IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF POPE

World News In Brief

Sydney —(CP)—Rabbit hunters Ed Davis and Bill Penny found their way out of the woods near here Thursday by following the sound of the shouts of searchers and a siren on an RCMP automobile.

South Plutney, N.Y.—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Tyler Ames, 22, and her two small children were burned to death late Friday when a fire of undetermined origin swept through their six-room frame farmhouse in this village.

Montreal —(AP)—A new one-year contract signed between Dow Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CCCL) gives employees wage increases of seven cents an hour and an additional cent for shift work. The increase raises the basic wage rate to $1.62 an hour for Montreal workers and $1.58 an hour for Quebec City employees, retroactive to Oct. 1.

Ottawa —(AP)—The naval defence conference of the Naval Officers' Association today concluded a three-day meeting during which officers discussed the development of the naval service in the last year and plans for the future. A navy announcement said the role of the naval reserve in the defence program also was examined.

Istanbul, Turkey —(AP)—Omer Erkan, 113, married a 21-year-old woman Thursday after advertising that he would bestow a house and $25,000 worth of land on a bride. Press reports Friday from Antalya on Turkey's southern Mediterranean coast identified the bride only as a sister-in-law of one of Erkan's 16 grandchildren. Erkan's first wife died a month ago.

Brandon, Man.—(AP)—Brandon Branch of the Canadian Legion has condemned as insulting to the Queen Mother a recent suggestion that she be appointed the next governor-general of Canada. The resolution passed Friday night said: "The Queen Mother should not be subjected to or placed in the position of being asked to accept any subordinate appointment during the remainder of her life."

Sunday Sees Release Of Montreal Pilot By Reds

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Montreal —(AP)—Sgt. Ldr. A. R. (Andy) MacKenzie passes through the Bamboo Curtain Sunday and starts home to the family he hasn't seen for more than two years.
"The release of the 34-year-old Montreal flier comes exactly two years after he was shot down while serving with the United States air force as an exchange pilot. The Chinese did not reveal until last June that he was in a Communist prison camp.
The prospect of his homecoming has pushed even Santa Claus out of the minds of the four MacKenzie children.
"They're just crazy with excitement," says his attractive wife, Joyce, a Winnipeg girl he married while serving with the RCAF in England during the Second World War.
Mrs. MacKenzie said no plans have been made for a party or celebration when her husband returns.
"He may want to rest when he gets home," she said. "We're leaving everything up to him."
It's all one big party to the four youngsters, however. Even little Jo Ann, who was less than a year old when her father left for Korea, has joined in the excitement. The other children—Bobby, 10, Pauline, 9, and Ronnie, 7—remember their father from pre-Korean war days.
Sgt. Ldr. MacKenzie's father and a married sister also are looking forward to the flier's return. Missing from the homecoming reception will be his mother, who died last March before finding

Death Winds Up Saga Of Native Chief

Mtubatuba, South Africa. —(Reuters)—Mtubatuba, one of the oldest and richest native chiefs in South Africa, died Friday near his Zululand village named after him.
No one knows for certain how old the head of the Mpukenyoni Zulu tribe was, but he must have been at least 100.

Mtubatuba was rich even by white men's standards. He was worth more than $500,000. But he never used his wealth to raise his humble standard of living above that of his people, or to buy expensive clothes.
Until the time of his death, he slept every night on the rough floor of his crude mud house. His only garment was a tattered lion skin.

Mtubatuba's wealth was mainly in cattle. He farmed them out in small herds to his tribesmen, who were entitled to keep the milk and a certain percentage of the beasts.

Although the chief owned most of the cattle, he didn't bother to keep track of them. He never branded them or kept records of them, and they became inextricably mixed with those of his people.

The chief also possessed a fortune in hard cash. His people say he buried a vast hoard of silver half-crown pieces and even more gold sovereigns beneath the grounds of his house.

Mtubatuba was spry and healthy until recently. In 1947 he married a 19-year-old girl. He was loyal to his "White Mother," the queen, and he worked closely with her agents here—officials of the South African government.

Last year his loyalty and co-operation were rewarded. He was presented with a special medal commemorating the coronation.
Washington —(AP)—A commerce department program to curb the export of strategic information was denounced Friday as "censorship of the most offensive and dangerous kind" by J. Russell Wiggins, chairman of the freedom of information committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. The new "office of strategic information," created Nov. 5, was attacked by Wiggins, vice-president and managing editor of the Washington Post and Times-Herald.

out that her son was a prisoner and had not been killed when his plane was shot down.
Sgt. Ldr. MacKenzie, who was credited with destroying 8½ enemy planes in the Korean war, and awarded the DFC, will be met in Hong Kong by Mrs. MacKenzie's brother, Cmdr. Donald C. Skene, 38 of Toronto. Skene, a staff officer in Ottawa, will arrange a medical examination before MacKenzie is flown home.
Mrs. MacKenzie, reached by telephone at her home in suburban Strathmore, Que., said she has not been told when her husband will arrive home.
"We're not even sure what route he will be taking yet," she said.
Sgt. Ldr. MacKenzie was flying northeast of Sinuiju in North Korea, near the Yalu river boundary with Manchuria, when he was shot down. No one saw the plane or a parachute land but returning prisoners of war indicated he was alive.
When he was not repatriated in September, 1953, the external affairs department had the Canadian delegation to the Geneva conference ask the Chinese delegates about him.
On June 17, the department was informed he was "alive and well" and would be released. The Chinese did not set a date, however, and had to be prodded diplomatically. On Nov. 23, they announced he would be returned Dec. 5.
Mrs. MacKenzie last saw her husband in November, 1952. They were stationed in England at the time, and when he was transferred to Korea she brought the children to Strathmore.

Church Associates And Physicians More Hopeful Today For Recovery Of Pontiff.

By FRANK BRUTON
Vatican City — AP — Two cardinals emerged from a bedside audience with Pope Pius XII today and reported finding the gravely-ill Pontiff "much better and more cheerful."

The two prelates, Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, dean of the College of Cardinals, and Nicola Cardinal Canali, said the Pope spent a comparatively restful night.

Physicians earlier reported the 78-year-old Pius was in dangerous but no longer desperate condition. His strong heart gave hope for his survival.

The cardinals said the Pope was "most cordial" during the 15-minute meeting, one of several the pontiff has arranged despite his illness. He is reported to have talked Friday with Msgr. Domenico Tardini, a close associate in the Vatican state secretariat, and Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, recently appointed Archbishop of Milan, who has been mentioned as a possible successor to the papal throne.

There has been no indication of the purpose of the meetings but there is speculation that the Pope plans to hold a bedside consistory to fill the six empty seats in the College of Cardinals.

The Pontiff's apparent improvement backed up the announced opinion of five medical experts who held emergency consultations at his bedside early this morning. They said the "perceptible improvement" permits good hope that the frail leader of the world's 425,000,000 Roman Catholics will recover.

Two of the specialists told The Associated Press later that the Pope's strong heart likely will carry him through the present crisis. Both emphasized, however, that the Pontiff remained in critical condition.

"I believe that he is no longer in imminent danger of death," said Dr. Luigi Vittorio de Stefano. In a separate interview, the noted Italian surgeon, Prof. Raffaele Paolucci, expressed a similar view.

The Pontiff's heart already has pulled him through dangerous illnesses in the last two winters. De Stefano said the heart was holding up well, although an aggravated stomach condition has prevented the Pope from taking any food by mouth since Sunday. His frail body has been wracked by sporadic attacks of hiccupping and nausea.

The condition includes an inflammation of the peritoneum, the membrane lining the abdominal cavity.

Shortly before the five specialists issued their brief bulletin, an official Vatican spokesman said the Pontiff was suffering intermittent fevers and that his temperature was "continuously fluctuating."

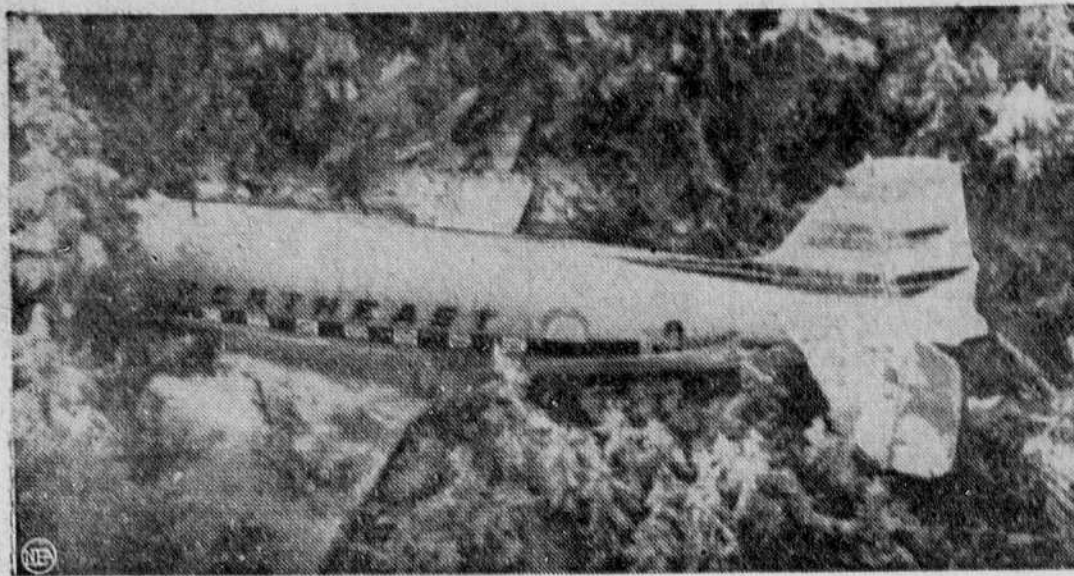

De Stefano, a leading surgeon in Rome's Saviour of the World Hospital, said the consultation at the Pope's bedside lasted two hours.

"We found him in the best of spiritual condition," he added. "I cannot say the same for his physical condition, at least for now. However, I am glad to announce that the Pope is recovering very rapidly. I believe that he is no more in imminent danger of death."

In his report, Paolucci said he found the Pope "not at all in desperate condition, certainly much different and better than what I could have imagined. I do not believe that he suffered an internal injury; in such a case, the Pontiff could not have resisted the attack which hit him Thursday."

"I have hopes that through the appropriate treatment, which the Pope now is receiving, he will be able to recover in good time and gradually reacquire his forces until recovery is complete," Paolucci added.
The doctor's reference to an internal injury was a result of reports that the Pope had suffered a perforated ulcer.

Government To Appeal Tax Ruling

Ottawa —(AP)—The federal government, for the first time in three years, will appeal a Supreme Court of Canada ruling to the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

Officials said Friday the government will appeal the 3-to-2 decision on the Anaconda American Brass case, dealing with the pricing of inventories for tax purposes.

The Supreme Court ruled against the government, allowing the company to follow a system of pricing inventories that excluded it from paying $248,148 in excess profits for the 1947 taxation year.

Officials feel the ruling will affect the status of other corporations and cause the government to forfeit several million of dollars in corporation tax revenue.
The government generally has avoided turning to Britain's top court body since Parliament made the Canadian Supreme Court the last court of appeal in 1949. However, cases launched before December, 1949, such as Anaconda, can still be appealed to London.

Man Claims Wife Killing Mercy Act

Milwaukee —(AP)—A 65-year-old West Allis butcher admitted to police Friday that he killed his invalid wife with a meat cleaver last Monday and burned her remains in the furnace. He termed the slaying an act of mercy.

Detective Capt. John Sweeney said mild-mannered Raymond Wilson declared he killed Ethel — his 67-year-old second wife, wed only last year — with her consent. Sweeney said Wilson told him Mrs. Wilson was in pain from the after effects of a broken hip, a stroke and an eye disease.

However, the captain said, a doctor who had been treating both Wilson and his wife, told police that Wilson was mentally deranged.
Sweeney said Wilson will be charged with murder.
Two police officers called on Wilson shortly after his wife apparently was killed, Sweeney said. Their only purpose was to warn him that excessive sparks from his chimney might be

Unanimous Approval For Eisenhower Plan Likely

United Nations, N.Y.—(AP)—President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace plan comes up for a final vote in the General Assembly today. Expectations were that the resolution would receive unanimous approval.

As the 60-nation body gathered for the session the United States sought assembly action to win freedom for 11 American airmen jailed by Red China on spy charges. The move had the firm backing of Washington's 15 Korean Allies.

The atomic resolution calls for the establishment of an international agency to sponsor the peaceful use and sharing of atomic energy. Both the United States and Britain already have offered to contribute fissionable material to start an international stockpile for peaceful purposes.

The proposal also calls for an international technical conference on peaceful atomic energy uses to be held not later than next August at a place still to be decided. Organized under UN auspices, this meeting would be open to all nations in the UN or its specialized agencies.

Brother Is Troubled On Testimony

By ARTHUR EVERETT
Cleveland. —(AP)—Dr. Stephen Sheppard wavered under stiff cross-examination Friday. He was forced to take back some of his testimony in defence of his younger brother's life.

After trying to justify testimony he gave earlier in the day about Marilyn Sheppard's July 4 murder Dr. Steve finally was forced to admit:

"That is not true."

On that note the trial recessed for its eighth weekend, leaving the jury with the mental image of the dapper, 34-year-old Dr. Steve twisting and turning verbally as a defence witness for his brother, Dr. Samuel Sheppard.

Earlier, Dr. Steve had been forced to back down on a statement that anyone who ever suffered a brain concussion temporarily lost his memory of recent events. He conceded the statement was too broad.

The testimony would have helped the defence explain Dr. Sam's varying version of the slaying of his pregnant, 31-year-old wife. He is charged with her murder.

The handsome 30-year-old kid brother in a family of osteopaths, Dr. Sam blamed the slaying on a bushy-haired prowler who fled the scene after twice knocking him unconscious and leaving him with a brain concussion and a spinal injury. The state says the injuries were trivial.

Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Parrino's cross-examination was biting but quietly determined rather than spectacular. Dr. Steve is the first defence witness.

Dr. Steve didn't recall some of the things he said at a coroner's inquest last July 23. They didn't jibe with his present testimony on at least one occasion.

He couldn't recall why he headed straight for Marilyn's death bed as an early arrival on the murder scene July 4. He hadn't asked anybody whether the body was in the bedroom, on the porch or even in Lake Erie she had died violently.

outside. All he knew was that Dr. Steve testified Thursday that he found Marilyn's hands and her blouse in different positions on his second visit to her death room July 4. The inference was that someone had tampered with the body since Dr. Steve's first visit that morning.

Friday, he testified the changes first came to his attention Thursday when he looked at police photographs of the murder scene.

After parrying for a time, Parrino read his Thursday testimony then asked:

"And the testimony you gave in this case that the first time you observed the changes was in the photographs yesterday, is that true or false?"

"That is not true," Dr. Steve conceded.

"That's all today," Parrino concluded. Dr. Steve returns to the stand Monday.

West Takes Leadership In Cold War Activities

By J. M. ROBERTS
(Associated Press News Analyst)
In the first years of the cold war people of the free nations were constantly irked because the foreign policies of their governments developed primarily as reactions to Soviet acts.

There was a constant demand that the West take the initiative. The West, having demobilized its armies and stored away its arms, was in no position to take the initiative. The best it could do was conduct a holding operation. Until a couple of years ago its only major positive act had been to organize a new West German government. Russia countered with one for East Germany. Now the process is being reversed.

Take the Russian reaction to the development of military unity in Western Europe. And the Red Chinese reaction to the Southeast Asia and Formosa defence pacts.

For years the Reds tried to prevent creation of the European Defence Community, and their alternate blandishments and threats undoubtedly were a factor in its failure.

But now, with Western European Union facing a far better chance of ratification than the EDC ever had, the Reds can think of nothing except to coun-termove. Their threat to organize a centralized military force of their own is an empty one, since Russia has held the central control for years.

They make the threat, of course, merely to back the further threat that they will drop negotiations for peaceful settlements unless the West drops the Western European Union. This is an empty threat, too, since Russia has always conducted such negotiations for purposes of disruption, not for peace. They have created more embarrassment than hope among the Allies.

To offset the Southeast Asian agreements, the Chinese Reds proposed an all-Asia pact excluding the western sponsors of SEATO. Now, to offset the new American-Formosan defence arrangement, the Reds have let word leak out that they are holding conferences to plan their defences against a possible Nationalist Chinese invasion of the mainland.

All this represents a diplomacy of direct confrontation by parallel action. It has no real meaning, except as part of the propaganda line that the Reds are defending themselves against an outside menace. And too many provocative acts have made that line increasingly ineffective.

★ IN HOLLYWOOD ★

by Erskine Johnson

Hollywood — (NEA) — Now that I'm conscious again after prowling the Las Vegas night-club beat, let's conclude this chapter of "Shake, Rattle and Roll."

Vegas, says Peter Lind Hayes, is "the land of you can't take it with you," but it's also a place where a bus boy can break in to show business as Ed Wynn's straight man. Dean of comedians Ed "borrowed" Flamingo Hotel bus boy Dave Newberger, an old pal, to feed him on-stage cues and props for his clowning at the Last Frontier Hotel.

It's only for three weeks but a bus boy breaking into show business in greasepaint instead of breaking dishes in the kitchen is a "King for a Day" plot.

There was a private chuckle for Hollywoodites at the Esther Williams-Ben Gage opening at The Sahara. Vic Mature was in the audience and when he applauded Ben's singing he was applauding his OWN singing voice. Ben was Vic's voice double in "Million Dollar Mermaid."

Vic, by the way, tells me his attorneys are about to light the fuse on a bomb to be dropped on his wife's huge divorce-settlement claims.

Every time I see Peter Lind Hayes and gorgeous Mary Healy at The Sands, they top themselves in charm and talent. Peter's gags are fast and sharp — "I'll now sing 'When I Was a Blackjack Dealer and You Were 21'." — and their single and duo routines are show business at its brightest best.

Bing Crosby and Jaqueline Fontaine, it's whispered, are in tune romantically. She's the sultry singer at the Silver Slipper, where the stars of the big hotel shows get their kicks at the late, late, late shows.

If Fox gets the movie rights to Broadway's hit, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," the Josephine Hull role will be rewritten for Marilyn Monroe.

Les Brown's talented big band at the Flamingo brings back memories of the Kay Kyser, Glenn Miller and Ben Bernie crews. But the most pleasant surprise at the Flamingo is Debra Paget, who has been lost in the Hollywood shuffle. She out-Monroes Marilyn in a song, dance and personality routine. She's even sharp enough to play straight woman for Ben Blue, master of comedy timing. Debra worked up the act to convince Fox she has talent that's going a-wastin', but her mother wailed it to me:

"No one from the studio—not even the janitor—has been up to see her act."

Max Furman of the Showboat spotted this sign on a Vegas chapel:

"Our Weddings Are Legal."

He's the comedy star of the new Minsky burlesque revue there. Such beautiful dolls—grrr!

Added wordage from Betty Hutton on why she's quitting show business:

"I don't understand show business any more. The tax experts are running careers—telling you what you can do and what you can't do. Creative talent can't be run by tax experts casting you in the best tax bracket."

"Even if I made a million dollars a minute, I couldn't keep it!"

Betty Hutton may be sincere in her decision to retire, but Lou Busch, tunesmith and top musical arranger for famed singers, is predicting she'll return to greasepaint.

Says Busch: "Everybody in show business wants to retire to

TOWNSHIPS TOPICS

By WARREN SPAFFORD

♦ COMPLEX PROBLEM — The time for filing protests against the special valuation roll on immovable machinery ran out this week. . . The Chamber of Commerce urged that every-one protest and they were partially successful in that 20 protests were received from Sherbrooke industries. . . They probably had not counted on the fact that the Roman Catholic School Board protested the whole valuation roll because it was not high enough. . . Some industries protested on the principle of the thing and others because their valuation was too high. . . The majority of protests were probably received on the principle of the special roll. . . Some who protested had a lower valuation than on the previous roll and therefore could not logically be claiming that their valuation was too high. . . The board of revision, who hear the protests, do not deal in principles but only in figures. . . There is a slim chance that they may revise certain figures but since experts were hired to do the job they will more than likely stick to the figures which the valuers have submitted. . . If that happens the School Board will probably challenge the roll in its entirety in the courts. . . There the manufacturers will be able to argue against the principle of the tax. . . There is a possibility that if the problem is not taken to the courts, the city may pay the $40,000 fee of the valuers and revert back to the old roll.

♦ STUDENT ACTIVITY — Students in the faculty of Engineering at the University of Sherbrooke have, in the past, let it be known to the City's citizens that they are perfectly capable of enforcing their demands upon whoever they wish. . . They demanded an audience with the mayor by shouting for him outside City Hall some time ago. . . They came back and were successful the following week and were received in the Council Chamber, signed the Golden Book and sang the equivalent of "He's a jolly good fellow." . . Reports of these escapades were carried in the paper; reports which were taken in good spirits by the students, judging from the letter received from them this week. . . It read in part, "You wrote twice about our noisy manifestations, and you would already deserve our grateful thanks for that attention. Without reference to what you wrote: we need the propaganda." . . On their second visit to City Hall, after the signing of the Golden Book, the students stopped off in front of the Record Office. . . The next thing heard was a fire-cracker. . . That was interpreted as a student opinion of the first article carried by the Record or maybe they wanted to sign our Golden Book as well? . . At any rate Wellington street probably never saw such excitement since the Centennial celebrations and the letter was appreciated. . . While on the subject of University students, it is believed that they will take steps to go before the Provincial Board of Transport to have the same bus rates as High School pupils.

♦ ODDS AND ENDS — Two Eastern Townships representatives in the Quebec Legislature were the objects of an exchange between Premier Maurice Duplessis and Liberal Leader Georges Lapalme this week. . . Mr. Duplessis commented on the absence of Gaston Ledoux, (Lib. Shefford), and Mr. Lapalme retaliated by asking about the absence of Warwick Fox, (U.N. Brome). . . Mr. Ledoux finally put in an appearance on Thursday. . .

Inquiries have been made about our last week's comment on the Dempsey-Gibbons fight. . . Fight enthusiast Warren Berwick tells us that they fought on July 4th, 1925 in Shelby, Montana. . . That still does not explain the sticker pasted on a car with licence number 285-994. . . Tonight is the big night for the 30th anniversary celebrations of the Y's Men's club. . . This year they will not be occupying the lot on the corner of London street and Dominion Avenue for the sale of Christmas trees as they have decided to discontinue the seasonal sale of these articles.

Full Complement Of Lucky-$$ Out

Thirteen Lucky Dollars still up for claim. That's our limit, you know. We can't add any more, so we just have to wait until you people find some and then the number of dollars on the list will start falling.

Perhaps we could give you a few hints today. There aren't many hints left, though. We have told you most of them lately. Did we tell you about the dollar we spent in Pigeon's Post Office, on Wellington Street in Sherbrooke? That was last Monday. Then we also spent one in Thibault's Restaurant, Windsor Mills, last Wednesday. The one that goes out of circulation today was spent in The Rexall Drugstore, Magog.

One will be spent today. We haven't decided quite where to get rid of it yet, but perhaps it will be spent in a bus or railway station. It might be worth anyone's while who has anything to do with the cash in any of those places around town to keep an eye out for the Lucky bill.

Challenges Declaration That Canada Faces Food Shortage Within 10 Years

A recent declaration in Montreal by F. H. Kortright, president of the Ontario Conservation Council, that within the next ten years Canada would not be able to support its probable population is unduly alarming in the opinion of Dr. Ernest Mercier, superintendent of the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

In the course of his Montreal address, Mr. Kortright is reported to have said:

"In Canada as a whole, it has been calculated that, in ten years, we shall not be able to support the then probable population. There are about 1.6 acres of food-producing land for each individual on earth now, but two factors are upsetting this equilibrium: First, land is going out of cultivation faster than new land is being brought under cultivation; second, world population is increasing at an alarming and rapidly accelerating rate."

Commenting upon this report, Dr. Mercier stressed that there were several factors which might materially alter the picture painted by Mr. Kortright. He commented:

We read in the newspapers that the rural population of Canada is decreasing, that more and more farmers are abandoning their land and that a certain area of cleared land is going back to forest. Some venture to say there may not be enough agricultural products to feed our population in 1965. But, considering the following statistics, which Dr. Mercier has compiled for us, we may be able to judge for ourselves whether or not this statement applies to us.

First of all, it is necessary to know what comprises the district served by the Lennoxville Experimental Farm. There are nineteen counties, grouped in three regions: Compton, Drummond, Missisquoi, Frontenac, Richmond, Shefford, Sherbrooke, Stanstead and Wolfe are counties in the E. T. region; those of Arthabaska, Bagot, Megantic, Nicolet and Yamaska are in the "Bois Franc" Region; and the counties of Beauce, Bellechasse, Dorchester, Levis, and Lotbiniere in the south of Quebec region.

From 1921 and 1951, the total population of these three regions has enlarged from 338,882 to 672,022, with the largest increase recorded in the Eastern Townships. Urban population has doubled, while rural has enlarged slightly.

The number of farms shows a decrease of 23.9 per cent, but there are still 44,088 farms in these regions. On the other hand, there has been an increase of about 35.5 per cent in the area of the farms during the thirty year period.

Concerning the land, Dr. Mercier has stated that it is true there is a considerable amount of it going back to forest, but the greater part of this should never have been deforested in the first place. That which is valuable land and was going back to forest has been changed through the work of the bulldozers, which are keeping some of the land in a deforested condition.

A few of the important facts concerning the condition of occupied land at the present time are as follows. The area of it is a little larger than it was in 1911, with a slight increase of 3.1 per cent. But the area of the land has also increased by 9.6 per cent. The area devoted to special crops increased by 45 per cent in the three county regions and by 75 per cent in the E. T.

There has been a slight decrease.

Ancient History

There were so many special articles about Sir Winston Churchill's 80th birthday for weeks before the event that the editorial man who penned his contribution only the day before must have felt, when it appeared, a little like the publisher of the country weekly whose Christmas effort was lost in the rush and came out in the New Year's issue.

Calculated Risk

"One cannot secure peace these days through incantations" was the gist of Sir Anthony Eden's defence of the proposed rearmament plan for Germany when he spoke the other day in the British House of Commons.

The inclusion of Western Germany in European defence represents one of the greatest calculated risks of modern times. Soviet fears of the prospect have always been great. The steps already taken had had much to do with the tempering of the outward Soviet attitude.

The choice was between abandoning Europe and strengthening the country which had taken great strides towards recovery under its chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer. For with the political uncertainties in Italy and France the West Germans, their mettle often proved, represent the only potentially solid bulwark against a drive from the East. Without arms there would be no bulwark, only a vacuum.

Western Germany, with a population of fifty millions against twenty in the Soviet-held portion, remains the leader in European industry. Its people are workers with a sense of discipline. It has provided almost all the brains contributing to German advancement, historically, in the arts and sciences.

The point has been made many times that it is only from strength that the West may bargain successfully with the Communists. If Western Germany were allowed to go by default through fear and suspicion there would be little prospect of securing the strength through which peace must come.

In Italy's "Prosperous Year"

Italy's industrial production today, in her best year since the War, is 83 per cent above that of 1939. Many parts of her chief cities present a flourishing appearance with new buildings standing, fresh, clean-cut, in the modern style, against their sky-lines. Shipping and airline receipts have gone up.

Many Italians have "never had it so good."

An Italian government report, however, shows that more than a quarter of the population lives in poverty. Almost a million people, for instance, exist in cellars, 375,000 live, literally, in this prosperous year, in caves. More than three millions are unable to buy sugar and meat or the cheap wine which, far from being considered a luxury, has been for years a normal part of the southern Italian's everyday diet — when he could get it.

This report from Italy shows the great unbalance of the country's reviving "prosperity." It is true, though usually in lesser degree, of other European lands. Luxury and the gaiety of a night life flooded by myriad neon signs stand over against squalid tenements in the dimly-lighted streets of the poor.

It is because of the feeling among many that "nothing could be worse than this," not because of constructive achievements, that Communism is gaining and will continue to gain in countries which have long been nominally Christian.

Pot-Pourri

The idea that the West should wage a preventative war is repugnant, indefensible; such a war out of the question. The alternative could be a swift, devastating attack by the other fellow. It is a good thing that Providence has a way of setting limits to a totalitarian march and has things in hand.

A friend has lost a dollar-bet with his wife. He was certain there was only one "L", and that capitalized, in the name of Victor Lindlahr, the nutrition expert. When he was proved wrong the husband only muttered, "I'd like to get Lindlahr and shoot the 'I' out of him."

"How old do you think Jimmy Durante is?" asked a TV follower, "seems to me he's been around for a long time." "Gosh, I don't know," was the answer, "how could a face like that ever age?"

An optimistic wife, moving, took along two tins of furniture polish. "It will be good for the car," said said, knowing this thought might appeal to the husband. "But, we haven't any car," he answered. (They had just sold it.) "Well, it will be good for the furniture." "But we haven't any furniture." (This had been sold, too.) The woman's final word: "We'll have to buy them both; I'm not taking this polish for nothing."

Perhaps we should sympathize with Mrs. Gertrude Jackson, hotel owner, of Cobden, about 85 miles the other side of Ottawa — but we find it hard. More than $14,000 in currency was stolen from her jewel box the other day by an unidentified man who had asked the desk clerk for directions. It is not as though there have not been plenty of warnings about keeping large sums in currency at home.

Aren't Enough Prints

Films Cause Educational Revolution

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

A quiet revolution, accompanied only by the hum of the motion picture projector, is under way in the nation's schools.

Educational films, once as much of a novelty as an entertaining commencement address, today are becoming a staple in countless classrooms across the country. Most of their mushrooming growth has occurred since World War II.

Though what the educators call audio-visual education is now 25 years old, it was the war which gave these techniques their big push toward wide use in schools. Millions of men had to be taught in a hurry — and taught well. So films were heavily and successfully relied upon.

The experience evidently was an eye-opener to educators. In fast-growing states like California, the movie projector was a lifesaver. In many others, its value became increasingly apparent.

Educational authorities came to regard films not as a lunch-time treat or an occasional supplement to the school process but as an integral part of teaching. Some undoubtedly would go so far as to say an indispensable part.

There seems no doubt of the teaching effectiveness of sound films when they are wisely used. They need only to be fitted naturally and easily into the regular course of instruction. In some fields, other methods of instruction could not possibly match the visual treatment.

Today's films range over such varying topics as atomic energy, constitutional checks and balances, Newton's experiments with gravity, the workings of the inner ear, how the laws of heredity operate, and so on.

Actually, there aren't enough film prints available in most cases to meet the swelling demand. Big city school systems can exhaust the supply quickly. Some states and cities have libraries from which schools can rent films. But a more satisfactory practice seems to be the growing habit of pooling film resources of five to ten schools to permit more frequent showings of the most useful pictures.

An affiliate of Encyclopedia Britannica makes about 70 films a year, more than any single Hollywood studio, and it now has a catalogue of more than 750. But these and other efforts still fall short of filling the market.

If the judgment of our best professional educators are good, then this clamor for educational films is just about the healthiest thing that has hit the schools in many a day. Particularly at a time when the nation's school system suffers from too many inadequately trained teachers, the value of expertly produced films is abundantly clear.

Funds for improvement of the schools aren't easy to come by these days. But, whatever new money can be turned up, some of it ought to find its way into expansion of educational films. They're making some of the most cheerful news to be found in our hard-pressed classrooms today.

Victoria — (C) — Victoria publicity officials who have been annoyed by scattered references to Vancouver as the capital of British Columbia were lately irked when they came across a letter from a Toronto manufacturing firm, addressed to "President, village board, Victoria."

Bygone Days

THIRTY YEARS AGO

From the Record of December 4, 1924

Followers of General Wu Peifu, former military commander of the Peking government, are reported to have blown up the Hankow-Peking railway bridge over the Yellow river. It is said to be the longest bridge in China.

Ontario Minister of Highways, Hon. George S. Henry, said yesterday that a plan for a gasoline tax will be submitted to the Legislature in about two months. The tax will be for motorists only and will probably be two cents on the gallon.

Enough bones to form at least six human skeletons, numerous relics and old coins over a century old were unearthed at Wolfe Cove Terminal, Quebec, two days ago. The remains are believed to be relics of part of General Wolfe's army which took Quebec from the French in 1759.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Record of December 4, 1934

Fire last night caused an estimated $3,000 damage to the American House, King Street West. No one was injured. Cause of the fire is said to have been an overheated stovepipe in an adjoining property.

Who killed Sydney Smith? Today's most-asked question and the latest mystery on file at provincial police headquarters. Smith died in hospital from a bullet wound in the thigh after he told police that a "man in a car" had shot him down on the Lennoxville highway while he was walking toward his Capeton home last night.

The Dominion and Quebec governments have jointly established a bird sanctuary in Missisquoi County. The Canada Gazette reports that land belonging to Joseph Potvin in St. Romuald de Farnham parish, will future be known as the "Ferne Yamaska Bird Sanctuary."

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Record of December 4, 1944

Col. William Richard Stevens, well-known Eastern Townships resident, born in Kirkdale and described as being in failing health for a number of years, died in Lennoxville convalescent home yesterday. It was his 80th birthday anniversary.

An 83-year-old Cowansville resident died from a heart attack at the height of a fast-spreading fire which swept the communities' business sector yesterday. Over twenty business establishments, office and apartment buildings were gutted, twelve persons injured and over 60 left homeless. The dead woman was identified as Mrs. P. E. Hauver.

Shouldn't Lie To Kids So Santa And Reindeer Are Out

Victoria — (C) — Christmas is coming but Dr. Brock Chisholm still doesn't believe in Santa Claus.

The noted psychiatrist has nothing against Santa personally, it's just that he is against parents lying to their children.

The former director of the World Health Organization says, however it's quite all right for children to "play Santa Claus," for then they "get the fun out of it without any of the fear of intolerable implications."

In a recent talk here to the eighth annual Vancouver island teacher's convention, Dr. Chisholm said one of the main jobs of teachers is to educate parents. "Teachers may become the salvation of the human race," he said, if they overcome the ignorance and prejudices of parents who "generally speaking have had no great concern about qualifying their children for school."

"They just want to get them out of the house."

A child taught to believe in Santa and other myths, he said, is in for a rude awakening when he realizes the stories his parents told him were lies.

"If children can't trust their parents, whom can they trust?"

Since his retirement as director of the World Health Organization in 1953, Dr. Chisholm, a native of Oakville, Ont., has been lecturing on mental health in Canada and the United States.

He has been commissioned to write a book for a New York publishing firm expected to be released next September. He says the book is part of a series entitled "World Perspective."

Darwin, Australia — (C) — Mrs. D. L. Riddle, director of school libraries for the South Australian state education department, inspected school facilities in Australia's northern territory. She reported she was much impressed with the calibre of the teachers "who, with their wives, are making a fine contribution to the humanities in this vast area."

Canada's first public electric utility was born in Pembroke, Ont., in 1884.

Gossip About "The" Book!

By Rev. B. S. Murray, M.A.

Many intelligent people enjoy reading, and later discussing with their friends, the latest book. Why not engage in a similar exercise using the best Book in all the world which is an all-time best seller—the Holy Bible, Book Divine? There is no book like it—none remotely to equal it.

To be ignorant of this Book is to be ignorant indeed. It is the tragedy of modern times that the Book has been shelved. Two generations ago it lay to hand in the centre of the room, the symbol of what the individual, the family and society were built upon. Today large sections of the world have succeeded in shutting God's mouth. No wonder that millions are bewildered, confused, frustrated, living yet dead unto Life with a capital L, largely the result of their vague concept of God. Surely such a chaotic condition should constitute a direct challenge to open "The" Book and therein discover God and with Him ever afterwards as your life's Centre fit into it such pieces as yourself, your neighbor, your purpose in life, thereby making Life both useful and happy, glorious and victorious. And with the publication of such good news—such gossip—which will merit Divine approval.

As Literature

I recall as an undergraduate at McGill University, Montreal, pursuing a course entitled "The Bible as Literature." The study fascinated me. There I discovered that there is no finer poetry, no richer drama, no lovelier romance, no more intriguing biography anywhere than in the Bible. And no literature will ever excel the haunting loveliness of the 23rd Psalm, the Grandeur of the Sermon on the Mount, the resonant eloquence of Isaiah and the superb visions of Revelation.

This and more also you will find in that precious library of 66 books, the work of some 30 authors over a space of approximately 1,500 years. Each author, in recording what he had heard and seen, provides us with a record as diverse as the authors' occupations of the writers reflecting the whole range of human experience from deepest anguish to highest exaltation, from primitive groping to clearest vision. And, wonder of wonders, the themes in this progressive revelation of God to man are the same as those that run tensely through life of our time and produce headlines in our newspapers! Here is literature that is timeless, surprisingly so!

Such a Surprising Book

There are surprises, too, awaiting anyone who thinks, without reading, that the Bible is drab, sombre, negative, cold. For, from Genesis to Revelation with "behold" as a key word, this Book is a Book of Wonder! And surprises, too, for therein you'll find joy writ to the score of Faith, Hope and Love culminating in Peace, the gift of God's love. And the story? That "God is Love" is a story of surprises at once unreasonable, improbable, unpredictable, inversion of the usual, the conventional, the likely. Good seeking sinners. The injured one making overtures to the transgressor! Here are surprises!

If you want the story of the most surprising Man of all time you can trace it from His poor manger to His bitter cross before He ascended into heaven where as Intercessor (Heb. 7-25) and King He reigns. In the briefest compass you'll find this story in that Bible in a nutshell—the Apostles Creed.

In obedience to the Divine command "Search the Scriptures" (John 5:39) and the Pauline injunction to "prove all things" (1 Thess. 5:21) the early Christians as they either heard or read the Scriptures felt that they were in the grip of an indescribable potent power which was really a spiritual dynamo giving light for their guidance and power for their achievements. And down the centuries millions have—and are—confirming that testimony in living lives of such victorious adventure that others take knowledge of them that they, too, are becoming daily like the Surprising Man, surprising!

In This Spirit

Wherefore, seeing we all are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us, in our day, make our own fresh discovery of the Bible. I know you will find this an exciting adventure with an inexhaustible supply of daily strength for your daily needs. Think of what this implies! By applying yourself wholly to the Scriptures and applying the Scriptures wholly to yourself, you will become wise unto salvation (2 Tim. 3:17, 15) and live here and now a life that is sober, righteous, godly. In other words, a life in harmony with the Book.

Employing common sense and honesty, begin your adventure of daily reading the sacred Scriptures in a mood of expectancy, anticipate new beauties and still increasingly light! In tune with the Infinite and aware that your Companion and Guide—the Holy Spirit—is by your side, you will be so still as to hear God speaking to you directly just as truly as He did to the first recorders of those words. Further, you will find the face of Christ shining on every page! Surely this is a Book of surprises!

Both teams got to a quite reasonable contract of seven spades. The skillful declarer went down, but the lucky dealer made the grand slam.

First, let's see how the expert played the hand. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. Next, he cashed the top diamonds and ruffed a diamond with the nine of spades. West overruffed with the ten of spades, and that was that.

What was so expert about this line of play? South wanted to make thirteen tricks without guessing which opponent had the queen of clubs. The nine of spades would be a safe ruff if the diamonds were 4-3 or if East (instead of West) happened to be short of diamonds, or if the player with short diamonds had only two trumps instead of three.

The odds were far better than 2 to 1 that South could ruff safely with the nine of spades, whereas the odds may be only about even on guessing which opponent has the queen of clubs.

South would be practically home if he got by with the nine of spades. He would lead a heart to dummy's queen, ruff the last diamond with the queen of spades, and enter dummy with the king of clubs to draw the last trump with the jack of spades.

Now South could take the ace of clubs and discard dummy's last club on the ace of hearts. Dummy would win the thirteenth trick with the last trump.

South might still run into trouble if the player with the last trump managed to ruff the queen of hearts or the king of clubs.

The lucky declarer won the first trick likewise with the king of hearts and drew three rounds of trumps. He next cashed the

What Other Papers Say

ONCE IS ENOUGH

(Windsor Star)

A type recently believed extinct turned up the other day in Cairo, in the person of a sheik out for romance. But this reappearance has its interesting angles, because it shows that if decomposition has not set in, evolution at least is at work.

Whereas the sheik of the Twenties rode a camel and lived in a tent, this fellow is a millionaire and has a modern air-conditioned villa on the Persian Gulf. And he wants an old-fashioned girl who will wear a veil.

It is fine indeed to learn that the sheiks who held on to their old rights have profited, so handsomely. But who of an older generation will want to see the sheik tradition get out of hand again, as it did in the Valentino era.

The fact that it caused no greater hardship than intense boredom is reason enough to oppose a revival. No emotional dementia, however slight, should strike twice in one lifetime. Let this lone sheik find his veiled maiden in Cairo and return promptly to the obscurity of his air-conditioned villa.

BIRD ON A PERCH

(St. Catharines Standard)

The National Audubon Society has a staff member whose sole duty is to answer nature questions. Sample: Why doesn't a bird fall off its perch when it goes to sleep? Answer: Because it slumps down when sleeping, pulling a leg tendon that clamps its toes around the perch.

MYSTERY

London Free Press

Oratory is dead in Canada these days but we never had so many after-dinner, after-lunch, speakers.

Divine! None like it! The best Book!

Beware lest you forget that as a Christian you have no alternative but accept the challenge to so study your faith that you can tell—gossip—people about it bringing the Good News to them as graciously and effectively as possible, "being ready always to give answer to every man that asketh of you a reason concerning the hope that is in you."

With the blessing of Our Dear Lord Who has caused all holy Scriptures to be written for our learning (2 Peter 1:21) resting upon us, let us "in such wise hear them, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest them that by patience and comfort of Thy holy word we may embrace and ever hold fast the blessed hope of everlasting life which Thou has given us in our Saviour Jesus Christ."

In this spirit then, gossip about "The" Book!

HAND PROVES EXPERT CAN MAKE ERRORS

Everybody likes to see an expert fall on his nose once in a while, so today's hand should spread a little sunshine. It caused a swing of more than 2000 points in a recent team match, thus proving that a little luck is sometimes more powerful than a lot of skill.

Both teams got to a quite reasonable contract of seven spades. The skillful declarer went down, but the lucky dealer made the grand slam.

First, let's see how the expert played the hand. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. Next, he cashed the top diamonds and ruffed a diamond with the nine of spades. West overruffed with the ten of spades, and that was that.

The odds were far better than 2 to 1 that South could ruff safely with the nine of spades, whereas the odds may be only about even on guessing which opponent has the queen of clubs.

South would be practically home if he got by with the nine of spades. He would lead a heart to dummy's queen, ruff the last diamond with the queen of spades, and enter dummy with the king of clubs to draw the last trump with the jack of spades.

Now South could take the ace of clubs and discard dummy's last club on the ace of hearts. Dummy would win the thirteenth trick with the last trump.

ace and jack of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy. As it happened, although this could not have been foreseen, East discarded on the third round of hearts.

Declarer next cashed the top diamonds and ruffed a diamond. By this time it was clear that West could hold only two clubs, and South therefore decided to play East for the queen of clubs. This play worked, and South therefore made his slam.

CARD SENSE

Q—With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has been: West North East South 1 Dmd. Double 1 Spade ? You, South, hold: Spades J-9-6-4, Hearts 7-3, Diamonds Q-J-8-5, Clubs K-Q-3. What do you do?

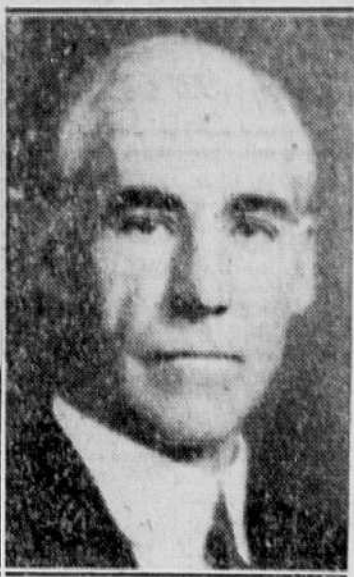

A—Double. This is, of course, a penalty double. North should have good spades as part of his takeout double, and East should be trapped between two good hands. If East has a psychic spade bid, your double will smoke him out. You will then be ready to do some more doubling if East runs to diamonds or clubs; and the chances are that your partner can take care of hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades Q-J-9-6-4, Hearts K-3, Diamonds 8-5, Clubs Q-6-4-3. What do you do?

Presentation To Rufus H. Dunn At Lennoxville

A man who stays forty years with the same organization either hasn't any ambition or he is the type who takes a personal interest in the outfit and grows with it. The latter is definitely the case for 65-year-old Rufus H. Dunn, according to Dr. Ernest Mercier, superintendent at the Experimental Farm, Lennoxville, who, yesterday presented Mr. Dunn with a piece of luggage in honor of his retirement from the Farm after 40 years of service.

Mr. Dunn can boast the honor of being the only man who began working at the Experimental Farm at the time of its establishment in 1914 and remained in its employ all these years.

Making the presentation on behalf of the employees and members of the staff, Dr. Mercier said Mr. Dunn had been a valued member of the staff at all times and that he consistently improved his work and his position on the staff. Mr. Dunn helped build the farm in the beginning and at first worked as a teamster. Later however, he was appointed to mechanic and tractor operator.

According to Mr. Dunn, he has done every job on the farm except look after the bees and feed the chickens. Coming to Sherbrooke from Montreal he admits that in 40 years he has seen many changes at the Farm, most of them for the good. At present Mr. and Mrs. Dunn are living at 38 Belvedere Street, Lennoxville.

BOLTON PASS—

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKinnon of Montreal and Mr. and Mrs. Alec Bryant and son, Alec Jr., of Kitchener, Ont., were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Galbraith.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Galbraith motored to Cowansville on Saturday. Mrs. Leman Wing was suddenly taken ill and is now a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, where she underwent an operation. Her condition seems satisfactory. And her friends in the past sincerely hope she will soon be able to return home.

Nursing Group Committee Had Session Here

The committee of management, Association of Nurses of the Province of Quebec, held a general meeting yesterday at the New Sherbrooke Hotel. During the interval between the morning and afternoon business sessions, lunch was served to the local and visiting members.

On Thursday evening, following a meeting of the finance committee, the members of both committees were entertained at a reception tendered by District No. 3, A.N.P.Q., French and English groups, held at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

taken place, with an increase for the area being 60 per cent.

Commenting on the farm condition, Dr. Mercier has this to say. In spite of the fact that the number of farms has gone down and that the rural population is practically standing still since 1921, the total output production of agricultural products in the three regions has increased greatly since 1911.

The yield of hay is about the same, but on the whole, the quality is believed to be much better. There has been a marked increase in the yield of each of the following — barley, oats and potatoes. The yield of apples per tree has decreased by 25.8 per cent but the quality has been greatly improved, whereas the yield of maple syrup per tree has more than doubled. The yield of honey per colony has also increased.

As to animal products, noticeable changes have also been recorded. The annual milk yield per cow has increased by 18.2 per cent. As the number of cows has increased by 22.3 per cent, the total milk production has gone up by 44.5 per cent.

On the whole, the output of agricultural products in the district served by the Lennoxville Experimental Station has increased noticeably since 1921, in spite of the fact that the number of farms has gone down and that the rural population has not changed to speak of. In other words, the modern farmers are doing a better job.

Answering a question of how far the farmer might go with respect to increasing the yield per unit, Dr. Mercier feels they are capable of doing considerable in this respect and he feels the yield could be practically doubled in the district, if sufficient fertilizers were used to supplement the farm manure in order to produce more and better crops, which in turn, would reduce the cost of production of animal products.

Dr. Mercier feels that a matter which should not mean too much is the decrease in the number of farms. This is largely compensated by the increase of the size of the average farm. The question of size of the farm must be kept in mind when the cost of production is taken into consideration. The farm must be large enough to assure a sufficient volume of production and to enable the farmers to mechanize in order to produce more and to reduce gradually the cost of production of agricultural products.

From his own point of view, Dr. Mercier feels there is no great danger of our starving in future years, unless we export a very large proportion of our agricultural products to other countries. The output of agricultural products could be greatly increased in Canada, especially in the West, where giant irrigation projects are being realized and also in Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes where the yield per unit could be greatly raised, provided the prices of the agricultural products would be high enough to encourage the farmers to stay on the farm.

NORTH HATLEY

Parents' Night Well Attended

North Hatley, Dec. 4. — The teachers of the North Hatley Consolidated School were hostesses, in the school, on Parents' Night, Monday, November 29.

In spite of unpleasant weather, 60 parents signed the guest book, and availed themselves of this opportunity to meet their children's teacher in the classroom.

Each teacher was hostess in her particular room and explained the work which was on display. After the parents had visited the classrooms, the senior girls served tea and cookies in the science room.

Mrs. Montgomery, principal of the school, stated she was pleased with the response to this first Parents' Night, and hoped to make it a quarterly event.

Picture Is Defended By Artist

London — Reuters — Sir Winston Churchill's birthday portrait is rapidly becoming one of Britain's most controversial pictures of the century.

For four days British public opinion has been simmering over the artistic merits of the portrait painted by Graham Sutherland and presented to the Prime Minister on his 80th birthday Tuesday as a gift from both houses of Parliament.

It shows a grimly determined, aged Churchill, chin jutting forward, sitting in front of a mustard yellow background.

The problem dividing the nation is this: "Is the portrait a great modern painting or is it just a bad, unfair likeness?"

People from all walks of life have written to newspapers for and against the picture in an almost unprecedented outburst of artistic enthusiasm.

Opinion seems to have divided roughly down the party line — most Conservatives are against the portrait and most Socialists for.

The artist Friday night got his first real chance of replying to the criticism.

In a radio interview Sutherland said he had tried to paint Churchill "as a rock" who "saved England and stepped the enemy."

Asked why he had excluded Churchill's feet from the picture, he declared: "I thought they detracted from the face and hands. In point of fact he has very beautiful feet."

"But I noticed in looking at Churchill that I was so drawn by the face and personality of the face that one rarely looks very much below the hands."

Skating Rink Debated By Bury Home And School

Bury, Dec. 4. — The opening meeting of the Bury Home and School was held in the Pope Memorial School, Monday evening, November 22.

BUDGIE MUST BE TRAINED TO EAT FROM FOOD HOPPER

By H. H. MILLER

Not long ago an owner of his first budgie was horrified to find that his lovely new bird had died of starvation. When he discovered that he had been the cause he was beside himself with grief and self-recrimination.

At first he didn't understand how such a thing could happen. He had kept his budgie well supplied with food. What he hadn't noticed was that the dish he put the food in was so narrow across the top that the bird, when standing on the rim, couldn't bend its neck down far enough to pick up the seed. He only knew that food was there. He hadn't observed that the bird couldn't reach it.

The best intentions can go awry, so when getting a new pet of any kind it's good insurance not only to find out all you can about its needs but to keep an exceptionally watchful eye on it at least for the first few days.

ROAD TO STARVATION
An automatic food hopper may be the road to starvation for your bird unless you're very certain that he's been accustomed to using one. Birds aren't born with a knowledge of feeding from a hopper, so until you actually see your new bird using the hopper keep some extra food in an open dish.

With budgies in particular it's often the little things that bring catastrophe. Give your cage a careful inspection and make sure there aren't any pieces of wire sticking out. If you find any, clip them or bend them in such a way that they won't form a loop. Budgies have been known to get the rings on their legs caught in such bits of wire and hang there helpless. They often die before they are discovered.

Sometimes you will find tiny globules of alloy clinging to the wire of new galvanized wire cages. Birds have a way of pecking at these small deposits and can get lead poisoning from them. One of the frequent ways that birds get lead poisoning is from pecking at articles that are painted with paint containing lead as a base.

Dogs and cats can get lead poisoning, too. Therefore, if you paint the inside of your dog house or bed box or basket make sure you use a non-lead paint. Lead arsenate is sometimes used as a garden or orchard spray and this should be kept well away from the vicinity of your birds or pet animals.

INSECTICIDES ARE DANGEROUS

When insecticides are used in aviaries or nest boxes never, never, apply them when the boxes are in use and be sure they are thoroughly dry before you put your birds back in them. Read directions when using any insecticides and avoid residual poisons which can remain in wood. Budgies, especially the females, are sometimes wood-gnawers and can be affected months later.

Speaking of poisons, you must make sure that there is no rat or mouse poison around when you let your budgie loose in the house.

Budgies love green stuff. They like it best when it's tied up tightly so they can cling to it as they eat. But never forget about the sprays used on plants and always make sure that any green you give to your budgies has been thoroughly washed beforehand.

THE PET FORUM

Q. — "My son has a riding horse he has outgrown. Since he will no longer be ridden is it wrong to keep him just as a pet and take good care of him?"

A. — It certainly isn't wrong and if every horse could look forward to an old age of earned idleness and good care it would be wonderful.

However, good care consists of some grain feeding and not just being turned out to graze. It means occasional grooming to keep snarls out of tail and mane and coat clean. His feet will need trimming by a blacksmith once in a while. When the foot grows out too long a horse becomes badly crippled.

Q. — "My Collie has moist eczema summer and winter. His diet is canned meat, vegetables, vitamin tablets, some skimmed milk. No fat at all. My old female has a dry skin condition. Do dogs have diabetes? What are the symptoms? Do they have a pancreas like humans have?"

Mrs. F. S. A. — The moist eczema should have veterinary treatment, but dusting the dog with an antiseptic powder like B.F.I. will give some relief and prevent itching and further irritation by scratching.

By all means add some fat to the diet of both dogs. Adding it to the commercial dry meal you formerly used would be very good. Dogs need fat and often a dry scaly skin is corrected simply by adding a couple of tablespoons of lard, bacon grease drippings or finely chopped suet to each feeding.

Yes, dogs can have diabetes and when affected will drink a great deal of water and usually have a voracious appetite. Tests which a veterinarian can make can diagnose it.

A dog has a pancreas. It functions with the liver and manufactures insulin which regulates the blood sugar. A lack of insulin causes one form of diabetes.

Send your questions on pet care to Mr. Miller in care of this newspaper. He will answer them in his column in the order of their interest to most readers.

JOHN NIAGARA talks about:

Four ways to get a
NIAGARA LOAN

Need money? Then the four different ways you can borrow at Niagara Finance will interest you.

First, domestic loans . . .
These are sometimes called 'husband-and-wife' loans—they alone sign—it is arranged in about 24 to 36 hours and enjoys widespread popularity amongst Canadian couples.

Second, car or truck loans.
Here's one of the fastest ways to borrow money. It's very easy to handle, both from your point of view and ours. Motor owners can apply by mail or in person. Only the owner of the car and truck need sign. Details are often completed in as short a time as 10 minutes.

Third, loans on business equipment . . .
Businessmen like this service because it is fast and trouble-free. The business equipment acts as a backing and loans are made in accordance with value. Only the owner needs to sign . . . an excellent answer for temporary financial shortages.

Fourth, loans on farm machinery—stock . . .
These loans have been especially designed for farmers' needs. And of importance to them—seasonal payment plans are available on loans over $500. Such loans are completed with little delay.

New Brunswickers Disappointed At Mining Progress

Saint John, N. B. (C) — Dr. Graham S. MacKenzie, professor of geology at the University of New Brunswick, in an address here noted a tendency toward impatience concerning development of Bathurst-area base metal deposits discovered in late 1952.

Some New Brunswickers are disappointed that more rapid progress has not been made and that a clearer picture of the future has not shown, he told the Saint John branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

"I get impatient myself," Dr. MacKenzie said, "but we must

Church, Rev. Gerald Fee, assisted by Dr. S. W. Boyd, officiating. The hymns rendered by the choir were "Nearer my God to Thee," "Rock of Ages" and "Abide with Me," favorites of the deceased.

The bearers were grandsons Clayton Calvin and Junior Harvey, Ellis Jones, Warner Wark and Kenneth Hamilton.

Left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother are one son, Harry L. Harvey, and two daughters, Mrs. Arnold Jones (Jessie), and Mrs. Charles Buchanan (Gladys), a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Harvey; two sons-in-law, Mr. Arnold Jones and Mr. Charles Buchanan; ten grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

The many beautiful floral sprays and wreaths were silent tribute to her memory.

Interment was in the family lot at Farnam's Corner.

OF MIDDLESEX, VT.

The funeral of Mrs. Ann Utlin Webb, who passed away on November 13, following a long illness, was held at the Curtis Funeral Home, Newport, Vt., on November 16. The Rev. Carl Nelson, of Derby Line, officiated.

Bearers were Richard Ather, Fred Sherman, Wilbur Cargill and James Stevens. The respect of her friends was shown in the many and beautiful floral tributes.

Burial took place in the Derby Line cemetery.

Ann Utlin was born in Holland, Vermont, on June 1, 1870, the youngest daughter of John and Clarinda (Weeden) Utlin. She spent her early life in Holland. On February 27, 1890, she was married to Wilbur Webb, of Royalston, Mass., who died in 1934.

To this union four children were born, Mrs. Cyril Cargill (Lillian), of Derby Line, Mrs. Richard Ather (Eleanor), of Middlesex, Vt., Walter, who passed away four years ago, and Mrs. Fred Sherman (Sara), of Lancaster, N.H.

During her later years, Mrs. Webb made her home with her daughter and son-in-law in Derby Line, spending the summers at the homes of her other daughters.

After she suffered a stroke two years ago, she was cared for near her daughter, Eleanor, until the time of her death.

Mrs. Webb is survived by her three daughters, six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

remember that complex ores like those at Bathurst take time to investigate, and careful planning is necessary to ensure the most beneficial methods of mining and treatment for the large operations involved."

A more recent strike at Little River, nearer Newcastle, "most emphatically helps to stamp New Brunswick as a potentially great base metal producer."

Dr. MacKenzie said the ore at Little River is estimated to carry metals worth about $42 per ton at current prices, about double that of the Bathurst deposits.

He termed the Bathurst ore bodies, while not unusually high in average ore value, as "striking" in their large size.

In a technical comparison of the discoveries, the geologist said the Little River ore had been found in three zones extending more than six miles. Preliminary estimates from drilling down 300 feet indicated 3,000,000 tons of ore carrying 10.5 per cent zinc, 4.5 lead, 0.5 copper and four ounces of silver per ton, along with 1,000,000 tons of ore carrying 1.9 per cent copper, .70 ounces of silver, 0.10 lead and 0.5 zinc.

The two largest ore bodies near Bathurst have been drilled to a depth of 1,000 feet and have a combined indicated tonnage of nearly 50,000,000, with ore believed to continue below the explored depth, he said. Metals in the ore averaged around 5.2 per cent zinc, 1.8 lead, 0.5 copper and 1.75 ounces of silver per ton, with a small but probably recoverable content of tin.

These deposits include sections richer than the average grade of about $20 per ton, and the high sulphur content of the ores is an important feature, Dr. MacKenzie added.

Mining presented no great difficulty and cheap methods could be applied, but treatment of the ore "offers some problems."

Company officials had said that tests show a profitable separation is feasible. Construction of a concentrator of 4,000 to 6,000 tons daily capacity is planned for 1955-56. One comparatively small mine is already stockpiling concentrates.

So far as is known, the UNB professor said, the present program for the Bathurst areas is aimed only at production of concentrates which will be shipped out of the province for smelting and refining.

Hope had been expressed that the ores would receive complete processing in New Brunswick and that a chemical industry, using the sulphur by-products, would be established. Whether this will ever develop remains unclear, Dr. MacKenzie said.

"Mining, concentration, railway haulage, dockage, shipping and associated construction will bring considerable employment and economic benefits to New Brunswick. Much more could come from the fullest possible treatment of the product within the province."

Availability and cost of power were major factors in determining how far the treatment could go in New Brunswick.

North America's first electric Turnover Toaster was built in Canada in 1914.

DEAL COMPLETED WITH CLEVELAND INDIANS

THE FIRST and important part of keeping baseball alive in Sherbrooke was completed in Houston, Texas, Thursday afternoon when Odie Fortier, on behalf of the Sherbrooke club, sealed the arrangements with Mike McNally, Farm Director of the Cleveland Indians, making Sherbrooke a farm club of the organization.

The Indians will supply sixteen players with a field manager of the same calibre as last year in order that the locals may have a ball club in Sherbrooke. It was a tough job, we understand, as several other cities were after the Indians to complete a similar agreement. Odie Fortier, who has been in Houston all week attending the minor baseball convention, was rewarded for the long trip by completing the deal for Sherbrooke.

It was the first step but it was a big one. The second move will commence with the sale of shares for the limited company to finish the movement. Following the sale, the shareholders will elect an executive to guide the destinies of the club for 1955.

In our telephone conversation with Manager Fortier and President Albert Molini we were told that it took some fast talking to outdo other American cities seeking the same set-up as Sherbrooke. Mayor Emile Levesque, although he was in Sherbrooke, kept in touch with the drift of things and had several long talks with Mike McNally.

So fans, thanks to the hard work accomplished by Odie Fortier and President Molini, at Houston, Sherbrooke will have another baseball team. Perhaps this will be an incentive to get hockey back in Sherbrooke. We understand via the grapevine that this City may be back in the ranks next year. So, just keep hoping and let's put across the baseball community idea first and get the City out of the graveyard of sports, where we were headed for a time.

● QUEBEC ACES came up with the surprise of the week which should help their club to a great extent. They purchased young Camille Henry from the New York Rangers for a bundle of cash and a player.

This deal definitely will help the Aces both at the gate and as a player. His size has always been against him since he joined the Rangers but this failed to stop him from putting goals. His big complaint with the New Yorkers was that he was not getting enough work. We don't think he will be troubled by that in Quebec and he should see plenty of work. Just another case of a good small player failing to stand the belting of the majors.

● HARRY HOPMAN'S stern methods of training the Australian tennis squad have drawn stinging rebukes from the press following Lou Hoad's defeat and his remarks about being "fed up" with the whole thing. Mother Hoad thinks that her son is a victim of "too much discipline."

It seems that Mr. Hopman is the type who believes that to be a success one must devote himself entirely to the game. In other words he must think tennis, eat tennis, drink tennis and live for nothing else. Kind of hard, we think, for a growing boy but after all it got him to the top in tennis circles. We are told if anyone wishes to reach the top in any sport he must make plenty of sacrifices. Perhaps the price of success is a little too hard for the youngsters. Anyway, Hopman's record speaks for itself.

● LES LEAR, former coach of the Calgary Stampede, seems headed back to his former haunts, according to the releases coming out of the West. A combination of circumstances led to Lear's dismissal back in 1952 but now it seems he may return again. Looks like a costly proposition of the Stampede but after all what's a few dollars out in the oil country.

● TWO VERY GOOD moves came out of the minor baseball convention which should help the lower clubs to no extent. The first is the number of players who can be farmed out by the majors. It was increased from 15 to 17 while the major teams will reduce their roster from 25 to 23. Both these moves will help the lower clubs.

The big thing which will help the minor league clubs financially is the proposed changes in the major-minor rules on working agreements. A minimum price for the privilege of selecting players from a club in class B, C or D at the end of the season has been set. The majors also would pay spring training costs, travelling expenses for optional players and a portion of the manager's salary. This should be a big help for the minors and may help to keep a few more clubs in circulation.

● FOLLOWING the close of the Granby Curling Club bonspiel this evening, the scene shifts to the Brae Manor Club in North Hatley next week. The bonspiel of the newly organized club in Victoriaville will also end tonight. Their event was a three-day affair.

The 'Spel at the North Hatley club opens Tuesday, will run the whole week and there should be plenty of excitement. This is the last affair until after New Year's and no doubt will be a good one. A mixed turkey bonspiel is being staged at the local club and no doubt that the Lennoxville Club will be staging a "bird" affair before Christmas so that some of the members can pick up a cheap dinner for themselves.

● JUST A REMINDER to aspiring referees that tomorrow is the date for the annual test for the Sherbrooke district. Anyone interested is asked to be on hand at 10:00 tomorrow morning with their skates. A test will be held, while in the afternoon an exam will take place and anyone wishing to referee this season must take this test. It will be the only one this year. So don't forget, tomorrow morning at 10:00 at the Arena.

New Yorkers Interested In Betting Are Advised To Call Canada; Only Place Left To Lay A Big Bundle

By MURRAY ROSE

New York. — (AP) — "If you want some action you gotta call Canada these days."

Our man shook his head sorrowfully. "Imagine that. The big town and you gotta call Canada to get down a bet. Any other place in this country and you can make a decent sized bet and feel sure you're gonna get paid off. Not here any more. New York is the dearest betting town in the world now."

"You can't get down here for anything over $200 and feel confident you're gonna get paid." Tears welled in his eyes.

"You make a bet here and you gotta sweat it out. So what do you do? You call Canada. That's where the action is. You make your bet and if you win, a couple of guys come around to see you and pay you off. If you lose, they come around to see you."

BASEBALL BEST BET

We asked our man what sport produced the most "action."

"You kidding?" he replied. "Baseball. That's the sport. The betting must run into the trillions. You get a run for your money. It's televised and it's broadcast. Anything you can see on television, you'll get action on."

"Do you wanna know how the government can balance the budget and still have a few bucks left around to play with? All they gotta do is legalize betting on horse racing away from the tracks and put a full card of racing from one of the tracks on TV.

"Did you notice that $2,000,000,000 was bet at the tracks this year for the second year in a row? Well, you know that's peanuts compared to what's bet away from the track. If the government would get smart it could do away with the income tax."

Our man stopped to catch his breath.

"I guess I've said enough for now. If you'll excuse me, I gotta make a long distance call. Got any quarters on you?"

SAL YVARS TRADED TO BUFFALO

Houston, Tex. — (AP) — Catcher Sal Yvars of the St. Louis Cardinals was traded to Buffalo of the International League by way of Houston Friday in a deal that brought outfielder Frank Carswell to the Cards' Texas League farm club.

Brompton Hosts To East Angus Tomorrow

Meet At Local Arena At 2.30 In Only Scheduled Game In Massawippi
Loop; Both Teams Gunning For Win

Second position of the Massawippi Valley Hockey League will be at stake tomorrow afternoon at the Arena when Brompton will visit East Angus in the only scheduled game of the circuit. The tilt is slated to commence at 2.30.

The Eagles and Pirates will be seeking their first win as both clubs lost their opening fixtures. East Angus dropped an 8-5 verdict to Asbestos while Brompton came out on the short end of a 6-0 blanking against Sherbrooke in the league opener.

Lack of ability to maintain a good pace was the downfall of both the Pirates and Eagles and this can be attributed to lack of practices. Brompton has no ice at home while the Pirates play their games outdoors and it may be a few days yet before ice will be available in both places. In the meantime all clubs are slated to hold their games at the Arena. Brompton has selected the Arena for all their home games.

The Pirates have rebuilt their team from last year and have picked up several promising youngsters who should turn out to be a good addition before long. Frankie Ryff, one of the league's top scorers in past seasons, is still the pivot man for them and carries a big part of the load. On the blue line O. Martel is still a tower of strength for the Pirates.

Brompton Eagles got away to a bad start when they were shut-out by Roger Roberge's squad but no doubt they will be out to try and make amends for the licking. The game should be a hard fought battle as both clubs will be gunning for their first win of the season and sole possession of second place in the standing.

A special league has been called by President Mac Wilson for Wednesday at the New Sherbrooke Hotel to study Coaticook's resignation from the circuit. A revised schedule will have to be studied.

Undeclared Frankie Ryff
Decisions Orlando Zulueta

New York, Dec. 4 — (AP) — Although he was cut over both eyes as early as the fourth round, undefeated Frankie Ryff of New York outpunched and outgeneralled Cuba's Orlando Zulueta to win a 10-round decision in Madison Square Garden last night.

Ryff weighed 136, Zulueta 133½. The 22-year-old Bronx lightweight contender was gashed over the left eye in the first round and over the right orb in the fourth but he carried the fight to Zulueta all the way to grab the split decision, his 16th victory in as many pro bouts.

Zulueta was cut over the left eye in the fifth round of the bloody battle.

Referee Harry Kessler (8 rounds to 2) and Judge Harold Barnes (6-3-1) voted for the youngster, Judge Americo Schiavone had Zulueta ahead 6-4. The Associated Press had Ryff in front, 7-2-1.

The Bronx Fighter, a 13-3 favorite on the strength of his decision over third-ranking Ralph Dupas, is ranked fifth while Zulueta is rated as the No. 4 contender. The hard earned triumph boosted the kid's hopes for a title fight.

A pro only three years, including a two-year time out for army service, the fast-punching, fleet-footed New Yorker out-gunned the 26-year-old veteran even when blood trickling from his wounds partially obscured his vision.

The experienced, granite-chinned Zulueta has a fine left jab and he used it well. But it wasn't enough against the twistered salvos fired by the peppy Ryff, Frankie zetty with solid left hooks and rapid fire combinations to the head.

Zulueta seldom let loose with more than one punch at a time while Ryff let go often with both barrels. That was the difference, Ryff had more power and used it.

LHS Girls Down SHS In Opening Basketball Tilt

Lennoxville High School senior girls downed the Sherbrooke High squad 50-41 to walk off with the honors in the opening league game in the local school circuit.

The game opened quickly with Lennoxville drawing first blood, as play went from one end of the floor to the other. The end of a close first quarter found S.H.S. in front 12-10.

The L.H.S. girls began to sink their long shots and started to pull away from Sherbrooke, who were having trouble getting through the Lennoxville defence. Taking advantage of a number of fouls against Sherbrooke, Lennoxville held a 23-18 lead at half time.

Try as they might, S.H.S. could not break clear from their checks and at three-quarter time L.H.S. still held a five point lead, 40-35.

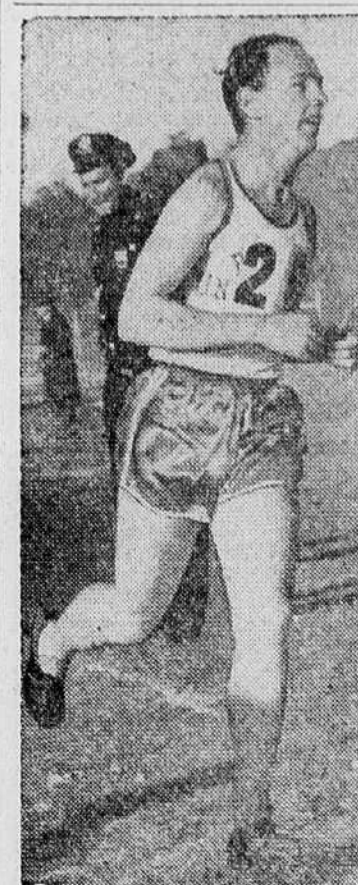

The Lennoxville girls, showing more finesse on their long shots, opened up a nine point lead and were not headed to win, 50-41 at the final whistle.

For L.H.S., J. Cox and S. Woodward played excellent games, scoring forty points each, while V. Kennett and M. McIntyre were the high Sherbrooke scorers. The game was ably handled by McMurray and Sparks.

L.H.S.: Woodard 26, Cox 14, Deacon 5, Little 5, Hoy, M. Clarke, Langford, Musty, Christmas, Way, Sewell, Howe and O'Boyle. Total 50.

S.H.S.: Kennett 12, McIntyre 12, Duffy 10, Coates 7, Anto, Gelinas, Hallett, Rosenbloom, Vrba, Fortin, G. Clarke, Hedenburgh. Total 41.

Jackie Leclair, center of the Montreal Canadiens, is the leading point-getter among the rookies in the National Hockey League this year. Jackie had three goals and eight assists for 11 points after 20 games. Eddie Litzenger, rangy right winger of Canadiens, has more goals than any other rookie. Eddie had scored six goals after 20 games this season.

Fiery Maurice "Rocket" Richard Just Two Goals Short Of 400 Mark; His Flaming Temper Cost Him $2,200

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL — Maurice "Rocket" Richard, the high-geared piece of scoring machinery whose exploits and temperament have lighted up his National Hockey League career like a Christmas tree, is on the verge of scoring his 400th goal.

The Rocket scored his 398th in Detroit Thursday night. The big explosion, with all the flair that is Richard's alone, may come any time.

The schedule sends Rocket and his Montreal Canadiens teammates into New York Sunday night and into Toronto next Wednesday. Canadiens' next home game is Thursday against the Toronto Leafs.

The black-thatched rightwinger now is in his 13th NHL season. He is 33 years old but has retained his amazingly gifted artistry and color.

SETS NEW RECORD

Every time Richard has scored since Nov. 8, 1952, he has set a record. On that date he broke the mark of 324, held by the famous Nels (Old Poison) Stewart, who played mostly with Montreal Maroons in a 15-season career.

No present-day player is near Richard. Closest are Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings and Bill Mosienko of Chicago Black Hawks, each with 251. Detroit's Great Gordie Howe, seven years younger than Richard, has scored 250 in eight campaigns and to date in the current season.

Richard's flaming temperament and temper have been costly to him: Available NHL records of fines show only those

North Hatley School Prize Winning Essay

North Hatley, Dec. 4 — Announcement was made at the opening exercises of the North Hatley Consolidated School that the essay submitted by Fay Meigs of Grade VII, had been adjudged the best from the entire school in the contest sponsored by the Home and School Association last term.

Following is the winning essay: A TRUE STORY OF LAKE MASSAWIPPI
By FAY MEIGS, Grade VII

A long time ago, a Mr. Joseph Fish and his family from Reading, Vermont, came to their new home in Canada. They came by way of Memphremagog, to the west shore of Lake Massawippi. They brought a canoe from Magog, and a Mr. Beach came with them. Mrs. Fish carried their baby in her arms, and held the bridle of the horse, which swam behind. The two men paddled the canoe, with their goods packed in bundles.

While they were crossing, the horse became frightened, and in the excitement, Mrs. Fish lost her hold on the baby, who tumbled into the water. The baby was wrapped in a heavy blanket, which prevented it from getting soaked. At that moment, Mr. Beach reached down and caught hold of the blanket and drew the baby safely aboard.

Mrs. Fish was the first white woman to cross Lake Massawippi and the first woman to settle on the south-eastern shore, and of course she was the prettiest woman. They built a log house and lived there for several years. They lived to see their children and grandchildren well settled in life.

Another funny incident happened to them. Mr. Fish was away, working at a place now called Dunham, leaving his wife and two children alone for a few weeks. One day, to her amazement, two Indians walked in, who, after looking around, took down an old gun and without saying a single word, walked out. Mrs. Fish regretted the loss of the gun, but was relieved at their departure.

It is people like Mr. and Mrs. Fish that we should thank for settling in this community and encouraging others to follow later.

Wingless Flying

Sherbrooke Glider Enthusiasts Operate Active Club

By CAROL WITTY

As long as there's an up-current, rain, sleet or freezing weather can't dampen the enthusiasm of Sherbrooke glider pilots and students when they take off on a Saturday or Sunday to discover new delights to the art of soaring through the air without the aid of engine or artificial power.

In the words of one poetic student "motorized flying is the language of aviation but gliding is its eloquence" and with these words in mind the pilots devote as much of their spare time as possible to the pursuit of their hobby. But it's not all fun. In fact there's a lot of hard work involved. On a day when the currents aren't favorable they may have to work an hour to get a one minute flight.

Last Sunday's jaunt down to Arthabaska Ridge is a good example of the "all work and little play" type of outing. Accompanied by two young fliers, Jacques Bissonette and Jean-Guy Martel, the club instructor Jacques Codere, well-known local aviator, travelled to Arthabaska Ridge with a lightweight glider packed up in a trailer. There they made their second attempt at hill soaring. This is the type of gliding which depends on the wind hitting the slope and being deflected upwards carrying the aircraft with it.

Unfortunately however, there was no up draft Sunday and although they spent the whole day in the drizzling rain and cold, the only rewards for their efforts were a few 60-second flights.

Contrary to superstitious beliefs which still run wild among the general public there is no more danger to gliding than there is to skiing, swimming or any other sport. Every sport depends on the skill of the individual. Also the dangers of fire and speed which are present in aeroplanes have been eliminated in the glider which has no engine and travels between 40 and 60 miles per hour. Just as a good swimmer won't swim in dangerous waters so a smart glider pilot won't take his plane over thickly wooded country where he might not find an open field in which to land quickly if necessary.

Actually there are three types of gliding.

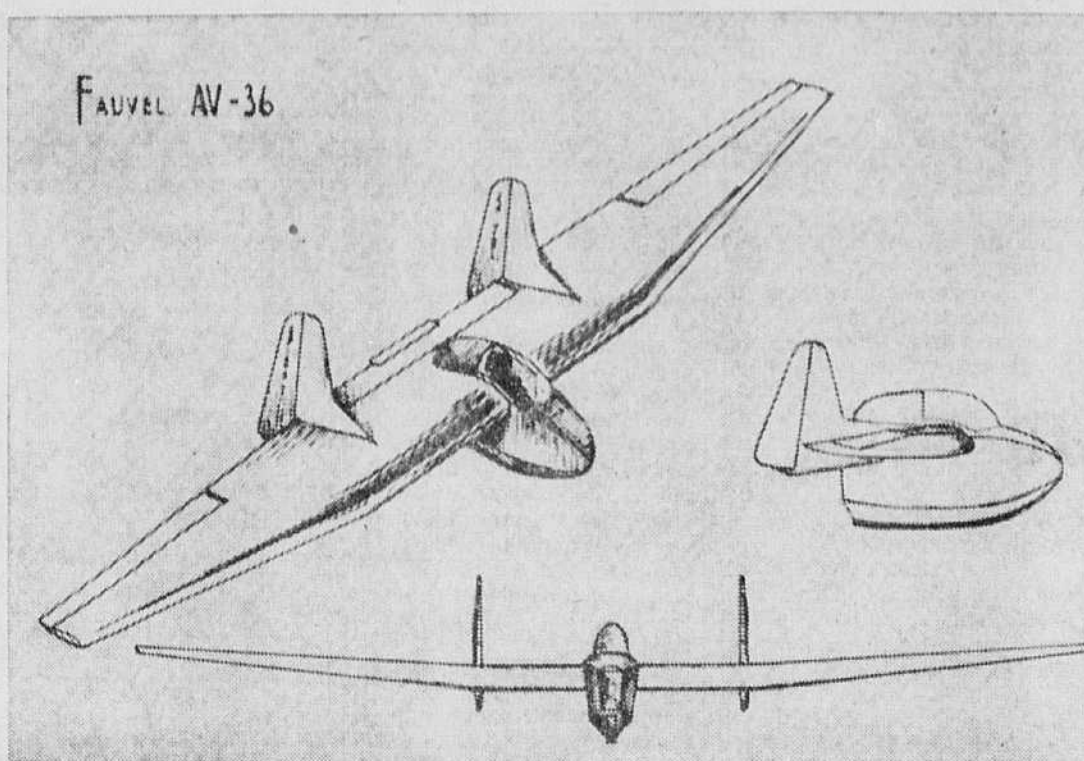

The first, according to instructor Jacques Codere, is called thermal soaring and depends on warm currents rising to keep the glider in the air.

Hill soaring, which was the type done at Arthabaska on Sunday, relies on a wind hitting the slope and deflecting upwards. The Sherbrooke Club has tried both these types of gliding.

The third category however is called wave soaring and can only be done in very high mountains. It is caused by a powerful wind hitting a high mountain, deflecting upwards and remaining constant. Sherbrooke glider pilots have not attempted this type of soaring yet.

The club has three gliders in its possession, each one valued at about $1500. A new glider costs about $3000. Some are made entirely of wood while others are made of metal and canvas. The craft used here weigh a little over 500 pounds, have a 52 foot wing span as compared to the 36 foot wing span of a small airplane. In other words the glider has almost twice the wing span of its motorized counterpart but less weight. There are some power gliders in existence but they are still in the experimental stage.

The Sherbrooke Glider Club, which operates from the air field at Windsor Mills, was founded three years ago by Jacques Codere, Sherbrooke, and Fred Sharpe of Windsor Mills. Since its inauguration, however, interest has died and membership has declined in the succeeding two years. The first year, reports Jacques Codere, 108 hours of soaring were put in by the various members and 389 flights made. This season, however, partly due to poor weather conditions and heavy rainfall, only 75 flights were made in about 25 hours. The season usually begins around the end of May and continues until the middle of December.

NEW GLIDER IN CONSTRUCTION HERE — Shown above are designs for a new Fauvel AV-36 glider which is being built by Jacques Codere in Sherbrooke. There is only one other similar ship in operation in Canada but there are several under construction by various glider clubs in the country. Mr. Codere expects to have his glider ready for a try-out by next summer. It will probably take him a total of 2000 hours to complete the all-wood construction. The Fauvel will have a wing span of 40 feet. There will be no tail or body, and the total length will be about seven feet. The pilot will sit in the small cockpit built right into the wing. One of the unique features of the glider is that it is built as one complete wing instead of a body with a wing on each side. When finished it will weigh about 250 pounds.

The greatest altitude reached by any of the club members was done by Mr. Codere who went up to 5,000 feet. But that was when he drifted into smoke rising from a fire at St. Elie and it carried the glider right up with it. However, says Jacques, this is a rather unreliable sort of up draft. The longest he has ever stayed in the air at one time was a little over two hours. The Canadian record is 11 hours duration, 14,000 feet elevation, and about 235 miles distance. The world record for altitude, however, was set by an American who took his glider up to 42,000 feet, almost eight miles. The greatest distance 535 miles was also done by an American. The duration record of 62 hours was made by a Frenchman.

At present there are 14 glider clubs in Canada three of which are in the province of Quebec, one at Buckingham, one at Quebec City and the third here. The Montreal gliders all go to Ontario for their sport. Altogether there are approximately 35 gliders in the country and 100 licensed pilots. However there are many others who have gliding certificates. A pilot's license is only necessary for carrying passengers.

Gliding first started in Germany in 1909 and it is still the country with the most glider enthusiasts in the world. In fact Hitler built up his airforce on glider pilots and they achieved a reputation unequalled by any. After the last war, gliding was banned in Germany but when the ban was lifted in 1947, 10,000 pilots and over 40,000 spectators turned out for the first meeting.

Every year there are national and international gliding meets but pilots must qualify to attend the latter by obtaining certificates showing they have done a certain number of miles, feet and hours.

The most enthusiastic of the local gliders is the instructor who is one of those people who can impart his own enthusiasm to his students. He firmly believes that everyone should have a hobby of some sort and at one time or another has promoted model airplanes, parachuting, archery, badminton and various other sports in Sherbrooke. However he blames the dwindling interest in gliding on the fact that people nowadays are too lazy to work up an interest of their own. They want to be entertained without too much effort on their own part. Movies, dance halls and dimly lit bistros are drawing more people away from the gymnasiums and the craftsman shops.

At present Jacques is building a new type of glider, a Fauvel AV-36. There is only one of its kind already in operation in Canada although there are several in construction. Made entirely of wood it is designed like a single wing instead of a fuselage with a wing on each side. The wing is about 40 feet from tip to tip. There is no tail to the glider and the pilot sits in a little cockpit built right into the wing. The whole craft is not more than seven feet long. It will weigh about 250 pounds. Mr. Codere expects to have it ready for its first flight sometime next season. He figures it will take him at least 2000 hours to complete it and if that isn't enthusiasm for a hobby there simply isn't any. Three similar craft are being built in Calgary. Another three are under construction at Quebec City, another at McGill and another at St. Michael's College in Buckingham.

According to Jacques Bissonette and Jean-Guy Martel there is no thrill like that first updraft in gliding. That miraculous feel of being lifted up into the sky for no man made reason. The absolute silence except for the quiet whispering of the wings hitting the air and the sensation of being suspended in air and time. According to one of the boys gliding is the closest thing to paradise.

WINDSOR MILLS—

The regular meeting of Wilfordale Rebekah Lodge No. 24 was held on Thursday Nov. 25 in the I.O.O.F. Hall with the Noble Grand, Sister Dora Jonderville, in the chair. After the business meeting had been concluded a pageant was enacted by several of the sisters, namely, Sister Anita Parker, who played soft music throughout, Sister Lilian Robinson as reader, Sisters Gwen Noble, Edwina Robinson, and Dora Jonderville representing "The Three Links, Friendship, Love, and Truth" respectively, Sister Ruth Lemoine, as Future, Sisters Muriel Bellmore and Noreen Robinson as Hand Maidens. The ceremony was most impressive and greatly enjoyed by all. The meeting was closed in ritual form and lunch served by several of the members and a social hour was spent.

Elizabeth Philip of Stanstead College, was a week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Philip.

Cpl. Gerald Wheeler has returned to his military post in Picton, Ont.

Mrs. F. Robinson, assembly conductor, attended the district Rebekah meeting of Hope Lodge

No. 45, held in the community hall of Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal.

Several from here attended the presentation of a wheel chair to the Sherbrooke Hospital on Sunday afternoon, by the Jubilee Lodge of Odd Fellows and Wilfordale Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wheeler, Miss Kathleen Wheeler and Cpl. Gerald Wheeler were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wheeler at Kingsley Falls.

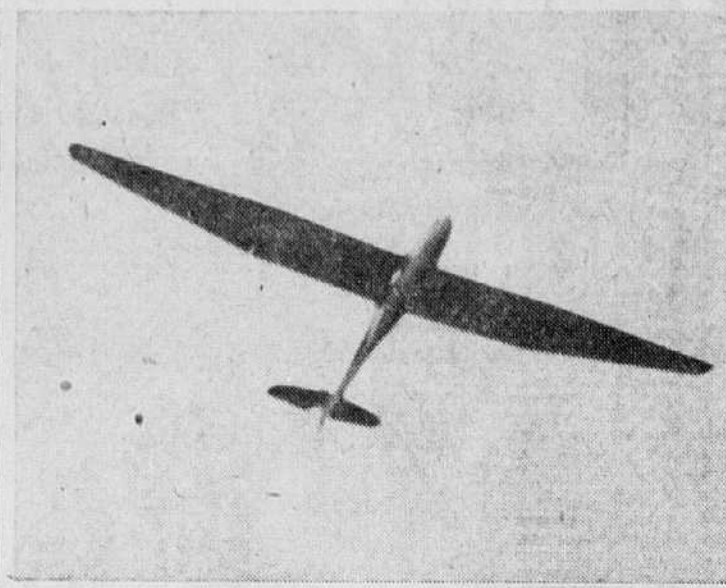

The W.M.S. Auxiliary met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. Fowler and Mrs. P. Davis with Mrs. F. Brock as hostess.

DANVILLE—

Mr. and Mrs. W. Murray spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webb.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Olney and daughters, are moving into an apartment in the Leith home for the winter months, to be near the D-A-S High School where Mr. Olney is on the teaching staff.

Among others who are moving include Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCoy who have been at the Isleigh Grange farm for several years are now in residence in the Wilson apartment. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Whitehead are in the Ingalls apartment and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stock are moving back to Asbestos.

Mrs. Vern Carson who spent some time at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Everett Olney and Mr. Olney while recuperating from an infected foot, is much improved and will soon be returning to her home.

The old settlers of Danville were sorry to loose the building known as the Belt Shop for so many years and recently occupied by the textile plant, which was so badly razed by fire a few days ago.

ISLAND BROOK—
