US Vote A Bogy To Visit

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Don't say so out loud, but an old British bogy looms over Prime Minister Macmillan's visit to Washington.

It's the United States election campaign.
British ministers have complained in the past about the palsy that afflicts American policy during the long election preliminaries.

Now Whitehall once more talks of "indecisiveness" in Washington.

The basic clash between London and Washington is that Macmillan, viewing the summit talks seven weeks hence, wants the West to take Russia seriously.

But with the election in November, U.S. officials shudder at the thought of anything resembling a "soft" policy toward the Soviet Union.

Presidential candidates are jostling to prove how tough they are.

The immediate issue in Washington is the Geneva nuclear tests negotiations. Macmillan thinks a settlement is possible. President Eisenhower is under pressure to oppose any agreement on tests suspension.

When Eisenhower visited London last September, as part of his triumphant world tour, the British prime minister talked to a man who regarded world peace as paramount. Eisenhower appeared highly receptive then to Macmillan's philosophy that something could be achieved by patient, continuing negotiations with Russia.

Out of the Mac-Ike parley came the West's new "diplomacy by dialogue." Today, however, enthusiasm is running low in Washington.

By personal persuasion, Macmillan hopes to recapture the old spirit. In a new U.S. election year, the odds against him seem formidable.

Berlin Garrison Weak—K

PARIS (Reuters) — West Berlin's 11,000-man allied garrison is "worth nothing" from a military point of view, Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Friday.

"They are too few to prepare a war against us," Khrushchev said at a press luncheon after a reporter asked him why he questioned the maintenance of the status quo in the split city where allied military forces are comparatively weak.

Flying up slightly in an otherwise-affable, hour-long, question-and-answer session, Khrushchev added:

"If it is a question of preparing a war against us, we wish there were 200,000 men there (West Berlin) or even half a million. It would be easier to wipe them out and to get them out of our way."

Khrushchev attended a reception for French parliamentarians, Friday night and guests there later quoted him as saying it would be "unthinkable" for West Germany to extend to the east. The Soviet premier added:

"I tell you frankly that any change in connection with (communist) East Germany is definitely and forever excluded in the east. Therefore I think that West Germany should try to find a compensation in the west of Europe. Remember my words."

DISTRUSTS ADENAUER

According to the guests—members of French-Soviet friendship groups in the National Assembly and Senate—Khrushchev declared he did not believe in the peaceful intentions of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The Kremlin leader said he suspected Adenauer of ulterior motives in wanting German reunification.

He expressed fear that history might repeat itself, saying that in 1939 Britain and France wanted to throw Hitler against Russia—a move that Khrushchev said produced the Nazi-Soviet pact of that year.

Khrushchev also was quoted as saying: "Freedom exists in Russia. If it was reduced in Stalin's day, it was because he was obliged to do it. He could not do otherwise."

At the press conference, the premier said his country had no intention of "splitting the front of the Western alliance" before the East-West summit conference here in May.

Observers said it probably was Khrushchev's most restrained press conference since he began his diplomatic globe-trotting in 1955. He apparently curbed his fiery nature as a pre-summit tactic, they said. The written questions were screened before being handed to him.

Khrushchev Is Stumped By Reporter

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev Friday admitted that he was stumped by a newspaper man's question, but only for a few moments.

At a press luncheon, a reporter asked Khrushchev:

"Mr. Khrushchev, if you were a journalist what question would you ask Mr. Khrushchev?"

"I hadn't thought of that question," Khrushchev said amid laughter. Then he replied with a grin:

"I would ask: Mr. Khrushchev, or rather Comrade Khrushchev, why do you devote so little of your efforts in making propaganda for communism?"

Over the general laughter at this, Khrushchev continued: "The response of Khrushchev to Khrushchev would be that I am doing all I can but perhaps my strength is insufficient. I have the fixed conviction that I serve a sacred cause, that communism is sacred and will win and I am doing all I can to speed it up."

Political Round-Up

4 Nominating Meets Over This Weekend

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record Staff Writer)

The prorogation of the Quebec Legislature has produced increased party activity, especially in the organizing field, with both major parties preparing for the clash they expect in mid-June.

The ordinary member of the Legislature, who had been pinned down in Quebec all winter is now devoting his time to mending the political fences within his own riding, leaving the broader aspects of administration of the province to the permanent employees.

Signs of this increased interest at the local level include the announcement from Liberal party headquarters in Montreal that four nominating conventions are being held this weekend — Arthabaska and Sherbrooke in the Eastern Townships, as well as Gaspé and Montmorency. Already the party has held 27 conventions.

The Sherbrooke convention will be held in St. Francois Xavier

School at the corner of Galt Street West and Bowen Avenue South at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. Dr. Aime Fauteux, of Montreal, president of the Montreal district organizing committee, acting as chairman.

The 550-odd delegates to the convention are likely to find three hopefuls seeking their vote — Ald. Carrier Fortin, L. P. Brousseau, president of the Sherbrooke County Liberal Association, and Roger Gauthier, organizer for the Sherbrooke County Young Liberals.

Following the selection of the candidate, a public meeting will be held with a number of headline speakers billed.

Tonight, the Sherbrooke County Liberal Association is holding a mixed dinner meeting at the Hotel Sherbrooke with J. A. Mongrain, former mayor of Three Rivers as speaker.

The Arthabaska Liberals will meet in Victoriaville tomorrow afternoon at one to pick their

Opposition Attacks Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Peckham said Friday the intention still is to install two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases in Canada.

He read in the Commons a United States defence department statement which said: "The proposed reduction in total Bomarc strength will not affect Bomarc squadrons programmed for the RCAF."

He did not say how large the U.S. cut in the Bomarc program would be.

Originally, there were to be 18 Bomarc bases, 16 in the U.S. and two in Canada.

CONCENTRATION PLAN

"Under the proposed shift in funds, Bomarc units in the revised program would be concentrated in the industrial north-east," the U.S. defence department said.

This could mean that the only Bomarc stations will be the two in this country.

Mr. Peckham said a cheaper electronic control system for the Bomarc will be built in Canada than the one originally planned.

He made no reference to planned increases in radar.

Mr. Peckham did not comment on earlier Washington reports that the cut in U.S. funds for the Bomarc will be to $50,000,000 from $421,000,000.

Neither did the U.S. defence department statement allude to the amount of funds to be requested from Congress.

Opposition Leader Pearson said "the U.S. has changed the kite but the tail remains the same."

MAJOR POLICY SHIFT

Mr. Pearson added that the U.S. has made a major shift in defence policy but not in that part allocated to Canada.

The U.S. was going to put greater emphasis on the war deterrent and less on defence as such in the hope that a more powerful deterrent would prevent attack on North America.

Support for Bomarc was reduced and support for long-range missiles increased.

Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, said Mr. Peckham's statement was further confirmation of the inferior role Canada plays in the continental air defence partnership.

Earlier Friday, Mr. Peckham fought a desperate rearguard action against a renewed and heavier Opposition attack on the Bomarc.

The Liberals and CCF seized on the Washington report that the U.S. Air Force has requested a huge slash in the Bomarc program to launch their harshest criticism of this parliamentary session against the government's defence policy.

ATHOL, Mass. —(P)—Walter E. Farnum, town clerk and justice of the peace who has been performing civil marriages since 1933, announced Friday he will marry no more couples.

Gina Drops Libel Case

PISA, Italy (AP)—An Italian court Friday dismissed a trial against two Roman Catholic priests who had been sued by Gina Lollobrigida, after the Italian movie star withdrew her complaint. Miss Lollobrigida had sued Msgr. Tello Tadde, director of the newspaper Vita Nova, and Don Carlo Caviglione for publishing an article about her film Solomon and Sheba. The suit charged that the actress had been libelled.

S. Africa In Revolt

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
South Africa's pass system was devised in colonial days nearly 150 years ago to control bands of marauding aborigines in the raw-rich territory at the top of the African continent.

Through the generations the system became a device for controlling the native labor force, becoming more and more complicated. By 1952 it had developed such scope that each male native was supposed to carry around a collection of 30 documents.

The Nationalist government, in its apartheid (racial separation) program, consolidated all these separate passes into a single reference book containing an identity card, a general tax receipt and a work registration card.

The passes, restricting employment and movement, must now be carried constantly by non-white men and women and results in 500,000 arrests a year.

Last Monday, the suppressed fury of the natives against the passes and apartheid in general burst forth in separate demonstrations. The government used terrorizing jet planes as well as armored cars and machine-guns to quell the uprising, killing more than 80 and wounding more than 200.

VIOLENT REACTION

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's government, charging a "mass revolt," banned public meetings for three months, arrested some leaders and announced that two one-man commissions will study the riots.

The incident shocked the world and resulted in an unbroken protest vigil outside South Africa House in London, centre of the Commonwealth. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canada deplores the violence and loss of life.

The South African government replied tartly to a U.S. state department protest, implying that the U.S. should look

Last Saturday, Russia suddenly accepted the U.S. version, provided Washington and London would also bind themselves in an informal agreement not to conduct underground tests while scientists worked on detection methods.

MACMILLAN'S MISSION

The British looked with interest at the Russian plan, and were alarmed at indications that President Eisenhower might abruptly agree with those in his government and in Congress who believe Moscow is trying to pull a fast one.

On Thursday, it was announced that Macmillan will visit Eisenhower in Washington Monday at the president's invitation in an attempt to reach a united stand.

This is the latest in a long series of visit-exchanges by Soviet Premier Khrushchev in May.

KHRUSHCHEV'S VISIT

Premier Khrushchev seemed still weary from his bout with the gripe when he arrived in Paris Wednesday for his delayed visit to France and her redoubtable President de Gaulle.

On two days running Khrushchev tried to drive a wedge between France and West Germany, terming the Bonn regime "insolent." He called for a non-aggression pact between the Eastern and Western blocs and also invited France to align herself with Moscow.

2nd Station

Toronto TV Outlet Chosen

OTTAWA (CP) — A company controlled by the Toronto Telegram was chosen over eight other private applicants Friday as the recommended licensee for Toronto's new television station.

Giving no reasons for its decision, the Board of Broadcast Governors announced it has sent to Transport Minister Hees a recommendation that Baton Aldred Rogers Broadcasting Limited be granted the licence.

The Telegram has 51-per-cent control of the company and would take 40 per cent of the TV station's profits. The rest would be shared among other shareholders including Paul Nathanson of Sovereign Film Distributors Limited, veteran broadcaster Foster Hewitt who owns radio station CKFH Toronto, and radio-TV personality Joel Aldred.

HEAVY COMPETITION

The new station's competition would be the existing CBC outlet there, CBLT, three Buffalo TV stations and others in Barrie and Hamilton, Ontario whose signals enter the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Among the applications recommended for denial were three other publishing interests.

The Toronto Star had applied on its own behalf. The Globe and Mail was linked with the J. Arthur Rank Organization of Canada as minority interests in another application, and the Southern Company Ltd. — owner of seven Canadian dailies — had a minority stock holding in a third.

Other applications recommended by the BBG for denial included those by Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company, radio stations CFRB and CKY Toronto, film producer Spence Caldwell and Upper Canada Broadcasting Limited, a group headed by former CBC executive Stuart Griffiths. British film interests were included in three of the rejected bids.

The governors' recommendation shattered speculation that newspapers and groups with extensive control of other communications media would not be granted licences to operate the so-called "second" stations in eight major Canadian cities.

Firm Rule For Success Is Lacking

By Jane Scott

What is success? queried a young businessman. I turned to the dictionary for a definition and read: A favorable termination of anything attempted.

That's it, I said: Success is a series of desires attained on the physical and material level.

But the answer did not entirely satisfy me for I know many people who have attained every desire of their hearts physically and materially, who are absolute failures when they come to the end of the road.

When they face the final tribulation they are poor, miserable failures. All they have worked for they must leave behind. Is that success? I think not.

The are no absolute rules for success. Aptitudes and personalities are as important as the known rules for success. Many things are involved in the pro-

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Amid the hubbub over the actors' strike against the feature movie studios, it may be overlooked that the writers have been on strike since Jan. 13.

The drought of scripts could well mean more to entertainment seekers, at home and in theatres, than the lack of actors.

The actors' strike, which began March 7, actually shut down only eight feature films. Several independent producers and Universal-International, which has made peace with both the actors and writers, have been able to continue shooting in Hollywood and abroad. The actors didn't strike against television; talks for a new TV contract come up next month.

The Writers Guild of America's strike affects both feature films and TV. As with the Screen Actors Guild, the strike has been firm but polite—no picketing, no demonstrations. But the writers claim their action is hurting the producers badly.

"The actors' strike affects the present," said a spokesman. "The writers' strike affects the future."

The guild says that it has put a serious crimp in plans for feature production, pointing to inaction on such films as Mutiny on the Bounty, The King Must Die, Return to Peyton Place, The Chapman Report, Gidget Goes Hawaiian, The Marauders, God and My Country, Sanctuary and many others.

What about TV?
The guild says at least 14 series will be unable to complete their 1960 season because of no scripts. Among them: Wagon Train, The Detective, 77 Sunset Strip, Laramie, Hawaiian Eye, Dennis the Menace, Adventures in Paradise, The Donna Reed Show, The Lawman, The Alaskans, Johnny Ringo.

The situation was so acute on the Warners lot that scripts were reported being interchanged between shows. For instance, an old 77 Sunset Strip plot might be switched to Bourbon Street Beat by changing the character names.

Talks are still going on between the guild and TV producers. Unless agreement is reached soon, TV's summer disease of reruns will be starting in the spring this year.

THE FABULOUS HISTORY OF PETROLEUM

100 Years Of U.S. Petroleum Production

Just 101 years ago, a Colonel Edwin L. Drake, and a group of associates, decided to dig for petroleum. They dug 69 feet 6 inches, a record at that time, and tapped a rich oil well, the beginning of the exploitation of one of the world's richest oil deposits.

The well delivered 25 barrels a day. This output was considered remarkable. New wells sprouted like mushrooms, and fortunes were made. From hundreds of gallons a day, production went to thousands, and a new industry was born.

Oil brought progress and new inventions. Ways were discovered of refining this new product; gasoline, kerosene, greases and many types of oils were developed. New uses were found for the new by-products. Today, petroleum products are used in pharmaceutical products, dyes and even plastics.

Among the most important by-products are oils used for heating purposes. The firm of W. H. Adam Limited distributes thousands of gallons throughout the Townships every year. This year once again, W. H. ADAM customers will participate in a drawing for $500 IN CASH at the end of the season! Watch this newspaper; winners' names will be published in early April.

Pleads Guilty

Sentence Postponed In Gingras Frauds

Sentencing of accountant Paul-Emile Gingras, of Sherbrooke was postponed by Judge Joseph Marier when the accused appeared in Court of Sessions yesterday.

Gingras pleaded guilty to defrauding local businessmen of more than $13,000 during the past four years while one of Sherbrooke's leading accountants.

Bail was set at $2,500 cash or $5,000 on property January 29.

Maximum jail sentence for Gingras' offences is 10 years.

The accountant was arrested Friday evening January 22 at his home, 1581 Durham Street, by Eugene Morin of the Sherbrooke detachment of the Quebec Provincial Police following a long investigation into the case.

The charges arose out of income tax returns Gingras made out for several prominent businessmen over the past few years.

Police said Gingras would tell his clients that provincial and federal income tax officials were on their way to Sherbrooke to investigate their income tax returns.

The charges said he would then tell his clients to give him cheques to pay the income tax owing.

But, it was charged, instead of turning over the cheques to either provincial or federal authorities, Gingras kept the money for himself.

Mr. C. P. Morse, secretary of the Board said last night in a telephone interview that he was not at liberty to make public the reasons for the recent decision of the central board to consolidate the classes.

"I have no comment to make," he said.

Re-Open Orient Hosiery?

Three former stockholders of the Orient Hosiery Company - all from Montreal - are interested in reopening the company that went bankrupt one month ago, Mayor Armand Nadeau announced yesterday.

"And it is not impossible that the City may be asked for financial aid in the reopening of the plant," the mayor said at his weekly press conference.

"These people told me at a meeting yesterday that they could not understand why such a well-known company went bankrupt," he said yesterday.

The silk stockings that would be manufactured by the new owners would use the same name.

One interested party was quoted by the mayor as saying that the name alone was worth one quarter of a million dollars.

It was riskier to give industrial assistance in the old days than it is today, Mayor Nadeau said.

In the old days the city did not get any sales tax benefits. Today however, it gets two per cent sales tax from all sales made throughout the city.

"When new industries come into a city they bring in people that spend money in stores," Mr. Nadeau added.

Letellier Sentence Postponed

Sentencing of 19-year-old Andre Letellier, of Lake Megantic, found guilty of manslaughter in the death of 19-year-old Jean-Louis Lacroix, also of Megantic, was postponed until Friday, April 1 by Mr. Justice William Mitchell yesterday.

Letellier was originally scheduled to appear for sentencing yesterday.

The Megantic youth was charged with the murder of Lacroix, shot to death in a Megantic dance hall Christmas Night 1959.

However, following a nine-day trial, Letellier was found guilty of the reduced charge of manslaughter by a 12-man Court of Queen's Bench jury.

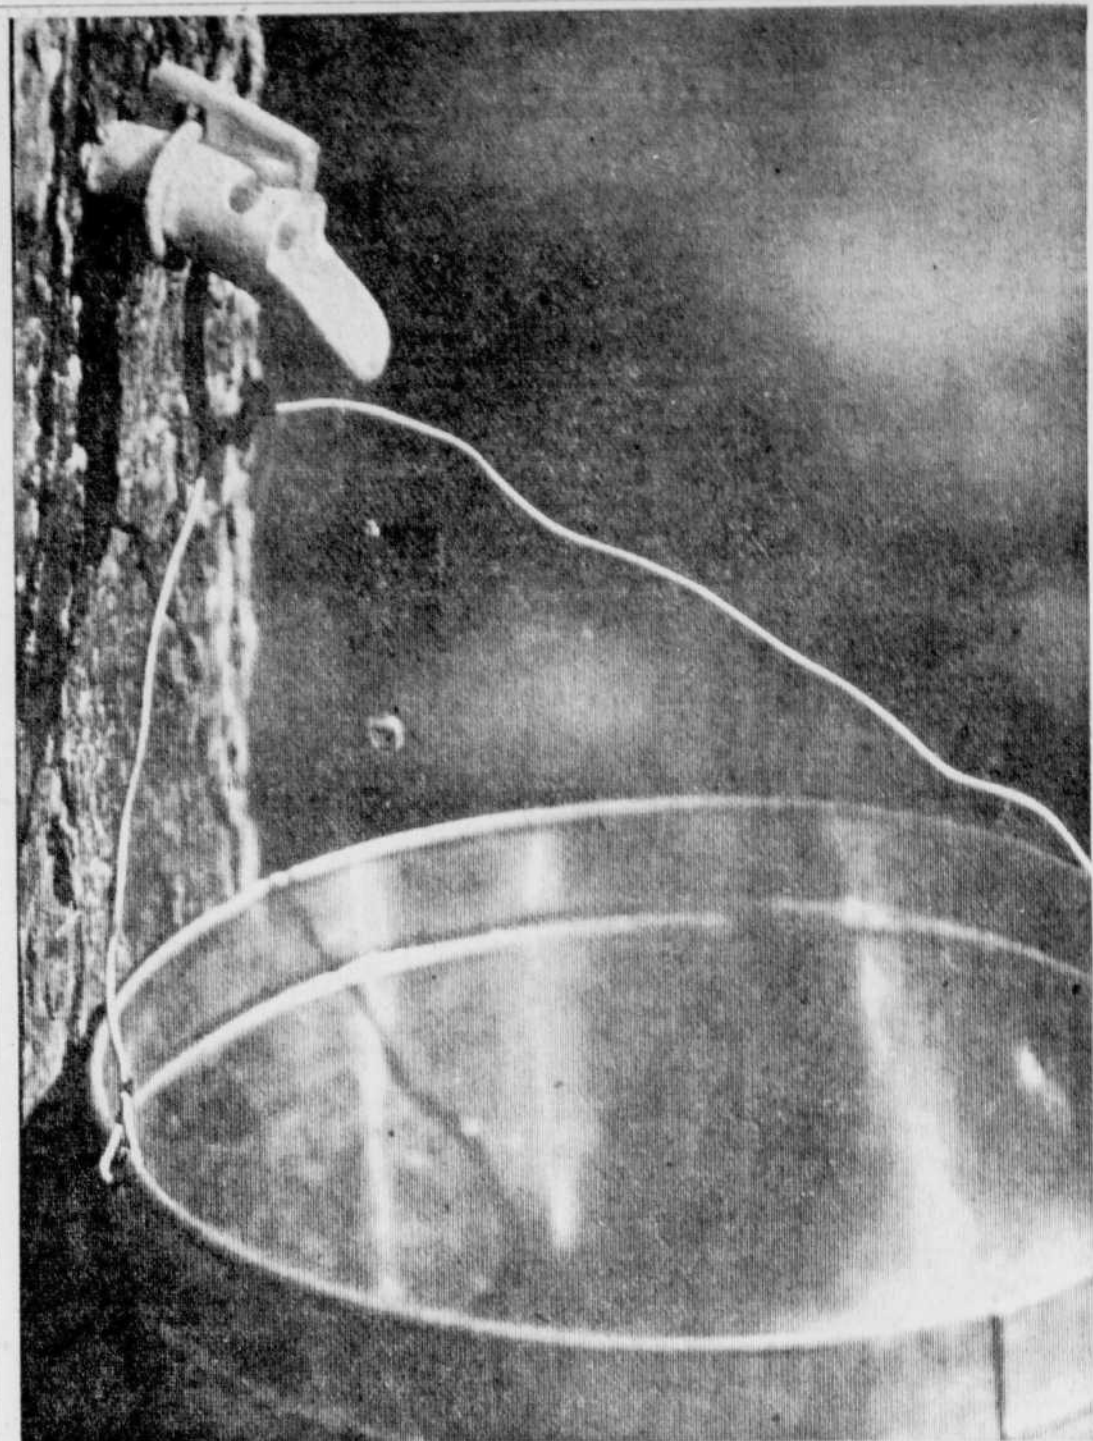

New Forest Laboratory In Quebec

The first forestry research laboratory in Canada has been opened near Quebec City by the Federal Government, Sherbrooke Progressive Conservative MP Maurice Allard announced yesterday.

Commenting on the new research center Mr. Allard said, "it is logical that such a laboratory be opened in the province of Quebec."

"Our province," he said, "is favored by forestry resources and a vast and varied forestry industry. Quebec was the first province that obliged holders of Crown lands to prepare their land for the cutting of wood."

But we are entering a new phase," he added, "to meet the world-wide demand of wood products we must not only protect our forests but augment them."

The Record's Maple Syrup Time Photo Contest Starting Today

In maple bushes throughout the Eastern Townships, it's just about maple sugar and syrup time. Eighty-five per cent of the world's supply of these products comes from Quebec, and most of it comes from the Townships.

The maple bush, and all the things that go with tapping the trees, collecting the sap, boiling it and bottling or canning the syrup, make excellent subjects for good photos.

The opportunities are so good, in fact, that The Record today is starting a maple bush photography contest.

The best shot sent in between now and April 23, 1960 of some phase of this great Townships industry will be printed in this column. The winning photographer will receive a cash prize of $10.

The following will guide you in your project. Identify the location which, naturally is a sugar-bush; next show, somewhere in the background, the sugar-house with the familiar steam rising from the vent in the roof, perhaps a few trees in the foreground, with sap buckets hanging from their spouts; if possible, include the horse and sleigh with its huge drum containing the collected sap, probably arriving at the camp or going through the sugar-bush. Other suggestions: tapping the trees or a group putting syrup on snow to cool, but remember to identify this group with its proper location. Composition or balance of all this subject material is the clue to your success, and how successfully you convey in one print the atmosphere of the sugar bush.

Decisions made by myself and my associates will be final and if your print is not chosen, that would not necessarily mean that it is poor. If return postage is included, your print will be returned to you. We cannot be held responsible for damage or lost photographs, but care will certainly be taken while they are in our possession. All prints must be glossy, 6 inches wide by 5 inches deep with your name and address printed on a gummed label attached to the back of the photo. Writing with pen or pencil on the reverse side, will damage the photograph for reproduction.

I regret that due to the time involved, I will be unable to answer any correspondence regarding this contest.

So get busy and send your entries, properly protected for mailing, to: "Camera Talk", c/o Sherbrooke Daily Record, Sherbrooke, Que. Remember contest closes - April 23, 1960.

Mayor Promises Zone Vote

By PAT BOUGIE
(Record Staff Reporter)

The petition signed by 75 North Ward residents asking that the triangular plot of land bounded by Prospect-Victoria-Orntario Streets be zoned commercial will not be presented to council until a new zoning by-law is approved by city council Mayor Armand Nadeau said yesterday.

"It would be senseless to present this petition to council until such time as the new zoning by-law, prepared by director of services Charles Langlois is adopted by council," the mayor said at his weekly press conference yesterday afternoon.

The petition was presented by North Ward residents to H. P. Emond, City Clerk, Thursday.

"I was really surprised to read that the North Ward triangle was back in the news," he said. "But I am pleased to know that these differences will be settled by referendum in future."

When asked if the new zoning by-law called for the controversial zone Mr. Nadeau said that although he was not too sure, he did not think so.

He even went as far as saying that the J. C. LaHaye urbanism plan did not call for the commercial zoning of the triangle.

"From now on, council will follow the principle of submitting to the people. If they want their zone commercial, they can decide by referendum," he said.

"Council can refuse a public demand," Mr. Nadeau said, "but I don't think it would be a wise thing to do."

The mayor reiterated that at least 150 signatures from Sherbrooke property owners would be required to force a referendum on the whole by-law. He added, however, that not more than six objecting property owners would

SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1960

63rd Annual Review

Today, the Sherbrooke Daily Record publishes its 63rd annual review of the Eastern Townships. It is included in the regular Saturday edition.

While it is a retrospective and to some extent, an interpretative look at developments in the Townships in 1959, this particular review also marks the end of a decade in the E.T. — a decade as momentous for residents in this area as it was for those in the rest of Canada, and indeed, in most parts of the world.

As the past is inextricably linked with future, so this year's annual, as well as looking back, looks forward to the decade of the sixties — a period that appears to be as promising, seen from its threshold, as the fifties were fabulous.

Much happened in the Townships in 1959, all of it the culmination of ten years of change. Towns that were once small achieved considerable stature; new industries arose where there was no industry before; established industries expanded.

There were unhappy events in 1959, too, as there have been in all other years, in all other centuries.

There were fires, accidents and floods. There were crimes. And there were deaths.

But these are the things of which life in a community are made. Taken with the good and the encouraging, they make up the fabric of reality.

In the 63rd annual review, the Record has attempted to mirror this reality, as it relates to 1959, to the fifties, and to the years way beyond which are the heritage of Eastern Townshippers in whatever decade they may live.

Undue Interference

The refusal of the Canadian government to make a diplomatic protest or other intervention against South Africa's apartheid policy will receive the general support of the Canadian people.

The average Canadian holds little or no sympathy for the policies of racial discrimination now being practised in South Africa and are deeply grieved over the loss of life that has resulted. But it is doubtful if any formal protest by a Canadian parliament would relieve the situation in that troubled country. In fact undue interference by outside powers in affairs of South Africa might only aggravate the situation.

The government of that country is so convinced of the justice of its actions that protests from abroad probably will only stir up resentment and bring sterner repression of the colored element in the Union.

Furthermore, any official protest must be based on a complete knowledge of the situation.

Apparently this is almost impossible to obtain at the present time. In his statement rejecting proposals for Canadian interference, Mr. Diefenbaker said he had received a report from Canadian diplomats in South Africa dealing with the recent incident in which 72 Negroes were killed in a clash with South African police.

This report, he said, indicated there are and there will be widely differing interpretations of why and in what circumstances the incident took place.

In these circumstances it seems advisable for outsiders to refrain from interference with the African policy, at least until a United Nations commission has had a chance to make first hand inquiries.

Doakes' Detergent

The U.S. trademark trial and appeal board has ruled, with commendable sagacity, that the differences between wheel and gee are "such as to obviate any reasonable likelihood of confusion or mistake or deception of purchasers."

The ruling had nothing to do with semantics.

The makers of a household cleaner called Gee tried to prevent another company from getting a trademark for a liquid laundry detergent called Wheel.

"They have distinctly different meanings," the board said. "Wheel being used to express delight and Gee being an expression of surprise."

The whole issue neither delights us nor does it surprise us. But we might have expected it.

For years now the detergent shelves at the supermarkets have looked like Scrabble games out of control.

Maybe some day some bright manufacturer will see the light and bring out a product with an honest, homespun name like Doakes' Detergent.

He'll clean up a fortune.

SAFETY PLAY NOT ALWAYS RIGHT

The professor was holding forth. "Safety plays are where you find them. For instance—"

"West opened the jack of clubs against my apparently comfortable three no-trump contract. It looked like an automatic situation for second hand low and if I had played second hand low I would probably have not made the hand."

"How could you have been beaten?" asked the student.

"East would have won the trick with the king and shifted to the queen of hearts. If I went up with the ace I would be held to eight tricks so I would have to duck that lead and the jack of hearts continuation. Then East could play a second club. I would have no way to get to my hand."

for the ace of hearts or queen of clubs and would have been set."

"However, the ace of clubs play was a sure thing. I led the king of diamonds from dummy and there were my nine tricks."

"Suppose that West held the king of clubs?" asked the student.

"I would have made four odd in that case but I suggest that you study the club suit. You will note that no matter how the clubs are distributed I could not lose the hand when I played the ace at trick one."

Five million Canadians are today electing a new House of Commons. The chief issue is on the question of forming a national wartime government. Sherbrooke is also electing a new mayor.

The British opposition leaders have rejected the idea of entering a coalition government, claiming the present administration must first tighten up its policies.

"Of the two candidates for the mayoralty of Sherbrooke, one looks for the position, but the other will take it because he wants to serve the city of Sherbrooke," Senator C. B. Howard said last night at a large gathering of ratepayers. Sen. Howard is contesting tomorrow's election against Armand Nadeau, K.C.

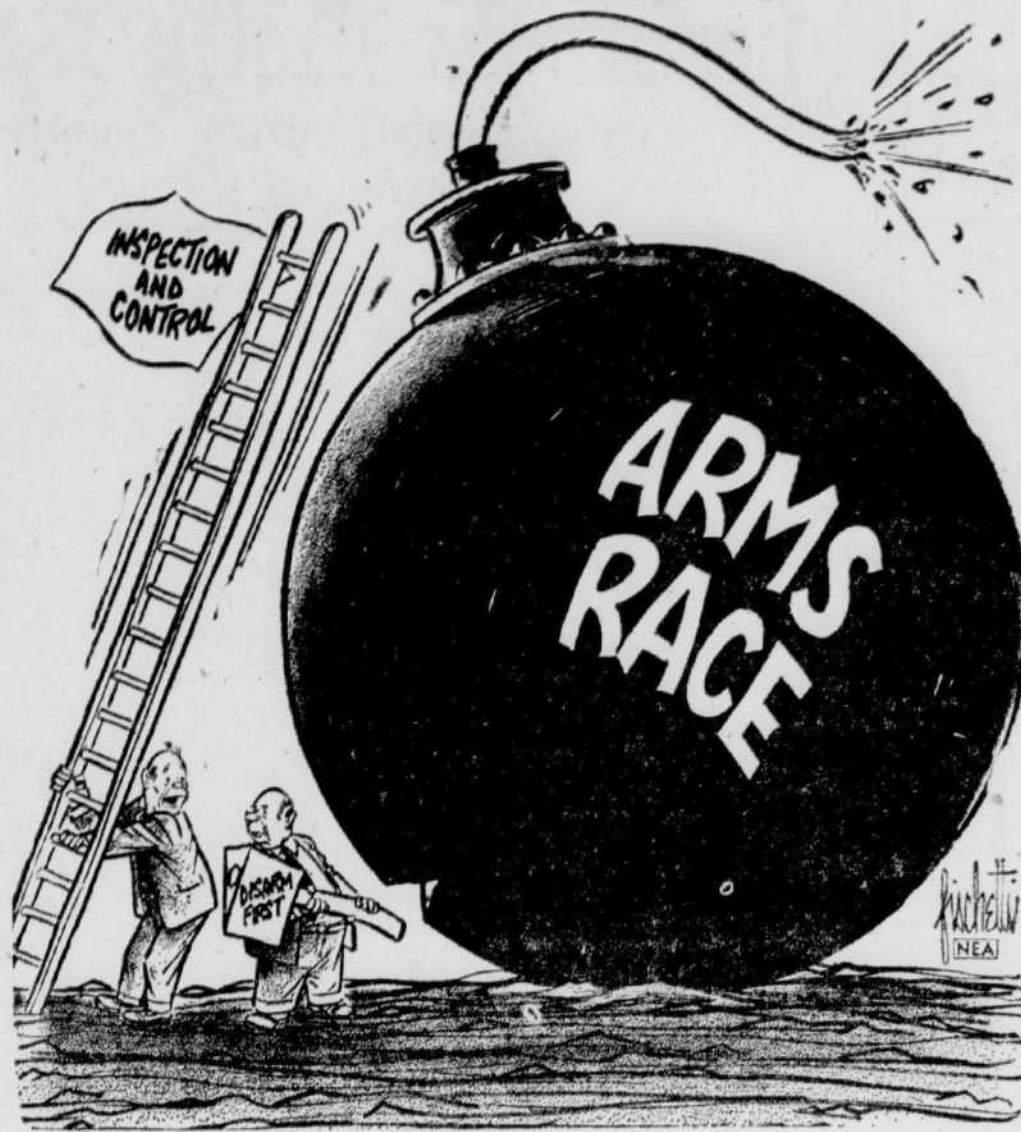

matter of FACT

The beefsteak is a favorite dish to set before a man. In England a number of clubs have honored this hearty meal. Perhaps the most famous was the Sublime Society of Steaks where the members called themselves the "Steaks." In 1735 the manager of Covent Garden served Lord Peterborough a steak he liked so well he suggested a repetition of the meal the following week so he could bring some friends. The society met to eat beefsteaks for the next 132 years.

"Let's Put Out the Fuse First"

Saturday's Sermon:

Who Am I?

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

Sometimes I think I shall change the name of my reception room in the hotel in which I live to my question room. For very often, after introductory remarks, a question indicates that the purpose of the visit is to pose questions to me.

QUESTIONS — QUESTIONS

This is to be expected when there are questions, questions everywhere. A thousand questions challenge us insistently and there doesn't seem to be a satisfying answer. For it follows that in a world in which people such as you and me have, by turning thoughts from God, lost our way and are as a consequence, wallowing in chaos, wander about asking: Why?

Happily there is an answer: CHRIST IS HIMSELF THE ANSWER! And when we seek and find His face and follow His leadership, we shall experience peace, joy, grace abounding, yearning in the Jesus, Way of Living which we call The Abundant Life.

JUST A HAND

Now one of the disturbing factors of this great BIG world of ours with its accent on efficiency, production etc., is that the essential worth of the individual is being weakened. For too oft workers are just hands with numbers and not names any more. And when I face the stubborn fact that the lack of individuality is the price we pay for progress, then I long for those good old days that our forefathers knew. Then, they lived as a child of God, a member of Christ and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven should.

For the awareness that we were cast in the heroic mould prompted them to live as heroes in the strife.

The Flight of Time is changing all that. With the great strides in technology etc., with its emphasis on the mass-man—the organizational man is the latest phrase — the value of the individual is at a discount. Nor am I surprised that those who, Janus like, look back at the good old days and forward with great expectations to the surprises of the Space Age, ask, in their confusion, WHO AM I, ANYWAY?

Sometimes I think we are like that traveller who looking in at the open door of the Railway Express car, saw a fox terrier there shivering with the cold, said to the express man: Poor little beast, where is he going? In disgust, the man shot back: I don't know and he don't know and there don't nobody know. He has chewed his tag.

CONFUSIONISM

Isn't that precisely what we humans have done? Stated differently we who at our dedication — our baptism — a dear loving Father labelled us as His son by adoption and grace, have deliberately cut our moorings and chosen to drift on the Sea of Life. Once life was a great spiritual adventure — a holy expedition — a thrilling crusade; this we have yielded to CONFUSIONISM.

However, instead of our plight discouraging us, let us summon the hero in our souls and study afresh and all important question: WHO AM I? This question has intrigued the mighty minds of poets and philosophers. Even that rugged individualist, Thomas Carlyle (1795-1881) famous in English Literature as an essayist and historian, found time in his stormy career to ask: Who is Me? Sure enough I am and lately was not but when? How? where? And with the observation that they are wise who know nothing ended his research.

Humble minds, athirst for righteousness, have read, marked, learnt and inwardly digested the contents of the Gospel, the letters of St. Paul and the Prayer Book and found answers there.

in that set their hearts aflame for Christ and His Cause.

So no one like that poor dog need shiver in the cold anymore but instead, warmed by the Son of Righteousness (Mal. 4:2) live a life equally warm and radiant, beautiful and useful and with more and more of Christ being displayed, shine to the perfect day.

AN ENEMY OF GOD

What is written on your label? Is the question I suggest you face during these Lenten days. Were anyone to find an enemy of God writ thereon, Methinks he or she would be shocked. Yet the Bible says he that is NOT with Me (Jesus) is against Me. WHERE do you stand? Is God FIRST? If not, then, why not? Our God has stated that, as a jealous God, He will show wrath and indignation against whosoever chooses to relegate Him to second place in their hearts. Don't be surprised at this coming from a God of Love and Mercy. Instead let us as realists acknowledge there is in our religion an element of austerity which should drive us to discipline and lead us to recognise not only the GOODNESS but the SEVERITY of God.

A NEUTRAL?

Faced with such a choice tremendous, there is no room for a neutral. Is there? Yet despite this knowledge, there are far too many who insist and persist in postponing their identification with Christ and His Cause. And whether this be attributed to indifference, ignorance, hardness of heart, contempt of God's Word and Commandments, matters not; it is inexcusable! Be convinced then that in the army of God there are no neutrals. None.

BIGOTS?

Ill-informed, misguided, over-zealous enthusiasts — extremists — we have encountered. Bigots we name them. And their story, rooted in ignorance and pride, is anything but inspiring. Well, you remind me, what of Saul the bigot? After He met Jesus on the Road to Damascus, Saul forgetting those days he functioned as a bigot, became, through the abounding grace of God, Paul, the servant of Jesus Christ.

GOD'S SERVANT

What a lovely phrase a servant of Jesus Christ is! And that is what we are committed to be for at our baptism we promised to continue Christ's faithful soldier and SERVANT to our lives end. Now this implies that we must obey, serve and love our Lord and Master best of all. And so having said goodbye to a self-centred life and henceforth motivated by all for Jesus we, like Christ, must serve others, even the least, the last, the lost, in some form or other, large or small, prominent or obscure.

In this imitation of Christ Who, as a servant, one day girded Himself with a towel and, with water, washed His disciples' feet, we also can learn the secret of humble service victoriously done (John 13:40).

Know you that who so stoops to do such lowly tasks will, in so, transforming the instruments of our common toil into the doing of all things to the glory of God, be more than a hero!

That God may be glorified in ALL things is why we — you and I — came from God our home and joined Life's long procession. This we must continue doing as swift to its close ebbs life's brief day. Then, in our heavenly home, we shall enjoy serving and praising God for aye.

Think of it! To every good and faithful servant there awaits a personal invitation to attend that heavenly banquet, spread by Christ's own hand. There, the Master will, with His gladdening smile, say His Well done and to see Him face to face, His per-

by Clyde Blackburn

OTTAWA—As of this moment it may be reported that the economic situation and prospects are just fine in Canada.

This is on the word of Trade Minister Gordon Churchill, a 61-year-old Winnipeg lawyer who has been around the world quite a lot.

He has information from a vast network of Government experts and trade spies all over the globe. Also the observations he has made personally.

And he has the Bank of Canada whose Governor, James Coyne, has reported with great emphasis on the subject.

But Mr. Churchill apparently does not lean heavily on that source of inspiration. His marathon speech this week had little reference to the Bank Governor's annual report.

Mr. Coyne, as everyone knows, has kept warning us that we can't go on spending a dollar and a half for every dollar we earn. Or words to that effect.

SITTING PRETTY

Mr. Churchill, on his responsibility as a minister responsible for trade matters, took more than two hours to assure us that we are sitting pretty. That the future is rosy.

It all came about when Opposition Leader Pearson, taking advantage of the customary routine House of Commons item that provides opportunity for such action, moved a want of confidence motion which, if accepted (and that would be a story indeed) would mean defeat of the Government.

Mr. Pearson took the Coyne report quite seriously, and also had a lot of other figures, to support his claim that we were heading for ruin unless the Government pulled up its socks and did something. What?

He suggested steps toward forming an Atlantic free trade area but was rather vague about the whole thing. He could afford to be. All he has to do is point up the dangers and let the Government figure out what to do about it.

MASTERFUL JOB

It is probably a fact that most intelligent persons would admit that international trade and monetary relations are so complicated and complex these days that only the most able and dedicated student and the professional expert can pretend to understand it.

Mr. Pearson has been immersed in diplomacy and interna-national politics at the highest level all his adult life. He was and is a standout in that field.

Probably he heartily wished he was somewhere else when he made this attack on the Government's trade record. But he did a masterful job even if he reached no specific objectives. He spoke about 10,000 words and received the compliment of a better than usual attentiveness from the Government.

Harold Winch of Vancouver East spoke for the CFFers and endorsed all Mr. Pearson said. But he went further.

He is not restricted when it comes to saying what should be done. He is a Socialist.

PLANNED ECONOMY

Mr. Pearson could not offer any suggestion acceptable to himself and friends for forcing a balancing of our trade by national government action.

But Mr. Winch could. He suggested a "planned" economy and there is no doubt about what that means. And he warned that Russia, with her control over production, exports and costs, could outsell us in every market in the world once her productive machinery got into high speed.

However, Mr. Churchill won out. He spoke for more than two hours and 20,000 words. It reminded me of the old days of the Roosevelt press conferences. When FDR expected some embarrassing questions he had a formula for beating the rap.

STORY TELLER

When some 175 reporters packed themselves into his office and the doors were shut he would lean back and start a long story about something like Christmas tree farming, for instance.

It should be interesting the way he told it but tiring and after what seemed endless minutes of standing in the hot room he would finish and ask for questions and the news gang would be too exhausted to start anything.

Mr. Churchill may have some answers to the fears of the opposition buried in the flood of words he put on Hansard.

In any event one thinks of another Trade Minister named Clarence D. Howe. He used to answer forbodings of doom with similarly optimistic replies. And he was criticized for it.

But we kept on eating regularly.

Let us hope Mr. Churchill is similarly inspired and sighted.

POLITICAL ROUND-UP

candidate to oppose Hon. Wilfrid Labbe, Minister without Portfolio, who has represented the county since 1948.

On Sunday, April 3, six other Liberal conventions are planned, including one in Lake Megantic to select a candidate for Frontenac. Generally favored as Liberal choice is Dr. Gerard Noel, member from 1952 to 1956, who was defeated by the sitting U. N. member, Eloi Guillemette in that year.

With the convention in Frontenac, all Eastern Townships ridings will have selected Liberal candidates with the exception of Sherford.

IN SHEFFORD — Reports circulating in Granby say that Hon. Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal leader, may stand for election in Sherford but, for the present at least, these are nothing but rumors.

Supporters of this theory say that it is unlikely that Mr. Lesage will seek election in a Quebec City constituency where the weight of the civil service vote would undermine the chances of an opposition candidate.

Mr. Lesage sat for Montmagny-L'Islet, a lower St. Lawrence riding in the federal House. Two provincial members are elected from this riding, one for Montmagny, the other for L'Islet. But neither of these are looked upon as favorable ground for Mr. Lesage. Montmagny is represented by Hon. Antoine Rivard, Attorney General and one of the senior members of the cabinet. If his position was seriously threatened, all controls would be taken off the political steamroller to crush any dangerous opposition.

L'Islet is the home riding for D. C. Lizotte whose relations with the Union Nationale administration have been none too cordial in recent months. Strategists believe that to put up an exceptionally strong Liberal candidate might force unity in the U. N. ranks, whereas with a lesser Liberal in the field the intra-party feud might intensify. With the U. N. majority in 1956 less than 600, it is conceivable that the seat might switch almost by default.

Thus say some observers, it might be wise to enter Mr. Lesage in Sherford. This county has never shown too much loyalty to any party, thus being considered exceptionally good fighting ground.

Standing against the possibility of Mr. Lesage entering the Sherford race is the long-standing antipathy of Eastern Townships ridings to outside representation.

This is in strong contrast to the attitude of rural ridings in the lower St. Lawrence area, who feel their interests can be represented best at Ottawa or Quebec

SCOUTINGBULWER-BIRCHTON SAWYERVILLE

Making use of the smooth surface of the Sawyerville skating rink, the Sawyerville Cubs and Scouts invited the Cubs and Scouts of the Bulwer-Birchton group to a game of hockey on Saturday night. The games were played without skates, using hockey sticks and a rubber ball to replace the puck.

The first game, between the Cubs of the two Packs was filled with spills and much fun, and although team play was lacking, team spirit was very much in evidence. The final whistle of the game found the Sawyerville Pack playing hard to hold the Bulwer-Birchton who rallied strongly in the third period. The final score was 5 to 3 in favour of the Sawyerville Pack.

The Scouts, who had watched the Cubs with impatience and possibly some disgust at the lack of passing plays, found when they took to the ice, that the little rubber ball, bouncing about, made control very difficult and that they could do little better than their younger brothers.

Akela of the Sawyerville Pack, as referee found it necessary to warn the defence players of both teams that some of their end to end tee shots were in the field of golf rather than hockey.

The second period showed an improvement, as the Scouts began to get better control of the ball, and goals were scored by James Robinson and Gordon Todd of the Bulwer-Birchton Scouts. Carrying this advantage into the final period, the same two Scouts, well supported by their teammates, added three more goals, to leave the final score at 5-0 for the Bulwer-Birchton Scouts.

The Cubs and Scouts of both teams voted the evening as great fun and a real sport venture.

BULWER-BIRCHTON PACK

The regular meeting of the Pack featured the introduction of a new star test game. The highlight of the meeting was the presentation of the Second Star to Cub Robert Richardson by Akela.

be required to force a referendum in a ward zone (an area similar to the North Ward triangle).

The three men who circulated the latest petition, Robert O'Donnell, Oscar Mailhot and Ernest Brochu, claim that the petition was circulated only to allow construction of retail stores.

However, opponents of the petition claim the principal idea behind it is the construction of a gasoline service station.

North Ward merchant Gustave Vallee claimed that he had been approached by a Mr. N. DiTomaso of the Canadian Petrofina Company to run a gasoline service station the company planned building.

In Aug. 1959, a 1,200 name petition against making the triangle a commercial zone was presented to council after the latter had decided the triangle would become a commercial zone.

THEFTORF MINES — In Rev. Sydney Meade's latest edition of St. John's Calendar special emphasis is given to study and devotion during the Lenten season.

Guest speakers at the mid-week Lenten services have included Rev. James Brown, of St. George's Church, Drummondville, the Ven. Russel Brown, Archdeacon of Quebec and rector of St. Matthew's and Rev. Canon M.H.W. Seeley.

WEEK IN QUEBEC

In Quebec City, a provincial government spokesman said Premier Barrette may go to Ottawa early next month to discuss with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Premier Frost of Ontario construction of a new interprovincial bridge between Ottawa and Hull. If the meeting is held Mr. Barrette likely will use the opportunity to hold talks on federal-provincial relations.

Presentation of evidence at the trial in Montreal of 17 paper manufacturers charged with conspiracy to fix pulpwood prices bought from farmers has been completed. The charge alleges the conspiracy took place between 1947 and 1954. Mr. Justice Harry Batshaw adjourned the case until April 4 when rival counsel will begin what is expected to be 10 days for final argument. The prosecution filed 1,500 exhibits, the defence 500 documents and about 60 witnesses were heard.

Liberal Leader Jean Lesage proposed in a Montreal speech to party supporters a conference of provincial premiers to form a common set of demands on the federal government for tax-sharing arrangements. He said he believes the provinces could reach common ground and that the federal government would not dare reject provincial demands presented jointly and unanimously.

Capt. W. H. Cowie, master of the CSL freighter Eskimo, received the port of Montreal gold cane for bringing his vessel into Montreal March 21, the first arrival from overseas this navigation season. The Eskimo beat by seven days the previous early arrival record of March 28.

Morality Play In Lennoxville

A presentation of Everyman will be given in St. George's Church, Lennoxville, Sunday night, at 7 p.m., by the Bishop's University Dramatics Society.

Everyman is a very old morality play. It tells how Death summons Everyman, how Everyman, unwilling to accept the summons, turns for help to Friends and Kindred, Worldly Goods, Learning, his own Good Deeds, and how one by one these must be left behind as Everyman moves to his appointed end.

St. Andrew's United Church Woman's Association held an afternoon tea in the church hall. After a short business meeting, presided over by the president, Mrs. Henry Dubuc, and a devotion conducted by the ex-president, Mrs. E. McLennan, Mrs. Gale, president of the Presbytery Woman's Association addressed the gathering on the subject, "What is the Presbytery Association and what is it doing." Later an exhibition of art by Rev. W. Reid was opened and a great many people came in to see the pictures.

St. George's Anglican Church Guild held a bean supper in the Canada Paper Club House, which was well patronized. Mrs. Anita Parker is the president.

of Cookshire, and Miss Fernande Soucy, from St. Mathias, were recent guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Speck.

The Doctor Says

SUCCESSFUL HERNIAL SURGERY INVOLVES SEVERAL FACTORS

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.

"What is the best way of treating hernias?" ask several correspondents.

A hernia is merely a defect in a wall of body tissue. As the term is usually used, it applies to a defect in the belly wall. Most abdominal hernias, to which these writers probably refer, occur in the region of the groin (inguinal and femoral hernias), at the belly button (umbilical hernias) or in a surgical wound (incisional hernia).

While a small hernial defect may be defended by a properly fitted brace or truss, it can only be properly corrected by surgical repair.

Although herniotomy, as it is called technically, is a relatively simple operative procedure, it will not be permanently successful unless certain conditions are thoughtfully observed.

Recurrences are most apt to occur if the patient's tissues are weakened by flabby muscles and heavy fat deposits through which sustaining sutures tear.

Consequently most experienced surgeons suggest a course of conditioning and weight reduction before undertaking the repair, which must be done with the most scrupulous care if a permanent result is desired. Efforts to accomplish this same end with techniques of injection have been abandoned in most clinics.

"Is it harmful to chew tobacco or use snuff?" asks another group of correspondents.

While tobacco-chewing has not been related to lung cancer or blood vessel disease, as has smoking, it may lead to the development of malignant growths of the gums or cheeks, according to reliable British and Indian investigators.

Snuff, as it is known today, is merely powdered tobacco. So far as is known, it is harmless. Whether the snuff inhaled by dandies in the Restoration era was equally harmless I am not qualified to say. Because of the elegance of snuffboxes, many of which are museum specimens, I have always suspected that they contained something more powerful than powdered tobacco. One possibility that suggests itself is some substance that produces the effect of cocaine.

"Do you approve of the injection treatment of varicose veins?" writes a dancer who is embarrassed by the appearance of her legs.

Ordinarily I am fearful of the injection of irritant solutions into blood vessels, no matter how carefully and skillfully the injections are made.

In the case of the writer of this letter, whose livelihood depends partly on the appearance of her legs, I would certainly make an exception provided that the varicosities were relatively small and the injections were made by an experienced surgeon.

With this and similar exceptions, I favor the use of protective stockings, now obtainable at small cost, reserving operative intervention for those who object to stockings and those who are unrelieved by them.

United Church Men's Club, Waterloo, Studies Cost Of Basement Tiling

WATERLOO — The second regular meeting of the St. Paul's United Church Men's Club was held in the church basement, with Sam Ways, president, in the chair.

The first item of business discussed was the tiling of the basement floor. Orval Lewis presented figures on the cost for various types of tile so that the Men's Club could estimate how much could be saved by providing the labor.

A committee was set up on the suggestion of Rev. Harold Boonhour to investigate the problem, the members being Bill Johnston, chairman, Orval Lewis, Alan McKergow and Bob Ture. A report on the progress of bulletin boards for the church foyer was given by John Black, club secretary.

It was decided, after hearing a report from Bill Johnston, a committee of one, that a semi-public phone be installed in the church basement for the convenience of all church organizations.

The possibility of having a sugar social was discussed and the final decision left to a committee to be chosen by Russell Bockus as to when and where such an event should take place. A work party was organized to start remodeling a small store-room off the church foyer to be used as a vestry. Richard Sarasin donated his services to apply gyprock panels to the walls, before the painting party starts work.

Highlight of the evening was a visit by Messrs. Beerworth, Turnbull, Cromwell and Engelhardt, all members of the Coatsworth Men's Club, and their minister, Rev. Geoffrey Joyce. An amusing skit was presented which may or may not have been representative of a typical evening at home with a Coatsworth family, after which Mr. Joyce gave a brief but stimulating talk on the aims of a Men's Club.

Refreshments were served by the refreshment committee under Gerald Daine and Gordon Clark. The next regular meeting of the Club is scheduled for the third Tuesday in April.

KIWANIS CLUB MEETS

At a meeting of the Kiwanis Club, the members enjoyed a most interesting and informative talk on the man of the day, St. Patrick. The guest speaker was an Irishman eminently fitted to speak with authority, Kiwanian Charlie Byrne, of the Granby Club.

Facts were brought out which were not known to the majority. A complete history of the patron saint of Ireland was unfolded, starting with the fact that St. Patrick was not an Irishman. He was born somewhere in Roman Britain, around the beginning of the fifth century, to Christian parents. At the age of sixteen, Patrick was carried off to Ireland, a pagan country, by a band of Irish marauders.

He first came among the Irish as a prisoner and a slave. His bondage in Ireland lasted six years. A young man of strong faith, he believed he was led to escape by a voice. The vessel he encountered took him to the coast of France. After 28 days travel he arrived at a monastery on an island, where it is believed he spent a few years.

On leaving the Mediterranean, Patrick returned to Gaul to prepare himself for his chosen mission, to Christianize Ireland. As consecrated bishop, Patrick proceeded to Ireland and commenced his labours.

He established churches, more especially in the north of Ireland than the south. He rose to be Bishop of Armagh, from which position he retired at the age of 76, March 17, toward the end of the Fifth Century A.D. is the day acknowledged as the one on which Saint Patrick died.

Mr. Byrne, who was introduced by Emmett Dunlavy was thanked by Gordie Dunsmore.

"My new rug... BURNED!"

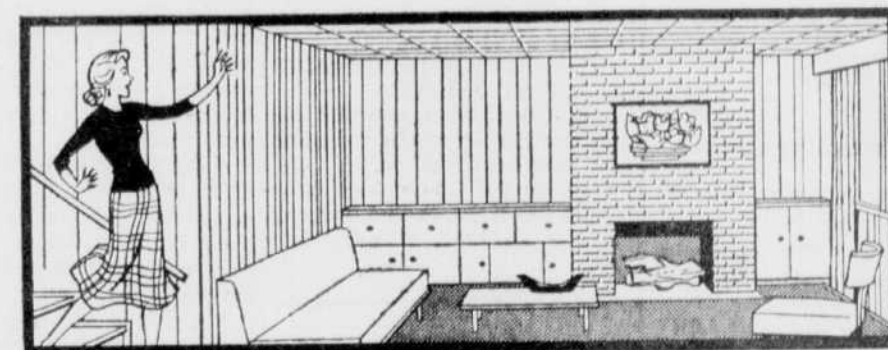

After this, Bill can entertain his friends in the basement!"

1 "OK by me," said Bill, who'd always wanted a rec room. His lumber dealer recommended rugged, low-cost PV Hardboards.

2 For the walls, Bill bought random-planked Colonial Board. "It's prime-coated," said his lumber dealer, "and joints between panels don't show."

3 Ceiling of Pre-finished Square-tex topped off Bill's creation. "Put it up myself," he boasts proudly. "Sixteen squares at a time, and no back-breaking overhead painting. Man! What a labor saver!"

If you, too, need a den or rec room that can take it, build it with low-cost PV Hardboards — the tough, all-wood panels that are so easy to work. Whether you do the job yourself, or have it done, you can have that extra living space right now! See your lumber dealer for full details. Ask him — or your bank — about low-interest Home Improvement Loans.

The spiritual significance of the Bible passages will be brought out in selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following: "Spirit imparts the understanding which uplifts consciousness and leads into all truth... Art Director Says:

Too Many People Buy Paintings For Decoration, Not For Art's Sake

By EDNA BLAKELY
TORONTO (CP)—Choose a picture that bothers you, is Martin Baldwin's advice to people thinking of buying paintings.
The witty director of the Toronto Art Gallery says too many people buy pictures they like as decorations.

"They stick them on the wall and never really look at them," he explained. His point is that they will look at a picture that bothers them.

Mr. Baldwin said it is best to borrow a picture for a month before deciding whether or not to purchase it. If the picture remains satisfactory, then buy it. But the painting should be an original.

"There's no fun in reproductions," he said during an interview. "They're just decorations."

CHANGED ERA

The arts have become a commentary on life rather than a part of it, Mr. Baldwin remarked. "It is a curious thing in Anglo-Saxons that it's sissy to be accomplished," he added.

People are not sufficiently interested in the arts. "Most people think it is highbrow, although this is not true in Russia or Italy," he said.

Mr. Baldwin says children should start to visit art galleries at about four years of age. "You can't start too soon." This interest will be broken down when the children are about 11 by their own self-consciousness. But the girls' interest returns first, usually about 16, and the boys follow a few years later.

But don't go to a gallery with the idea that you dislike a particular artist, and do ask questions of the gallery staff.

"There's probably someone there who will gladly talk your ear off," he said.

ENJOYABLE VIEWING

"And go home before your feet ache," he advises. For the amateur an hour is probably long enough at an art gallery.

If he was given the opportunity of doubling the present 20,000 square feet at the Toronto gallery, Mr. Baldwin said he would turn it down in favor of a second

Jottings

By GLADYS TAYLOR
With Canadian Library Week coming up, from April 3rd to 9th, I am getting very library conscious. For this reason JOTTINGS this week will be made up of several items I have read or heard recently about libraries.

For instance I read of Frank Gardner, chief librarian for 20 years of the Luton Public Library in England, who had just returned from a survey of five Asian countries on behalf of UNESCO. He had a number of new ideas about reading habits such as: "It is time we realized that, both in the East and the West, people's basic interest in reading lies in doing so for pleasure — as opposed to knowledge." He also says, "Anyone who reads is better off — no matter what he reads. The man who buys a popular magazine from a news-stand is a future reader of books." This should provide some solace to those of us who watch, with dismay, as our children devour comics. According to Mr. Gardner they will graduate to something else — preferably in a hard cover. But sometimes we wonder!

ON THE SUBJECT OF CANADIAN LIBRARIES AND BOOKS — There are an estimated 850 public libraries in Canada. We still fall short of reaching all Canadians however, with something under 80 per cent of the population receiving some form of library service. Canada still ranks about 14th among the world's nations in the number of bookshops per capita. Usage of libraries is increasing, but only one Canadian in eight is a registered borrower. In Toronto 43 per cent of the population are borrowers. In Montreal, about 8 per cent.

STILL ON THE SUBJECT OF LIBRARIES — Recently I received a letter from the FORESTVILLE RECREATION CLUB, Saguenay County about a library they were forming there. The Club asked for a list of Canadian books by Canadian authors because, as they wrote — "We have an offer of a number of books and our donor wishes us to choose amongst books written by Canadian authors exclusively." Surely Canadian writers and writing has come a long way when the beneficiary of a library stipulates Canadian books only. Not that I have anything against books written by Americans, English or anyone else but I am happy that Canadian writers — so long "prophets without honor in their own country" — should have this recognition and I can't help hoping that others when bestowing books upon their favorite library will have the same "Canadian - books - preferred" thought.

WHAT CAN CANADIANS DO TO SUPPORT CANADIAN LIBRARY WEEK? — 1. Join an existing Canadian Library Week committee in your community — or help form one.
2. Read — read — read!
3. Encourage others to read — particularly your children.

Next Monday I have been invited to attend the reception and dinner in Ottawa in honor of the Governor — General Awards winners for 1959. As most of you know Hugh MacLennan, well-known to so many Eastern Townships readers, because of his summer residence at North Hatley is one of the winners this year. Next week in JOTTINGS I hope to have some details of this high-light in the Canadian writing world to tell you about.

EARLY PROHIBITION — The first Canadian ban on sale of intoxicating liquors was imposed during the war of 1812.

Colonials and Indians, Lightly Told

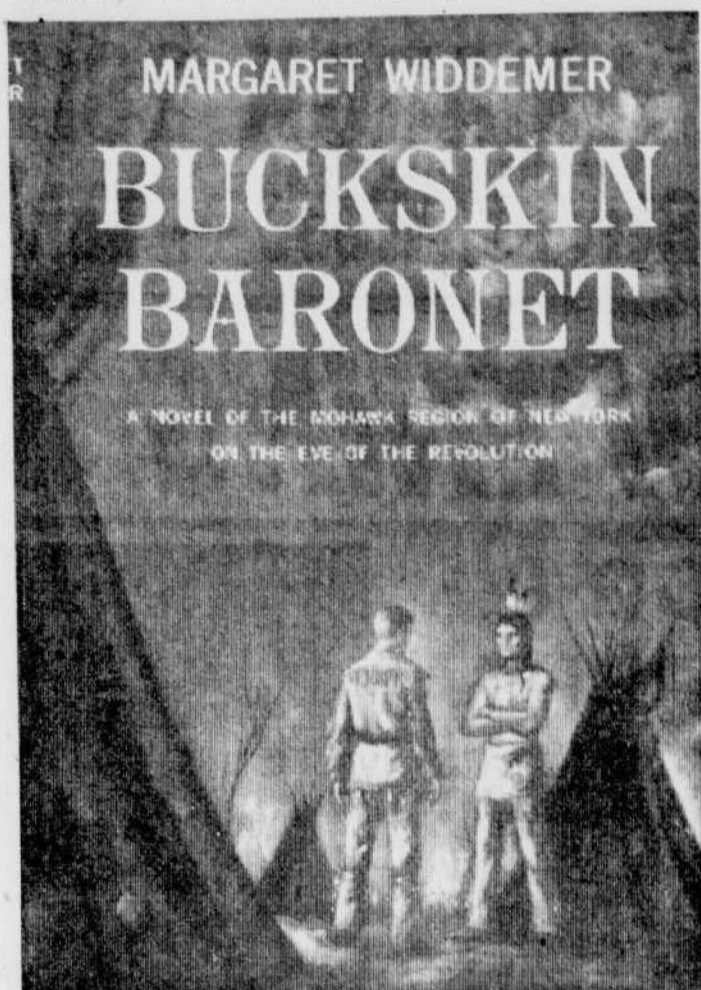

BUCKSKIN BARONET — by Margaret Widdemer — 328 pages — DOUBLE-DAY & CO. — $4.50 — Margaret Widdemer has been a recognized novelist for years. Many of us grew up hearing her name. BUCKSKIN BARONET is the latest in a series of novels about the Colonials and Indians near Saratoga, New York.

This is the story of life in 1773 on the eve of the American Revolution. For two reasons Lucian Tynedale, popular young English baronet, is content to go on a mission to America as unofficial observer for Lord North "to feel out the climate of opinion" there. Firstly, he wishes to escape the clutches of a designing heiress, Jennifer Meredith and secondly, to find out the truth about his mother from whom he has been, mysteriously, an ocean apart since babyhood, and about whom he has heard conflicting tales of graciousness and witchery.

How this wild land strikes a responsive chord in Sir Lucian, held until he was three by savages but reared to nothing rougher than old-world hunting and gaming tables, how he takes to his heart his mother's husband and family, especially his step-sister, Brigid, how he lives for a time with the Shawanese Indians enjoying the honour of a borrowed wife, how he is nearly scalped through betrayal, make for very interesting reading of romance and adventure.

Those who like a single-plot story lightly told with an historical background will find this novel delightful. And there is much to be learned from it. One finds oneself experiencing the life of that time in three distinct settings — upper-class splendor in both England and America, and life with the Indians.

One learns of Iroquois government which democratic form far surpassed that of the white colonists — where the women had a voice and their moral and civil rights were protected by law.

In her preface, Margaret Widdemer writes: "The leading characters . . . are fictional, Sir Lucian Tynedale and his people, Brigid Scott and hers. But the rest, the Johnsons, Lady Chesterfield, the English courtiers, the Hutchinsons and Adames, the Iroquois and Shawanese and their ways and speech and doings, are drawn as I have found and known them in the history, biography, and letters of their time, on both sides of the water."

If there be any weakness in a novel of this type it might be that the picture is drawn with too light a touch for the subject matter. However, there are many who will welcome having our history served so palatably and digested so painlessly.

Story Of A Case That Made Headlines

ROSEMARIE by Erich Kubly 239 pages . . . Alfred A. Knopf, Inc. . . $4.25 — "The Rosemarie case made headlines throughout Europe; TIME ran a three-column piece on the scandal under the heading 'Rosie and the Rich'; the Bonn government tried to ban a movie of which she was the "heroine". Using some of the sensational facts that came to light, Erich Kubly, one of Germany's top reporters and commentators, has written this powerful, shocking, and grimly amusing novel."

The above quotation is from the dust-jacket of ROSEMARIE. Further details given on the jacket are equally startling and equally intriguing. And none of them misleading. The book lives up to its spades-every statement made about it!

Before reading this book, the name ROSEMARIE, for me, invariably invoked visions of Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy singing love songs against a background of Canadian scenery, Mounties and Indian maidens. The Atomic-age ROSEMARIE of whom Erich Kubly writes was quite enough to shatter not only all such pictures but most of my illusions as well.

I had never heard of ROSEMARIE, despite her infamous career, until I read the book. For this reason perhaps I came to it ill-prepared for its knock-out blows. My first reaction to the book was that Erich Kubly had a hearty disdain for women. But as I thought it over more carefully, I wondered if it weren't really men he despised. Now, I am wondering if he just hates people! And if he really believes our civilization is as degenerate as he describes it in this book, then perhaps he is justified in hating them. In fact if I thought Man was as animalistic as he pictures him, I'd feel it was time an obliterating bomb was dropped. Fortunately, however, even after meeting ROSEMARIE, I don't believe people are that bad.

There is a thread of plot concerning "big business" and Germany's entry into the space race in the novel, but as so often happens in too-quickly-written books of this type, it becomes an effort to follow the plot because of the emotional bombardment to which the reader is subjected.

I found ROSEMARIE/fascinating reading. But a steady diet of such books would be depressing.

Recommended: only to the reader whose palate has already been acclimated by such books as Lady Chatterley's Lover and Peyton Place.

Cloak, Dagger

SECRET MISSION TO BANGKOK by Van Wyck Mason — 238 pages — DOUBLEDAY & COMPANY — $4.50 — Van Wyck Mason has introduced a great deal of cloak and dagger suspense into his latest book SECRET MISSION TO BANGKOK. Enough of such in fact to keep the reader on the edge of his chair through most of its reading.

While the danger element in the book revolves around Colonel North's attempts to keep Hans Brack, top space scientist, from being captured by the Communists; the danger element in doing a review of a book of this type is in revealing too much of the story and thus spoiling it for the true devotee of the mystery novel.

However at the risk of revealing secrets, as disturbing to the mystery fan as Dr. Brack's space secrets if revealed to the Communists would have been to the non-Communist world, I can't resist mentioning such intriguing facets of the story as these: Dr. Hans Brack had for some time so cleverly disguised his identity that most people presumed him dead; yet in actual fact he was not only alive, but to the extent that he had acquired a Siamese child-bride known as Tao Muong.

The child-bride was lured away to Hollywood and Dr. Brack makes a desperate effort to find her. Despite Van Wyck Mason the fact that he is said to have the highest I.Q. among the American scientists, it doesn't help him to realize that the voice he hears on the tape recorder might not be the voice of his wife begging him to do as the Russians ask him and speak to no one or they will torture her.

And so the complications pile up.

With each new twist in the plot and counter-plot the tempo of this exciting novel increases until the reader sometimes has the sensation of being rushed along at the same head-long speed as the racing planes in the story.

It should be added however, perhaps a little lagged, that although we have persisted in referring to this book as a mystery story, it is — if only because of the acknowledged skill of F. Van Wyck Mason as a powerful, suspenseful and historically accurate writer, — much more than that. It is in truth a triumph in the field of adventure and intrigue writing. To put it briefly it's a very high-powered novel. MARY TALL.

Dispatch Men To Search For St. Bernard

ROSLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Reversing the time-honored order of things, a party of men have been dispatched to search for a missing St. Bernard dog.

The six-year-old 175-pound animal, named Jacquot, long has been a favorite at St. Francis Hospital here. He served as watchdog for the Roman Catholic nuns who operate the hospital, and as playmate for child patients in the institution.

He disappeared three weeks ago, without the traditional brandy barrel.

Adventures with God

cess of making one's life successful in the fullest sense of the word.

No two people are alike in all points and their successes will vary in degree according to their abilities and qualifications and personalities.

Two men may be successful in obtaining a good job. One has a genial personality as well as skill, persistence and integrity. In a short time he begins to climb, making more and more friends and building up a solid business foundation.

PERSONALITY NEEDED

The man who was hired the same day may have more technical training, but he may lack persistence and the will to get along with business associates. In a short time he becomes discouraged and faint-hearted.

He believes that luck is against him. He has the know-how for a successful business career but he lacks that intangible something that draws men to him. Ability without a warm personality is not enough to put him over the top to success.

This is a factor in success young people ought to think about. Finding FAVOR with God and man, is the keynote for success. In business we try to find favor with man and many people have achieved success by winning friends and influencing people by the Dale Carnegie methods.

But there is a better way which, if followed, will bring success in both time and eternity. I submit, that any program that seeks success in time only, is not worth the effort we put into it.

Success in this life depends largely upon what man thinks of us. To succeed we must be in favor with man. Success in the hereafter depends upon what God thinks of us. And unless we are in favor with God, earthly successes can turn to ashes.

Old King Solomon had his faults but he learned many things by the trial and error method. From long experience he discovered that there were some basic requirements for young people who really wanted to achieve everlasting success. He summed it up succinctly in two words: BE GOOD. Put God in the centre of your thinking and your will and He will direct you into the paths of pleasantness and peace.

Solomon put it this way in Prov. 3:1-7: "My son, forget not my law but let thine heart keep my commandments: For length of days, and long life and peace it shall add to thee. Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: bind them upon thine heart. SO SHALT THOU FIND FAVOR and good understanding in the sight of God and man."

There you have it, young people, the divine definition of success.

This kind of success may be a long time coming, but it is more satisfying when it comes.

STICK TO RULES

Some of your friends may tell you that you can't be good and successful. This is the devil's lie. God's word says that you can't be successful and find favor with Him unless you are good.

And He warns us not to dwell in the tents of wickedness if we want to enjoy His blessings on our efforts for success.

Thousands of young people are torn between the urge to be good and the desire to be popular and successful. Many of them get the mistaken idea that morals and success don't go together.

But God says they do. And experience has taught some of us that it pays for time and eternity to stick with the rules laid down by God. Wrong methods cannot produce the right results.

Every young person ought to draw up a long range plan for his life considering the possibility that at any hour your plan may be nipped in the bud. In the light of this consideration you will realize, young person, that material success should be secondary in your program and that your right relationship to God, ought to be your chief aim in life.

Your goal ought to be to "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness" and having done this "all these things (success, material needs, friendship) shall be added unto you." Set your goal, select your GUIDE and follow Him and He will lead you into the way of true and lasting success. "Then shalt thou have good success." Josh 1:8.

And then, of course, there was the burlesque queen who was complaining to her husband that she didn't have a thing to take off.

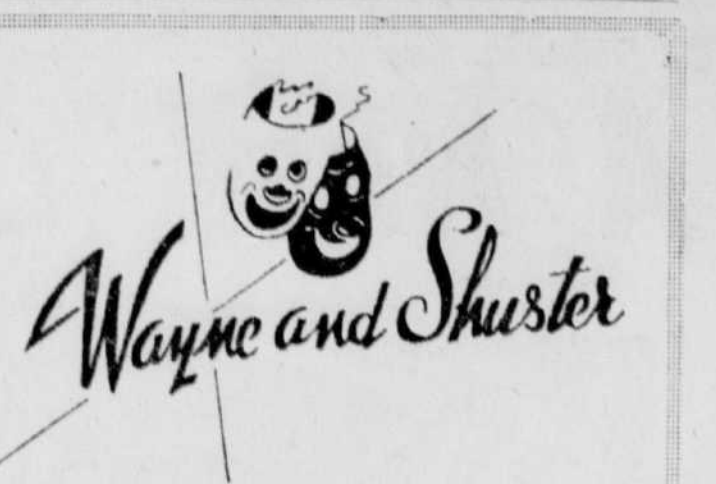

Just in case you never thought of it, there are poor people in Miami, too. Of course, they weren't poor when they got there.

Thousands of young people are torn between the urge to be good and the desire to be popular and successful. Many of them get the mistaken idea that morals and success don't go together.

But God says they do. And experience has taught some of us that it pays for time and eternity to stick with the rules laid down by God. Wrong methods cannot produce the right results.

SCIENCE MARCHES ON. The latest thing in New York, believe it or not, is a cigarette that contains no tobacco whatsoever! Apparently, the manufacturer has discovered a combination of herbs that tastes like tobacco, yet contains none at all.

We tried one the other day and you get the uneasy feeling that you're smoking a salad.

They have two advantages, however. They're free from harmful tars and irritating tobacco taxes.

A large baboon ambled into a bar, pointed to a bottle of Scotch and threw a $10 bill on the counter. The startled bartender stared for a moment, then recovered his composure and poured the baboon a drink. Then he took the $10 to the till and discovered there was nothing but large bills and one lone 50-cent piece.

"Oh well," he thought to himself, "it's only a baboon, what would he know about money?" He gave the baboon the 50-cent piece.

What's the big idea, Buster?" snarled the baboon. "I'm sorry," stuttered the bartender. "I'm a little confused. You see, it's the first time a baboon ever came into this bar."

"At nine-fifty a drink," growled his hairy customer, "it's the last time!"

Our good old friend Punch Imlach is at it again with his predictions, but this time it seems that he put himself out on the limb and was cut off. He predicted his Leafs would win against the Red Wings in five games. He stated they would win the first two at home, one in Detroit and would end the series at home.

His "crystal ball" gazing certainly back-fired as his squad dropped the first tilt 2-1 and now will have to go all out to try and even things this evening before moving to Detroit for the next two tilts. He figured that Red Kelly would make the big difference.

He claimed with Kelly the Leafs would have two big centres and three well-balanced lines, better than anything the Wings could toss out on the ice. It seems that Punch is to glance around the old "crystal ball" because if he had he might have found Gordie Howe still very much in the picture.

To us it seems if the Leafs hope to stop the Wings they must come up with some kind of coverage to keep the "Big Fellow" under wraps. He tallied one and helped to set up the other and we are sure that he will register more goals before this is over. You must agree with Tommy Ivan and Milt Schmidt when they say that Howe is a team in himself.

In the other series we think the Canadiens may have a little trouble before they dispose of the Black Hawks. They gave the Canucks all they were looking for Thursday, and without Bobby Hull. When he returns it certainly will add extra power to their team.

We must admit that the Canadiens looked bad but on the other hand the young Hawks didn't get rolling until the third period. Maybe tonight it will be a different story and it should be a real hard-hitting affair with both clubs going all out. It won't finish in four straight. On that you can bet your greenbacks. It looks like a real old-fashioned series in the making.

For the past few years each spring the game wardens are having trouble with bands of dogs chasing deer. This year they have attacked deer at Scottstown, Fitch Bay and Magog as well as down around Newport, Vt. It seems that these animals belong to farmers and join up with some wild ones to chase deer around the woods.

The game wardens try their best to trace the dogs to their owners and notify them that their animals are running wild and must be tied up or destroyed. Chief Game Warden Clement Bouchard states that the farmers are helping in the chase and are doing all they can to stop it.

It is a shame that the same thing happens every spring, stated Chief Warden Bouchard, but as long as we have families keeping a number of dogs, when they can't look after them properly, we will have the problem.

Dogs are nice to have around, especially on a farm, but we think they should be looked after and not let run wild. We know it is quite a problem but we are sure that the farmers will do all they can to help in stopping this thing. The game wardens have a big job and certainly must get the backing of all if they hope to quell this.

Two Richmond clubs will be battling for Provincial championships tomorrow afternoon in their Coliseum. It is the first time for years that any Richmond teams have come that close and we wish them good luck.

The Tigers will be fighting for Pee Wee honors while the other club is after the Mosquito crown. This is sort of a round-robin affair and the Tigers face the St. Maurice Valley champions in the opener at 1.30 and if they win they will take on the Island of Montreal champions.

The two Richmond clubs have won the E.T. championships and displayed good form in doing so but will be running up against top opposition in these outside clubs. Even if Richmond should lose out we think they have done very well in winning the E.T. crowns and deserve plenty of credit.

The Richmond organization only started a few years ago when they obtained their artificial ice but since then they have gone a long way and we think they went about it in the right way, that is with the youngsters. In a few years they will be able to be a complete club in higher ranks with local talent which should be a big help in developing future players.

To the Richmond organization we would like to extend our congratulations for doing a very good job and we trust that a good crowd will be on hand to see and support the kids tomorrow afternoon in their quest for Provincial honors.

Pee Wee And Mosquito Championships
Tomorrow Afternoon Starting At 1.30

RICHMOND — The Provincial Pee Wee championship will be decided here tomorrow afternoon when the St. Marguerite Club of Trois Rivières and Richmond Tigers at 1.30 clash in the first game of the elimination series. The winners will meet the Ahuntsic Club of Montreal at 3.45 for the Provincial crown.

In between these two games the Provincial Mosquito championship will be decided. Richmond, champions of the Eastern Townships, will take on the title holders from the St. Maurice Valley. Richmond presents a well balanced squad comprised of Tremblay, Thibault, Parenteau, Laperle, Roux, Drouin, Rattray, Cormier, Whittington and Richard Paquette.

Rockets Here Tomorrow In Second Playoff Fixture

Beavers Down One Game After 7-1
Licking In Opener; Coach Dube Is Looking For Win To Even Series

...The Sherbrooke Beavers will try tomorrow afternoon to get back on an even basis with the Drummondville Rockets when they clash at the Sherbrooke Arena. The game is the second of the four-out-of-seven finals of the Eastern Townships Intermediate Hockey League.

The Rockets rolled to an impressive 7-1 verdict over the Beavers in the opener in Drummondville Tuesday and are sitting with a game lead in the series. The third tilt is slated back in Drummondville next Wednesday. The reason for these dates is owing to the National Hockey League playoffs which are televised on the same evenings when the league generally plays.

The Beavers got off to a slow, and bad start, last Tuesday but Coach Gilles Dube is looking for a better show in tomorrow's game with the Rockets. The Beavers were forced to go the full seven games in their series with the Granby Vics while the Rockets downed Victoriaville Canadiens 4-2 in their series.

Coach Dube reports his team in good shape and from now on should give a good account of themselves. Tickets, for the game, went on sale yesterday and another good crowd is expected for Sunday's tilt.

Coach Lou Poliquin got his fast-stepping squad in high gear right from the opening whistle last Tuesday and it is expected he will use the same tactics tomorrow. The Rockets had a few days rest before starting the finals and it seems to have helped their cause.

The Beavers had a tough battle with the Vics of Granby and at one time were trailing in the affair. They faced elimination in their last three games as they were down 3-1. They posted 4-1, 4-2 and 5-2 victories over the Bedford squad to win the series but were forced the whole way before coming through with the decision.

A record 20,220 witnessed the seven games which is a new high for the league. In the Drummondville-Victoriaville series a total of 12,227 fans took in the six games played. The total of 32,447 sets a league record in attendance for the playoffs and the final series is expected to draw another good number of fans.

Montreal Coach Shies From Crystal
Ball; Bobby Hull Still Doubtful
With Sloan, Stan Mikita To Dress

MONTREAL (CP)—Doctors are to decide early today whether Bobby Hull is medically fit to join Chicago Black Hawks for the second game of the Stanley Cup semi-final series against Montreal's one-up Canadiens.

"We won't know anything until the morning," said Tommy Ivan, Chicago's general manager, in a telephone interview late Friday. "It's up to the doctors."

Hull, 21-year-old left-winger in his third NHL season, sat out Chicago's 4-3 loss to Montreal Thursday night after developing an infected tonsil.

He was "getting along fine" Friday in Montreal's General Hospital. It was thought Thursday an operation might be necessary but Ivan said none has been performed so far and there was no further word about it.

The blonde, Pointe aux, Ont., native fired 39 goals during the regular season — winning the scoring race with 81 points—and was expected to spearhead Chicago's playoff drive.

A handful of players from both

Chicago and Montreal worked out Friday at the Montreal Forum. But there was no formal practice called by either coach Rudy Pilous of the Hawks or Montreal's Toe Blake.

Ivan meanwhile said his outlook on the series is still positive although the Hawks are down a game.

"We had to win four games before the set started and we've still got to win four. We're still very much in the running," he said.

MIKITA BACK? Rookie Stan Mikita was expected to dress tonight after missing the opener. But forward Tod Sloan was a question mark. He collided with teammate Eric Nesterenko late in the third period Thursday night and aggravated a neck injury suffered earlier.

Nesterenko, who had to be helped from the ice after the collision, was a likely starter. He took five stitches for a chin laceration.

In the Montreal camp, everybody was reported healthy and set to go. Blake said he plans no lineup changes, nor modifications in strategy.

Wilt Chamberlain, A Basketball
Legend, Quits Warriors, Racial Problems Factor In Making Move

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain, a basketball legend after only one season with Philadelphia Warriors, quit the team and the National Basketball Association Friday.

The seven-foot-one-inch Negro rookie star, who rewrote professional basketball's records on the court and at the box office, said racial problems had "some connection with my decision but that wasn't the entire reason."

Beyond this, he offered little amplification in talking here with reporters. He confirmed, however, this statement attributed to him by Ike Gelis, sports editor of the New York post, who broke the story:

"If I continue, I feel it might be bad for me and my race. If I come back and score less than I did last year, I may have to punch eight or nine guys in the face. I might lose my poise and I don't want that. I want to keep my equilibrium. I have achieved everything a man can achieve in pro basketball."

Chamberlain has complained previously of rough treatment from opposing players in the NBA. They did virtually everything they legally could, in the way of body contact, to keep him from adding to his record scoring.

After many games his ribs showed the effects of many well-planted elbows. In one game his mouth was gashed badly.

Ireland's Team Spirit Is Betting
Favorite For Today's Grand National

AINTREE, England (CP)—Although Merryman II nosed out Ireland's Team Spirit as the betting favorite for today's Grand National steeplechase, a number of horse fanciers still expect the luck of the Irish to hold good. Seven of the 27 probable starters are from Ireland.

Merryman II, a one-time hunter owned by Scotland's Miss Winifred Wallace, was made a 7-to-1 choice Friday night by Britain's leading bookmakers. Team Spirit, who likes to eat six eggs and drink a bottle of beer a day, was 15 to 2.

Wyndburgh, with seconds and a fourth in the last three Nationals, was the third-ranked favorite at 19 to 2.

The 12th running of the race is being televised for the first time. An estimated 20,000,000 persons are expected to be glued to their sets at 3:15 p.m. (10:15 a.m. EST), watching the horses on which they have laid their money tackle 30 obstacles along the 4½-mile Aintree course.

Often out of a field of 30 or more only three or four horses struggle through to the finish. The others come acropper at one jump or another, often in the notorious Becher's Brook — a four-foot, 10-inch high thorn fence with a natural brook on the landing side.

The race is one of those on which the Irish Sweepstakes are based. Complete betting odds: Merryman II 7 to 1; Team Spirit 15 to 2; Wyndburgh 19 to 2; Dandy Scott 10 to 1; Mr. What, Canobie Lee, Clover Bud 16 to 1; Badlanoh 18 to 1; Clear Profit 20 to 1; Green Drill 28 to 1; Tea Fiend 33 to 1; Knoxtown, Allform Arles, Hollybank, Junjo, Uncle Whiskers, Clanyon 40 to 1; Irish Coffee, Eagle Lodge 50 to 1; Bel-size II, Dondrosa, Pendie Lady, Skatelong, Lotaray, Sabaria 66 to 1; Skipper Jack 100 to 1.

New Players

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Trade talk has popped up again at the Philadelphia Phillies training camp on the heels of six consecutive losses in the grapefruit league.

There isn't any confirmation from manager Eddie Sawyer or general manager John Quinn but San Francisco Giants and Cincinnati Redlegs were being mentioned Friday as the teams most likely to be involved.

Pitchers Die Farrell and Jack Meyer are reported to be the bait for the Giants, and Pancho Herrera, first baseman who was most valuable player in the International League last year, is being mentioned as a possible candidate for Cincinnati or Milwaukee. The Phils, with Ed Bouchee on first, have been using Herrera at second base.

The Redlegs are believed ready to part with catcher Frank House. The Phils are planning to start the season with rookie Jim Coker behind the plate.

Detroit's "Nothing Line" Could Be
Key To An Upset In Tonight's Tilt
At Toronto, Leafs Must Stop Howe

TORONTO (CP)—A Detroit Red Wing "nothing" line has suddenly come up with something and could be the key to an upset victory in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

The line, made up of freshmen Jerry Melnyk, Len Haley and Val Fonteyne, produced the winning goal Wednesday night as Wings took the series opener from Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1.

Second game of the best-of-seven set is scheduled here tonight.

Leaf coach Punch Imlach had openly figured on concentrating against this unit, supposedly the weakest in the Detroit lineup. His theory: Check the big guns on the Wings' top two lines and count on scoring against the rookies.

But Melnyk, Haley and Fonteyne shot that theory down in flames Wednesday with a fierce-checking defensive game which blunted the Leaf assault and a powerhouse attack which had the Toronto defence reeling.

Coach Sid Abel of Detroit, who admits he had some doubts about his "weak" unit, is jubilant over the line's showing.

"Maybe I was a little leery at first of using them regularly," said Abel. "But after seeing the way they worked Wednesday you can bet they'll be back together Saturday night."

"They're an excellent checking line. If we need goals badly I'm liable to stick Jack McIntire on the wing. Otherwise, they look like a pretty steady combination."

HOW TO STOP HOWE
One of the big question marks about tonight's game is how Imlach intends to counter Gordie Howe, the Detroit ace.

Wednesday Imlach assigned Bert Olmstead the job of shadowing Howe but it didn't work. Howe got the opening goal and was easily the best performer on the ice.

Marc Reaume, the defenceman who went to Wings in the swap that brought Red Kelly to Toronto, worked out Friday and may be in the lineup for the second game. Reaume has been sidelined by an injury he picked up soon after moving to Detroit.

CBC Will Carry
Sunday's Game
Starting At 8.00

MONTREAL (CP)—CBC television will carry the third Stanley Cup semi-final game Sunday between Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings on its English-language Quebec network, it was announced Friday.

The broadcast, originating in Detroit, will begin at 8:00 p.m. EST. The corporation's French-language network will not carry the broadcast.

The third game in the other semi-final series between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, will be played Tuesday.

Winnipeg To Lose Sunday
Hockey Games

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sunday hockey games to which admission is charged will again be banned in Winnipeg under an amendment to the city charter approved Friday by the law amendments committee of the Manitoba legislature.

Such games have been permitted for two years as a result of a magistrate's ruling that the section of the charter allowing Sunday skating also applied to hockey.

The amendment approved by committee, but still requiring approval of the legislature, would reverse the magistrate's decision, which did not apply to other sports.

people are talking...

...about us. And we like it!

We are glad to know that what we say in The Tely is so quotable . . . For three successive years more newspaper editors 'read it in The Tely' than in any other newspaper in Canada. It's as dependable a guide as you can get that The Tely is alert editorially . . . it's provocative . . . authoritative . . . interesting . . . Canada's most quoted newspaper . . . and "Canada's fastest growing newspaper".
