World News In Brief

Luton, Bedfordshire, England, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Edmond Walter Fitzmaurice, 84, seventh Earl of Orkney, died in hospital yesterday following an injury to his thigh last month.

The Earl's death recalled one of the gayest romances of the 1890s—his marriage to "Gaiety Girl" Connie Gilchrist, star of many London stage shows whose real name was Constance Macdonald.

The actress-countess died in 1946 after 54 years of marriage spent mostly on the family estate.

Washington, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur was reported last night to have refused an invitation from the United States government to address the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco next month.

An informed official said MacArthur had been invited, with the approval of President Truman, to speak during the time allotted the U.S. delegation.

Washington, Aug. 22.—(AP)—About 70 anti-communist pickets, carrying signs denouncing Russia's tactics in Hungary, paraded yesterday as close as they could get to the Soviet embassy. The demonstrators, members of the American-Hungarian federation, were kept 500 feet away from the embassy. A city ordinance forbids pickets to approach any nearer to foreign government properties.

Hong Kong, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Independent Chinese newspaper Wai Kiu Yat Po reported today a battle is raging on the Indo-China border between guerrillas and Chinese communist troops. A dispatch from Nanking said the fighting was inside Red China, in Kwansi province. The newspaper's dispatch quoted communist authorities in Kwansi province as admitting resistance was tough.

Paris, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Economic Co-operation Administration testimony before the Senate, Waldemar A. Nielsen as information director in the E.C.A. European headquarters. Nielsen, who formerly worked in the U.S. department of commerce succeeds Roscoe Drummond, who returns to his former post as chief of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor.

London, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Britain and Japan have agreed on the main points of a new payments agreement to govern their trade and fiscal relations, official sources reported yesterday. A main provision probably will lay down that Japan's trade with the sterling block shall be conducted on a sterling basis.

About $150,000,000 worth of business will be involved annually.

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A federal grand jury yesterday indicted 24 members of an alleged dope and counterfeit ring that did an estimated $3,000,000 business a year in narcotics and bogus money. Ten of the 24 named are fugitives, United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol announced.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A passenger train bound from Belgrade to the Hungarian border jumped the tracks last night. Ten persons were killed and 30 were injured.

Japanese Circles Believe Russia May Sign Treaty

By ROBERT EUNSON
Tokyo, Aug. 22.—(AP)—There is a growing belief in Japan that Russia will do the unexpected and sign the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco next month.

Reliable, if unofficial, Japanese circles express the view that the Russians will sign after putting up a strong fight for inclusion of one major provision.

They say the Reds will agree to keeping an American military establishment in Japan—but will demand a definite date for departure. They are opposed to a unilateral treaty between Japan and the United States.

This view was expressed despite last night's threats from the Chinese Reds' Peiping radio that Japan's acceptance of a peace treaty not approved by both Red China and Russia would be considered an act of war.

Red China wasn't invited to the peace treaty conference. Russia accepted after considerable delay. The feeling around Gen. Matthew M. Ridgway's allied headquarters had been that the Soviet delegates en route to San Francisco are carrying brief cases loaded with monkey wrenches.

Iranian Parliament Backs Premier's Stand But Urges Continuation Of Negotiations

Hurricane Draws Closer To Mexico

Tampico, Mexico, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A killer hurricane hovered ominously over the Gulf of Mexico 230 miles southeast of Tampico today as weather experts tried to figure out where it would strike next.

Early today the United States weather bureau at New Orleans said the storm—after remaining almost stationary for several hours—was beginning to move slowly towards Tampico.

Last night's advisories had predicted the swirling winds, which killed 155 persons in devastated Jamaica, would hit this port of 100,000 population and nearby rich Mexican oil fields before noon today.

Hoping to ride out the rampaging fury, if it strikes, Tampico authorities have ordered thousands of residents in the lowlands moved to higher ground.

The centre of Tampico is built on a hill, but the outlying districts are on low ground subject to flooding. Winds at the core of the hurricane are said to reach 155 to 130 miles an hour. They extend 75 miles in all directions from the centre.

Raging seas lashed Mexico's Gulf coast. Dispatches from Merida, Mexico, said the storm wrought havoc when it swept across Mexico's Yucatan peninsula Monday. Farmers said the corn crop was ruined.

In the United States big waves beat against the shore as far up the Texas Gulf coast as Galveston.

In the Texas lower Rio Grande valley, cotton growers waited apprehensively for gale winds in the hurricane's outer fringe.

In Cameron county, Texas, county agent Frank Bruneman said there were 200,000 to 300,000 bales of the valley's bumper crop still to be harvested. Even slight rains, he said, would severely endanger the remaining crop.

Stalin's Guard Spied On Nazis

Washington, Aug. 22.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover has told U.S. Senators "the personal bodyguard of Stalin" smuggled himself into Nazi Germany during the last war.

Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, also disclosed that a woman who carried information from Germany to Moscow later came to the United States as a displaced person.

He said the F.B.I. was able to trace her and ordered her deportation. This sidelight on international intrigue was offered by Hoover in closed-door testimony before the Senate appropriations committee March 1. It was made public today.

"We have many German files seized in Germany after the army of occupation occupied that country," Hoover said. "We found among those files a record to show that the personal bodyguard of Stalin even during that time that the last war was in operation, had gone into Germany and had become a commissar in the army of Vassilov."

He explained that that was the "White Russian army that had joined with the Nazis."

"This commissar had sent confidential information back to Moscow during that period of time. He sent it back through the medium of a woman..."

But Japanese sources predict the Russians will sign the treaty if they can thus prevent a separate treaty between the U.S. and Japan.

The present plan is for the United States and Japan to sign a unilateral treaty as soon as the ink is dry on the treaty at San Francisco.

The unilateral treaty would provide for the stationing of American troops—between two and four divisions of ground troops plus an air force and a navy—in Japan until the country is able to defend itself.

Russia is believed willing to sign if the provisions of the military establishment are placed in the treaty and a date set for the last American soldier to leave Japan.

Failing in this, the Russians may go ahead and sign anyway. One reason for believing the Russians will sign is that they have to maintain an embassy here to continue their customary communist propaganda activity among the people. Closing their embassy would mean pulling out of Japan diplomatically and the Russians are too smart for that.

Latest British Proposal For Settlement Of Oil Crisis Is Rejected.

By ROBERT B. HEWETT
Tehran, Iran, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Parliament gave a vote of confidence today to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh on his stand rejecting the latest British proposals for settlement of the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. But the lower house urged him to continue the oil crisis negotiations which are threatening to break down.

The vote in the Majlis (lower house) was 72 to nothing. Earlier the Senate had approved the nationalistic Premier's uncompromising policies by a vote of 33 in favor with three abstentions.

This new parliamentary move came an hour after the original deadline set by Britain's chief negotiator, Richard Stokes, who yesterday said he would return to London unless Mossadegh abandons his stonewall stand against the British proposals.

A British spokesman said Stokes extended his ultimatum deadline to 3 P.M. today (8:30 A.M. EDT) in view of the fact that Parliament appeared to want to keep the talks from breaking down.

There was little debate in the public session of the Majlis when Mossadegh appealed for support. But in a preceding private session an informed source said deputies made it clear they wanted to try to avoid a breakdown.

One deputy was reported in the private session to have told Mossadegh he must resign if he cannot find a solution to the dispute with Britain over nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's vast installations in Iran.

Mossadegh did not commit himself to continue the negotiations, begun 18 days ago. But Majlis speaker Sardar Reza Hekmat announced: "This vote of confidence is for Mossadegh to continue the discussions."

It is up to the aged and ailing Premier to convince Stokes he is willing to make some concession.

In the earlier Senate session Mossadegh showed the strain of long illness and the pressures of the last few days as he began reading his report.

When Senators asked him to speak louder, he finally turned the prepared statement over to Finance Minister Ali Varasteh to read.

Stokes had his ultimatum after announcing he had withdrawn the British proposal for placing the much-needed British technicians and experts of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company under a British manager who would work for the nationalized Iranian company.

Mossadegh last night tried to delay Stokes' ultimatum by asking for "more details" on the proposals for keeping the British technicians working. The Premier has admitted in the negotiations that the British technicians must stay on if the vital flow of oil is to continue.

But Stokes replied in a letter this morning that he already had explained everything "quite clearly."

"I cannot believe," Stokes wrote, "that it is your intention to make it impossible for us to work out a businesslike arrangement which will enable the British staff to continue to serve Iran and contribute to the prosperity of the country."

The issue of the British technicians is only one of several in Mossadegh's objections to the British plan. It is known that Stokes and President Truman's special envoy, W. Averell Harriman, who engineered the renewed talks, are particularly frustrated by the Premier's refusal to give an inch in his drastic nationalization program.

The British proposal would turn over all Iranian assets of the British-owned company to the National Iranian Oil Company—the company Mossadegh set up under his last March nationalizing the industry and cancelling Britain's 60-year concession. The proposal also offered Iran a 50-50 split in the profits with a British marketing organization and a non-profit British managing organization under the National Iranian Oil Company to run the fields and refinery.

U.S. Battleship Runs Aground

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The 45,000-ton battleship Wisconsin went aground in the Hudson river opposite Manhattan and was towed free about two hours later, a New York Central Railroad tug reported.

The battleship, which arrived yesterday on a training cruise, was moored to fore and aft buoys off West New York, N.J.

First reports were that the stern line parted, another report was that the great weight of the ship had dragged both moorings in a heavy running tide.

The navy reported the vessel "under control" but gave no details.

The Wisconsin arrived here yesterday from Halifax, with the destroyers Gearing and Dyess and the landing ship dock Lindenwald. The task force is on a six-week training cruise.

Murder Trial Of Canadian Soldier Starts In Korea

By BILL BOSS
Seoul, Korea, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The defence called the prosecuting officer to the stand today as Lt. Col. John A. Hutchins of Montreal and Reginald Glen Roland Blank of Winnipeg went on trial charged with murder.

Blank, 27, is the first of three privates of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to be tried by court martial for the grenade death last March 17 of a South Korean army lieutenant.

Blank pleaded innocent and his defending counsel, Lt. Col. John A. Hutchins of Montreal and Reginald Glen Roland Blank of Winnipeg promptly launched a "trial within a trial." The surprise move forced a recess until Saturday.

Col. Hutchins called the prosecuting officer to the stand in an effort to determine whether Blank had been properly informed of all legal resources at his disposal at the time when summaries of evidence were being taken.

Col. W. Clement Dick of Toronto, president of the court martial, ordered adjournment to Saturday to enable four officers of Blank's unit to describe the means employed to inform Blank and his fellow-defendants of their rights.

Blank's co-defendants are Ptes. Donald Michael Gibson of Ottawa and Alan Roy Montgomery Davis of Vancouver, also members of the Patricia's. They will be tried separately.

The full charges against Blank include murder and attempted rape, but he is being tried for murder only at the present hearing.

The specific charges arose from the death of a South Korean army lieutenant, Ee Chong-Sun, at the village of Chungwon near Chippung March 17. Two other persons died in the same incident, but the three men are accused only of responsibility for the lieutenant's death.

Allies Charge Communists Are Making Symbol Of Bad Faith Out Of Kaesong

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
Munsan, Korea, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The allies accused the communists today of making "a universal symbol of bad faith" out of Kaesong, site of Korean war truce talks.

The charge was broadcast after a sub-committee held its sixth session in Kaesong without sign of breaking the deadlock over where to draw an armistice line across Korea.

The sub-committee scheduled another try for Thursday. Armistice negotiations were complicated by a dispute over latest Red charges that United Nations forces violated the Kaesong neutrality zone.

The "Voice of the United Nations command," broadcast from Tokyo to Korea, said the "communist charges border on the ridiculous."

The broadcast asked: "Why are the United Nations delegates assigned to an armistice mission constantly forced to divert their attention to the question of armed personnel in the conference area?"

The broadcast traced the history of incidents within the neutral zone and answered its own question: "It is new quite obvious that Kaesong was picked by the communists as a negotiating site in order to intimidate the U.N.C. (United Nations Command) delegates by a show of force."

"That failing, the conferences could be stalemated with a series of side issues blocking the main discussions."

There was no suggestion from any quarter that progress had been made toward settling the main issue.

Both sides were depicted as still holding out for their original demands on where to create a buffer zone. The U.N. wants it along the 38th parallel. Most of the front is north of 38.

It was authoritatively reported that Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, received no new instructions from U.N. commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway during a flying visit to Tokyo. Joy returned to Munsan Tuesday.

Responsible quarters said the U.N. position remained unchanged. A release from U.N. command advance headquarters pictured the Reds as "insulting in their politically-tainted demands" and "inscrutable in presenting them."

It said the communists were "immune" to the "military logic" of the allied command.

The statement appeared to support the belief that the sub-committee has made no progress on the buffer zone issue which stumped the full five-man truce teams for three weeks.

Air force Maj. Gen. L. C. Craigie replaced Rear Admiral Arleigh Burke for the second time on the two-man allied sub-committee.

Quebec's Industrial Growth Is Termed "Extraordinary"

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Quebec, Aug. 22.—(AP)—From the business and industrial point of view Quebec province—and Quebec city in particular—is bursting at the seams.

On all sides there is new construction for new business establishments, industrial plants and workers' homes. From Premier Maurice Duplessis comes this description of Quebec's industrial development: "marvelously extraordinary."

The trade and commerce department is making a new compilation of new industries established in the province since the end of the second world war. Most recent published figure is 4,400 covering every enterprise from paper making to shoe making.

Altogether there are about 1,600 manufacturing enterprises in the province where, since 1945, population has increased from about 3,500,000 to more than 4,000,000. In the last 10 years the population of Quebec city has jumped from 150,000 to 200,000.

In Quebec city alone, since 1945, more than 62 new industries have been launched, 32 of them located in St. Malo, one of the most modern industrial zones on the continent.

In this historic centre of Canada's beginnings the business expansion is indicative of a shining future, according to Armand Viau, president of the association of industrial commissioners of Quebec.

He says: "Quebec city will be the hub of the wheel of tomorrow's development—the vast semi-circular arc of industrial development which will sweep through Hollinger, Abitibi, the Saguenay district, Chicoutimi, the north shore, the Gaspé coast—just as Montreal is the hub of earlier industrial development of the province."

He describes Quebec as a natural deep water port, a seat of government, an international tourist centre, a religious capital, a commercial, shipping and industrial centre, with one of the largest dry docks in the world. Premier Duplessis estimates

Quake Causes Heavy Loss In Hawaii

Honolulu, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The heaviest earthquake ever recorded on the volcano island of Hawaii cost the Kona coast district most of its treasured water stores—with two months of normal drought ahead.

Property damage was estimated officially at between $750,000 and $1,000,000, but the water loss was the most critical.

The quake jarred the largest of the Hawaiian islands early yesterday. It wrecked or damaged more than 200 wooden water storage tanks on cattle ranches.

An after-shock bumped the Kona coast last night. Police said it was weak and no damage was reported. The after-shock rattled dishes and windows in Honolulu.

Families along a 30-mile stretch of the Kona coast, on the west slope of Mauna Loa volcano, use tanks for storing drinking and household water.

Yesterday's tremor was centred deep below the undersea slope of massive Mauna Loa. The volcano rises 13,680 feet above sea level and slants 18,000 feet under water to the ocean floor.

There was no evidence of any impending eruption by Mauna Loa, one of the world's most-active volcanoes. It spilled molten lava into the sea a little more than a year ago.

Trucks were hauling emergency water supplies to Kona coast residents. The Kona coast normally receives no rain until well into October.

Coffee farmers, with their crop at harvest ripeness, rushed to rebuild their water tanks. The coffee beans must be washed before they are dried and packed.

Cattle ranchers also began to reconstruct tanks. W. Harold Loper, territorial superintendent of public instruction, said it may be necessary to tear down the twisted Honaunau school and rebuild it—at a cost of $35,000.

Only two persons were reported injured in the quake. Manila, Aug. 22.—(AP)—President Elpidio Quirino will present President Truman with a large pearl from the Sulu sea when they meet in Washington Aug. 30 to sign the Philippines-United States mutual defence pact. The pearl was brought to Manila by a Moro delegation last night. They requested that Quirino present it to Truman as a gift from the Filipino people.

The popular funny men Bud Abbott and Lou Costello provide laughs in a scene from "Abbott and Costello in The Foreign Legion". In the supporting cast is the lovely Patricia Medina.

It said by people, of course, that I must be 95 years old. "Perhaps this bad story has something to do with the question of my age. My friend, I do not care how old people think I am. I will tell you. My true age is 45. I was less than 20, a boy very mature of his age, when I played 'Camille' on the screen with Norma Talmadge."

"I remember the days when I was an extra. Now extras are different. They work and call it a 'day'. But we had inspiration! The extras I remember were Clark Gable, Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, Richard Arlen, Loretta Young and Don Alvarado.

"I remember a beautiful extra with platinum hair who walked around so gracefully. Her name was Jean Harlow. "We had to make our own way and we didn't know what agents were. Ah, how we tried to get our faces into the camera when the star was being photographed! We received $3 a day and lunch. Hollywood Boulevard was a wilderness of empty lots and trees. A half hour would pass before an automobile would come by.

"I was an extra when Rudolph Valentino was making 'Blood and Sand'. We extras worshipped this man. Because my father had been a bullfighter, they permitted me, an extra, to help Valentino dress in his toter costume. It was my joy to look at this man. He was something! "One day at the Lasky ranch there was a fight among the extras and I was hurt. Valentino opened a bottle of wine for me. It was a simple thing, Valentino giving a glass of wine to a bleeding extra, but I have a great memory of it.

"Stars had greatness then. I had been an extra in one of Barbara La Marr's pictures. When she died, I drove to the mortuary in Edendale. It was raining like Hades, my friend, Barbara's face in death was like a doll's face. "I loved her, because once she had smiled at me and I had felt recognition from her. So I waited until everyone had left the room and I stood there looking at her in death. She was a great star.

"It was the time of the Latin lover. An actor named Jack Krantz had his name changed to Ricardo Cortez. Then there were Antonio Moreno, Don Alvarado and Ramon Novarro. When I was about to be started, there was fear that the public had tired of Latins.

"They asked me to change my name to George Adams and I refused. It sounded like a president of the United States. So it was as Gilbert Roland that I was starred finally in 'The Rose of the Golden West'.

"I was under contract with Norma Talmadge to United Artists. To be a star with United Artists was a great thing, my friend. The studio had John Barrymore, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. "Norma Talmadge always wanted me for her leading man. We made several big pictures together. Then Norma retired after her second talking picture. My career did not go well for a while. Norma and I had been a team. It was my fate.

Personally we're inclined to accept the idea of a correspondent who says he lays strips of aluminum foil between his vegetable rows. He reports this discourages the weeds, keeps the soil moist, and reflects the sun's rays to the plant.

There are so many uses for aluminum that the list fills a good-sized book, and is always growing. At present we can't supply Canadian manufacturers with all they want. But we're busy building new plants and powerhouses so that you may be able to buy more of the aluminum articles you would like to have. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Council Members Have Busy Session, Dispose Of Many Items At Meeting

Meeting for the second time during the summer recess, the Sherbrooke City Council last evening discussed many things. They approved the special valuation roll for business, professional and tenant taxes; they authorized the reconstruction of the Eustis power dam; they decided to install a new radio system for the police department; in fact, they covered almost everything from the traditional cabbages to kings.

The notice of meeting provided for only four items—the reading of correspondence, the adoption of by-law 747, the study and homologation of the special valuation roll and the adoption of committee reports. It was the final item on the agenda that opened the way for the varied discussions with no less than twelve reports being submitted by the various chairmen in addition to the routine reports providing for the payment of accounts.

By-law 747 which was adopted on all three readings extends the tax on chain stores to those companies who make it a practice to set up separate corporations to operate stores in each municipality. This is effected by adding the following paragraph to section 2 of the licensing by-law:

"Any company or corporation which has its principal place of business in the municipality, when this company or corporation is nothing but subsidiary or affiliate of a company or corporation carrying on the same kind of business outside the municipality, is subject to the same tax as persons who have not their principal place of business in the municipality, that is to say they must pay double the business tax payable by those who operate one establishment and this for each establishment, providing always that this increase in the business tax does not exceed $100 annually for each establishment."

The amendment to the by-law was approved without discussion. One committee recommendation that the sum of $100 be paid to the Bell Telephone Company toward the cost of moving eight poles on Pacific Street was referred back for further study after Ald. Labonne had offered serious objections to the legality of the payment.

The next clause in the same report provided for the paving of Pacific Street from Kitchener to Drummond at an estimated cost of $2,500, this sum to be included in the next loan by-law.

The same report, covering a committee session held Monday evening, also instructed the City Attorney to take action to enforce the by-law covering refuse containers used by householders within the city limits.

It also accepted the subdivision of three areas in the recently-annexed Township of Orford, as prepared by Gaston J. Cote. In one case the proprietors agreed to cede a strip of land thirteen feet wide for the widening of the Brompton Road.

The contract for painting the Montcalm and Aymer bridges was awarded to Labbe et Frere at $950 for the Montcalm bridge and $1,400 for the Aymer bridge.

The Council also went on record as strongly opposing the request of the Quebec Central Railway, now before the Board of Transport Commissioners, for permission to suspend passenger train service between Sherbrooke and Beebe Junction.

The city will also tender a banquet to the members of the Junior Breeders' Club on August 28 or 29 at the Agricultural School on the occasion of their 25th anniversary, the mayor to preside over the gathering.

Approval was also given to the sale of two police patrol cars whose period of service has come to an end. One car was sold for $599.99 and the other for $500.

The contract for the repairing of the Eustis power dam was awarded to Fabi and Fils for $32,971, the lowest tendered, over objections of Ald. Thibault, who maintained that the price was still too high and that firms could have been found to do the work for at least $5,000 less.

Arrangements were also made to purchase an additional block of 2,000 horsepower of firm power from the Shawinigan Water and Power Company at prices provided under the current contract. This contract permits the city to purchase additional quantities of power each year at attractive rates.

The hourly wages for laborers in the Public Works department were fixed as follows: Permanent, 86 cents; non-permanent, 86 cents; temporary, 86 cents, and relief workers, 75 cents.

Two promotions were also authorized in the fire department as a result of the recent death of Captain Ferdinand Couture in charge of No. 5 station. Lieutenant Charles Audet was named an acting chaplain and Fireman Theodore Degraze was appointed an acting lieutenant-junior grade.

Another clause in the report of the protection committee deals with the problems of the radio police and their relations with the Department of Transport. Incidentally the troubles will cost the Sherbrooke taxpayers $7,500.

The clause reads: "Whereas the Federal Department of Transport has advised the city that the present radio transmitter cannot hereafter be operated on the present frequency, the latter having been allotted to National Defence;

"Whereas this ordinance from the Department of Transport means that the Police Department will have to change its equipment to suit the new frequency of 160-172 megacycles;

"The committee recommends the purchase of a new transmitter and seven new receivers for motor cars, at an approximate cost of $7,500. This amount to be included in the next borrowing by-law."

This clause was approved without discussion as was another authorizing the Chief of Police and two aldermen to attend the convention of the Dominion Chief Constables Association in Halifax September 18-21.

An agreement was completed between the city and Gerard Lemieux for the sale of 15,000 square feet of land on Leonard street to Lemieux for $150 to permit the latter to erect a new factory employing at least twelve employees.

The Dominion Management Associates Limited was authorized to prepare an economic and geographical analysis of Sherbrooke at a cost of $2,650, federal sales tax extra, the price to include two hundred volumes numbered from 1 to 200.

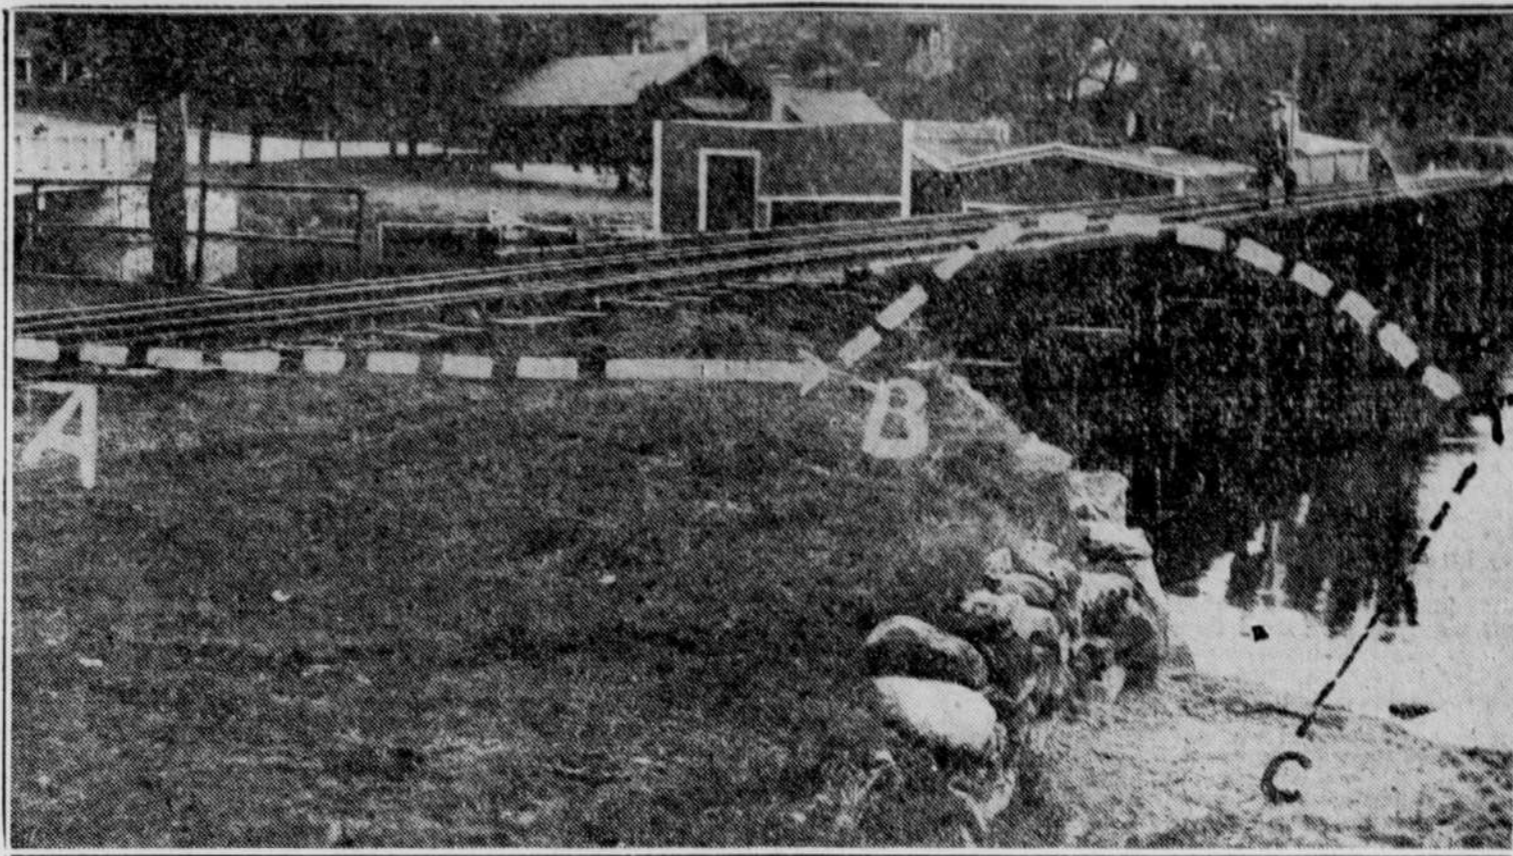

The homologation of the valuation roll was a brief and routine affair. No protests were presented by the aldermen and the roll as tabled by G. Eudette Vaillancourt, secretary of the board, was approved without discussion.

Pro-Mayor Wesley Bradley presided over the meeting in the absence of Mayor Charles B. Howard.

Our Congratulations To:

COLIN L. CAMPBELL, who is observing the anniversary of his birthday today; and CHARLES C. DYER, V.S., D.V.M., Sutton, Que., who was 88 yesterday.

Stay Home Camp Closes Friday With Tea Party

Summer hasn't entirely stopped the activity at the Y.W.C.A., Montreal Street.

During the hot-weather months the "Y.W." has conducted a Stay-at-Home camp for girls from six years of age to 12 and more than 30 youngsters have been attending.

The "camp" closes on Thursday afternoon when the girls will be hostesses to their mothers and friends at a party, which will allow them to show what, at the "camp" has taught them, at the same time.

A short swimming meet and musical program will be followed by tea and an opportunity to exhibit the craft work.

The picnic at Little Lake, called off last week because of rain, will likely be held Friday.

During the summer Isabel Hyndman has directed the swimming, Rita Berube the games and Mrs. John Dorrian and Kathleen Fales assisted with the crafts, which included the making of mats woven from twisted crepe paper, covered vases, various oil cloth articles and painting. Picnics and music have rounded out the program, the music including Negro spirituals, a little musical play, songs from Alice in Wonderland as well as records varying from Frokofiev's Peter and the Wolf to Camp Town Races.

Spivak's Girl Singer Comes From Edmonton

Charlie Spivak, whose internationally renowned band will get the Sherbrooke Fair off to a rousing start at a concert and dance on Saturday night, will have with him a talented and attractive Canadian girl as vocal soloist.

She is Pat Collins, of Edmonton, and advance releases describe her as having "nearly 5½ feet of slow tantalizing curves, plus big blue eyes topped by a veritable cascade of lovely blond hair."

Pat, whose singing style blends perfectly with her beauty, first enjoyed singing at church socials. Then, while only a high school student, she had her own program over radio station CFRN. In her spare time she worked as a teenage model in a department store and wrote a weekly teenage column for an Edmonton newspaper.

A few years later the Collins family moved to Wilmington, Delaware, where Pat found employment in a music store and soon was featured on a musical program.

Inside Story Of Super Markets Is Told To Rotary Club Members

Members of the Rotary Club were taken behind the scenes of Steinberg's Super Markets yesterday by Ben Dubriansky, of Montreal, and shown the factors which have contributed to the well established reputation which the company enjoys today in the Dominion.

There are 30 Super Markets in Montreal, one in Arvida and one in Ottawa. The firm is 34 years "young" and is run by five Steinberg brothers, who believe in advertising and feel that it has played an important part in their success.

Founded by a woman, the business has been conducted along lines which will cater to the problems and tastes of the women buyers. A central warehouse contributes greatly to stability and efficient operation tends to reduce the cost of distribution.

The speaker pointed out that any business which sets aside the interests of its customers is doomed to failure.

"Sales are not built because of a terrific advertising spread or the offering of a spectacular value only," he said.

"Sales are built on the pleasant 'Thank you' of the clerk, the courteous 'Good Morning' of the manager, on the appearance of the store, the quality of the merchandise, the distribution of the counters, consistent advertising and the personnel of the firm."

He said that advertising must be real to be effective and that the product is actually sold long before the customer comes to the store. Advertising is a specialized technique for mass communication.

Through means of charts he described the way in which the opening of a new store is promoted, through the press, radio, contests and so on, and emphasized the importance of follow-through on advertising.

He advocated a campaign of perpetual promotion and said that advertising must be timely and consistent, that it is necessary to acquire a sales language and sales viewpoint. Salesmen should be advised of the advertising campaign, should receive reprints of all sales sheets and should be given hints on how to tie up this advertising with their everyday selling.

"Remember," he said, "that trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle."

Mr. Dubriansky was introduced by Gerard McManamy and thanked by Past President J. H. Wark.

Past President Emile Levesque referred with regret to the passing of Claude Spafford, former Rotarian, and extended sincere sympathy, on behalf of the club, to the bereaved family.

Visiting Rotarians at the meeting were William Towse, Westmount, Gordon Pickering, Lowell, Mass., and Paul Dawson, of Montreal. The guests were Maitland Soles, Mitchell Armstrong, K. Halpenny, R. Berthiaume, of Sherbrooke, Fred Diamond, of Shawinigan Falls, and R. H. French, of Kitchener, Ont.

At the head table with President Emile Levesque and the speaker were L. Lindsou, G. McManamy, Past President Wark, J. Mooney, Past President E. Goodenough and F. Wilson.

JUSTICE FOR THE HONG KONG VETERANS

If ever any group of men had a right to claim special consideration from the government for the services they rendered this country it is the veterans of the ill-fated Hong Kong force who spent four years as the involuntary guests of the Japanese Imperial Government.

The demands made by these men, as outlined in the resolution passed at their annual reunion at Bury, are modest when contrasted with the suffering and privation they underwent during their term of imprisonment in Japan. Their sole request is that the Government give them a supplementary compensation of one dollar for each day they were in the hands of the Japanese, the money to be paid out of money realized from the sale of Japanese assets, this money now being in the hands of the Dominion Government.

Whether the action of the Dominion authorities in despatching large numbers of only partially-trained troops to the Orient had any serious effect on the outcome of the struggle at Hong Kong may be a subject of controversy in view of the general military situation in that area, but certainly the failure to properly train the entire detachment and to assure that it would have the proper equipment places a special obligation upon the Government and the people of Canada to see that their legitimate demands are met.

It is difficult to see any reason why the settlement of these claims has been held up so long. The cost could easily be met by curbing extravagance for a single week.

AUSTRALIA HIT AGAIN

Hints by Sir Arthur Fadden, Australian Government Treasurer, of stiffer income taxes to come next month, rising as much as twenty per cent above present rates, have shocked Australians so much that even Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies has declared: "I shudder to think of it."

Writing for the Monitor, Albert Norman says while no thinking Australian disputes the undoubted heavy cost of Australian rearmament, he emphatically does not think heavier taxation of incomes is the way to pay for it.

Instead the Liberal government is being urged to introduce a system of non-interest bearing "compulsory loans" repayable at a convenient future date.

This idea was suggested to Mr. Menzies by Victorian State Premier John G. McDonald. Said Mr. McDonald: "The average person cannot afford to pay more taxation. Taxpayers loans would keep taxation in bounds and leave incentive for greater production."

Australian economists broadly agree with that view. They see living standards falling proportionately as taxes rise. And the large number of Australians now seeking additional week end and night work to pad out family budgets, confirms the present delicate financial balance of housekeeping in this southern land.

Although defense budgeting is in the forefront of the Liberal government's fiscal plans, many citizens realize that only by first winning the "battle of inflation" can there be any continuing and stable Australian defense contribution to western collective security in this strategic Pacific zone.

And because this contribution cannot be successfully made without maximum national unity, some government supporters are urging formation of a national government in coalition with the Labor Party.

Certainly Mr. Menzies knows what it is like to be leading a one-party government at a time of developing national crisis. As Australia's leader in 1940, he was in the same position. But his 1940 coalition overtures to the Labor Party were flatly rejected. He has yet to show he thinks they would be more acceptable in 1951.

Also discounting coalition possibilities are signs that the Labor Party expects its opponents will be swept from government benches by the present inflationary wave. At least Labor strategy seems designed to saddle the Liberals with full responsibility for today's inflation notwithstanding that Labor's own spending policies in 1949 and earlier had a share in the present problem.

PLAN TREMENDOUS INCREASE IN SYNTHETIC WOOL PRODUCTION

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—Plans to increase U.S. production of synthetic wools to a rare of 160 million pounds a year by 1953 are now being considered by Charles E. Wilson's Office for Defense Mobilization. Present production is about four million pounds.

All of this production will be by private industry. At the present time, the granting of tax amortizations to companies that build the new synthetic wool plants is not considered necessary.

Government priorities to obtain steel and other critical materials needed to build the new plants will be granted. The government will also provide an ultimate market for nearly all the synthetic wool produced. The wool itself is considered necessary for the national defense effort.

Half a dozen major U.S. chemical manufacturing companies are now interested in synthetic wool production. Included are DuPont, American Carbide, Celanese Corp., Virginia-Carolina Co., American Viscose, Monsanto and Chemstrand. The wool itself may grow. Location of new plants has not been decided upon.

As far as the United States alone is concerned, consumption of natural wool has been about three times domestic production. What wool consumption the U.S. does not produce itself it imported from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Argentine.

NATURAL WOOL PRICES SOAR

In 1933 the average price of wool was 46 cents a pound. In 1945 it was 75 cents a pound. Last March, the price for domestic wool was $1.19 while Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United Kingdom brought $3.60 a pound.

By July, this top price had been brought down to $2.45 a pound. The drop had been forced largely by stopping government purchases under the American defense program. By further curtailing U.S. purchases, the price may be forced down to $2.00. But this is still considered too high. Synthetic wool fibres produced at 50 cents a pound or less could, of course, knock natural wool production right out of the market.

American consumption of wool averaged 323 million pounds a year in the 1937-41 period. In the years, 1942-45, it shot up to 582 million pounds annually.

It dropped to 329 million pounds in 1949, rose to 429 million pounds in 1950. It will go over 500 million pounds this year, and will probably go still higher in 1952.

Since the end of the war, with consumption down, the U.S. has been drawing largely on wool stocks. Existence of wool reserves in the United States is what has made possible the cut in defense-buying to force the price down this year.

In another year or two, however, the American wool reserve will be all gone. The U.S. demand for natural wool should shoot up in 1953, about the time that European nations are back on their feet and able to buy more wool, the demand would rise greatly and so would the price.

It is this long range picture that has made the U.S. Government's Office of Defense Mobilization decide to push synthetic wool production. An annual production of 160 million pounds a year would of course take care of only a fifth of U.S. consumption.

SYNTHETIC VARIETY HAS ADVANTAGES

One pound of synthetic wool will go much further than a pound of natural wool, however. The synthetic fibre is cleaner, the staples are more uniform, there is less waste and it is lighter. There are some estimates that one pound of the synthetic variety will go as far as two pounds of natural.

The synthetic wools have other advantages. They can be made wrinkle-proof, crease-proof and water-proof. The fibres made from coal, natural gas petroleum or other minerals are mothproof, mildew and rot proof. Those made from milk casein, peanuts, corn or other protein or cellulose bases are less resistant.

With all these advantages, it is not believed that the synthetic fibres will completely destroy the market for natural wool. For specific uses, best results are obtained by textile blends. Also, as the country grows and as the world standard of living rises, the demand for all fibres—natural and synthetics—is about to grow.

There are strenuous objections, however, to the development of an American synthetic wool industry. They are largely political. On the domestic political front, states where wool-growing is a major industry are fighting this new threat of competition.

On the international front, it is claimed that a synthetic wool industry will upset the economies of the wool-exporting countries. But in a way, both domestic and foreign wool growers have brought this new trouble on themselves by keeping their price too high.

PRESS COMMENTS

AS INFLATION HOLDS THE FIELD

Ottawa Journal

The U.S. Department of Commerce announces that U.S. corporations in June publicly reported cash dividend payments totalling more than $1 billion, a 25 percent increase over June 1950.

The department, getting a detailed report that all the major industry groups increased their dividends during the first six months of 1951, over the comparable period of 1950, with gains ranging from 34 percent in railroads to seven percent in communications; that manufacturers made payments 16 percent above the first six months of last year; that the automobile industry paid out $273,000,000, compared with $211,000,000 a year ago; and that oil-refining companies, steel producers, and meat manufacturers all showed similar advances.

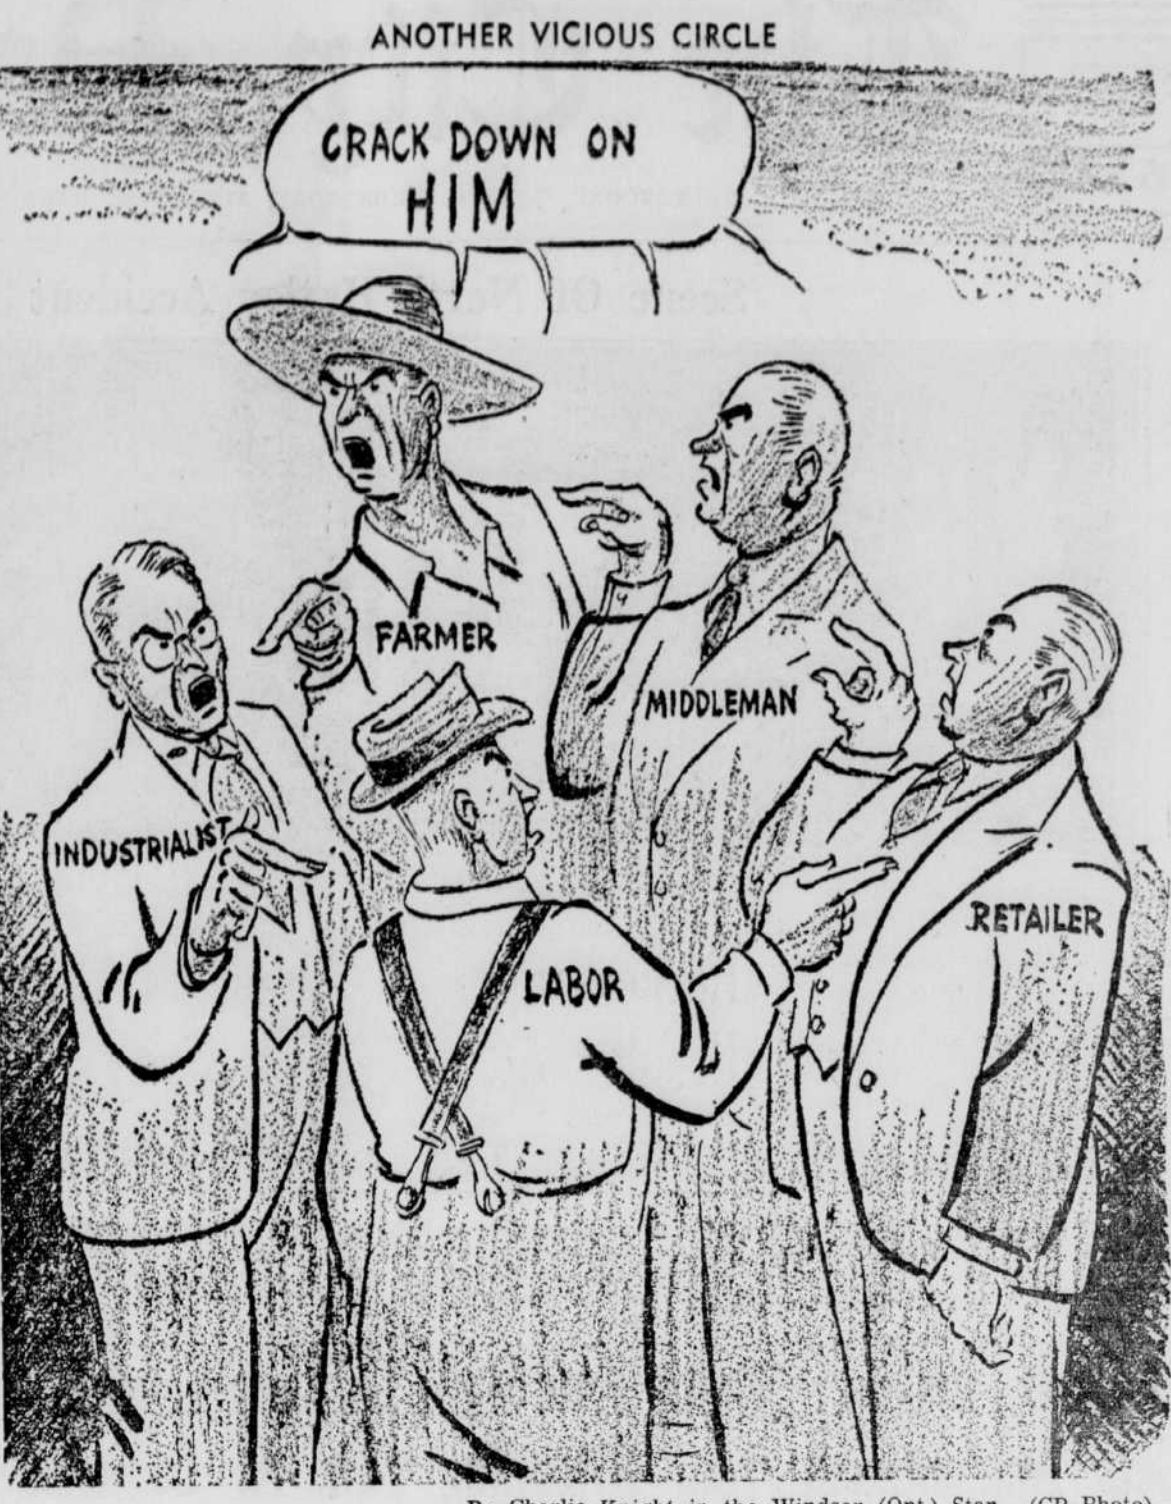

Yet 1950, in terms of corporation profits, was a successful year.

What is being witnessed in these ever-mounting profits, followed by ever-mounting demands for wage increases, is a continuing inflation. Higher profits bring demands for another round of wages, another round of wages brings another round of prices, and as the thing goes on and on inflation holds the field.

No one expects prices and living costs to get back to where they were before we fought two world wars; we are in a new and vastly different era, geared to a different economy. But what we should be doing is to get going, with prices chasing wages and wages chasing prices we must end up with an inflationary Niagara.

There are economists and statisticians who study inflation in the mood of chemists in some laboratory; reduce it to graphs and charts. But for millions of people who cannot increase their incomes by either new rounds of wages or prices, inflation means tragedy in homes; the reality of desolation and suffering for themselves and for their families. Not enough to tell these people, at this time, that sooner or later their sufferings will be removed by some alchemy of credit or finance, or to tell them that the remedy is "production." Their trial is now.

From week to week The Journal notes reports of this or that business to be brought by the Government to the session of Parliament to be held this Fall. Nowhere has The Journal seen a report, nor a suggestion that the Government intend coming to Parliament with a plan to deal with prices. It is one of the strange things of our time.

Letters To The Editor

DRIVE-IN THEATRES

Dear Sir—The summer season of holidaying is about over. Many folks are returning to their homes and discussing the reasons for not having Drive-in Theatres in the Province of Quebec. Most of these reasons are heresy and suppositions. We do not know why there is no drive-in theatre in the whole Province of Quebec, while other Provinces enjoy the extra government tax which the revenue from the amusement tax would provide. Sherbrooke has to charge an extra sales tax to meet its financial needs, and this tax has to be paid by the hard-working laborers who have no cars to go to the outer villages to shop. Instead of our city being a grand shopping center, I have found the majority of my friends are discussing the idea of shopping in other smaller centers where there are no extra sales tax. If the City of Sherbrooke had a drive-in theatre, could not some of the amusement tax be used to take the place of the sales-tax? Why not have a drive-in theatre and call the trade into Sherbrooke instead of charging so much sales tax and forcing the thrifty buyers to buy elsewhere?

The moral aspect of a drive-in theatre is to my way of thinking, one of the finest ideas to keep the family all together, having children and younger folks under the supervision of their parents, while they are in the cars watching the show. There are many reasons why a drive-in theatre would be a good thing for the City of Sherbrooke. First, it would bring in customers both for pleasure and commerce, helping to fill the City's treasury department. It would provide constant supervision by parents over youngsters, keeping them off the streets, preventing accidents to pedestrians and children playing on the streets. It is fresh, an entertainment, which is supposed to be healthy; it is clean-minded and does not encourage petting and the so-called "smooching", as there are too many other pairs of eyes to see; it is very educational for the youngsters who are not allowed to enter theatres, but are allowed to go to the Farm Forums for picture shows. I have three children and they are very interested in the Farm Forum pictures and ask a lot of questions about the show. There are many folks who do not like being cooped up in a room packed with people, some on account of shyness, and some from fear of illness. Being able to sit in a car outdoors and see a picture show would be a joy to them.

I would like to hear from anyone of the reasons why there are no drive-in theatres in our province. It does seem a shame that Quebec should pride herself in her Tourist attractions, yet has to let Sherbrooke charge five per cent sales tax, which comes a great deal out of the pockets of those who can ill-afford to pay it, and still has no drive-in theatres to bring in extra revenue. And I predict that if Quebec should try the drive-in theatres, that there would be a huge revenue for the Province.

Sincerely,
K. D. BEAUCAGE

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY

DON'T BE AFRAID TO TAKE A GAMBLE

If everybody always bid and played bridge according to the book, you'd find me playing tidilywinks or a nice snappy round of croquet. Part of the thrill of bridge is getting yourself into the soup—and out of it.

It was a nice thick soup that South plunged into when he bid four spades. He was doomed to lose at least two spades and two clubs. But the hand gave him game and rubber.

West opened the deuce of hearts, and South had a chance—if he could guess the way to play the red suits. If West had led from the king of hearts, South could let the first trick ride around to the jack and then repeat the heart finesse.

This would give him an immediate club discard, after which it would be safe to lead trumps and give up two trumps and one club. As it happened, however, West was the sort of player who had strong (not necessarily sensible) opinions about opening leads.

It didn't matter which opponent ruffed, for the ruff would come at the expense of a natural trump trick. South would lose only one club and two trumps.

For this reason South didn't re-lish the idea of playing West for the king of hearts. West might have held kings in three of the four suits, but he surely didn't have the king of diamonds and therefore could have led a diamond if he had held the king of hearts.

There was only one other chance, and South played for it. He put up the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of diamonds, and led two more top diamonds, discarding the jack of hearts from his hand. The odds were almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break in diamonds, but any other play was sheer surrender.

Fortunately for declarer, both defenders had to follow to three

You, South, hold: Spade 8, hearts 7-4, Diamonds K-Q-J-9-6-3-2, Clubs 8-4. What do you do?
A—Bid three diamonds. This bid shows a strong suit but denies a good hand. You are not over-joyed to get so high with nothing but your diamonds, but your partner would probably be even less happy at spades or hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION
The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 2-3, Hearts 7-4, Diamonds K-Q-J-6-3, Clubs A-J-9-5. What do you do?

The Record Short Story

COURTSHIP OF ROANA

By FRANCIS H. AMES

Our Town has always looked with thinly-veiled amusement upon the Larson family. They are a strange assortment of individuals, to be sure. Abe Larson is a small man, with thin features and pale friendly eyes, straw colored hair, balding head. His wife, Roana, is short and plump, a Cherokee woman, rumored to be the daughter of a chief, a famous trapper of his day. Their son, Rance, stands six foot three, yellow eyed, raw boned, wide shouldered, topped by a shock of flaming red hair.

It is Abe's caution with his burly son that amuses our town, his everlasting worry that the boy will develop into a wild one, a bad man in a country where had men are gone, but yet too near to be yet forgotten.

Larson runs a truck farm at the edge of our town. He sees to it that Rance is kept busy with the hoe, goes to church regularly, keeps away from the pool hall and companions that might be evil.

"The boy has wild blood in him," Abe is wont to remark. "One cannot be too careful in holding him down."

There isn't a milder man than Abe, or one more inclined to peace. Roana is a kindly soul, and she has it that her father, the Cherokee chief, did nothing more infamous than to bring in a prime catch of furs in the old days.

Abe's inference that his son has wild blood appears to our town to be but a reflection of Abe's desire to be thought of as a wild and woolly character in his youth, something that cannot well be imagined.

Our town grins, but way back there is a mental reservation, for many men change with age, and Abe could have been quite a hellion when young. I could tell them many things if I chose to talk, for I was one who courted Roana when she was the most beautiful maiden of the Cherokee kees, with her rich, wild blood tinting her dusky cheeks, her dark, mysterious eyes pulling a way to her, her black hair as sleek and shiny as the wing of a raven.

This was forty years back, when our west was young, when the prairie upon which our town sits rolled endlessly on, unhindered by fence or rail. I knew Abe Larson as a young man.

There were a lot of wild fellows about in those days, but as mild and harmless then as he is today. But he longed for Roana, daughter of Red Fox, as many of us did—myself and Tom Ganton, the cattle baron, Jed Hawkins, and the store-keeper, the blacksmith, mule skinner, card artist, cowboy and drifter alike. Roana attracted them all, like bees to honey, until Red Fox was driven near insane, keeping an eye on the white man and his shy, dusky daughter. I knew Red Fox well.

Courtship was a deadly thing in those days, for the prize went to the strongest, the most ruthless, the law of the survival of the most fit, a rule that spawned a breed of men designed to cope with the advance of civilization across a wilderness. A man killed another over a woman quicker than he did over cheating at cards. He went courting fully armed, especially when the lady was Roana, most beautiful of the Cherokees. Jed Hawkins wore two guns and a Barlow knife in his boot when sparking.

I was riding for Diamond Bar L those days. Abe Larson was the wrangling boy. Jed Hawkins worked for no man, taking what he wanted from all the most feared men in the territory. Red Fox was my friend. We often sat about his tepee fire on an evening, passing the peace pipe back and forth between us. The Cherokee was a silent man, using a gesture, a grunt, an expression in place of words. I thought to win Roana through him, for he was the man who would have the final say. The race was finally narrowed down to Tom Ganton, myself, and Jed Hawkins. We did not consider Abe Larson in the running in those days.

Red Fox gave no indication of which suitor he favored. But when Tom Ganton offered twenty head of horses and a hundred beavers for Roana's hand in marriage the Cherokee took it under consideration. I couldn't blame him, for Tom Ganton was a handsome man, highly respectful. Red Fox was sprawled on his blankets, sodden drunk, whisky bottles strewn about him. One didn't give fire water to an Indian even in the old days, and instantly I knew that Jed Hawkins had been here and done this thing with purpose. There was no sign of Roana.

I found them in the hollow by the river. The things that the moon showed me drove caution and fear away. I fired one shot at Hawkins before his lead cut me down. Roana dragged me to her father's tepee, cared for my wound. It was two months before I could walk again.

It would seem that being nursed by the woman I desired to marry would have been a break for me. It wasn't. The laughter was gone from her lips, the eyes that beckoned to me lidded down and sullen.

Abe Larson came often to see me, looking at Roana with wretched glances. I saw nothing of Jed Hawkins. I wondered if he would be waiting to kill me when I was well again.

After I was able to ride again, Red Fox seemed to enjoy having me along when he covered his trap line. One day we rode up Stinking Water canyon. It was a foul smelling place, strong with the odor of stagnant sulphur water, as near to hell as a man can get on this earth. Near the canyon's head there was a cave under the overhang of the bank, a favorite place for wolves and such to bury their loot of beef bones and venison haunches.

I expected the Cherokee to have traps set in the cave's narrow entrance.

I was surprised when he started to ride by the entrance of the Stinking Water. I checked my mount, looking toward the cave, seeing that its entrance had been closed by the down toppling of the bank overhang. It was ceiling as tight as a drum with tons of earth.

Red Fox' gaze followed my questioning glance. I saw the anger come to his black eyes, to be quickly washed away, leaving his swarthy features as expressionless as though chiseled from granite. He motioned toward the cave with his tomahawk and his lips twisted with contempt.

"Hawkins!" he grunted. One guttural word.

We never saw Jed Hawkins about our town again. He is a man that I'll never forget. I can see him yet, standing spraddle legged at the end of Hank's bar, watching for his gun, a tall, raw-boned man, with yellow eyes and a flaming shock of red hair.

committee for Wednesday's meeting.

Craigie, with South Korean Maj.-Gen. Paik Sun Yup, had accompanied Joy to Tokyo for the talk with Ridgway.

Joy, withheld his formal reply to the two latest accusations that U.N. forces violated the neutrality North Korean Lt.-Gen. Nam II, agreement.

That involved an incident in which a Chinese patrol was ambushed in the neutral zone and its leader killed.

Nam II rejected this, the Korean Reds' Pyongyang radio reported, and demanded "severe punishment of the violators of the neutral zone and a guarantee of the non-recurrence of such incidents."

The "Voice of the United Nations Command" broadcast commented:

On the basis of evidence presented, it would be more logical to assume that the attackers, if any, were a group of partisans operating with the intention of creating an atmosphere of tension under which it would be difficult for the conference to succeed."

The broadcast said the neutrality agreement allotted the Reds "enough fire power to keep order in that zone. Part of the function includes the disbanding of an civilian elements within the area."

The other Red charge is that U.N. planes again strafed a white-flagged communist liaison jeep. The U.N. insists the Reds must report in advance the route and time of such travel. The Reds refuse to do this.

Both allied and Red radios have concentrated attention on the shooting incident. One Red radio broadcast quoted Lt.-Gen. Tung Hua, a Chinese member of the truce delegation as commenting on the incident:

"If we cannot win peace through negotiations, then we must win by force."

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 22.—South Korean infantrymen, attacking behind the most sustained artillery barrage of the Korean war captured a dominating hill in rugged eastern Korea today.

From its crest the South Koreans "look down the throats" of communists on other hills north of Yangju, Associated Press correspondent George A. McArthur reported.

South Koreans seized two other hills on the eastern front, recapturing one from counter-attacking Reds. Communist forces clung to three other eastern ridges they had seized in fierce counter-attacks Tuesday.

A briefing officer estimated Reds lost about 2,000 men in five days of fighting north and north-west of Yangju.

All heavy fighting was along the eastern front. Planes and warships joined United Nations artillery in supporting South Korean infantrymen.

The U.S. cruiser Toledo and destroyer Wedderburn hit "16 large groups of Red soldiers" along the east coast with 23,000 pounds of high explosives, the navy reported.

Mustang fighter planes fire-bombed and strafed Red ridges. Fifth Air Force pilots Tuesday concentrated on hitting intensified Red efforts to resupply their front lines.

From the east-central front correspondent McArthur reported massed allied guns, supporting South Korean infantrymen in a 4½-day attack, fired 12,000 rounds of high explosives. Mortars and the high velocity guns of tanks added to the barrage.

"No unit ever had that much fire support," the division commander said. "The Reds couldn't evacuate. They couldn't resupply. They couldn't do anything."

"I don't think there's one damned man up there," the communists had an estimated 1,000 men in the hill stronghold when the attack started.

When the South Koreans stormed the final crest just before noon Wednesday, only one Red platoon remained, McArthur said.

A battle for the north-south ridge line west of Kansong continued fiercely. South Korean infantrymen seized a new hill from the Reds, but were unable to recapture another crest which the communists grabbed in a counter-attack Tuesday.

On the central front, a U.N. tank-infantry patrol pushed into Pyongyang, at the apex of the Reds' fallen iron triangle. The patrol ran into communist troops before returning to its own lines.

Livestock Clubs Will Observe 25th Anniversary

In connection with the 25th Provincial Rally of Boys and Girls Livestock Clubs to be held at the Sherbrooke Exhibition on August 23, J. P. Fleury, of the Department of Agriculture, has issued a circular to all former members of Calf Clubs.

Mr. Fleury, who is director of the Boys and Girls Livestock Clubs, points out that the occasion is a fitting one for the reunion of the hundreds of Calf Club members who, since 1926, have taken part in the annual contests.

"Some of our former members are grey-haired fathers of families," he said. "The majority of them have fine farms, some others are heads of flourishing enterprises, while still others have joined the ranks of professional men and agronomists. What a stimulant for the young breeders of today to see and consult with these successful men who, just a few years ago, were starting life along the same path as they are!"

He said that the organization committee has prepared an interesting two-day program in honor of the anniversary. At 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, August 29, the visitors are asked to gather at the Livestock Club Building for registration. A supper will be served for a moderate price and two hundred beds have been reserved for the visitors in Sherbrooke's convents and colleges.

Addresses will be made by various agricultural and civic representatives, and in all probability federal and provincial members will also pay a visit to the delegates. The evening will be brought to a close with a dance and a social hour.

On Thursday, the 30th, there will be a meeting in the morning, from 9 to 11:30, when there will be a discussion for the general gathering and suggestions will be welcomed.

This meeting is to be held at the Experimental Farm in Lennoxville, with the cooperation of Mr. Ste. Marie and his assistants.

Mr. Fleury reminded the former members that the next such gathering will be held only in 1976 and urged them to attend in large numbers, with their families and friends.

Windsor Mills, August 22. — The Windsor Mills Branch of the Quebec Women's Institutes met recently at the home of Mrs. J. Watson for its August meeting. Quite a large attendance of members and eight visitors gathered for a pleasant evening. Members answered the roll call by naming a favorite flower. One new member enrolled.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Yves Alain, and the treasurer, Mrs. D. Hutton, gave her report—$81.60 in the funds. A letter of thanks was received from Mr. St. Denis, acknowledging the donation of prizes for the L.N.D. Academy, at the closing of the school term. An acknowledgement was also received from Mrs. Lenton, England, for a parcel of food sent through the personal package scheme. Mr. Albert Gaudreau, M.P., also acknowledged a petition sent from the Windsor Q.W.I. in view of helping the Quebec Cerebral Palsy Association.

In her letter, Mrs. G. Lebaron, provincial president, stressed the important necessity for each Branch to donate the sum of 50¢ per member to establish a fund to cover the Bursary offered in Agriculture.

The sum of $5.00 was voted towards September overseas food parcel to Mrs. Lenton.

A sunshine basket is to be sent to old people from Windsor now at the Wales Home. Mrs. D. Hutton and Mrs. M. Dubuc head the committee to receive donations from members.

The Windsor Branch of the Q.W.I. will have, sometime this fall, a short course in "Home Nursing." Mrs. L. H. Tanner has been appointed convener of the committee to make arrangements. The several donations which had been

Brand Your Mavericks

TAKE a tip from the Western ranchers and round up your mavericks. Then set your own brand on them!

A cattle brand is simply a mark of ownership. Marking your own large and small possessions can be as useful to you as it is to the rancher. On the ranges a roaming calf without a brand becomes the property of the cowboy who finds it. Haven't you noticed that about the same thing happens to unmarked small articles in locker rooms, at swimming pools, and on hikes? Branding handkerchiefs, scarves, note books, overshoes, gloves and many other personal possessions will make it easier for you to keep track of them.

Cowboys spend hours working out their personal brands. (They use a stick on a smoothed-over sandy spot, but you can do as well with paper and pencil.) Everyone of them hopes to use his brand some day when he becomes a big rancher. So even if you never see a cow you can make your own brand. If you can have a castle in Spain, why can't you have a cattle ranch in imagination?

THERE are a few rules to follow in designing a brand. A brand should be easy to read and it should tell something personal and individual about its owner. If possible, it should also be a "good design," in the artistic sense.

Many brands are really monograms or combinations of initials. If a cowboy should talk about a "H B Connected" brand, he is only saying that one side of the H makes one side of the B. In addition, letters may "fly," or "walk," or "run," or even be "lazy." Small extensions at the top of the letters make them "fly"; small extensions at the bottoms of letters make them "walk." Letters written in a sprawling script rather than a block style are said to "run"; letters lying on their sides are obviously "lazy."

A brand can recall happy times to its owner. Will Rogers, the well known cowboy philosopher, spent many evenings with his fam-

United Church Vacation School At Cowansville

States. It depends on the fact that materials containing carbon decrease in radio-activity at a known rate according to age.

A series of complicated chemical processes extracts carbon from the materials and their radio-activity is measured with an advanced type of geiger counter. Tests can determine the age of substances containing carbon as far back as 20,000 years.

The technique will be used to find the date of early settlement by analyzing wooden paddles and tools and charcoal from fireplaces. Historians hope to discover the age of moa bones and timber buried under volcanic eruptions.

Scientists plan to use the technique in soil and agricultural studies. It can also be used in geology, volcanology, glaciology, botany, zoology and archaeology.

Summer Theatre Thriving Group On Lake Simcoe

Jackson's Point, Ont. — The wind and the rain may enter, but the show must go on at the big "Red Barn Theatre."

If it didn't, the 300 vacationists who come nightly to see one of Canada's best-known summer theatre groups in action would be sadly disappointed.

They drive up to see fast-paced presentations of Broadway play, light comedy, character study, or high-keyed melodrama.

This summer the Canadian repertory theatre — a group which plays at Ottawa in the winters — is featuring comedy selections at the Red Barn. They started off with Leslie Howard's "Elizabeth Sleeps Out" and followed with the movie favorite, "Born Yesterday."

The group doesn't attempt many Canadian plays because of the financial risk involved, but it does train Canadian actors.

Flashing-eyed Daphne Goldrick of Vancouver is a newcomer among the Red Barn players. She came to London, Ont., last May with the Vancouver repertory players to play the lead in "Therese" at the Dominion Drama Festival.

She wanted to "play stock" so she stayed behind when the rest of her company returned to the coast. She hopes to find other opportunities to continue her acting when the season closes.

Other young Canadians who hope eventually to reach the "big time" through summer stock are Derek Ralson, also of Vancouver, Michael Gardner and Henry Gamier of Montreal and Barbara Field and Phyllis Malcolm-Stewart of Toronto.

Timothy Moxon of London, England, hopes to move on to Hollywood after the Red Barn doors close at the end of the summer.

Credit for organizing the Red Barn Theatre goes to Brian Doherty, a Toronto theatre man. He sold Amelia Hall, Bruce Raymond and Silvio Rizzardo on the idea two years ago.

The show's gone on—except in the winters—ever since.

Premier Is Patron Of Bedford Fair

Premier Maurice Duplessis, of Quebec, is among the distinguished patrons of the Missisquoi County Agricultural Society whose 122nd annual exhibition starts at Bedford on Thursday.

The other patrons are Hon. Laurent Barre, Quebec minister of agriculture, Senator Adelar Godbout, of Freighsburg, H. A. Gosse, M.P., and J. J. Bertrand, M.L.A.

The correct name for Sodom is Haltonville. Gomorrah—a mile and a half distant—should actually be called Moffatt.

Sodom and Gomorrah in the Bible are two ancient cities of sin. Because Lot was the only righteous man living in them, the Lord told him to flee and then destroyed them with fire from heaven.

However, the people of the modern Sodom and Gomorrah are in no danger of a dose of brimstone. A committee recently compiled a history of the township when it celebrated its centennial. All they could find sinful about Sodom was an old observation that "several parties pretended to keep temperance houses (hotels) and sold whisky until things got too hot for them. Then they dug out."

Linus MacMillan, township clerk, says somebody started calling Sodom by that name for a joke and the name has stuck ever since.

"This place is and always has been called Sodom," he says. "The residents call it by the bigger name (Haltonville) but it doesn't stick worth a straw."

It was the people of Sodom who first gave the name of Gomorrah to Moffatt. Few of the Moffatt people knew about the Gomorrah name now but in the old days the population took the joke in good part and helped carry it along.

Prison Camp Taught P. R. O. Journalism

Calgary. — Eric Humphries got his journalistic experience the hard way.

Humphries, 31, now a public relations official with the Canadian National Railways in London, England, started the writing business in a Japanese prison camp in Java during the second world war.

He told the story while in Calgary during a nine-week tour of C.N.R. offices across Canada.

He was a prisoner-of-war in a Japanese camp at Batavia early in the war when the Japanese provided news bulletins of a sort for the prisoners. But they were written in such bad English that they were practically unintelligible. Humphries got the idea of editing and publishing the news himself from official releases.

He convinced the Japanese authorities this was a good idea, and with the help of a fellow prisoner and a typewriter, borrowed from the Japanese he put out a single-sheet weekly paper for nearly three years.

"We found out later that the 'news' we got from the Japs was highly-colored propaganda," he said. "But at least it gave the boys an idea of where the fighting was going on."

sound devices follow the movement of the object."

Mr. Coates said that three-dimensional effects have been tried by movie-makers before but the sound angle is new.

"I feel there is room for television and cinema existing side by side in most countries," Mr.

Coates said. "New cinema techniques will call for a new type of movie-making while television will adapt itself to the special needs of the home viewer."

Shortages Hamper Big French Trade In Cooked Snails

By CARL HARTMAN

Barr, France. — A supply crisis is creeping up on the French snail industry, and it's no joke to Adolphe Willm.

He's the "snail king" of north-eastern France, and his factory supplies processed snails as far as Paris and Lyon. It is one of the big money earners in this town near Strasbourg.

Many tourists take at least one stab at eating snails, always drenched in garlic. They cost between $1.10 and $1.40 a dozen in restaurants.

Although snails are prepared in France, they are mostly imported alive from Germany — 3,000 or 4,000 tons a year. For 19 years, Willm says, German law has protected the supply by declaring a closed season part of each year.

"Unfortunately," Willm said, "a lot of Germans acquired a taste for snails in the four years they occupied France. We used to get all we needed from Wurttemberg and Baden. Now we have to bring them from all over western Germany, and the price is going up all the time."

Purchasing agents in German towns send their supplies to a central snail depot at Kehl, just across the Rhine from Strasbourg. From there they go largely to Willm, or to the snail canneries of Burgundy.

During the season, which runs from October to March, Willm eats snails three or four times a week. He recommends them with a nice cold risling wine, which he makes himself and sells as far away as San Francisco.

At 54, Willm has always been in the wine-and-snail business. His 27-year-old son is in it with him, and a grandson, he hopes, will follow.

The snails are starved for 10 to 15 days to remove impurities. Then they are plunged into boiling water to kill them and get them out of their shells. Shells and snails then part company, to meet again only at the end of the process.

A strong broth is brewed from the snails, for which Willm claims great virtues. It is highly seasoned, with herbs and a lot of garlic. Meanwhile, the shells have been sterilized. The holes are repaired with a kind of cement Willm prepares from crushed shells. Repairing the shells requires a specially-made brass instrument like a syringe.

The snails are then stuffed back into shells—naturally not the ones they originally came from. The sauce is added and the opening of the shell corked with a pat of butter.

They are delivered fresh to restaurants, where they need only be heated before serving. The ultimate consumer pulls the snail from the shell with a special two-pronged fork and mops up the sauce with bread. Willm says some food fanciers don't even bother with the snail—it's the sauce that counts.

Women Drinkers Growing Problem In South Africa

Johannesburg. — Before the second world war drunkenness among women was almost unknown in South Africa. Today the problem is causing concern among welfare societies.

While the number of women convicted of drunkenness has more than doubled in recent years, the total is considered negligible among the whole population. The chief worry is over the proper treatment of women inebriates.

There is no institution set aside for treatment of women alcoholics and the Rand Aid Association has taken the lead in raising funds for such an institution. The association expects the problem to grow worse.

A changed social attitude towards drinking is blamed by welfare officers. Little more than 10 years ago it was unusual to see a woman drinking in public. Dances for instance were usually of the lemonade and buns variety.

The war however speeded up the change and one welfare officer said "the shame of being drunk no longer exists among an ever-increasing number of young women."

"Today," said this expert, "there appears nothing extraordinary about a party where women of all ages take drink for drink with the men, even past the stage where they are slurring their words and bumping into doorways."

Another welfare worker here said "young girls nowadays think it's old-fashioned to refuse a cocktail. A hangover is not considered a disgrace. The greatest boast of many young women is that they can 'hold their liquor like a man.'"

This worker said the attitude toward drinking is not confined to the lower-income groups. "I think it is more rife among the better-educated girls who come from good homes."

Realistic Films Planned

Montreal. — In the not far distant future, tanks may roar right off the theatre screens, over the heads of audiences and disappear with a crash through balcony exits.

This far-fetched fantasy already is a reality to W. W. Wells Coates, British industrial designer, who explained in a recent interview here how he worked this and similar tricks for an experimental film at the Festival of Britain.

"We have designed and are operating telecinema, a three-dimensional operation with three-dimensional pictures and three dimensional sound," said Mr. Coates.

"The images on the screen seem to come right off the surface and descend into the audience. Special view of the picture. He thinks the social pendulum may be swinging back again and believes "there is a tendency to pull up."

Annual Exhibition At Ayer's Cliff Starts Thursday

Outstanding Entertainment Program Features Hamid Show, Green Midway

The annual exhibition of the Stanstead County Agricultural Society starts at Ayer's Cliff tomorrow and a gala program, featuring fine entertainment and outstanding exhibits, has been lined up by the directors.

A total of $7,000 in prizes is being offered to exhibitors - this year and there are many special awards that will make this one of the most worthwhile fairs in the Eastern Townships.

The three-day fair is the 106th staged by the Stanstead County Agricultural and Horticultural Societies.

A sparkling grandstand show, featuring George Hamid artists, the T. Green Amusement Company's midway, daily harness races and music by the Canaan, Vt., band are some of the highlights of the entertainment program.

The Hamid show features some of the finest artists in this field of entertainment and the acts have won high acclaim at the Richmond and Cookshire Fairs.

The Canaan band is a 20-piece aggregation with three attractive majorettes. Lynwood Peck is band leader.

At the last meeting of directors of the Agricultural Association, caretaker A. H. Slack announced that the new cattle sheds have been completed with water and lights and are a fine addition to housing accommodation. They will be used for Ayrshire cattle.

The new grounds have been improved and will be used for machine and car exhibits. Among the exhibitors at the fair this year will be Morrisett Ltd., of Sherbrooke, Charles Brewer, agent, Edouard Darcy, Magog, Dore Motor Sales, Magog, Marchand Automobile Rep., Magog.

Suffrage Veteran First Woman Head For Quebec Party

By MAX McMAHON
 Montreal. — The first woman ever to lead a recognized party in Quebec politics is a 53-year-old grandmother, long interested in women's progress.

Madame Therese Casgrain, recently elected leader of the Quebec section of the C.C.F. party, has been known for 20 years as a tireless champion of the rights of women in Quebec.

She played a big part in obtaining the franchise for Quebec women in 1940, and in helping to bring about legislation the following year which allows women to practice law in this province.

It was Mme Casgrain, too, who made sure that the federal family allowance cheques were made payable to mothers—not fathers—in Quebec.

When the first cheques were about to be mailed word leaked out that for some reason it would be the fathers who would be recipients in Quebec. Mme Casgrain stumped the province, hounded federal officials and organized a flood of protests to Ottawa. Her campaign lasted only three weeks but when the cheques came out, later than those for other parts of Canada, they came to the women.

Mme Casgrain joined the C.C.F. three years ago because, she said, she felt the party had a "positive approach" to social questions which fitted in with her way of thinking.

She had not always had socialist leanings. In 1942 she was an independent Liberal candidate for the Charlevoix-Saguenay seat in the House of Commons, which her late husband, Mr. Justice Pierre Casgrain, had vacated on his appointment to the Quebec Superior Court. Her father, Sir Rodolphe Forget, earlier had held this seat for 13 years as a Conservative.

Mrs. Casgrain didn't win, but was second in a field of five, losing out to Frank Dorion, independent and veteran of politics.

Mme. Casgrain has just returned from a four-month tour of Europe which was to have been just a holiday, but the vivacious grandmother isn't content to go around looking at historic monuments and ancient edifices.

While in Germany she attended the international socialist conference at Frankfurt as a C.C.F. delegate.

But it was Holland that impressed her most. "In Amsterdam they have the most wonderful low-cost housing schemes I have ever seen," she said. "The Dutch don't have the marvellous natural resources that we have in Canada. It's just that they know what they want, and they go out and get it."

"Here in Canada we spend vast sums every year on hospitals. I think that is wonderful, but wouldn't it be better if we concentrated on getting the people out of the slums and into decent houses? That alone would cut down a lot of the disease that puts people into hospitals. That would be positive."

"Some people call the C.C.F. impractical idealists. Well, I have brought up a family of four and now have three grandchildren from whom I baby-sit. I know what it is to be practical."

Ferguson implements.

Booths in the main building will include those of Southern Canada Power Company, Stanstead County Women's Institute, John Hunter, Sherbrooke Daily Record, Lesvesque sewing machine of Sherbrooke, Belding Corticelli, and Hugh McFadden.

In the harness racing field, five events will be run off on the three days. There will be one race Thursday for a $240 purse and two races on Friday and Saturday, again for 240 purses. All are classified races.

NORTH HATLEY

Mr. Joseph Ditchburn recently received the sad news of the death of his youngest brother, Mr. Thomas Ditchburn, of Flimby, Cumberland, England. Mr. Ditchburn passed away following an amputation of both his legs. He is survived by his wife, and four children.

Word has been received that young Joe Ditchburn has joined the special European force of the Black Watch, and is now stationed at Valcartier.

Members of the North Hatley branch of the Quebec Women's Institute, who attended the August quarterly meeting of the Stanstead County W.I., at Stanstead North, were Mrs. Grant LeBaron, provincial president, Mrs. Henry Blackford, County convener of Education, Mrs. V. E. McKay, convener of Education of the North Hatley branch, and Mrs. Gladys Kezar, Citizenship Convener of the North Hatley branch, the North Hatley branch of the Q.W.I., also held a successful food sale in the Park. Mrs. Grant LeBaron, Mrs. Spice, Mrs. Cruickshank and Mrs. G. E. Bennett were the committee in charge.

Miss Florence Parker, Miss Ethel Bennett, Mrs. Joseph Ditchburn, Mrs. G. E. Bennett, and Mrs. Milton Sharman attended a dinner in the Barnston Town Hall, given in aid of the Barnston Baptist Church. After dinner, the party drove to Sherbrooke, and the Sherbrooke Hospital, where Miss Parker and

Most of the books remained in storage, as they had been during the hostilities, but now the library too can have its big reconstruction thanks to the student volunteers.

A dozen of these students, members of the British Students United Nations Association, aged between 18 and 25, have volunteered to do a month's labor on the library.

With help from the director of French libraries, and a number of specialists including U.N. experts, the students will classify between 10,000 and 15,000 books during their stay, which starts August 15. The town of Dunkerque will provide board and lodging and provide spare-time excursions for the visitors.

The Strasbourg library will also benefit from another project of the U.N. educational, scientific and cultural organization. There a party of British students will micro-film and label the volumes, selecting works which may be exchanged for volumes to replace war losses.

Students Work On Library At Dunkerque

Paris. — A dozen British students of both sexes are spending part of their summer holidays working hard and willingly on reconstruction of the famous library at Dunkerque.

Although the library was one of the few buildings left standing in that coastal town after the second world war, its full restoration had to be postponed while more urgent tasks were undertaken in the coastal town which was the scene of the great British evacuation.

Mrs. Ditchburn visited Mrs. Thomas Parker, of North Hatley, who is a patient there.

Crinoline Style Leading Feature Of London Shows

By MURIAL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London. — For women who like the wide skirts of picture gowns and the soft swish of silk petticoats, London's "big ten" fashion designers include a wide selection in the fall fashion displays.

Newest styles may be the fish-tail look, the mermaid line or the close sheathing of an Egyptian mummy, but each designer spotlights at least one richly decorated crinoline style that might have swished down the staircases of old London houses more than a century ago.

The continued popularity of these unwieldy dresses is partly due to the Queen's preference for these styles. On each state occasion since the end of the second world war, she has chosen embroidered crinolines of tulle, net, lace or satin. And on such occasions her choice is generally followed by that of the two Princesses. The wide-skirted gowns make a perfect setting for heavy state jewelry and the rich background of official banquets.

Some of the smartest of this year's crinoline models are the work of Norman Hartnell, the Queen's designer. Widest skirt in his present collection is a grey and mauve tulle called Versailles. Secret of its charm lies in the delicate shading of its rain-cloud coloring. The diaphanous theme is accentuated by a skirt trimming of grey and mauve osprey plumes forming a waving cloud around the hem and decorating the single draped shoulderline and accompanying stole.

Color, used with the abandon of paint, gives a glowing appeal to two experimental dresses by Victor Stiebel. Done in handkerchief points of paper-thin taffeta, the wide skirts are a blending of seven or eight colors combining a variety of shades.

Much applause was given Stiebel's enormous evening skirts of heavy satin in dark shades of peacock blue, midnight blue and silver. These are combined with cosy cashmere sweaters in black, decorated with gold baroque embroidery. Always popular for rush occasions, these skirt and sweater outfits are likely to be in big demand. Embroidered sweaters have been scarce on the home market for years.

For cocktail wear Michael Sherard shows a crinoline of black velvet worn over several stiffened petticoats and lavishly embroidered with raised flowers of black silk braid. One of his eye-catching full-length picture gowns is in orchid mauve lace over rustling taffeta and glittering with sequins. A spider's web of grey lace sweeps out behind, matching a lace stole floating over strapless shoulders and bronze sequined bodice.

Most of the wide-skirted dresses are in floating clouds of tulle and lace or heavy slipper satin, taffeta and velvet.

At Ayer's Cliff Fair

Above is a replica of the bronze head of the late Harry A. Norton, prominent industrialist and benefactor of many E. T. institutions, which will be on exhibit in the fine arts division of the Ayer's Cliff Fair, commencing Thursday.

The bust is the work of Orson Wheeler, A.R.C.A., S.S.C., lecturer in fine arts at Sir George Williams College, Montreal. Some time after its exhibit this work of art will be unveiled at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts where it will be permanently kept.

On the acceptance of this work by the Montreal, Mr. Wheeler says: "It is a rare thing; most sculptors have only one of their works accepted in a lifetime."

The original is now at the U.S. home of Miss Helen Norton, in Boston. A native of Barnston and graduate of Bishop's University, Mr. Wheeler studied sculpture in New York City. He is a vice-president of the Stanstead Historical Society and members of its custodian committee and is chairman of the permanent collection committee of the Canadian Handicrafts Guild.

African Natives Learn First-Aid With Enthusiasm

Johannesburg. — Knowledge of magical incantations, of evil-tasting potions and of "throwing the bones" no longer is sufficient for the African witch doctor.

Even in the most remote villages it is becoming more and more necessary for him to have a knowledge of first aid, and it must be according to Red Cross standards, supported by certificates and medals.

The native African is fast taking to regulation first aid, and incantations just won't do any more to treat a drowning person, for instance. There are far too many tribesmen with knowledge of artificial respiration for the witch doctor to get by with the old spells.

The natives pack the stands at every first aid contest between African teams competing for the favor of the white judges and officials, and of the crowd. Such events draw as much enthusiasm as a football game.

Team-leaders put on a great show, tumbling and leaping, clowning and howling. But in spite of the horseplay the tests are carried out with speed and efficiency. Tourniquets are in the right spots, bandages correctly tied and applied, rules of hygiene are not forgotten and splints are just what the doctor ordered.

The best-tied bandage will slip sometimes, and when this happens there is a roar of derision for the offending team. But after the competition finishes there is a grand party for the winners. Meat and potatoes are roasted over open fires and African beer flows freely. African drums pound out a challenge which carries down the wind to the next compound.

These events have helped to train thousands of illiterate natives in first aid work. Last year alone the total was 37,942, and the reserve of trained first-aiders grows every year.

William A. Tasker, Red Cross secretary in the Rand and chief of the Red Cross service which trains them, estimates there are nearly 500,000 qualified workers now.

Their growing influence in tribal life is reflected in numerous official reports. One magistrate notes that a party of white motorists received efficient first aid from a blanket-clad tribesman when their car overturned. Another reports that an African woman's life was saved by a first-aid who properly treated ugly wounds inflicted by a crocodile.

In the gold and coal mines of the Transvaal the first aid expert gets an extra three-pence a shift and is in line for promotion to the coveted job of "boss boy."

Canadian Tennis Championships Move Into High Gear With Arrival Of Top Stars; Moves Into Third Round

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 22.—The Canadian Lawn Tennis Championships moved into high gear today with the arrival of the top-ranking competitors.

Fresh from the hurly-burly of the tennis wars at Quebec City, a plane load of top-seeded stars blew into town yesterday and almost at once began thrashing their opponents unmercifully.

Canadian Davis Cuppers Brendan Macken of Montreal, Lorne Main of Vancouver and Henri Rochon of Montreal all won their second-round men's singles matches. All had drawn first-round byes.

Macken defeated Gert Lukk, Sarnia, Ont., 6-1, 6-1. Main stopped Frank Skierski, Hamtramck, Mich., 6-2, 6-0, while Rochon topped Mario Paperella, Detroit, 6-0, 6-1.

Pat Macken of Montreal and Pat Lowe of Toronto, who accompanied the Davis Cuppers here from Quebec, did not see action yesterday. They are seeded No. 1 and No. 2 among Canadian entries in the women's singles event.

Tony Vincent of Long Island, N.Y., seeded No. 1 among U.S. entries, saw his first action too, scoring a pair of rapid-fire victories after his late arrival.

Vincent knocked off Jim Taylor of Toronto 6-0, 6-0 in the second round of the men's singles, and came right back to eliminate Alex Hetzeck of Detroit 6-1, 6-1 in the third round.

Seymour Greenberg, Chicago,

Ill., seeded No. 2 behind Vincent, won his only match of the day, stopping Jacques Gigeure of Quebec, 6-2, 6-3.

Leonard Brose, Detroit, who rates No. 4, was upset by Lawrence Barclay of Vancouver, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Doris Poppel, Des Moines, Iowa, ranked No. 1 among U.S. contestants, easily disposed of Pat Hartley of Sarnia, Ont., 6-2, 6-1, in a second-round women's singles match.

In outstanding third-round men's singles matches today, Macken will meet William Mikulich of Ann Arbor, Mich. Main faces Paul Willey of Vancouver, and Rochon tangles with the winner of a second-round match between Jim Bentley, Toronto, and Richard Lincoln of Ann Arbor.

Beau Summers, Toronto, will clash with Donald B. Hodges, Regina, Sask.

Top matches in women's singles play will pit Pat Macken against Dorothy Hurst of Toronto, Pat Lowe against Marie Laframboise of Quebec, and Lucille Brown against Jackie Merner of Kitchener.

A Magical Sewing Machine

Do you believe it? The six-year-old child in the picture, operating this sewing machine, is able to do fancy sewing that an experienced seamstress would find impossible on an ordinary machine. This seemingly impossible situation is explained when it is realized that the child is operating an automatic sewing machine, the only one of this type in the world. It operates by pushing buttons. The well-known types of zig-zag sewing machines give satisfactory results when operated by experienced people; but anyone can operate this machine by simply pressing buttons. The little six-year-old girl in the photograph will demonstrate this astonishing automatic sewing machine in the LEVESQUE LIMITED BOOTH in the Main Building of the Sherbrooke Fair! Don't fail to see this machine; it's unique.

Phil Cavarretta Signs To Manage Chicago Cubs For Next Season

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—(AP)—plans to continue as an active player, mostly in pinch-hitting roles. Since taking over, his brightest spot was a pinch-hit home run with the bases full. It beat the Philadelphia Phillies.

The 35-year-old outfielder-first baseman had proved to the Cubs management in one short month that their "snap judgment" selection of Cavarretta was no fluke.

On July 21, and also in Philadelphia, Frank Frisch stepped out as manager of the Cubs.

Wid C. Matthews, director of player personnel, said today "that was at 5:30 and we had to have a manager for the next day. So we called Phil and asked him if he'd take over for the rest of the season."

"He has proved to our satisfaction," Matthews said today, "that he is a first rate manager. He has done a swell job since he took over."

Actually, the announcement of Cavarretta's new contract today was a bit of a surprise. When his selection as manager first was announced, the Cubs' front office specified that it was temporary, for the remainder of this year only, and a new manager would be named for next season.

Under Frisch, the Cubs had won 35 of their first 80 games, a .438 record.

Under Cavarretta they have played 471 ball, winning 16 and losing 18 to boost their percentage by today to .447 on a 51-63 record for the season. The team is in seventh place, a notch above the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In addition to managing, Cavarretta has gone ahead with his

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT (For HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—About two more false alarms and baseball fans are going to lose all interest in the name of the next Commissioner.

Coming out of the hotel yesterday after a long, hard day of riding herd on the assembled magnates we ran squarely into a stocky little man wearing a broad smile and a straw skimmer.

"Who did they elect?" demanded Gene Sarazen. Nobody, he was told with perhaps a touch of asperity.

"What do those guys think they're doing—electing the president of the U.S.?" chuckled Gene, who was something of a golfer in his day. "I'll bet they don't name him until the day before the World Series."

That's all we would need.

Some Benefit
However, Chuck Comiskey, youthful vice-president of Chicago White Sox, came out of the latest meeting feeling that the extended get-togethers of the owners of both big leagues are having a salutary effect generally and will work for the betterment of the game.

"We've been talking things over freely and in an excellent spirit," he said. "For one thing, I believe now that the fellows in the National League understand the American Leaguers better—and perhaps vice versa. It is bound to be a good thing."

Some owners never quite got over the feeling that they had had Senator A. B. Chandler jammed down their throats at the famous meeting in Cleveland seven years ago. None can ever claim that he wasn't given full voice in choosing the game's next boss.

Sights And Sounds
Del Webb of the Yankees, surrounded by reporters, doing his best to give the boys something to write about without imparting any real information. The man from Phoenix, Ariz., who was in the forefront of the successful battle to remove Chandler, has become in recent months a sort of official spokesman for the owners. He is smooth, even for a millionaire.

A voice from the crowd—"why don't you fellows give the job to Bill Veeck? Then you wouldn't have to worry about him and his midgies."

Horace Stoneham, Giants—"Just think, if we hadn't lost those 11 in a row right at the start we would be right in the race today. Up there if we had even broken But, for that matter, we would be even in our games with the Dodgers. Maybe we can do it yet."

Batting
Wes Westrum, Giants—climaxed six-run eighth inning rally with three-run homer to give New York 7-4 victory over Cincinnati.

Pitching
Bob Feller, Indians—became first major leaguer to win 20 games as he pitched Cleveland to a 6-0 triumph over Washington.

Warren Giles, Governor Lausche And Ford Frick Leading Candidates For Baseball Commissioner Position

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The new Baseball Commissioner, who may be named at the major league joint meeting in Chicago Sept. 20, will be either Warren Giles, Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio or Ford Frick.

In a meeting here yesterday, the club owners narrowed the field of candidates down to these three men, the Associated Press learned today. The owners also voted that the executive council call a meeting for Sept. 20 to elect a czar, with increased powers and a larger salary than any of his predecessors. However, the fact that three names remain, does not mean that one must be elected Commissioner. Happy Chandler, the ousted Commissioner, was a dark horse when he was elected.

Del Webb, vice-president of the New York Yankees and chairman of the screening committee, announced at the close of yesterday's session that the field had been whittled down from 11 to five.

It was learned on good authority, however, that two of the five who had in mind were Douglas MacArthur and Milton Eisenhower, president of Penn State University. The others were Lausche, Giles and Frick. Giles is president of Cincinnati Reds and Frick is president of the National League.

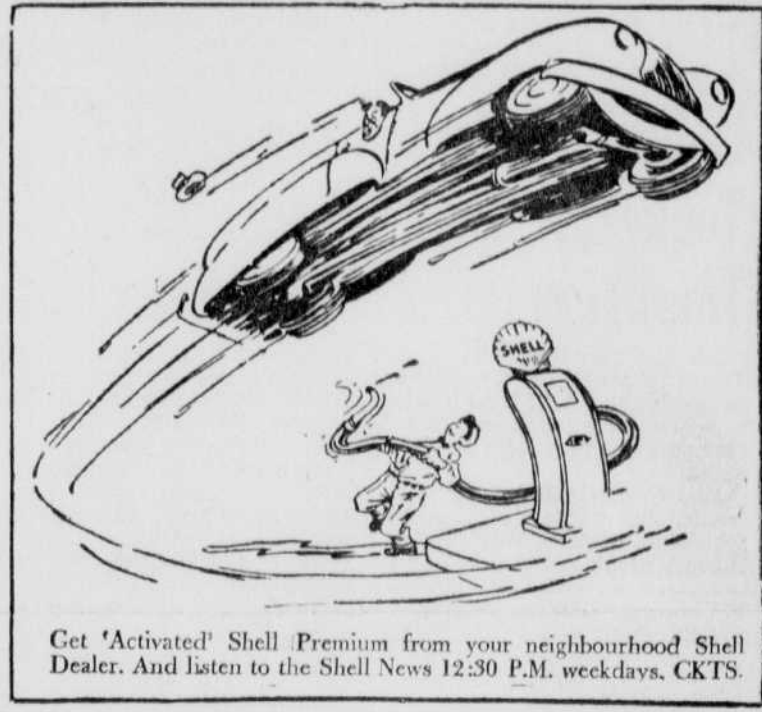

Eisenhower and MacArthur could still be considered last-minute candidates if either decides to throw his hat into the ring. Up to now, both have said they felt "honored but could not accept the position." However, it was felt in some quarters that they might change their minds.

Thus, the former list of 11 candidates, which had a strong military flavor, has been stripped of all unidentified candidates—with the possible exception of MacArthur. Among those eliminated were Gen. Dwight Eisenhower; Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, commander of U.S. Air Forces; Gen. Clifton B. Gates, commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, assistant U.S. chief of staff. All of these men are believed to have declared themselves unavailable, due to the unsettled global situation.

A club owner who did not wish to be identified revealed that Giles drew the most support in an informal vote at yesterday's session. Giles, generally regarded as the best-versed person on technical baseball law in the majors, received 10 of 16 votes. Frick and Lausche got nine each. In other words, none received the required 12 votes that is necessary to win.

Rene Pepin Signs With Sherbrooke Hockey Club

Local Youngster Joins Senior Club, Played With Three Rivers For Past Two Seasons And Was Top Scorer

Rene Pepin, a local youngster who was forced to leave town in order to prove himself in junior provincial ranks, will be with the Sherbrooke Saints in the Senior Group this year, announced Forest Pepin, who has played two years with the Three Rivers in the Junior League, signed his contract with the local club and will join the squad when they commence training next month at the Arena on September 16. He is the third player to reach terms with the Saints. The others were Roger Bessette, the goal keeper, and Nils Tremblay, who the locals purchased from the Senators.

Pepin was the leading scorer with the Reds and he finished the season in fourth position in the league. He amassed a total of 32 points comprised of 52 goals and 30 assists. He is a right winger and tips the scales at 160 pounds and stands 5'8".

With the Reds he formed one of the most dangerous trios in the circuit with Marcel Joannette and Roger Dubuc. He will be 21 years old in December and has played three years in the Provincial Junior League. In 1948-49 he commenced with St. Hyacinthe and when they folded he joined the Winged Wheelers of Verdun and then with Three Rivers.

Pepin lives with his family at 71 Lincoln Street and learnt his hockey in Sherbrooke. He started with Racine School midgets and then the St. Charles Seminary. He never played juvenile hockey as he jumped right from midgets to junior ranks.

He is not only a good hockey player but plays baseball and softball as well. He hurls for the Dominion Textile team which has just won the league championship in the Sherbrooke Industrial Softball League. Last season he was with Sherbrooke Lesard but he didn't play this season.

Moncton Offers Big Contract To Anderson

Moncton, N.B., Aug. 22.—(P)—Lebaron A. Reid, president of the Moncton Hawks Club of the Maritime Major Hockey League, said last night he had air mailed the "biggest contract ever offered a coach in the Maritimes" to Tommy (Cowboy) Anderson, of Drumheller, Alta.

Anderson, former coach of Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League, agreed to terms by telephone several days ago, Reid said. He declined to reveal the salary the former N.H.L. player would receive but said it included "substantial" bonuses based on the position in which the team finished in the league standing.

Reid said the Maritime Major League Championship would be the goal of this year's edition of the Hawks. Last season the team finished in the cellar of a four-team league.

Archie Wilson Playing Big Part For Buffalo

Archie Wilson's prolific clutch-hitting for Buffalo Bisons is making him one of the most feared batsmen in the International League.

The slugging Buffalo outfielder became the first player to drive in 100 runs when he blasted his 26th home run last night. The circuit clout came in the 12th inning and gave the Bisons a 3-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wilson is now only three home runs behind the Baltimore Orioles' Marv Rickert, who tops the league in round trippers with 29.

The hitting Bison also possesses the most hits in the loop, 163, and is the second leading batter with an average of .315.

All of Buffalo's runs came as the result of homers as Wally Post socked a four-master in the first frame with a man on base. Johnny Ostrowski bashed a sixth-inning home run for Toronto that tied the score and enabled Wilson to break the deadlock. Ray Shore, making his 50th mound appearance, suffered the setback, while Mike Schultz gained the triumph.

Bill Baker and Loren Babe sparked Syracuse Chiefs to a 7-4 victory over the Ottawa Giants. Baker smacked a grand-slam home run in the opening frame and Babe rapped out four hits in five trips as lefty Bill Miller won his 13th game of the season.

Baltimore clipped the second place Rochester Red Wings 3-1 behind Jake Schmitt's seven-hit performance in the opening frame and Damon Phillips aided Schmitt in attaining his tenth victory.

The Montreal-Springfield game was rained out.

OPTIMISTS CLUB TO ENTERTAIN KIDDIES TONIGHT

President Jacques Laliberte and the members of the Sherbrooke Optimists Club should be the looks of things more than have their hands full this evening when they play hosts to the youngsters of the City at the baseball game.

The Club had fifteen hundred tickets printed for the occasion but these were picked up like hot-cakes within a few days, from the different stores around town. And by the looks of things the figure should almost double the amount figured at the start.

It looks as though baseball has really taken on and the youngsters are turning into real fans. They all have their favorite player and are not afraid to support him when he pulls off a nice play or lashes out with a good hit.

We think that the team has come up with a wonderful idea by having the "Home-run and Fungo-hitting" contest at the same time. This will definitely go over big with the kiddies and the contestants will receive strong support from them.

Drummondville possesses some of the best hitters in the loop as well as the local club and it will be interesting to watch such players as Davis, Perez, Paules and Atkins comparing their strength against Duany, Metz, Garcia, Gladu and the little fellow with the powerful swing, Pedro Barlester.

And on the top of all this there is the ball game between the Cubs and the A's and this should really finish off the evening in fine style. Stan Breard's squad will no doubt be out to make a good pasting of the season's best, but on the other hand Gladu's club will want to improve their standing at the expense of the Drummondville team so all in all it should be a very interesting evening.

The hitting contest will commence at 7.45 and come early and watch the activities. The Sherbrooke Harmony Band will also be on hand so what more could a fan ask for.

The playoffs in the Sherbrooke Industrial Softball League will commence this evening at Dufresne Park when Textile, loop champs, will tangle with Eric Mills and Railroaders will tangle with Rubins in a best-of-three series.

Monday evening the Textile club walked off with the pennant while Railroaders took the worst pasting of the season, 5-3, by the Machinery crew. This gave Tommy Stocks' team their first championship, in their first year in the circuit, by a single point over the Railmen.

Following this semi-final playoff the winners will get together in a best-of-five series for the right to represent Textile in the circuit in the City playdowns. Railroaders were minus their regular battery of Dube and Blondeau but we doubt if this would have made the whole difference as Bill Cochran's team was playing heads-up and if you would have thought that they were the top club in the league and not their opponents.

This coming series should be a good one as the four teams will stage a real battle before the winner is decided and we should see some very good games. The first game is tonight with the second game on Saturday.

Bob Murphy Predicts He Will Knock Out Maxim And Win Light-Heavy Title

New York, Aug. 22.—(P)—Confident Bob Murphy predicts he will knock out light-heavyweight king Joe Maxim and become the new champion tonight.

"I'm going to knock him out within seven rounds, and with a left hook to the body," said the husky, hard-hitting San Diego red-head as he awaited the 19 p.m. EDT starting gong for the 15-round title scrap in Madison Square Garden. The bout will be broadcast on a telecast.

"I'll win 'I've got to win," was the way Maxim put it as the swarthy champion in defending his crown for the first time since he lifted it from Freddie Mills with a 10-round kayo in London 10 months ago.

The bettors lean to Murphy. Solid support for the challenger in the last few days has zoomed him from an underdog to an 8 1/2-5 choice.

Maxim's lack-lustre workouts are the reason for the switch in odds. When the bout was made after Maxim took a 15-round pasting from Ezzard Charles, the champion was rated 2-1 choice.

But to make the prediction a reality, Bannister must beat the record of 4.014 set by the Swedish star, Gunder Haegg, in 1946.

Harry Matthews Scores Win Over Jose Basora

Portland, Ore., Aug. 22.—(P)—Harry (Kid) Matthews, 172, Seattle, extended his knockout string to seven by stopping Jose Basora, 172, New York, in 2:33 minutes of the fourth round last night.

Referee Eddie Volk stopped the fight after Matthews had delivered a terrific right cross to Basora and floored the Puerto Rican opponent for the third time.

Special Features On Tonight's Game Between Cubs And Athletics; Optimists Club Hosts To Youngsters

All scheduled games in the Provincial Baseball League last night were rained out but this evening three tilts are on the agenda. Drummondville pays a visit to Sherbrooke while Farnham and Granby will meet and St. Hyacinthe and St. Johns will get together.

Tomorrow evening the Royals of Three Rivers will visit the Park Avenue Stadium to tangle with the Athletics in a regular fixture of the schedule. In Del Bissonnette's team the local fans will see one of the hottest clubs in the circuit just at present. During the past few weeks they have consistently been knocking off the top clubs in the league and no doubt they will give a good account of themselves.

In the games played so far this season between the teams Stan Breard's squad holds the upper hand. However, the local fans are not ready to admit that the Drummondville clan is better than Gladu's aggregation. No doubt the next few games will go a long way towards settling this controversy.

One thing that everyone admits, is that both teams has a real bunch of sluggers, and in order to have the fans see this power at work, a Home Run Contest has been organized and will include fence-busters such as Davies, Perez, Atkins, etc., against the artillery of Garcia, Duany, Ballester, Metz and Gladu.

Each player will be entitled to six balls and the one that will expedite the most out of the ball park will be declared the winner and given a valuable prize by the Sherbrooke Baseball Club. There will also be prizes for the second and third player of the contest.

In Drummondville, as usual, they only see Davies alone. In Sherbrooke, however, we believe that Duany is also very capable, and that if he had reported here at the beginning of the season he would be so far ahead of Davies that it would not be worth mentioning.

Another interesting contest will be the "fungo-hitting" contest for the pitchers. Last year, Ray Brown won it easily and the players better be good to beat him this year.

These contests will start at 7.45 and will be followed by the game immediately after. We are sure that the fans will want to be there and see their favourite sluggers in action. It's also the Optimist Night for the boys on Wednesday next.

Bob Feller Chalks Up His 20th Win Of Season; Yanks And White Sox Cop Games; Giants Registered Their 10th

Bob Feller has reached the first of two goals set before the start of the 1951 season. The 32-year-old Cleveland righthander set 20 victories and a World Series triumph as his prime targets for the season.

Feller realized his first ambition last night as he became the major's first 20-game winner and the way the Indians are travelling these days he stands a good chance of attaining the other.

The no-hit master pitched the Indians to a 6-0 triumph over Washington Senators to preserve Cleveland's one-game edge over the runner-up New York Yankees. The Yanks hammered Detroit Tigers 11-4, while St. Louis Browns upset the third-place Boston Red Sox 6-4, and Chicago White Sox defeated Philadelphia Athletics 13-5 in other American League games.

In the National League, New York Giants stretched their winning streak to 10 games, beating Cincinnati Reds 7-4. Philadelphia Phils nipped Chicago Cubs 3-2 in 12 innings in completing a suspended game of July 22 and then downed the Cubs 4-1 in the regular scheduled game. Boston Braves clipped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1. Rain washed out a game between St. Louis and Brooklyn in the third inning.

Feller allowed only six singles and was in command throughout. It is Feller's first 20-victory season since 1947 and his sixth in 13 seasons—a feat matched by only five other American League pitchers, Cy Young, Walt Johnson, Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell and Eddie Plank.

Larry Doby hit his 19th homer for the winners in the seventh. The loss was Washington's 10th straight.

Yogi Berra, Gene Woodling and Johnny Mize led the Yankees' 17-hit attack against the Tigers. Berra poked his third homer in as many games to open the Yank scoring. Woodling drove home four runs on as many hits and Mize featured a five-run fourth inning with a two-run homer.

Jim McDonald turned back the Red Sox on two hits at St. Louis. The Browns clubbed a trio of Boston pitchers for 10 hits.

Chicago ran up an 8-0 lead over the A's in the first two innings to win in a breeze. Luis Aloma, who took over in the third from Saul Rogovin, gained credit for his fifth victory without a loss.

The Giants poled three home runs in the eighth inning and scored six runs to beat the Reds. Homers by Ed Stanky and Whitey Lockman tied the score at 4-4 and Wes Westrum followed with a three-run blast off Frank Smith to win the game.

Bill Nicholson walked with the bases loaded and none out in the 12th inning to force home Philadelphia's winning run against the Cubs to complete the suspended game. Bubba Church was the winner and Monk Dubiel was the loser.

Ken Johnson, with help from Church, squared his record at 4-4 in the nightcap. Ralph Caballero, with three hits, led the Phils' 12-hit attack against Cal McLish.

Jim Wilson turned in his first complete game triumph for the Braves in stopping the Pirates at Philadelphia 4-6. Wilson scattered eight hits including a home run by Joe Garagiola.

Hart-Fry Duo Cop U.S. Ladies' Doubles Title

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22.—(P)—Doris Hart of Cranford, N.J., and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., became the United States women's doubles tennis champions while playing through a drizzle yesterday.

But when the moisture rapidly developed into a steady rain, the All-Australian men's final involving Davis Cup ace Frank Sedgeman and Ken McGregor with Merwyn Rose and Don Candy was postponed until today.

Miss Hart and Miss Fry, runners-up here for the last two years, added the National crowns to their doubles string that includes the Wimbledon and French championships, by breezing for a 6-4, 6-2 win over Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif.

Sampson Hanover Cops Grand Circuit Pace

Sedalia, Mo., Aug. 22.—(P)—D. Owen's Sampson Hanover, of Houston, Tex., continued undefeated yesterday by winning both heats of the 28 class pace in the Grand Circuit at the Missouri State Fair.

Frank Ervin drove the four-year-old winner who has registered 10 straight wins since he made his first start two months ago. The times were 2:11 3/5 and 2:13 3/5 over a very slow track.

Mighty Sun from the Sol Camp Stable, Shafter, Calif., who featured Star Pointer pace that carried a $7,996 purse. Driven by Wilbur Beattie, Mighty Sun won in straight heats in 2:09 and 2:08 1/5.

tried to win the best way they could, provided they stayed within the rules. There are no rules on height and weight."

Vecek concluded that Gaedel's professional baseball career was short-lived but that the wicket would not soon be forgotten.

In his appearance, Gaedel, 26, was given a base on balls as the first batter in the first inning for the Browns. The midget was replaced on the base lines by Jim Delsing as a pinch runner. Tigers won 6-2.

Ladies' Finals Postponed Until Tomorrow Evening; Invitation Tournament To Open Saturday

The finals for the Ladies' Singles Tennis Crown of the Eastern Townships slated for last night was postponed owing to inclement weather and will take place tomorrow night.

Miss Gertrude Julien, of Victoriaville, last year's champion, was scheduled to meet Miss Pierrette Emond, of Sherbrooke, but owing to poor weather Tournament Manager Jean de Lesleuc had the match postponed until Thursday evening at 8:00.

Entries for the Sherbrooke Invitation Tennis Tournament which will commence Saturday can be made at Codere's or J. N. Boivert's Stores. All contestants are asked to file their entries before Friday at 5:30 as the draw will be made and no post entries will be accepted.

It will be Marino's first defence of the title he won from Allen Aug. 1st, 1950.
