Bourassa affects cabinet shake-up

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa shuffled his cabinet Wednesday, leaving major departments unchanged but transferring Maurice Tessier out of municipal affairs, where he has clashed with rural municipal officials.

The shuffle was announced in a statement issued by the premier's office following a news conference at which Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, cultural affairs minister, announced her resignation from active politics. Mr. Tessier becomes public works minister, taking over part of the double portfolio held by Bernard Pinard, who remains roads minister. Victor Goldbloom, minister without portfolio, is promoted to municipal affairs minister and retains his responsibility in environmental matters.

Education Minister Francois Cloutier takes on the additional portfolio of cultural affairs, vacated by Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain.

Mr. Bourassa's statement says Mr. Cloutier's new double portfolio "in no way indicates the fusion" of the education and cultural affairs departments.

BECOMES JUDGE

Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain succeeded Mr. Cloutier as cultural affairs minister after he was named education minister a year ago.

She told a news conference she is leaving politics to become president of the province's minimum wage commission and a provincial court judge, the first women to hold either post in Quebec.

Mr. Tessier had a stormy time as municipal affairs minister during the last year.

Plans to regroup Quebec's 1,600 municipalities into 131 regional municipalities encountered fierce opposition in rural areas and the Union of County Councils called for his resignation. Opposition spokesmen in the Quebec national assembly also called for his replacement as municipal affairs minister.

In a new initiative, Robert Quenneville, minister without portfolio responsible for the Eastern Quebec Development Office is given additional responsibility for "the preparation and application" of Local Initiative projects and Opportunities for Youth program projects.

NO ELABORATION

Premier Bourassa did not meet reporters and could not be reached after his statement on the cabinet was issued.

Oswald Parent becomes public service minister, taking over that part of the double portfolio held by Jean Cournoyer, who remains labor minister.

Mr. Parent also retains his responsibilities as a minister without portfolio with responsibilities in Finance Minister Raymond Garneau's department and in the intergovernmental affairs ministry of Gerard D. Levesque.

Other cabinet changes:

—Paul Phaneuf, member of the national assembly for Vaudreuil-Soulanges, becomes minister without portfolio responsible for youth, recreation and sports.

—Georges Vaillancourt, member for Stanstead, becomes minister without portfolio with responsibility for regional municipal development in the municipal affairs department.

AMBASSADORS CN SNOWMOBILES — Gervais and Richard Bisson, Rejean and Laurier Royer, Robert Thibault, Jean Paul Giguere and Andre Sergerie are to cover a 1500 mile cross-country marathon by snowmobile calling at cities along the route to deliver goodwill messages and souvenirs from the city of Sherbrooke. Yesterday councillors Raymond Bergeron and Bernard Matte presented the group with letters of goodwill to be presented to the mayors of the towns they will visit. See story p. 3.

Value even lower

Wave of selling hits dollar

LONDON (AP) — A selling wave hit the devalued United States dollar after world money markets reopened Wednesday, sending the American currency lower than first expected. The continued monetary uncertainty lifted the free-market price of gold to new all-time highs.

"Nobody wants to hold dollars yet," a London foreign exchange dealer explained.

Even Brazil, in a rare show of economic independence, raised the dollar value of the cruzeiro by about three per cent. This means Americans will probably pay a bit more for their coffee at home, just as they will be paying more for foreign vacations and imported goods.

Banking and other financial sources in Europe conceded that the continued pressure on the dollar was making money markets nervous. But they cautioned it was too early to tell whether this meant the dollar devaluation would fail to halt the international monetary crisis of the last two weeks.

Most of the world's leading money markets were open Wednesday for the first time since the 10-per-cent dollar devaluation Monday night. But those who had bet billions of dollars on a devaluation did not move to take their profits immediately.

STORM CENTRE

West Germany, storm centre of the recent crisis, provided early evidence of reluctance to switch back to dollars.

Speculators, treasurers of leading international companies and other dollar holders, had switched over $6 billion into West German marks in the last two weeks, betting that the mark would go up and the dollar down in any currency realignment. This happened and they stood to make between seven and 10 per cent profit on their dealings.

But West German banking sources said there was no evidence that this hot money was flowing out of West Germany again in profit-taking.

One explanation was that the devalued dollar can still fluctuate by 4½ per cent within its new exchange rates. The dollar closed in West Germany at 2.9646 marks, near the top limit. Foreign exchange dealers said money managers appear to be waiting for the rate to move down toward the new central parity or below before selling.

In this way the speculators could increase their profits by another four per cent or so.

The pattern was similar on other money markets. The dollar generally opened near its new ceiling prices, then fell gradually under new selling pressure toward the new central rates.

The unsettled exchange rates appeared to be a factor in a big drop in New York stock market prices. After initial enthusiasm in the wake of devaluation Tuesday, the market turned around and continued lower Wednesday.

"The basic problem of the posture of the United States in foreign trade has not been resolved," one analyst commented.

The finance ministers of the nine European Common Market countries met in Brussels, Belgium, and agreed that the devaluation of the dollar was a good thing, conference sources said.

Anthony Barber, British chancellor of the exchequer, was reported to have called it "logical and right."

The ministers were also said to be in agreement that they should pursue their own aim of complete economic and monetary union. They hope to achieve this by 1980.

The European factors added to the general uncertainty which helped push the free-market price of gold to record highs.

In London and Zurich gold shot up to a new all time high of $72.13 an ounce. The rise for the day in London was a phenomenal $3.13, and only slightly less in Zurich.

The former record high for gold, $70 an ounce, was set in August, 1972.

The official price of gold, which governments use in their dealings, now is $42.22, up from $38 before devaluation. The dollar hit new lows on the important Swiss and Japanese exchanges.

In Zurich, it dropped to 3.38 Swiss francs, nearly 12 per cent below previously parity with the franc.

In Tokyo, the Japanese state bank bought up an estimated $235 million to take some pressure off the dollar. Even so the dollar sold at 270.8 yen, compared with 301.1 yen last Friday. This means a 13.7-per-cent increase in the dollar value of the yen.

Continued pressure on the dollar indicated that money managers feared even the 10-per-cent U.S. devaluation will not solve the latest currency crisis.

There was general agreement that the recently-announced deficit in the U.S. balance of payments for 1972 caused the latest crisis.

CHU faces job cuts, bed losses

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — One hundred employees at the University of Sherbrooke Hospital Centre will lose their jobs and the number of beds available to patients will be cut by 60, the hospital administration announced yesterday.

These drastic cut-backs are the result of a restricted budget imposed on the hospital by the minister of social affairs.

This year, the government has allotted a sum of $14.2 million to the hospital. This amount, it is claimed, is equivalent to the norms allowed for a hospital with only 365 beds.

As a result of this decrease in budget, the administrative council of the hospital announced there was no other choice but to reduce the number of beds from 425 to 365 and dismiss about 100 nursing and other personnel.

SWELL JOBLESS TOTAL

The administration of the hospital pointed out that these forced cuts will effect not only the services offered by the hospital but inflate the already high rate of unemployment in Sherbrooke.

It was felt by the administration of the hospital that in view of the problems of the Eastern Township regarding unemployment — made evident in the recent White Paper on the development of the region — the government was demonstrating a very ambivalent attitude toward the problem.

"The administrative council is amazed that this government which, while asserting their willingness to stimulate the economy of this region, then provokes reductions in jobs," a press release from the hospital says.

Apart from the obvious effect on the population of being deprived of 60 hospital beds, the long-term consequences of these forced reductions are reported to be considerable.

RESEARCH CENTRE

The University Medical Centre, as well as being the only hospital to offer highly-specialized care in the region, also supports a medical school and a research centre.

"The pursuit of this triple objective, — patient care, teaching and research — imposes on the CHU a certain number of demands," asserted the administrative council of the hospital.

Four hundred and twenty-five beds is the minimal number necessary for a faculty of medicine which has 64 students this year and is expected to increase to 96 in the near future to accommodate the increasing demand for doctors, according to the hospital's administrators.

It is also feared that the reduction in the grant this year will curtail some of the valuable research in medicine being carried out at the Medical Centre.

1971 AGREEMENT

The reason the hospital faces this sudden cut in finances, it was explained, is that in 1971 it agreed to a new government experiment of financing Quebec Hospitals. This pilot project, called a global budget, prohibited all new development projects in the 23 hospitals concerned.

The University Medical Centre, however, agreed to this project only with the reservation of retaining the right to proceed during 1971-72 with the opening of 60 new beds which had been installed but not yet used by patients because of insufficient hospital personnel, the press release contends.

The ministry of social affairs has apparently, however, classified the 60 new beds for patients as a new project and refused to allow a grant for these extra beds.

"The ministry of social affairs estimates that there are not enough places in the region for patients with chronic illness.

"The fact of closing 60 beds in the centre for ultra-specialized care in the region, constitutes, in this case a further short-term economy," the press release concludes.

Indian claims to be studied by committee

OTTAWA (CP) — "We've got it," exclaimed one official of the Yukon Native Brotherhood Wednesday after Prime Minister Trudeau agreed to establish a federal committee to negotiate Yukon Indian land claims.

Getting Ottawa to the bargaining table was the main theme of a brief on land claims presented to Mr. Trudeau by the brotherhood. And while there were suggestions that the prime minister would announce a breakthrough, it still came a surprise to the delegation.

The brief proposed a 13-member settlement committee, seven chosen by Ottawa and seven by the Indians. A chairman would be appointed with the agreement of both parties.

"I look forward to negotiating a settlement," Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said afterwards.

Lloyd Barber, Indian claims commissioner who brought the Indians and Mr. Trudeau together, said the meeting was historic.

HAD HIGH HOPES

The Yukon delegation, led by brotherhood president, Elijah Smith, entertained high hopes since it was only a week ago that Mr. Trudeau told British Columbia chiefs they might have better legal claims to their land than he first thought.

A new government policy on land claims is being prepared as a result of the Supreme Court of Canada decision on claims of the Nishga Indians.

The Yukon brief asks lump cash settlements in the millions of dollars, unspecified land grants and royalties on gas, oil and mineral development in the territory.

The brief seeks a settlement along the lines of one in Alaska but Yukon delegates said they had learned from some of the weaknesses of the U.S. settlement.

Like Alaska, the Yukon natives would set up a financing agency to put settlement cash into projects that would be owned by the Indians.

Large amounts of land would be set aside for the Indians in their 12 major settlements in the territory.

If occupied land was to be excluded when Indians selected their land, then the community of Old Crow must be given full title to the Old Crow Flats, a natural route for the proposed pipeline

Canada, Cuba reach hijack accord

OTTAWA (CP) — After two years of bargaining, Canada and Cuba have agreed on the terms of a treaty to combat aerial hijacking.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Wednesday the treaty will give each country a choice if a hijacker lands on its territory — send him back or prosecute him.

Mr. Sharp said it was not surprising that the Canada-Cuba hijack negotiations, which began in February, 1971, came to a head at the same time as U.S.-Cuba talks, which started only last November.

Washington announced what is believed to be a similar agreement Tuesday.

Like the U.S. agreement, the Canadian treaty also covers ships, though Mr. Sharp said this is not of practical importance to Canada.

He said the treaty will not cover past hijackings. The government has made repeated requests for information about the man accused of hijacking an Air Canada jet to Cuba in December, 1971, but without success.

Patrick Dolan of New York, believed to be in a Cuban jail, stands charged by Canadian police with extortion, kidnapping and armed robbery — offences covered under a long-standing extradition treaty with Cuba.

DETAILS WITHHELD

Details of the hijacking treaty have not been released.

Officials, however, said the prickly question of political hijackers was one of the points resolved in a week of talks between Canadian and Cuban officials in Havana before the Canadian delegation returned to Ottawa Tuesday night.

Mr. Sharp told reporters "the question of motivation is not raised" when asked how the treaty deals with political cases.

One of the details yet to be concluded, officials said, is exactly what responsibility each country has to carry out prosecution.

Sources indicated during negotiations in recent months that each country might only be required to present a hijacker for prosecution — not necessarily prosecute. That may settle the question of political hijackers.

But Cuba, increasingly sympathetic to Canadian and U.S. views on hijackers, is no longer considered a haven for criminals.

"If you're a criminal hijacker and not a political hijacker, you'd be very unwise to go to Cuba," one source has suggested.

Ottawa has been pressing Havana for the treaty because Cuba has refused to sign a series of international agreements on hijacking, preferring to take up the issue with individual countries.

The first approach to Cuba was made in June, 1969, but the talks did not start until February, 1971.

Sharp dubious on Laos force

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday the government wants to see the contents of any ceasefire agreement in Laos before acting on a request for Canadian participation in a peace supervisory group.

"We don't intend to return to the same conditions that existed before," he said, referring to the moribund International Control Commission that has been in Laos since 1962.

Officials said the Laotian government and Washington, its ally, have asked Canada to consider augmenting the ICC to oversee a ceasefire agreement expected soon.

India, the chairman of the ICC, has already expressed willingness to take part in a revitalized operation. Poland is the third member.

Like the ICC in neighboring Vietnam, the Laos ICC has been deadlocked for years in internal wrangles, and generally idle while civil war, incursions by North Vietnam and U.S. bombing have recurred.

SIZE UNKNOWN

Mr. Sharp said there is not yet any idea of the size of the observer group that might be requested.

Laotian prime minister Prince Souvanna Phouma has referred to a 500-man force, but Canadian officials are studying the possibility of a much smaller group.

Nude not normal

Dear Ann Landers: My son is 17 years old. He seemed normal until last summer when he began to go around the house wearing cut-offs and nothing else. I became accustomed to seeing his hairy chest but I made him put on a shirt for meals.

A few months ago I discovered by accident that he sleeps in the nude. His bedroom door was open and his covers were partly off. A few weeks ago he walked into the kitchen with a towel wrapped around his middle and asked if I knew where the shampoo was. When I told him we were out of shampoo he walked out the back door, jumped into his car and drove to the neighborhood drugstore.

Last week he started to roam around the house stark naked. I told him I didn't approve of his actions. He said I was an oddball and a square. My husband is no help because he works nights and rarely sees his son. Is this normal behavior for a 17-year-old boy? Has the world changed that much? Please advise me.

Nebraska

Dear Neb: Your son's behavior is not normal—irrespective of how much the world has changed. I hope you will speak to your family physician or the boy's high school guidance counselor and find out where to take him for psychological testing. He needs professional help.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for all working women who are trapped on the phone nearly every night for at least two hours when they get home.

Too many housewives are bored and yacking on the horn is a wonderful way to kill time. But don't they understand that in addition to a full day's work downtown, we must do all the things they did during the day? This means cooking, cleaning, marketing, laundry and mending. Many of us have families who would appreciate some attention.

I hate to be rude. Ann, so please print this letter. Maybe if the guilty parties see it they will take the hint.—Don't Call Me I'll Call You

Dear D.C.M.: The guilty parties never think you mean them. If you resent being trapped on the phone you'll have to screw up the courage to repeat orally the very words you used to sign your letter. Please soften it a little by adding, "when it is more convenient for both of us."

Dear Ann Landers: I was deeply disappointed in your biased, vindictive statement that some ego-hungry males equate a large family with virility and masculinity.

Your hypothesis is lacking in reality. Don't you know, Ann, that a great many women are also insecure and ego-hungry? They need to produce a large family in order to prove their femininity — not to mention adequacy. And don't forget the overweight ladies who find it easier to hide their rolls of fat under a maternity dress than control their mouths and go on a diet. Just sign me — A Friend Of Yours From Eau Claire.

Dear Friend In Eau Claire: You have a point and I wouldn't for one moment deny it. But at least we agree on one thing. Extremely large families in this day and age are often a sign that somebody feels the need to prove something.

It doesn't require any great bidding skill to get to three no-trump with the North-South cards. The bidding in the box shows the simple, straightforward way to get there.

With two five-card suits, North opens with the higher ranking one. You don't go out of your way to reverse, to show strength. A reverse bid shows strength and when you reverse with touching suits like diamonds and clubs it indicates that the club suit is longer.

North's hand is strong enough for a forcing jump bid in his second suit and South rebids to three no-trump. South might have given a preference to three diamonds but the last thing South wanted was to get past the three no-trump level.

South let the heart lead come around to his hand and promptly tried and lost the diamond finesse. East led back a heart to his partner. West took his ace and thought for awhile.

It was obvious to West that South still held the high heart. West could see that South was going to be able to collect four diamond tricks and if South happened to hold the queen of clubs he would make the rest of the tricks.

In duplicate play, West might well have taken his ace of spades and held South to one overtrick, but this was rubber bridge. West led a heart in the hope of beating three no-trump in case his partner held the club queen. South won and cashed the rest of the tricks.

When Greek meets Greek

Next week Archbishop Makarios will stand for re-election as president of Cyprus amidst alarming signs of a new outbreak of civil war. This time the civil war will not be between the island's Greek majority and Turkish minority, separated by the now practically permanent peace-keeping force with a strong Canadian contingent, but between the Greeks themselves.

Archbishop Makarios was propelled to power by the terror tactics of the Greek General Grivas. A five-year campaign by the general's henchmen in which the terrorists murdered British soldiers, their wives and children, and all Greeks and Turks who disagreed with their methods, eventually brought about the end of the 70 years of British colonial rule, installing Archbishop Makarios as the head of the island.

The inspiration that lent respectability to the terror was found in the lofty sentiments of nationalism, expressed in the slogan of "enosis" — the union of the island with Greece. However, the harsh facts of geopolitics made enosis impracticable and Archbishop Makarios, being both lord temporal and spiritual of the island, accepted a compromise whereby Cyprus was granted outright independence.

It was supposed to be a temporary arrangement. But the position of the head of an independent state with all the trappings of sovereignty, from membership in the United Nations to the centre of international intrigues carried out by embassies accredited to President Makarios, was one not to be lightly surrendered.

In due course Archbishop Makarios forgot all the heavy slogans of enosis he had been voicing when Gen. Grivas was the executor of the archbishop's policies.

But General Grivas has not forgotten. Nor have the violent men who for five years murdered and maimed to bring Archbishop Makarios to power. The chickens hatched by terrorism have now come to roost on the archbishop's palace, where the Communist-armed presidential guard is trying to shoot 'nem down.

It is indeed tragic that after rumors, first, and then hard reports of an impending accommodation between the Greeks and the Turks, the good news is to be drowned in a wave of terrorism that threatens to erupt in full force after next week's election. The archbishop is standing unopposed.

The conclave of Orthodox bishops of the island's autonomous Orthodox church has demanded that the archbishop choose either a position in the church or in the state, forbidding him to keep both. But the archbishop knows that the lower clergy, which has benefited from the island's remarkable prosperity, is on his side, and so is the Communist party that accounts for about one-fourth of all Greek voters. The Cyprus Communists want no part of enosis that would put them under the colonels' regime.

General Grivas, for his part, counts on the old terrorist network reinforced by students and high school children, who have already descended into the streets to demonstrate against Archbishop Makarios.

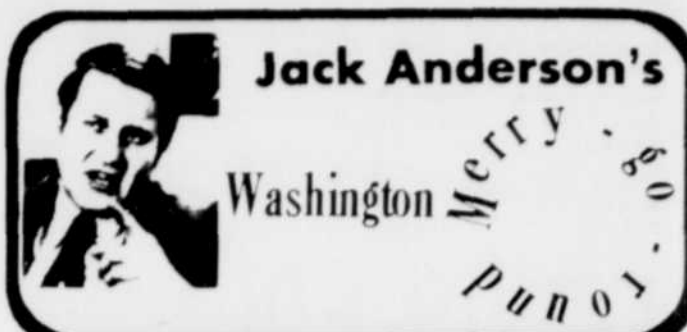

He can count on the 7,000-man Greek National Guard and the lower level of the police forces. President Makarios has raised his own militia to counter the terrorist threat, while the Turks are wondering whether it is worth their while to continue talks with a regime that is in such disarray.

The Turkish leader, Raul Denktash, is campaigning for vice-presidency in the Makarios government, but it has been reported that the Turkish community is having second thoughts on this matter.

If intra-Greek, rather than inter-communal, bloodshed should erupt on the island, what will be the reaction of the peace-keeping force?

The problem of Cyprus is highly complicated, racially, politically and strategically. If the island is to be kept peaceful and denied to the Soviet Mediterranean fleet, some quick thinking is required, now.

Top Secret: The General Motors papers

WASHINGTON — Conscientious and concerned employees have turned over to us thousands of incriminating documents from the files of General Motors, the world's largest corporate citadel.

These internal papers show that the great motor moguls, despite their past embarrassments at the hands of Ralph Nader, are continuing to cover up serious safety defects in the vehicles they turn loose on the highways.

GM has been forced to recall millions of defective cars in order to repair faulty engine mounts and steering systems. But the documents in our possession show that at least a dozen other critical hazards plague millions more cars that have not been recalled.

These defects are described in an array of documents that range from Dealer Service Problem Reports to GM's hush-hush Form 1241 reports on preliminary investigations. Some of the reports bear notations such as "GM RESTRICTED: Not To Be Disclosed Outside G.M. Corporation." We also have confidential minutes of internal meetings and photographs intended for GM eyes only.

GM has taken extraordinary precautions to keep these documents from getting out. In a five-page letter, board chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg last October reminded employees that "strict security is essential to the successful operation of every phase of our business." He warned of "appropriate disciplinary action" against employees violating corporate security.

A month later, GM Vice President John Z. DeLorean told a secret management conference: "Every defect, each recall only diminishes the credibility of whatever amount of advertising we do...The plain and simple truth is that poor quality threatens to destroy us."

PROFITS VS. PEOPLE

GM seems more interested, nevertheless, in covering up their defects than improving the quality. The attitude betrayed in the secret papers is that GM still puts profits ahead of people.

The company has failed to notify car owners of chronic problems in such vital automotive components as steering, brakes, visibility, electrical systems. This failure to alert the public has endangered motorists and pedestrians alike.

A typical report, describing the brake problems of a 1968 Eldorado in Lyndhurst, N.J., states: "Car involved in minor accident. Owner claimed brakes went to floor. Dealer did work on brakes after the accident. (A few days later) owner claims brakes went to floor and caused him to strike a pedestrian."

Another report on trouble in Ardmore, Pa., notes: "Left front wheel sheared off. Rolled toward a group of children. Didn't hit anyone. Turned it over to dealer. Never heard any more. Yesterday right wheel sheared off."

The evidence in the documents has been supplemented by discussions with the concerned GM employees. In describing one serious defect, an employee close to the problem said sadly: "GM will conceal things. They have a wanton disregard for the public's safety when they allow something like this to go unresolved. They haven't recalled the cars, they haven't notified anybody. It's probably one of the most serious problems that ever existed."

He said GM's attitude was strictly "dollar, money. I want them to take positive action in a definite way in the interest of the public, because the public is responsible for their multibillion profit annually."

WASHINGTON WHIRL

CRACKDOWN ON CRITICS — Howard Phillips, the arch-conservative appointed to dismantle the Office of Economic Opportunity, is using his office to squelch criticism of the Nixon Administration among OEO-funded groups. Rural Housing Alliance Director Clay Cochran, for example, called the Administration's decision to cut off federal housing subsidies "a giant step backward for the rural poor." Three weeks later, the vengeful Phillips launched an investigation of Cochran's organization. Commenting for Phillips, a spokesman denied that the director was going after the agency for political reasons.

HUMANE HUNT — The U.S. Humane Society lost its court case to ban use of bows-and-arrows and antique weapons for hunting on federal wildlife lands, but may be on the way to an unexpected victory outside the courts. The society claims these weapons maim or cripple deer and other animals instead of killing them outright. Despite the unsuccessful court proceedings, the Interior Department has begun a quiet survey to see whether hunters should be given tests with their weapons before they hunt in the federal refuges. The Department, in an internal memo, also says it is considering present statistics on how many animals are able to live on the lands and how many are crippled by hunters. The study will also touch on the weapons themselves.

Snowmobile abuse

Dear Sir:

I would like to present a "bird's-eye" view of the other side of the fence on a particular subject — snowmobiling.

This is a very enjoyable and entertaining pastime when used as intended and snowmobiles for woodcutters and in the far north are a real benefit.

However, when they fall into the hands of very young teenagers, and others too, and apparently with no supervision restrictions, it is another story.

In the small town where I live, our weekends are made a real "endurance test" instead of a time of relaxation from busy and time-consuming jobs. On weekends, the local smaller children make our lives a torment with their shuttling back and forth, up and down, roaring, moaning and grinding through our yards, grounds, all around the village with absolutely no respect for private property. And believe me, a snowmobile motor at close quarters is surely not a "sweet running" one.

Apparently there are no highway patrols, as they are up and down and across the highways continually. One would be forced to agree that today's motorists have enough to contend with, without the menace of reckless snowmobile drivers.

We have even had an instance of a woman being given a real "harangue" by a snowmobiler who told her she had absolutely no business keeping her clothesline so low as he had nearly hurt himself on it with a snowmobile. This within feet of her own back door, on her own property!!!

Should not the public have more protection from this din and noise and property damage of this mis-used device.

On trapping

Dear Sir:

There has been a bit recently in the newspapers and T.V. about trapping. I would say that if trapping is necessary at all it should be done by a few responsible people who would have some respect for game laws and other folks' property.

I think most of the trappers in the Eastern Townships are living on some sort of government handouts welfare on unemployment insurance.

These people buy a trapper's permit and seem to think it entitles them to go anywhere they please and kill anything they see.

They move far and fast as they nearly all have snowmobiles. If these people are allowed to keep on killing we will have no wildlife left, there is very little now.

Yours sincerely,
Alfred Millar

THE PROMISE

1. The long dark days of winter are coming to an end.
2. The sunny days of spring are just around the bend.
3. When mother earth brings forth the flowers and life anew.
4. Who doubts there is a God who cares for me and you.
5. The sky blue in forget-me-nots.
6. The sunshine in the daffodils.
7. The bright red rose that creeps along the garden wall.
8. Our lives are like the seasons.
9. For some they are dark and stormy.
10. No one to warm the chill.
11. While others like the roses.
12. Spread their sweet perfumed red blossoms.
13. As they watch some others fall.
14. But God that made his promise.
15. He knows and sees them all.

REMINISCENCES

If we could sort our memories and relive days gone by
If we could travel back the time enjoyed by you and I
If we could hear those voices that are quiet for ever more
If we could unsay things we've said in far off days of yore
If we could close our memories like smoke that's blown away
Are the thoughts of many old folk that are with them every day.

Go placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there may be in silence.

As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons.

Speak your truth quietly and clearly, and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant, they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit.

If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter, for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself.

Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your own career, however humble, it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time.

Exercise caution in your business affairs, for the world is full of trickery, but let this not blind you to what virtue there is, many persons strive for high ideals, and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself, especially, do not feign affection, neither be cynical about love, for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune, but do not distress yourself with imaginings.

Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness.

Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars, you have a right to be here.

And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world.

Be careful. Strive to be happy.

'Thirty-three plus one'

WASHINGTON — Just before leaving for the West Coast, President Nixon met with everyone in the White House with duties connected with his legislative program. "Just remember," he told them, "on most issues this year, we don't need fifty-one votes. Thirty-three plus one will be enough."

The President was speaking of the Senate, with its 100 voting members. The meaning of his fairly chilling remark was that in most arguments with Congress that he could foresee, he would use his veto and therefore did not feel the need of a normal majority. The need was for no more than "thirty-three plus one" — or just the minimum required to sustain a presidential veto.

As matters now stand, the Senate is fairly unlikely to give him his "thirty-three plus one" on all sorts of questions this year. In four recent votes classified as "crunch" in the White House, the cumulative total of senators supporting the President was under 50. That gives an average, per crunch, of hardly more than 12 senators on the President's side.

That may change, of course, as the President keeps hammering home the cruel claim that he is against waste, against inflation and against higher taxes, while the wicked Democrats in Congress favor all three of these evils because they are the mere creatures of so many of special interests. As

with Joseph Alsop

one agonized Senate liberal remarked to this reporter — after denouncing the President as a subverter of the Constitution — even the bravest senators feel they are in something of a tight spot.

"We say we are defending our constitutional prerogatives," he lamented. "But the voters may just conclude we are defending our right to be wrong."

In any case, although the President had the Senate in mind at the time, the real point of the President's grimly determined remark to his staff goes far beyond the Senate. The senate, after all, cannot override a presidential veto without the help of the House. Both chambers must produce a two-thirds anti-Nixon majority to get results.

Here, one must add, is where the universal interpretation of a recent test vote in the House has been downright grossly misleading. REAP — the obscure Rural Environmental Aid Program of the Agriculture Department — was the subject of the test. Incredibly enough, REAP was actually chosen for just as surely veto it, probably with a sharp message about waste, inflation, higher taxes, lobbyists and special interests. As anyone can see, moreover, the pro-REAP forces were above a score of votes short of the two-thirds needed to override a presidential veto. On a vote to override, moreover, Minority Leader Ford and the other White House stalwarts are sure they can do better than they did in last week's test.

There are some possible exceptions, like certain bills to subsidize medical research, where a vote against could be interpreted as open support for more and more heart attacks.

But overall, the recent REAP vote is considered by all insiders as decisive proof of the President's power to veto over and over again, in the supposed constitutional crisis over spending bills that will unquestionably pit the President against the Congress.

The recent House vote seems to say, in fact, that this well-advertised epic struggle of the future is as good as won already — and by the President. The real danger to the President lies elsewhere. Will the liberal Democrats retaliate by denuding the national defense in the name of "cutting spending"? And will they risk the chance of peace in Vietnam by denying the aid money needed for reconstructing both North and South Vietnam?

REAP will surely pass the Senate, but the President will

Wife Is Concerned

Cancer-Circumcision Link?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am very concerned about a problem which is beginning to affect my response to my husband. I've read a lot of articles about the correlation between cancer in women with husbands who have not been circumcised. I am scared to death that I may get cancer of the cervix because my husband hasn't been. Moreover, he doesn't really want to be, so I hate to push him into it for fear it will cause a problem between us.

Dr. Lamb

We have had a wonderful marriage and I hate for this thing to come up and cause us a problem now. We have discussed this between us and I already know that his ego is involved but he's also worried about the possibility that I might develop a cervical cancer if he doesn't do something about the problem. What do you think about this? Are there any precautions we could take that would help decrease the likelihood of my developing a cervical cancer, short of him having a circumcision?

Dear Reader—The trouble with a lot of articles of the type you've been reading in women's magazines is that they usually have not caught up with the facts that are known to the medical profession. While it is true that it was once thought that an uncircumcised male might contribute to the possibility of cervical cancer, there is little or no evidence for this and serious investigators have discarded the idea.

The big impetus for the idea in the first place was the supposed low incidence of cervical cancer in Jewish women. The idea was that since Jewish males were circumcised and less prone to have smegma, the material that collects around the head of the penis, that this must be the reason that Jewish women so infrequently had cervical cancer.

Recent reports from the Israeli Cancer Registry, however, have demonstrated that there is a great difference in the incidence of cervical cancer in Jewish women within various subgroups. Jewish women from Tunis had a very low rate of 1.9 per 100,000, whereas the Jewish women from Morocco had rates as high as 11.5, which is entirely comparable to the incidence seen in New York State in non-Jewish women. The idea that smegma from the uncircumcised penis is the carcinogen has also been disproved by experimental studies. Moreover, it has been very well established that cancer of the cervix occurs quite frequently in women whose only sexual contacts have been with circumcised men. Other studies in women have also shown that there is no increased frequency of cervical cancer in women who have uncircumcised husbands, which should be good news for you.

The originally reported low incidence of cervical cancer in Jewish women may be related to quite a different factor which does appear to be important in cervical cancer. The relatively strict sexual mores of Jewish families often limit the incidence of sexual activity in girls before age 20. Prevention of teen-age sexual activity may be the real factor. In reviewing the problem of cervical cancer, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Harvard Medical School, observes that there is a close correlation with the age of onset of sexual activity and erosion or inflammatory changes in the cervix. These early changes seen in the cervix are not necessarily cancer of the cervix, but they are the kind of changes which often progress until eventually cervical cancer develops.

The implication of Dr. Kistner's report is that young women who engage in sexual activity early in life, especially in their teenage years, are more likely to develop changes in the cervix which are associated with the subsequent development of cervical cancer than women who begin sexual activity later in life.

The reason that early sexual activity is related to these changes in the cervix is not known. There are a lot of theories, some of which include what might be called a type of inflammatory tissue reaction to semen itself, to simple mechanical irritation, and the possibility of exposure to infectious organisms. The real answer is that nobody knows why the changes in the cervix are observed but the correlation with cervical changes and early sex life as opposed to a later sex life seems to be pretty evident. I hasten to point out that there are many exceptions. In the meantime, in answer to your specific question, I think you can safely put aside any concern you have about the fact your husband has not been circumcised as a factor in whether or not you will develop cancer of the cervix. It's much more important how early in life you began your own sexual activity, and that is now past history.

Of course, cleanliness is a problem in a man who has not been circumcised and varies a great deal in the actual circumstance. But regular personal hygiene will take care of this problem. Or stated simply, soap and water daily. So you won't need to send your husband off to be circumcised to protect yourself from cervical cancer. If he wants this done for his own purpose and to make cleanliness an easier factor for him, that's another matter.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like to have some information about birth control pills. The doctor prescribed some to regulate my period and he told me if I stopped taking them all at once I have a chance of getting pregnant. Is that true?

Dear Reader — Yes, it's true up to a point. Birth control pills suppress ovulation. If there are no ova released they can't be fertilized and pregnancy can't occur. Once the pill is stopped, ovulation can proceed normally and then pregnancy is possible. For this reason, anyone who is taking the pill and stops it, any other time than intermittently for the period, menstrual flow, is running a risk of getting pregnant. There is not, however, a rebound reaction in which a woman is excessively fertile after she has quit taking the pill. This rumor made the rounds when the pill was first popular. The truth is that the situation is often the opposite and it takes a little while to recycle the system with normal ovulation and resultant pregnancy.

A step forward — cost is high

TORONTO (CP) — To be appointed a federal judge is considered the ultimate step in a Canadian legal career. But the personal cost may be high.

Consider Willard (Bud) Zebede Estey.

He's a 52-year-old lawyer who has been practising here since 1947. An outstanding courtroom tactician, his long list of clients includes such major corporations as Imperial Oil Ltd., the giant U.S. Gulf Oil Corp. and its Canadian subsidiary, Gulf Minerals, Famous Players, the Columbia Broadcasting System in Canada.

Mr. Estey's legal activities have taken him coast to coast in Canada and provided him with an annual income exceeding $100,000.

One day he was in Halifax for the biggest civil trial of his career, a tax dispute between Imperial Oil and the Nova Scotia government.

He received a phone call from Ottawa.

It was Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Would Mr. Estey accept appointment to the Ontario Court of Appeal?

Bud Estey, a Liberal, accepted and on Feb. 23 he will be sworn in by Chief Justice George A. Gale of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

As a judge his income will be $41,000 a year. Not that Mr. Estey is unduly concerned about the abrupt cut in income.

"I don't think there is any doubt that the legal profession is excessively over-compensated for its work," he said in an interview.

His headaches come from winding up his professional activities.

On the day the justice minister phoned, Mr. Estey had 200 cases under way, at least twice the number of an average lawyer. He must find other lawyers to take over.

Boundary campground

STANSTEAD — The Frontier Towns will gain a share of the leisure travel market with the official announcement this week that Stanstead KOA Kamping will open at the end of spring.

Denis Lacoste and Claude Vallee of Stanstead have announced they have signed agreements to build and operate a full-scale service family campground located on the Crystal Lake shore. This site of 24 acres development is at the north west part of Stanstead Village adjacent to Highway 5 and autoroute 55.

Kampgrounds of America Inc. is the largest chain of privately owned campgrounds whose identity is its "A" frame service building.

KOA has about 700 campgrounds. The structure normally houses the camper registration office and offers such standardized facilities as a grocery store, showers, restrooms, laundry facilities and a family lounge.

The Stanstead KOA Kamping building, following the architectural specifications standard for all KOA Kampgrounds, will contain 4400 square feet interior floor space. Initial construction is slated to begin on February 26 of this month. The open-all-year campgrounds will develop 80 campsites at the present for travel trailers, motor homes, tenters, pickup campers and tent trailers.

No Candy in the washrooms of Port Alice

PORT ALICE, B.C. (CP) — Candy Fawcett says she isn't going to let a little thing like the lack of a women's washroom stand between her and fulltime employment as a logging longshorewoman on the Port Alice waterfront.

"I'm not the frills and lace type, and a job on a boat would suit me just fine," said Mrs. Fawcett, a vivacious 24-year-old mother of two whose husband is a millworker.

"Well, there's a 10-minute coffee break in a four-hour shift and that's plenty of time to go 60 yards to the office."

Mrs. Fawcett says she wants a job as a checker, the person that makes sure the right load of pulp goes into the right hold of a vessel during loading. A checker earns $4.29 an hour.

"I would never take a job away from a man who has to feed a wife and kids, but if there's a job a man doesn't want, then I'd like a chance at it," she said. "The company has been having a little trouble finding people for these jobs."

Mrs. Fawcett said she went to the docks "every morning for a week" recently in an effort to get Rayonier to sign her up.

"I wore a hardhat and a pair of my husband's safety shoes w/ steel caps because he takes the same size I do. I walked down on the dock past the men to the checker's office and I got a lot of rude comments, but I just kept on walking."

She said that on at least one occasion, three other women were there.

"We stood in line and the foreman picked the men—not us. That's the way hiring is done. But to be fair, I must say some of the men were sent home too."

Mrs. Fawcett said that to date, the company has hired only one woman checker. That was last year, and she worked only twice before being let go.

Mr. Durkin said several women in Port Alice have expressed an interest in working as checkers, but have been discouraged by the company and the washroom factor.

Peter Jemmeson, public health and factories inspector for the upper Vancouver Island health unit, confirmed in an interview that he was the one who deemed women's toilet facilities inadequate on the Port Alice waterfront.

"I didn't pace out the distance down the dock, but I'd say it was closer to 100 yards than 60 yards to the office washroom. I would not like to see anyone do that and back in 10 minutes in the rain."

A Rayonier spokesman in Vancouver said the company does not discriminate against women in its employment practices and has several working in sawmills and logging camps.

"We are just adhering to the Factories Act in this case."

United Church does not support Key 73 in relationship to Jews

The United Church of Canada is one of the participating churches in the North America program of evangelism known as Key 73. It doesn't go along with statements in literature published in the U.S., regarding relationships with Jews.

"We view with deep concern the fact that some literature produced in the United States, and some movements associated with Key 73 in that country have suggested that this is an opportunity to 'present the Messiah to your Jewish friends' and to win 'Jews for Jesus'." said a statement adopted Thursday by the Executive of the Church's General Council.

The statement was presented to the Executive by Rev. W. Clarke MacDonald, Deputy Secretary of the Division of Mission in Canada.

He explained that recent statements by some rabbis and United Church ministers indicated they felt there was an "anti-semitic bias" in the North American Key 73 document used as a handbook for organizers.

"We take exception to the implications of these statements and point out that we are aware that theologically this is not the only place."

"Many United Church people would find parts of this document less than compatible with present United Church belief and practice."

"We are also aware of the fact," the statement adopted by the 60-member executive said, "that some Jewish leaders have found these implications offensive. In view of this awareness and the conditions under which the General Council authorized our involvement in Key 73, we want to affirm that we will oppose any tendency within the Key 73 program to single out any groups as a particular 'target' for our evangelistic thrust" and that we will continue to support those aspects of Key 73 which declare the good news of God's love for all people, and to encourage their response as persons without violation — of their own integrity.

We will try, as we are given grace, to do this in the spirit of love we have seen in Jesus Christ, and to assure all other religious groups that we respect and will continue to affirm their individual and corporate rights."

ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Another resolution passed by the executive reiterated the Church's stand on capital punishment.

Dr. MacDonald said he introduced it because of the "agony of members of Parliament" and in view of the free vote to be taken shortly. The text of the resolution reads:

"Be it resolved that this general council executive (1) reaffirm the position of the general Council of The United Church of Canada meeting in Saskatoon, August, 1972, calling for the abolition of capital punishment; (2) call attention to the fact that while the United Church called for the abolition of capital punishment, we stressed equally the need for adequate alternatives to both safeguard the public and assist in the rehabilitation of the person convicted of murder.

(3) Support in principle, the appeal of the Police Chiefs' Association for more stringent regulations regarding the procurement of hand guns and rifles and for a review of the Bail Reform Act so that it will achieve the purpose of maximizing justice and at the same time protect society."

The Club sent a letter to the Ministry of Tourism - Hunting and Fishing Division, asking them to increase their number of conservation agents at present to at least five times so as to enable them to check all strategic corners. Here again, all hunters are asked to do their part by respecting the hunting laws.

We ask all farmers who have dogs, to keep a close check on them. A great number of dogs form groups and chase deer during the day or at night. A dog having acquired this attitude becomes a destructor and deserves to be done away with.

This project that the Fish and Game Club of St. Francois has undertaken is indeed a big challenge, but we believe the effort is worth the pleasure that every real sportsman will derive from it.

We also discussed, last week, the possibility of again seeing the deer herds returning in large numbers. To do this, certain steps will have to be taken. We must control the predators (wolves, coyotes and dogs), stop hunting females and fawns, leaving the family of deer to rebuild. Maybe even stop all hunting for a few years in order to permit the herds to add to their numbers.

Guests were present from Stanbridge East, Bedford, and Sherbrooke.

MAGOG — Mrs. George Ducharme and Miss Gordene Hoppes entertained at the latter's home on College st., in honor of Mrs. Gerald Holt at a "stork" shower.

When she arrived, Mrs. Holt was surprised by friends and relatives gathered there. She was presented with a corsage.

She received many useful and beautiful gifts for which she thanked the donors. The hostesses served a delicious buffet lunch.

The table was centered with a floral bouquet and a cake made in the form of a bassinet.

The first twins born at the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital this year are presented with silver cups.

Anniversary

RICHMOND (J.W.) — Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Collins of Hampstead, well known in this vicinity, who are celebrating their fortieth wedding anniversary at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Edward Hayes and Mr. Hayes in Jacksonville, Florida, Sunday February 18.

St. Armand

Mrs. P.C. Luke is at present a patient in the BMP Hospital in Cowansville where she has undergone surgery this week.

Miss Mary Rutherford of Montreal spent the weekend with Miss Barbara Kuhn. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Field, Mr. and Mrs. George Sutherland, Mrs. A.H. Wade, Mrs. G.L. Kidd, Henry Symington and Gordon Wade attended the Official Board Meeting of the Bedford Charge held at the Bedford United Church on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Courchesne and daughter of Montreal were with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Courchesne and Mr. and Mrs. W. Chabot over the weekend.

On January 18 a new U.S. law, designed to save you money on future automobile purchases, became effective. Commonly referred to as the "bumper bill", its full title is the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act.

Basically the law will establish front and rear bumper standards for all U.S. cars to reduce low-speed collision damage, but there's more to it than that. The new bumper standards will become effective after July 1, and the act provides stiff penalties for violators.

Consumers can even sue manufacturers if damage to their cars results from a violation of the new standards.

The law also authorizes the establishment of diagnostic inspection demonstration standards in the U.S. to check for compliance with the safety and air pollution emission regulations, and it launches a one-year government study on the costs of operating and repairing various car models.

In addition the law sets up a consumer information program which will publish comparisons of car repair costs.

Finally, the law will require U.S. car dealers by February 1, 1975, to furnish prospective buyers with insurance costs for different models based on ability to withstand damage and protect passengers.

All in all, there should be enough information coming forth to lower your overall driving costs.

Research reveals strange paradox

A sacred object of worship, or a malevolent being to be isolated from the community and avoided like the plague?

In nearly every civilization, the menstruating woman has habitually been the focus of superstitions and taboos weird enough to make even the most tradition-oriented mind boggle. Not to mention that of the modern "liberated woman."

Research recently conducted into menstrual customs by Johnson & Johnson, on the eve of the introduction of their (to date) most liberating sanitary product, has turned up a strange paradox. While in some countries even the priests revered these women as direct sources of supernatural blessing, in others, women were hidden away during their period and forbidden to look at the sun or touch the ground for fear of cursing it.

In some primitive communities, the girl was accordingly segregated in a small cage high off the ground, of hidden behind matting on a corner shelf. She might be sewn into a hammock and slung up into the rafters of the family hut. Here she might stay for as long as two months, descending only for brief nocturnal intervals during which she could cook her own food but not on the family fire, for fear of "cursing" it.

Elsewhere, isolated in special huts, menstruating women tended their own needs but were not permitted to prepare for their families, touch their household utensils or do the laundry.

For some, this was a mixed ordeal, since they regarded it as a real holiday!

One Alaska tribe put their pubescent girls into small huts which allowed them only to rise to their knees. After six months of this, the girl was allowed a larger hut in which she could straighten her back and sit up during a further six months. Tended by slaves or the cronies of the tribe, the girl ate very little, "cried a lot" and could scratch her "taboo" head only with a bone or wooden scratching stick, some of which still survive.

Failure to use the stick would cause her hair to turn gray or fall out.

A mere glance from a menstruating woman was thought to deprive a man permanently of his hunting skills, and if she drank milk or water, or ate fish, the cows would dry up, the water be poisoned and the fish die.

In what must surely be one of the earliest "women's lib" quotes, an Indian woman told her anthropologist interviewer, "This is the time when we are powerful and men are afraid. We like to see them slinking past with their backs turned."

Most primitive tribes celebrated the first menses with elaborate ceremonies, climaxed by a feast for the entire village. The adolescent girl so honored was called "she through whom we shall all have a good time."

Indians in the southwest U.S. and some Australian tribes buried the young girl up to her waist in warm sand to alleviate cramps. (A horrified Jesuit priest once thought they were being buried alive!) While thus immobilized, she was taught traditional tribal songs and legends by relays of elders, and given lectures on how to be a good wife, "peaceful and courteous." The girl was encouraged to eat little and talk less so that she would not grow into a glutton or a chatterbox.

Although many modern women still regard the whole business in much the same light as the New Guinea tribe which calls it "Kekawwat" (broken leg), Anne Gilbert, J. & J's Director of Consumer Education says their new product is the latest step in a long campaign to change this.

Some of these superstitions still exist in some areas of Canada in a lesser degree.

Researchers found women who still implicitly believe that jams, jellies or meats preserved by menstruating women will not keep, and that such cakes will fall. Until recently, educated Canadian women still advised their daughters not to wash their hair or bathe at such times. It is this sort of thinking that Anne Gilbert tries to combat through the company's extensive educational program of booklets and films. Even the enlightened anthropologists who didn't blush at describing primitive sex orgies most explicitly, rarely brought themselves to mention the topic.

One last word: an old Main superstition says that the pulverized bone of a cod's head will stop the whole thing.

Prosperity Rebekah Lodge

COWANSVILLE — Prosperity Rebekah Lodge No. 32 held their first bi-monthly meeting on Feb. 5 in the Masonic Hall at 910 Main St. in Cowansville. The meeting was opened at 8:15 p.m. by the Noble Grand Sister Ruth Miele and assisted by the Vice Grand, Sister Edith Fuller. The Noble Grand extended a very warm welcome to all those present, especially Sister Isabella Beattie who has been away for many months.

The members then proceeded to ballot on the applications for membership of Sister Jean McClary and Sister Madeline Perry. The balloting was favourable and these two Sisters were admitted to membership in this Lodge. The members then took part in the re-obligation ceremony which was very well done by those taking part.

Sister Betty Pow reported having remembered Sisters Ruth Miele, Phyllis Durkee, Barbara Moffat and Mary Knight with cards and/or gifts.

Several appeals were received and it was decided to send five dollars ($5.00) to The Canadian Save The Children Fund, ten dollars ($10.00) to the Educational Foundation Fund, ten dollars ($10.00) to the General Relief Fund. These notes were received from Sisters Maude Smith, Gladys Buchanan and Phyllis Durkee for gifts.

Sister Irene Williams gave a brief report on the Military Whist card party which was held on Jan. 27. Cards were played at 14 tables and the proceeds were fifty-seven dollars, ($57.00).

The prize winners were as follows: 1st Prize: Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hunt, Mrs. Ada Glover and Mrs. Minnie Haines. Consolation: Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pow, Mrs. Ruth Miele, and Mrs. Irene Williams. The door prize was won by Miss Debbie Horne. Thanks are extended to all those who helped to make this card party so successful.

Sister Isabella Beattie was installed into the office of musician by Past District Deputy Presidents Sisters Irene Williams and Elsa Syberg.

Sister Isabella Beattie spoke briefly, welcoming our two new members to our Lodge, and saying she hoped they would enjoy being members. She said that she was very glad to be back after a five month absence. Sisters Jean McClary, and Madeline Perry also spoke briefly.

There being no further business to be brought before the members, Lodge closed in ritual form. The members joined in singing O Canada and then retired to the dining-room for refreshments and a social hour. Our next meeting will be held on Feb. 19.

Motor trend

How many of us were conceived in cars?

How many of our parents decided to marry while thrashing around in steamy, itchy automotive interiors, banging their knees on control switches and inadvertently leaning on horn buttons at inopportune moments?

It is no mere coincidence that porch swings began to go out of style about the time the automobile became popular. Cars simply came along and knocked all the previously accepted totems and rituals of courtship into a cocked hat.

Surely, one of the most important reasons for America's love affair with the automobile is the tremendous number of love affairs that have been conducted in the automobile.

Feels the bite

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — When Bill Dean yells, "Supper time," the visitor is more likely to hear the beating of thousands of tiny wings than the thunder of charging feet.

For Mr. Dean spends the entire year, even in the coldest temperatures, being bitten by thousands of mosquitoes.

It's all part of his job as an insect-rearing technician in the biology laboratory at Simon Fraser University.

The problem is that mosquitoes are choosy about their diet. In fact, they'll eat just one thing—blood, fresh blood, preferably of the human variety.

So once a week Mr. Dean rolls up his sleeve, thrusts his arm into the cage and it's supper time for the mosquitoes.

"I've been bitten so many times by mosquitoes I don't even react any more," he said, explaining that he's been interested in insects since he was a small child.

UCW meetings

MANSONVILLE — The regular meeting of the Mansonville U.C.W. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Bailey on Feb. 1 with 12 members and three guests attending.

The President, Mrs. Gerald George was in the chair and worship service was conducted by Mrs. Bertha Webb with other members giving prayers and bible readings taken from Thessalonians 1 chap. 4 with an opening and closing hymns.

Items of business discussed were the choosing of a centennial crest for the 100th Anniversary of the Mansonville United Church and an anniversary supper to be held on May 5; also the next meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Tomuschat on Feb. 15. Cards were signed for the sick and shut-in friends.

In the absence of Mrs. Ross McNeil, the program was given by Mrs. Bertha Webb which consisted of a skit on the Tower of Babel as languages of Canada and a bible character contest, won by Mrs. Maurice Jewett and Mrs. Rupert Fullerton.

A social hour with lunch served by the hostess, Mrs. Bailey, was enjoyed by everyone.

BIRCHTON — The U.C.W. held the regular meeting at the hall on Feb. 7 with the President, Mrs. Nick Turchyn, presiding. The meeting opened with the U.C.W. Purpose, followed by a worship period.

Business matters were attended to as quickly as possible and the meeting adjourned, while Mrs. J.A. Murray, program convener, was receiving guests from the surrounding area, for an informal evening with guest speakers from the Lennoxville District School Board.

The guest speakers included Mr. Hugh Auger, Director-General; Mrs. Marguerite Knapp, Chairman; Mr. David Cruickshank; a local Commissioner and other Committee members.

The evening proved to be very interesting and most informative, with refreshments, served by Mrs. Basil Prescott, bringing the evening to a close.

Twins born

COWANSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Sylvie Willis, of Albert street, Cowansville, are the proud parents of the first twins born this year at the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital.

Mrs. Z.J. Chagnon of the Women's Auxiliary, has presented the happy mother two Silver Cups for her sons, Kevin and Keith.

Onion soup au gratin

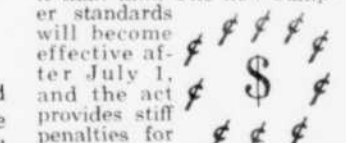

The cheese can be grated beforehand as can the preparation of the stock and croûtons. All there is to do is assemble all the ingredients just before serving and heat... a practical and fast preparation dish for an end-of-the-evening get-together.

This very nourishing dish is also a good lunch suggestion since it is certainly a meal in itself.

This recipe was created and tested by Claire Friefeld, consultant dietician for the Peanut Oil Institute.

4 medium onions, thinly sliced
6 cups beef stock (made with beef conc. and water)
2 1/2 tbsp. peanut oil
1 1/2 tbsp. Fleischmann's Margarine or butter
1 1/2 tbsp. flour
1/4 cup white wine
salt sparingly
pepper to taste
bouquet garni composed of thyme, chervil, bay leaf
1/2 pound Gruyere cheese, grated
1/4 pound Emmenthal cheese, grated
12 narrow French bread slices, toasted

Separate onion rings and saute in a heavy deep skillet in hot peanut oil and Fleischmann's Margarine or butter; use low heat stirring constantly until onions are golden. Sprinkle with flour and stir until blended. Gradually add beef stock and wine; add bouquet garni, tied together and stir until soup begins to boil. Lower heat and simmer for 20 minutes; adjust seasoning. Remove bouquet garni and service in individual tureens, each one containing 2 teaspoons cheese, soup, two slices toasted French bread slices and heaped with remaining cheese. Put under the broiler or in a hot oven, 400 degrees F. until the cheese starts to brown. Lower temperature to 350 degrees F. for 5 to 10 minutes longer. Serves about six persons.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota senate decided by a 33-to-28 vote Monday to ban smoking in its chamber, effective immediately.

The rule was broken 19 minutes after it was adopted. Senator Jerome Blatz lit up a cigarette and raised a conspicuous cloud over his front-row desk.

The smoking ban was proposed by Senator David Schaaf who said it was difficult sitting downwind from Bonfire Borden, Senator Winston Borden, a devotee of large, black cigars.

Stamps — Home on the range

On March 15, 1973, the Federal Republic of Germany will issue the latest pair in its series of towns active in tourism, with a 40 pf value for Hamburg and another for Rudesheim.

Both ports, Hamburg on the North Sea and Rudesheim on the Rhine, water serves as the foreground for both designs, by Heinz and Hella Schillinger, of Nuremberg.

On the same date, a single 40 pf value will be issued to honor the upcoming (12 to 17 of June) German Gymnastics Festival in Stuttgart. This simple, symbolic design is by Sigrid and Hans Lammle, Stuttgart.

The history of Hamburg is centuries old, as a port and trading center, vital in the significant Hanseatic League that pioneered modern commerce. Its recent history includes attractions of a livelier nature to the tourist.

Rudesheim lies at one end of the Rhine vineyard district, opposite Bingen, with the famous "Mouse Tower" on the Rhine belonging to the Archbishop of Mainz.

Tourism stamps printed by intaglio from an engraving of the simple line representation, by Hans Joachim Fuchs and Egon Falz, in two colors.

The Gymnast stamp is produced in multicolor gravure. All were printed at the Federal Printing Office, Berlin.

ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Cpl. Dennis Debler is letting a herd of 13 buffalo roam on his 63-acre ranch near here.

"It's a lot easier to care for buffalo," he said. "With cattle too much depends on the conditions of the market."

Cpl. Debler hopes to establish markets for steaks, burgers and roasts at about $2.50 a pound.

"I would like to have 15 to 20 producing females before I market the animals," said the corporal, stationed at Canadian Forces Base Kingston, about 35 miles southwest of here.

The Debler herd consists of six calves, six cows and a two-year-old bull. He bought most of the herd in January from Lafayette, N.Y., and the bull from a buffalo farm in Peterborough.

Cost of the buffalo range from $500 for a calf to $1,000 for a cow to $1,500 for a bull. Bulls weigh from 2,000 to 3,000 pounds while cows average about 1,400.

Cpl. Debler, 23, and his wife Barbara plan to raise buffalo on a full-time basis.

The animals require no shelter and little special feed.

Coue's formula

"Every day, and in every way, I am becoming better and better," is a formula that had wide public following when established around 1900 by French psychotherapist Emile Coue, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Carnival week spurs Border Minor Hockey

BORDER — The young hockey players of the area contributed towards the Carnival week here at the Border by playing hockey. A good number of people watched them in action at the Stanstead College Arena in Rock Island from February 3-6.

The first game on Feb. 3 saw the Beebe Pee Wees score five times in the third period to overtake Stanstead 5-1. Jean Pierre Beaulac gave Stanstead the early lead in the second period. David Wallace produced the game-winning goal four minutes later. Patric Charron, Serge Garrant and Johnny Wallace rounded out the scoring.

The second game of the day saw the Ayer's Cliff Midgets, without the services of their starting six, go down to their first loss as Rock Island edged them 3-2. Ayer's Cliff maintained an early lead on goals by Brian Dezan and Dale Mosher with Marc Coulombe's perfect pass setting up their first tally.

Roger Pouliot scored twice for the Midgets, the last one coming with five minutes left in the game. Mark Reed scored Rock Island's other goal.

The Stanstead Mosquitoes, behind the three-goal hat-trick of Jacques Lavallee, defeated

North Hatley 5-0. Jacques Grenier and Yves Lacoste also scored to power their team to victory, while Ronald Joyce recorded his second shutout of the season. Morris Dion also scored with Paul Dubois and Kelly Dustin each picking up assists. The last game of Feb. 3 saw the Ayer's Cliff Pee Wees edge North Hatley 4-2. Allan Down, Danny Therrien, Tony Schoolcraft and Douglas Piercy were credited with the Ayer's Cliff goals. William Dinning's two-goal effort clinched the game for North Hatley.

FEBRUARY 4
Sunday, Feb. 4 saw more action by the Minor Hockey teams. The Rock Island and Ayer's Cliff Atoms fought to a 1-1 tie. These small kids are really great. Billy Fisher gave Ayer's Cliff the early lead finishing the strategy of Robert Holmes before Rock Island's Jean-Luc Flanders raced the length of the ice to make the tying score. Mark Lees and Tommy Wharry both played well in the nets.

The Ayer's Cliff Mosquitoes defeated North Hatley 5-1. Daniel Whipple led the charge for Ayer's Cliff with two goals. His teammates, Jacques Viens, William Holmes and Bruce Pyle scored one each. Morris Burnham stopped Bruno Vanasse from getting a shutout as he beat him cleanly with a shot from close in.

The last game of that morning saw the cousins, Michael and David Dubois, each score three goals to power Rock Island Pee Wees to an easy, 12-1, win over North Hatley. Bruce Quigley chipped in with two goals on his own. The remainder of the scores were made by Rudolph Racine, Roger Haskell, Greg Duncan and Jimmie Curtis.

Greg Dustin lost his shutout when William Dinning plugged one in on a breakaway. This win moves Rock Island into second place behind Beebe in top place.

The first of the evening games was between the Beebe and Ayer's Cliff Midgets and was cut short by 10 minutes because of disturbances on the ice. Beebe's Eddy Boisclair opened the scoring early in the game but Ernie Whyte tied the score four minutes later.

Tim Kennedy produced the eventual game-winning goal a minute later. Jim Sharnan scored twice and Ernie Whyte made his second score to round out the scoring.

The score could have been much higher if it had not been for Harvey Stevens' play in the nets.

In a thrilling Atom game, Beebe's Kevin Caird tallied the winning marker on a pass from Brad Moss, to help defeat Stanstead 3-2. Brad and Barry Moss also scored for the winning team while league-leader Brian Hartley scored twice for Stanstead.

As usual a fine crowd was on hand to give moral support to the young players. It is the league's hope to see the public support the older teams as much as the younger ones. They too need the encouragement on the side lines.

The Rock Island Bantams moved back into first place as they skated past Beebe 4-1.

Danny Martin led the Rock Island attack with two goals and an assist. Jim Martin made a goal and was credited with an assist, with Brian Stuart scoring the last goal.

Monday, February 5, playing continued. The Rock Island Mosquitoes behind a three-goal performance by Philip Hucksins blasted Beebe 6-1. Also scoring for Rock Island were Kevin Russell, Kevin Philip and Kelly Dustin.

FEBRUARY 5
Monday, February 5, playing continued. The Rock Island Mosquitoes behind a three-goal performance by Philip Hucksins blasted Beebe 6-1. Also scoring for Rock Island were Kevin Russell, Kevin Philip and Kelly Dustin.

Guy Bouchard made two assists as well as playing a strong defensive game. Michel Lacroix scored for Beebe with Bernie Smith picking up the assist.

The second game of the evening saw the Beebe Midgets come out skating to build up a five goal lead on their way to an easy, 7-3 win over Rock Island. Guy Gaudreau netted three goals while cousins, Louis Gaudreau and Mark Haselton each tallied a goal and were credited with two assists. Luc Paquin and John Goodsell also scored for Beebe.

Pierre Theberge, Denis Ferland and Roger Pouliot scored for Rock Island with Florent Roy picking up two assists.

FEBRUARY 6
Tuesday, February 6 saw another two games. Barry Moss of the Beebe Atoms scored a third-period goal to give Beebe a 1-0 victory over Rock Island. The game saw both goalkeepers come up with a number of saves before Moss scored on a deflection.

Norman Lapenna and Mark Lees were the stars along with Barry Moss. The win moved Beebe into first place tie with Ayer's Cliff for the season standings.

Paul Seguin's goal in the third period enabled the Beebe Pee Wees to remain undefeated and untied as they edged Stanstead 2-1 in the second game of the evening. David Wallace had given Beebe the early lead before Maurice Gaulin tied the score for Stanstead. This set up the eventual winning goal by Seguin.

Report of arena organization meeting

E.J. Craighead
248-2488

BEDFORD — The following is the report given by Graham I. Neil, secretary of the provincial regional arena at a recent meeting of the organization, which gives a clear picture of the needed funds for the building of the arena, which was destroyed by fire last May.

Will there be an arena in the Bedford region? The answer is now up to you the people and councils of the municipalities that would use it.

Soon after the old arena in Bedford burned down last year a committee of the town of Bedford, working with representatives of the curling club began work exploring the possibilities of constructing a new arena and curling rink.

They explored possible sites for the new building, possible construction designs and costs. They had blue prints drawn up and went out to tender to get quotations of actual costs. They began soliciting funds from private and public sources. They studied various means of completing the financing of the project, and in August invited representatives of the surrounding towns' recreation associations to give their suggestions.

One of the main suggestions made at that time was that each of the municipalities, that would be served by such an arena be invited to assist in bringing the project about. On December 19th a meeting of representatives of these municipal councils was held at which time a provisional regional arena committee was formed of representatives of each of the interested municipal councils. Their work began immediately, and with a sub-committee investigating a few specific problems, were able to present a report of the matter to an assembly of all surrounding municipal councils on January 25, 1973.

An arena and curling club design has been drawn up and a quotation of $520,100.00 received on it. The arena is similar in size, structure and accommodation to that of Farnham. It is 250 feet by 120 feet in outside dimensions, with an ice surface of 190 by 85 feet and seating accommodations for 1050 people. It has a restaurant and hall of 120 by 40 feet, four modern players' changing rooms, heating as well as all the other necessary services and accommodations.

The curling rink is 200 by 40 feet including two sheets of ice 145 long, a lounge, kitchen and other required accommodations. The building is completely fireproof, of steel and cement construction with an exterior finish of stucco, metal siding and a partly field stone front. It is the kind of building that seems desirable and necessary to accommodate, and endure the sort of demand that will be made upon it by a region such as this over the years.

From studying Farnham's arena budget it appears that the arena in operation should be self-supporting or perhaps bring in a little revenue.

It is evident, however, that a substantial amount will have to be borrowed in order to finance the construction. It has been proposed that all municipalities, whose population will regularly use this facility, share on a per capita basis the debt incurred in its construction. This in turn will give each of them a voice and vote in the arena board of directors, which will administer and oversee the entire project from initial planning to annual operations.

It is anticipated that this will also allow the municipalities which have borne their share of the construction cost to enjoy certain privileges in its use — hopefully reduced ice cost for minor league hockey and broomball, for example. These kinds of decisions, however, will be left up to the representatives of each of the contributing municipalities via the board of directors.

Many other details and solutions to problems have been worked out, but there also still remains a tremendous number. One of the most perplexing problems is that regarding the source of the loan or other means of financing so that the construction may begin without further delay. This problem has not been resolved although at least three possible solutions, at varying costs, with different risks, are being closely studied.

At present it appears, that if the co-operation and support of a sufficient number of municipalities is obtained, their elected representatives in the form of an area board of directors will be in the best position to make such decisions in connection with their municipal councils.

To this end, each municipal council has been asked to study the matter closely and if willing to support the project, to verify this by passing a resolution to this effect and bringing it to the next regional arena meeting to be held in the Bedford town hall, February 15, 1973 at 20 hours (8:00 p.m.).

It is now up to you, the residents, in and around Bedford, that would be served by such an arena, to decide via your municipal governments whether you are to have such a facility or not.

A copy of the suggested resolution for adoption by the supporting municipalities can be obtained from the Secretary-treasurer of the Town of Bedford in the Town Hall.

Graham I. Neil, secretary of the provincial regional arena sub-committee, January 27, 1973.

Annual Congregational meeting

MANSONVILLE — The annual congregational meeting of the Mansonville-Bolton Centre Pastoral Charge of the United Church of Canada, was held in the Mansonville United Church hall, on Monday evening, Jan. 29.

A good representation was present, in spite of stormy weather. The meeting was chaired by the minister, Rev. Carl J. Gustafson, and Mrs. Merton Bailey acted as Secretary.

The members accepted with regret the request of Rev. C.J. Gustafson for a change in pastoral relations during 1973, due to his upcoming retirement. A Pastoral Relations Committee was appointed.

An 18-page annual report was handed out to all present, who were asked to study these reports of all the various committees of the Church. The minister reported a busy year, with many special services in which the young people took part, participation of the Junior and Senior choirs in Choir Festivals at Newport, Vt., and Stanstead, Que., the Song Services held at the lake side during the summer, two boys from Mansonville being sent to Cedar Lodge Camp, the Church vacation school which we shared with the Anglican Church, and the study group held for Sunday School teachers.

There were six baptisms, eleven marriages and six burials during the year. Two new members were received by profession of faith.

The Stewards reported a saving of expenses during the year, due to volunteer labour in many areas, some of which were the mowing of lawns, shovelling of snow, cleaning the Church, and the taking of services by members of the Session for the month of September, during the minister's vacation.

The Church School was very active as usual, with an enrolment of 45, with 15 teachers, helpers and officers.

The activities of the Mansonville and Vale Perkins Units of the United Church Women were many and profitable, enabling them to contribute generously to the total work of the Church. Some of their money-making ventures were the two Church suppers, the two wedding receptions to which they catered, and the annual auction and rummage sale in the summer, in which nearly all the women of the congregation participated.

Programmes included Bible study, a tour of the Clairol plant in Knowlton, a pot luck dinner to which the Anglican ladies were invited, and a Christmas party.

The Board of Trustees reported a complete review and change of the Insurance coverage of the Mansonville and Vale Perkins Church buildings, three new fire extinguishers being purchased, and the porch at the Manse being glassed-in, thanks to donated windows and donated labour by the minister.

Both trustee boards, from Mansonville and Bolton Centre, outlined future plans for improvement to the buildings. The Bolton Centre United Church Women functioned also as a Committee of Stewards and attended to the needs of the church in Bolton Centre. They held their annual church sale in July, which was most successful. A committee was active in visiting and cheering the sick and bereaved. Improvements were made to the Bolton Centre cemetery, owned jointly by the United and Anglican Churches. This was chiefly the installation of a fence around the joint cemetery.

The Mission and Service Fund chairman for the combined charge, reported an increase of 19 per cent in givings to this fund.

Financial statements were prepared by the various treasurers.

The reports, after discussion, were unanimously approved, and a vote of thanks extended to all officers, volunteer workers, the minister and his wife.

At this meeting, and meetings of the various boards which followed, the following officers were elected, viz.:

For the Mansonville Congregation:

Session: Messrs. Merton Bailey, Clerk of Session, Ernest Bradley, Ralph Knowlton, Maurice Jewett, Rupert Clark, Fred Korman.

Committee of Stewards: Kevan Heath, Chairman; Mrs. Merton Bailey, Secretary; Mrs. Rupert Fullerton, Treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, Assistant Treasurer; and Envelope Steward: Mrs. Ralph Knowlton, Mrs. Ben Barnett, Miss Rita Mossa, Messrs. Arthur Aiken, Merton Bailey, Rupert Clark, Keyworth George, Thayne Hamilton, Ian Heath, Hermann Ommerli, Raymond Schoolcraft and Ross Hamelin.

Board of Trustees: Howard Jewett, Jrs. George Jewett, Messrs. Ralph Knowlton, Ernest Bradley, Michael Lee, Albert Korman, Maurice Gardner, Brian Barnett and Francis Young.

Superintendent of Sunday School: Mrs. Rupert Clark.

Organist — Mr. David Bailey, Assistant Organist — Mrs. Merton Bailey, Choir Director — Mrs. Edith McLean.

For Bolton Centre:

Session: Mrs. Hilda Cousins, Messrs. Murray Cameron, George Davis, Kelley Davis.

Committee of Stewards: Mrs. Hilda Cousins, Secretary; Mrs. Eileen Barnes, Mrs. Dorothy Cameron, Mrs. Lorraine Cote, Mrs. Myrtle Davis, Mrs. Irene Gaylor, Mrs. Madeline Thomas, Mrs. Betty Needham, and Mr. Kathen Peasley as Cemetery Steward.

Board of Trustees: Messrs. James Barnes, Eugene Cote, Clifton Gaylor, Edgar Gaylor and Delmar Elston.

Organist: Mrs. L.B. Thomas.

For the Combined Charge:

Clerk of Session — Mr. Merton E. Bailey, Treasurer — Mrs. Rupert Fullerton.

Assistant Treasurer — Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, Recording Steward — Mrs. Merton Bailey.

Lay Representative to Presbytery — Mr. Ernest Bradley, alternate — Mr. Hermann Ommerli.

Auditor — Mr. Hermann Ommerli.

A Manse Committee was formed with representatives from each board.

Following the meetings, lunch was served by the Mansonville United Church Women.

As 1973 marks the 100th anniversary of the Mansonville Congregation, special emphasis was placed on our anniversary celebrations, but final plans were left to the committee appointed for this purpose.

Vestry Meeting

WEST BROME — The annual meeting of the Vestry and Ladies Guild met in the Basement of the Church of the Ascension on Saturday evening, January 20.

The Vestry meeting opened with prayer by Rev. W. Davidson. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Fred Edwards, Vestry clerk, moved the adoption of her minutes, seconded by Mrs. Wendell Scott.

Rev. Davidson thanked the church wardens, Ladies Guild, organist and Sunday school teachers and everyone who helped to make the year a success.

Rev. Davidson appointed Mr. Richard Cook as minister's warden, moved by Mrs. Mary McCutcheon and seconded by Mr. Richard Cook for People's Warden, Mr. Wendell Scott. Mr. Clayton Manuel gave the cemetery report, Rev. Davidson thanked him for all the work he had done in the cemetery. Rev. Davidson took the chair for the guild meeting, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Margaret Stewart, Secretary.

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Fred Edwards, showing a very successful year. The committee thanked all who helped in any way to make it a successful year. Mrs. Doris Clarkson, Mrs. Maurice Jolley were re-elected as committees.

Mrs. Wendell Scott was appointed to replace Mrs. Burton Wells as committee. Mrs. Margaret Stewart was re-elected as sec'y. Mrs. Fred Edwards was re-elected as treasurer. Mrs. Mary McCutcheon was re-elected as visiting the sick. A delicious tea was served at the close of the meeting.

KNOWLTON — The Annual Vestry Meeting of St. Paul's Church was held on Monday evening, Jan. 29, in the parish hall, preceded by a hot dish Supper at 6:30 p.m. The meeting was opened by the Rev. Ian Dodd at 7:30 p.m.

Regrets of non attendance were larger than usual this year owing to the prevalence of flu, and the extreme cold. All routine business matters were conducted.

Mrs. June Call, the retiring parish treasurer presented a very detailed and accurate financial statement, and has now turned her duties over to the new treasurer Mr. Lorne Carr-Harris.

The Rector announced that Mr. George Rogerson would remain for a second year as his Warden, and Mr. Roland Kimball was elected People's Warden, replacing retiring People's Warden Mr. Cyril Pearson.

Mr. Kimball also presented the new slate of sidesmen, who will this year be under the direction of the new chairman, Mr. Kenneth Battley.

Mr. Kingsley Organ, chairman of the Advisory Committee will remain in that capacity for a further term, he announced the names of the new members to this committee.

Delegates to the Synod are Mr. Stephen Morson and Mr. George Donald. Mr. Stephen Morson was elected vestry clerk for the 17th consecutive year.

Special mention was made of the many ill and shut-in members, and the greetings of the parish is extended to them.

The Rector thanked all those who had contributed to the life and work of the Church throughout the year and expressed his confidence in the year ahead.
