Working for fall opening

Seek CEGEP campus site

By DAVID MAGL

SHERBROOKE — The Sherbrooke campus of the new Champlain CEGEP may be operational by this fall, board of directors chairman Mrs. Joy Smith told The Record yesterday.

Mrs. Smith admitted that the CEGEP's board of directors will have to work quickly in order to insure the campus does open.

She said the CEGEP's Sherbrooke branch will be housed in "borrowed facilities." She could not officially comment on the possible location of the campus.

Mrs. Smith revealed the committee which had been pushing for the creation of the South Shore CEGEP had not contacted Bishop's University yet "because we have not been allowed to talk with them officially."

A student population of 700 is anticipated for the Sherbrooke campus of the CEGEP. The initial plans for which also called for another campus to be situated in Longueuil.

Mrs. Smith said the board of directors would have to move soon to engage staff and solicit students. Teaching staff in other institutions must confirm their next year's contracts by the end of the month, she said, and students must know whether the CEGEP will open or not before they make other plans.

She suggested there would be no shortage of staff applications, citing the example of Sir John Abbott College. The Montreal west island CEGEP, scheduled to open its doors in September, has received 1,000 student applications and the same number of staff applications, Mrs. Smith said.

Mrs. Smith said she learned of her appointment as head of the new CEGEP Monday afternoon when she received a telephone call from a Montreal reporter.

"It seems that Mr. St-Pierre," she said, referring to provincial education minister Guy St-Pierre, "made the announcement at a press conference. At the same time, he also announced the cabinet's approval of Champlain's charter."

She said she had not heard from the education department since the announcement but expected the remaining members of the school's board of directors to be named within "the next few days."

The government's approval of the creation of the new CEGEP was based on a brief presented to it Jan. 15 by a joint committee drawn from the Montreal South Shore and Sherbrooke areas. Mrs. Smith was the chairman of that committee.

The brief called for the creation of a multi-campus CEGEP, to serve the south shore of the St. Lawrence River with initial campuses in Sherbrooke and Longueuil. It also proposed the CEGEP be called Champlain College Mrs. Smith said.

"We decided on the geographic name after we had received many and diverse local suggestions. Those local suggestions, which are names of local heroes and the like, can be used on the respective campuses and buildings."

Mrs. Smith pointed out that Champlain CEGEP is unique in that it was created by a community movement.

"The fact that the government required a brief brought more and more local people into the project."

As a result, the college will be representative of and responsive to the community, Mrs. Smith suggested.

Champlain CEGEP will also be the province's first regional CEGEP. Previous to December, 1970, there were two separate committees in the Sherbrooke and Montreal South Shore areas pushing for the creation of CEGEPs in their respective regions.

They joined together after the provincial department of education rejected their respective individual proposals. The department reasoned that a multiplicity of CEGEPs would result from acceding to the two committees' proposals.

The vice-chairman of the joint planning committee is Eastern Townships Regional School Board director-general J. Edward Perry.

Mr. Perry told The Record yesterday that "it is the thinking of the committee that we should be able to get a partial program going by September."

He said the academic part of the college's program could be located at Bishop's University. Technical and vocational courses would operate if the facilities can be found, he added.

"Some courses such as business administration and nursing do not need special facilities," he said, and so could be offered by the CEGEP.

He admitted the first news he had of the government's approval for the CEGEP came when he picked up a newspaper Saturday. For his part, Bishop's University president Dennis Healy said, "as far as we are concerned, we are planning for September as if nothing happened."

He revealed the CEGEP committee had not contacted him "officially" and also said Bishop's was preparing to accept collegial students for the 1971-72 term in accordance with an agreement made three years ago with the provincial government.

"We agreed to take on five successive generations of collegial students and have not heard of any change in plans from the department of education," he said.

Gas price hikes hit pocketbook

SHERBROOKE (WC) — During the past week all major oil and fuel distributors in the area announced a price increase of three cents a gallon or both heating oil and gasoline.

How are local residents going to accept the price increases? Filling up a 15-gallon gas tank will cost 45 cents more than it did before the hikes. If a home furnace uses 200 gallons of fuel oil a month, $6 more will be needed to cover the bill.

Two years ago there was a general outcry when gas prices were raised six cents a gallon. Yesterday The Record carried out a survey on present prices in the Sherbrooke area.

Eso, Texaco, BP, Shell, Champlain and Fina service stations in the area have raised their prices three cents. A gallon of regular gasoline at the above stations now costs 47.9 cents. At the Shell, Champlain, Fina and BP stations surveyed, highest gasoline sold for 52.9 cents while at the others a gallon of high test cost 53.9 cents.

Independent distributors have also increased their prices. They have to pay more to their suppliers for gasoline. Most of those surveyed now sell their gas at 43.9 and 48.9 cents a gallon.

Caloil and Golden Eagle service station gas costs 43.9 cents and 48.9 cents while Sunoco gas now is sold for 45.9 cents and 50.9 cents.

All heating oil distributors who were contacted in the survey said that the cost of oil had increased by three cents and the price now stood at 23.5 cents a gallon.

Ejected from court

MONTREAL (CP) — Lise Rose, 25, sister of convicted murderer Paul Rose, came to court as a spectator Tuesday and was thrown out for shouting and laughing.

She was in Court of Queen's Bench when a number of men and women, facing accessory charges arising from the kidnapping and murder last October of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte, were brought in to have trial dates set.

She communicated in sign language for several minutes with one of the women prisoners and shouted words of encouragement when the women were led out.

Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer ordered her to stand up and remarked that the business of the court was important since it involved the freedom or imprisonment of a number of people.

Miss Rose laughed aloud and sat down again.

"Stand up," Mr. Justice Lamer ordered again. "I expel you from the court."

When the woman continued to smile as she left her seat, he admonished: "Be careful. There are two doors to this courtroom, one at the back of the room and one that leads to the cells."

Before he finished speaking, she had left the court by the regular door.

Acquitted on two charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer Tuesday acquitted Michel Viger of two of eight charges of complicity after the fact in connection with the terrorist kidnapping and murder last October of Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Justice Lamer made his decision at the request of prosecution which called for a directed verdict on the grounds that no evidence had been presented linking Viger, 31, with Bernard Lortie, one of four persons accused with the kidnapping and murder of the late Quebec labor minister.

Viger still faces complicity charges in connection with helping hide Francis Simard, Jacques Rose, and Paul Rose in a St. Luc, Que., farmhouse following Mr. Laporte's death Oct. 17.

Simard, Jacques Rose and Lortie are all to appear May 3. Paul Rose was convicted of Mr. Laporte's murder and sentenced to life imprisonment last March 13.

Mr. Lamer's decision came as the prosecution concluded its evidence.

Cpl. Jacques Gaboury of the provincial police testified that he and Constable Marcel Vigneault visited the farmhouse rented by Viger Dec. 27 at about 8:30 p.m. He said they found Viger in the living room. During a short visit earlier that day, they had heard a muffled noise from somewhere in the basement.

Need bigger effort

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian businessmen should make a bigger effort to sell their products in Czechoslovakia, says a Czech trade official.

Mikulas Farkas, Czechoslovak trade commissioner in Montreal, told a news conference Tuesday Canadian businessmen rely too much on government to carry out business deals.

He said the Canadian government office in Prague can open the door to possible exports but it is up to private firms to go to Czechoslovakia to see that agreements are concluded.

Mr. Farkas called the news conference to provide details of the second international consumer goods fair to be held in Brno, Czechoslovakia, April 18 - 25, and to announce the launching of a trade publication aimed at encouraging Canadian-Czechoslovak trade.

First ambassador sees open China

OTTAWA (CP) — Ralph Edgar Collins, named Tuesday as Canada's first ambassador to the Chinese people's republic, believes China is "opening up" to the outside world and he expects to see a lot of Canadian visitors in Peking.

The 56-year-old, China-born diplomat, an assistant deputy external affairs minister for the last six years, said after his appointment was announced that he looks forward to a return to the country of his birth.

"I think everyone brought up in China suffers from a sense of nostalgia when he is away from there for a long time," he commented in an informal talk with reporters.

Mr. Collins was born in Yunnan, now Kunming, Nov. 23, 1914, the son of an American father who worked for the YMCA, and a Canadian mother. He was raised there and in Peking, leaving China at the age of 12.

He returned only once—as a third secretary and then second secretary at the Canadian legation-embassy in the wartime capital of Chungking from 1943 to 1945.

A smallish, wiry-looking man with an intense manner and a wry sense of humor, he sees his main job as that of helping to get relations between China and Canada launched on the right course.

Specific objectives, he says, will be for the government to set. He did predict, however, that increased numbers of Canadian tourists will be going to China and added that student exchanges are "in the cards."

Several visas had already been granted for Canadian newsmen to visit China since the two countries established diplomatic relations last October, and Chinese newsmen were welcome to come to Canada if they wished to apply.

Present indications were that "things are opening up quite a bit" in China.

"I expect to have a great many visitors to Peking."

A 30-year veteran of the Canadian foreign service, he has served in Washington, London, Moscow and South Africa in addition to Chungking.

Fire hits store

BLACK LAKE — A fire of unknown origin last night caused damage estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000 to a furniture and electrical appliance store on Route 1 two miles from here.

The blaze, which began shortly before 6 p.m., necessitated the assistance of firefighters from Thetford Mines and Coleraine to salvage half of Marcel Trempe Reg'd., a firm specializing in furniture sales.

Non-functioning pumps hindered the firemen, who had already experienced difficulty in finding a source of water.

Eye takeover of local plant

SHERBROOKE (WC) — A Montreal company which has decided to concentrate its production in the Sherbrooke area is presently negotiating with management of the Sherbrooke-based Austin Glove Co. to buy the building where Austin Glove is now located.

The Jack Spratt Manufacturing Co. presently has a subsidiary in Windsor and an affiliated company, Saratoga Slacks, in Sherbrooke and would like to buy the 10th Avenue building belonging to Austin Glove.

Yesterday Paul Gervais, MP for Sherbrooke, announced that the Department of Regional Development and Economic Expansion would be giving Jack Spratt Manufacturing Co. a grant of $289,800. This amount represents 10 per cent of the initial cost of the building and $750 for each job created.

Yesterday The Record talked with both Jack Kivenko, president of Saratoga Slacks and Jack Bowman, president of Austin Glove.

Mr. Kivenko revealed that at the moment it is not known when the Sherbrooke plant will open. Production could start as early as the end of June. Mr. Kivenko said that neither of the other production plants in the area would be affected by the opening in Sherbrooke.

"At the moment, both our plant in Windsor, which employs about 110 persons, and Saratoga Slacks at 971 Galt Street are in full production. There is no question of layoffs at either plant," he said. Saratoga Slacks now employs over 100 persons.

According to Mr. Kivenko, employment would be provided for about 60 persons initially, but as expansion continues and depending on the market conditions for the products manufactured employment could rise to nearly 300 within three or four years.

"In the beginning, the expansion will cost about $300,000, but in the long run we expect to spend nearly $1,000,000. Equipment will cost about $1,500 for every job created," he said.

Mr. Kivenko said the reason Sherbrooke was chosen for the expansion site was "we already have production and administration facilities there."

At the moment Jack Spratt Manufacturing Co. does not know exactly what will be produced in the new plant. "It will all depend on the market conditions, but it will probably be slacks and jeans. A lot of things have to remain in the air until negotiations are finished," Mr. Kivenko concluded.

Jack Bowman of Austin Glove said yesterday that even if negotiations are completed the company does not expect to move before the end of June.

"We'll be moving to another location, hopefully in the Sherbrooke area. The employees will move with us to the other location," he said.

At the moment about 76 persons are employed by Austin Glove in Sherbrooke. Mr. Bowman attributed the change from present quarters to smaller quarters to the decline in sales of fabricated gloves in Canada.

Paul Gervais, MP, said yesterday that the grant to Jack Spratt Manufacturing Co. was in line with the federal government's rationalization policy in the Canadian textile industry.

He also said he was relatively satisfied with the number of grants that had already been distributed in the Sherbrooke region, amounting to millions of dollars and creating numerous jobs.

Beebe men sentenced

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Fifteen-year prison terms were handed down here Monday for three Beebe men who pleaded guilty a month ago to the armed holdup of a branch bank in Newport last November.

U.S. District Judge Bernard J. Leddy imposed the sentences on Camil M. Pruneau, 26, his brother Daniel, 19, and Norbert House, 30.

A fourth man charged in the robbery, Raymond S. Belleville, 20, also of Beebe, was given a six-year term after pleading guilty to a lesser charge of possessing stolen currency. Leddy adjudged Belleville a youthful offender, entitling him to release from custody at the discretion of his parole board.

Authorities said the Pruneau brothers and Houle staged the holdup while Belleville drove the getaway car.

Three men wearing ski masks entered the branch office of the National Bank of Derby Line near Newport last Nov. 10, ordered six employees at gunpoint to lie on the floor, then fled with an estimated $15,000 in cash.

With police in pursuit, the bandits fled north across the border into Quebec where two were captured within 48 hours. Two others surrendered to authorities in Montreal two weeks later.

BACK AGAIN — The Charles Cotton family of Convent Street, Lennoxville, is celebrating the return of its pet dog after the animal spent Tuesday night in a veterinary hospital. Tojo suffered a fractured leg in an accident when a delivery truck backed over her. For the next four weeks she will be hobbling around sporting a cast on her hind leg.

Ceylon government strikes rebels

COLOMBO (AP) — The Ceylonese air force has stepped up attacks against a youthful rebel force.

One Ceylonese jet crashed Tuesday after a strafing run against the rebels. Cause of the crash was not announced.

Informants also said the government has ordered some officials of the North Korean embassy to leave Ceylon. They were believed linked to the insurrection.

Six United States-built Bell JetRanger helicopters were being prepared by Britain for immediate shipment to Ceylon to give government forces more mobility in fighting the hit-and-run guerrillas, called Che Guevarists, who have attacked government installations from their jungle hideouts since April 5.

Spare parts were flown in by a U.S. plane Tuesday for helicopters already being operated by the Ceylonese.

British small arms and ammunition were being airlifted to Colombo from Singapore.

The jet crash was the only major action reported Tuesday. The plane crashed in flames, killing the pilot, after he strafed insurgent positions near Trincomalee on the northeast coast, the government said.

The government also said that the insurgents are running short of food and ammunition, leading many of them to desert.

The government launched a war-scale operation against the left-wing rebels after Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike warned of a widespread plot to plunge the country into chaos.

Indian warships lay off this capital on the Indian Ocean and gun-toting police and troops patrolled the streets.

The purpose of the Indian ships, which included destroyers, was not known. But there were reports that 100 Indian troops were being lent to the hard-pressed government forces.

Five Indian air force helicopters were seen parked in a soccer field in Colombo, apparently for use in patrols.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Reader Tells Her Experience

Tantrums May Be Epilepsy

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some months ago, I read in a medical column a question from a mother about her two-year-old son who was having temper tantrums. She said he would be playing quietly and then suddenly start to kick and scream. I hope you will publish my letter since I think you can help any parents who have had this kind of problem.

You see, I have had this experience myself. To be on the safe side, any mother with this problem should have her son checked by a neurologist. I had this same problem 17 years ago and suffered for three years with a daughter (also two years old at the time) who was subject to "temper tantrums," also coming on suddenly while playing quietly.

Both of us, also my husband and son, were emotionally shaken by these outbursts which we misinterpreted as tantrums when, in reality, she had epilepsy. Fortunately, a pediatrician recommended an electroencephalogram (brain wave test) and we were able to give her proper treatment and start working on repairing our shaken and damaged personalities.

The guilt complexes I had for not realizing my daughter's problem took me years to overcome. Epilepsy isn't always a fit, where one falls to the ground jerking violently. Many people (including me) had felt this was the only form of epilepsy. There are many, including temper tantrums.

The outlook is fine. She took medicine which controlled her outbursts 100 per cent. She has been off drugs now for six years and is an attractive 19-year-old university student.

Had we not sought help finally, my marriage would have ended, my daughter and I would have been emotionally crippled and my son scarred from the continual outbursts and scenes we went through, all the time thinking we had a "spoiled" little girl on our hands. If a child seems to be playing quietly and then suddenly goes into kicking and screaming spells for no apparent reason, then I sincerely recommend that outside help be contacted before more damage is done.

Dear Reader — Thank you for an excellent letter and your advice is right on target. I agree wholeheartedly that any child with these symptoms should be seen by a doctor and specifically the child should be examined for the question of epilepsy. It is true that some children have temper tantrums and that is all they are, but the types of episodes that you described are often indicative of epilepsy and the problem deserves to be investigated. I am sure your letter will be helpful to a number of parents.

Dear Dr. Lamb — If a woman has a complete hysterectomy can she have intercourse any more?

Dear Reader — Of course. A complete hysterectomy will remove the uterus (womb) and sometimes the outlet to it, called the cervix. This should not interfere with any of the other female organs. Specifically, it does not involve any of the female anatomy normally involved in intercourse. The function of the uterus, literally, is to act as a baby basket for the development of a fetus, and has no function during intercourse.

Trio's Winnipeg hijack try foiled

WINNIPEG (CP) — An attempted aircraft hijack Tuesday in the heart of Manitoba on a light plane among whose six passengers were Winnipeg Mayor Stephen Juba and his wife was prevented by use of a secret radio code, a cloud bank and physical force.

Three youths, believed aged 16 and 17, tried to commandeer a Midwest Airlines flight from Dauphin, Man. to Winnipeg and force it down in farm country south of the western Manitoba town.

Mr. Juba, who had been in Dauphin since Monday, returned to his office Tuesday afternoon, but an executive assistant said he was "visibly upset and shaken" by the experience. The mayor was not available for comment.

A sixth passenger has not been identified.

Using what turned out to be sharpened toothbrush handles, one of the three first approached the pilot, Capt. Bob Taylor, 15 minutes after the flight's 11:50 a.m. takeoff and told him to land the craft immediately on the highway.

The captain told him the snow was too bad for a landing so the three settled on Yorkton, Sask., 105 miles to the west.

Co-pilot Maurice Durant, using a hijack code, radioed Winnipeg international airport of the circumstances and began the flight to Yorkton.

The seven-passenger Navajo entered heavy cloud cover and the crew began a gentle turn back toward Winnipeg, 160 miles to the southeast. Again by radio, Winnipeg was informed of the change in flight plans and ground police began to prepare for the landing.

The pilot managed to keep the plane in the clouds until shortly before the airport was sighted. At one stage in their bluff, the aircrew told the three juveniles the radio contact was necessary to inform the tower where the plane was so that there wouldn't be any mid-air collisions with other aircraft.

The plane left the cloud cover about one-half mile north of Winnipeg airport. At this stage, an airline spokesman said, the trio realized they were not landing in Saskatchewan and rushed the cockpit.

The captain began to wrestle with the first youth who entered the cockpit and the others piled in behind. The co-pilot continued to land the aircraft and as he did he switched over to empty fuel tanks so lights would begin to flash on the dashboard.

The juveniles saw the warning lights and apparently held off their assault long enough for the aircraft to get its wheels down.

An unmarked RCMP station wagon pulled alongside the still-moving airplane and by the time the aircraft stopped the police were able to jump on board and take the juveniles into custody.

The trio were turned over to St. James-Assiniboia police and then to juvenile authorities.

A spokesman for the airlines declined to release the names of the crew or the three other passengers who were on board.

Students attack program

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's student summer-works program came under attack Tuesday from a group of University of Toronto students which says its application for $50,000 was rejected by the secretary of state's department last week.

The group planned to use the money to establish a number of student-run industries.

Organizers Gary Price and Don Ross said the proposal was turned down because the federal government viewed it as a threat to established commercial enterprise.

"Most of the projects supported by the Opportunities for Youth program are designed to keep students occupied, keep them busy and out of mischief," they said in a report Tuesday.

"People like us are viewed as dangerous radicals because we want work, make a decent salary and put our energies and talents into helping the people of Canada."

The group's plan was to set up teams of management consultants composed of jobless students from the various faculties at the university. They would then be sent out to other schools and universities to organize small student-operated corporations.

The students envisaged setting up such services as babysitting, student boutiques, confectionery and catering services — "We could fill a book with the plans we had to make a buck."

The students hoped the organization, known as University Social Action Program, would make profits and pay student organizers more than $60 a week.

They also hoped to have the organization incorporated as a charitable foundation which would allow it to use profits to finance social-action programs. This would also enable businesses to help and claim any expenses as a tax deduction to a charitable cause.

Greene seeks banks, insurance discussion

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J.J. Greene called Tuesday for a thorough public discussion on whether the government should have a voice in important financial decisions of chartered banks and life insurance firms.

"The private decisions of the banks and life insurance companies, who hold the great proportion of Canadian savings, have a considerable effect—possibly as great as any political decision—as to the kind of Canada we will have in the future," Mr. Greene stated in a letter to The Journal.

The letter, published in the letters-to-the-editor column, said a recent Journal editorial appeared to indicate that the newspaper felt there should be no public debate on the separation of the role of the banks from the role of government.

In an editorial Tuesday, however, The Journal said "even mad dogs and Englishmen know that banks must be made to serve a nation's economy, not direct it."

The editorial said banks must be curbed in some of their policies but speeches by ministers who had no responsibility for financial matters would not help solve the problem.

Mr. Greene said there are complaints from small cities and communities that they cannot obtain private financing for housing or industrial growth as easily as larger centres.

THE PROFIT MOTIVE

This was largely the result of private lending institutions operating in the interest of maximizing profits.

But "it tends to move us towards a Canada of smaller integrated communities. Whether one agrees with this trend or not, it is clearly one to which the decisions of the financial institutions can contribute."

Mr. Greene said if it is important that Canadians own their own resources, then banking policies become a vital consideration.

Union number rising

SHERBROOKE (DM) — The number of active members in the Sherbrooke Citizens' Union has increased to 75 from the 40 involved at the union's founding two weeks ago, a communique announced yesterday.

The Sherbrooke Citizens' Union is a coalition of ward citizens' committees which hopes to draw upon all residents of Sherbrooke to take part in its activities.

The communique also revealed that citizen groups in each ward are presently carrying out a survey of residents on the accessibility of recreation facilities. A report will be released at the beginning of next month, the communique said.

Any individuals interested in joining and taking part in the Sherbrooke Citizens' Committee should phone 569-9283 or write to the union care of Post Office Box 143, Sherbrooke.

Students display versatility

MAGOG (CC) — The last week of school before the Easter holidays for boys and girls of the Princess Elizabeth Elementary School saw a long list of special projects for the third floor students.

From April 5-8, the pupils staged alternatives from usual classroom procedure and saw charcoal sketching, stamp collecting, handicrafts, drama and music presentations, student typing, special lessons in home economics conducted in French, gymnastics, painting and woodworking.

Parents were invited in on the last day, when some of the young people went to the stage for a short but interesting session in entertaining.

In assessing the program, T. Bean, principal, and his staff termed the four-day session a complete success and of obvious benefit to the students.

Stanstead College

The CCC Productions, formerly known as Instant Theatre, from Montreal, were here at the school on Sunday and in the evening presented two excellent plays in Pierce Hall.

These were well attended by staff, students and several most welcome people from the communities. The titles of the plays were Table Talk and Clobber Stick to the Last.

Mr. and Mrs. David Rendall of Montreal will be here the weekend of April 18 when Mrs. Rendall will conduct a conference on Comparative Religion, sharing her ideas on Hinduism and the challenge of Jesus Christ. She is planning discussion groups among the students.

The school is participating in the Drama Festival April 24 at Bishop's University and will present a play.

A cycling club has been formed with training three times a week. There will be cycling weekend trips and camping and participation in Sunday racing, April 18 and May 2 at Drummondville, May 16 at Sherbrooke and May 30 at Valcourt.

As there will not be a Cadet inspection this year there will be a May 1 Family Day when parents and friends of the school, from away and locally, are invited to come and see demonstrations in gymnastics and other competitive events both indoors and out. The day's activities will start at noon and continue throughout until evening when a play and student film will be shown.

Montreal Ste-Anne's MNA George Springate will be the guest speaker at next Tuesday night's meeting.

Resigned over chairman

TORONTO (CP) — Four staff members of the Senate committee on poverty who quit last week said Tuesday their resignations were due to reluctance on the part of Senator David Croll, committee chairman, to tackle the roots of the problem or criticize the status quo.

Writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz said it appeared the committee intended to produce a "conventional political document," built mainly around a proposal for a guaranteed annual income. They did not wish to be associated with such a venture.

In interviews on CBC television, they charged that the committee chairman, who is a Liberal senator for Ontario, gave them little or no direction but found fault with the 50,000-word draft report they prepared on two years of committee hearings.

They said he practised political editing, deleting references to "politically hot" issues, including workmen's compensation, avoided discussions of the

Simplify CBC operations

Convinced that the survival of the Canadian broadcasting system is being threatened by the inroads of cable television, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission proposes that Canadian stations be compensated by cable TV operators and their subscribers for the loss of viewers from the importation, via cable, of programs from United States channels.

Perhaps when this, and other proposals, come up for discussion within the next few weeks another suggestion of some merit concerning the role of the CBC will be presented to the CRTC.

Over the years the CBC has done a generally useful and sometimes outstanding job in carrying out its proclaimed objective of unifying Canada, although in some cases its presentations have done more harm than good.

But in recent years it has expanded away and beyond the intentions of its originators, becoming a competitor in entertainment with private radio and TV to the point where it is difficult to differentiate between a CBC outlet and a privately-operated one.

The proposal the CRTC might consider is that the CBC get rid of its physical facilities — stations, networks, etc. — and concentrate solely on programming. It could then turn out programs of the kind and calibre that it can do surpassingly well and leave the entertainment programs to private broadcasting. It could require that the private stations carry so many hours of the CBC programming at agreed-upon hours.

There are many advantages to this proposal.

In the first place, the CBC could get along on less money than the $208 million it spent in 1969-70, which would please the taxpayers.

Then it could devote all its budget to the production of better-quality, Canadian-content programs.

And if it got out of the commercial field, private broadcasters would gain advertising revenue and thus be in a stronger financial position. It might not be necessary to think about milking cable companies and their customers in order to subsidize Canadian stations.

Fresh postal services

Canada's first postal service centre, opened recently in a Metro Toronto shopping mall, is a promising experiment and similar versions might be well worth trying in other communities — particularly the main post offices in cities like Sherbrooke that do not have outlets for government publications.

The Toronto outfit not only provides the usual post office services in a modern store-type setting, but it sells Canadian art, maps, souvenirs and other Canadian often available only at government stores or art galleries.

Some government-made or publicly-sponsored goods are useful and of excellent quality — prints published by the National Art Gallery of Canada, for instance — and they should be made readily available to as many Canadians as possible.

Sherbrooke's main post office easily could accommodate a small Canadiana boutique in its spacious lobby, where prints of famous Canadian paintings might be sold, as well as Indian and Eskimo handicrafts promoted by the federal government.

If public reception to the Metro Toronto postal centre proves warm, the post office ought to sample the downtown markets in other cities.

Perhaps it might help stave off that apparently inevitable boost in the postal rates, hinted for June of this year.

Explanation

Sir:

Having watched with dismay and some indignation the recent CBC production of The Megantic Outlaw, I feel obliged to proffer some explanation to the people of Megantic County who helped me develop the story some years ago.

I would like to state that I had nothing to do with that production, which was a glib and shameful distortion of a genuine folk epic.

These are the facts of my involvement which I would like to put on record.

I first heard about Donald Morrison when I walked into the store of Duncan McLeod in Milan. Duncan told me about Morrison and I recognized a good story when I heard it. Later with his assistance and the co-operation of Mark Waldron, Rev. Carl Gustafson and others I pieced the story together, and sent it as a film suggestion to the CBC.

Various CBC officials expressed great interest in the story, and it eventually ended up on the desk of Thom Benson, executive producer of special programs in Toronto. Benson assigned one Ron Kelly to work with me on the story. I was to write it and Kelly would produce it.

I brought Kelly with me to Megantic and together we went over the locale of the story, visiting the grave, the schoolhouse in Scottstown and other points of interest.

Coming from a Scots-Irish background myself and being a Gaelic speaker, I felt I could do justice to the story. As I saw it, the real story was that of the Scottish settlements, the fierce loyalty and integrity of a people who stood up against persecution, and the promise of blood money in order to see justice done.

I visited the grave of Donald Morrison in a lonely cemetery at evening and saw his gravestone which he had died in 1890, the year of his capture, although I knew he had actually died after four years' illness in St. Vincent de Paul, and was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital to breathe his last.

I had a copy of the original poem and the account of Oscar Dhu. I saw the actual house where the family had lived and the weed tangled site of the cottage where he was shot down from ambush by the bounty hunter.

The character of the pompous little Judge Dugas and the hired gunman Warren were well known to me. Rev. Gustafson told me he was writing a book on the whole story and I assured him that if I managed to get the film produced, he would be used as a historical consultant.

In all I spent about eight months developing the story, which I saw being produced as a documentary drama, using wherever possible the verses of the poem and the actual locale of the story as background. It was a part of Canadian history that deserved to be told, not just the adventures of Donald Morrison, but the whole story of a brave people who settled the wilds of Megantic.

I gave all this material to Kelly, convinced we could do a good film. He went back to Toronto, and later I heard, via the grapevine that he had engaged another writer to develop the story according to his own interpretation.

Later I received a letter from the CBC Toronto saying they had purchased the film rights of some book, most probably one of the books I had loaned Kelly. I had no redress in law, as there is no copyright on ideas and the story of Donald Morrison was in the public domain.

In the interim Kelly produced a forgettable film called Waiting for Caroline, which cost about $800,000 and was so bad that no distributor would agree to handle it.

Then in 1967 I read in the CBC Times that Ron Kelly was going to produce a genuine Canadian folk story called, get this, "Black Donald — the Magnetic Outlaw."

Four years later it appeared on the CBC screen as "The True Story of the Megantic Outlaw."

It was not of course the true story, just another regrettable episode in the story of Donald Morrison.

I would like to go back to Megantic some day and, with the co-operation of the local people, make a film on Donald Morrison and his people. It is a great story — in my opinion one of the most interesting stories in Canadian history, because it tells of the unquenchable courage, the steadfast morality and the decency of a people who fought against all the odds for a principle.

In that countryside at that time, a man's word was his bond and he would sacrifice his life for it. I regret I cannot say the same for the people in the CBC who produced "The Megantic Outlaw."

Little demand apparent for newest lead-free gasolines

By ART JOHNSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

If there were as many customers for lead-reduced gasolines as there are explanations for its lack of sales success, the petroleum companies might have a hot item on their hands.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that lead-reduced gasolines, introduced by four major companies last year, have not yet caught the fancy of motorists.

A discount service station operator in Oshawa, Ont., offers this explanation: "People don't care if they burn water — as long as it's cheap."

A station manager in Winnipeg claims Manitoba's atmospheric conditions keep sales down: "The air is too pure. This is not the type of country yet where people are affected by pollution."

However, sales have been good in Alberta, and some dealers are optimistic.

Kenneth Langdon, executive secretary of the 1,500-member Retail Gasoline and Automobile Service Association, says: "I don't think lead from gasoline is a major source of pollution, anyway."

He says there is "no way the oil companies are going to get their money back — unless they do so from other sources."

SALES DISAPPOINT

Imperial Oil Co. Ltd., Sun Oil Co. Ltd. and Standard Oil Ltd. introduced low-lead gasolines to the Canadian market last September. Shell Canada Ltd. offered its lead-free gasoline a month later. Most admit sales are well below expectations.

The oil companies claim low-lead fuels tend to reduce unburned hydrocarbons expelled from an automobile's exhaust system. A Sun Oil spokesman says the hydrocarbon emissions are curbed by as much as 10 to 12 per cent with low-lead gasoline.

Most 1971 car models can use the fuels, but many older models cannot.

Imperial has 550 of its 6,500 Canadian outlets selling low-lead gasoline. Sun sells low-lead fuel at 200 stations in Ontario. Shell sells its low-lead gasoline at 700 of 6,200 outlets across the country, and Standard sells low-lead fuel in 35 selected stations in British Columbia's Lower Mainland area.

There is no price difference between low-lead and regular gasoline brands. Shell's no-lead gasoline, however, is usually about two cents a gallon more than its regular brand.

Following is the province-by-province picture:

NEWFOUNDLAND

Imperial, the only company to introduce lead-reduced gasoline to the province, limits its sales to a handful of outlets in St. John's.

Company spokesman Len Coughlan says sales have been up to expectations "but our expectations have not been high." He expects it will be at least two years until low-lead gasoline catches on.

NOVA SCOTIA

Imperial's low-lead gasoline is sold in Halifax and Dartmouth. Tony Bomben, public relations officer for Imperial's Atlantic division, says sales are slow but this is "no surprise."

NEW BRUNSWICK

Both Imperial and Shell market their new products here, but Irving Oil Co. Ltd. of Saint John does not. Irving officials say they have no plans for introducing a lead-reduced product in future.

A Sussex Imperial station operator looks to an upturn in low-lead sales when the tourist season begins, because Americans "are more aware" than Canadians of the new gasoline lines.

Generally, he says, "there's not much interest in it and it may be five years ahead of its time."

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Only three outlets — at Summerside, Charlottetown and Souris — sell Shell's lead-free gasoline, the only lead-reduced product on the island. Area sales representative Bob Marshall says "it's not trade secret" that the product is selling poorly.

QUEBEC

The three big oil companies with head offices in Montreal — BP Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., Petrofina Canada Ltd. and Texaco Canada Ltd. — do not sell lead-reduced gasolines. Both Shell and Imperial do, though.

Texaco is "actively studying" the situation. A spokesman for BP Oil says lead-reduced gasolines "have not taken with other companies."

"We recognize," this spokesman says, "that in the long run lead will have to disappear from gasoline." However, existing cars could not run on unleaded gasolines without harming engines and causing pollution from other additives.

Petrofina says lead-reduced gasolines are "inopportune — they don't do anything for air conditions in 1971."

ONTARIO

"People don't care," says a Toronto service station operator. His station sells 200 gallons of low-lead gasoline a month against 18,000 gallons of the other brands.

"No wonder we're not selling it," adds another Toronto outlet manager. "You never see it mentioned on Hocky Night in Canada or anything." Imperial is one of the television program's sponsors.

A Shell outlet manager in Ottawa says no-lead gasoline accounts for between five and 20 per cent of his sales. "People seem very willing to try it because of pollution."

But another Ottawa Shell station manager says unleaded gasoline has totalled only five per cent of his sales after four months of marketing. People, he claims, don't care, as long as the gasoline is inexpensive.

MANITOBA

"I'm sure it's going to be more popular a year from now," says Frank Safarik, manager of a Winnipeg Imperial station. But so far there has been little interest.

People haven't been "educated" to accept unleaded gasolines, says Charlie Raynord, manager of a Shell station in the Winnipeg suburb of Transcona. No-lead amounts to about 10 per cent of his sales.

SASKATCHEWAN

Unleaded gasoline sales are "kind of funny," says Tony Keytor, co-owner of a Regina Shell station. "Some days we sell 80 to 100 gallons and sometimes none at all."

Sales are lower than expected, says Harold Hunter, manager of a Regina Imperial station. "But I don't know why. However, low-lead gasoline has been moving more quickly in the last month."

ALBERTA

"A lot of people are using low-lead because of the current pollution kick," claims an Edmonton Imperial outlet manager.

A Shell dealer in Edmonton says sales have so far fallen short of expectations. But eventually no-lead gasoline will be a big seller, he predicts.

"There's a definite trend," says Ross Summerville, a Calgary Shell manager. "In four or five years I will be selling only two grades of gasoline, premium and low-lead."

BRITISH COLUMBIA

"It hasn't gone over with a bang," says Syl Rocco of Imperial's Vancouver marketing department, "but it's selling reasonably well."

Demand for low-lead gasoline, he says, will probably step up in three or four years.

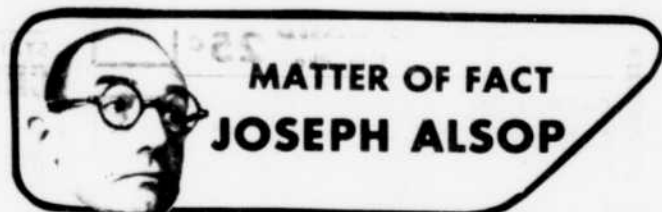

Standard says its low-lead product is selling "not very well — there isn't much demand."

And Shell just says things are "slow."

THE PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM THE UPPER ROOM

And he said unto me, Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee. — Ezekiel 2:1.

A prophet must be about the Lord's business. So must we arise to our feet and be prepared to do the Lord's bidding.

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON — There are various ways to indicate the present loneliness of Richard M. Nixon, but there is no real way to measure it. It is probably too great to be precisely measurable.

One indication of the President's loneliness is that no member of his Cabinet, including the secretary of defence, knew the President's detailed decisions about further troop withdrawals from Vietnam before the Cabinet meeting just prior to his speech on Wednesday.

In this town leaky as a sieve, with a Cabinet not notably loyal, the President evidently felt compelled to seek advice only as to the guiding facts. With the facts in hand he made his own decisions in near-total isolation; and these were then disclosed when already final.

Another indicator of this presidential loneliness is the simple fact that among the White House staff members several have come close to panic in the post-Lao political atmosphere. The tough, unflappable man in Mr. Nixon's outer office, Robert Haldeman, has had to use fairly strong language to rally some of the troops in the White House Staff.

Still another sign of this same loneliness is the further fact that the President came pretty close to mentioning it, with considerable frankness, in the Wednesday report to the country. Altogether, whether or not you agree with his judgment, you have to admire the man's guts. For it must take immense guts to go forward, almost alone, on what he believes is the right course for the country.

The real meaning of the President's speech, of course, was that he means to go forward, come hell or high water, with the orderly Vietnamization of the war. A good summary of the speech is the remark of U.S. Grant at the culminating crisis of our Civil War:

"We'll fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

In the present case, alas, it will take considerably longer than all summer. The main reason is that Vietnamization was hardly even conceived of, much less properly prepared for, under President Johnson, and was then the subject of active initial cheating in President Nixon's own Defense Department.

As a result, the South Vietnamese do not now have enough of what our Army calls "the assets" to go it alone against Hanoi's troops. Worse still, not enough South Vietnamese have yet been trained to use these assets — the helicopters, the tactical air and the artillery — and training is always a time-consuming process, especially with complex equipment.

That is really the main reason the President was not able to announce the instant Vietnamization some people are calling for. Until the South Vietnamese have the assets in hand and are ready to use them, total and immediate Vietnamization is impossible, or rather, it is just a recipe for leaving tens of thousands of American dead on the battlefield and limply accepting needless defeat with all its worldwide consequences.

That is one key to the President's speech. The other is the confident sentence: "As in Cambodia, what is important is not the instant analysis of the moment but what happens in the future."

That one, obviously, was the President's comment on the post-Lao atmosphere, which has promoted a tendency to panic in the government that even extends, as above-noted, into the President's own staff. At the time, all the wisecracks pronounced the President's Cambodian gamble a dreadful failure. By now, it is universally acknowledged that the gamble has all but ended the war in the richest, most populous, most important half of South Vietnam.

In reality, however, the present atmosphere in this sordid, silly city is more like that after the Tet offensive of 1968 than after the Cambodian gamble last year. It is ludicrous that this should be so; for the Tet offensive at least produced superficial results that looked pretty hair-raising. It took real knowledge and independence of judgment to see beneath the surface of the horrific reports on Tet from Saigon.

Day after day at that time, one cannot often recall, the blackest headlines announced total disaster for the United States and its allies. Only about six months later, and without any black headlines, the same publications began to admit that Tet had instead been a fearful military and political disaster for Hanoi. And thus they belatedly told the truth!

The President believes that in another six months there will be the same startling contrast between the first excessively pessimistic reports on the Laos invasion and the final good results that can already be expected. And the chances are very strong indeed that the President will be proved dang right.

Hamming it up from home

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago my husband used to play a lot of cards. Henry was gone five nights a week. The only time I saw him was when he'd have the card game at our house. I got fed up making sandwiches, emptying ashtrays and cutting my way through cigar smoke. One day a friend told me how she cured her husband of the same thing. She got him interested in a ham radio.

This is not a cheap hobby, but I decided it was worth it. I bought Harry a set as a surprise birthday gift. Within weeks he gave up the cards to stay home and ham it up. Now he has started a short-wave romance with some woman who lives in San Antonio, Texas. She has a voice like Lady Bird Johnson. Their three-hour conversations are making me sick. Harry rushes home from work, bolts his dinner and makes a beeline for the radio.

Last week he couldn't contact the lady for three days and he was a wreck. When he finally reached her she explained she'd been out of town. He scolded her for not letting him know she was leaving...said he was "worried sick." The whole thing was so cozy I felt like belting him one. Furthermore, this ham thing is interfering with our sex life because Harry stays up until 2:00 a.m. most nights. (I think she does it on purpose.)

Now I wish he were back playing cards. What should I do?

Dummy

Dear Dummy: Keep quiet. These two will probably talk themselves out. A woman who can't lure her man away from a piece of machinery has no imagination, Toots.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the writer who was ashamed of her parents because they were poor, spoke broken English and had old country ways was a disgrace. What on earth has happened to values?

The more I see of people with money, the better I like poor people. Recently I was in the company of a woman who was born with a silver spoon in her mouth. She lives on an estate and goes to Paris and Rome for her wardrobe. When she entertains she gets a half-page in the newspaper. An invitation to her home is a command performance. Would you believe that when this elegant lady belches she says "beep beep" instead of "pardon me"? I find such behavior revolting. What about you?

20-20 Vision

Dear Vision: People with money are expected to have better manners than people without money. Why, I do not know, because manners do not reflect what a person has, but how he was brought up.

Dear Ann Landers: I did something I am so ashamed of I could bite my tongue off. Please tell me if there's anything I can do to smooth it over. Also, how can I avoid making the same mistake in the future?

I telephoned a friend and her 15-year-old son answered. I thought it was his sister and said, "Hello, Nancy, may I speak with your mother?" He replied, "This is David."

My heart sank. I know that poor kid must have wanted to die. Our son who is now married was miserable when his voice was changing. He was so embarrassed about it he barely opened his mouth for six months.

Please, Ann, tell me if I should apologize to the lad? How can I avoid the same problem in the future?

Winnetka

Dear Win: Skip it. But in the future, don't call anybody by name when you ring that number. The boy can help protect himself by answering the phone: "Hello, this is David speaking."

Auto show brings bath tub on wheels

SHERBROOKE — Californian Bob Reiser has never been short of ideas — but a bath tub car? That's right, and the vehicle is sure to draw a great deal of attention when Auto-Expo '71 opens its doors at the Sports Palace this weekend, April 16-18.

The bath tub car, a unique achievement in the field of auto-crafting, was built at a cost of $50,000.

Resting calmly behind a gold-plated 400-cubic inch Chrysler engine are two richly upholstered antique French bath tubs. In front of the duo is a supercharged engine, mounted just behind an ornate steering wheel, is a quaint Victorian commode, also upholstered in the same lime-green velvet.

All of this is snuggled onto a specially designed, hand-built frame and suspension system.

Reiser had every removable component, wherever possible, gold plated. This includes the engine components, body hardware, the suspension members and even the Cragar wheels. Looking at the car for the first time, viewers are amazed at its compact qualities, and the fact that it runs.

Who ever would have thought that two bath tubs could be assembled to move with a maximum speed of 150 miles per hour?

"The bath tub car," in Bob's own words, "is an exaggerated form of personalization in automobiles, reflecting the extent to which a builder can go in the production of a specialty car."

ULTIMATE IN LUXURY — The bath tub car, designed by Bob Reiser of California, undoubtedly the most glamorous method of taking a bath, will be on display at the Sports Palace April 16, 17 and 18.

Pittsburgh star succumbs

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Briere, a promising rookie centre with Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League two seasons ago, died here Tuesday of complications resulting from a car accident almost a year ago.

Briere, 21, had been in hospital since last May 15 when he suffered brain damage and a fractured skull in the accident near his hometown of Malaric in northwestern Quebec.

The sports car which Briere was driving skidded off the road and crashed into a tree, killing one of Briere's three companions and injuring two others.

The accident took place about a month before the young hockey star was to be married.

Briere was flown to Montreal from Val d'Or and taken to Notre Dame hospital where he underwent four brain operations. He died about 4 p.m. EST Tuesday at the Maria-Clara Rehabilitation Hospital where he had been transferred three weeks ago.

Doctors at the hospital said "he died a fighting death."

Briere had an outstanding junior hockey career with Shawinigan Bruins of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League. In the 1968-69 season, he was picked up by Sorel Black Hawks for their Eastern Memorial Cup hockey playoff against Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The five-foot, eight-inch, 165-pound centre was easily one of the Hawks' better forwards, as they bowed to the powerful Montreal team in four games in the best-of-five series.

In a recent ceremony in Shawinigan, the Bruins retired the No. 7 Briere wore with the team and presented the sweater to Briere's parents in a ceremony before a Shawinigan hockey game. A number of Pittsburgh Penguins hockey executives were present for the presentation.

Penguins chose Briere as their No. 2 pick in the 1969 NHL draft of amateur players. In his rookie season, he scored 12 goals and 32 assists for 44 points and was Pittsburgh's third-leading scorer.

During the playoffs that season, he scored five goals and three assists in 10 playoff games. He scored two game-winning goals—one against Oakland Seals in the quarter-finals and one against St. Louis Blues in the semi-finals which St. Louis won four games to two.

Briere was considered a hard worker by his coach Red Kelly and by many opposition coaches. He was also cited as one of the main reasons for the Penguins making their lone playoff appearance since they entered the league in 1968-69.

During his stay in hospital, Briere regained enough consciousness to be able to recognize certain familiar people such as Dick Coss, the man who scouted him for the Pittsburgh club. Briere was also able to recognize his parents and his sister.

On every trip the Penguins made to Montreal this season, many of the players stopped in to visit their team-mate at the east-end hospital.

Briere would have been 22 in October.

For Beavers in playoffs

Anything but a win means end of line

SHERBROOKE (BH) — How many lives has a hockey team? Sherbrooke Beaver coach Ronnie Racette is about to find out tonight when he swings his charges into Shawinigan to play the Bruins.

The Beavers, down seven points to one in Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League semifinal action against their northern counterparts, have their backs against the proverbial wall, and even a tie game will not save them from elimination.

Monday night at the Sports Palace, Sherbrooke managed a 7-7 stalemate after absorbing earlier 9-3, 5-1 and 12-2 setbacks at the hands of the Bruins, who finished in second place during the regular season behind Quebec City Ramparts.

The club from the Queen City is reasonably healthy after reeling from a number of injuries to several regulars during the first three games of the series.

Claude St-Sauveur and Normand Dube returned to the ice Monday night and their presence was felt as the Beaver captain chipped in with a pair of goals while Dube contributed three assists despite a total of only 10 minutes of ice time.

Denys Gagnon and goalie Yvon

Pouliot are sitting out the semifinal series with indefinite suspensions for their actions in the team's quarterfinal against Drummondville Rangers.

As a result of Pouliot's absence, general manager Real Veilleux called up Real Godin from Lake Megantic Royals of the Eastern Townships Junior "B" Hockey League, while Claude Roy had played well in Gagnon's slot at left wing.

Should the Beavers win tonight's contest, the series will revert to Sherbrooke Thursday. Meanwhile, the Ramparts are resting after Sunday afternoon's 7-3 clincher over Three Rivers Dukes.

Canadiens came again but Bruins survived

BOSTON (CP) — Coach Tom Johnson of Boston Bruins has a problem.

He feels that when his defending Stanley Cup champions get a lead in a game they show a tendency to "lay back" and let the other team come to them.

But the Bruins overcame this tendency Tuesday night much to Johnson's satisfaction and beat Montreal Canadiens 7-3 and take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League East Division semi-final round. The sixth game is scheduled for Montreal Thursday.

"After the (John) Bucyk goal we started going again," Johnson said.

His club had led the Montrealers 5-1 after two periods, but Frank Mahovlich and John Ferguson had narrowed that margin to 5-3 by the midway mark of the third period.

Then Bucyk and right winger Ken Hodge rapped in unassisted goals to get the Bruins on the right track again.

Asked if he had nightmares of last Thursday's contest when the Canadiens roared back for a 7-5 win after trailing 5-2 at the start of the third period, Johnson said he hadn't been overly concerned that it would happen again.

"We had two goals to work on, so it wasn't that big a worry," he said.

He said his club had decided to be a little more aggressive in the early going because "we haven't been hitting that much in the series."

The result was a rash of early penalties. But Johnson claimed that despite the infractions his club had played exceptionally well during that time.

However, he said he thought his club had played better in the first two periods of Sunday night's game in Montreal which the Bruins won 5-2.

The Bruins outshot the losers 23-6 in the first 20 minutes of Tuesday night's game and the Boston coach pointed out that centre Phil Esposito, with seven shots in the opening 20 minutes, had more than the total Montreal output.

"That's not bad, not bad," he said, also praising the work of right winger Wayne Cashman, centre Derek Sanderson and defenceman Don Awrey.

Boston will continue to go with Gerry Cheevers in the nets and Mike Walton will remain as a replacement for Wayne Carleton at left wing on Sanderson's line.

Johnson said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden played well and "don't forget he had quite a few shots." Boston fired 56 shots at the Montreal goalie.

For both Hodge and Bucyk it was their initial goals of the series. Hodge said that the coach had told his players to get out there and stop "laying back" when the score was 5-3.

"I guess we were conscious of the fact they came back in the other game and scored five goals to win," Hodge said. "Occasionally you find that with a lead you are inclined to fall back into a shell."

Bucyk, who leaped off the bench to steal the puck from Montreal's John Ferguson, said the Bruins "needed a goal to get us going again."

"I took the puck away from Ferguson who didn't see me," Bucyk said. "Jacques Laperriere was there, but he went one way and I went the other and shot the puck between Dryden's leg."

Renko pitches way to win

MONTREAL (CP) — Right-hander Steve Renko won his second game of the year against New York, limiting the Mets to eight hits as Montreal Expos defeated New York 4-1 to win their home opener Tuesday before 21,996 fans.

Renko, who beat the Mets 6-2 in New York last Thursday, struck out three and walked one.

The Expos got single runs in each of the first three innings of Mets' starter and loser Gary Gentry, now 0-2, gave up only three hits, walked three and struck out one, before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh inning.

Ron Hunt scored the first run for the Expos, coming home on Bob Bailey's fielder's choice.

John Bateman's first home run of the season made it 2-0 Montreal in the second inning and Bailey scored from third on a throwing error by New York second baseman Ken Boswell on an attempted steal.

The Mets grabbed their run in the eighth inning on a run-scoring triple by Cleon Jones.

DRIVES IN STAB

The Montreal club added their fourth run of the game in the bottom of the eighth inning when first baseman Ron Fairly drove in Rusty Staub with a sacrifice fly. Fairly also enjoyed a good day in the field, trapping a hard-hit ground ball in the first inning and spearing another scorcher in the second.

Catcher Bateman said Renko "had no special pitch today but he was throwing everything well."

Renko credited some of his success to an active change-up pitch, but agreed that his pitches were all working well.

"I didn't depend too much on any one pitch and I was throwing smoothly."

EXPOS THANKFUL

Many of the Expos were thankful it wasn't very windy at Jarry Park.

"It was much worse when we opened against the Mets in New York," said pitcher Carl Morton.

"There the wind was going at about 40 miles an hour and the rain was coming down like sleet. Here there was just a slight breeze on the field and when it rained for a while, it was just a drizzle."

Expos entertain the Mets again Wednesday when Bill Stoneman, 0-1 goes against Ray Sadecki, 0-0.

Cincinnati Reds visit for a four-game series this coming weekend.

Alley bides his time awaiting chance for return

Gene Alley, Pittsburgh's shortstop for years, is sitting on the bench, hoping Jackie Hernandez' hot hitting streak will cool off.

Alley, who suffered a broken hand in spring training and now is ready to play, was replaced by Hernandez, an American League castoff with a .209 lifetime bating average in five major league seasons.

But Hernandez is playing out of character, clouting 444 with six RBI, including a three-run homer Tuesday night that helped the Pirates whip Philadelphia Phillies 9-3.

"I could be playing," says Alley, "but he's doing such a good job, they can't afford to take him out."

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds nudged Atlanta Braves 5-4; Chicago Cubs shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2; Houston Astros outscored St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 and Montreal Expos mauled New York Mets 4-1. The San Diego-San Francisco contest was wiped out by rain.

Johnny Bench uncorked his third home run in two nights and keyed a seventh-inning rally with a single in the Cincinnati success.

In addition to his hits, Bench hit a screamer that was caught at the warning track in left field.

Bench jumped on a Pat Jarvis offering and sailed it into the left field seats in the third inning. A walk to Zony Perez, a single by Bench and an RBI single by Willie Smith gave the Reds a 5-1 lead and what proved to be their winning run. The Braves scored three times in the eighth before reliever Joe Gibbon nipped the uprising with a double play pitch.

Don Kessinger's eighth-inning single scored Jose Ortiz with the winning run for Chicago. Ortiz walked to start the rally, was sacrificed to second and roared home on Kessinger's bullet between shortstop and third base.

The loss was the third straight for Dodger ace Bill Singer, who only gave the Cubs two hits in the first six innings.

Joe Morgan's bases-titled single and Norm Miller's three-run homer with two out in the ninth carried Houston over St. Louis.

The Astros, who took an early 3-0 lead, fell behind 4-3 when the Cards broke a tie in the eighth, and struck back against Mike Torrez in the last frame.

Montreal's Steve Renko beat New York for the second time this season, scattering eight Met hits. John Bateman's first homer of the season gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the second for all the runs the Expos needed.

Denny McLain's fast ball came and went—followed closely by McLain himself after a faulty second fling for Washington Senators.

"The harder I threw it, the harder they hit it," McLain said Tuesday night following his early departure in the Senators' 5-3 loss to Boston Red Sox.

McLain, winner last Friday night in his 1971 debut, was tagged for all five Boston runs before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning. He gave up seven hits, including homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Duane Josephson.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Royals downed Minnesota Twins 5-3 in a game marked by seven hit batsmen. Oakland Athletics blanked Milwaukee Brewers 2-0 behind Vida Blue's two-hitter. California Angels topped the Chicago White Sox 3-1 in 10 innings and New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 5-2. The Baltimore-Cleveland game was rained out.

Josephson's home run, after a second-inning single by George Scott, started McLain's undoing at Washington. Yastrzemski unloaded in the third and the Red Sox added runs in the fourth and fifth, offsetting three unearned Washington tallies.

SINGLE DECIDES IT

Lou Piniella's two-run single in the seventh was the deciding blow in the Royals' victory over Minnesota. The winners scored three times in the fifth on just one hit—a double by Paul Schaal—plus four walks and a ground out.

Four Twins and three Royals were hit by stray pitches, tying

Orr in lead in Stanley Cup scoring

Bobby Orr assisted on three goals to take the lead in the Stanley Cup individual scoring race as Boston Bruins downed Montreal Canadiens 7-3 Tuesday night.

Bobby Hull, idle as a result of Chicago Black Hawks' fourgame sweep over Philadelphia Flyers, held the lead earlier this week, with six goals and four assists for 10 points. Orr has five goals and seven assists for 12 points.

Chicago Black Hawks wrapped up their best-of-seven West Division semi-final series in four straight games over Philadelphia Flyers and wait to meet the winner of the New York Rangers-Toronto Maple Leafs East Division semi-final series which New York leads 3-2.

They're at it again at Jarry

MONTREAL (CP) — This city's baseball fans continued their exuberant support for the National League Expos Tuesday as their hometown idols opened their third season at home.

The happy love-in atmosphere of the East Division's first two seasons was still there as the 1971 version of the Expos took to the field against the New York Mets.

Despite overcast skies and a threat of afternoon showers, Jarry Park supporters were crammed shoulder-to-shoulder, applauding and stamping their feet when their team was introduced at pre-game festivities.

The last remainder of winter — 10-foot high snow banks beyond the right field fence — provided an extra grandstand and a free view of the field for 20 enterprising young baseball fans. A traffic policeman sent to chase them away ended up joining the youngsters.

Spring fashions at the ball park ranged from light summer clothing to fur coats and snowmobile outfits. Two fans wore 17-century livery and paraded about the home-plate area before the game started.

CHEER HOT PANTS
Mini, midi and maxi skirts, hot pants, jump suits and jeans received cheers from girlwatchers and busy photographers.

Manager Gene Mauch said the playing field was in the best condition he had ever seen in the park's short history. One month ago it was buried under 13 feet of snow.

"Miracles happen for the Expos in this town," he said.

"I can't say enough about the fans here, and the people in our organization who have come through every opening game."

The flashing scoreboard, half-buried under huge snow-drifts only two short weeks ago, was back in its usual form urging on the Expos with bilingual exclamations of "ZAP, BAM and POWIE."

And there were the familiar "Le Grand Orange," "Les Expos-81 in 71" and "Big Bad John" rallying messages also.

"It's gonna be a great year," one enthusiastic fan yelled.

"Yeah," his neighbor interjected, "all the way to the World Series."

"Pass the bottle, I'm freezing," shouted a third.

Temperature at game time was a chilly 41 degrees but nobody seemed to care.

Arnie over mark again

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer has reached the $100,000 mark in golf earnings for the sixth straight year.

Palmer boosted his earnings for the year to $100,828 with an 18th place finish in the Masters that was good for $2,650 in winnings, the PGA Tournament Players announced today. He continues to lead pro golf's weekly money list.

Miller Barber, who failed to survive the Masters cut, remained second with $88,884 while Gary Player moved into third place with $82,015.

Palmer has surpassed the $100,000 mark in his career eight times.

Others in the top 10 this year include:

Tom Shaw, $79,331; Jack Nicklaus, $73,775; Billy Casper, $64,130; Carlyle Snead, $59,114; Dave Eichelberg, $53,641; Lee Trevino, $53,190 and George Archer, $50,467.

Grid supremacy to Americans?

NEW YORK (NEA)—Designs for championship rings have been pouring into the Baltimore Colts' office ever since the Colts won the Super Bowl.

Appropriately enough, says a Colt official, most of the proposed rings carry the words, "World Champions."

"We'll make a decision on the design in the next few weeks," he added.

Up in Canada, there are several persons who feel the Colts should delay their decision a while longer—just for the sake of accuracy. These people, you see, don't believe Baltimore won the world championship—just the National Football League title.

"I'll grant that, in their league, the Colts are a great team," said Terry Evanshen, "but I think it's presumptuous for them to call themselves world champions. They haven't licked the world—just their half of it."

Evanshen's half of the world is the Canadian Football League. He is an all-star split end for the Canadian world champions, the Montreal Alouettes.

According to Evanshen, the Canadian Football League Players' Association is preparing to suggest a play off between the Canadian champion and the American champion to decide, officially, the real world champion.

"We think we're ready for it," he said.

Some do; many don't.

"This may be a little premature," said CFL Commissioner Jake Gaudaur. "Terry is a tough, aggressive type who would say something like this, but there are a lot of problems—or differences—to be settled first."

"In the first place, there's the problem of when: Our regular season ends in the latter part of October. That means our champions would have to sit around for three months doing nothing."

"In the second place—and probably more important

—there would be the problem of reconciling the rules differences. We play a different brand of football up here."

"We have 12-man teams instead of 11—the 12th is usually a flanker—and our field is 15 yards wider and 10 yards longer. We put much more emphasis on speed than size. All our backs can go in motion in any direction on the snap; we use three downs instead of four; and there's no blocking on punt returns and therefore no such thing as a fair catch."

"In professional sports, one thing you learn is not to have false pride, but I'll say this: If the NFL was willing to play our rules in Canada, we would win, but if we played NFL rules on a smaller field in the U.S., they'd probably bomb us."

Football is popular in Canada. The CFL, which has existed since 1946, draws many players from the U.S. (Evanshen is from Utah State), but sets a limit of 14 per team on the number of players that can be imported from outside Canada. The league contains nine 32-man teams.

George Reed of Washington State has been called the "Jim Brown of the CFL" at Saskatchewan. John Barrow of Florida has been a star for 14 years at Hamilton while Wayne Harris of Arkansas (Calgary) and Bill Symons of Colorado (Toronto) also have found fame—if not untold riches—north of the border.

Evanshen, who reportedly makes about $32,000, is one of the league's highest-paid players.

"You have to remember we don't have the big U.S. stadiums," Commissioner Gaudaur said. "Vancouver has our biggest seating capacity at 35,000. Also, you must consider that Canada has only a 29 million population compared to the United States' 200 million."

The CFL players' association notwithstanding, Gaudaur isn't ready to push for a world championship play-off with the U.S.

"It might aggravate some Canadians, but it doesn't aggravate me," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, they (Baltimore) can say they're the world champions of their football and we can say we're the world champions of ours."

Dedicated hockey fans: a new breed in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leaf fans have always been considered among the most knowledgeable around the National Hockey League, but never over-exuberant.

Visiting New York Ranger fans were so struck by the silence of Maple Leaf Gardens fans that they dubbed the arena Maple Leaf Morgue.

"Quiet and studious," was the assessment of Leaf fans by Derek Sanderson, the explosive centre with Boston Bruins.

Another betting version

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club Ltd. may soon introduce its own version of off-track betting facilities, a Jockey Club official said Monday.

"It's an interesting concept and we're giving it considerable thought," said John J. Mooney, executive vice-president and managing director of the Jockey Club which runs five Ontario tracks.

The system, similar to one proposed by the Western Canada Racing Association in Alberta last month, would, for example, enable Buffalo-area fans to bet at the Fort Erie track on race meets being conducted at the club's two Toronto tracks—Woodbine and Greenwood.

The Mohawk track at Campbellville or Garden City track at St. Catharines could also be utilized when the standardbreds are racing at Greenwood.

Horse players could use the dining or cocktail facilities at tracks not in operation and watch the races over a closed-circuit television hookup after placing their bets at Jockey Club mutuel machines.

Mooney said the proposal for increasing betting totals at Jockey Club tracks is not new. The idea was advanced to the federal department of agriculture "about seven or eight years ago ... and we were turned down."

But there's a new breed of Gardens' fandom, epitomized by Ann Pendergast, dubbed the Superfan, Joan Covert and Walter Govereau.

Ann's a leggy, long-haired brunette who haunts the Gardens every spare moment she has, never misses a game and only occasionally a workout.

While others are barred by ushers, 19-year-old Ann gets preferential treatment at the practice sessions; smoking, drinking her coffee and watching the players go through their paces while others are whisked from the Gardens' inner confines.

She's been a Leaf fan for nine years, but it has only been since late 1969, when she struck up a conversation with goalie-turned-scout Johnny Bower, that Ann has become devoted to the team.

She started visiting the practice sessions after bumping into Bower at physiotherapist Karl Elieff's Gardens' office.

"I just sat there freaking. ... What was I? I was a kid who was nuts about hockey yet he Bower was talking to me."

From then, her life revolved around the Leafs and she has a filing cabinet at home filled with clippings of the players, a hockey stick autographed by the 1965 team, and shorthand notes she makes of incidents at the game.

She keeps the notes to settle any arguments.

"Bower is still my favorite because he is the one player who is everything I ever expected," says Ann.

But while Ann is known by almost all the Gardens' personnel, Joan Covert is becoming equally well-known, particularly to the Toronto fans in the north-end blues who are subjected to her venomous taunts of the aspiring young Toronto defence.

The transplanted Chicago native — her favorite whipping boy at home was the Black Hawks' Dennis Hull — levels most of her acid comment at Jim Dorey. Why?

"He's bad, that's all, a bad defenceman," says Joan. "Last year I booed Pat Quinn — all the way to Vancouver."

Her anti-Leaf attitude hasn't gone unnoticed. During a recent game when she was late arriving, she enjoyed the unwelcome glares of those around her, one of whom said: "Oh no, we have to listen to her garbage again."

Joan leaves no doubt she's still a Chicago fan; even so far as to admit that Dennis Hull has improved.

"I feel sorry for Toronto goaltenders, even though I don't like the Leaf team. I mean, imagine what it would be like to play behind that defence."

"Dorey, all he does is point. He's the pointer."

South won the opening heart lead and went right after trumps. East cashed his ace and led a second heart. South won with his king. Later on South had to lose both the club and diamond finesses plus a heart to go down one trick.

South criticized North for his Stayman three-club bid. He pointed out that with a 4-3-3-3 distribution, North should have just raised to three no-trump.

North agreed that this might have been a better bid but pointed out that South should have made four spades. The winning line of play would be to forget all about finesses and play the ace and jack of diamonds after winning the heart lead.

This would set up dummy's queen of diamonds for a heart discard before the defense had time to set up a trick in that suit.

We feel both South and North are correct but that no real crime was committed. We would prefer a raise to three no-trump with the North hand, but can set up many hands where four spades would be a better contract.

The play is also close. South needed one of two finesses to make four spades the way he played the hand. This was a 75 per cent chance.

North's suggest line of play works but it is easy to set up hands with one or both finesses right that would collapse on the no finesse line due to bad breaks in clubs, diamonds or both suits. Our verdict is that North and South were more unlucky than unskillful.

Island Brook traced from 1865

BY MRS. G. SPAULDING

As you leave Sherbrooke in an easterly direction passing through Lennoxville, Sand Hill and Birchton, route 28 to Cookshire until you reach the C.P.R. tracks at the foot of the hill at which you take a sharp turn to the right, eight miles later you reach the small rural village of Island Brook.

In the 1860's it must have been a dense wooded area. How long before that time anyone was here isn't known but there were people named Jordan living where the Seale home is today. Mr. G. Spaulding settled in perhaps about 1864-65 about a mile from the Jordan's. He built a long house, that still stands, and three of his grandchildren later made use of it.

I have heard that people, such as the Flanders and Sayers and maybe many others living in their small cottages surviving by making pot-ash and cutting wood. Those who were there at that time started the building of the United Church which still stands on the same location as first chosen.

By 1870 settlement flourished and for a while afterward progressed rapidly. North River passes through Island Brook and during that time several mills were built. Later the river's waters were used to drive logs and pulpwood to the big town mills. Now it is used for summer relaxation with swimming holes and camping sights dotting the banks.

At that time the Town Hall, office of the Secretary-Treasurer and the Royal Templar's Hall were found on the side of the brook that descends 60 or 70 feet below the village. Island Brook, the name of the village, was derived from the existence of an island at the widest part of the brook.

In 1823, Alden Learned opened what is today called the "Learned Plain". He had laboured along for ten years but at this time others helped to build roads and clear the land. He built the road to Island Brook or Ditton as it was then called.

The following are some of the names of people, coming from Argenteuil to Newport county, who settled and made Island Brook a community: James Hamilton, wife, three sons, John, Matthews, Joe, William and three of four daughters; William and Joseph Boyd with their father Valentine; Matthew and James Christie with their father William John; William Gordon and wife; Robert, Samuel, John, Robert Senior Kerr and wife; James and Richard Elliot and wives; William and James Miller and families; Seale, Westgate, Wilson and Bryant families; Richard Graham and family; Mark Berry and family; John Burns and family; Edward Parker a widower and family; William Smith, wife and blind sister; Richard Dawson and wife; the Wood families; Jesse Renny, an aged mother.

The Orr, Burwash, King and McAllister families came from Dalesville to settle. Names of other settlers from Ontario, United States, France, England and Ireland were: Luther French who married, had a large family and settled across from the Post Office, Thomas and George Washington; Henry Morrow and wife; Augustus Aldin, wife and family of four; Manlius Hobcock, wife and large family; Oliver Paquet and family; Herman Sunbury, wife and three children; James Simpson and family; Thomas Painter and family; Ralph Lindsay Todd and large family.

Many of the old homes including the Todd home still stand.

Richard H. Wilford was born in Cookshire in 1829 and lived there many years. Upon the opening of the settlement he moved to Island Brook and opened a general store. During the years afterward he held the posts of post-master, secretary of the municipal council and a school commissioner. His business still stands on the same site.

Mark Halbrooke, Augustus Alden and Samuel Miller followed Richard Wilford in performing the town tasks. Gordon Lister took over the duties from Miller, moving the business down to the Luther French house. With the help of his family, Gordon Lister held the position for 30 years in the post office in the town which was abolished. The Wilford building has had the Crawford family living in it for over 30 years.

Mor and more people came in the early 1900's and late 1800's. There was a settlement along the North River Road. Some of the family names were McCormick, Laird, Patton, Doherty and Wood. Very likely there were others too. They all had large families of whom only three or four left the community.

On the straight road near Ditton, there were a few Norwegians. One name that comes to everybody's mind is Olson. Later there were a group of Irish Catholics. Some of them were the Flannagan's, Corrigan's, Largy's, Thompson's and Kelly's.

The United Church was built and dedicated in 1870. The Christ Church was built in 1875. Some of the workers on the church building were S. Wood, W. Dawson, B. H. Wilford and James Weston. The cost of the church was over $1,000. A Catholic Church built then lasted only a few years. In the last 25 years another Catholic Church arose but has since closed.

There were schools also built. There was a school at the corner of Knicky-Knicky Road and another, a log building, across from the Town Hall. In 1890 the present school was built, first, as a one room school house but later as more students enrolled, the building became a two store building. In 1968-69 the school was closed because of regional centralization of the school system. Now the students travel by bus to a regional school or to the Cookshire Elementary School.

An organization called the Lawrence and Island Brook Youth Association was formed to buy the school when it was for sale. Now, the old school house is a youth center and is used for diverse activities.

A Catholic School, in the early days, was abandoned but now a two-story building across from the Town Hall serves the Catholic students.

Newport contained 61,600 square acres and had an evaluation of $355,536. The industries were: G. W. L. French Saw and Grist Mill, Lyon's Clapboard and Shingle Mill, and T.F. Franch's Shingle Mill. Most of the east-end was timbered while the west-end was settled by progressive farmers. There was also a cheese factory. Now, there are no industries left and those not farming seek work elsewhere.

The two stores are owned by Earl Crawford and Lionel LeRoux. Mr. LeRoux built a store and dwelling, combined, in the building that used to be the George Washington French home in 1970. He had kept the store across the road for many previous years.

In the early days each person had a piece of land and all work was done by hand. Soon the horse and oxen came to be replaced by the tractor. Now very few farmers have less than two tractors. The ladies and children had to grow family gardens, carry water, can and preserve their fruits and vegetables so that they had enough to last the winter months as stores were inaccessible during the snowfalls. People killed animals for meat. Beef was canned and pork was salted and put in brine in a pork barrel. Butter was made from cow cream and skim milk was fed to the calves. Sometimes the total milk was taken to the creamery or the cheese factory. Now the milk is taken directly from the bulk tank.

Although Island Brook has less farmers than it used to, those farmers have five or six times as many cows, four times as many hogs and poultry and therefore need more land in order to feed the stock.

Island Brook is still flourishing although there aren't as many large families as compared to yesteryear and we still hope Island Brook will progress for many years to come.

A look at Mansonville

BY MRS. RAY W. GARDNER

Mansonville 1970 has suffered few changes in the past year. The people living here work at various places: the Monticelli Bobbin Co. situated on the Vale Perkins Road about a mile and a half from the village; Mansonville Plastics, which is at the eastern edge of the village, and the Mansonville lumber, which has its place of business on the Highway Road. A large number, both men and women, commute to Knowlton where they are employed at the Clairor Co. and a number also travel to Austin where they work as attendants at the Cecil Butters Memorial Hospital. Still others work at the Space Research Institute Inc. near Highwater.

The most important change in the last year is that the Town does not own any machinery or manage its own road maintenance of either summer or winter roads. As of the first of September 1970, the Town sold all of its machinery and road maintenance equipment. The maintaining of both summer and winter roads were let by tender. The tender for all roads on the east of route 39 was let to Emile Korman while those west of the same highway were let to Mr. Merrill Sherrer.

The present Mayor is Adrien Laplume, the councillors are Clifton Jersey, Clement Caron, Porter Knowlton, Bruno Marcoux, Eric Sullivan and Royal Lamothe. The only bad fire for the year was that of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaulin. For the last two years the Town has had zoning and building by-laws, the inspector for this ordinance is Arthur Aiken.

During the year 1970 eighteen residents of the town died. The oldest of these was Honore Carrier at the age of 92, while at the other end of the balance was Raymond Cote aged 47.

The farmers do not go in for dairy farming as they did in years gone by. Some keep beef cattle, of which the Hereford seems to be the preferred breed while others have swine or fowl. This area has become very sports minded: skating on the rink, which is managed by the Mansonville Athletic Association; funds for which are raised by membership fees and by popular subscription as well as by card parties.

Skiing has become very popular as we have the Owl's Head Resort near by. The sport which appears to have bridged the generation gap is snowmobiling, as children, parents and grandparents all seem to derive a lot of exercise and enjoyment from this pastime. There are also a few who enjoy curling and play on different rinks, as there is not a curling rink in town. There are citizens enough to form a good sized club of this sort, but here is the pinch — none is brave enough to suggest the matter to the ladies and gentlemen, who would be eligible for membership in such a project. The only way to tell is that the older residents are clever enough to hire out their snow shovelling work; rather than attempt doing it themselves.

There are three protestant churches in the village, only one of which, the United Church, has a resident pastor, in the person of Rev. Carl J. Gustafson, Fr. L. Boisclair is resident priest of the Roman Catholic Church, St. Cajetan. The Mansonville Elementary School is capably taught by Mrs. Thelma Cote; while the Roman Catholic Elementary school has Mr. Jacques Lessard as director; both of these teachers are helped by capable staffs.

Mansonville's young poet, Devon Wilkins was married in December 1970 and will in future make her home in Peterborough, Ont.

OBITUARIES

MRS. EVAN OWEN DAVIES

At the Sherbrooke Hospital, on March 29, 1971, the death occurred of Mrs. Evan Owen Davies (nee Amy Martha Johnston) of Windsor, Que.

On Oct. 30, 1884, twin daughters, Amy and Ada were born to David Johnston and his wife, Mary Ellen Rooney, at Melbourne Ridge, Que. Other children in the family were Annie May, Thomas and Arthur.

In 1904, Amy Johnston married Evan Owen Davies and went to live in New Rockland, Que., where her husband, in partnership with Mr. Sam Frazer, had reopened the operation of the New Rockland Slate Quarry in 1901. They resided there for many years until Mr. Davies suffered a serious accident which left him crippled, then they moved to Windsor, Que., where Mrs. Davies lovingly cared for her husband for twenty-two years before his death. Of this union four children were born — Lida (deceased) wife of the late Donald McIntyre and Clayton English, twins Emrys and Mary (died in infancy) and Marjorie (Mrs. John Bagnall). Mrs. Davies is survived by her twin sister Mrs. Ada Jones of Winnipeg, Man., her daughter, Marjorie, Mrs. Bagnall and her husband, John, of Florida, USA, her grandson Angus McIntyre, his wife, Thelma, and their children, Carolyn, John and Alan, of Downsview, Ont., a brother-in-law, Donald Davies, Melbourne, Que., and a son-in-law, Clayton English of Ontario, as well as many nieces and nephews.

In her earlier years, she was a member of The Eastern Star and until the last few years, she was an ardent worker for various organizations of The United Church. She will be greatly missed, for she was a dear little lady of quiet strength, who was loved by all — young and old.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, March 31, at the Lockwood Inc. Funeral Home, Richmond, Que. The service was conducted by the Reverend R. A. Cameron, minister of Chalmers' United Church of Richmond and Melbourne, assisted by Mr. G. W. Ralph of St. Andrew's United Church, Windsor.

WI sponsors Apple Growers meeting

ABBOTSFORD — A first in the history of the Quebec Women's Institute took place in Abbotsford, P.Q. on March 30, 1971, when the Abbotsford Women's Institute sponsored an evening meeting for all local and area apple growers and interested guests, at the Town Hall, Abbotsford.

Mrs. Fred Crossfield welcomed the guest speakers, growers and other guests on behalf of the Abbotsford Women's Institute.

The featured speaker of the evening was Dr. D. Fisher, head of Pomology at the Summerland Research Station, B.C. and on loan for one year to the Federal Research Station at St. Jean, P.Q.

Dr. Fisher took us on a guided and illustrated tour of his work at the Summerland Orchards where he is working on the new spur type Delicious and Macintosh trees. He emphasized the advantages of the fantastic increased production per branch on this new type of tree and showed us how to train the branches to carry the load without breaking. The slides illustrating his talk were most beautiful as well as instructive. This new spur type Mac will soon be available at Ontario and local nurseries.

Mr. Benoit Parent of the Research Station at St. Jean, next favoured us with one of his excellent illustrated talks on the several stages in the life history of the very important and serious orchard pest, the Red Mite. The slides showed peak periods of infestation and charts of control materials. Mr. Parent is well named The Man of the Mighty Red Mite. His research on this pest has been translated into several languages.

Mr. R. Granger, also of the Research Station at St. Jean, was the third and last speaker of the evening. He told the growers of his research work with Alar. Isn't it nice to know that this wonder growth regulator will allow us to pick perfect Melbas in late September?

A question period followed, enabling the growers to get many problems solved.

Mr. S. Hebert of the Institute of Technology at St. Hyacinthe acted as chairman for the meeting.

Mr. Hamilton Marshall thanked the speakers on behalf of all present for a most interesting and instructive meeting.

A social time followed, with growers mingling freely while enjoying coffee and sandwiches served by the W.I.

Fifty-seven attended this meeting, a most gratifying fact, which proves that we do need an Apple Growers meeting in English.

The W.I. of Abbotsford hopes to repeat this pilot project in 1972.

A cordial vote of thanks goes to Mrs. Fred Crossfield who arranged the program for the evening, and to Mrs. B. A. Rowell who with other W.I. members attended most efficiently to all other details in making this event an unqualified success.

Everyone agreed that the ACW should purchase Prayer Books to give to each of the children being confirmed this year.

WINTER TRAINING IN SPRING — It's officially spring and it's getting warmer all the time, but there's still a lot of snow around and plenty time to practice winter environmental training in Farnham. During one such recent session, the pause that refreshed was a tin of beans on a cross-country snowshoe trek. Left is Capt. John Anderson, instructor from Secteur de l'Est headquarters, who lives at 3175 Coolbrook, N.D.G., with his signaller, Sgm. Guy Blais, 757 Gariepy, Sherbrooke, with 14 Independent Signals Squadron.

Hints on stamps

By M. M. Woodman

The first in a series of 4 stamps "Maple Leaf in Four Seasons", this one called "The Maple in Spring", was released today. The design is by Miss Alma Duncan of Galetta.

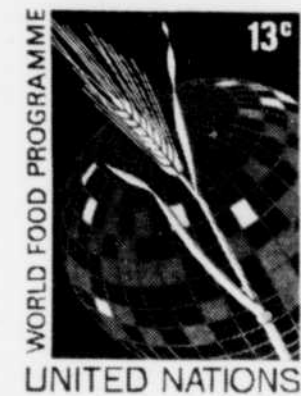

Ontario. The Printer was Ashton-Potter Limited of Toronto. The size of the stamp is 24 mm x 40 mm. There were 26,000,000 ordered. The stamp is printed by five colour lithography. Marginal inscriptions including the designer's name will appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. (These by the way are only available at the Philatelic Bureau or from your dealer).

With this issue you will find that the Post Office is going into business by supplying First Day Covers themselves. They advise that if you send 26 cents for a single stamp they will send you one. However you must send a money order to cover cost, so they will cost you more than if you bought from a dealer, in most cases. The maple is a very interesting tree. There are types of maples even in China. Did you know, for instance, that there are 10 species of maple trees native to Canada? They are the vine, broadleaf, douglas, mountain, striped, red, silver, sugar, black and Manitoba.

There will be a 13 cent (Red) for the New York issue and F.S. 0.50 (Purple) for the Geneva issue.

There will be 2,100,000 of the 13 cent issue and 1,900,000 of the F.S. 0.50 denomination for Geneva. The Stamp was designed by Olav S. Mathiesen of Denmark. Marginal inscriptions will appear in each corner of the sheet. You may order these either from the UN Postal Administration or from your local dealer. (I am still waiting for my order from the last issue of March 12th. I have confirmed that my cheque cleared the bank on the 5th of March and was dated 11th February so I say good luck if you are in no rush).

At the Royal Canadian Mint

In 1971 the Mint has issued a seven-coin set which contains one coin of each denomination together with an extra dollar, thus enabling the particular design of the reverse of each coin to be displayed while the extra dollar shows the design of the obverse which is common to all. These coins are all double struck. Only once previously has the Mint done this in its 63 year history. This was to celebrate the centenary of Confederation in 1967.

There is a second set with all denominations and an extra one cent piece. This is packaged in a simulated leather case and of course is much cheaper than the one mentioned above, which is in a genuine leather case.

The Commemorative dollar is packaged in a nice case on its own. This is the same as the 1970 dollar except that it commemorates BC instead of Manitoba.

The usual Mint set of 6 coins sealed in polyester film. These are the sets that most collectors add to their collections. For the first time in its history the Mint is offering for sale to the public pairs of cuff-links which bear on their fronts a representation of the towers and turrets of the entrance of the fort-like structure of the Royal Canadian Mint. They are available either plated in 24 carat gold or in rhodium. They are encased in a nice box.

I have just been advised by the Royal Canadian Mint that later this year they are going to make a Commemorative SILVER dollar, the same size as they were before 1968.

Senior Citizens Club organized in Danville

DANVILLE
By Mrs. MARGARET E. FROST

Every small town has more than its quota of clubs in various interests to the public, and Danville certainly has its share of these. To the average citizen who is still active and able to participate fully, they fill the need for social involvement. However, Danville has its share of retired citizens and they often found the time rather heavy on their hands.

No longer able to share in the running of the activities which they had previously enjoyed, there was now a definite need for some entertainment that would allow them to participate without the actual responsibility of keeping up their "end of the deal." For some time the rector of the Church of England, Rev. L. G. Westman had felt that a Senior Citizen Club would fill this need, but it was not until last Feb. that the first meeting was held in the Parish Hall of St. Augustine's Church. Some forty guests came to enjoy an afternoon of various games and light refreshments served by several ladies at the close of the afternoon.

At that time a chairman, Mr. John Philbrick and a secretary treasurer, Mr. S. J. Olney were elected. Mrs. Ernest Frost and Mrs. Ray McMorine were asked to act as co-ordinator and hostess for these meetings. Mrs. Westman helped, later Mrs. A.M. Carr and now Mrs. Anatole Demers assists as well.

In March a short program of Irish music, songs and an Irish jig made a change from the regular program. At that time the Publics Relation Dept. of the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. had a photographer there to take pictures of many who had been in their employment prior to their retirement. Among those was Mr. E. E. Lockwood, who is enjoying his 21st year of retirement.

For several months in the summer there were no meetings, but they resumed with much enthusiasm in Sept. Members arrive early and are finished soon after four o'clock in the afternoon. There are several reasons for this early schedule.

During Lent the Roman Catholics attended a late service on Tues. afternoon, and those who may come from the Foyer Ste. Anne Maria are obliged to return at an early hour for the supper meal which is served at a few minutes before five each afternoon. Another factor - those responsible arrive at about twelve thirty to have all in readiness for the guests when they arrive, and then they too have to hurry home to prepare a meal for their families.

The Christmas meeting was an exception to the rule. For several months various ideas had been discussed as to how this special occasion could be celebrated. Finally it was decided to hold a Christmas music and song concert in the Church itself, starting at 3 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Wright Gibson of Sherbrooke well-known for their musical ability, were contacted and it was with great pleasure that they accepted this invitation to return to their home-town for this occasion. The same enthusiastic response was given by the Rev. Father Jean Marc Allaire of Sherbrooke Seminary, for he too is one of Danville's talented native sons.

This was going to be a great day for the Half Century Club - for this was the name they had chosen at their organizing meeting. Soon the thoughts of the organizers turned to those from Danville who are residing in the Wales Home, Richmond, and of how they too would enjoy this afternoon. No sooner thought than done - John Philbrick, Steve Olney and Joe Batstone drove out in the early afternoon, and collected those who cared to come to the party.

It has been said that a poor cook is the rare exception, rather than an exception in Danville and all the ladies are proud of that reputation. Naturally refreshments form a big part of any social gathering. This was certainly no different, for the Christmas Tree made a beautiful setting for the long tables in the Parish Hall which were laid with Christmas cloths, and had lovely decorations on all of them; presenting a most pleasing sight to the guests when they entered the hall at the close of the concert.

Seated at the head table with the officers were the guests from Sherbrooke, the Mayor of Danville, Gerard Lafrance and Mrs. Lafrance, as well as the Parish priests of the Ste. Anne Church and of the Carmelite Convent and the ministers and their wives of the churches in the town.

It was a bilingual and multi-religious affair - but it was a tremendous success. Father Devoveau asked the blessing in French, and then all sat down to be served a delicious hot turkey dinner, prepared by Mrs. M. Williams and Mrs. Howard Lodge. It was a source of satisfaction to those working in the kitchen that so much of the food had been donated - on a completely voluntary basis. To the 95 guests who enjoyed this truly delectable meal, it was a treat in itself, and to those who had the privilege of serving it - the satisfaction of a job well-done was ample payment.

Each afternoon of entertainment is a relaxed time for all and a new face appears nearly every time. True, in this short time, two members have passed away - but I hope that there is a sense of companionship there for those who are left.

To all of us, the Half Century parties mean just one thing - good fun for all - regardless of faith or language. Love for our fellowmen motivated the start of this venture - and its growth can only depend on the good fellowship of all. By all co-operating to help each other, and by each trying to make life pleasant for the rest of the members, how can such a venture fail?

Centre of open pit once the Morrill farm

Little Miss Ann Morrill is wearing a dress that is over 70 years old, and had belonged to her great aunt, Mrs. W. S. Hamilton, the former Gladys Morrill, of Drummondville, Que. and Lake Worth, Fla. Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Morrill of St. Bruno, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Morrill of Drummondville, and a great granddaughter of Mrs. Lyman Morrill of the Wales Home Richmond, and of the late Lyman Morrill of Asbestos.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Morrill Sr., started their married life on the farm with Mr. Morrill's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Morrill, and there the first of their children, Gladys (Mrs. W. S. Hamilton) Grace, (Mrs. Howard Laxson, now deceased) and Kenneth of Drummondville were born. About that time operations were started for what is now one of the largest open - pit mines in the world, and the Morrill farm was absorbed by this operation.

To-day the site of the old Morrill farm is the centre of this immense pit. Mr. and Mrs. Morrill purchased the Harvey farm on the road to Danville and there their last child, Russell of Lake Worth, Fla., was born. Once again the land was sold to the evergrowing town of Asbestos, but Mr. and Mrs. Morrill lived on in the farm house for several years, until Mr. Morrill's death when Mrs. Morrill moved to the town of Danville. She now resides at the Wales Home, Richmond, and will celebrate her 95th birthday in May. Extremely alert and active, completely bi-lingual, Mrs. Morrill takes a great interest in all the goings on at the Home as well as in the community. She joins her granddaughter, Mrs. Malcolm Knowles and family at the various holiday seasons, and enjoys every minute of it.

Memories of long-ago

INVERNESS
By C. W. McVETTY

The congregation of St. Andrew's Church, here, consider themselves very fortunate, indeed, to have as their present incumbent, Mr. Waldon Moase, who, with Mrs. Moase, and daughters, Darlene and Kathy, have come from Prince Edward Island. Mr. Moase handed me recently an account of the 100th anniversary of his home church called the South Granville Presbyterian Church, P.E.I. The services took place on Oct. 1, 1964, and we stand in debt to Neil Matheson for the article which follows:

"I had the privilege of sharing in a most unusually moving experience when the people of South Granville Presbyterian Church observed this 100th anniversary last Sunday afternoon.

There were so many things to remind one of the services of long ago. The old church itself is unchanged in its basic structure and arrangement, since I first worshipped in it more than fifty years ago. The interior has been painted and redecorated and presents an attractive appearance as a place of worship. But tears came to my eyes as I was whisked rapidly down the long trail of memory when William Bruce of Valleyfield "presented" the lines for rendition of the 103rd psalm in Gaelic for those of us who were singing with him. It took me back to my boyhood days in Rose Valley, and the nearby churches our family attended at Sacrament time, including Granville. The Fact the psalms, and a paraphrase sung without organ music was another reminder. And Lloyd Leland's reading of the lesson in faultless Gaelic was still another link with the past that was forged on that unforgettable afternoon.

I can recall the days when only the psalms were countenanced in some of the older churches.

I wonder how many readers can recall the statement "The psalms came down from Heaven, and they go back to Heaven when they are sung, but the hymns which were made go only to the ceiling of the church and bounce back from there." If that sentiment seems unreal now, it was very real to those who held that opinion long ago. Devoted church people held strong opinions in those earlier days. I can recall attending a Sacrament service one Sunday in this same South Granville church with my mother in my boyhood days. One of the men sitting in the side seats, facing the pulpit at the front of the church arose and walked from the building shortly before the service started.

When we went to a neighbour's home for dinner, as was the custom, I learned that one of the devout members of the congregation had walked from the building because some one had brought a vase of beautiful flowers and placed it on the table in front of the pulpit.

If flowers in a church seem commonplace now, it must be remembered that it was unusual in those days, and to this old churchman the vase presented "a foreign matter, or an idol, as some people termed it, brought into the House of God."

I have long forgotten the gentleman's name, but I thought of him Sunday as I sat in the old church and listened to Rev. Donald Campbell pay tribute to the days of long ago.

The same strong convictions were held concerning a church organ. Many a congregation, including our own, had to wait many years before permission would be granted to bring this instrument into the church. The older people of those days had worshipped without an organ and it was difficult to break the long established traditions. South Granville was one of the last Presbyterian Churches in the province to bring an organ into the church.

To quote a paragraph from the leaflet distributed for the service "Until 1961, when circumstances necessitated the accession of the first organ to the church, the ministry of praise was under the direction of a precentor. Only the psalms and paraphrases were in use, with some of their most beloved ones being sung today. This is a taste of that stout covenant that has worked out the devout path of a people of God."

The "precentor" would sing the line, and all the congregation would join in singing it. One of the reasons, older people used to explain, was that many in the congregation would not have psalm books in the early days, and the line was sung or "precented" so that the rest of the congregation could join in the singing. Many memories came flooding back when Mr. Bruce acted as "precentor" on Sunday.

It is refreshing to learn that the good people of the congregation described above, continue to practice "The Faith of their fathers" as their fathers did, without question or doubt, entering their minds. This same message is being brought eloquently to our attention by Mr. Moase.

Irresponsible youth or grown-up?

DANVILLE

By Mrs. MARGARET E. FROST

The common practice of the correspondent who writes for the Record is to send in an item of the achievements of the town in which he or she lives - praising the many accomplishments of the past year. Little of that can be found in Danville - with people becoming less interested in any of the various organizations which need their support.

Some years ago one of these organizations talked of an indoor swimming pool - which most people thought rather unnecessary. To-day the Brownies, Guides, Cubs and Scouts of this area would benefit greatly from such a venture. It is virtually impossible for them to obtain swimming lessons, except by going to the Y.M.C.A. in Sherbrooke. This means many headaches in transportation - and often bad roads as well.

Also, there is no opportunity for the child to swim beyond that one short period each week. True, we have lakes and various swimming pools in the summer; but once a session of swimming lessons are started; there is ALWAYS a spell of extremely cold weather. Small children who are an indigo blue do not learn how to swim. In addition to possibly saving a life in years to come - think of the hours of pleasure that a person can derive from the pleasure of swimming, and the exercise obtained in this manner is beneficial too.

We hear so many complaints of the irresponsibility of the youth of to-day. Have you ever tried to rely on the average grownup? There are so many times that they fail to set the example of being able to keep their word and of doing what should be done at a proper time.

Meeting after meeting of all organizations is held with only a skeleton representation present.

Who complains of the decisions made by these few?

The ones who never come. Within a few short years many of the facilities which the public of this town take for granted will no longer be in existence for lack of support, and will be greatly missed. The Good Book tells us that we are our brothers' keeper, but we also know that when we were created, we were all given a brain and certain abilities, which we should use to the best of our ability to aid others, as well as to help ourselves.

Let me assure you that there are many who are still doing far more than their share in the town for various worthy causes, and will continue to do so as long as life permits. It is their way of life - and an extremely good one too. To them we are most grateful, but how happy they would be if they had the assurance that the work well begun by them would not cease to be when they are gone. Many times we are told "I have been working for pay, and no longer am interested in volunteer work." There IS pay in volunteer work - not in money, but in satisfaction of a job well done and of having justified your existence in the world.
