TRAIN WRECK IN NEW YORK TAKES LIVES OF 30

World News In Brief

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Four British Commonwealth countries have raised a £7,500,000 ($28,250,000) loan by passing the hat around to help the shaky, Red-beset Burmese government. This was reported today by diplomatic officials who identified the countries as Britain, India, Pakistan and Ceylon. They said the decision was taken during the January conference of Commonwealth foreign ministers in Ceylon.

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The United States has asked Britain to explain its plans to sell communist China a huge order of steel rails. The order is believed to run into tens of thousands of tons of railroad rails costing many millions of dollars. Diplomatic officials said the American request was not a complaint, merely for information.

New Delhi, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The chief of state of the remote Kingdom of Nepal arrived here yesterday to discuss a friendship-trade pact with India and talk over the troubled situation in communist-threatened Tibet. The Maharaja Mohun Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana, Prime Minister and commander of armed forces in the Himalayan Kingdom, received a 21-gun salute as he alighted from his special train.

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Premier Stalin, who was asked by dozens of Soviet districts to be their candidate for the supreme Soviet (Parliament) in the March 12 elections, decided last night to run in the Stalin district of Moscow, the Moscow radio said. Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov put his name on the ballot in the Molotov district of Moscow.

London, Feb. 18.—(Reuters)—The government-sponsored films council has recommended a cut from 40 to 30 per cent in the quota of first feature British films that must be shown on British screens. This decision is in line with the views of exhibitors and producers, but is opposed by the technicians trade union which fears increased unemployment.

Frankfurt, Feb. 18.—(Reuters)—The western allies have withdrawn their opposition to German firms accepting steel rail contracts placed with them by the Chinese communist government, high commission officials said last night.

Churchill Again Pleads For High Level East-West Talks

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, defying censure by his Labor opponents in Britain's election campaign, repeated his plea last night for high level talks between the west and Russia on atomic bomb control.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee promised to comment on the proposal in a political broadcast tonight.

The 75-year-old Tory leader reiterated his call for east-west atom control talks—outside the United Nations—in a final broadcast to the country allotted to his party over the BBC.

Attlee, having finished a 1,200-mile tour of the country in his drive for re-election, is to make his Labor party's final broadcast tonight from the Prime Minister's country home at Chequers, 35 miles northwest of London.

Attacked by Foreign Secretary Bevin for stepping into the international ring in his Edinburgh speech last Tuesday, Churchill defended himself.

"It is only by the agreement of the greatest powers," Churchill declared, "that security can be given to ordinary folk against the annihilating war with atomic or hydrogen bombs or bacteriological horrors."

More Than 100 Are Injured When Two Electric Trains Collide On Long Island Run

American Confesses To Spying

By ENDRE MARTON
Budapest, Feb. 18.—(AP)—American business man Robert A. Vogeler calmly told a Hungarian people's court today he was "guilty" of spying in Hungary for the United States army intelligence service.

Vogeler, who went to central Europe in 1945 as an assistant vice-president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, said he had been an American agent since 1942.

Asked by the court if he was a "trained specialist intelligence officer of the United States army," the 38-year-old business man said "yes."

His guilty plea opened the second day of the espionage trial in which he and six others—a Briton and five Hungarians—are accused of collecting military, economic, political and technical information for Britain and the U.S.

Vogeler's British assistant, Edgar Sanders, and two Hungarians pleaded guilty yesterday. Three other Hungarian defendants, including a Roman Catholic priest and a barmaid, have yet to be heard.

Vogeler, wearing a black suit, was called to the witness stand immediately after the court opened this morning and asked if he felt guilty, the traditional Hungarian court question to an accused person.

He nodded and said, "I do."

Then, in calm and collected tones, Vogeler said his chief task in Hungary was to collect military, economic, political and technical data and send them to the American army intelligence authorities in Vienna and the United States.

In Washington yesterday the state department charged that Hungary's communist government decided in advance to convict Vogeler. A formal statement also raised the question of whether Vogeler has been "subjected to coercion by intimidation, lack of food, drugging or other forms of mistreatment."

In Vienna, Vogeler's Belgium-born wife yesterday termed the charges "utterly ridiculous and fantastic." She asserted her husband was employed by the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company in La Grange, Ill., in 1942—when he said in his testimony he first became an American agent—and did not go to Europe until 1945.

Motorman Is Charged With Manslaughter As One Train Runs Through Signal

By DOUW FONDA and ART EVERETT
Rockville Centre, N.Y., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A crowded Long Island railroad train ran through a red light on a makeshift siding last night and sliced into an oncoming train, killing at least 30 persons.

More than 100 other persons were injured as the two electric trains—loaded with about 1,000 passengers—were sheared lengthwise in two.

Motorman Jacob Kiefer, 55, of Baldwin, N.Y., was arrested and charged with second-degree manslaughter by district attorney Frank Gulotta, who said:

"He ran past the signal."
Kiefer was injured—but not critically—and a police guard was placed at his home until he could be moved to Nassau county jail for arraignment.

It was metropolitan New Year's worst railroad tragedy.

Screaming victims were mashed beneath tons of twisted metal as the trains came together with a crash heard for half a mile.

Doctors hacked and sawed off arms and legs to free some of the injured.

"An eastbound electric passenger train ran by a stop signal," was the official explanation of the Long Island railroad for what was believed to be the worst accident in its 116 years.

It was the worst train wreck in the United States since 45 persons died April 25, 1946, at Naperville, Ill.

Thousands of awed but curious spectators flocked to the scene while the desperate cries of trapped victims still echoed on the night air.

An estimated 1,000 passengers were on the two trains when they collided at 10:38 p.m.

Rockville Centre, a community of about 20,000, is 20 miles east of Manhattan Island on the south shore of Long Island in Nassau county.

Every available doctor in the area was called to the scene. More than 30 responded and relayed the injured into nearly a score of ambulances for transfer to hospitals in and around Rockville Centre.

One doctor cut off a man's mangled arm to get him out of the debris.

Another sawed off both legs of a trapped Negro passenger.

Many of the victims screamed and prayed—in pain and fright.

Others lay dead, twisted like rag dolls, their bodies broken in the split-second impact of grinding steel.

"Kill me please kill me," one man pleaded to rescuers.

Another woman, tons of metal crushing her, screamed: "Get the weight off me."

A white-faced, heart-sick rescue worker looked up at reporters and gritted through clenched teeth: "We're not taking out bodies, we're taking out parts of bodies."

Floodlights played on the wreckage as rescue workers used acetylene torches, axes and crowbars to pry into the twisted coaches of the two electric trains.

Finally, railroad wreckers bulldozed their way in to jerk apart the lead coaches as the hunt for bodies could go on.

A little white stucco Negro church stood a few feet from the scene. First bodies recovered were laid on its lawn.

Then the pitiful row of corpses began to grow. So the interior of the church was converted into a morgue and the remains moved inside.

Normally, the Long Island operates a two-track line through Rockville Centre for its trains between New York and Babylon, L. I.

United States Coal Miners Are Cool To Lewis' Latest Order To Resume Work

Nat.-Liberals Are Opposed To Socialism

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The National Liberal party, fighting the Feb. 23 general election in alliance with the Conservatives, says in its manifesto that "our first immediate duty is to secure the defeat of socialism."

"This means open and honorable co-operation with Conservatives," the policy statement said.

The National Liberals are separate from the regular Liberal party, which is equally opposed to Labor and Conservatives. The manifesto's points include:

1. Social justice against the "common adversities of life" but limited "by what the national economy can fairly sustain."
2. Reduction of expenditure and lower income and purchase taxes.
3. Opposition to all further nationalization projects.
4. Opposition to a "closed shop" in labor relations.
5. Commodity markets should be opened so Britain "will again become the market place of the world."
6. For farmers and farm workers: "Secure markets, remunerative prices, good wages, and the best possible housing and other amenities, in return for effective production."
7. Bulk buying to end when current contracts have run their course.

Of trade and Commonwealth relations, the National Liberal manifesto says:

"It is our duty to work towards the widest flow of multilateral trade between all nations, without which Britain's economy can never prosper."

Tax Guide For Farmers Is Issued

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Making out income-tax returns, a headache for everyone but particularly for farmers and fishermen, may become easier as result of a guidance pamphlet issued by the revenue department.

The 13-page guide is directed to the estimated 400,000 farmers and fishermen with taxable incomes.

It is largely a repetition of last year's guide, with additions to cover changes concerning average incomes and depreciation.

The tax payer who has sent his returns in regularly may now average his income for the four years 1946-1949, inclusive, and pay taxes on the average of those four years, if that benefits him instead of paying on the year 1949.

Otherwise the farmer or fisherman taxpayer may wait until next year and if it is to his advantage he may use a five-year average.

Therefore the average clause will be applicable for five-year periods only and no one year may overlap into a second averaging.

Thus, if a farmer-fisherman uses the average privilege in 1949, his next average period will cover only the years 1950 to 1954, inclusive.

Last December the department yielded to complaints that farmers and fishermen could not handle the complicated diminishing balance

Public Not Admitted At Guay Trial

Quebec, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Court officials said yesterday that the public at large will not be admitted to the trial starting Feb. 23 of J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweler charged with the murder of his wife in a plane crash at Sault au Cochon, Que., last September.

The officials said instructions had been issued to guard all exits to the high-ceilinged, ornate, Quebec criminal assizes court here.

Besides the principals, witnesses and officials, the room will be crowded with journalists, law students, lawyers and others.

Twenty-three persons died in the crash of the DC-3 plane which exploded in mid-air Sept. 9. The crown alleges that Guay arranged to have a home-made bomb placed aboard the plane.

Mrs. Arthur Pitre, black-haired friend of Guay who is herself awaiting court judgment March 16 on a charge of attempted suicide, testified at Guay's preliminary hearing that she carried a parcel to the plane. The crown contends that the parcel contained the dynamite-loaded bomb. Mrs. Pitre testified that she thought the parcel contained a statue.

Court officials said Col. Leon Lambert, Quebec district provincial police director, would issue a statement to make known the seating arrangement in the court room which seats approximately 225 persons.

The court room is separated by two sections, divided by a brass rail. The rear section normally provides for the public and the front section for the witnesses, lawyers, newspaper men and other court officials. At the rear, an elevated balcony sits about 75 persons.

At the forthcoming trial, 32 seats in the public section have been reserved for the press from outside the city and 16 seats for law students. The remaining seats will be occupied by some 80 persons and 75 others will occupy a balcony at the rear of the room.

As for the opening day of the trial, Thursday, Feb. 23, only the slate of 246 jurors will be allowed in the court and it is believed there will be difficulty in getting all the men inside the court at the same time.

The four Quebec daily newspapers will hold their usual seats in the front section of the court with court officials.

The corridor of the floor on which the trial will take place will be barricaded by a solid row of constables as will also be all staircases leading to the corridor.

Court officials say that it is the first time in the history of Quebec that such elaborate preparations have been made in connection with a murder trial.

Jobless In Canada Jumped 52,000 In Three Weeks

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Unemployment in Canada increased by more than 52,000 during the three weeks ending February 2, the labor department said yesterday.

At that date there were 375,600—about 120,000 more than at the same time a year ago—seeking work throughout the national employment service, the department said in a periodic review of the employment situation.

That compared with approximately 323,000 jobless on January 12 and 261,000 on December 22.

Total unemployment amounted to about 7.4 per cent of the labor force but "the current unemployment situation is in a large measure temporary," the department said.

It attributed the unemployment to "unfavorable weather, particularly in British Columbia, and a more pronounced seasonal decline in construction, transportation and trade."

Major Fireworks Expected To Start Monday At Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Some of the major fireworks in the debate on the Speech from the Throne will be set off Monday during speeches of the leaders of Canada's four major political parties.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, will start formal debate on the Throne Speech read Thursday at the opening of the second session of the 21st Parliament. He will be followed by Prime Minister St. Laurent. Then will come M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader.

When they are through the field will be clear for practically any member. One of the early speakers is expected to be External Affairs Minister Pearson. He has promised an early report on his recent 27,000-mile round-the-world tour that took him to the Commonwealth conference in Ceylon and to trade and economic talks in several far eastern countries.

During the debate, members are allowed to discuss practically any subject and many of the opposition members are expected to deal with Canada's trade and employment problems.

Formalities opening free-swinging debate were completed yesterday. F. H. Larson (L.-Kin-dersley) and Armand Dumas (L.-Villeneuve) moved and seconded the traditional motion for adoption of an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The address thanks the Governor-General for having read the Speech.

At the House opening, Transport Minister Chevrier told questioners that the passenger service of the Canadian National Railways will be restored as soon as coal supplies can be obtained. He did not indicate when that might be.

The service was curtailed by 25 per cent last month to conserve coal supplies. Mr. Chevrier said a similar reduction was not imposed by the Canadian Pacific Railway because most of its main lines are in western Canada where coal is available.

The department said about 85 per cent of the jobless were receiving, or had applied for, unemployment insurance benefits, and a larger proportion of them than last year were eligible.

Extension of unemployment insurance was forecast in the speech from the throne, read at the opening of parliament Thursday.

Officials of the Canadian Congress of Labor and the Trades and Labor Congress have called on the government to begin a large-scale public works program to ease the employment situation.

The department's figure of 375,600 was the number of persons

IN HOLLYWOOD

by Erskine Johnson NEA Staff Correspondent

'DUMB FACE' HELPED SOCIALITE UP THE LADDER TO SUCCESS

Hollywood - Jan Sterling soared to success with a baby blonde face, more curves than a coastline, and a surprised stare.

The surprised stare in her pale blue eyes was part of a characterization but it might just as well have been caused by what happened to her since she ditched New York society for show business.

There was the time Garson Kanin picked her for the stage lead in "Born Yesterday" with the comment: "She has the dumbest face I've ever seen."

And there was all the recent Hollywood hullabaloo about her starring in the film version of "Born Yesterday." Jan got her first big stage break in the role of Billie Dwan, played it first in Chicago and later replaced Judy Holliday on Broadway.

She was screen-tested, optioned and rumored for the part. But at the last moment Judy was signed and Jan was left with egg on her face. It would have been a discouraging blow to a less sensible girl but Jan wasn't born yesterday.

She told me: "It really was Judy's part. She created it and I knew the studio wanted her. I always thought it was a long gamble as far as I was concerned. Frankly, if some other actress had been chosen I would have been terribly disappointed. But Judy deserved it."

Bright Prospects All the furor helped Jan's future.

Several months ago she appeared with Alan Ladd in "United States Mail." She played a gangster's easy-going gal with a high-pitched voice that sent delightful shivers spindling. Preview audiences whistled their approval.

When Columbia studio cast Judy in "Born Yesterday" Jan was again free. Several studios waved contracts. She signed with Paramount and was promptly given an important role in "Union Station" with William Holden.

It's her first long-term contract. She's delighted—"I knew something would happen."

There have been other freakish turning points in Jan's career.

She is the daughter of a New York socialite family, was educated at eastern private schools, in Paris, London and Rio de Janeiro.

including a session at Fay Compton's Studio of Dramatic Arts in England. At 14, Jan asked her mother for permission to go on the stage.

"Mother," she said, "gave her consent on condition that I'd return to school after a certain length of time if I hadn't landed a part. I'm sure she thought it was just a 'teen-age dream and I'd soon be home again. She was almost right."

Nick Of Time

Her time was running out. One day she was waiting for a friend in Shubert's Alley and ducked into a producer's reception room to get out of the rain. The producer came out of his private office, took one look at her and the next thing she knew she was signed up for her first role as young girl in the American production of the English play, "Bachelor Bait."

Jan discovered later that the producer had been attracted by her hair. It was the same color and done the same way as that of the girl who played the role in London.

"You might say my career was hanging by a hair," Jan said.

A succession of straight English ingenue roles followed.

Jan thought them stuffy but couldn't get out of the groove. Then Garson Kanin suggested her for the Chicago company of "Born Yesterday."

No one else could see her in the part. They argued with Kanin, pointing out Jan's quiet English ingenue, her social background, her proper past.

"I don't care," said Kanin. "She has the dumbest face I've ever seen."

"It wasn't exactly flattering," said said Jan, "but at the moment it was the nicest thing he could have said."

Jan was a sensation in "Born Yesterday" and Warner Brothers brought her to Hollywood for two films, "Johnny Belinda" and "The Cage."

Hollywood was synony-

but in the first film she was a poor New Englander and in the second she was a woman prisoner in a blue denim dress.

She hopes to play only strong character parts in the movies.

"Those ingenues," she says, "are just too stuffy."

AT THE PREMIER

Dick Powell, as a member of the French foreign legion, answers Marta Toren's call to arms in "Rogues' Regiment". The Universal-International adventure film deals with the tracking down in the Orient of a Nazi war criminal. Vincent Price, is also starred. Fernand Cyr Is Committed For Trial

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Feb. 18.—Fernand Cyr, 26, of Montreal, yesterday was committed for trial at the next assizes when he appeared before Judge Victor Chabot here for preliminary hearing on a charge of armed robbery.
Cyr, arrested by provincial police two weeks ago, is alleged to have taken part in the Jan. 29 hold-up of a Banque Provinciale du Canada branch at nearby St. Pie de Bagot which netted three bandits $2,500. The trio has forced manager Janvier Robert to open the vault at gunpoint.
Ronald Grise, 33, of Montreal, and Roland Ducloux, 28, of Granby, Que., were given 10-year penitentiary terms when they pleaded guilty to a similar charge Feb. 4, less than 12 hours after their arrest in Montreal.
Cyr pleaded guilty to 38 charges of fraud in Montreal two days ago and was remanded to next week for sentence.

Each year on Feb. 22, Guides and Brownies celebrate Thinking Day, which is the joint birthdays of Lord and Lady Baden Powell. Special ceremonies are held on this day and thought waves of good will are sent to Guides and Brownies all over the world.
In connection with Thinking Day, Mrs. Isabel Boright, Division Commissioner of the Girl Guides, has suggested that citizens of the Sherbrooke division "send goodwill thoughts to our Guides—these young women who are so capably teaching Guides and Brownies in the numerous Companies and Packs of this Division."
"Never can enough praise or encouragement be given to these Guides," Mrs. Boright said.
"Many of them are married, with husbands, children and homes to care for and all have jobs of one kind or another, yet they give cheerfully of their precious time and not only teach their Guides and Brownies well but make them like it. I do not think you can find a Guide or Brownie who doesn't love Guiding and look forward to meetings."
"Lord Baden-Powell left a message for his Scouts and Guides. I would like to quote it because I truly believe that our Guides are doing just that.
"I believe that God put us in this jolly world to be happy and enjoy life. Happiness doesn't come from being rich, nor merely from being successful in your career, nor by self-indulgence. One step towards happiness is to make yourself healthy and strong while you are a girl so that you can be useful and so can enjoy life when you are a woman."
"But the real way to get happiness is by giving out happiness to other people. Try and leave this world a little better than you found it and when your turn comes to die, you can die happy in feeling that at any rate you have not wasted your time but have done your best. "Be Prepared" in this way, to live happy and to die happy—stick to your Guide Promise always—even after you have ceased to be a Girl Guide—and God help you to do it."

No Goodbye For Mr. Chips

By BOB PERRY
No one said goodbye to Mr. Chips when he went away this week. No one even saw him go. No one wanted him to go. But his gone—leaving a big gap in the life of a sick child.
Caroline Ann Wright is a cute five-year-old with light brown hair and sad gray eyes. The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wright, 3-A Elgin avenue, Caroline is a sick little girl, in bed almost a month now with tuberculosis in her right kidney.
Mr. Chips is her puppy, a constant playmate in the days when Caroline ran through fields and frolicked in the snow, a faithful companion during the long, uncomfortable hours in her sickbed. Mr. Chips has light brown hair too, and "a tail that curls up."
But Caroline lost her puppy Wednesday. Mr. Chips disappeared at noon and hasn't turned up since.
Caroline misses "Chippy's" cold nose, the wiggly, black nose he used to rub against her cheek when he climbed onto her bed every morning. She even misses the smudges on her pillow that Mr. Chips would make with his wet, dirty feet after a noon hour outing.
The nurse climbs the stairs twice a day to 3-A Elgin avenue to give Caroline injections of streptomycin. No tears, no fuss—but it was an awful lot easier to take with "Chippy" standing by.
His big ears flopping, roly-poly "Chippy" bounced out of the house Wednesday for his lunch hour stroll. He hasn't come back. Only eight months old, Mr. Chips had never been farther away than a neighbor's yard where another dog lived.
Caroline's mom and dad have tried almost everything to find Mr. Chips. No one, not even the police chief, has a clue to his whereabouts. One little pup in a great big world is a tough object to locate.
Caroline Ann is looking forward to spring and summer. She wants to run and play again—with "Chippy"—amid green things under the warm sun, the sun that streams through the window of her small room and turns to gold the toys and other girlish things that lie about, unused.
Doctors can help the kidney, but they can't find Mr. Chips.
Caroline Ann, her head tousled from long contact with a pillow, blinks a little when she says: "If Chippy doesn't come back, I never want another doggy."
No tears, no fuss—just longing.

Q. W. I. Makes Progress With Handicrafts

"Twenty-five branches visited and a total of 612 completed articles made at handicraft classes," states Miss E. M. Birch, Handicraft Technician for the Quebec Women's Institutes, summing up her first year of work for that organization. This has taken her to all parts of the province, a total distance of 8,500 miles being covered during that time.
Instruction is given by Miss Birch in weaving, leather, felt, and shellcraft, with keen interest shown in all sections and many repeat visits requested. Members are becoming particularly enthusiastic about weaving. Several branches where she has visited, have had floor looms built, while others are buying some of their own, taking advantage of the grant offered by the Department of Agriculture to assist on the purchase price. Table looms are also being purchased and the pamphlet compiled by Miss Birch, "How to Thread up a Table Loom," has proved of benefit to these beginners.
Miss Birch has just returned from a week in Quebec City where she has taken a course in rug-making at L'Ecole des Artes Domestiques. She is now prepared to give instruction in this work in addition to the crafts previously offered by the Q.W.I.

Progress Is Reported In Teacher Training Course For S. S. Workers

The second in the series of five periods of the Teacher-Training course for Sunday-School workers being given under the auspices of the Sherbrooke Ministerial Association was held this week in Sangster Memorial Church. More than thirty teachers were present to continue their study of the course "The Bible and Christian Living." The session opened with a brief devotional service after which the study material was presented by Rev. T. D. F. Everett, Trinity Church, who dealt with the historical content and construction of the New Testament.
It was pointed out that the Gospels contain a record of the sayings and teachings of Jesus, some of them fragmentary, recorded by those who had known Jesus intimately and who wished to preserve the great thought and inspiration of the Master. In many cases the writers did not seem to be aware at all that they were writing a New Testament that would one day command more reverence than the Old. Some even thought that the world would not last very long and consequently a record of the beginnings of the Church did not seem very important to them. So in many cases the New Testament writings were to meet some temporary need and for the instruction of converts.
The first New Testament book was written by Paul at Corinth about 50 A.D. in the form of a letter known now as I Thessalonians. Between 52 and 55 A.D. he added to his first letters those of Corinthians, Romans, Ephesians, Colossians, Philomen, and Philipians. The epistle of James, written it is thought by a brother of Christ, appeared prior to 62 A.D. Following this the Gospels made their appearance in the order of Mark, Matthew and Luke. The Gospel of St. John came later, its date is not easy to determine. The same is true with the Revelation of St. John, and the letter to the Hebrews. The authorship of the latter epistle, while attributed to Paul, is not certain.

BIDAULT'S POSITION PRECARIOUS

Hemmed in on both sides between more or less hostile Conservatives and Socialists, Premier George Bidault's new French cabinet is not likely to enjoy a long tenure of office in the opinion of a Christian Science Monitor correspondent.

The 230-to-186 vote of confidence the cabinet received by the National Assembly upon its presentation may, with good reason, be interpreted as heralding an early defeat. For the 44-vote majority was due to the fact that no fewer than 196 deputies abstained from voting.

Among them were the Socialists whose ministers had left the government at the end of last week.

The reorganized government, therefore, has no majority in the Assembly. It is reasonable to suppose that, on the question of the second reading of the draft law for collective contracts, to take an example of legislation coming up shortly, the Socialists or the Conservatives may go from questionable neutrality to outright hostility.

At that moment the Bidault cabinet would fall, leaving the political future of France as an enormous question mark.

The Socialist abstention from voting on February 7 came as somewhat of a surprise, since Populaire, Socialist daily, had indicated that the withdrawal of Socialist ministers from the cabinet did not mean the end of Socialist support for M. Bidault.

But now it looks as if the Socialists were savoring their new liberty of action and will not be easily tempted back into governmental ranks.

A striking feature of the debate was the series of direct and indirect pleas to the Socialists to change their minds and support the government outright.

The Roman Catholic MRP and the Radical Socialists, left in a not too comfortable tete-a-tete, were strangely anxious to avoid voicing any resentment at the Socialist withdrawal, which had caused this awkward situation.

The compliments to former Socialist ministers and their achievements, the display of understanding of the Socialist position, were endlessly repeated. The atmosphere was cloying, and reminded one of "Come home, all is forgiven" advertisement.

But it was clear that the Socialists had no intention of giving in to these blandishments.

The general impression in the Assembly seems to be that the downfall of the Bidault government can only be a question of time; it could come next month, next week, or even today. And nobody can guess at what sort of cabinet might follow, now that Socialist action seemingly has ended the Third Force alliance against Communist and Gaullist extremes.

A TIGER BY THE TAIL

One of the things which featured the uneasy peace which followed the Second Great War was the race between Great Britain, the United States and Russia to secure the scientific brains of their defeated enemy, Germany. There was never any doubt as to the quality of the product for which they were competing. German scientific brains have never been underestimated, either for purposes of peace or war. According to one United States syndicate writer, his country was pretty successful in conscripting German scientists. The effect of this causes the New York World-Telegram to remark:

In fact, science-wise we've got a tiger by the tail. About 500 of our imported experts now know so many of our military secrets that we can't risk letting the scientists go home. They came voluntarily and, under their contracts, they're entitled to return.

But if they went back they'd be welcomed with open arms by the Russians and milked not only of their scientific knowledge but of the information they have picked up in this country.

As for their value, a War Department report in 1947 said they had put the United States 10 years ahead of schedule in some fields of research and had saved millions in research costs.

They have contributed greatly to developments in the fields of supersonic planes, jet engines, guided missiles, photography, meteorology, metallurgy and textiles. The plan was, if the cold war had not continued, to release them to American industry, under supervision of the Commerce Department.

It is quite to be expected that the scientific importations to the States are going to be retained, not allowed to repatriate themselves in Germany and above all, the United States will not, if possible at all to avoid, provide Russia with another Fuchs out of the 500 now at work in the States.

Canada is said to have the finest jet-plane fighter in the world. What contribution, if any, have imported scientists made to this development which has tremendous potentialities? Or did Canada go after German scientists at all?

DESTRUCTION OF SURPLUS FOOD

Ottawa Journal
The dumping of storage celery at Brantford and Toronto may cause controversy out of all proportion to the importance of the act and the real problem involved may be sidetracked. It is a problem all producers of perishable products face—what to do with the surplus over ordinary demands in the event of a bumper crop. Neither modern storage nor present marketing methods have answered that problem.

The idealist might suggest that such surpluses be made available to low-income families. But the machinery for doing this is involved and expensive. Producers don't like it because there is a tendency to depress all returns from a crop or products by this method. In the case of a highly specialized crop like celery, grown only in a few districts, the trouble of distribution under any plan would hardly be worth while.

And, as far as the grower is concerned, it would mean piling more costs on an already unprofitable venture to attempt to give the stuff away. Some figures cited in the Brantford celery case indicate how costs can pile up on perishable produce and the final selling price represent only fractional returns to the original grower. Storage charges from last Fall to the present on a case of celery are said to be 50 cents and containers cost 38 cents. That makes a total of 88 cents overhead, not counting trucking and other handling charges, while this type of celery is going begging today at 75 cents a case. The grower is out entirely as far as any returns on his labor or growing costs are concerned and to handle the produce further would only add to his losses.

Anyway nobody need feel very badly about this dumping. The report is that it has already been in storage too long and is spoiling. Nobody wants soggy celery.

But, in view of the known storage stocks of domestic celery, should U.S. imports have been allowed in as early as December 15? It is asserted that at that time the Ontario storage stocks were still good.

NEW FARMS TO THE NORTH

Winnipeg Tribune
Announcement that a survey is to be undertaken by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation branch of the federal Department of Agriculture with a view to reclamation of a large tract of mixed farming land near The Pas is excellent news for Northern Manitoba.

According to a provincial government official it is the hope to establish stabilized agriculture over 186,000 acres in the Pasquage-Carrot River triangle which lies between The Pas and the Saskatchewan border.

At present there are some 50 farms in the area. The land is rich, well-treed and, chiefly due to the fact that the rainfall there is much heavier than in the prairie regions of the province, there is fine pasturage. Periodic flooding, however, has made farming a hazardous occupation. On two or three occasions in the last 25 years practically the whole territory has been inundated. There have been one or two half-hearted attempts at flood control but the small dams erected are of little avail when the Saskatchewan River goes on the rampage and waters are backed up into the Pasquage and the Carrot rivers.

Engineers claim there would be little difficulty in providing effective flood control but admit such a project would be a fairly expensive one. The money would be well spent, however, if, as is estimated, the work would result in the establishment of 320 permanent farm homes in the area.

The reclamation scheme proposed would not only be of great benefit to The Pas but would be a godsend to the mining towns farther north. At present places like Flin Flon, Cranberry Portage, Snow Lake and Sheridon have difficulty in obtaining sufficient fresh dairy products and they still depend to large extent on canned goods. With the opening up of the new road it would be a simple matter to truck in fresh milk, butter and eggs daily for Flin Flon is only 100 miles north of The Pas.

SCIENCE MOVES TO AID HUSKIES

From The Reader's Digest
The Canadian government is now sending animal pathologists into the Arctic to study the needs of the Eskimo sled-dogs and combat epidemics of rabies and distemper, says Laurie York Erskine in the February Reader's Digest.

Erskine's article, condensed from National Home Monthly, points out that dogs are still man's sole means of overland transportation in the largest part of the two million square miles of North America that stretch from the 60th parallel to within 500 miles of the North Pole. The rich fur and mineral resources of the north could never have been developed without the Husky and today, doctors, missionaries and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police still depend almost entirely on dog-team transportation.

Huskies have, in fact, made it possible for white men and women to pioneer Arctic areas which 25 years ago were considered uninhabitable by any but Eskimos. They were among the first necessities flown in for emergency use to the chain of weather stations now jointly maintained by Canada and the United States. The devotion and self-sacrifice of the dogs is extraordinary. They can cover 25 miles a day at the rate of six or seven miles an hour. One team of 15 dogs traveled 1,300 miles in 85 days, the last 15 without food, to rescue stranded men.

Because the dogs are so valuable in opening the north to civilization, the Eskimos are now being taught how to care for the animals by the Mounties and the Hudson's Bay Company in cooperation with the federal government's Northwest Territories Administration, the author says.

Not Wanted — Idle Gossip

By REV B S MURRAY, M.A.

Would you say that one of the favorite pastimes of many people is talking about each other? Of persons we talk, then passing on to money, dress, amusements, return invariably to persons. We must, therefore, accept talk about each other as a permanent institution.

When our conversations descend to the low level of discrediting an absent person, affording the speaker an opportunity to appear witty, smart and superior, then that is unfortunate, unethical, un-Christian, unfair. You know if you give a dog a bad name, on goes the muzzle! If, however, we always imagine that that person is present, listening, and prepared to answer our attack, then conversations would attain a high standard. But perhaps this is impractical for far too many who accent idle gossip.

God's Word is an old institution. For it is the Bible has not a good word, warning us that "e should not go up and down as a talebearer among the people." I can understand why we should be interested in telling things about one another but that there should be a special attraction and fascination in telling mean, hurtful, and damaging things rather needs some explanation.

"By words thou shalt be justified and by words thou shalt be condemned," thunders the Word of God. Words are a power for good and evil, too. Words, you know, can blight a life, blotting the sun out of heaven for another. Words can break the human heart and crush it low. We had, therefore, better keep a watch over our words. I know people will talk, but I also know they often talk too much about things they should not. If we are not certain of the facts, then why tell the story? And if the story does not serve any good or useful purpose, then it had better remain untold. Much gossip is of uncertain origin and when started never lessens either in size or importance. On and on it goes, quoting as an authority, "They tell me," or "I heard that . . ." Whenever you hear that introduction, beware and bear, across the centuries, God thundering from Mount Sinai, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." (Ex. 20:16). To repeat untrue stories is the worst form of false witness. How much better were we to remain silent. Silence is golden when often speech is silver and certainly does not get us or anyone else in trouble.

THAT UNRULY MEMBER—THE TONGUE

I like that Japanese proverb: "The tongue is but three inches long yet it can kill a man six feet high." A sharp tongue which grows sharper with constant use is a dangerous weapon. Death and life are in the power of the tongue. (Prov. 18:21). St. James calls it an unruly, unmanageable member. But it can be controlled! And Christians must master the technique. Thinking people do not want those who, with their long tongues, delight in broadcasting foul whispering poisoning truth. It is so unwhorthy. So stupid. So chewing-the-cud like, isn't it?

Analyze Gossip and you will discover that it results from either malice or weakness. Now a Christian is committed to expel all malice, holding no hatred in his heart. He must love all his brethren in Christ. To do this, let us consecrate Lent 1950, which begins on Ash Wednesday, February 22nd. Here is adventure of a difficult challenging type! Surely Youth will respond to let their elders, too, discern of attaining the art of living together harmoniously. Speak a

WANTED: SPIRITUAL CONVERSATIONALISTS

History records that in the years' death awaited gossips. This was drastic but effective. A Gossip once bore an honored name for Gossip and Gospel are related. The best message in the world is the Gospel of Christ. "Go ye and preach the Gospel," said the Master of the Eleven. The Church of the Twentieth Century must obey the Divine Command and carry on! Make Lent, 1950, the starting point for a mighty crusade to "gossip for Christ and His Cause." Enlist in the Order of the Golden Apple with its Biblical motto: "A fit word is like apples of gold in baskets of silver." (Prov. 25:11). These noble souls are banded together, resolved to use speech that is reverent, clean, kind, helpful, cheering and encouraging, easing your brother's burden and making the world a better place.

Wanted: then are spiritual conversationalists, bearers of life bringing cheer, faith, courage and hope to others. "Out of good conversation" is shown "his works with meekness of wisdom." "Keep thy heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life." "One way we serve God is to strive in our daily conversation to produce "fruits of righteousness."

Well do I know that we all cannot be orators but we can be spiritual conversationalists, reaching the human heart through the medium of common everyday speech. This is a work in which the lady can share. Each one of us can speak words of comfort if we find sorrow; words of joy if we should come upon sickness or discouragement; words of kindness if we discover anger or impatience.

Remember, you will never be sorry for having said or written a good word about another. You are a letter of Christ! Listen to the Holy Spirit and keep on till the end of the day, telling of the old story that Jesus only saves (Acts 4:12). Such words not only save souls but they win for him who utters them a star in his heavenly crown.

"ECHOES OF HIS"

So as to prepare yourself to glorify God here and enjoy Him hereafter, won't you accept the invitation of the Church of God and spend the next forty days apart with Christ, thinking of the mystery of life? Of what your destiny is.

The Record Short Story

"I'll Be Seeing You"

By PAUL ELLERBE
The truth about Neill Alison was hard to come by, but I believe I have it. He was not a flirt, naive, vain or weak, but many people thought he was. He was the most attractive man I have known—to all kinds of people, especially women. I guess I knew him better than anyone else.

I wasn't forgetting that night. I was working late in my office, which is over Randall's Shoe Store on the main street of my native town, and his, when I heard the coughing, stuttering wheeze of Neill's car in the street below. Debonair and impeccable himself, he yet had no way with machinery. "Attorney at Law" sign—over my newly painted "Attorney at Law" sign—for we were both young then—I could see the sea and faintly hear its waves.

The smell it mingled with it now was the fragrance of old Dr. Blake's yellow jasmine vine next door, and in his catalpa tree a little owl was calling. And then there was that sound of Neill's car, and his quick accurate steps on the stairs and his pale face in the doorway, so good looking and mobile and self-revealing that it made most faces seem half dead.

"Gwendolyn," he said desperately, "wants to marry me and thinks she's going to. She thinks we are wildly in love."

The reasons why I didn't say, "If you don't like the idea, why don't you back out gracefully and forget it?" lay in the tragedy that was in his face and voice and the fact that he couldn't hurt women. Any woman. Even a little bit. I suppose it was something his mother had done to him while he was very young. He had adored her. I hadn't the slightest doubt of the seriousness of his plight.

"Are you in love?"
"Not, on either side, in the way we ought to be to pull it off. The tide is setting strongly between us and she's turned loose and gone with it. If I do too, we are both lost. In three years she'd realize it, and in five you'd be seeing us through the divorce courts."

"Even if there was a child?"
"Especially," he said miserably. "If there were a child. A child would bring the cleavage out like heat on invisible ink."

"Can't you just let the whole thing wither and die on the vine?"
"Not with her arms around my neck; and that's where she puts them the moment we're alone." He walked back and forth talking to himself through me. "The trouble is she is so single-hearted, so good and so sure we've just entered permanently into Paradise, hand in hand. She's never been in love before, or even thought she was. She's not in love with me now, she's just in love with love. I am completely Number One where she is concerned. I—God help me, I didn't know anybody nowadays ever got to her age without—Pete," he said, stopping and looking down at me, "I simply can't just bust her up for her—either by marrying her or seeming to jilt her. Q. E. D. then: I've got to go away. And stay away until some other man—Help me about that, will you? Take her around a bit. See that she meets people. Stays in circulation. So that before too long I can come back."

I nodded, studying him and the situation. Few things could have happened to me any tougher than losing Neill, but—
"Yeah," I said. "If you stay you—being you—will marry her. Since you're sure that wouldn't work—"
We looked at each other for a long, bleak moment. We were a good deal closer than any brothers I've ever known.

"Where will you go? How can you get far enough?"
"Alaska's far enough. I've got a cousin there. He's not doing very well there, but fortunately I'm not either, here, and, for the record, he's going to offer me in writing a job that's so good I simply can't afford not to take it. He sagged into the chair beside me, suddenly looking old and haggard and spent. "For God's sake, give me a drink." When he had downed it, "I'll miss you, Potted."

I nodded and poured him another when he thrust out the glass. He held it up, his face taut and twitching. "I'll be seeing you," he said. Well, I did what I could. I sedulously quipped Gwendolyn Stiles round the town, thrusting him and more men into her life whenever possible. And what happened? She weighed them in the balance against Neill Alison, found them wanting and talked about nothing but the man who had gone away. He had been pretty popular and was a good enough subject for conversation for a while, but not on and on and on under moon after moon when her vis-a-vis wanted to do a little love-making on his own account. Gwendolyn was one of the most attractive girls in town, but she talked herself over against the wall and rooted there.

"Come on home," I wrote at last. "She's being faithful to you in her fashion, and, my God, what a fashion! She's making a religion of it. She's married—even more finally than to any man—to her memory of you, and nothing can free her but the truth. Come on home and tell it and get on with the business of living your life and let her live here."

But he didn't come. A letter came instead, from his cousin. "Neill," the cousin wrote, "was killed in a landslide and his body buried under half a mountainside of rock that can never be removed; and he sent me a newspaper clipping about it and Neill's watch and some other things and life hitched itself into its routine and went bumping on again—with, for Gwendolyn and me, a couple of flat tires or something."

It hadn't hitched very far, though, when suddenly Gwendolyn married—Charlie Jamison—a nice young fellow. I thought, just never to her. I don't know how he ever got within the block system—for that's what it amounted to—of her grief, but after he had she told me she was wildly in love with him. They came from the kind of families that rated a lot of space in the paper and they got it.

It was a pretty important write-up, the way things turned out. Neill had a copy of it in his hand the day he rose from the dead. That's what it amounted to when I was concerned. Again I was at my desk—this time in the bright light of noon—when I heard an abused and protesting motor in the street below and thought of Neill as usual. His quick accurate steps on the stairs made me wish I could fall wildly in love and get married and maybe stop being reminded of him by chance footfalls. And then there was his face in the doorway which I'll just—and I sat there and stared and thought I was seeing things . . .

"Amnesia," he said, "and all that. Not very original, but it worked. A man really was buried under all those rocks—a man that no one knew—my cousin told the paper it was me, and I dropped down to Vancouver Island for a while under an assumed name until the paper here (which my cousin takes) announced Gwen's marriage. Our story now, you know, is that my memory's just come back. I told you I'd be seeing you!"

THE END.

McKENNY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenny, America's Card Authority

POINTS TOTAL UP WHEN HANDS FIT
The one great difference between tournament and rubber bridge is this: In tournament bridge if you take an unusual chance that most players will not think of and it goes wrong you get a bad score; while in rubber bridge you take your chances against the odds. That is, you figure what you can make against what you might lose.

The other night I was watching Charles Whitebrook of New York, who became life master number 109 last year, play in a rubber bridge game. His partner was Howard Schenken. After today's hand was played, Whitebrook explained, "I knew when Schenken doubled he had a very good hand. Even if things broke badly I stood to lose only a few hundred points, but if our hands happened to fit, we were going to be as good as the people."

Schenken rarely comments about any bid or play his partners make, but when he put down the North cards in today's hand, he shrugged his shoulders a little. Whitebrook got a shrug of the shoulders from his opponents when he played the hand.

The ace of spades held the first trick and when West continued with a spade, Whitebrook trumped it with the three of diamonds. The five of diamonds was led and when West played low he finessed the ten-spot. East won the trick with the ace. The jack of hearts was re-

LETTER FROM BRITAIN—

Making Maps From The Air

By A. K. ASTBURY

Bells silent for ten years rang out again recently in the centre of the City of London. But they rang out with a difference, these bells of the Royal Exchange, for two new tunes have been added to the carillon—"The Maple Leaf for Ever," and "Waltzing Matilda."

Perhaps you have already heard that these two tunes were chosen for the new carillon out of respect and affection for Canada and Australia. And yet if you know something of the traditional importance (and respect and affection, too) which also attach to the Royal Exchange, you may get a better idea of what it means to have "The Maple Leaf for Ever" pealing out across the City.

Now, however, important the Royal Exchange may be in history I must begin by telling you something about it which sooner or later most schoolchildren over here are told—that it's got a great golden grasshopper stuck on the top of it. (I well remember how disappointed I was the first time I went there, at the end of the war, and found the grasshopper wasn't stuck on the top, as he is now. But I went inside the Exchange and sat down on a sort of wooden box and started talking to one of the attendants. And when I asked him where the grasshopper was he smiled and said, "You're sitting on it." So I never see that grasshopper without thinking, "I've sat on you!")

Sixteen Tunes

The Royal Exchange, which looks rather like a Greek temple, hasn't been used as an exchange for years. It stands between the Bank of England and the Mansion House (the residence of the Lord Mayor of London) in the very heart of the City of London. It's the third to stand on that site. The first, built by Sir Thomas Gresham (whose crest was a grasshopper) was burnt down in 1564. The second was burnt down in 1838. The present one was opened by Queen Victoria in 1844. And during all these years ever since the 16th century, there have been fifteen in the Royal Exchange.

The new carillon plays 16 tunes at regular periods throughout the day, including the carol "God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen," "Rule Britannia" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." English, Scottish, Irish and Welsh melodies are included and among them the Scottish song "There's nae luck about the house"—there's no luck about the house!

The Royal Exchange chimed were playing when the old Exchange went up in flames in 1838. The Royal Exchange chimed were a cherished feature of life in the City of London before the war, and I feel sure that many passers-by have found life lighter the sudden and unexpected sound of bells they once knew so well. There is little point in bringing a pleasant and time-honored tradition to an end merely for the sake of change.

That, too, is the attitude of our railway authorities here, who have just announced that they have no intention of scrapping locomotive names. The travelling public (particularly small boys) and even the railwaymen themselves prefer engines to have names rather than numbers. And with the chime of 68 passenger express engines, built or buildings, British Railways are but carrying on the tradition of the early railway pioneers.

tionally associated with the locomotive works where they were built or the territory to be worked. The new locomotives built at North-east and Darlington, in north-east England, work into or within Scotland, and 19 of them are to be named after Scottish cities or their patron saints, or after characters in the novels of Sir Walter Scott. "Auld Reekie" (Old Smokey, the nickname for Edinburgh), "Saint Mungo," the patron saint of Glasgow and "Bonnie Dundee," third largest city of Scotland, are among the city names. "Meg Merrilies," "Marrion" and "Guy Mannerling" are among the Scot characters. There are even to be 13 locomotives named after winners of those famous horse-races the Derby, the St. Leger, and the Doncaster Cup. I fear their names ring no bells in me—save Bois Roussel, who won the Derby in 1938—so I will pass them by.

Chain Off Hostels

I am a train addict and believe with Robert Louis Stevenson, that it is a far better thing to travel hopefully than to arrive. And yet arrive one must, if only to start travelling hopefully again. And where better to arrive, one summer evening, than (for example) in the new Youth Hostel at Port Eynon, on the South Wales coast? If there is any lovelier coast in the world than that of the Gower peninsula, where Port Eynon star I do not know it. The hostel, one of ten new ones to be opened this year, is in a converted lifeboat house on the beach. At high tide the hostel's "doorstep," the ramp down which the lifeboat used to be launched, is awash, and the walls are sandbagged against storm damage.

Two other new hostels are to be opened in Wales this year, both in the far south-western county of Pembrokeshire, as part of a chain of hostels for the use of those taking walking or cycling tours along this lovely coast. And by the end of the summer the Youth Hostels Association should have 300 hostels all over Britain available to walkers, cyclists and climbers at a charge of 1s.6d. a night. It's a grand way of spending a holiday, tramping from one hostel to another. Company and food are good, and one could complain that the charge for accommodation is excessive!

Not Wanted—Idle

and what God's will is, for the world will occupy your thinking. Think then of God and ourselves and what we ought to be and do for one another. Surely one of the things for effective living is speaking as a Christian. In the steps of Christ we walk even along the rocky road which leads to the wilderness where we meditate on those forty days the Master spent there so that we may, too, conquer in our hour of temptation. If this ends in the darkness of the Cross, it is that we may share in the triumph of Easter!

The keys? Penitence and faith, these two can bring that communion with the Master which fills the depths of our life with a quietness and confidence which is our strength.

Forward, then, shall we march like a mighty army with each soldier therein immunizing himself against suspicion, hate and distrust and with love our only weapon to gladden the heart of Our Father who art in heaven and thereby lure others by our words and the quality of our life to take the highway which leads to the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

That is the only road a Christian should take. On that road he must be a Christian, even to the tip of his tongue.

Finally, make sure that your conversation with friends and neighbors is on a high level. Ask, "Are we in the habit of speaking graciously of people who are not present? In times of stress, are people astonished at the gracious words that proceed from our mouths? In all walks of life, do we practise the gospel of the kindly tongue? Such graciousness of speech should characterize all who profess to be followers of the gracious Christ. For Christ's sake, may our words be echoes of His! Amen.

Musically Speaking

By MARGARET DOHERTY

Ezio Pinza, idol of the Metropolitan Opera, who turned to musical comedy and the extremely successful "South Pacific" has cast his eye on even greener fields. His three year movie contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer calls for five pictures. Could it be that he has permanently turned his back on the Met?

Replacing Brian Doherty's production of "Arsenic and Old Lace at His Majesty's in Montreal next week is the prize winning musical "Brigadoon." We are told that it is a smashing hit and therefore well worth attending.

Sylvio Lacharite's farewell concert with the Symphony was one of the best given by that group since its foundation and certainly appeared to be the audience's favorite. Jean-Pierre Mason was a splendid narrator and Gerald Desmarais, who is well known in Montreal's musical circles, was very well received. In fact several patrons have since mentioned that it would be enjoyable to hear him in recital. Perhaps something can be done about that.

Young local singers Jean Scarth and Etienne Paquin have prepared an interesting program for the 24th of this month, when they appear in concert at the Haskell Opera House, under the auspices of the Rotary Club of the Boundary.

Something to look forward to: The Teltchenk brothers, duo-pianists, in April, and Jan Peerce in May.

Another familiar figure who will not be seen at the Met next season is the Grant Dame, Lauritz Melchior. Apparently the tenor and the new general manager of the Opera House, Rudolph Bing, do not see eye to eye. Kirsten Flagstad's return, however, after several years' absence should be heralded with joy by lovers of Wagner.

Sparked by Edgar Stracchino, some of the boys put on a bit of a social "do" last week-end and I heard did very well with it. The object was to raise some cash to replace the cloth on the billiard table, which has had some pretty hard wear in the past few years. I don't know whether they reached their objective, but from all I've heard everybody had a very good time. Which is the way it should be.

IRITIS, SERIOUS EYE DISEASE, SHOULD BE DIAGNOSED AT ONCE

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

Iritis is a disease of the eyes. Its principal symptoms consist of pain, watering of the eyes, excessive sensitivity to bright light and if long continued, interference with vision. The pain is likely to be severe and worse at night. Touching or pressing the eyeball is excruciatingly painful.

In acute iritis the symptoms tend to be worse than the chronic variety, but recovery usually comes more rapidly—perhaps in a few weeks. When proper treatment is begun early the iritis can clear up completely, but complications and the possibility of chronic inflammation are unfortunate possibilities.

Several different conditions can cause either the acute or chronic type of iritis. Iritis is sometimes associated with rheumatism, diabetes, tuberculosis, syphilis, or injury. It is most important that the cause of the iritis be discovered whenever possible. However, unfortunately in some cases no cause whatever can be found.

The disease or condition producing the inflammation of the iris must be treated as well as the eye itself. The search for infection or other disease elsewhere in the body must be carried out painstakingly and thoroughly.

Protein Therapy
The eye itself requires highly skilled treatment, including the use of drugs, heat applied locally, rest and protection from light. Sometimes a method called foreign protein therapy has been found helpful in iritis. This consists in injecting some protein substance (boiled milk as an example) which produces a reaction of the body, usually with fever. This seems to stimulate resistance and often has a favorable effect on the iritis.

From this discussion it can be seen that iritis is a serious condition requiring expert study and care.

When anything goes wrong with the eyes, diagnosis and treatment should not be delayed too long, as the risk of permanent damage to these vital organs is great. Among the sources of eye trouble iritis ranks high.

For Bad Winter Cough, Mix This Syrup Yourself

If you want a splendid cough medicine, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet the way it takes hold of distressing coughs, giving quick relief, is astonishing.

Any drugstore can supply you with a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) It's no trouble at all and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps to clear the air passages. This three-fold action explains why it relieves an annoying cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a very reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Pinex is Quick Acting!

But will you? We'll all agree that when you're raising a family, it's the hardest thing in the world to save money.

Most of us promise ourselves that next month, or next year things will be different—but the months and years go by and we never seem to be able to get started.

A simple method which by all its attractive features encourages you to make small, but regular contributions, has answered the same problem in the lives of thousands of others.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—The leaders of Canada's two major labor congresses last night sharply criticized the government for "failure" to meet the country's growing unemployment problem.

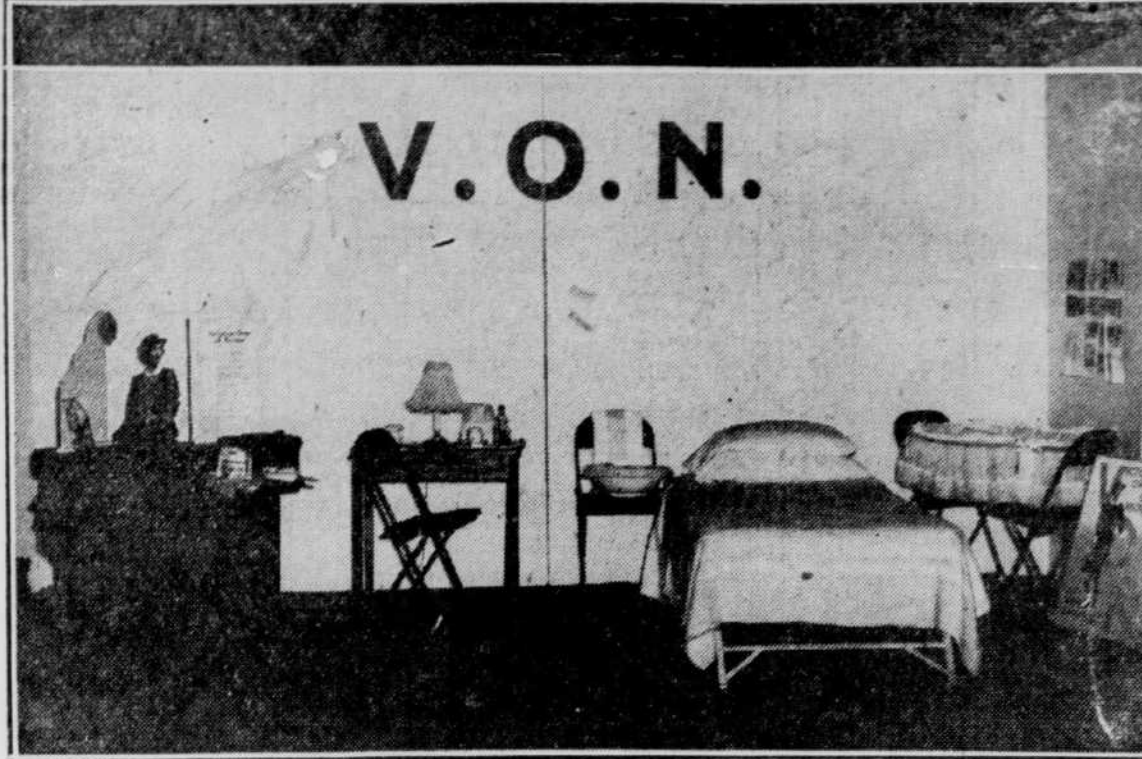

Both Percy Bengough, head of the 460,000-member Trades and Labor Congress, and A. R. Mosher, his counterpart in the 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, said they were "very disappointed" at the failure of the government to institute public works programs to lessen unemployment.

Commenting on a report by the Labor department that the number of people seeking work through the national employment service at Feb. 2 was 375,600—an increase of more than 52,000 in the last three weeks—the two labor leaders warned that the peak in unemployment still has not been reached.

Mr. Bengough said unemployment is "unduly high" in Canada and fast action by the government to halt the trend towards even greater unemployment and hardships "is urgently required."

In an apparent reference to additional assistance forecasts for unemployment in the Speech from the Throne read at the opening of parliament, Mr. Bengough said it was not enough to tell job seekers that "by and by you are going to get more insurance."

Increased industrial output which would result in increased earnings.

The Tories had no intention of cutting down on Britain's huge social service program, set up by Atlee's government, he said. However, he added, the program should be paid for mostly by industry.

"If the socialists go on nationalizing one great industry after another," Churchill said, "the revenue from taxation will shrink until the country can no longer pay, and social services in consequence will collapse."

Bevin said in a speech last night that the Labor government would be able to stand on its own feet when Marshall Plan aid ends in 1952.

"We don't want to ask America for more gifts in 1952," Bevin declared. "We don't want to talk about more loans."

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer and chief engineer of Britain's controlled economic program, also paid tribute to the "generosity of our American friends" in a speech at Glasgow.

When election day rolls around next Thursday there will be one district which will not be voting. Voting will have to be postponed until about March 3 in the Moss Side district of industrial Manchester because of the death last night of the Conservative candidate, Edward Lascelles Fleming, who was seeking re-election.

Fleming's Labor and Liberal opponents were notified to quit their campaigning. By law this party must be given a chance to make a new nomination.

Vogel testified that the Standard Electric Works, Budapest subsidiary of the I. T. & T. had close connections with the U. S. army general staff, and that high-ranking army officers had been appointed executives in the company.

"Standard was under military control," he told the court. "Questioned about his alleged superiors in the espionage ring, Vogel mentioned among others a Brig-Gen. Howard and a Col. Foney of the Vienna headquarters of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Corps."

Vogel also said he had been assigned to his headquarters "to evaluate various technical data collected by the C.I.C."

He testified he received top secret data about military equipment, and production from Hungarian agents.

He said he received information from Zoltan Rado, a section chief of the Hungarian ministry of heavy industry. Rado, one of the defendants pleaded guilty yesterday at the opening of the trial. Imre Geiger, Hungarian director of the Standard Works, also pleaded guilty.

The court recessed after Vogel had testified for more than two hours.

The American business man answered all questions readily and showed no signs of weariness or emotion.

benefits at this session. However, he believed the unemployment situation would be relieved if there was a reversal of the wartime trend which saw many people leave rural areas to work in large centres.

"There is talk of unemployment in the larger centres but I find farmers having a hard time to get good men to do farm work," said Mr. Larson.

Mr. Larson suggested changes in income tax procedure; stressed the need for national unity; touched on defence problems; mentioned currency and trade difficulties, and appealed to labor leaders to act as statesmen.

group of Canadian boys will do just as good a job of making friends for Canada in Great Britain." Selection is being carried out by boys' work officials from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Among characteristics the selectors have looked for are enthusiasm for group activities and the ability to absorb what they see. "When they return, we hope the boys will tell their friends at home about their experiences," Mr. Robertson said.

Mr. Weston has announced that another 50 British boys will come to Canada this summer. The Y.M.C.A. is now working with the Weston Organization on a program for the tour. The boys will arrive in Canada early in August and spend a month seeing points of interest and significance. Like last year's group, they will spend some time at a northwoods camp with Canadian boys.

The tours fulfill a promise Mr. Weston made when he gave up his Macclesfield seat in the British House of Commons to return to his biscuit, bread and confectionery interests. At the time he told his constituents that as soon as travel conditions permitted, he would sponsor tours to Canada; each year for ten-year-old British boys, to foster closer relationships between the two countries. Twenty-five of the 50 who were in last year's group came from the Macclesfield constituency, the remainder representing all parts of Scotland, England, Wales and Northern Ireland. This year, the Macclesfield representation will be 15.

The program was expanded to include visits to Great Britain for Canadian boys when last summer's Weston Canadian Tour for British Boys proved the program's possibilities for developing closer ties between the two countries.

Mgr. Charbonneau Stand Approved

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—Archbishop Ildebrando Antonutti, Apostolic delegate to Canada, said in a statement last night that he has "always approved and encouraged the very charitable attitude of the former Archbishop of Montreal, Most Rev. Joseph Charbonneau, towards all victims of war, strikes and social injustice."

The statement, issued over the signature of his secretary, Rev. W. A. Carey, marked the first time Archbishop Antonutti has broken his silence concerning the resignation of Archbishop Charbonneau.

The resignation was announced by the Vatican Feb. 11. The announcement said Pope Pius had accepted the resignation for "health reasons" and appointed Archbishop Charbonneau to the titular post of Archbishop of Bosphorus.

The brief statement last night said that Archbishop Antonutti wished "to deny categorically... that he ever asked Archbishop Charbonneau to draw back from his pro-labor stand, since he has, on the contrary, always approved and encouraged the very charitable attitude of Archbishop Charbonneau towards all victims of war, of strikes and of social injustice."

Father Carey said the statement had been issued because the Apostolic delegate's name had been "ill-advisedly" linked with comment on the resignation.

The westbound train, picking up speed as it left the Rockville Centre station, struck the right front of the other train.

Passengers were wedged between seats or ground into the splintered steel wreckage.

One of the first eye-witness accounts came from 21-year-old Paul Back, a college student going home from Brooklyn. Said Back: "There was a tremendous shock. My head hit the wall and the lights went out in all the cars."

"I got up and walked toward the exit door and I heard screams for help. So I started to investigate the westbound train."

"There were a lot of people lying around seriously cut and hurt — broken bones and so forth. 'One man was screaming 'kill me, please kill me.' He thought his back was broken."

"The train was full but there were no standees, which might have made it worse."

Witnesses said the first cars of both trains telescoped, one coming to rest above the other at a 45-degree angle.

Workmen ripped down signal houses, rail-side shacks and a small garage to give rescue personnel elbow room along the right of way.

It was the Long Island's second fatal crash in less than two months. One train rammed the rear of another in Sunnyside, Queens, in New York City December 22.

No passengers were aboard but two crew members were killed and six were injured.

On Feb. 16, 1947, a Long Island train hit an open switch and went off the rails near Kings Park, Long Island. More than 40 persons were injured.

The Long Island is bankrupt and is being operated by court-appointed trustees.

It operates out of Pennsylvania Station in New York City, carrying hundreds of thousands of commuters to and from Long Island each day.

Police estimated that as many as 30,000 spectators ringed the ghastly heap of wreckage at one time.

The crowd ebbed and flowed through the night and into the dawn.

Many were anxious residents of Rockville Centre and nearby Long Island villages, trembling, shaken and in dread doubt about the fate of loved ones aboard the ill-fated trains.

Theatres were just emptying along this city's main street—Sunrise Highway—when the crash occurred.

A tremendous traffic jam resulted as motorists headed their cars toward the scene only a block away.

The wreckage did not burn. But torches bit into metal and real to visit her daughter, Mrs. W. D. Schofield who is a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital.

The Miss Lorraine Langevin has returned home from the Sweet'sburg Hospital.

Increased industrial output which would result in increased earnings.

The Tories had no intention of cutting down on Britain's huge social service program, set up by Atlee's government, he said. However, he added, the program should be paid for mostly by industry.

"If the socialists go on nationalizing one great industry after another," Churchill said, "the revenue from taxation will shrink until the country can no longer pay, and social services in consequence will collapse."

Bevin said in a speech last night that the Labor government would be able to stand on its own feet when Marshall Plan aid ends in 1952.

"We don't want to ask America for more gifts in 1952," Bevin declared. "We don't want to talk about more loans."

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer and chief engineer of Britain's controlled economic program, also paid tribute to the "generosity of our American friends" in a speech at Glasgow.

When election day rolls around next Thursday there will be one district which will not be voting. Voting will have to be postponed until about March 3 in the Moss Side district of industrial Manchester because of the death last night of the Conservative candidate, Edward Lascelles Fleming, who was seeking re-election.

Fleming's Labor and Liberal opponents were notified to quit their campaigning. By law this party must be given a chance to make a new nomination.

Vogel testified that the Standard Electric Works, Budapest subsidiary of the I. T. & T. had close connections with the U. S. army general staff, and that high-ranking army officers had been appointed executives in the company.

"Standard was under military control," he told the court. "Questioned about his alleged superiors in the espionage ring, Vogel mentioned among others a Brig-Gen. Howard and a Col. Foney of the Vienna headquarters of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Corps."

Vogel also said he had been assigned to his headquarters "to evaluate various technical data collected by the C.I.C."

He testified he received top secret data about military equipment, and production from Hungarian agents.

He said he received information from Zoltan Rado, a section chief of the Hungarian ministry of heavy industry. Rado, one of the defendants pleaded guilty yesterday at the opening of the trial. Imre Geiger, Hungarian director of the Standard Works, also pleaded guilty.

The court recessed after Vogel had testified for more than two hours.

International Night Observed By B. & P. W. Club

"International Night," held all over the world in February, by Members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was celebrated by the Sherbrooke Club at "Rockcliffe," Quebec Street, last Monday night.

The members met at 6:30 for a buffet supper after which Miss Yvette Campbell called the meeting to order. The recitation of the Mary Stewart Collect was followed by the welcoming of Miss Margaret Batterley, president of the B. and P. W. Club, and Mrs. Alfred Aldrich, both of Stanstead; and Miss Hilda Tootsuis and Mrs. Herta Lambert, Estonians residing in Sherbrooke.

Miss Campbell then read the message directed to all clubs by Miss Hilda Hesson, chairman of the International Relations Committee, whose chief aim in all countries is to improve the status of business and professional women, and to bring together in this common aim, women of all nations, kindreds and tongues.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. H. A. Welch who led the group in the singing of a hymn. Mrs. F. H. Woodard, of Lennoxville, United Church, opened the session with prayer.

Miss Campbell extended a cordial invitation to attend the Prayer Circle of every month at the homes of members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. A. Welch, at 5 Allen Avenue, on March 6. A resume of the work carried on by the Circle was then given.

Mrs. Fred Welch gave a reading of the poem, "Remember Jesus Christ" by A. R. Young.

Regret was expressed that Miss Margaret MacKinnon, of Montreal, was unable to be present due to injuries received when she was struck by a car several days before.

The message of the evening was given by Mrs. Norman Buchanan, of Sherbrooke. After the reading of Matthew 11:25-30, Mrs. Buchanan gave a touching message using as her text: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and whereupon the corresponding secretary was instructed to write a letter of congratulation to the newest club in the province. A letter was also read from the president of the B. and P. Club of Poole, England, asking to send a message for their International Night, being held March 2. Requested by the president, Miss Marjorie Moir consented to convey the message.

The public speaking contest, sponsored annually by the B. and P. W. Club, was brought up and preliminary arrangements discussed.

Following the adjournment of the business session, Miss Campbell presented Miss Ina Cobleigh, who acted as chairman for the program which opened with the singing of the National Anthem, followed by "My Country 'Tis of Thee," other international songs, "In the Garden," and the Sherbrooke Club Song, under the direction of Miss Leslie Fales. Mrs. Enid Reid accompanied at the piano.

Miss Cobleigh, with a map and pictures of the Peace Gardens, explained many clubs across Canada are using this year as their theme for International Night. The Peace Gardens being established along the International Border between Manitoba and North Dakota. Two thousand two hundred acres of land, in Canada and in the United States, filled with trees and gardens, quiet pathways and beauty spots, typify to the world the meaning of a peaceful border line.

"Gardens instead of guns on International Borders" could well be a rallying cry for the Peace forces of the world. Miss Cobleigh added that the National Federation makes a yearly contribution to the work of the Peace Gardens, and signifies in so doing that they believe in deeds as well as words.

Miss Cobleigh then conducted a forum when a concise review of the background, ideals and future program of the gardens, were described in sequence by the following members: Alice Milford, Yvette Campbush, Leslie Fales, Lavinia Farnsworth, Margaret Haight, Ethel Taylor, Leta Seymour and Florine Mullins.

At the conclusion of this part of the program, Miss Leslie Fales drew the attention of the audience to the fact that the design accepted for the plot which was bought and is maintained by the Canadian Federation of B. and P. W. Clubs, had been submitted by Miss Cobleigh. Loud applause followed.

All rose to the singing of the Estonian National Anthem sung by Miss Hilda Tootsuis and Mrs. Herta Lambert, in national costume. Their beautiful voices blended perfectly in love songs of their country, sung in duet.

Miss Campbell thanked the artists and all who had taken part in the making possible of one of the most outstanding "International Nights," to have been enjoyed by the club.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the event.

RULES

Opposite each Jumbled Word, list your solution. For example, the first Jumbled Word, when the letters are re-arranged properly, will form the word, SHERBROOKE. Don't be discouraged if you fail to solve every name. Perhaps no entrant will get them all correct. Failure to enter your list, even if it is incomplete may cost you a cash prize that you would have otherwise won.

Each of the Jumbled Words will, when the letters are re-arranged in their proper sequence, form the name of a town or village which may be found on any complete map of the Dominion of Canada.

The contest is open to any resident of the Eastern Townships except (a. Employees of the Sherbrooke Daily Record or their immediate families, b. Record correspondents or carriers.) No mail subscriptions will be accepted for delivery within the City of Sherbrooke. Subscribers receiving home delivery in Sherbrooke or any town within the Eastern Townships may compete by sending in mail subscriptions for delivery outside of Sherbrooke or by sending a remittance of $3.25 (covering 13 weeks home delivery at regular delivery rates), the carrier being allowed his usual credit on all subscriptions paid in advance. Not more than 1 year's advance payment will be accepted on any one subscription.

In the event of more than one person having the most words unjumbled correctly, and tied with the amount of money for new subscriptions, The Record will run one tie-breaker. Only those tied in the first contest will be permitted to solve the second Contest. No subscriptions will be necessary on the second puzzle.

Prizes will be awarded according to the list with the largest number of correct names, and the amount of subscription money sent in; new subscriptions earning twice as much as renewal. That is if you sent in $3.25 for a 6 months renewal subscription and won first prize you would receive $50.00. If you sent in one new subscription for six months you would receive $100.00. In the event of a tie with the same amount of correct names then the contestant sending in the most money for new subscriptions will be declared the winner as money for new subscriptions counts twice as much as money sent in for renewals. It's up to you.

At least $3.25 must be sent in with each entry. That would pay a six months mail subscription to The Record.

No Prizes are offered for lists without a subscription enclosed.

Participants, by sending in an answer, agree to accept the decision of the judges as final. No controversy can possibly be entered into with any entrant.

ALL ANSWERS AND MONEY MUST be sent direct to The Record and addressed "Jumbled Word Contest", Sherbrooke Daily Record, Sherbrooke, Que.

Different solutions may be sent in by any contestant but each must be accompanied by at least a six-months new or renewal order to the Sherbrooke Daily Record.
