Group sings to help firefighters

LENNOXVILLE — The Lennoxville volunteer firemen's association is getting together with the Eastern Townships' largest amateur musical group to put on a concert Saturday that promises something good for everybody — including the firemen.

Les 4-Temps, over 90 voices and 300 costumes strong, will bring its own brand of variety entertainment to the stage of Centennial Theatre at Bishop's University for a Saturday evening of fun for the entire family.

The musical troupe is working for free, and after sound and light equipment rental costs are covered, the rest of the money raised will go to the firemen to help purchase six new portable emergency breathing "airpacks" for use in fires and chemical spills.

The new equipment won't be a luxury for the firefighters, who held a press conference this week to talk about their project. Association president Brian Montgomery and firemen Jim Davidson, Frank Wilson and François Gilbert were among those who spoke. The compressed-air backpacks and masks now used by the Lennoxville volunteer fire department are over 20 years old and the company that makes them wants to put one in its historical museum. The new $1400 units they want to buy are lighter, safer, more reliable and easier to operate than the old ones. You can still get replacement parts for them as well.

Town council "sort of went overboard" on spending this year, said safety committee chairman councillor Duncan Bruce, by buying 25 new helmets and 12 fire coats for the volunteers. Left out in the cold concerning their ancient airpacks, the firemen offered to raise half the money themselves. At $8 a pop, they'll need a full house to come up with their share of the purchase price. This is where Les 4-Temps come in.

"We are definitely not a choir," said cast member Suzanne Beauvais. "We put on a real musical review. We do many different types of music, singing, dancing and smiling in French and English."

The group has more requests to put on fund-raising shows than it has time for, but manages to make a number of charitable appearances each year. "We are very happy to be participating; fire prevention is a matter everyone should take seriously, and the equipment is important," added 4-Temps singer Ann-Louise Carson.

So, of course, is having a good time. Which is what you'll have if you show up at Centennial Theatre at 8:30 Saturday night.

TICKETS FOR THE LENNOXVILLE FIREMEN'S $-TEMPS CONCERT ARE AVAILABLE AT THE BISHOP'S BOX OFFICE, CHARLIE'S SMOKED MEAT, PHARMAPOP CADIEX AND THE ADDITION.

Your own wine cellar only takes imagination

Wine Bits

By TIMOTHY BELFORD

Recently, I came upon an article in the German Wine Review which, among other things, pointed out that wine enthusiasts today often overlook Germany's excellent white wines when considering what they will put aside for the future. It struck me at the time, that the lack of consideration of Rhine or Mosel wines was probably three-fold.

First, and easily the most important, is the fact that most of us don't even have a wine cellar. With our highly mobile society and the dramatic increase in the number of apartment dwellers, fewer and fewer North Americans are inclined to set up a cellar where good wine may rest relatively undisturbed until it reaches maturity.

A second consideration is the problem of cash. Even in today's affluent society there is a reluctance to invest in something that will not provide gratification — and then only fleetingly — for 10 or possibly 20 years.

The final problem rests on the growers and producers themselves. Dramatic increases in the cost and production of fine wine coupled with the financial burden of long storage has forced many growers to produce wines fit for immediate consumption. Seldom do we find wines on the shelves of the provincial liquor outlets that are suitable for long-term storage and when we do, they are almost always quite pricey . . . well almost always.

Just as surely as the three restrictions mentioned above are indeed valid, they are not insurmountable.

It is surprisingly easy to find a suitable, if not large, storage space for wine even in an apartment. A bedroom closet, an unused cupboard, the basement storage room, all can be converted with a little imagination and a minimum of effort. What is important in all cases, is that the space be relatively dark, of a constant temperature and generally free of traffic. The second and third problems can be solved with a better knowledge of wine and a little judicious shopping.

For example. The 1961 Barolo, one of Italy's finest and longest-lived wines, was available in 1977 at a little over $4.00 a bottle. If you could find one now, it would likely be at its peak and would cost, depending upon the producer, upward of $25.00 a bottle. Not a bad investment.

Just as interesting, from the point of view of a wine cellar, is the 1975 vintage in Germany. At the time, I found a marked difference between the 1975 and the 1976 with my preference being with the '76. However, time has proven the 1975 to be a better wine for storage and a wise buyer at the time was able to purchase many excellent wines for what now appears to have been an incredibly cheap price.

The above-noted examples are only two of many which illustrate that the laying down of wine does not have to be restricted to fine Bordeaux and to those of us with a six-figure income. As a matter of fact, with a little planning and a little education, you too can have a "wine cellar". Cheers!

Egg-decorating a celebration of "the good life"

By Laurel Sherrer

SOUTH BOLTON — When Janina Grygar's fifth grade teacher asked the class to bring in a decorated Easter egg from home, sometime around 1920, the little girl's mother had to show some ingenuity, since the family couldn't afford such frivolities as paint for Easter eggs.

She made do by boiling onion skins to produce a deep rusty brown dye, onto which Janina scratched designs in white with a broken knife.

It may not have been as colorful as some of the other children's creations, but Janina showed such skill and creativity with her limited resources that the teacher applauded her, and egg decorating became her lifetime hobby.

She makes thousands of intricately designed eggs every year, she says, each taking a minimum of five hours. And she still loves it.

The designs come completely from her head, Grygar says, and often develop as she works. "If I start to cut and I don't know what's coming to my mind, sometimes it's funny to see what happens," she said in her halting English. One exception to this rule is her most ambitious project which she has recently completed.

ON A WHIM

She had this whim to decorate the world's largest egg. So she obtained an ostrich egg shell for $20.

"Then I said 'Oh my goodness, what am I going to do with it,'" she said. But she soon came up with a design worthy of the ostrich's prodigious effort.

Spending three to five hours a day for about three months measuring, scratching white lines and painting, she created something "for all Canadians": the crests of the ten provinces, along with the provincial flowers and red maple leaves, all in minute detail, right down to the hairs of the British lion's mane.

"I didn't realize it would be so hard," she said. "In the middle I said, 'no, I'm not going to finish it.'" But she did.

Now she would like to have a chance to present her masterpiece to the prime minister on behalf of all Canadians and for all Canadians. And she would like eventually to see it in a museum, where people can appreciate it.

Grygar grew up in Poland, but she says her craft is not a particularly Polish art form, nor does she borrow the techniques of the Ukrainians, who are famous for egg decorating.

"This is my own way," she said.

"I didn't learn it from anybody."

HOURS OF DETAILING

She still starts with a basic background color, and then scratches in the white areas with a knife. But now that's only the beginning. Hours of painstaking detailing with special, fast-drying oil paints follow.

"But, you know, you have to have some talent," she said. "You have to have patience, and you have to like it."

Some influential people have received eggs designed by her as gifts, mostly through a friend who used to buy a hundred every Easter to send to cabinet ministers and others.

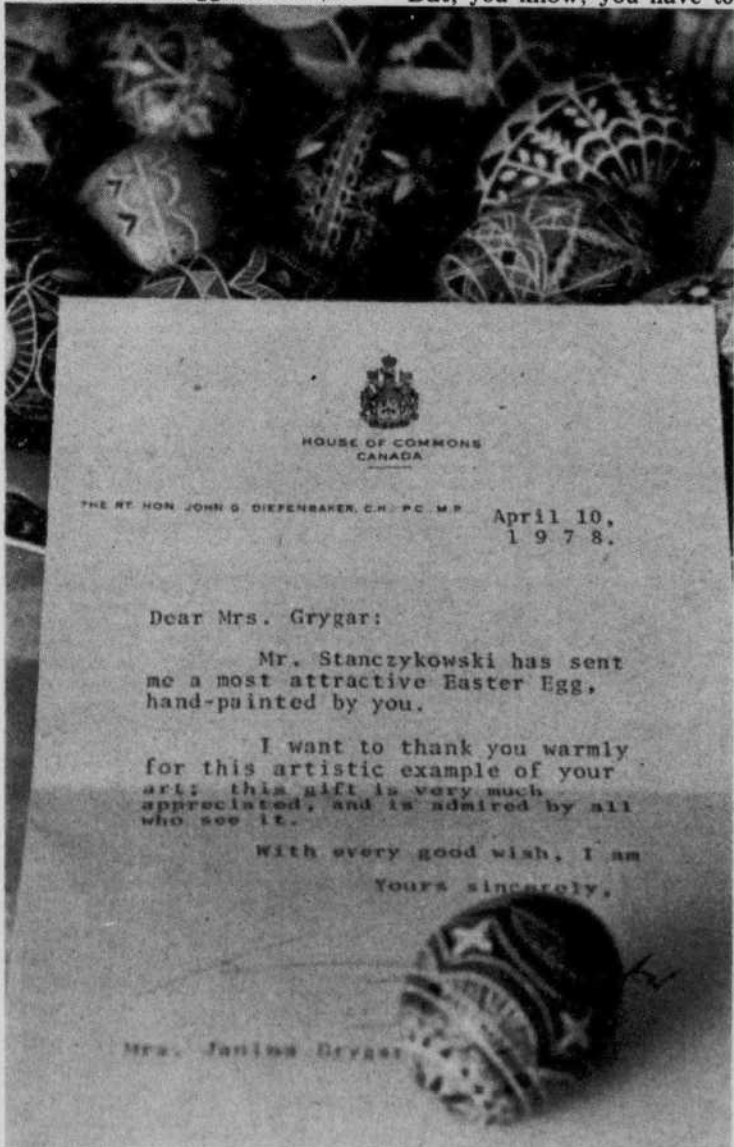

Among her keepsakes are letters of thanks from the various recipients, including former prime minister Pierre Trudeau, and one from John Diefenbaker. "This one is my treasure," she said.

Having worked as a painter for a Montreal firm for eight years, producing 60 paintings a week, Grygar is retired now, and does her painting and egg decorating at her own pace, mostly just for gifts, or for her own enjoyment.

She has lived in South Bolton for the last 15 years, and says her desire to create comes partly out of knowing "how to appreciate the good life". After having her first husband killed when the Russians moved into Poland, spending over two years in exile in Siberia with her children, and ten years moving from country to country until she found a permanent home in the Eastern Townships, the life here is something to celebrate.

After painting on a basic color, the next step is to scratch in the white parts, which Grygar always does free-hand.

A thank-you letter from former prime minister John Diefenbaker is Grygar's "treasure".

What the travel agents don't say about Jerusalem

By Chick Schwartz

Jerusalem is incredible. The hotels there has mercy on us and takes us a half-block away to a little apartment totally private. Just for us. Two rooms with mats on the floor, a kitchen, and best of all, our own bathroom. Twenty-five dollars a night for the six of us - right in the center of Jerusalem.

So maybe it isn't the cleanest place around and the fridge, hot water, and shower don't work. It's cheap and private and even has a little balcony where we can hang our clothes to dry and I can sit and watch humanity go by.

The owner, Itzik, from Yemen, lives right upstairs and turns out to be a very friendly and interesting guy. He explains the black market money exchanging (the official rate at the banks is about 1100 shekels per U.S. dollar but we should get at least 1250 from the many official money changers in the old city. Wait a minute and he'll look it up in the newspaper. And he did.) Both the official and black market rates are actually quoted in the exchange columns daily.

TIPS ON BARGAINING

He also clues us in about bargaining in the bazaars and markets. Unless you have walked out of the Kiosks three times and been urged back in with lower prices each time (ultimately paying about one third the original asking price) you're being cheated. Later, Itzik cooked us an authentic Yemenite meal which was doubtlessly the gastronomic highlight of our trip.

His Shakshuga — tomato, garlic, red & green pepper, and gobs of spices simmered into a thick sauce and then covered with egg which kind of poaches right into the conglomeration — was superb. The spicy vegetables mixed with the blandish egg are a real contrast and delightful treat.

Sabbath in Jerusalem is an unforgettable experience. Literally thousands of people walk to the Wailing Wall in time to see the religious school students come dancing in at sundown. About twenty minutes later, the Mullahs in the Islamic Minarets around the Dome Of The Rock which is right behind the wall, and one of the holiest places for both Islam and Christianity, call the faithful to evening prayer. Their almost unearthly Arabic chant reverberating through the corridors and courtyards around the wall is an experience that will long be remembered.

For the next twenty-four hours, nothing moves in Jerusalem (and for that matter, almost all of Israel). Every store, restaurant, street vendor, and office is closed. No buses, cars or bikes move. Literally no one is out. The streets are totally devoid of life. Not even a phone rings. Very strange sensation for a North American.

You quickly learn to get your groceries for the weekend in one of the open air markets early Friday morning. Also an interesting experience as thousands of people are all jostling another another for the choicest morsels — mainly fish, vegetables, all kinds of exotic cheeses and fruits we'd never seen before, baked goods of every description, and the various goodies made from sesame seeds and chickpeas. Meat is very expensive in the Mid-East and rarely eaten. But they make wonderful pastes and fried products with chickpeas that are super tasting, nutritious, and dirt cheap.

Just as awesome as the total absence of activity during the Sabbath, is the mammoth outpouring of humanity about nine-o'clock Saturday night after the Sabbath is over. All the sidewalk cafes are jammed with young lovers in all their finery. The street entertainers are out in full force, the singles cruise the boulevards and squares, and the older couples stroll the streets and parks observing the action. By eleven or twelve, the crowds are so thick that you just "go with the flow". It seems that all Jerusalem must be out in their fanciest garb till the early morning hours.

BUILDINGS ASTOUNDING

The physical structures of the city are very different than anything you'd ever see on this continent. The massive building projects up and down the hills and valleys surrounding Jerusalem are astounding. Almost all the buildings are constructed of "Jerusalem Stone" — kind of a peach colored stone indigenous to the surrounding environs, and exquisite.

However, the Stetyls of Mea Shearim (the old Jewish ghetto area) where the ultra-religious sects live, were more amazing to me. Walking into this area, where huge signs admonish the women to dress modestly (arms and legs must be covered) is like stepping into a time warp. The houses, clothing, and customs are exactly as they were in the Russian and Polish Ghettos where most of the present inhabitants' forefathers lived hundreds of years ago. This is not a recreation for tourists. It's the real thing and almost supernatural.

Also very eerie are the armed soldiers. Everywhere you look, soldiers of all ages (everyone in Israel must join the army right after high school and serve in the active reserves for six weeks a year until age fifty-five!) are very much in evidence. And they are all carrying automatic weapons and the bullet clips are either in the weapons or in the soldiers' hands if they are in a crowded area like a bazaar.

GUN-TOTING GUARDS

Similarly, you see groups of youngsters obviously visiting from a Kibbutz — all accompanied by gun toting guards — who often appear to be mere kids themselves. At first, this is very disconcerting. I mean a third of the people on a public bus are likely to be armed soldiers. (At the end of every bus route, all the passengers must exit the bus and the driver looks under every seat to insure that no terrorist bombs have been planted aboard!) However, by the end of the trip, we had become somewhat blasé about the guns and even welcomed them on occasion.

Two reasons why: Once, while in Jerusalem's centre bus station, we went towards the exit, pushed on the doors and found them locked. A couple of soldiers posted there explained that an unattended package had been found out in front and the bomb squad was that very minute disposing of it. There are signs everywhere throughout the country warning you not to approach unattended parcels and to notify soldiers if you see one. In fact, I once started to leave our duffelbags by themselves while I headed for a bathroom outside a bus depot. I hadn't taken ten steps before a soldier, Uzi drawn, approached wanting to know why I was walking away from the baggage.

The other example is, unfortunately, more tragic. On our many forays to the Old City and the Wall, Zack always skipped along on the stone walls and short ledges as kids are prone to do. We never thought a thing about it. Then one day while listening to the news I heard that one of the ledges at a bus stop in Jerusalem had been booby trapped that morning and a child had been severely wounded. While the large presence of soldiers substantially reduces the occurrences of terrorist acts, obviously they still happen. Anyway, from then on, Zack walked with me on the sidewalks and we welcomed the omnipresence of the soldiers.

Sabbath is an incredible experience as thousands of people visit the Wailing Wall.

At times the crowds are so thick you just "go with the flow".

It is everything you've dreamed of.
It is nothing you expect.

Of bathrooms, backsheesh, and rude desert varmints

By Chick Schwartz

From Jerusalem, we took the bus to Cairo, Egypt. It's probably timely to say a few words about middle-eastern bathrooms. Doubtlessly as a safeguard against terrorist bombs, none of the buses that we saw during our trip had restrooms aboard. So, on longer trips, they stop on a regular basis at "rest houses" where you can get a snack and use their "facilities". Son, you really gotta hafta go to partake of these "powder rooms".

First, lets talk flushing. Zack was intrigued at the variations on the theme and kind of kept track. We had ropes and chains you pulled from the ceiling, buttons you pushed on the overhead tanks, pedals you kicked, levers you shifted next to your feet, and, of course, our all time favorite at the "rest house" half way to Cairo.

This one was the all time interplanetary award-winning champion. Now, none of the bathrooms have toilet paper, so you quickly learn to bring your own. Although, in the fancier places in both Israel and Egypt, old men often would be found sitting at card tables at the restroom entrances selling twenty or thirty squares for nominal amounts.

GOOD TO BE HOME

Needless to say, this one not only didn't have toilet paper, it didn't have a toilet seat or a toilet. Since this is a family newspaper, we're not even going to mention the state of the housekeeping or odor associated with this cubicle. There were two kind of indentations in the floor strategically located so that if you placed your feet in them and sort of squatted properly, you were over a hole in the floor. Nearby, hung a pitcher of water for "flushing". Oh damn, but it's good to be home!

You don't hear much about the Ugly American anymore. Remember when the American tourists were such clods that they were known world-wide as boors who could be barely tolerated by the locals in the host countries. The reason you don't hear about us in such derogatory terms now is that the locals have learned to play our own game - often better than we do ourselves.

A word about the Egyptians. They are among the friendliest folks I've ever run across. Ask them for directions and you're likely to get a personally guided accompaniment to the location in question. They always smile and never talk down to you.

THE HAND IS OUT

However, the omnipresent "Backsheesh" is somewhat disconcerting to someone not used to it. No matter what service is rendered, or perceived to have been rendered, or merely offered, the old hand is out. I don't mean figuratively speaking or with subtlety. The hand literally is in front of your face - wide open and waving.

To the Egyptians, it is an accepted way of life and is second nature to them. When you get off the ferry boat after crossing the Suez, you hand the driver the equivalent of a dime or so as well as the man who operates the manual throttle on the engine when the driver yells back to him. Also rewarded is the guy who stands on the gangplank looking quite official but who does absolutely nothing.

Similarly, when you walk towards the Pharaoh's tombs or the great pyramids, there are gentlemen standing at the entrances looking official but doing nothing but standing there looking official with their hands out.

However, far more exasperating are the hordes of vendors offering genuine guaranteed authentic ancient artifacts clamoring around the tourists hawking their wares — and the zillions of camel, horse, and donkey owners surrounding you with propositions of rides or offers of poses for your camera. And these are unbelievably persistent gen-

When you say, "no thanks, I don't think I want to take a picture of you and your camel", they translate this into, "the yankee wants to take my picture more than anything else on earth, I just have to ask him 80 or 90 more times". And he does. He taps you on the shoulder extolling the unsurpassed photogenic virtues of his particular camel. He follows behind you with a 110 decibel non-stop dissertation right in your ear touting his own near-movie-star renown. He nudges you in the ribs explaining the incredible bargain he is offering by letting you snap a quick picture for only one American dollar.

When you again tell him "no thanks, Abdul, I really don't want to take a picture of you and 'Son Of A Stubborn Desert Varmint', your famous camel," he really thinks, "ahah! I'm getting to the yankee....another half hour of constant harassment and he'll realize he wants to take my picture". And he starts in with renewed vigor.

Diplomatic and softspoken ambassador of good relations that I am, I tell Abdul to take his camel and buzz off - he's bugging the hell out of me.

A NOTE ABOUT CLIMATE

Now you need to understand a bit about Egypt's climate. It's blistering hot, generally about 45° (110 - 115°F) but terribly dry. It sometimes goes for three years without a drop of rain. Also, there is always a strong wind so even though you're awfully hot, you never feel moisture or sweat. It evaporates instantly.

Well, Abdul and Son Of A Stubborn Desert Varmint took my gentle hint and left. Our entourage continued along gazing at the Pyramids and the Sphinx.

"Behold", our guide, Miss Fazir, says looking towards the sky. "Rain — I can't believe it." We all look up and sure enough, we're being sprinkled with rain.

But there's not a cloud in the sky!

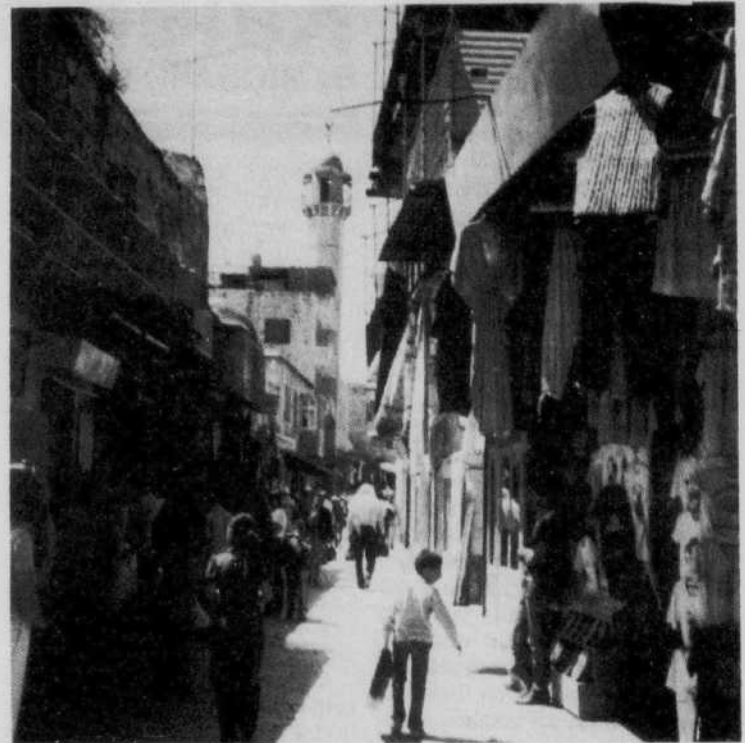

Unquestionably, however, we are definitely getting soaked. We look around.

Our good buddy Abdul has cleverly maneuvered Son Of A Stubborn Desert Varmint about twenty feet upwind of us and pressed some magic button causing the faithful beast to empty his considerable bladder in our direction. The wind does the rest.

Moral! Unless you're particularly fond of the smell of fermenting camel piss on your person, keep your pockets full of small coins and play their backsheesh game with a goodnatured smile.

Following our visits to the Pyramids, Tombs of the Pharaohs, and Karnak's Temple - all of which are more spectacular than can be imagined from the pictures and posters we've all seen since we were kids, we headed back to Israel.

Next week: Visiting a Modern Kibbutz

If you haven't walked out of a kiosk three times and been coaxed back in with lower prices each time, you're being cheated.

Who guitarist's fiction stimulating to the mind

Horse's Neck by Pete Townshend (FABER-PENGUIN): $14.95, 95 pp.

When John Lennon made his divergence from the pop music domain to pen two collections of Ogden Nash- or Lewis Carroll-style nonsense verse, both the rock world and publishing types took note. What ripples then will be felt when viewers of the legendary Who learn that the windmill-armed, agitated lead guitarist of rock's bad boy band has a gathering of his short fictions available for sampling? Pete Townshend's Horse's Neck is as anguished a cry for recognition and understanding as the rocker's most definitive pieces--the rebellious anthem "My Generation" and the cry for equality and tolerance that was his rock opera Tommy.

Townshend's short studies begin with what he calls "a dimly remembered story of infancy", as a baby of thirteen months of age reacts to a day on the sand dunes at Filey, an English coastal beach. The piece begins, as do several others such as a remembrance of dead drummer Keith Moon, with a succession of short observations in one-line form of a mother's claims about her offspring: "I breast-fed him first/ I rejected him first/ I screamed with him first".

Mothers, as well as horses, dominate the imagery in Townshend's sketches, though one, "Tonight's The Night", takes the title of a Rod Stewart song to lead into a strange story about a very weird young girl from Southern California who reveals that some groupies are even more odd than the eccentric superstars they stalk. Of the longer, more traditional vignettes in the book, "Fish Shop" offers a compelling tale about a boy named Pete, who, along with the narrator, takes a walk down memory lane, reflecting back on a fifteen year old youth's early life crises. Pete befriends an old Spaniard who runs a fish & chips shop, whose virtuosity with flamenco guitar so influences the youth that he makes a choice of art over teenage romance which seems to symbolize Townshend's own dedication to his craft.

The rock world will be delighted with obvious autobiographical pieces such as "Pancho and the Baron", which probes the meaning behind Townshend's very mixed emotions about drummer Keith Moon's strange fate as a rock burn-out case. "Winston" is a contemporary bit about an anniversary of John Lennon's death in December of 1980, at which an English rocker named Van Smith-Hartley (a disguise for Van Morrison?) waxes nostalgic and vitriolic about the adoration heaped on mindless rock messiahs, while true talents such as John Winston Lennon are searched out and shot to death.

Kaleidoscope

Horse's Neck quite summarily dismisses the criticisms that all rockers have I.Q.'s of room temperature, celsius, at the same time confirming that the Who's enigmatic Pete Townshend is as stimulating to the mind as a writer as he is when plunking out archetypal rock melodies on his manic guitar.

KIDS' BOOKS

Follow That Bird, by C.T.W. Sesame Street (RANDOM HOUSE): $9.75, storybook based on the movie.

A spin-off of a movie that is a spin-off from the most popular television show for kids, Follow That Bird is the latest adventure from the Children's Television Workshop featuring Jim Henson's universally recognized and loved Muppets. A busy-body social worker, Miss Finch of the Feathered Friends Society, decides that Big Bird should be among his own kind instead of mixing with the rag-tag Sesame Street gang. When Bird is relocated with the dumb Dodo family in Ocen View, Illinois, his despair over the stupid antics of the Dodos leads him to run away.

The rest of Follow That Bird is a caper that engages all the familiar Sesame creations: the Countmobile is called into action, Bert & Ernie take to the air, and Super Grover sets out to find the elusive Bird. With much of the repetitive foolery that the kids recognize (the yellow VW loses a fender to the Cookie Monster's hunger), Big Bird makes it into the familiar environs of T.V.'s most famous street, with morals and laughs to be drawn by wiser parents who read the tale at bedtime. As usual, Henson's outrageous puppets tickle the children's funny-bones in all the right places, making these books as close to a guaranteed winner with kids as is possible.

RECORD REVIEW

Paul Hyde & The Payolas HERE'S THE WORLD FOR YA (A&M)

If anyone had reservations about the hoopla surrounding David Foster's Grammy winning efforts on CHICAGO 17, wondering how much a producer really influenced what was an established supergroup, they should lend an ear to the Payolas' latest. Foster, a talent L.A. keyboardist, writer and producer, is a B.C. native, so his partnership with Paul Hyde and the Payolas on HERE'S THE WORLD FOR YA seems a natural. As with Chicago, the Payolas have not exactly been slouches in the Canadian rock ranks, but Foster transforms them from a good Canadian band into a fabulously tuneful group that can compete with the Beach Boys, Chicago or Foreigner on equal standing.

The whole sound of the band is enriched by Foster's discerning ear on the mixes, and through his use of Steve Porcaro on synthesizers, who can make a few tracks sound as if indeed Chicago's horn line was on tap. Knockout tracks include a Bob Rock & Paul Hyde tune, "Stuck In The Rain", that has the textures, intricacies and resonance of a complex Beatles song -- and it's just as listenable and entertaining. Even the least compelling track here has a vocal edge to it that could only have been coaxed forth by someone of Foster's demanding work habits. The shadings on the vocals are a reminder that some of the finest singing bands have that extra-fine, careful colouration to their vocal blends that goes far beyond merely getting the voicings to "ring" in the barbershop quartet overtone sense. Hyde and the Payolas bust a few chords on this record that other bands just couldn't get close to.

Power tunes include a track called "Little Boys", and "All That I Want" is a song that builds to an intensity of power the Payolas can obviously muster in concert hall presentations. The title track is one that Foster helped write (there are two others), and it reflects the lighter aspect of Hyde's Payolas that has been broadened to make them a far more creative studio band. With Bryan Adams banging at international doors with his brand of Canadian rock, the Payolas appear to be poised for a grasp at the elusive golden ring of multi-nation notoriety.

Wholesome fun with hulking journalists, sled-dogs

Well, by now I'm sure everyone knows that Record staffer, Bill 'grunt' Harris is the second strongest journalist in Quebec. Harris, The Record's representative in the Benson and Hedges Mark Ten strongest journalist contest, was edged out by the CBC's Derek Fitzgerald in a wheelbarrow pushing contest on Wednesday of this week. Fitzgerald, who spends his spare time weight training (and we all know how much spare time federal employees have), reportedly refused to submit to a urinalysis after the event saying, "Only the management at CBC uses steroids." Harris was not asked to undergo a test for drugs after he convinced contest organizers that he treated his body "like a temple."

Don't panic. There are still plenty of tickets left for the 1986 Eighth Annual Running of the ALPO International Sled Dog Championships. That's right. You too can spend January 24, 25 and 26 "high in the Adirondack Mountains" freezing your toosh off while 150 men, women and children drive themselves and 2,000 dogs to the brink of exhaustion for $50,000 in cash. CBS, which is suffering more and more lately from the "Howard Cosell Syndrome", referred to the event recently as "The Superbowl of Sled Dog Racing" and ALPO President, Joseph Sestak, added, "My company remains committed to encouraging sled dog racing as a wholesome, exciting family-oriented sport that is a fun event for people and dogs alike." I wonder if Dan Rather has considered asking the dogs for their opinion? "There are strange things done 'neath the midnight sun. . ."

Speaking of "wholesome, exciting family-oriented sport", the residents of nearby Brigham are up in arms over the operation of a wild-game hunting business that residents and animal-lovers alike

Who's who

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

say is disgusting. Businessman Robert Naud apparently runs an eight-acre "wild-game" park where aspiring Daniel Boones, Robin Hoods and Hemingway types can hunt wild boar with a bow and arrow for $450. According to Marcel Duquette, chief inspector for the SPCA, the "wild" boar are fed grain and appear quite tame. Meanwhile, opponents of the farm say that the "screams and savage growls" emanating from the farm are rather off-putting to say nothing of the "shots ringing out over your head". (Do arrows make a ringing sound?) Since I am obviously in over my head — preferring to fight the crowd at Nichol's for my weekly ration of pork — I think I'll leave this right here and let you make up your mind.

Well the honeymoon is over. The ten provincial premiers, meeting in St. John's, have given Brian the Good notice that they expect action. Bolstered by the addition of one of Canada's endangered species, a Liberal premier, they let Mila's husband know in no uncertain terms that they will no longer be satisfied with vague generalities and the promises of a "new era" in federal provincial relations but would prefer cold hard cash. Appropriately enough, at the other end of the country, Old Granite Jaw was busy explaining how well his government has done in keeping its election promises. After all, employment is up (thanks to political patronage), interest rates are down (thanks to the U.S.) and Canada's relationship with the United States has returned to the stage it was at before Pierre made them all angry (just look at the George's Bank, the cruise tests, acid rain, the restrictions on Canadian steel, lumber and hogs, and Rocket Ronnie's smile).

One more political note. I am sure you will all join me in thanking Frank 'I like plaid jackets' Miller for relinquishing the Ontario Regressive Preservative leadership. Having just discovered — three months too late — that he couldn't beat the Liberals' David Peterson in an election, Miller has decided it is best to let someone else spend the next eight years in opposition. Noble, eh? Never comfortable outside a used car lot, Miller succeeded in two short months in splitting probably the closest knit political machine since the glory days of Albania's Enver Hoxha. When he was through, the Big Blue was in tatters, the former cabinet scattered and Ontario in the hands of, God forbid, the Liberals! Sort of reaffirms ones faith in Canadian politics doesn't it?

Female odd couple role required lots of rewriting

By Mary Campbell

NEW YORK (AP)—Rita Moreno, eating pasta at Sardi's after a matinee performance of The Odd Couple, says the flirtation scene is her favorite in the show. It's the one where she gets to be sexy.

Moreno plays Olive the Untidy, opposite Sally Struthers' Florence the Neatnik, in Neil Simon's sex-change rewrite of his 20-year-old comedy now playing on Broadway.

In 1965, The Odd Couple ran on Broadway for 964 performances. Walter Matthau as divorced Oscar took in Art Carney as just-separated Felix as a roommate.

The English Pigeon sisters called on Oscar and Felix. In the female version, which opened June 11 at the Broadhurst Theater, the Spanish Costazuela brothers court Olive and Florence.

"It's the only scene in which I get to be very feminine," Miss Moreno says. "I love it. A scene like that is called gold. I'm so hot to trot I can barely keep still. I cross and uncross my legs. I fan myself with passion and get away with it, give them smoldering looks. It's great fun."

Playing Olive takes energy. The five-foot-three actress has dropped from 108 to 104 pounds since the show opened, despite her pasta and nap routine between shows on matinee days. "I can hear the calories dropping from me, clanging onto the stage," she says.

Moreno, who played the Oriental Tuptim in The King and I and the Puerto Rican Anita in West Side Story, left Hollywood after the latter, Academy Award-winning performance.

It would never have occurred to her that The Odd Couple could be turned around to star women instead of men, Miss Moreno says.

"But for years any number of women came to Neil and suggested it. The last two to come to him and do a reading were Joan Rivers and Nancy Walker. That didn't work out.

"Jenny O'Hara and myself were among the people invited to that original reading. The moment we finished, Neil called Emanuel Azenberg and said, 'Book it.'"

O'Hara still has a role as one of the players of the regular Trivial

Pursuit game, which has replaced the poker game of the male version.

"On the road we found the show had to be rewritten more extensively than we had thought, particularly my part," Moreno says. "Matthau's lines were hilarious coming out of his mouth; they were forbidding coming out of mine, toward a woman who had just been kicked out of her home. There's a big difference between a woman being kicked out and a man."

After Simon finished work on Biloxi Blues and the play headed for Broadway, he started rewriting Matthau's part to fit Olive and Gene Saks, who had directed Biloxi Blues began directing The Odd Couple.

MATTHAU'S PART CHANGED

"Gene said that for Olive to be as sloppy as Oscar, who stuck a sandwich under his arm to get out the cards, turned people off. I was to be careless, carefree and relaxed. My apartment's a mess, but my career is in great order; I'm personally clean and I want to look pretty."

Moreno made her debut on Broadway at 13 and was in movies at 16. After she left Hollywood, she did summer stock, regional theater and She Loves Me in London.

WHAT'S ON

I've just found out the hard way what a prodigious effort has to go into this column every week — the hard way meaning with production staff breathing down my neck because I happen to be about eight hours behind schedule, and with any semblance of lucidity rapidly disappearing from my mental processes due to acute anxiety. Even with Peter Scowan pitching in to tell you what's worth watching on TV, this whole project has almost proven beyond me. But not quite. I hope it helps you spend your leisure time wisely.

Music

Something a little different this weekend on the music scene is a concert Saturday night by Les Quatre Temps at the Centennial Theatre in Lennoxville. This 90-member troupe not only sings in both English and French, but dances as well. The receipts for this event go to help the Lennoxville volunteer firemen's association replace some antiquated equipment. You can get tickets at the Bishop's box office, Charlie's Smoked Meat, Pharmapop Cadieux and The Addition.

At the Orford Arts Centre as part of a celebration of Latvian culture, pianist Arthur Ozolins performs works by Handel, Brahms, Medins, Kalnins and Rachmaninov Saturday night at 8:00 in the Salle Gilles-Lefebvre, and then Sunday with violinist Rasma Lielmane performs works by Kenins, Brahms, Pavašars, Ysaye and Prokofiev. Sunday afternoon at 2:00, there will be a concert by the students of the Latvian Music School.

While you're there, you can take in a display of traditional Latvian art.

The Festival Lac Massawippi presents its next Sons et Brioches concert at 11 a.m. Sunday in the St. James Church in Hatley. Guitarist Paulyn Lacroix performs. The next concert is September 1st when harpsichordist Claude Bernier performs.

In a totally different vein, J.R. Ewing of Hee Haw Country in Magog informs us that the New Ramblin Cats will be playing Friday and Saturday night, followed by Pork Chops Sunday, and coming up September 1st — a real big event — Mountain Music Madness. This consists of six complete bands and bits and pieces of others. A real country jamboree.

At Jim's Place in Burrough's Falls, it's Idle Hands Friday and Saturday night.

The Auberge Windsor is sharing Just Us with the Stanstead County Fair. This band, featuring James Todd, and guest singer Debbie Drummond, will be at the fair starting at noon Sunday.

The Hotel Normandie in Weedon presents Country Fever with Steve Aulis for the fourth consecutive week, and I hear they've been drawing great crowds.

Blueprint is still at the New Cliff House in Ayer's Cliff, and they play Friday and Saturday nights.

The Motel Bretagne in Waterville is featuring Ramblin Fever Fridays and Saturdays until the end of the month, and Sunday afternoon Tom Wheeler provides the music.

Pige Bone continues at Station 88 in South Stukely each Friday and Saturday until the end of the month.

Weekend Express continues at the Salle Jean-Paul in Bury, playing their modern country music Saturday night only.

Chez Ronnie in Sherbrooke offers Top-40-type music with the band Hearbeat until Sunday.

Back Road plays at The Maples in Stanstead Fridays and Saturdays until the end of the month.

Country Rhythm continues at the Shady Crest in Ayer's Cliff until the end of August, and the same with Fix at the Wotton Hotel.

And finally, so as not to leave you jazz fans out in the cold, the Hovey Manor presents members of Demesure in the Tap Room.

Theatre

There's still time to catch the Piggery's production of the black comedy Angel of Death either tonight or Saturday at 8:30. According to Mikey, it's a mediocre piece, but with good acting and direction manages to be effective and give the audience a few scares.

The Centennial Theatre at Bishop's University has unveiled its 1985-86 programme, and organizers are urging people to buy subscriptions in order to save on tickets. Although this won't help you as far as finding something to go to this weekend or next week, it gives you time to plan ahead.

The finest in entertainment series will start off this fall with La La La Human Steps, a company of four dancers who combine dance, performance, art and contemporary music into high-energy movement, coming to the Centennial Sept. 14. This is followed on Sept. 30 by Second City comedy providing an irreverent and fast-paced evening of laughter.

Next, The Nylons are back with their "rockappella" hits of the 84-85 season Oct. 16.

A highlight for the children will be the ballet Babar performed in English Monday, Dec. 2 at 8 p.m., with school performances Dec. 3, 4, and 5. This ballet, with its marvellous music and costumes, traces the classic tale of the elephant Babar and his adventures.

This is followed by the Broadway musical revue Ain't Misbehavin' January 20.

Le Théâtre de la Marmaille rounds off the series with its new production on children of the Third World, premiering at the Centennial June 8 (a bit of a wait, but keep it in mind).

The Best in Music series (I know this is the theatre column, not music, but it is all happening at the Centennial Theatre.) starts out Nov. 14 with Tafelmusik, North America's only full-time baroque orchestra, which will perform works from the great baroque masters.

This is followed, Nov. 30, by musician-performer André Gagnon, who will perform some of his own compositions as well as works by Schubert, Gershwin, Chopin and Satie.

February 15 virtuoso pianist Louis Lortie, winner of the 1984 Busoni competition, arrives for a concert.

And finally, April 12, the 20-member Tudor Singers Vocal Ensemble presents a programme including selections by Leonard Bernstein.

Movies

You can still catch Michael J. Fox and Christopher Lloyd in the incredibly funny Back to the Future at the Capitol theatre in Sherbrooke, if you haven't already rushed out to see it already. The obvious hit of the summer, this movie is sure to keep you laughing most of the time you're in the theatre. Just don't think too seriously about the implications of time travel and notions of infinity and immortality the movie might bring up in some people's minds — it just isn't that deep a film. It's just good plain fun.

The Cinémas Carrefour features Cocoon, a movie I haven't seen yet, but have heard lots of good things about. Sounds like a winner.

The Cinema Princess in Cowansville is running Mad Max: Beyond Thunderdome and Police Academy II, two sequels that would have to improve greatly on the originals to appeal to me in any way.

The Merrill's Showplace in Newport, Vt. has the phenomenal success E.T. back to make more bucks, and Back to the Future continuing on until the interest wanes — a little while yet, I'm sure.

Radio

Instead of running down the next week's radio features, it might be just as useful to provide the CBC's program changes planned for this fall, as reported by the Canadian Press: so here goes...

The Stereo changes include:

— Starting Brave New Waves, the weeknight new music show, an hour earlier at 11 p.m., with new host Brent Bambury, and beginning Stereo Morning an hour earlier at 5 a.m.

— Starting Night Lines, its weekend new music show, an hour earlier at 11 p.m. and Weekender, its classical and jazz show Saturdays and Sundays, an hour earlier at 5 a.m.

— Moving Mostly Music to a two-hour slot starting at 9 a.m. weekdays.

— Moving R.S.V.P., a classical music show, from Radio to Stereo, weekdays at 11 a.m.

— A new three-hour afternoon music show, tentatively called Stereo Drive, with host Jurgen Gothe, now host of Command Performance, which will have Gordon Hunt as host this season.

— Introducing State of the Arts, a two-hour program on arts coverage, Sundays at noon, with host Sandra Martin, a publisher and frequent children's books columnist for the Toronto Globe and Mail.

— A new, yet-untitled, one-hour show on ethical issues to be broadcast Sundays beginning Jan. 5, with host Peter Meggs, replacing Testament and Celebration.

The Radio changes include:

— A new two-hour weekday news and information program, tentatively titled Dayshift, with host Erika Ritter, starting at 2:30 p.m.

— An extended newscast at 5 p.m., Canada at Five, focusing on business news.

— New half-hour shows Monday on sports, Tuesday on food, Wednesday on medicine, Thursday on business and Friday on drama, at 7:30 p.m.

— A one-hour repeat at 10 p.m. of that day's highlights of Morningside.

— A new popular classical music show, as-yet untitled, at 11 p.m.

— Extending The Radio Show to four hours Saturdays, starting at 1 p.m.

— A new, two-hour pop music show, tentatively called Countdown, with host Geoff Edwards, Saturdays at 6 p.m.

— A new, two-hour eclectic music show, Finkleman's 45s, with host Danny Finkleman, following Countdown.

— A new one-hour music and talk show with Dunford, Parka Patrol, following Finkleman.

— A new half-hour news program, still untitled, 8:30 a.m. Sundays.

— A one-hour gospel music show, A Joyful Sound, with host Barry Burgess, Sundays at 3 p.m.

— A repeat of State of the Arts, the new Stereo show, Sundays at 7 p.m.

— A repeat of the new Stereo religious program, Sundays at 9 p.m.

Notably absent from the announcements Tuesday was a replacement for host Elizabeth Gray, fired this summer from the weekday As It Happens current affairs program.

Television

Tonight (Friday) on CTV (channel 12) at 8:30 is written the cryptic message Ronnie Hawkins. That is all it says. If this means rock'n'roll diehard Ronnie Hawkins is going to growl out 'Who do you love' and other classics on television, just like Tina Turner did with her own songs last week, same time, same channel, then this is the channel rock lovers should turn to.

If deeper voices are your bag, Luciano Pavarotti sings one of his best roles — the philandering Duke of Mantua — in a production of Verdi's popular opera on Vermont ETV (channel 33, UHF).

Also tonight, CBS presents the first segment of a three-part dramatization of events during the American Civil War. It starts at 8 p.m. Friday, 9 p.m. Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday. Starring roles contracted out to Stacy Keach, John Hammond, Gregory Peck and Warren Oates.

An alternative to this docu-drama is the 1961 film Summer and Smoke, starring Geraldine Page and Laurence Harvey. It's about a Southern woman who yearns for the love of a young doctor. It ends in tragedy, of course, because it was written by Tennessee Williams. It airs at 9 p.m. on ETV.

Sunday at 8 p.m., ABC (channel 8) does the whole family a favor and airs The Sting. This 1973 comedy drama stars Robert Redford and Paul Newman in the story of two con men who pull off the best bit of revenge ever put to a ragtime beat.

At midnight, if you don't have to work Monday, or you are already at work and don't have much to do, ABC is airing Dial M for Murder, an Alfred Hitchcock thriller starring Ray Milland and Grace Kelly.

Monday night at 9 on ETV, a good cast, including Tom Conti, Donald Pleasance and Phoebe Nicholls, plays out the drama Blade on the Feather. A young stranger arrives at the country home of an aging Cambridge professor, sparking a series of events involving spies, murder, seduction and revenge.

Also on Monday at 9, this time on NBC, Robert Baret-ta' Blake and Randy Quaid star in a pretty good television re-make of the John Steinbeck classic Of Mice and Men. This is a faithful adaption of a very moving book, and both actors play their parts well — Blake as the smart guy too nice for his own good, and Quaid as the gentle, slow-witted giant who likes puppies.

Two great movies on Tuesday night: ETV is airing The Naked Prey, in which a group of insensitive hunters are put to death in horrible ways by the African tribe they offend, while their guide, more accustomed to native ways, gets his chance to survive — he is set free and then hunted down by warriors. There aren't too many words in this film, but they aren't missed.

And CTV is airing In the Heat of the Night at midnight, in which a black, big-city detective played by Sidney Poitier arrives in a Mississippi backwater to help the local redneck sheriff (Rod Steiger) solve a murder case. A great tale about racism in the southern U.S.

Wednesday at 11:55 p.m. on CBC (channel 6), John Garfield and Joan Crawford star in the drama Humoresque. A wealthy woman benefactor of an ambitious concert violinist is cast by the wayside when she is no longer needed. Take a close look at how big Crawford's shoulders are in this movie.

On Thursday at 9 p.m. Rumpole returns to ETV in (what else?) Rumpole's Return. Horace Rumpole of the Baily finds he's not suited to retirement in Florida and goes back to London to defend a client on pornography charges. He takes possession of his office despite the grumblings of his colleagues.

At 11:55 p.m. on CBC, Ida Lupino and John Garfield star in the 1941 drama Out of the Fog. Two elderly men living in Brooklyn decide to get revenge on a thief who terrorizes them.

Exhibitions/Events

But there's absolutely no reason for anyone to just sit at home and take in the tinned entertainment this weekend. There's a lot of real live action going on out there, starting with the Stanstead County Fair in Ayer's Cliff. This event officially begins tonight at 8:00, although there's been some judging going on already, and it continues until Sunday evening. There'll be the regular parades, horse races, livestock judging and so on, with special entertainment provided Saturday evening at 8 when the Claude Guay Orchestra and Long Shot plays for an open air dance, and Sunday afternoon when the band Just Us and Debbie Drummond come to town. Get hold of last Friday's fair supplement for a detailed schedule, or listen to CFIN-FM (104.5) or CIMO-FM (106.5) for details. Or just try to make it down there sometime this weekend to catch a bit of the action.

While you're at it, start planning for the Big Brome Fair which starts next Friday, August 30, and runs until Sept. 2.

On Saturday and Sunday this week, you can browse absolutely free, or even buy something at the Piggery Theatre's Country Craft Market. There will be over 20 booths selling crafty hand-made gifts, fresh produce, baked goods and flowers all day both days (9:30—6:00).

In Georgeville Saturday, the Church of Saint Luke is holding a Garden Party from 2 to 5 p.m. at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Houghton. That's on Chemin Laurendeau, off the Georgeville Road heading toward Lovering Lake. If you can find your way, there will be refreshments and live entertainment and a food table, all for $3 (adults) and $1 (children).

The Fifth Annual Flower Show at the Memorial Hall in Stanbridge East runs from 2 to 5 p.m. both Friday and Saturday, and tea is served at 3.

At the Reilly House Community Centre in Mansonville, a Corn Roast is planned for Saturday, starting at 10 a.m. Not only will the corn and hot dogs be plentiful, but there will be rides and fishpond for the youngsters and a baked goods table and dime toss for those who have money to toss.

That's just a sampling of the events going on. Now, for exhibitions, there's a new collection moving into the Galerie Lac Brome for the next week. It consists of about thirty paintings by St. Bruno artist Claude Beauchemin, described by Madeleine Lemire, who runs the gallery as mainly landscapes and city scenes, pseudo-realistic in style, and sombre in tone with a "rich harmony of colors". The vernissage, where you can meet the artist, have a glass of wine and mingle is at 5:00 Saturday, and the collection will be there until Sept. 2.

Pianist Arthur Ozolins is a major feature in the Centre d'arts Orford's celebration of Latvian culture.

A visit to the Laurier Museum in Arthabaska is like a step into the late 19th century. The residence of Canada's first French-Canadian prime minister, from 1876 to 1896, the museum contains furniture and personal articles that provide an insight into Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier's life and times. Clockwise from above: a bear skin rug donated by the Quebec zoo adds to the Victorian style of the salon, one of Lady Laurier's music books, a doll donated by Quebec doll-maker Michèle Prasill adds a finishing touch to this living-room scene, the six foot wide 1885 Kranick & Back piano played by Lady Laurier.

And while you're there, take a look at the second floor, which is reserved for temporary exhibits by both amateur and professional artists. These are the works of Sherbrooke sculptor Pierre Chouinard, who says he is fascinated by the human form in all its complexity, and aims to capture the body in action in his pieces. Clockwise from the right: Atlante, Adam, L'envole du Destin, and Plongeur

(TSN) WRESTLING

4:40 12 KNIGHT RIDER

Though less distinctive than "The Mod Squad" or even "Barnaby Jones," "Streets of San Francisco" was a solid example of the police-show genre which dominated the early 1970s. Introduced in 1972, the series found a loyal following and aired on ABC until 1977.

Karl Malden starred as Detective Mike Stone, a 23-year police veteran assigned to his department's Bureau of Inspectors. With the help of updated police technology and his young, urbane partner, Steve Keller, Stone trailed criminals on the hilly streets of San Francisco.

For Malden, "Streets" was just one stop in a long career highlighted by the Oscar-winning 1954 film "On the Waterfront." The actor who played Steve Keller, on the other hand, began in TV and has since become successful on the big screen.

Question: Who is he?

Answer: Michael Douglas, star of "Romancing the Stone."

The BOX SEAT

Golf and tennis will fill out this week's TV schedule

By Adam Beckerman

Beginning next weekend, the National Football League will attempt to reassert its will over the recalcitrant American TV audience. This week, viewers should not concern themselves with all the pre-season football being telecast by the three networks. Instead, why not gaze at more tranquil pursuits?

The Walker Cup is the world's oldest international golf competition. On Sunday, Aug. 25, ABC will broadcast the 30th edition of Walker Cup Match play from the Pine Valley Club in Pine Valley, N.J.

Ten of America's top amateurs will go one-on-one against their counterparts from Great Britain and Ireland, as they have every other year since 1922. In 29 previous matches, the U.S. has captured the Cup 26 times, including the last time the teams played, at the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, in 1983.

The only other time Pine Valley was the sight of such competition, the United States achieved its sole shutout, a 9-0 mauling in 1936.

More golf can be seen on CBS, as the network broadcasts the final round of the World Series of Golf from the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio. Golf fans might consider it a moral imperative to watch the pros swing it out for the more than $700,000 in prize money.

During the week, CBS will also feature late-night taped highlights of early-round matches played at the U.S. Open at the National Tennis Center in Queens, N.Y.

Until live coverage begins on Saturday, expect host Brent Musberger to serve up a preponderance of match points, followed by the sportsmanlike handshake at the net.

As for NBC, the network will broadcast the 5th annual Budweiser-Arlington Million, a mile-and-a-quarter turf test run at the recently fire-damaged Arlington Park, outside Chicago.

Dick Enberg and Dave Johnson will co-host, and Sharon Smith, ESPN's horse expert with the bedroom eyes, makes her much-deserved network return.

Sherbrooke Has Technical Expertise

Agence Québec Plus has been making the Asics Tiger and Pelican brands of sportswear for six years now. After just two years, I've taken over the job of production planner. The time and energy that must devote any worker if he wants to see his company grow does pay off. At Agence Québec Plus, we've done everything to make our business a source of pride for Sherbrooke. And as regards pride, I know what I'm talking about. We are designing and making here in Sherbrooke all the clothes for the Canadian delegation to the World Student Games in Kobe, Japan, and for all the athletes competing in the Canada Games hosted by New Brunswick."

"Not many cities provide so much room for new companies. And if the success of my company is so important to me, it's because I know it benefits all Sherbrookers. Involvement and determination are surely the dominant characteristics of workers who help make Sherbrooke more than a city."
