Six Local Men Bring In Verdict At Inquest Into Double Fatality

Unmistakeable expressions of disappointment were seen on the faces of a few but most of the folks were in pleased agreement with the verdict of the jury as they filed down the narrow stairs from Hynes' Hall Tuesday night. The crowd filled the hall to capacity and there were men standing on the stairs when Mr. Martin-eau started the proceedings. Alex Horner, Gordon Paul, Ray Sheppard, H. I. Hobbs, Fred Bailey, Elwood Cameron sat in the corner of the room. This was the jury whose difficult job was to decide whether there was criminal negligence on the part of William Cowell last Sunday night when his car hit and killed Charles Crawford of Campbell's Bay and Morris Graham of Pembroke.

The first witness to speak was young red-haired Cecil Graham, brother of Morris. Cecil had been driving his car east on Highway 8 Sunday night. His car and the truck driven by Charlie Crawford sideswiped each other and Cecil said he couldn't pull right off the road because the fender was rubbing against his tire so he had to take the car down the road a piece. He said he had identified the body of his brother.

Claude Elliott of Shawville stood up next and said he had identified the body of Charlie Crawford, his nephew.

Third witness was traffic officer, Decotret, called to the scene of the accident. By the time he had arrived the bodies had been removed but Dr. Cowley, coroner, showed him where the bodies were found.

Officer Decotret said Crawford's truck had four wheels on the pavement when he saw it. He then looked into his little note book for details to answer questions of the jury but as he repeatedly confused the names Crawford and Cowley and also was vague about directions of east and west his testimony was hard to follow. The bodies, he said, were thrown 138 feet. The shoes and boots were in the ditch about 35 feet from Crawford's truck. Skid marks indicated that Mr. Cowell's car had slid about 14 feet, to within 18 inches of the Crawford truck. The officer believed that one of the men killed had been standing on the white line, and that Cowell had moved his car about 260 feet after striking the men. Decotret asked Cowell for his driver's license, and discovered after questioning that Mr. Cowell was not tired, was alone, thought he had been driving about 50 miles per hour, had had nothing alcoholic to drink since four o'clock, when he had three drinks of rye with his dinner.

The fourth witness was photographer Thibault from Hull who took photos two hours after the accident. He showed that the truck was not hit again after the initial sideswiping.

Farmer Hudson of Wyman, tall, slim and ill at ease in the crowded room, next gave a graphic description of the double accident as it appeared to him. First, he said, some men came into his house to call the cops about a sideswiping accident, then went out to where the cars were parked. Five minutes later another car passed the scene of the small accident and then another came. "We heard it hit but didn't see it. A lady screamed. I ran to the lady but didn't notice the men lying there. The woman ran to the bodies. I ran in and called the doctor. We saw the light coming but we didn't see the men. The first car past had hit a hub cap lying on the road. Cowell's car swung to the right just before he stopped, after he had hit the men. Cowell's car was coming at the same general speed as any other car coming along the road. I never saw Kinsley at all."

William Cowell spoke next. He said he was 50 years old, a vice-president living in the Town of Mount Royal. He had driven on Sunday from his fishing camp 10 miles from Fort Coulonge. He left at 5.45. The accident took place at 9.30. They had driven a jeep from camp for the first four miles which took an hour and a quarter because of the hills and rough roads. Then he got into his own car and went ten miles to Fort Coulonge where he filled the tank with gas.

Mr. Cowell said he saw the headlights of Crawford's truck and automatically dimmed his own lights. Just as he passed the front of the truck he saw the men standing in the road but it was too late to get stopped. All he could remember from then on was his windshield smashing in on him—glass flying all over him. He turned his car toward the lights of the Hudson's farm house, then his nerves went. He had slowed to about fifty miles an hour because the white line indicated a bend in the road. He remembered a Mr. Scully holding him and telling him not to worry. Then a lady gave him some water. He didn't look at the bodies—he just couldn't.

Mrs. Kinsley, wife of Lloyd Kinsley, who suffered a fractured leg, having been struck seconds before the other two men, was the next witness. She said when she stepped out of her husband's truck on the right side of the road she stepped upon gravel. "Charlie was well on his own side of the white line. The parking lights were on in our car. I saw a car approaching... the lights were terribly bright. The car went past me in a flash of wind. I didn't hear the thud when he hit the men. One car had passed before at a good rate, then two came more slowly, more like the way I like to drive, but the car that hit the men was going very fast. If I'd been in the back seat it would have been going slower." Mrs. Kinsley wouldn't say how fast the car actually was going because she said she was no judge of such things. She said the car seemed to be floating the road all right.

After Mrs. Kinsley's dramatic moment, the jury asked Mr. Cowell if his lights had been on bright. He said his lights were unusually bright but were automatically dimmed when he saw the lights of the other car.

Little Mrs. Crawford, bride of Charles, stood next to say that "I think the lights were on in the truck, but not bright." She saw the car approach. The brakes squeaked. Mrs. Crawford said she was standing on pavement on the right side of her husband's truck.

Dr. Cowley, then gave his report of death caused by multiple injuries.

At this juncture the jury, the chief witnesses and officials and the press drove up to the Pontiac Community Hospital to hear the testimony of Lloyd Kinsley, Campbell's Bay contractor who lay in a semi-private room recovering from a broken leg. "We were coming from Quyon, passed a car parked on the right—noticed the cars had an accident—saw people in the farmer's driveway—recognized Crawford's truck and pulled up to see if we could help." Kinsley said he spoke to Mrs. Crawford who said nobody was hurt. He stayed and spoke for a minute or so and then saw Charlie coming down the road. He walked around the back of the truck. Charlie had just phoned the cops, he said, and we three walked to the driver's side of the truck to see what damage was done. We were only there a second when we were hit. First the car hit me and I spun around and hung onto the truck, then I heard a crash. I thought the car had smashed into the end of the truck. I hung onto the truck. Billy Horner came along and I shouted to him to help me. My truck was about 135 feet from Crawford's truck. Both trucks had only their parking lights on. I noticed the light of the oncoming car quite a piece away. A second later we were hit. The other two men were probably behind me—I didn't see them—but probably four or five feet behind me. I was holding onto the door of Crawford's truck and squeezed up tight against it when I was hit. A couple of others had passed before the one that hit me." Kinsley thought there were two feet between the white line and the truck. "I was on my side of the white line," he said.

Then the jury filed out and went into a private room at the hospital where they were requested to make a decision. The rest of the group went back to Hynes' Hall to wait. Little groups of men and women stood about on the road speculating, expressing strong opinions one way and the other and going over and over all the details of the accident. Mr. Cowell went next door to the Dickson's home for a quiet interview with his insurance man. His nerves were still on edge but he seemed composed when he was called back to face the jury.

Mr. Horner stood to read the decision. It was a very tense moment for everyone present. The stifling heat in the hall was forgotten and the air seemed almost chill for that moment. "Accidental with negligence on both sides."

After an awkward silence the jury was informed that they must make a clearer decision than that. Either the verdict was to be "Accidental" or it was to be "due to Negligence—criminal negligence". Whispers were exchanged among the jurymen. Then Mr. Horner spoke again. "Accidental."

Mr. Cowell went home to his wife and children only after men and women went up to shake his hand. The story isn't over but time will tell the rest.

Sidelights On The High School Opening

In the middle of his address, Dr. Percival took a sip of water, smiled and said "This is good Shawville water, I take this opportunity to drink to the future of Shawville and her High School".

Due to a temperamental arm on the record-playing attachment of the new intercom it was impossible to start "O Canada" at the beginning so everyone stood silent while the record played the tune.

Mr. Maurice Duplessis sent a telegram regretting he was unable to be present at our big night.

After an uneasy three or four minutes while the gathering stood waiting for the opening music to "God Save the Queen", Rev. Lester saved the day by leading the anthem himself.

Souvenir hunters thronged around Principal Tolhurst after the ceremony to receive bits of the blue and white ribbon which Ray Johnston had cut as a symbol of the official opening.

As it is customary, Mr. Johnston retained possession of the scissors after the ceremony.

Boys will be boys, that's for sure, but does it mean they have to carry guns? Little boys, that is. There's no getting away from the fact that the big boys, from high school to grandad, have to have their guns and those that aren't off to the wars spend a lot of time dreaming up and doing and then later talking about their big shooting feats in the woods and on the river. But these big boys presumably know what they're doing and which end of the gun not to peer into. It's the little fellows with the little rifles that blind themselves and each other and almost anyone you talk to knows someone with scars from a 22 in a child's hands. Experiments have been tried in other towns with the merchants pledging not to sell fire arms to youngsters, but there are so many ways to get around that. Even passing a Township by-law forbidding children to carry guns isn't a sure cure but it would be a step in the right direction. The real solution to the problem is for every parent to be aware of the seriousness of the situation and to forbid their children to have guns until they have acquired a certain sense of responsibility. Elsewhere in this paper is an answer to the question "Dad, can I have a gun?" which it is hoped all parents will take to heart before any terrible tragedies occur this season.

The idea of an editorial isn't to foist one person's opinions upon a whole lot of people. It is to bring up a topic which everyone can have a good time discussing. The Equity hopes its readers won't be backward about coming forward with their opinions in agreement and in disagreement with our views. To judge from those we've met already there is no lack of strong opinion in these parts and it would delight and entertain and educate us all if some of these opinions could be published from time to time. So get out a pencil and scrawl us a little note from time to time. If it's important to you it's important to us.

SCOUT NEWS

The Green Six slipped over the others at the last Wolf Cub meeting when they walked away with the Pennant for the week. Chili told me that Green Brush, the Sixer, had tipped off all the lads in his Six to watch the messenger sign. Akela said they had a bunch of points to put them ahead right from the start. That looks like an observation ist. It would look as though most of the greens had at least "One eye open". The Pack welcomed a new Tenderpad into their Rock Circle and invested a Chum, both of whom are shown in the Gazette. A chat on the coming Coronation and a ball relay game were the main features of the meeting. Next Saturday the Pack is going for a Ramble when outside tests will be passed covering Birds and Trees, etc. It will end up with a "Kill" which will have to be taken care of before Tabagui tells Shere Khan about it. More of this next week.

The Scout Troop is getting in a bit of marching in readiness for the Coronation Parade. Now is a good time to get a few of those cooking tests off before the flies get too bad. To cook a half a pound of meat and two potatoes is not too hard to do if you can light your fire with only two matches, using no paper or bark. Those for their First Class have to go farther with pancakes, porridge, rice, stew or bannock. The Jamboree Patrol now have their tents and their charcoal stove and will be getting a bit of practice in cooking their three meals which they will have to do for ten or twelve days. But why is a steak cooked outside so much better to the taste than one over a kitchen stove? Try wrapping a chicken (with the feathers still on) in some blue clay, bury it in coals and leave for two to two and a half hours. You will not need sauces or catsup on that one.

The District Commissioner along with D.S.M. Jack Tolhurst, A.S.M. Irvin Watson, D.R.L. Don MacIntosh accompanied the Rev. H. G. Lester, A.R.S.L. to Bryson for their annual Father and Son banquet, where Mr. Lester was the guest speaker. After being ceremoniously received by the Scout Bugle Band, the flags were broken and Scout Garry Zohodnick sang The Lords Prayer followed by Grace. The Scout Mothers Auxiliary had prepared a very bountiful repast which was truly a banquet, with Mrs. Eldon Keon, the President, seeing that everyone had at least two helpings. Notice I said 'At least'. Other guests were Mrs. Nelson, the President of the Girl Guides Association, Mrs. Coyne, Mrs. Moorehead and three Scouters, from Quyon, Edmund Periard, Cubmaster, Raymond Chevrier and Ernest Periard, Asst. Cubmasters. Mr. Edgar Moses, Quyon's Scoutmaster, sent his regrets as he was unable to be present owing to illness in his family.

A very interesting program had been prepared with A.R.S.L. Lester speaking on "Keeping the 'OUT' in Scouting". He pointed out that while indoor meetings are necessary in the winter, that the joys of a night's bivouac, doing your own cooking are really the acme of Scouting. Even Winter Scouting is encouraged with the boys being trained to be able to look after themselves under almost any conditions. A recitation by a Scout leading up to all the boys ending with Hi, Dad!, a song by a Wolf Cub and the Dance of the Death of Sheer Kahn by the Pack were excellently done. The Scouters of Bryson are to be congratulated on their Units which undoubtedly showed excellent discipline and training.

Short addresses were made by the guests at the Head Table with D.S.M. Tolhurst edorsing Mr. Lester's remarks and on behalf of the Shawville contingent thanking Bryson for being asked to attend. Mr. Edmund Periard spoke on behalf of the Quyon Scouters.

Two new Scouters were invested by the District Commissioner in the persons of Eddie Rousche as Scoutmaster and Miss Siona J. Walls as Assistant Cubmaster, Baloo. Four Cubs, "Went Up" from the Pack to the Troop in a colorful ceremony with the boys saying good bye to their brother Cubs, Akela, Eldon Keon, D.V.M., Mrs. Murtagh, Bagheera and Miss Wall Baloo. They were received by the Scoutmaster, Eddie Rousche who welcomed them in his Troop and turned them over to their Patrol Leaders. These names will appear in next week's gazette. The Commissioner was asked to invest seven Scouts who had earned their 2nd Class Badges, their names appearing in the Gazette. These promotions indicate training as these badges are not given without a proper test which is not easy. All the Cubs who went up had one star at least and a couple, two stars. The evening closed with the singing of The Queen.

MacLean's Porter Examines Quebec

Tension exists between Quebec Premier Duplessis and Cardinal Leger, the most powerful religious figure in French-speaking Canada, McKenzie Porter of Maclean's Magazine said today.

Porter's article in the current issue of Maclean's states that the controversial Cardinal, who is expected to play a significant role in Quebec's skyrocketing industrial development, holds views that differ widely from those of the nationalist Premier.

A Quebec City Jesuit says: "Duplessis is always reminding the public that he helped the Sulpician Fathers out of bankruptcy during the depression. This is a deliberate dig at Leger."

"Duplessis likes to think he can get along without the church," adds a prominent Montreal Catholic layman. "But he's going to have a heck of a time getting along without Leger."

Leger urges the abolition of strife between capital and labor and the foundation of an economic system built on Christian co-operation and the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church, the Maclean's article says.

"Only anarchy lies ahead," Leger warns, "as long as big business battles to build the empires of monopoly and big unionism battles to break down the bulwarks of capitalism."

Lie, Steal, Drink

"When you lie, let it be down to pleasant dreams; when you steal, let it be away from immoral companions; when you drink, let it be pure water; when you swear, let it be that you will support your home town paper, pay your subscription, and have your printing done locally. To all of which we add a loud 'Amen!'"

Pioneer Mrs. Steinke Passed Away April 9

Another link with the pioneer past of this community was broken when Mrs. G. D. Steinke died April 9, 1953.

Mrs. Steinke was born in Rosenfield Pommern, Germany on March 17, 1872, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Feierabend nee Dorothea Riebitz. There she was baptised and received the name Pauline Emilia.

As a child she came to Canada with her parents, settling on a farm near Ladysmith, Que. In 1892 she was married to G. D. Steinke, who predeceased her August 7, 1937. In 1903 the couple with a young family moved to Massey, settling on a farm, where she resided until her death.

Surviving are Mrs. Fred Steinke (Dora) of Massey, Mrs. Charles Hubert (Emilie) of Ottawa, Edward of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Mano of Massey and Mrs. Roy Sims (Emma) of Soo, Michigan. One son, Fred, died in 1932.

Also surviving are 31 grand children and 43 great-grand children.

Evidence of Mrs. Steinke's popularity among her friends and neighbors was portrayed by the large crowds at her funeral which was held on Sunday, April 12. After a short service at McNally's Funeral Home conducted by Rev. Dr. C. H. Little of Sudbury, the body was taken to Zion Lutheran Church where the officiating minister preached to an overflow congregation on the text "Set thine house in order for thou shalt die".

More than a score of beautiful wreaths were banked around the casket in silent tribute to a loving mother and grandmother. Dozens of cars followed the hearse to the Lutheran Cemetery, where interment was made. Pall bearers were Fred Steinke, Fred Schoen, Paul Somerville, Earl Stinson, Alfred Steinke, Ernie Duhaime.

Don't Give Junior Up!

Albert Einstein was so slow to learn to talk that his parents thought him abnormal, writes Joseph Phillips in the May Reader's Digest. He was an indifferent pupil in school and his teachers considered him a misfit. He failed the entrance examination at the polytechnic college in Zurich. Yet at the age of 26 he evolved his "Theory of Relativity" which revolutionized man's conception of the universe and provided the theoretical basis for the atomic bomb.

Plant Chunky Potato Pieces

Don't slice those potato-seed pieces too thin! That's the advice of Bob Keith, CBC's Ontario

Later Than We Think

General Douglas MacArthur, now chairman of the board of an eastern corporation, said, "Live every day as though you were going to live forever."

No doubt he was urging us to plan for the future, to be unafraid of undertaking tasks which may seem too vast to be completed, never to feel that we are too old to start something new or that our time for retirement has come.

Generalities of this nature are rarely completely true. We might delay starting on something, not because of despair at finishing it, but because, if we're going to live forever, tomorrow will be time enough to start.

The philosophy of manana is very tempting to us lazy mortals and if eternal life became a fact, it could only reinforce our sloth. Most of us would be spurred to much greater action if we could bring ourselves to live every day as though we were going to die that night.

—From Canadian Manufacturer's Association.

Gardener.

Talking about potato planting in a recent Sunday morning broadcast, Bob said: "When making the cuts, don't just slice off thin pieces, but cut them in a nice chunky or block shape, from one-and-a-half ounces to two-and-a-half, with one to three eyes. In this way, you'll provide more food and moisture for the development of the young sprout. You see, the sprout has to depend on the food in the piece of potato until the roots get established."

PLAN LAURENTIAN SUMMER FESTIVAL

Of interest to all music lovers is the news of the opening of a Canadian music centre this summer in the Laurentians at Otter Lake, P. Q. It will be operated from August 10-23.

The centre will offer an outdoor holiday with group music making and special recorder playing. An added feature of the centre will be the presence of guest lecturers and composers. There will also be two weekend music festivals including concerts by outstanding Canadian artists.

Thankless

Those who never have an illness,
Those who always have good health,
Do not know the woes of sickness
Nor appreciate their wealth.

People who are strong in body
Brave in spirit, full of pep.
Do not fully understand how
Others walk with faltering step.

Men and women of all ages,
Children, too, from early years,
Have been burdened with afflictions,
Often bringing them to tears.

Those in health are often mindless
Of the sufferings they don't know.
We could help to ease their burdens
If more Golden Rule we'd show.

Nitrogen For High Grass

A spring or fall application of nitrogenous fertilizer to grass meadows intended for seed production is generally a profitable practice. On most soils, even those in a good state of fertility, yield increases up to 25 per cent or more may be expected from the addition of 200 lb. of ammonium nitrate or the equivalent of some other nitrogen fertilizer.

Experimental work which has been done by the Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, has indicated that maximum seed yields can be expected when the amount applied is between 60 and 80 lb. of actual nitrogen or 180 to 240 lb. ammonium nitrate per acre. Higher rates did not give corresponding higher yields and therefore are not justified from the standpoint of expense.

Fire At Elliot Home

Possible tragedy at the home of Katie Elliott was averted Friday, May 8, by the quick action of three Hodgins brothers: Desmond and Carson of The Equity staff and Philip of Shawville High School. At twelve noon flames were noticed on the roof by the boys who immediately procured a ladder from Ned Cowan and a hose from the basement of their own home next door. Desmond Hodgins and Bob McCredie sprayed water on the flames while Carson notified the occupants of the house, Mr. R.J. Cuthbertson and Miss Kay Woodley, who were eating their lunch. Miss Katie Elliott, owner of the house is in Pontiac Community Hospital for treatment.

Cause of the fire is undetermined but it was probably caused by a spark coming up the cook stove and catching fire to dry shingles on the roof.

Horizontal Silos

A horizontal silo is an economical way of storing silage. It is cheaper to build, easier to fill and if the silage is stored under proper conditions it produces as satisfactory a product as other methods of storage. In addition, the horizontal silo provides a means of self-feeding for cattle.

D. J. Cooper of the Division of Field Husbandry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering, Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, advises the location chosen for the building of a horizontal silo should be well drained to avoid bog holes caused by seepage and spring run-off.

The size of the silo should be determined by the amount of material to be stored. One cubic foot of silage weighs between 40-50 pounds so that a silo 48 x 12 x 6 feet would hold approximately 115 tons. The silo should be at least 12 feet wide in order to provide width for tractor packing.

The side walls of the silo should be sloped and made with 2-inch lumber, tightly fitted to avoid spoilage. The boarding may be either vertical or horizontal with supporting posts 4 to 6 feet apart. Sidewalls should be banked half-way up with earth.

There are several ways of filling a silo. The loads of chopped material can be unloaded by hand or can be pulled off by rope sling or a self-unloading wagon may be used. However, as each load is put in the silo, it should be levelled off.

Packing must be carried out while the silo is being filled. The amount of packing will be governed by the moisture content and maturity of the material. Early cut grass silage with high moisture will not require as much packing as more mature material with a lower moisture content. The longer the cut of the material the more packing will be required. The packing of the silo by tractor should continue for some time after the silo has been filled.

When the packing is completed the silage should be covered with from six to 12 inches of shavings. Then, to lessen the risk of freezing, just before freeze-up, the top and sides should be covered with a layer of loose hay or straw.

Films Now Available

Prof. H.R.C. Avison, Director of the Adult Education Service at Macdonald College, recently announced the establishment of a Provincial Film Library at the College. This has been made possible through arrangements with the National Film Board, and will greatly expand the present facilities of the library.

All requests for films from English-speaking groups in the province should now be directed to the Adult Education Service.

What To Look For In Seed Grain

The most essential factors to be looked for in seed grain are adaptability, vitality and purity, advises H. A. Riordan, Assistant Technician at the Experimental Farm at Nappan, N.S.

The variety should be one which is recommended for the district concerned, he says.

It is important to use seed which has high germination, and proper management on the part of the grower is extremely important. Immature grain often heats and moulds in storage, thus lowering germination and such grain should not be used for seed purposes. Underdeveloped, diseased or frosted kernels also germinate poorly and should be removed. Modern seed cleaning equipment is available in most areas and capable of removing most of the undesirable kernels, straw and weed seeds.

It is wise practice to select the best area in the field for the next year's seed grain. The threshed seed crop should be given storage preference.

When purchasing seed grain every effort should be made to obtain the best grade available. The small extra cost insures a much higher quality seed.

Wise and experienced growers find little fault with the statement that "The crop which is harvested will be no better than the seed which is sown."

Ribbon Cut By Member Ray Johnston Dr. W. P. Percival Gives Inagural Address

Pride was the keynote of the evening on Friday, May 8, when nearly a thousand people gathered for the solemn official opening of the new school.

The National Anthem was played over the schools ultra-modern intercommunication system after which Rev. R. G. Elliott, rector of St. Paul's Church in Shawville, called for God's blessing on the school in a special invocation.

Edwin Alexander, Chairman of the Clarendon School Commission, then introduced the platform guests as follows: Dr. W.P. Percival, Deputy Minister and Director of Protestant Education; Morley Hodgins, Clarendon School Commissioner; Lee Hodgins, Clarendon School Board; Rev. H. G. Lester, Shawville United Church Minister; Mrs. Johnston, wife of M.L.A., Pontiac William Munroe, Regional Inspector; Dr. S.E. McDowell, member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education for Quebec; Mr. Ray Johnston, M.L.A., Pontiac; Mrs. Munroe; Arthur Dagg, Chairman of the Pontiac County Protestant Central School Board; Rev. Elliott; Mrs. Percival; Mr. Basil Quail, Leslie member of the Central Board; Mrs. Roland Russell, Bristol Women's Institute;

Mrs. D. McDowell; Mrs. Leslie Dale, Shawville Women's Institute; Emerson Cotie, Mayor of Shawville; Mrs. Harold Hodgins, Clarendon Women's Institute; Mr. M. MacLean, Architect; Mrs. Hobbs, Stark's Women's Institute; Mr. A. F. Crumney, Principal Campbell's Bay; Mr. J.C. Gordon, Principal, Onslow; Mr. K. Hale, Principal Bristol Intermediate; Mr. A.W.R. MacLean, vice-principal of Shawville High School; Mr. J.L. MacKeen, supervisor of schools; W. M. Hayes, secretary treasurer of the Clarendon School Commission; Mr. Mirl Young, Bristol member Central Board; Earl Fulford Mayor of Clarendon, Clarendon School Commissioner; Mr. Asa Smith, Campbell's Bay Central Board member; J. A. Tolhurst, Principal of Shawville High School (after whose name was read there was a tremendous burst of applause from the senior students in the balcony); Miss Clara Strutt, High School Mathematics and Latin teacher (another round of applause from the gallery); Mr. Cecil Carpenter, contractor and Mr. Cecil Burgess, architect.

Ray Johnston, the first speaker of the evening, remembered a few years ago when the new high school was but a dream and rejoiced that "tonight this dream has been accomplished". He urged that everyone give their continued cooperation to the school board and said "I hope all your children will take advantage of high school education". He felt that this is the largest school that will ever be built in Pontiac and one of the finest schools in the province. Noting the fact that we had a long way to go before the school will be properly equipped, Mr. Johnston said, "I hope I can be instrumental in acquiring other grants so this school can function to the utmost of its possibilities".

Lee Hodgins, in his vote of thanks to Mr. Johnston, also did his bit of reminiscing going back about nine years to the early talks about building a new school. He recalled going in a delegation with Arthur Dagg to meet with Dr. Percival and then going again a few years later when Ray Johnston had obtained $400,000 for a start. Other special grants ensued and thanks to Ray Johnston "and Mrs. Johnston who must spend many hours alone at home while Ray is out getting grants for us" we now perceive "a monument to your endeavors, Ray, thanks very much".

Mr. Munroe then congratulated Edwin Alexander and the Commissioners and the community on such a "magnificent building". He said, "This school is a symbol of an advance we are making in education. It is fitting we should have with us the master planner, Dr. Percival. Advances he has instigated and carried through have been tremendous. We are fortunate to have the farthest seeing captain of our protestant education destiny with us".

Dr. Percival's message was one of inspiration and direction. "This is one of the most inspiring sights I've ever seen in my life" were his opening words. "Shawville tonight comes into its own. Shawville is somewhat remote from the rest of Quebec, but tonight you have put Shawville on the map." He further went on to thank God we live in a province where grants are available for gymnasiums. "The boys and girls gain so much and develop so much in the games they will play here", he said. Planning a school, said Dr. Percival, is one of the highest activities of the mind of man. He commended Mr. Carpenter for one of the best building jobs he had ever seen, and gave due credit to the intelligence of the architects, and the immense cooperation of the people of Shawville.

Speaking of our children, Dr. Percival mentioned that they are as bright as children anywhere and though we may not leave them much money if we leave them an education and the foundations of a sound character, we have left them everything. He wished all success to Arthur Dagg, adding "I'm sure you all will support him and the Pontiac Central Board."

Dr. Percival then turned his attention to the ladies and credited them highly for the accomplishments of their men. He gave parents six concrete ways in which they can assist the school. The first is looking after the physical welfare of the children. "If they're sick", insisted Dr. Percival, "keep them home."

The second way in which a parent can assist the school is by protecting the child's mental health—that is the way the children look upon life; whether they are cheerful or grumpy. Mothers are mainly responsible for the mental health of the schools of Quebec. When Dr. Percival started in his position family, needing to do more than 50% of the work toward creating happiness and understanding in the home. Dr. Percival suggested that this is woman's God given gift and she should make proper use of it. "Don't allow family quarrels to develop over trifling little things", warns Dr. Percival, "and don't be constantly 'don'ting' your children".

The third way a parent can assist the school is by preparing him for school life. "Many children come to school afraid. When there is fear children can't do their best".

The fourth suggestion is to be fair to the school at all times. "Speak well of the school. The teachers try to do a good job, but the child must also put forth an effort. The harder they work the luckier they will be. Get you children to do a good day's work".

The fifth duty of parents who wish to assist the school is to interest the children and the people of the community in the school and its offerings. Dr. Percival here mentioned the wide usefulness of the Industrial Arts Shop and the household Science Department "Good Pies", said Dr. Percival, "have done more for monogamy than all the languages that have died."

"I hope a lot of your children will like school so much that they will want to become teachers. We need teachers so badly. Do your share to encourage them, especially your boys, to go into the teaching profession."

Dr. Percival's sixth pointer to parents was for parents of the school to help the School Board whenever an opportunity arose to do so.

Mr. Arthur Dagg thanked Dr. Percival for honoring the occasion with his presence and such an informative address. "We have certainly grown up in this district", said Mr. Dagg, "and we should be very appreciative of the facilities we now have for the education of our children. Centralization of education means that the boy and girl from the back concession can have the same educational opportunities as the child in the more urban center".

Dr. S. E. McDowell brought greetings from the Protestant Committee reminding the gathering that this committee came into being in 1876 to make suggestions to the government to do with the function of all the protestant as Director there were many one room schools but it has since been realized that children do better in the larger schools. "Competition renders them more capable and also they attend more regularly."

"I hope", said Dr. McDowell, "that this school will be like a mountain spring flowing out to spread benefits for many years to come."

Chairman Alexander made a special mention of Morley Hodgins who acted as building inspector and "gave unstintingly of his time and talents"; W. M. Hayes, "worshipful secretary who has had the patience of Job"; Mr. Tolhurst, Mr. McKeen and the High School staff for cooperation all along the line; the pupils who so expertly guided visitors through the school; the women who provided the refreshments and the Clarendon Council graders who smoothed out the yard so a vast number of cars could be parked Friday night.

Ray Johnston performed the ceremony of cutting the blue and white ribbons signifying the official opening of the school.

Rev. H. G. Lester gave the benediction and led the huge gathering in singing God Save the Queen.

PLACEMENT OF BEE COLONIES IMPORTANT

Seed growers who request honeybees from the beekeepers for the pollination of red clover and other legume crops should insist that the colonies be placed in their fields. Experiments carried out for two seasons by the Agriculture Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, have shown that seed yields decrease progressively as the distance from the colonies increases.

In fields three-quarters of a mile from the apiary, the effectiveness of pollination by the honey bees was seriously reduced. This indicates the necessity of placing colonies around or within a field where this distance from the apiary may be exceeded.

"Dad, Can I Have A Gun?"

"Dad, can I have a gun?"

Sooner or later, most Canadian fathers are asked this question by their young son. Before he makes a negative or positive answer, a father should first ask himself: "Is my son ready to have a gun?"

When is he ready? According to K. N. Morris, executive director of the Canadian Civilian Association of Marksmen, a boy can start shooting when he has shown a sense of responsibility in other fields—from about the age of 12 to 14 years.

Mr. Morris says if you can trust your boy to carry the neighbor's baby across the street or take a $20 bill to the grocery store, or carry an important and confidential message, then he usually has a sense of responsibility and is ready for his first gun.

If you are unfamiliar with firearms, consult an expert or a member of a shooting club before choosing a gun. The first should be a .22 rifle because basic principles of shooting are easier taught with it. Besides, it has no recoil and ammunition is inexpensive.

Arrange for the boy to attend instruction classes sponsored by your nearest rifle club or association. If none is available in your neighborhood, ask a friend who knows guns and shooting and whose judgement you respect.

Completion of a course of instruction does not mean that a boy is qualified to go target shooting or hunting alone. He needs adult supervision for a year or two so that he knows all rules of safety and proper gun handling on the range, in woods and field.

Proper instruction in shooting gives a boy an experience that will be beneficial throughout his life.

To mark the Coronation the CBC has commissioned nine works from Canadian composers, which will have their premiers in network broadcasts in the next few weeks. Among those so honored are two Torontonians: conductor Godfrey Ridout (left) and the dean of Canadian composers, Dr. Healey Willan, whose impressive five-part suite for chorus and orchestra will have its first performance in a broadcast conducted by the CBC's director of music, Geoffrey Waddington, on May 31st at 8.00 p.m. on the CBC Trans-Canada network, Ridout's work, "Coronation Ode", for chorus and orchestra, will be premiered at a later date. Ridout has composed well over 200 musical background scores for the National Film Board and

Picnic Tip

Here is a tip on how to keep small quantity of food cool on a picnic as recommended by Poultry Products Institute of Canada Inc. Freeze two or three unopened cans of tomato or fruit juice in the freezing compartment of a mechanical refrigerator. Wrap in waxed paper or place in small refrigerator bags. This is to protect the food, you pack around the can, from getting wet with the moisture which condenses on the cans. Place the cans in picnic hamper or box lined with several layers of newspaper and close container. If the food is well-chilled before packing, this arrangement will keep it cool for three or four hours or maybe more. When it is time to serve the tomato or fruit juice it will be thawed and delightfully cool. This is a good method to follow when cold meat or roast poultry or other perishable foods are in the picnic hamper.

A family of eight had all the furnishings of their rented, furnished three-room suite seized by the firm from which they had been purchased. The landlord was evidently paying on the installment plan, but failed to meet his obligations. The family was frantic at being left in bare rooms and with no means of acquiring any furniture whatever. Before night of the same day the Salvation Army had provided all the basic things required to carry on housekeeping.

QUEBEC W. I.
Provincial units of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada are giving unstinted financial support to the coming A.C.W.W. Conference. Mrs. A.A. Shaw, Vancouver, chairman of the national Finance Committee, states when all provinces have paid their assessment of 20 cents per member she believes it will cover all the heavy expenses connected with that event.
In her report Mrs. Shaw mentions that the Quebec Women's Institutes were the first to meet this obligation in full, and a letter has been received at the Q.W.I. office from Mrs. G. Gordon Maynard, F.W.I.C. secretary, extending the grateful thanks of the national organization for this whole-hearted response.
Mrs. Maynard is also making a public acknowledgment of the country-wide support. "This F.W.I.C. have met with such a generous response to their appeals to the Provincial Women's Institutes for funds to assist in the A.C.W.W. Conference expenses", says her statement, "that we wish to take this opportunity of making public our acknowledgement of our sincere appreciation and thanks."

Electricity Always There
When you go to the store you can be pretty sure that you will find whatever you want on the shelves. The wise storekeeper stockpiles his goods so as to always have them available for his customers.
But the power company can't stockpile electricity. It can't be manufactured and then stored until it is needed. It must be used as soon as it is needed.
However, if electricity can't be stockpiled, the water that makes it can. To store the water the company has had to construct huge dams and the water is released as it is needed. Thus, no matter what hour of the day or night you need electricity, it is there at a flick of the switch.
