Pearson's rally tonight; Dief stops for 10 minutes

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record staff writer)

A full-scale visit by Opposition Leader Lester Pearson, complete with the traditional public meeting, and a ten-minute stop by Prime Minister Diefenbaker give supporters of both major parties something to talk about today.

The train carrying the Prime Minister from Montreal to Saint John, N.B., is due to make a stop here from 10 to 10.10 p.m. and local Progressive Conservatives are planning to gather at the C.P.R. station at this time to welcome the chief.

Liberal Leader Pearson, however, will be given the full treatment. He makes his first ET appearance of the current campaign at Granby, where he was to be received at the City

mid-afternoon. Following his arrival here at 4 o'clock, he will make a television appearance with district Liberal candidates and will address a regional meeting at the St. Francis School tonight at eight. Mr. Pearson will remain in Sherbrooke overnight, returning to Montreal Wednesday morning.

COMPTON CONVENTIONS

Progressive Conservatives and Liberals hope to complete their line-ups of candidates in ET ridings with conventions this week in Compton-Frontenac, the only seat in which they have not nominated candidates.

The PCs, who were forced to cancel their convention at Scotstown Saturday because of snow-blocked roads, will meet in the Scotstown parish hall Wednesday night at eight. Bury will be the scene of the Liberal nominating meeting to be held Thursday evening, also at eight.

Unless some surprising nominations are made from the floor it is expected that William Clifford, of East Angus, will be the unanimous choice of the PC convention at Scotstown.

Some uncertainty still persists as to the possible Liberal candidate. The names of several prominent Liberal workers from both the Compton and Frontenac section of the constituency have been mentioned but so far none has made any announcement as to his intentions of coming before the delegates.

There are also reports that residents of adjoining counties, including Sherbrooke and Stanstead, who have close connections with Compton-Frontenac may present themselves on Thursday evening.

SHEFFORD NDP

Shefford New Democrats have named their candidate for the April 8 elections, Jacques Jourdain, a member of the Granby municipal police force, to $3,000 from $2,000.

Mr. Douglas promised that the NDP in Parliament would support any government for a reasonable length of time, provided it comes to grips with Canada's economic problems.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking in Matane, Que., following a day of whistle-stop campaigning along the south shore of the lower St. Lawrence, promised that his government, if returned to office, will establish a feed grain agency to equalize prices for Western grain, thus benefiting Eastern farmers.

Legislation at the last session of parliament to set up such an agency had been blocked by "the arrogant attitude of the Liberal opposition."

Speaking on a pre-recorded CBC free-time radio broadcast, the Prime Minister levelled similar charges, declaring that the Liberals had engaged in "politics-first obstruction" at the last parliamentary session.

Today, Mr. Diefenbaker campaigns in the Montreal area. Mr. Thompson is in Saskatoon, while Mr. Douglas is in Burnaby-Coquitlam and Chilliwack, B.C.

The charge that the Conservative government has "led the United States down the garden path" was made in Montreal Monday night by Paul Hellyer, Liberal defence critic.

Business spending to increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian businessmen have raised their sights for 1963 and have planned a five-per-cent increase in their spending on construction and capital equipment.

This suggests "continuing confidence in the business outlook," the trade department reported Monday. Such spending—if actually carried out—would give a big lift to the economy.

The department's end-of-1962 survey of about 18,000 businesses produced an estimate of $5,217,000,000 in intended 1963 capital expenditures in the business sector, compared with $4,957,000,000 last year.

Added to this would be $3,871,000,000 in outlays at all levels of government and in the housing and institutional fields, a $90,000,000 increase from last year.

The over-all result thus would be intended capital outlays totalling $9,088,000,000 as against $8,738,000,000 in 1962.

Ninth Boston slaying terrorizes suburb

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — The fashionable Belmont Hill section of this suburban town, rarely touched by violence or crime, lay under a shroud of fear today following the strangulation murder—the ninth in Greater Boston since June—of a prominent 62-year-old woman.

Police sought a cleaning man, hired through a state employment office, who was working in the home where Mrs. Bessie Goldberg was found strangled with a silk stocking Monday.

The murder of the petite, dark-haired woman stunned this quiet neighborhood. Police had difficulty gaining entrance to nearby homes to talk with neighbors. They said terrified women refused to open their doors.

While the latest slaying bore many similarities to earlier stranglings, police noted it was only the second to occur outside Boston, and it was the first in a single-family home in a well-to-do neighborhood.

Mrs. Goldberg's body was found on the living room floor of her two-story, 10-room home by her husband, Israel, when he returned home from his real estate office about 4 p.m.

Goldberg told police he talked with his wife by telephone at 2:30 p.m. and asked whether the cleaning man had arrived. He said she told him the man was there and she did not indicate anything was wrong.

Dr. David C. Dow, medical examiner, declined to say whether there was evidence she had been sexually molested. A police bulletin said the cleaning man, supplied by the

Master quits

QUEBEC (CP)—Stuart Fastofsky, concert master of the Quebec Symphony Orchestra, said Monday he has resigned for professional reasons which he did not wish to disclose.

He said in an interview he will leave the city shortly to assume the same duties with another orchestra.

A police raid on a North Ward home Monday morning resulted in the confiscation of a massive quantity of beer and liquor, and the arrest of the suspected operator of Sherbrooke's home delivery "booze" service.

The raid, by provincial police came following the arrest of a University of Sherbrooke student Saturday who will appear in court next Friday to face charges of illegally transporting alcohol.

The suspected leader has not yet been charged, police say.

Seized in Monday's raid were 50 cases of beer, each containing 24 bottles, about 15 bottles of liquor and the business cards of the organization.

Twisters batter wide area

CHICAGO (AP) — Tornadoes and a fresh outbreak of damaging floods dealt death and destruction across wide areas of the southern United States today.

The twisters, which hammered many sections of Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, killed at least four persons and injured scores of others. Seven persons were reported missing in mountain regions of eastern Tennessee Monday night after a tornado swept the Parrottsville area, near the North Carolina border.

Floods struck devastating blows in the eastern Kentucky mountains and river overflows menaced several areas of Tennessee, Alabama, and southwest Virginia.

The floods drove hundreds of Kentucky families from their homes, washed away homes and bridges and blocked roads. Rivers and streams rose steadily and some observers said the floods may be the worst in Kentucky in many years.

The floods in the four states followed torrential rains which drenched much of the South Monday, with nearly five inches in some communities.

TWISTERS HIT ALABAMA

The first of the tornadoes which swept the three-state area slammed into Cullman County in north-central Alabama Monday afternoon. It skipped across five other northern Alabama counties. Later twisters pounded north Mississippi and hopped-scotched across the eastern two-thirds of Tennessee.

Scores of homes were destroyed or damaged. The dead included a 17-year-old youth in Parrottsville, two women in Cullman County and a man in the Starkville, Miss., area.

A civil defence official in Alabama estimated the damage in the Cullman area alone at $250,000.

These cards, bearing the simple message in French "Service day and night, telephone LO. 7-7962, delivery only 10 minutes," were the keystone of the operation as explained by the police.

CALLING CARDS

The cards were distributed around Sherbrooke. To obtain an illegal bottle or case of beer at any time, it was necessary merely to call the number.

A radio-equipped car would speed through sleet or snow with the goods, arriving often within ten minutes.

Such a car was seized Saturday by police when they arrested the student. It, too, carried a quantity of liquor and beer, some of the cards, and a two-way radio.

Police declined to release the name of the youth who was, they say "working his way through college."

"He was just an employee," a police spokesman said of the student.

The raids ended what would seem to be a profitable business. During the police investigation, it was found that the car seized Saturday was registered in the name of a Windsor Street resident. Upon visiting this address, police found that the occupant had moved to a fashionable Liege Street home in the North Ward. It was here that the raid was made by Constables Gilles Broton, Gerard Belisle, Donat Begin and Gilles Lacoste.

Along with the beer and liquor, they found an efficient radio transmitter and receiver.

At least 19 cases have been reported from the Magrath and Fort Macleod areas during the current outbreak. Two children have died. Some of the victims are Indians from the nearby Peigan Reserve.

NEW PREMIER — Damascus radio reported that pro-Nasserite Salah Bitar has been named Premier and Foreign Minister of the revolutionary Syrian government.

Nasser welcomes proposal

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser was reported taking a cautious but welcoming attitude today toward Iraq's proposal for a new Arab union.

Taleb Hussein Shabib, foreign minister of the new Iraqi revolutionary regime, proposed to Nasser Monday that Iraq, Syria and Nasser's United Arab Republic (Egypt) make a start by setting up a joint military command and an organization to coordinate political planning.

Indications were that the progress toward union would be slow and gradual. There was speculation that an Arab summit meeting might be called to discuss the idea.

The Iraqi plan calls for Yemen and Algeria to join the group later.

Nasser has not committed himself although informed sources said he welcomed the proposals warmly. There was no official comment from the new Syrian government; meanwhile, pro-Nasser mobs in Damascus demonstrated in the streets chanting for unity with Egypt.

French RR workers begin strike series

PARIS (Reuters) — Commuters throughout France were delayed today as French railroad workers began a series of two-hour work stoppages to back demands for wage increases and improved pension plans.

The fresh labor trouble came as a walkout of more than 200,000 French coal miners entered its 12th day.

Traffic at Paris' Gare du Nord railway station was paralyzed by the first rail stoppage and schedules were seriously disrupted at the French capital's other stations.

Police exchanged blows and insults with the striking coal miners Monday in the first violence since that walkout began. The clash occurred when police intervened at Merlebach, in the heart of the Lorraine coal fields, after pickets halted buses carrying mine office workers. There were no injuries and order was quickly restored.

Miners in the coal fields of eastern and northeastern France, who are demanding an 11-per-cent wage increase, held a series of meetings Monday calling for solidarity and continuation of the strike.

The government, which runs the mines, has offered 5.7-per-cent raises and refuses to go higher because, it says, there is danger of a new inflationary spiral.

The government also refused to negotiate until the miners return to work.

The miners are reported receiving strong public support. There has been mounting speculation that President de Gaulle may intervene personally in a bid to end the walkout.

About Telev'sion

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedy is a serious business. The hours are tough and long, pressures build, tempers grow short and sometimes things go wrong.

Courtesy of Shelley Berman and NBC, we spent 24 hours Sunday with the comedian as he prepared for a night club engagement in a big Florida resort hotel.

Berman arrived by plane, looking tired, and plunged immediately into unfunny detail. He gave instructions about the props, the music, the lighting, even the seating in the night club holding 2,000 customers. He made certain no food would be served while he was onstage.

He jollied, he cajoled, he stormed and mostly he fretted. As the moment grew closer he paced tensely, chain-smoked, sipped water and paced some more.

PHONE SPOILS IT

Finally, he was alone on the stage. And then, at the climax of his most important sketch, as he shifted delicately from comedy to poignancy, the shrill and urgent sound of a telephone ringing backstage ripped the mood fabric he had woven with such skill. The alien sound came like a real tragedy. Berman's fury, anguish and disappointment were unrestrained.

After an hour of brilliant entertainment, the comedian, almost in tears, cried: "It was hard show and I won. And then they took away the beautiful moment—look away what I was trying to achieve."

The program was unusual, perceptive and fascinating.

An episode of The Dick Powell Theatre, starring Gene Barry as a wealthy homicide detective named Amos Burke, has been removed from the schedule of the NBC series and another show substituted.

The episode (based on a jaunty, "Thin Man" type character which Powell played in a couple of episodes last season) was made as a demonstration film for a whole new series, and ABC is reported vitally interested in it.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carol Burnett was fired from her first movie job.

"For a while I was in the box office of the Ivar Theatre on Hollywood Boulevard," she recalled. "It wasn't a bad job. They piped the sound track into the box office so I could at least listen to the pictures. I can't tell you every line and sound effect in Ivanhoe."

"Then I moved across the street to the Warner Hollywood. I was an usherette, so I got to see the pictures. I saw Strangers on a Train 79 times. I got fired because of it."

"You see, I was a big fan of Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Walker, the director and star of Strangers on a Train. I didn't want the picture spoiled for anybody."

"One night a couple wanted to go inside during the last five minutes of the picture. I would not let them. They complained to the manager and he tore off my epaulets and told me to turn in my uniform."

It is a pleasure to report that Miss Burnett has been hired again by the film industry, this time as co-star with Dean Martin in a Paramount romp called Who's Been Sleeping in my Bed.

During the decade between the two jobs, the Hollywood high school grad managed to make a name for herself on Broadway (Once Upon a Mattress), in television (The Garry Moore Show), and lately on TV specials, in Las Vegas and on the road with her own show.

Whether Carol is happy about her return to Hollywood is a question. I saw her on the first day of her work in the movie and she was slightly dazed after getting to the studio at 5:45 a.m. to have her hair curled.

"The work," she groaned, "I don't know how film actors do it."

Heavy-equipment course

Asbestos firm has retraining program for jobless

ASBESTOS (Special)
— A new experiment in retraining is taking place at Canadian Johns-Manville's Jeffrey Mine here.

In conjunction with the federal-provincial retraining program, the Jeffrey Mine has started a heavy-equipment operators' training course for jobless employees of the company.

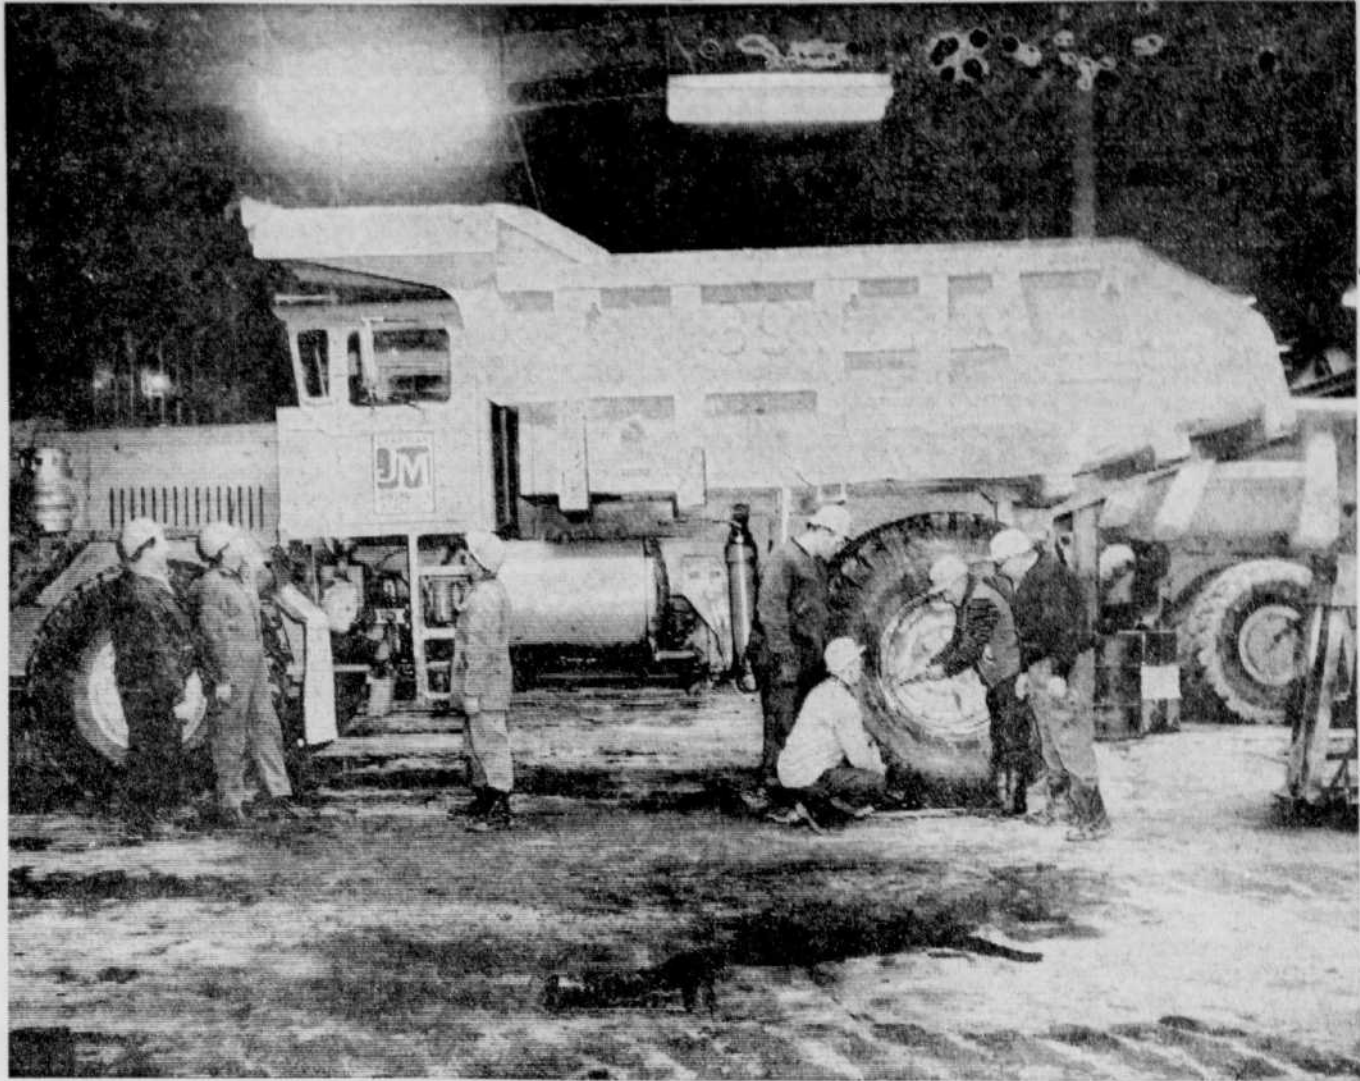

The company has made available facilities for using its huge 35-ton trucks, bulldozers, road graders, etc. for on-the-job training program. The cost of buying such units for training purposes only would be prohibitive but, by using on-the-job training methods, this obstacle has been overcome.

Trainees receive a 12-week course on driving, care and safe usage of these large units. They are eligible to collect unemployment benefits.

The training day is six hours long. Four hours are spent on actual on-the-job operating of this equipment and the remaining two hours are devoted to safety and maintenance care instruction.

J. O. Eby, vice president, Canadian Johns-Manville Co., Limited, says: "The aim of the course is to help these men find jobs in the spring with construction companies using similar large equipment."

Technical training is under the direction of J.L.P. Lambert, director of the Asbestos Trades School (Ecole de Metiers).

Despite repeated appeals

Quebec is the only province in Canada not helping to train retarded children

"We need money, we need it very much, but what we need more is your help in educating the public about retarded children," Ken de Jersey, the executive director of the Quebec Retarded Children's Association, told the Sherbrooke Kiwanis Club Monday evening.

Following his talk, and an appeal by Tony Beaulieu, president of the Sherbrooke Retarded Children's Association, the entire Kiwanis Club joined the association, paying membership dues on the spot.

Mr. de Jersey told the club that, despite repeated appeals for government help, Quebec is the only province in Canada that does nothing for the three children out of every hundred who are mentally-retarded.

"We feel that every child has the right to an education, and that it is the business of the government to provide this," he said.

Retardation falls into three categories of degree, he said. There are the educable ones, the trainable and the custodial. The educable retarded, he said could be taught to about the fifth grade level, and after that could become productive members of society. He said this was proved recently in of $28,000 in provincial income taxes.

"We must make the government see that it pays in dollars and cents to train these people rather than having to support them all their lives," Mr. de Jersey said.

He said other retarded children and young adults could be trained to do simple repetitive jobs in sheltered workshops. He noted the plans of the Kiwanis members to stay after the meeting Monday and stuff envelopes for the Easter seal campaign.

The closing date for nominations to the Sherbrooke Spring Sale has arrived. The catalogue of entries will be prepared, and will be printed shortly. It is expected that the catalogues be available around April 18th.

The sale is being held on the Sherbrooke Exhibition Grounds on May 2nd. The cattle will arrive the morning of May 1st. All will be weighed and then classified in the afternoon. Those cattle not up to the standard set up by the sales committee will not be eligible for the sale the following day.

There will be a parade of all entries on Thursday morning, May 2nd with the auction sale starting at 12:00 noon.

Any financial assistance such as purchase premiums will be announced the day of the sale. This 13th Annual Sale will provide an opportunity to obtain animals from the top purebred herds of the province so plan to attend this event on May 2nd at the Sherbrooke Exhibition Grounds.

The Twelfth Annual Seed and Forage Crop Fair sponsored by the Compton County Agricultural Society was held in Cookshire last Monday.

Due to poor weather condition several exhibitors were unable to be present with their exhibits. However, the number of exhibitors as well as the number of exhibits was slightly increased over 1962. The quality in several sections was not quite as high as last year but the fair as a whole was declared a success.

In the best display of oats, any variety, Wells Bishop, Saverville won first prize with R. G. Hodge, Cookshire, second. Fred Burns, Island Brook had the best display of barley. He also showed the best exhibit of clover seed with Wells Coates, East Angus, taking second.

The judges were Mr. Paul Methot, Quebec Chief of the Forage Division of the Quebec Department of Agriculture and Colonization; Mr. Paul Desjardis, Sherbrooke, Feed, Seed and Fertilizer Inspector of the Canada Department of Agriculture and Mr. W. S. Richardson, Lennoxville, recently retired from the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

The judges gave reasons at the evening meeting for their placings.

Mr. Methot announced that the oat Competition in 1963 would be held in region No. 2 which includes the counties of Compton, Sherbrooke, Stanstead and Richmond.

St. Patrick's Day to be marked by parade, service

RICHMOND — (Special) — The Irish of Richmond and vicinity are preparing for their annual banquet and parade to honor their patron saint, Saint Patrick. The banquet will be held Saturday night, March 16th, at the Brunswick Hotel from 7 p.m. Guest speaker on this occasion is Rev. Father John McCaffrey of St. Willibrod's, Verdun, Montreal.

President Jerome V. Hayes has also announced that a parade will be held on Sunday, 17th, when the local Irish march through town, to Holy Family Church where the sermon and benediction will be given by Father McCaffrey at 3 p.m.

Removal of snow in river is city's problem-Nadeau

Despite the warning of three aldermen and the city's services director that Sherbrooke was not equipped to carry out the task of removing the snow on the St. Francis River, Mayor Armand Nadeau said that the municipality should do the job anyway.

Aldermen Everett Nicol, Antonio Pinard and Amedee Roy and Services Director Charles Langlois told the Sherbrooke mayor that council had decided on the advice of an expert that the municipality was incapable of performing the snow removal task.

Only then did the city officials decide to seek the help of the army, they said.

Snow has been heaped on the St. Francis River near Joffre Bridge throughout the winter by city public works employees who used the river as a dump, and city officials fear that parts of the city will be flooded when it melts in the spring.

The mayor informed the council Monday night that the city was responsible for the accumulation of snow on the river and hence it should be cleared not by the army, but by the municipal authorities.

He said that he did not favor disturbing the Quebec Premier in mid-session with a request to remove the snow.

The mayor noted, "This matter is too serious to await a reply from the provincial government. It is a matter that must be cleared up immediately."

The mayor said that he had consulted engineers Monday and was informed that the only step necessary was to open channel in the river.

The remaining ice on the river could then melt gradually he said.

Mayor Nadeau said that he gathered the impression from local and Montreal newspapers that the municipal authorities had been shirking their responsibility in this instance.

Coming out in favor of the mayor's suggestion were Aldermen Felix Thibault and aldermen spoke out telling the mayor that the council decision to seek the aid of the army had been taken on expert advice.

Mr. Langlois had conferred with experts from the Canadian Industries Limited on the possible use of dynamite before deciding to seek army aid, they said.

The mayor disregarded their pleas and urged council to visit the sit of the snow pile at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Pinard raps delay in preparing proposed zoning law for W. Ward

Sherbrooke Alderman Antonio Pinard Monday night levelled a blast at Services Director Charles Langlois because a by-law had not been drawn up and presented to council as had been promised at the previous council meeting.

Mr. Pinard last week proposed that a zoning bylaw, change be made in the area north of Galt Street affecting Blais, Godbout, St. Laurent, Desnoyers and Duplessis Streets.

The bylaw, which had been recommended by Sherbrooke Building Inspector Aime

Gagnon after consultation with experts in Quebec, would change the zoning to allow apartment house construction.

Council decided last week that the bylaw should be drawn up and brought before the meeting Monday.

Mr. Langlois explained that he had overlooked the matter and would see to it that the bylaw was prepared for the next meeting of the council.

Having noted that the bylaw was not on the evening agenda, Alderman Pinard demanded to know who was responsible for the incident, and what caused the error.

"Why is this bylaw not ready," he said. "The people in the area are awaiting a reply on the matter."

"There is no reason why it should have been missed, I notified council on the matter last week."

"It was understood last week that the bylaw was to appear this week."

Mr. Langlois then admitted that he had overlooked the matter and promised council that he would have the bylaw drawn up by the next meeting of the council.

"I hope that this incident will not be repeated," concluded Alderman Antonio Pinard.

Design for billboard chosen by committee

The city greeting sign committee set up at the instigation of the French-language Sherbrooke Junior Chamber of Commerce has chosen a design for the billboards it wants to set up at four city entrances.

The next step, says committee chairman Jean-Marie Therrien, is to call for tenders to execute the project. The committee hopes to keep within $2,000 for the project, lighting and service club signs included.

The selected design, which the committee's meeting last night saw only in the form of sketches, is by Sherbrooke decorator Denis Paquet.

The selection design consists of five separate panels on which will be placed the club emblems, plus a central panel on which the name Sherbrooke and the city crest will be placed. Mr. Therrien said the sign could be extended to include more clubs if they joined the project.

So far, 11 organizations have given definite support to the project, and five others are likely. But the project could embrace more than 20 organizations. The more clubs join, the smaller the cost would be to each.

The sites for the signs have been chosen as well, and permission obtained from owners of all but one to erect signs. At the north and south, the land belongs to the city, at the east to Vachon Pastries, and at the west to Lowney's candy firm, which has yet to be asked for its permission.

The committee also decided to offer the signs, once built, to the city, providing the city would agree to keep them up.

Grim dangers of uncontrolled fire

It is not uncommon in the Townships for firemen and spectators to stand helplessly by while a fire rages out of control until it burns itself out.

In too many small communities, there is a total lack of fire protection facilities including a supply of water. Hatley is the latest to suffer under these conditions, but it is not the first, nor will it, unfortunately, be the last.

Several years ago, a small house caught fire in the rural village of St. Isidore d'Auckland near the U.S. border in Compton county. The village had neither a fire brigade nor a water supply for fighting a fire. Within half an hour, the flames, fanned by a stiff breeze, had jumped to the town's main business block, and from there to adjoining buildings. Soon, the whole centre of the town was ablaze. The entire community was threatened with destruction. Only the arrival of a fire brigade from the United States and a shift in the wind saved the town. But a number of houses, the town's general store and several barns were gone. The threat to life had been frightening.

A few years later, there was a similar occurrence in East Farnham. A small fire quickly spread out of control, finally destroying several houses and badly damaging a church. Volunteer fire brigades on the scene quickly ran out of water.

This is the worst danger of uncontrolled fire — that it can easily spread, engulfing whole towns, causing many thousands of dollars in property damage, endangering lives and sometimes, killing people.

The big stumbling block to adequate fire protection facilities, of course, is cost. But surely, adequate supplies of water to fight fires should be considered a necessary outlay; as necessary as electricity and telephones. This should be especially true in a town such as Hatley, which has a water system.

And surely, too, some sort of fire brigade can be organized, even with only a minimum of equipment.

This time, only one building was lost. The next time, several could go and lives could be needlessly endangered.

Most people are really not bored with life until they retire.

To instruct voters on ballot marks

Political observers, often wondering about the mental processes of a supposedly intelligent people who cannot remember to place a simple X on a ballot paper at election time, will watch with interest an experiment to be carried out during the present election campaign.

Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay has ordered that special instructions on voting procedures be mailed out to urban voters in 12 federal ridings. These instructions will include a sample ballot and directions as to how it should be marked. If the constituencies selected show a proportion of spoiled ballots substantially below that experienced in the rest of Canada, the system may be extended to other ridings in the next general election.

Urban ridings have been selected for the experiment because voters there already receive in the mail a copy of the list of voters in their polls and thus relatively little extra expense will be involved.

The present system of marking ballots is simplicity itself. The elector merely has to place an X after the name of the candidate of his choice. But in 1962 more than 82,500 ballots were rejected because they were improperly marked, an average of 300 per constituency.

In the vast majority of cases rejected ballots have little bearing on the final result, but in many instances the outcome of an election had depended upon whether certain improperly marked voting slips were accepted or rejected by the judge making a recount.

Proposals have been advanced that the election laws be amended to permit greater latitude on the part of the voters in marking their ballots but it would seem that a man or woman who cannot remember how to make an X would find it difficult to understand any other alternatives that would be allowed.

Urban ridings have been selected for the experiment because voters there already receive in the mail a copy of the list of voters in their polls and thus relatively little extra expense will be involved.

It's nice to see a fellow who is going places unless it's only when his wife is out of town.

L'Evangeline: a unique newspaper

Like most businesses today, the newspaper business in general throughout North America is faced with ever mounting costs. And, like other businesses it is meeting the challenge wherever possible with modernization, and increased efficiency.

But sometimes these efforts, in spite of every attempt, fail. This happened with Montreal's Nouveau Journal, and is happening to newspapers in the United States. The stark fact of business life is that no matter how valuable a newspaper may be, or how desirable its continued existence may appear to its readers, it must operate under the same rules that govern other private businesses.

The French-language daily L'Evangeline is a case in point. Published in Moncton, this newspaper has been called "the Bible and the inspiration of the Acadians." It has a relatively small circulation, 10,000 but it is a wide one, reaching such places as Louisiana and the New England area in some quantity as well as the French-speaking residents of the Maritimes.

It is a non-profit daily, whose purpose is only to serve the Acadian people.

If ever there was a newspaper that was needed by its readers, that was wanted by its readers and that served a purpose in a way nothing else could, L'Evangeline is that newspaper.

Yet, as a business, L'Evangeline is a failure. It has fallen on financial difficulties that are described now as "in the critical stage." To keep it going, French-speaking people all over North America and particularly in Quebec, are rallying to its support. A financial campaign will begin March 18 to raise $150,000 — the amount needed to put the paper back on its feet again. There is every prospect that this goal will be realized.

It is only right that this should be so. L'Evangeline occupies a unique position in the North American newspaper business. It has this advantage over other newspapers which must pay their own way or go under.

Other papers say:

Who speaks for Social Credit party?

The Social Credit movement has become the multi-headed monster of Canadian politics.

Premier Ernest Manning's blunt dismissal of the anti-nuclear views of Mr. Real Caouette, the federal party's deputy leader, makes it quite clear that Social Credit merits neither the confidence nor the respect of the Canadian electorate.

How can a party look for support when it is even more disunited on basic policy than the Conservative party it condemns? Mr. Caouette has airily dismissed the breach between himself and the national leader, Mr. Thompson over the nuclear issue, as being of no importance. This merely illustrates that Mr. Caouette, basking in the admiration of his fellow political primitives from Quebec, is capable of immense self-deception.

Mr. Thompson favors the appointment of a "non-political" parliamentary committee as a means of formulating policy on Canada's nuclear defence.

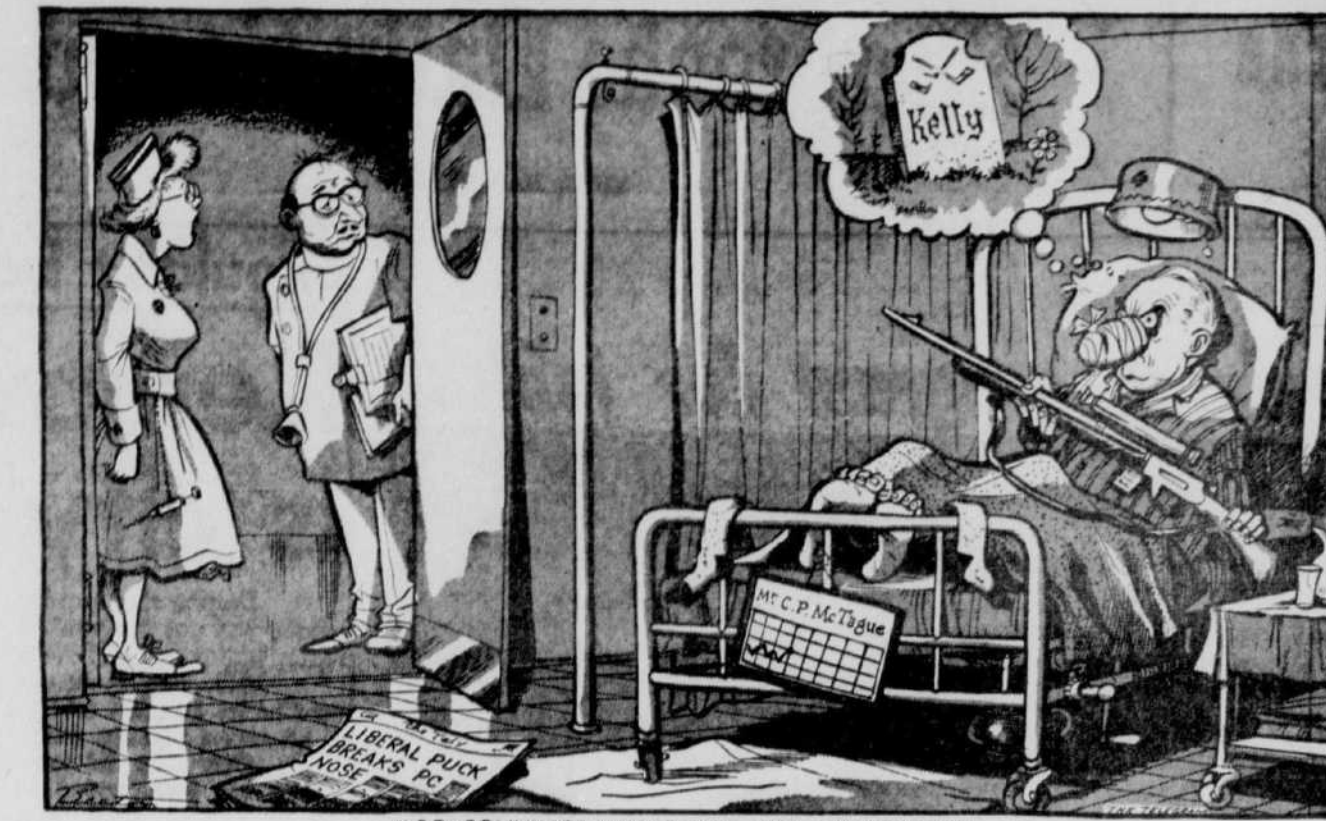

Mr. Caouette flatly rejects nuclear arms for Canada, regardless of what such a committee's decision might be.

And Premier Manning — still the most influential figure in the Social Credit movement — favors co-operation with the United States in the development and use of nuclear weapons for home defence, as well as for Canada's NATO forces abroad.

Although Mr. Thompson is the party's titular national leader, he has been unsuccessful in bringing his unruly deputy into line. This is not surprising in view of the fact that Mr. Caouette's home province of Quebec supplied twenty-six of Social Credit's thirty seats in the last federal Parliament.

But even if Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette were able to reconcile their opposing nuclear views into a coherent form (and Social Credit policies have never been noted for their coherence), the national party is doomed to disunity on purely ideological

Writer is 'a bit old for his years'

Dear Sir:—
Re March 8 page 2 "Death Rate Increases with Car Horsepower."

Mr. Dougherty does seem a bit old for his years — very old indeed — as if he had grown up in the horse and buggy days.

He "appellates" a car, a missile on wheels, a bomb, a high powered rifle, a cruel contraption.

He is not too accurate in his statements, the car pile up he refers to was on the St. Monica Freeway in California, and I can not recall having heard of fatalities.

He would like us to believe that few of the teenagers who survive their 300 h.p. missiles, do so without getting at least crippled.

He states that "compulsory car insurance is actually a reckless driving permit," which is about as convincing as forecasting that people who buy fire insurance are bound to play with matches.

He finally states that the guilty are not getting punished but the innocent — which is true in the breach only.

He mixes generalities with half and quarter truths and false statements — for what purpose may I ask? Is it to educate people so to reverse the death-rate trend?

Well — the article starts off with a wrong statement too, the death rate is actually on the decline. If it is, it is thanks to the untiring efforts and constructive ideas advanced by many people and not due to the type of articles you have had the bad fortune to publish.

Britain in the Bingo Age — 1

Getting something for nothing preoccupation of modern Briton

LONDON —(NEA)— "The Bingo Age" is the phrase coined here for the troubled period through which Britain is passing. It is being blamed for all of Britain's woes.

The term has very little to do with Bingo itself, although this nation is in the grips of gambling fever with well over $2 billion wagered every year.

But the Bingo age refers more to a state of mind — a preoccupation with material comforts, a desire to get something for nothing.

The term embraces the expense account executive, the "little Caesar" shop steward, the worker who goes slow so that he can pile up overtime. It includes the farmer who lives on government subsidies, the stock market speculator, the incompetent industrial manager.

All are being accused of playing Bingo at the nation's expense. As a university lecturer told me recently: "My feeling is that the Romans were probably playing Bingo when they were invaded by the barbarians from the north."

The government counted heavily on Britain's entry into the European Economic Community (E.E.C.) to bring the nation to its senses. Common Market competition would have forced British industry to modernize. It also would have pegged wages to productivity and thus given the nation a coherent income policy.

Now that British membership in E.E.C. has been vetoed by France, Britain must achieve these same objectives by other means.

But before she can modernize and revitalize her economy Britain must first decide what her role in Europe and in Western alliance is to be. In the opinion of those concerned for her future, her people must tear their eyes away from the Bingo score-board long enough to determine where they are going.

Although there is general recognition here that Britain is no longer a great world power in the American-Russian class, her critics say she continues to have great power pretensions.

"President de Gaulle was grounds. Mr. Caouette's views on increasing the money supply go beyond even those of old-line Social Credit theory.

In addition, Mr. Caouette's professed admiration for certain Hitler and Mussolini characteristics can only cause further discomfort to people like Premier Manning who have shown considerable sensitivity over allegations that Social Credit has Fascist tendencies.

Even more damaging is the identification of Mr. Ca-not entirely to blame for breaking off the Common Market negotiations with Britain. A Belgian diplomat told me when I was in Brussels recently.

"The British behaved arrogantly. They went around saying how they would change things once they became a member of the European Community, how they would bring their influence to bear. No wonder De Gaulle got sore."

The evidence is that the British have not only been living beyond their political means, but beyond their economic means. A recent report by the Central Office of Information reveals Britain to be a nation of debtors, whose motto is "Live Now, Pay Later."

The nation's installment plan debt more than doubled in the five years ending in 1961, rocketing from $1,290 million to $2,595 million. The purchase of cars accounts for a large part of this indebtedness.

Although unemployment is steadily increasing, those workers who are in jobs are now earning twice what they were in 1949. And they are spending feverishly.

The amount of money staked on gambling works out to about $39 per head of population. Well over half is placed on horses.

More than 3.5 million Britons now take holidays abroad, where formerly only the well-to-do could afford a continental vacation. They now spend $625 million on travel abroad; in 1950 the figure was $235 million.

Affluence has been accompanied by a general uneasiness. Most Britons appear to feel prosperity cannot last, which may account for some of the frenzied spending.

In a recent opinion poll, 68 per cent of those questioned thought unemployment would increase, while 75 per cent could see no signs their firm was busier now than it was a year ago.

Even more ominous as a no-confidence vote in the future were the 45 per cent of the under-25 generation who said they would like to leave Britain.

ouette's brand of Social Credit with Quebec Nationalism — a movement which is being viewed with increasing apprehension.

Last year, jubilant Social Crediters across the nation hailed the advent of Real Caouette as a white hope for Social Credit's eventual emergence as a national party.

Adolf Eichmann

Talked much, but didn't repent

NEW YORK (AP) — Time and again, the minister pleaded with the condemned man to repent of his wrongdoing, and put his reliance on Christ's forgiveness. But week after week, the man seemed to remain unbudging.

"I do not need a middle man or mediator," he declared. "I go directly to God myself. . . . I don't believe in Jesus Christ."

Yet he wanted to talk about it, to talk and talk. And the minister didn't give up hope.

The man was Adolf Eichmann, the Nazi war criminal executed in Israel last year. For 30 days before he died, a missionary, Rev. William H. Hull, formerly of Winnipeg sought to bring the doomed man to the Christian faith.

During 14 visits, usually of about an hour each, the two conversed. In a new book just published by Doubleday, Hull gives a dramatic, verbatim account of those meetings—The Struggle For a Soul.

"I have my belief in God through nature, and I believe that I am right," insisted Eichmann, the man who sent millions of Jews to death in Poland and Germany in Hitler's wartime regime.

"I see nowhere that Jesus Christ is God's son. It is written in the Bible, but the Bible is written by man, not by scientists or mathematicians. . . . I am satisfied with what I have. I do not worry. Only logic can lead me."

Early in the visits, Eichmann told how he was reared a Christian, but in the 1930s left the church under pressure of the Nazi party.

"I found God my own way through nature when I left the church," he said.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

ABOARD THE CAMPAIGN TRAIN — All across the sodden flatlands of Southern Ontario the crowds that turned out to see and hear the prime minister seemed to vindicate John Diefenbaker's monumental faith in his old election magic.

It had happened this way in 1957. Running second then too, according to the polls, he had confounded the experts by packing the big arena at Victoria, B.C. — and from there he hadn't looked back. Now, after his kickoff at Winnipeg where "they tore down the doors to get in", he is suddenly and surprisingly fighting the election in the old Diefenbaker way, on the offensive, castigating and deriding his foes, and sidestepping or ignoring their criticisms.

For this technique he needs a crest to ride, and he is doing everything in his power to convince himself and the country that he has one. He was delighted to draw 6,000 in big Winnipeg, but ecstatic when he nearly matched that total with 5,000 in little Vineland, Ont. Then Chatham turned out 1500, and Guelph 1800.

To a prime minister defeated in the Commons, harassed by defections, shaken by demands for his resignation, this is balm for the deepest wounds of spirit. He would show them. He would again do the impossible; he would out-truman Truman, and sweep to such a victory as to assure that the name Diefenbaker would go down in history as Canada's centennial prime minister.

He hasn't changed his Winnipeg story, except for local references and announcements. It might be called Diefenbaker's "Essay on the Rise and Fall of the Useless Parliament". It doesn't bear close examination for either accuracy as to fact or logic as to conclusion, but his audiences are neither well informed nor impartially critical. His ironical wit and bombast carry him over questionable points. There is no opportunity for interrogation from the floor. Hecklers get short shrift — overfed, well-dressed young Tories moved in, goon-like, on a lone heckler at Vineland.

John Diefenbaker wooed many a prairie jury with consummate skill. Now the Canadian people are his jury, and he's working on their sympathy, their instinctive tendency to side with the underdog — especially an underdog hard done by.

He's a Truman with "everybody against me but the people". He charges a Liberal smear attack when "a magazine from a foreign country (tried) to destroy me". Political foes, Bay street, the Toronto papers, the opinion polls, the pundits, the U.S. State Department, the Pentagon — they're all against him.

As for the "power-hungry" Liberals: "There was a calculated filibuster — Parliament was being strangled. . . . All they would do was oppose, criticize and refuse to pass the legislation. . . . We had the legislation ready. . . . They wouldn't let us bring it in. . . . They finally slowed down Parliament to a crawl. . . . (and) arranged for the defeat of the government with the assistance of their allies."

But for all the old campaigner's wishfulness, this is not 1957. This a much water over many dams later. His crowds are what one reporter called "calmly enthusiastic". Many in his audiences listen gravely — and sit on their hands.

Men and women work like ants

Life is busy, intense in Lagos

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The capital of Africa's most populous nation lives an intense life amidst a cacophony of sounds and mixture of smells.

From misty dawn until deep into the heavy, tropical night, men and women work like ants in the maze of steamy, dusty streets of Lagos.

In vast markets under thatched roofs, loudspeakers blare "highlife," the popular African dance. Bicycle bells ring and car horns mingle with the shrill voice of barefoot women advertising their products in Hansa, Yomba, Ibo and English.

"Mammy markets" manned exclusively by women sprawl virtually in the shadow of Lagos' gleaming, brand-new skyscraper.

Near Lewis Street, thousands of women have set up food shops in steamy shacks covered by corrugated iron roofs. Blue smoke curls out of makeshift ovens where spicy meals are being prepared. A gutter cuts across the market. Naked children play in filthy water.

With 400,000 inhabitants, Lagos is the nerve centre of the Nigeria Federation which with more than 40,000,000 inhabitants accounts for 15 per cent of Africa's people.

In government building crowded with studios officials, plans for the new nation's economic expansion are being drawn. Every year Nigeria exports more than $500,000,000 worth of rubber, cotton, cocoa, peanuts, pewter and skins.

New industries are being built while oil prospects are attracting free-spending oilmen. In vast parts of the Nigerian interior men still live in bush huts as they did centuries ago. Some wear skins and some walk naked. But in Lagos, the 20th century has brought television sets to stifling shacks.

Modern housing is sprouting on the outskirts. A large, comfortable one-family home with a garden frequently costs the equivalent of $90,000. It can be rented at $800 a month with at least two years' rental in advance.

The city's two new air-conditioned hotels are crowded with visiting dignitaries from other African nations. Nigeria is a power to reckon with and an influential member of the conservative Monrovia bloc.

The capital's European colony, 10,000 strong, consists mainly of Britons. Although many British government officials have left since Nigeria's independence in 1960, many businessmen have arrived since.

Farm Forum Activities

Members of the Brill Farm Forum were entertained by Winston Rhicard, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rhicard, in Knowlton.

After the business meeting, the members listened to the broadcast and expressed the following opinions: The group feels that the community is held together by the rural church. Leadership could be developed by the church through young people's groups, choirs, and encouraging young people to take part in the services.

However above all else, the minister must be interested in the rural community and the rural people. We feel that the church should interest itself in the community wherever the educational background and personality of the minister would be an asset.

Some members felt that Protestant churches will eventually be joined, while other members felt that the churches should be left alone, at least for the present.

The most important functions of the church is the performing of marriages, baptizing, of children, funeral services and to furnish religious instruction. Some members felt that they would like to see ministers make a greater effort to visit people in their homes, especially where there are elderly or sick members of the family.

The topic for the meeting was, The Rural Church. A good discussion period was held and an enjoyable evening spent.

The meeting was opened by Rev. Lokhorst, of the United Church, and closed with prayer by Mr. Eustace, of the Anglican Church.

At the close of the meeting, sugar on snow, was served by Mr. and Mrs. Joyce, assisted by several members.

CREEK

The members of the Farm Forum were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. Raymond Durrell on March 4, when George Allen acted as discussion leader. The subject under discussion was, The Rural Church.

1. All churches regardless of denomination should work together for good of the community, in order to obtain the good will of the people and advance Christ's Kingdom here on earth.

2. Yes, the church should concern itself with any projects that are for the betterment of the community.

3. Yes, we could work more closely together by uniting to carry out different projects. As believers we should work together for one common cause, we have got to educate people to overcome their prejudices, due to differences in ritual and also the ministry.

4. We expect more from the church than we are willing to give back to it, but we feel the Gospel should be preached and Spiritual leadership be given.

Rev. T. J. W. Liggett, of St. James Church, was a guest of the Forum.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the ladies.

PEARSON'S RALLY

quoil later this week to complete their list in ET ridings.

Although less than four weeks until election day there has been a singular lack of active campaigning by any of the parties. A few candidates have held their campaign opening rallies, but these have been drab affairs with no headline speakers.

And committee rooms, which generally flourish in every ward of city ridings and every parish in rural constituencies, have been conspicuous by their absence.

Political organizers attribute this to lack of money. All parties seem to be suffering from this shortage of funds. Organizers claim that their allowances from provincial headquarters have been cut 50 to 90 per cent below those available in 1962, which in itself was an austerity year.

One organizer declared this lack of cash has forced a change of campaign practices. Instead of opening committee rooms five or six weeks before election day, most of them with large staffs, it is planned to delay opening headquarters until nomination day—two weeks before elections. And staffs would be held to the minimum.

"Nobody works for nothing these days," he said. "Our budget will permit us to pay poll workers election day, make one TV broadcast, two newspaper advertisements and rent a store for two weeks. Even to do this we must raise considerable money locally."

And his party is said to be best off financially.

Canada gets first real test today against Czechs

Belt US 10-4 after being down 2-1 in first 23 minutes of game, three tied for lead, use same lineup

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters and goalie Seth Martin, tagged for nine goals in two games, face their first real test of the world hockey championships tonight when they tackle Czechoslovakia, a strong defensive team loaded with talent and picked by many observers to win the world crown from Sweden.

Experts agree the Smokies will have to try a lot harder than they did in defeating the United States 10-4 Monday night to rate much of a chance for the title. After the Czechs, the Canadians must play Sweden and Russia.

The Trail club was behind 2-1 for the first 23 minutes against the inexperienced Americans.

Canada has beaten three of the weak countries in the championship group but hasn't appeared impressive. The Smokies blanked West Germany 6-0 and were behind 3-1 before rallying for an 11-5 victory over East Germany.

COACH SATISFIED

The Canadian found little in their performance against the U.S. to bolster their morale for the Czech battle, but coach Bobby Kromm said he was "well enough satisfied" after the poor first period.

He said he will use the same lineup against the Czechs. In Monday night's game, Kromm replaced forward Norm Lenard with Gerry Peuner, who got a goal, and benched Ed Polles in favor of 205-pounder Ted Maki on defence.

Canada, Czechoslovakia and Sweden are tied for first place, each with six points from three wins and no defeats. Russia is fourth with two wins and one loss for four points.

Finland scored four second-period goals to tie West Germany 4-4 in Monday's Group A game and is in fifth place with three points. The Finns have a win, two losses and a tie. West Germany, East Germany and the United States fill out the standing. West Germany has a tie and three losses while the East Germans and Americans have dropped their three starts.

In addition to tonight's Canada-Czechoslovakia game, starting at 2 p.m. EST, Russia meets East Germany at 7 a.m. and Sweden plays the United States at 11 a.m.

There were these other developments on the world hockey scene:

1. The International Ice Hockey Federation decided to stick by its original decision and compete in the Winter Olympic Games at Innsbruck, Austria, next year. J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, European president of the IIHF, had said hockey might be dropped from the Olympics because of the small distribution of money from television rights.

2. Ahearne warned the West Germans they would have to salute the East German flag should the East Germans win when the two countries meet Saturday. If the West Germans create another flag dispute as they did two years ago, the IIHF "will have to take stern action," Ahearne said. In the 1961 tournament in Switzerland, West Germany lost to East Germany by a 5-0 forfeit after refusing to play rather than chance a defeat that would have meant saluting the East German standard.

U.S. GOALIE BUSY

American goalie Charles Driscoll turned in 49 saves against the Canadians Monday night but he still let 10 goals past him for a total of 29 in almost three games. He was replaced for one period in his initial start.

Veteran Jack McLeod had his best day of the tournament with two goals and two assists to pace the Canadian victory. Addy Tambellini and Hugh McIntyre also scored twice, their goals coming in the third period. Harry Smith, George Ferguson, Harold Jones and Penner scored one each.

The U.S. goals were by Jack Kirrane, Don Norquay, Marshall Tschida and Tom Mustonen.

Ten penalties were called. The Americans drew six including a misconduct to Tschida.

The Smoke Eaters had little to say after the game as they glumly trooped off the ice.

Jones, the big rangy centre, was cornered briefly and reiterated what the Smokies have been saying after each win: "They didn't play as well as they are capable of playing."

Reminded of this, Jones said: "Yes, I know. But the chips will be down tomorrow night. If we don't do better we'll be in trouble."

The Smokies had their hands full when they tied the Czechs 1-1 in the 1961 world tournament. Canada and Czechoslovakia finished that year in a points-tie for first place, each with six wins and a tie, but the Smokies took the crown on the higher goal spread—the difference between goals scored and goals allowed. The same system will be used to pick the winner here if the tournament should again end in a deadlock.

Canada played the Czech world entry twice this year in exhibition games and was beaten 3-1 and 3-2.

The quiet toss vs. rock buster

Have you ever had a six-end scored against you when you were coasting along with a comfortable two or three-point lead over your opponents? The psychological shock resulting from such a catastrophe does little but dissolve your team into a nervous, unsteady group of spectators, sweat-covered rocks and fairly green ice, is often a far cry from playing on the dry, cold surface of artificial ice in a curling club. Experience in playing under such adverse conditions is a necessary task-master; otherwise it takes a courageous skip to alter his strategy and play to meet changing conditions brought on by a gummy surface.

This subject comes to mind after watching the Manitoba Consols playoff at the Winnipeg Arena a while back. With-out apparent reason the ice developed a sticky, treacherous surface that had the competing skips scratching their skulls in agonizing attempts to figure out the broom and weight required for a take-out or even for a well-placed draw.

A hack-weight removal had the skip yelling "Whoa!" as the rock left the player's hand, then suddenly a frantic scream of "Hurry! Hurry!" would rend the air when the moving rock unexpectedly made a curving lunge for the side ice.

Curling in a hockey arena, with its attendant humidity switching to a hitting game when Maple Leaf rocks began to appear on each side of the rings. This strategy, with its consequent clean misses on the treacherous surface, only allowed Lerner the reprieve of drawing more of his granites into the circles.

It is the big ends that kill you in curling. Manitoba's Brier representative this year subscribes to that theory. In one match he scored on only four of the 12 ends to win without having to finish the final end.

Manitoba's Brier rep. often used the strategic subterfuge of drawing in behind a shot ordered in front of the rings by an opposing skip. This deployment of his rocks worked to great advantage on this type of ice and set up several good-sized ends.

"Hersh" employed this manoeuvre more often when he was a few points in arrears, but it would have been excellent strategy no matter what the scoreboard said.

By a quirk of fate conjured up by ice conditions, Manitoba sends a good chap and lie team into the Canadian Championship at Brandon next week, leaving several good-hitting teams at home. But will Brier ice this year shower its favors on the quiet stone-tossing style of play or on those who rely on the rock busters? Next week will tell.

Speakers heard on career night at Boundary

ROCK ISLAND — Careers Conference Night took place on March 6, and in spite of one of the late winter's worst storms, there were two speakers from Montreal and one from Magog, and a large number of High School students from Magog, and Ayer's Cliff, Sunnyside School and Stanstead College.

L. R. Daoust, management co-ordinator of a Montreal firm spoke to the students on the subject of retailing, while in another room, Harold Hutcheon, an officer from the Dorval Weather Bureau, spoke to the groups on meteorology. Both speakers noted the requirements in either career, and of the advantages given to each one eligible, through courses and attending night school.

B. Hodge, principal of Princess Elizabeth High School, at Magog, spoke on teaching, and the requirements of education desired to become a teacher.

In the absence of a speaker from the Sherbrooke Institute of Technology, two students of the school, Albert Beasse and Bruce Chamberlain, spoke to the High school boys and girls on the advantages of technology courses; they emphasized the importance of completing Grade 11 if possible, they also told about the trade school, which is for students with lesser education than Grades 10 and 11.

Other speakers unable to attend because of difficult highway transportation were, Dr. C. D. Smith, Bishop's University, Captain J. P. Desrochers, Canadian army representative, Miss Clara Aitkenhead, superintendent of the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Afterward everyone assembled in the cafeteria, where Dr. Kathleen Harper assisted by members of her teaching staff, served refreshments.

Election called during biggest election crisis in years

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — This year's election battle was born amid the drama of the biggest political crisis Canada has seen in more than a generation.

The Progressive Conservative government was defeated in the Commons — the second such event since Confederation. A palace revolt against the prime minister arose and was quelled in thinly veiled secrecy. Three cabinet ministers resigned in a bitter policy dispute that shook the cabinet.

All this was packed into a week of fast-moving events that Liberal Leader Pearson later summed up as "seven days that have shaken our world."

Even Prime Minister Diefenbaker, a few hours after the pre-election dissolution of Parliament, conceded he had been through "strenuous, difficult and trying" times. Those words were spoken before the crisis had fully developed—before two of the three cabinet resignations had occurred.

Seeds of the mid-winter political explosion were sown last June 18 when Canada's voters, in a mood of indecision, put a minority Progressive Conservative government into office.

The House of Commons that assembled Sept. 27 was promptly dubbed a "house of minorities" by Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson.

DEFEAT INEVITABLE

It appeared certain that sooner or later the three opposition parties, despite quarrels among them, would join forces in a Commons vote that could overwhelm the minority Conservative party.

That finally happened, on the night of Tuesday, Feb. 5, in the midst of a national debate on the vital issue of whether to put nuclear warheads on $700,000,000 worth of Canadian nuclear carriers.

The government didn't fall on the nuclear issue alone. It could be argued that the issue wasn't even directly involved. But the emotion-laden nuclear question ran like a connecting thread through most of the crisis-period events.

The April 8 election will likely decide many questions, but two of the most important are:

1. What will be Canada's future policy on nuclear weapons?

2. Will a majority government or another minority administration be formed from members of the next 26th Parliament?

The vote last June 18 reduced Conservative strength in the 265-seat Commons to 116, wiping out what had been the largest government majority since Confederation. Five cabinet members were defeated. One hundred Liberals were elected—the election of one was later declared void—together with 30 Social Crediters and 19 New Democratic members.

Within a week a snowballing foreign exchange crisis reached a head with the June 24 announcement of an emergency "austerity" program. Earlier, on May 3, the Canadian dollar had been devalued and its exchange rate pegged at 92½ U.S. cents.

Mid-August brought the biggest cabinet shuffle since the Conservatives took office in 1957. In the major moves, Donald Fleming was switched from finance to justice minister, George Nowlan from revenue to finance, and David Fulton from justice to public works.

Even before Parliament met Sept. 27, the Liberals were championing at the bit for a chance to defeat the government in Parliament. But for this they needed support from both other opposition groups, and neither Social Credit nor the NDP appeared eager for election battle.

During the session, Social

Credit provided the key support for the Conservatives on five out of seven confidence votes. But the support was less than unanimous.

In one test of strength Nov. 6, two Social Crediters voted against the government and deputy leader Real Caouette led four others in abstaining. The government squeaked through 13 votes ahead.

UPSET RULINGS

That was one danger sign for the government. A more pronounced sign came Jan. 31 when all opposition parties joined to upset rulings by Speaker Marcel Lambert and force an emergency defence debate which the government opposed.

Though the session showed some progress in legislation passed, the government's financial program bogged down. After long debates the House voted interim spending authority on a month-to-month basis, but not a single item in the government's spending program for the 1962-63 fiscal year was approved. The government presented neither a 1963-64 spending program nor a new budget—it said last year's spending should first be approved.

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberals of deliberate obstruction; of having boasted they would bring the government to its knees by withholding funds.

Mr. Pearson denied the accusation, and charged that the government was "indecisive, confused, bungling and lacking in leadership."

The beginning of the end came early in January when the retiring NATO commander, Gen. Lauris Norstad told an Ottawa press conference that Canada wouldn't be fulfilling its NATO commitment until it accepted nuclear warheads in Europe.

Events moved faster following a Commons speech Jan. 25 by Prime Minister Diefenbaker on defence policy.

Though he left some questions unanswered, in essence he made two main points. For Canada's NORAD forces at home, negotiations were going ahead with the U.S. to have nuclear warheads readily available—presumably on U.S. soil—in case of need. As for nuclear warheads for Canadian NATO forces in Europe, a decision would be postponed until after a NATO meeting here in May when Canada would "undertake a clarification of our role."

Three days later Defence Minister Douglas Harkness issued a statement saying the prime minister had clearly enunciated a pro-nuclear policy. The opposition said Mr. Harkness had contradicted Mr. Diefenbaker and suggested he resign. Mr. Harkness denied any contradiction.

On Wednesday, Jan. 30, the U.S. state department issued a press statement criticizing Canada's defence policy and taking issue with some of Mr. Diefenbaker's Jan. 25 statements. Rumors flooded Ottawa that the prime minister might call an election on the issue. Next day Mr. Diefenbaker in the Commons called the U.S. statement an "unwarranted intrusion" in Canadian affairs. The same view was taken by the three opposition party leaders.

Growing tension filled the Commons galleries daily. Mr. Harkness dismissed a report that he would resign as "ridiculous speculation."

On Friday, Feb. 1, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk issued an apology for the tone of his department's original statement, but stood by its assertions of fact.

That appeared to rile Mr. Diefenbaker even more. He paid a surprise visit to Governor-General Vanier amid rumors Parliament would be dissolved, but that didn't happen.

Then, the next Sunday, Mr. Harkness privately handed his resignation to Mr. Diefenbaker and announced it next day, saying his views and the prime minister's on nuclear weapons were "irreconcilable."

The Commons began on Monday, Feb. 4, the two-day supply debate that was to end in the government's defeat.

'Pearson Liberal' is a key man in party

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — As Keith Davey sees it, there are left and right wings in political organization as in politics itself.

By his own standards he is left of centre. And this self-styled "Pearson Liberal" is in a top-level workhorse position in the party where he can and does make this influence felt, even to the point of sometimes evoking old-guard hostility.

The Davey influence is considerable.

It springs from the small, young group — including Paul Hellyer and Judy LaMarsh who became MPs — who literally seized control of the party's Ontario organization after the Liberal defeat in the 1957 federal general election.

From there, Keith Davey left his job as advertising salesman for Foster Hewitt's radio station CKFH Toronto and moved into Liberal party headquarters in Ottawa at the personal behest of Lester B. Pearson in May, 1961.

Now, at 36, he puts in a frantic 18 hours a day directing the Liberal election effort under three titles.

SCIENTIFIC APPROACH

As national Liberal organizer, he is responsible directly to Mr. Pearson. As national campaign director, he works with campaign committee chairman Walter Gordon, MP for Toronto and in summation, Terry Grier's world is a hectic one.

It's a long way from Lennoxville, Que., where his father was head master at Bishop's College School while he was a student. Later both father and son moved to the University of Toronto, the older Grier in an administrative role, Terry as a student of political science and economics.

After graduation in 1958, he worked for two years as an economist with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, returning to university in 1960 to earn his master's degree with a thesis on relations between the individual and the state.

The second year on the Toronto campus produced his interest in what then was the CCF party. He became closely tied into the campus CCF club along with Russel Irwin, now NDP research director; Stephen Lewis, son of MP David Lewis, and John Brewin, son of MP Andrew Brewin.

He stepped into the Ottawa office in May, 1960. He is married, with one child.

Davenport in the last House. As executive director of the Liberal federation, he reports to Senator John Connolly of Ottawa, federation president.

"In the final analysis I'm responsible to Mr. Pearson in all three jobs."

Pacing the floor of his office here—"it gets to the point where you can only relax when you're working"—he elaborated on the lefts and rights of party organization.

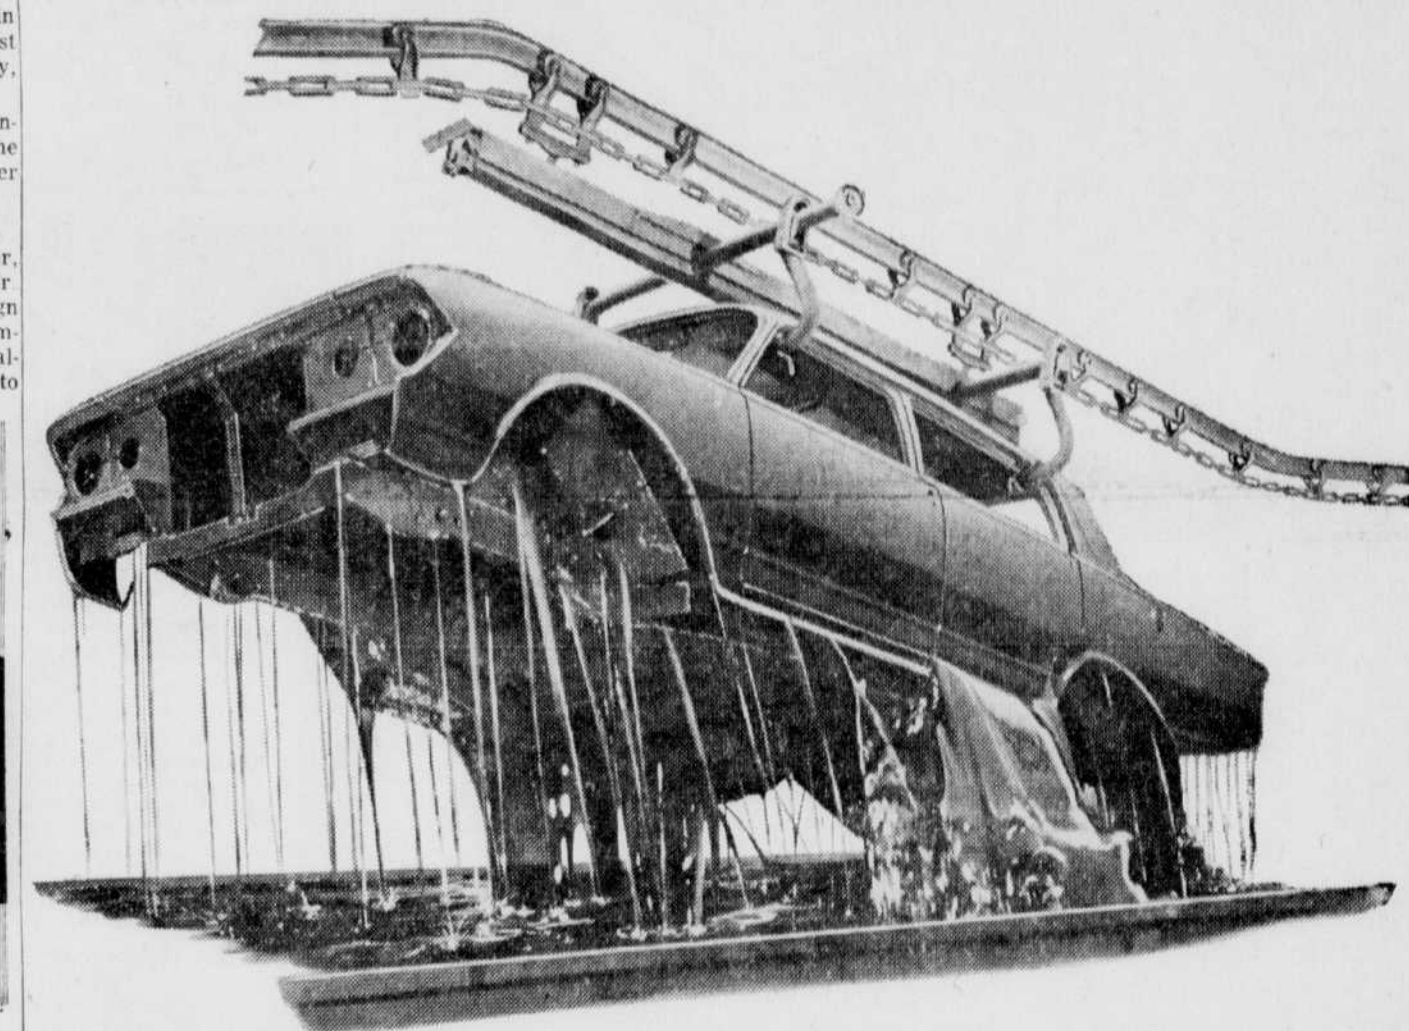

"The left says that in 1963 there are modern devices one can use for political organization. The right distrusts these; it wants to use intuition."

He cited three cases in point: The left uses motivational research. He said that while some fear that an unscrupulous party would find out what the people really want and then pledge itself accordingly, "I'm sure this would never happen under Pearson."

In one use of this Madison Avenue technique, the Liberals in Alberta found the party often was regarded as an Eastern party. To offset this, literature entitled "Western issues" now is being distributed.

RIDINGS ANALYSED Another not-so-new approach: Elaborate, detailed "voting studies." He said the Liberals now have all 263 federal constituencies analysed to the point where they are weighed for Liberal strength and put on a priority list, "so that if we were to win 190 seats I would know which ones they would be."

Third point in the left-hand column: Pre-election instruction for candidates and key constituency workers. More than 600 men and women have gone through Ontario "clinics" and "colleges," now being dupli-

Rustproofing?

We spill more than others use—to keep your Rambler young for years

Canadian winters can very quickly turn your car into the wallflower of the used car lot. Rust and corrosion take years off a car's value. We've seen figures that say it can cost you up to $100 a year in repair bills.

Rambler checks rust and corrosion before it starts. Here's how:

GALVANIZING For 1963 all Ramblers have 75% more galvanized metal than before. This is concentrated in critical areas such as the rocker panels which are constantly exposed to salt.

DEEP-DIP The entire car body is submerged into six separate tanks. Each time, a solution cleans, scours and prepares the surface of the metal.

PRIMER DIP The car is dipped again, right up to the roof, in rustproofing primer paint. It gets more rustproofing than any other Canadian car. (And we spill, literally, more than others use.) The body then receives a second primer which is sprayed on. Well over 15 pounds of rustproofing primer now coat the steel. After this, the primer paint is baked on.

TRIPLE ENAMELLING A chip-resistant, salt-resistant super enamel is sprayed and baked on. A second and third coat follow immediately, then are baked to a durable gloss.

SEALING A corrosion-inhibiting wax compound is sprayed inside girders, rocker panels and fenders. A sealer compound is also sprayed on critical underbody areas to provide additional protection.

Sounds elaborate? It is. This process makes your Rambler the most completely rustproofed car in the world. It cuts depreciation, rust-out repairs and repainting costs. And it keeps your Rambler a pleasure to behold, years longer. Cometime for a new Rambler, you'll be amazed at your trading power. For a run-down on all the Rambler features that give "maximum usefulness to the user," see your nearest dealer soon.

No. 1 publicity man

At 26, he is one of NDP's top organizers

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — "You age quickly in this business," says Terry Grier.

At 26, and only three years off the campus, he is heading into his second federal election in a top organizational role with the New Democratic Party.

He's the party's national secretary—a catch-all title that makes him, in effect, the youngest in the select group of Ottawa's political image-makers.

Terry Grier moved into the NDP hot seat last fall after serving as assistant to Carl Hamilton, who left to study law at the University of Toronto. But unlike his predecessor, the new secretary works alone.

Net result is that he is chief NDP organizer, No. 1 publicity man and financial overseer. All of this takes about 18 hours a day, with roughly one weekend off in four.

Working from a small but uncluttered office in Woodsworth House about 10 blocks from Parliament Hill, Terry Grier has part of his burden lightened by the party structure which he describes as more decentralized than the other parties, putting more responsibility on provincial party workers.

TO SPEND $650,000 Working in the same house are a research director and a director of women's activities. "What they don't do, I do," Mr. Grier told a reporter. He writes campaign pamphlets, designs posters, handles all but the technical side of TV productions, keeps long-distance phone circuits buzzing in a search for election candidates, directs national-level organization, plans Leader T. C. Douglas's campaign, tries to raise money, oversees administration.

Why the overload? It is attributed by Mr. Grier and others to lack of party funds. Despite income from trade unions, the NDP is making public appeals for money—by advertising in newspapers in some provinces, and even passing the hat at campaign meetings.

Mr. Grier estimates his party will spend $650,000 in the campaign for the April 8 election, including about $100,000 at the national level and $475,000 in the constituencies.

This is about the same as in 1962, he says. But Mr. Douglas made clear at a recent press conference that this isn't exactly cash on hand.

"We're fighting this election on bank loans," he said.

MORE TV CAMPAIGNING Mr. Grier says the money may be spent differently this time—a bigger slice going for television. This decision results partly from "the certain knowledge that the Liberals will flood the air."

This year the NDP will have one national campaign pamphlet, with possibly another on nuclear warheads. In comparison, the Liberals in 1962 turned out about 15 different titles.

While admiring the Liberal and Conservative products from an organizer's point of view, Mr. Grier adds: "I don't think people read that kind of stuff." He regards as most difficult the job of keeping up to date on the issues, as the electorate sees them. To aid this task the NDP has named key men across the country—besides provincial organizers—with whom Mr. Grier will be in almost SECOND GUESSING THE LIBERALS — Terry Grier, 26-year-old national secretary of the New Democratic Party, says NDP will spend more money on television during the April 8 federal election campaign. (CP Photo).

Letter to our Suppliers:

The items and premium prices shown in the advertisement are the same as those set forth in our Market Price List No. 4, dated Feb. 5, 1963. This price list goes into effect on February 23, 1963. It will remain in effect as long as possible. We can see no reason for a change until the end of June in as much as we shall be needing about 2,000,000 feet of Cedar between now and then, at the rate of 500,000 feet per month. Our requirements should continue at least at the same rate after July 1st.

All of you who have been cutting Cedar for us and using our Market Price List No. 1, 2, or 3 should try to bring your Cedar in to us before February 23, 1963. If this is not possible, please notify us so that we can scale it in the woods. In most cases this price list carries the same or higher prices than those previously issued. There is no objection to anyone holding back his Cedar and taking advantage of the new prices.

Sincerely yours,
CONCORD WOODWORKING CO. LTD.
James A. McVetty, Manager.

Dear Mr. McVetty,

We are very pleased that your company chose the town of Bury in which to locate your Cedar Fence Plant. We are sure that you will like our town and the area around it. There is a great deal of Cedar in and about Bury and for many years there has been very small demand for it.

We have studied the schedule of Cedar that you plan to purchase as well as the prices you plan to pay for it. They are fair and should yield a good return to timber owners and woods operators. Therefore, we know that you will have a great many people wanting to furnish you with Cedar according to your requirements.

You can depend on us as well as the people of this area to cooperate and work with you. The fact that your company is located here should do a great deal for the local economy.

Very truly yours,
INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE OF BURY
Chairman, Raoul Turcotte.

Townships women observe World Day of Prayer

BEDFORD

The World Day of Prayer was held on Friday evening, March 1, in St. James Church in conjunction with the women of the Wesley United Church.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Alfred Nicholson, president of St. James Woman's Auxiliary.

Among the leaders in the service were Mrs. Alex MacArthur, president of the United Church Women, Mrs. Jack Patton, Miss Vernal, Mrs. John Ewing, Miss Lottie Casey, Mrs. M. S. McCaw. Others taking part were Mrs. Allan Palmer, Mrs. Adolphus Greenwood, Mrs. R. W. Craighead, Mrs. Otis Blair and Mrs. Richard Craighead.

The address was given by Mrs. Eric Kemp, on the theme, More Than Conquerors. Mrs. Kemp also gave a brief history of Mrs. David Chung, of Seoul, who prepared this year's service.

The collection, taken by Mrs. George Harland and Mrs. William MacArthur, was received by Mrs. M. S. McCaw.

The closing hymn was The Day Thou Gavest.

BEEBE

The World Day of Prayer Service was held in St. James' Church on March 1.

An inspiring address was given by the Rev. Roy Peirce, rector of the church. Mr. Peirce who spent some time in Korea, told of the persecution of the Christians in that country and of the strong faith and courage of those people.

Ladies from the Advent Christian Church, Wesley United and Graniteville United churches took part in the service, along with those of All Saints' Church.

BURY

There was a very good attendance at the United Church when the two churches united for a joint service for the World Day of Prayer, March 1.

Mrs. A. Sutherland and Mrs. R. Ross were the leaders: Mrs. MacRae was organist; Mrs. E. Morrison and Mrs. R. MacLeod received the collection, which was very generous.

Mrs. Sutherland gave a reading of the work done in Korea.

Following the service, light refreshments were served in the Sunday School room and a happy hour enjoyed.

COOKSHIRE

The World Day of Prayer service for young people was held in the auditorium of the High School on March 1, with the students participating.

The service was held in two parts. Grades 1-7 held theirs at 9 a.m., and Grade 8-11 theirs at 10:30 a.m.

There was a good collection, to be added to that of the ladies' group, which met at 10:30 a.m.

Couple feted at South Durham

SOUTH DURHAM—A surprise 35th anniversary party was held for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Henderson at their home.

The guests were from Montreal, Richmond and South Durham.

Some of the men played cards and everyone visited Mr. Henderson, who was confined to his room by illness.

Later lunch was served.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

EAST IS CAGEY BUT IN VAIN

My son Jim tells me that as I get older I have a tendency to bid with the delicacy of a sledgehammer.

So, if you don't approve of my three no-trump rebid, I won't argue, although I do feel that it was the best bid at my disposal after my partner responded two diamonds to my opening heart.

After his jump to five hearts I was mildly interested in seven and chose my six club bid to see if he could bid six diamonds. When he merely returned to six hearts I settled for a safe contract.

The jack of clubs opening was friendly. If West had opened a diamond I might still be studying my play, but with the club opening six was easy.

I won with the queen after East played low, ruffed a club with the king of hearts, since I could afford it, and drew trumps.

Then I led my jack of diamonds and it held. At this point it appeared that I was going to make seven. The diamond finesse had worked. All I had to do was to repeat it and discard my jack of spades on a third diamond.

Fortunately for my future peace of mind, I remembered that just because a finesse worked the first time it might not work the second and that I had bid six, not seven. I won the second diamond with the ace and was very pleased when

'New Frontier' touches being added

UK Labor party gets a JFK look

LONDON (CP)—Britain's Labor party is getting a "Kennedy look" as it regroups for a new shot at political power after 12 years in opposition.

The process started with the election of pipe-smoking Harold Wilson, at 46 only one year older than President Kennedy. And there are reports that Wilson is thinking of adding a few other "New Frontier" touches, such as the appointment of an advisory brains trust.

Just as Kennedy has surrounded himself with bright young men from Harvard, so Wilson would draw on high-domed talent from British universities and industries.

With the general election expected either this October or in the spring of 1964, every step taken by the two Harolds—Wilson and Prime Minister Macmillan—is being scrutinized in terms of the coming power struggle.

Opinion polls now give Labor the edge over the Conservatives and there is a growing disposition to make Wilson the favorite to be Britain's next prime minister.

The election of the comparatively youthful Wilson to fill the vacancy caused by the Jan. 18 death of Hugh Gaitskell has already had an impact in conservative ranks.

Only a few days after Wilson's victory over deputy leader George Brown, six British newspapers carried speculative stories about Tory unrest over Macmillan's leadership.

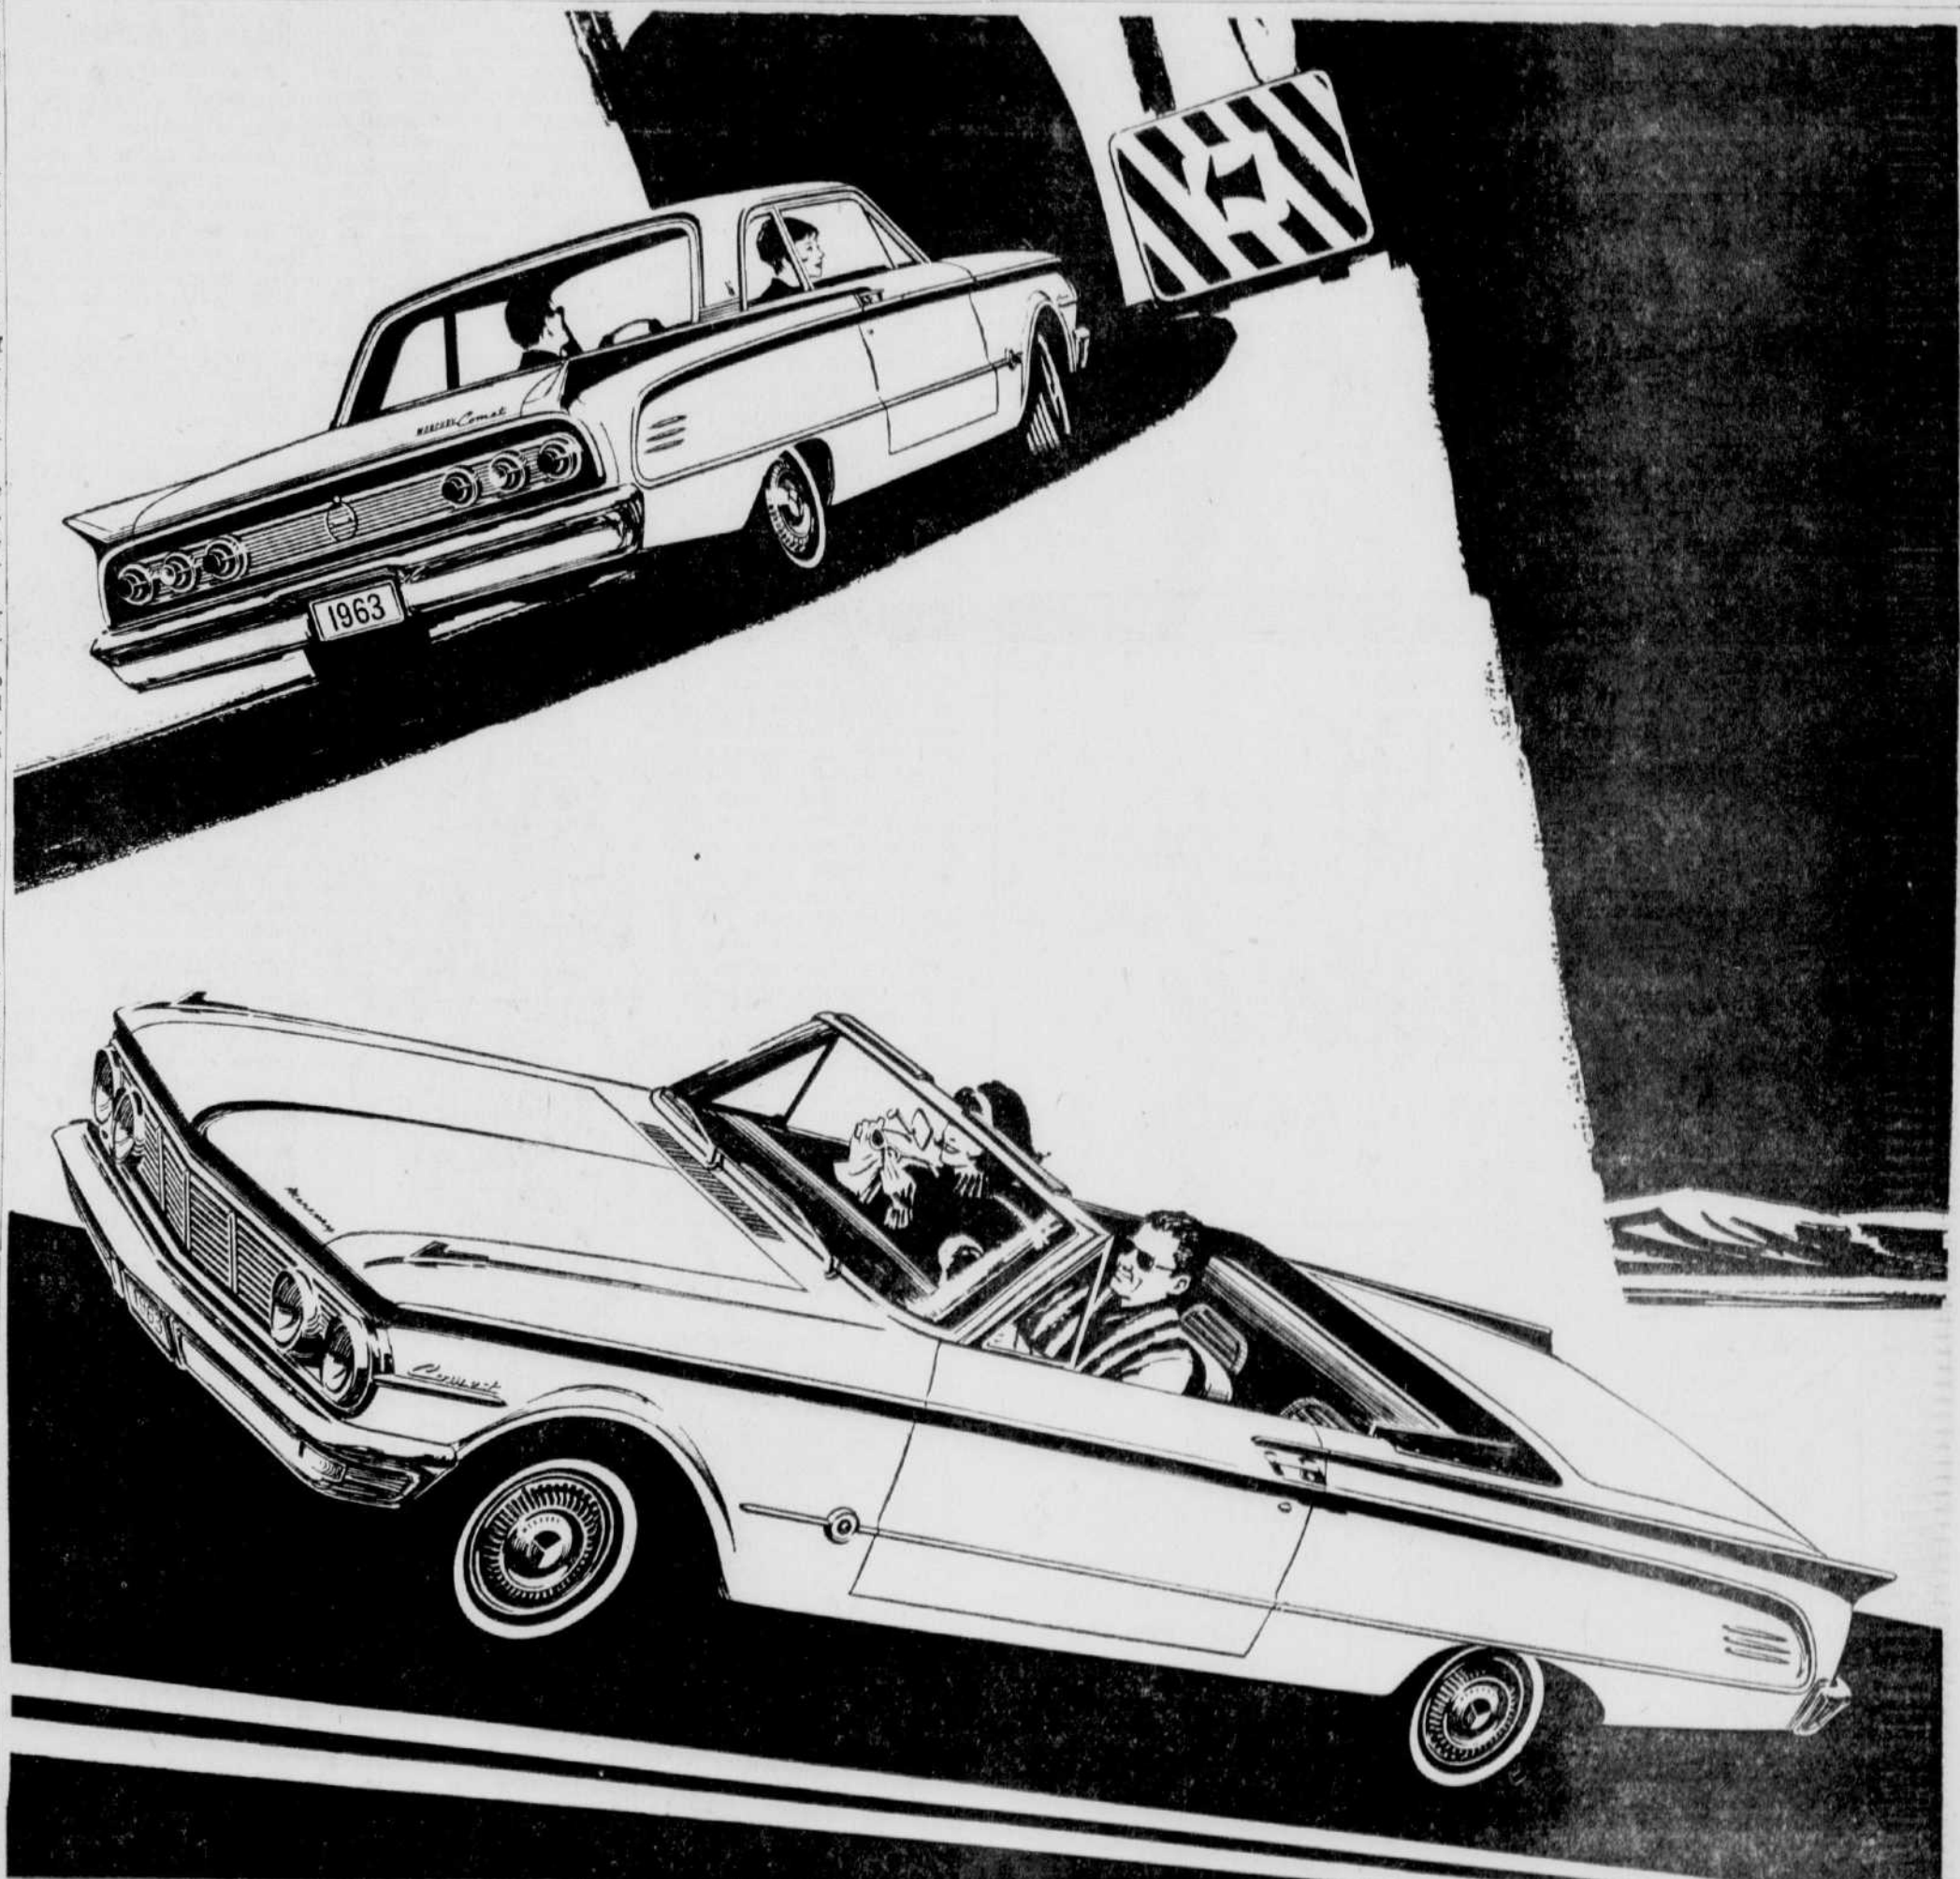

With remarkable unanimity, the papers said some backbenchers were wondering whether Macmillan, in his 70th year, had the vigor and drive needed to give Britain a new impetus after her exclusion from the Common Market.

The papers suggested that the struggle for the succession in the Conservative party is narrowing down to a duel between Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, 46, and Reginald Maudling, 46, chancellor of the exchequer, 46 in March. In both cases, the attraction of youth was cited as an asset in the keep-up-with-the-Kennedys era.

Macmillan has had a tough winter. Even the most loyal Tory supporter will admit that things have been going badly in March. But few observers feel that Unflappable Mac is likely to quit under fire, and the Conservative party is notoriously reluctant to show outright disloyalty to a leader. Palace revolutions are rare. If Macmillan is looking for consolation, he can find it in the fact that what might be called middle-of-the-road opinion is hardly working up any great enthusiasm for Wilson, either.

A la mode

by Nora Martin

PARIS — This spring and summer you will shift yourself into fashion.

The fashion greats, Christobal Balenciaga and Hubert de Givenchy, have now said the final word on Paris styles. And their dictum is that shaped shirts or shorts are the 1963 ultimate in Paris chic.

Balenciaga and Givenchy are the two mavericks of the Paris fashion world. Instead of showing their new spring styles in January like everybody else, they whistle the press and fashion experts back to Paris one month later. And the fact that many people take the trip again just to see these two shows would indicate that they are worth seeing. Both designers clothes which besides being beautiful, are also wonderfully easy to wear.

Seeing a fashion parade at Balenciaga and Givenchy means looking at the clothes best-dressed women will wear next season. At Givenchy, I even saw Audrey Hepburn who is, with Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, among his favorite clients.

The essence of the clothes I saw is the essence of good taste and elegance. Their fundamentals style is nonchalance based on simplicity. They make young girls look elegant and elegant women look young. And they are cut to feel absolutely comfortable.

Straight Back

The leit-motive in both fashion shows is the shift, falling straight at the back and slightly shaped to the bust and waist in front through intricate cut and seams. This style appears on coats, coat-dresses and dresses which sometimes are actually elongated shirts complete with shirt-collars and shift-cuffs. Suits, too, show the straight back and curved-in front on the jackets teamed with short, straight skirts. A very narrow, thong-like belt in self fabric or in patent leather is used on some suits to hold lightly the straight, loose jacket.

Another practical side of these new styles by Balenciaga and Givenchy is that you can get a similar look with clothes bought off-the-peg by using some of the tricks I saw here on these expensive Paris originals.

At Balenciaga, for instance, I noted that most coats were shown about one inch shorter than the dresses they covered. This looks casual and sporty, even if the coat does not match the dress. Shift tunics also gave a peek of an under-skirt, except one cocktail tunic which showed chiffon pantalets with jeweled garters under its above-the-knees hemline.

If you are against the shift as being too stark and undressed, Balenciaga proposes coat-dresses buttoned through in front for added interest. They come in navy-blue wool or pale tweed with sleeves for street-wear, in printed silk and sleeveless for dressy occasions.

I also noted that Balenciaga showed wrist-length white kid gloves as a refreshing change after the longer, classic gloves, even for formal evening wear.

Givenchy's most delightful style is the floor-length chemise, buttoned through in front like a coat-dress and usually sleeveless. Call it hostess-dress, patio-robe or at-home gown outfit for spring and summer evenings should be high on your list when shopping for new clothes. Givenchy shows these long gowns in linen, in printed silk and even in a crinkled synthetic fabric.

P.S.: Navy-blue wool, white or brown linen, creamy tweeds will be the newest daytime fabrics. Geranium pink, yellow and white will be colors a la mode for evening.

For the modern Western homemaker

Curry is a dish from ancient Eastern times

Curry is a dish from ancient Eastern times with a two-fold appeal for the modern Western homemaker.

Besides adding a dash of flair to the weekly menu, it offers a simple solution to the old problem of what to do with the rest of the week-end roast.

Here is a new lamb curry recipe that is both economical and quick and easy to make. If desired, it can be prepared in advance and then heated in a double boiler or chafing dish at serving time.

The suggested amount of curry powder — one tablespoon — will give you a "gourmet" or fairly hot curry. For a milder flavored curry, reduce the amount of curry powder to two teaspoons.

CALCUTTA CURRIED LAMB
3 slices rindless side bacon, cut in small pieces
1/2 cup sliced celery
1 medium-sized onion finely chopped
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
1 cup milk

2 chicken bouillon cubes
1/2 cup sweetened apple-sauce
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cups cubed cooked lamb.

Fry bacon in frypan or chafing dish until crisp; add celery and onion; stir and cook over medium heat for five minutes. Remove from heat; add flour, curry powder and salt; combine thoroughly.

Stir in water and milk; add bouillon cubes. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add remaining ingredients; cover and simmer for ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve over hot fluffy rice. Makes about five servings.

With the curried lamb and rice, serving condiments in separate dishes. Some suggested condiments are chutney, coconut and raisins to be sprinkled on the curry as desired.

A new version of an ancient Eastern dish is this Calcutta Curried Lamb. Suggested condiments to be sprinkled on the curry are chutney, raisins and coconut.

Has more than her share of problems

EDMONTON (CP) — Leora Smithson has more than her share of problems.

She also has more than her share of letters to write—she is in business as a letter writer.

Her talent with a pen has been called upon by persons from 16 to 60 since she advertised in an Edmonton newspaper.

She says of her work: "I take on their worries when I write for them. I become involved. I can't help it."

People come to her small apartment to discuss their problems and how they can be handled. Some of the people who consult the tall, slim and sensitive scribe are new Canadians who haven't mastered the language.

But most are young people whom she describes as "inexperienced and needing help."

Often simply talking their problems over is a great help, says Miss Smithson. She gives her advice on how a subject should be approached and how the letter should be written.

After her customer leaves, Miss Smithson starts trying to put the person's wishes into words.

MAY TAKE HOURS

In a few minutes she may have completed a simple letter of application but it may take hours of concentration to write a letter on a touchy family problem.

"They're all different and all most confidential," she explains.

A few days later the customer returns to check the letter. He may write it again in his own hand or Miss Smithson may do the handwriting.

The charge for her service averages about $2 but varies according to the time taken. Generally she writes two letters a day.

"I've been very fond of writing letters since I was a child," she says, and adds that she carries on a wide correspondence of her own.

Knowing that her letters often help is a great satisfaction and customers frequently come back to tell her the results.

Chefs will "cross steel" in cooking contest

Chefs from Quebec's well-known hotels, restaurants, clubs and institutions will "cross steel" in a gourmet cooking and tasting competition, to be held in conjunction with the 1963 Quebec Culinary Art Salon, March 12-15, in Montreal's Show Mart.

The colourful contest is expected to be a major attraction to the over 100,000 visitors anticipated at this year's salon and will be featured on an open raised stage, each afternoon during the Salon, from 2:00 to 8:00 p.m.

Competitors will be required to wear the traditional white jacket apron and chef's hat and must provide their own utensils.

Judging will be based on the quality of the preparation and presentation, as well as the taste of the dish. During judging all entries will be identified by number only, without any clue as to the identity of the chef. Contest rules forbid any contestant to identify himself as a participant, either through advance publicity or other means.

During the first day of the contest, all participants will be required to prepare the classic gourmet dish, "Filet of Dore, Duglere."

Semi-finalists, selected among this group, on a point system, will compete the following day in the preparation of "Lamb Scallops, Clarmart."

As a final test of their culinary skills, the four remaining competitors, on the last day of the contest, will be required to prepare a "Duckling a l'Orange."

During the contest a commentator will describe all aspects of the recipes, the preparation of the dishes and the contest.

The four winners will be proclaimed on the spot at the close of the contest and will receive one of the trophies up for competition: The Prosper - Montagne Cup, the Charles Schneider Trophy, The Provincial Restaurant Association Trophy and the Georges Vernet Trophy.

The contest is directed by well-known Montreal Chef Abel Banquet.

PERT POODLE—Mademoiselle Monique, aspiring "ballerina" of London is scarcely modest about her wardrobe and her ability in the terpsichorean world. The proudest poodle shows off a new scarlet tutu and head bow. This brings to five the number of colorful ballet costumes now owned by Mam'selle. Her public appearances have been restricted to meetings of the London branch of the National Ballet Guild. (CP Wirephoto).

$1,000 granted by council for Waterloo library

WATERLOO — Optimism for the Public Library Association was felt by the directors at the meeting on March 5.

With the formation of a bilingual library, increased interest is shown by the people, young and old. A very definite proof of this enthusiasm was the report by Windsor Holloway, pro-mayor, that the town council had granted $1,000 to the association, with the stipulation that this money be spent only on books only and any necessary shelves to place them.

A. J. Buckland, president, opened the meeting. Miss Sylvia Poirier, secretary, read a letter from Pierre Matte, requesting the full particulars of the plans for establishing a bilingual library, in order that the necessary grants might be obtained.

Mrs. Harry Lucia was appointed librarian.

It was decided to have a special drive for membership with Mrs. H. P. Bonnick, vice-president, in charge. Mrs. Bonnick will choose her own committee.

J. M. Cardial, treasurer, was named chairman of the Fund Raising Campaign. The funds are to be used for operating expenses and to assist in paying off the debt for the renovations to the ground floor. This is now a children's section and furnace room.

Funds are also required for redecorating. The campaign will start not later than April 6, and it is hoped to be completed on or before April 15.

Owing to the fact that the general policy of the library has been changed, it is hoped that both French and English will give their entire support to this very worthy cause.

She mentioned that the work of the many different denominations at the present time in South Korea, was not particularly well organized; but pointed out that the Christian women of Korea were devoted to their faith.

Miss Sandell was thanked for the interesting talk by Mrs. Hugh Miller.

TARTAR ONSLAUGHT

The Tartars swept into Russia in 1237 killing and plundering to set up an oppressive rule that lasted more than 200 years.

The Doctor Says

HEREDITY — THE NORMAL DETERMINANT OF STATURE

Q — Is there any special food or vitamin that can be given to a 15-year-old boy who is unusually short? He is in good health, but is getting an inferiority complex over being the shortest one in his class.

A — Shortness is sometimes due to a glandular disorder, malnutrition, or some disease of the internal organs. If your son is in good health none of these causes would apply, and his height was determined by hereditary factors. No food or vitamin will help him in this regard. A person's adult height is very close to two times the height on the second birthday.

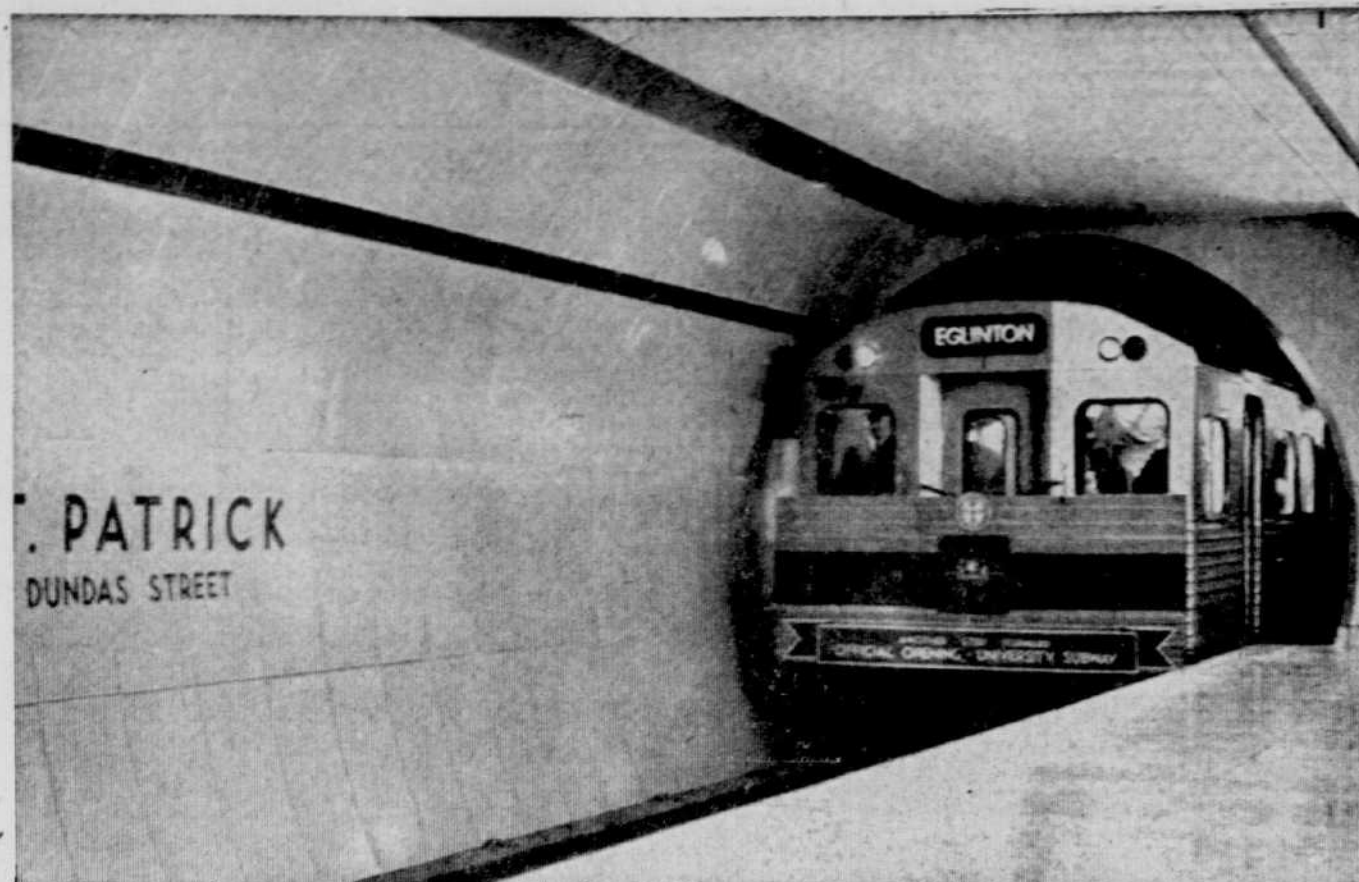

Hormones have been used experimentally to increase or decrease stature, but such treatment is safe only in the hands of an expert. In any case, the problem must be anticipated and the treatment started before the onset of puberty.

Q — I am a young woman and very self-conscious of my legs. They are much too thin. I have done exercises to improve my calves and ankles, but that hasn't helped. Is there any medicine for this? I can't enjoy swimming and I can never get a decent tan because I am so ashamed of my legs.

A — Exercises are fine, but in addition you should try to put on a few more pounds. This can be done by drinking half-and-half (Milk and cream), eating more margarine or butter, and eating two eggs every day I would not advise drugs to accomplish your purpose.

As I see it, your real problem is that you are overly self-conscious. This is both common and understandable, but

PATRICK DUNDAS STREET

Q — I have found that when a girl like you gets into a group, she shows herself ready and willing to be helpful to others, and above all to be cheerful at all the time (well, almost all the time), she is accepted for her merits and forgets about her individual physical differences. (Be-glad we're not all exactly alike.) She can then enjoy herself on or off the bathing beach, and will find that no one is staring at her at all.

Q — In the last few months my 14-year-old daughter's voice seems to be changing. When she talks, some words are of real low pitch. Does a girl's voice change at this age?

A — Your daughter is perfectly normal. All babies of both sexes are sopranos. How do you suppose the Metropolitan Opera gets its contraltos?

Q — My 16-year-old daughter has not started to menstruate yet. Our doctor says to give her time, but I am worried.

A — Your doctor is right.

Some girls start to menstruate earlier than others. This has no bearing on their future potential as wives and mothers.
