

20th Century's unfamiliar new careers demand explanation

ET students are

 By BARBARA STEVENSON
 (Record Staff Reporter)

When the first cars were sputtering along crudely-built roads, organized guidance programs arrived on the education scene. By the time people were perching bug-eyed before that new wonder, television, high school guidance counselling pulled into Quebec.

And 1962 brought not only the familiar sight of rocket ship blast-offs, but also a certificate qualifying specially trained teachers as guidance counsellors.

Today, as Protestant Townships students look back on a very brief and spotty counselling program, a fully-developed guidance program is on the planning board for the new regional schools.

Winds of change sweeping through this century have set up new demands in education. One of these needs is guidance counselling, says Dick Turpin, director of guidance, ET Regional School Board.

Science and technology, for example, have created new careers which are unfamiliar to parents of students who need to prepare for such positions.

"I was astounded at the response of students," Mr. Turpin noted of his recent half-hour talks with each high school grade of ET Protestant schools. Letters requesting such things as aptitude tests as well as other information flowed into his office from pupils eager for aid in choosing study courses and careers.

Guidance gives a student the tools with which to choose studies and careers: a better understanding of his abilities and of the opportunities open to him.

Guidance does not decide for the student, nor does it hand out advice. It is not an IBM machine anxious to test anyone within its range. Nor is it a teacher playing psychiatrist, Mr. Turpin pointed out.

Two basic methods are used in helping a student get to know his strengths and limitations: student-counsellor discussions

GUIDANCE PROGRAM — Part of a guidance program which has only recently been introduced in Eastern Townships schools is counsellor-student group discussions. Guidance Director of the ET Regional School Board Dick Turpin, left, sits with a small group of Lennoxville High School students, promoting their discussion on different study methods and attitudes. An extensive guidance program will be introduced with regional schools to aid individuals in their choice of studies and careers.

in which the latter acts as a himself objectively and realistically, and various test results. Students are counselled only if they so choose.

Questions asked by the counsellor do not aim to size up or analyze the individual, but rather encourage him to evaluate

TESTS

By telling the student of his test results and relating them to those of his schoolmates and even students across Canada, he is given a means by which to judge himself. And the better he knows himself, the more prepared he is to choose studies, careers and solve everyday problems. Tests show such things as the student's in-depth information about the interests and abilities fit in with student, Mr. Turpin explained.

Seeks non-violence in Canadian history

MONTREAL (CP)—Dan Daniels is a bespectacled Montreal landlubber whose main trade is writing. A three-act play of his won a Western Quebec Drama Festival award in 1964. But he is as likely to be found discussing sit-ins with separatists as scenery with a stage manager.

His latest project involves combining Canadian history, particularly that of Quebec, for early traces of "non-violent direct action," the Gandhian technique of resisting one's oppoment without doing him bodily harm.

"After the conquest, French-Canadian settlers hid their money from British tax-collectors and their sons when they were wanted for the army," he says. "There has always been a non-violent tradition in French Canada."

BECAME COMMUNIST

Daniels has changed his outlook over the years. "I used to tell myself 'You've got to be a realist,' but now I'm coming back to the libertarian ideas I had when I was young."

In earlier days he became a shipboard leader of the Canadian Seamen's Union, which grouped the bulk of Canadian Great Lakes sailors, until 1948. He also joined the Communist party, which he saw as the "realistic" weapon for changing the world.

The leadership of the CSU was Communist-oriented, but Daniels insists the union did not take orders from the Communist party.

"The union was run by the men from below, and many times during strikes I told the party to mind its own business, to raise money and leave the strike to the sailors."

During the final days of the CSU, Daniels was already moving from the belying-pin to the typewriter—he edited the CSU newspaper up to the day the union went out of existence. After the CSU era, he quit the Communist party and hunted

PLAYS DUAL ROLE

Non-violent methods are catching on even with those who first were drawn to violence, he says, pointing to a hunger strike by Quebecers imprisoned for terrorism. He would like to convert the separatist movement, and has been interviewed by separatist publications as one who, despite hesitant French, speaks "the language of liberty."

The two major tests of his philosophy in Quebec have been sit-ins of 1964 at the La Macaza, Que., Bomarc base and the 1965 demonstrations at the United States consulate in Montreal in sympathy with Negro civil rights marchers in Alabama and against U.S. action in Viet Nam.

Daniels says both base guards and the American consul, while unmoved by the demonstrators' message, were forced to react to their approach, a prime aim of the non-violent militant.

aided in choosing future

Counselling is also carried out through student group discussions, as well as conference with parent and teachers and the use of other school and community resources.

The counsellor's job is also to have on hand extensive information on college entry and courses, needs for following specific careers, and placement facilities, he said.

Alternate studies, careers and methods of entering them are explained to the student.

There are now two part-time guidance counsellors in ET Protestant schools: Louella Bennett at Lennoxville High School and Jim McKinnon at Asbestos-Danville-Shipton High School.

Guidance counsellors are expected to have the following qualifications: A degree such as BA or BSC, one year of teaching experience and a diploma in school guidance and counselling. The diploma is obtained by passing six courses. Only Macdonald College offers such a diploma in Quebec and it is earned over one year or three summers.

The regional school at Lennoxville expected to be open in 1968 will have one counsellor for every 450 students, according to tentative plans.

Possibly 12 families lived there before 1500, says Dr. Rousseau, now lecturing at Laval University here.

The village was discovered by archeologist Thomas Lee. Disclosure of its exact location, in the Ungava region, has been withheld for fear of pilfering.

Prof. Lee, heading an archeological team, was digging at the site of an Eskimo encampment about a century old. At a point below ground level team came upon a stone floor which did not belong to the Eskimo camp. A stone wall or dam who first discovered America.

Northern Quebec village is found, believed to be old Norsemen's home

QUEBEC (CP) — An ancient village discovered last summer in far northern Quebec may once have been occupied by Norsemen, says Dr. Jacques Rousseau, former director of the National Museum in Ottawa.

Dr. Rousseau offers two theories to explain the village's existence. The first, and most likely, is that the village was built by Norsemen who immigrated from Greenland, he says. Probably hunters, they were either forced to flee or left their original homeland to seek out fresh hunting grounds.

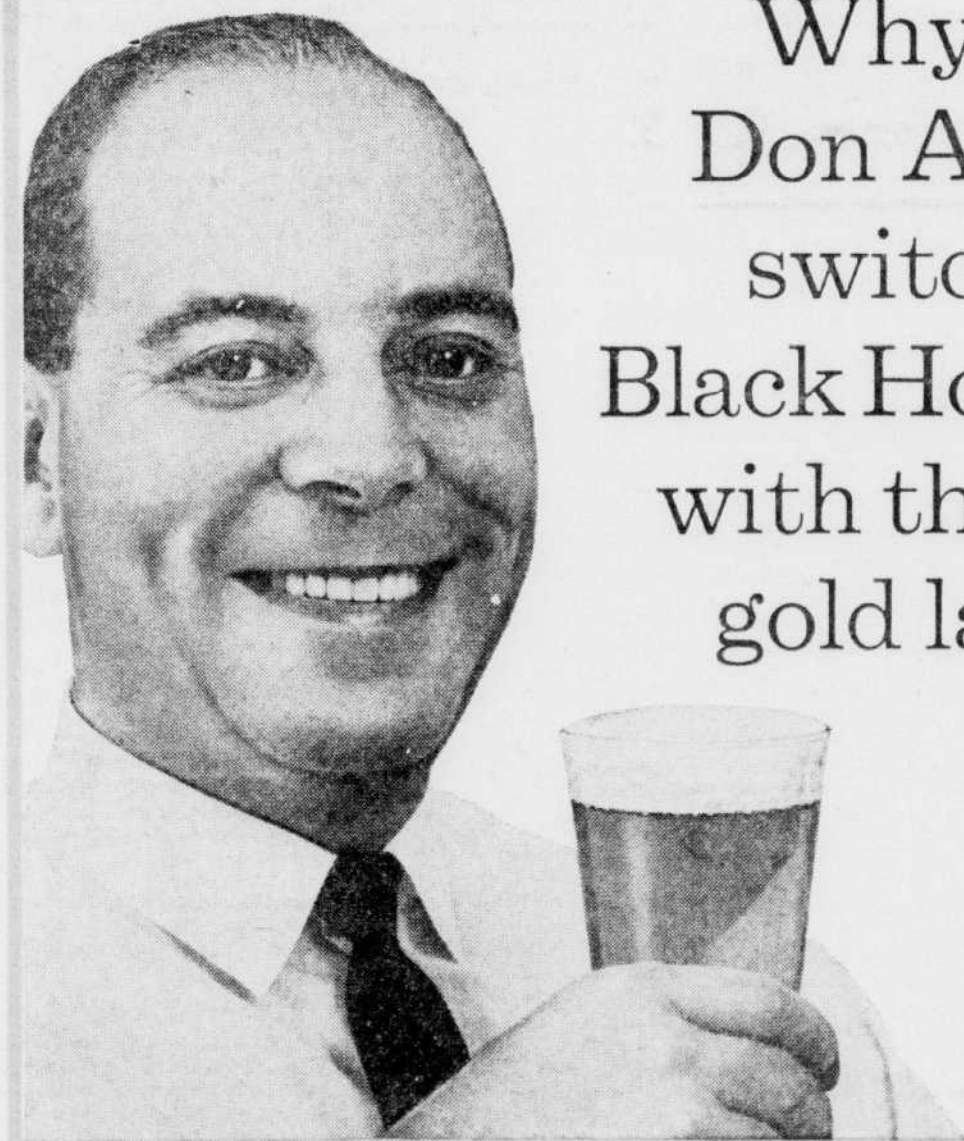

The second possibility is that Norsemen landed and integrated into the Eskimo society through intermarriage.

A portion of Prof. Lee's team was on assignment from the Nordic Research Centre at Laval. He is to return this summer for further investigation which it is hoped, may throw further light on the question of who first discovered America.

Make the flavour test yourself! Pour a glass of Black Horse Ale. Look at the head. Sniff the pleasant aroma. Best of all, enjoy the rewarding taste. You'll realize why the winning flavour of Black Horse Ale really quenches a beer thirst.

NEW YORK (CP) — Easter Sunday, as a day for parading in new spring clothes, may owe something of its origin to an old superstition and a Roman emperor.

It was once thought that it was unlucky to start a new year wearing old clothes. And when Emperor Constantine made Easter the first day of the year, it set the pattern for an informal Easter parade.

It wasn't until 1654 that Jan. 1 became New Year's Day but by then the tradition of the "Easter Walk" in which men and women dressed in their best finery marched through town and into the country for special festivities had become entrenched.

Today the most famous of Easter parades takes place in New York where traffic is cleared from Fifth Avenue for the fashionable paraders.

And although television has prompted some to dream up wild costumes as attention-getters, there are a lot of tastefully stylish outfits on display.

Some years ago the suit became the main parading costume. Then the costume look of dress with jacket or coat took over. Suits came back a couple of seasons ago. This spring, costumes may again have a slight edge although suits still are popular.

BLouses ARE IN

The No. 1 silhouette is a double-breasted jacket with a slightly A-line or a narrow straight skirt. Not many pleated skirts were featured in the spring collections in New York although several designers favored them.

This is the first spring in years without the loose Chanel jackets. Collars are small and necklines continue to be narrow and set in.

Blouses are so much a part of the scene that many collections make them part of what is called a three-piece suit. Oleg Cassini included a grey silk linen blouse, cowl-necklined, with an aqua linen suit.

More frequently a shell, rather than a blouse, teams up with suits. Jane Derby featured a white silk shell with a peach wool suit.

Several designers, including Adele Simpson and David Kidd for Arthur Jabow, introduced almost a costume look in suits with a weskit-blouse.

Interest in contrast colors also helps achieve this costume effect. Jabow combines both in a white weskit with a plaid navy-and-white jacket over a white skirt. Another is a two-piece combining a short-cropped camel jacket crossed with bands of navy to match the skirt.

Norman Norwell combined a lemon jacket and white overblouse with a mauve pleated skirt. This tricolor look, also appeared in the Canadian spring collection in which Irving Samuel of Montreal showed a long white jacket with matching beige of the skirt and a blue silk blouse.

CHECKS FAVORED

Suits are smooth-surfaced and thin. There are many checks, overplaid and stripes. Christian Dior-New York featured a green-and-white check suit with a white shell, also a pink - and - white mosaic print with a pink gauze blouse and ascot. Louis Schrier of Montreal combined a navy - and - yellow check wool with a navy blouse. In New York there was even a tweed skirt contrasted with a houndstooth check jacket.

However, you can really choose any suit type this spring. Ben Zuckerman went to the 1930s for collarless, low-slung jackets with kick pleated skirts and for grey flannel suits with striped cotton jersey tops. Nor included both a strict tailleur, sometimes feminized by tiny pleats in the straight skirt, and the cardigan suit, casual and comfortable.

Jean Louis leans toward the dandy with a regency suit in pin-stripe and box jacket and white weskit. He's one of the leading movie designers and his latest is a wardrobe for Lana Turner and the late Constance Bennett in the recently-released tear-jerker, Madame X.

Busy general practitioner can't wait for babies not keeping to timetable

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Janet Ross is one general practitioner who hasn't time for obstetrical cases.

"I don't ignore them completely," she says. "I start looking after them once they are born."

The social and family life of Janet Ross has become complicated since her husband, Dr. Murray Ross, was named president of Toronto's York University.

Monday - morning telephone conversations between his social secretary and her medical secretary go something like this:

"My Dr. Ross wants your Dr. Ross to attend these functions this week. . . . Also my Dr.

Ross won't be home for dinner Tuesday and Thursday nights." The medical Dr. Ross doesn't really mind. Being in on the development of a new university has been a wonderful experience she says.

Beides, the two Ross children no longer require much time from their parents. Susan, a home economics graduate of Acadia University, her father's alma mater in Wolfville, N.S., is doing postgraduate work and Robert, an arts and science student at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., is considering a medical career.

DIDN'T PRACTICE

Janet Ross graduated from the University of Toronto in 1938. She was married in 1940. Her husband's doctorate is an academic one.

"We met at a social workers' conference when he was program director of the national YMCA," she says.

Dr. Ross did not try to continue her medical practice while her children were small, but she did keep up her medical interests. She was for three years director of the division of maternal and child hygiene for the National Welfare Council, and she worked in out-patient and well-baby clinics. She also did research at the Babies' Hospital at Columbia University in New York while her husband was taking an advanced degree at the university.

Before returning to private practice 13 years ago, Dr. Ross interned for a year at the Hospital for Sick Children and Women's College Hospital in Toronto.

The university atmosphere is nothing new for her. Her father, the late Col. W. R. Lang, was a professor of chemistry at the University of Toronto, where he founded the Canadian Officers' Training Corps and was professor of military studies.

Dr. Ross believes that women doctors no longer need to disguise their femininity.

Questions readers ask

Q — I'm confused about lobsters. Are there many kinds?

A — To answer your question, we quote the National Fisheries Institute: "Lobsters are salt-water crustaceans found on the ocean bottom from the shore line to the edge of the continental shelf. There are two principal kinds found in the United States: the northern (or Maine) lobster and the rock (or spiny) lobster. The northern lobster is characterized by its large, heavy claws. The rock lobster is distinguished by the many prominent spines (hence the name "spiny") on its body and legs, and its long, slender antennae."

"The northern lobster is found along the Atlantic coast from Labrador to North Carolina, although most of the United States' catch comes from the Maine and Massachusetts coasts. The rock or spiny lobster occurs in the tropical, subtropical and temperate waters of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. In the United States, it is found principally in the waters off Florida and southern California."

"Northern lobsters can be bought live or already boiled, or the cooked meat may be purchased fresh, frozen and canned. Live rock lobsters are available in some parts of Florida and California. Frozen rock-lobster tails are sold throughout the country."

"The French have a name for each species of lobster: homard for the lobster with large claws; langouste for what we call the rock lobster. The Spanish in Europe and in South American countries call their lobster langosta and the tiny one langostina."

Read this once and you'll learn all you need to know about children's shoes.

Through the arch is a steel shank ensuring proper arch support right to the day your child outgrows the shoe.

The sole is made of hardwearing DVP; this means no more scuff marks on your hardwood or linoleum.

A square toe like this is not simply a style innovation: it is one of the most logical ways to provide properly proportioned growing room.

In any shoe the most vulnerable part is the toe of the sole. Bravae have reinforced this too, with a brass tip.

The back of the shoe, the part that kids usually break down first, is called the counter. Bravae have reinforced it, then waterproofed it. The result? A crushproof counter.

All down inside this shoe is a lining of soft kip leather, to keep the no-scum shape permanently.

Other things to know about Bravae: 27 beautiful styles to choose from; multiple fittings in all styles so your children get the right length and the right width; and prices that range from $5.99 to $7.99. Now that you have everything you need to know about children's shoes, see your Bravae dealer. You'll impress him.

Pastor works eight hours a night to help strippers and hustlers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rev. Don Stuart never preaches a sermon. He hasn't even a church building. He starts work at 10 p.m. and finishes at 6 a.m. And he likes it that way.

His ministry, sponsored by the San Francisco Council of Protestant Churches, is to the night people—the strippers, hustlers, bartenders, dope addicts, alcoholics, musicians, homosexuals and the sleepless aged.

"I never felt more productive in my life," says Mr. Stuart, who at 43 is unassuming, slender, inquisitive, talkative and assured.

"Basically I'm a pastor now—I'm on a one-to-one relationship with those in trouble. And most folks I meet are willing to accept my advice. I'm kind of a last resort."

Most of the time Mr. Stuart patrols the Tenderloin, a rough part of San Francisco, north of Market Street and west of Powell Street's cable cars. It's an area seldom seen by tourists, who favor Chinatown and the uninhibited pleasures of establishments in North Beach.

The Tenderloin is a neighborhood of dingy hotels filled with pensioners, small movie houses showing girly films, lots of bars, cheap restaurants, small night clubs catering to servicemen.

Most of his calls come from Tenderloin regulars who know him as "Father Don." Night clerks in small hotels, night restaurant managers and cab drivers call him when they spot a person in trouble.

He also has a telephone listing under "Night Minister."

Stanstead Historical Society notes

STANSTEAD — The Stanstead Historical Society was pleased to receive another gift to its museum, this time an old muzzle loading gun from Mrs. Eva Hibbard of Tomifobia.

Says Director Joseph Maheux "This gun is of the period possibly between 1850 - 1860 and seems to be the type used by the German army about that time, as new and more modern guns were invented the ones replaced were sold off for a trivial sum and were used by hunters quite extensively. In many cases they were bored out and used as shotguns."

"This gun is not an outstanding example of the gunmaker's art but it is still a fine antique and a valuable asset to the museum. With a little work it could be put into firing condition. The Historical Society thanks Mrs. Hibbard for her interest, and gift."

Guest speaks to History group at Richmond

RICHMOND — The highlight of a meeting of the Richmond County Historical Society was the presence of guest speaker Emelien Lafrance, M.L.A. for Richmond, in St. Francis High School on March 28.

In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Fred Wintle was in the chair, and introduced the speaker.

Mr. Lafrance began by reminding his listeners that as he is a son of the area, having been born and reared in the shadow of the Pinnacle near Danville, he is always interested in this region. He urged that members of the two ethnic groups strive to pool their ancestral heritage and so work towards mutual benefit and understanding.

Neither group should forget that all the comforts and conveniences they enjoy did not come by chance but are the product of the hard work, courage and endurance of their pioneering forefathers. He pointed out three historical truths: First, history is a necessary tool for democracy; second, it is a most vital and necessary study and third, tomorrow is built on today; both are built on the past.

Mr. Lafrance closed his talk with a brief summary of impressions of Texas gained from a recent visit to that state. He was especially impressed by the reverence of the people for all things associated with the past, an attitude worthy of emulation. He then entertained his audience by recounting some "Texas jokes", which were heartily enjoyed.

Dr. C. R. Boast expressed the thanks and appreciation of the members to Mr. Lafrance.

Debating contest finals held at Bedford High

BEDFORD — On March 30 at the high school the finals in the District of Bedford Regional Home and School Association debating contest was held.

The subject of debate was, Resolve, that TV does more harm than good. Christina Studenamer and Jill McCaw of Bedford upheld the affirmative, while the negative was taken by Neil Stretch and Ruth MacLellan, Waterloo High School. The affirmative won.

The judges were Miss Fuller, L. Witherall and Joel Barnett, chairman, all of Granby. Principal J. Dawson introduced the judges, and Mrs. R. S. McIntosh, the speakers. Helen Bodorenko acted as chairman of the debate, while the time-keeper was Daniel Landault of the Bedford High School.

An interesting feature of the evening was showing by Lloyd McKean, Knowlton, regional director general of the new regional high school, of colored films of the proposed technical school, which will be incorporated in the new regional high school. There will be two schools, one for French and one for English pupils, with a swimming pool and cafeteria for both.

Red Cross at Bedford plans drive for funds

BEDFORD — A meeting of the executive of the local Red Cross Branch was held on Mar. 28 in the county building, with the president, G. Groulx presiding. The purpose of the meeting was to complete arrangements for the drive for funds, which is now open. Jack Paton, is chairman of the drive, as he was last year, when proceeds were $2167.72.

A feature of last year's campaign, which proved very helpful, was the appearance of Les Duchesses in parades advertising the campaign, it was decided that Les Duchesses would again take part.

Mr. Paton announced the following a chairmen of the various districts: J. Lavoie, Notre Dame de Stanbridge; L. P. Poissant, Phillipsburg; D. Deran leau, Pike River; J. Berube, St. Armand West; J. Berube, St. Ignace de Stanbridge, H. Ditcham, Stanbridge Station.

Mr. Paton announced that canvassers have been appointed for the town, and that letters would be sent to 85 business firms, churches and societies.

Mr. Groulx stated that it is hoped to hold a blood donor clinic in May or June. Confirmation of date is being awaited from Red Cross Headquarters, Montreal.

TOP PATROLLER — Mrs. Herbert Whittier, founder of the Eastern Townships Zone of the Canadian Ski Patrol, is seen presenting her trophy to Paul Bergeron for being judged the outstanding first year patroller. On the right is Harvey Catchpaw, patrol leader.

The Doctor Says

Q — Doctors have diagnosed my wife as having fibrocystic disease of the breast, recurrent carcinoma of the breast with metastases. Are any of these related to cancer? Could cobalt treatments result in cancer?

A — Fibrocystic mastitis is an inflammation of the breast which is not malignant but should be watched because it may become cancerous. Carcinoma is one type of breast cancer and "recurrent" implies a return of the cancer in an area where it has been removed. Metastasis is the process of spreading to another part of the body, often far removed from the original site. This is the characteristic that makes cancer so vicious and so hard to cure. A breast cancer may metastasize to the spine and other bones. Since cobalt treatments are given in an effort to kill cancer, they cannot be said to have caused it.

Q—What treatment do you recommend for a man whose breasts are much larger than average for a male?

A — All persons have both male and female hormones in their blood, but in men the male hormones predominate and in women the female. Enlargement of the breasts in men may occur at puberty, but this is associated with an increase in the pituitary hormone rather than the female hormone. In most young men this enlargement subsides in about two years. It may persist, or at least be more noticeable, in men who are obese.

If the condition first occurs after puberty or persists after a man reaches age 21, a tumor in one of the hormone-producing glands should be suspected. If such a tumor is found, it should be promptly removed. Treatment with hormone antagonists and other drugs has been disappointing. The only other treatment is plastic surgery.

Military Whist party at Sutton is well attended

SUTTON — The Military Whist card party held in the Fraternal Hall, on Depot Street, was well attended. Cards were played at 15 tables.

Prize winners were: First prizes: M. Jolley; L. Longeway; D. Cooke, and J. Atkins. Second prizes went to G. Cote, Miss S. Cote, Mr. and Mrs. W. Miltimore.

Consolation prizes were awarded to C. Soule, M. Gendron, Mrs. B. Lafleur and Miss S. Lafleur.

Mrs. Irene Williams received the door prize. Refreshments were served.

Another military whist card party at the same hall, will be held Saturday evening, May 3, at 8 p.m. Everybody is welcome.

Brigham

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sharp were guests of their granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Bird and Mr. Bird in Richelieu. The occasion was a family party to greet another granddaughter, Mrs. C. Holmes, who, with Mr. Holmes, and their children, are on a short visit from Fort Wayne, Ind.

Nelson teens have own star

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — The Beatles may be okay elsewhere, but in this West Kootenay city the teen-agers have their own real-life singing star.

He's Danny Harris, a young man who returned to Nelson recently after a stand as a recording artist in New York and a tour of the United States with a small band.

Harris, whose 10 records have sold more than 1,000,000 copies, plans to entertain locally and make periodic trips to New York to cut new records.

His most popular record—'Peepin' and Hidin'—sold nearly 500,000 copies.

The Somerset, England, native who lived for a time in Orillia, Ont., claims a voice spanning four octaves—from baritone to soprano.
