Past State Master L. D. Smith Installs Officers At Maple Leaf Grange

On Tuesday evening Oct 2nd, Past New York State Master and a member of the National Grange Executive Committee assisted by Sis. Smith and Sisters Fitzimmons and Wymer of Malone installed the recently elected officers at Maple Leaf Grange. Previous to the installation the stations of Lecturer and Steward were balloted on, the result being Bro. Cecil O'Connor as Lec. and Sis. Rosemary Cosgrove as Steward.

Sis Grace Thomas of Malone was pianist, and Sis. Sylvia Thomas, a student at Potsdam Teachers College and a member of Malone Grange was soloist for the installation ceremonies.

Bro. Smith expressed his pleasure at being invited to Maple Leaf for the evening and wished, not only the new officers but the entire grange every success in the year ahead.

The Worthy Master David Rankin thanked the visitors for their assistance during the evening, and gave notice that an officers' school would be held in Malone on Oct. 20 th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. All officers urged to attend and any Grange member is welcome.

Bro Rankin had two of his Committees appointed viz. Publicity, Sis. B. Graham and Sick Com. Sis. Evelyn Donnelly and Sis. Margaret Wilson, and hoped by another meeting the Com. would be complete. Sis. Donnelly gave the report for the cards, fruit, etc., that had gone out during the year. Sis. Ruth Stork gave the financial statement. Both reports were very encouraging.

A letter had been received from Alister Somerville, M.P.P., commending the Grange for its worthwhile work in the County and the return of the cheque for $10.00 which his daughter had won on the Grange drawing at H'don Fair. The retiring Lec. Sis. Shirley Grant had the literary program a "thank you" to the "Smiths", a recreational number and a closing thought.

At the meeting on September 18th, the report of the Refreshment stand at the Fair was given and that evening the programme was put on by the Past. Lecturers. Past Master Peter Tully thanked the officers who had worked so faithfully with him during his term of office.

Everyone was pleased to welcome Bro. Burt Rankin back to the meeting on Tuesday evening and we hope Burt you will come again.

An oyster supper was served by the Committee in charge at the close of the evening or salad to those who did not care for the oysters.

Sis Thomas announced that Bro. Fay and Sis. Sara Hapgood will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in the near future. Congratulations from Maple Leaf and a Happy Birthday Oct 15th to one of our Chater Members, Mrs. Janet Gavin.

At our next meeting the Worthy Lecturer proposes having a "Harvest March" and each one attending the meeting is requested to bring something of the harvest of field and garden, which in turn will be donated to the Huntingdon County Hospital.

Hospital Consultant Head Visits Barrie Memorial Hospital

Dr. Harvey Agnew, head of the hospital consulting organization of Agnew, Peckham and Associates, recently visited the Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, to consult with the Medical Staff of the hospital and its Board of Governors.

Because of the terrific pressure now so constantly on the hospital's physical resources, the Board engaged the services of this outstanding group of hospital consultants to make a survey which would determine, as far as possible the population trend in the area served by "The Barrie," and what expansion of the hospital might be necessary to meet present and future needs.

One expansion, at least, has been long apparent to the hospital authorities and this is the overwhelming need of a maternity wing. No team of consultants was necessary to emphasize this, but the Board decided that in view of the terrific demand also for more space for medical and surgical cases, nothing should be attempted until the whole situation was surveyed by a competent hospital consultant organization which would make recommendations based upon their actual findings, and provide a master plan which took fully into account the present facilities of the hospital and the potential growth of the population which the hospital must serve in succeeding years.

Statistics are dry things at best, but several secured from the Barrie Memorial Hospital records serve to show what has taken place within the last year or two.

Patient days to the end of September of this year show an increase of 1411 over the same period last year, while in comparison with 1960 the increase to the end of September this year is 3,220.

Dr. Agnew met with the Staff Doctors of the hospital at a noon luncheon meeting, and with the Board of Governors at 8 o'clock the same evening. While this was Dr. Agnew's first visit to the hospital in connection with the survey, visits had been made on previous occasion by associate members of his staff. Since to date all visits have been of a fact finding nature, no report is expected for sometime.

Two Headed Calf Born Near Malone

A two-headed Holstein calf, born sometime Saturday night or early Sunday on the William McCabe farm on the Webster St. Road, Malone, was still alive on Monday.

The calf weighs about 100 pounds and has a husky body and legs, it was reported, but Mrs. McCabe said Monday noon, it showed signs of weakening.

Both heads are joined into one skull, and it has one neck.

The calf was born sometime between 10 p.m. Saturday and 6 a.m. Sunday. It was found near the mother Sunday morning.

Birth of the two-headed calf was the second usual bovine birth reported within a week in the area. As reported elsewhere in this issue quadruplet Holstein calves were born on the Elden Cook farm in Chateaugay on October 1st.

Mrs. Alice MacDougall Returns from The West

Mrs. Alice MacDougall has returned from the west after spending several weeks with her sons, Eric and Calvin. This was an unique experience for Mrs. MacDougall as she is a wheelchair patient at the Snowden. Mrs. MacDougall has not walked for many years. It was as far back as 1949 that she was stricken with a painful malady which completely immobilized her, and many painful and lonely hours were her lot for several months. When her family grew up and saw fit to make their own way in the world and Mr. MacDougall passed away she was forced to sell her farm and went to live in Lachine for a year and a half. About three years ago Mrs. MacDougall came back to Ormstown to make her home at the Snowden Convalescent Home. This endearing lady has always realized her great fortune in having a devoted family. A few months ago they discussed the possibility of giving their mother a trip out west. Many were the preparations (and probably secret consternation on the part of Mrs. MacDougall) but plans were finalized and a ticket was purchased for her to go by jet to Calgary. She was taken to the plane in her chair and left in the care of the personnel. Highest praise is awarded by Mrs. MacDougall to the hostesses and others who helped her and saw to her every need.

When she arrived in Calgary she was met by her sons Eric and Milton of Edmonton. A few days later her brother Ernest Marshall and sister Isabel (Mrs. George McWhinnie) from Regina, arrived to visit her. No effort was too great to make her trip a memorable one. The boys took their mother to Banff and Lake Louise. They also made it possible for her to see the beautiful Emerald Lake District and Trail in B.C. and the badlands of Drumheller. Mrs. MacDougall is home now and will have many beautiful memories of a trip that at one time she thought was an impossibility.

Agricultural Industry Needs Greater Attention - Will Become Important, Profitable

The following is a guest editorial submitted by Mr. G. G. Serkau, economist, of Montreal. A native of Saskatchewan, this gentleman is now forming what is to be known as "The Self Employed Association of Canada". Membership will comprise professional men, merchants, tradesmen, industrialists, farmers, and operators of services and businesses of any kind who are owners of their business and not employed by others, and whose income is derived from profits earned by the operation of their own business or profession.

This Association will become a nation-wide organization with provincial jurisdiction. The federal headquarters shall be established in Ottawa. At the moment, Mr. Serkau is seeking a French Canadian farmer, preferably from the Chateauguay Valley, as a provisionary President.

More news will appear in The Gleaner with regard to the Association and Mr. Serkau. In the meantime we urge everyone, especially farmers, to read the following:

There is an abundant evidence that the agricultural industry, at least in Canada, will become important and profitable. It has long been known that the world's production of food will eventually fall far below requirements of increasing world population. Without Communism in a big part of the world, actual food shortages would not have occurred for perhaps another century, but socialized agriculture in the countries within the Communist orbit has so accelerated the speed of approaching shortages that, unless there are tremendous changes in the world, the market for food will vastly exceed the supply within the next five years.

Nothwistanding the tremendous scientific and technological inventions and developments in the past half century, everything eaten by man and beast still has to be grown and farming cannot succeed under Communism. The reason is that in socialized agriculture the incentive to produce is destroyed. Farmers and farm workers regimented in socialized units in fact reduce a first class farmer to the grade of a second class farm hand. No worker in socialized agriculture can be permitted to exceed in the day's farm work the norm of the least one among them. A 3000 acre farm in Russia, for instance has a resident population of 1000 persons. The same sized farm in Western Canada in similar natural conditions is operated by a farmer and twenty men. Worst of all, in socialized agriculture there is the destructive element of sabotage.

Before the Communist Revolution in Russia, that country was the biggest producer and exporter of foods in the world. During forty-five years of Communism the area under cultivation in Russia has been increased by nearly 50%, power machinery and equipment have been acquired, and chemical fertilizers are available in abundance. The population of Russia is about the same as in 1917 and yet Communist Russia has never been able to produce sufficient food for its own purposes. The average Canadian farm worker produces enough food for thirty-five persons. The average Russian farm worker does not produce sufficient food for two persons. Russia buys cereal in Canada and elsewhere, and buys millions of tons of sugar notwitstanding that the beet sugar industry has been developed in Russia for hundreds of years. But, worst of all, are the meat and dairy industries in Russia. This past summer about the first week in June, at the time when the milk flow is at its height, Russia imposed a 30% increase in the price of dairy products and a 25% increase in the price of beef, not for economic reasons (because there is no such thing in Russia) but in order to reduce the buying power of the populace.

Of the European countries within the Communist orbit, Poland, Hungary and Roumania were all formerly producers of surplus food supplies. Today they are all short. It may be taken as an indication that food production under Communism is getting worse as Poland is buying in Canada this year 400,000 tons of wheat.

China socialized its agriculture and has brought about a condition of famine more terrible than the world has ever known. They bought our wheat surplus last year, they will probably buy our surplus this year, but it does not mean very much; 300 million starving people require fabulous tonnage of food.

Communism will disintegrate and go under due to the fact that the system wastes agricultural resources and, in the absence of local production in so vast an area of the world, the free world will not long be able to supply even the minimum requirements. The Western world is firstly concerned with augmenting food supplies in friendly countries. India, Pakistan and Ceylon and other areas have remained within the free world and we are naturally concerned with assistance to those countries. In India alone in the past 12 years the Western powers have contributed a magnificent effort by assisting in the increase of irrigated areas, by the construction of fertilizer plants, and by the supply of power machinery and technical instruction. The increase in food production in India since the country gained its independence has been 25%, but in that same time the population of India increased by about the same percentage, and it will definitely be impossible to continue the same rate of increase percentage-wise in the next decade. In addition, the population of India is so underfed that it will require an increase of nearly 40% to provide the Indian people with reasonable food requirements, but that is our concern and our burden.

Those among us who profess religious faiths do not rest easy in the knowledge that our nation is responsible for the ultimate sin of keeping in storage surplus foods when human beings in many parts of the world are suffering from famine and starvation. We emulate the Egyptian Pharaoh who kept corn under lock while the multitude were starving.

Those among us concerned with the peace of the world know well that nothing engenders such deep hate as the knowledge by parents of starving, emaciated children that those in possession of an enormous food surplus withold it from them.

Increasing the production of cereals by substantial percentages is in itself a tremendous undertaking, but it can be accomplished much more easily than increasing dairy and meat products. The bovine population of the country cannot be materially increased in any short period of time. A cow comes into production at the earliest of 2½ years (bovine births are single) and the requirement of bovine herds in a populated country is very high. In a meat-eating country such as ours there is required a bovine herd equal in number to 60% of the human population. On the North American continent and in Western Europe there are a number of countries with ample bovine herds, but in the Communist world the herds are not only woefully depleted but of exceedingly poor quality and in low production in comparison.

But, aside entirely from the Communist failure in agricultural production, the increase in population in the world is truly explosive. By 1970, the population of the world will have increased by an additional 500 million. It may be realized how much food is required to feed that additional population when we consider that if the Canadian production of foods was increased by 100% (which would require at least 10 years) our total production would then only suffice to feed about 60 million people. China and other Communist countries may be able to hold off their starving populace for another year or so. Thereafter, they will be compelled to divert money from the cost of world propaganda and war materials to the purchase of food. The tremendous demand will then come into existence.

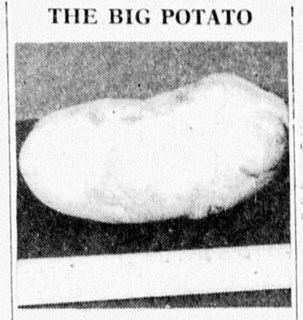

It may be a year or two too early to institute and implement a policy of increased food production in Canada, but certainly it is time for a capable commission, perhaps a royal commission, to start work on a diligent and exhaustive research effort to establish — (1) the method of increasing production, and (2) storage and marketing.

When the demand equals or outstrips our production capacity no government assistance will be required, but to prepare in advance and to induce added production it will be necessary for the federal government to take leadership and to provide capital and services, and to establish a price basis to be realized by farmers which will result in the primary producer gaining a reasonable profit. Visualizing a programme requiring appropriations of even a billion dollars a year will not prove to be a strain on our national financial structure but will prove profitable. Such a programme contemplates the building of substantial storage capacity and vigorous selling effort. Technological advances made in the past half century in the processing of foods are by far the most useful to man. Everything edible can now be processed for extended storage and there need now be no waste of food.

In marketing we shall probably continue to sell to our long-time customers somewhat on the same basis as in the past. We should sell foods to Communist countries but at prices in relation to cost of production and not as at present. It may be well to insist upon either cash or very short terms so as to leave them less money for propaganda and war preparation. To needy friendly areas, such as countries of the Indian sub-continent and others, we should sell freely on long-term credits, and in those countries our trade commissioners should institute a much more energetic effort in finding goods and products of native

THE BIG POTATO

We are showing above a very large potato brought in to our office by Mrs. Edward Fournier of Huntingdon, who lives near the Loisselle and Legault garage on the Ridge Road. It measures seven inches long by the rule which can be seen and weighs about 2½ pounds. Cut up and used as French Fried, or baked in the oven and spread with butter, it should make a meal of its own. Maybe they come bigger, but we have not seen any this year.

Mr. Raymond Demers Has A Position With Morgans

A business change takes place in Huntingdon in the very near future when an old established tailoring business will change hands.

Mr. Raymond Demers who has carried on his father's business, that of Jos. Demers et Fils Enrg. Tailors, for a number of years, has secured a similar position with Henry Morgan and Co. of Montreal. The late Joseph Demers established his business in Huntingdon in the year 1906, on Chateauguay St. near the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, and it has been carried on ever since.

It is natural that in that time a good many customers have been attracted to the business. Mr. Demers still expects to keep in contact with these customers and has many tailoring jobs to complete at this time. Thus he will be back and forth to Huntingdon attending to his clientele.

His daughter, Denyse, is a talented person and very adept at figure skating. It is her intention to go on with school in Montreal and by so doing she will be able to keep up her figure skating lessons. This requires that she practice during the summer months as well as the winter and in Montreal there are these facilities for the purpose. Therefore there will be many advantages to the family living in Montreal and it is expected they will be taking up residence there very shortly.

Stock in trade and merchandise from this old established business will be sold by auction Friday evening at Grove Hall (see advertisement elsewhere).

Other facts will be announced later as more details are known.

Farm Radio Forum To Begin Soon

Farm Radio Forum, Canada's rural adult education programme, will begin its twenty-second year on October 22nd, 1962. The programme will be presented on the new consolidated network at a new time—9 to 9.30 p.m. Extension made possible by the new network will ensure the programme reaching virtually every inhabited part of Canada.

The opening programme will be a review of the accomplishments of Farm Forum, not only in Canada, but around the world. The first regular discussion on October 29th will feature "Property Taxation". During November, Forum members will consider "Vertical Integration," "Farm Organization" and "Dairy Policy."

A discussion on the significance of the "Common Market" and how it affects Canadian farmers, will be featured in December. During the following months there will be a second topic on taxation, one on career opportunities, one on ARDA, two on co-operatives, one on the rural church and an international topic on Canada's world obligations as women see them.

In addition to the regular Forums special interest groups will be organized on several occasions, brough 4-H, Junior Farmers, W.I.'s Federation of Agriculture and local co-operatives. In short, Farm Radio Forum will have something for every rural person, from the teenager to the retired farmer.

Huntingdon School Board Passes On A Number of Matters

Members of Huntingdon Protestant School Board met Thursday evening in the library of Huntingdon High School for a regular meeting. Members were all present and the bills, with the exception of one or two that were held over pending details, were ordered paid as read.

It was moved by Commissioner Hamilton, seconded by Commissioner Wood, that the secretary-treasurer be authorized to borrow up to $25,000, for current expenses, pending the collection of taxes.

A resolution was passed giving the secretary-treasurer authorization to sell a $5,000. Government of Canada bond.

Moved by Commissioner Cameron, seconded by Commissioner Rennie, that the quotation of Frost Steel and Wire Co. to move and erect 254 feet of new fence be accepted.

After some discussion, it was decided that a request from Harold Lindsay to have his taxes transferred to Ormstown would not be possible for this year, at least.

A resolution was approved to purchase eight new students' desks.

Principal Brockman explained the new modified form of individual time tabling, which incorporates a time increase for students. He also discussed the benefits of remedial reading and a more suitable classroom will be used by the teacher of this subject.

The Graduation Dance is being held in the auditorium on Friday evening and Dr. and Mrs. Gaw and one other commissioner and his wife will be on the receiving line.

A tender of $247.90 was received for the repair of the fire alarms and extinguishers.

Hot supplements are now available to country students in the cafeteria.

School enrolment is 536. Mrs. Gordon Grant is now teaching part time, which brings the teaching staff to full strength.

A case of Impetigo was reported by the school nurse. The student is now fully recovered.

Mr. Brockman presented a request for equipment needed in Mr. Greenbank's class. It was decided to order two microscopes, one illuminator and three sets of slides.

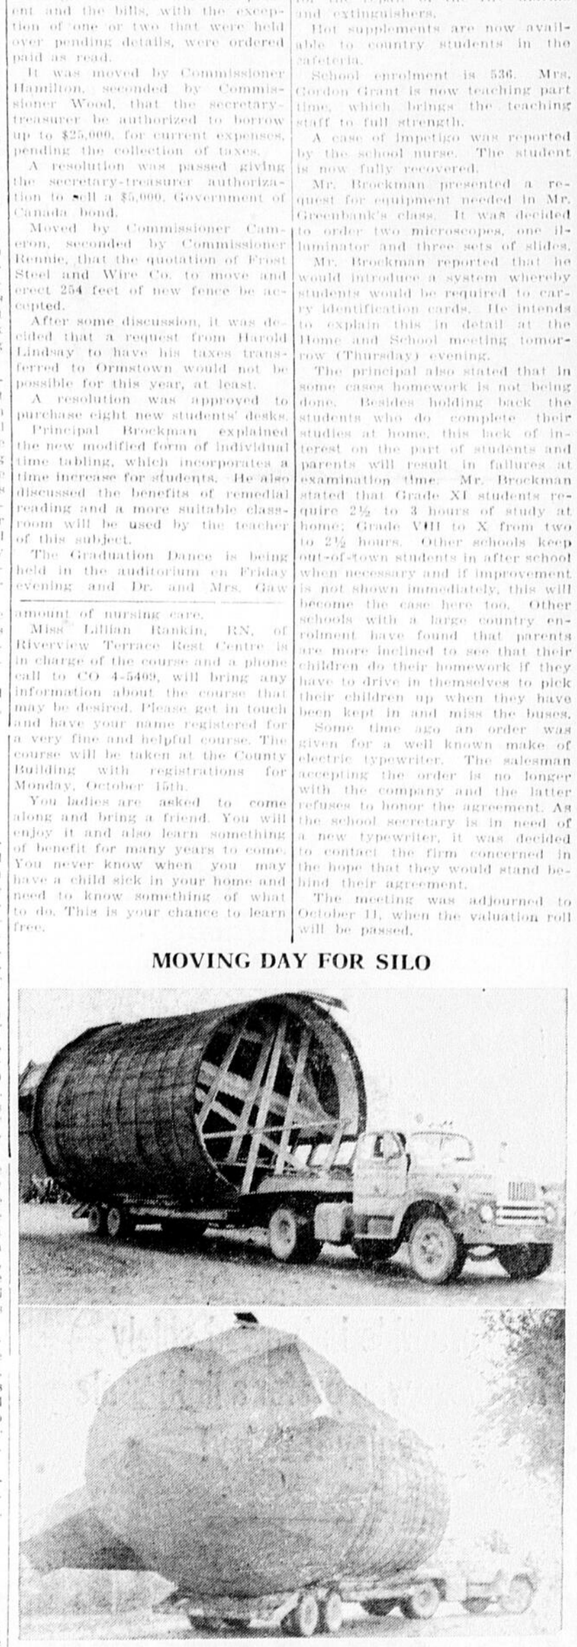

Mr. Brockman reported that he would introduce a system whereby students would be required to carry identification cards. He intends to explain this in detail at the Home and School meeting tomorrow (Thursday) evening.

The principal also stated that in some cases homework is not being done. Besides holding back the students who do complete their studies at home, this lack of interest on the part of students and parents will result in failures at examination time. Mr. Brockman stated that Grade XI students require 2½ to 3 hours of study at home; Grade VII to X from two to 2½ hours. Other schools keep out-of-town students in after school when necessary and if improvement is not shown immediately, this will become the case here too. Other schools with a large country enrolment have found that parents are more inclined to see that their children do their homework if they have to drive in themselves to pick their children up when they have been kept in and miss the buses.

Some time ago an order was given for a well known make of electric typewriter. The salesman accepting the order is no longer with the company and the latter refuses to honor the agreement. As the school secretary is in need of a new typewriter, it was decided to contact the firm concerned in the hope that they would stand behind their agreement.

The meeting was adjourned to October 11, when the valuation roll will be passed.

MOVING DAY FOR SILO

The above photos show the silo formerly on the farm of Maurice Legatt, Herdman as it was being moved intact to the farm of Bert Rennie & Sons in Brooklet, a distance of about four miles yesterday afternoon, Oct. 9. The loading and moving was all done with the equipment owned by Dan Tully of Athelstan.

An interesting feature is that the 15' x 24' silo was made from hemlock lumber obtained from trees in the bush of Mr. Bert Rennie's father, the late George Rennie, some sixteen years ago. As can be seen the interior of the silo was reinforced to give it added support for the move. It is to be placed on a cement foundation on the Rennie farm.

An Interesting Fact

If anything seems all right to you, you are likely to say it is "Okay". But do you know where the expression comes from. In 1790 Andrew Jackson proved that a bill of sale in Tennessee was "Okay" so the word is at least that old. But from where do we get it? There are two answers to this question. One is the Choctaw Indian word "Okeh" or "yes, it is." More likely, however, the word derived from the name of a port in Haiti, in the West Indies, called Aux Cayes (pronounced Okay) Clerks often wrote it on bills as "O.K." and since the quality of exports from Aux Cayes was good, the phrase came to mean "All right."

BROTHERS ALL — Four quadruplet bull calves, born September 30 at the farm of Arlend Cook, Willis Road, Chateaugay, N.Y., are alive and well. According to Dr. J. D. Sweet of Chateaugay, who delivered them, the possibility of such a birth is practically impossible. Franklin County Agricultural Agent W. B. Andrews said it was "practically unheard of."

Mother of the quads is four-year-old Parkdale Alta., a registered Holstein from Huntingdon. She was purchased by Cook from Fred and Donald MacGregor, Boydsettlement Road. It was the second time she had freshened. The sire is MacSwan Singleman owned by Fred and Donald MacGregor and bred by Swanston and McHardy of Chateaugay. The importer of the dam was Garth Cook and he resold the animal to Arland Cook through the agency of Chas. E. Boyce, Huntingdon.

Long Time Ayrshire Man Dies At Ottawa Well Known Here

Gilbert Macmillan, O.B.E., and Frank Napier, both of Huntingdon, motored to Ottawa with Douglas A. Ness and Russell Logan, both of Howick, to attend the funeral of their longtime Ayrshire compatriot, the late Robert L. Cunningham.

Ninety-three years of age, Mr. Cunningham came to Canada, from Scotland, at the turn of the century with a shipment of Ayrshires for the late Hon. R. R. Ness, Burnside Farms, Howick; was therefore one of the group of Scotsmen who similiarly came to Brunside to subsequently become leading livestockmen in Canada and the United States; one such being Gilbert Macmillan.

After a few months each at Burnside Farms and Alta Crest Farms, Spencer, Mass., U.S.A., Mr. Cunningham became the first herdsman at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. However, as he was promoted to the position of the herds, flocks and stocks increased at the Experimental Farm Assistant Animal Husbandman, which position he held, with distinction until his retirement several years ago.

He was also in considerable demand as a judge of cattle and sheep at many Ontario Fairs; likewise as a judge of Ayrshires at leading National Exhibitions, including Ormstown Exhibition on several occasions. — F.N.

Mrs. Gladys Pirrie gave a shower last week at her home in Bellevue, in Aid of the W.A. Bazaar and Tea, which will be held in the Church Hall, Saturday, Nov. 20th. Too bad there wasn't a better turnout of W.A. members and guests to this shower, it's very discouraging when this happens. Do hope everyone will make an effort to attend the Bazaar and Tea. There will be no sale of tickets, you just pay as you enter.

In looking at our old map the other day which was printed in 1938, I came across some information on Municipalities which many of my readers, I'm sure, would like to read about.

Our fair town Ville de Lery became a municipality in the year 1914; the Town of Chateauguay in 1912; the Village of Howick 1915 and the Village of St. Chrysostome in 1905; Russeltown 1858, St. Clothilde 1885, Ste-Martine de Beauharnois 1835; St. Joachim de Chateauguay, 1846. Do hope you found this interesting.

Born today, October 10 — in 1813 — Giuseppe Verdi, the great Italian opera composer. He was the son of a poor inn-keeper. His many operas, including "Aida", "La Traviata", "Rigoletta" and "Otello" are still loved all over the world. Verdi lived to be very old, and his later work continued to grow in power and musical beauty. The common people of Italy enjoyed his music, but their appreciation was part political. Verdi was an acrostic for "Vittorio Emanuelo Re d'Italia" and in cheering Verdi the people were also shouting for their King, and for Italian liberation from Austria. Yet his arias and songs are enjoyed today as they were during the lifetime of the master. Verdi died in 1901.

I wonder if you know what inspired Albert Durer to paint his famous masterpiece the "Praying Hands." I didn't know until this week. I find it so interesting I would like to share it with you. Very briefly, Albert had made friends with an older man who was studying art at the same time as himself. They found it to be such a terrible struggle to earn a living and study at the same time and were almost at the point of giving up when the older man suggested one should work and earn a living for both while the other studied. Later when the paintings began to sell they could change places. It was agreed the older man should work first, and so he found employment washing dishes and scrubbing floors. At last Albert Durer was able to sell a painting and so the time came for the older man to study. Unfortunately the long hours of hard work had taken their toll and his hands were twisted and swollen with being in water so much. After much effort he was forced to admit he would never be able to paint. Albert knew no way that he could say "thank you" for the great sacrifice his friend had made. One day when he returned to the studio he found the older man kneeling with his hands clasped in prayer. The thought came to him, that although he could never give back the lost skills to those hands he could show his gratitude by painting those worn hands raised in prayer so that others would know of his unselfishness.

So, it is because of one person's service to another, that Albert Durer painted the "Praying Hands."

Chateauguay Centre United Church

Last Sunday the congregation joined together in the Harvest Thanksgiving service. The choir sang for the first time in the church and our thanks are extended to them for their contribution towards the service. Rev. Kenneth Purdon gave a very meaningful sermon pointing out just how much we should be "Thankful" for, and yet take for granted. How often we say "thank you" with no meaning at all. It is just a habit. I know it has made me a lot more conscious of my "Thank yous."

There was a beautiful offering of fruit and vegetables on the Communion Table; thanks go to the Junior girls Sunday School, and Miss Caroline Purdy, Linda Moore, Lynn Howie and Susan Elliott for the arrangement of fruit and flowers. The food was later taken to Caughnawaga for distribution to some families in need. Baskets of fruit were taken to the hospital.

Next Sunday the Sacrament of Holy Communion will be conducted at which time new members will be received into the fellowship of the Church.

(Mrs. E. St. Onge)

The school yard here at Ste. Jeanne D'Arc is having a real face-lifting job done. Tons of earth have already been removed and there is more to go, and tons and tons of crushed stone have been dumped and leveled on part, with much more to come. Was glad to notice the trees planted about 20 years ago and the grand old elm have had their roots protected. When this job is finished the children will have a large area on which to play and keep clean. The boys are having a ball, as quite a bit of heavy machinery is left in the school grounds, and boys are always boys where machinery is concerned.

Those persons interested in playing Badmington will please note that the Canadian Arsenal Limited Senior Club will be having their opening night on Thursday, October 18th, 7.30 p.m. two free memberships will be given.

Our congratulations to the Taylor family on Purvis St. A brother arrived last week for Johnny, Ann, Sheryl, Girard, Sharron and Raymond.

ment was a 99-year old relic of the Gleaner's first appearance in 1863 — a hand-press which was rescued from the junk-heap, and is now used to provide rush copies for the proof readers. The greatest surprise was to learn that printing our weekly paper and the French weekly "La Gazette Valleyfield-Beauharnois are only part of the many activities in a busy Gleaner week, and that commercial job-printing output far exceeds in importance the issue of the paper itself. There is an impressive capacity to produce anything in the printing line, with pictures if need be, from business forms and electioneering pamphlets to paper-bound books and catalogues. The quality of the latter is excellent and could compete anywhere.

The long-awaited drawing for $800 among the first fifteen house-purchasers of the new models in Seigniory Park was scheduled for last weekend. Because of press deadlines (and because we were away for the weekend!) we cannot publish the name of the winner with this issue of the Chateauguay Gleaner, but one lucky family will have had cause for celebration this past week-end. How about a party?

When Canada's worsening financial crisis made the headlines a few months ago, there were reports that the Italian interests behind the projected Place Victoria had been scared off investing in Canada. Certainly there has been a marked lack of activity at the building site all summer, although construction had been scheduled for this year. However, there are a couple of encouraging signs that things are once again on the move. A large sign appeared last week stating that a well-known Canadian Bank will occupy premises in the building to be erected on the site. Secondly, a start has been made to the under-pinning of the adjacent Mark Fischer Building — an essential step towards erection of the first tower.

The day that Place Ville Marie was officially opened, the Plaza was swarming with CFCF staff and technicians. Standouts were the two cute and pretty brunettes distributing CFCF book matches to all passers-by, including myself. With such charmers working for them, I'm prepared, without further information as to their platform, to vote CFCF next election! I'm only kidding you know — I'm not that ignorant! In fact, I'm not as stupid as I look, although my wife says I'm running it perilously close!

Well, it finally happened, as it was bound to happen, — a traffic accident at the entrance to Seigniory Park. Mrs. Ken Perry, approaching from the south, waited patiently for about ten minutes to make the turn. Finally seeing her chance, she made her move, and was promptly hit by a car from behind. Gross carelessness on the part of the second driver, of course, but the fact remains that the accident was directly caused by the negligence of Municipal and Provincial authorities in failing to provide elementary safeguards to the public at the intersection of St. Francis and Routes 3 and 4. We are thankful that Mrs. Perry escaped serious injury, and is well, but will this lucky escape finally stimulate some action? I very much doubt it, and suppose we must wait until the inevitable fatal accident draws some gruesome publicity for Seigniory Park. Perhaps a four-car collision with half a dozen dead might do the trick.

Inauguration and Benediction of Delson Town Hall

On Saturday, October 6th, citizens of Delson proudly witnessed the official opening of the new Town Hall. This was indeed a momentous occasion and the opening ceremony, a most impressive one with many local dignitaries attending. Mr. W. Leo Neville was the distinguished Master of Ceremonies and addressed the assembly as follows: "Your Worship, Mayor W. Boardman, Madame, the Mayoress, Aldermen of the Town of Delson, Secretary of the Town of Delson, Rev. Father N. Poirier, Members of the Catholic and Protestant School Commissions, Honoured Guests, Residents of Delson, and Ladies and Gentlemen.

Undoubtedly, all of us present here today, have had the occasion in the past, while, either lazily meandering on a bright sunny Sunday afternoon or during our vacation, to visit certain villages, towns or cities of our "La Belle Province", and I am sure that many of these villages, towns or cities are vividly remembered by certain landmarks which were very appealing to us, such as their churches, parks, municipal, provincial, federal or other buildings and of the many justifiable remarks concerning their architecture, beauty, originality or uniqueness. On this 6th day of October 1962, a landmark is also entering the historic annals of our own Community, whose history is already well dotted with special events. A landmark which, beyond the originality of its facade, conceals such an appropriate decorated, modern, spacious council hall, offices of his Worship and Town Secretary readily accessible banking facilities and Post Office services, as well as accommodation for our fire fighting equipment and police department.

Additionally, this wonderful building offers for our enjoyment, banquet and reception facilities, which by the way, we will soon have the pleasure of visiting.

Indeed ladies and gentlemen, we may well be proud of this new landmark, the "Town Hall of Delson". However, in the admiration of this splendid building, we should not merely limit ourselves to the "Finished Product." One must not be unaware that to achieve such a goal, a master-mind was behind the undertaken project. A person directing its development from the moment that idea was born until its final blueprint. A person whose devotion to duty, interest in the Community and his perserverance could not be overcast by the pros and cons, and ups and downs, the additions and deletions with which he was to be confronted. Without deviating one iota, he followed through with the idea in mind of having in Delson a "Hall" for all its residents, the "Hall" of all of us, where we could gather united as we are today. The master-mind, ladies and gentlemen, I have great pleasure of sincerely congratulating, on your behalf and mine, for a job well done and the honour of introducing him to you, his Worship Mayor Willie Boardman.

Following his introduction Mayor Boardman replied thus: firstly addressing the dignitaries, then residents of Delson, Que. Ladies and Gentlemen, Thank you kindly for your wonderful ovation and may I take this opportunity to extend to you all a most cordial welcome to the official opening of the Town Hall of Delson an occasion which will be inscribed in the history of the Town of Delson as a memorial event. It is not many years ago, 1917 to be exact, that its history began by proclamation of the Municipality of the village of Delson, formerly a part and parcel of St. Constant, Que. Delson retained the status of village until February 21st, 1957, on which date a new charter was issued proclaiming the village of Delson as the Town of Delson. Since the latter date, the majority of its residents have seen the growth of its population by the addition of a new section, the construction of its sewage disposal facilities, the inauguration of its aqueduct and its latest addition, this wonderful building. Another step in the gradual progress of the Town of Delson.

As Mayor of the Town of Delson, I cannot help but being most proud of our new Town Hall, a project which only became a reality through team work demonstrated by the assistance and co-ordination of efforts by each Alderman of the Council of Delson, the entire cooperation of the residents of our town, as well as the professional guidance and advice received from our engineers, architect, advocate and contractor.

In closing, Mayor Boardman invited citizens to make a point of attending as frequently as possible the meetings of the Town Council which will take place in this appropriate Assembly Hall.

Following the Mayor's address Mr. Neville called Mr. Gustave Monette, Advocate and Town Legal Advisor, to speak to the company, after which Mr. Faubert, Contractor, also addressed the assembly. Rev. Father Poirier, Parish Priest, was then asked to say a few words before proceeding with the Benediction of the Building. All speeches were made in both French and English.

Next on the agenda was the unveiling of the "Plaque of Commemoration"

a) Reading of Inscription and a few words from the Mayor.

b) Introduction of its donor, Mr. Herbert Lavigne, Architect.

c) Few words by Mr. H. Lavigne.

Cutting of the ribbon, officially pronouncing the opening of the building by his Worship Mayor W. Boardman then took place, followed by the Benediction of Fire Hall, Truck and Equipment. Refreshments were served to everyone present in the Reception Hall, when a very happy and enjoyable time was had by all. Alderman R. G. Roach proposed a toast and Mr. Neville extended thanks. The citizens of Delson were justly proud of their Administrators, and effusive congratulations were extended to all who had worked towards the success of the occasion.

CROP CONDITIONS

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—The federal agriculture research station here says its studies indicate soil temperature, as well as moisture and air temperature, should be considered in deciding when to plant crops. Spring wheat, oats and barley thrive hardily in soil temperatures of 40-80 degrees but corn, beans, sugar beets and sunflowers germinate best in soil at 67-80 degrees. Cooler soils are remommended for flax and forage crops.

Wedding

Legault-Taillefer.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Huntingdon, Quebec was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday morning, September 15th, 1962, when Miss Rolande Taillefer, daughter of Mrs. Eugene Taillefer and the late Eugene Taillefer, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Raymond Legault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Legault of Dewittville, Que. Father Gareau officiated at the double ring ceremony, and High Mass. Solos were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Eugene Taillefer and Mr. Roland Taillefer.

The bride, given away by her godfather, Mr. Charlemagne Chantigny, looked charming in a white satin floor length gown, with shoulder length veil, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses.

The bride's mother was gowned in blue lace over taffeta and wore a rose feather hat, and a corsage of rose carnations while the groom's mother was attired in a brocaded blue gown with white feather turban, and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mr. Eugene Legault, the groom's brother, and Mr. Ive Debelfeuil acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the Knights of Columbus Hall in Valleyfield where a delicious luncheon was served. Dancing was enjoyed by all to the music of the Prairie Rangers.

Later the happy couple left on a motor trip to Quebec City, Val David and other points along the Saguenay. The bride's going away costume was a dark brown suit with accessories to match and a corsage of yellow roses. They have now taken up residence in Dewittville, Que.

A Shower.

On Thursday, September 27th, Mrs. Russell Williams, Mrs. Wayne Kennedy and Mrs. Gerald Ellerton, together with twenty-one friends, greeted a very surprised young lady, Miss Lois Kazulak, at the home of Mrs. Russell Williams, and presented her with a shower of gifts both useful and elegant. On her arrival, Lois was escorted to the seat of honour under a pink and blue umbrella which was decorated with tiny pink and blue umbrellas. After the gifts had been opened and admired, refreshments were served, the highlight of the table being the delicious, beautifully decorated shower cake brought by Mrs. Roger Legeault. Lois made many friends in Hemmingford while working as a clerk in Lacasse's Store. Her marriage will take place in Huntingdon on November 15th and all joined with those present at the shower in wishing her every happiness in the future.

Agricultural Industry...

origin for which we might find use here so as to replace imports from the United States, in particular, and from other countries with whom we experience adverse trade balances. Then again, Canada should replace all forms of mutual aid by the supply of food. It will be well if we had ready in storage at ports processed and packaged foods of all kinds ready to rush a cargo to any distressed area. Our food maintained at a high standard of quality, clearly labelled "from Canada", and rushed to people in need anywhere is the best way in which we can give help where required quickly, and will bring us more goodwill than anything else. We can afford to let more highly industrialized countries of the West supply other means of assistance to friendly underdeveloped areas.

For some years past and at present, substantial sums from the national treasury have been advanced in various ways under the heading "Aid to Agriculture". These were and are necessary though the urban population of Canada has unfortunately never really approved of it for the reason that city dwellers are wholly uninstructed in the matter of agricultural economics. They do not realize that most farm products today bring the actual producer in some cases as much as 25% below cost. Nor do they realize that farming is an extremely hazardous industry. It costs just as much to plant a crop that fails as a bumper crop. Nor can a farmer produce a supply to order as other industries can and do. There is only one crop a year, and what demand will develop and what prices will obtain when the harvest is garnered only becomes known at that time.

In a programme as visualized here, the improvement in farm prosperity will first affect very materially the unemployed situation. At present, our labour ranks are swelled substantially by the movement of young people from farms into other industries. Next, increased buying power of farmers will add significantly to total trade in Canada and to exports abroad. It is noteworthy that in a country such as ours a reasonably prosperous agricultural industry provides the best factor for a generally prosperous condition of the nation. Furthermore, our country can absorb immigrants best through agriculture. Altogether, taking into consideration the present cost of aid to agriculture and the general advantage to our industry as a whole which will produce much greater taxable incomes, the net cost to the national treasury from the appropriation of a billion dollars will probably be nil, and may even produce substantial profits.

MAN DIES AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT

The 1947 Dodge in the foreground is the vehicule in which John MacFarlane, age 72, lost his life last Wednesday afternoon. The truck in the background had broken down just east of Dewittville on Route 4 and had been parked there most of the day, with the driver remaining with it to direct traffic. Mr. MacFarlane was travelling from east to west behind two other cars. The drivers of the other vehicles came to a stop behind the truck but Mr. MacFarlane evidently could not stop his car in time and chose to veer his car sharply to the right rather than hit the car ahead of him. In so doing, his car collided with the tree marked "X". The aged man suffered chest injuries, but it is believed he died from a heart attack before the car struck the tree. About a year ago, his brother Jim was burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home on the Howick-Aubrey road. Funeral for the deceased was held from Riverfield Presbyterian Church on Saturday.

Miss Alison M. Reid Married in Huntingdon United Church

MURRAY-REID

The marriage of Alison Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Reid, of Huntingdon, Que., to Mr. H. Campbell Murray, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Marland Murray of Martintown, Ont., took place Saturday afternoon, October 6th, in the Huntingdon United Church, the Rev. W. E. Black officiating. The organist was Miss Norah Shanks and Mrs. Stanley Ruddock sang "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of silk peau de soie, fashioned with a scooped neckline, three-quarter length sleeves; the front over panel of the skirt was of Calais lace, with appliques of the lace at the neckline; unpressed pleats shaped the back fullness. The shoulder length veil was of silk tulle, held in place by a coronet of Calais lace. She clarred a bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Carolyn Murray, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Miss Heather Reid and Miss Kathleen Reid, sisters of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They wore identical short dresses of aqua green peau de soie, the fitted bodices fashioned with bateau necklines and three-quarter sleeves, the skirts shaped with straight fronts and unpressed pleats at side and back. Their headdresses were matching coronets with round veils. They carried cascade bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, and maiden-hair fern.

Mr. Jack Wilson was best man for his cousin and the ushers were Mr. Stanley Reid and Mr. Murray Wilson.

The mother of the bride wore a dark blue figured matte jersey dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The mother of the groom wore a brown brocade dress with brown accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Church Hall, and later Mr. and Mrs. Murray left for a short trip to the New England States. On their return they will reside at Martintown, Ont. The bride's going away costume was a Chinese red suit with a white maribou pillbox hat, black accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests attending came from Ottawa, Cornwall, Hamilton, Port Credit, Niagara Falls, Hawkesbury, Lindsay, Bowmanville, Ont., East Hartland, Conn., Truro, N.S., Montreal and La Tuque and Asbestos, Que.

Blueberry Wine Made At Kentville

Blueberries are the source of a new wine that offers a well-balanced flavor, excellent bouquet and an attractive, brilliant ruby color.

Fruit from low-bush blueberries was used by T. Fuleki, of the federal research station at Kentville, N.S., in developing the dessert-type fruit wine which has an appetizing, slightly spicy flavor.

Here's how the wine is made:

The blueberries are crushed and treated with a pectinolitic enzyme to improve the yield during pressing. Two pressings are required to extract the sugar and coloring matter after which the juice is diluted to tone down its strong color.

Sugar, an organic nitrogen source for the yeast, and sodium metabisulphate — which prevents bacterial spoilage — are added.

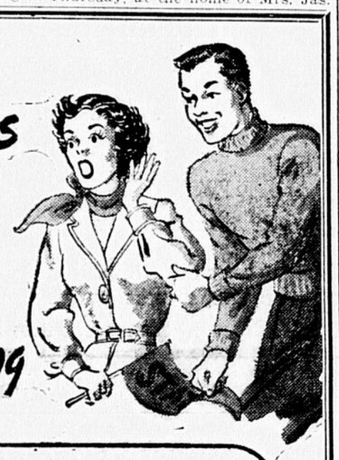

Fermentation is started with a selected strain of wine yeast and is carried out at a controlled temperature and with the exclusion of air. It should be allowed to proceed quickly to reduce chances of spoilage.

After fermentation the wine is racked off the lees and the sugar and acid content adjusted.

Following a short aging period the wine is filtered pasteurized and bottled.

It should be chilled before serving, Fuleki says.

Chateauguay High School Junior Red Cross News

By RIKI STANFORD

In this first column and in others to follow, I will report to you the many activities of our Chateauguay High School Junior Red Cross Council which I hope you will find interesting.

Our first meeting was held on September 24th, at our School and I spoke telling the representatives what our main purpose and duties would be during our one year term. In the Council there are thirteen representatives, one from each grade, 8-11. At the meeting we elected the executive body which includes President—Janet Seary; Vice-President — Anne Pold; Secretary — Carol Harris; Treasurer — Utah Von Beckman; Publicity chairman yours truly, Committee Chairman — Jimmy Ross, and our Teachers Sponsor — Mr. D. Patterson. After a few questions by the Council and a short discussion on future plans, the meeting adjourned.

On October 1st, the President and I attended the Inter School Council at Junior Red Cross Headquarters in Montreal. There, four other representatives and I talked on certain aspects of the Training Centre which we had attended in Charlottetown, P.E.I. during July of this year. After which we listened to other people talk on J. R. C. ideals.

On October 2nd, our second meeting was held. We first discussed how we could raise money for our dance to be held late in October, the proceeds of which will go to the "Freedom From Hunger Campaign" now under way by the United Nations.

We decided to hold a Record Hop starting Tuesday, October 9th at lunch hour, for which there will be a charge. With the money we raise here, we shall proceed with our dance. We all hope that we shall receive co-operation from the students and staff of our school.

Let's Talk About Fires

(by Syd Mitchell)

In order to have a fire we must have 3 elements, material which burns, oxygen and heat. In most of our buildings there is plenty of material present which can burn and there is always oxygen present in the air.

To prevent a fire, therefore, we must keep hot materials such as sparks, ashes, molten metal away from materials which will burn. If they do come together, we have fire. This has been called the triangle of fire.

As long as we can keep the third side, heat, away from the other two, nothing happens —

BUT if they come together fire is the result

EXTINGUISHING FIRES:

In order to extinguish fires, one of the sides of the triangle must be taken out. Usually the material which burns is too hard to move although in some cases, dangerous or valuable material may be taken out of the way of a fire.

Some fires can be extinguished most easily by removing oxygen, which is called smothering. This is usually done with a chemical solution or gas which covers the fire and prevents oxygen from reaching it. The commonest way of extinguishing a fire is to cool the materials below their point of ignition, and this is most readily done by water. Most of our fire protection systems are designed to bring water in large quantities to any place where we may have a fire.

TYPES OF FIRES

For purposes of extinguishing, fires are divided into 3 classes known as Class A, B & C.

CLASS "A" is a fire in ordinary materials which burn such as paper, wood, coal and other similar materials. This type of fire requires cooling or quenching with water to put it out.

USE — Soda Acid Foam or water.

CLASS "B" fires are fires in flammable liquids and require the removal of the oxygen or a smothering action to put them out.

USE — Carbon Dioxide Dry Chemical or Foam. (NEVER USE WATER).

CLASS "C" fires are those involving electrical apparatus and here it is essential to use an extinguishing material which will not conduct electricity, otherwise, either the operator will be endangered or the fire may spread due to a short circuit.

USE — Carbon Dioxide Dry Chemical or Foam. (NEVER USE WATER).

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

Do It Well

The young fellow worked on a Winnipeg daily, a beginner. I discovered him practicing the old routine, "NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THE PARTY." He was using the touch system taught in the business colleges.

"How come?" I asked him. "Haven't you noticed most of the old-time reporters bang out their stories with four stiffly-pointed fingers?"

"Sure," he grinned. "They sound fast, but they're not. If I'm going to be using a typewriter as one of the tools of my trade, I want to use it right. Even if I turn out to be a lousy reporter, I'll be a good typist.

My guess is that he'll turn out to be a darn fine reporter... or darn fine at whatever he tackles.

Years ago, between high school years, I worked for a Master Farmer in Manitoba. One day, stooking, we saw the neighbor's hired hand at work in the next field. My boss groaned, 'Give me half an hour with that man and I could teach him to stook right!" I could see that it pained him to think of a man going on and on, stook after stook, handling the sheaves improperly, doing less than a perfect job. If that hired man had had the gumption of my young newspaper friend, he'd have hopped the fence and asked for a lesson. Like so many of us, however, he was content to go on doing things half right for the rest of his life.

Poor performance is a sad thing to watch. There's a waitress in a cafe near my office who hasn't learned how to make change properly although she's been at it some years to my personal knowledge. Younger girls in the same cafe do it right, do it faster, because they learned the proper way.

Whether you bowl, play pool, stook, cook, combine, plow or type, learn how to do it right. Learn early, so correct movements become automatic. Don't be content to bumble along. Even the morning shave can be accomplished with more grace and speed if you look for tips from the experts—ask your barber about it! If each of us learns to perform his tasks well, we'll contribute that much more to the welfare of our country. Let's quit being sloppy Joes and start to do our jobs well!

Canada Also Features In Space Celebrations

Intergration has come to the University of Mississippi at a cost of two dead and more than a score wounded. But at week's end, booing students and reports of gunfire did little to encourage hopes that normalcy was returning to the turbulent campus.

Nicholas Katzenbach, deputy U.S. attorney-general, held fast however to his conviction that "we've gone a long way toward relieving tensions here and getting back to normalcy."

James H. Meredith, 29, under guard of federal marshals, was enrolled Oct. 1 and formally began classes in the university, its first Negro student since it was established 114 years ago.

That had been preceded by wild rioting at the university on Sept. 30 when bricks and bottles, tear gas and guns, were used as students and outsiders clashed with the marshals. Killed by gunshot wounds were Paul Guihard, correspondent for Agence France Presse from Paris, and Raymond Gunter, 23, a music company employee at the town.

The rioting at Oxford, Miss., broke out even as President Kennedy in a television broadcast was appealing for respect for the law. He hoped to avoid use of troops in the crisis.

But after several hours of fighting federal troops and national guard units were ordered on the campus to restore order. Later in the week the number of federal troops in the area rose to 12,000.

Examine Walker

A psychiatric examination was ordered for former Maj.-Gen. Edwin A. Walker after a government psychiatrist reported that his medical history and accounts of his recent behavior might indicate "an underlying mental disturbance."

The psychiatrist, Dr. Charles E. Smith, said he based his findings on Walker's medical history which included, it was understood, his army records, and on press accounts of Walker's actions in the integration riot at the University of Mississippi.

News dispatches had said Walker led rioters in a charge against U.S. marshals on the university campus. He was arrested there and charged with conspiracy to incite rebellion or insurrection.

Lawyers for Walker — who expressed extreme right political views and is a member of the John Birch society — charge that he is a "political prisoner," and challenged the government order committing him to the federal prison medical centre at Springfield, Mo.

Man in Space

Astronaut Walter M. Schirra was steaming slowly last week-end toward his first thunderous welcome — a massed greeting in Hawaii — after having orbited the earth six times in the U.S. spacecraft Sigma 7.

His flight Oct. 3 was the longest ever undertaken by an American although considerably shorter than the 64-orbit flight of Soviet Russia's Andrian Nikolayev. After nine hours, 17 minutes aloft, Schirra's space capsule came down by parachute less than five miles from the aircraft carrier Kearsage in the Pacific.

Canada also registered a space success when the Canadian-built Alouette satelite was sent into orbit by the U.S. from Vandenberg air force base in California. Now in a circular Polar orbit, the 320-pound space unit will study the ionosphere.

French Crisis

The French government of Premier Georges Pompidou fell on Oct. 5, when 280 of the 480 National Assembly members backed a censure motion charging President de Gaulle with violating the constitution.

Under attack is the president's move to seek approval in an Oct. 28 referendum for his plan to elect future presidents by popular vote, instead of by the electoral college.

President de Gaulle last Saturday decided to dissolve the assembly and call new elections. Pompidou was asked to stay at his post until the new chamber is elected and installed. Speculation on the election date centred around Nov. 4 or 11, although it might be later.

Berlin Tension

A new and serious incident at "the wall" heightened tension in Berlin. East German guards last Sunday barred British Army and West Berlin Red Cross ambulances from going to the aid of a man wounded on the Communist side of the barrier. The guards also prevented a British officer from approaching the wounded man.

West Berlin police said East German guards fired two bufsts at a West Berliner who came out of a tunnel in the east side of the wall. Two refugees were said to have come through the tunnel to West Berlin, and the West Berliner was reported to have gone through the tunnel to see if he could help others escape.

"We are considering with our allies," a British spokesman said, "what action should be taken about the refusal to allow an Allied vehicle to proceed in East Berlin on a humanitarian mission." The Western powers claim the right of free movement throughout the divided city. The incident Saturday was a clear rejection of that right.

Rome Council

The Iron Curtain however was lifting to permit delegates from at least three Soviet-bloc countries to attend the second Vatican council of the Roman Catholic Church.

Vatican officials welcomed the chance of personal contact with delegates from Hungry, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Only Poland had been expected to attend.

Bishop Andre Hamvas of Csanad, heading a nine-man Hungarian delegation, said "I am so happy to be here to see you that I can hardly speak;" as he was welcomed by a group of Hungarian priests in Rome and two officials of the Hungarian embassy.

First arrivals among Protestant observers meanwhile expressed confidence the world-wide meeting, opening Oct. 11, will bring greater co-operation among all Christians.

Tragic Fire At Melocheville

Could the fire that destroyed a brick house at Melocheville on the night of last Friday and Saturday, have been caused by a criminal hand? This question will be answered only when the investigation undertaken by the detectives of the Provincial Police is completed.

The body of Mr. Edouard Leboeuf, aged 61 was found on the floor of his bedroom at 7.15 a.m., October 6.

Mr. Leboeuf, had lived alone in his house situated on Blvd. Edgar Iebert in Melocheville, for many years. He was a retired farmer.

The chief of police of the city Mr. Roland Charlebois, arrived on the scene at about 3 o'clock in the morning. He directed the proceedings and also a dozen firemen who tried their best to stop the destructive fire. "The roof fell in and there isn't much left of the old building," said Mr. Charlebois.

The victim, whose body was transfered to the morgue in Beauharnois leaves to mourn his loss four brothers and a sister living in Melocheville.

The inquiry directed by Sergeant Beaudoin of the Provincial Police will determine exactly the circumstances of the tragedy which are at present unknown.

Fire Prevention Week In Chateauguay Oct. 7 - 13

Town of Chateauguay

Oct. 3rd — Mr. McKay of Fabrite Metals, Caughnawaga Road reported a theft had occurred during the night of Oct. 2nd - 3rd. A door had been smashed open, and a motorcycle in for repairs had been stolen. The motorcycle a Triumph 650cc motor in a Norton frame is owned by Mr. Faban of Ville Lasalle.

October 4th - 11.15 a.m. — John Hilton reported at the station that his bicycle had been stolen from the rear of his home at 36 St. Jean between 6.30 and 9 P.M. the previous evening.

October 4th - 3.40 p.m. — The young son of John Seperich of 227, Duquette inadvertently swallowed some turpentine and the doctor ordered him taken to the Montreal Childrens' Hospital. He was taken in his father's car which was given a police escort by Chief R. Gervais and Const. Gagnon as far as the Provincial Police Station at Mercier Bridge.

Saturday October 6th — Leo Coulombe 5099 St. Antoine, Montreal, was arrested for being in charge of a motor vehicle whilst under the influence of liquor. After a detention period he was allowed to proceed home after depositing a $50.00 bond.

A further two rifles were seized in the Centre during the past week.

With Autumn at hand and the burning of leaves ritual close upon us the police wish to stress the dangers of this, particularly in a strong wind. From a gardener's point of view this burning of leaves is also a great waste, as rotted leaves are a valuable source of humas and plant food for the soil. The leaves should either be spread on the ground and dug in or placed on the compost heap.

This week is Fire Prevention Week in the Towns of Chateauguay and the program for the week follows:

Fire Prevention Week.

Literature has been distributed to all school children in both French and English such as Fire Safety Hints to Baby Sitters containing spaces for tel. nos. of Fire, Police, Doctor and Neighbour. Posters are placed in strategic points throughtout the town.

Approximately 200 stores have been supplied with colored posters in French and English titled "Stop Fires, Save Lives".

An elaborate booklet is being prepared for distribution and will be available in a few weeks time.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
7th - 15th October 1962
Message from Chief of Police and Fire M. Roma Gervais

No one should be indifferent to the many causes of fire. Fire hazards must be checked at this time of the year.

The many losses of human lives, through neglect by eliminating sources of fire have proven to be the main reason of such incidents.

On behalf of the Town of Chateauguay authorities, I request your sincere collaboration during this prevention week, for the maximun protection of our home owners and children.

I thank you in advance for the full support you may give us.

Sincerely yours,
M. ROMA GERVAIS,

First Annual Benefit Ball For Chateauguay Valley Historical Society

Striking a note of optimism The Chateauguay Valley Historical Society has announced that their first major event is to be entitled The First Annual Benefit Ball. It is indeed the hope of the hard working committee that this dance will set the pace for years to come.

To be held this October 26th, at the Chateau in Huntingdon, the Ball will celebrate the 149th. Anniversary of the Battle of Chateauguay. It is hoped that many will enter the spirit of the Society's theme and come in period costume — and several have announced their intention of doing so.

It is understood that the ticket sale, being co-ordinated by Mrs. Frank Baker in Huntingdon, is going very well — with parties being formed to come from as far as Montreal. In view of the necessity to limit numbers for comfortable accommodation all tickets will be sold in advance.

Decision to hold the Ball was made only this August, forming a major challenge for the committee who undertook the task. The main purposes of the Ball are to raise badly needed finances for the Society's general fund, and as a further effort to focus attention upon the date — the Anniversary date — about which the Society's major efforts will be concentrated next year.

No Effort To Be Spared

The Society shares the feelings of many other groups and individuals in the Valley that in 1963 no effort should be spared to have the Battle Anniversary recognised for its true place in Canadian history — not only through this area, but provincially and, indeed, nationally. There is a far-reaching value to thus focussing attention on this area — apart from the historic importance, there is much to be gained from creating an atmosphere throughout the area which will bring the increasingly valuable tourist trade which is being encouraged elsewhere.

The Centennial

1967 is a short time away. Canada's Centennial Year has received much publicity, but little has been accomplished to date to formulate the plans which are essential if this country is to achieve all which stands to be gained from a year-long celebration of a truly significant nature. All associations and groups should be planning toward this end, bringing pressure to bear upon the federal government to follow through its announced intentions with regard to nation-wide achievement. The most vital form of pressure which can be brought to bear is to announce definite local area plans, and to interest both provincial and federal governments in assisting in any way they can.

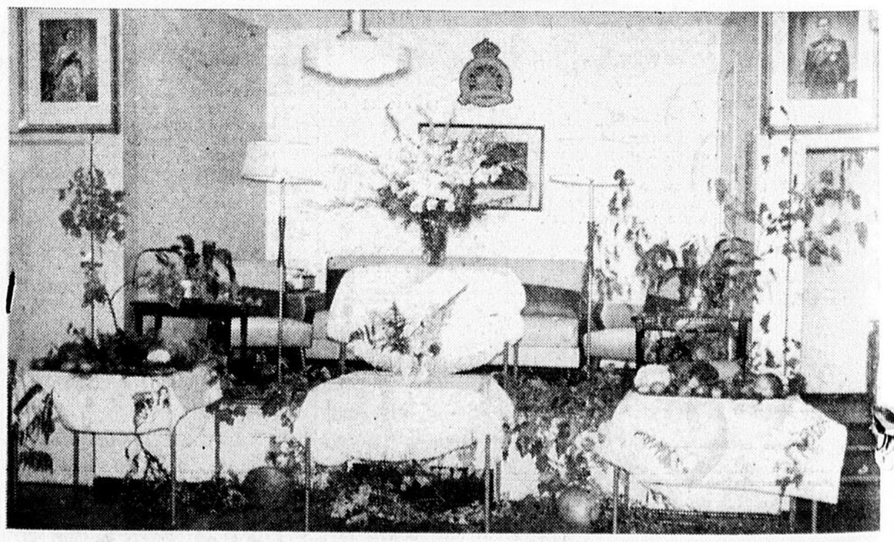

The Historical Society Ball, to be held on this year's anniversary of the most significant single event in the history of this Valley is a first move by the Society to encourage others throughout the Valley to join them in integrated planning for 1967. Much is to be done if we are to contribute our share, and every interested person will be needed to see that all municipalities, all organizations of this Valley add their enthusiasm.

On Saturday night the Maplewood Presbyterian C.G.I.T. girls gathered at Vetville and did a wonderful job of decorating the Hall for the Thanksgiving service. THE LEADING ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN THE DISTRICT OF BEAUHARNOIS

Notes and Jottings FROM Robert Sellar's Historical Writings

In the spring of 1829 an accident happened which caused a deep sensation and proved a sad blow to the infant settlement. McFarlane, the storekeeper, had engaged during the winter in lumbering to a greater exent than ever before, having about 40 men employed. When the ice moved, he started his rafts, and followed them to Dewittville, being most anxious to get them to market. He stayed during the night with Hugh Cameron, and, early in the morning, crossed the mill-pond between the two dams to see his men and give them their dram. He got into a canoe to return for breakfast, having along with him a negro, Charley Freeman, and a tailor who had recently come out from Scotland, McCallum by name. The negro alone understood the management of a canoe, and owing to the carelessness of one of the others, it upset above the pitch of the lower dam. The negro and McCallum swam back to the north bank, but McFarlane was swept over the dam, in sight of over a hundred raftsmen, who were powerless to save him. His body was not recovered for some 6 weeks, and was found 1½ miles below where he was drowned. It was buried beside his house, near the sidewalk on 243, chains being placed around the coffin, with the intention of lifting it to send it to Glengarry, but his relatives took no interest in the matter, and there his dust still lies under one of Huntingdon's stores. He left no will, and his clerk, Duncan McNee, was engaged by the creditors to collect the assets, and ultimately they made over the business to him.

The monotony of life in a hamlet buried deep in the woods was broken in the fall of 1828 by the arrival of Col. Brown and Mr. Norval, who had come to hold an agricultural show. It was held on "the green", the open space between Bowron's house and the canal and mill — a place where children played and on summer evenings housewiveys gathered for social gossip. It was a meagre affair, of course, a few horses and more oxen; a group of cows and an odd sheep or two. $72 was paid out by Mr. Norval in prizes and then the day was celebrated by a carouse. With the exception of 1830, when the funds would not permit, shows were held yearly there-after, generally during the last week in September, and were of increasing interest. Of the one in 1832, the report states that the turn-out "manifested the great improvement going forward in a country that ten years ago was little less than an impenetrable bush." The attendance grew more quickly than the exhibits, show-day coming to be regarded as the harvest holiday, and, noting this, one report declares that the shows "promote cordinality and good-will, amalgamate persons of different races, and spread information". The "relaxation and festivity" that characterised thus early one of Huntingdon's peculiar institutions has increased with time and lost its grosser features. As funds grew more plentiful, competition in crops was added, which were judged in the field; in the case of roots, a square patch was measured off and dug in the presence of the judges, the yield being weighed. The prizes were good, $6, $5, and $4 for horses, and $4, $3, and $2 for cows. After a while, the shows were held on Prince Arthur square, and began to partake of the nature of fairs, the settlers coming in to buy and sell. Of buyers from a distance, two McShanes (father and cousin of James McShane, M.P.P. for Montreal West) were prominent, and came up with rolls of bills in the pockets of their long coats and leather breechers. The evening was given up to drinking, and the taverns and stores were scenes of disorder.

When James Percy left the village there was pressing need for a house of entertainment. On acquiring Lalanne's lot, Lewis converted the stable into a good-sized tavern, joining Lalanne's loghouse to one end of it for a barroom, and it was the first house where decent accommodation could be had. It was kept successively by Benj. Lewis, James Love, Charles Hibbard, Orson French, — King, Thos. Crawford, and John and Harrison Thomson — all Americans or of American descent — none of whom, except the Thomsons, kept it long. Mr. Fitch adapted his dwelling-house for a hotel on his raising anocher, and rented it to John Thomson in 1832, who did not keep it long, moving up to opposite the bridge, and finally renting Lewis's hotel. In 1835 Mr. Fitch moved in and kept hotel himself, and continued to do so until he handed over the business to his son-in-law, William Barrett. David Milne, who had a farm on Trout River, sold it to Robt. Murray; and opened a tavern which stood east of the Methodist Church, on 245. The securing of a tavern had become a necessity to Lewis from his having taken the contract to carry the mill. Up to 1829 there was no post office in the district, and settlers depended upon Montreal or the U.S. offices for their mail-matter, and losing one or two days to send a letter or find if there was one for them. When a settler visited Montreal, he would ask at the postoffice for letters for all his neighbors. A letter to Great Britain cost $1, and seldom took less than 6 weeks to go. On the 6th April, 1829, a mail-route was established, having Laprairie, Chateauguay and Beauharnois as offices. On the 6th July, 1830, François Maurice Lepallieur of Chateauguay started in fulfilment of a contract he had entered into to convey the mail to Dundee, with liberty to cross to Fort Covington. He made one trip a week, performing the journey on the back of a sorrel pony when the roads were bad and in a French cart when they permitted; the only offices on the route, Reeves' and Huntingdon; and his remuneration $240 a-year. The rate of postage was 18 cents a letter for any distance not greater than Quebec. There were not half a dozen newspapers in the bag. They were dear, the annual subscription being $4, and, in addition, there was 80 cents postage. The postmaster at Huntingdon was Dowie Kettle Lighthall, who came through the Hoyles. His habit, when he had sorted the mail, was to read out aloud to the crowd that never failed to assemble when Lepallieur hove in sight, the address of each letter. The plan had the advantage, if the person was not present, of some neighbor who was, telling him. When St. Andrew's opened, he put the package of undelivered letters in his pocket and after service handed them to their owners. Lepallieur had been making his rounds a considerable while, when there came to Huntingdon an American named Campbell, who had fled from his creditors. Among other property he brought with him were a number of horses and a stage-wagon. A long-mooted project had been the establishing of a stage between Ogdensburg and Montreal, and Campbell undertook to perform the duty on the Canadian side. The experiment proved that it could be made a success in competent hands, and a company composed of Lewis, Schuyler, Ames, and Love bought him out. Sending to Albany for two of the best stage-coaches then made, they opened in the summer of 1832, making two trips a week, and when Lepallieur transferred to them his contract of carrying the mail. The route was well-patronized by Americans and was a popular means of communication between Northern New York and Montreal until the canals were opened. Leaving Ogdensburg in the morning, Fort Covington was reached in the evening, when a few hours of rest were allowed. At 2 in the morning the horn was sounded and the journey was renewed in the Canadian stage, which drawn by 4 horses, drove down Briggs street to the lines and then reached Huntingdon by the Rridge-Road in time for an early breakfast. The horses were pulled up along-side the ferry-boat at the Basin in the afternoon, and on the boat's nearing Lachine another stage was seen to be waiting, landed the passengers by nightfall at the door of the Ottawa hotel, then kept by Hall on St. James Street. The fare from Fort Covington to Montreal was $3.50, and from Huntingdon $2.50, with half a dollar additional in winter, when the stage drove straight across the ice to the city. The management of the line was bad and the company became insolvent, when Joshua Lewis got sole control. Falling under suspicion of being in sympathy with the rebels, the postoffice department, then managed by the Imperial authorities, withdrew the contract ($1000 a-year) of carrying the mail from him, and gave it to George Pringle in 1839, who took the stage from Lewis and ran it tri-weekly for 14 years, using 3 horses instead of 4. In 1842 the steamer agreed to take the stage on board, which saved the transfer of baggage. The establishing of the stage led to additional post offices being opened, and bags were made up for Ste. Martine, where Primeau was postmaster; for Widow Cross's at Point Round; for Dunham (Ormstown) Wm. Cross postmaster; and Dewittville, James Davidson. The starting of the stage-line, as important an event in those times as the opening of a railway in ours, ended the prosperous days of the canoes, which, thereafter, were resorted to only for conveying heavy goods. Reeves deplored this, for he had brought his canoe-line into fine working order. "Before the stage began", he said, "people looking for land had to stay overnight and the same going back, but now they go right on and all they leave is three coppers for a dram."

Lately I've been getting a lot of inquiries as to why some events have gone unnoticed by several members of the public, events such as card parties, sports, Altar Societies, etc. In all honesty I feel the responsibility lies with all of us. Let me explain. All clubs, organizations and such, should provide as much publicity as possible for the members directly involved in any one event. Personal contact by telephone and door-to-door delivery of bilingual notices are certainly most effective. But it is surprising how many people do not even give these notices a glance. It only takes a moment — even if just out of curiosity — or as a common courtesy to those who have gone to the trouble and expense of advertising.

Now, when it comes to activities open to the public, there is only one way — mass communications such as radio and newspapers. The publicity committees of all the various organizations should take advantage of any local papers to publicize their events. In return, the public should read these papers. I am not advocating that anyone buy one paper to read one column, but I do feel, strongly, that if you are at all interested in local affairs, then you should take advantage of all news media made available to you. It is in this way that you can keep informed. If everyone would take on a little responsibility to fully use the newspapers, or as a member of the public to read the newspapers, there would be fewer disappointments because of having missed a certain event.

Reports of lack of interest in School Board and Town Council meetings have also been coming in. I find this odd. There is much dissatisfaction and nobody does anything except complain! Both of these meetings are open to the public. Attend them and make your wishes known. Surely responsible men in public office can be relied on to act on constructive criticism. Interest and active participation in municipal affairs by you, the local residents, will bring about the changes you desire.

C.H.O.A.

The position of President of the Chateauguay Home Owners Association is currently held by Roy Vetland, who is now in his third year as an active member. He has served on the Rink Committee, under the capable chairmanship of Art Keech, and as a Director. Last winter, he was co-chairman with Mr. Keech on the Rink Committee. Mr. and Mrs. Vetland moved to 43 Beauchamp Street 3 years ago shortly after the birth of their son, John Eric. Besides Roy's activities with C.H.O.A. he has also been a referee in the Chateauguay Minor Sports Association and also a lineman in the Chateauguay Valley Junior Hockey League. Sports have always held the interest of our President and during his youth, he played hockey, soccer, baseball, basketball and was also an active member of the Y.M.C.A. in his hometown of Verdun.

Roy feels that a group such as ours, formed for the purposes of instruction and recreation, should be supported. This is a way to help meet some of the demands of residents in our area. It provides you with representatives who will attend school board and town council meetings. The members of the executive work together with other groups and with the municipal officers to bring about improvements in our area; improvements such as, street lighting, paving, equalized representation on the Protestant School Board, zoning by-laws, etc. Their prime interest now is to urge the Town Council to purchase property for parks and playgrounds. During Roy's term of office, the association will continue to strive for this end.

For the past six years, Roy has been employed by Purdy and Henderson Co. Ltd., General Contractors. His keen interest in community affairs at all levels makes him a welcome asset to this community.

There have been so many volunteer coaches during the softball season who have given of their time. Two of these include Mrs. Doris Grant and Mr. Earl Murphy who coached the girls, age 8 to 12 years old. It is difficult to express the gratitude we feel towards these two and towards others like them. "Thank you" seems so inefficient even though it is said with all sincerity!

SECTOR 1962

Sector: a word that can be heard on many lips; what does it mean — what does it stand for? Mr. Fred Hunter, General Chairman of the Sector plan, explains:

"Sector is essentially a leadership training plan. The main purpose of the plan — stewardship. The purpose is not 'so much money raised' but to grow Christians. Stewardship—the ordering of one's life so that the gospel message can be shared with all men, beginning with me to you. What is the gospel? It is the good news of God: it is the mission of this Church.

"There are approximately 438 families in our Parish. Excluding Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas, the average Church attendance is 100 adult people. On the Christian education side there are nearly 1200 children. On Sunday, Sept. 14, 1962, 193 children attended Church School, an all-time record. In other words, only 16% of our children receive the Christian Education program. This Church holds 250 peoples. We want you to attend: with a friend, with a relative; we can fill this building through our planning group.

"Let us look at the word 'Sector': S is for Stewardship; take the first letters STEW and that is what we are in.

E for Evangelism; it takes the Church to the people.

C stands for communicate; with you through your commitment to this Church of your time, talent and treasure.

T represents training; organized training and assistance for you to participate in our program.

O for the organization (1) through General Committee (2) through the Program Group and (3) the Resources Group which provides details of time, talent and treasure available.

R the results (1) of 60 participating Churches covering 14 major denominations (2) gives us deeper thinking of the Church's task through stewardship (3) gives our Board of Management a definite assurance of our objective to keep our Church open to all of us (4) to govern ourselves to the responsibility to remove the debt off our Church.

"I call upon all members of this Parish to assist, support and encourage us in our task of bringing stewardship to you through the Sector Plan. When you are asked to help work on our Committees, and visit with us, let Sector and Stewardship be your guide to give us the support of your Time, Talents and Treasure."

TEEN TOWN

By SHEILA CHAMBERLAIN

Last week October 3, there was a dance held at Maple School. There were many teenagers at this dance all whom I am sure enjoyed themselves. There was a spot dance in which the winners won records.

The law of no smoking was enforced on Friday and everyone has kept it up so far, let's hope it continues this way.

The chaperons are allowed to smoke in the hall only at reserved tables where there will be ash trays for cigarettes.

The splash party, October 26, at Point St. Charles Boy's and Girl's Club" will be 75c admission. Swimming will be from 7.00 p.m. to 8.00 p.m. and the dance will be at 8.00 p.m. to 10.00 p.m. The bus will be coming to pick you up at 6.00 sharp.

Tickets will be sold for the splash party by members of the committee. If you do not know where to get tickets phone Julie at OX 2-9025.

Lately at the last dance the teenagers were very good in observing the rules.

Chaperons are still needed for these Friday night dances, please be interested in your teenagers by attending these dances made for teenagers entertainment. Information may be had by phoning Julie at OX 2-9025.

Well, that's all till next week when I tell you of the coming dance.

Hi Neighbours!

Housewarming

Another family in Crown Homes gave their housewarming last Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lortie of Ethier St. invited friends and family. Mrs. Lortie cooked a Thanksgiving dinner for a family reunion of 24, then the doors were opened with the aid of neighbour, Ken Moody and the party was held. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams, Mr. A. Wirth, Miss M. Bloomer, Mrs. E. Wirth, Mr. and Mrs. J. Goyette, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Berube, Mr. and Mrs. D. Jason, Mr. and Mrs. K. Moody, then from Quebec were Mr. and Mrs. C. Lortie, Mr. M. Lortie, Mr. A. Lortie and Mr. and Mrs. A. Lortie.

Birthday

Lucky Winner

Ralph Frost was the lucky winner of a complete football outfit. This was won from Grover's Men's Clothing Store at the Shopping Plaza. Ralph was, needless to say, very thrilled. Quite a reputation Imperial Gardens is gaining for lucky winners. Just don't break a leg now, Ralph.

Here and There.

The Gilberts of Lorenzo St. spent the long week-end visiting relatives in Joliette.

A St. Leon Pizza party was held. The chef wasn't feeling up to par but was able to turn out the usual sumptuous repast.

Julius Richardson School Notes.

Regulation school dress is now being enforced. A reminder has been sent out that the Lost and Found pile is getting pretty large. Primary pupils are not always the offenders. The library is operating very well but there is always room for donations of books in good condition. A tentative date has been set for the first Home and School meeting, Wednesday, October 17th.

Surprise Party

Helene and Claude Lamarche of St. Leon St. were truly surprised when friends feted them on their 13th anniversary. This was a party given after bowling Friday night in the home of the Chapmans. A Lovely centrepiece and refreshments were made by all their friends, the Bernards, Trottiers, and Chapmans.

Pleasant Trip.

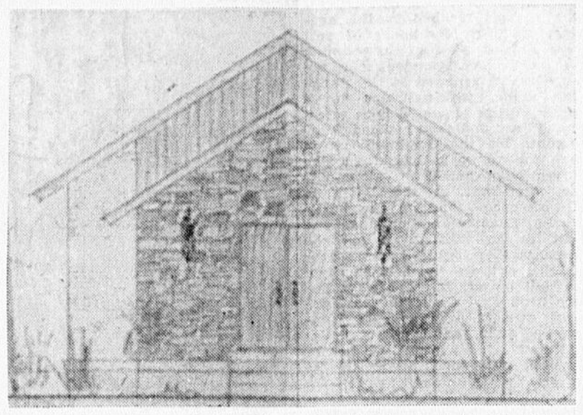

The Cory brother's grandfather, Mr. Robertson, spent a pleasant day last Tuesday going to Ottawa in the cabin of a diesel locomotive. Mr. Robertson with many years of experience on the British Railways was quite impressed with our Canadian system. He was surprisingly not interested in a stop called Glen Robertson. While in Ottawa he saw the Parliament Buildings. He found our Canadian trains clean and roomy, and was quite taken with the fact that we have drinking water on our trains. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will be returning to Scotland by plane on Oct. 11th and we sincerely hope they enjoyed their stay in Chateauguay.

Get Well Wish.

Little Rene Lussier of St. Leon St. has made a fairly speedy recovery from a battle with polio. He has now had the cast removed from his leg and it is hoped that the only requirement will be prescription shoes. We are thankful for Rene that it was no worse.

We would appreciate hearing from you to keep our column interesting — 692-4463.

Prebyterian "Women of the Church"

The "Women of the Church" held their meeting on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Lavictoire, with quite a number of members and guests present. Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Vandervalk from the Laflambeau Mission, Bondville, Brome Lake, Que. She was introduced by Mrs. P. Black. Mrs. Vandervalk held her audience spellbound as she told how this Mission had begun and how she and her husband had felt they had been called by God to help these French Protestant children. It was a long hard task but things seemed to be provided for just when they were needed. At present they have twenty-two children at the Mission-ranging in age from six months to teens.

Eileen Harvey thanked the speaker and gave her a box of mitts, knit by the group, to take back with her.

A business meeting followed when final arrangements were made for the Bake Sale which was held in Vetville Hall the following night. $37.00 was realized from this sale.

CHATEAUGUAY SPORTS ROUND UP

(by JOHN McDONALD)

Chateauguay Sports

Sunday night saw Walter Diere and Clifford Ryce of the Caughnawaga Nokawks Junior Hockey Team board the CPR 11.30 p.m. Toronto train on their way to Guelph, Ont., and a try out with Guelph Biltmore Junior a Farm Team of the New York Rangers. Seeing the boys off was stalwart defenseman Doug Harvey of the New York Rangers, and Montreal and district Ranger scout Bucky Flynn along with yours truly.

The boy's try out was arranged through the combined effort of Scout Flynn and Doug Harvey, with Doug Harvey acting as their personal adviser in any negotiations they will have with team officials. Walter and Clifford who between them capped most of the individual awards, last year in the Chateauguay Valley Junior Hockey League are real fortunate to have a noted N.H.L. Star such as Doug Harvey to personally act for them. Harvey having played in the N.H.L. All Star game Saturday night flew to Montreal after the game, arranged through scout Flynn and yours truly to have the boys at his home at 9.00 p.m. Sunday night, explained the ins and outs of pro-Hockey to them, purchased tickets for them, then placed them on the train to Toronto and them on to Guelph. Shows the type of person Doug Harvey is. A Top N.H.L. Star able to get home to see his family for a day sacrificed an evening to give two young lads a chance to seek fame and fortune as hockey players.

This reporter as President of the Chateauguay Valley Junior Hockey League, appreciates the opportunity that Doug Harvey and Bucky Flynn have given these two lads and wish them and the boys continued success in their chosen careers.

pollock, and others. The two great enemies of the harbor seals are the shark and the killer whale. Against them the smaller seals have not even a chance of a fight and are swallowed whole.

Fur, Fun and Feathers

Hello boys and girls. This week our story is about "Seals".

I will first tell you about the Alaskan Fur Seal. The fur Seal families live separated by 3000 miles most of the year. The fathers enjoy themselves in Alaskan waters while the mothers, their pups and young males spend the winter in the balmy seas of California. In the spring the females and bachelors begin their northtrn voyage and take a straight course to a narrow passage between the Aleutian Islands. From there, they head to the rocky. Prebilof Islands in the Bering Sea. This is the only land they ever touch. The bulls await them eagerly and herd as many females as they can collect into the world's largest mammal harems. The old "beach masters" gather 40 to 60 and a super-strong bull may acquire 100 wives. The harems are strictly defined pieces of land and when an intruder crosses the line it has a fight on hand with blood streaming and pieces of flesh flying. The female then brings forth a single pup after she is bred. If she tries to escape or flirt with a neighbor a heavy slap on the head will make her behave. The master of the harem is in such a state of excitement that he hardly sleeps and never eats during the three months of family life. Early in August the fantastic show is over.

The fur seals were almost exterminated by the whalers, who killed them by the millions, but now they are under protection by international agreement and have recovered remarkably.

The harbor Seal, is called the Neighborly Fisherman. They are the only seals ever seen along our habited coasts and are playful, curious and intelligent. They are also called hair or leopard Seals.

Several species occur from the Arctic Sea to southern New England and from the Probilofs to lower California. They are usually seen in small groups. They do not migrate, and never stray far from shore, as they apparently cannot sleep in the water.

While the Eskimos eat seal meat and make clothes and rawhide lines of their skins, and even use the membranes of the intestines for waterproof parkas, the white man has few commercial uses for this seal. As the hair of its fur points backwards, skiers slip strips of sealskin over the bottom of their skis, as an aid in climbing slopes.

The Harbor Seals are promiscuous. They do not form harems, and do not take on any responsibilities. Their single pups often still wear their soft, white prenatal coat when they are born, exchanging them for the parent's spotted coats a few days later. Their claws are already sharp, and useable, they cry sometimes like a sheep while the adults utter a sharp bark. Their favorite fish are herring, cod, flounder,

The Federal Government Holds On

ALREADY the federal government has held on despite three motions of non-confidence against it. It is as we stated the minority groups which have kept the motions from having the effect intended. The smaller groups in Parliament at the moment do not want an early election. They have won ground against the other groups and they feel they need parliamentary experience to get a better idea of this thing called government. An election at this time might be a disadvanage to their causes. In all probability they will continue to keep the present government in power until such time as it suits them. The two parties can defeat the Liberals anytime they wish, by voting with the government.

On the other hand, the longer the present government can stay in power, the greater are the chances of it filling out its term.

There is no doubt the government will be cautious about getting into any controversial debates and will no doubt be content to have the opposition make the suggestions. Already it is being called a coalition government and to a certain extent that is what it is, although there has been no official agreement among the parties. When the two parties which have the balance of power, decide that the time has come when they should be seeking a new election, they will start putting on the pressure.

In any event we believe a winter election would be disastrous for all parties. In the event of stormy weather on polling day, thousands of people everywhere would not get out to the polls.

In view of the conditions now prevailing, we believe the small parties are showing greater strategy than their larger counterpart, the Liberals. The Liberals seem keen to upset the government quickly for some reason and apparently they cannot see anything else but. If the session had been held earlier in the year this line of reasoning might have been OK, but now it just seems to be asking for trouble. Certainly if a winter election is brought on, it will be no aid to anyone. It would seem therefore that Mr. Pearson would be better to get down to the regular run of business and await other opportunities when the time is ripe. This would not be the first time that a minority government has carried on and made a success of a weak session.

The Provincial Election

WELL it seems that no matter what happens, Mr. Alister Somerville will again stand for re-election in Huntingdon County as the candidate for the National Union Party. We shall probably know who the Liberal Standard bearer will be following the convention to be held to-night. Several names have been mentioned in connection with this, but we shall just wait and see.

It is not likely there will be a third party and thus the vote will resolve itself into the same two old line parties. By this time everyone knows the issues at stake — with the Liberal Party it will be the nationalization of electrical power companies and with the other party it will be the record of the government thus far, with a referendum on nationalization after the election.

The two leaders have already opened their campaigns and as they will no doubt set the pace for their followers, we can expect the various candidates for both parties to follow their leader's lines.

Daniel Johnston, Leader of the National Union Party has challenged Jean Lesage, Leader of the Liberal Party, to a debate on television. Mr. Lesage has accepted and now it remains for the date, time and place, etc. to be arranged. It would seem that this will have to be gone through now, or someone will lose face.

Should the debate go on, it will probably prove embarrassing to both parties and may even damage their chances in the actual voting when that time comes. There is no doubt but what a larger number of viewers will be watching television when it does take place as it will be in the category of being something new. Mr. Lesage is willing to discuss the issue of nationalization of electricity. It would seem that Mr. Johnson would rather discuss numerous subjects. As he is the one who enumerated the subjects that might be taken, then he will have to stay in bounds. There is one thing about it, we might get more inside knowledge on this nationalization business and perhaps understand the issue better. On second thoughts perhaps it might not be such a bad thing after all.

No local campaigns are underway yet, but it is likely they will be soon as the candidates warm up to the situation. All the candidates have not been named yet, so this accounts for some delay. It is quite possible that too many meetings will not be held, this seems to be a trend of today. The leaders do most of the bally-hoo, while the local candidates go around their own areas meeting the people who will vote for them and thus getting first hand acquaintance with everyone. People today are all pretty well acquainted with the issues and they want more information and not a rehash.

Fire Prevention Week

THIS week is designated Fire Prevention Week and it means and stands for just that. It stands to reason that we cannot prevent all fires during this week, but it does call attention to the danger of fire at a time when everyone is going into the artificial heating season. There is always more danger at this time and during the next few months when fires and furnaces are being operated to help heat buildings and to keep the cold out. As winter progresses, more heat is let loose to keep everyone warm at home and at business.

One of the first things that should be done before putting the furnace to work for a heavy season, is to have it thoroughly cleaned and in the case of oil furnaces to have them adjusted. This also means that the chimney must be cleaned so that the whole system is clean together. If it is coal fired, there will be cleaning jobs to do, maybe boilers to be cleaned and repaired, grates to check, automatic stokers to be adjusted and many other jobs. A safe place to dump the ashes must be found and the coal must be stacked in a safe place. The furnace room should be free from all rubbish. Electrical wiring on all automatic apparatus should be checked to make sure that all joints and contacts are in good order. These are only a few things which may help in preventing fires, there are hundreds of others. Fire Prevention week is designated as a period during which time a real check will be made to remove the hazards.

All accumulations of rubbish in the basement, in sheds, in attics, cupboards and other likely storage places should be removed in order to prevent fire starting in such places. Storage of oils, paints, polishes, etc., should receive care to keep away from heat. Never overload your electric wiring system. Plug outlets are made to take one, or two appliances at the most and they are not meant to have a number of appliances plugged into them. This also goes for electric light sockets. If you have a number of appliances, it is better to use one only at a time per plug. We have been into homes where one plug is holding four or five cords, through the addition of plug on plug. This is not fair to the electrical system, it is positively dangerous in any home, it is a definite overload and could cause a fire.

This is what Fire Prevention Week really means — checking your premises whether they be in the town or in the country and where possible hazards are found, do your best to remove them. By removing what may be a cause you may be preventing a fire and thus helping to keep your property protected and safe.

Hunting Is Not Dangerous

THE approach of the hunting season will be the signal once again for a number of people to view with alarm and point with horror to the hunting accident toll. They will decry the sport as a dangerous one and cite the current number of hunting accidents to bolster their claim.

Hunting is not a dangerous sport. It is not nearly as dangerous as going for a Sunday drive in the family car. Almost every week-end there are more people killed in automobile accidents across Canada than are killed or wounded during the entire hunting season. Actually, insurance companies rank hunting as 17th on the list of dangerous sports with such commonplace activities as football and swimming near the top of the list.

Hunting is not dangerous. However, some of the people who hunt are dangerous, because they do not obey the simple rules of courtesy and safety. These same people are equally dangerous when they disregard the simple rules of courtesy and safety at the wheel of their automobile, the rudder of a boat, on the diving board, the golf fairway or on the ski run.

The point is that some people are dangerous. Do not be one of this type in whatever activity you take part. Do not cause death, suffering and heartbreak to others because of your carelessness.

Sportsmen are one of the few groups who are doing something to make their hobby a safer one. All across Canada hunter-training courses are springing up under the auspices of hunting and fishing groups. These courses are aimed primarily at teaching young people to think before they act, to be responsible citizens who will be considerate of their neighbours and companions. Courses are aimed at building the youth of today into responsible citizens of tomorrow. And any groups which are building better citizens deserves the co-operation of all those who take part in their activities.

Whether you hunt, drive, fish or ski, whatever you do this fall, do it as a responsible individual — safely and courteously.

A Public Building Can Be A Political Headache

Contrary to common belief, many MPs do not enthuse when the Government constructs a public building in their riding. Experience is that local people believe that they are entitled as a right to the building, therefore, rarely feel under obligation to vote for the MP next election. Conversely, the disgruntled — and there are always some — are prone to line up with the opposition.

Despite the fact that Hon. James A. Robb was Minister of Finance for six years, the Federal Government did not spend much in his riding of Chateauguay-Huntingdon. The Minister periodically had to listen to demands of W. D. Fraser of Dundee that something be done about draining off water flowing across the border from the United States. Sometimes there would be a vote on the tenuous grounds that the matter was "international" and therefore exceptional. Tom Irving was constantly urging that the mouth of the Laguerre River be cleared and, in time, this led to the Teafield being drained.

The Minister received few demands from Chateauguay county. It happened that Hon. Honore Mercier was both the local member and in the Taschereau Cabinet. He was also a resident and was able to satisfy the minor requests and also get the big one — the Mercier Bridge to Montreal.

It was, therefore, a surprise when Mr. Robb decided to erect two post offices. One would be in Huntingdon and the other in Ste. Martine, the respective county towns. He had made no public promise and inserted the items in the Public Works Estimates without consulting them. This was to backfire later on.

The selection of a site in Ste. Martine became a double-barreled political issue; first, within Mr. Robb's local organization, then, in the community. Ste. Martine was then a one-street town, so Post Office had no say as to street. Should the new post office be built near the church or down the street near the railway station? The key men were Messrs. McGowan and Laberge, with the latter Mr. Robb's organizer for the county. They were uncertain as to popular will, but it was decided to build some distance from the church.

The real question was: Which side of the road? Property owners on both sides were willing to sell at "government" prices, but the local people sharply divided. Automobile traffic on the Montreal-Malone highway was increasing rapidly, with mothers fearful whenever their children crossed the road, and it was they who mailed letters and collected the mail. A site was ultimately purchased. Then, if memory serves, another on the other side of the road. Mr. Robb was in his grave before the building was opened and it was just as well because the controversy had split Liberal solidarity in Ste. Martine.

I soon sensed that the Minister's real desire was to build a post office in Huntingdon, his place of birth. Again, selection of a site was the problem although the town was compact. Bill Bannon, a political intimate and an employee of O'Connor Bros., wanted it located near the O'Connor Hall. It would be good for business. Therefore, he pressed for the purchase of a vacant lot owned by Mrs. Lachance across from the Academy. The objection to this was that it would increase road traffic around the school. Post Office refused to consider locating the building on the narrow Front street. Mr. Robb then suggested constructing opposite St. Andrew's Church. His proposal was to buy at least two properties and thus permit a good sized lawn in front of the building to preserve the status of surrounding residences.

The church people objected to commercializing the area and this further complicated matters because Mr. Robb's sister was housekeeper in the Manse. Public Works sent an architect to review the situation. I, the Minister's secretary, was told to be present, to avoid antagonizing Bannon and, without pressing too hard, to get the architect to see the light. He went through the appropriate motions looked a half a dozen places, and then reported as desired.

Mr. Robb personally asked the Minister of Public Works to acquire two properties and, if she wanted to sell, also that of Miss Shaw. The Minister of Public Works had some trouble with his Deputy. J .B. Hunter had a score to settle — the Estimates items still rankled. His recommendation was to expropriate a fraction of the land.

By then, I knew what was behind the proposition. The properties were owned by women growing old and Mr. Robb had gone to school with them. He would like them to get a "government price" for their places. He had a second reason. Many years before he had strenuously objected to the Valleyfield post office being built on street line. It was a good building but did not stand out. He wanted to establish a better practice.

The matter was still pending when Mr. Robb died in the Fall of 1929. Whereupon Mr. King intervened and directed that things be done as Mr. Robb had desired. Mr. D. J. O'Connor was elected his successor in a by-election and recognized that it would be politically harmful were he to plump for any other site. Therefore, he pressed Public Works to get busy.

I was now a civil servant and out of the picture but was later involved in minor ways. From 1930 to 1940 a statutory responsibility on me was to supervise all issues of cheques by departments. Possibly 50 million were issued in the period, with many persons throughout the civil service doing the checking and signing.

The 1930 election campaign was during the summer, so many civil servants took their holidays during the campaign. Late one afternoon a senior Finance officer dropped in. He wanted to play golf and the only remaining piece of business was to sign a fairly substantial cheque now being verified in the Audit Office. Apart from myself, he was the the only person around with authority to sign one of that size. Would I sign it?

In due course, the Dominion Bookkeeper brought it along together with the file. I started to sign, then pawed through the file. He remarked that everything was in order. I said nothing, but brought myself up to date before I signed a cheque payable to Lucien Baillargeon, N.P., to be disbursed by him when satisfied as to title of lots in Huntingdon, Que., on which a post office was to be erected. Out of the fifty million cheques, this was the only one I ever personally signed, and it was cashed in my native village!

Figuratively, J. B. Hunter, Deputy Minister of Public Works, had requisitioned for a cheque over his dead body. With the 1930 change of Government, all deals were off and the Department ordered the building to be constructed close to the street line. I was in Huntingdon about ten years later and was surprised to find Mr. Hunter and Charlie Sutherland, chief architect of Public Works, on the veranda of the Chateau.

They were spending the week-end touring the District of Beauharnois and had just looked over the local post office. Mr. Hunter demanded: "What fool put it where it is? In those surroundings it should have been set well back with a lawn in front of it." I was tempted to say something about decisions made by looking at maps in Ottawa; but what was the use now?

A little work that had an angle was the wharf at Bellevue on Lake St. Louis. I know nothing of its origin but it was in dilapidated condition by the late 1920s, with weeds and rushes closing all channels to open water. It was used only by young people sunning themselves after a swim.

Hon. Honore Mercier lived nearby and one day remarked to Mr. Robb that mothers were complaining about rusty nails tearing bathing suits. The wharf should either be demolished or the Government should hire a man for a few days to make it reasonably safe for children. Mr. Robb was disinterested. John Sullivan, his Conservative opponent in 1926, had tried to make an issue out of it without success. If the Province wanted it, he would arrange a transfer.

Politically, a different situation existed in 1930. The Liberal Member needed everything he could find to get votes so he had Public Works send out an engineer to survey the wharf. Dr. Moore, the Conservative candidate, naturally promised action were he and his Party the winners. They were.

Public Works now had a wharf with both Parties demanding repairs. Another engineer was sent out with an advance hint as to the nature of the report expected. In a way, it was a masterpiece. It pointed out that the new Beauharnois canal was revolutionizing community and industrial life. Wharves along the lake shore were becoming imperative to satisfy the needs of local residents, farmers with produce to move to Montreal, industrialists, etc., etc., to the length of several pages of typewriting. The recommendation was a letdown: $5,000 would do the pob.

Mr. Hunter, with tongue in cheek submitted a $5,000 item for the Estimates. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett read the file and smelt a rat. I was pumped and gave him the background. My opinion? If he turned it down, Doctor Moore would be reasonable but John Sullivan, now M.P. for Ste. Anne, Montreal, might demand something in exchange. If he decided to go along, it could be justified as a relief job because there was a certain amount of local unemployment.

$5,000 was voted and the job was done by use of day labour. The ultimate cost was $4,968.70 —the locals had collected their 'gravy' but no liner has ever berthed alongside.

Report From Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) Powered by four days of thundering oratory, three non-confidence motions were launched against Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority government last week. None completed its mission.

Any of the motions, if supported by the combined strength of the three opposition parties, would have toppled the government.

The motions, one from each of the opposition groups, all emerged from bristling political debate, punctuated with accusations, denials, angry statements and marathon speeches. As expected, Canada's 25th Parliament was quick to become a fiery forum.

The government's first real test in the "House of Minorities" came Oct. 4 when, with 25-man assistance from Social Credit, it beat down two non-confidence motions that had been put before the House by the Liberals and the New Democratic Party. With the help of Social Credit — five of the 30 SC members were absent — the 115 members of the Conservative benches easily outnumbered the 100 Liberals and the 18 NDP members as the motions lost 140 to 118.

Packed Galleries

The voting results — not unexpected since the parties had made their positions known in advance — were the climax to a four-day period of verbal warfare that at times electrified the green-carpeted Commons chamber and kept practically every member glued to his seat. Public galleries remained packed.

First of the week's non-confidence motions, proposed by the Social Credit party, was soundly defeated — 233 to 30 — On Oct 2 when party leader Robert Thompson proposed it on the grounds that the government had failed to utilize Social Credit principles. This clearly had no chance to win support of Liberals or NDP members.

But it will go down in history as marking the first time every elected member of the Commons was in his seat to vote. The total of 263 is accounted for by the fact there is one vacancy, and the Speaker did not vote.

Claim of "Fraud"

The fireworks were first ignited Monday when Liberal Leader Lester Pearson accused the government of "major political fraud" by concealing the June foreign exchange crisis, of having mocked responsible government, and of having tried to fool the voters by a forecast of full employment this summer. The Throne speech, he said, was "a dish of Tory leftovers" and it came from "a weak and discredited minority government."

His non-confidence motion was that the cabinet "do not possess the confidence of this House."

His three-hour speech, which included a five-point Liberal program, was followed by a three-hour and 15-minute speech by Prime Minister Diefenbaker who returned the fire across the Chamber and, at one point, said he was "not going to get down in the gutter with the leader of the opposition."

The Prime Minister denied that he concealed any facts from the Canadian people prior to the election and said it was "unprincipled suggestion" by Mr. Pearson to say that he had. Mr. Diefenbaker's statistics-studded speech was peppered with interjections, many of them heated, that flew back and forth across the floor.

Heated Argument

The Prime Minister accused the Liberals of waging a campaign against him personally. "Never before has there been the equal of vehemence and virulence displayed in public affairs in this country."

Mr. Pearson challenged Mr. Diefenbaker to put these purported personal attacks on the record.

"I am not going to spoil the record with that," the Prime Minister replied.

"What a phoney attitude," said the Liberal leader. He later said: "Put up or shut up."

Mr. Thompson, in an appeal for statesmanship, fired criticism at both the Prime Minister and Mr. Pearson. Canadians, he said, are getting tired of the "perpetual yakyak of petty politicians" and would resent it if they knew money was being spent to provide a "personal tilting ground" for Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson.

H. W. Herridge, House leader of the New Democratic Party, didn't get involved in personalities during his contribution to the Throne speech debate. Time prevented him, he said, "gnawing the bone of partisan trivialities."

Attack Fleming

The bitter exchanges that marked the first four days of the debate reached a peak late Thursday when J. W. Pickersgill (L.-Bonavista-Twillingate) and Justice Minister Fleming crossed swords.

Mr. Pickersgill repeated the Liberal contention that the government hid the facts of Canada's economic situation prior to the June election and said he had not "the faintest doubt" that the government began preparing the austerity program May 3.

He also said that the day Parliament was dissolved in April, or on the following day, Mr. Fleming, then finance minister, instructed government departments to cut $50,000,000 out of spending estimates.

"That is false — that is a false statement," shouted Mr. Fleming.

"The minister can get up and say it is false," said Mr. Pickersgill.

"He can get up and make a speech in this debate if he dares. He has been repudiated and cast aside by the Prime Minister. He has served his purpose and now he is on the rubbish heap."

Mr. Fleming accused the opposition of making "false statements, false accusations and base innuendoes." Mr. Pickersgill's statements were "utterly irresponsible."

Later Mr. Thompson said that Social Credit support of the government was based on the belief that another election this winter is wrong.

"If Prime Minister Diefenbaker can produce positive legislation, then I can see the minority government lasting for some time. If he can't, an election will come a little later."

Mr. Pearson said a further non-confidence motion would be proposed during the Throne speech debate.

Provincial Capital Report

QUEBEC (CP) Premier Jean Lesage planned to open the Liberal campaign for re-election this week-end in Shawinigan with a detailed exposition of the motives that led the Government to call a Nov. 14 election on public ownership of hydro-electric resources.

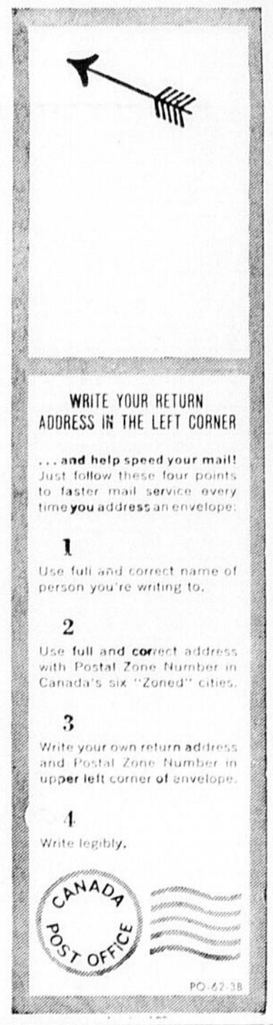

The Union Nationale campaign has been under way for more than two weeks, though sallies by both parties have been sporadic as they gather themselves for a last month assault on the electorate.

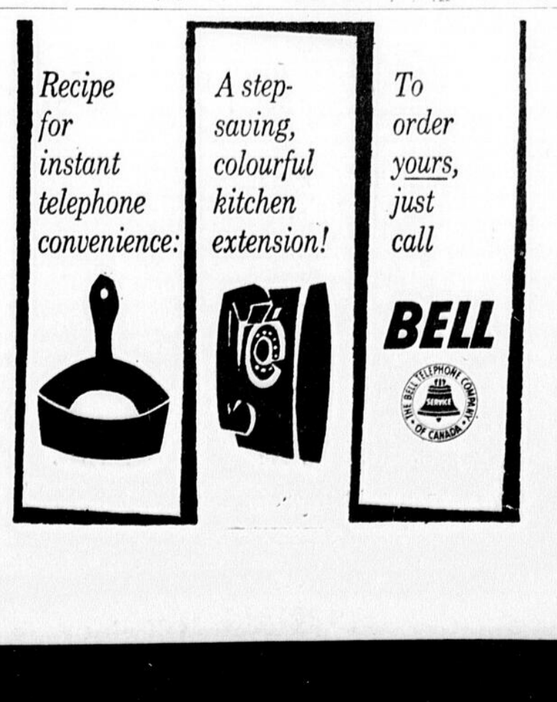

The Premier, in perhaps his toughest speech in two years, described the campaign as a match between The People and "The Trusts."

Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson, so far hitting at the Government's record and building a platform with lower taxes as a main plank, later in the week challenged Mr. Lesage to a television debate.

Mr. Johnson suggested five subjects for discussion: Natural Gas, The "Role Mr. Lessage Played in Ottawa during the Trans-Canada Pipeline Scandal;" Nationalization of Electricity, Mines and Pulp and Paper Mills; The Salvas Royal Commission Inquiry on the Administrative Practices of the Former Union Nationale Government; and "The True Issue of the Election" — The Administration of the Lesage Government since June 22, 1960.

Meauwhile, Mayor J. A. Mongrain of Trois-Rivieres said he plans neither to lead a New Party nor to run as candidate in any county. Mayor Mongrain has been asked to become Leader of L'Action Liberale Nationale, a party hastily formed in the last two weeks to enter the Nov. 14 campaign but still largely unorganized.

The Mayor said he hoped the other parties would incorporate The Objectives of the New One in their programs.

Meanwhile, Resources Minister Rene Levesque said the Liberal Government has no intention of putting a general policy of nationalization into effect if it is re-elected No. 14.

The Liberals intended to buy 11 private hydro-electric companies but would go no further.

The statement was an angry reaction to a headline in a Montreal newspaper that interpreted a Levesque remark in a Richelieu Club speech as meaning Mining and Pulp Industries would be taken over.

"Only fanatics or amateurs are able in 1962 to declare themselves uniquely in favor of Private Enterprise or Public Enterprise," Mr. Levesque said.

Premier Lesage meanwhile announced that two Liberal backbenchers will not run in this election. They are Louis Philippe Brousseau, 56, Member for Sherbrooke, and Lucien Belanger, 53, Baie-Comeau merchant and former Member for Saguenay. Both were elected for the first time in 1960.

Premier Lesage said Mr. Brousseau would help with political and electoral organization across the province and would not be able to run. Mr. Belange was ill in a Boston hospital.

Meanwhile, Dr. Gustave Plante, Member for Bellechasse, announced that he would not run as a Liberal candidate Nov. 14 because he wished to return to medical practice.

At least two familiar Union Nationale Members earlier announced their retirement from politics. They were Joseph Damase Begin, Former Chief Organizer and Member for Dorchester since 1935 and later Colonization Minister, and Yves Prevost, Member for Quebec-Montmorency and briefly Leader of the Party after former Premier Antonio Barrette's resignation in 1960.

Howick

HOWICK — Mrs. Eric Smith presided at the October meeting of the Howick Women's Institute, held on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Huntley Greig. 21 members and visitors answered the roll call using a word formed from letters in "Agriculture" — the theme of the meeting.

Mrs. Frank Hope, convener of Agriculture read an interesting paper, "Corn Products Serve Many Industries", edited by St. Lawrence Starch Co. A special hydrid corn is used at this plant. Starch and other by-products are used in many ways to serve other industries. Some of these are: the pulp industry uses starch to size paper, give it strength, etc; wrap yarns need starch for sizing, etc; the brewing industry uses it; foundries need it as a core binder; mining industries use it in flotation processes, and as a chemical binding agency; it is used in explosives; rotary drills in oil wells need it; also the many laundry uses. The glucose in corn syrup makes it useful in many food products such as ice cream; chewing gum uses it too.

It was hard to believe there are so many uses for starch and other corn by -products.

Mrs. Robert MacFarlone, skilled and talented demonstrator of handicrafts was present, and her subject was trees—nylon tulle Christmas trees. Several beautiful models in various colours and sizes were shown, and everyone watched and listened intently as they were taught how to make one. Margaret Chisholm thanked Mrs. McFarlane for this timely demonstration.

Mrs. Huntly Greig, Home Ec. Convener had attended a Fashion Show at Eaton's Store and received a booklet on Window Dressing.

$25. Scholarships for 1961-62 in Grades 9 and 10 will be given at the School Opening. The usual prizes of $1.00 each will be given in Grades 6-11 for Home Ec. and Wood Working.

The Salvation Army truck will call in Howick towards the end of the month on the regular salvage drive.

Delicious refreshments were served by the Fertile Creek ladies.

New Feeds Act Paces Modernized Industry

Canada's new Feeds Act and regulations went into effect October 1.

Although the general authority provided by the Act is much the same as that under the old Feeding Stuffs Act of 1937, there are a number of amendments designed to meet new technoligical developments in the formulation and handling of feed and the better understanding of the nutritional requirements of farm animals.

Regulations on labelling no longer require that ingredients be listed for registered feeds provided that the label contains a statement that the ingredients are ones named in the certificate of registration. A detailed list of the ingredients will still be available from the manufacturer on request.

Omitting the ingredient list will enable the directions for use and cautions for medicated feeds to be placed prominently on the label. It also eases the way for the development of linear programming of feeds and the marketing of feeds in bulk.

Linear Programming

Linear programming, involving the use of modern computers, is the development of a feed formula giving the desired nutritional value at the lowest cost. This enables the manufacturer to take advantage of the frequent variations in prices of the wide range of ingredients that go into feed by making changes in the formula. It would be impractical to record frequent alterations on the label. Whatever the ingredients, however, the essential feeding value and guarantee of protein, fat and fibre remain unchanged.

The new Act and regulations provide for tighter control of customer-formula feeds containing medicants. The medication of feeds is a new development not foreseen when the old Act was drafted. The control permits farmers to obtain these special feeds provided they meet the same standard required of registered feeds.

Caution to Farmers

Similarly, the Act makes it illegal to sell feeds such as hay or silage off the farm if they contain residues of the pesticides DDT, dieldrin, aldrin, heptachlor and toxaphene.

Tonics and conditioners are not required to be registered but they must meet the same mineral standards as a regular mineral feed.

Restrictions on the sale of trace-mineral-vitamin feeds are modified but still require that adequate direction and cautions be given on the label.

Vitamin mixtures, as well as mineral-vitamin and trace-mineral-vitamin mixtures, are also subject to registration under the new Act.

The new Feeds Act has strengthened the powers of Plant Products Division Inspectors who now have the authority to 'require persons selling or importing feed to produce documents containing mixing instruction, shipping bills, bills of lading and other documents and papers pertaining to the sale of feeds.

Friends of Mrs. Bill Starr, nee Jean Koski will be interested to learn of her present work. Jean and her husband have been teaching for a number of years among the Indians in a number of places in the Western Provinces. Now they are stationed in Fort George, Que. To reach there they had to go in by plance, a Georgian Bay Airliner. When Jean flew in, there were four passengers and much luggage. They had to make various stops which included Little Abitibi and Moose Factory, where they refueled. At one place they flew over the Fort Garry, a Hudson Bay Co. boat, which had been blown up on the sand during a spring storm.

Most of the workers in the school are Indians and the only white folks are staff members, engineers, storekeepers etc. The Starrs have a very comfortable home and are looking forward to their stay at Fort George. A number of the staff have worked at some of the other places where the Starrs have taught and they were happy to meet up with folks they knew. Jean sent a request for coloring and picture books of all kinds suitable for children in grade 1. If any of her old friends are interested in writing to Jean her address is St. Philip's School, Fort George, Que., Via Moosonee, Ont. Mail goes in two or three times a week and sometimes if weather is bad only once weekly.

Mrs. James Manning Tells of Trip Around The World at Ormstown W. I. Meeting

(By Mrs. Jas. Bruce)

The October meeting of the Ormstown W.I. was held in the High School on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. A. A. McNeil being in charge. 15 members responded to the roll call with donations for U.N.I.C.E.F.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Mrs. R. Ovans reported that the quilt made by the W.I. had been sent to the Home for Retarted Children, Dixieville, Que. Mrs. W. Rember reported on the meeting for enrolment of members for the French Course, under the Department of Youth, and sponsored by our W.I. 32 were enrolled on Monday evening and more are expected. Mr. McKrith, French Specialist from Valleyfield, is the instructor. Guests for the evening were the staff and teachers of our two schools, and were welcomed by Mrs. McNeil who called on the Principals of the schools to introduce the members of their Staff.

Mr. Moore, before introducing his Staff, told how much he appreciated the help given by the W.I. to the School, both in prizes for Public Speaking and Home Economics as well as in other ways and how much they looked forward to their annual "get-together", with the members of the W.I. and thanked them for their courtesy in having them.

Mr. Quenneville spoke briefly saying it was his first visit and he also appreciated the courtesy of the W.I. in inviting him and his Staff to meet with them and also the prize money given to his school.

Mrs. W. Rember introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Jas. Manning of Franklin Centre, who had recently completed a trip around the world and who with the aid of her slides and pleasing narration was able to take us from Honolulu to Auckland, New Zealand, travelling on one of the largest passenger ships in the world, showing various scenes on board ship, cabin they had, swimming pool, sun deck, etc. In New Zealand they visited orchards, growing apples, oranges, peaches, pears, grapefruit in same orchard also a quince orchard or plantation in its introductory stage. From Auckland they crossed over to Sydney, a lovely seaport town, then on to Melbourne, where in mid-October the A.C.W.W. are meeting. Wasn't as impressed by Melbourne as she was by Sydney. Then across the Indian Ocean to Ceylon, which she thought was a rather dirty island but which had beautiful Moslem and Buddhist temples.One outstanding thing about Celyon was its tea and tea plantations, "if you really want a good cup of tea" go there. From Ceylon they went on to Aden, crossed the Arabian desert, (where not a blade of grass was to be seen) travelling by camel, or cart as one desired, then across the Suez Canal to Egypt seeing there the river where the baby Moses was placed in a basket for Pharaoh's daughter to find. Cairo is a beautiful city with many fine buildings and the Valley of the Nile is very green and luscious.

Mrs. Manning closed her talk by showing a few slides of England and Scotland. In England they saw the Changing of the Guards, Westminister Abbey, Windsor Castle, which impressed them most, but as the Royal Family were in residence at the time, were unable to go through the grounds. In Scotland, Edinburgh Castle was very impressive.

Mrs. Manning is a pleasing and interesting speaker and all enhalf of the W.I. and those present, joyed her talk. Mrs. Bruce, on behalf of the W.I. and those present, thanked the speaker for coming and sharing with us her very interesting trip.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by the W.I. and a social time enjoyed by all. November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. McCartney.

She spoke about the highlights of the annual conventiin at Macdonald College. She told about the Lady Aberdeen Scholarship Fund, which enabled qualified wiman from other countries to continue their education and that it was hoped that each branch would contribute $1.00. Good salaries are offered to girls who have taken the Home Economics course and there is a great need for them. A cairn commemorating the founding of the first Quebec Institute is to be erected in Dunham. Life Membership fees are to be $25 instead of $10. Cake mixes containing eggs are not to be used as they are poisonous. Two acres of land near the Adelaide Hoodless home has been given by the reeve of this district to be used as a park. Mrs. Ellard, Provincial President, has donated some pillow cases to this home, which is now a museum. Conveners gave reports on Home Economics, a burnt out fuse can be screwed into a light socket to keep it clean while spraying. Also Mrs. Platt showed how an empty egg carton can be used to plant seeds in.

For Citizenship Mrs. Gardiner read about museums in Ontario, one of which is at St. Thomas, where Col. Thos. Talbot settled. Mrs. Fraser conducted a quiz on the W. I. with first and second prizes going to Miss F. Turner and Mrs. Middlemiss.

During the past month two parcels went sent to Save the Children fund containing 12 well filled Xmas stockings and a quantity of used children's clothing.
