EARL GREY IN WINNIPEG.

Warmly Welcomed to Western City.

BIG PROCESSION FROM STATION THROUGH THE STREETS.

Winnipeg, October 10.—It was bright moonlight when Earl Grey, governor-general and lord high admiral, entered Winnipeg amid a blaze of pyrotechnics, searchlights and illuminations of all kinds Saturday evening. The streets were packed for miles, and on account of particularly fine weather many fine toilettes were seen. His Excellency and his brilliant suite, surrounded with a glittering escort of Royal Canadian Mounted Rifles, left the stately pile of the new C.P.R. Station at 8.20, and swiftly threaded its way between the waiting procession of the many nationalities which make up Winnipeg's motley population. Many fine bands saluted the party as it sped through the streets; in fact, it went so quickly that the major part of the imposing procession were left far in the rear. However, the Earl had the pleasure of reviewing the procession from the steps of Government House, the vicinity of which was a veritable wonderland, with wealth of Chinese lanterns, electric lights and gorgeous costumes. The Earl was particularly pleased with the turnout, the procession taking over half an hour passing Government House, and the roar of cheers were continuous which he and the Countess acknowledged with tireless courtesy.

DID DELCASSE AIM AT WAR?

Berlin Claims This Was His Purpose

SOUGHT TO HAVE ENGLAND JOIN FRANCE IN CONFLICT.

Cologne, October 10.—The Gazette publishes an apparently inspired communique from Berlin with reference to the story published in the Matin as to the circumstances in which Foreign Minister Delcasse was forced out of office as a consequence of the Franco-German clash over the affairs of Morocco and of the nearness at the time of war between Germany and France and England. The communique says that if the Matin's statements, which are generally attributed to Delcasse, are true, the whole revelation stands as a terrible exposure of the minister's policy, which aimed at nothing less than a collision between France and Germany. The article says: "That an offer of military assistance was made from England to Minister Delcasse we refuse to believe. The probability is that if the French minister, driven into a cul de sac, saw no other way out of it than war, and had appealed to England for help, the continuance of Delcasse's policy inevitably would have resulted in a war which, we are convinced, would have been as repugnant to the majority of the French people as it would have been to us Germans. It will be particularly interesting to note what action France will take in the matter of these revelations. To us in Germany this much is made clear: That our policy was on the right track when we made a determined stand against Delcasse's machinations. As regards the part that Great Britain is alleged to have played we prefer to stand aside and let the british press have the precedence in judging."

E. T PRESSMEN,

ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD IN SHERBROOKE.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Townships Press Association was held last evening at the Grand Central Hotel. There was a good attendance, Mr. George Legge, president, presided. After the usual routine business, the election of officers was proceeded with as follows:

President, A. E. Bourbeau, Victoriaville.

Secretary-Treasurer, H. Logie.

Executive Committee, L. S. Channell, L. A. Belanger and L. E. Charbonnel.

The question of affiliation with the Canadian Press Association, and extending the sphere of the Association was discussed on a motion introduced by Mr. L. S. Channell. This proposal was approved, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Canadian Press Association. Mr. L. S. Channell was appointed to bring the matter before the Executive of that Association.

Among those from outside Sherbrooke who attended the meeting were: Messrs. C. H. Parmelee, M.P., "Advertiser," Waterloo; George Legge, "Leader-Mail," Granby; W. L. Shurtleff, D.C.L., "Observer," Coaticook; L. E. Charbonnel, "Chronicle," Cookshire; A. L. Lance, "Times," Richmond.

Mr. John Holland, of the "Journal," Rock Island, sent his regrets, the lateness of the evening train preventing his attendance.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Forecast for the next 24 hours, issued by the Meteorological Bureau:

Fine and warm; local showers during the night.

THE STRIKERS IN MOSCOW.

Comparative Tranquility Prevailed Yesterday.

RED FLAGS WAIVED AT MEETINGS OF STRIKERS.

Moscow, October 10.—After the exciting events of the last three days, Monday passed in comparative tranquility. The strike of the bakers, printers and carmen continued and was joined by the theatrical mechanics. Two large gatherings of strikers were held in the open air, at which red flags were waved, but otherwise the proceedings were orderly and the manifestants dispersed of their own accord. There were no serious collisions with the troops and the feeling was much less tense. All the stores, except the Philipoff bakers, were opened.

Traffic was resumed on all the streets with the exception of the Tverskoi Boulevard, the centre of the previous disorders, which was closed with troops and police at all the intersecting streets. Detachments of Cossacks, dragoons and mounted police patrolled the vicinity and kept the crowds moving. Infantry and cavalry were held under arms in the courtyards of the police stations in various quarters of the city.

Complete order has been restored in the streets by the police and military patrols, reinforced by a regiment of Dragoons from Tyer.

Work was resumed yesterday in some sections of the city, but the strike continues elsewhere. At a meeting of street railway employees yesterday a majority voted to accept the conditions offered by the employers, and it is believed the service will be resumed today.

It is persistently reported that the steam railroad employees will strike on Wednesday.

It has been definitely ascertained that no one was killed during the disturbances of Saturday, but 75 persons were wounded, including the officers commanding the gendarmerie, three Cossacks and one policeman severely, and twenty policemen, gendarmes and Cossacks slightly.

When the troops fired on the houses from which the stones were thrown, all the bullets lodged in the ceiling, and there were no casualties.

Two hundred persons were arrested on Saturday. Sixty-five of these were imprisoned and the remainder released.

CRUSHED UNDER STREET CAR WHEELS

Parents Were Attending Funeral At The Time.

MANY SAW THE ACCIDENT — CAR HAD TO BE RAISED TO GET REMAINS FROM BENEATH WHEELS.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—In the presence of scores of Sunday pedestrians, Bernadette Legault, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. Camille Legault, who lives at No. 110 Park avenue, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a street car at the corner of Park avenue and Prince Arthur street, yesterday afternoon.

The little girl was playing in the street with her sister, Angelina, when she met her death. Both had crossed the street and Bernadette wanted to run back. Her sister tried to hold her, but she broke away just as a Park avenue car came along at such a speed that the motorman could not stop it in time. The little girl went under the car wheels and was dragged a considerable distance. When the car was finally stopped it was found necessary to raise it to get the mangled remains from beneath the wheels.

The body was carried to the drug store of P. McCormack, at the corner of Park avenue and Prince Arthur street. Dr. Vipond and Dr. Anderson were present, but the little girl was beyond human aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Legault were attending a funeral at the time of the accident, and the children were left in the care of the housekeeper.

The ladies of the family had gone in a carriage to the cemetery, but Mr. Legault took a street car. It was while waiting at the corner of St. Catherine and Union avenue that he heard from a passing conductor that a little child had been killed near his home. Mr. Legault hurried back, as he felt that something had happened, and arrived home to find a crowd round his residence and the neighboring drug store, and in a moment his worst fears were realized.

BIG TIMBER LIMIT DEAL.

EXTENSIVE LIMITS AND MILLS — PRICE SAID TO BE UPWARDS OF $70,000.

A large timber limit deal has just been closed between Mr. H. Ross and Mr. R. H. Fletcher. The latter has bought the timber limits and mills of the former in Orford and Brompton, the limits extending to about 9,000 acres.

It is understood that the price paid is in the neighborhood of $70,000.

RUSSIANS ON CHINA'S FRONTIER.

Tokio, Oct. 10.—It is reported here that Russia will station 360,000 troops on the Chinese frontier after peace has been declared, partly because she is apprehensive of the soldiers joining the malcontents at home and partly to intimidate the Chinese.

SPEAKS OF CURZON AND KITCHENER.

Interesting Views Of Sir John Jardine, Now Visiting Sherbrooke.

THINKS EX-VICEROY'S INDIAN POLICY WAS RIGHT—MUCH IMPRESSED WITH CANADA.

Sir John Jardine, a director of the British American Land Company, who is in town the guest of Mr. James Davidson, Commissioner of the Company, expects to spend some days in town.

Sir John is the prospective Liberal candidate in the division of Roxburg, one of the Scottish counties. For 35 years he was a member of the Indian Government.

Sir John expresses himself as delighted with the portion of Canada he has visited, and he hopes to see more of it before his return.

"I have six sons, and I am considering whether I will make them rulers in India or farmers in Canada," he remarked in an interview.

Referring to the situation in India he said:

"I think Lord Curzon and the gentlemen of his cabinet who think as he does anent Indian policy, are entirely in the right, and that Lord Kitchener has not made out his case."

"Has Kitchener of Khartoum the support of the army?" Sir John was asked.

"Headquarters will naturally be with him, but the Indian army is no doubt divided." was the reply. "There are many Indian officers who desire the viceroy to be advised by an officer of experience, and that Lord Kitchener certainly does not possess. He, as a matter of fact, wants to be military adviser to the viceroy, as well as commander-in-chief."

In reply to another question, Sir John said that if Mr. Balfour had put his foot down at first, Kitchener would not have gone so far, although the commander-in-chief, as good as said that unless they got rid of the Indian war minister, he would not be responsible for the proper defence of India.

"If Russia had not been weakened by Japan, do you think the defences of India quite adequate?"

"Yes, I think so. I believe in Lord Lansdowne's theory: If the Russians come, let them get through Afghanistan, and their worn-out army our fresh troops, brought by rail from all parts of India, and supported by native states loyal through self-interest. I also believe with Lord Dufferin that loyalty in India depends more on self-interest than on sentiment.

"Will Lord Minto willingly support Lord Kitchener?"

"That is what we suppose. The Times of India says that following Curzon's fate, all the viceroys will be afraid to go against Kitchener, and under these circumstances we must assume that Lord Minto goes out pledged to support Lord Kitchener."

Sir John Jardine also sees more. "The Government," he says, "got rid of Lord George Hamilton, secretary for India, who was a prominent free trader, and replaced him by a protectionist. Lord Curzon, who was also a free trader, is succeeded by a Chamberlainite, in the person of Lord Minto. As a matter of fact, it looks as if they wished to twist India's tail in the direction of protection."

In reference to the Chamberlain theories, Sir John suggests the following:

"Increase the home market by bringing people back to the land, as in the rural districts of England and Scotland small farms are being abolished. Let the people be given holdings as in Prussia, Denmark and here in Canada, and they will be only too ready to work. In Denmark the agricultural wealth of the country is daily on the increase, and her trade with Britain alone reaches £14,000,000 in farm produce, with 90 per cent. of the land owned by the farmers. The people are also confirmed free traders."

However, Sir John will advise the peasant farmers of Scotland, who never earn more than twenty-five shillings a week, to come to Canada, and secure farms for themselves and for their children.

He said that he was much impressed with the vastness of Canada, and also the kindness of the people whom he had met. He proposes extending his trip to the Northwest.

WANTS $5000 DAMAGES.

Case of George Gillanders is Being Heard.

HIS SON WAS KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT ON THE RAILWAY.

In the Superior Court, this morning, before Mr. Justice Hutchinson, the case of George Gillanders, farmer, Ascot, against the Quebec Central Railway Co., for $5,000 damages, for the death of his son, as a result of an accident, while in the employ of the Company, was begun.

The plaintiff's son was a fireman on the Quebec Central Railway Co., and on the 21st of November, 1904, while his train was near Thetford Mines the engine ran into a portion of an extra freight train which had broken apart, but which was not protected. The engine of the regular train was derailed, and Gillanders received such injuries that he died the next day in the Protestant Hospital.

The Company acknowledges liability, and the evidence being led in the case to-day is to fix the amount of damages.

Mr. C. H. Parmelee, M.P., Waterloo, came over last evening to attend the annual meeting of the E.T.P.A., and spent the day visiting old friends.

FORTY-SEVEN FEET OF CLEAN BITUMINOUS PENETRATED AT STELLARTON.

Stellarton, N.S., Oct. 10.—The Allan shafts of the Acadia Coal Company have gone through the seam found and show it to have a thickness of 47 feet of clean coal. Such thickness in a coal seam is heretofore unheard of. There are in England seams from 20 to 30 feet thick, but they have banks of foreign matter mixed through them. There is no known seam of clean bituminous coal of the thickness of this which the Acadia Company has struck.

FOWLER—MORRILL.

Castlebar, Oct. 10.—(Special.)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Emerson was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding on Saturday evening, Oct. 7th, when Mr. Edwin Fowler was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Florence Morrill. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Grant Nelson, pastor of the Advent church, under an arch of autumn leaves. After the ceremony and congratulations a beautiful wedding lunch was served, which did much credit to the host and hostess, and all did ample justice to the good things provided. Among those present from a distance were: Mrs. Frank Fitch, of Littleton, N. H.; Mrs. A. K. Powers and Mrs. McFarlane, of St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Mrs. A. C. Fairbrothers, of Newport, Vt. The evening was spent in social chat and singing of some of the good old hymns. After the good nights were said all departed to their several homes. MUSICAL AND ELOCUTIONARY RECITAL AT STANSTEAD.

Rock Island, Oct. 10.—(Special.) — Miss Violet B. Smith, teacher of singing, and Miss Irene Mallory, teacher of elocution, gave a recital at Pearce Memorial Hall Friday night, assisted by Messrs. Holmes and Martin.

There was a large and appreciative audience, and the programme was exceedingly pleasing.

Miss Smith possesses a rich contralto voice, of which she has perfect control. The numbers, "Roses in June," Seeman, and Branscombe's "Serenade," were her two best.

Miss Mallory showed herself to be an accomplished elocutionist. Among her selections were "The Prodigal," and "Andua Del Sarto." "Aunty Doleful," and "The Bear Story," simply brought down the house.

LAKE LESTER FISH AND GAME CLUB.

Stanstead, Oct. 10.—(Special.) — A meeting of the directors of Lake Lester Fish and Game Club was held at Mr. P. Gooley's cottage, Lake Lester, on the 8th inst.

Mr. Richard Gooley presided. There were present: Messrs. G. H. St. Pierre, W. H. Buckland, A. N. Thompson, W. K. Baldwin, R. C. Parsons and P. A. Bissonnette, and the Secretary, Mr. A. E. Baldwin.

The contract for lowering the water in the Little Pond six feet was awarded to Mr. W. K. Baldwin.

A committee composed of Messrs. R. Gooley, G. H. St. Pierre and A. E. Baldwin, was appointed for the purpose of acquiring a lease of land from Mr. W. K. Baldwin with power to erect a boat house thereon. The site chosen is just west of Mr. R. W. Moore's cottage.

The committee was also authorized to purchase six boats for the benefit of the members of the club.

This committee is also empowered to engage a caretaker and warden for the year beginning April 1st next. The action of certain parties, who in the month of July last had been guilty of trespassing and illegally fishing in the club's preserves, was discussed, and it was decided to notify these parties by letter in order to give them an opportunity to settle quietly. If this is not done they will be prosecuted.

The contract awarded to Mr. Baldwin provides for the lowering of the water in the Little Pond six feet. This will be done by means of a large ditch or canal 8 feet deep. Work on this has already been commenced. When this is done it is proposed to dynamite and seine the Little Pond and thus rid it of carp, as it has been found that these fish destroy the spawn of trout. As soon as this has been done the Little Pond will be restocked at once with speckled trout.

A lodge for the caretaker will be built on the shores of the Little Pond.

A VISIT TO BALD PEAK.

Marbleton, Oct. 10.—(Special)— On Saturday last some twenty villagers availed themselves of the fine weather and the beautiful autumnal tints for the trip to Bald Peak.

The grand panorama was good though not quite up to the standard, in consequence of the thin gaseous haze. Everything was lovely except some marks left by fellows of the baser sort, who indulged themselves in putting several bullet holes through the windows and laying thievish hands on the table furniture provided by the club for the pleasure and comfort of all decent people. Such depredators are not welcome at the "Peak House." Such black sheep sometimes find themselves in the King's free boarding house.

WANTED A SKATING RINK.

Dunham, Oct. 10.— (Special) — The Watson Bros. have just completed their dam and have succeeded in stopping all water in the little brook below the village, on the Stanbridge Road. Over seven feet of water already is stopped and the season is very dry yet.

It is hoped someone will make a skating rink out of it and furnish out-of-door sport for our young people this coming winter, in case tropical weather should slip a cog.

ROMANCE OF LIFE.

WEALTHY MEXICAN REARED IN IGNORANCE THAT HIS PARENTS DIED IN POVERTY.

London, Oct. 10.—There was recently forwarded from Guardajara, Mexico, to the City of London, England, a draft for $1,000 to be used in the erection of a monument above two graves in one of the cemeteries of the British metropolis. The graves are occupied by the bodies of Patrick Collins, a London cab driver, and his wife. Collins died only a few weeks ago; his wife has been dead for nearly thirty years.

The man who forwarded the draft is Jose Cortez, owner of one of the best business blocks in this city, or haciendas and of the finest horses and carriages in the state of Jalisco. His action was not prompted by the remembrance of faithful service or some past favor. He had not seen the cab driver or his wife since he was a child of three years. The $1,000 draft was sent through a sense of filial duty, for Jose Cortez, the wealthy Mexican citizen, is in reality Thomas Collins, the son of the Irish cab driver and his wife. The story covers a strange passage in real life.

Many years ago Jose Cortez, the descendant of a wealthy Spanish family, married a prominent young woman of this city. It was a genuine love match. The husband was wealthy beyond all needs, and the future looked particularly bright for the young couple. But as the years went by a single great sorrow came over them. They remained childless. One day Cortez and his wife left Mexico to make a tour of Europe. They expected to be away a few months. They remained absent for more than three years. When they returned they had a son, who bore his father's given name. There was one striking feature about the boy. He had bright red hair.

To a few intimate friends Cortez confided the history of the boy. Others were allowed to form their own conclusions. He was the son of a London cab driver. They had played with him in one of the London parks near his father's stand, had become attached to him and finally had proposed adoption to his parents. At first the cab driver and his wife resented the proposal. But they were very poor and Cortez was wealthy and willing to pay for getting a son. At last the matter was arranged. The little Irish boy was legally adopted, a sum of money was left with his parents and Cortez, his wife and his heir left London and in due time returned to Mexico.

Years passed and Cortez the younger grew into manhood. He forgot this real name, his baby days in London and the few words of English that he had learned. Never was he reminded that he was an adopted son. In the course of time Cortez the elder and his wife died and their wealthy descended to their adopted son, who married a young woman of this city, and has now several grown children. The Irish ancestry of the father is reflected in his children. Each one has bright red hair.

His birth and adoption has become a closed chapter to Jose Cortez, the Mexican-Irish citizen, when a few days ago a letter was received from London. It was from the Catholic priest who attended Patrick Collins on his deathbed. Through all the years the cab driver had kept the name and address of the man who had adopted his son. His dying request was that the priest endeavor to get a letter to the son.

"Tell him, if he is living," the letter stated, "that God has punished me for parting with him. The money I received was spent without good returns. Other children were denied us. His mother died of a broken heart. I have lived a miserable, lonely life for years, and am now dying in poverty, unknown to my only child."

The draft was forwarded to the priest who wrote the letter, with instructions as to the use of the money. When Cortez now appears in the streets he is dressed in black and his hat is encircled by a band of crape.

Tracing Back a Common Saying.

It is a curious bit of literary exercise to take a common saying and trace it back to its origin. Take the common saying, for instance, "All that glitters is not gold." It is found in current literature everywhere and in a dozen different forms. Dryden renders it, "All, as they say, that glitters is not gold." Spenser says, "Gold all is not that doth golden seem." Lydgate has the same idea in the words, "All is not gold that outward sheweth bright." Chaucer expresses it in somewhat different phraseology. Middleton has it, "All is not gold that glisteneth," and Shakespeare says, "All that glistens is not gold." Go a little farther back, however, and the same expression is found is the monkish collection of proverbs, and there is no doubt if a classical scholar were to set to work with the determination to hunt the proverb down, no matter how long it took, he would find it in Latin, Greek and most other ancient and dead languages. It is a natural outgrowth of sarcasm as applied to fictitious show and is no doubt as old as the science of metal working.

Entrapping Marine Monsters.

On the northern coast of Norway the fishermen get a yearly harvest from the whales which stray into the harbors. At certain localities, where the bays are almost landlocked, lofty stands are erected, similar to the otter outlooks on the north Pacific, and when a school is sighted scores of boats put out and, by the simple process of driving, hundreds of the oil producing cetaceans are entrapped. The Faroe islands are famous for this method of whaling. One of the largest catches ever made was in Hvarfiord, Iceland, where eleven hundred were driven ashore. The blackfish, or whales, come down the Atlantic coasts from the north, encounter shallow water, then follow it along and are naturally led into the cul-de-sac awaiting them. Here the boats easily surround and drive the whales in.

Didn't Catch Them.

The following story of Oliver Wendell Holmes was told some years ago by a physician who was a student in the Harvard Medical school when Dr. Holmes was an instructor in anatomy there.

One day the subject before the class was the cranium, and a human skull was passed from hand to hand, the instructor asking the members of the class to describe the prominences, cavities and apertures. Student after student gave the names and locations of the orifices, until finally the inquiry narrowed down to one opening which baffled every one.

Dr. Holmes waited patiently for some one to distinguish himself, but no explanation was advanced. When all had given it up, the doctor rather dryly remarked: "That is Holmes' hole, I made it myself."

Her Mission.

The scene is a drug store in a busy part of Broadway, with a pretty woman demurely turning over the leaves of the city directory.

Enter an irascible old man, who wants to find the address of a man who owes him money. He stands and waits impatiently, coughing suggestively.

A business man in a hurry follows. He wants to know where John Brown lives. It is in the next street, but he has forgotten the number. He falls in line.

Then a man who seeks some city official, but knows nothing of his office except that it closes within a few minutes, joins the ranks of the waiters.

Half a dozen others who wish to consult the directory gather around. Still the woman placidly turns leaf after leaf over.

When there are fully half a score fuming, impatient people in line, enter a newspaper reporter. His mission will positively admit of no delay, so he politely offers to assist the woman, suggesting that his experience may tend to save time and lessen her labor. When he asks her what she seeks, with a sweet smile of thankful appreciation, she says:

"Oh, thank you. You are very kind. I am trying to find a really sweetly pretty name for my new boy baby!"—New York Tribune.

Sympathetic Suggestion.

It is said that if a girl is a bridesmaid three times she will never be a bride."

"Oh, aunty," replied the little girl, "were you a bridesmaid three times?"

"No, dear. I never was a bridesmaid in my life."

"Poor aunty! Why don't you get to be a widow? They say a widow can nearly always get married if she wants to."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BARON NATHANIEL ROTHSCHILD'S WILL CONTAINED MANY CHARITABLE BEQUESTS.

London, Oct. 10.—The will has been proved in London of Baron Nathaniel von Rothschild of Vienna, a partner in the banking house of Messrs. S. M. von Rothschild, of Frankfort-on-the Main, eldest son of the late Baron Anselm von Rothschild. The value of his English estate is £25,634, and the amount of his fortune abroad is not stated. That it is enormous is apparent from the fact that sums amounting to £1,125,000 are left to charities.

The clause in the will dealing with the principal bequest, runs:

"I devote 10,000,000 florins, Austrian currency (about £820,000), to any charitable institution which shall be established under my name, and shall permanently bear that name. For this I have chiefly in view the making of provision for those unhappy beings who, by reason of chronic or incurable maladies, are incapable of earning a living, and are without means, and who are not admitted to hospitals, or are discharged from them uncured."

The testator then remarks that he intended to set forth more particular regulations for the proposed institution in a separate codicil, but should he leave no such directions the bequest should be carried out according to the directions of his heir. He directed that the capital for this bequest should be banked in a separate account with Messrs. S. M. von Rothschild at Vienna, within six months from his death.

The other bequests include:

One million florins for distribution among Vienna charities.

Twenty thousand florins for immediate distribution among the poor of Vienna.

Ten thousand florins for distribution among needy persons on the testator's estate at Enzesfeld.

Twenty thousand marks to the Charlottenstift at Hultschin.

Forty thousand marks to the poor fund (poor house) at Schillersdorf.

He also directed his heirs to continue all pensions paid or promised by him.

CHIEF ORGANIZER OF MUTINY.

MUTINEER WALKS FROM CELL DISGUISED AS GUARD.

London, Oct. 10.—The Daily Graphic published the following from its correspondent in Berlin:—The agents of the Russian Bundist Committee in this city have received information of the escape from prison of the Russian student Feldmann, who was the chief organizer of the mutiny of the Kniaz Potemkin in the Black Sea. The rescue was planned by the foreign Committees of the Bund and Social Democrats, and was carried out with remarkable skill. Two revolutionists disguised as prison guards entered the prison, and boldly walked out again with Feldmann clothed in a uniform similar to their own. It was anticipated that the other guards on duty would be unable to remember how many had originally entered Feldmann's cell, and that consequently the departure of three instead of two would pass unobserved by them. This calculation was fully justified and Feldmann, with his rescures got safely away. A prominent lady revolutionist also played an important part in organizing the rescue.

The following morning when the officers of the watch proceeded to his cell, instead of Feldmann, a well-arranged effigy of the young Jew was found on the sleeping pallet. No trace has since been found either of Feldmann or the missing guards. The police admit that they have lost one of the most important prisoners who have fallen into their hands for the last twelve months, and they place the responsibility upon the military authorities.

CUSTOM OFFICER SAW SNAKES.

THE CHINESE IMPORTER OF THE LIQUOR DECLARES IT IS GOOD FOR HEADACHE AND OTHER AILMENTS.

Montreal, Oct. 10.—The long-suspected affinity between the wine and the serpent was proved in a startling manner at the customs house here Friday morning. An officer who had been testing several carboys of port wine from China reported that he had discovered snakes in the wine, and, as he had not been in the habit of "seeing things," his statement received credence. Returning to the wine with other officers, he showed how, in testing, in the contents of one of the carboys, he had seen a snake through the wine, and so the vessel was opened for inspection. To the astonishment of all, the remains of several snakes and a lizard were found in the bottom dressed in a manner to indicate that they had been placed there for a purpose. The snakes were taken to the City Hall and the Chief Food Inspector drew a sample of wine to test its properties. The consignment was addressed to a local Chinese merchant, and when an inquiry was made about the snakes all that could be learned from that source was, "Muchee good; cure 'sole headache; got leumitism, eatee some snake."

BOYS MUST HAVE CHANGED.

AT ANY RATE, THE GRADUATION INTO LONG TROUSERS IS NO LONGER AN EVENT.

(From the New York Sun.)

"The other day," said the man with the three chins and the ample waistband, "one of my boys was shifted from knee breeches into long trousers. I suggested that change myself. The boy was becoming sort o' big and over grown and loutish, like boys have got to be at a certain stage of their lives, and he didn't look right to me in knee breeches.

"Well, sir, d'ye know that that boy actually felt grouchy over being put in long trousers. Yes, he did; he sure did.

"I'd had it figured that he'd be tickled almost to death when I told him that I was going to buy him a suit of clothes with long trousers. But when I did tell him and took him down to the storeto buy the suit, blamed if the youngster wasn't actually sulky about it.

"Was never more mystified in my life. Wheo I stopped to reflect on what a great and glorious day it was forme when I out on my first pair of the long ones, I couldn't make out that boy of mine at all, nor the change which seems to have come over boys nowahays.

"And another thing: When this boy of mine made his first appearance on the street with his initial pair of long trousers on, he didn't aopear to create any sort of sensation at all. All of the other youngsters on his staff of pals appeared to take the thing wholly as a matter of course, and there wasn't any big hurrah boys or to-do about it at all.

"Well, sir, I sure 'member how, when I was that boy's age, I yearned and hankered and ached to graduate from knee britches into the long ones. I was ashamed of the knickerbockers for a long time before I ever managed to break out of them, and I looked forward to getting on the long ones as one of the events of my life.

"Itwasn't till I'd earned the price of a suit with the long trousers that I contrived to graduate from the knee britches class, at that. I went to work at the beginning of the summer school vacation, bent on getting the price of a suit of jeans at any cost of labor, and at the end of a couple of months of fierce striving, cleaning up back yards and cutting grass and splitting neighbors' wood and chores like that, and exercising the most patient economy, I saw an outfit of blue jeans in urospect.

"The Saturday night when I annexed that suit with the long trousers—and I got 'em particularly long (too long, in fact), so's I could turn 'em up at the bottoms on mudds days or stick 'em into my boots just like the grown-ups—and carried 'em home, I was a pretty proud and chesty tyke, all right. I could hardly sleep all o' that night for figuring on what the fellers 'ud say when they saw me clomping around on Sunday morning with those trousers on.

"I felt pretty sheepish about going out at all when I got 'em on the next morning, and I lingered around the house a long time before I mustered up enough nerve to show up an the vacant lot where the fellers congregated. All of the fellers were over there when, with a great burst of resolution, I slunk out of the house and walked over to join them.

"You could ha' heard the yell they set up five blocks away when they saw me with those long britchers. They gathered around me, the youngest lads still in knee breeches obviously im pressed, but the larger boys, already in long trousers themselves, in a derisive homor.

"They all did the Undian dance around me, of course, and a lot of the larger fellers christened my first pair of the long ones by filling their mouths with water from the corner oump and squirting the water all over those jeans of mine.

"That was a regular part of the initiation into long trousers in my boyhood day, and no boy was supposed to register any sort of kick over the christening. Before the day was spent, however, that sensation had about worn off, and I can well remember how from that day I gradually ceased to have much to do with the youngsters in knee breeches. I became sort o' patronizing in my conduct toward them, and although some of them still in knee pants were older than I was I had a distinct feeling that they were more or less out of my class.

"Boys must ha' changed mightily when they no longer feel stuck up over being switched into long trousers, and that's a fact."

NEW "NATIONAL ARMY."

ARNOLD FORSTER'S SCHEME CONTEMPLATES ORGANIZING A QUARTER OF A MILLION MEN.

London, Oct. 10.—The Daily Chronicle announces that Arnold Forster, secretary of state for war, is working out with an army council a new scheme to organize a "National Army" of a quarter of a million men, to be composed mainly of militia and yeomanry, supplemented by regulars and volunteers, available for foreign service. The project, the paper says, includes the building of barracks throughout the country for the new forces, with special depots, and that it is proposed to entrust home defences to the yeomanry and volunteers, and the defence of the coasts to the Royal Garrison artillery.

THE ONLOOKER.

Will the Authorities Move?

A glint of real humor was cast athwart the deer-killing situation last week by the worthy from Ste. Evariste who took the game warden to task for intercepting a shipment of deer, on the plea that he had shipped 100 last season and none had been interfered with. Nothing quite so ingenious has happened around here in many moons. We have either an example of colossal ignorance or an example of colossal nerve and in either case the effect is funny. The report that deer carcasses are being shipped in coffin boxes is not funny at all, but denotes a crafty unscrupulousness that bodes ill for future observance of the game laws. This gruesome method of evading the law has one side, however, not altogether solemn. One cannot help wondering how delivery of the coffin boxes is made without attracting embarassing attention. Game Warden Gendron has done a good work this season in focussing so much public attention on the extent of the deer-slaying outrage. His work, however, will be quite abortive unless it is followed up, and there is absolutely no favorable sign that it will be followed up. By himself alone Mr. Gendron has succeeded in accumulating a mass of evidence that the proper authorities cannot refuse to take cognizance of without incurring the just suspicion that they are woefully and intentionally negligent.

TRACHOMA IN QUEBEC.

DR. COOTE'S REPORT TO THE GOVERNMENT WILL BE ACTED UPON.

Quebec, Oct. 10.—Dr. Coote, the leading practicing oculist of Quebec, has reported to the Provincial Government that the contagious eye disease, trachoma, is prevailing along the line of the Quebec & Lake St. John Railway, and calls upon the authorities to investigate the matter before the disease becomes epidemic. It is said that trachoma was imported into the Lake St. John region by foreign immigrants some two years ago, when the medical examination of immigrants landed in Canada was not so strict as at present.

Hon. Rudolph Roy, Secretary for the Province of Quebec, will name a board of physicians without delay to investigate the complaint and take means to arrest the spread of the disease.

CALL UPON CANADA AND U. S.

TO SAVE NIAGARA FALLS — AMERICAN CIVIC ASSOCIATION IS TAKING ACTION.

Cleveland, Oct. 10.—The American Civic Association at its session here adopted resolutions calling upon the governing powers of the United States and Canada to do something to save Niagara Falls from what was termed commercial vandalism. A committee was directed to send telegrams to President Roosevelt and Governor-General Earl Grey requesting that they appoint a joint commission to suggest the best way of preserving the Falls for the benefit of future generations. There was considerable discussion, and the encroachment of corporations upon the natural wonders of the Falls was severely condemned.

PASTOR WHO LIKES TO KISS.

EXPELLED FROM BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Newport, R.I., Oct. 10.—Because the Board of Managers of the Rhode Island Baptist State convention believed pretty Maude Hayden, organist of the First Baptist Church of Newport, when she said her pastor, Rev. Edward A. Johnson, kissed her against her will, Rev. Mr. Johnson to-day stands expelled from the convention. His church, which is one of the oldest in the State, supports him, and stands aloof from all other Bpatist churches in Rhode Island.

According to Miss Hayden's testimony before the Board of Managers, Rev. Mr. Johnson, then fresh from the West, and her pastor but a short time, kissed her one evening when she went to the church to play for a choir rehearsal.

"It is useless to urge me, Gerald," the maiden said. "It is possible. I shall never marry."

"There is some other man, perhaps," he suggested, with bitterness.

"No. I have a higher regard for you than I have for any other man."

"Why do you tell me that?"

"To save your face, if you insistupon knowing," proudly answered the high-spirited girl.

Yet as she spoke, she saw it was too late.

His countenance had fallen.—Chicago Tribune.

JUSTICE BY LAW.

(Coaticook Observer.)

The only business transacted at the criminial term of the Court of King's Bench at Sherbrooke this week was a renewal of bail. There will be no trial of cases until the next term.

This works an injustice in two ways. In the first place when the man gives bail to appear at a certain time for his trial it is only fair that he should have his trial at the time so fixed by the government. He must, however, appear at this time and renew his bail or he must go to jail. He may come from one end of the country to the other to have his trial and still be denied it.

On the other hand there is a possibility of its working in favor of the prisoner rather than against him. In many cases which are ordinarily heard before a jury the accused has a right to a speedy trial before the district magistrate. If instead of renewing his bonds he makes option to take a speedy trial the government refuses to provide a crown prosecutor.

If this same man had been tried before a jury a prosecutor would have been furnished at the expense of the government, but being tried before the district magistrate, as allowed by law, none is furnished.

The result of this is either that the accused gains an advantage on account of there being no attorney to prosecute the trial against him, or the private prosecutor is obliged to employ counsel to prosecute the case rather than have it go practically by default.

The fair thing to all concerned would seem to be to have the court at the time fixed by law, especially when there are only two terms fixed, as in this district, for the whole year.

A GOOD TURN WITH AN INSATIABLE THIRST TO SOBER UP IN.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—A despatch to the Tribune from Louisville, Ky., says: A new town had been laid out in Southern Indiana, Dubois county, and it bides fair to occupy a unique position, as one of the conditions to property ownership is that no fermented liquors or intoxicants shall ever be sold, within its confines. This means an externally "dry" community. The place is called Cuzco, and is 15 miles from French Lickssprings. Every deed issued contains a clause that if whiskey is sold on the premises the land shall revert to the original owner which is Nicholson, or his heirs.

CANADIAN BUTTER IN BRITISH MARKET.

MR. RUDDICK SAYS IT CAN COMPETE AGAINST THE BEST—CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCE CAUSING MUCH INTEREST.

Montreal, Oct. 10.—"The experience of this year is that Canadian produce, and particularly butter, can successfully compete against the best in the British market. At the present time Canadian dairy products are causing more interest than ever in England."

Mr. J. A. Ruddick, who has been in Europe during the past two months studying conditions on the market and observing details of the manufacture of butter and cheese, arrived back on Sunday on board the Allan line Virginian, and left for Ottawa to prepare his report for the Department of Agriculture.

"Conditions have materially aided in bringing Canadian butter to the attention of dealers and many who previously had been unaware of its qualities were surprised at its excellence," said Mr. Ruddick. "There was a shortage of butter, and this opportunity helped the sale of the Canadian article, and at one time Canadian butter was selling at 120 shillings when Danish butter was bringing about 118 shillings. The Canadian butter will compare favorably with the best Danish. Danish makers have been getting plenty of water in the butter to reach the legal standard of 16 per cent., and have probably got more than is good for the quality of the butter."

Regarding the opening of the market to Canadian butter, Mr. Ruddick said: "The scarcity of Siberian butter and the fact that Germany has begun to import butter naturally made the supply scarce, and merchants were compelled to use the Canadian article." The quality has been good generally and there are not many complaints. The packing has been good and the butter has arrived in good condition. There has been come complaint of delays in Liverpool, and investigation showed that much of this had been caused by delay in forwarding bills of lading, merchants being unaware that any consignments had arrived for them."

"But Canadians must not think that the fight is won," added Mr. Ruddick, "nor begin to think that business will come easy. There is great need of care in the manufacture. The one thing which impressed me on my inspection of factories was the thoroughness shown. They do their work carefully and all the details are looked after. The buildings are better than generally used in Canada, and the machinery, while not much different from that used here, is better. Then, too, sanitary arrangements are excellent, and in the matter of care and thoroughness the European makers are superior to the Canadians. They do not possess any more skill, and their methods are not superior, so that if Canadian makers will show the same thoroughness and maintain the quality they can successfully compete with any butter in the British market, no matter where it comes from."

Mr. Ruddick was in Liege, and said that the Canadian exhibit at the exposition there had attracted universal attention, being acknowledged the finest of all. The exhibit is in a separate building, and has a splendid array of Canada's mineral and agricultural wealth.

BOSTON SUIT CASE MYSTERY.

MAN ARRESTED IN RUMFORD FALLS IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER.

Boston, Oct. 10.—There was a sensation at police headquarters, when news of the arrest of a man in connection with the suit case mystery of death in Wynthrop, came by telegraph from Rumford Falls, Me. There is held a man whose name and identity are carefully guarded, who is alleged to have stated that he bought a suit case from Joseph Berkman, of this city, like that in which the dismembered body of a girl was found.

Immediately upon receipt of this information from the Chief of Police of Rumford Falls, Chief Watts, of this city, sent Inspector Walter Abbott to Rumford Falls to investigate the story told by this man. While admitting that there has been an arrest, the police here will say absolutely nothing as to what precipitated it. From other sources the story of the purchase of a suit case was learned.

TEXAS WHITE MEN ASK LEAVE TO KILL NEGRO OFFENDERS LIKE DOGS.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—A despatch to the Tribune from Houston, Texas, says a petition from a number of citizens headed by G. W. Knight of San Marios, has been presented to Governor Lanham asking that the state permit mob punishment of negros who assault women. The governor is asked to exercise a policy of absolute unprotection to negroes guilty of assault, insuring that they be given no trial by legal inquiry or any kind, and that they may be hanged instantly as soon as apprehended. Governor Lanham's response principally is directed to the legal phase of the proposition. It is set forth that it is impossible for him to countenance the policy in view of the oath of office and the state legislation which he is bound to protect.

Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says that that dandruff is as contagious as any other malevolent disease, and that one common source of the spread of dandruff is the use of the same hair brush by different persons. The way to avoid catching dandruff or any other disease from another's brush, is to insist on the use of Newbro's Herpicide. It not only kills the dandruff germ, but it is also an antiseptic that will prevent the catching of any disease whatever through contagion of another's brush.

BEGGAR STARVED TO DEATH.

RESULT OF CORONER'S INQUEST ON OLD MAN FOUND IN THE BUSH.

Quebec, Oct. 10.—Coroner Jolicoeur returned to town Saturday from St. Sylvester, where he held an inquest on the remains of an old beggar from Ste. Germaine, Dorchester County, named Eliziar Metnier, who got lost in the woods a few days ago. The verdict rendered was that death was due to starvation. The old man was 75 years of age, and the residents of the parish noticed his disappearance by finding a basket on the roadway. Twelve parishioners immediately organized themselves into a search party and after searching the woods during two days came across the object of their search who was more dead than alive. He was carried to the nearest residence when a priest and doctor were sent for, but the old man died soon after his arrival in the parish. He was buried at the expense of the parish.

RUSSIA AFTER THE WAR.

SHE WILL HAVE NO DIFFICULTY IN FINDING ALL NEEDED FINANCIAL AID.

(From the London Times.)

It is interesting to examine the present economical situation in the empire of the Czars, as the war has taxed its resources to their utmost capacity. The main fact to consider is that the convertibility of the paper rouble remains unimpaired. Russia emerges from the war having escaped the danger of a forced paper currency, which shows the strength of her treasury, and the ability of her Government to maintain the gold standard in its full integrity. In fact, after eighteen months of a severe and costly struggle, the position of the Imperial Bank remains satisfactory. The holding of gold amounted on January 1st, 1904, to 902,971,210 roubles, and on Aug. 14th, 1905, it is reported as 1,128,780,971 roubles, thus showing that it had increased to the extent of 225,809,761 roubles. True, the fiduciary circulation had increased in the meantime, for it stood on January 1st, 1904, at about 700 million roubles, and it now is 103 million roubles, but this comparatively moderate increase is fully accounted for by the large and extraordinary expenses incurred during the war.

In addition to the holding of gold in the Imperial Bank, the Government has large credit balances in the hands of its bankers abroad, which increases the amount of available funds at the disposal of the treasury. These balances are said to be greater even now than in January, 1904, on the eve of the war.

The public debt of Russia is roughly estimated at 8,800,000,000 roubles, the annual service of which absorbs about 400,000,000 roubles. As the greater portion of this debt is held abroad, we must look into Russia's trade balance, and we find that the steadily increasing excess of exports over her imports materially helps her to meet the requirements of her external debt charges. For the first seven months of each year since 1900, this excess has been as follows: 1900, 12,000,000 roubles; 1901, 70,000,000 roubles; 1902, 110,000,000 roubles; 1903, 173,000,000 roubles; 1904, 115,000,000 roubles; 1905, 277,000,000 roubles.

Russia has borrowed largely abroad since the beginning of the war. A loan of £32,000,000 in 5 per cent treasury bonds was issued n Paris, and one of £25,000,000, 4½ per cent. stock was issued in Berlin. A considerable amount of these securities has been bought by the Russian banks. Lastly, an internal loan of 200,000,000 roubles, 5 per cent. stock, was issued about two months ago, which was not a success at first, but on the conclusion of peace was quickly absorbed by the Russian public.

As far as I can gather from the leading bankers here there is no question of a new loan being issued by Russia in the immediate future, but it is generally believed that she will soon have to borrow again in order to reorganize her army and reconstitute her navy, in which case she will have no difficulty in finding financial aid for her requirements.

SAD DROWNING.

HUSBAND AND WIFE STRUGGLE IN THE WATER—MAN LOSES CONSCIOUSNESS, AND HIS HOLD OF THE WOMAN IS BROKEN.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 10.—A telephone message from Musquash, N.B., says that Mrs. Lizzie McGuire, aged 25, who but a few weeks ago was married to Robert McGuire, quartermaster of the Eastern Steamship Company's steamer, Calvin Austin, was drowned, Friday in Little Musquash harbor, near their home. They and Mr. McGuire's sister were crossing the harbor, when a squall canted their sailboat, and McGuire and his bride were thrown out, while his sister retained her place in the boat. McGuire swam to his wife, and she put her arms around him. Both sank however, twice, and he says he then seems to have lost consciousness for a brief time, for when he came up the second time she was not with him. How he was finally rescued is not told. At last report the body of Mrs. McGuire had not been recovered.

Mr. R. N. Cayer, superintendent of the eastern division of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., Montreal, is in town.

REAL WAGON LOAD.

(From the Hardware Dealers' Magazine.)

A hardware and implement firm in the West recently devised a unique scheme with phenomenal success, the climax proving not only amusing to the populace, but profitable to the firm. The firm sent to every farmer in their vicinity, several weeks prior to the event, a circular offering a prize of $10 in gold to the person who on a specified Saturday, would bring into their town on one vehicle of any description the largest number of persons, the only requirement being that they should arrive before noon and that each load of humanity should be counted by a member of the firm in front of their place of business.

That nearly every farmer in the two counties not only nibbled, but he did his best to run away with bait, hook, sinker and all, was demonstrated on the designated day, when from every direction over every road vehicles of all descriptions and conditions, some drawn by beasts of burden of the bovine species, but mostly by equines of pedigree and well-groomed appearance, began to pour into town, each conveyance loaded to its capacity with men, women and children.

They began coming soon after sunrise and continued until nearly noon. As each vehicle arrived and deposited its occupants in front of the establishment the crown of sightseers as well as contestants increased.

The number of persons brought in by each contestant varied from twenty to fifty until ten o'clock, when a man arrived with fifty-one. He thought he had the prize until another farmer came in at twenty minutes to eleven o'clock with a wagon fifty feet long carrying eighty-six persons. This was so far ahead of any other constant and it was then so near noon that he figured he could not lose.

"You've got it to a certainty," said one of his party.

"I reckon that's what," said he, as he put his hands in his pockets and walked away. He could already feel the money jingling in his clothes. His confidence was so supreme that he bought a new hat and a new tie and then went to a barber shop and got a shave, haircut and a shine on the strength of his belief that he had won the $10.

But hardly had he emerged from the barber shop when a shout went up from the crowd as they beheld approaching a vehicle to like of which was never before seen on the streets of this town, and probably never will be seen again.

The conveyance was 85 feet long and 20 feet wide. It moved on eight wheels and was drawn by eight horses. Seated on the elongated vehicle were enough men and women, boys and girls to start a colony in Oklahoma or open a reservation in Dakota.

The man who held the reins with the skill of a circus driver over eight horses was from a village of three houses and thirty persons fifteen miles away. He drove around the square, followed by a throng of cheering persons, and proudly pulled up his octet of steeds at the proper place, where the load of laughing visitors was counted one by one. There were 110.

STUDENTS FIGHT FIERCE FIRE.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA YOUTHS SAVE BUILDING AFTER ALL-DAY STRUGGLE.

Berkeley, Cal., October 10.—A fierce fire swept over the Berkely Hills behind the University of California yesterday, and had it not been for the heroic work of the 1,000 students from the university and for the Berkeley fire department, assisted by hundreds of citizens, much property would have been destroyed. The flames were first descovered in Strawberry Canon at 11 o'clock. Fanned by a north gale that blew all the day, the great sheet of flames swept the hillside and bore down towards the university building. Seeing the danger, President Wheeler dismissed the student cadets. The cadets were assembled on the campus for drill, and President Wheeler called on them to work. President Wheeler himself led the students, and, hatless and coatless, they fought the flames with wet sacks until late yesterday afternoon, not even stopping for dinner. Many had narrow escapes from the flames, while many professors were scorched. By last night the flames were well under control, though still burning.

TO ELIMINATE BRUTALITY

ROOSEVELT DISCUSSED FOOTBALL RULES WITH ATHLETIC AUTHORITIES.

Washington, October 10.—President Roosevelt entertained at luncheon yesterday Dr. D. H. Nichols, and W. T. Reid, of Harvard; Arthur T. Hillebrand, and John B. Fine, of Princeton, and Walter Camp, and Mr. Owsley, of Yale, the athletic advisers of the respective colleges named. The President wished to consider with them particularly the morale of the game of football with a view of eliminating much of its brutality if possible. A general discussion of college athletics was held but the talk centred around the game of football. It is hoped by the President that with the co-operation of the college authorities and the athletic advisers the rules of the game may be so amended as practically to do away with the many brutalities which make the game objectionable to many people. It is understood that no definite conclusions were reached. Indeed, none was expected, the idea of the President being to start the balling rolling in the direction of a modification of the rules of the game.

HATS IN CHURCH

(From New York Tribune.)

The question of the women wearing hats in church recalls the fact that men also formerly wore theirs at worship. Pepys shows that in the seventeenth century both men and women wore their hats to worship. "To church," he writes, "and heard a simple fellow open the praise of church musique, and exclaiming against men wearing their hats on in the church." Later he notes that he saw a minister "preach with his hat off . . . which I never saw before." The hat was then an integral part of both male and female costume, and Pepys catches "a stranger cold in my head by flinging off my hat at dinner."

ON CONCEIT AND BRAGGING

Both these virtues are essential to success. Nations, like individuals, are noted for their propensity to brag. We inherit ours from John Bull. "What we have we'll hold." We're bragging a lot now about business, because we have cause to brag—for we have doubled the stock, doubled the staff, doubled the business. Now we buy boots by the car load, dictate to the makers, and that's why we brag. We do the trade because we carry the stock, the stuff that is demanded, the goods that people want. Are you watching us grow?

WANTED—A SERVANT

(From Lippincott's Magazine.)

Good servants are much in demand in Washington as well as in other cities. Mrs. R. had searched long and vainly for a fairly good general servant, a colored one, and at alst in despair she stopped an elder colored woman who looked as if she might have been one of the ante-bellum house servants, and therefore a reliable one, and made known her wants. "I want a girl who is trusty and a good cook. I am willing to put out most of our laundrywork and to give fair wages, but so far I haven't been able to engage one," said Mrs. R. "Don't you know of someone whom I can get?"

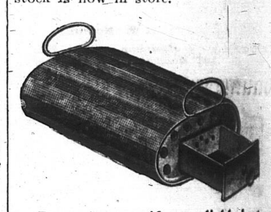
"'Deed, no, lady, I don't," was the answer.

"Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. R., "what shall I do?"

"I dunno, fuh shaw, lady, lessin you does as I has to—hire a white woman."

Our Clark's Carriage or Sleigh Heaters

which we sold last season have done their own talking, and we are pleased to announce to recent inquirers and to our trade generally that this season's stock is now in store.



They give a uniform reliable heat, make you feel comfortable in the coldest weather.

Are just as hot when you get home from a drive as when you started. Cost less than a cent an hour to run. Ready for use in about three minutes. No tedious waiting, and cost of the Clark's Heater is but a trifle—and still less considering the good of it.

Price this year only $2.00 each.

Concentrated Heat

That's What Clark Coal Is.

No odor. No flame.
No smoke. No gas.
Just the heat and lots of it. A cake that costs ten cents lasts sixteen hours (but a quarter of a cake is plenty for a long drive.) Discovered the Thief.

In the life of R. S. Hawker, the famous vicar of Morwenstow, Mr. C. E. Byles relates the following:

One day a laborer at Tamerton came to Hawker in great trouble, saying that a sack of potatoes had been stolen from his garden, and would his reverence kindly help him to discover the thief.

It was Sunday, and they were on their way to morning service.

"Well, well," said Hawker, "we will see about it after church."

He was preaching the sermon that day, and it was on the eighth commandment.

"And now," he said, "I have a sad tale to tell. One of our neighbors has missed a sack of potatoes from his garden, and the thief is even now sitting among you. He has a feather on his head!"

A man in the congregation was observed surreptitiously to put his hand to his head, and so the guilt was brought home.

The Pandora Reservoir

The Pandora is the only range with a reservoir stamped in one single piece of steel and enamelled. It is the only reservoir without seams, rivets or places to catch dirt. It has no sharp angles. All angles are made with rounding curves, and the whole reservoir is beautifully enamelled.

McClary's are the only range makers in Canada with a plant for making enamelled steel reservoirs, and that is why the Pandora is the only range that has a one-piece reservoir.

In the Later Years

By Analusia Barnard

Copyright, 1905, by Analusia Barnard

The boy and the girl met in Sunday school. She was six—rather old for her years; he was twelve.

They were selected to "speak a piece" together, a funny little thing in which she held her hands behind her while he guessed what she held. He repeatedly failed to guess. Then she would urge him to guess again. Finally, losing all patience, she would cry, "Oh, you great, big, stupid boy—I've just got a kiss for you." Then, throwing him a sugary cake, she would run off.

Soon after the dialogue episode his mother sent her an invitation to the boy's birthday party. Filled with pride, she exhibited the tiny note, with its pictures of birds at the top.

At the party she had a splendid time. First, each of the little girls was given a pair of ribbon reins with which she must catch a horse and trot him past the grand stand, where the judges sat smilingly in armchairs. The girl caught her "great, big, stupid boy" and was happy.

After that a man in a long black robe did wonderful tricks and the children's eyes grew wide with wonder. Then, such a supper—bouillon and turkey and chicken salad, each in turn, like real grownups! And olives!

"What's them things?" asked the boy, when he discovered the olives. "Look like pecans."

"Oh, you great, big, stupid boy, don't you know olives?" the girl retorted scornfully.

"Yes, but I wanted to see if you did, girlie," he answered.

The little girl turned and looked at him. "Why do you call me that?" she asked.

"Why do you call me 'stupid boy?'" he returned.

"Because that piece said so," she replied, her blue eyes smiling into his. "Don't you like it?"

"I—I don't mind—from you," he said.

"But you haven't told me why you call me girlie," persisted the girl.

"Well, because—because I like you, and that's what Uncle Jack calls Miss Paterson. I heard him say 'I can call you girlie when folks are round, but when we're alone I will call you sweetheart.'"

"Sweetheart," the little girl murmured. "Papa calls mamma that sometimes. Sounds pretty, don't it? He must love her lots. Does he?"

"No more than I love you," he asserted proudly, playing with her curls. "Her hair isn't half as pretty and she hasn't got such big blue eyes. Mamma says you look like an angel, so there!" he blurted out, half ashamed of having voiced his admiration.

"I don't want to be an angel," she retorted decisively. But after she got home she decided that she liked the boy better than ever.

The children were friends for two years. Then business reverses came to Mr. Hurlburt, the little girl's father, and they went abroad to live.

"You'll always be my sweetheart, girlie," the boy said to his little girl friend when she left. "And I'm going to marry you when I grow up. Don't forget me."

And she, understanding little of his meaning, said, "I won't." Then she lifted her face for his farewell kiss.

And the boy remembered, and his mother encouraged the thought of "girlie." She knew that the memory of the child's sweetness and innocence was good for her boy.

* * * * * * * *

The drawing rooms of Mrs. Appleton's handsome home were thronged with guests. Two men stood talking, apart from the others. Their eyes were on the slender, graceful figure of a girl on the opposite side of the room.

"I am sure I know her or have known her," Robert Worthington was saying. "I wish she would turn around."

"I believe she is some one whom Grace met abroad," Jack Appleton returned. "Her name is Hurlburt. Come, I'll present you." And without waiting for his friend's reply, he started forward and Worthington found himself being introduced to Miss Hurlburt.

"I think I used to know Miss Hurlburt long, long ago, before she was quite grown up," he said, looking at her frankly. He had held her in his thoughts so long that the meeting did not seem strange to him, but to her his smile was like the perfume from far off flowery fields which she had passed through sometimes, but could not remember where nor when.

"I—I think"— Then, with a rush of memory, it all came to her. "Oh, you are the boy I used to play with before we went to Europe to live. I'm so glad you remember me, but it's strange. How could you?"

"I was old enough to be impressionable, I suppose," he said, still looking at her. "I have always thought of you as 'girlie.'"

They were alone now. "Girlie!" she exclaimed. "It sounds pretty, doesn't it?"

The man laughed boyishly. "That's just what you used to say in the old childhood days."

"Did I?" she asked, with wide open eyes. Then suddenly, "Why, yes, and I used to call you 'great, big, stupid boy.' Do you remember our piece?"

"Do I?" the man asked with unusual emphasis. Miss Hurlburt thought. "Every word. Shall we try it now?"

She had entered into his mood. "Yes, let us."

Her face, which before had seemed to Worthington overserious, was wreathed now in smiles like those he remembered on the sunny faced child.

"Now guess what I hold behind my back," she began. "Wasn't that the beginning? And it ended with, "I've just got—a kiss for you." She hesitated slightly over the last sentence, blushing prettily.

The half conscious love Worthington had felt for her always flamed into life. Looking up, she caught the expression in his eyes, and her own heart leaped. Then her color faded, leaving her white and frightened looking.

"Girlie," he said softly, "your memory has not failed you?"

"You—you mustn't call me that now," she said. "It's different."

"Different? How?"

"Oh"—and her voice was almost a sob—"don't you see, you great, big, stupid boy?" The words had come back to her. "It wouldn't be proper; I'm engaged." And she extended her hand to him with the circlet of diamonds.

After a minute, when Worthington had swallowed some hard things that rose in his throat, he said, half questioningly:

"You—you are happy?"

She glanced at him shyly from under her long lashes. The hand which wore the circle trembled. "I suppose so," she said. "I am doing my duty. Isn't that the surest road to happiness?"

The wistfulness of her appeal made him bold. "Then you do not love the man?" he asked.

"Oh, no," she said abruptly. The reply had escaped before she realized it. It had been taken so much for granted—this fact that she did not love the count—that the words were involuntary.

"Father wished it," she went on, "and I promised. 'I want you to marry Count Rinaldi or the son of my old friend Worthington,' he said. They were the only ones who were good to him in his trouble."

At the mention of his name a light broke through the cloud which Worthington had watched fold about him while she spoke.

"Miss Hurlburt," he whispered eagerly, "do you remember my name—Robert Worthington?"

He stood back to watch the effect it produced. Wonder, delight, sorrow, resignation, followed each other in quick succession. Then she looked him squarely in the eyes, telling him more plainly than words that she understood.

"I am glad you are here," she said, holding out her hand to him. "It was nice to see you again. I must go now."

"But—I may see you?"

"Robert Worthington is welcome," she said, and was gone.

Worthington saw the girl occasionally, but it was only a short time until he learned that she would never break a plighted troth. And yet—yes, he felt that her heart was slipping into his keeping. At last, for both their sakes, he remained away from her.

One morning, when he was finding it particularly difficult to keep his resolution, a paragraph in the foreign news caught his eye. "Count Leonardi Rinaldi, charge d'affaires of the legation at N., died suddenly this morning. His engagement to Miss Dorothy Hurlburt, a beautiful American girl, was recently announced"—

He read no further, but took the paper to his mother, his heart beating wildly, his eyes glowing with the light of love.

"Mother," he cried, look! Girlie is free, and now the 'great, big, stupid boy' will have his innings."

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

Mr. J. B. Goodhue, of Rock Island, recently returned from a shooting trip in Megantic district, under the guidance of Mr. Carl C. Covey, of Woburn. During his stay Mr. Goodhue got the limit of deer and a big bull moose. He has since gone to New Brunswick in quest of more large game.

Dr. Fred S. Burns, son of Col. F.D. Burns, of Boston, formerly of Stanstead, was married in Newport, R.I., Wednesday, Oct. 4th, to Miss Josephine L. Boynton, daughter of Mr. Jesse Boynton, formerly of Boynton, Township of Stanstead. Dr. and Mrs. Burns arrived at Stanstead Thursday morning and will spend their honeymoon at "The Cedars."

Mr. F. B. Sloan, of Boston, Mass., was in Rock Island, Monday. Mr. Sloan is now engaged in the manufacture of blowers for conveying refuse from mills and factories and is now installing a large plant of this kind in the Thomas G. Plant shoe factory, the largest of its kind in the world. Mr. Sloan is a native of Stanstead Township, being a son of the late David Sloan, of Boynton.

The mysterious disappearance of Edward B. Carson, a young electrician, formerly employed in the Charlestown navy yard, has created much concern among relatives and friends of the family. Mrs. Carson, whose maiden name was Ethel Browley, spent the summer with relatives at Rock Island. While there she received a letter from her husband announcing his decision to go to Mexico. As his departure would necessitate giving up housekeeping he suggested to Mrs. Carson the desirability of her going to Massachusetts to select her personal property from their household effects so that the balance might be sold at auction. A few weeks after Mr. Carson's departure Mrs. Carson received a letter purporting to come from a friend of her husband, wherein it was stated that Mr. Carson, to better his position went from Mexico to New Orleans, where he fell a victim of yellow fever, and that his remains were disposed of by cremation. Since then detectives have searched the mortuary records of New Orleans without finding anything to verify the report and it is believed by many that Mr. Carson is still living. Mrs. Carson was a daughter of William J. Browley, at one time a resident of Rock Island, but now of Newport, R.I.

C.P. R. WILL NOT USE MAINE PORT.

SIR WM. VAN HORNE SAYS ST. JOHN IS CAPABLE OF DOING ALL BUSINESS.

The Canadian Pacific railroad will not make a Maine port a terminus, according to Sir William Van Horne, in an interview. Sir William said: 'We are continually being pressed to use one port or another on the Atlantic. The port of Castine, Maine, was one of the places that were urged upon our attention. It was represented as being an ideal port, but the Canadian Pacific railroad has no intention of going into a Maine port."

"Not even into Stockton?"

"No," said William.

"St. John is capable of doing all the business that the road will do for some time to come. The railway is not eager to carry grain in the winter, any way."

VICTIM OF FOOTBALL

HOWARD C. MONTGOMERY, STUDENT DIES IN RICHMOND.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 10.—Howard C. Montgomery, of Montgomery W., Va., a student at Hampden Sidney College, who was injured in a football practice game at the college last week died yesterday. His spine was so badly hurt as to cause paralysis.

DAILY NEWS FROM TOWNSHIPS.

Sunday last were largely attended, visitors from surrounding villages being present. The Rev. Dr. Potts preached two interesting and earnest sermons, and though the reverend gentleman has passed the "goal of human ordinance," his utterances were strong and vigorous, nor do his natural forces seem to be abated. Special music was furnished by the choir, two solos being sung, one by the choir master, Mr. P. T. Thomas, and the other by Mr. Riley of Toronto. The contributions and collections were almost double those of last year.

HAD THE WRONG GUN.

Coaticook, Oct. 10.—(Special.)—Mr. George Tafe went a day or two ago to look at his colt, which was at pasture in Hereford. He took a shot gun with him in case he should see some small game, and was surprised to run across a large antlered Stag, a doe and two young deer. He fired a charge of shot into the stag, which dropped on its knees, but soon jumped up and scampered away. Had he been armed with a rifle he could have easily bagged the whole four.

DEATH OF MRS. GEO. SALISBURY.

Abbot's Corner, Missisquoi, Oct. 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. George Salisbury passed away at her home Tuesday, the 3rd. Nearly a month ago she was operated upon and did not recover.

Rev. Mr. Davidson, of Frelighsburg, conducted the services at the house on Thursday, the 5th. A large number of friends were present to pay the last tribute of respect to one who will be sadly missed in the community.

The remains were taken to Scotsmore cemetery, where she was laid to rest beside her brother.

BAD RUNAWAY ACCIDENT AT FITCH BAY.

Fitch Bay, Oct. 10.—(Special)— Mr. Jas. Grady, of St. Johnsbury, came here to visit his invalid wife at the home of her mother, Mrs. Fred Remick, on Monday evening.

While out riding with his uncle, Mr. Lyford, from Pitsfield, N.H., the horse stumbled, breaking some part of the harness, then ran, throwing both men out.

Mr. Grady had three ribs broken and received other injuries, while Mr. Lyford sustained a dislocated hip and other bruises.

Their good work cannot be too highly commended. Mr. Alonzo Greeley has lately donated four bags of apples for this worthy cause.

ANNUAL SLAUGHTER OF SQUIRRELS.

Kingsey Falls, Oct. 10.—(Special)—The annual squirrel hunt was held on Saturday last, Messrs. P. Laing and George Lodge being chosen as captains.

HAND CAUGHT IN MACHINE.

Sutton, October 10.—(Special) — Mr. Israel Goodheart, the painter, met with a painful accident on Saturday a.m., by getting his left hand caught in a machine known as a shaper, in Mr. George Godue's furniture factory.

The index finger was quite badly cut up as was the small finger on the same hand, and a piece of bone was also chipped from one side of the hand.

The injured man was hurriedly driven to Dr. Macdonald's office, where the hand was dressed and he is now as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances.

WILSON—WRIGHT.

East Richford, Vt., Oct. 10.—(Special)—A very pretty wedding took place here yesterday, the contracting parties being Mr. Elwin H. Wilson, of East Berkshire, Vt., and Miss A. A. Wright, daughter of Mrs. Fanny Wright (widow of the late Nathaniel Wright), formerly of Glen Sutton, Que.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, at 4 p.m., Rev. W. G. Scofield, of Richford, being the officiating clergyman. Miss Addie Reed of Richford, was organist, and played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the bride and groom entered the room where the ceremony was performed.

The wedding parlor looked beautiful, being decorated with a large arch of evergreens intwined with green and white asters and maple leaves of various autumn tints. In the center of the arch was a floral bell under which the bride stood while the ceremony was being performed.

Mr. L. Wright was best man and gave away the bride.

The bride's dress was white nun's veiling over silk trimmed with lace, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Edith Shangraw, of Richford, was maid of honor. She wore white organdie over pink, and carried pink and white carnations.

The ushers were Messrs. Cortis Aiken and Benjamin Wright.

After the marriage ceremony a dainty tea was served by Miss Anna Stanhope, assisted by Misses Lena and Mabel Flannagan, and Miss Edith Parker, of Richford, abd Miss Flossie Dow, of East Richford. This tea was partaken of with a great relish, judged by the peals of good humor and merriment that passed around.

The bride and groom are favorably known throughout a large section of country. The bride has been a popular teacher in Richford schools for some time. After many good wishes had been tendered the happy pair they were showered with rice prior to their departure on the evening train for Newport and Boston, on their wedding tour.

On their return they will take up their residence in Richford where they will be at home to their many friends.

The following are the names of a few of those from outside that were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wilson, Boston; Mr. Benjamin Wright, Newport, Vt.; Miss Florence Wright, Littleton, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, E. Franklin, Vt.; Mrs. L. D. Loverin, W. Derby, Vt.; Mrs. L. Friott, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Wilson, E. Franklin; Mr. and Mrs. H.F. Comings, E. Berkshire; Mr. C. L. SUTTON RIFLE CLUB.

WAR ON MELBOURNE DOGS.

Richmond, Oct. 10.—(Special)—A bloodthirsty young man living on the Melbourne side of the river has been amusing himself of late by shooting his neighbors' dogs. As long as he expended his ammunition on the breed commonly known as "only dog," few complaints were made, but he struck a snag when he put a fifty dollar thoroughbred fox hound, belonging to Mr. Z. W. Weed, in such condition that he will never more hunt foxes, or for that matter any other quadruped or biped. The matter has been placed in the hands of a disciple of St. Yves, the patron of the legal fraternity, and unless the sharpshooter promptly settles he will line up before Mr. Justice Jones as defendant in case No. 1495, of the records of that venerable Magistrate's Court.

BOUGHT HOUSE AND WILL MOVE IN.

Sutton, October 10.—(Special) — Mr. Chas. Mitivier has bought of Mr. E. Persan, the house and lot on Western avenue, and will soon occupy the same himself. The house is at present occupied by Mr. George Hall and his mother.

Mr. Mitivier, who until recently has lived in the States for some years, will move the house from the east end of the lot on to the west end to face on the street. He will also make some necessary improvements to the building.

SAD DEATH AT CASSVILLE.

Cassville, Oct. 10.—(Special.) — The sad death occurred on Friday of Mrs. Alexander Thompson, after a few weeks illness. She leaves besides her husband, two young children, one but a month old. The funeral took place to-day, being deferred so that a brother in the west might have time to arrive. The remains will be taken to Missisquoi county, the former home of deceased, for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, after their marriage some three years ago, went west and settled at Moosejaw, but returned and bought the Bartlett farm here.

RECEPTION TO FORMER MARBLETON BOY.

Marbleton, Oct. 10.—(Special.) —Mr. George Bishop, a Marbleton boy, who had been a resident of Washington Territory for twenty years, and quite successful in business, was given a reception in the Town Hall on the 6th inst., where he and his good wife were presented with a congratulatory address. About 150 people were present, the larger part of whom were relatives, descendants of the pioneer settler, Captain John Bishop.

The ladies served a fine collation to the larger company, and the light fantastic toe kept time to excellent music furnished by Sherbrooke musicians.

Mr. Bishop returns to Everett, on Puget Sound, where he says the grass is always green and where practically the flowers bloom all the year round. It must be healthy and enjoyable there as Mr. George is in robust health and portly enough to be a Senator.

LEAVING FOR THE WEST.

Johnville, Oct. 10.—(Special.) —Mr. and Mrs. Alton Lindsay, accompanied by their nephew, Alvan A. Lindsay, left Monday morning for the milder climes of the western coast. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay will proceed to Albany, Oregon, where they intend to spend the winter. Mr. A. A. Lindsay goes to Berkley, Cal.

On Friday evening, the 6th, the young people of the community assembled at the home of Mrs. Emma J. Lindsay to bid a pleasant farewell and a safe journey to Alvan. The friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Lindsay, to the number of 30 also invaded their home, and after an evening of pleasant social intercourse several present voiced the good wishes of all for their host and hostess, heartily expressing the wish that their winter in Oregon may prove beneficial to health and fruitful in enjoyment, and that a safe return to home and dear ones might be theirs. All joined in singing "God be with you till we meet again."

LADIES' SHOES

THIS business includes every detail of ladies' wear. Shoes have been added so as to make it a complete ladies' store. We sell shoes on their merits—which means style, and quality, and value.

Thanks to right buying, these values are very exceptional. We won't say cheapest, for cheapness is not always economy in shoe buying.

A maker can take 25c or 50c out of a shoe and you would never know it until you found it out in the wearing.

Such a thing as that couldn't very well happen to

because the maker and ourselves are more interested in selling you the second pair than we are the first.
