

Keen Interest Shown In Royal Canadian Dragoons Camped Overnight at Aubrey

Over Seventy Horses and Eighty Men of All Ranks Comprised Troop Which Was Commanded by Major G. F. Berteau

Early Wednesday morning, July 14th, inhabitants of Aubrey and surrounding locality were all on the lookout for the arrival of the Royal Canadian Dragoons of St. John's, who spent the past day and night at Sherrington, en route for Camp Pelee, Ontario, for annual training camp, were expected to arrive in Aubrey early in the forenoon.

About 8 a.m. two reconnaissance cars arrived followed at 10:00 a.m. by the Dragoons headed by Major Berteau. They were met at Aubrey by Mr. Donald E. Black, M.P., and escorted to their camping grounds on Mr. Black's property opposite his house and commanding a splendid view of the two main roads.

Camp was quickly formed, horses watered, blanketed, fed and tethered. In the meantime the travel kitchen and mechanical transport had arrived and preparations for dinner were soon under way. The day in polishing saddles, grooming their mounts, attending to the shoeing of those horses that needed it and other necessary work about the grounds.

At no time in Aubrey history has there been such a scene of bustle and activities. Cars and visitors from far and near kept a constant stream of traffic until about 9 P.M.

About 6:30 p.m. a game of softball was played on the Riverfield diamond between the soldiers and local players resulting in a win for the latter. During the game one of the local players, Merle Smith, was struck by a ball and rendered unconscious for a short time. After the ball game, the Dragoons in large number attended the open air dance given by the Aubrey Curlers on the lawn of M. A. Bennie, which they greatly enjoyed.

Luckily, the night was fine or the sleeping in the open field would not have been so pleasant. However, soldiers have to take the good with the bad when in action, so while the pickets kept watch the soldiers slept in comfort.

Thursday morning the camp was again a scene of early activity when the troop prepared to leave for Valleyfield, their next stop. About 8 a.m. the Dragoons headed by their officers left Aubrey, travelling through Howick via North Georgetown and thus to Valleyfield. These were followed by the reconnaissance car, armored car, one of the two at present in Canada, travel kitchen and mechanical transport so that by noon Aubrey had settled down to its usual quietude.

The troops are following the side-roads and, although camping in the area, (Continued on page 5)

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher Royally Entertained At Paris, France

A telegram received from Canadian Press in the office Tuesday will probably interest many of our readers. It concerns the Hon. Martin B. Fisher, Provincial Treasurer and Mrs. Fisher, who are at present in Europe. Mr. Fisher is on government business and represented the Province at the Paris Exposition. The telegram is reproduced below:

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher royally entertained in Paris, Saturday, guests of Royal Bank for dinner at Exposition in German Building. Monday guests of Paris Chamber of Commerce at luncheon. Tuesday luncheon guests of Hon. W. Philippe Roy. Friday evening dinner guests of the Government of France at Exposition, leaving Saturday for Italy, Germany, Netherlands, Denmark.

Robbers Were Active Over Past Week-end

Forty-seven dollars in nickels, dimes and quarters and a small cheque were stolen from Guy Lefebvre's restaurant, Huntingdon, sometime Friday night or during the early hours of Saturday morning.

The restaurant had been locked as usual, but Guy had forgotten to put the money away as was usually done.

The intruders gained entrance to the store by breaking a basement window and made their way into the restaurant by forcing a floor panel.

By breaking the panel, the goods on the counter fell to the floor, also a scale, which was badly battered.

The stolen money had been left in a small case on the street. The robbers took all of this silver money but did not touch any other papers left in the same case or touch the register in which there was $8.00.

According to Mr. Lefebvre, the culprits were well acquainted with the surroundings and knew that all the change was left in the suitcase.

Mounties And Troopers Make Merchandise Seizure At Taillon's Store, Dundee

Food Stuffs and Other Articles to Value of Ninety Dollars Taken as Five Mounties and Two Troopers Conduct Raid

GOODS ARE HELD PENDING AN INVESTIGATION

Goods and merchandise to the value of about $90.00 were secured in a raid on the J. A. Taillon store at Dundee which was conducted by both Canadian Mounted Police and American troopers on Saturday afternoon.

The seized articles included radios, oleomargarine, canned goods and other merchandise and were taken to Huntingdon by the Mounted Police where they will be kept until an investigation has been held.

Mr. Taillon, it is rumoured, will make a representation to the Federal government to have the matter about the situation of his store straightened out once and for all. He has made requests to the Federal government to have the question settled before but nothing has ever been done about it.

Mr. Taillon's store is situated directly on the line between the United States and Canada and the border line cuts his building almost in half.

American troopers and Canadian Police who made the seizure charged Taillon with selling some Canadian goods on the American side of the store and some American merchandise on the Canadian side.

He may probably be charged with selling oleomargarine, which is contraband merchandise in Canada, on his Canadian counters.

Some of the articles were so close to the border line that police were in a quandary about what to do with them. A coffee grinder, for instance, which was a true American citizen by birth was found to have bearings made in Canada.

Police felt that a line should be drawn somewhere in this matter, however, so a cord was placed in the store reaching from one end to the other and marking the border between Canada and the United States.

It is probably the only spot where the 3000 mile border stretch, the border line is marked by a piece of cord.

Police Escapes Death in Chase At Hemmingford

An accident which might have been fatal, occurred a few miles from Hemmingford on Monday evening when two R.C.M.P.'s took the ditch while following a suspected bootlegger's car.

The officers were trailing the car closely when they lost sight of the road, in a cloud of dust and took the ditch. Breaking about 200 feet of picket fence, as the car rocketed along the ditch, the officers luckily escaped death. A picket came through the front of the car and one of the officers barely had time to duck as the picket passed through the top of the vehicle missing him by only a few inches.

The two policemen, Y. Girard and Dugal were slightly injured, but the car was badly damaged.

Rinks Benefit From August Celebration

Many people have been inquiring what the money raised during the "Old Home Week" celebration is going to be used for and what the general meaning behind the whole idea is.

Apart from providing an attraction to lure former residents of Huntingdon back to spend a few days here among old friends, the celebration is being staged to raise money for three community enterprises. These are the Skating Rink, the Curling Rink and the Bowling Green.

All the money secured will be used to pay off the mortgage debts of these institutions, and payment will be made on a percentage basis according to the debt of each.

What has Huntingdon achieved in the way of providing healthful recreation for young and old? In the years 1880 to 1890 we had a toboggan slide and covered rink were operating which furnished enjoyment for many of our parents. These were allowed to deteriorate, and from 1895 to 1907 the young people depended upon the skating rink for enjoyment, while curling was suspended. In 1905 and 1906, the hockey team, with Jack Marshall as leader, created an enthusiasm which coupled with a longing for curling led to the creation of a covered skating and curling rink.

The curling rink was found unsatisfactory, therefore a new one was erected on the opposite side of the street. In due time this curling rink had to be replaced and today we have the commodious rink which was built in 1928.

Huntingdon Girls Now Share League Leadership, Defeated Ormstown Team in First Game

Show Fielding and Hitting Strength to Win 22-18 — Weakened in Seventh to Allow Ten Runs to Cross Plate

The first Girls' District league game was played in Huntingdon on Tuesday night at the Fair grounds before a very large crowd when the Huntingdon girls defeated Ormstown opponents by a 22-18 score in a softball game after 7 innings of play.

Huntingdon girls took an early lead which they were successful in keeping, although the visitors came from far behind in the first half of the seventh inning to score ten runs and make things look bad for the locals. However, the third put-out was affected and the final score was 22-18.

The blue and white girls of Huntingdon scored four runs in the first, eight in the last half of the second frame and six in the third inning to take a safe lead which they were successful in keeping.

Some very sensational stops were made by pitcher Alice Rolfe, and combined with Eleanor Miller, they retired more than ten runners by themselves. Grace Rennie's running catch in the third inning is also worthy of mention. Miss D. Hebert's pitching for Ormstown showed to advantage while her team mates scored her very well in the field but unfortunately they got off to a bad start.

The best hitters for Ormstown were S. Cartier, A. Rember, B. McCartney and G. Lindsay, while the best sluggers for Huntingdon included G. and P. Lalonde, E. Miller, H. McDermid and A. Rolfe.

Dundee girls defeated Leach girls 19-14 at Dundee, so Huntingdon girls are tied with Dundee for first place in the league.

The second league game will be played on Friday evening when Dundee will visit Ormstown and the two Huntingdon teams meet. The Leach girls and the Huntingdon girls will clash in what promises to be the best game of the season, at the Fair grounds.

Following is the line-up for Tuesday's game in Huntingdon: Ormstown—Alice English, c; Grace Lindsay, 1.f.; Bernice McCartney, 2.b; Sybil Cartier, 3.b; Lucella McMillan, s.s.; A. Rember, r.f.; Beta Smith, c.f.; Angel Cartier, 3.b; Dolores Hebert, p.

Huntingdon—Germaine Lalonde, c; Grace Rennie, r.f.; Pauline Lalonde, c.f.; Eleanor Miller, 1.b.; Carmen Biddick, 1.f.; Eleanor Hunter, 3.b.; Lonora Rember, r.f.; Helen McDermid, s.s.; Alice Rolfe, p.

Local Runner's Distance Mark Still Standing

C. E. Petch, Hemmingford, Made Many Records At College

Mr. C. E. Petch of Hemmingford, who has been engaged to help run off the field events at the Huntingdon "Old Home Week" celebration with Mr. Douglas McGerrige, was a well-known long distance runner during his college days.

While attending Toronto Varsity, Mr. Petch set up long distance records that still stand there to this day. Marathon races were a much more popular form of entertainment in the days and there was usually one held at every celebration and festive occasion. As a runner of note Mr. Petch was much in demand and ran many races with many of the best runners in Canada and the United States.

In one memorable marathon, Tom Loughbo, one of the greatest of all time runner and former world champion long distance runner came up with a last minute spurt to snatch victory from Mr. Petch just as he was near the end of the race. It was a 26-mile course and Mr. Petch had things all to himself until the 23-mile mark when Loughbo, with a brilliant burst of speed, came up to pass him and go on to win.

Mr. Clark W. Winter, Zanesville, Ohio, son of the late George Winter, who was speaker at the American Olympic Games at the Old Home Week celebration along with Mayor Ralph Cardinal of Malone. He will speak on Thursday afternoon, August 5th.

Mr. Winter, when a young lad, purchased a Holstein cow from the late Neil Sangster for $200. This was considered an almost outrageous price for the times. The purchase proved successful for Mr. Winter and from that day on he has been buying the best of Holstein-Friesian cattle, never neglecting to keep careful records of their achievements.

Breeding championship Holsteins has more or less become a habit with Mr. Winter, for he numbered among his many winning cows is Winter's Valley View Doris Creamelle which tested the highest in the country for butter fat production. In 1933 she produced 15,013 lbs. milk. The butter fat test was 563 lbs.

Mr. Winter is a very fluent conversationalist and has had experience at public speaking and campaigning in Zanesville, Ohio. It is not often we hear of dairy farmers devoting much time to election campaigning and preparing speeches for municipal elections, but such demands for his services have been made of Mr. Winter on several occasions.

It is a distinct pleasure for the "Old Home Week" committee to be able to announce that the good will greetings of the United States will be brought to Huntingdon by a successful dairy farmer who had his start in the Chateaugay Valley. Mr. Winter will speak for approximately 15 minutes, and his remarks will be based on the subject of "Contentment."

Church Land Improvement Contemplated

Anglican Congregation Want Cemetery Property Cleared Up

The congregation of St. John's Anglican Church, Huntingdon, have made attempts to have their church property improved but at the present time the little cemetery about the church has become unsightly.

Now Rev. Mr. Hatcher is endeavouring to have it placed in a state of respectability. Officials of the congregation are right behind their pastor in this work and as we go to press we are informed by Rev. Hatcher that he has received three promises of official assistance from people outside his congregation who wish to see the work done in an appropriate manner.

Rev. Hatcher is endeavouring to have the ground dug up, leveled and seeded before the "Old Home Week" celebration and various monuments will be straightened.

In this cemetery many of the pioneers of this district are at rest and it is to be hoped many will come forward with a contribution towards this worthy cause.

Dewittville W.M.S. Held Good Meeting

One New Member Welcomed; Meeting Was Held At Todd Home

The usual monthly meeting of the Eastern division of the Women's Missionary Society of the Huntingdon United Church, met at the home of Mrs. S. Todd on Thursday afternoon, July 15. The meeting opened by singing "The Morning Light is Breaking." Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., was present and conducted the devotional exercises. The minutes and roll call were then listened to, there being 12 members present and four guests. We had the pleasure of receiving one new member, Mrs. Geo. McCracken, whom we were pleased to welcome to our group. The meeting closed by singing "Blessed Assurance" followed by the Mizpah Collection $2.65. One quilt was quilted during the work period and considerable other sewing done. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by her daughter.

Mayor Cardinal

Mounties Affect Seizure 4 Cars

Local mounted police have made several arrests during the past few days. Monday they arrested Gus Pillion of Champlain, near Ste. Philippe, driving a 1937 Ford V-8 car on a suspicion of bootlegging. Pillion's car was found empty, however. Previously they arrested 3 cars and drivers at the same place. The drivers were Lawrence Creodon, Eugene Lafontaine and Crow Lafontaine. Creodon put up a lively chase but his car overturned going 60 miles an hour and toppled into the river, cutting off his escape. Sergeant Raymond was in command, accompanied by Constables Dale and Lindsay. Fines totalling $3,000 were paid by the men who were arrested.

Better Relationship Between Church and State Necessary

Gathered at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Moore at Howick, the Frontier Ministerial Association held their midsummer meeting on Tuesday, July 13. In addition to members of the association there were also present as visitors, Miss Woodside of Kensington, Rev. and Mrs. Watson of Georgetown, and Rev. Donald Flint, of Riverfield.

The President, Rev. J. H. Woodside conducted the devotional period, assisted by others of the members. The business of the day was chiefly of the usual routine and when it had been disposed of Rev. A. B. Moore was introduced as the essayist of the day.

Mr. Moore speaking on "Church Community and State" said that present developments have made it essential that time and thought be devoted to the relationship between Church and State, and various church councils and international Christian bodies have given and are giving considerable thought to the matter.

Much of the history of the last nineteen centuries might be written in terms of the tension between Church and State. Sometimes one has dominated, at other times the other. At no time has there been a complete balance in their relationships.

The State has to do with the present time and the life of this world. In contrast the Church, while in the world, is not bound by time nor by a limited allegiance. It acknowledges an ultimate loyalty to God.

An amazing expansion has taken place in the function of the State. This is largely for good, but often makes for the inclusion of ideas antagonistic to the Church and her task. Under Fascism, National Socialism and Communism ideas in direct contradiction to the ideals for which the Church stands are being inculcated in many places.

The Week at Ottawa

Discussion Centres About New Conservative Leader Upon Bennett's Decision to Meet Caucus of Party Leaders

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The report that Mr. Bennett will meet a caucus of federal members early next month to discuss the leadership of the party has revived discussion on the subjects of his successor. Ottawa does not yet know officially if Mr. Bennett plans to retire. Nor has it any official inkling as to his plans when he does. The trend of opinion swings, however, toward the impression that he will announce his decision to retire, when the federal members are assembled here in August. Mr. Bennett before a successor is chosen it will be necessary to hold a national convention, but a house-leader might be named in the meantime.

The Nova Scotia elections had some bearing on the matter, according to some commentators. Had the election in August, the revival of Conservatism, Mr. Bennett might have been willing to give his tireless energy for a while longer to the cause. Gordon Harrington, had he won in the Maritimes, would have succeeded to the leadership of Mr. Bennett's and, because of his zeal for social reform, might have risen to be the next Conservative leader. But the tide was against the Conservatives there, Colonel Harrington went down to personal defeat, and all those dreams were rudely shattered.

It is really extraordinary how lacking the Conservative party is at the moment in outstanding leaders who could step into Mr. Bennett's shoes tomorrow, if need be. There are some very able men, but several of them are getting on, and others haven't got on far enough. They are too old or too young.

Former Hemmingford Native Honoured For Service Record

July 1st was the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of an agency contract between James A. Stratton, a native of Hemmingford, and the Connecticut General Insurance Co. At a luncheon held in the private dining room of Hotel Champlain, Bluff Point, Plattsburgh, Mr. Stratton was guest of honour and was presented with a golden jubilee diamond-studded pin inscribed with the company's tribute to their veteran employee, now in his eighty-eighth year. The pin was dispatched from Hartford by aeroplane. Mr. Stratton also received a huge basket of flowers ordered by the head office. He is one of the two 50-year agents of the company.

Thos. H. Weldon, editor of the Plattsburgh Daily Press, and a long-time friend of our friend, remarks in an editorial that "at a time when willing and useful flesh and blood is being thrown into the scrap-heap it is a pleasure to note the manner in which an organization of nation-wide importance and influence appreciates and honours long years of faithful service."

Community Co-operation Exemplified

COMMUNITY co-operation in Huntingdon and throughout the Chateaugay Valley is becoming more evident than was the case twelve years ago when Huntingdon celebrated its centenary. For the "Old Home Week" celebration to be held on August 4, 5 and 6 we find people coming forward, offering their services and willing to co-operate.

Our citizens doubtless realize that this celebration is being staged for the dual purpose of inducing folks to return to their old home community and also to raise funds to reduce or wipe away the indebtedness of the Skating Rink, Curling Rink and Bowling Green.

When Mr. Montie informed the "Old Home Week" committee that the Huntingdon Choral society would present an entertainment for Friday night, August 6th, it displayed true citizenship and co-operation. Fast on top of this contribution Mr. Hutchings assured the committee a fine home talent play would be presented on the first two nights of the celebration. Five members of the cast of this play "Funny Phunny" come from Athelstan village which is a worthwhile gesture of good-will on the part of people from that section. Athelstan friends have always been good friends of movements sponsored in Huntingdon, and their interest has always been greatly appreciated.

Good-will towards the celebration is found everywhere in Huntingdon, and even further afield we find others ready to co-operate. Mayor Cardinal of Malone is arranging for the Malone Municipal Band to be here in full strength on August 4th. Mayor Cardinal is also sending the Malone "All Star" baseball to Huntingdon for an exhibition game on August 5th. The Malone Company I Drum Corps, through their genial manager, Fred Lafave, assure us that they wish to come to Huntingdon in appreciation of the help Huntingdon gave in celebrations held across the line. They also are coming here gratis. Malone folks are proving once again true friends to Huntingdon.

The girls of the Dundee Soft Ball Team and the Valleyfield Boy Scout Bugle Corps are also coming to assist in staging our celebration. It is most gratifying to note that these young folks are having the good-will spirit inculcated into their make-up early in life. Such a spirit exemplified by these youthful organizations indicates that they will be broad-minded citizens as adults, when they take their place in the business life of their respective communities.

"There is little use of having friends if you do not make use of them," has long been a favorite expression and so we have contacted our friends of the National Hockey League "All Star" Baseball team which is coming to Huntingdon on Friday, August 6th to play baseball.

These organizations, as well as others, are making real contributions to our celebration and all that is expected from Huntingdon folks is to see to it that an enjoyable visit is provided them. We therefore suggest that one and all show a hand of welcome and good fellowship to strangers here during the "Old Home Week" celebration.

Generosity by Contribution

ELSEWHERE in this issue of the Gleaner will be found an account of what people of Huntingdon of yesteryears and today have done for the sake of providing places of amusement for young and old folks. The Skating Rink and the Curling Rink have been the two big sources of expenditure, yet if these rinks are not maintained they will fall into ruin and then no places of suitable recreation for old and young would be available.

An appeal is being made to subscribe money towards reducing the debt on these properties, and it is for this reason mainly that the "Old Home Week" celebration is being staged. If the debts, which aggregate around $500 can be wiped off, then the fees and memberships to these clubs will be reduced to a point where it would be within reach of many more to enjoy membership in them. Skating rink officials would like nothing better than to be able to say:

"We have no more debt and from now on we will allow all boys and girls to go to the skating rink any afternoon in the winter season without charge."

The skating rink should have another section re-roofed, which will cost perhaps $1,000. With this work completed the rink would be in a fairly commendable state of repair.

If you feel you would like to aid these genuine town assets by subscribing for a few shares of stock, do not hesitate to do so. You will gain lasting recognition from the youth and sincere appreciation from those who have carried the burden of these enterprises for so many years, alone.

God's Acre

TWO weeks from today and the Huntingdon "Old Home Week" celebration will be in progress. During this interval visitors will be found flocking to Huntingdon for holidays, and during this time they will be visiting not only people but places. A great many folks who have not visited Huntingdon frequently, will probably visit the family plot in the local cemeteries.

Though the time is brief we advise families to pay a visit to the cemetery immediately. Maybe the monument needs plumbing up, or perhaps some settling has occurred and grading required. Do not trust to the fact that you may have contributed to the "perpetuity fund" and that the lot will be carefully cared for. Go and see to this family duty yourself.

Great crowds will view Huntingdon Protestant Cemetery on August 4th, for on that date the parade is to be drawn up on Cemetery Street. The unevenness of what was at one time a beautiful iron fence is little short of disgraceful negligence. If the Cemetery Board is unable to pay for any other cemetery work this year it ought at least to have this fence made plumb before August. On the whole the cemetery has been well cared for.

Chain Stores Campaigning Quebec

INSTITUTIONAL advertising is coming more and more to the fore, some of which we feel can be directly traced to the "Price Spreads Investigation" which was conducted at Ottawa.

At that time many merchandisers were carefully checked over, not the least of which were the chain stores, departmental stores, coal companies and milk dealers. The fundamentals that lead up to these investigations were alike, and now we find one group of companies after another desiring to acquaint the public in an informative manner about the workings of their trade.

Only a few months ago the Borden Milk Company opened up a campaign so that patrons and customers would know much more about Borden's and the products they distribute. The chain stores are now starting a campaign to do exactly the same thing. They are to be commended for their action, for by acquainting the public with the truth they will gain their confidence and better business for themselves will result.

Chain stores are undoubtedly stiff competition to independent merchants; but if the latter rest too much on past laurels, disaster awaits. Should chain stores gain the supremacy in trade, then they in turn might promote an agitation against independent stores that demand a greater respect than they abide by. It is a great thing to operate your business on a fair scale, so that it can be inquired into and read as an open book. Knowing much about your own business and then giving that information to the public is worthwhile.

The Gleaner has never been a staunch supporter of chain stores, but we feel it is right to give honor where honor is due, and in this respect we feel the chain store group is to be commended upon the promotion of an institutional campaign at this time.

Increased School Municipality

SINCE the last meeting of the Huntingdon Academy School Board, a number of influential citizens have been talking about the added valuation of property to this school municipality. Again the desire arises to have a new school erected in Huntingdon. A few years ago this newspaper waged many an editorial hoping that a new school building would be erected; and long before this date.

In the interval of years many people who were almost averse to a new school, or averse to building at that time, because we were in a depression; now quite well realize that the new building is desirable. Epidemics prevail each winter in Huntingdon and the duration of these is undoubtedly largely due to the cramped and inadequate school buildings.

In this same issue appears a letter written by Mr. A. K. Cameron. The tenor of this letter infers that Huntingdon ought to have a new school and that now should be a good time to seek support for such. We agree with this sentiment, and we believe several of our School Commissioners agree. The only hold-up on making progress towards obtaining a new school, is we fear, that the commissioners at the helm fear facing the heavy task that would naturally fall upon their shoulders. It is to be hoped some of the school commissioners will arise to the occasion and do their level best towards having a new school erected in Huntingdon ready for occupancy in September 1938. The commissioners as well as many others would like to see a new school a reality. We hope that at the time of the Academy re-union on August 6th some progress or a plan towards this objective will be announced.

Campaign Against Flies

FLIES=DISEASE. That is a true equation. Wherever you have flies you have disease. It's just like a balance on a scale. When you get more flies on one side you get more disease on the other—the balance is always there.

This is the time of year when the flies are most numerous. Housewives wail and complain that "the flies are here" again but perhaps overlook the cause of their visit. They look on the flies as mere nuisances when they are really health menaces.

Flies love dirt. They revel in garbage pails, stacks of rotting food and other decaying filth. Housewives wouldn't think of going out to the yard after they had prepared a meal, gathering particles of garbage, dirt and other waste material and sprinkling it over the food they had set on the table. Yet they let the flies do it for them.

One of the best ways to attract flies is to keep your yard and house dirty. Throw the garbage out in the yard and leave the food in the house uncovered. Then if you really want to get into the fly business in a big way, leave the doors and windows open. Or have them ill fitting and full of cracks. The flies will appreciate that little touch and flock to your place in swarms, and your home will look like the scene of a world's fly convention.

The most effective method of controlling the leathome house fly is by eliminating or reducing breeding places by properly treating or disposing of manure and garbage. All organic refuse such as household garbage should be stored in paper and put in fly proof cans until it can be burned. The only satisfactory way of disposing of garbage during the fly season is by incineration.

After you have eliminated the cause of fly attraction around the house—uncovered food, garbage, etc., you have gone a long way to rid yourself of the pest entirely. But there will still be a few hanging around.

These can be destroyed by swatters, sticky fly paper, poisoned pads and poisoned bait which can be easily and cheaply made at home by mixing one teaspoonful of formalin in a cupful of sweetened milk or water.

Get rid of flies this year. Remember they are not only a nuisance but a serious health menace as well. An ounce of prevention now may be worth a pound of cure later on.

Tourist Influx to Spend $325,000,000

CANADA will play host this year to the greatest volume of tourists in its history. An all-time high record was predicted today by D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

"On very conservative figures," said Mr. Dolan, "tourists will spend at least $325,000,000 in Canada this year and probably more. This will exceed the peak of $309,000,000 in 1929."

In 1936 tourists spent $255,000,000, an increase of about $50,000,000 from 1935. On the basis of our figures it appears this year will be about $75,000,000 better than 1936."

Not only will the volume of tourists increase. Mr. Dolan said, but they will spend more. Economic conditions have improved and the character of the inquiries showed a greater proportion than last year were from people with plenty of money.

POST-WEDDING CEREMONY

Married secretly two years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cotton, Chattanooga, Tenn., decided to combine an announcement with a ceremony which their relatives and friends could enjoy, having been denied that privilege when they were married. With Rev. J. Fred Johnson, who was to be in charge of the service, they worked out a new type of public ceremony to be held in their church which in all respects except the wording of the ritual was a wedding ceremony. "We are gathered together for the announcement of the wedding of this man and this woman," the minister announced at the beginning of the rites. Katherine," he continued, "have you taken this man to be your wedded husband? Have you loved, honored and obeyed him?" "I have," responded the "bride." "Frank, have you taken this woman as your lawful wedded wife?" the minister next asked the "bridegroom." "Have you bestowed upon her your worldly goods?" "I have," was Mr. Cotton's reply. The minister added his blessing and the ceremony was over.

TWINS HATE IT

In New York a plastic surgeon, Dr. James Stotter, was consulted by two young ladies relative to having their noses, lips and chin rebuilt. The surgeon realized the girls were twins and asked the reason for their contemplated plastic surgery. The girls, who gave their names as Betty and Mary Yartner, of Chicago, confessed they were tired of looking exactly alike and all the embarrassing situations this got them into, and wanted to have their looks changed to give them more individuality.

WISTARIA ACRE

On the estate of Mrs. W. J. Lawless, Sierra Madre, Calif., is a Chinese wistaria planted in 1893 whose clustered lavender flowers cover an entire acre. A percola, 50 by 50 feet, supports the giant vine, which has a great attraction for sightseers. Mrs. Lawless estimates half a million persons have visited her home to see it. Wistaria is named in honor of Caspar Wistaria, American physician and educator, who succeeded Thomas Jefferson as president of the American Philosophical society in 1813.

SINFUL SALUTE

Six children of Mr. and Mrs. August Ludke, expelled from Ocean Hill, Md., consolidated rural school because they refused to salute the United States flag. Their parents belonged to a religious sect known as "Jehovah's Witnesses" declare such a salute is a violation of the commandment "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." The county board of education approved the expulsion and the case was taken into court. A verdict in the circuit court of Upper Marlboro, Md., upheld the action of the board. The parents refuse to give in and will continue teaching their children at home.

SUN STARTS FIRES

The National Fire Protection association warns against giving sunlight a chance to kindle blazing, pointing out the many ways the sun rays can start fires. Intensified focusing of sunlight through imperfections of windows or skylight glasses may destroy a building. Bottles, water jugs or goldfish bowls are unsafe if placed in the sun. No doubt, many fires of mysterious origin could be explained this way.

GUEST LEFT OUT

On her recent visit to Smith college, Northampton, Mass., Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, made such an impression on one of the professors he decided to "throw a party" for her. He invited most of the faculty members, and other notable persons of the community and was on hand to greet them as they began to arrive. One of the guests asked the professor if Miss Perkins had shown up yet. The professor threw up his hands in dismay. He had forgotten to invite her and she was back in Washington.

GLORY WANE

Before the resign of John L. Sullivan, Jake Kilrain was to world's heavyweight prize fighter. Sullivan won the championship from Kilrain in a memorable battle near New Orleans in 1889, when the two men fought with bare knuckles for 75 rounds. Boxing gloves were unknown then. Kilrain, now 78, is living in Quincy Point near Boston, Mass. He recently received a night watchman in a Fall River shipyard in where he was receiving the municipal sum of $20 a week. Once he made thousands of dollars in a single fight.

PHONOGRAPH LIONS

All of British South Africa has been scandalized by the revelation that during coronation day greetings broadcast from all British dominions, the roar of the wild lions was nothing wilder than a phonograph record reproducing the roar of a tame lion in the Pretoria zoo. To round up a few lions in their wild state for this feature of the coronation broadcast presented difficulties patriotic Brits in South African colony had not counted on. They decided to use the phonograph record, "stepping up" the sound.

MILK MONEY IS CASH

Milk money represents the community pay roll in thousands of towns, a dependable income for millions of farmers.

Milk and milk products must be sold so that cash can flow back to dairy farmers and their communities week after week and month after month.

This is a job Borden knows how to do, for behind Borden are 80 years of experience in handling and selling the most perishable of food products. Dairy farmers producing for a Borden company, know that a Borden milk check means dependable income.

STEALS MILK FOR BOOZE

Milk delivered to John F. Scott, Atlantic City, N.J., by a relief agency did not reach his three children for whom it was intended. Scott was found to be selling the milk and buying liquor with the money, letting his children go hungry. At his trial it was proved that his children were without food for three days at one time. Judge Thomas Taggart sentenced Scott to nine months in jail which will prove no hardship to his family since he was doing nothing for their support anyway. His first three days in prison, he will receive nothing to eat. "You will suffer just as you caused your children to suffer," the judge declared in sentencing Scott. "You will feel hunger just as they did. Then you will have nine months to think over what you have done."

FORTUNE IN PANTS

In need of a pair of trousers, William Whittington, a relief worker in Ontario, Cal., went into a second-hand store and bought a pair for 50 cents. In a pocket of these reconditioned pants, he found a United States $5 bill dated 1866 which has on it the likeness of an Indian instead of the usual picture of George Washington. Whittington has sold the bill to a banker for $1,000, who says only two such bills are in existence. The banker will have it put up for sale at a collectors' auction and if it brings more than $1,000, he will divide with Whittington.

SLEEPING JURORS

In an Omaha court, Judge John W. Yeager refused to excuse a night watchman from jury duty. The watchman said he had been working nights for 27 years and he was afraid he would go to sleep while a case was being heard. "You wouldn't be the first jurymen to go to sleep on me," the judge replied. "We'll take a chance on you."

CHURCH IN TWO STATES

The organist of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Blackstone, Mass., often plays his organ in two states at one and the same time. It has been found by a survey the state line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island, separating Woonsocket, R.I., and Blackstone, Mass., runs right through the church and choir loft, bisecting the organ so one half of the instrument is on each side of the state line.

INVINCIBLE FLAG

Loyalty induced an Indian radio fan to hoist a large Union Jack to one of the aerial masts at Alhambra, N.C. As long as the flag was flying, he declares, nothing but the British coronation broadcasts could be heard. Powerful German and Dutch stations were completely cut out, although, generally, they are inclined to jam the Empire stations and make reception difficult. The proud listener said immediately the Union Jack was lowered, the foreign stations blared out at full strength again.

COFFINS WAIT 20 YEARS

Back in 1917, Emanuel Hicks built two concrete coffins on a high knoll on his farm near Minneapolis, N.C. He told relatives he and his wife wished to be buried in these coffins at this spot. Every year until 1937 they made their way to the top of the hill to whitewash the coffins. Now Hicks, at 80 and his wife, 75 are too old and feeble to climb the hill for the whitewashing job. Relatives who have promised to comply with their last request are doing it for them while they wait for the last summons.

MIRACLE CRASH

Near Potlatch, Ida., Patrick Kilgoyl, driving a car at 90 miles an hour with Bob Stevenson in the front seat with him, saw a log in the road too late. Striking the log, the car hurtled through the air 47 feet, hitting a 16-inch tree several feet above the ground and snapped it off. The motor sailed 60 feet beyond the chassis. The body folded up like an accordion. When the wreckage came to rest, Kilgoyl and Stevenson stepped out unharmed, convinced the day of miracles was not over.

Improvement In Huntingdon Co-operative

Following is a letter written by Mr. Raynald Ferron, Inspector of Co-operative to Mr. J. Chartrand, pres. of the Huntingdon Co-operative concerning the former's visit of inspection here.

Quebec, June 14, 1937
 Mr. Joseph Chartrand, pres.,
 Huntingdon County Farmers' Co-op,
 Huntingdon, P.Q.
 Dear Sir:

Last week I had the pleasure to visit your co-operative. I take the opportunity to send you a report which I ask you to bring to the knowledge of your directors.

It is evident that the general trend of your society is showing good improvement. Operating expenses seem to be lowered to a reasonable point. Books and accounting appear to be clear and there is no doubt that at the end of the year your auditor could draw out very complete and interesting figures.

In my opinion the most evident improvement consist in the systematic organization in the sale of skim milk and cream. Your skim milk sold to be converted in casein is practically sufficient to cover your expenses. This fact permits you to return to patrons nearly all what you receive from the sale of your cream and butter. If we consider that your cream is sold at 0.8c more per lb. of butter fat than for butter, we can deduct that you are well posted to meet your competitors' prices.

Your position could be declared prosperous if we had not to consider the fact that many of your patrons have shifted to other plants. I think that the president and directors should do their best to bring back those patrons.

Hoping that your society will continue in that good direction, I remain,

Yours truly,
 Raynald FERRON,
 Inspector of Co-operatives.

Valleyfield Court

Joseph Sauvé appeared before Recorder's court charged with assault on Richard Gauthier. The accused pleaded guilty and the case was adjourned for thirty days after witnesses had been heard.

In another case, Alphonse Morin of Three Rivers received suspended sentence and paid costs on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Thomas Kelly was found guilty on the same charge and was sentenced to pay costs. He also received suspended sentence.

A Good Neighbor!

The Chain Store aims at friendliness not only with its customers and numerous local and neighboring sources of supply, but with its business neighbors as well, and with the authorities of the community in which it does business.

The personnel (local men and women) of each store is trained to initiate and maintain these friendly relationships.

Chain stores are modern stores. They are always well-kept; a credit and an asset to any neighborhood. They enhance property values and stimulate business all around them.

They will help any community to become a shopping centre for an entire district for miles around, thus benefiting many other merchants.

Reduced Hay Crop Forecast

Bureau of Statistics Report Inferior Quality—Grain Yield Lower

A reduced hay crop was predicted for Quebec this week in a report issued by the agricultural division of the Provincial Bureau of Statistics.

Scarcity of rain in the past fortnight has resulted in a too rapid ripening of hay and grains. Having is in full progress in southern and western Quebec, and fertilized pastures are still good, with unfertilized ones becoming poor.

Although the hay yield will be generally lower, average of good crops are anticipated in Compton, Richmond, Sherbrooke and Standstead, in Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Huntingdon, Laprairie and Naperville, and in the north shore counties of Charlevoix, Montmorency, Portneuf, Quebec and Saguenay.

Survey of the pest situation indicated the report noted, cutworms had caused less damage than last year, though the apple scab continues to cause anxiety in western parts of the province.

The spraying of mustard among grains was carried out under good conditions and has given satisfactory results.

A provincial government crop report referring to the counties of Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Huntingdon, Laprairie, Naperville, says:

Hay making is progressing rapidly. The crop is good and of fine quality though clover is rather scarce.

Pasturage is good but lacks moisture. Grains have a fine appearance but the drought is affecting the hoed crops.

A great many of the potatoes sown have not come up. The digging up of the early potato crop began a week ago and there is little rot noted.

Canners are busy preserving green peas. Orchard present a good appearance, though apple scab is reported.

Four Weeks Until Ottawa Exhibition

Outstanding Factors Will Mark Celebration of 50th Anniversary

Four weeks from Thursday night the gates will open for the fiftieth anniversary of the Ottawa Exhibition and nine big days and nine wonderful nights are planned. From August 19th to August 21st there will be three special days. With the exception of the livestock departments, all buildings will be open and the midway will be in place. In front of the grandstand there will be three special night programmes.

Outstanding will be Lucky Teter and his Hell Divers in automobile stunts which give the apex of thrills. Driving through a plank wall of fire, a head-on collision between two cars, death-defying roll in an automobile, jumping over a truck and many other acts will have the spectators holding their seats. Also for the first three nights will be a historic program with a cast of 800. This will be the most elaborate offering ever assembled for the exhibition and will be replete with appropriate costumes and stage setting. A cavalcade of the famous riders of the ages and fireworks will round out the program for the first three nights.

For the week of August 23rd to 28th, the feature will be the Revue of Tomorrow, a musical and dance revue that sets a new record for outdoor entertainment. Both afternoon and evening there will be a diversified program of vaudeville, the best obtainable, Goldmann and his band, horse races, displays by merchants and manufacturers, the live fish, game birds and wild animal exhibit by the Ontario government, live stock and poultry, dog show, horse show, automobiles, flowers and fruit, pure food show and a hundred and one other free features have been arranged to make jubilee year really memorable.

Obituary

The Late Mrs. Joseph Anderson. The death of Mrs. Anderson occurred very suddenly on July 16th, after a short illness. She was declining in health for the past year but had never been confined to her bed for any period of time.

The deceased was born at the Gore 62 years ago. She was the youngest daughter of Arthur Foster and forty-two years ago was united in marriage to Jos. Anderson. She had lived her entire life in this town where she was brought up.

Community, within a short distance from her home. She was a very loving person and through her kind heartedness and ever willing spirit that won her a lot of good friends and kind neighbours she is deeply mourned.

Besides her husband she leaves to survive her one brother, Jack Foster, New Westminster, B. C., and sister, Louise, Los Angeles, Cal., and seven children, Mrs. P. L. Barlow, Glen's Falls, N.Y., Cecil Carl, and Willis, at home, Mrs. G. N. Brossard and Eileen, of Windsor, Ont., Hilda, of Montreal.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. T. F. Duncan at the Gore United Church on Sunday. Interment in the church cemetery.

The pall bearers were: J. H. Sparrow, J. H. Fitzsimmons, A. Cowan, J. Cowan, S. Friar and Robt. Anderson.

The sincere sympathy shown by floral sprays and wreaths which were carried by the boys of the Gore Young People's Society were deeply appreciated, a few wreaths arriving too late for the services.

Aubrey

The Aubrey Curlers held their annual open air dance on Wednesday evening on the lawn of Mr. Andrew Bennie, Riverfield. The night was ideal and a very large crowd assembled to enjoy the music furnished by Burt's Orchestra, as well as the good platform. A good time is reported by all present. Proceeds amount to $124.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Schmittenders and daughters Ruth and Hazel, of Shelburn, Ont., were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reddick and other friends in the locality, enjoying a two week's holiday at Mr. Fred Lockhart, of Toronto, is this home.

DISTRICT SPORTS ACTIVITIES

Valleyfield Loses to N.D.G. By 8-7 Score

Lariviere With Four Out of Five is Batting Star Of Game

Notre-Dame who had lost three consecutive games to the Valleyfield team defeated them on Sunday afternoon at the Notre-Dame Stadium in a regular Quebec-New York league fixture by an 8-7 score.

Notre-Dame made their winning run in the final frame when Morel replaced "Lefty" Bourdon on the mound with the tying run at second base and one man out.

Rosair Lariviere, playing 1st base for the victors, obtained four safe hits in five times at bat, including a double and a triple. Louis Lariviere, Larose, Allard and Riopel were credited with two singles each. For Valleyfield Bougie and Tessier with three hits apiece and Smith with two singles showed to advantage.

Valleyfield had two new faces on their line-up for Sunday's game in Montreal. These players, Tennyson, pitcher, and Harrigan, right fielder formerly played with Brockville of the Canadian American League.

Beauharnois defeated Lachine on Sunday, 4-2 in one of the best games yet played in Lachine this season.

The sensational moundman of the Beauharnois nine, Westman, pitched for the winners, allowing but seven scattered hits. At bat, Westman also showed great form when he lashed out two doubles and a single to take a great share in the day's victory. Chas. Lariviere was responsible for both Lachine runs when he hit a three bagger with one on base in the first inning.

Valleyfield . . . 210 001 210-7 12 0
Notre Dame . . . 213 020 008-8 16 0
Batteries: Tennyson and Parker; Bourdon, Morel and Riopel.
Beauharnois . . . 001 021 000-4 12 1
Lachine 200 000 000-2 7 2
Batteries: Westman and Marchand; Lahaie and G. Lariviere.

EX-SERVICEMEN MET AT VALLEYFIELD

Ex-servicemen of Valleyfield had the singular honor of having in their midst on Wednesday, July 7th, Major Burbridge, president, and Major Corrigall, honorary secretary of the Provincial Council of Ex-Servicemen.

The meeting was opened by the president of the Valleyfield organization, Mr. Thomas Corcoran. In their few remarks Majors Burbridge and Corrigall explained the work of the Legion and also answered many questions asked by members.

Valleyfield Veterans intend to hold a mass meeting on July 21st. This meeting will pertain to a complete reorganization and all ex-servicemen from Beauharnois, Valleyfield, Ormstown, Huntingdon and surrounding districts are requested to attend.

Further information can be obtained by writing to the president of the Valleyfield Ex-servicemen, Mr. Thomas Corcoran, or to the secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. F. Martin.

OVERCROWDING OF YOUNG CHICKENS

Cause of Slowing up in their Growth

At this time of the year the overcrowding of young chicks is one of the common causes of slowing up in the growth of young stock. As summer advances they should have ample roosting space and floor space enough to allow them to keep bustling whenever they are in the house during the daylight hours.

Another danger of the advanced Summer is the lack of succulent green feed. Grass is drying up, and growing stock as well as the layers should have access to supplies of cabbage, lettuce, chard and rape if that is still green and succulent. New growth in alfalfa is a good source of supply for the green feed needed to tone up digestion to a point that favors best growth at this time.

Wheat, oats and barley mash as a dry mash should be before the young stock all the time, with a good supply of skim milk of buttermilk. Allow 5 to 10 percent, beef scrap to the mash and feed bone meal in a hopper where the chicks can help themselves to what they need to make good bone and plenty of covering for the bones.

"Did he take his misfortune like a man?" "Precisely! He laid the blame on his wife."

THRIFTY PRISCILLA

LEADS A HELPING HAND

WHAT are some of the beauty faults most annoying to men? This was the question asked in a recent survey and the answers are helpfully enlightening. Oddly enough the high nail polish shades are no longer so repulsive to the male of the species. Strong perfumes, particularly wong odors, received a unanimous "thumbs down."

The rustle of new taffeta petticoats is quite okay, but most men registered annoyance at sight of the edge of a pink or white slip showing under a dark skirt. One wanted to know what feminine gesture was more graceful than pulling up a girdle on arising from a chair. Another bold young man suggested that hairy legs should be hidden behind service weight stockings or be shaved before slipping into sheer hose. Dirty fingernails are, of course, inexcusable to all. But no lady ever has them. False eyelashes were not at all bad, but catch when you pull on gloves or stockings.

When a nail starts to split or peel don't follow the old custom of bevelling the edge to work away the broken part. Bevelling only thins the nail tip and weakens it. Of course if the nail is actually broken it must be filed back beyond the broken spot. But if a layer has begun to split or peel off, instead of shortening the nail, simply file the edge clean. Then apply polish clear over the nail tip. Or, if you want the nail tip to show, apply a second coat of colorless polish over your deep polish, and cover the tip with the second coat only. The polish reinforces the weakened part and protects the nail, besides forming a smooth, even surface that won't chafe when you pull on gloves or stockings.

Serawny throats, and the neglected area back of the neck, upper arms, elbows and knees are best treated with a body brush in the bath. Soft bristles are much more invigorating than cloths or sponges. Continued massage with plenty of warm sudsy water will soon coax these neglected areas into a state of satin smoothness and whiteness—evidence of youthful skin. Where there are blackheads and other unattractive skin conditions, it is especially important that the body brush be used regularly.

An exhibition of model apartment and home furnishing shows closet doors that slide back and forth on a groove, flat with the surrounding wall. They have many advantages over the ordinary closet doors that open out in the rooms and are all too often left gaping. Another clever idea are drawers in a man's chiffonier, opening out at the end, just the width of his shirt.

If you have a rose geranium plant geranium jelly can be made from some of the juice. Pour hot syrup over a geranium leaf and let it remain in the boiling syrup for a few minutes, then take it out. Geranium jelly is particularly nice with cream cheese for tea sandwiches. The jelly is the crinkly kind that exudes perfume when pressed between the fingers.

Bread which resists getting stale forms the subject of a recent patent. The addition of a small quantity of wood sugar, technically known as xylitol, is sufficient to ward off staleness, according to the inventors.

Household Hint: A whole clove, dropped in the fat in which doughnuts are to be fried, will give them a delicious, spicy flavor.

If you want to have the kind of complexion that makes people reach out and stroke a baby's cheeks the first rule is to watch your diet.

Town Decorating Essential For "Old Home Week"

Town decorating is essential for the "Old Home Week" celebration. The Town Council hopes the citizens will make a real genuine effort towards having their properties suitably decorated for the occasion. If you have not sufficient flags, bunting, etc on hand to make a good showing, why not buy it now or at least make an arrangement to rent it for the occasion.

BREEDER SHOULD CULL POOR STOCK

The careful breeder of farm livestock will attend regularly to the "cull" process. Uniform individuality cannot be maintained except by culling out and discarding every inferior animal. If 35 per cent of all pedigreed cattle, horses and sheep could be altered and put in the feed lot, fitted and consigned to the butcher and the remaining culs disposed of as grades, such action would elevate the improved breeds of livestock to a high standard of perfection. Such action by the breeders would be in line with the law of selection, in keeping with the truism, "The best is none too good."

To the young breeder, to the small breeder, to the beginner. Breed from the best stock or the best your means will furnish, and keep at it; have a purpose, breed to a line; breed a type. Keep at it at the head of your herd a male that you can point to with pride as your chief sire. Raise him if you can; buy him if you must. Introduce new blood by the purchase of female.

Develop your young stock by generous feeding, kind treatment and careful attention. Grow them well so well that they will be objects of attraction and admiration. If the number of animals on hand seems unprofitable, reduce the number and raise a better class.

CHAIN STORES INSTITUTIONAL ADVERTISING

Newspaper Space to be Used in Showing Benefits to Public Of Modern Methods

Believing that the public had not fully understood the purposes, aims and benefits of the operation of all types of chain stores, an advertising campaign has been prepared which will begin immediately to appear in this paper and continue through the end of the year.

Chains are all, or nearly all, large buyers of newspaper space for the purpose of selling to the public the goods which they buy from primary producers and manufacturers, but this advertising campaign is different in that it will tell the public about the chain stores themselves, how they buy goods in Quebec, and how they aim to serve the great body of consumers with the newest, freshest and best quality goods.

The campaign is intended to create an appreciation of the value of chain stores to any community in which they are located. The announcement adds that it is hoped that the campaign will remove misunderstandings which may exist.

Huntingdon R. R. 3

On Saturday of last week Mr. Frank O'Connor who resides on the Ridge Road, met with a painful accident when returning home from Huntingdon. On the road near the Picard pigery he met a team and wagon, and was obliged to drive so near the ditch in trying to pass that his car toppled over, causing him several contusions of the face and body. At present Mr. O'Connor is making good progress towards recovery.

BLACK HORIZON

BY JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Chapter I

Rand Kirby leaped from the schooner's shore boat and waded through the shallow water to the beach. He stumbled across the sucking sand, a tall, angry, young and good-looking man with swinging shoulders and clenched fists.

He made for the foliage wall of jungle that grew down to the shore, found a narrow foot path that wound among the boles of tall and slanting coconut palms. He began running through the underbrush, his lean strong face set in grim lines.

The sun was obscured now by the dense black smoke he had sighted long before his schooner had put into the island. Its acrid odor, that of burning ipa and bamboo was in his nostrils.

Rand's eyes glittered in blazing rage as he broke from the brush into a clearing. He halted, pushing back his ship's officer cap off his moist forehead, then stood fists on sides looking upon the burning native village.

A mournful hubbalooboo of native drums, like a dirge, rose in swelling crescendo upon the humid tropic air. Walls rose from the score of natives huddling dumbly about the drums.

Across the clearing, squatting sedately by the bole of a palm, was Pete Barker. Rand's makeshift right-hand man. Rand strode to Pete and then he saw the inert dusky form on the ground.

Rand knelt beside the native, making a hasty examination which revealed that the brown-skinned man was merely badly beaten.

"Who did this?" Rand demanded of his man.

Barker said hollowly, "Duraud."

"Duraud?" Rand exclaimed. Then, "Duraud always was a rascal, but why did he do this?"

"Nurim there stole a batch of tobacco from Duraud's place," Barker said. He was a little man with a pinched face and bald head. His eyes were watery blue, frightened. He was a weakling, Rand knew.

"Stole tobacco?" Rand snapped, arising. "Bah! That was merely an excuse to take a below-the-belt punch at me."

"And Maya Jack Cannaghan, too," said Barker.

"Maya Jack, too?" Rand said.

"Why Maya Jack?"

"This boy, Nurim, works for Maya Jack."

"Where is Maya Jack now?"

Barker shrugged thin shoulders. "Don't know. Maybe over at Duraud's place. He was plenty worked up."

Rand swung about and started back toward the beach. He heard Pete Barker shuffling after him.

"Where you going?" Barker asked. "To Duraud's place?"

The little man grabbed his arm, clung to it. "You can't go there! Duraud will shoot you down like a dog!"

Rand looked at Pete in disgust. He shook off the man's grasp.

"You take care of Nurim. I'll be back—whole."

"Better take a gun," Pete called after him.

Time nor a long trek along the shore did not cool Rand's rage. He was in a white-hot temper as he glimpsed the big hacienda with the red-and-green tile roof. Duraud's house was a mansion, lately built. It had terraced lawns, artistically planted palms. It overlooked the sea and boasted a boat landing. There was a trim yacht anchored offshore.

Rand strode unhesitatingly through the gateway in the high wall that led to the flagged stone walk and over the veranda of the hacienda. Rand looked about for a glimpse of Maya Jack Cannaghan and Duraud. He saw neither. There was, however, someone on the veranda. A woman.

Rand had never seen Mrs. Duraud, yet he had heard gossip of the man's lovely young wife. He had not expected her to be as strikingly beautiful as the woman he now saw as he approached the veranda.

She was dark eyed and had hair that seemed almost blue-black. Her face was a perfect oval, with fine yet delightfully irregular features. She reclined in a low-backed chair, but Rand could see that she was slender and long limbed.

She had a fine bronzed skin and none of the washed-out look of many white women in the tropics. She sat up as he bounded up the veranda steps.

"I want to see Mr. Duraud," Rand announced.

"Mr. Duraud is having his siesta," said the girl, in low, husky tones. "If you will wait—"

"I don't care to wait on Mr. Duraud," Rand snapped, almost viciously. "Will you tell him Rand Kirby is here. I think he will want to see me."

The girl arose, languorously, gave Rand a long appraising glance, then crossed the veranda to the door.

"Henri," she called, softly.

There came a gruff answering voice, then heavy sound of footsteps that suggested a big man. A bulky figure filled the doorway.

"What is it, Sonya?" asked the man. Then: "Oh, hello, Kirby. Did you want to see me?"

"Yes," said Rand, coldly. "I want to see you."

Henri Duraud stepped out onto the veranda. He was tall, as tall as Rand, heavier, a broad man of 52 or 53. His face was florid, flabby. His eyes were black, beady, shrewd. His mouth was thin and long, suggesting cruelty. His manner was dominating always.

"Well, what's on your mind?"

Duraud said, "Sit down. I'll have drinks brought—"

"No," said Rand. "All I want is an explanation."

"An explanation?"

"Yes. I return from Lulanna and find the huts of the natives in flames and one of the natives beaten into unconsciousness. Why?"

"I don't need to explain that to you," said Duraud.

"You do, indeed. Those natives work for me. That's my business. The boy your men beat up works for Maya Jack Cannaghan. That's his business; he should be here demanding an explanation, too."

Duraud's black eyes blazed angrily, but he stood calmly before Rand.

"Maya Jack Cannaghan was here," he said. "I told him what I intend telling you, and Maya Jack came through on Maglaya. Through, understood?"

"How do you figure? You're not going to burn me out?"

"Listen, Kirby. I hold old Spanish grants to Maglaya. These grants have been in my family for several generations. I came here a year ago to find you and Maya Jack moved in. All you've got is squatters' rights, and I refuse to consider them. You're through, Kirby. You're getting off Maglaya. Or I will burn you out!"

"Why, you?" Rand took a threatening step forward.

Duraud stepped back, calling out, "Okay, boys!"

Two men, white men and Duraud's lieutenants, came from the house. They were armed with rifles.

Rand stood still, his hands working.

Duraud said, "I'm giving you and Maya Jack forty-eight hours to clear out of Maglaya. That's final."

er left. Well, that's about where I started eight—nine years ago."

Maya Jack was long silent. Finally, he said, "What say we fight Duraud?"

"Fight? How?"

Maya Jack blew a great cloud of smoke ceilingward, where a lizard clung. "How?" he repeated.

"There is one way. Arm our natives."

Rand looked his horror. "No! That would be slaughter. Duraud has a dozen or more white men along with his natives who hate our tribe. He can arm his men with machine-guns and wipe us out in a day. It won't work."

The rubber planter nodded, as if he had known the futility of the thing he suggested. After a long last, he said, "There's one out for us. That is to bargain with Duraud. Sell out, I mean."

"What do you propose doing?"

"Loading my schooner with as much stuff as my schooner will hold."

"And then let the rest for Duraud?"

"No," said Rand, grimly. "I'll burn the warehouse rathier than let him have it."

"You're a fool, Kirby!" Maya Jack said. "You'd better sell."

There was logic in that, and only madness in Rand's plan. Rand saw that. He considered that as he filled his pipe. Then Maya Jack's right-hand man, Kelly Burk, came into the house.

Kelly Burk was a bit of human flotsam, not worth much and that to himself, Maya Jack was strangely quiet, his ruddy face thoughtful. Rand smoked his pipe without talking. A heavy silence fell.

Suddenly Maya Jack said in low yet startling tones, "Are you two thinking the same thing I'm thinking?"

Rand looked at him questioningly.

Kelly Burk said, "Eh?"

Maya Jack's steely blue eyes were narrow. "I was thinking," he said, tersely, "that if we—kidnaped Sonya Duraud and held her for hostage we could bring Duraud to terms—and keep Maglaya for ourselves."

Rand looked at Maya Jack in amazement. Kelly Burk was dumfounded.

"Kidnap Sonya Duraud?" Rand exploded. "You're crazy, Maya!"

"Sure I am," said the big man suavely. "Still it's a damned good idea and the only out for us. Let's do it."

"Stood before him, slim and dark and incredibly lovely."

After forty-eight hours my men will burn your warehouse and wharf and Maya Jack's Plantation."

Rand saved Henri Duraud one long look of disgust, then turned and strode from the veranda. As he crossed the lawn toward the gateway he heard quick footsteps behind him.

"Mr. Kirby—" he heard a feminine voice call.

He halted, turned. He had forgotten Duraud's wife. She came and stood before him, slim and dark and incredibly lovely.

"I'm sorry about the boy who was beaten. Is there anything I could do? Have you medical supplies?" she asked.

Duraud shouted, "Sonya! Sonya, come here—"

Rand looked down at Sonya Duraud, his face hard. "I think he said, coldly, 'the boy would not care to have you do anything for him.' He turned and walked away."

Maya Jack Cannaghan showed up at Rand's house at dusk that same day. He was a big man, Maya Jack, a handsome, blond, ruddy-faced man. He exuded strength, primitive perhaps but covered by a veneering of culture acquired during brief stays at Manila and San Francisco. He had been in the Pacific most of his thirty-two years. He and Rand Kirby were far from being friends, but they respected each other.

Maya Jack dropped into a chair and reached for Rand's tobacco, holding his pipe. "Well, Kirby," he said flatly, "it looks as though our plans for Maglaya are doomed."

Rand nodded gloomily. "I saw the opportunities Maglaya offered as a trading center," he said. "Then you came nosing in—not that I minded you a whole lot. I can handle you. But this Duraud! He loses some of his millions in the States, then comes out here seeing an easy way to recoup his losses. He never thought of promoting Maglaya until I came here."

"We've got forty-eight hours to clear out," Maya Jack said, smoking vigorously. "That means the $18,000 I sank in rubber here is lost. And—and your thousands in your warehouse and wharf."

"Sure," said Rand. "I'm sunk financially. I'll have only the schooner to see you."

St. Swithin's Says

Forty Days More Of Rainy Weather

"On St. Swithin's Day if falls the rain,

For forty days 'twill be the same?"

If on that day the sun shall shine,

For forty days it will be fine."

This is one of the oldest weather proverbs and refers to St. Swithin who is held as the weather Saint. Along with Neuraigia and Lumbago it ranks with many as one of our most reliable weather barometers.

Thursday, July 15th, which was St. Swithin's Day we had rain so adherents of the proverb declare we are in for forty days of wet weather.

St. Swithin now lies buried in Winchester Cathedral, England. The following explanation has been given why so many weather proverbs were formed in connection with Saint's days. The masses of the people on these days donned their best apparel just as we do at picnics now and noted the weather then and noted the weather they would on an ordinary work day. Thus it was that the weather on St. Swithin's day and the days following passed into a proverb which has persisted to this day.

Obituary

The Late W. H. Robert

Bitter opponent of the St. Lawrence deep waterways scheme and author of a number of books and articles on power development in Canada, William Henry Robert, of 1432 Bishop street, Montreal, died suddenly at Portland, Me., yesterday. He was a brother of the late E. A. Robert, former president of the Montreal Tramway Company, who predeceased him two years ago. Mr. Robert was in his 80th year.

A native of Beauharnois, Mr. Robert took an early interest in water power development in Canada. He strongly opposed the St. Lawrence River deep waterways plan and wrote several pamphlets dealing with this subject.

A Presbyterian, Mr. Robert was a liberal supporter of Knox-Crescent Presbyterian Church.

He was a bachelor and is survived by his sister, Miss Sarah M. Robert. The funeral service will be held at Beauharnois today.

"Stood before him, slim and dark and incredibly lovely."

After forty-eight hours my men will burn your warehouse and wharf and Maya Jack's Plantation."

Rand saved Henri Duraud one long look of disgust, then turned and strode from the veranda. As he crossed the lawn toward the gateway he heard quick footsteps behind him.

Henri Duraud stepped out onto the veranda. He was tall, as tall as Rand, heavier, a broad man of 52 or 53. His face was florid, flabby. His eyes were black, beady, shrewd. His mouth was thin and long, suggesting cruelty. His manner was dominating always.

"Well, what's on your mind?"

"I don't care to wait on Mr. Duraud," Rand snapped, almost viciously. "Will you tell him Rand Kirby is here. I think he will want to see me."

The girl arose, languorously, gave Rand a long appraising glance, then crossed the veranda to the door.

"Henri," she called, softly.

There came a gruff answering voice, then heavy sound of footsteps that suggested a big man. A bulky figure filled the doorway.

"What is it, Sonya?" asked the man. Then: "Oh, hello, Kirby. Did you want to see me?"

"Yes," said Rand, coldly. "I want to see you."

J. H. Biggar West Pioneer Dies Age 83

Prominent South Dakota Farmer and Fruit Grower

James Harvey Biggar, 83, died Monday evening, July 19th, at the Deaconess hospital in Seattle, Washington, where he had been visiting his son, William Biggar, who was with him at his death. He had been in good health until a few weeks ago, when he went to the hospital for treatment. At first it was not thought that his ailment was serious, but he became worse and his sons were notified. Stomach trouble was the immediate cause of death.

The funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, July 19th, at the First Methodist church and the body was laid to rest in Greenwood, Brookings, South Dakota, beside that of his wife who died in 1905.

The survivors are four sons, William L., Spokane, Wash.; H. Howard, Riverside, Ill.; James B., Brookings, and George C., Wheaton, Ill. Seven grandchildren, and two half-sisters living here in Huntingdon, Mrs. S. A. Davis, and Mrs. W. H. Goodfellow.

James Harvey Biggar, was born in Huntingdon, December 29th, 1854, and homesteaded in Brookings county, Dakota territory, in 1880. His grandfather was born in Scotland and settled on land near Huntingdon, in 1819. He received a grant of 300 acres of land, which he parceled out to his three sons, his father, James Biggar, being one. On this Canadian farm, which was traversed by Biggar Creek, James Harvey Biggar was born in a rough log cabin. His mother passed away when he was six years of age.

In Canada he grew to manhood, and attended the Biggar school and the Wesleyan and Methodist church. He also attended an academy and night school. His father died when he was 17 years of age, and he managed the farm, living with his step-mother, two younger step-sisters, Margaret and Agnes, and his sister, he was 21 years of age, when he received $1,100 for his share in a settlement.

After working in several sections of the United States, Mr. Biggar came back to his old home at Huntingdon, and married his old sweetheart, to whom he was engaged, formed in Huntingdon, April 2, 1889. The marriage ceremony was performed a few days after the marriage the young couple started out for the land of promise, unknown to them, Brookings county, South Dakota.

There they homesteaded and their start is typical of the start made by the pioneers who first started the development of Brookings county's agricultural resources.

A few acres were broken by ox team, and Mrs. Biggar taught school. Wood was obtained for fuel along the river, and often they burned hay. Mrs. Biggar got $18 a month for teaching and boarded at home.

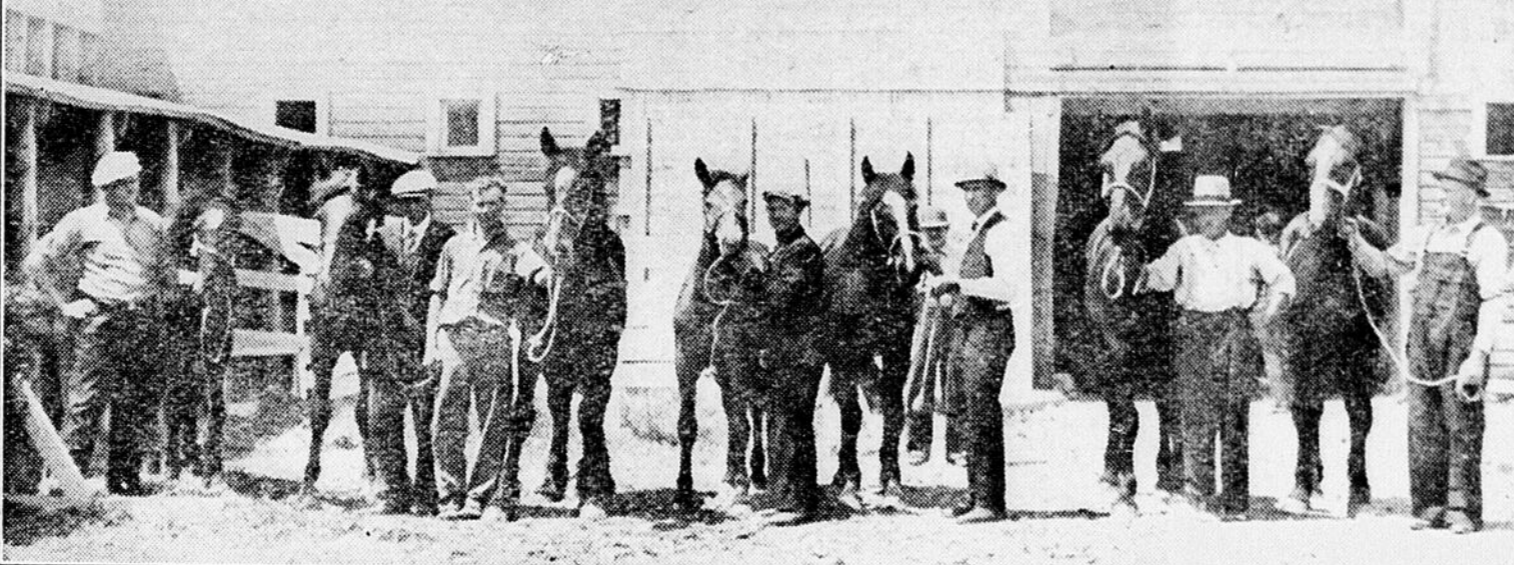

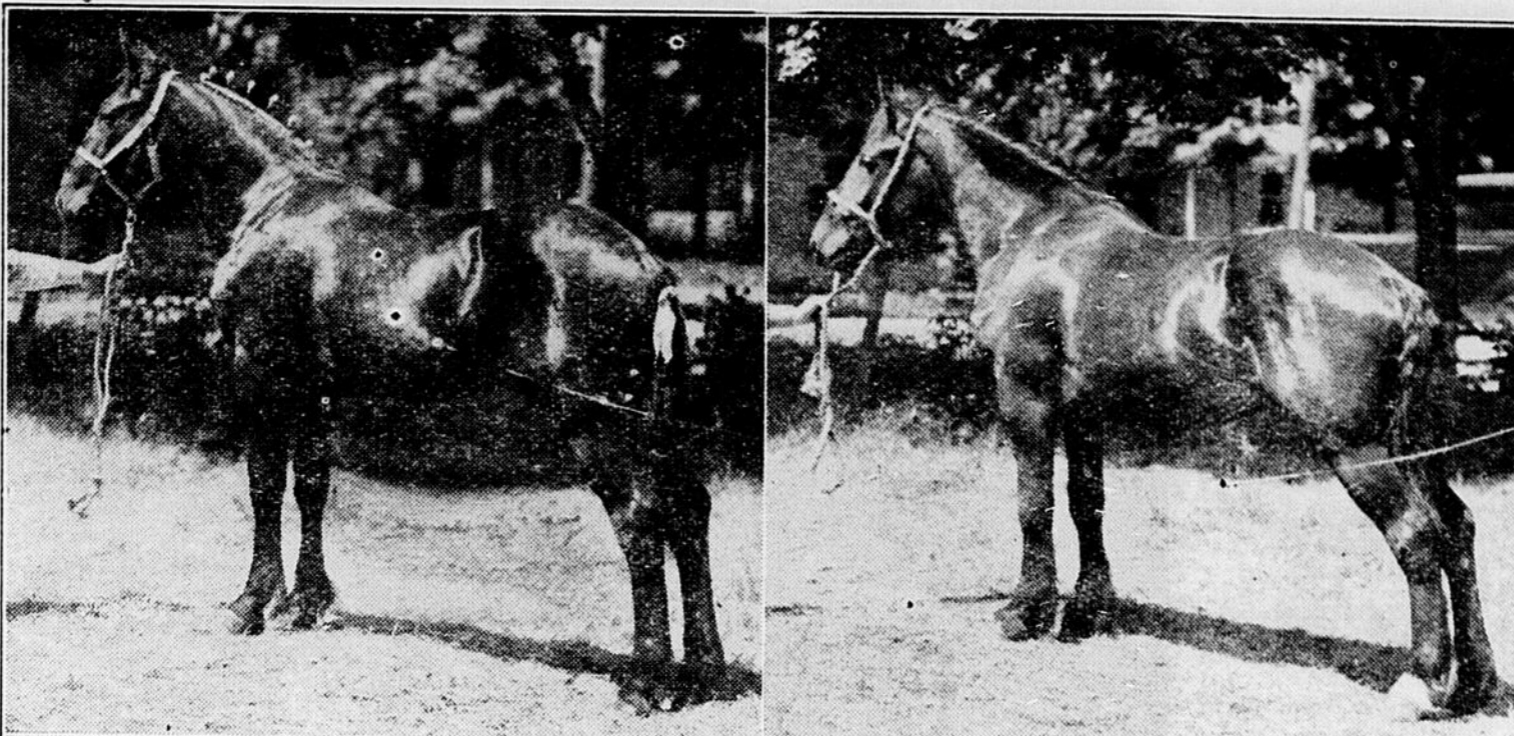

Most of Mr. Biggar's active life was spent in farming, but for several years he has spent his summers in South Dakota and the remainder of the year visiting his sons and other relatives or in California.

Through the deceased's life he was keenly interested in tree planting and in promoting the growth of apples, plums and other fruits on Dakota farms.

Watkins Fly Spray

Will Save Money for You

It will give you faster knockdown, greater kill and longer repellency. Because of its strength and effectiveness you use less and it goes further. That makes it cheaper.

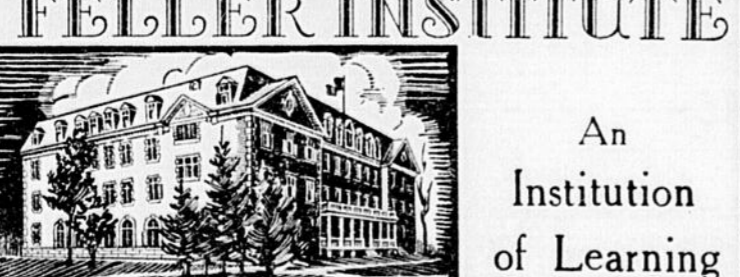

Does not burn or gum up the hide or taint the milk. You can use it in the house too because it will not stain and is sweet smelling. You save money by buying one spray which serves both purposes.

I'll be seeing you soon. Save your order for me. I'll show you how to save more money on household needs, too. Have some real bargains.
