Chretien to finance post?

Macdonald resigns, cabinet shuffle coming

OTTAWA (CP) — After a prolonged period of indecision, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced Tuesday he was resigning from the federal cabinet.

Macdonald, 45, said he was leaving the cabinet for "strictly personal reasons," and denied opposition claims his departure marked a break in government ranks. There were no basic policy differences with Prime Minister Trudeau over the handling of the economy, Macdonald told a news conference, and particularly there were no problems about the anti-inflation program.

As recently as late spring, Macdonald had said that a date for ending controls would be announced by the end of June. But on Tuesday, he indicated he expected controls to continue, possibly until their expiry date at the added. Trudeau's office said that he would pass the chance over. Opposition Leader Joe Clark was travelling and could not comment, said Donald Doyle, Clark's secretary for public affairs.

Trudeau is expected to shuffle his cabinet sometime next week.

REPLACED TURNER

Macdonald became finance minister in September, 1975, replacing John Turner. A month later Macdonald put the country under mandatory pay and price controls.

It will be up to his successor to announce an end to the controls, he told reporters Tuesday. He said there is little chance a date to end controls will be set in his few remaining days in office.

Macdonald said that he thought his successor had little room to bring in new economic policies. He has already turned down opposition demands for a budget to help the current record 8.1-per-cent jobless rate, 7.4-per-cent inflation rate and declining economic production.

"I wish him courage and patience in what is going to be a difficult period," Macdonald said when asked about his advice for a successor.

Joe Morris, president of the 2.3-million-member Canadian Labor Congress, said he hoped Macdonald's replacement would "have an appreciation" of the need to end controls.

Roy Phillips, executive director of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said association members appreciated Macdonald's "strength of character" in resisting demands to stimulate the economy.

Prove Marion alive, kidnappers told

By ROBERT MACPHERSON
(Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — The kidnappers of credit union employee Charles Marion have again been told to prove that hostage is alive before a deal ending his month-long ordeal can be struck.

In a television message broadcast last night, the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est repeated that Marion's signature must appear seven times on any future communiques from his abductors.

The credit union first presented the condition in previous television messages Sunday and Monday when it offered $200,000 for the release of the 57-year-old credit manager.

But a communique found in a local restaurant Monday night did not have the signatures.

"We would have formulated a new offer today, if this had been done," said the television message broadcast last night on CKSH-TV.

The signatures would prove Marion is alive and well and guarantee the authenticity of new communiques.

Already, at least one phoney message has been received, and Quebec Police specialists had to study Monday night's document before judging it genuine.

"It is imperative that such-and-such a communique is authentic," the message told the kidnappers last night. "Otherwise, we must, in every instance, go through a difficult procedure before knowing a communique we have received is real."

Police spokesmen have not divulged the exact contents of the Monday-night communique. But last night's broadcast suggested it included an item to prove Marion is still alive.

"Your gift is nice, but it cannot be considered a genuine guarantee," the broadcast said.

The broadcast was to be repeated today at 11:30 a.m.

The messages are prepared by "The authorities of the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est," and read by Normand Maltais, a CKSH-TV reporter who has been covering the case.

He also read the Sunday and Monday broadcasts.

Mr. Marion was abducted Aug. 6 from his cottage in Stoke, 15 miles from here. A $1-million ransom was demanded.

Trudeau, state heads in U.S. for historic Panama pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Omar Torrijos, Panamanian head of government, will sign the Panama canal treaty tonight in a ceremony capping 13 years of often-turbulent negotiations.

The chiefs of state of 19 countries, including Canada's Prime Minister Trudeau, and representatives of eight others were to be on hand for the signing, to be televised throughout most of the United States and Latin America.

The treaty has won much more acclaim in Latin America than it has in the U.S. Senate, which could render the festivities an empty exercise by failing to ratify it by the requisite two-thirds majority.

U.S. officials believe Senate defeat of the treaty would bring about guerrilla warfare and mob violence in the Canal Zone.

The treaty calls for gradually relinquishing U.S. control over the canal by the year 2000. Panama then would assume full operational control with the United States reserving the permanent right to intervene militarily against any threat to the canal.

But many Americans retain a strong emotional attachment to the canal and wonder whether Panama, with a long record of political instability, could be trusted to run it.

HOLDS MEETINGS

Carter has been holding separate meetings with the visiting dignitaries, taking advantage of their presence to push for his favorite foreign policy themes—human rights, nuclear non-proliferation and cuts in weapons purchases.

After a hour-long meeting with Torrijos on Tuesday, Carter met separately with presidents Alfonso Lopez of Colombia, Augusto Pinochet of Chile, Francisco Morales of Peru, Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay and Vice-President Adalberto Pereira dos Santos of Brazil.

The marathon round of meetings will conclude Thursday.

Carter was to act as host at a White House dinner today for the visiting heads of government and State Secretary Cyrus Vance was to do the same at the state department for visiting foreign ministers.

The last summit meeting of Western hemispheric leaders took place 10 years ago in Uruguay. The Carter administration is hopeful the current meeting is more successful. In Uruguay, a resolution was approved pledging a major effort to form a Latin American common market by 1985. It has been gathering dust ever since.

Germans consider bowing to terrorists

COLOGNE, West Germany (CP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt convened a top-level crisis meeting early today to discuss whether to bow to the demands of the radical kidnappers of leading industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer.

The demands are reported to include the release of 14 jailed radicals and publication of a manifesto. One report, which could not be officially confirmed, said the kidnappers had set a deadline for sometime this afternoon, local time.

A government announcement indicated that the kidnappers' statement would be published. But there was no official confirmation of the demand for the prisoners or any indication that the government would meet it.

The government announcement, read on a television news program, acknowledged receipt of a ransom letter. But it said the letter would reach the federal government through police channels "only by late evening, and the deadline for the public statement you desire therefore cannot be met."

Government spokesman Klaus Boelling told reporters he could give no details of what was said at Schmidt's meeting, convened just before midnight after authorities received the kidnappers' letter.

CABINET ATTENDS
The talks were attended by the entire cabinet, leaders of the main political parties and police officials.

Also present were three state premiers, lending credence to speculation that the meeting discussed the possibility of releasing prisoners from jails in different parts of the country.

Authorities reported the arrest of two persons in connection with the kidnapping Monday in which Schleyer's chauffeur and three bodyguards were killed.

Schools tally pupils for eligibility

MONTREAL (CP) — After an uneventful beginning to a new school year in Quebec the question on most minds Tuesday was how many so-called illegals registered in English-language classes.

School board officials estimate that as many as a third of the children who registered in English-language schools before Tuesday may be ineligible under provisions of Bill 101.

Quebec's new language law. But they said exact figures would not be available for some time.

Henriette Robadey of the Montreal Catholic School Commission said 1,115 of the 3,278 new pupils who applied before Tuesday were not eligible for English-language schooling.

Joan Dougherty, chairman of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal (PSGBM), said tentative figures would be available today.

But it has been estimated that the PSGBM had already accepted about 1,100 children who do not qualify under Bill 101, adopted Aug. 26.

Under the legislation, access to English schools is limited to children with one parent who received his elementary education in English in Quebec.

Also eligible are children with brothers and sisters already in English schools and those of parents educated in English anywhere and transferred temporarily to Quebec.

Parents must provide proof of their language of schooling. Doubtful cases are referred to government officials.

The Protestant school system is presenting a united front on the language issue and the PSGBM has vowed to challenge Quebec's French language charter in the Supreme Court of Canada.

"Parents are filling in the forms, principals will consult their superiors where there is a problem, but mostly, the forms are being completed at the school level," Ms. Dougherty said.

PROVINCE CAN DECIDE
She said all registration forms gathered from schools would be submitted to the education department. She added that it would be up to the province to decide on a student's eligibility.

Drugs, liquor blamed in Alaska racism

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — The arrest of an Eskimo in the brutal slaying of two white hikers and an attack by a gang of Eskimo youths on a white man are being cited by some residents as evidence of increasing racial tension in this northernmost United States town.

Other people, including Mayor Eben Hopson, an Eskimo, cite other reasons for the recent violence—which includes a bullet fired through a National Weather Service office window.

But no one denies that the arctic town of 2,500, which Police Chief Kim Moeller says includes about 200 non-Eskimos, is on edge.

Hopson blames drugs and liquor for the sporadic incidents and has ordered a week-long ban on liquor sales, made legal only last December. His brother, Eddie, blames it on the coming of age of youngsters who used to be sent to boarding schools, where parents had no control over them. There now is a local high school.

Some whites say those who complain of harassment by Eskimos invited their troubles because they isolated themselves from the community, often in the comfort of their government housing and work quarters.

On Monday, authorities arrested Tommy Sovalik, 19, in the slaying of backpackers Gregory Underwood, 28, of San Francisco and Donna Hendershot, 32, of San Rafael, Calif. Their bullet-riddled bodies had been found in their tent on the weekend in August—the same time the other incidents were reported.

SOME HARASSMENT
For years Eskimo children have occasionally harassed tourists. Several white residents, many of them government employees, say Eskimos periodically threaten to kill them.

There has been an increase in what some call "Eskimo pride" as they assume control of local government. At the same time the people of the Inupiat Eskimo tribe face the first-ever restrictions on subsistence caribou hunting and a proposed International Whaling Commission ban on bowhead whaling, which is their livelihood.

There has been talk among some Eskimos of starting a "war" to protect their rights and of joining with Eskimo people in Canada and Greenland to form an Eskimo nation.

But local authorities deny that these issues are related to the latest violence and repudiate the charge by Roger McCoy, the state's chief criminal investigator, that the slaying of the hikers was racially motivated.

Sovalik, 19, a local Eskimo, is described by police as a loner who shot the pair while committing the theft of a small item.

A BIG DIP — Ford of Canada has launched a new corrosion protection process in all three of its assembly plants for 1978-model production. Included is this improved electrocoat paint system. Here a 1978 Ford van body, being produced for the first time at the Oakville Assembly Plant, is submerged in a 105,000-imperial-gallon tank filled with electrically-charged primer paint. The new cathodic electrocoating system requires less electricity to cover greater areas and is especially suitable for applying protective primer to hard-to-reach nooks and crannies found in car, van and truck bodies.

Alberta firm to make methane from manure

HIGH LEVEL, Alta. (CP) — A company in northern Alberta is testing a plant designed to produce methane gas and fertilizer from manure.

The plant, operated by R and L Bio Gas Ltd. of High Level, is believed the largest and most northerly in Canada.

Sheep manure and water mixed in a 15,000-gallon tank produce methane by anaerobic or oxygen-free action. The residual liquid is a fertilizer, suitable for farm use.

Don Rhoades, a High Level farmer, began working on the plant four years ago after reading about similar ones in India.

He formed R and L Bio Gas in 1975 and built the plant on his farm. In addition to using the anaerobic process, the plant utilizes solar heat.

The company recently received a six-month contract from the Alberta agriculture department to test the plant during the winter. The federal government also has expressed interest in the process.

Rhoades says he intends to manufacture similar plants for farm use as well as larger plants for feed lots, slaughterhouses and municipal sewage disposal systems.

DEPENDS ON MATERIAL — "The size of plant needed depends on the amount of decomposable material you have, and the amount of gas and fertilizer you want to produce," he said in an interview.

A plant similar to the one at High Level would be able to handle the manure of 75 cattle. It is capable of producing more than 3,000 cubic feet of methane a day under normal conditions, enough for needs around the home and to provide extra gas for possible use in powering farm machinery.

Rhoades said the plant will produce enough gas in winter to heat itself and his home. He said he hopes commercial production of the plants can begin next year.

"The winter test will be useful. But we believe that even if the production slows down in extremely cold weather, this gas plant would recover its cost in fuel and fertilizer within three years."

Cost of an automatic plant similar to that in High Level is estimated at about $20,000 installed, he said. "The potential for farm gas plants is enormous. I believe our company is further ahead in this field than anyone in Canada, and we intend to be in commercial production before anyone else."

Munro hints at early halt to controls

HAMILTON (CP) — John Munro, federal labor minister, told trade union members Monday there is a possibility that wage and price controls will be removed early.

Munro, participating in a live CBC Radio question-and-answer program with union members, said the recent failure to obtain labor's approval of voluntary wage and price restraints was a temporary setback and controls still might be withdrawn early.

The CLC might want to hold talks next year on what to do after controls are gone and such talks might lead to removal of controls before the official termination date of December, 1978, Munro said.

The labor minister was booed when he defended the government's policy by saying wage and price controls meant greater real-wage increases and that the private sector has not had time to react to accelerated tax writeoffs and create new jobs.

Walter Valchuk, president of Local 1005, United Steelworkers of America union, said it would be impossible for his local to negotiate a fair agreement next summer if controls still were in effect because negotiations would have to be done knowing controls soon would be withdrawn.

Munro disagreed, saying woodworkers in British Columbia recently reached a new one-year contract that leaders there said was a good agreement.

He said an oil-and-gas pipeline agreement with the U.S. would be a "light at the end of the tunnel" for the unemployed, adding that an agreement might bring 2,000 to 3,000 jobs to Hamilton in the manufacture of the pipe.

Union leaders' beefs mark Labor Day

Canada's union leaders marked Labor Day by criticizing governments and industry.

Joe Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said governments are indifferent to unemployment.

Morris said Monday it is the responsibility of organized labor to "awaken Canadians to the human consequences of this human cancer."

He said the CLC will tell the public of the personal hardships resulting from the lack of jobs.

Grace Hartman, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said politicians and business leaders have attacked organized labor in an attempt to discourage workers from joining unions.

Mrs. Hartman, the speaker Monday at the luncheon for labor leaders at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, said part of the attack has taken the form of anti-labor legislation, including federal wage controls.

Wage increases are being held to four or five per cent annually, she said, while the consumer price index is rising at an annual rate approaching 10 per cent.

MUST REFUTE CLAIMS

Unions must refute claims that Canadian labor is pricing itself out of world markets and that Canada has the worst strike record of any developed country, Mrs. Hartman said.

Canada rates sixth in incidence of strikes, she said. "The fact is that strikes last longer in Canada and that should be a message for government," she said.

"From the beginning of this year to the end of April, time lost because of unemployment was 70 times greater than last time due to strikes."

A. I. Stewart, president of the Public Service Alliance, said union members can expect many gains won in the past to come under attack in the coming months.

In his message to alliance members, all of whom are federal government employees, Stewart said they will have to fight to retain benefits such as the employees' pension plan, which rises automatically with the cost of living.

Wage controls and the federal government's tendency to hire private firms to perform jobs which could be done by public employees also threaten union members, Stewart said.

Soviets get bounce for travel bucks

MOSCOW (AP) — On a trip to Soviet Armenia, two American tourists boarded their plane to find every seat already taken.

The problem was solved—immediately—in a way that would surprise few foreigners who have toured the Soviet Union. The plane's crew simply picked two Russian passengers at random, expelled them from the plane over their objections, and smilingly offered the foreigners their places.

Foreign travellers are a privileged class in the Soviet Union. Whether the reason is traditional Russian hospitality or a desire to attract more tourist dollars, foreigners here regularly enjoy treatment that the ordinary citizen can only dream of.

At airports, special employees escort foreigners to their planes separately from the crowds of regular passengers.

Foreigners can make reservations at restaurants where ordinary citizens stand in long lines, receiving a table—sometimes with their country's flag in the middle—as soon as they arrive.

REACTS QUICKLY

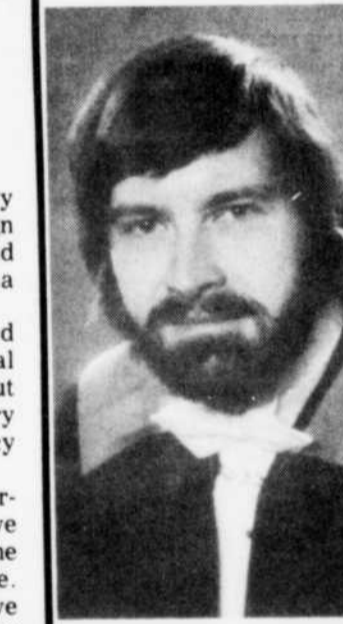

When a foreigner becomes ill, the normally quick Soviet medical service seems to work even faster.

"I got back to my hotel one night and my stomach was hurting so I asked the hotel to call a doctor," said one Western tourist. "Almost immediately, a whole crew arrived, with a stretcher and huge cases of drugs."

On an airplane flight from Irkutsk, Siberia, an airport attendant was so eager that her American charge have plenty of room to relax that she blocked other passengers from sitting in the seat next to him. Some Westerners believe such treatment also helps isolate Soviet citizens from foreign contacts.

Surprisingly to a Westerner, there is usually little grumbling when Russians are asked to give up places or privileges to a foreign visitor.

"I think some Russians are just in awe of foreigners, going back to when Peter the

Lennoxville won't close dump Mayor may not run

LENOXVILLE (JC) — Mayor Cecil Dougherty will announce this week whether he will run for office in the upcoming November

Lennoxville Mayor Cecil Dougherty

municipal elections. "I will be discussing the matter with my colleagues in the next few days, before I make any public announcement," he told The Record after last night's council meeting.

Mr. Dougherty has held the office of Mayor for the past five terms.

In other council business the municipality will replace 19 street lights and install ten new lights, following a report from the Street Light Committee.

Warner, Pierce, Champigny, Parker and Vaudry-Clough Streets will receive the new lighting.

Council has flatly refused an Environment Board request to close the present municipal dump.

Mayor Dougherty noted the dump has been a controversial subject for 11 years. Council passed a resolution asking an Environment representative to personally visit the yet unexamined dump, which they feel is "maintained at a high level".

Council voted last night to make further enquiries into the proposal of financial assistance to Sherbrooke-Lennoxville public bus transportation before taking any decision on the matter.

In other transportation concerns, Mayor Dougherty and Councillor Bob Passmore will attend a meeting on railroad transportation in the area, at Sherbrooke City Hall tonight.

In other council business: - The town received a $325 grant from the High Commission of Sport and Recreation.

- Speed road signs will not be converted to kilometers until October as the law has yet to be amended by the National Assembly.

- Council agreed to pay the current accounts of $69,850.18 and appropriation of $54,899.94 to provide for last month's municipal operations.

Woollen mills ordered to stop dumping oil

COOKSHIRE (JC) — Cookshire Woollen Mills have been ordered to stop dumping heavy "bunker" oil into the Eaton River by the Environment Protection Services' Hygiene Department, sources from the department said yesterday.

The notice also ordered the company to repair any damage caused by the oil which contravenes the province's environment laws.

"Bunker" oil, which resembles crude oil, is dumped from a drainage pipe at the factory. The greasy substance carried pieces of wool into the river, and the two substances leave heavy dark slabs floating on the river.

The Environment Services were notified of the situation by Real Varin, president of the East Angus Hunting and Fishing Association.

Mr. Varin said he had seen oil floating on the river near East Angus for several years, but always believed it was dumped by service stations.

He expressed a fear that the substance was harmful to fauna in the Eaton River, saying it did not allow oxygen to penetrate the surface. He added that fish eating their prey floating on the river would be contaminated by the oil.

Roger Beaudoin, owner of the company, said there was no need to dramatize the situation. He said he did not believe there was a large quantity of the oil in the river.

Mr. Beaudoin said that any leakage was accidental. He noted a small quantity of oil may have been dumped when the factory reservoirs were recently cleaned.

Meanwhile in Coaticook, Tillotson Manufacturing began work yesterday on the clean-up of the Coaticook River. The company was held responsible for a pollution which destroyed fish and fauna for ten miles along the river, last week.

They were ordered to restore the "river to its previous state" by Environment Protection Services.

Goin' metric

By LEE HUTTON

LEE HUTTON, a Montreal university professor, has been studying the intricacies of the conversion to the metric system. His column will appear daily in The Sherbrooke Record.

On May 4th this year, the Federal Government announced that as of that date, all bids, tenders and quotations for government contracts would have to be in metric units if they were to be considered.

This announcement wasn't a surprise. Canada has accepted metric units as legal terms since 1875, and has been actively moving toward full metric usage since 1970.

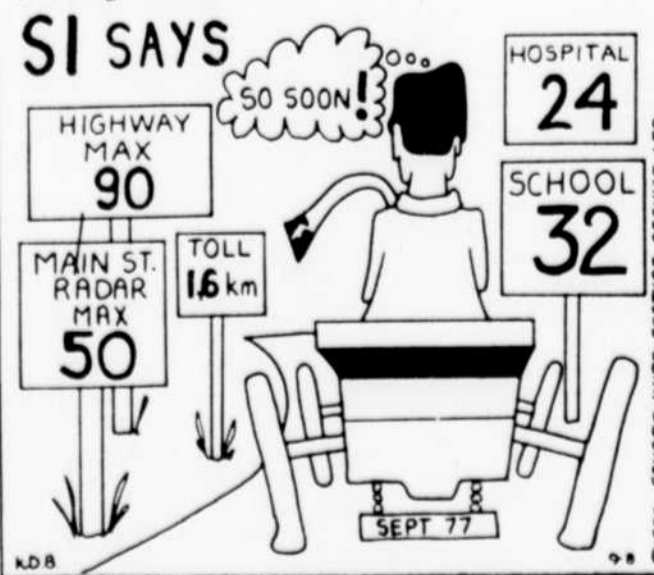

There are many reasons for the decision, but the most important and basic reason was purely economic. At that time Canada and the USA were the only two major producers that were not fully committed to changing their system of measurement to the official international format. Further pressure on the Canadian government was made apparent when major American industries such as IBM, General Motors, and others declared their intention of modifying their production to International standards.

Canada could not afford to be caught as the only trading nation operating in a system of measurement that was archaic, cumbersome, and expensive.

The history of the metric system is interesting, but is not of primary concern to a person experiencing the present change and the upset it causes the average individual. It is sufficient to point out that Canada has chosen the most modern version of the International Standards Association, a system that avoids some of the inadequacies of earlier versions.

The System International (SI) that Canada has adopted is very coherent and simple to use within its own terms. The problem arises in abandoning our old system, and relating it to the measurements that will be the only ones in existence by 1980.

Simple suggestions for this change will appear in following columns.

On horseback since childhood Ross riding to Olympics

DUNHAM — Though she said that Olympic competition was "too far away even to think about," a glimmer of interest could be seen in Heather Ross, 18, as she prepared to take part in the Eastern Townships Combined Event held here at the Popiel Riding Stables on Saturday.

Heather Ross

Miss Ross, daughter of Sherbrooke surgeon James Ross, has competed in Quebec and Ontario Junior Championship matches during her eight years of equestrian sports.

Heather placed first in a field of 20 Quebec and Ontario riders at recent Ontario Junior Championships in Thornhill, Ontario.

Finishing fourth in the Junior Training Class on a horse that was not her regular one, Miss Ross goes on to compete in the North American Junior Championships in Lexington, Kentucky.

The first year agricultural sciences student at the University of Guelph told The Record she became interested in riding, "I guess when Mom first put me up on a horse."

She added that she has been riding at the Popiel Stables for about five years and does some riding in an area near Lennoxville. Most of her equestrian training came from Andrew Popiel and his son, Paul.

"They're fantastic teachers," said Miss Ross. "They've helped me all the way through my training."

She did not know if riding would become a career, but added, "We'll see what happens."

Andre Popiel received his first riding lesson 61 years ago. Originally from Poland, Mr. Popiel speaks eight languages fluently and has ridden in Vienna, Austria, for five years during the late 1920s, on the world famous Royal Lipizzan Stallions. He was also a member of the Polish Cavalry during World War Two.

The original designer of the Bromont Olympic site, Mr. Popiel has been in Dunham for the last 28 years, with the riding stables in operation for the past 14 years.

"Before that, I had a thousand chickens," he said. "This is much better."

The Eastern Townships Combined Event is a one-day affair, staged for the past 10 years.

7-point plan to boost sagging industry

Quebec wants textile import quotas

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — The Quebec government called on the federal government Tuesday to impose quotas on textile imports for five years starting in 1978 to bolster the ailing industry.

The recommendation was contained in a seven-point plan drawn up during a day-long meeting attended by about 40 representatives of the industry, government and labor in this town 100 kms. north-east of Montreal. Bernard Landry, Quebec minister of state for economic development, told a news conference following the closed-door meeting that everyone attending agreed "urgent and energetic action" was needed.

The quotas should last five years during which government and industry could prepare for long-term expansion of the industry, Landry said.

The industry has faced stiff competition from imports in recent years, particularly from underdeveloped countries which produce most imports of inexpensive clothing. Since 1961, the textile industry has laid off more than 10,000 people, and 4,200 jobs were lost in the first four months of 1977. The industry now employs about 30,000 people.

Last June, the federal government extended its quotas on imports of most clothing commodities at 1975 levels until June, 1978, but has not yet indicated whether restrictions will be continued beyond that date. WANT 1975 LEVEL.

Quebec recommends the federal government maintain the import level in 1975, when imports comprised 41.2 per cent of the total Canadian market.

Under the Quebec proposal, the quota would apply to all aspects of the industry including fibres, fabrics and clothing.

Landry said the provincial government is ready to give financial assistance to the industry, but would not act on the conference's proposals until Ottawa takes action.

The plan also calls on the industry to promote exports abroad through a government agency to be set up for the purpose.

Landry also said the government would reconsider the present Quebec sales tax on clothing the next time the tax laws are reviewed.

The meeting, convened at the request of the Quebec government, was attended by three other Quebec ministers: Jacques Parizeau, finance and revenue; Rodrigue Tremblay, industry and commerce; and Pierre-Marc Johnson, labor and manpower.

The meeting is the first of four called by the government to help create a new economic policy for the province.

The others will be held during the next two weeks to discuss problems faced by the clothing, hat, shoe and furniture industries.

St-Hyacinthe strikers picket textile meeting

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. — About 150 striking workers demonstrated outside a hotel here Tuesday where government, industry and labor representatives were discussing the future of Quebec's textile industry.

The demonstrators called for government intervention in their labor disputes.

Most of them have been locked out of the Volcano boiler manufacturing plant in nearby St-Hyacinthe since June 20 following a breakdown in contract negotiations.

Volcano is wholly-owned by the Quebec government under its General Investment Corp.

Other demonstrators were from two Drummondville-based rug manufacturers, Venture Carpet and Space Colour, which have been on strike for two weeks.

Montreal Portuguese defy language legislation

MONTREAL (CP) — "It's me that controls my house and not Levesque," said Portuguese immigrant Joao Rosa after registering his little girl in an English elementary school Tuesday.

Like many Portuguese parents who live in the city's northeast section, Rosa has chosen to send his child to an English rather than a French elementary school, in defiance of the new Quebec government language legislation.

Although the legislation restricts English schooling mainly to children with at least one parent educated in English in Quebec or children whose brothers or sisters are already attending English schools, some school boards are pursuing an open-door registration of ineligible children despite warnings that government grants will be cut off for illegally-registered children.

Another father chatting with Rosa in the schoolyard of Our Lady of Mount Royal Roman Catholic school said he is fed up with Camille Laurin, the Quebec cultural development minister, whom he regarded as a despotic king.

LAW CALLED RACIST
The Portuguese fathers call the language law

"racist" and "discriminatory" and insist they want their children to attend English schools because "English is the language of North America and the nine other provinces."

Although the Portuguese community is traditionally Roman Catholic, the men say that, if necessary, they will put their children in Protestant schools to be educated in English or even send their children to private schools.

"It doesn't cost much, maybe $1,000 a year," says one father of two illegally-registered children, who works as a waiter. The other men in the circle nodded their agreement.

Ironically, these parents talk to each other in French, the second language of most Portuguese-speaking immigrants and the one they use most in their low-paying service jobs. But they say their children speak English.

SOME 70 per cent of the 400 children attending the school come from Portuguese families, while the remainder come mainly from Spanish, Greek, and Chinese homes.

"We'll try and give them everything they should be getting and that means the three R's," says the principal when talking about his illegally-registered students.

Last year the school set up special classes for some 70 immigrant children who had failed English tests required under previous legislation, but whose parents insisted they attend English schools.

Sleeping woman attacked

Officers of the Sherbrooke Criminal Investigation Bureau are continuing their inquiry into a violent robbery at 2040 King St. W., at 4 p.m., yesterday.

Two bandits attacked Mrs. Lucienne Mathieu, a 60-year-old widow, while she slept in her home. The two stole an undisclosed sum of money, and jewellery valued at $1,500, making their getaway in Mrs. Mathieu's car which was later found on Rioux Street.

Mrs. Mathieu told police she heard nothing suspicious when she went to bed, but woke to find two men in their twenties in her room. The men tied, gagged and blindfolded their victim, Mrs. Mathieu received help by moving to the upper floor of the house, where she was freed by her landlord.

Mrs. Mathieu was not mistreated by her assailants, but suffered minor injuries from the ties which bound her, and was considered to be in shock. Police are studying the possibility of a link between Mrs. Mathieu's attack and Mrs. Florence Bradford, who was savagely beaten and robbed at her home Aug. 5.

School is for kids

As the province's school children head back to class, it would be easy to forget what the whole purpose of the exercise is. It is a tragedy that the education of our children has become a political football to be kicked around amongst politicians, school boards, administrators, teachers' unions and parent groups.

Presumably the primary intent should be to educate each individual child to the limits of his or her capacity in the language which best suits the needs of the student in question. Hopefully, these students should leave the system with the capacity to choose between various options in a mature fashion.

The purpose of our educational institutions is not to provide job security for administrators or teachers nor to advance the collective rights of the members of any particular group. Its purpose certainly should not be to serve as an instrument of the state in the advancement of its political aims.

Education should serve the individual, not the collectivity.

In September 1977 we can only pray that our children's attitudes will not be permanently damaged by fallout from the present Bill 101 debate. In this context educators should make a special effort to see that acrimonious debates do not spill over into the school room.

Labor party in disarray
Israeli opposition overpowered

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — About three months after its defeat at the polls, Israel's Labor party is in complete disarray—torn apart by internal dissensions and lack of direction.

Having dominated Israeli politics for 29 years, the party is finding it impossible to regroup and function as a fighting opposition to the victorious rightwing Likud, headed by Premier Menachen Begin.

Instead of offering the public alternative plans on the vital questions of a Middle East peace, future boundaries and the Palestinian problem, Labor is locked in a bitter battle of personalities.

In the centre of the controversy is party chairman Shimon Peres, the former defence minister. "I do not regard him as my leader," former premier Yitzhak Rabin told a newspaper interviewer, recalling their years of rivalry.

But the recriminations continue and some newspapers here have speculated whether the onslaughts are not aimed at provoking at least some of Peres's followers to quit the party in the way that former defence minister Moshe Dayan did after the general election. He now is foreign minister in the Likud government.

Begin undoubtedly would welcome the dissidents and would probably offer them most of the four still unfilled cabinet posts. Immediately after his surprise victory, Begin called on Labor to join him in setting up a government of national unity and he has not given up his hope of attracting at least some of Labor's top personalities.

Jack Anderson's Washington Merry-Go-Round
Demure Ms. Suzi Park Thompson demanded open hearing

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In one of the most dramatic episodes of the Korean investigation, the demure, petite Korean beauty, Suzi Park Thomson, suddenly turned the tables on her congressional accusers behind closed doors last month.

She sweetly refused to answer questions about her alleged role in influencing congressmen. Instead, she offered to answer all questions in open session where her responses couldn't be distorted. She feared any testimony taken in secret might be twisted and leaked to the press.

But the assembled members of the House Ethics Committee were concerned that her answers might embarrass innocent congressmen. They wanted to screen her testimony, therefore, before making it public.

Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., explaining that open hearings might defame people, demanded specifics from Thomson before opening the doors.

Did she know Korean influence peddler Tongsun Park? Had she knowledge of any Korean payments to members of Congress?

"Yes," she had met Park "several years ago," she said. But she refused to elaborate, or to discuss whether she knew about the payoffs.

The congresswoman pressed until Thomson, like a fragile Korean doll suddenly come to life, protested plaintively. They were worried about other people's reputations on Capitol Hill, she pouted; what about her rights? They were spending the taxpayers' money to seek the truth about the Korean allegations; then why not let her tell her story to the taxpayers out in the open, she asked.

The flare-up, out of character for the coy Korean girl, was preceded by an earlier confrontation between her attorney and the committee. The attorney, Philip Hirschkop, said he had tried to cooperate with the committee staff but that it had violated a letter of agreement. The staff had tried to question Thomson, he said, "without me being present, which was totally out of order."

He told the committee bluntly: "I don't trust the staff." Therefore, he would not permit his client to tell her story, he said, unless the public and the press were admitted. "In terms of my experience with the staff," he said, "leaks have caused her devastating damage. She has been maligned for trips she took."

He claimed she had been taken on Korean trips, as a U.S. citizen and congressional employee, because of her Korean background. "It was as basic as the situation where they took black people to Africa and Spanish people to Spain."

Then he added as an aside: "Both senior members of this committee were on one of the trips." To the best of our information, only the committee's top Republican, Rep. Floyd Spence, R-S.C., travelled to the Far East with a delegation that brought Suzi Park Thomson along.

"Because of leaks," Hirschkop charged, "she was maligned."

Responded counsel Thomas Fortuin: "Since I don't know what your client is going to say and what ramifications this may have on other people, we are not willing to have your client testify in open session, initially."

Hirschkop asked whether the secrecy was for Thomson's protection.

"No," conceded Fortuin. "It is to protect anyone who may be incriminated by her testimony." Before they could permit her to make a public appearance, he said, they would have to "trash this out as to how the rights of congressmen and others can be violated."

Retorted Hirschkop: "She has never received payments from anybody. If you ask the general question first, you wouldn't have to worry about defaming anybody."

She wanted to cooperate with the committee, he said, but "it will have to be under some guidelines where she has some protection, where the staff can't take advantage in violation of all the ethics of our profession. I will never send her down here alone again. It is a lion's den."

Fortuin warned gravely that Thomson "may be held in contempt." "I am familiar with the power of Congress," snapped Hirschkop, "but threats won't get us any place in this proceeding."

"I am not threatening you," replied the committee counsel. "I am simply asking upon what legal grounds you are advising your client not to testify?" "That's all I am going to tell you," said Hirschkop. "Let's not play games."

Fortuin persisted until the attorney appealed to the congressmen. "I can't imagine the members trying to put this woman's back against a wall," said Hirschkop.

He charged that the press, feeding on leaks, was ruining Thomson. "The news media has seriously maligned her," he declared. "There is no way to prevent leaks from a proceeding such as this."

He complained: "She has been unable to become re-employed on Capitol Hill, where she spent so many years. She is accused of having a congressman's children, which is grossly untrue; taking payoffs, which is grossly untrue."

"These meetings are in executive session," responded Fortuin. "The committee has almost a perfect record as to leaks."

But the attorney would not be deterred. "She is refusing to testify under this situation today because it has been so destructive to her. There have been articles in sex magazines..."

It took a contempt-of-Congress threat finally to get Thomson to answer specific questions at a subsequent secret session.

As we previously reported, she denied any personal role in the Korean scandal but testified reluctantly that the wheeling-dealing Tongsun Park used to pick up messages in Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill's office.

London narcs battling Chinese drug gangs

LONDON (Reuter) — A sword and knife attack on three Chinese last week has pitted London's drug squad detectives once more against the Triads—the Chinese underworld gangs involved in narcotics smuggling.

In the bizarre attack a few days ago, 10 Chinese brandishing meat cleavers, long knives and swords stormed into a restaurant and, in front of 40 diners, hacked away at the three men. All three were still in hospital in critical condition today.

Sources said the incident resembled a ritual Triad killing. Members of such secret societies all over the world face death by sword and knife if they break any of the 36 Triad vows made when initiated.

But it also smacked of a family feud among London's Triad gangs over the new leadership of the highly lucrative Soho Connection, the narcotics trade police dismantled in a series of spectacular raids and court convictions earlier this year. Police said today they have come up against a wall of silence in their inquiries in Chinatown, a part of the Soho district in London's West End.

SMASHES GANG
It was from that maze of basement houses and narrow streets that Scotland Yard late last year plucked the Triad masterminds of the Soho connection—beautiful Malaysian heiress May Wong, 30, and her lover, 26-year-old Li Mah. They were each sentenced to 14 years in prison.

The couple's conviction in January was quickly followed by another police success—the jailing in June of a seven-member Triad heroin ring. Detectives told the court that in one year alone the ring had smuggled the equivalent of $34 million worth of the drug.

The arrests, following a number of drug seizures and the conviction of several couriers, left a gaping vacancy in the Soho Triad hierarchy and smashed the old Soho connection.

Sources said several Triad gangs have organized a new Soho connection and now are fighting for its control. At stake is a sizable portion of the $1.7 billion annual heroin trade from Asia's golden triangle of Thailand, Laos and Cambodia. Private armies run by warlords and government military men are fighting there for control of the poppy crops—the village-grown opium which is the base for most hard drugs.

Police said organizations like the Triads move the heroin from Hong Kong and Malaysia to European storage houses in Amsterdam, Rome and London.

It is generally accepted among police that Amsterdam has become the Triad's biggest European heroin storehouse while Gerrard Street in London's Chinatown has been described as "the street of a thousand fixes."

Evasive, impenetrable and steeped in century-old customs, the Triad society was originally formed to fight the Manchu emperors in China.

Like its European counterpart, the Sicilian Mafia, it is a brotherhood based on strict secrecy and loyalty with members subjected to elaborate initiation vows, along with hand signals denoting rank and recognition, which are known only by members.

Strikes needed to show solidarity with Inuits

Sir,
That the Parti Quebecois government is fascistic, totalitarian, and hellbent on destroying minority language rights by any means possible becomes blatantly clear in the aftermath of the August 24 invasion of Fort Chimo, by 25 Quebec Provincial Patrol members.

This show of force came not in response to violence among the 800 Inuit and white Fort Chimo residents, but rather in response to organized, non-violent protest against Bill 101.

The Fort Chimo community council had requested that Quebec government employees leave town, and three community councils in neighboring villages followed suit. In effect, the Inuit people declared linguistic sovereignty in their territory just as the Parti Quebecois attempts to do elsewhere throughout Quebec. The essential differences are in which language the two groups wish to predominate. And the Parti Quebecois, no doubt first to object if English-speaking Canada used military force to preserve minority language rights here, was first to use force against language rights in Fort Chimo.

Lest 25 policemen sound like a small invasion, consider that this means one armed representative of Parti Quebecois for every 32 Fort Chimo people, including women and children. This more than doubles the ratio of Allied troops to German residents at the end of World War II—and is in addition to the police presence already maintained there.

The time has come for more protests and stronger protests on the part of others opposed to Bill 101, the Parti Quebecois, and separation, before similar strongarm tactics silence all of us.

A mass strike the day school is supposed to open would demonstrate solidarity with the Inuits and convincingly show that the majority here does not back the PQ—as confirmed by the latest Gallup poll, showing 70 per cent of voters unilaterally opposed to separation.

Continuing mass strikes occurring once a month could possibly drive the Parti Quebecois to resignation. The same tactic has succeeded in other nations, and can succeed here if we have the courage to do it.

If we do not, what happened in Fort Chimo can happen here. A police state is a police state. It may happen to Eskimos first now, as it happened to Jews first in Nazi Germany, but sooner or later we all must suffer the consequences.

Robot doctor easy to talk to GLASGOW, Scotland (CP) — The doctor with the perfect bedside manner—unflappable, courteous and never irritable—is a robot at Glasgow's Southern General Hospital.

Patients say "he" is the perfect listener and it is easier to talk about awkward or embarrassing facts to the robot doctor than to a human one, who may register indignation, irritation, reproach or even anger.

"Robbie never gets ruffled and never changes his mood, so patients know what to expect," said Dr. Roger Lucas, a psychologist at the hospital. "He never suffers from the morning-after-the-night-before and he treats everyone alike."

The robot doctor is basically a computer with a television screen, flashing eyes and pushbutton answers. His speed can be adjusted to suit the temperament of the patient being interviewed.

After the interview, Robbie always thanks the patient for his or her cooperation. He cuts out the tedious and time-consuming groundwork by interviewing patients and making a preliminary examination before passing them on to the appropriate specialist.

"Already he has done much to ease the workload of hospital doctors," Dr. Lucas said.

CREATE PATIENT

Not only have Robbie's inventors produced the perfect doctor, they have also built the perfect patient—another computer. This has been devised as a method of teaching medical students. The computer gives them an entirely free hand in diagnosing and prescribing treatment for a wide range of illnesses without the fear of getting it wrong and killing the patient.

The perfect patient is an ingenious machine with $120,000 worth of built-in diseases.

The student, confronted by a range of medical problems, sits at a teletype linked to the computer and on a small TV screen receives the case notes of his patient.

While the computer knows the ideal treatment, having been programmed beforehand by a team of 12 doctors, the student has to find the correct treatment by trial and error.

"The system offers many advantages, particularly as regards medical ethics," said Dr. Stuart Murray, Nuffield Research Fellow at the hospital. "The problem before was that the teacher could not put his student in a real-life situation or let him make mistakes."

"Now the student can become really involved and learn from his mistakes," Dr. Lucas said the robots do their job effectively and do not ask for more information than they require. They ask only relevant questions.

Increasing number search "real parents"

VANCOUVER (CP) — It's not easy for adults who were adopted to trace their original parents, and what they find when they complete the search isn't always pleasant. But an increasing number of Canadians are trying.

Joan Vanstone started a service called Parent Finders in 1974. Since then it has spread from Vancouver across Canada, and now has more than 3,000 members.

Adoptees pay a $10 fee to register with Parent Finders. Natural parents looking for their children pay $5.

Miss Vanstone, an adopted child herself, said adoptees do their own search at their own expense, but Parent Finders help them get adoption background sheets from government agencies and keep files on other parents and adoptees who are searching.

But the organization is most helpful, she said, in providing a meeting place where people can exchange ideas on how to look and can share experiences.

She said Parent Finders have helped in more than 200 reunions. She said about 10 per cent of these have not been happy.

MAY DISAPPOINT

"We counsel people that when they've been looking they have to be prepared for what they find," said Miss Vanstone.

"The reason we let people do their own searches is if they start finding things they don't like, they can stop the search right there."

She said adoptees often have someone from Parent Finders make the initial contact to see if the parents want a reunion.

Miss Vanstone searched two years only to discover her parents had died. But she found her brother and sister, both alive and well, in nine months. She said the first hurdle for most people is finding their original names.

Alberta is the only province that will give adult adoptees their original adoption orders with their natural parents' surname.

A spokesman for the adoption and child-care services section of the British Columbia department of human resources said names of original parents aren't released because of a commitment made to adopting parents.

"We have referred people to Parent Finders but we warn them that finding their parents is not necessarily a good experience," she said.

She said the department will give out background sheets showing the adoptee's medical history, age at adoption and racial origin.

But Miss Vanstone said the provincial records are of little use in a long search.

Ann Landers says

Accept aged with grace

Dear Ann Landers:

Yes, it's true. Hitler-like extermination is not only immoral but criminal. Yet, problems with the aged are so difficult, I am sick and tired of writing that cheque every month for my husband's 90-year-old mother who doesn't know anybody and can't even comb her own hair. She is a terrific burden to the family yet the doctor says her heart is better than mine and she may outlive all of us.

My children need financial help badly. We are not rich - barely making it, in fact. It grieves me to see all this money being spent to keep a useless woman alive. Where does the point of justice lie?

Anonymous, Of Course - What Else Could I Be?

Dear Anonymous:

What else could you be? Well - compassionate, for one thing.

True, it is tragic when the body outlives the mind, but nobody gets a contract which guarantees the length of time either will last - or which will go first, the body or the mind.

There's a law against shooting people because they are no longer "useful". And if there were no law - would you do it? I think not. So quit eating yourself up - and accept with grace that which you cannot change.

Dear Ann Landers:

I always felt that some day I would be compelled to write to you. This letter is concerning an answer for the "Sad Mother", who wrote about her crippled son who had the slight limp.

I was the "ugly girl" no one danced with because of a congenital deformity. People wonder if I am a "crippled dwarf". I went all through high school and college without a single date and never was invited to the great senior prom of life - marriage.

Tell that mother for me to get her son to go to activities that do not involve couples. He should stay away from dances and visit art galleries, boat shows, concerts, stage plays, and movies. He could join a club pertaining to his favorite hobby.

Eventually, one of his men friends will introduce him to his (the friend's) sister who will be interested in the boy because he was a beautiful spirit and she won't even notice the limp.

I Know Because I've Been There

Dear Friend:

Terrific advice. One word from someone who's "Been There" is more valuable than 1,000 from an "Observer." The important point of your letter is to stay in circulation - be visible - and not hide in a corner and feel sorry for yourself.

Dear Ann Landers:

Here's a new one for you. I've never read anything like it. Clinton and I bought into a lovely condominium a few months ago. Our next-door neighbor is a widow. The first time she met Clinton she couldn't take her eyes off him. Soon after, she told us he looks exactly like her deceased husband.

Now she has informed us both that she is in love with him. At first I thought it was just a passing thing, but now she watches for Clinton every time he leaves the apartment and returns - just to have a few words with him.

He is flattered by her attention and I believe he is beginning to enjoy it. What can I do about it?

An Old Story With A New Wrinkle

Dear N.W.:

Don't make an issue of it or you'll create a problem where none exists. Be friendly, laugh about it - in the meantime, fix her up with a nice widower or divorced man who looks as much like Clinton as possible.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a solution for the woman whose husband likes her side of the bed better, once he is asleep. I used to have the same problem.

When the snoring started, I grabbed my pillow, got out of bed and crawled in on his side. It took 60 seconds and no arguing.

Funny thing, after a week or so he stayed on his own side. — Victorious

Dear Vic: How logical! I never would have thought of it. + + +

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious - lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity". Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill.

Mixed-up youth attacks church

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The white youth who sprayed a black church gathering with gunfire Monday and then killed himself was dating a black girl against his parents' wishes, hid his interest in the Nazi party from his family and once told a classmate he was considering suicide.

A confusing and troubled portrait emerged Tuesday in descriptions by family and friends of Kenneth Wilson, 17, identified as the gunman wearing a swastika armband who opened fire with an M-1 carbine on a Labor Day picnic at a black church south of Charlotte.

One man was killed and three other persons wounded in the brief fusillade. Wilson then put the barrel of his weapon to his chin and killed himself.

Amin to execute 12

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has ordered the public executions of 12 former ranking government and military officials convicted of plotting to overthrow him. Radio Uganda said Tuesday.

Broadcasts monitored here said the executions by firing squad were scheduled for 5 p.m. Friday (10 a.m. EDT) under a clock tower on the outskirts of Kampala, Uganda's capital.

The radio said official government photographers have been assigned to cover the executions and that any others who try to take photographs will do so at their own risk.

Among the 12 doomed men are Lieut. Ben Ogwanga, a former intelligence officer; Y. Y. Okoth; J. Olobo; A. S. Okidimanya; Abdalla Anyuru, a former chairman of the Uganda Public Services Commission, and Ben Ongoma, a former leading businessman in Kampala.

They were convicted of treason by a military tribunal Monday and sentenced to death. Amin signed the execution orders early Tuesday, Radio Uganda said.

Two other defendants were also found guilty of plotting against Amin and were sentenced to 15-year prison terms.

The accused had pleaded guilty to planning the coup which allegedly was timed for last Jan. 25.

Amin announced the plot against him at a Feb. 16 rally in Kampala. One of the alleged plotters implicated Anglican Archbishop Janani Luwum.

Radio Uganda announced the next day that Luwum and two of Amin's cabinet ministers were arrested and then killed in an automobile accident. Other sources said they were murdered.

Park's extradition sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter may personally ask South Korea's president to return fugitive businessman Tongsun Park to the United States to face trial for conspiracy to buy friendly treatment from Congress.

Attorney-General Griffin Bell appealed for Carter's help Tuesday as the justice department unsealed a 36-count felony indictment that charges Park with conspiracy and corruption.

The federal grand jury indictment provides the first official details of an alleged South Korean scheme to lavish money and other gifts on certain members of Congress in exchange for their efforts to promote South Korean interests.

Bell said he wants Carter to contact South Korean President Park Chung-hee to ask that he arrange for Tongsun Park's return. The attorney general said he has no hint about whether the Korean leader would co-operate.

Tongsun Park, a rice dealer and Washington social figure, disappeared from Washington when the congressional scandal began developing. He arrived in Seoul about a week ago after spending the last year in London.

The indictment said Park, whose Georgetown parties were the talk of the Washington social set, was the pivotal figure in a conspiracy from about 1967 to Dec. 31, 1975, to bribe members of the House and Senate to induce them to take action favorable to South Korea and the Park Chung-hee regime.

Former representative Richard Hanna, a California Democrat, was named an unindicted co-conspirator and was described as Park's sidekick and chief adviser on who should receive the bribes.

An unindicted co-conspirator often is a person who has cooperated with the prosecution. However, Benjamin Civiletti, head of the justice department's criminal division, said Hanna was not co-operating in the investigation.

Two former directors of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, Kim Hyung-wook and Lee Hu-rak, also were named unindicted co-conspirators and were accused of handling the Korean end of the scheme.

Throughout the period of the alleged conspiracy, Park acted as an agent of the South Korean government and violated the law when he failed to register as a foreign agent, the grand jury charged.

WAS KEY FIGURE

The indictment said Park, whose Georgetown parties were the talk of the Washington social set, was the pivotal figure in a conspiracy from about 1967 to Dec. 31, 1975, to bribe members of the House and Senate to induce them to take action favorable to South Korea and the Park Chung-hee regime.

Former representative Richard Hanna, a California Democrat, was named an unindicted co-conspirator and was described as Park's sidekick and chief adviser on who should receive the bribes.

An unindicted co-conspirator often is a person who has cooperated with the prosecution. However, Benjamin Civiletti, head of the justice department's criminal division, said Hanna was not co-operating in the investigation.

Two former directors of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, Kim Hyung-wook and Lee Hu-rak, also were named unindicted co-conspirators and were accused of handling the Korean end of the scheme.

Throughout the period of the alleged conspiracy, Park acted as an agent of the South Korean government and violated the law when he failed to register as a foreign agent, the grand jury charged.

U.S. DEALERS PAID

Ironically, the money for the alleged bribes came, not from South Korea, but from U.S. rice dealers who paid "substantial commissions" to Park as the agent for rice sales to his country, the indictment said.

Neither Bell nor Civiletti would predict whether other indictments would be sought against Hanna, the 26 other present and former House and Senate members who were listed as assisting or receiving money from Park, or others yet unnamed.

Manitoba's Schreyer calls election

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer surprised Manitobans Tuesday by calling a general election for Oct. 11.

The premier's office made the announcement about 3:45 p.m. and issued a statement from Schreyer a short while later expressing confidence in the outcome of the vote.

Schreyer was not available for interviews. His father, John, died Tuesday morning. He was 80.

Progressive Conservative Leader Sterling Lyon refused immediate comment on the election call. Liberal Leader Charles Huband said he is looking forward to the campaign.

All three leaders scheduled news conferences for this morning.

A fall election had been expected for some time but less than 24 hours before the election writ was issued the premier had been quoted as saying the vote would be delayed until farmers got their crops in and had time for a "breather."

SEEKING THIRD TERM Schreyer and his New Democratic Party are seeking a third term. The party first came to office in Manitoba in the June 25, 1969, election and increased its strength in the election of June 28, 1973.

Standing in the 57-member legislature after the last election was New Democrats 31, Progressive Conservatives 21 and Liberals five. After two successful controverted election cases and two byelections, the standing at dissolution was New Democrats 31, Conservatives 23 and Liberals three.

The NDP have nominated 47 candidates for this election, the Tories 52 and the Liberals 36. Deadline for filing nomination papers is Sept. 27.

All three parties have been doing preliminary campaigning for almost a year. The vote had been expected in June but was apparently delayed because of a June election in Ontario and reports that the NDP's popularity was sagging at that time.

Metric switch on

The move toward the metric system became evident to thousands of motorists Tuesday as most provinces began the change from miles to kilometers.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Ontario, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland began converting highway speed signs, joining Alberta which started Sept. 2.

Quebec and Nova Scotia were the only provinces holding back while Manitoba is delaying full implementation.

The possibility of a fall election is seen in Nova Scotia as a reason why the government is not anxious to proceed with the change.

Quebec has decided against an immediate change to metric.

Alex Fraser, B.C. highways minister, said conversion of speed and distance signs is expected to be completed in two weeks.

The change will cost B.C. about $1 million, with $710,000 to convert 25,000 signs and the remainder for advertising.

ALTA. ALMOST FINISHED

The change to metric is almost complete in Alberta, said Alec Cherwenik of the transportation department. He expects it will be finished by mid-September.

Saskatchewan began changing signs Tuesday and expects to have all speed signs converted within six days. A spokesman said distance signs will be changed as soon as possible.

Highways Minister Peter Burtiniak said Manitoba won't be completely converted until April because it wants time to conduct a public education campaign.

Manitoba has been changing distance signs to kilometres as the old mileage signs are replaced. Conversion may be an issue in the Manitoba election, called Tuesday for Oct. 11.

Ontario, which began changing distance signs Aug. 2, started on the 10,000 to 12,000 speed signs Tuesday, and expects they will be converted within two weeks.

Fred Cederberg, transportation ministry spokesman, said the change will cost $556,000 plus $93,700 for advertising.

In Memoriam

HEATHERINGTON, Daisy — In loving memory of a dear cousin, who passed away Sept. 7th, 1976. I often sit and think of you. Of things we used to say and do. And wonder why you had to die. Without a chance to say good-bye. Sundays are not the same, without your telephone calls. Always remembered, by MILDRED DOLNEY (cousin)

LANCASTER — In memory of my dear son, Russell Lancaster, who passed away Sept. 7, 1975. In my heart your memory will linger. And I know it is vain to weep. Tears of love will never wake you. From your peaceful happy sleep. As on earth, I fondly loved you. I forget you not in death. And before God's holy altar I pray you have eternal rest. Lovingly remembered and sadly missed.

Cultural program

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest federal attempt to combat the pro-separatist presence of the Quebec government will be a series of cultural programs to plug national unity.

An official of the secretary of state department said Tuesday that the treasury board has approved money to sponsor "an over-all cultural affairs package" to promote unity.

As part of the package, the National Film Board (NFB), a government agency, will get $1 million to produce a series of short films to "foster and maintain national unity," the official said.

But he declined to give the total cost. Details of other programs will be made public later this week.

The films about Canada's past, present and future will be co-produced by and shown on the CBC French and English TV networks, he said.

Wolf victim recovering

MONTREAL (CP) — A young woman mauled by wolves at a nearby safari park was in satisfactory condition Tuesday at the Montreal General Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Lise Garceau, 22, has had surgery on her arm but skin grafts also may be necessary. It took 36 stitches to close the wounds following the incident Sunday at the Parc Safari African in Hemmingford, 35 miles south of Montreal.

Anthony Von Elbe, the park's director, said the accident occurred when the university student disobeyed rules and left her car to feed the wolves.

Judge wiretaps denied

MONTREAL (CP) — Sessions court judges here "have absolutely no reason to believe they are the victims of electronic surveillance by the police" says the acting chief sessions judge for Montreal.

Judge Yves Mayrand, replacing Chief Judge Andre Fabien who is under investigation for alleged misconduct, was commenting Tuesday on published reports that some sessions judges believed their telephones and homes were being bugged by police.

"The Quebec justice department has given me no indication that judges may be under that type of surveillance," he said.

Man held in fatal crash

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Belley, 43, was detained Tuesday on a coroner's warrant in connection with a fatal crash following an early morning car chase, said Lieut. Hilaire Quessel of Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police.

Four people died in the two-car crash involving a stolen Lincoln Continental which had been chased at high speed by police through city streets.

Killed were Florent Bourgie, 72, Monique Mercier, 22, Roger Bergeron, 42, and his wife, Albertine, 36, all from Montreal, who were travelling in a car which collided with the stolen vehicle.

The collision ended a chase which began at about midnight when police tried to stop the driver of the Lincoln Continental for speeding on an inner-city expressway.

Bernier crew loses race

MONTREAL (CP) — The crew of the J. E. Bernier II have lost their chance to be the first persons to navigate the Northwest Passage by sail, but the five crew members at least hope to claim second place.

A spokesman for Canada Steamship Lines, sponsor of the Bernier's venture, said Tuesday the crew expect to weave their 35-foot boat through the ice-filled waterway by the end of this season, matching the effort of Dutch Capt. Willy de Roos who completed the passage last weekend.

It was earlier feared that ice conditions might force the Bernier to lay up for the year in Cambridge Bay, but the boat left Monday from the Victoria Island community, 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

New daily brings chit-chat to capital

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's newest daily newspaper, Ottawa Today, hit the streets yesterday with a front-page story saying the Queen will attend a football game here next month, bumping a large number of Ottawa Rough Riders season ticket holders from their seats.

The 128 pages in the first edition of the tabloid-sized morning newspaper contained gossipy local stories, numerous columns, two photographs of women in bathing suits and many pages of advertising.

Twenty-five journalists worked late into the night Monday when they termed an atmosphere of high excitement to produce the first edition of the tabloid, Ottawa's only morning newspaper.

The initial run of 50,000 was slow coming off the presses of Le Droit, the French-language newspaper which will print Today.

Editor Charles King said the normal press run will be closer to 30,000.

A follow-up to the front-page story on page two said the Queen will attend an Oct. 15 Canadian Football League game here between Ottawa and Hamilton during her Oct. 14-19 visit to open Parliament. Security staff and visiting reporters will take over as many as 100 seats on the 55-yard line, ousting season ticket holders, the story said.

There were local stories, such as the account on the third page by senior editor Ted Steubing which began: "By Heavens, you'd better step smartly if you want to cross Isabella Street at Metcalfe. That's where the little green WALK signs stay on for about four seconds."

EARLY ANNOUNCEMENT A gossip column entitled "Pssst..." began with the declaration that Bob Southam, publisher of The Citizen, will retire at the end of the year and probably be replaced by Edmonton Journal publisher J. Patrick O'Callaghan.

The Citizen, one of the Southam group of newspapers, and The Journal, owned by FP Publications, are the other two English-language dailies in Ottawa.

Baseball

Expos lose Blair

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles have acquired the contract of righthanded pitcher Dennis Blair from Montreal Expos, the American League baseball club announced Tuesday.

Blair's contract completes the deal that sent pitcher Fred Holdsworth to the Expos on July 14.

Blair has been with the Orioles' Rochester Club on loan from Montreal since June 22.

Blair was called up last week, becoming one of seven new Orioles since Sept. 1. He was expected to join the club Tuesday night in Detroit.

Taken off list

TORONTO (CP) — For the second game in a row, slugging first baseman George Scott of the Boston Red Sox asked manager Don Zimmer to remove him from the line-up Tuesday night.

Scott, who is batting .263 but is among the American League leaders with 31 homers, started the first game of Monday night's doubleheader against Toronto Blue Jays and was scheduled to start the second game. But Zimmer said Scott asked to be taken out of the game because the ballplayer said he was not "mentally prepared."

Football

Only bright spot

Placekicker Don Sweet was the only bright spot in the Montreal offence Tuesday night, accounting for six points on a pair of field goals, as Toronto Argonauts defeated the previously-unbeaten Alouettes 20-14 in Eastern Football Conference action.

Sweet's field goals—from 44 and 46 yards—gave him 72 points, 14 more than Argo kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn, who had a eight-point game against the Als, and Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Andrusyshyn converted the two Toronto touchdowns and added field goals of 25 and 32 yards.

Ottawa running back Richard Holmes, Hamilton wide receiver Mike Harris and Ticat kicker Nick Jambrosic share fourth with 36 points each.

Volleyball

Canadians advance

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — The Canadian women's team advanced to the quarter-finals of the world junior volleyball championships Tuesday, winning their second match in as many starts.

The Canadian girls, who beat Argentina in their opener on Monday, posted their second victory with scores of 15-5, 15-5, 16-14 over Spain.

It marked the first time a Canadian team had reached the top eight in world competition.

The Canadians dominated their smaller Spanish opponents except for a few moments in the third game when Canada was substituting freely to get every player into the game.

"We lost concentration in the third game," said coach Brad Kilb of Calgary. "But with a team as inexperienced as ours, it is to be expected. Except for that one lapse we played up to our potential."

Basketball

Barnes paroled

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — After almost four months behind bars, basketball star Marvin Barnes of the National Basketball Association's Detroit Pistons comes up for parole today under a program for special inmates.

Barnes started serving a one-year sentence at the Adult Correctional Institutions here May 16 for violating a probationary sentence imposed for attacking a Providence College teammate.

"Technically, Marvin would not have gone before the board this time," said Lillian McDaniel, corrections department spokeswoman. "He would have come up six months after serving 120 days."

"But he and Jimmy Gordon, who is going to graduate school, are going early," McDaniel said. "He and Gordon are thought to be unusual cases."

Track

Athletes selected

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Track and Field Association (CTFA) has selected 34 athletes to compete in the Pacific Conference Games in Australia in December.

Athletes competing in the recent World Cup track meet in Dusseldorf, West Germany, were selected automatically with the balance of the team picked after last weekend's national championships. The team includes 23 men and 11 women.

Ron Wallingford, technical director of CTFA, said Canada will be competing against Japan, the U.S., New Zealand and Australia.

The games, held every four years, began in Japan in 1969 with Canada winning 14 medals including three gold and three silver.

Dream mile off

NEW YORK (AP) — World record holder John Walker of New Zealand notified promoters Tuesday that he has withdrawn from his scheduled Sept. 17 mile race in Vancouver against a field that included 1,500-metre record holder Filbert Bayi.

The withdrawal of the world's fastest miler once again shattered hopes that the two speedsters would meet in a "Dream Mile" race.

Walker had complained of health problems last week during the World Cup events in Dusseldorf, West Germany, and informed Dan Shedrick, president of Teleports International, by cable and telephone that he was pulling out.

"He cited deteriorating and increasing injury problems," said Shedrick, who has spent 2½ years trying to arrange a meeting between Walker and Bayi.

1. lose 2. Joe Barnes injured

The unmentionable befalls Als

MONTREAL (CP) — It had to happen sooner or later, but Montreal Alouettes' first loss of the Canadian Football League season may have been a lot more costly than two points in the standings.

Playing before a CFL record crowd of 69,093, the Alouettes dropped a 20-14 verdict to Toronto Argonauts. But perhaps a more important fact was the loss of quarterback Joe Barnes with a shoulder separation.

"He will be out for a minimum of four weeks," said a disconsolate coach Marv Levy, thinking of how he might replace the man who has been the sparkplug of his offence this year.

"He has a shoulder separation. The first indication is that it is quite severe. He will be out for an indefinite period."

Barnes did not have one of his better outings Tuesday night. He served up a pass interception in the Toronto end zone in the first half and Mark Harris ran it 115 yards for Toronto's first touchdown.

Kelvin Kirk caught a 37-yard TD pass from Chuck Ealey in the fourth quarter for Toronto's other touchdown.

KICKED TWO
Zenon Andrusyshyn kicked two converts and a pair of field goals for the Argonauts with Don Sweet's two field goals providing Montreal's offence until back-up quarterback Sonny Wade connected on a three-yard TD pass to Peter Dalla Riva with four seconds to play.

It was the 43rd career TD pass for Dalla Riva, a club record. The Alouettes got their final two points when pass interference was called on the Argonauts when Wade tried to hit Ian Mofford with a conversion pass.

It was Dalla Riva who was the intended receiver on the pass which Harris, a rookie from Memphis State University, picked off and scooted down the left sidelines.

"The ball was intended for me," said Dalla Riva, obviously not excited about his record which broke the mark of 42 set by Hal Patterson. "I broke and the ball went by me and 16 (Harris) picked it off."

"(Lorne) Richardson was on me. I thought we were in a man-on-man. I don't know where he was."

Levy explained it was a crisscross pattern and Harris was supposed to be covering Brock Aynsley.

"He fell and he couldn't continue to cover Brock. He got up and the ball was there."

GOT TEAM GOING

Harris, who received the game ball from his teammates, said that he would have conceded "a safety in the end zone" if he had not felt he could go all the way.

"The touchdown was big, but beating a team that came in 7-0 has to be the biggest thrill of my career."

"Beating Montreal might get us high for the rest of the season and we could win it all. There are still eight games left."

The Argonauts, who lost 16-10 to Montreal earlier this season and were coming off a 30-0 defeat at the hands of British Columbia Lions two weeks ago, made fewer mistakes offensively.

The Argonauts play host to Hamilton Tiger Cats Saturday night with the Alouettes visiting the Rough Riders in Ottawa Sunday.

Questioned role in Hockey Canada

Eagleson "fed up" with CAHA

TORONTO (CP) — Alan Eagleson says he is fed up with criticism levelled at him recently by Canadian amateur hockey officials, some of whom have questioned his role in Hockey Canada.

"They (Canadian Amateur Hockey Association) ask me to raise the money and they don't want to share that part of it," he said in an interview. "All they want to share is the spending of it."

"Well, damn it, if I raise it, I should have some input into how the money is spent."

Eagleson, a member of the board of Hockey Canada, said some amateur officials are questioning a preliminary budget prepared for the expenses incurred in sending a Canadian team to Vienna last year for the world championships.

The Toronto lawyer, player agent and executive director of the National Hockey League Players Association, did not dispute that the budget included an expenditure of $36,000 on gifts. But he pointed out it was not Hockey Canada's money, but that of the two major sponsors of the team.

Eagleson said that for the world junior tournament in Canada this year, visiting teams will be staying at the Hotel Toronto and the Four Seasons in Montreal.

"We want them to go back with a good feeling about this tournament," he said. "What would the CAHA do? Billet them in dumpy hotels?"

Eagleson also pointed out that he saved money by persuading hockey associations of the visiting teams to pay their own travel costs, even though the CAHA was willing to pay the shot.

"What did we save there—$70,000? I don't want credit for that, but I don't want to be criticized for spending money somewhere else."

MIGHT RESIGN

If he does not receive the full support of Hockey Canada's international committee at a meeting next weekend, Eagleson said he would relinquish his position with the junior tournament and hinted he might pull out of the organization altogether.

"If I get anything but total approval of what I've done... if they can't support the concepts I have in mind, I'll resign from the junior tournament," he said. "I'd be happy to retire."

He said he does not consider that his various positions in hockey constitute a conflict of interest.

"I can change hats faster than most of those guys (amateur hockey officials) can think," he said. "I have no trouble with that at all."

Eagleson added that the fact many of his employees, friends and associates work for Hockey Canada during international tournaments saves the organization money.

"I can strong-arm my friends," he said. "I can tell them to work 18 hours a day and they will. I can get them to cut their fees by 15 to 20 per cent."

He said that if he were not a member of Hockey Canada, the players he represents would not participate in international ventures.

"Not because I'd ask them not to play, I wouldn't. It's just that they don't happen to trust anyone else, and they do trust me."

New York defeats Montreal 5-3

"Lesser light" lights up Mets' game

NEW YORK (AP) — The "trade" looks pretty good now for New York Mets.

"For a trade we got chastised for, right now we couldn't trade Tom Seaver even up for Steve Henderson," says Mets manager Joe Torre.

Henderson, of course, was one of four players obtained by the Mets last June from Cincinnati Reds for Seaver. At the time, the Mets were criticized for dealing one of baseball's best pitchers for a group of lesser lights.

But since that controversial trade, Henderson has been lighting up New York with a consistent bat that has produced a .314 batting average, 10 home runs and 51 RBIs in just 75 games. He knocked in three of his runs Tuesday while leading the Mets to a 5-3 victory over Montreal Expos.

"When Steve came here, I expected he might hit .250, .260," said Torre. "I was hoping he would just go through the learning experience and be ready for spring training. But he has done much more. He is a quick learner."

Montreal manager Dick Williams also is impressed by Henderson.

"I like what I've seen so far," he said. "He's improved his defence from what I've heard about him."

AGGRESSIVE HITTER

"He is very aggressive at the plate. He is hitting the breaking ball now and he is even looking for certain pitches. He is getting a good opportunity and it is a good break for him."

Henderson seems to have given himself a big boost by his attitude. He says he has tried not to "think like a rookie."

"I try to think of myself as a veteran ball player," he said. "I go up there thinking if I don't do it today, I'll do it tomorrow. Some rookies think if they don't do it today, that's it, they'll never get another chance."

Henderson cracked a two-run single off Montreal starter Fred Holdsworth, 2-1, in the sixth to provide the decisive runs after Lenny Randle walked and Bruce Boisclair doubled.

Gary Carter hit his 24th home run in the fifth for the first Expo run and Montreal chased New York starter Jackson Todd, 3-4, in the seventh with two runs as Larry Parrish and Del Unser picked up the RBIs.

Six Expos pitchers held the Mets to a total of five hits, but also aided the New York attack by issuing five walks.

Fisk does damage

Red Sox trounce Blue Jays

TORONTO (CP) — Baseball, not unlike the game of life, represents a constant struggle to adjust. Just take it from Carlton Fisk.

"You've got to keep adjusting in this game—from year to year, team to team and even pitcher to pitcher."

Fisk said Tuesday night after knocking in seven runs with a grand-slam and three-run homer to lead Boston Red Sox to an 11-2 trouncing of Toronto Blue Jays in American League baseball play before 17,666 spectators at Exhibition Stadium.

Fisk always has had success with a close-in stance, so any change in his batting position came with certain reluctance—that is until veteran Red Sox slugger Carl Yastrzemski entered the scene.

"I talked to Yaz about my hitting problems, and he told me that over his career, he's made constant adjustments to his hitting style."

"My problem was that I got used to standing close to the plate, and had been successful in the past, so I was too stubborn to change. But I was getting jammed with the closed-in stance, so now I've opened it up a bit."

Disturbed by criticism of track coach

Brill, Loverock knock criticism

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (CP) — High jumper Debbie Brill and sprinter Patty Loverock, international competitors for Canada in track and field for seven years, have spoken out against recent criticism of the national team at the World Student Games at Sofia, Bulgaria.

Their rebuttal came in interviews during the wind-up of the World Cup track and field championship where Brill, of Haney, B.C., and Loverock of Vancouver, competed.

Brill, 24, finished second in the high jump at Sofia while Loverock, 24, recovered from a 24-hour influenza attack to qualify for the finals in the 100 metres. Both made the national team in 1970 and they often room together on road trips.

They were particularly disturbed at criticism by track coach Lionel Pugh and others against Dacre Bowen, a member of the men's 4x400-metre relay team who failed to appear for a scheduled final.

Pugh said Bowen did not notify him that he planned to go to Varna, a Black Sea resort, but Loverock said she was present when Ron Wallingford, manager of the team and technical coordinator of the Canadian Track and Field Association, was informed.

"Part of the fault was Dacre's," said Loverock. "Perhaps he should have picked a better time than 7 a.m. to tell Wallingford. Perhaps Wallingford didn't tell Pugh."

"A bigger part of the problem was that the results were posted so late it was almost impossible to tell what anybody was doing."

RESULTS SLOW
Brill said Margot Howe's failure to appear for a 200-metre final was because results were not received promptly.

"Margot was in Sofia when the race was held. She just didn't know she was supposed to run."

Brill and Loverock also said they were unhappy about negative reporting of the track and field team's performance at Sofia. The only Canadian medal in track and field was Brill's silver for finishing behind Sara Simeoni of Italy.

"I admit we didn't do well," said Loverock. "But I think it's unfair to be comparing track and field to swimming. There are tremendous differences between the two sports."

SMITH LED SWIMMERS

Paced by Graham Smith of Edmonton, the swim team provided all but one of Canada's 15 medals as the team finished sixth among almost 90 countries represented.

"For one thing, the swimmers have more money at their disposal than track and field has," said Loverock. "But I understand that's about to change. Sport Canada has set up a support program to help athletes who have to support themselves."

"Another difference is that swimmers are much younger on the average than track and field athletes. Whether government money is cut off doesn't have much effect on most 16-to-18 year olds."

Pugh said morale on the track team was extremely low.

Brill, who finished third in the high jump at the World Cup here behind Rosi Ackermann of East Germany and Simeoni, said many top members of the 1976 Olympic team were forced to quit because they had to support themselves.

"A lot of athletes who kept competing didn't do as well for that reason, but that doesn't mean we're all unhappy and going to quit."

Jazz-rock violinist to visit Sherbrooke

Ponty abandons glamor for individuality

Jean-Luc Ponty will be appearing at the University of Sherbrooke's Centre Culturel on September 12.

Ponty, considered an expert in fusing classical, rock and jazz styles, has received top violinist honors by the prestigious Downbeat International Critics Poll and Readers Poll alike for two consecutive years.

In the past he was a member of the Mahavishnu Orchestra doing two albums featuring Ponty and onto working with Frank Zappa's Mothers of Invention.

Ponty's explosive history as one of the world's unique violinists is told below.

In every way, the continuing growth of Jean-Luc Ponty today as a recording and touring artist around the world only serves to reconfirm and amplify his stature as a major musical force. His successes as an Atlantic recording artist through 1975-76, on the basis of his first two albums for the label, Upon The Wings of Music and Aurora, and now his third, Imaginary Voyage, coupled with his vigorous touring schedule, reveal an energetic spirit backed up with a commitment to hard work in the studio and on tour.

Ponty's music requires intensive rehearsal and preparation because its approach is the same as for classical music: from initial inspiration Jean-Luc develops his compositions into a full orchestration for his band, and each musician is given a fully notated part in the classical manner with all notes written out. Jean-Luc's thorough efforts as a composer and conductor allow him to create an extremely personal group sound even though the actual personnel of the group will change. At the same time his compositions avoid rigidity because definite space is provided for improvised solos.

Following the announcement of Ponty's signing to Atlantic by Nesuhi Ertegun in April '75, a steady uphill climb began, starting with the release of Upon The Wings of Music in May. By late summer, after walking away with "Top Violinist" honors in the International Critics Poll of down beat, Ponty set out on tour with his group. He debuted at Chicago's Amazgrance and went on to sold-out dates at the Village Gate, Schaefer Music Festival, and the Other End in New York, the Cellar Door, Main Point, Atlanta's Great Southeast Music Hall and the Harvard Sq. Theater. Then, for three weeks in October, as headliner on his own college tour.

European reaction to Ponty's new direction was no less immediate. On his first day abroad he taped a show for the BBC's "Old Grey Whistle Test" and was subsequently besieged with booking offers, one of which was a headline date at the Roundhouse. His sold-out tour of the Continent during October-November made stops in Stockholm, Helsinki, Oslo, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, the Berlin Jazz Festival, and the Olympia Theatre in Paris.

Ponty arrived back home in Los Angeles in time to accept "Top Violinist" honors once again from down beat, this time from their follow-up annual Readers Poll. He began work on his second LP, Aurora, sandwiching in a week of pre-Christmas "homecoming" dates at the Great American Music Hall in San Francisco.

Again he composed, arranged and conducted the music for this second album which he also produced, using some of the musicians with whom he had toured and adding some new, young talent.

Backing up the release of Aurora in March '76 was a North American tour that kicked off on the West coast and worked its way eastward to include three packed nights at the Bottom line in New York. With his band he travelled on to Australia and New Zealand in June, completing a virtually sold-out tour there of nine cities within two weeks.

Solidly aligned, they returned to L.A. in July for a three-night "homecoming" engagement at the Roxy, in the process wrapping up recording sessions for the next album. This was underscored by Ponty's victory once again as "Top Violinist" in down beat's Critics Poll. By the end of '76 he would collect back-to-back honors for the magazine's Reders Poll as well. There followed almost immediately the announcement of a return tour to Europe, which covered all of Scandinavia plus Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France through late September.

With barely a fortnight's rest, Jean-Luc and the band returned to the U.S. to embark on an 8-week North American tour that would back up the release of the newest album Imaginary Voyage, a November '76 release. (On tour in and around Chicago, Ponty was able to tape separate segments for the PBS series, "Soundstage", first for the annual down beat poll award winners show, and second for the "Fiddlers 3" special co-starring Itzhak Perlman and Doug Kershaw.) In addition, he ventured north to Canada selling out three concerts in Montreal and two in Toronto.

This non-stop work schedule of Ponty's over his first year and a half with Atlantic is nothing new to his longtime followers. His musical evolution here and abroad over the last dozen years or so is also phenomenal, from classical music through the popular mainstream and progressive jazz genres, into electronically amplified improvisational jazz-rock fusion contexts, toward the free music explorations of the late 1970s.

Born in the Normandy region of France, Jean-Luc was first trained at the age of five in classical music by his father, a violin professor, and his mother, a piano teacher. By the age of 13, he had left regular school to devote six hours a day practice time to the violin, having made the decision to become a professional musician.

At 15, he entered the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique de Paris and within two years had graduated with the institution's highest award-rating, Premier Prix. The next year he began a three-year stint with the Concerts Lamoureux Symphony Orchestra, leaving in 1964 to play jazz exclusively, after jamming for only a few years with other musicians, and making his first recording.

It didn't take more than a couple of years for Ponty to assimilate fully all the best that the European jazz scene had to offer. By the time of the 1967 Berlin and Monterey Jazz Festivals, his name was already being mentioned alongside the legendary French musicians Stephane Grappelli and Django Reinhardt, such an impact the young Ponty had made.

But he always seemed to be moving further and further away from the mainstream of Europe's static, traditional jazz scene, and drifting closer to the edges of a new genre that was casually being referred to in 1968 as "jazz rock". Here the influences shifted from the natural voicings of Miles and Monk to the amplified

JEAN-LUC PONTY, a man credited with revolutionizing the violin, has played with both jazz and rock musicians. Besides his own recordings, he has cut LPs with Frank Zappa of the Mothers of Invention, Elton John and electronics of Hendrix and Zappa.

John McLaughlin. Mr. Ponty will play at the University of Sherbrooke's Centre Culturel, September 12.

Ponty came to the U.S. for his first extended stay in 1969. As observers were noting the birth of the so-called "jazz-rock" fusion, Ponty was appearing at The Experience nightclub in L.A., backed by the George Duke Trio. Frank Zappa was also a participant. In September, Michael Ross wrote in the L.A. Herald Examiner: "Jean-Luc Ponty sends electric chills up and down the walls of The Experience with a most exciting and personal blending of jazz and rock music."

By the end of 1969, Ponty had collaborated with Zappa on their first album venture.

Ponty returned to Europe, though, and by early 1971 had put together a familiarly named group, the Jean-Luc Ponty Experience, with whom he toured in Europe and England, playing concerts, festivals, and television appearances, as well as recording one album.

Ponty, an established musician throughout the Continent by this time stayed in Europe for all of 1972. It was during this period that he met Elton John, and worked on the sessions that produced Elton's million selling album, Honky Chateau, which even bears Ponty's picture on its cover.

In January, 1973, Ponty decided to come back to the U.S. Zappa heard of his decision and almost immediately asked the violinist to become part of The Mothers of Invention. Ponty recorded one album with them and stayed with the group as a working member until October, 1973. When this stint with the Mothers was over, Ponty freshly reconsidered his own situation as an artist. He conceived a 'solo' album and wrote all the tunes for it in about three months. A demo tape of some of this material was presented to Nesuhi Ertegun of Atlantic Records, who was already familiar with Ponty's work.

Meanwhile, John McLaughlin was in the process of restructuring and reorganizing the Mahavishnu Orchestra. The group's new direction would include a rhythm section, horns, a string quartet, and violinist - Jean-Luc Ponty, specifically - who would be featured as a co-soloist with the group.

Returning to the U.S. just before spring, 1975, Jean-Luc Ponty made up his mind to leave Mahavishnu, finish the production of his album, and launch his own career.

At the heart of this decision was the premise that he would organize a band to perform exclusively his own compositions and arrangements and to function as a vehicle for his unique musical ideas.

The musicians with whom Ponty has worked in Europe and America, earning their unflinching respect in the process, reads like a "Who's Who" in at least three divergent areas - classical, jazz, and the new rock. And considering that he has spent no more than four of the last dozen years of his life in the U.S., his reputation and influence are staggering. Add to this the fact that he has almost single-handedly brought the violin out of the 20th century into the 21st - and you begin to get a clearer picture of the man.

The summation of the artist by Melody Maker's Steve Lake is still relevant: "He's come a long way... not only in terms of personal prestige, but in the enormously profound influence that he's had on rock and jazz violinists throughout the world."

Bruebeck's sideman out of retirement

Jazz drummer Morello, partly blind, back on stage

IRVINGTON, N.J. (AP) — Joe Morello, 49 and nearly blind, says he is ready to resume a career that made him one of the world's best known jazz drummers before he stopped performing regularly nearly a decade ago. "I've stopped feeling sorry for myself," said Morello, who gained fame and fortune in the 1950s and '60s as a member of Dave Bruebeck's old quartet. "There's a depression that comes when you can't see. You take a few drinks. . . . He said his spirits have improved now that, after 32 operations for cataracts and a detached retina, doctors say he won't require more surgery. Last November he got a seeingeye dog, a yellow Labrador retriever named Matthew who accompanies him everywhere.

"I've come to the point where I want to perform more," Morello said in an interview at his home here.

"I'm going to get a jazz-rock group together, and I've got a lad to set up my drums. He knows exactly how I like them, so I don't need to see."

SAVED HIS MONEY
Since Bruebeck's group broke up in the late 1967,

Morello has lived in semi-retirement, giving clinics, writing textbooks and endorsing drums for the Ludwig Drum Co. of Chicago. He said he hasn't needed to work much because "I made a lot of money and I saved it, which is rare."

Through the years of inactivity, Morello has attained a legendary status, even among young fans who probably never heard him play, except for his performances on a handful of records.

"Wherever I go worldwide, they're always asking about Joe," said Bruebeck. "He's still one of the biggest names in jazz drumming."

Morello said his appetite for performing was whetted by the two standing ovations he got during an appearance this summer at the Newport Jazz Festival in New York City.

"My reflexes are still good," Morello said. "I know what to do with what I have. I am proficient technically. It's like the difference between a mature man and a young kid making live—you know what you're doing more when you get older."

Morello said that even as a child he was fascinated by rhythm. For him, the drums offer a way of communicating to people of all languages and cultures.

Alice back on the road

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Alice Cooper, who helped usher in the age of glitter rock at the turn of the '70s, is back on the concert trail after a two-year absence, trying to expand his following beyond the usual rock audience. The going so far has been tough.

Cooper has put together a "best of" show, featuring his famous snake, guillotine and hanging scenes. He is also using several Las Vegas production numbers, one of which has him wielding a 40-foot toothbrush and chasing five dancing girls dressed as teeth, in hopes of attracting pre-teens and adults who usually shun rock concerts. But thousands of empty seats greeted Cooper at his only New York area appearance. The audience seemed subdued during much of the show, which pales in comparison to groups like Kiss who vomit blood, breathe fire and use flamethrowers to wow fans. "When I took the two years off I expected somebody to fill the gap," said Cooper, 29, whose real name is Vincent Furnier. "I don't think we do the same type of thing—we put more production into it. When we go into a show we do it as a Broadway production whereas Kiss goes into it as a rock 'n' roll show."

"I went out to get people who were real pros—not just rock 'n' roll people, but people who know how to work a Broadway stage," he said in a telephone interview.

"We had so many comments from older people going to our shows. They said they never expected it to be like that because what it really was was a rock 'n' roll show. They said it was so entertaining, even though they really didn't understand why it had to be so loud."

Blues King B.B. wants mass acceptance of his only love

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — B. B. King has been singing the blues for 31 years. Now he's on top in his field but wants more—mass acceptance of the blues as "part of our culture."

King sings of love, jealousy, joy and the folly of people, with words that "don't dress it up—it's kind of in the raw." He punctuates phrases by "bending" notes on his electric guitar, producing a wailing sound from the strings.

The result is a driving, rhythmic sound that starts the audience clapping, stomping and even joining in songs like "Everybody Wants to Know Why I Sing the Blues, a King favorite.

King says he could play other types of music like jazz, but, "I'm comfortable doing what I do. It's better to be a big hog in a little pond than a little pig in the big ocean." King says there's plenty of room to improve and expand within the musical form he has focused on since starting on the "chitlin' circuit" of black night clubs in the South in the 1940s.

Born Riley King on a plantation between Indianola and Itta Bena, Miss., King, 51, was taught by a preacher uncle to sing and play the guitar for church. In 1947, he got a job as disc jockey and singer on a Memphis, Tenn., radio station and eventually started playing one-nighters in clubs around Memphis. FINALLY CREDITED

He won early with a small, mostly black audience, but it was not until the late 1960s, when major rock artists credited him for techniques they used, that King hit the big time.

He continued a hard pace of appearances adding to shows at black night clubs appearances on college campuses, at rock concerts and Nevada's big hotel-casinos, and European tours.

He has received many awards, including a 1970 Grammy for The Thrill Is Gone. Last May, King was one of 14 persons awarded honorary degrees at Yale University—the second black musician to get an honorary doctorate from the school. The late Duke Ellington got the first.

King has also started working for prison reform and improvements through his music. King feels he can help prisoners—or anyone else for that matter—realize "this planet is for everybody—it's not just mine or yours."

As part of the effort, King has scheduled a benefit concert Sept. 11 in Nashville to help raise funds for families of prisoners and visitors killed in a fire in the Maury County Jail in Columbia, Tenn.

Tiny goes country, Nashville astounded

NASHVILLE (AP) — The country music capital of the world—the domain of the rhinestone rebels and the Mary Sues and the honky-tonk heroes—is vibrating to the falsetto sounds of an intruder.

Tiny Tim has gone country. With his ukulele, his stringy black hair and effeminate manner, he has recorded four country songs where fiddles and steel guitars predominate and where anyone who blows kisses is regarded suspiciously.

"They asked me to take a challenge and see what happens," he said as he sat in a Music Row office just before a three-hour recording session. "Everybody wonders where I am, and I pop up in Nashville."

He has kept busy recording and making club appearances. He and his wife, Vicki, who were married on the Tonight Show in 1969, are separated.

His career has fallen off since he became famous for his version of Tiptoe Through The Tulips, 10 years ago.

"It was my own fault and bad management," he said. "I had to break away from my manager and haven't had one as great since. Good managers are vital."

He's also had problems getting the right sound on his recordings.

"A lot of the songs I've done were like an orange—half squeezed. Something was missing."

Goldenagers enjoy Quebec tour

MANSONVILLE (MB) — A busload of Potton Township Goldenagers left Mansonville on Tuesday, August 23rd, at 6:30 a.m. and headed for Quebec City and Ste. Anne de Beaupre. It rained and was misty all during the trip, but this did not dampen the spirits of the 47 people travelling.
Arriving at Ste. Foy at 10 a.m., they drove on to Ste. Anne de Beaupre and had an enjoyable tour of this historical village. Almost everyone went through the Basilica and Cyclorama of Jerusalem, also to the museum and souvenir shop. They saw the large and small falls at Montmoency from the Lookout, and the ships on the St. Lawrence. Without reservations, they lunched at the Auberge Ste. Anne de Beaupre after Mrs. Rene Robin spoke to the Rev. Father Simard, who stated that he would ask the housekeeper to perform a miracle.
The President and organizer of this trip for the Mansonville Goldenagers, Mrs. Flora Drouin, saw the miracle transacted with the housekeeper, and the group was the first to be called into the dining room.
After lunch, the members left for Quebec, enjoying the scenic ride along the beautiful St. Lawrence, where they went to the Citadel and again without the required reservations, they were given a guided tour of the Parliament Building which took in the former Legislative Council Chamber known as The Red Room, used for meetings of Parliamentary Committees. The history and decor were explained by the student guide in the English language. The members had the opportunity to speak to people from other clubs - one from Flint, Michigan, and another from Newfoundland. Another interesting turn of events was when Mrs. Charles Jewett noticed the Speaker of the House, Robert Burns, who was being interviewed by the press and she pointed this out to those nearby.

When the members left the Parliament building, they took the scenic route around Lower Quebec where they saw the narrow streets of yesteryear. They took guided foot tours, minibus tours, horse-drawn calesches lined up in front of the Chateau Frontenac and saw the Montmorency Falls once more, from the lower level. They also drove past the Plains of Abraham and went to the Aquarium near the Old Quebec Bridge and the new Pierre La Porte Bridge, where they viewed the sea life and sea creatures. The seals were most enjoyable because they were at their best with an appreciative audience.
The group was then taken to the Marie Antoinette Restaurant where, this time, they had reservations for supper.
They then bid a "Fond Adieu" to Quebec's hospitality and were homeward bound.
On the return trip they sang bilingually to the accompaniment of Hermann Ommerli's accordion playing, arriving in Mansonville at 11 p.m., with cherished memories of the warm reception they received wherever they went and the knowledge that there was no language barrier.
Members were heard to say that they came home with a feeling of warm comradeship and would highly recommend their trip to anyone, because, from their viewpoint, they had been treated, not as a Quebecois, not as an Anglophone, but as human beings, which left them with a feeling of warmth and love for their fellowmen.

Farewell Service

COOKSHIRE — St. Peter's Anglican Church had a special service on Sunday, Aug. 28, at 10:00 a.m., when the members of the Eaton Dudswell Parish gathered in the church to hear the Rev. Alan Fairbairn celebrate his last communion service in this church before taking up duties in St. Peter's Church in Sherbrooke. He was assisted by the Rev. Robert Jervis-Read and Terry Blizard.
The church was filled to capacity and following the service, all adjourned to the hall, where refreshments were served buffet style by some of the ladies.
During the social hour, Mr. Malcolm Fraser, on behalf of the churches of the Parish, presented the Rev. and Mrs. Fairbairn with a gift of money. He stated that Mr. Fairbairn had surmounted a number of problems, and trials in this district, and wished him success in his new field of labor in Sherbrooke.

Mission Circle meets

SUTTON — The Baptist Mission Circle met at the home of Mrs. Nettie Mudgett on Aug. 18.
The opening hymn was "I am so Glad that our Father in Heaven." The President Mrs. H.H. Woodard read a poem, entitled "One Day at a Time."
The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Nettie Mudgett who read the 23rd Psalm. For meditation, "The Lord is My Shepherd Psalm" was explained. Our good Shepherd is willing to forgive us of all our sins.
The eight members present read clippings about some of the Baptist missionaries. Dr. John Keith the general secretary of the Canadian Baptist Overseas Mission Board, had travelled to other countries, questions were asked by the members concerning the task force and they were answered by Mrs. O.H. Baker.
Canadian christians must develop world awareness. We have the ability, we have the means and we have the capacity to eliminate hunger from the face of the earth. We need only the will.
The hymn, "O Lord of Life, and Love and Power" was read in unison.

The Newscast was taken by Mrs. G.F. Knights who told of a widow who became a missionary at the age of 58 and served in New Guinea. In Africa a Rural Bible School combining instruction in Bible and agriculture has been opened up. The farmer Evangelists expect to be self-supporting and to make the impact on the community by demonstrating the improved agricultural methods they have learned, and by Bible classes with the villagers. This new outreach is a result of the churches' concern for pagan villages that have no permanent witness.
A letter was read concerning our missionary objective which is $390.00 for this year. A "Love Gift" was also asked for, for a missionary, Miss Audrey Manuel, and a sum of money was noted for this cause.
Members paid their subscriptions for the "Link and Visitor", the missionary magazine. Cards were signed for members, Miss Hazel Bates of Richmond and Mrs. Emily O'Brien who is spending some time in Newport, Vt.
The meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

The church was filled to capacity and following the service, all adjourned to the hall, where refreshments were served buffet style by some of the ladies.
During the social hour, Mr. Malcolm Fraser, on behalf of the churches of the Parish, presented the Rev. and Mrs. Fairbairn with a gift of money. He stated that Mr. Fairbairn had surmounted a number of problems, and trials in this district, and wished him success in his new field of labor in Sherbrooke.
On behalf of his wife and himself, Mr. Fairbairn thanked all for the social gathering and for their very kind gift.
Mrs. O.C. Farnsworth accompanied Mrs. J.F. Butterworth and son, Jamie, home from Dunham, where she had spent a number of weeks with her son-in-law, daughter and family.

Rock Island dancers enact story of Snow White

ROCK ISLAND — The fantasy story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs was presented Tuesday evening, August 30 by the students of the Lorna Wallace Cameron School of Dancing to a capacity audience in the Sunnyside School auditorium in Rock Island.

Scene 1 was in the Royal Palace where the Heralds in purple and gold trim costumes came in blowing make-believe gold trumpets. They were Lisa Clwery, Courtney Courier, Lisa Belknap, Karen Clout, and Jackie Nelson.

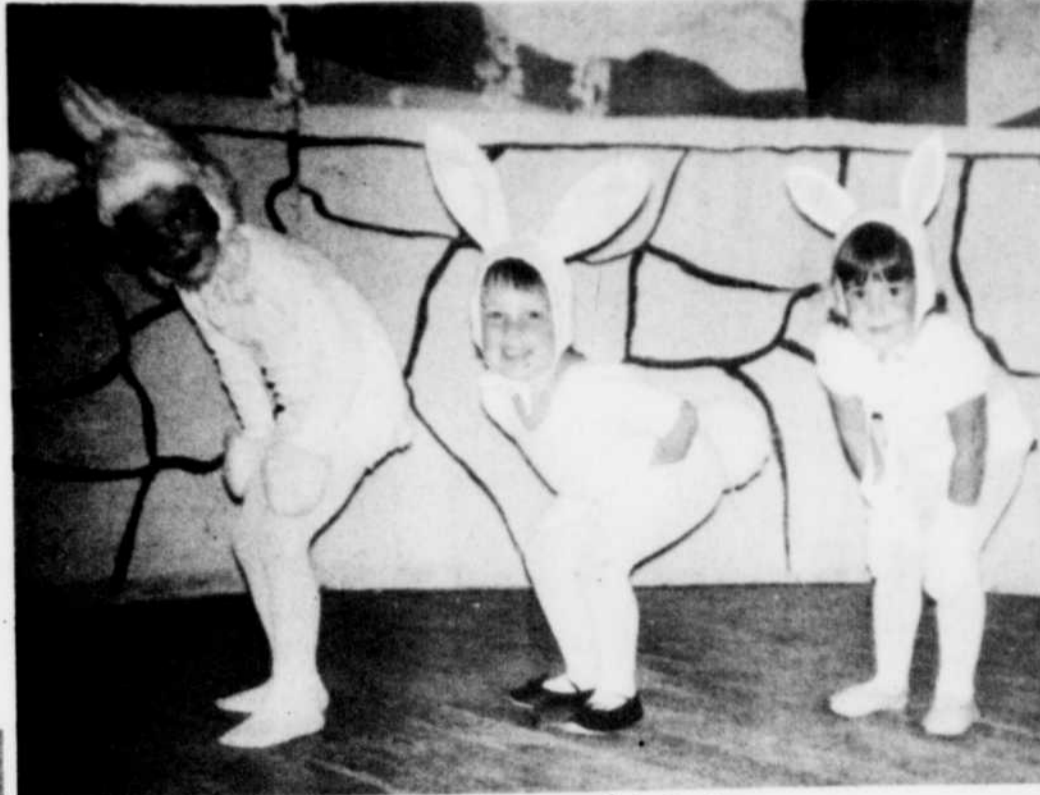

The Queen in a jeweled trim pink frock and wearing a jeweled crown was played by Julie Goodsell who often looked in her mirror to tell who the most beautiful was, but always it was Snow White, Lisa Richer.

Snow White in pink and ruby red came dancing in and out and the Queen gave orders to The Hunter, Willow Gerber to kill Snow White so she herself could be the most beautiful woman. Willow's costume was hunter green with an orange tunic.

Natalie Boucher and Judy Rever, as Royal Guards in black and gold, danced on their toes as did the Ladies of the Court in red ballerinas, Tara Robertson, Linda Mongeau and Bonnie Davis.

The Hunter could not kill Snow White when they met in the forest, so he cast a spell which put her to sleep. As she slept the cute squirrels in grey, Anne-Marie Bouffard, Julie Poulin, Kelly Cun-

BUNNY RABBITS Stephanie Clwery, Wendy Silvester and Jennifer Courier stole the show.

nington, Linda Ladouceur and Martin Beasse played and danced in the forest, then came the Village children wearing white aprons over their frocks. They were Julie Marsh, Wendy Wiler, Lynn Cloutier, Krista Mars, and Shelly-Ann Cloutier. Then in hopped the bunny rabbits, Stephanie Clwery, Wendy Silvester and Jennifer Courier, who stole the show as they danced and wiggled their bunny tails. Anne-Marie Beasse, Jody Goodsell, Stephanie Courier, Nanon Rouleau, Katina Loisel and Nancy Dewey were the daisies in yellow dancing in the forest.

Scene 3 was at the home of the Seven Dwarfs. Sleepy, Dopey, Sneezy, Bashful, Grumpy, Doc and Happy, who find Snow White. Doc awakens her and as "off to work they go", Snow White cleans and cooks for them. The dwarfs were Nancy Demers, Kathleen Warren, Robyn Belknap, Wendy Goodsell, Maryse Grenier, Tina Lawson and Pamela Silvester.

The Witch, on her toes finds Snow White and she casts a spell that puts Snow White back to sleep as ordered by The Queen. As she sleeps the Village children and the squirrels and bunnies as well as the Dwarfs gather around her and cry for Snow White.

Then came the to-dancing prince, Debra Middleton, who awakens the sleeping beauty and they together dance offstage and the others all dance with glee.

Snow White returns to dance a toe solo, then the prince returns and they dance a duet offstage to live happily ever after.

After an intermission all returned to tap dance in groups of three showing their skills and what they have been taught by Mrs. Cameron.

Mrs. Cameron is a professional ballet teacher in Montreal but spends her summers at Lake Memphremagog and teaches children lessons in dancing. Several have returned to her classes each year and were in the presentation Tuesday evening.

Jay and his sister, Willow, the Hunter, played the piano, while the colorful costumes were made by the mothers.

R. Beasse was Emcee and welcomed all in French and English. After the show Mr. Beasse - on behalf of the Swim School at the Border to whom the proceeds have been donated - presented Mrs. Cameron and Willow Gerber each with a china cup and saucer and Jay with a gift of money. Mr. Beasse also thanked Mrs. Cameron for her many hours spent with the young people, the mothers for making the costumes and for voting the money to the Swim project.

Mrs. Cameron responded with words of thanks and said how much she enjoys her summers at the lake and with the young people. Her popularity was proven backstage as the pupils came and said goodbye with a kiss.

QUEEN AND COURT — Julie Goodsell plays the Queen, Tara Robertson, Linda Mongeau and Bonnie Davis the three ladies of the Court.

Milby Women's Institute

MILBY — The August meeting of the Milby W.I. took place at the Milby Club Room on August 4, opening with O Canada, Salute to the Flag, and the Collect.

Mrs. Mildred Cairns, President, extended a very hearty welcome to the members and visiting W.I. groups numbering nineteen, from Shefford County, which includes Granby West, Granby Hill and Waterloo-Warden Branches.

Minutes of June meeting were read by Mrs. A. Powell, Secretary and approved as read; also correspondence comprising Thank-you notes from the Draper family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sutor and Mr. and Mrs. T. Powell.

It was moved by Mrs. Olive Painter, seconded by Mrs. Eldora Turner that $10.00 donation be made to the Don Cascadden Fund - carried.

The President noted that a quilting bee had been held in the Club Room and the quilt finished. Discussion arose as to how best it might be sold, one suggestion being to enter it in the Moe's River Handicraft Sale, this to be decided upon at next meeting.

Mrs. D. Coates, Treas., gave her report, all bills paid with satisfactory balance.

Mrs. May Sarasin agreed to act as delegate at the County Meeting, Aug. 10 at 10:30 a.m.

Home Economics, Mrs. Wm. Sutor, requested articles for Fair Booth, had to be in by Friday, Aug. 12. Volunteers for work in the booth were reminded Milby days were Aug. 16 and 18, Milby color, green.

Education convenor, Mrs. Wenda Broadhurst, read an article re Bill 101 written by W.R. Cooling, President of the QAPSB emphasizing the fact that hearing had been denied them at the Parliamentary hearings, whereas this privilege was granted to such minority groups as the Indian and Inuit people whose minority rights are to be respected. Of the 75,000 students covered by the recent study and survey by the QAPSB, only 59.47 per cent of the 70 per cent return of this study, and presently enrolled have at least one parent who received his or her elementary education in English in Quebec. The grave results of this legislation can easily be understood regarding the future of our English schools.

Despite the threatened legislation Bishop's University notes that Quebec students are opting for a Quebec Education with 800 applications filed for fall term, and a record of 360 1st year students as compared with a 280 norm. Bishop's is offering several new programs this year.

Mrs. Roy Sutor, Citizenship, read a letter of thanks from CanSave Program for the ditty bags received.

Mrs. Eug. Naylor, Jr., reported sending sympathy cards to the Richard Brown and Robt. Sutor families. She had visited Mrs. Beattie Sr. A cake plate had been given Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sutor on their 50th anniversary. An interesting article was read by Mrs. Ron Patrick.

The President asked the Presidents of the three visiting Branches to tell about their activities, which proved most interesting, with many new ideas. Each visiting member introduced herself, the name of her branch, and her branch of activity.

Mrs. Eug. Naylor pinned a small numbered corsage on each visitor. Mrs. Mildred Cairns drew No. 18 as the winning number, going to Mrs. Malcolm Crossfield, Abbotsford.

The floating prize was won by Mrs. Gordon Neil, Granby Hill Branch.

The Roll call was answered by 14 members with a first aid remedy.

The meeting adjourned and dainty refreshments were served. Of special mention was a cake, made and very beautifully decorated by Mrs. Murray Powell with W.I. Crest in W.I. colors.

Mrs. Eug. Naylor, Jr., introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ruth Atto, who spoke of Home Care for patients, many of whom are dismissed too soon from hospitals, and are in dire need of nursing care in the home during early convalescence. Nurses are assigned to each district for this purpose, but the number is still inadequate.

Mrs. Atto was thanked by Mrs. E. Turner and presented with a gift.

A very pleasant social hour followed, with many ideas and plans being discussed and exchanged.

Brompton Road WI

Mrs. Brown read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved by the president.

Several members gave in bread clips to Mrs. G. Hadenko. Drainage pipes were discussed again.

A decision was made as to the school fairs.

Mrs. G. Westman, treasurer, read the treasurer's report. All were in favor that the bills be paid.

Correspondence was read and several members said their thank yous for birthday cards and bon voyage cards. It was agreed to accept an invitation to a supper meeting to be held by Bury Women's Institute on September 8.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Sept. 8, 1977

Unusual circumstances may develop this coming year that give you the opportunity to increase your resources. How it all comes about may remain a mystery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be hesitant today about making your needs known to those who truly care for you. They are as interested in your welfare as you are. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter for 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your executive qualities are extra-special today. The way you handle people makes them feel you care. They'll do your bidding with alacrity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A nimble brain stands you in far better stead than a strong back today. Overcome your stiffest competition with mind, not muscle, power.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's possible you might be required to untangle a sticky situation for someone today. Gratitude may be your only, but ample reward.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Should you have to make an important decision today, choose the alternative that opts in favor of the long, gradual approach. It will be best for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Happiness for you today is being busy. Idle hands mean only boredom and worry, so keep your shoulder to the wheel.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If the necessity arises to take a small gamble in your work or career today, go ahead. The odds are slanted in your favor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons with whom you have close bonds should get the lion's share of your attention today. All will benefit equally from this course of conduct.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's someone you're fond of but have lost touch with in the recent past. Get in contact today, either by phone or mail.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For one you love today, say it with flowers or some tangible token of your affection. It doesn't have to be expensive, just visible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is one of those unusual days when people want to give you things. It could be the butcher with an extra chop or the boss picking up the check.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're operating on your noblest wavelength today. You do things for others, with no thought of required to untangle a sticky Sympathy is extended to Mr. Walter Brontz at the death of his father in Drummondville.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Monahan have returned from a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Terry Shangraw and Mr. Shangraw in Calgary, Alta. While there, they accompanied their hosts on a tour of part of B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Monahan entertained at a delicious salad luncheon on Sunday, August 28, at which time Roy's sister, Vi, was celebrating her birthday, and was presented with a cake on which were lighted candles in appropriate numbers. Another cake, centered with a bouquet of pansies, was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frost, who were celebrating their wedding anniversary on this day, too.

After all had done justice to the more than ample meal, Mrs. Dixon was presented with several attractively wrapped gifts, which she opened and displayed among the guests.

Main topics of conversation were the trip taken by the hosts to the West recently and the trip to Europe which the Taylors had enjoyed. Mona's genuine wooden shoes from Holland came in for a lot of admiration, and most of those present took turns at trying them out and pronounced them to be extremely comfortable. Nevertheless, they are rather noisy and certainly were not meant for "sneaking up" on any one.

Unfortunately there are no Sunburys left in this district.

Accompanied by Miss Mabel Mills of Bulwer, another cousin, they motored to Old Orchard, Maine, where they spent three days at the ocean side. On the way home, they called on Miss Bertha Giguere in Lewiston, who was also a nurse stationed at Pearl Harbour, when it was bombed. It had been 35 years since Irma and Bertha had seen each other. It was quite a reunion.

On Saturday, Mrs. Ann Morrison and Miss Elsie Winget were supper guests. Then a visit to the French's homestead in Flanders, to meet Mrs. Abel French, Blanche and Brenda. As Emma Jane Parsons French, Mrs. Abel French's mother-in-law was Mary Ann Parsons Sunbury's sister.

Irma and Dorothy also visited all her ancestors' graves in Eaton Corner. It was the first time a descendant of May Ann Parsons Sunbury had returned to this part of the country, as all Mary and John Sunbury's descendants live in the States.

Irma motored with Miss Mabel Mills of Bulwer to Montreal where she took the plane to Winnipeg and then back home to Bismark, N.D.

Miss Nancy Haley of Montreal is visiting Mrs. Robert Gray. They also saw the play Squeix-de-deux in which Robert is leading man. This play will tour the eastern part of Canada starting the first of September. Miss Nancy Haley has just returned from a three-week trip to England where she visited her sisters.

In writing a book for students in that the author must try to find interesting hands and interesting difficulties. Paul Cromelin uses today's hand to show the raise from one to six notrump. North has a balanced 17 points. If South has a minimum 16, the combined total is 33. If South has a maximum 18, the total is 35. Either way the hands belongs in six.

Six is a mighty good contract. If clubs break 3-2 there are no problems. If they break 4-1, a 3-3 diamond break will produce the 12th trick. If neither clubs or diamonds break, declarer can develop a squeeze if the same opponent must try to protect both suits.

The play is simple indeed provided that declarer starts proceedings with an unusual play. He must give away a club immediately.

The late Walter Syman dubbed this play the submarine squeeze. Once the club is ducked, and we wonder just what percentage of players won't just lay down the ace and king, declarer just falls into the squeeze by cashing all high spades, hearts and clubs. On the last spade or heart East must chuck a diamond to keep his high club and the hand is over.

An Iowa reader wants to know if Howard Schenken, one of the greatest players of all time, is still alive.

Howard is both alive and well, but plays practically no tournament bridge any more.

The gift for all seasons...

DRIVERS! STOP! LOOK! LISTEN! SCHOOLS IN!

IT'S BACK TO SCHOOL TIME...

* DRIVE EXTRA CAREFULLY around schools and playgrounds!

* HAVE YOUR CAR CHECKED by an expert! Any car that is not in perfect mechanical condition is a potential murder weapon! The few dollars you spend may save a life.

* BE ON THE ALERT when you are near a school bus. Of course! they have to obey all the traffic rules. But give buses a break anyway... they carry priceless cargo!

* PARENTS, NEVER STOP TELLING children about the many traffic dangers! Only then can we hope to reduce traffic fatalities, one out of seven fatalities involves a school child.

* DRIVERS! DON'T HURRY when you drive! We may as well face it — we cannot reduce casualties unless we slow down! The minute you may save isn't worth the life of a school child.

* Be on the lookout for children when they walk to and from school! Your vacation from school children is over now!

* DON'T DRIVE at all when you've had a drink.
