach a combined program of swimmers from the university and the city's Foothills Swim Club.

Orr gets front-office job with NHL

TORONTO (CP) — John Zeigler, president of the National Hockey League, is expected to announce Thursday the appointment of former defensive star Bobby Orr as a special assistant in charge of league promotion and marketing.

"Bobby is very excited about the new job because he always wanted to keep his hand in the game in some capacity," says an unnamed NHL executive source quoted in today's edition of The Globe and Mail.

"He is a high profile and it works both ways. His acquisition is a major one as far as the league is concerned."

Furlano takes Lapointe with TKO

MONTREAL (CP) — Nicky Furlano saved his secret weapon until the sixth round but no one could argue with its effectiveness.

"He kept his right hand tucked under his chin and didn't use it until he knocked him out," said trainer Tray Travis after Furlano defended his Canadian lightweight boxing title Tuesday night by scoring a sixth-round technical knockout against Montreal's Jean Lapointe.

In the main event of a fivebout card at the Montreal Forum, 19-year-old Eddie Melo of Toronto gained a sixth-round knockout over Ali Perez of New York.

Furlano emerged from his stool like a hornet in the first round and actually thought that he gained the victory in the initial three minutes.

KANSAS AXES HERZOG

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — By refusing to say why he fired Whitey Herzog, the most successful and popular manager in the 11-year history of Kansas City Royals, Joe Burke does two things — both bad.

He invites speculation and wild rumor. How dark and hideous could Herzog's sins have been? Surely, no manager who wins 410 games and three division championships in 4½ years while building immense popularity among players, fans and media could be released on a whim.

Or could he? That's bad thing No. 2. For Burke's sake, the Royals better not waste any time regaining the American League West title they just yielded by three games to California Angels.

WHITEY HERZOG
...what were reasons?
If they don't win next year, it will be commonly accepted that Herzog was fired because owner Ewing

Kauffman just didn't like him. Should attendance plummet, general manager Burke comes off as a bungling milquetoast.

Herzog, in the meantime, will no doubt be holding down a good job with a good organization somewhere. His record as a manager and as a frontoffice executive with New York Mets is excellent.

"I accept full responsibility for the decision," Burke said Tuesday, adding that "only time will tell whether I was right or wrong."

WONT DISCUSS IT

"I know the fans will disagree because they don't know the reasons why I did it. And the reasons, I will not discuss."

Player and fan reaction Tuesday was swift. The ticket office said within an hour 44 persons called to cancel season tickets. Several players, including allstars Darrell Porter and George Brett, bitterly denounced the move and called it a terrible mistake.

...a brick for Howard

DALLAS (AP) — Denver Broncos were no match for Dallas Cowboys in the 1978 Super Bowl, but Dallas bar patrons were no match for Denver's when it came to smashing Howard Cosell.

The play originated in a Denver club. The winner of a football pot gets to throw a brick through an old television set while Cosell's face is on the screen during a Monday night National Football League telecast.

Cosell has never been a favorite among Cowboys fans, beginning with the game three seasons ago when Cosell told the viewing audience he thought Dallas fullback Robert Newhouse was just an "average" runner.

But things reached a peak in Cleveland two Mondays ago, when Cosell said he thought the Cowboys were over-glamorized and over-publicized, and said he hoped the Browns would beat Dallas that night. To add insult to injury, the Browns did just that.

Needless to say, the Viking Bar patrons were in a foul mood Monday as the Green Bay Packers-New England Patriots game came on.

Carol Graham won the right to heave a brick at Cosell's choleric countenance.

She grabbed the brick and started to psyche herself up. "Oh, I just hate him!" she declared.

It was decided she would make the toss at halftime, when Cosell narrates the highlights from Sunday games.

The first half ended, Bar owner Frieda Houlihan put a sheet of plastic over the screen and hefted a fire extinguisher.

"I don't know what happens when you throw a brick through a TV," she admitted.

The commercials rolled, then ended. Graham drew back her arm when a face appeared on the screen, but it was a false alarm — a news insert by local personality Iola Johnson.

"No, don't hit Iola," screamed the customers.

More commercials. Now! There's Howard! Graham cut loose — and missed. The brick hit the TV cabinet, not the screen.
