ELECTION DATE SET--CABINET SHUFFLED

World News In Brief

Nairobi — Reuters — Four African terrorists were hanged today for Mau Mau murders. They had been sentenced to death in April and had lost their appeals. Two were executed for the murder of Ian Meiklejohn, a white settler, and two for the assassination of senior Kikuyu chief Waribu Wa Kunga.

Copenhagen — AP — King Frederik IX has freed three Germans serving 20-year terms for war crimes during the 1940-45 Nazi occupation of Denmark, the justice ministry said Friday night. They are Guenther Pancke, commander of the SS and Gestapo in Denmark, and two other members of a Nazi counter-subversion group, and Georg Renner, chief of Gestapo headquarters at Aarhus, Denmark's second largest city.

Worcester, Mass. — AP — State and city officials estimated the property loss in Tuesday's central Massachusetts tornado at $58,000,000 today as the known death toll rose to 86. The latest death was that of an infant born prematurely at the twister's height.

Washington — AP — A British radio-radar beacon device, smaller than two matchboxes, will be manufactured in the United States for fliers to wear on their life-jackets.

The miniature transmitter-receiver includes batteries, microphone-loudspeaker and aerial that extends to 31 inches. It is designed to guide rescuing planes to a survivor drifting in the sea and let him communicate with them when they come close enough.

Seoul — (P) — Communist forces on the eastern front put up a sign today which read: "Going to have big celebration on June 15th. Too far from home so we celebrate here." Eighth Army headquarters reported a front-line Communist loudspeaker broadcast told Allied troops there would be peace soon.

New York — (A.P.) — The New York Herald Tribune today quotes South Korean president Syngman Rhee as saying the immediate signing of a defence pact with the United States might make the impending Korean truce acceptable to his people.

August 10 Is Confirmed; Pickersgill Joins Cabinet, Fournier Appointed Judge

Date Draws P.C., C.C.F. Criticism

Ottawa. — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, criticized the government for calling an election Aug. 10.

Both leaders said Friday that harvesting and vacationing will make it difficult for many Canadians to vote or give proper study to the election issues.

Mr. Drew said the government chose "the very worst date in the whole year," charged it with "trying to drive the nation in blinkers," and announced he will open his campaign in Guelph, Ont., next Friday night, June 19.

Mr. Coldwell said the election results may not be as representative of the will of the people as they should be, but that, were it not for the inconvenience of the date to many Canadians, the CCF would welcome an election at the earliest possible date.

Solon Low, leader of the Social Credit party, was not available for comment here. He was believed to be in his constituency of Peace River, Alta.

Mr. Drew's statement: "One date will suit the candidates of our party as well as another. We have been anxious to place our case before the people as soon as possible. That does not dispose of the fact, however, that for Canadian voters generally, the government has chosen the very worst date in the whole year.

"July and August are not just two ordinary months on the calendar. They are the warm, growing months when the farmers are busier than at any other time in the whole year. They are months of great heat when those living in cities and towns are urged by the radio to go to the lakes, the oceans, the rivers and the country generally for needed health and recreation.

"This date will make it extremely difficult for many people to vote. Within another two weeks, parents from every part of Canada will be taking their children to summer camps for their health, just as much as for their recreation. On the very date chosen for the election, many of our largest factories will be closed down. The workers in those factories made arrangements months ago for holidays.

State Secretary Bradley, Six Others Are Named To Senate.

By JOHN LeBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — A federal general election has been called for Monday, Aug. 10, the first August date since Confederation.

At the same time, Prime Minister St. Laurent has made a change in his cabinet, filled seven Liberal vacancies in the Senate and announced he will kick off the election campaign June 22 at Windsor, Ont.

The 71-year-old prime minister also told newspaper men at a press conference Friday after a day-long cabinet meeting that he expects to win the election and expects to stay as head of the government for "quite some time."

Mr. St. Laurent rejected suggestions of possible tax cuts before the voting, saying his idea is that tax changes announced in the last federal budget still stand.

The cabinet changes saw the retirement of Works Minister Alphonse Fournier, 60, of Hull, Que., who has been in the Commons since 1930 and who becomes a justice of the Exchequer Court of Canada, and State Secretary F. Gordon Bradley, 65, one of the prime movers of Newfoundland's 1949 entry into Confederation, who goes to the Senate.

John W. (Jack) Pickersgill, 47, clerk of the Privy Council, was sworn in as Mr. Bradley's successor and will contest his predecessor's Newfoundland riding of Bonaville-Twohill.

No successor was named for Mr. Fournier, and Mr. St. Laurent said he did not expect there would be one until after the election. He would be from Quebec province. Meanwhile, Immigration Minister Harris will hold down the works portfolio.

Another key Commons member passed out of the Lower House in the shift of Speaker Ross Macdonald, 61, of Brantford, Ont., to the Senate. Under the English-French rotation system, Mr. Macdonald was due to give up his four-year post at the end of this parliament.

He will be succeeded, it was expected, by Rene Beaudin, 41, deputy Speaker, in the event the Liberals come back. There have been reports that Mr. Macdonald might become government leader in the Senate in succession of W. McLeod, of Nova Scotia, who has not been in robust health.

The other senatorial appointments consisted of four members of the current Commons and an Ottawa lawyer who has not been a member.

They are Joseph Bradette, of Cochrane, Ont., former deputy Speaker; Leonard Tremblay, of Dorchester, Que., deputy Liberal whip; Sarto Fournier, member for Montreal-Maison-Neuve since 1935; Aurele Leger, member for Kent, N. B., since 1940, and John J. Connolly, Ottawa lawyer and former executive assistant to defence ministers on the Second World War.

At his press conference, held right after the close of a morning and afternoon cabinet meeting, the Prime Minister also announced he plans to ask W. G. Weir, of Nepeawa, Man., chief Liberal whip, to become his parliamentary assistant in the next Parliament. He said Mr. Weir previously had turned down the job, held by Hon. Walter Harris before a couple of years ago.

Since then, the Prime Minister has had no parliamentary assistant, though more than a dozen other ministers have them.

Of his own campaigning plans, the Prime Minister — in confirming the long-predicted Aug. 10 election date — also confirmed reports that he will open his own vote-getting tour in Ontario at Windsor, in Health Minister Martin's riding.

He will spend a week in Ontario, head for his summer home at St. Patrick's, Que., and then move through the Maritimes and Newfoundland. After that he will tackle the West. He will not campaign in Quebec until after the provincial by-election in Montreal Outremont July 9th because, he said, he does not want to get the two campaigns mixed.

Much of the Prime Minister's travelling, it was understood, will be by air. In the 1949 general election, he moved mainly by train.

His object in the new campaign will be "to see as many Canadians as possible." He has scheduled many stateside platform appearances as well as formal meetings.

On the campaign-launching date of June 22nd, the Prime Minister said, he also plans a country-wide broadcast which will record before leaving the capital for Windsor. "This and the Windsor address are regarded as the keynote Liberal speeches of the fight."

Asked for his forecast of the election results, he noted that there will be 265 seats open in the new Commons and added:

"My only forecast is that I hope and expect to get a good share of them."

A reporter asked him what he thinks will be the chief issue of the election.

"Good government," he replied. "In the last Commons, the government had the biggest majority of all time for this country. It came out of the 1949 election with 190 of the 262 seats. At dissolution, it had 181."

Standing of the other groups at dissolution: Progressive Conservative, 48; CCF, 13; Social Credit, 10; independent Liberal, one; independent, four. There were five vacancies.

Mr. St. Laurent would not say when he might call Parliament together again, if re-elected. The election proclamation of Governor-General Massey, dissolving the 21st Parliament as of today, set October 15 as the "pro forma" date of reassembling, but this has no significance.

However, political quarters here say a fall start of the regular 1954 session is virtually certain and that such starts will be the rule from now on if the Liberals go back into power.

It was the prospect of a fall session, it was understood, that was one of the main factors in the choice of the Aug. 10 date. Another was the Coronation.

Had it not been for the Coronation, the Prime Minister said at his press conference, "we would probably be in the throes of the campaign right now."

"It was felt," he added, "that, while the Coronation was in progress, the Canadian people should take part whole-heartedly in it. We wanted no partisan feelings aroused during that period."

Canada's 21st Parliament Made History

By JOHN LeBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (P) — Canada's 21st Parliament made history in many fields during almost exactly four years of life.

It thrust Canada along the last few steps to full nationhood, it enlarged the country's activities and influence in international affairs. And on the domestic front it broke new legislative ground in a variety of ways.

Within the forum of the Commons, it pitted Louis St. Laurent and George Drew against each other for their first full parliament as leaders of the two largest parties.

Constitutionally, the longest advance perhaps was in the designation of the Supreme Court of Canada as this country's final court of appeal. Removal of this power from the judicial committee of the British Privy Council set Canada completely on her own except for the intangible tie to the monarch.

Appointment of the first Canadian governor-general was another historic milestone. Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey succeeded Lord Alexander as the viceroy.

A major move on the constitutional side, too, was Parliament's assumption of the power to amend the British North America act in matters of exclusively federal jurisdiction. Previously, this needed the sanction of the British Parliament.

Rounding out Canada's growth as a nation was the first appearance in Parliament of representatives from Newfoundland, brought into Confederation shortly before the 1949 general election.

Yet another "first" was the use of parliamentary powers in the summer of 1950 to order railway employees back to work during a rail strike crippling the nation's economy. Some 125,000 strikers obeyed legislation passed at an emergency session of the houses.

On the international scene, Parliament approved the sending of forces to take part in the Korean police action of the United Nations, the first such move in Canada's non-war history.

The country also sent army and RCAF contingents to Europe as

South Korean Opposition To Armistice Emphasized By Violent Demonstrations

Red Attacks In Korea Stepped Up

Seoul — AP — More than 5,000 Chinese attacked at a dozen points along a 50-mile front in central Korea today, driving Allied troops from main-line positions in one sector.

United States and South Korean infantry battled hand-to-hand with Reds, who stormed into UN trenches and hurled back most of the attackers.

But Associated Press correspondent Milo Farneti reported from the front that one sector of the main Allied line was hastily shifted southward after Reds grabbed vital fortifications.

Farneti said Allied tanks, flame throwers and guns cut down hundreds of the charging Reds but the momentum of the attack carried some Communist troops into Allied trenches.

This was the third straight day of heavy pre-armistice attacks. A latest assault centred on UN lines running through the former Red stronghold called the "iron triangle."

Bitter fighting was reported from Chorwon Mountain above Chorwon east to the Pukhan river.

The day's biggest red blow was aimed at U. S. 3rd division units who have beaten back two days of attacks against outpost Harry, 10 miles northeast of Chorwon.

A full regiment — about 3,000 men — slammed into the outpost today, but withering fire from the U. S. forces stopped the assault.

The 8th army estimated that more than 2,000 Chinese were killed or wounded in attacks on outpost Harry Thursday and Friday.

B-26 light bombers roared to the aid of South Korean soldiers battling the Reds on the east-central sector. The bombers used radar to unload high explosives.

Northwest of Kumhwa, about 1,000 Chinese hit South Korean fortifications about midnight.

The South Koreans mounted a counter-attack behind tanks about three hours later. The vicious fighting was continuing when the last report was received.

Savage fighting also raged near Capitol Hill, where more Chinese attackers grabbed an Allied outpost.

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

Seoul — AP — Violent anti-armistice demonstrations surged through devastated South Korea today and a senior government official told the Allies they could pull out of the Korean war if they wish.

South Korean opposition hit a furious pitch in these rapid-fire developments:

1. The Republic of Korea defence ministry cancelled all military leaves "in view of the grave emergency" and restricted all service personnel to their bases.

2. President Syngman Rhee asserted his bitter opposition to the armistice—which may come within a few days—"to uphold the principles of self-determination." At the same time, however, he called for "utmost efforts to prevent injustices from being inflicted on our Allies."

3. Furious demonstrations swept South Korea for the fifth straight day. Mobs chanting "drive north... drive north..." boiled through Seoul streets. Fist and rock fights erupted. Barbed wire barricades were thrown up in front of Allied correspondents' billets in Seoul where 1,000 Korean war veterans staged a sit-down strike.

Meanwhile, at Panmunjon, two teams of Allied and Communist staff officers whittled at remaining details blocking an armistice. Observers indicated full truce delegations would assemble Sunday or Monday and a truce would follow shortly, barring unexpected developments.

Acting prime minister Pyun Yung Tai, the most outspoken South Korean leader in the anti-truce campaign, said in a statement:

"Foreign forces can... if they so wish, agree to any armistice and disengage themselves from Korea."

"We Koreans cannot disengage ourselves from Korea," South Korea, Pyun said, "cannot and does not accept" the impending truce.

Pyun said of Allied forces: "We will let them go without any grudge against them, rather with thanks for what they have done so far to help us... if we let them have an armistice we ourselves cannot accept, it is only fair that they should not force it upon us."

Pyun warned South Koreans against violence. He cautioned that slips either in action or in speech might lead to serious consequences in this time of crisis and tension.

The 77-year-old Rhee called on the "wounded war veterans committee" to lead the anti-truce drive.

Canadians And French Swap Plans

By BILL BOSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

In Korea — (P) — Franco-Canadian bonds have acquired a new application here—they helped Canadian infantry fight a more efficient war.

When the Commonwealth division was in reserve during February and March a sector of its former front was held by the French battalion, then serving with the 2nd United States infantry division.

One of the French lieutenants, named Poupard, was a keen patriot. He also was something of an artist. To a relief map he was building he progressively transferred the information his hikes in no man's land produced about the terrain.

As the Commonwealth division prepared to resume operations, liaison visits were paid and during their course Brig. M. P. Bogert, then the Canadian brigade commander, and Lt. Col. L. Francois, commanding the 1st battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment, called on Lt. Col. Francois de Germiny, the French commander.

Poupard's map was earmarked for the French archives but the Colonel liked the Canadians and felt they could find it helpful. He offered to Brig. Jean Allard, Bogert's successor, to lend the map was accepted promptly.

Allard was so impressed with the relief map that he decided the Canadians should duplicate it, keeping the French one only long enough to make their own copy.

And then the two commanders, doubtless inspired by their common Gallic feeling for such things, simultaneously had the same thought.

"You'll keep ours," said de Germiny.

"And you'll take ours for your archives," said Allard.

Quebec Will Co-Operate With N.B. On Power Project

Quebec — (CP) — Willingness to co-operate with New Brunswick in the development of hydro-electric power on the Saint John river was expressed Friday by Premier Duplessis.

For the first time since the question has been under study by the International Joint Commission, Quebec's premier indicated his government is ready to look into possibility of harnessing the river's hydro-electric potential needed by New Brunswick.

His announcement Friday, during his weekly press conference, followed a visit by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the I. J. C., and Lucien Dansereau, commissioner. Quebec is being consulted because projected dam erections would probably result in flooding of part of Temiscouata county in the province.

Expressing Quebec's "desire to co-operate for the welfare of our fellow citizens in another province," Mr. Duplessis said any decision of his government would come after "the opinions of the people, religious and civil authorities of Temiscouata are known."

It is only normal that friendly co-operation be the result of an understanding between interested parties which will safeguard the rights and prerogatives of each party, especially those of Quebec and the region concerned," he said.

India Buoyed By Role In Armistice

New Delhi. — (AP) — The invitation for India to play a key role in a Korean armistice is viewed here as a crowning East-West endorsement to the six-year-old foreign policy which Prime Minister Nehru calls "positive and independent on behalf of the cause of peace."

That policy, to steer clear of commitments to either the U. S. or the Soviet bloc, puts India alternately in the bad books of the Americans and the Russians.

Announce Three Winners Of Canadian Literary Awards

London, Ont. — (P) — Winners of three awards for outstanding contributions to Canadian literature — "The President's Medals, University of Western Ontario" — were announced Friday night by Dr. Frank Stilling, chairman of the Governor-General's awards board which administers the medals.

The 1952 winners are: W. O. Mitchell of High River, Alta., for the short story "The Princess and the Wild Ones"; Robert Thomas Allen of Ommeke, Ont., for a general article, "I'm Looking for the Man We Celebrate," and Dr. Norman Ward of Saskatoon, for a scholarly article, "The Formative Years of the Canadian House of Commons."

A second judging panel was required before a decision was made on the general article award. Mr. Allen's article won over that of Dr. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. Dr. Lower's article, "No Class in Canada" appeared in Saturday Night.

Judges in the poetry section ruled that no poem of sufficient merit was submitted to justify an award for 1952.

This is the first year that a medal has been given for a scholarly article, the award going to Dr. Ward. Dr. G. E. Hall, president of Western, said he need for the new medal was evident from the large number of academic pieces submitted in 1951, the initial year of the President's Medals awards.

The medals will be presented June 23 at a special dinner at the University of Toronto.

William Mitchell's prize-winning short story appeared in Maclean's Magazine. He is a native of Weyburn, Sask., and was a writer, magazine editor, school principal, life-guard, salesman, advertising executive and even a deckhand on a Greek freighter before settling at High River. He is best known for his Jake and the Kid stories which first appeared in Maclean's in 1948. His first novel, "Who has Seen the Wind," was published in 1947.

Robert Allen's contribution was published in the Canadian Home

Journal. The 52-year-old native of Toronto began his career in advertising, writing fiction in his spare time. He and his family moved to California in 1946, but returned to Toronto the next year where he re-entered the advertising field. Four years ago he decided to devote all his time to writing and since then has sold about 125 articles to various magazines.

Radar Report

Considerable time has elapsed since a column on news briefs of the Reserve Squadron's activities has appeared. However, this was not due to lack of activities at the local headquarters on Depot street.

The biggest and most important event since the last column appeared was the annual inspection which took place in the William St. Armoury. The inspection was judged to be a real success. A reception was held for G/C Archambault, A.F.C., inspecting officer, and party after the inspection at the Officers Mess.

The Squadron recently lost two of its most popular and active officers. F/O Lloyd Jamieson and F/O Alex Jessum have both moved out of the district to Ontario. They will both be missed at the Squadron. A farewell dance and party was held and everyone enjoyed themselves immensely.

The Unit was recently repainted and those of our friends who have not had occasion to visit us lately will be pleased to find the interior fairly gleaming with fresh new paint.

There was a party in the Air-men's Mess last Saturday night and from reports received in this quarter it was one of the best of many good parties held this year. "Music of Tomorrow" was supplied by Mess President Sgt. Ron Carpenter.

The results of an election of officers recently held in the Air-men's Mess are as follows: Mess president, Sgt. Ron Carpenter; vice-president, Jack Corcoran; bar officer, Sgt. Art Poirier; secretary, A.W. Marge Irvine.

We have two well deserved promotions to report this week, Corporals Poirier and George promoted to the rank of Sgt. Congratulations are extended to recent new proud parents L.A.C. Jerry Aube and Sgt. J. Latourneau. Word has been received that F/O Dennis Vessey has been accepted into the Permanent Force. His work will be doing liaison with the ground observer corps. Dennis will be missed by all his friends at the unit who wish him good luck in his new undertaking.

The newest addition to the Sqdn. is F/O G. Burden of Sherbrooke. F/O Burden flew with the R.C.A.F. during the war as a flight engineer.

Return is expected soon of LAC Fern Laliberte. LAC Laliberte was selected to be one of the lucky few to represent the R.C.A.F. at the Coronation. He should have a fund of good stories to tell about his experiences there.

Congratulations are in order for our newest newlyweds. Good luck to L.A.C. Bruce Doughty and wife Betty and L.A.C. Al Miller and wife AW2 Marge Osborne.

Summer camp this year will be held for two weeks during the month of July. A very good turnout of officers, airmen and airwomen is expected. It is hoped that this year's group will surpass the fine record set up by groups attending in previous years.

After the excellent record established by the Squadron during this year it is hoped that all players will not neglect yet older an ancient game until the new season opens in the fall.

During the summer, the messes will be open to members Friday and Saturday evenings. The last parade and lectures for this season will take place at the Squadron on June 2. As this in all probability will be the last column for this season the "Blip" wishes all of you a pleasant and happy summer.

THE EASTERN TOWNSHIPS
TOURIST INDUSTRY

In a move designed to make the tourist attractions of the Eastern Townships better known, the Sherbrooke Record today is presenting its annual tourist edition which lists the attractions and accommodations which the district provides.

The scope of tourist activity in this district is not generally realized until some determined effort is made to prepare a comprehensive resume of the many phases of this industry. Whether one likes mountain climbing, lake and brook fishing, golfing, or whether one just wishes to take things easy, the Eastern Townships has a spot for him.

The district offers varied facilities, from the de luxe hotel to the most primitive of cabins to meet the desires of each and everyone and the Record hopes that the information listed in this issue will aid the vacationist in fulfilling his wishes.

ENGINEERS CANNOT SAVE
FOOL DRIVERS

The season of bumper-to-bumper vacation motoring is upon us again; and the harassed man behind the wheel is going to have to listen to his annual summer lecture on safe driving.

Hearing that today's automobiles have a higher safety factor than ever before, and seeing more and more modern, multi-lane highways coming into being, the poor motorist must be baffled to realize that his problems are no closer to solution.

Yet in many ways they are not. Motor accident and fatality rates are still high generally.

One obvious reason is that, even with all the new highways, the nation's roads today are vastly overcrowded and getting worse. The driver is lucky whose fenders don't show the effects of this abrasive stream of traffic.

It's an old story by now that the highway builders, for lack of money and time aren't keeping up either with the need for new roads or with the necessity for maintaining the old. Meantime, the motormakers pour millions of new cars onto the existing inadequate network.

But even where highway engineering is of the finest, as in the New Jersey Turnpike, for instance, there is no assurance that accidents will not be far more numerous than they should.

In the first quarter of 1953, this turnpike's accident rate was 66.0 per 100 million miles of travel. As compared with 48.0 for major New Jersey roads in the same period, and with 114.8 on the turnpike in the parallel 1952 span, this record is excellent.

Still, highway specialists don't look on such a record complacently. For they realize — and their investigations support this — that human failures are responsible for virtually all the mishaps. And the story is probably much the same on other super-thoroughfares like the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

In other words, you really can't hope to engineer complete motoring safety. The unpredictable human element stands in the way. If 50 million drivers have not or will not learn all the fundamental driving skills, and practice them constantly, then accidents in discouraging numbers will go on happening.

The unmanageable volume of traffic multiplies many times the accident possibilities, the occasions when any given motorist is exposed to danger.

If he cannot remain continuously alert, watching far in front of him, to the right and left and to the rear, he is almost certain to encounter trouble. No car, no highway, no engineer can protect him from this necessity to be the final guardian of his own safety.

A "ROUGH" DEAL

A man who can really complain of a rough deal from the federal government is 91-year-old Henry W. Newlands, formerly a judge of the Saskatchewan court of appeal and later lieutenant-governor of the province.

In 1921, Mr. Newlands resigned from the bench, and thereupon became entitled to a retirement pension of $6,000 a year. When he took the post of lieutenant-governor, however, payments were withheld; a statute then in force was interpreted to mean that he could not receive his pension and his official salary at the same time. So he received nothing from this source while he held the lieutenant-governorship, from 1921 to 1931.

Many years later, however, it was held in a Quebec case that a retired judge who was appointed lieutenant-governor of a province was entitled to his pension during his term of office. Mr. Newlands accordingly put in his claim for the payments withheld from him during 1921-31, and in 1950 he was awarded $61,047.

Then came the "joker." Before handing over the back payments, the Government collected income tax on it at the 1950 rates, clipping off some $19,000. Not only that, but the payment pushed his total income into higher taxation brackets.

He appealed the department's ruling to the income tax appeal board, arguing that instead of being taxed at 1950 rates, the sum should have been assessed at the rates prevailing in the 1920's, when the money would have been paid except for the Government's own mistake — and when, of course, income tax was still only a minor nuisance.

The board, however, held that the governing factor was the year in which the money was actually paid, not when it should have been paid, so the assessment remains at the 1950 rate.

This is an extreme example, but the same kind of unfairness is experienced by many people who receive in one year the reward for the work of several — writers and inventors, for example. Under the present rule, the whole sum is treated as one year's income and taxed accordingly, with ruinous results.

The Government now allows farmers and ranchers to average their income over several years for tax purposes, and the same privilege should be extended to all similar cases.

TAFT'S FIVE-MONTH RECORD
SHOWS HE HAS OWN PROGRAM

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — While much attention has been paid to reviewing the accomplishments of President Eisenhower's first months in the White House it is equally profitable now to take stock of Sen. Robert A. Taft's half of the administration. Mr. Republican has now been Senate majority leader for five months.

It is true that no later than April 9, Senator Taft told the Republican National Committee that President Eisenhower would be re-elected in 1956. Furthermore, after the Chicago convention last year, Senator Taft said that he had made his last bid for the White House.

Senator Taft is a year older than President Eisenhower. Taft will be 64 in Sept. 8. By election day, 1956, he would be 67. Only one President, William Henry Harrison, at 68, was older on inauguration day. And he died a month after taking office.

But — if President Eisenhower decided not to run in 1956 — or if President Eisenhower tried to toss his torch to someone like Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, whom Taft Republicans hate — or if Senator Taft did not like the way the Eisenhower crowd had been running things —

Well, politicians, like woman, claim a divine right to change their minds. And some of the people to whom the senator has been talking recently have come out of his office saying that he still had ideas about the White House and how it should be run.

Certainly, everything that Senator Taft has said and done in the five months since the Republicans took over has indicated that he has a program of his own — whether Eisenhower has or not. And Taft does not bother to clear his statements with the White House.

Press Meetings Air Taft's Views

President Eisenhower has a press conference only two or three times a month. Reporters on Capitol Hill see Senator Taft two or three times a day. Taft's ideas today are therefore better known than the President's, and there are more of them.

On domestic policies, Senator Taft has in general gone along with the Eisenhower leadership. This has caused many Washington observers to comment that the widely predicted split between the President and the senator simply isn't going to come off.

On foreign policy the harmony hasn't been so close. The most recent incident over the senator's speech on "let's go it alone" in Korea is only the latest of a long series of disagreements. It is on the basis of this record that there is justification for concluding an Eisenhower-Taft split over foreign policy will come eventually.

President Eisenhower is essentially a believer in international cooperation to overcome potential enemies and ensure peace in the world. Senator Taft clings to the idea of making the United States strong internally, basing American defense primarily on that, giving less aid and placing less reliance on foreign allies. Call this policy isolation if you will.

Thus far in the Eisenhower administration it would appear that the senator's point of view has prevailed more often than not.

Scored Before Inauguration

Senator Taft scored his first point even before inauguration. He got from President Eisenhower a promise that no U. S. Commitments would be made to the British in talks with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

There were many misgivings when Senator Taft took a post on the Foreign Relations Committee. For nearly a month thereafter, the senator tipped no apples.

Then President Eisenhower sent to Congress the draft of a mild resolution against Russia's perversion of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements. Senator Taft thought it should be toughened up. He put through an amendment which in effect questioned the validity of those pacts. But instead of making an issue of it, which would have brought on an open Eisenhower-Taft break, the President's resolution was simply allowed to die. It was a Taft victory.

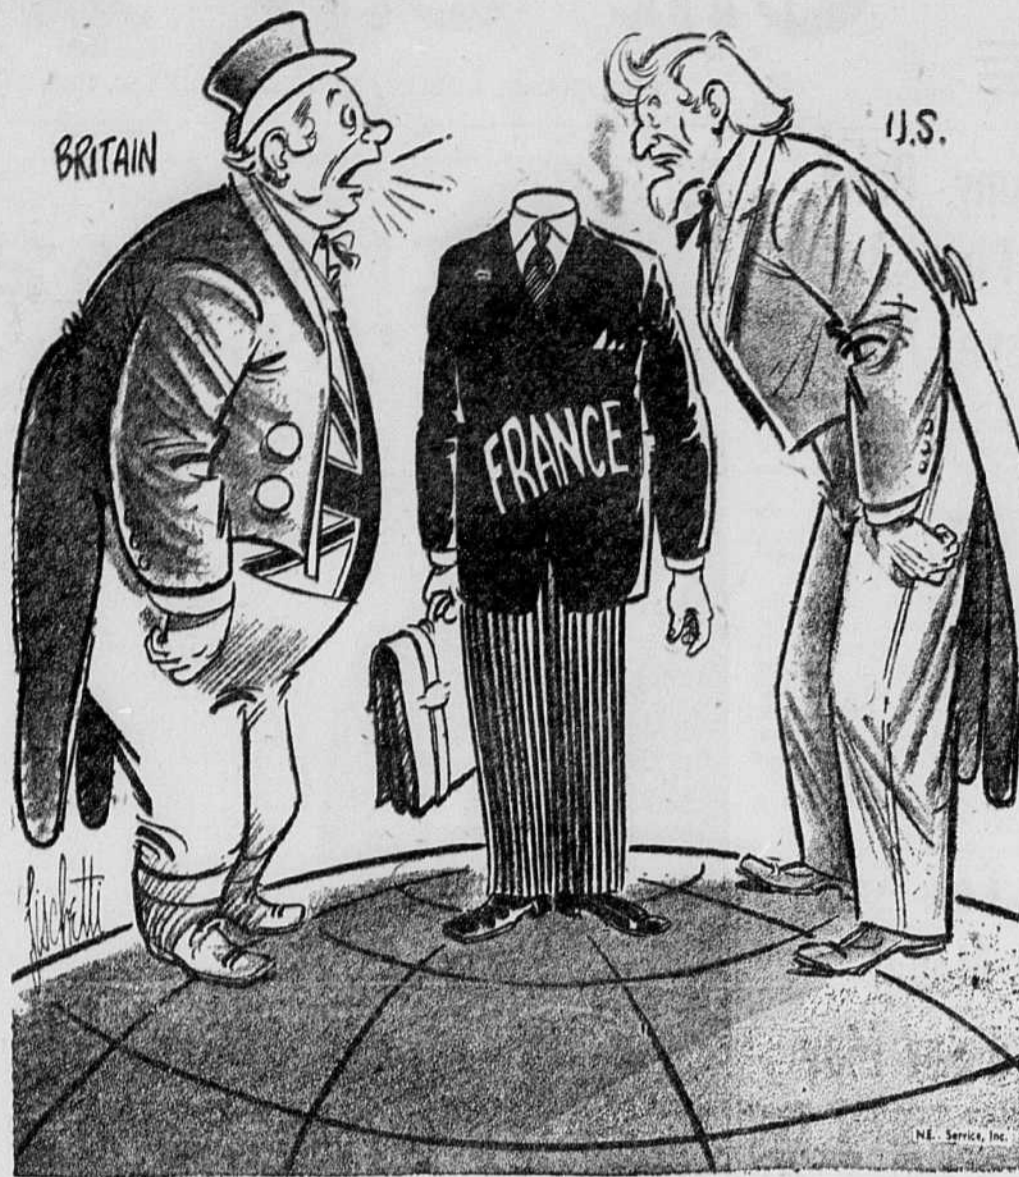

The evolution of Taft's Korea policy is interesting. On Feb. 9, in a radio interview, the senator declared the U. S. was already "at full war" with Communist China. He said a blockade of the China coast was desirable, if it could be worked out.

When Secretary of State John Foster Dulles went before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to soft-pedal such demands, Taft observed that much more aid could be given Asia by reducing the amount given to Europe.

On April 20, Taft expressed the hope that all the problems of Asia could be settled "at one bite" — meaning in one conference. Five weeks later he was to advocate that if truce negotiations in Korea fail, then we should let all our allies know we are withdrawing from all further negotiations. He has much support for this idea.

But that is where President Eisenhower had to say "No!"

Get In The Game

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

An echo of the Coronation ceremony with those 400 voices singing that wonderful anthem: "Be strong and play the man. Keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, walk in his ways" still lingers. "Be strong, play the man" keep haunting me these June days as I think of young people finishing school or college, keep on the adventure of getting into, and playing, the Game of Life.

A CHALLENGE TO YOUTH. Now a wise and all loving Father has provided us with 10 Commandments which if we keep we shall be blessed of God. If we don't, we shall find that the heavens above us will be brass and the earth beneath our feet will be iron.

In order to keep those arresting safe guards afloat, we must practice discipline and self-control. Then shall we succeed in eliminating all that hinders our attaining into a fullgrown man, up to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ (Eph 4: 13). Here is spiritual adventure of the first order, with Christ and His Church standing by, ever ready to supply the means of grace so that we may accept St. Paul's challenge to play the man (1 Cor. 16: 13) and, strong in the Lord of Hosts and in His mighty power become more than conquerors who eventually win the Game and receive the victor's crown.

Your Lord and Master once said: "If we love me, keep the commandments." Won't you do that? The wise old psalmist once declared, they shall prosper that love thee (122: 6). So, if you want such prizes as character, reliability, truth, honor, heroism, self-mastery and success which, in brief, are solid joys and lasting treasures, then diligently keep the commandments. Always be on your guard and

SOME MATH HELPS WIN MANY GAMES

It isn't necessary to be a great mathematician if you want to play good bridge. Nevertheless, it does help a bit to have a reasonable working acquaintance with the probability figures in certain common situations.

Take today's hand for example. South needed four spade tricks to make his game contract. What was the most probable break of the missing 13 spades?

In order to see the importance of this question, let's review the play. West opened the queen of hearts, and was allowed to hold that trick. He continued with the jack of hearts, and South won with the king. South next led the jack of spades, and West covered with the queen.

The "natural" instinct in a situation like this is to win the trick with dummy's king. Natural, but quite wrong.

If you win the first round of spades in the dummy, you will then be able to take exactly three spade tricks unless the missing 13 spades are divided 3-3.

The careful player knows that the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break. A 4-2 break in spades is far from probable. (Just in case you're interested, six missing cards will be divided 3-3 in about 36 per cent of the cases, but will be divided 4-2 in about 48 per cent of the cases.)

The correct play is to let West hold the first round of spades with the queen. It is then possible to win the next trick with the ace of hearts and lead another spade to dummy. Dummy's three high spades will then clear up the suit, after which dummy's last spade will be good for the ninth trick. CARD SENSE Q—With both sides vulnerable, the bidding has been: North East South West 1 Heart 2 Diamonds ? You, South, hold: Spades 7-5, Hearts K-J-5-4-2, Diamond 6, Clubs A-K-6-5-2. What do you do? A—Bid three hearts. You have more than the minimum for this bid, but it would be a mistake to bid your clubs first and raise the hearts next. That would not show the full strength of your trump support and would not reveal your excellent distribution. THE BIDDING IS THE SAME as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 7-5, Hearts K-J-5-4-2, Diamonds 6, Clubs K-7-6-5-2. What do you do? Answer Tomorrow

Settlement Of West German Debts To Be Ratified

Ottawa — (C) — Federal financial officials sounded out on the value of the West German debt settlement plan feel there now is a chance that a lot of Canadian holders of German bonds eventually will get back their money.

Some 500 Canadian corporations and individuals claim they are creditors of Germany, holding at least $1,750,000 worth of bonds and the spiritual life most perfectly, let us thank God: these "walking sermons" show the young how gradually the physical and the intellectual is transformed into the spiritual.

It, such a useful and beautiful ministry, we want them to continue as we play the Game of Life together as a team with all hearts set to obey the unalterable rules—the Ten Commandments—looking unto the Same, all sufficient, never-failing Captain—Jesus Only—and assured of the same reward—the victors crown of life.

So you are invited to get in and play up and play the Game of Life according to the rules of honour specified in the Book of Life—the Bible. Be a good sport and with courage abounding with cheerfulness, your day will end well.

Never forget that God's promise to show loving kindness to all who live Him and keep His commandments (Ex. 20: 6) is not limited to any age group. To young and old then is afforded this golden opportunity to prove their love and devotion to Him Who gave His all for them. Here is spiritual adventure—thrilling, exacting, rewarding—especially directed towards the hero in your soul.

You will never be sorry for what may well be your finest hour in which you resolve to adopt as your motto for the Game of Life—"Be strong and play the man. Keep the commandments of the Lord thy God and walk in His ways."

other forms of indebtedness piling up since the years following the First World War.

Under an agreement signed last February — but still not ratified by the German Parliament — West Germany agreed to make a settlement with 19 countries, including Canada, on some $5,500,000,000 worth of public and private pre-war German debts incurred since the 1914-18 conflict.

When the agreement is ratified, bond evaluation boards likely will be set up in world financial centres to place a price on outstanding debts. Some holdings, such as those expressed in the early 1920 marks, may be valueless; others expressed in deutch marks may be worth only about one-tenth of their value.

But holdings in non-German currency, such as sterling or dollars, may retain their full face value. And a lot of the Canadian holdings are in non-German currency.

These include bonds held under the Dawes loan of 1924 and the Young loan of 1930. Under the agreement the interest rate is reduced but arrears are to be paid in the form of 20-year bonds. In each case the maturity dates are extended, to 1969 from 1949 in the Dawes loan and to 1980 from 1965 in the Young loan.

The agreement also covers settlement on the German Knoverskasse bonds, external bonds issued or guaranteed by German states, municipalities and similar public bodies within West Germany, as well as some Austrian government external bonds.

Bonds for which the West German government will not be responsible under the settlement terms are those of the city of Berlin or of states, municipalities and similar public bodies in Eastern Germany or bonds payable in former German currencies such as the mark or the reichsmark — other than bonds issued and payable outside West Germany denominated in reichsmark.

The terms of settlement are extremely complicated, federal officials say, and persons who want more details should write to the federal finance department or the custodian of enemy property.

Settlement terms were worked out after more than two years of preparatory work and five months of almost continuous negotiations in London.

Besides the various bonds, the agreement also covers a wide range of claims connected with other pre-war debts or obligations, such as those arising out of goods and services transactions and capital transactions, whether payable clause, including claims for pensions, wages and salaries and various bank debts and blocked accounts.

SHORT STORY
A Home For Young Dan

By MAUDE NORMAN

Along the highway trudged a girl. Cradled in her left arm was a blanket-wrapped bundle. From her right hand swung a heavy suitcase.

A car braked to a stop as she paused to rest. "Want a ride?" the driver called.

"The man opened the car door, taking the suit-case from her hand. "Say, that weighs a ton!" he exclaimed. "Don't tell me that's a baby you've got there."

"I'm going to my husband's people. They're really not his own people but they raised him."

"How come they're letting you walk? It's none of my business," seeing her quick flush, "but a fellow can wonder, can't he?"

"They don't know I'm coming," she said. "But I had no other place to go and I thought they might let me stay and work for my board. I want my baby to grow up in the country where he can see things growing, instead of being cooped up in one room in the city."

"That's rich. You're leaving the city for the country and I'm doing just the opposite."

"You mean you're leaving all this?" her hand indicated the green fields they were passing.

He laughed harshly. "Looks pretty, doesn't it? But there's a lot of hard work goes with it."

"You work hard in a city too."

"Sure — but you know where you're at. Here, you work your head off, then a freeze comes along or a hail storm or something and all your hard work is gone. I used to have great plans about what I would do on my farm when I got out of the service. Say, what's the matter with him? Is he sick?" as a loud wail issued from the blanket.

"No, he's cold and wet and hungry, hushing the baby."

"Back to the farm—to give you a chance to take care of the baby and rest a bit yourself. You needn't be afraid, my aunt and uncle are there."

"I'm not afraid," she retorted. "You look just like a picture my husband had of a buddy of his only you're hair isn't red as his must have been, because Dan always called him 'Red'." She smiled. "He was always talking about his wonderful Red."

The car almost went into the ditch. "Say, what's your husband's name?"

"Dan Webster."

"Well, I'll be darned! No wonder your face is familiar. You're Sally! Dan had a picture of you he was always showing me. So you're Sally! What d'ya know!"

"You're not—"

"Sure, I'm Red. The fellows called me that because my face gets red so easily—Say—where is old Dan? We lost sight of each other when he was sent to the Pacific and I was kept in France. Why are you alone? He's not—?"

She nodded.

Red was silent until they had turned into the driveway of a pleasant old farm house. "Here we are," he said cheerfully, getting out. "Take care of young Dan and I'll have Aune Sarah fix you a lunch of those eggs and that milk you were talking about."

"And you're leaving all this," she breathed, "for the city?"

"None. I've changed my mind. I guess all that was wrong with me was, I was lonesome. I've been thinking, Dan was my best friend and I don't believe he'd mind me taking care of his wife and baby—that is, if she's willing. How about it, Sally? I know it's a crazy thing to ask, but I somehow I think Dan would rather you stay here and help Aunt Sarah than go to those slave-drivers. And who knows what will happen in a year or so. After all, young Dan will need a father. I think you'll like it here, Sally."

"Yes, I think Dan would be pleased," she said softly.

Anglican Synod Session is Held In Quebec City

Quebec — The ordination of James Fisk, a student of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, as a deacon of the Church of England, was a feature of the closing day of 48th session of the Quebec Diocesan Synod held in the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity. The deliberations of the church council closed on Thursday. The new deacon will serve at St. Peter's Church, Sherbrooke.

The highlight address of the Synod was delivered by Rt. Rev. H. B. Donigan, Lord Bishop of New York, who spoke on "The Primary Tasks of the Church."
"The battle for the soul of mankind is not fought in the churches alone, but in industry, the college campus, in education, in the home—in the places where the people live," Bishop Donigan declared, continuing.

"There is a growing interest in religion. People are seeking for answers to their problems and only religion can give it to them."
About 100 representatives of the clergy and laity of the Anglican Church gathered for the opening session presided over by Most Rev. Philip Carrington, Archbishop of Quebec. In his charge, the Archbishop reviewed the church's activities since the last session held in Sherbrooke, May 21, 1951, and outlined the church's connection with the Crown and pledged loyalty and allegiance to Queen Elizabeth on behalf of his people.

He explained, however, that while the Church of England was the established church in England, this was not the case here.
"The oath of allegiance which the clergy of our church take on their ordination is primarily an oath of loyalty and allegiance to the constitutional government of the country," he explained.

It also bears witness to the spiritual alliance which has existed between Church and State from earliest times, he went on to say. Quebec shares with Three Rivers, Levis, Drummondville and Hatley the distinction of being a Crown rectory.

The first Diocesan Synod was formed in 1859 to consider the problems of the diocese and make decisions on points of policy. About half of the expenditures, the Bishop stated, are within the diocese. The other half goes toward the work of the church elsewhere in Canada and overseas.

Discussing the new Prayer Book which has been under revision for some time, the archbishop said a draft will be submitted to the General Synod in 1955. While revised forms of the baptism and marriage services have been issued and may be used in churches, they are not necessarily final. The revised form of the service of holy communion is for study only, not for optional use in churches.

The new translation of the Bible published in the United States of America, while praiseworthy, has not been approved for reading in churches. Archbishop Carrington suggested the possibility that the question of authorising the new American translation may be considered at the provincial or general synod.

The next provincial synod will take place at Rothesay, N.B., for the second week in September. Although suffering from the general shortage of clergy, the Quebec diocese compares favourably with those in the Canadian Church generally. The ratio of clergy to congregation in Canada is one to 760. The Quebec diocese has one clergyman for every 425 members.

The need for greater zeal in the missionary field was stressed. But, the archbishop pointed out, the clergy lay between paying the missions, or supplying clergy to all the missions and paying them less. New missions established since the last Synod are Seven Islands and Murdochville. A new congregation has been formed at Donacona.

Camp this year for the Order of Servants of the Holy Spirit will be held the last week in June at North Hatley. Special prayers and support were urged for the Anglican missions in India, with a specific request for $200 as a token contribution to Bishop Jacob of Central Travancore.

An Anglican congress at Minnesota Aug. 4-14, 1954, will be the first time that a gathering representative of the whole Anglican communion has been held outside the British Isles. Three delegates may be sent from each diocese.

Natal province in South Africa was settled in 1824 by a small party of English men at Durban. The valley of the Nile varies in width from half a mile in the south to more than 10 miles in the north.

days with their families which they cannot now easily change.

"They need those holidays and the law has made it possible for them to get away by assuring holidays with pay. The government says that it is ready to place the facts before the people; invites their judgment, and then denies to the people the means of judgment."
"It has carefully planned the date of this election so that the people will have as little chance as possible to get the facts. It also denies to a great many any chance to join in discussions, debates and other education activities which are part of democracy itself."
"Having hidden the truth from Parliament, they now seek to hide the truth from the people."
"This simply means that they are trying to drive the nation in blinkers so they can stay in the driving seat. The government now has three months to consider to every Canadian who believes in the real processes of democracy."

Treasure Island Is Staged By BCS Prep Boys

Bishop's College School Preparatory School last night took a large assembly of parents and visitors back to days of youth and pioneering with the presentation of the Robert Louis Stevenson story, "Treasure Island," a three act play directed by J. G. Gordon.

Le Petit Chaperon Rouge directed by Mrs. R. Smith served as a curtain raiser that kept the house involuntarily giggling at the capers of a Red Ridinghood and completely competent wolf.

Treasure Island as seen on the B.C.S. stage showed scenes at the Admiral Benbow Inn, near Bristol, aboard the ship Hispaniola, a clearing in the woods on Treasure Island and the stockade all of which had a capable stage crew to thank for so much obvious success.

The story, a theme woven in and out of the cut-throat pirating days begins in a tavern where the unsuspecting hero is to be found. Bar-tender of the inn, Jim Hawkins played by Fraser Baillie, keeps himself busy throughout the play by tilting the rum bottle for customers and pacifying fierce pirates.

Eventually the pirates lose their leaders and their organizations cease to disintegrate. This leaves the map to Treasure Island still a mystery but fired by the excitement of it all and with a knowledge of the island's location, a retinue of a Squire played by John Laing, a captain to govern the ship, Peter McLagan, a Doctor Livesey, Douglas Bassett, a soft hearted rogue named Long John Silver as first mate played by John McLernon and a host of wicked opportunists that make up the crew take off for Treasure Island to seek out the treasure.

A plotted mutiny is discovered by Jim Hawkins. On pretense of being a traitor to his captain, Jim joins the smoldering mutineers who have the added advantage besides number, of possessing a map that will uncover the treasure.

At last the treasure is found. Jim reports the whole thing to the Captain, Doctor and Squire, the situation is taken in hand and the curtain falls.

Remaining members of the cast not mentioned are as follows: Hinky Prescott as Billy Bones; neighbours, Deane Nesbitt, Scott MacCulloch, Billy MacDonald and Nicholas Brown; Mrs. Hawkins, Brian Vincent; boy, David Coburn; Black Dog, John Alexander; Pew, Michael Alexander; Israel Hands, Brandon Badger; George Merry played by John Baird; Tom Morgan by Grant Johnston; Dick Johnson, Bill Sewell; Redruth by Scott MacCulloch; Joyce by Billy MacDonald; Hunter by Nicholas Brown; Abe Gray by Michael Byers; Job Anderson by Robin Pitcher; and Ben Gunn played by Peter Gillespie.

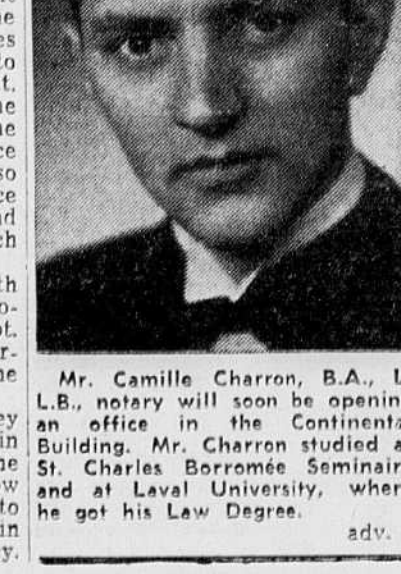

Cast for Le Petit Chaperon Rouge were Neil Henderson as Mother; Hal Prescott as Red Ridinghood; wolf, Kingsley Jamieson, Woodchopper, David Patriquin; Announcer, Francis Brown and Stage Manager, Jimmy Clarke.

Stage crew of Treasure Island were stage manager, David Bassett; lights, Rodney Smith; property manager, Norman Webster; prompter, David Coburn; assistants, Tommy Prescott, Peter Mitchell and Alan Zigby.

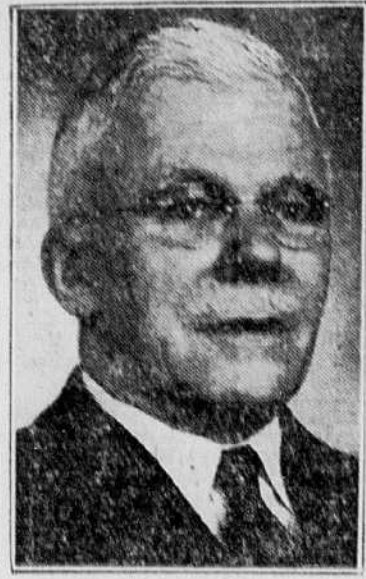

AYER'S CLIFF
Mr. Charles Libby will be at home to his friends and relatives on the occasion of his 92nd birthday tomorrow from three to five in the afternoon.

"I shall open the campaign in Guelph next Friday night."
Mr. Goldwell's statement:
"The calling of the general election on Aug. 10 will disfranchise many thousands of Canadians."
"In the big industrial centres, I understand, many plants will be closed during the first two or three weeks in August to give employees an opportunity for relaxation at various holiday spots. Teachers and others will be on vacation at that time. Many will be unable to return to vote."
"Then, too, thousands of farmers will be harvesting hay, fruit and other early crops."
"Consequently the election results may not be as representative of the will of the people as they should be."
"If it were not for the inconvenience of the date to many, we would welcome the opportunity for Canadians to express their opinions at the polls at the earliest possible date."

Coronation Day was a pleasant day here, when flags and bunting shared with the beauty of a rare June day to make this "green and pleasant" village recapture the Coronation mood. All the stores displayed flags. Flags from private residences revealed the patriotism of those within. The barber shop window of Lionel Gaudreau was particularly attractive with a Coronation picture artistically draped. Perhaps the happiest of all were the school children who spent the day picnicking. Others went fishing, camping, motorizing, visiting, listening to the radio and watching TV. It was a family day for the spirit of the British Commonwealth of Nations and Empire is basically that of a family. All in all, June 2 was a day which the oldest were grateful for the privilege of witnessing the beginning of another Elizabethan era. A day, too, which the

OBITUARIES

MRS. ERNEST A. BORIGHT, OF FARNHAM

Farnham, June 13.—Funeral services were held at the Mailbox Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon, June 3, for Mrs. Ernest Arthur Boright, who died on May 30.

Mrs. Boright was the former Marion Alice Kathan, daughter of the late Orville and Lucy Shufelt Kathan, formerly of East Farnham.

She is survived by her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Ormond Mesker, of Springfield, N.J., and Mrs. M. Malak, of Chicago, Ill.; and one son, Leroy Kathan Boright, of Farnham; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Kreye, of Edmonton, Alta., and Miss Dora Kathan, of North Andover, Mass.; four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Prince of Farnham. Fall-bearers were brother Messons of Mr. Boright, from Browne Lodge No. 24, F. and A.M. Burial took place at Riverside Cemetery, East Farnham.

MRS. ISABELLA WINSLOW

One of Sherbrooke's highly respected citizens, Mrs. Isabella Winslow, wife of Edward J. Winslow, passed away at the home of her son, Douglas E. Winslow, recently. She had been in failing health for nearly three years, and for the past six months was confined to her bed.

The funeral was held at the John's Funeral Home on May 12, with the Rev. R. C. Tait officiating. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends. A special solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," a favorite of Mrs. Winslow, was rendered by Fred Sangster.

The bearers were, H. Griffith, B. Coie, J. Tomlinson, C. Gordon, J. Mitchell and T. Molyneux. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Interment took place in the family lot in Westbury cemetery.

The late Mrs. Winslow was born in 1877 at Louisa, Argenteuil County, the third daughter of the late Thomas Matthews and Sara Boyd Matthews. She spent the early part of her life in Louisa until 1903, when she moved to the Eastern Townships with members of her family. There she lived for the remainder of her life, except for a few years spent in Nashua, N.H., and Amesbury, Mass. On June 29, 1910 she was married at East Angus to Edward Winslow of Nashua, N.H.

Mrs. Winslow leaves to mourn her daughter, Marjorie Winslow Walton, of Port Hope, Ont.; a son, Douglas E. Winslow, of Sherbrooke; a daughter-in-law, Helen Winslow; a son-in-law, Frank Walton; and eight grandchildren. She also leaves five sisters and one brother; Mrs. T. Campbell, Annie; Mrs. Thomas Matthews Jr., Lottie; Mrs. William Rogers, Lily; Mrs. Gilbert Crosby, Sadie; Mrs. Cecile Gilbert and Mrs. William Murphy, Jnez.

There remain also several nieces, nephews and cousins. Her only surviving aunt is Mrs. Stewart Boyd, of Lacute.

Mrs. Winslow was a woman of sterling character and fortitude and she will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

"We watched you suffer,
We heard you sigh,
We could do nothing,
But just stand by,
But when you left us,
We suffered too,
Because you did not deserve,
What you went through."

MRS. LOIS REBECCA THOMPSON

Friends were saddened to learn of the passing in Sherbrooke on May 2 of Mrs. Lois Rebecca Thompson, formerly of Hanover, N.H.

Mrs. Thompson was born in North Stoke on September 3, 1877, the oldest daughter in a family of eight children born to Henry Jenkinson and his wife, Cynthia Adams, all of whom predeceased her. Her early life was spent at North Stoke. In December, 1906, she was united in marriage to the late John Stewart Thompson at Sherbrooke, by Rev. Charles Deeprose.

Mr. Thompson predeceased her January 31, 1952, at their home on the Goose Pond Road in the town of Hanover, N.H., where they had lived since 1913.

Mrs. Thompson had been a paralytic invalid for the past few years and had made her home in Sherbrooke since May 1952, with a foster-daughter, Mrs. Cuthbert Somers, nee Myrtle Thompson, where she passed away.

The funeral service was held at the R. L. Bishop Funeral Chapel in Sherbrooke with the Rev. Canon Russell Brown officiating. Interment was in Lynde, N.H., at the High Street Cemetery beside her husband and was under the direction of William Godfrey. The commitment service was conducted by Rev. Holland Maughan. The beautiful flowers reflected the love and esteem of friends and loved ones.

Cambridge, England.—Five soldiers suffered fractured arms in a highway accident. Their arms had been hanging over the side of an army vehicle when it was side-swiped by a truck.

London.—Souvenir teapots from the George I and George II coronations, and a ticket to Westminster Abbey for the coronation of George IV were among exhibits at the antique dealers' fair in Kensington. There was also a piece of Queen Victoria's wedding cake in a silver box.

On June first Miss Pat Morrison, a June bride-to-be was guest of honor at one of the season's loveliest pre-nuptial surprise kitchen showers, given by Mrs. Earl Caunter and Mrs. Clifford Bryant at the latter's home on Newton street.

In keeping with the Coronation theme, the color scheme in the living-room was carried out in purple and gold, purple iris and gold lighted candles forming the decorations. The gifts artistically wrapped in purple with gold lacy ribbon and bright nosegays ties were presented from under a gaily decorated parasol.

Bingo and bridge added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Europe And U. S. TV Link May Be Realized Soon

By WAYNE OLIVER
New York (AP)—It now is technically feasible to build a live television network connection with Europe in as little as two years but the cost remains a huge obstacle, says an industry expert.

W. W. Watts, a vice-president of Radio Corporation of America, says "I don't know if private enterprise can afford or would want to finance it alone."

But Watts foresees probably large military and other benefits from such a connection, which also would provide hundreds of other communications circuits.

There are several possible ways of setting up a TV link with Europe, says Watts, but he believes the most practical would be up through the arctic where the water gaps are the shortest.

Microwave radio relay towers of the type now in wide use on TV network routes could be set up over the land portions of the route to Europe, he says, and cable employed to bridge the water gaps too wide to be spanned by microwave.

Such underwater use of cable for TV has been made possible, he says, by development of repeaters or amplifiers that operate with transistors requiring only a fraction of the power needed for vacuum tubes now used in repeaters. Herebefore, a cable capable of carrying TV signals could not be used any great distance under water because of the large quantity of electric power required to push current out to the most distant underwater repeaters.

It would be possible, he declares, to build such a link to Europe by a route on which the longest water gap would be 290 miles.

An alternative route could be up through Alaska, across the narrow Bering strait, and through Russia's Siberia into Western Europe, he says.

Watts says global TV would be a great force for peace and international good will "when we can see what's going on in Moscow and they can see what's going on in New York."

If such a link were in existence now, Canadian and American TV viewers would have been able to watch the Coronation Tuesday as it happened instead of waiting for films to be flown across the ocean.

The bride who was unattended, was given in marriage by Mr. Louis F. Codere of Sherbrooke. She wore a smart white linen suit with Nile green accessories and her flowers were green carnations.

David Fisher Of Waterloo High School Made A Fine Showing At Track Meet

Waterloo, June 13.—David Fisher, the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Fisher, of Waterloo, was a contestant in the Dominion Inter-scholastic Track and Field Meet held in Molson's Stadium in Montreal, on Saturday, representing the Waterloo High School.

Entering three events, David brought much glory to his home school and himself by performing admirably in every event, and it was felt that had not the schedule been so arranged so as to interfere with the events he was entered in, the results may have been even more favorable.

In the one hundred yard dash, David won the first heat, and came fifth in the finals.

In the two hundred twenty yard sprint, David won his first heat but was eliminated in the semi-finals, and in the broad jump he placed second in the finals with a fine showing of sixteen feet eight inches.

David was also entered in the shot put, but had to give up this event as it ran simultaneously with one other event in which he was performing.

Congratulations are due David Fisher on his excellent showing and next year, with this year's experience behind him, he should do even much better in those events which he chooses to enter.

Educational TV Is "There To Stay" In The United States

By HERB ALTSCHULL
Washington (AP)—The educational television people are a happy lot these days. They figure they've passed the "peasant with a petition" stage.
That's the essence of a report completed here by the National Citizens Committee for Educational Television.

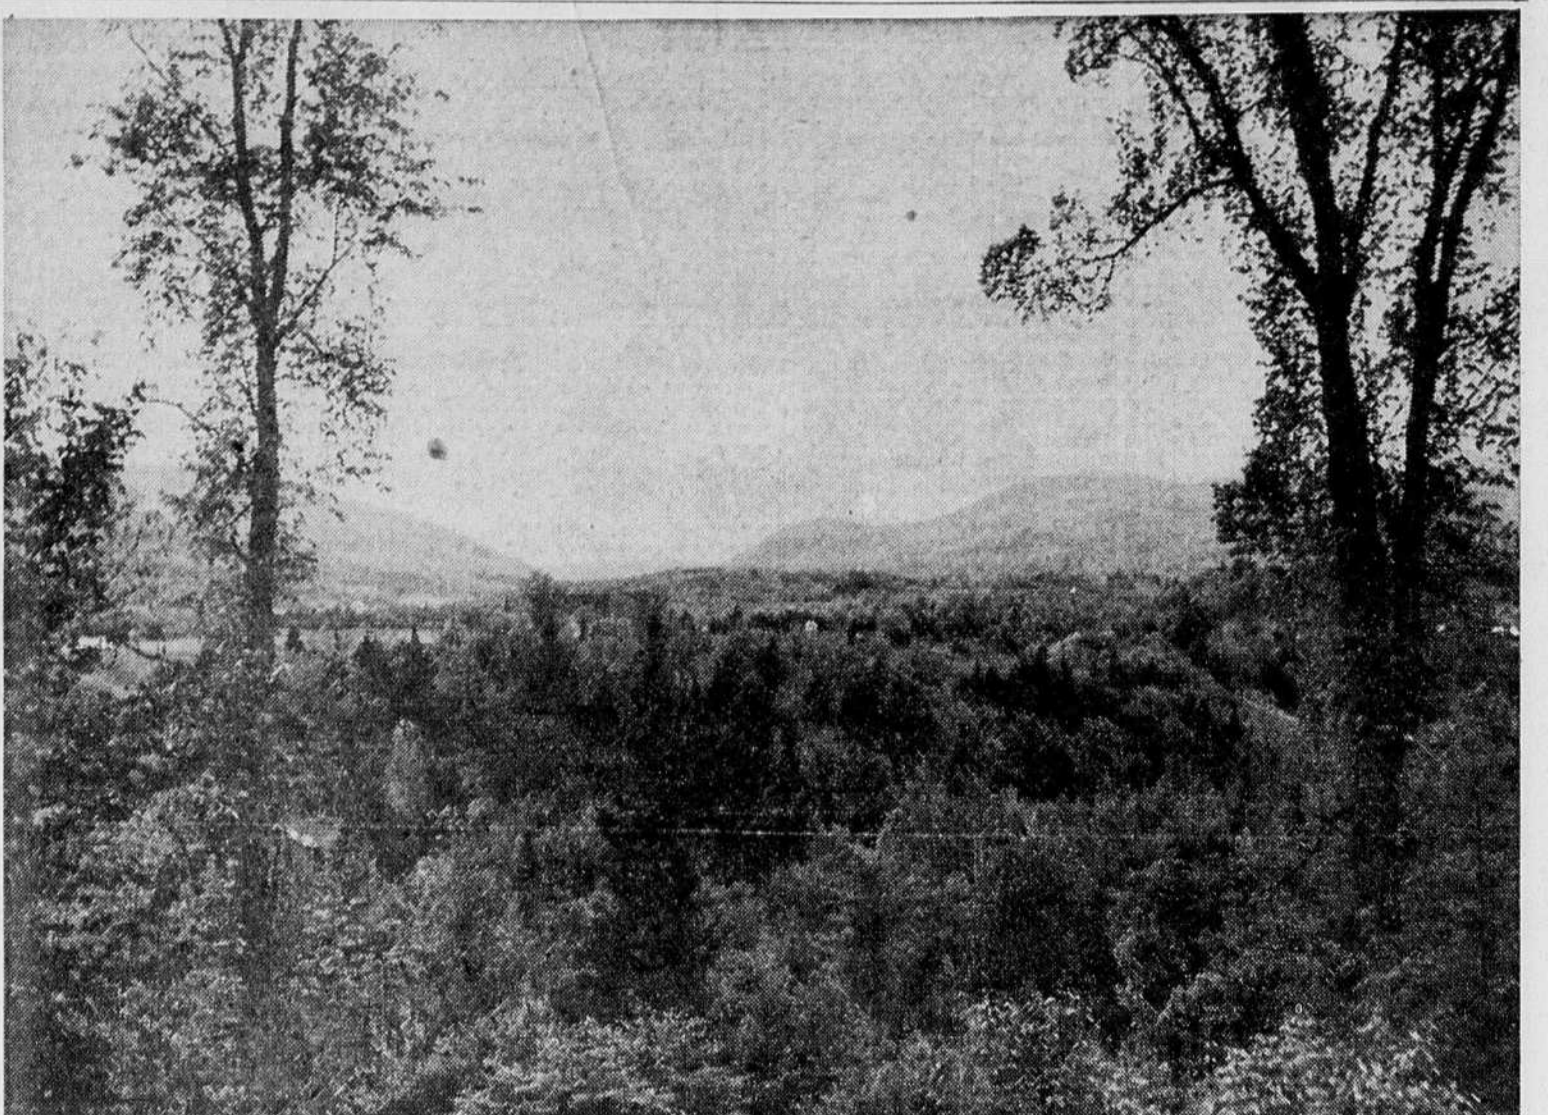

The report was prepared for the committee's co-chairmen, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State College, and Marion Folsom, under-secretary of the treasury. It's a progress report in the world of educational TV. Here's what the committee reported:
Forty seven applications for educational TV permits have been filed with the federal communications commission.

The commission has issued 17 grants for educational TV channels.
One station is on the air, in Houston, Tex., another, in Los Angeles, expects to begin operations within the next two weeks.
The education TV people, once fearful of ever getting their program under way, now are convinced they're in the business to stay. It has been feared that the commercial people would go all out to wreck the movement.

But, said Ralph Steele, executive director of the Joint Council on Educational Television, a group made of seven educational associations banded together to work for the new medium.
Steele said many commercial groups have actively aided the educational people. The federal communications commission set aside 244 channels exclusively for educational applicants a year ago.

Steele said educational people are hampered by raising money and ensuring the kind of programming that will be able to hold its own in competition with commercial channels.
Dr. George Stoddard, president of the University of Illinois, predicts that the educational TV shows will be so good they'll force the commercial people to raise their standards.

Mills Banfill who was working in the fields below the mountain on top of which the spring is located. Noticing the peculiar taste of the water, he followed the rill to its source and found the water emerged from a crevice in a huge rock.
People began to come from far and near to drink of and bathe in the water, claiming to receive great benefits therefrom. The McManis Hotel, at the entrance to Bolton Pass, and private houses reaped a tourist harvest.
About 1875 a hotel was constructed near the spring by W. H. Green, later selling it to a Mr. Wright who enlarged it to contain 24 sulphur spring water bathrooms, each of which was supplied by water direct from the spring. This hotel was burned down about 25 years ago and never rebuilt.
The old Orford Mountain Railway, which at one time had a station between the burned hotel and the spring, has been abandoned, but fine highways now connect the site with the principal centres of the United States and Canada, and it is hoped that some day a new hotel will emerge to provide for the needs of would-be visitors, attracted by the curative properties of the water and the unparalleled scenery.

South Bolton District Attracts Prospectors But Still Remains One Of Townships' Beauty Spots

By CUTHBERT JONES
Although the name "Potton Springs" might mean little to the great majority of today's younger generation, the words recall for the older folk memories of one of the great health and holiday resorts which flourished in the Eastern section of Brome county near the thriving village of South Bolton for almost half a century.
Here flourished a great summer hotel which attracted patronage from all parts of Eastern Canada and the New England States—the guests being attracted as much by the health-giving qualities attributed to the waters of the highly-mineralized springs on the property as by the remarkable scenery of the district, set amid the hills bordering the western shores of Lake Memphremagog.

But about 25 years ago, the hostelry, with a capacity for over 200 guests, was burned to the ground and today all that remains of the establishment is a wooden structure with fourteen rooms on the ground floor and what had been the dance hall on the upper storey.

The property is occupied by J. F. Isherwood, a native of Colorado, who came to this district about fifteen years ago on a brief visit but with the exception of short trips to the United States has remained here ever since. Mr. Isherwood, with his sister, Mrs. Hamilton, of South Bolton, are owners of the property and are hopeful that in the not-too-far-distant future, means may be found of rebuilding the hotel and restoring the district to its former glory.

But, in the opinion of Mr. Isherwood, mining holds more importance for the future of Bolton and Potton townships than even a revived tourist industry. A few years ago, the Quebec Copper Corporation Ltd. took over a series of abandoned mines in the Eastman area, a few miles to the north, and their development work has revealed many impressive mining prospects.

The success which has greeted their efforts has caused a veritable staking boom and within the past year, over 2,000 acres of land has been staked for prospecting purposes between the Quebec Copper property and the Potton Springs site. On the 170 acres comprised in Mr. Isherwood's property, on which he holds base metal rights, several interesting surface showings of copper zinc and pyrite have been discovered and he is spending the greater part of his time in seeking the mining development.

Aside from the copper zinc and pyrite, there is an important deposit of red-burning pottery clay on the property which is sold to the schools throughout the province and to individuals interested in pottery production. Mr. Isherwood himself does considerable modelling work.
A short distance from the Potton Springs property, C. A. Randall, the enterprising mayor of South Bolton, is carrying out an impressive program for the development of the tourist trade. He has dammed a stream running through his property to create an attractive artificial lake and has established a private trout pond. He is building a number of cottages, all designed to blend into the wild scenery of the mountainous district.

The sulphur spring was first discovered about 1828 by Watson

Canadian Singers Are Impressed By Coronation Pomp

London. — (CP) — Hamilton-born Ernest Rosser, no traditionalist, admits that the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey gave him "a catch in the throat."
Rosser, a tenor, used to spectacle and pageantry, was one of the nine Canadians in the Westminster choir on Coronation Day. "The ant-then often stuck in my throat at the splendor of the ceremony," he said later.

Like baritone Haydn John of Toronto, Rosser's seat gave him a good view of central activities and the crowning ceremony.

"I shall never forget it," Rosser said in an interview.

John, now studying opera at London's Guildhall of Music, said he can "appreciate the strain the Queen went through."

Both said the Queen did not look over-tired as she walked down the aisle after the ceremony. "Just all tensed up," added Rosser.

This 37-year-old Canadian has seen most members of the Royal Family more than once. Since the Covent Garden Opera company started in 1943, Rosser has been a member of the choir and is now its chairman. He sometimes plays supporting roles such as the first Jew in "Salome."

Recipe For Wilted Lettuce Given By Agriculture Dept.

Ottawa.—When the department of agriculture, consumer section, starts recommending "that old-fashioned favorite wilted lettuce"—it's time to investigate.
But wilted lettuce they said and wilted lettuce they mean.

And here's the recipe which should serve six:

Six slices of chopped bacon; one half cup chopped onion; one-third to one-half cup vinegar; 1 teaspoon sugar (optional); 10 cups leaf lettuce; 2 quarts broken into large pieces; salt and pepper to taste.

Cook the chopped bacon until it is crisp and brown. Add chopped onion to hot fat and saute the onion until it turns yellow. Now add one-third to one-half cup vinegar, depending on how tangy you like it and add the sugar, if desired.

When the vinegar is heated, add half lettuce, cover pan and cook until the lettuce is just wilted, but no longer.

Season with salt and pepper and serve hot.

Potatoes are the largest single crop in New Brunswick agriculture, with a value of $17,200,000 in 1951.

Whooping Cough Upsets Growth Of Fifteen-Year-Old

Clermont, Ky. — (AP) — At 3½, Billy Greenwell caught whooping cough. Until then, he had been a normal youngster.

Today, Billy is 15, weighs 402½. That's a pound more than he weighed last week. He'll weigh a pound more next week at his present rate of growth, 50 pounds a year.

The whooping cough apparently upset Billy's glandular balance. A doctor recommended corrective injections, but they were too expensive. So Billy just grew and grew.

He would like to play ball and the other games but he simply can't pack all that weight around. So more and more he's content to sit and read, or look at television. He stopped going to school because the horse-drawn wagon which served as a school bus shook him too much. But he's bright and reads everything he can.

Billy's father, a 190-pound distillery mechanic buys his son size 20 shirts. Billy's appetite is just as big as his shirts.

His mother tries to discourage overeating but Billy's idea of an ideal meal is boiled potatoes, beans, macaroni, biscuits, an orange drink, cake and pie. He also likes oranges, apples, bananas, wieners, bologna and peanuts.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wright was accompanied to Ayer's Cliff by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Henderson, to the latter's home.

Big City Transits Gradually Making Change To Diesels

New York. — (AP) — Hop aboard a bus in almost any large city today, and chances are you'll be riding in a vehicle that burns diesel oil.

Cost-conscious transit companies caught in a tightening squeeze between mounting operational expense and public resistance to fare increases, are looking to cheap diesel fuel as a way out.

Diesel buses are gradually replacing their gasoline-powered counterparts in big-city transportation systems, transit experts say. Manufacturers' statistics show how the trend is going.

From 1945 through 1947, new gasoline buses sold outnumbered diesels by more than two to one. In 1948 it was nip and tuck. Since then, diesels have dominated. Of the 12,245 new buses purchased by U. S. transit companies from 1948 on, 4,100 were powered by gasoline, 845 by liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) and 7,300 were diesels.

Trackless trolleys—rubber-tired vehicles which derive their power from overhead electric wires—are not included in the computation.

LPG has been found an economical fuel in cities near natural gas fields where the cost of transporting the bottled gas is low.

Townships Have Everything You Want On Holiday

Shower Is A Boom To Whole Family Especially To "Summer Athletes"

Summer is the time for active sports. There's no doubt about it, even those of us who are past the time of life when we want to indulge in skating, skiing and other "frigid" pastimes, still feel the urge to take tennis racquet in hand as soon as the sun begins to beat warm on our backs.

And in the household where there are children or teen-agers, summer provides a constant stream of budding athletes coming home from baseball diamond, tennis court or a dozen and one other arenas of athletic prowess.

Chances are the first place they head for is the bathroom. Because, after active exercise, there's nothing like a tub or shower to refresh and invigorate.

But many families are beginning to experience the convenience and pleasure of a separate shower room. According to The Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, advances in the field of shower production, and particularly shower cabinets, have brought these former luxuries within the range of the family in the moderate income bracket.

Imagine the convenience of a shower installed in the basement, ground floor or garage. Homcoming athletic stars, instead of trailing through the house and upstairs to shower and change, could do so as soon as they got into the house.

And what a break this would be for mother, whose arduous duty it usually is to clean up the bathroom after the bathroom has been used to clean up junior.

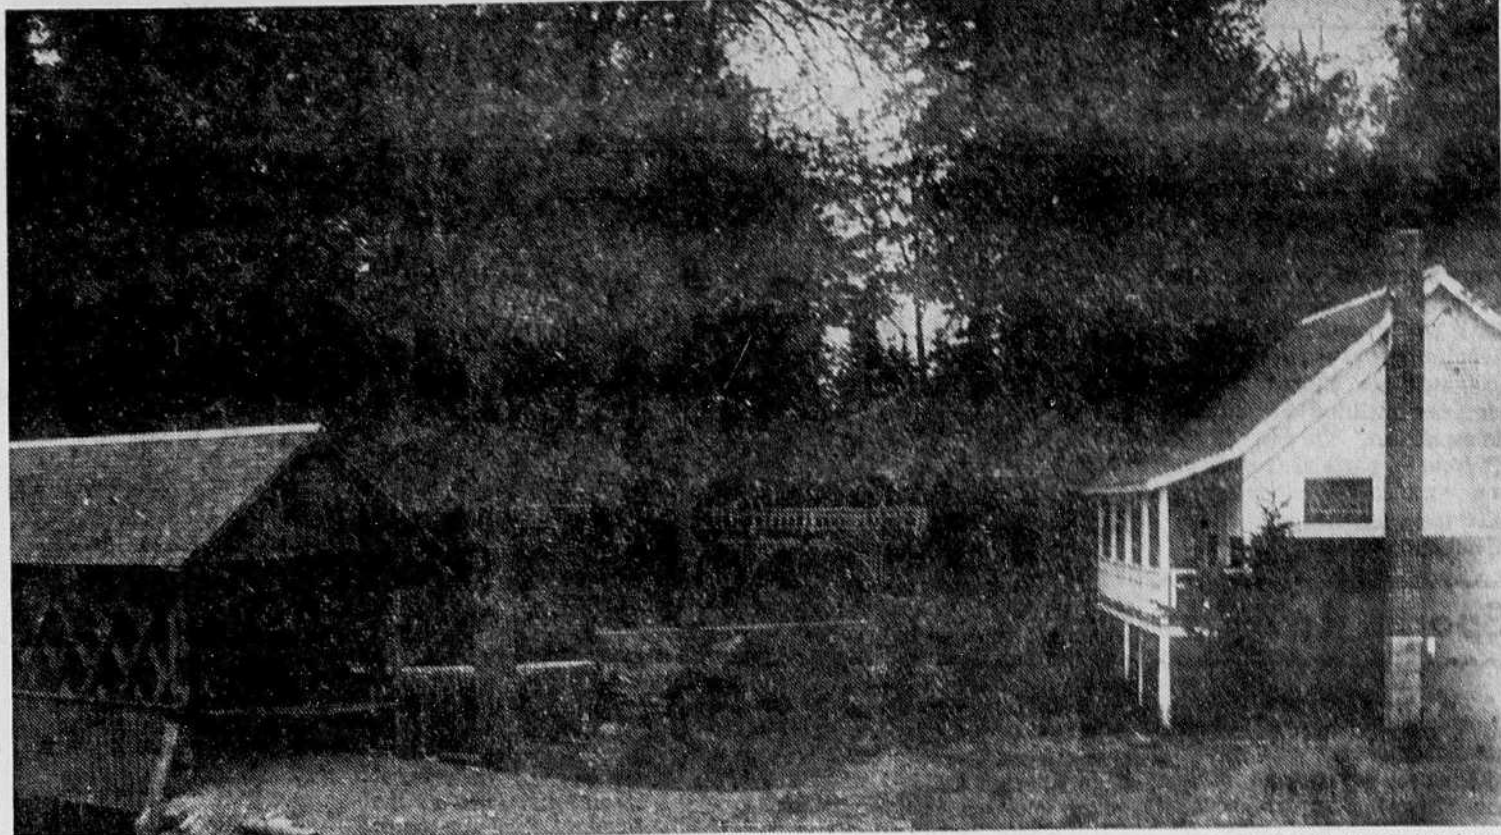

Showers can be installed with reasonable ease in a spare corner of the basement, or perhaps in a cupboard or under-stairs space that isn't being put to any particularly good use. And the introduction of the self-contained shower cabinet makes the problem of installation even more simple.

These cabinets are usually shipped "knocked down" and can be assembled and installed at quite low cost. They are water tight, to prevent damage to floors by dampness, and need only be connected with the water supply at one end, and the drain at the other. If located near existing water and drainage pipes, this presents little difficulty.

Apart from the refreshing qualities of the cool shower after sports, the shower cabinet can also provide the athlete with the luxury of a steam room. With modern adjustable shower valves, it is easy to direct the steam against a side or back wall. The bather then sits on a stool away from the stream of water, and turns on the shower steaming hot. Within minutes, he has a steam bath equal to the best.

In houses where the installation of a separate shower room is impractical, the combination tub and shower may fill the bill. Many people who prefer a tub bath still like to rinse off with a shower. If the tub is not fitted with a shower, installation is not nearly as difficult as some people imagine.

While it is true that a shower with pipes concealed in the wall is most desirable, the exposed shower fitting is an attractive addition to any bathroom. It has the advantage also of being inexpensive and easy to install.

Recent developments in shower valves have completely done away with most of the objections that some people had to shower bathing. Overhead valves, for instance, have been replaced by adjustable valves in the wall of the cabinet. These can be adjusted so that the spray is directed high or low on the body as desired, or to the sides of the cabinet.

One most unpleasant fault, that of sudden temperature changes, has been corrected by the introduction of thermostatically controlled shower valves. Among other innovations are valves that "aerate" the water. This means that the original oxygen content, sometimes lost on the long journey through pipes, is restored to the water, and nothing is more refreshing than a shower in "aerated" spray.

For the summer athlete, the shower is both healthful and restorative. Easy and inexpensive to install, and a great labor-saver for the housewife, the shower room is a "must" in any new or modernized Canadian home.

Indians Clash With Miners In Crucial Week-End Series

Tangle Three Times With Thetford; Away Twice And Here Sunday At 8:00; Cerbo, Underwood And Thomas To Hurl

Pinky May and his Indians open a three-game week-end engagement this evening in Thetford against the Miners, one of the teams they are staging a battle with for possession of fourth position in the standing.

The Miners are only half a game in the rear of the locals and with two games in the series on their home grounds stand a good chance of catching the May staff. The locals have improved considerably during the past week and should, if they continue their present pace, give a very good account of themselves.

Manager May will send John Cerbo to the mound this evening in the first tilt at Thetford while tomorrow at 1:30 Gerry Underwood will attend to the hurling chores tomorrow at 1:30 Gerry Underwood fair at the local Stadium at 8:00 the local pilot has nominated Clyde Thomas to look after the Indians' interests.

In their last six games the local squad has chalked up four wins against two losses. They took the measure of St. Johns twice last Sunday, 13-7, 3-2. On Monday they were blanked by St. Hyacinthe 4-0 and on Tuesday they took another licking going down 4-3 to Three Rivers at home. The following night they blasted the Yanks 11-5 and in Three Rivers

CAHA To Provide Young Canadians With Scholarships

Sports Roundup

New York — (AP) — The great unseen audience which runs the fight game these days between hasty shaves and sips of beer has come up with what should be a real good number tonight — the 15-round lightweight championship between Jimmy Carter, the durable titleholder, and George Araujo, a fast-stepping 22-year-old from Providence, R.I.

The parlor promoters may take full credit for a neat bit of match-making, since Carter was notably unenthusiastic about taking on the unbeaten young challenger and was more or less cowered into risking his crown by the adroit use of large piles of television money. It was like this:

In nearly two years as champion, since he had stopped working out like Williams in the 14th round May 25, 1951, Carter hadn't made enough money out of the title to even get a call from an income tax beagle. He wasn't on relief, but he didn't have a convertible either. And then, out of a beautifully clear sky, he was offered something like $50,000 to fight a soft touch named Tommy Collins on a national hook-up.

It was such a payday as to make Carter's mouth water, such a windfall as could not have been conceived in the old pre-television days. But the sitting room customers demanded it, believing as they did that Collins was hot stuff, and the sponsors heeded their clear call. Carter said yes in a hurry and went on a shopping spree in anticipation, but then a slight hitch set in.

Neither the National Boxing Association nor the New York State commission liked the idea of the Boston bout. They realized it was a mismatch, and felt that if anybody should be getting a shot at Carter, it was young Araujo. They said they would refuse to sanction the scrap unless Carter signed to meet Araujo here in his next title defence.

So Carter was mousetrapped, and that is how you happened to see the champion in the act of knocking Collins down 10 times on that memorable night.

Carter does not knock a man down every time he hits him. Actually, the champion is not a great one at hitters go. He is just a good, workmanlike, 29-year-old fighter who is tough to beat in the big ones.

As for Araujo, he's a fast, flashy kid with a kick in either glove. He has been knocked down only once in his 52 fights, and on that occasion he got up and stopped his man. In all, he has won 30 fights by knockouts, 22 of them coming within the first four rounds.

Those who like Carter's chances rely somewhat on the champion's known ability to pace himself over his 15 rounds. He has gone the distance four times since he halted Williams, Araujo on the other hand, never has gone beyond 12, and that only three times. The Carter people concede that their man may be well behind for about half tonight's bout, but from there on they expect him to take command. That's something for the armchair scorer to watch for.

Brendan Macken Has Retired From Tennis

Montreal — (AP) — Brendan Macken, Canada's No. 1 ranking tennis player, Friday night announced his retirement from international competition. He played last year on Canada's Davis Cup team and was considered a sure bet for this year's team.

The 30-year-old Macken said the tremendous strain needed for training, coupled with time away from business, made it necessary for him to quit the big time.

SHERBROOKE RACING CLUB OPENS SEASON

The long awaited word "go" finally was heard at the Sherbrooke track Wednesday evening when the local club opened the 1953 season with eight races on the card. The only black eye to the whole affair was the one hour and forty minute "blackout" caused by an overloaded transformer.

This in our mind is really something, especially in a place which is known as the "Electric City" of the Eastern Townships. The remarks passed by the race fans, and we imagine that it was the same over at the ball park, about the City Electrical Department were something to listen to and it was a shame that some of the City Fathers weren't around to hear them. It might have smartened things up a little.

In our mind there is no excuse for a thing like that, unless it was an unforeseen circumstance. Surely the electrical heads must have had an idea just how much juice would be required to make both plants operate and if the number of transformers were not sufficient then they should have added another. The same thing happened a few years back at a hockey game but it seems that the City Electrical Department doesn't benefit from past experiences.

After waiting for close to an hour and forty-five minutes the racing program continued and those who sat out the "blackout" benefited from it at the pari-mutuels. We did not obtain the amount wagered but we imagine that it was well up in the four figures.

This evening eight more races are on the card while tomorrow afternoon the same number are listed headed by a $1,000 Conditioned Stake Pace. So all in all the racing fans are in for a busy week-end. Tonight the program opens at 8:00 and tomorrow it is 2.00.

Annual Meeting of Eastern Townships Intermediate Hockey League

The annual meeting of the Eastern Townships Intermediate Hockey League is slated for Monday evening at 8:00 at the New Sherbrooke Hotel. Election of officers is the main item on the agenda to be discussed but several other matters will come up before the meeting. So don't forget Monday evening at 8:00 at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

District Chief Game Warden Clement Bouchard and his assistants came up with several nice seizures in the past few days as some fishermen decided to snare themselves some undersized brook trout only to have the plan back-fire on them.

It seems that some of our famous fishing men don't like to comply with the laws laid down by the Quebec Fish and Game Department. It is a shame, especially after all the hard work the Department is going through to help to restock the lakes of the District, to have individuals do such acts. We think a vote of thanks is in order for Chief Bouchard and his men in catching the culprits and we sincerely hope that they are fined to the limit of the law. In our minds they should lose their licences and their fishing rights for a lengthy period.

Tennis fans of the Townships will have an opportunity of seeing Henri Rochon, member of Canada's Davis Cup team, in action tomorrow afternoon when the Sherbrooke Tennis Association will officially open their season.

Bob Bedard, one of Sherbrooke's products, will face him in a singles match while Rochon will pair up with Roger Roy in doubles against Guy Durocher, Sherbrooke champion, and Bedard. The singles match should be very interesting as Bedard is out to try for a berth on the Davis Cup squad and from the reports from South he should give a good account of himself. So tennis followers don't forget tomorrow afternoon at the Fraser Street court at 2:30.

Ivan "Dow" Dugre has joined the golfing ranks and is a member of the Sherbrooke Country Club. It seems that the former Saints' pilot wants to get a little exercise to reduce a little in order to lose some of his extra avoirdupois.

Ivan has just donated two beautiful sterling silver trays for the aspiring club swingers up on the hill. One will go to the lowest gross score for the coming week while the other will be for the handicap boys who will post results in the low figures in the net department. They are very nice and will look good on anyone's mantel. So boys watch those short puts.

We understand that the racing drivers will come in for their share of the silver trays as well. On Wednesday evening's card the winner of the feature event will be presented with one by Ivan, the Dow Boy. To teamsters here is your chance to pick up a beautiful piece of silverware.

Clubhead Follows After Ball

By JULIUS BOROS
U.S. Open Champion

Start the medium iron back down in the plane in which it came up.

The weight begins to shift to the left side. The wrists uncoil. Throughout the back and downswings, the head remains in an almost fixed position.

When the ball has been contacted, the club and hands are practically in the same positions as they were at the time of address. The head still remains down and over the ball.

The clubhead follows after the ball, and the wrists begin to roll over as a result of making contact. The left arm is beginning to bend in toward the body. The head is still down.

At the completion of the swing, the hands are high, the head is up. The body faces the objective, the eyes following the flight of the ball. Swinging to the finish is very important.

There's no need to use a ball until you have your entire swing pattern established. Once satisfied, place the ball off your left heel and start some contact work.

Swing the club in the same pattern at the same tempo. The clubhead will get the ball up in the air. Don't rush your shot. Timing and rhythm furnish the answer.

The clubhead automatically follows the ball as it is contacted. This is the beginning of the follow through, should be developed. This is as important to the swing pattern as the backswing.

When the club is approximately halfway into the follow through, the head will begin to come up and the eyes will pick out the flight of the ball. Let the head come up naturally. Don't attempt

Jimmy Carter Wins In Title Defence

New York — (AP) — Jimmy Carter, with stolid face and cut right eye, crumpled toe-dancing George Araujo with his solid body punching Friday night to hold his world lightweight championship by a technical knockout victory in 2:16 of the 13th round at Madison Square Garden.

Referee Al Berl signalled an end to the contest as the 22-year-old challenger from Providence, R.I., sunk to the floor under a thumping right that doubled him up. The 29-year-old champ from New York twice floored Araujo for counts of two and three in a ninth-round explosion that broke the fight wide open.

2:18 Conditioned Stake Pace Slated For Tomorrow; Tonight's Card To Commence At 8:00 With Heavy Program

Two racing programs are listed for the week-end. Commencing this evening at 8:00 eight races are on the agenda while tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 the first event of another eight-race card will be called.

The feature of the week-end program will be the 2:18 Conditioned Pace tomorrow afternoon for a purse of $1,000. Purvis Lawton, racing secretary, already has six starters for the event but it is quite possible that a few more will be added today.

The first race this evening is a trot for a purse of $500 and is the only one on the card. The second event is a dash for $250 with eight entries while the rest of the races are all two heat fixtures.

On the Sunday afternoon program another eight-race event with the .18 Conditioned Pace taking the spotlight. Two single dashes will be run with the other three all two heats, of which one will be a trot.

In tonight's program eight horses are entered in all classes with the exception of the 5th and 8th race in which only seven starters will go to the wire. A total of $1,800 will be at stake this evening and no doubt the numerous drivers will be out to try and reap the top shares of the money.

The larger majority of tonight's starters are making their first bid on the local layout and the wagers should have a busy evening figuring out the winners. On Wednesday last the pari-mutuels paid off with some very high investments and this should influence the men with the greenbacks for greater returns.

In the first race Louisa Worthie and Cadet Hanover are rated a little better than the rest but a glance at the list of entries it seems that most any one could walk off with the honors. In the second it should be a real drive before the winner crosses the wire.

In the third Brooke Chilcoat and Allie Traux should fight it out as they finished 3-4 on Wednesday's card. But as in the other two races there are several new starters and they may have a lot to say before the winners are declared. The other two races will present more horses making their initial start over the local oval and anything could happen before the winners are declared.

Eight Colts To Face Barrier In 85th Running Of Belmont Stakes; Native Dancer Rated As Favorite

New York — (AP) — The names of eight colts, three of them long shot surprises, went into the entry box for the 85th running of the Belmont Stakes today but it still appears as though the horse race with Native Dancer the one to beat.

Ogden Phipps' Bassanio, A. J. Fralinger's Bob O Boy, and The Pream, property of bandleader Louis Prima, were the surprise entries Friday in the mile and one-half race for three-year-olds.

If all eight go to the post this Belmont would be the richest since Ruthless won the inaugural in 1867.

And, if all eight enter, the pot will total $120,600 with the winner netting $84,500 compared to the record $82,400 collected by One Count last year. Even with six starters, today's big race would be worth $100 more than One Count's.

Native Dancer, Alfred Vanderbilt's colorful grey galloper, rules the odds-on favorite at probable odds of 1 to 4. The Dancer, winner of 13 of his 14 starts, is expected to get his main opposition from the Spring Hill Farm's Jamie K., who made Vanderbilt's ace go all out to win the "breakneck by a neck three weeks ago.

Many seem to think Eugene Constantin, Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem can mix it up with the top two.

The other two horses entered are Bruce S. Campbell's Ram O War and the King Ranch's Kamehameha.

"My horse is good and sharp, but so is that grey one—I just saw him work," said John Partridge, 75-year-old trainer for Jim Norris' Jamie K.

"I think we're pretty evenly matched, and a lot in this race depends upon what the jockeys do on the track. Some little trick that nobody thinks of, outwitting one or the other, could win the race."
